SEEK DETROIT WOMAN

Boston, Jan. 6.—Carrying a warrant for her arrest, Boston police inspectors today sought Mrs. Rae Hessel Weichman, wife of a wealthy Detroit merchant and sister-in-law of George W. Gordon, trusted auditor, accused of stealing $160,000 or more from the Eastern Steamship Company by means of manipulating freight bills.

NEW WAR CLOUDS

Berlin, Jan. 6.—A new clash between Poland and Lithuania was reported today in dispatches from Warsaw.

REASON FOR DELAY

The lack of legislative business was due to the failure of the leaders of both parties to speed up action on any of the major bills. The new tax reduction bill, which was to have become a law by the first of the year, ran into a pigeon-hole when the House raised the total cash to $290,000,000 and the administration held out for only a $225,000,000 cut. A gentleman's agreement was reached that the bill in the Senate until after March 15 in order to determine accurately how much reduction the Treasury can stand.

HEATED DEBATE

Washington, Jan. 6.—The Congressional investigation into the charges of naval inefficiency made by Rear Admiral Thoms P. FIND PLANE BUOY

St. John's, N. F., Jan. 6.—An inflated buoy, such as included in the equipment of trans-Atlantic planes, has been picked up on the north shore of Newfoundland and is being forwarded here for examination. It was announced today. While no detailed description of the buoy has been received here, it is believed that it may be part of the equipment of one of the half dozen airplanes lost in attempts to cross the Atlantic in non-stop flights.

SENSATIONAL CHARGE

Washington, Jan. 6.—A mild sensation was created today in the Burns-Sinclair contempt trial when Assistant U. S. Attorney James O'Leary, prosecutor of the case against the oil millionaire and the Burns Detectives, made the unusual charge that Justice Frederick L. Siddons "is playing directly into the hands of these defendants."

Beginning Tomorrow WATKINS BROTHERS' SEMI-ANNUAL FURNITURE SALE

The Furniture Event of the Winter Season

A Popular Priced Group, $185

Watkins popular priced furniture must live up to the high Watkins standard—the best for the money. Here is an example in a suite that cleverly combines plain taupe mohair with velour of the same shade. Ratine tapestry is used on the reversible cushions. Davenport has serpentine front and chairs swell fronts. Formerly $229.00.

Pieces of Finest Mohair $319

To say these pieces are of Watkins finest quality is perhaps sufficient but nevertheless we must call your attention to the graceful and simple design, the superb tailoring and the fine all-angora mohair covering. The mohair is in a pleasing taupe shade with reversible seat cushions in a soft-colored ratine tapestry. Regular $425.00 for three pieces.

Upholstered Chairs

$39.50

These are chairs you can work into your living room to give variety and color. The frames are of solid mahogany and you may select from two colorful tapestry coverings used on the seats and backs. Regular $52.50.

Windsor Chairs

$4.98

This is a unique design, departing from the usual plain curved bow having a double curve instead. Legs and stretchers are bamboo turned and seat is saddle-shaped. Tudor mahogany finish over birch. Regular $7.50.

Gateleg Tables

$9.98

With one of its leaves dropped, this table can be placed at the arm of a chair or davenport. When opened it measures 30 inches round and when closed, 30x39 inches. It is made of solid gumwood finished in mahogany. Regular $19.50.

Winthrop Desks

Details are worked out carefully in this excellent Governor Winthrop model, secret drawers, automatic slides and authentic Colonial red finish being some of the interesting points. It is 32 inches wide and made of mahogany and gumwood. Regular $80.00.

Bed-Davenport

For the home of limited space where an extra or spare bedroom is needed comes the davenport-bed. One simple motion converts this comfortable davenport into a double bed. One of our popular designs a 6 ft. size—comes upholstered all over, including reversible cushions, in lacquered velour. Regular $110.00 with mattress.

Chest of Drawers

$27.50

These chests are not only used in the bedroom but in the breakfast room as a buffet as well. They measure 40-inches wide, have three deep, roomy drawers and are finished mahogany over birch. The base is of the early Colonial bracket type. Regular $36.00.

