RUTH AND HER PILOT START TRIP TO PARIS

Take Steamer For Lisbon to Get Passports—May Then Fly to Paris in a Borrowed Plane.

Horta, the Azores, Oct. 17.—After being warmly welcomed and entertained by the inhabitants of this port, Miss Ruth Elder and George Haldeman, rescued American trans-Atlantic fliers, today bid farewell to Horta and start for Paris by way of Lisbon.

They are expected to board the Portuguese mail ship, Lima, which will take them to Lisbon. According to Miss Elder, she may fly from Lisbon to Paris, where her trunks await her, but she added this depends upon circumstances when she reached the Portuguese capital.

Speaking of her flight, Miss Elder said that the weather was clear at first but later became very boisterous. Once she took the controls while Haldeman poured gas into the tanks from the car which were too heavy for her to lift.

Guests of Mackey While here, Miss Elder and Haldeman were the guests of G. F. Mackey, who is in charge of the Western Union Telegraph Company. Entertained with the Americans were the crew of the Junker plane D-1230 who have been held here due to bad weather since they arrived from Lisbon.

TO LOAN PLANE Paris, Oct. 17.—A 550-horsepower Breguet biplane, piloted probably by the well-known French long distance aviator, Captain Archaer, will leave tomorrow morning for Lisbon to meet Ruth Elder and George Haldeman, who came down in the Atlantic while attempting a non-stop flight from New York to Paris.

German Flyers Now in Spain

Vigo, Spain, Oct. 17.—Forced down here while making a flight from Amsterdam to the Azores with New York as their ultimate goal, the crew of the German Heinkel seaplane today prepared to take off again for Horta.

TWO HUNTERS KILLED; MISTAKEN FOR DEER.

Albany, N. Y., Oct. 17.—Although only three days old, the 1927 deer hunting season in New York state has already brought death to two hunters.

LEVINE BACK; IS WELCOMED BY ADMIRERS

Given Reception By City of New York—Modest In Speaking to Press—To Start Ocean Mail Service.

New York, Oct. 17.—Charles A. Levine, the first trans-Atlantic airplane passenger, who made the flight to Germany with Clarence Chamberlin, returned home today on the liner Leviathan and was given a cordial, yet dignified, reception by the city of New York and an enthusiastic welcome by his friends and admirers.

Levine Modest Levine was extremely modest in talking to newspaper reporters, who questioned him concerning his adventures. He minimized his part in the achievement.

He said it would be some years before passenger service across the Atlantic is established. For one thing, he said, there would be prohibitive, for it would cost passengers from $2,500 to $3,000 each to make the trip.

TO LOAN PLANE Paris, Oct. 17.—A 550-horsepower Breguet biplane, piloted probably by the well-known French long distance aviator, Captain Archaer, will leave tomorrow morning for Lisbon to meet Ruth Elder and George Haldeman, who came down in the Atlantic while attempting a non-stop flight from New York to Paris.

TWO WOMEN KILLED AND DROPPED IN ROAD

Dead Man Found In Wrecked Car Nearby—One Woman Identified.

Chicago, Oct. 17.—Two young women were shot to death and their bodies thrown from a speeding automobile here early today. One hundred yards from the spot where the bodies lay, the automobile crashed into a telegraph pole and was demolished.

A Ream of Well-wishes

Frances Grayson, Erice Goldsborough, her navigator (center) and Wilmer Stultz, her pilot, read at Old Orchard Beach, Me., a ream of penned and telegraphed good wishes for their forthcoming hop across the Atlantic toward Copenhagen.

Negro Actors Crowd Broadway Theaters

New York, Oct. 17.—New York's amusement season having swung into full momentum reveals an unprecedented demand for negro performers, so much so that at present negro entertainers of all sorts are being imported daily from every state in the south and as far away as California.

PLAN TO ABOLISH NEW YORK CENSUS

Charges Against Mrs. Knapp May Do Away With This Work In Future.

Albany, N. Y., Oct. 17.—Abolition of the state census is expected to be one of the direct results of the Moreland Act investigation now being conducted into charges that Mrs. Florence E. S. Knapp, former secretary of state, wasted $200,000 of the $1,200,000 census fund in 1925.

Change of Heart Republican legislative leaders, who refused to join with the governor last winter in an effort to do away with the census, are reported to have had a change of heart following the testimony given at the Knapp inquiry.

TO CALL RELATIVES Mr. Leboeuf refused to disclose the names of witnesses to be called, but it was reported that relatives of Mrs. Knapp had been subpoenaed.

Officials Suspended Two officials of the Civil Service Commission, suspended Saturday because of alleged census payroll padding, have until Thursday to answer charges lodged against them by William G. Rice, a member of the commission.

COURT SAYS WOMAN IS 'FOOL' AT TRIAL

"If You Don't Behave I'll Put You In Jail" Mrs. Budlong Is Told.

Newport, R. I., Oct. 17.—Mrs. Jesse Margaret Budlong, being sued for divorce in Superior Court here by her millionaire husband, Milton J. Budlong, was characterized as a "fool" today by Judge Herbert L. Carpenter, who threatened to put her behind the bars for a year for contempt of court if she did not behave herself and answer questions addressed to her by the court and opposing counsel.

After this had continued for some time, Judge Carpenter declared: "Mrs. Budlong unless you behave yourself I will have to put you where you can't bother any persons for a year. I will put you behind the bars for contempt of court."

STRANGLES WOMAN WHO TAUNTS HIM

Meat Cutter Feared Knives and Sweetheart Used Them to Anger Him.

New York, Oct. 17.—The machinery of the law today moved swiftly to indict Harry Gilmore, 27, a meat cutter, who admitted to police the choked to death the woman he loved, the woman who left her husband for him.

BIG CONSPIRACY TRIAL IS ON IN WASHINGTON

Stenographer In Jury Room May Quash Indictments

New Haven, Conn., Oct. 17.—A battery of lawyers faced Judge Edwin S. Thomas in United States District Court here today in another effort to save a group of their clients from being tried before a jury on a charge of conspiracy to divert alcohol from legitimate manufacturing purposes to use as a beverage.

Headed by Thomas J. Spellacy, of Hartford, the lawyers argued that in at least two cases the fact that men under indictment were called before the Grand Jury as witnesses rendered them immune from prosecution.

YOUNG IN FAVOR OF POLISH LOAN

Financial Expert Says It Is Of Great Importance For America to Aid Europe.

New York, Oct. 17.—That the new Polish loan to be offered tomorrow, is in line with the policies of financial reconstruction of great importance to America, was the opinion expressed today by Owen D. Young, internationally-known financial expert.

Explains Importance "The importance of having Europe on a gold basis and of stabilization of European currencies, is only beginning to be generally recognized in the United States," he added.

GRAYSON AIRPLANE FORCED TO RETURN

Pilot Had to Dump Gasoline To Prevent Machine From Dropping Into Ocean.

Old Orchard Beach, Me., Oct. 17.—Mrs. Frances Wilson Grayson, forced to turn back on her non-stop flight to Copenhagen, Denmark, within ten minutes after the hop-off here today, abandoned another take-off until low tide at eleven o'clock tomorrow morning.

STOCKHOLDERS PLAN TO SUE FORD CO.

Will, If Started Involve About Four Millions of Dollars.

Forty Reporters to "Cover" Hearing of Famous Case; Two Women In Jury Box On First Day—Families Of Fall and Sinclair Present In Courtroom.

Washington, Oct. 17.—At lunch time, fifteen venemen had passed through the jury box in the Fall-Sinclair conspiracy trial today and nine tentatively retained their seats.

Neither side had thus far used a peremptory challenge. Two attractive young women occupied seats one and two. They were Mrs. Annelia Bailey, a piano store employee, and Miss Bernice Heaton, a long distance operator.

Former Governor Nathan Miller, of New York, rose and stated he represented Blackmer. He stated to explain why his client was not present, but Roberts objected and the court sustained him.

