HOLD CHOIR SINGER ON SERIOUS CHARGE

Director of Religious Instruction in Newton, Mass., Has Him Arrested.

New York, Oct. 14.—Oliver Sovereign, 21, of Joplin, Mo., reputed graduate of the University of Missouri, dishwasher in a restaurant on week-days and choir-singer in a fashionable church on Sundays, was being held in default of $1,000 bail today on a charge preferred by Miss Thelma Louise Bishop, director of religious instruction in Newton, Mass.

Sovereign, said to come from a good family in Missouri, was arrested last night from his private job in the restaurant kitchen. He emphatically denied the charge, stating that he had been friendly with Miss Bishop, in whose church he sang at his room when he returned last night from his private job in the restaurant kitchen.

RUTH ELDER AND CO-PILOT TO REACH AZORES TOMORROW

Ruth Elder May Make Million From Flight

New York, Oct. 14.—With her sudden and dramatic leap into the limelight of heroism, Miss Ruth Elder, daring aviatrix, today became the potential earner of a million dollars from newspapers, book, motion picture, vaudeville and lecture contracts, provided she chooses to reap from her exploit the golden harvest which Col. Lindbergh refused to reap after his epoch-making flight.

Various vaudeville chains admitted today that they were prepared to offer Miss Elder contracts for appearances after her return to the United States. Vincent Lopez said he had cabled the aviatrix an offer of $10,000 a week to appear in his new night club, Casa Lopez.

PRAISE AND BLAME FOR RUTH'S FLIGHT Men Say It Was Great and Women Declare It a Foolish Undertaking.

New York, Oct. 14.—Praise and criticism were expressed today in the wake of the dramatic flight of Miss Ruth Elder and her pilot, George Haldeman, whereas leaders in aviation were lauding the pretty girl's courage, some members of her own sex characterized her undertaking as "foolhardy" and "unnecessary."

"It was a remarkable flight at a time of two-year when the Atlantic abounds with storms," said Clarence Chamberlain, who flew to Germany with Charles A. Levine. "Miss Elder has real nerve and Haldeman is a fine pilot."

Dr. Katherine M. Davis, a leader in the field of sociology, termed the flight a "mistake." "There is no woman alive today that I know of who is equipped for such a flight," she said. "I cannot see where she accomplished anything new or better than the first trans-Atlantic flight, because it was over a course new to airplanes."

STATE'S APPLE CROP IS NOT SUFFICIENT Its 320,887 Trees Furnish But 16 Per Cent of the Demand For This Fruit.

New Haven Conn., Oct. 14.—Connecticut has 320,887 apple trees in its commercial orchards, with New Haven possessing 90,777, Hartford county 12,872, Fairfield county 53,407, Middlesex 26,761, Litchfield 25,289, Windham 19,584, New London 18,264 and Tolland 14,043. These trees yield 208,239 barrels of apples a year, of which 172,924 are put into commercial use.

Such are the conclusions of a survey of the state's apple industry issued by the Connecticut Agricultural Experiment station here.

Not Enough Fruit. With 172,924 barrels of apples to sell each year Connecticut's apple raisers are able to supply only 16.2 per cent of the demand in the state. New York furnishes 40.9 per cent of the apples eaten in this state while western apples care for 38.6 per cent of the demand. Other New England states and the south each supply about three per cent of the demand.

Baldwins Lead. The survey shows that Connecticut uses just over one million barrels of apples a year. Baldwins lead in popularity both with the growers of apples and with consumers of apples in Connecticut.

Another Swims Channel. London, Oct. 14.—For the third time within a month an Englishwoman has swam the English channel.

The latest woman to achieve success over the trail blazed by Gertrude Ederle last year, is Mrs. Ivy Gill, 24-year-old stenographer of Sheffield, England. She emerged from the channel on the English side soon after midnight this morning, having made the swim in fifteen hours and ten minutes.

Airplane Burns Up From Overheated Engine When Attempt is Made to Salvage It—Flyers Not Yet Decided Upon Where They Will Go After Being Landed—Flew Into Storm Wednesday Night and Battled Against It For Hours—Failure of Oil Supply and Break in Pipe Forced Them to Descend When They Sighted Steamer.

Aboard S. S. Barendrecht, Bound for the Azores, Oct. 14.—The rescue of Ruth Elder and Captain George Haldeman was effected after two daring flyers had battled for hours against a terrific storm in the skies.

Both Worried. Miss Elder says very frankly that both were worried for fear they would not be able to bring their plane through the storm.

Yester morning the two flyers, seeking to get out of the storm area, turned seaward and were headed toward the coast of Spain when their oil-line failed.

Came Down. With their gauges showing a failure in oil supply and their engine heating rapidly, Miss Elder and Haldeman knew they could not keep the ship in the air long, and as soon as they sighted the Barendrecht they came down.

The landing of the aeroplane upon the sea by the two flyers was executed safely and was a fine bit of aerial maneuvering, but when attempts were made to salvage the aeroplane it exploded and burned up. It is believed that the overheated engine caused the explosion.

Miss Elder and Haldeman came down after they had been in the air for thirty hours and had flown nearly 3,000 miles, according to the best estimates they are able to make.

WORLD AWAITS NEWS. New York, Oct. 14.—The attention of two continents today was centered upon a little tank steamer which was plowing through the troughs of the Atlantic ocean towards the Azores.

On that steamer were Miss Ruth Elder, daring aviatrix and her co-pilot, Captain George Haldeman, miraculously saved from death in the ocean wastes when their plane, "The American Girl," was forced down in a flight that was to have terminated at Paris.

The steamer, the Barendrecht, was expected to reach the Azores tomorrow morning. Meanwhile today, efforts were being made to get in touch with the small Dutch Oil Tanker by wireless and were rushing out to meet her in order to supplement that meagre announcement yesterday that the fliers had been rescued and the plane burned.

Small Wireless. The Barendrecht carries only a small wireless and was unable to get in touch with shore stations; the news had to be relayed by three other vessels. The Barendrecht was setting a course to Baytown, Texas, but after picking up Miss Elder and Haldeman changed her course towards the Azores.

Had Given Up Hope. Crowds waiting at Le Bourget field to greet the winsome aviatrix who was going to show Paris what the American girls were, had about given up hope for the plane.

A message signed by Miss Elder, stating "Both Haldeman and I Okay," was supplemented by a radio from the ship's master, as follows: "Barendrecht saved crew of flying engine NX 1384 from New York to Paris. Both well. Engine destroyed by fire while saving. Trying to land both at Azores. Position 43.34 North, 21.33 West." This was the first word from the fliers after a foreboding silence of 38 hours.

A delayed radio from the steamer American Banker had given the world news of the American Girl five hours after the ship sighted the plane approximately 450 miles out to sea.

Although 25 other liners and 75 lesser vessels dotted the ship lanes over which Haldeman had plotted his course, and passengers and crews kept an alert watch for the American Girl, the plane was swallowed in oblivion until Haldeman set her down alongside the Barendrecht.

RUTH ELDER SMASHED TWO WORLD'S RECORDS. New York, Oct. 14.—Although failing in its ultimate goal, Ruth Elder's dramatic bid to be the first woman to fly across the Atlantic succeeded in smashing two records, one of which is shared by her pilot-navigator, George Haldeman.

The fliers took their plane, American Girl, over a 2,574-mile trans-oceanic course, exceeding by 181 miles the previous flight over water established by Lieutenants Hogenberger and Maitland in their flight from San Francisco to Hawaii.

To Miss Elder also goes the record of the longest flight ever made by a woman.

today by the steamer's agents in Rotterdam. It said: "We are due at the Azores Saturday morning when we will land the rescued aviators."

The Barendrecht, a small 2,000-ton craft, radio equipment of which is apparently only of comparatively short range, sent out a message of rescue to be relayed by vessels with more powerful sending equipment, at 8:06 yesterday morning. Time required in transmission, however, delayed delivery in Paris until 5:35 P. M., or 12:35 P. M. New York time.

HUSBAND HAPPY. Balboa, Canal Zone, Oct. 14.—Lyle Womack, husband of Ruth Elder, the daring trans-Atlantic aviatrix, who was rescued at sea yesterday after her plane had been forced down in the ocean, today was awaiting further word from his wife before deciding whether to sail to the United States to meet her or await her arrival here.

Womack was here visiting his parents. He received a message from his wife after a sleepless night and day of haunting the cable office for news of her.

"I've been through seventeen hells," he said, "but now I am the happiest man in the world. I have cabled my love to the bravest girl in the world. We expect to live in the Canal Zone when Ruth comes back but I will probably go to New York to meet her and accompany her here. I am sorry she did not make Paris. I was behind her attempt a thousand per cent."

Womack said he was acquainted with Captain Haldeman. Miss Elder's co-pilot and knew him to be a fine man.

PRESS COMMENT. Paris, Oct. 14.—The French press united today in rejoicing over the rescue of Miss Ruth Elder and George Haldeman, who are on their way to the Azores aboard the tanker Barendrecht after being picked up at sea when their plane, American Girl, fell.

All papers term the rescue "a miracle." But many of them condemn Miss Elder for "imprudence." Le Quotidien quotes M. Corbu, French flier who was one of those planning a Paris-to-New York flight, as saying: "An attempt to cross the North Atlantic at this season is like committing suicide. Let us hope that Mrs. Grayson will profit by this experience of Miss Elder's."

"Miss Elder's heroic attempt ended happily in that there was no tragedy. Her rescue was a veritable miracle. It was much the same as with Columbus, who, 435 years ago, cried out: 'Land!' after all the others, hours before, had consigned themselves to God."

Should Give Up. Petit Journal believes that Miss Elder should give up flying. The paper said: "In proportion that Col. Lindbergh's flight was well prepared just that much was Miss Elder's flight unprepared. She is a beautiful girl. But she should content herself with beauty prizes and keep out of aviation."

"Miss Elder is brave," commented the Journal. "There can be no doubt of that. But sometimes it takes more courage to wait than it does to start."

GERMANY'S OPINION. Berlin, Oct. 14.—Although German public opinion demands a cessation of trans-Atlantic flights, owing to the poor performance of German planes, the Heinkel hydroplane, piloted by Horst Merz, hopped off at 12:13 this afternoon from Wilhelmshaven for Amsterdam.

CHICAGO IN FIGHT OVER KING GEORGE

Mayor Charges School Supt. Of Being Pro-British In His Work.

Chicago, Oct. 14.—The shadow of George III, King of England during the Revolutionary days in America, was projected into the trial of Superintendent of Schools William McAndrew here today.

McAndrew, political enemy of Mayor William Hale Thompson, is charged with insubordination and permitting alleged pro-British textbooks to be used in Chicago schools.