5 Pieces to Decorate $16.50

If you like to experiment with paint and brush you will delight in this five piece breakfast suite we have assembled. It includes a drop-leaf table and four Windsor side chairs and comes unfinished and well sanded. The regular price for the five pieces was $19.50.

Store open Thursday and Saturday evenings until 9. Closed Wednesdays at noon.

IF we could always match finishes, colors, coverings and tickings; if we never left out a piece when selling a suite; if manufacturers never discontinued patterns, we should probably never have a sale.

But every six months when we check our stock we find suites with one or two pieces sold out, odd pieces left from others, coverings and finishes we cannot match and patterns that manufacturers have dropped from their lines.

It was to dispose of these articles that we held the first big Semi-Annual Sale and for the same reason we announce our next Semi-Annual Sale opening tomorrow morning.

Every department in the store, including rugs, draperies and dinnerware, are represented in this store-wide event. You can easily furnish or refurnish a complete home—a single room—or replace any single article with pieces and suites reduced for this Semi-Annual Sale.

Quantities in many cases are limited to one or two, so we suggest making your selections just as soon as possible.

4 Pieces of Mahogany Veneer $119

Here is an example of the unusual values offered in Watkins popular priced furniture. This suite is constructed of mahogany and gumwood, dull finish, and includes four large pieces. Full size bed, 50-inch dresser, 48-inch full vanity and 38-inch chest of drawers. Formerly $236.00.

4 Distinctive Sheraton Pieces, Decorated, $298

Graceful lines and unique woods go toward making his a suite of unusual interest. The tops and sides of the pieces are of solid mahogany, the fronts of maple with the top drawers and insert panel in top rail of the bed of English hairwood, hand decorated. A full size bed, 3 drawer serpentine front chest with large mirror, dressing table and bench are included. Regular $650.00.

Boudoir Chairs $9.98

These quaint little chairs, especially designed for the boudoir, will find a place in either a modern or Colonial setting. They are upholstered with delightful unglazed chintz in a small flower spray design. Turned legs are finished mahogany. Regular $13.50.

Salem Chests $69

Probably no other chest is as popular as the Salem. For it can be used in bedroom, living room, hall or breakfast room. This model is fashioned from mahogany and gumwood with solid mahogany interiors and is 38 inches wide. Regular $119.00.

Poster Beds $19.50

Who hasn't always dreamed of having a room furnished with one or two of these old fashioned beds? They have genuine mahogany plywood panels and solid gumwood posts and rails, finished in deep Colonial red mahogany. Full and twin sizes. Regular $25.00.

Kapok Mattresses $27.50

Here is one of the famous members of Watkins better bedding family. It is a luxurious mattress built of 100% finest imported Java Kapok (silk floss) upholstered in a heavy art-stripe ticking. Imperial stitched and rolled edge. 7 inches thick. Sizes made for all beds. Regular $35.00.

Mottled Rugs

$2.19

An ideal scatter rug for living room, dining room or hall. 27x52 inch heavy quality Axminster with solid end-borders.

End Tables

$3.75

Choice of a number of different models including half circle rectangular and fancy shaped tops, with turned legs and stretchers. Regular $4.50.

Early English—9 Pieces—$139

This suite shows in a striking manner how good popular priced furniture can be. The design, construction and finish all class it as a much higher priced outfit. 60-inch buffet, 38-inch china, 40x52-inch extension table, arm chair and 5 side chairs in walnut and gumwood. Regular $169.00.

5 Duncan Phyfe Pieces $298

Pieces by Duncan Phyfe inspired this graceful Grand Rapids dining suite. The buffet and serving chest show marked Sheraton influence while the chairs lean towards the Empire style. 68-inch buffet, 36-inch 3-drawer serving chest, 40x60-inch table, arm chair and 5 side chairs in crotch and plain mahogany. Regular $498.00.

Tea Wagons

$19.75

Solid gumwood combined with a solid walnut top are the woods used in this tea wagon. The finish is a dull, open-grain walnut. Small wheels all around, silver drawer and automatic leaf supports are features. Regular $27.50.

Dinner Sets

$16.75

These sets are in the popular ivory finish and include sixty-six pieces. A choice of three colorful poster-type designs is available. Regular $22.50.