Roberts merely wanted the fact in the record so that later he can move to seize $300,000 worth of Blackmer's property as provided in a special Senate Act.

Miller said later that Blackmer was outside the jurisdiction of American courts and challenged the constitutionality of the Senate Act compelling attendance of witnesses in the oil cases.

Fall Not Well Fall was showing his 66 years and the strain of his title for his freedom suit plainly. He looked far from well. Sinclair, on the other hand, was quite possessed, despite the three-months' jail sentence handed over him for contempt of the Senate.

Death Accidental Bridgeport, Oct. 17.—Coroner John J. Phelan today issued an accidental death finding in the case of Andrew Macinnell, 65, of Stamford, who on October ninth was struck and killed here by a car driven by Don B. Millay, of Greenwich, as Macinnell was alighting from a bus.

Will Be Present at First of Union Services to Be Held This Winter.

Dr. Wardle Stafford, who is at present on a tour of this country, will be the speaker at the first of the union evening services to be held monthly during the winter by the combined congregations of the South Methodist, St. Mary's Episcopal and Center Congregational churches. This first union service will be held at the Center church, Sunday evening, November 6. The choir of the church will furnish special music.

LONDON PAPERS RAP CHANNEL "SWIMMER"

Call Woman Doctor's Hoax "A Poor, Mis-Timed Joke"

London, Oct. 17.—The impression was gaining ground here today that the channel swimming hoax, admitted by Dr. Dorothy Logan, who received a prize, later returned, for supposedly breaking Gertrude Ederle's record, was nothing more than a "poor, mis-timed joke."

It was believed here her method would do nothing more than provoke further anti-feminist attacks. While agreeing that some sort of channel swimming supervision was needed, London newspapers believe the fact should have been brought to the attention of the world by some other means than those adopted by Dr. Logan.

Dr. Logan chose the worst possible case of illustrating her views on the ease of faking a channel swim. She may have succeeded in casting so many doubts on these swimming feats that we will begin asking ourselves whether Leander ever swam the Hellespont.

"She has not proved anything and we are ungrateful for her attempt to undermine our faith. Her confession lacked humor and was delayed too long."

GAS USERS WARNED

Stamford, Conn., Oct. 17.—With a second serious gas accident in less than a week, the Stamford Gas Light Company today issued a warning to its customers to take precautions in using gas water heaters. The warning was issued when Mr. and Mrs. Harry F. Lockwood were found overcome in their home and were taken to the hospital in serious condition.

STEAMER IN DISTRESS

Bordeaux, France, Oct. 17.—An "S. O. S." message from the American steamship Nile was picked up here early today. The Nile was aground ten miles west of Cape Bogaroni, near Sardinia. The Greek steamship Vassilos reported she was on her way to give assistance.

Carl Johnson Kills Rare White Specimen; Much Game Is Being Mounted.

Carl J. Johnson of 191 Maple street shot an albino squirrel Saturday morning while hunting in Bolton. Ronald C. Hillman, Highland Park taxidermist, who was given the animal to mount, says specimens of this kind are exceedingly rare. The squirrel was snow white and had pink eyes.

BATHROOM ON WHEELS IS COMING TO TOWN

Every home owner in Manchester will be interested in seeing the remarkable traveling exhibit of plumbing materials which will visit us on Wednesday, October 19. In a big special body built on a motor truck a varied and interesting display of the latest designs in bathroom, kitchen and laundry equipment will be shown.

Many hundreds of thousands of people have examined this free exhibit along its route from coast to coast, and have carried away many practical ideas and suggestions for the improvement of their homes.

Within the car is installed a modern built-in bath tub complete with overhead shower and Aqua silk curtain. An attractive combination kitchen sink and laundry tray, a popular fixture which saves space and steps is also displayed.

Lavatories, closets and other bathroom fixtures and accessories help to make this exhibit complete, in addition to the "Premier" automatic storage gas water heater, Crane water softener, and other plumbing sections and suburban towns beyond the reach of city water mains, the efficient Crane automatic water system.

Additional interest is given this exhibit through the fact that the supply fixtures of the lavatories and the sink are actually connected to running water. The water is supplied by the Crane automatic water system.

There is no admission charge. None of the fixtures displayed are for sale, though any or all of them may be obtained and installed by your regular plumbing contractor with little or no delay.

A visit by the prospective home builder, as well as the architect and plumbing contractor will provide an opportunity to see new ways of adding to the comfort and convenience of daily home life at modest cost.

The Crane representative will be glad to co-operate with you to the fullest extent.

DRUNKEN DRIVERS SENTENCED

Stamford, Conn., Oct. 17.—Drunk drivers responsible for personal injuries to other motorists were given heavy penalties in City Court today. Edward S. Quinlan, of Glenbrook, was sentenced to jail for thirty days and fined $250 and costs, while Dymetro Melkowitz, of Glenville, was fined $125 and costs.

Quinlan's car hit a car driven by Andrew Harkness and sent Mrs. Harkness and her young daughter to the hospital in serious condition. Melkowitz ran into a car driven by Edward Gobel, of Jamaica, Long Island, and hurt Gobel.

Howell Cheney to Be Speaker Wednesday Noon on Timely Subject.

Howell Cheney will be the speaker at the Wednesday meeting of the Kiwanis club, and his subject will be "School Consolidation for Manchester." Mr. Cheney has for many years been a member of the town school committee and has made a deep study of the advantages of school consolidation for the various districts of the town under one control.

It is urged that every Kiwanian be on hand at this meeting to hear Mr. Cheney's views. Luncheon will be prepared and served by the students of the domestic science department. Rev. W. P. Reidy will furnish the attendance prize.

TELLS MEN'S LEAGUE OF NEWSPAPER WORK

Ronald H. Ferguson of The Herald spoke to the Men's League of Center church yesterday morning on newspaper work. He told the gathering how newspaper men get what to print and related some of the oddities in the news situation in Manchester. At the close of the meeting some of the league members questioned Mr. Ferguson on the stand of newspapers on the prohibition question.

BIRTHDAY PARTY

Francis McDonnell of 213 Center street was the guest of honor at a party given at the Thompson bungalow on Center street Saturday evening. Mr. McDonnell believed that the affair was given for some one else and was genuinely surprised to find it was in recognition of his birthday.

He received a number of useful gifts, including a set of military brushes. Old-fashioned dancing was enjoyed by the gathering which numbered between 35 and 50 and included guests from New York and Hartford. John McConville of Homestead Park prompted for the old-time numbers. Harry Bashlow acted as pianist and accompanied the soloists among whom were Thomas Martin, William Lynch and J. Harrison. Cake, coffee and sandwiches were served.

MANCHESTER MOTORIST INJURES ELM CITY COP

George Trueman Under $1,000 Bail at New Haven on Charge of Recklessness.

In New Haven City Court this morning, a continuance was granted until October 26 in the case of George Trueman of 23 Griswold street, this town, who faces a charge of reckless driving as a result of an automobile accident in New Haven Friday night when Motorcycle Policeman James H. Alexander of that city was seriously injured by an automobile driven by the Manchester man. Trueman is out in $1,000 bail.

At the New Haven General hospital it was at first believed that Officer Alexander would not live. He was suffering from a fracture of the skull and a broken leg. Today's report from the hospital, however, was more encouraging. Alexander showing considerable improvement and hospital authorities now expecting him to recover. Just how the accident occurred is not known. Policeman Alexander came out of Lines street into Quinpiac avenue, Fair Haven, and was struck by Trueman's car which was going north on the avenue.

King's "Tired Of Women" But Sends For "Queen"

The new queen of Homestead Park was expected today by the king, Frank Sokoloski. Appeals to the Hartford Travelers Aid Society from the Grand Central station in New York on Saturday disclosed the fact that the new aspirant for the royal robes, Mrs. Mary Aleah of Manville, N. Y., had lost or spent the money which the king had sent her for her cartage to this town.