John J. Gorman, former congressman, testifying before the school board, bitterly scored McAndrew for approving the David Saville Muzzey "History of America" which he charged eliminated illustrious deeds by American patriots and apologized for the "tyrannical and despotic" actions of George Washington.

"The Muzzey textbook is utterly unfit to be put into the hands of our school children," Gorman said. "Our children are growing into British subjects as a result of a perusal of this book. Three states, Washington, Wisconsin and California, have passed legislation against the book. Superintendent McAndrew not only approved Muzzey's book but defended it under fire.

"Such passages as this are contained in that history: 'The capital of Massachusetts was the center of vulgar sedition where King George's enemies went about in homespun and his friends in tar and feathers. 'The Boston Tea Party was the last straw. The Colonists had added insult to injury.'"

Continental Congress was a group of quarrelsome pettifogging lawyers and mechanics. George Washington was termed by Muzzey a dictator, a tyrant and a despot, and was called in the book the "stepfather of his country," Gorman charged.

The trial of McAndrew resulted from the promise of J. Lewis Gath, president of the board of education, informing Mayor Thompson he would have the superintendent ousted for his anti-American attitude. Thompson, whose motto has been "America First," has charged that McAndrew's conduct in the textbook in New York while McAndrew was head of the textbook division of the public schools there. The book was finally banned, Thompson declared after formal complaint had been lodged against it.

In concluding his testimony, Gorman said: "That book contains a mass of lies, vile lot of pro-British propaganda which scorned the high motives of American colonialism, sullied their achievements in battle and presented only the British side of the controversy."

McAndrew's trial will be resumed here next Wednesday.

The couple in court today were married at Thompsonville in 1923, Mrs. Bennett said. The Bennetts disappeared in July and were arrested more than a year ago in Pennsylvania while traveling with a small circus. Police say they sold the loot from the Baker home in their concession with the show.

The poor showing of the German plane has caused great chagrin in Germany, where it is maintained that the German air lines are the best in Europe. Lufthansa, the German commercial air service, has announced the inauguration of aerial freight lines next spring.

Los Angeles, Calif., Oct. 14.—Injecting an element of mystery into the death of Mrs. Marion Halenbeck Wall, wealthy member of an old New Jersey family, Coroner Frank A. Nance stopped plans for cremation of the body here today and ordered a chemical analysis of vital organs.

Mrs. Wall had been married three times, and left an estate valued at more than $500,000. Her last husband, to whom she was married a year ago in Santa Barbara, is said to have been several years her junior.

She arrived at Newport at 10:47 last night where she moored to the U. S. mastship Patoka. The dirigible is expected back here late this afternoon.

AGENT HAS GROUND FOR FURTHER PROBE

Rockville Girl Tells Hartford Official Story Concerning An Alleged Suicide.

(Special to The Herald) Rockville, Oct. 14.—"It is my honest opinion," said Investigator Williams of the Connecticut Humane Society, who was in the Rockville police court this morning, "that had a real investigation been made and all the facts secured, Joseph Wanda and Mrs. Agnes Czerwonka would have been found to have more knowledge of the death of Agnes's husband, Joe, who was found dead in his home on West Main street on last July, than the police believe."

Today's Part Joseph was charged with carnal knowledge of a female under sixteen years of age. One of Mrs. Czerwonka's daughters who was only 14 years of age was named and on another charge he is accused of having had a daughter who had come down stairs. It was also insinuated that Wanda was also present when the girl who had awakened came down the stairs and saw her father dead.

The Mother's Charge In the writs that were read today, the mother, Agnes, is also charged with adultery and also of having abetted the relations of her fourteen year old daughter with Wanda. Both were arrested last night. In court this morning, Town Clerk John B. Thomas, who has been their adviser in many other matters appeared and asked that the cases be continued until he had had ample opportunity to carry on a further conversation with the man and woman. The cases of both went over until Saturday morning. Wanda was held under $2,000 bonds and Agnes, the wife of the dead man and the mother of the daughter who is also named in the writ, is being held under a bond of $1,000.

Story of the Case Agnes and Joseph Czerwonka owned and lived in a three family house located on West Main street. They would visit Joseph Wanda and his family in Parkerville in Manchester, the place they visited being known as the Smith property, located just across the railroad tracks from the paper mills in that vicinity. It is claimed that Agnes had a daughter named Wanda and Wanda and that as a result he with forced landings between Germany and Lisbon.

There was trouble soon after the family had moved in. It is claimed that the actions of Wanda and Agnes became such as to the talk of the neighborhood. To cap the climax early last spring Agnes and Wanda went away and there was trouble when Agnes returned home about ten days later.

The relations of Wanda, who also returned, were continued. Wanda spending most of the time in Agnes's home while her husband was away at his work. Now it is claimed that the youngest daughter became aware of this and was being paid $2 each week and told what she knew and she did not do so, and it was she who came down stairs the morning that her father was found dead. She at that time said that her mother came down the stairs with her, but now it is said that she will tell about finding her mother and Wanda in the kitchen where her father was dead and also about not being able to get into the kitchen and that she had gone out on the veranda and crawled through a window.

It was at 4:30 that the body was found and a call was sent to Dr. Metcalf who arrived and finding Joe called Dr. Rockwell, the medical examiner, who arrived about 6 o'clock in the morning. The matter was referred to Judge John Fahy, the coroner for this section, and he at once called in the State police, but not much was done of the investigation here.

LOCAL GROWER BEAT THE POTATO BLIGHT

L. L. Grant Will Get 20,000 Bushels, From 55 Acres; Demonstration Next Week.

Though the potato blight which a few weeks ago worked such havoc with the crops in New England did not miss Manchester and vicinity but ruined many a fine field of tubers in this vicinity, Louis L. Grant, the biggest potato grower in this township, has come through due to thorough and effective spraying. Mr. Grant will realize an excellent crop of about 20,000 bushels on his 55 acres.

Once a week for thirteen weeks, Mr. Grant sprayed his potatoes to keep them immune from the blight. About half of his crop has been harvested. On Thursday of next week, October 20, there will be a big demonstration of potato machinery on his property which is expected to attract close to 400 farmers from all parts of the state. Manufacturing concerns have promised to send machinery there for demonstration which will be made on the old Gopher Farm, now owned by Mr. Grant, north of Wapping Center on the road to South Windsor.

WET-DRY FIGHT TO BE SLOW IN THIS CONGRESS

Forensic Sharpshooting With Little Legislation Is Present Outlook.

Washington—The perennial congressional wet and dry fight likely will be confined to forensic sharpshooting on floors of both houses and in the committee rooms this year. Little new legislation is looked for.

Drys are well satisfied with the present laws on the statute books and have no extensive legislative program to offer. Their only efforts are expected to be attempts to lighten existing law to curb liquor smuggling and halt diversion of industrial alcohol. They believe that the Lowman-Doran prohibition organization should be given a chance before any tinkering is done.

The wets, pressing hard to create an issue out of prohibition for the 1928 elections, will again offer a multitude of bills, ranging from repeal of the 18th amendment to amendment of the Volstead act to permit manufacture of beer and wines "not intoxicating in fact."

Try To Soft Pedal

The head of the Republican and Democratic parties want to soft pedal prohibition in the 1928 presidential campaigns. The Republicans probably will be able to do it as they did in 1924, but the Democrats may find a tartar, especially in the nominating convention where Governor Al Smith of New York, the symbol of wetness in the party, will be the leading candidate.

"I believe the friends of prohibition are on the whole well satisfied with Dr. Doran's administration as prohibition commissioner," says Rep. Hudson (R) of Michigan, a House dry leader. I believe Congress will back him up.

"There may be some slight amendments sought to existing enforcement measures, but I doubt if there will be any demand for important legislation which can be classed as wholly dry legislation."

"My district would vote for prohibition stronger than ever. The labor vote is dryer than ever before. My district includes Flint, Pontiac, Lansing and Highland Park, all industrial cities which are well satisfied with prohibition."

Dry Leaders' Views

Senator Sheppard (D) of Texas, the Senate dry leader, said:

"I am satisfied with the present laws. I feel that the law is being enforced as effectively as any other law. Congress is predominantly dry and there will be no chance whatever for wets to make a successful attack on any part of the prohibition law."

The wets in the House will have a new leader. He is Rep. Linthicum (D) of Maryland, who replaces Rep. Hill (R) of Maryland, who was defeated in a race for the Senate.

The Anti-Saloon League will meet here on December 12, shortly after congress convenes, to draft a legislative program, and to pick a permanent successor to the late Wayne B. Wheeler.

Dr. F. Scott McBride, general superintendent, who is now doing Wheeler's work, said:

"In our legislative work we shall continue to protect and promote the interest of prohibition. In doing so we shall maintain the high standards of fairness, honesty, sincerity and courtesy established by Mr. Wheeler."

CELL FOR MACHINERY

Manchester, Eng.—The strangest padded cell in the world has been built here, not for human occupancy, but as a place to test high-speed machinery to the breaking point. Cushioned walls of reinforced concrete nine feet thick protect observers from flying parts that break apart under terrific speed. Camera lenses peer through holes to watch the tests.

DIDN'T LIKE BABIES

South Bend, Ind.—When his 8-month-old son persisted in crying, Herbert Stevens struck the child in the face. "I never did like babies," he told the judge before whom he was haled. "You won't see any for 230 days," retorted the judge, and Stevens went to jail.

JAZZ MAKES AMERICA NEXT TO GERMANY IN MUSIC DEVELOPMENT

Boston.—American jazz music with its shrieks and blare has helped make this nation second only to Germany in musical development.

From the noted conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, Serge Koussevitsky, came this tribute to the popular music writers. Mr. Koussevitsky had just returned from a four months' tour of Europe in the course of which he had studied musical progress at close range.

"The general public of England and France I found to be very undeveloped musically," said Mr. Koussevitsky. "Outside of a few in London and several in Paris with an odd one in other cities, there were few orchestras in the two countries. Compare that with the United States where we boast of no less than fifteen first-class orchestras."

Mr. Koussevitsky had much praise for the advance of music in Germany.

Several new compositions were brought back from Europe by Mr. Koussevitsky, among them a new choral oratorio by Stravinsky written in Italian, called "Opedius Rex." This masterpiece has never been heard in the United States.

Two presidents of the United States were tailors by profession. They were Millard Fillmore and Andrew Johnson.

MODERN BOOKS
CALLED FILTHY
BY CHURCHMEN

Pamphlet Makes Bitter Attack on Present Day Literature in Schools.