Chippendale Desks

$39

If you want a desk of light lines suitable for the bedroom or formal living room, select this solid mahogany model. It has cabriole legs with ball and claw feet, drop front and 1 drawer beneath the writing bed. Regular $59.00.

Bridge Lamps

From the days of the whaler comes the inspiration for these lamps. They have wrought iron bases, finished in steel, with the arm fitted with a brass whale-oil bowl. Print-decorated paper-parchment shades complete the lamps. Regular $7.75.

Wilton Rugs

$76

Heavy grade wool wilton rugs with fringed ends come in a choice of all-over and semi-covered patterns. Included are colorings and designs suitable for practically any color scheme and for bedrooms, living rooms and dining rooms. 9x12 size, formerly $95.00.

Inlaid Linoleum

$1.49 sq. yd.

Genuine molded inlaid linoleum offered in a pleasing checked tile pattern in two tones of light tan. An excellent coloring and design for the kitchen, pantry, breakfast nook or bathroom. Our low price includes laying of 15 square yards or more. Formerly $1.79 a square yard.

3 Reed Pieces in Putty, $47

Putty is the color of the enamel used in finishing these genuine reed pieces. This pleasing, neutral color is contrasted with the gay cretonne spring cushions in bright reds and blues. A full length, 3 cushion settee, an arm chair and rocker are the pieces making up the suite. Formerly $69.00.

Plenty of unrestricted parking space for your car and in addition our own private space—rear of store.

STATE ADVERTISED BY ITS OFFICIALS

Hartford, Conn., Jan. 6.—Elected and appointive officials of Connecticut have seen to it that Connecticut has been well advertised nationally during the past year, even at the expense of many of the officials taking time to serve the state and outside interests as well. Among state officials who have been engaged in extra-activities in 1927 are: Governor Trumbull, President National Association Electrical Manufacturers; Treasurer Ernest E. Rogers, President National Sons of the American Revolution; Librarian George E. Godard, President American Historical Society; Deputy Highway Commissioner Clinton G. Nichols, President Exchange Clubs of America; Boxing Commissioner Thomas E. Donohue, President National Boxing Association. While these officials were being inducted into office in 1927 others were laying down duties of equal high rank. They included Automotive Commissioner Robbins B. Stoeckel, President Eastern Conference Motor Vehicle Commissioners; Food Commissioner Thomas Holt, President National Food and Drug Officials; State Forester Austin F. Hayes, President National State Foresters Association; Senator Frederick C. Walcott, President State Fish and Game Commissioners Association; and John W. Tilcomb, President American Fisheries Society.

William H. Blodgett, in 1927, became a member of the executive committee of the League of State Legislatures, which seeks to repeal the federal estate tax. Others to be placed on committees of national organizations are: Howard P. Dunham, commissioner, and William M. Corcoran, actuary, of the insurance department; A. B. Meredith, educational commissioner; Richard T. Higgins, of the Public Utilities Commission; Miss Dorothy M. Shanley, of the Teachers Retirement Board; Adjutant General George M. Cole, and John A. MacDonald of the Military Board.

MIX AT HIS BEST IN CIRCLE FILM

"Outlaws of Red River" Here Saturday With "Heart of Salome."

Tom Mix is at his best in "The Outlaws of Red River," the feature in which he appears at the Circle theater tomorrow and Sunday. On the same bill with Mix will be "The Heart of Salome," a picture of Paris and the French provinces.

And again Tom Mix had every one gripping their seats in one of the most spectacular and daring series of episodes ever filmed. But this last may be misleading and give the impression that this picture is nothing but action, suspense and excitement. It is that but interwoven into a story that is of vital importance and of sustained interest from beginning to end.

A bare outline can hardly do justice to the enthralling tale of the "Outlaws of Red River," which pictures the search of the Falcon, the most daring of the Texas Rangers for his foster-sisters who were abducted by bandits when both were children. This thrilling episode and the raid on the emigrant train when it took place, are shown in the prologue. Incidentally the part of Tom, then a lad of ten or twelve is played by Jimmy Downs, who gives a splendid characterization of the western star as a boy.