Mrs. Aleah is one of a number of women who have replied to matrimonial advertisements inserted by the king in papers out of this state. The other women have come and gone, for one reason or another, either because the king did not like them or because they did not like the king.

The Travelers Aid Society in Hartford received an appeal on Saturday from Mrs. Mary Aleah, coming from Manville, who had reached the Grand Central station in New York city. Mrs. Aleah had asked the New York police for assistance and they had in turn notified the local police.

The name of the town that sprang into existence over night in Planet City, and it consists of a rambling dirt road for a main street, and its wooden houses and stores all face the main thoroughfare.

All the buildings have been reconstructed with perfection, including the town hall, hotel, pool room, livery stable, general store and blacksmith shop. It is an exact replica of a desert town.

LIFE SAVING SCOUTS TO GO ON PARADE

A few months ago, the Life Saving Scout movement was organized in South Manchester, at the local Salvation Army corps. This movement is world-wide, and has been very successful in many countries.

RIALTO PRESENTING "CORPORAL KATE"

They blew up a French village—all for the sake of the movies! In Vera Reynolds' latest production "Corporal Kate," a Paul Sloane production which will be on view at the Rialto theater today, nearly a ton of "Giant" powder was used to make kindling wood of a French village—a motion picture background.

William Stokes of Hartford pleaded guilty to reckless driving. He also was in an accident at the Green with David K. Miller of Fall River, Mass. The car driven by Stokes ran into that driven by Miller and caused some damage.

King's "Tired Of Women" But Sends For "Queen"

Officials of the society in Hartford were told by the Manchester police to have nothing to do with the case, according to information received at that office today.

Several prospects have come to the king's home in answer to advertisements. One of the most recent was said to have been a woman about ten years the king's junior. The king told police at that time that he was satisfied with the woman, but a few days later he had had enough of her.

His desire to marry again is inconsistent with a statement he made in police court recently when he said that he was a poor man and had had enough of women.

So Homestead Park, where many things happen, is awaiting the new queen with more than ordinary interest.

G. H. WILLIAMS HURT IN AUTOMOBILE BUMP Back Wrenched When Car Behind Collides With Auto He's Riding In.

George H. Williams, Main street clothing dealer, suffered a sprained back yesterday afternoon in an automobile accident. He was seated in the front seat of an Essex coach driven by his brother Walter. They were on their way to Rockville and had stopped near the home of Thomas Stultz to let off two persons who intended to attend a football game at Hickey's Grove.

Levine became more visible. "I am going over to Europe again next summer and attempt an east and west flight," he said. "I am sorry to come home this way, as I hoped to fly back—but experts cautioned me against the flight back to America at this time of the year."

What did he think of Ruth Elder's flight? "It was a great flight and she was fortunate to be rescued," Levine said. He admitted he had stayed the during attempt of Miss Elder and her co-pilot George Haldeaman.

POLICE COURT

John Yurgel, who owns a farm in Buckland, pleaded guilty before Judge Johnson in the Manchester police court this morning to the influence of liquor. He was in an accident on Oakland street about 7 o'clock last evening, near the Oaklyn filling station and hit Bernard P. Smith of East Hartford.

WIFE HAPPY

Mrs. Levine, dressed in a new Parisian creation, appeared to be the happiest woman in New York at having her husband at home again. "There is no sense in being the wife of a hero," she said smilingly. "Every time a telephone rang while Charlie was away I got the jumps. I am so glad he is home and I am proud of him. I'd like to fly myself, now."

The Emperor Pedro of Brazil, at the Philadelphia Centennial Exposition of 1876, stopped before Bell's "funny contraption." Placing the receiver to his ear he heard Bell's words plainly and cried, "It talks!"

NAVY DAY

October 27 will be Navy Day—the annual occasion on which the Navy becomes urbane to the common people of America, invites them to its yards and its ships, stages drills and shows them how its guns work and how clean the brightwork is kept.

As a measure for the creation of public interest and pride in the Navy, and for the building up of a public backing for naval appropriations, the Navy League and their co-related agencies have adopted the time-worn but usually effective device of telling the newspapers what to say.

We are in receipt of a communication from naval sources enclosing an article on "America's Foreign Trade." It is not an especially original article, being merely a brief synopsis of figures taken from the Commerce Year Book for 1926, but it is prepared with due solemnity by the National Naval Day committee and handed out to the press as an "editorial suggestion." It gives some statistics on the extent of our foreign trade, points out the vast amount of industrial products that the United States sells abroad and dwells on the great quantities of raw materials that, coming from far lands, are necessary to the continuance of our factory and farm output—which of course means, too, employment.

"They come from every quarter of the globe and enter into the lives of every citizen," the article concludes. "A realization of the importance of this trade has led the American government to adopt the policy of maintaining a navy as strong as that of any other power."

The National Navy Day committee may assume the responsibility for making such a statement as this, but it is not going to get the Manchester Herald to do any such thing. Our understanding is that the policy of the United States government in this relation is by no means fixed at any such arbitrary point. If by "the policy of the United States" is understood the policy of President Coolidge we should say that the Navy Day committee's representation of it is entirely inaccurate. The President's first interest in naval matters, as everybody knows, is to keep all navies, our own particularly, down to the minimum of safety. And it remains to be decided whether it is necessary for the United States to maintain "as strong a navy as that of any other power."

The people of the United States—and of course the newspapers—would like to be in a position to favor and advocate whatever expenditures for naval appropriation may be actually needed. But when they are conscious of being played upon and exploited by a special group whose concern is for the upbuilding of an enormous, tremendously costly and outrageously extravagant militaristic machine, whose principal function many believe to be the creation of a military aristocracy of idlers, then it is impossible for them to resist the very human impulse to buck the whole business.

SOLDIERS, LUMBERJACKS

General Sumner's sudden recall to Washington in the midst of an inspection trip of army posts, following immediately upon strictures on army housing conditions made by the general in a speech at San Diego, is being commonly referred to as a "gagging" operation.

General Sumner is a soldier of long service and great experience—as a soldier. Whether or not that is conclusive evidence that he should be the final authority on what constitutes proper housing for the army is another matter. There is one thing he is quoted as saying that leads to the suspicion that he may have a lopsided idea of the subject; which remark is that conditions of living in some army posts are "no better than those in a lumber camp."

The implication in this is, of course, that lumber camp housing is standards of living are of a low order. It might also be possible to lead into the remark the further implication that while it is the business of the people of the United States to see that their soldiers are well and handsomely cared for it makes no particular difference what happens to a lumberjack.

Now the personnel of the army is, aside from its field and staff officers, fairly youthful and altogether masculine. Presumably it is capable of existing with fair comfort without works of art on the wall or Persian rugs on the floor, provided it is well clothed, fed and doctored and adequately sheltered from cold and storm. In other words the doughboy is, or is supposed to be, sufficiently hardbodied to need no more coddling than any ordinary workman living in a community of workmen—such perhaps as a lumber camp.

And if General Sumnerall knows of the existence of any lumber camp where the food is not abundant and good, where the wintry winds and the rain are not wholly excluded, or where the hygienic conditions are not reasonably satisfactory, he has a little secret all to himself. Because, on the whole, the lumberjack lives not so badly in his camp, even if he does do more work in a day than a soldier does in a year.

We do not like the gallant general's choice of comparisons at all. We do not at all like the inference that a soldier is more deserving of respect and worthy of a better living than the man who contributes by his labor to the economic needs of the world. There is smack of the delusions of the military caste about such talk—of delusions of grandeur.

As to whether the army of the United States as a whole is well housed or not we pretend to have absolutely no knowledge. Sumnerall may be justified in saying that some of the housing is bad. But aside from the fact that such few army posts as we have seen have appeared to be considerably superior in point of comfort, costliness and architectural endeavor to the housing of the average American citizen, we doubt if the general, as indicated by his lumber camp reference, is the best possible judge of what degree of luxury should go with the care-free life of the army.