Tallahassee, Fla.—A furor has been kindled at Tallahassee and throughout Southern halls of learning as a result of the appearance here of a pamphlet, published by a committee of churchmen, entitled "Psycho-analysis or Filthy Dreamers." The pamphlet is a bitter attack upon present-day methods of scientific teachings and the presence of books by Freud, Chase, Allport, Ross, Kroeber, Ellib, Well, George Bernard Shaw, Rivers, Anderson Sinclair, and other modern writers, in the libraries of the Florida State College for Women at Tallahassee and the University of Florida at Gainesville. "We are wondering just how such books can escape censorship and how they can be sent through the mails," the pamphlet declares in reference to psychoanalysis, sociology and psychology text and reference books. "The wonder of it all is that men and women can be found in the teaching profession who would even handle such books, much less teach them. One would readily conclude that any gentleman after reading would question his own respectability, at least, until such time as he could take a bath," it said.

Fear for Civilization
"It goes without saying that no lady with any of the pure instincts of her sex would suffer her eyes to feast upon such puritid stuff much less pass it on to those of her sex whose minds are supposed to be pure and free from such things. Well may we ask, whither are we tending?" "If such matters are to be taught, doomed." "That the greater percentage of books used in our state institutions of higher learning in the state of Florida, as well as throughout the nation, are the product of infidel writers is not far to seek," the preface of the pamphlet says. "That the same holds equally true as to instructors in these same institutions is likewise most convincing." "In a recent survey made by Prof. Leury, himself a modernist, of Bryn Mawr, it was found that of 5,500 teachers of science, 67 percent of the teachers of physics, 77 percent of the teachers of history, 80 percent of the teachers of biology, 83 percent of the teachers of sociology and 86 percent of the teachers of psychology had given up the Bible as God's word and the Saviour as the real redeemer.

Character of Books.
"The character of the books in use in our institutions of higher learning, together with so large a percentage of infidel instructors 'who know not God,' constitute the greatest menace with which our state and nation has ever been confronted. Most of the small booklet is composed of quotations from psychological and psycho-analytical text reference books to which the church committee objects. The quotations, for the most part, are essentially sexual in nature and are "quite outspoken." University officials declare that the books contain nothing that students should not know.

AVERAGE AMERICAN
NINE TIMES AS RICH
AS AVERAGE GERMAN

Berlin.—The average American is nine times richer than the average German, according to figures just published by the Federal Statistical Bureau here which reckon the per capita wealth in Germany at 1,273 marks. This sum equalling about $310.00, compares with $2,918 which the U. S. Census Bureau gives as the average wealth per capita of Americans. "Wiesbaden, most fashionable of Germany's health resorts, proves to be also the wealthiest city in the country. The Statistical Bureau calculates that the per capita wealth in Wiesbaden is 3,768 marks whereas Berlin, a poor second, shows but 1,581 marks per head of population. Nevertheless, Berlin has the greatest number of millionaires, boasting 225 persons who pay taxes on fortunes of more than 1,000,000 marks, in the whole of Germany the first eight cities have a total of 764 millionaires. Next to Berlin comes Hamburg with 155, Leipzig with 98, Frankfurt and Mainz with 88, Munich with 79, Cologne with 75, Dusseldorf with 63 and Dresden with 51.

MANCHESTER WAITS FOR "BEAU GESTE"

Epic Film Comes to State Sunday For Four-Day Run - No Price Advance.

"Beau Geste," that masterpiece of the screen, bigger even than the "Ten Commandments," comes to the State theater Sunday for a four-day run. The prices which Manager Sanson will charge at each showing are away below prices in similar places where the film has been shown.

The evening prices will be 40 cents for orchestra seats, 30 cents for the balcony and 15 cents for children. Matinee prices will be 15 and 25 cents.

"Beau Geste" is worth the fortune Paramount poured into its filming. It is worth the months spent by Herbert Brenon and two thousand men among the scorched sand dunes of the Great American Desert.

This story of the French Foreign Legion, breathes an immortal flame that any director might forfeit his life to obtain. The action hinges on the wonderful devotion of three young Englishmen, each of whom decamps from home in order that the blame for the theft of a famous sapphire may fall on him although he believes one of his brothers to be guilty.

"MONEY TALKS"

Will Rogers having offered to bet William Randolph Hearst $5,000 that President Coolidge will run again in 1928, Mr. Hearst has taken him up, with the completely superfluous condition that he be allowed to bet $10,000 against Mr. Rogers' $5,000.

The surprising thing about this matter is that two persons with any amount of newspaper space at their command, and very large audiences waiting for anything they may say, should have so little regard for the value of printer's ink as a medium of argumentation that they fall back on the recourse of the fust and the inarticulate, "Money talks!"

As a matter of fact, money, as a clinching point in any controversy, generally talks like a blithering fool.

CONNECTICUT APPLES

An interesting and highly important bulletin on the Connecticut Apple Industry has just been issued by the Storrs Agricultural Experiment Station. It is packed with information of value to the present or prospective grower of apples but embodies, too, several salient economic points of more general interest.

Here, then, would seem to be a pretty complete demonstration of the necessity of a co-operative marketing system. If the products of Connecticut apple orchards were better standardized as to grading and packing, and if they were pooled in the hands of a few co-operatives whose depots could supply either the jobbers or the retailers promptly, dependably and at a properly adjusted price, there is little doubt that the apple growing industry could very quickly be raised to at least twice its present importance—and, because of the celebrity of Connecticut apples as to quality, perhaps to five or ten times its volume and its profit.

CANCER FIGURES

A declaration by Dr. Frederick L. Hoffman, consulting statistician of the Prudential Life Insurance Co., to the effect that deaths from cancer are increasing and that there is no value in any of the methods of control now in use, seems to us to need a little amplification.

There is not the slightest question of the accuracy of the figures as transcription of vital statistics. But the very important question arises: How far are the cancer statistics of 1906 to be depended on? How do we know that the 74.5 given as the proportion of deaths due to this disease was correct, or anywhere near correct? Is it not true that 20 years ago a very considerable number of deaths, attributed to other causes, were in all probability the result of cancer? Is it not a well known fact that until very recent years physicians were impudently to hide the fact that cancer was the cause of death—and that they frequently complied?

Is it not also a fact that, 20 years ago, many cases of cancer that would now surely be identified escaped positive diagnosis altogether?

It is possible, of course, that deaths by cancer are on the increase. On the other hand it is also entirely possible that the increase is merely apparent and the result of knowing more about what actually causes the death.

THIMBLERIGGING

It will surprise a good many persons, who have been accustomed to read the "mugging" and fingerprinting of all sorts of suspects who fall into the hands of the police of many states, that Mrs. Margaret Lilljendahl and Willis H. Beach, charged with the murder of the woman's husband in New Jersey, refused to allow a state trooper to take either their photographs or their finger marks and that they are acknowledged to be within their legal rights in so doing.

Another question that is being raised is whether or not an identification of Beach as a man seen driving a car from the scene of the murder will hold, doubt on this point being raised by the fact that the identifying witness saw the driver through a glass and the claim that the courts of several states have held such an identification to be inadmissible.

We have the most sublime faith that the day will sooner or later come when the processes of law will be stripped of such nonsensicalities as these—when it will become the business of a trial court to ascertain the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth, with none of the entanglements and obstructions with which the administration of justice is at present surrounded. But the time is not yet.

WONDER WHY

To the Grand Rapids Railway company the General Electric company has awarded a prize which it has offered to the smaller city street railroad making the greatest improvement in its condition.

The rehabilitation stunts which enabled the Grand Rapids concern to get at defiance all predictions of the eclipse of the trolley by the electric bus consisted of the writing off of fictitious capital and unjustifiable fixed charges; the evolving of a new light weight, quiet, economical operated and attractively finished and furnished trolley car; the enlistment of the friendship and support of the populace by the giving of excellent service; the establishment of cordial relations with employes, and the making of a bonfire of the obsolete, comfortable and clattering junkheads that had done duty as public conveyances which were set ablaze by the mayor amid popular rejoicing.

In other words, the Grand Rapids Railway faced the transportation situation with at least a grain of common sense.

Among the runners up for the General Electric's prize we do not find the name of the Connecticut Company. One wonders why.

BOY CRIMINALS

Leniency toward the youthful criminal is an attribute of many persons who have scant sympathy with the crimes of adults. There is almost always pressure for the redemption rather than the severe punishment of boy offenders. No doubt it is sometimes fruitful of good results. We have just had in this state, however, a shocking illustration of the effects of setting at liberty a boy of pronounced criminal tendencies in the case of one who, after having been twice incarcerated and set free, murdered a little girl, fendishly.

Now there has been convicted of wife murder, in Philadelphia, a young man of 27. When he was fifteen in New York he shot and killed a boy companion. For that crime it was deemed adequate to give him a term in the House of Refuge, though he had been arrested five times before, the first occasion being when he was nine years old.

Here we have the working out of another instance of tender consideration for a juvenile criminal.

Coming on top of the Billadella case that of Edward Lucy would seem to provide food for thought to those good people who are prone to forget all about the good of society when they think about the good of childish criminals.

LUCK

Now that Ruth Elder and her companion, Haldeman, have had the extraordinary if not miraculous luck to be rescued from the fate that has overtaken so many transoceanic fliers this year—for which streak of good fortune everyone is, of course, devoutly thankful—it might not be a bad idea for the newspapers and press associations to top up the extent of their responsibility for such mad adventures. It is largely a matter of adjectives. The press has been employing the wrong set of words in talking about these illy-balanced individuals. It uses "brave," "courageous," "intrepid," "dauntless"—terms of admiration and encouragement—where it should be employing "foolhardy," "reckless," "unrealizing," "inconsiderate," "mad."

Never was a more hare-brained enterprise embarked on, nor one with less excuse, than the Ruth Elder flight. Such undertakings ought to be frowned on and their authors given a proper evaluation as subnormal intellectually, rather than being lionized and gushed over by the press as heroes and heroines.

Mrs. Grayson's adventure is in a somewhat different class. We have already expressed ourselves as indignantly opposed to the participation by women in such hazardous feats when they are at least no better fitted for them than are men. But in any event the Grayson expedition is a genuine experiment that is necessary to be made by someone—the passage of the ocean in a craft presumably capable of sustaining itself on the water in aviation. Let us hope that the saner adventurer has at least as good luck as the purely lunatic one.

A New Yorker in Paris

Paris, Oct. 13.—If Paris is to be described in a word, that word is "Majesty."

Dignity it has and quiet safety and all about it is a sense of individual social life, but physically the city is majestic. And it is a majesty that at first may escape, because of all that is colorful and picturesque. Stand upon the Montmartre hill and look down, with the snow white minarets of the Sacre Coeur in the foreground and you'll see a majestic city.

Go to any bridge that links the right and left banks of the Seine and you'll see majestic church spires, majestic lines of old Gothic buildings, and majestic dwellings that line the banks. The Champs Elysees, the Louvre, the Luxemburg, the Rue de Vivoli, the gardens, the walks, the boulevards—so where you will outside the lurid frowns of the Montmartre, and you face a dignity of line and architecture for which "majestic" seems to be the only word.