A sword duel in the depths of a subterranean dungeon between Holmes Herbert in the role of Count Zanko, shady master of European finance, and Walter Pidgeon in the part of Monte Carroll, a young American engineer, is one of the dramatic sequences in "The Heart of Salome."

This latest Fox feature, coming to the Circle at an early date, is the starring vehicle of Alma Rubens. She plays the role of La Belle Helene, beautiful spy for Count Zanko and known to Paris as the woman with the face of a saint and the heart of a siren.

Paris—French intelligence is in grave danger, according to Louis Roubaud, writing in "Let Petit Parisien." It threatens to be deadened by poisonous narcotics.

Opium and "coco," which is the popular name for cocaine, with their many derivatives, are not yet greatly diffused as alcohol, and they will never harm the immense classes of peasants and workmen. But they are penetrating, little by little, the brains of the young intellectual awaiting his last diploma before entering upon a career.

Young doctors, lawyers, engineers, architects, writers, and artists make up the largest class of Frenchmen addicted to the drug habit, which has been taking on alarming proportions since the year 1912.

WOMEN TAKE ALL

SHE: You never hear of women cashiers embezzling or running off with their employers' money.

HE: Not often, but when it does happen they take the employer too.

Laughter.

THE BOOK OF KNOWLEDGE: (178) Sponges

Long ago in the clear rock-sock seas around Greece, the young Greek divers toiled to bring up the curious sponge masses. The Greeks knew little of what the sponge really was, one ancient writer expressing the opinion it was made of the foam of the sea. Warriors used sponges to pad their helmets.

The sponge, as a matter of fact, is an animal, of the lowest form of those animals made up of more than one cell.

The sponge that we use for washing is the horny skeleton of the cell that holds the sponges together and gives them shape.

Off the coast of Florida divers descend from boats to the ocean bed and gather the sponges with their hands. The sponges are placed in a large net bag which the diver carries, and when this is full it is pulled up. The boat, guided by the bubbles of his expanded breath, keeps just above the diver.

Girl Scout News

Welcome, new comrade! We shall be the best of friends, and we hear that you have three hundred and sixty-six days in your pack for us. We shall love every day of them, with a little extra love thrown in for the wonderful "next day" of yours. You see we Girl Scouts, all of us, are climbing toward understanding and reaching after the things we love best. And the road does "wind uphill all the way," but a darling road it is, and wonderful treasures we are finding beside our path as we climb.

"Of course good-will goes along with us, and the love of comrades. And joy stays by, rain or shine; and courage and pluck are sure to come alongside when the hills are steep or the way is rough. There is always a song in our hearts, and the dulcet tones, the louder we sing. That's our chosen way, New Year, and we know that you will love it, too. What have you in your pack for us, by way of surprise? Good things, we know. The years that have come before you have taught us to expect that. And what did you say, New Year? We must listen. 'You will show them only one day at a time' you say. 'And you are glad that the road always winds uphill!'"

"Ah, we understand! We shall love to travel with you, a day at a time! And you may count on us for our level best, dear New Year. And sometimes more than our level best, for the Girl Scouts like to give good measure—heaped up—pressed down—and running over. These are the Girl Scout's measure of doing and giving."

A New Year's Message From Our President, Sarah Louise Arnold

"Good morning, New Year! We are glad and happy to greet you! Of course you will understand that there is still a choking in our throat as we think of the Old Year just gone. How dear he has been! Think of all the golden mornings—the wealth of the days—and the glorious sunsets that he opened to us. And so great a joy in all! Three hundred and sixty-five blessed days! U. S. $70,000,000
LOAN TO POLAND
PLEASES RUSSIA

Soviets See Uncle Sam Sitting on Top of Bank at Warsaw.

Moscow. — The $70,000,000 American loan to Poland has caused more prolonged satisfaction in Soviet Russia than any foreign event of many months.

"Uncle Sam sitting on top of the Bank of Poland" is the topic of one of numerous cartoons about the "Dawes plan" for Poland. The idea is that for the Soviets it is much safer to have Uncle Sam doing the sitting than John Bull. The reasons are numerous.

(1) American capital is regarded as non-political. Americans in Poland and elsewhere are concerned chiefly with questions of security and profitability of their investment. British bankers, it is believed, would have pushed Poland into a war with Russia.