THE BROAD BLADE

Gang warfare having shifted again from Chicago to New York and the blithesome career of "Little Augie" having been very suddenly terminated by a storm of bullets from the guns of no less than five rival gangsters, it would appear that the time may be ripe for the employment of a little diplomacy in the handling of a situation now fairly certain to become acute.

Nothing is much more inevitable than the "Kid Dropper" gang, who set a period to the career of "Little Augie," will be called on for payment in kind. And thereafter, as long as the supply of pistol shells and coke holds out, the streets of New York's East Side are destined to reverberate with the rattle of the automatic and to be smeared with yellow blood. Unless something is done about it.

There is really only one good reason for doing anything about it, and that lies in the circumstance of the gangsters being such infernally bad shots. Women, children and peaceable citizens generally are always in deadly peril when the gangs take to shooting. They should, somehow or other, be protected from the many more bullets that miss their marks than hit it.

Our suggestion would be to repeal the Sullivan law and pass one requiring citizens to go armed with guns, while putting a special penalty on the carrying of hunting knives. That would insure the gangster dropping the gat in favor of the blade, for whatever is against the law, that will he do.

If the gangsters would only do all their shooting with eight-inch bowies or deer skinners, the chance of knocking off the innocent bystander would be reduced to a minimum. And as a means of letting daylight into their enemies the broad blade is quite as efficient as the thirty-eight.

TOLERANT

It is probably a very small proportion of the people of this country who expect that Albert B. Fall or Harry F. Sinclair will be convicted of criminal conspiracy to swindle the people of the United States out of millions of dollars worth of naval reserve oil, in the trial just now opening in Washington. It is also probably a very small proportion of the people who care whether they are convicted or not, although the highest court in the land, in passing on the cancellation of the Teapot Dome lease, declared that their transaction was shot through with fraud.

It is utterly impossible to avoid the conclusion, after observing the public's attitude toward government frauds throughout our history, that people generally do not look at public property and private property from the same point of view. The same citizen who will join in a chase after a pickpocket, and perhaps tackle the thief at risk of his life, is very apt to smile tolerantly at the bigger thief who has helped himself to a million or two through graft or some such crooked deal as this Teapot Dome affair.

It may be ever so shocking but it is a fact, and one which might as well be faced, that as a people we are tolerant of crime in high office while we are intolerant of it in private life.

WASHINGTON LETTER

By RODNEY DUTCHER

Washington.—President Calvin Coolidge has met royalty, including Queen Marie and a few visiting princes, but was only recently that he had an opportunity to learn how royalty behaves at home.

There can be no doubt that a president really ought to know how rulers of other nations conduct themselves, but the fact that Mr. Coolidge has acquired this item of education has gone hitherto unnoticed.

The occasion was the formal opening of that ocean of gilt paint known as the Fox theater, in the new National Press Club building.

The opening probably was most notable for the fact that the president, after sitting through a long session of spectacular vaudeville, actually stayed on another hour or so through the full length of a movie. It was far from incumbent upon him to do so, for everyone from the owner down would have been quite happy had he quit the presidential box after the first number or two.

Presumably, the president stuck because the movie dealt with incidents in the private life of a royal family, and also the subject of American loans to European nations, in which he is very much interested. He had no 50 cents invested and he surely would have left if the picture hadn't appealed to him.

As the picture opened, the president found an American capitalist arrived at the court of a European kingdom. This type of J. P. Morgan was ushered into the throne room just at the time his dress shirt began to give him trouble. The king approaches the millionaire and whispers: "Your shirt's out."

"I know it," says the embarrassed capitalist. "Why in hell don't you fix it?" asks the king, and he leads the banker off to a window where everything is adjusted.

Well, it appears that the king has a crown prince who is totally uninterested in women and another son who is totally uninterested in anything else. When he opens negotiations with the capitalist for his American loan, the capitalist insists that they must make the crown prince interested in women or else he won't ever get married and there won't be any heir and thus not enough security for the loan.

So the king and the wealthy American, with President Coolidge taking it all in from the presidential box, he himself off to Paris to find a gal who, for a few thousand dollars, will come and vamp the prince so that he will become interested in women and marry somebody.

They are then shown on a Paris street trying frantically to pick up strange women—the real king and the American king of finance. Tired and unsuccessful, they retire to a fake Apache den where the heroine nightly helps him.

A New Yorker in Paris

Verdun, Oct. 17.—Ten years afterwards we all got out of automobiles and stretched.

We looked about at the gentle slopes where the great pockmarks of war still disfigure the face of a lovely countryside. So this was the bloody sector in a war that, somehow, seems almost never to have been.

Had it not been for the white monotony of crosses upon hills the countryside would have seemed dedicated to the memory of forgotten springs and wildflowers. There is a regularity to the rows of graves that tells you how time has sped.

Time for efficiency and burial al and landscape gardening; time for new branches to burst upon overhanging trees; time for new life to appear upon the hillsides and grow old and die; time for all that another summer has born to die in a radiant lavender-and rose with the coming of autumn.

In the Rue Anber, Paris, a fellow stops you and thrusts cards into your hand, repeating: "See the battlefields. . . . See the battlefields."

Just around the corner from the American Express half a dozen sightseeing automobiles draw up and other fellows slip cards into your hand and chant: "Dunt fall to see the battlefields!"

In every spoke that radiates from the Place de l'Opera are other waiting cars. Trains run regularly in every direction. Tourist agencies arrange endless itineraries.

And in the end, whatever road you take, you come to the land of sloping hillsides and white crosses standing at eternal attention. And when you remember there was a war. And you remember a friend, and another friend and another.

Along the sloping hillsides groups wander. And when they converse they talk in whispers, as though this were a funeral or a church service. They talk around in that sort of lost fashion that strangers have when they are in a strange and embarrassing land.

From the seats of the automobiles the raucous voice of the speller spurts the sing-song story. "Here, folks, is where. . . ." And so on.

First it was Meaux. Is it possible the Germans were once so close to Paris and all the world stood trembling? Remember the taxicab army that saved the city? Then it's Chateau Thierry and after a long ride through a farm scattered plain, the white crosses of Belleau Woods, Belleau Woods, where today the trees rustle as gently as spring rain falls upon the roof.

At the fringes of the wood you stop and shiver, that is if you have an imagination. It isn't hard to know that might happen to any army that tried to take that wood. And there are the graves to prove it, and just beyond the neat stone house of the caretaker.

Then there's Dormans, where the eight German regiments tried to cross. The Marne runs sluggishly along and half a dozen fishermen dangle lines in the water but catch nothing. Epernay, and finally bloody Verdun.

All about wander little groups, talking in hushed whispers. Now and then someone stops and plants a few flowers before a farm scattered plain, and then a man stops and takes off his hat and studies for a moment the few feet of earth and shakes his head, as though unable to comprehend.

Bootleg Stuff

And as you look about, perhaps you shake your head and find it hard to comprehend. For at your side are two Germans and they are shaking their heads. They cannot understand.

Ten years afterwards we all stretch and get back into automobiles. And we ride and ride and come to Paris and hear bands play. And get out and stretch and go to a bar and stand silent over our beer as we remember pockmarked hillsides and regiments of white crosses at attention. Hours afterwards as I write, I find myself shaking my head. Still trying to understand.

"BEAU GESTE" FILLS THE STATE THEATER. Foreign Legion Film Makes Auspicious Debut in Town; Remains Here Until Wednesday.

"Beau Geste" packed the State theater last night and bids fair to establish a record for the major shows during the four days it will be shown here. It remains at the theater today, tomorrow and Wednesday and a matinee for children will be shown on Wednesday afternoon.

The magnificent broad sweep of this drama of the French Foreign Legion has never before been surpassed, nor has there ever been a finer theme more masterfully executed, than that of the devotion of three young brothers, and their smiling, unflinching sacrifice for each other.

The pounding, pulsing drama of "Beau Geste" is brought to the audience with shocking force in the opening scenes. A detachment of the Foreign Legion is shown on its way across the African desert to relieve a fort which has been attacked by Arabs.