Yet even as you begin to draw yourself up majestically to fit into the setting, the world that goes by you makes this impossible. The places have majestic antiquity, but the people have a freedom and a colorfulness that blots out the background.

Here is an entire parade of maids and men, arms about each other, openly kissing on the cheek, face a dignity of line and architecture for which "majestic" seems to be the only word.

Here are the glorious flower markets, with dazzling rows of color. Here is an Arab in native costume and here a Hindu on a balcony in a robe of emerald hue. Here are the old book sellers who line the Seine walls and who will wink at you as they point to a volume that contains naughty pictures, sage old fellows they are with broad brimmed hats, low crowned and rakish; with velvet trousers and velvet coats and workmen with gay bands of blue and red about their waists.

Here is a fellow from the American west in cowboy boots and 10-gallon hat. Here is one of those myriad little courtyards that dives back from even the most fashionable street and displays, hidden across a court of cobblestone, a perfume shop with dazzling windows. Here is another courtyard of fountains and trees and a latticed window that cries of romances past and present.

Here are buttressed walls and gates that tell of regal past, here is a push cart belt reminiscent of the New York ghetto, and here an outdoor market in the very center of a boulevard where you can buy anything from two cubes of sugar to a leg of lamb. The whole neighborhood is out with paper bags and hand-made baskets. A girl from Holland in wooden shoes lanks by.

How, then are you to remember that just ahead rise the towers of Notre Dame, or that the long, gay reaches of the Tuileries lead to majestically sprawling old edifices of stone. How, then, can you think of majesty when the world is playing so prettily in the front yard and sort of thumbing its nose at the cold dignity of stone?

WASHINGTON LETTER

This is the last of a series of four articles on the appointment of Dwight Morrow as Mexican ambassador.

By RODNEY DUTCHER

Washington. — Dwight Morrow will find Mexico in the midst of a presidential campaign which will remind him of the third term battle which would have been seen in this country had his friend Calvin Coolidge chosen to run for re-election.

The difference is that in Mexico cannot even have two successive terms, let alone three. In fact, the main surface issue of the Mexican campaign is whether a president, having served one term, should ever be re-elected as long as he lives. The question of real importance to the United States, however, is not one of re-election, but of whether the next president will be strong enough and wise enough to protect American lives and property, meet Mexico's financial obligations and guide Mexico toward the day when she will be one of our biggest export markets as a result of increased buying power.

The candidates are former President Alvaro Obregon and General Gomez. Obregon is the man whose force and diplomacy stopped the post-Diaz series of revolutions and who put the government on a comparatively sound basis before handing the reins to Calles. General Serrano, who was regarded as a presidential possibility, was slain in the uprising in Mexico City the other day.

The "no re-election" cry is directed at Obregon, principally by the followers of Gomez. These point to the 1917 constitution which stipulated that a president should never ("nunca") be re-elected. The Obregon folks say that this only meant a president couldn't succeed himself and that, anyway, the last Congress formally interpreted the law to permit non-successive re-election. The answer of the opposition is that Obregon's election might mean a return of the old days of the Diaz dictatorship, although Obregon is a liberal.

The Calles-Obregon faction had charged that Serrano and Gomez were financed by foreign oil companies. Gomez has shown marked favoritism to the oil interests during the Vera Cruz command, but Calles and Obregon were said to favor Serrano in case it appeared that Obregon can't make the grade.

In the government at Washington, there has been one group which favored Obregon and another which favored Gomez. Gomez, incidentally, has hinted that he will lead a revolution if he is not elected. Later advice are that Obregon is definitely the outstanding candidate. One reason is the fact that Mexican elections aren't like ours. Mexican politicians may be no more crooked than our own, but their methods are cruder and the party in power at Mexico City is likely to determine the result.

Obregon and Morrow ought to get along very well, principally because both of them presumably will be in a mood to compromise rather than to pursue courses of action wherefrom which both sides would lose. Obregon saved himself in the de la Huerta revolution only with arms obtained from the United States and although he has opposed the Kellogg policy, he probably will be guided by an intelligent self-interest.

Old Master's Eternal Spirit of the chainless Mind! Brightest in dungeons, Liberty thou art, For there thy habitation is the heart—The heart, which love of thee alone can bind; And when thy sons to fetters are consigned—To fetters and the lamp vault's dayless gloom—Their country conquers with their martyrdom, And Freedom's fame finds wings on every wind. Chillon! Thy prison is a holy place, And thy sad floor an altar; for 'twas trod, Until his very steps have left a trace, As if thy cold pavement were a sod, By Bonnyard! May none those marks efface! For they appeal from tyranny to George Gordon Byron: Sonnet on Chillon.

DOG TURNED TURTLE London.—A paper in India reports the following: "About 9 o'clock in the morning a motor car was passing on the Mall and met with an accident. Whilst driving at an objectionable speed, it passed touching hair to hair a cyclist, but as a bargain took the life of a dog, which was turned upside down and died."

admitted threat, a motive, the time, the place, the opportunity, the conduct, and the criminal agent."

"Those words sound strangely familiar," smiled Vance. "Didn't most of 'em fit the young lady also? . . . And you really haven't got the criminal agent, y' know. But it's no doubt floating about the city somewhere.—A mere detail, however."

"I may not have it in my hand," Markham countered. "But with a good man on watch every minute, Leacock won't find much opportunity of disposing of the weapon."

Vance shrugged indifferently. "In any event, go easy," he admonished. "My humble opinion is that you've merely unearthed a conspiracy."

"Conspiracy? . . . Good Lord! What conspiracy of circumstances, don't y' know."

"I'm glad, at any rate, it hasn't to do with international politics," returned Markham good-naturedly. He glanced at the clock. "You've been at it for work? I've a dozen things to attend to, and a couple of committees to see. . . . Why don't you go across the hall and have a talk with Ben Hanlon, and then come back at 12:30? We'll have lunch together at the Bankers' Club."

"Ben's our greatest expert on foreign extradition, and has spent most of his life chasing about the world after fugitives from justice. He'll spin you some good yarns."

"How perfectly fascinating!" exclaimed Vance, with a yawn. "But instead of taking the suggestion, he walked to the window and lit a cigaret. He stood for a while puffing at it, rolling it between his fingers, and inspecting it critically. "I know, Markham," he observed, "everything's going to pot these days. It's this silly democracy. Even the nobility is degenerating. These Regie cigarets, now; they've fallen off frightfully. There was a time when no self-respecting potentate would have smoked such inferior tobacco."

Markham smiled. "What's the favor you want to ask?"

"Favor? What has that to do with the decay of Europe's aristocracy?"

"I've noticed that whenever you want to ask a favor which you consider questionable etiquette, you begin with a denunciation of royalty."

"Observin' fella," commented Vance drily. Then he, too, smiled. "Do you want to see the Colonel Ostrander along to lunch?"

Markham gave him a sharp look. "Bigsby Ostrander, you mean? . . . Is he the mysterious colonel you've been asking people about for the past two days?"

"That's the lead. Pompous as and that he is, might prove a bit edifying, though. He's the papa of Benson's crowd, so to speak; knows all parties. Regular old scandalmonger."

"Have him along, by all means," agreed Markham. "I'll be ready at 12:30. I'll be waiting at the telephone."

"Now I'm going to tell Ben you're coming over for an hour or so."

(Monday, June 17; 12:30 p. m.)

When, at half past twelve, Markham was engaged in the grill of the Bankers' Club in the Equitable building, Colonel Ostrander was already at the bar engaged with one of Charlie's prohibition claim-broth-and-Worcester-citric-acid cocktail.

doesn't go to pieces, even when accused."

Vance shook his head hopelessly. "My dear fellow, Crile and Voronoff might have lived in vain for all of you. Manifestations of fear are the result of glandular secretions—nothing more. All they prove is that the person's thyroid is undeveloped or that his adrenals are subnormal."

"A man accused of crime, or shown the bloody weapon with which it was committed, will either smile serenely, or scream, or have hysterics, or faint, or appear dazed—according to his hormones, and irrespective of his guilt. Your theory, if I see, would be quite all right if everyone had the same amount of the various internal secretions."

"But they haven't. . . . Really, y' know, you shouldn't send a man to the electric chair simply because he's deficient in endocrines. It isn't cricket."

Before Markham could reply Swacker appeared at the door and said Heath had arrived.

The sergeant, beaming with satisfaction, fairly burst into the room. For once he forgot to shake hands. "Well, it looks like we'd got hold of something workable. I went to this Captain Leacock's apartment-house last night, and here's the straight of it:—Leacock was at home the night of the thirteenth all right; but shortly after midnight he went out, headed west—get that!—he didn't return till about quarter of one!"

"What about the hall-boy's original story?" asked Markham.

"That's the best part of it. Leacock had the boy fixed. Gave him money to swear he hadn't left the house that night. — What do you think of that, Mr. Markham? Pretty crude—huh? . . . The kid loosened up when I told him I was thinking of sending him up the river for doing the job himself."

Heath laughed unpleasantly. "And he won't spill anything to Leacock, either."

Markham nodded his head slowly. "What you tell me, Sergeant, bears out certain conclusions I arrived at when I talked to Captain Leacock this morning. Ben put a man on him when he left here, and I'm to get a report tonight. Tomorrow may see this thing through. I'll get in touch with you in the morning, and if anything's to be done, you understand, you'll have the handling of it."

When Heath had left us, Markham folded his hands behind his head and leaned back contentedly. "I think I've got the answer," he said. "The girl dined with Benson and returned to his house afterward. The captain, suspecting the fact, went out, found her there, and shot Benson."

"That would account not only for her gloves and hand-bag, but for the hour it took her to go from the Marshall to her home. It would also account for her attitude here Saturday, and for the captain's lying about the gun. . . . There, I believe, I have my case. The smashing of the captain's alibi about clinches it."

"Oh, quite," said Vance affily. "Hope springs exulting on triumphant wing."

Markham regarded him a moment. "Have you entirely forsworn human reason as a means of reaching a decision? Here we have an

The Woman's Day

We drove home through fog and rain and sleet and soggy wet leaves the other night and, wet as the proverbial drowned rats, rushed into the kitchen full of the smell of mutton stew—not even lamb, just plain, old-fashioned mutton with a kettle full of carrots and potatoes and turnips and onions and celery. "No dinner tonight," cried the master as the damp wage-earners one by one assembled, "just plain supper! Sit down while it's hot!" and we found ourselves confronted with soup bowls full of the broth before the stew proper came on.

Mutton Stew Missing

Memories wagged our tongues over the mutton stew! Each and every one of us, and even the guest in our midst, remembered days ago when on wet autumn nights mother called to a supper of hot stew. We remembered big crackly bonfires and apples and corn in the blaze; we remembered hayrack rides with a full-blown moon overhead and the fragrance of sweet hay under and on and over us. And it seems to me, that all these remembrances were called forth by that wet night's mutton stew.