Loan Binds Poland
(2) The terms of the loan are regarded as American contribution to the peace of Eastern Europe. As constituted here Poland cannot divert any of the loan for war purposes or manufacture of war materials.

"War for American bankers almost is bad business," one high government official said. "The prevention of war is the best security for the loan. You may be sure that the peace will not be disturbed by the Soviet government."

(3) Financial support of Poland may speed up negotiations for a Russo-Polish trade agreement and a neutrality and non-aggression pact. A peace treaty has been the dream of Soviet diplomacy since 1925.

No Commercial Conflict
While the thought of a powerful industrial Poland sends a shudder down the spine of many officials who look askance at the 2,400 mile Polish frontier, the commercial interests of the two countries are not seriously regarded as conflicting.

For decades, as one official pointed out, the Soviets will have more than enough to do with supplying their own population with manufactured goods. There can be no thought of exporting anything but raw materials, and these Poland may be able to buy.

Developments have shown, that the picture of an impending love feast of Russia and Poland, drawn for the benefit of the Americans during the loan negotiations, is not as rosy as painted. There are several small matters which must be cleared out of the road.

The TWO TOO BEAUTIFUL COSTELLOS

The Charm of Helene and Dolores

Was So Great It Roused Conflicting Ambitions and Jealousies Between Their Parents — Broke Up the Family.

Maurice Costello and—at right—Helene when her name was Helen.

John Barrymore was frequently seen in company with Dolores.

BY ROBERT PERRY

"MY wife alienated the affections of my daughters. That was the reason set forth in Maurice Costello's divorce complaint for his separation from his wife, May Costello.

There Costello stopped. He had said enough to break his marital bonds. But he could have told a long, long story—a story of quarrels which started on their honeymoon years ago; a story of how when he was down and out he had been almost a servant in his own home; a story about how a prominent motion picture actor practically replaced him as the head of his family.

For months Hollywood looked for a scandal that would be blazoned in headlines around the world—even overshadow the expected sensation which never materialized in the Charlie Chaplin divorce. But the sensation seekers were disappointed. The divorce was granted very quietly without even a hint of scandal.

The biggest surprise in the breaking up of the family was that it didn't happen long ago. If it hadn't been for the daughters, Dolores and Helene, such might have been the case. But the parents stuck together until the girls were well on the road to cinema fame.

It was when Mrs. Costello brought the girls from New York to Hollywood to launch them upon celluloid careers that the breach between the elder Costellos began to widen. That was where the world famous actor, John Barrymore, stepped in.

Maurice followed his family to Hollywood about a year later—just after Dolores had "clicked" in "The Sea Beast" as Barrymore's leading lady. That picture established her as a star, although it was some months before her salary was increased.

COSTELLO was having a tough time in those days—about two years ago. He was right at the bottom of his slump after having been one of the most popular leading men on the screen. For several months he couldn't even get work in the studios. And it was during that period that instead of being head of his home, he was just a handy man around the house.

Helene was just getting started and the combined salaries of the girls only permitted one car and no servants. Maurice played the role of chauffeur, taking his daughters to their studio—both were then at Warner Brothers, as they are now. But when he visited other studios—where once he would have been welcomed with open arms—he was always on foot.

Those were stormy days for the Costello matrimonial ship. Gossip had commenced to link the names of Dolores and Barrymore, who is easily old enough to be the girl's father.

Only a few close friends of the family knew the true circumstances of the situation. Shortly after Costello arrived in Hollywood, his wife told him in very plain language that she was managing the girls' affairs and for him to keep his hands off. Not long after that ultimatum Dolores ended an argument with her father by saying, "I'm of age and will do as I please."

That was the breaking point between Dolores and her father. Since then he has never referred to her as "my daughter." Even when talking to his wife, she was always "your child." Helene was the only member of the family to stick by her father, which she did merely by remaining neutral during

Happy family? Mrs. Costello and her daughters photographed at their Hollywood home just after Dolores became a star.

The too beautiful Costellos. Said Dolores, "I'll do as I please." Said Helene, "I'll remain neutral."

family scraps. And even she seems to have drifted away now. The day after Helene married Jack Regan, Costello, with tears in his eyes, poured out his troubles to a close friend.