Outstanding chorus singing featured the presentation of parts of Guilmant's Mass in E Flat by the choir of the South Methodist church last night under the direction of Archibald Sessions. The mass, the first of the winter season's monthly musicales, was different from anything that the choir has given to date.

About 450 people attended the musicale and among the audience were musicians from Hartford and Middletown, who had come to Manchester especially to attend the affair. The audience was impressed more than anything else by the work of the choir in the ensemble numbers, of which there were several.

Particularly excellent were the Agnus Dei and Gloria in Excelsis, presenting a contrast, the first plaintive in character, the latter a pean of rejoicing. The soloists did not have a great deal to do, the mass being composed mostly of chorus numbers. The soloists were Watson Woodford, Miss Eleanor Willard and Robert Gordon.

THIS HAS HAPPENED VANCE demonstrates by measurements at the scene of the shooting that the murderer must have been approximately six feet tall, and thus eliminates Miss St. Clair as a suspect. Her handbag has been found in the room with the murdered man. Markham has threatened to kill Alvin Benson. Markham has threatened to kill Alvin Benson. Markham has threatened to kill Alvin Benson. NOW BEGIN THE STORY CHAPTER XXIX VANCE, however, did not appear discouraged. He dwelt on Captain Leacock's character, and seemed particularly interested in his personal relationship with Benson. The whole interview impressed me as pointless, and I could not help wondering what Vance hoped to learn. Markham, I was convinced, was equally at sea. He pretended polite interest, and nodded appreciatively during the colonel's incredibly drawn-out periods; but his eyes wandered occasionally, and several times I saw him give Vance a look of reproachful inquiry. There was no doubt, however, that Colonel Ostrander knew his man. When we were back in the district attorney's office, having taken leave of our garrulous guest at the subway entrance, Vance thrust himself into one of the easy chairs with an air of satisfaction. "What's that?" As an eliminator of suspects the Colonel has his good points. "Eliminator!" retorted Markham. "It's a good thing he's not connected with the police; he'd have half the community jailed for shooting Benson." "He is a bit blood-thirsty," Vance admitted. "He's determined to get somebody jailed for the crime." "According to that old warrior, Benson's cotter was a camorra of gunmen—not forgetting the women. I couldn't help getting the impression, as he talked, that Benson was miraculously lucky not to have been riddled with bullets long ago." "It's obvious," commented Vance, "that you overlooked the illuminatin' flashes in the Colonel's thunder." "Were there any?" Markham asked. "At any rate, I can't say that they exactly blinded me by their brilliance." "And you received no solace from his words?" "Only those in which he bade me a fond farewell. The parting didn't exactly break my heart. . . . What the old boy said about Leacock, however, might be called a confirmatory opinion. It verified what verification had been necessary—the case against the Captain." Vance smiled cynically. "Oh, to be sure. And what he said about Miss St. Clair would have verified the case against her, too—last Saturday—Also, what he said about Pfyfe would have verified the case against that Beau Sabreur, if it had happened to suspect him—eh, what?" Vance had scarcely finished speaking when Swacker came in to say that Emery from the homicide bureau had been sent over by Heath, and wished, if possible, to see the district attorney. When the man entered I recognized him at once as the detective who had found the cigar butts in Benson's grate. With a quick glance at Vance and me, he went directly to Markham. "We've found the gray Cadillac, sir; and Sergeant Heath thought you might want to know about it right away. It's in a small, one-man garage on Seventy-fourth street near Amsterdam avenue, and has been there three days." "One of the men from the Sixty-eighth street station located it and phoned in to headquarters; and I hopped up town at once. It's the right car—fishing-tackle and all, except for the rods; so I guess the ones found in Central Park belonged to the car after all; fell out probably. . . . It seems a fellow drove the car into the garage about noon last Friday, and gave the garage-man $20 to keep his mouth shut. The man's a foreigner, and says he don't read the papers. Anyway, he came across pronto when I put the screws on." "The detective drew out a small note-book. "I looked up the car's number. . . . It's listed in the name of Leander Pfyfe, 24 Elm boulevard, Port Washington, Long Island." Markham received this piece of unexpected information with a perplexed frown. He dismissed Emery almost curtly, and sat tapping thoughtfully on his desk. Vance watched him with an amused smile. "It's really not a madhouse, y' know," he observed comfortingly. "I say, don't the Colonel's words bring you any cheer, now that you know Leander was hovering about the neighborhood at the time Benson was translated into the Beyond?" "I'm your old Colonel!" snapped Markham. "What interests

The WOMAN'S DAY

After all, it isn't the thing we do or see, the strange adventures, fascinating experiences we have, that make us interesting and interesting. It's what we ourselves put into mild, common, garden variety experiences. Which sage reflection follows reading "A Happy Pilgrimage," by Corra Harris. Here is a book about a middle-aged, rather plain, sparrow type of woman who did nothing more exciting than leave her cabin home in a Georgian valley, take a trip to California, come home again, and write a book infinitely more thrilling and adventurous than many which have been written by lady travelers into the very desolate heart of the world. The point is that during those many years in her simple, uneventful Georgian valley, Corra Harris had done the sort of living and thinking which equipped her to mantle the commonplace in glorious enthusiasms. She was the adventure herself. It seems to me that this woman and her book are some sort of answer to the hordes of home-keeping women who insist that their lives are wasted and that they are only "marking time." Girl's Chit-Chat Feeling booky this morning, I want to quote a clever line or so from "Three Wives," by Beatrice Seymour. Tony and Stella, sisters, are talking together. "Tony, do you believe women are the mean and spiteful sex?" "No, I believe some women are mean and spiteful." "And men?" "And some men." "But nearly everybody talks as though it's always women who do the disloyal and spiteful thing—never men." "I know." "Doesn't it make you sick?" "It makes me laugh." "Why?" "All masculine criticisms of things like this about women." "No, but most women still say what men say—that they're always said. Most women still see themselves through masculine eyes." "That's funny, too, it seems to me."

Daily Health Service HINTS ON HOW TO KEEP WELL by World Famed Authority

DIPHTHERIA WAR MUST BE WAGED CONTINUALLY BY DR. MORRIS FISHBEN Editor Journal of the American Medical Association and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine. The battle with diphtheria is a campaign of eternal vigilance. The medical profession has shown in its laboratories that the injection of toxin anti-toxin will develop a resistance to the disease and that cases seen early and treated promptly with anti-toxin are likely to recover. Unfortunately, there are still thousands of persons who neglect to provide their children with protective measures and who delay calling competent medical advice even when the disease appears. Immunization Among 1700 In a period of ten years a total of the boys in Girard college were immunized against the disease and at that time there was only one case of diphtheria among 1700 boys and that occurred in a boy who had just entered and who had not been protected. The death rate for diphtheria is diminishing every year, falling from a rate of 50 per one hundred thousand people in 1890 to rates of 0 to 20 in 1926. New York city had 1239 deaths and 14,014 cases of diphtheria in 1919 and the rate for that city has fallen so that there were 874 deaths in 10,427 cases in 1922, and 477 deaths in 7531 cases in 1926. Bear in mind that New York is a city of some 7,000,000 people, and that a rate similar to that of 1890 would have meant hundreds of thousands of cases and many thousands of deaths. Occasional Increases Occasionally there are sudden sharp increases in the number of cases of diphtheria and in the number of deaths even in communities that have been thoroughly protected against the disease. There are several factors involved which explain these sharp rises. Most significant is the fact that the bacterium is a living organism the same as the human being and that it sometimes becomes more virulent than it is at other periods. A special investigation made in New York city of 150 cases of diphtheria revealed the fact that only two or three per cent had received preventive injections and that even those that had received preventive injections sufficient time had not elapsed to permit immunity to develop. Home Page Editorial Sentiment Is With Us Still By Olive Roberts Barton ways will be with us—I hope! And as for unfulfilled romance—who is without it? "He is poor indeed who has no memories of Arcady." Matter of fact and prosaic we may become as we age, for we cannot do dreaming through life. But deep in our hearts there are still the glowing ashes of a lost sentiment. It is good for us. Often an affair that didn't amount to much in youth takes on gigantic proportions as we tell it in maturity. It's as natural as can be to talk and think of what might have been! Why do we exaggerate youthful romances? Because we invent what we need, and we need romance to our dying day. Memories are our greatest treasures. Age brings its compensations. Sweet memories and old sentiments are not the least of these. FLATTERING HATS Ear flaps of fur or feathers, flanges of soft velvet, back bows of squashy hatters' plush—these are some of the flattering notes of new hats. The candle, or "dip," was given to her by a young Confederate soldier whose company camped on her father's plantation. This was the romance about the candle. She had promised not to light it until their wedding day. The young soldier marched away to battle and never came back. The girl sweetheart never married. The other day she decided that her lover would have preferred the candle to be lighted before she died. And thus the bit of tallow gave up the ghost—a sacrament to fidelity. I can scarcely imagine a girl of 1927 treasuring a candle, or an gift indeed, so faithfully or so long as did this girl of 1860! The truth, however, must be told. In one short sixty or seventy years of this old world's diary, girls haven't changed much at heart. They still fall in love, and they are as sentimental in their own way as ever. The difference is that they do not acknowledge such "foolishness" as they would put it. Sentiment is still with us. It al-