Man's Pancakes

Many a joke is made about the man who tries each and every restaurant which advertises "home cooking," and who orders pancakes and stews and apple pie and all the old-fashioned dishes which he knew in his youth. There is pathos here. The man is consciously or unconsciously attempting to recapture childhood, the past, that haunting something which waffled its fragrance to us with the carrots and onions of a mutton stew.

I Want Doughnuts

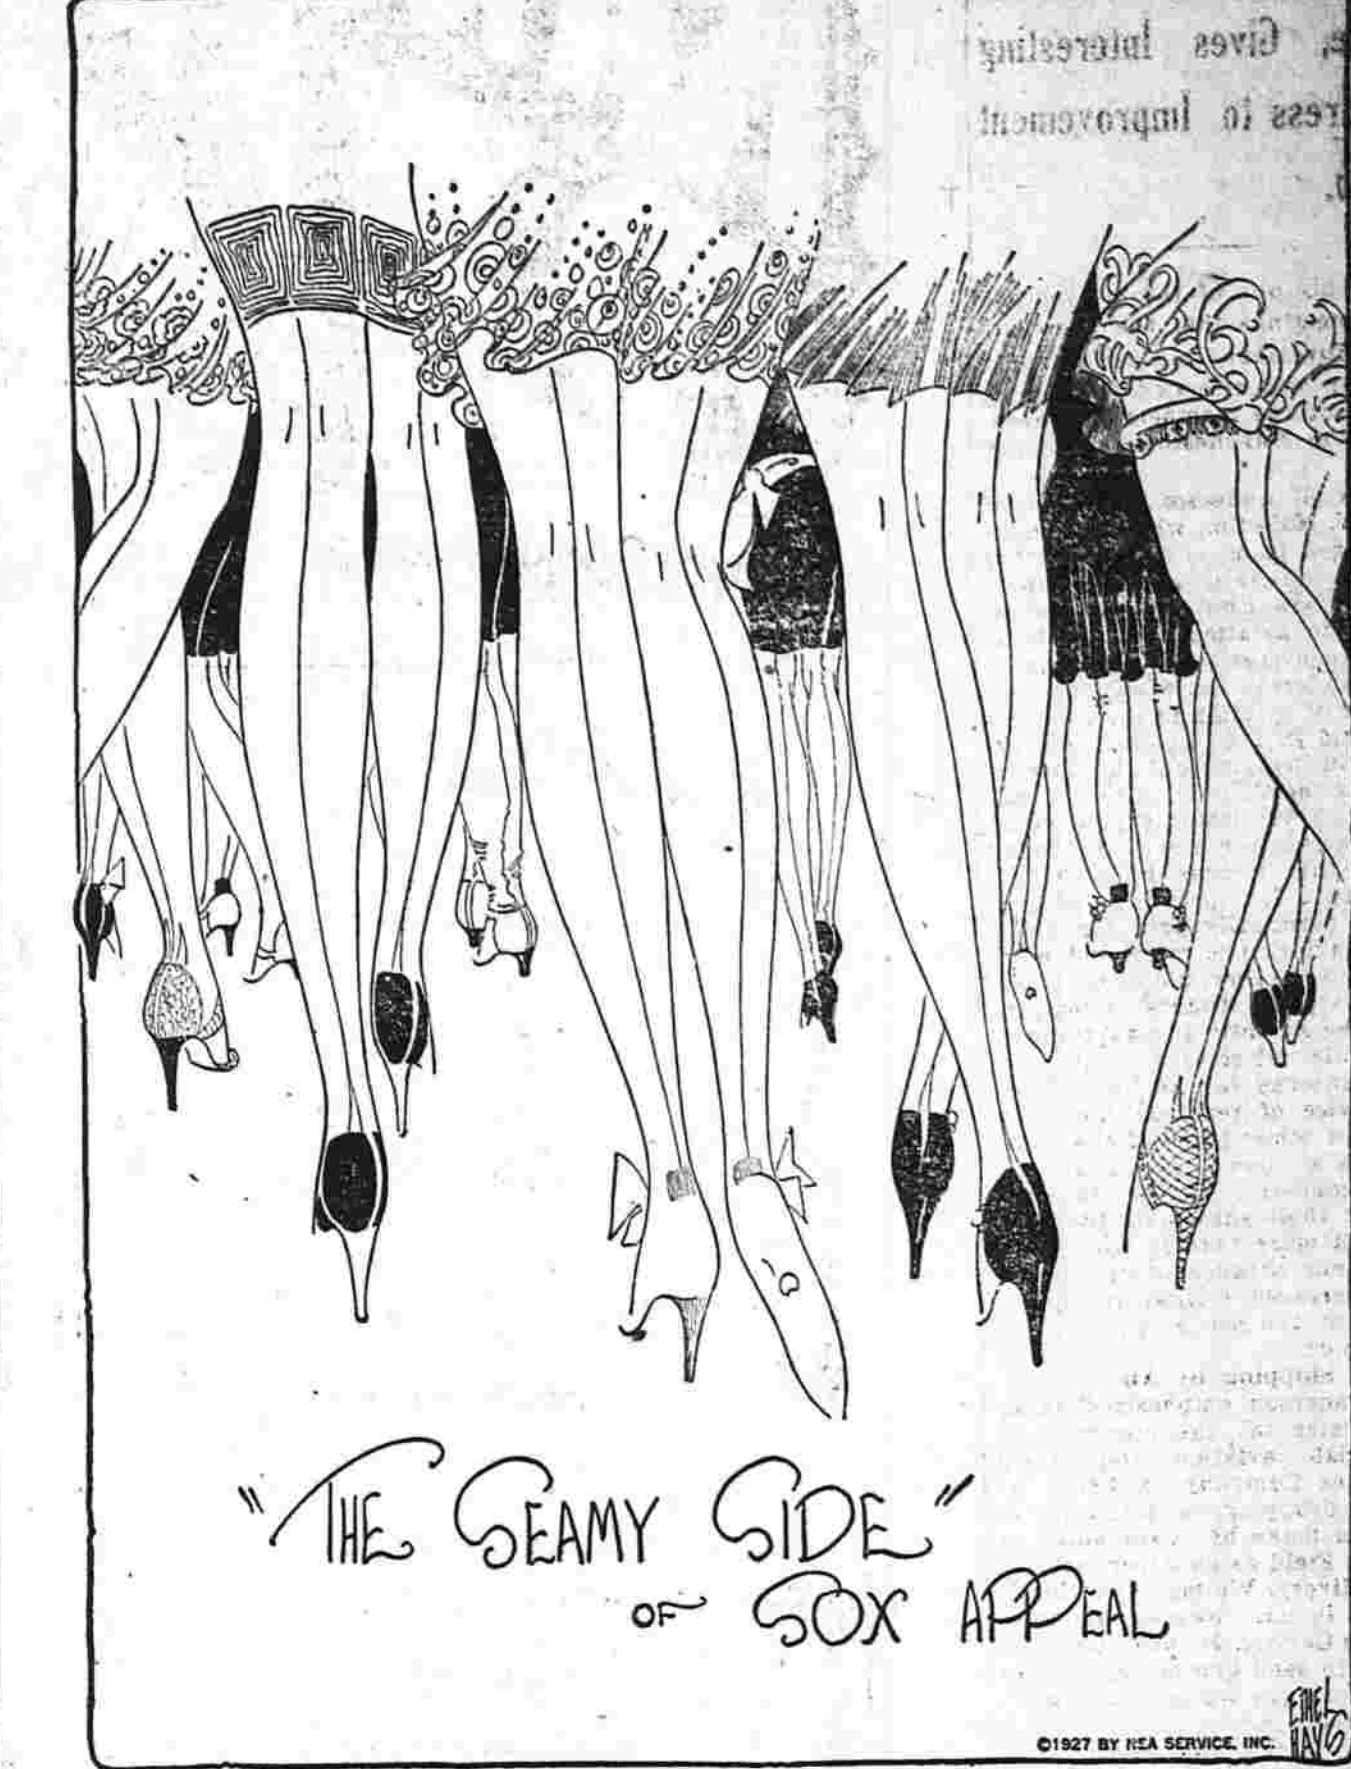

Here's a probably irrelevant postscript on the mutton stew subject, and maybe it's only an ad slipped in for the mater's own eye so that she'll make those doughnuts I've been yawning for; but isn't a divine sense which furnished mutton stew on a rainy fall night the thing which differentiates home-makers from housekeepers, and the possession of which makes home-makers as fully appreciated as they would be in any other sphere?

"Wipe It Off!"

Being on the food subject, why won't the girls at lunch counters do a really good dusting-off job when their wipe off the counter after the previous customer? I have never met one who didn't dodge crumbs and coffee drops as though they were venomous scorpions whom it would be destruction to touch. Maybe I'm boasting, but I think that if I were a counter girl I'd make such a good job of counter-dusting that I'd at least be prompted to the cashier's cage!

Miss Best Baby

Wonder who is the press agent of little Mildred Marcia Pinkfield, labeled America's Perfect Baby? Someone's exploiting that infant, for I've seen her in any number of poses in which no baby would voluntarily be photographed! The latest brilliancy of the P. A. was to photograph little Miss Mildred Marcia with Benson, and label them "A Couple of Perfect Babies." I prefer the junior member of the firm myself. I'm not sure whether or not this is libelous, but from such photographs as I have seen I would remark that Miss America of 1927 doesn't say an awful lot for the rest of the girls!

"PETER POCKET"

—A REAL KID

BY MARY GRAHAM BONNER

Often I have been asked to tell those who read books aloud to their small children of something that would interest little boys around seven years of age. There is a book this year that answers this question with infinite satisfaction. The story is so warmly, humanly written, its small hero so engaging and lovable and its other characters so real, that I must give "Peter Pocket" all the room this week. His author is May Justus. His illustrator Mabel Pugh, and his publisher, Doubleday, Page & Co.

Peter's home was in the Cumberland mountains. His father had been known as the Song-Maker. It was Granny Messer, poor though she was, who took him in and shared her cabin with him. Peter Pocket, who was always asking people to guess what he had in his pockets, had as many problems and hopes, dreams, worries and sorrows and joys as have all small children. One of the patronizing: "It'll get over it; the happiest time of a person's life is when he is a child." Such a person, however, could never write a book for children. Such a person could never enter into the heart of a child where joys and sorrows are just as important and just as real as ever they are to adults.