"I HAVE taken a lot from my family but that almost broke me," he said. "I didn't expect to be invited to the wedding, although I worship the very ground Helene walks on. Her mother never would have permitted my presence. But I did think that the girl got away."

There is good authority for the belief that Costello tried for several weeks after the final blow-off to induce his wife to petition for a divorce but she steadfastly refused. So he filed a mild complaint stating that his wife had alienated his daughters' affections. The suit went uncontested.

ALL THE time that Costello was slowly getting a new foothold, Dolores was skyrocketing to fame. It was a bitter pill for the old fellow to take. His daughter, whom he had disowned, had as her only qualifications a beautiful face and an inherited ability to act. Yet she was making more in a week than he did in a month while he was on top of the pedestal. And he, an actor with 20 years' experience behind him, could scarcely get work. It didn't seem as if justice was functioning.

No one could say that Costello was jealous of Dolores' success. He had worked too hard to help her attain it. He was just a little bitter toward one of the tricks of fate. But still, for months he awoke Dolores and Helene every morning, got their breakfasts and drove them to the studio.

As the going became rougher, tongues started wagging faster with stories of Dolores and John Barrymore. Their relations ceased to be gossip and became common knowledge around the film village. In reality it was said to be Barrymore who caused the final break between Costello and his wife, May.

Maurice confided to his close friends several times toward the end that Barrymore had become the voice of his family. His wife and Dolores were only the loud speakers, he said. He was even heard to mutter threats that he would kill Barrymore if "the screen's greatest love" didn't stop wooing Dolores. And he might have done so had it not been for the fact that he was practically ostracized from his family.

It is said that the Costello divorce came to a head over John Barrymore's constant attentions to Dolores and her father's objections to having her go out with a man 20 years her senior. Barrymore was handicapped as far as a possible marriage was concerned by having a wife and child in the east.

Costello was boss wherever he went—largely because of his reputation as a fighter. But he married a woman of the same caliber, and the marital venture was unsuccessful. Only the girls kept them together. Both parents wanted the girls to have successful careers and they worked toward that end. There was a time when Maurice was making as high as $500 a week—an enormous sum even for a film star in those days—and he spent much of it to give Dolores and Helene their starts.

(Copyright, 1927, NEA Magazine)

SINCE Helene's marriage to young Regan, May Costello is dependent entirely upon Dolores—a situation which many in Hollywood believe is apt to result in fireworks. Dolores has inherited a strong temper from both her father and as indicated earlier in the story she likes to have her own way. About the first time Mrs. Costello tries to become too domineering, Dolores may come right back with "who's paying for things around here anyway?" Such a battle probably would see Mrs. Costello moving over with Helene and her husband—but Hollywood wonders if that would work out satisfactorily either. Jack Regan was brought up in various army posts. His father, a high ranking officer, was always the absolute head of his family. All of which would go hard with Mrs. Costello and might end with Helene and Dolores sharing the expenses of an apartment where their mother could live by herself.

HOLLYWOOD still shakes its head in amazement at the way these things go in the film capital. The happy families are here, of course, but it seems that these families invariably press-aggented as happy eventually break down in the long run. The Costello story is typical.

Not so many years ago, they were saying that the Costello family was to set a new precedent. Costello himself had had wide experience on the legitimate stage and in the movies. His experience in the movies tells the whole story and history of the film industry. For a regular pay envelope of $50 a week, he deserted the uncertain legitimate stage to go with the movies.

Anyway, Maurice jumped, and took to the films a rich experience of stage acting. When he made love, he didn't just put his hands on his heart in comic pantomime—he quoted Shakespeare to his heroines. For a number of years, he didn't have his name used on movie casts, but he became a film idol, and he was known to the fans as "Dimples." He had 'em.

When his daughters were three and four years old, they made their bow in the movies, too, playing with father. Dolores had her daddy's coloring, and could double for him in the early reels where the boyhood life of the idolized "Dimples" had to be shown. Helene was "little sister." This was the beginning of the happy family tradition. Maurice and May were no doubt figuring then on the day when the whole family could take part in pictures, establishing precedent by taking all the starring roles of a picture.