PENN STATE'S SATURDAY VICTORY

BIGGEST REVERSAL OF THE WEEK

Yale's Big Score In Defeating Brown Another Surprise—A Resume of the Week-end College Games.

By MALCOLM ROY
Staff Correspondent

New York, Sept. 17.—Out of the writer of Saturday's football games some highly startling results were achieved, with the topping of Pennsylvania by Penn State as the one big reversal of a day in which the majority of the college eleven played more or less to form.

Yale's big score in defeating Brown was another surprise and goes to prove that after all there can be a true indication of metals for the famous "iron" men of a year ago have by their successive reversals at the hands of Penn and Yale proved themselves to be a rather soft grade of lead this season.

Notre Dame's Victory

Notre Dame's decisive victory over Navy was not unexpected to close followers of the game although Navy did believe that its Green eleven measured every big string as the championship 1927 combination. Harvard found Holy Cross as weak as advance forecast indicated and won by a safe, though narrow margin. Princeton, third member of the now broken "Big Three," stands out as the only one of the group as yet unbeaten by virtue of its victory over Washington & Lee, an eleven which caused the Tiger no end of trouble a year ago.

In Middle West

In the middle west, northwestern turned a sterling performance to wreck Ohio State's conference championship aspirations and to prove incidentally that Dick Hanley had mounded the remnants left him by Glenn Thurston into a machine that is as good as the best in the conference. Michigan came through with a victory over Wisconsin to confound the critics who saw the Wolverines headed straight for ruin because of "Harry Up" York had relinquished the reins after more than a quarter of a century. Michigan, with Benny Osterbaan at his best, played the sort of game that York's eleven did when playing their strongest and indicated that they were in the race for the championship.

Dr. Clarence Spears had counted a comparatively easy game for Minnesota against Indiana, but Minnesota was fortunate to escape with a 14-14 tie game.

In the South there was a wholly unexpected uprising which saw Georgia Tech rise as it did in the days of Johnny Heisman and the golden tornado T wreck the University of Alabama, which stood just about as actually as the top of all the country's teams last year. Georgia Tech halted Alabama's famous crimson tide in its tracks and showed its own offensive power to be of high order by scoring two touchdowns in one of the most thrilling games the south has seen in years.

Locally, in New York, New York University displayed a terrifically powerful attack to defeat Fordham, playing its first game of major importance under the direction of Major Frank Cavanaugh. Colgate humbled Columbia in a close and hard-fought battle. Columbia, however, lacked the final punch necessary to score and its defense was not all that it might have been.

Syracuse demonstrated that it is a power to be reckoned with by taking the strong Georgetown team into camp. Georgetown met stiffer resistance than had been anticipated in West Virginia. The Mountaineers rallied from the effects of their terrible trouncing by Pittsburgh to hold Lafayette, to a seven to seven tie.

Easy Games.

Both the Army and Dartmouth had easy games and won by big scores. The big Green eleven at Hanover trampled the strong Temple University team under a 47 to 0 score, yielding a touchdown to the courageous Philadelphiaans. The Army routed Davis Elkins, but the southerners penetrated the coldest defenses for a touchdown.

Chief interest centered in the Navy-Notre Dame game, which proved to be a brimful of sparkling football. The Navy played a disappointing brand of football and the wanted big backfield however, around Lloyd was a dismal failure. Lloyd himself never got under way and it was a combination of his procrastination and the inherent weakness of the line that let Notre Dame block a punt which gave the Irish their first and tying touchdown.

World Have Won.

But it is only fair to say that Notre Dame was in the way of winning the game even then. The Notre Dame backfield with Flanagan and the less advertised Niemec on the string line, was well nigh irresistible. What was more to the point about the Notre Dame attack was the fact that not once was there the slightest sign of an invasion of the rule about holding positions a full second after a shift was made. Rockne's formations were almost invariably gotten under way after a shift but there was a full pause of a second or more before the ball was passed.

Rockne did take full advantage of the rule permitting one man to be in motion toward his own goal line when the ball was snapped back but instead of the motion being directed toward the goal line, the man in action invariably stayed. He ran back on the diagonal, clearly within the rules, yet giving Rockne a clear advantage, opening as it did opportunity for plays involving the lateral pass runs or shoots in the end zone.

BEATS ROLLERS 6-3

Providence, R. I., Oct. 17.—A series of forward passes followed by a line plunge of 12 yards in the last few minutes of play by Tony Latone enabled the Pottsville eleven of the National Professional Football League to defeat the Providence Steam Rollers here yesterday by the score of 6 to 3. The Steam Rollers had led from the first quarter with its three points but the Pottsville warriors, with Latone starring, gained a victory by dodging playing every step of the way.

Mullen Saves Team From a 7-6 Defeat. Blocks Place Kick

Moske Scores After McCarthy Blocks Punt; Forward Results In Eagles' Score.

The Wallingford Eagles did a trick that any football team may well brag of yesterday when they held the Cloverleaves to a 6 to 6 tie score at Hickey's Grove. Only once before in the three years the undefeated town champions have been playing have they been scored upon or held on even terms. In fact, the Cloverleaves came nearer to defeat yesterday than ever before.

"Whitey" Mullen, the energetic guard of the Cloverleaves was one of the big heroes of the day for Manchester. When he blocked the score of its touchdown in the closing minutes of play making the score tied at six all, it was Mullen who broke through the Wallingford line and blocked the place-kick that would, if good, have spelled a 7 to 6 victory for Wallingford and the first defeat in the Cloverleaves' history.

The game was one of the best seen at the north end in years and was witnessed by a large crowd. Manager Bill Griffin says he will attempt to book a return game with Wallingford next Sunday the boys' Club of New Haven plays here.

McCarthy Blocks Punt

The Cloverleaves were first to score. The tally came in the second quarter, the result of a blocked punt by Ted McCarthy, Manchester end, who not only broke up the kick, but also recovered the ball on Wallingford's nine yard line. It took Captain Brunie Moske only two plunges off right tackle to plant the pigskin behind the final stripe. Bill McLaughlin's placement kick blocked.

Aerial Works

There was no further scoring during the first half. The ball moved back and forth with neither team threatening for some time. Both backfields were functioning perfectly and the interference was at a minimum. The game was a stalling and a defensive struggle. At the end of the second quarter, Moske fumbled a punt on the ball of the fifteen yard line and Wallingford recovered. The visitors rushed the ball to the two yard line. A plunge at center netted a yard and on the next play which resulted in a five yard loss, Mullen making the tackle, Wallingford was held five yards from the goal line in motion. On the next play, Lipincott recovered a Wallingford fumble and Manchester breathed a sigh of relief as it stalled out the remaining few seconds before halftime.