And certainly such a person could never have written "Peter Pocket" for one lives along with him in the book. One feels what he feels at all times. Peter Pocket attends school in the little mountain settlement, he learns other lessons taught by nature. He earns money, without realizing what it is all about at first, by eating an apple and having been seen by an artist, who puts his visualized subjects to good use. Add Peter, bleeds his loyal, generous little heart, puts his money to devoted helpfulness. He does know happiness in the end. His passion for music is satisfied—he loves music and the violin—almost as if it had been a real person. Often and often he longed to take it into his hands and draw bow across the strings to make them laugh and sing as they did, for the teacher. . . . Once, after he had started home, he heard the teacher begin playing and he ran back and waited under the pine tree back of the schoolhouse for a long time until at last the music stopped. Then he went home and later went to bed without milk for his supper, for there was not time to go to Uncle Tobie's after it. And this he did, not once, but many times, for he could not go away and leave the violin playing. It would have been to lose too much. And the chapter having to do with Peter Pocket's funny pie is one all children will love for its keen understanding of their feelings of pride and of loyalty at last the music stopped. Then there is the dog, too—Pickle Pup by name.

Taking it to pieces, thinking of it as a whole, I not only admire "Peter Pocket" and recommend him to parents of young seven and eight-year-olds, but I know that children will say as I do—children as it may sound in a reviewer's mouth—just love Peter Pocket."

Endearing to a Mother's Heart—'The Olive'

Dear to the heart of the mother who likes cozy comfort is the bungalow that contains space in its squat prettiness. Such a compact, livable, home is "The Olive," of dark wood with white trimmings, under a low, spreading roof.

This is the kind of a house that facilitates home-making to the N-th degree, even furnishing a bedroom on the first floor for mother's nap or to stow baby Susie, so she won't have to run up and down stairs all day long.

Of course there's a porch—and other desirables such as a breakfast nook, plenty of closet space, a great big pantry, and cute dormer windows that are irresistibly cozy with bookshelves built underneath. But down's best of all is the price—from $5,000 to $6,000.

HOW TO GIVE FIRST AID TO POISON GAS VICTIM

By DR. MORRIS FISHBEIN
Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine.

Modern industry involves a host of chemical gases of dangerous nature that frequently are developed in close proximity to the workers. Some of these when inhaled may produce death promptly, others have but transitory effects, and still others may produce irritations of the throat and lungs of considerable seriousness.

Pure air contains nitrogen and oxygen. Most air that is breathed contains also considerable amounts of carbon dioxide, the end product of breathing, some dust, and varying percentages of other gases that may exist as contaminations.

These other gases may include carbon monoxide, which is most frequent in the exhaust gas of motor cars and other engines, and in illuminating gas.

There are hundreds of other gases, some of which, like the vapors of ether, chloroform, ethylene or nitrous oxide, have the power to produce asphyxia; some of which like cyanides, are intensely poisonous.

When a person is asphyxiated by any of these gases, he should be removed immediately to fresh but

Thick Skins Often Are Assets

By Olive-Roberts Barton

I did not see "What Price Glory" until a few weeks ago.

Like Mr. Bok's nightingale, it eluded me with sly cleverness. Thus you will understand my allusion to an incident that you may have forgotten months ago.

Finally when I slipped upon it unawares, and pounced into the sixth seat of the seventh row of a certain movie theater, and the big war drama slowly unrolled itself before me. I was to learn a lesson that probably was never meant to be taught when the two veteran playwrights turned it out.

Do you remember the lieutenant who took his war too seriously and finally went to his death with the horror of it all? Not for himself but for the boys in his charge who were weeping in blood, tortured, maimed, and killed. He it was who shouted, "What Price Glory!"

Typical of life in all its stages. Sensitive natures may see things to have, but when there is punishment to be borne, a thick skin is an asset. The nature that suffers too keenly over the misfortune of others is often more of a hindrance than a help.

Women, particularly, who break under the strain of family misfortunes, are for the most part, those who have shouldered every single

F. H. ANDERSON IN FAVOR OF AIRPORT

Home From Boston Conference, Gives Interesting Address to Improvement Club.

Probably one of the most interesting meetings that the Manchester Improvement Club has yet held this year was attended by a large number of the members last evening at the Manchester Community Club.

Frank H. Anderson, manager of the J. W. Hale Co., who has recently returned from a conference of aviation officials and business heads of New England who are interested in aviation of the future, was the speaker of the evening.

Mr. Anderson stressed the importance of aviation in the commercial world in the not far distant future. In bringing out this fact he said that the Colonial Airways that a year ago was losing capital at an alarming rate per month, yet today is on the increase—in fact its equipment for operation of the lines is practically paid for. Commercial aviation is more and more coming to the fore, not that the so-called stunt flyers attempted across the Atlantic add anything to the annals of science, but that many concerns see the importance and service of reaching their customers in other parts of the country. It is a known fact today that many concerns figure that in handling their shipments the costs are much more than in past years. This is not because of the many-times increased freight rates, but because of the use of express and parcels post.

Shipping By Air
Mr. Anderson emphasized as an advance step in the progress of commercial aviation the Royal Typewriter Company a week or two ago dropping six machines of their own make by parachute at Brainard Field as an experiment of quick delivery. We may even localize this in our own community when the Carlyle, Johnson Co. used aviation to send one of its clutches to one of its far western customers when parcels post or freight would have delayed the much needed part almost a week and cause the loss of business and time in production.

In summarizing his remarks Mr. Anderson said: "New England must and is waking up to the facts of the future and I believe that every wide awake city and town are now turning their attention toward aviation. Let us not sit by the side of the road as did some of the cities when the railroad was contemplated, and say, let them come to us. You perhaps wonder why some towns did get the railroad, because they went out and hustled to get it. We can do the same thing."

Favors Airport Here
"Manchester is ideally located on the route of the air mail lines and something should be done in reference to a landing field. I do not mean that we should spend a lot of money for an airport. We are not yet ready for it, but I do say that we should seriously consider, at least, an emergency field, Connecticut has always done her part in all our state's history, in fact Major Ryan of the air forces said that Connecticut is well up in the front ranks and in front of many larger states in the promotion of aviation."

In closing Mr. Anderson said that we should consider carefully the location of such an emergency field as to accessibility by truck and automobile traffic and that the land should at least be eighty acres, with the control of surrounding property for future needs. The field might be privately owned for a brief space of time with a proviso that the town take over after a certain time period had elapsed.

Government Will Help
The government is doing as much to foster such fields through lighting them up without charge to the owners until such time as the field is taken over by the town or city. "I could go on for two hours or more giving you data on this interesting and vital subject, but time will not allow," said Mr. Anderson in conclusion.

Mr. Anderson received a rising vote of thanks from the Improvement Club members and a hearty applause for his very fine talk. The business meeting of the club was taken over by President Bailey and after the regular details taken care of Director Washburn as the Community Club's host welcomed them all to stay and take advantage of the club's facilities. A set back tournament was the center of interest for a large number of the club card enthusiasts. The prize was won by the team of Sullivan and Ulrich. A fine buffet lunch was served in the club's home-like surroundings from the tea room adjacent, and much favorable comment for such meetings was heard over the coffee and cigars. Cards, pool and general sociability followed, and the assembly did not break up until well after midnight.

PARIS CABARETS SAD AS CURFEW RINGS AT 10:30

Residents of Quarter In Complaint About Noise; Photos While Dining.

Paris.—Curfew is now rung in the so-called "Quarter" in Paris at 10:30 p. m. and cabaret owners are very sad about it. Officially, the bell does not toll until 2:00 a. m. but all music and loud noises is prohibited after the earlier hour. The real residents of the "Quarter" those who belong there year in and year out, complained to the police that the racket was unbearable. They don't like the late hours the students and artists keep—hence the curfew.

To be "snapped" while one dines is becoming more and more fashionable up on the Butte. When one goes to a smart restaurant now a photograph is taken while you are eating your soup and a finished proof offered before you have ended your dessert. Enterprising flashlight photographers are now making the rounds of the gay night restaurants in Paris and making it possible for every American to go back and show how he looked doing night life in the gay city. There may be a little method in this madness. The photographs may prove useful to the Prefect of Police in keeping track of certain people.

Imitating the music halls with their "super-revues," the circuses with their "super-clowns" and the politicians with their super-state," a novel restaurant-keeper in the capital has recently begun to advertise a delicious dish he calls "super-choucroute," that is all that is superlative of the humble sourkraut. The chef will not reveal the secrets which go into the making of this wondrous delicacy, but a mere taste proves it is one to make the late Brillat-Savarin, "super-courment," almost turn in his grave.

France's youngest professor of music, Monsieur Andre Sarnette, has just been appointed professor of organ at the French State School of Music. He has pronounced views on music and intends to put them in practice. He hates the violin and does not understand why it is called the "king of instruments." He thinks that music should approximate more and more closely to a purely mathematical expression and looks forward to the time when there will be no more human performers, but when a whole orchestra will be merely one great machine.

A wig-maker on the Left Bank has just hung out the following sign: "Coiffure For Women, Hair-cut and Trimming, Shaves."

While waiting for a train at a small junction recently, a French farmer decided to sit on a grassy bank in a nearby field. When he later he discovered that he had been sitting on an ant-hill and had carried a number of the little insects with him.

He was alone in the compartment and nobody could see him, so he decided to undress and shook his clothes out of the window. Just then the train gave a jerk and his trousers were shaken from his hands. At the next station three women tried to enter but he implored them to find another seat. They didn't understand the predicament and finally the station-master intervened and the poor gentleman was locked up in a waiting room. An hour elapsed before it was realized that he had been the innocent victim of a mistake. Someone then loaned him a pair of trousers so he could take the next train home.

The white population of the world is estimated to increase at the rate of about 5,000,000 every year.

400 GREAT MEN DID BEST WORK AT AGE OF 50

Leaders of Modern World Reach Height of Ability Between 60 and 70.

Chicago.—Four hundred of the greatest men in history performed their best work at the average age of fifty. Modern world leaders reach the height of their ability between the ages of sixty and seventy. This was the analysis made here by Dr. W. A. Newman Dorland, Chicago surgeon, who has summarized the lives of 400 historical men. Included in the number are such men as Lincoln, Washington Darwin, Huxley, Shakespears, Newton, Booth, Michael Angelo, Morse, Balzac, Emerson and Milton.

The height in the careers of the 400 as found by Dr. Dorland, according to occupation was: physicians and chemists, age 41; poets, inventors and dramatists, age 44; novelists, age 46; explorers and soldiers, age 47; musical composers and actors, age 48; ministers and artists, age 50; essayists and reformers, age 51; physicians, surgeons and statesmen, age 52; philosophers and mathematicians, age 55; historians, age 57; naturalists and judges, age 58.