Farr Dashes 75 Yards For Score Which Gives Manchester 6-0 Victory

Meriden 8, W. Hartford 6
Hartford 18, Greenfield 7
Bulkeley 13, Bristol 6
Naugatuck 25, Torrington 0
Weaver 25, E. Hartford 0
S. M. H. 6, N. L. Bulkeley 0

After wrestling the ball away from its opponents three times within the fifteen yard line, Coach Tommy Kelley's S. M. H. S. gridsters took advantage of the only real break of the game to beat Bulkeley High 6 to 0 Saturday afternoon thus making the dedication of Mercer Field in New London a trifle insignificant. More than 2,000 persons witnessed the contest which carried with it a college aspect.

The only score of the game came in the fourth period when Louie Farr, left end on the Manchester eleven, intercepted a partly blocked forward pass and dashed seventy-five yards to the goal line for a touchdown. As Lupien, Manchester's other aggressive end, who had caused Frank Locke's attempted forward to lob unexpectedly into Farr's arms, tried for the extra point via the dropkick route but the boot went wild.

$25,000 Stadium

The contest was a very colorful affair, made all the more so by the huge crowd which turned out to celebrate the dedication of the $25,000 field given to Bulkeley High five weeks ago by prominent New London business man and lover of sports, Mr. Mercer was present at the dedication and officially presented the large athletic field to the school. The 192nd Infantry regimental band, the Coast Guard band and two companies of marines attended dedication exercises.

According to information received at the ticket office, 1,384 persons paid over $700 to see the game and this did not include the hundreds of students who were admitted free. The bulk of the crowd was dressed appropriately for the occasion, the boys wearing yellow jackets and high black hats and the girls white "middies" with blue bandeaux. Each occupied a different section in the stands and cheered vociferously at every opportunity, although in vain.

Dowd's Runback

Manchester recovered the kickoff at the start of the game and after failing to gain, Al Lupien punted outside at midfield. There followed a brief spate during which each team tried to gain the upper hand. Other's defense and then "Butch" Kittle recovered a Bulkeley fumble. Shannon passed to Lupien for twenty yards but here Manchester again was forced to kick. Bernstein fumbled and Ernie Dowd, Manchester's feet-footed back, scooped up the ball and dashed to the twenty yard line where Manchester lost the ball on downs after advancing to the 17 yard line. It was the only real chance which the Kelleys had to score.

North Ends Win 51 To 0 Over Hartford Eleven

Due to a late cancellation by the South Ends of Hartford, the North Ends were forced to play the Pontiac team of Hartford, which they defeated by the overwhelming score of 51-0.

Although outwitted, the Pontiacs put up a strong fight but showed a lack of teamwork and bad generalship. Several scores were registered by the North Ends when they held the Pontiacs on downs near the goal. All the others were the result of wonderful teamwork which the North Ends showed, especially on end and tackle runs. The aerial attack of the North Ends was faultless, seven passes being completed out of seven tries.

The North Ends' first team rushed for two touch downs in the first part of the first quarter and then retired in favor of the second team which made two more before the half. The third quarter found the first team scoring two touchdowns on trick plays mixed with forward passes and then the second team scored two more in the last quarter, one when Red DeHaan recovered a fumble and ran for the end zone, the other when Charlie Balderson, a long pass to Nicky Angelo. All three extra points were short passes from Chartier to Sacherck.

McINNIS KEEPS JOB

It is understood that Stuffy McInnis will be retained as manager of the Phillies next season.

Dietz Intercepts Forward, Gallops 55 Yards to Score

Cervini Makes the Other Score; Manchester Eleven Far Superior.

"Connie" Dietz, full back for the Cubs football team, grabbed an enemy forward pass out of the air and reached 55 yards through the entire Windsor Locks team for a touchdown in a sizzling game played in that town yesterday afternoon.

Windsor Locks received the kickoff and after three futile plunges at the Cub line punted to St. John who ran the ball back 21 yards before being tumbled. On the next play, St. John made seven yards of tackle. Red Cervini made it first down on a plunge through the Cub line. This time the center, who was good for nine yards. Farr made three through the same place bringing the ball to the eight yard line. A penalty and a stiff line forced the Cubs to surrender the ball on downs.

Diets' Dizzy Dash

The home club elected to receive the ball on the kickoff and again were forced to punt. This time the entire backfield of the Cubs was changed. Dietz at full, Barowski, Groman and Dahquist rounding out the squad. The Cubs immediately punned and caught the Locks team unprepared for such a move. Three plays netted a first down but the Cubs stiffened their defense in midfield. On the next play, with the ball on the Cub's 45 yard line, they hurried a forward pass which Dietz intercepted and zig-zagged his way through the entire team for the final score. Again Mantell booted the ball through the uprights for the extra point.

Features Of Game

The features of the game were the improved line play of the Manchester team, the line plunging of Keeney, W. Dowd and Locke. Bulkeley's aerial attack in the final quarter was spectacular. Nine out of fourteen tries were completed. In all Manchester's tried twelve forward passes, completing three. Bulkeley tried eighteen and made nine of them good. The first downs were eleven to eight in favor of Bulkeley, made so because of successful forward passes. Manchester's line bucking was superior, but its backfield defense against forward passes was weak, despite the fact that Hansen, Shannon and Billy Dowd came through with timely "saves."

St. John Good

St. John made three nice gains and showed his old-time form in broken field running. The star line plunger, on either team, however, was Red Cervini. Time after time he would plow his way off tackle for substantial gains. From tackle to tackle the Cubs displayed excellent form on both the offense and defense. The Locks team relied entirely on its hidden ball attack but the hard charging Cubs broke these plays up except on two or three occasions when slight gains were made. Yesterday was the first time that the Cubs ever defeated the Windsor Locks team via the touchdown route.

Bethlehem 1, Hartford 0.
Giants 3, Philadelphia 0.
New Bedford 4, Newark 0.
Brooklyn 5, Providence 1.

Manchester is assured of at least temporary continuance of American League soccer here as a result of the much more satisfactory attendance yesterday when the crack Bethlehem Steel team scored a 2 to 0 nothing victory over Hartford at the McKee street stadium. Close to 1,500 persons saw a bitterly fought contest in which the better team won.

However, the victory which the 1928 American League champions scored was not easily obtained although deserved. Bethlehem's teamwork was superior to that of Hartford, but the rugged defense of Manager Jimmy Dewar's team tripe stopped them time and again. Play was fairly even in the first half but in the latter part of the closing chapter, the visitors swarmed all over the home team, although without avail.

Seek Center Forward.

While Hartford's defense was highly satisfactory it must be said that the forward line did not function as well as hoped for. There seemed to be a weakness at center forward and Owner Freddie Rochelle said after the game he would seek the services of Patterson of New Bedford for McGrawe of J. & P. Coats before next week's games. Hartford goes to Pawtucket Saturday and New Bedford plays here on Sunday.

The lone score of the ninety minute battle came after twenty minutes of play had elapsed, in the second half. Although it followed a bit of brilliant combination work, the goal itself was somewhat of a "soft" one, a misunderstanding between the Hartford backs was the cause. Robertson who went in for Goldie on the left wing for Bethlehem, beat Dempsey, who slipped, and crossed in front of the goalmouth. Jack came in fast from the right wing and, instead of trying for a goal, headed the leather back directly in front of the goal where Gillespie's toe beat Blair. The latter's vision was partly blocked by layers and the glaring sun. The score was made from a lively scrimmage in front of the goal.

Abdullah Misses

A few minutes afterward, Hartford found an excellent opportunity to equalize but failed. Happy Abdullah pierced the Bethlehem defense and with almost an open goal in front of him, shot way above the crossbar. Incidentally, Happy's play yesterday was not as good as it has been in some games. Nevertheless, he fought hard every minute of the game. Bethlehem also blew a golden opportunity in the first half when Goldie missed an open goal, Blair having been forced out to meet a shot by the great Stark.