Average Span
"All of the 400 are dead," Dr. Dorland stated. "Many of them, Poe, Keats and Byron, for example, died in their youth. The average span of life has been lengthened from 35 to 56 years in the last 30 years. I cannot strike an exact average for the best work of the world leaders now living because the world does not yet feel able to judge what is the best work of each."
"But we do know, however, that corporations and universities who tertre their men at the age of 60 are wasting their best brains.

"The man of 60 can succeed as well as the man of 30 if he keeps his health, his optimism and his interest."

"Roughly I would say that 85 per cent of the great things accomplished today have been the work of men past the age of 50. J. Pierpont Morgan in 1907 at the age of 70 raised $40,000,000 and averted a panic. The four greatest Japanese generals in the Russo-Japanese war, Kuroki, Oku, Ooduyi and Oyama, were all past 60. Hindenburg, Von Bulow, Foch, Haig and Pershing were near 60 during the World War.

Best Work at 60
"In letters and science men of the age of 60 today do their best work. John Bigelow at 94 was writing his 'retrospects,' three volumes of which appeared after he was 98. Chervreul, eminent French scientist, was in his laboratory busy and active until his death at the age of 103."
"Retiremen of machine workers at a too early age is another waste. Certainly it is far beyond the traditional age of 40, after which they say a man has difficulty in finding industrial work.

"In production of machinery into industry lengthens the working life of man. The pick and shovel man sees his strength declining after forty years but the engineer of the trench-digger and the big crane may be and probably is better fitted for his job at the age of 60 than 30."

WHEEL RUINS RAILS.
Tecumseh Neb.—A broken wheel on a fast freight train has caused a loss of $30,000. For a distance of 20 miles, the wheel left a deep impression every nine feet on one of the rails and finally derailed two cars. The rails were so deeply dented that the entire 20 miles must be replaced with new rails.

CATCH GIANT HALIBUT.
Boston.—About a month ago the Boston fishing schooner Morning Star lost a trawl net in which a giant halibut had become entangled. The fish escaped, taking the net with it. The other day the crew went to the same locality and pulled up the same net with the big fish still fast in its meshes. It weighed 430 pounds, was estimated to be several centuries old.

COYOTES CAME BACK

Cozard, Neb.—Dennis Atkins had a thriving coyote farm near here until someone cut the fence surrounding his place. All of his 63 animals escaped and Atkins believed his business was ruined. But neighboring hen houses must have been securely locked, for when feeding time came 41 hungry coyotes returned for their meals.

The human skull, continues to grow until about the age of 20.

FRANCES STARR HEADS

CAST OF "ISABELLA"

Is Surrounded by Unusually Fine Cast in Play Now at Parsons.

Theatergoers will welcome the information that Frances Starr is in Hartford in a new play entitled "Immoral Isabella" at Parsons theater today and tomorrow, previous to its New York presentation. Chamberlain Brown is presenting this new play which has been written by Lawton Campbell, heretofore not connected in any way with the professional stage. Mr. Campbell, however, wrote a few of the plays which entertained the boys during the World War, in which war he served for eighteen months.

Miss Starr will be surrounded by a very capable cast which includes Reginald Mason, Jules McVieker, Joseph Kilgour, Edward Rose, Patricia Barclay, Dorothy Penle, Cliff Odette and San Hossen.

The author has a very fresh, satirical comedy touch which is very amusing, and his play shows every indication that it will be one of the big successes the coming season.

LINDBERGH SEES NEED OF BETTER FLYING SCHOOLS

Waste of Money, He Says, to Take Aviation Course in "Ten Hours."

Des Moines—Although Col. Chas. A. Lindbergh entertains the fond wish to see the skies dotted with roaring, speeding airplanes, he does not want this wish fulfilled at too great a cost in human life. As a precaution against unnecessary accidents he has issued a warning against aviation schools where the training is insufficient.

"You can find," Colonel Lindbergh stated, "many schools which advertise that they will teach a novice how to fly an airplane. Some of them give the course for $100, usually turning out the student as a finished pilot after about ten hours in the air."

Practice Needed
"Ten hours of flying will not make anyone a pilot, and $100 will not buy a very good course in training. I really believe it is almost a waste of money to take such a course. The man or woman who wishes to become a pilot should be prepared to spend at least $500 for the training, and some agreement should be reached whereby the use of a plane for practice may be obtained after the course has been completed."

A great many aviation accidents occur because of these men who are turned out of these schools, firm in the belief they are master pilots. Lindbergh said they are told they can fly when in fact they have not even learned the rudiments of the game, he added.

Colonel Lindbergh also deplored the fact that the average person, in reading of aviation accidents, does not take in consideration the difference between commercial flying and stunt and pioneer flying.

Stunt Accidents
"The idea that commercial aviation is dangerous is erroneous," Lindbergh asserted. "Over lines where regular inspection is made and reasonable care is taken few accidents occur. In stunt flying, in making tests and in pioneering hops the story is different. There always is danger in tests, and accidents will continue to occur, but these mishaps should not be considered as proof that flying is dangerous. Someone must make the tests and take the risks, as in every other endeavor."

Lindbergh believes it would be fatal to the progress of aviation to attempt to halt long flights over water or uncharted sections of the earth. He believes, though, that those backing such flights should insist that every precaution to insure success be taken. The tragic results in the Dole flight were brought about, in his opinion, because the entrants started without sufficient preparations.

EUROPE TURNS TO AIRPLANES TO SHIP GOLD

Special Planes Used to Transport Bullion Over Long Distances.

London—Europe is resorting to the air as a means for diminishing the great risk of transporting gold over long distances. Gold shipments and other valuable consignments are now being sent by special planes to their destination instead of by rail and boat.

This is not only a saving of time, but the Continental banks have found, that owing to the speed with which gold can thus be transported, the saving in interest is enough to pay for both the cost of transit and the insurance as well.

Under Heavy Guard
When these shipments are being made the landing fields are notified and before the arrival of the plane ample guards are rushed to the scene. As a majority of these planes are government owned, the nations act as insurance agents and troops are used, not only at the aerodromes but to transfer the valuables into the hands of the receiver.

An official of the British Imperial Airways said that the record cargo of gold shipped by air is three tons, valued at 2,500,000, which was taken to Cologne by two airplanes.

Pilots Are Armed
"In order to be able to protect their cargoes against robbers in the event of a forced landing, all aeroplane pilots and mechanics are heavily armed with revolvers," continued the official.

"Cargoes of bar gold are regularly carried by our airmen, one of the regular consignments by plane to England, being a shipment of gold twice a month from the Lena Goldfields, operating in Russia."

RAYS SAVE ANIMALS
New York. Five expensive animals, a howling monkey, a grivet monkey and three lemurs, were ill in the New York Zoological Park. They had "cage paralysis," a disease very similar to rookets. Doctors treated them with ultra-violet rays for three weeks and were rewarded by seeing them become lively again.

HILLERY BROS. GET MAYTAG FRANCHISE

Will Push Distribution Here Of Popularly Known Washing Machine.

Hillery Brothers, well known business men of 384 Hartford Road have taken over the sales and distribution of the new and improved Maytag Washing machine. They have just received their franchise on the machine which includes all of Manchester, Eastonbury, East Hartford and East Windsor. Until plans can be perfected a temporary headquarters has been opened up at 378 Hartford Road.

The improved Maytag is one of the leading washing machines on the market today. It has come up to the forefront in the past few years due to a live wire organization of men ranging from F. L. Maytag, the founder of the business to the individual salesmen who are putting thousands of these machines in homes all over the country every day of the week.

The Maytag organization under the direction of Mr. Maytag has striven for leadership ever since they created the machine. Through hard work, extensive advertising and live wire selling the Maytag has been put across. It is staying in the lead too, because of its superiority in so many respects.

The Maytag is the fastest washing machine on the market to-day. It is sturdily built and will give years of service. It is compact and simple to operate. There are no parts to get out of order. The new wringer embodies the latest ideas in wringer design with new rolls, and a new type frame. The tub of the Maytag is of cast aluminum making it easy to clean and keep clean and of course it is not subject to deterioration of any sort. There are more Maytags being made and sold than the output of the four largest competitors combined.

Hillery Brothers are planning to push the sale of Maytag machines in Manchester and surrounding towns. There are already a large number of machines in operation in

MUCH INTEREST SHOWN IN 'WELSH LADIES CHOIR'

Unique Organization, Soon to Sing Here, Makes Bookings For a Year Ahead.

Much interest has been aroused locally concerning the forthcoming concert to be given on Wednesday night by the "Royal Welsh Ladies Choir," in the High School hall, and already the Kiwanas report an excellent sale of tickets.

The leader of the choir, Miss Gertrude Cronow, during the World War, rendered valuable and unselfish service to the soldiers and hospitals which brought recognition from very high quarters. Since their arrival in this country, the singers have booked engagements for the next 12 months, many being return dates requested because of enthusiasm aroused by previous concerts. A Manchester man, who has heard the choir, states that on the first occasion a hall which seated 8,000 was crowded to overflowing. An immediate demand was made that the singers repeat their program on the following evening, when again the hall was so crowded that large numbers were turned away. In Newark a "by-line" critic said of their work: "It is hard to conceive of any finer choral work than that done by the gifted voices of this Royal Welsh Ladies' Choir," and in North Adams, where they also created an immense impression, it was said, "The Royal Welsh Ladies' Choir captivated the large audience; round after round of applause followed the delightful renderings which won accolades from the audience, quick to appreciate the distinctive merit of these gifted singers."

In Cleveland, a critical musical treat of season. It is expected that a large audience will be present to hear the Welsh singers here and incidentally assist the worthy object for which the concert is being promoted: The Kiwanas camp for underprivileged children.

TAXPAYERS GET BUSY IN FILING OF LISTS

Assessors Today Have First Active Response; Filings Must Be in Nov. 1.

Today was the first that saw a real response to the notice of the Board of Assessors regarding the filing of tax lists. A number of people appeared before the board today, more than had previously filed, and the board started its sessions in the Municipal building. Lists must be filed before November 1 and failure to do so will mean an addition of 10 per cent. to the total of the list as figured by the assessors.

Samuel Nelson, clerk of the board, is in the office all day while the other two members, S. Emil Johnson, chairman, and George A. Johnson, are out measuring up new buildings.

SUCCESSFUL CANDIDATES WERE ELECTED CHEAPLY

"No Expenditures" Is Report Of Selectmen and Other Endorsers of G. O. P.

All members of the board of selectmen and all the other candidates for office who were endorsed by the Republican Town committee were elected without any expense, according to their certificate of expenses filed at the office of the town clerk.

The time for filing expense accounts expires next Tuesday, 15 days after the election. Some of the candidates have not yet filed their accounts but must do it by the time limit provided by law.

MEDICAL SCHOOLS NOT PRACTICAL, IS CHARGE

Chicago.—That the modern medical school teach too little of the practical side of medicine was charged here today by Dr. Nathan S. Davis, associate in medicine at Northwestern University's medical school.

The medical student in the old days "knew much of the art and business of medicine from his close association with a preceptor for eight months a year for two or three years, but very little of the science of medicine," said Dr. Nathan, urging a return to preceptorships, under modifications of the old system to meet the changed conditions of today.

Medical colleges should introduce a system of preceptorships, he declared, and call upon the students to work twelve months a year instead of nine. This would prove a "source of inspiration to both student and teachers," he said. "It would give the students the instruction they need in the art and science of medicine."

Hildreth Martin Gives Musical Treat—Five Girls Get Typewriting Medals.

Hildreth Martin of Barre, Vt., a bass soloist at the Church of the Incarnation on Madison Ave. in New York City, favored the eight hundred odd High School students here yesterday afternoon with five numbers at the school assembly hall.

He was accompanied on the piano by Miss E. Marion Dorward, music director at the High school, who is a friend of his. Mr. Martin sang "The Big Bass Viol," "Alseid" and "The Deep." "Give a Man a Horse He Can Ride" and "The Outlaw." The assembly was a Columbus Day program and there were four speakers. The Misses Athena Cramer, Emma Strickland and Arline Cummings, all seniors, gave essays on Christopher Columbus and Miss Margaret Henry, a sophomore, read Joaquin Miller's poem, "Columbus." The program was under the personal supervision of Miss Marguerite Oates, who coached the speakers.

Five senior girls in the commercial department were awarded silver and bronze pins for efficient and speedy work. They were as follows: Katherine Foley, Catherine Fraher and Edna Swanson, silver pins for typing 42, 41 and 40 words per minute on an Underwood. a part corned beef plays in the meat industry is realized only by a very few. STATE OFFERS TWO BIG FILMS TODAY

"Becky" and "The Claw" Showing at Playhouse—Kerry and Sally O'Neill Starred.

Two bang-up features are offered at the State theater today and tomorrow and with them will also be offered the novelty song reel, "Old Black Joe," one of the old timers which everyone enjoys.

The first of the two features is "Becky," with Sally O'Neill in the name part, supported by Owen Moore. It is a story of New York and is interesting, as most stories of the big city are.

Sally has the role of a little Irish Jewish shop girl, discharged by an effeminate floorwalker and thrown upon the tender mercies of the world at a time when she hasn't a cent. Her yearnings to become a grand opera singer seem about to materialize when she meets a crook, who promises to use his influence to get her on the stage.

She does get on the stage—but as a slapstick artist who does eccentric falls. Her "career," however, teaches her what real love is, regenerates a crook and takes some of the conceit out of a self-satisfied society man with a stupid sister.

The second feature is "The Claw," a story of life and dangers on the South African veldt. The leading characters in this feature are Norman Kerry, Claire Windsor and Arthur Edmund Carewe.

The story tells of a man who threw over his chances to live in order to save the life of the man whom his sweetheart loved. The difference between infatuation and love came to the girl, however, and everything ended happily.

RIALTO THEATER

Two fractured ribs on the torso of Bob Steele testify to the fact that in the fight scenes for "The Mojave Kid," the "heavy" was a heavy in fact as well as name. This production is the current FBO attraction at the Rialto theater.

During the filming of scenes for this, his first, starring vehicle, Steele broke two ribs in a fight with Jay Morley, who plays the part of a villainous bandit attempting the life of the star. R. N. Bradbury, the director, had instructed them to go at it tooth and nail, and so the players rolled and fell on each other with such vigor that Morley came down with full force on the chest of the prostrate star, fracturing two bones.

On the same program "The Whipping Post" a picture everybody should see. This picture was approved by the American Legion by G. S. Serial and News Weekly.

THANKS FOR SENTENCE

Boston—A prisoner in the state penitentiary has sent a letter of thanks to the judge who sentenced him to serve from three to five years. His card said, in part: "I want to let you know that I have come to the conclusion that a dishonest life is a sucker's game.... and I appreciate the lesson you gave me when you sent me here."

CONQUER THE CAUSE OF INDIGESTION

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN brings prompt, permanent relief!

Read what Mrs. Kingsbury has to say! How ALL-BRAN brought wonderful relief from constipation and indigestion.

"I am desirous of notifying you how satisfied both my husband and I are and the benefit we have received from Kellogg's ALL-BRAN. Before taking ALL-BRAN we were doctoring every day. Now ALL-BRAN is our doctor and it sure does the work. It's just wonderful for constipation and indigestion."

Mrs. W. D. Kingsbury, Greenfield, Mass.

Constipation causes more than forty serious diseases. Don't let it carry on its poisonous work in your body. Check it before too late. Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is guaranteed to relieve constipation. Eat two tablespoonfuls daily—in chronic cases, with every meal.

Serve ALL-BRAN with milk or cream—add fruits or honey for an extra treat. Comes ready to eat. Try it in cooking. Sold and served everywhere. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek. Recipes on package.

LETTER GOLF

HERE'S A PAR FOUR To go from GOLF to BALL takes par four, but sometimes a golfer loses that many balls on one hole. A solution is printed on another page. Perhaps you can score a "birdie" on this one.

GOLF BALL grid puzzle

THE RULES 1-The idea of letter golf is to change one word to another and do it in par, a given number of strokes. Thus to change COW by HEN, in three strokes, COW, HOW, HEW, HEN. 2-You can change only one letter at a time. 3-You must have a complete word of common usage, for each jump. Slang words and abbreviations don't count. 4-The order of letters cannot be changed.

THE ANYMITES STORY BY HAL COCHRAN - PICTURES BY KNICK

(READ THE STORY, THEN COLOR THE PICTURE)

"Hey, Clowny's gone," wee Copsy cried. "To rescue him we should have tried. He's disappearing, now, from sight. What is there we can do? I wish that I had spreading wings, and monstrous claws and all such things. I'd fly up in the air and then, I'd chase that eagle, too." "You haven't, though," another said. "Why let such thoughts come in your head? We haven't time for foolishness. We've got to act real quick. Poor Clowny's sailing through the air and bound for well we, know not where. Just think, he may be badly hurt. It almost makes me sick." Then Scouty stopped and thought a while, and then his face broke into a smile. "We certainly will do no good just standing here," said he. "Let's reach that open space nearby, where we can look up and see Clowny. Hurry up, now, follow me!"

SENSE and NONSENSE

"Where are you going, my pretty maid?" "I'm going a-milking, sir," she said. "In that dress, my pretty maid?" "No, you dumbbell, in this bucket." Gladys: "Do you still run around with that little blond?" Ted: "She's married now." Gladys: "Answer my question!" What's the use? By the time a man outgrows swellhead, his waistline gets the idea. Of course cigarettes ruin a woman's complexion. Smoke was always ruinous to paint. Willie: "Has your father stopped whipping you since he joined the church?" Tommy: "No, but he's stopped sayin' that it hurts him worse than it does me." For every dollar you save there are ten sharks lying in wait to get it away from you.

He was only a fireman's son, but he knew a good thing in hose when he saw it.

Fortunate is the man who learns a lot from a little experience. THE TEST The world's not going wrong, not quite. As it spins down Time's highway. Still, it's not going wholly right Unless it's going my way.

Who was the duck who said that the wages of sin are from a confessions magazine for a story? Some one has suggested that raising bees will help the farmer. He might try. The farmer is accustomed to being stung by everything else he raises.

Lady: "I say, salesperson! Is this the mirror department?" Clerk: "Yes, ma'am." Lady: "Well, I'd like to see something odd in a mirror." Clerk: "Yes, ma'am. Just take a look in this one, ma'am."

One way to reconcile yourself to bobbed hair is to look at a picture of an old-fashioned girl wearing a rat.

"There's a new vegetable song out." "Well, let's hear it." "In a Little Spinach Town."

PREWAR STUFF. "Can you help me with my arithmetic lesson, Daddy? The first problem is: 'A carpenter was paid three dollars a day an'..." "That sounds more like ancient history than arithmetic."

Fortune Teller: I see a tall, stout woman between you and your husband. She follows him everywhere. Client: I'm sorry for her, then - he's a postman!"

Some of our senators say they "belong to the public." Well, one would think so after what the public paid for them!

She smiled when her hunger was satisfied. "I owe you so much!" she said. "I am Sue Varden. My father is president of the Lacomis Lumber Company. The company controls the timber rights around Enchanted Mountain. My brother Paul and I came in here with Mr. and Mrs. Van Ardeck. Paul is an enthusiastic sportsman. He's after the head of a white deer, for mounting."

Then Jack introduced his friends and himself by their names, and explained that they had come into the big woods to photograph the white deer, not to slay it.

Even as Lockwill finished speaking, two men, a rough-looking guide, and a youth of twenty, came out of the woods. "It's Paul!" cried the girl, running to the younger.

Paul Varden was a small, slim youth. He listened frowningly to his sister's explanation. "Of course we have to thank these young fellows," he said ungraciously "but they're greenhorns, and they may set the woods afire. They mustn't build fires around here, and they had better leave." "We're not so green," said Jack, "and we have a camping and fire permit." (To Be Continued)

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES

Preparations are now under way for a class in advanced gymnastics under the direction of Mr. Clarke. The class will be held especially for those who intend going to an athletic school after graduating.

Early this week's meeting of the secretaries and chairmen of the Franklin building was held, under the direction of Mr. Proctor. It was decided to have a freshman student council, modeled after the school student council. The members of the council are the chairmen of the home rooms and are as follows: Charlotte Rubinow, room 25; Austen Johnson, room 16; Hans Benche, room 13; Lucille Murphy, room 24; Francis Harrington, room 15; Richard McCormick, room 23; Roger Cheney, room 14; and Austin Weiman, room 26. The class will be held Oct. 27, and class dues of fifty cents will be levied to help defray expenses. When the class officers are elected they will hold their respective positions in the student council.

The school assembly held yesterday was one of the best of the year. After the opening exercises, awards were given to the following pupils in the commercial department: Helen Wippert, Katherine Foley, Madaline Foley, Edna Swanson and

Catherine Fraher. President Shannon introduced the guest soloist of the assembly, Kildreth Martin of Barre, Vt., a soloist of one of the larger churches in New York. For his first two numbers he sang "The Outlaw's Song" and "Give a Man a Horse He Can Ride." For an encore he sang "The Big Bass Viol."

All the numbers were much appreciated by the students. Following this several speeches on Columbus were given, touching on the following phases: "Conditions in Europe leading up to the voyage and discovery," by Emma Stickland; "Life and Voyages," by Arlene Cummings; "Character of Columbus," Athena Cramer, and a recitation of "Columbus," the poem by Jacquelin Miller, by Margaret Henry.

As a fitting close to the assembly Mr. Martin sang two songs of the sea, "Three for Jack" and "Asleep in the Deep."