Bethlehem gave the largest crowd of the season a rousing victory in its class' combination work. It was the second victory in as many days for the visitors who Saturday defeated J. & P. Coats at Pawtucket, 3 to 1.

The Windsor Locks team missed an open goal, Blair having been forced out to meet a shot by the great Stark.

LETTER GOLF

GET BUSY, FOLKS

To go from WORK TO LOAF takes a par five. Maybe you can do it in fewer strokes. Anyhow the solution is printed on another page:

Letter golf grid with words WORK and LOAF.

THE RULES.

- 1-The idea of letter golf is to change one word to another and do it in par, a given number of strokes. Thus to change COW TO HEN, in three strokes, COW, HOW, HEW, HEN. 2-You can change only one letter at a time. 3-You must have a complete word of common usage, for each jump. Slang words and abbreviations don't count.

Only the well knock the doctors.

"Just between you, me, and the lamp post, what do you see in that girl?" "Not a thing. But with the girl between me and the lamp post—well that's a different story."

Tramp: "I say, sir, could you give me a job?" Barber: "Well, sure. Here, paint this barber pole."

Tramp: "O. K. boss. Where do I get the striped paint?"

A scientific writer says "an airplane traveling at the rate of 200 miles an hour, flying night and day, would reach the sun in fifty-two years." If you haven't already planned your vacation trip, here is one worth considering.

A young man wants to know how to tell a girl he loves her. He doesn't have to tell her—she'll find it out. Leave it to her.

"You never hear anything about 'housemaid's' knees any more, do you?" "No, they call it photographer knee now."

"Why is that?" "Because it is a double exposure."

Wife: You think so much of your old golf you don't even remember when we were married. Hum: You bet I do. It was the day after I sank that thirty-foot putt.

Courtesy gives larger returns than anything else in proportion to cost.

"Really we wouldn't be taking this trip to Europe if Uncle John hadn't cleaned up that fortune in crooked dough." "What was he, a counterfeiter?" "No, a pretzel manufacturer."

THE TINYMITES

(READ THE STORY, THEN COLOR THE PICTURE)

The Tines thought the eagle rash to give wee Clowny such a splash. But Clowny didn't seem to mind. The lake was far from cold. He swam with quite apparent ease and yelled, "It's only to my knees. I'm really not a bit afraid, 'cause I'm brave and bold." Then Scouty shouted, "Sakes alive, here is our chance to take a dive. The water sure looks tempt-ing and I'm for it goodness knows." The other Tines yelled "Hurray!" and from the shore they ran away to find a place where they could take off portions of their clothes. Wee Clowny, in the meantime barely crept. He looked up to the shore and wondered where the bunch had gone. Thought he, "My legs are getting sore. I fear I'll never reach the shore. I wish that I were very big and had a lot of brown."

When they splashed forth in the water. What a treat the whole crowd had! "Come on, there Clowny," some one cried, "Swim on until you reach our side." And Clowny yelled, "Say if I can, I surely will be glad." Then Carpy laughed to beat the band. "Why swim so hard when you can stand?" Poor Clowny had forgotten that the water wasn't deep. So, up he stood and cried aloud, "I'll soon be with that happy crowd, and when again I'm safe and sound, right with them I will keep." A splash nearby gave him a scare. Of course he wondered what was there. And when he looked around he was as scared as he could be. The other Tines ran ashore. Poor Clowny was alone once more, and toward him came an ugly thing—a serpent of the sea. (The Water King comes to Clowny's rescue in the next story.)

Lockwill held his breath. The dancing flames caused dancing, fantastic shadows to play over the sylvan background. But the graceful snow-white figure at which he was looking was as motionless as if it had been sculpted from Parian marble. The eyes of the albino buck were aglitter with the glory of the wondrous light at which the creature was gazing as if hypnotized.

"Don't move, fellows!" whispered Jack. "Just turn your eyes a little to the right, and you'll see something you'll never forget." Obeying him, they also saw the deer.

"My gosh!" yapped Willie, starting up. "There it is! In the wink of an eye, almost, the deer wheeled and shot away, vanishing. 'You spoiled it!' said Jack regretfully.

On their feet, the trio looked vainly toward the spot where the white deer had been. "Damnation!" moaned Darling, disgusted with himself. "I'm just a gabbling idiot! But I was so surprised! I was thinking about—about Sue Varden and her snob of a brother—and that crazy hermit, Old Hunchy. I didn't expect to see the deer, ought to be kicked!"

Stunts and games were played and there were refreshments. Miss Helen Haviland and teachers of the departments were in charge.

ROBITUARY

MRS. JANE DONAHUE

Mrs. Jane Donahue, aged 70, died at the home of her son, Lawrence Donahue, 188 Catham street, New Haven, Friday, Mrs. Donahue, a sister of Mrs. James H. Gilligan of Manchester, had lived here most of her life, removing to New Haven a year ago.

The funeral was held this morning with services at William P. Quish's undertaking parlors and St. Bridget's church at the north end. A solemn requiem mass was celebrated. Burial was in the St. Bridget's cemetery.

Mrs. Donahue is survived by one daughter, Mrs. Robert McVeigh, three sons, Lawrence, John of South Carolina and William, of Hartford, a brother, Francis Conwell of Burnside and two grand children, in addition to her sister.

FUNERAL OF ROBERT ELLIOTT

The funeral of Robert Elliott, 24, son of Samuel Elliott of 281 Center street, was held yesterday afternoon at the undertaking parlors of Thomas G. Dougan of 59 Hill street. The young man, who was a wireless operator in the U. S. Navy, having enlisted in 1920, died a week ago yesterday morning at the U. S. Veterans' Hospital at Livermore, Cal.

It was a military funeral and a firing squad from Dilworth-Cornell Post of the American Legion, paid final tribute to the former Manchester youth.

A delegation from the Manchester Lodge of Masons, of which he was a member, attended. Rev. Watson Woodruff, pastor of the Center Congregational church, officiated. The bearers were three cousins and three schoolmates, Albert Ford, Robert Dougan, Joseph Hadden, Harold Hadden, James Dickson and Edward Black. All except the latter live here. Black's home is in New York. Burial was in the East cemetery.

COMPLAIN OF WAY

LATE CAR IS RUN

Jammed Trolley Conveyance, Without Conductor, Held Up By Stubborn Door.

Manchester and Burnside people who are in the habit of taking the last South Manchester car from Hartford at night have complained about the way the car is run in the absence of the conductor, who leaves the car at Comstock hall, East Hartford.

A passenger on this car several evenings ago described his trip to South Manchester. The car leaves Market street shortly after midnight and is the last one to go to Manchester before 1:30. The latter car is used for the purpose of carrying Manchester motormen and conductors home but also carries other passengers.

"The car was crowded and all available standing room was taken up," the passenger said. "The aisles and vestibules were full and passengers were packed in closely. The conductor left the car at Burnside avenue, to return to Hartford on the next westbound car and he had evidently taken his door lever with him. "East Hartford and Burnside passengers in the rear of the car had to open the back door as best they could, and sometimes it took the combined effort of three or four of them. They did not shut it tightly after the passengers had alighted and as a result the car could not start, for the power is shut off when the door is open. "The motorman was unable to open the rear door because of the large number of people in the aisles. And passengers in the rear could not reach the front to get out that way for the same reason."

MARRIAGE INTENTION An application for a marriage license has been made at the office of the Hartford Town Clerk by Carl Peterson and Elsie Dahlman, both of South Manchester.

Your Local Building Material Dealer

Our grandmothers had their storerooms filled with flour, sugar and other kitchen essentials. Today the grocery store gives the housewife a selection of hundreds of foods, many of them ready for the table.

Just so the building material dealer fills an economic need of our present life. He gathers together a hundred and one materials suited for as many different needs. They are available at a moment's notice. He has at his finger tips the knowledge that prevents clumsy and costly mistakes in building.

From a purely selfish standpoint any community should support its building material dealer for this reason—to increase the service obtainable through him.