JUST this thing actually happened. Vitaphone, for whom Maurice had starred since the beginning of his film work, sent the Costellos on a tour around the world. Maurice was the hero, May was the heroine, and there were the two darling children.

It was when the family returned to America that the trouble really began. Dolores and Helene were growing up. They were in the ugly age, the school age. They were too old for baby roles, not old enough for juvenile leads. Then one day there was an unpleasant family row. Maurice went to police court for wife beating, and the reaction was sharp.

May forgave him, took him back, but the film public, not then quite so accustomed to film folk scandals, lost its desire to see "Dimples" and his darling children. Cancelled bookings told the story to the treasurer of the producers. Maurice was through. His only hope now was freelancing, waiting for the short memory of the public to run its course, obliterate the unfortunate incident at home.

And the rest of the story has been told. Dolores and Helene sought fame on their own hook, succeeded—tried to hold the family together—failed.

The whole trouble has been that the Costello sisters were too beautiful, too talented. With less charm, father and mother might not have developed their jealousies over who should have most influence in the family.

LIFE OF BARKER TELLS OF FIGHT WITH DOCTORS

London.—Greatest exponent of manipulative surgery of his time, Sir Herbert Barker, now retired, has written an autobiography in which he tells of his fight against the "unconquerables" of the medical profession.

There were cases of men who had not been able to walk without crutches for years and had been regarded as incurable by numbers of doctors; others who had lain on their backs for years. In innumerable cases they left Barker's consulting room, after an hour's treatment, perfectly cured.

Simultaneously with his success began his life-long fight with the medical profession. Because he had no medical degree, they boycotted him and refused to allow any doctor to recognize him.

LYTELL IN NEW ROLE AT THE STATE TODAY

"Alias Lone Wolf" One of Two Features on Screen—"Very Confidential" Is Second.

Bert Lytell has never played a more dramatic character than his part in "Alias the Lone Wolf," one of two features at the State theater today and tomorrow.

Menacing figures of the underworld, baffling maneuvers of a gang of crafty jewel thieves, and the battle of one man pitted alone against them in a struggle of wits—these are the elements of the story.

Lois Wilson, who gained fame in the picture, "The Covered Wagon," is in the female leading part and other players will have important roles as William V. Mong and James Mason.

Pinehurst Market News

Our copy to the Herald yesterday read "Bulk Molasses, better than any can of molasses you ever tasted" but the Herald left out the can and the adv appeared "better than any molasses you ever tasted." Therefore a few other stores that carry this same "top" grade of bulk molasses so we did not intend to word the ad just as it appeared in the Herald. But, really, if you have been using can molasses just try a pint, quart or gallon of our bulk molasses and you will order more.

SLOTTED WING DEVICE TO GIVE SAFETY IN AIR

Experts Hopeful That Handley Page Invention Will Meet Claims.

Croyden, Eng.—Handley Page, aviation pioneer and manufacturer claims that his recent invention is the thing that has been brought into aviation since the patents of the Wright Brothers.

At last it may be claimed with some justification that we are on the threshold of the era of safety in the air.

The bugbear of stalling—of falling below a speed sufficient to keep a machine moving horizontally through the air—has been removed, for it has been proved that a plane need no longer, in such circumstances, go crashing earthward in an uncontrollable spin.

It is this invention of Handley Page, which has removed from air travel its gravest danger. It is a development of his slotted wing idea—a kind of Venetian blind—which has been hailed as the greatest development in aeronautical progress since the Wright's first flight.

Exhaustive Tests
Elaborate and exhaustive tests have been made with it, and it has been found to fulfill all that has been claimed. Machines of all types, equipped with this amazing, simple safety-first device, have been flown, and experts have been deeply impressed with it.

Air Marshall Sir Sefton Brancker, chief of the civil aviation department, has flown in one of these safety-first planes and was more impressed with it than with any other development he has seen in aviation.

M. L. Bramson, well-known aeronautical engineer, said:—
"It is my personal view that this latest application of the Handley Page's slotted wing is one of the most important aerodynamic advances achieved during the last few years."

Those who have seen the experiments have been surprised at the success of the invention. Machines have dived well below flying speed, coming well-nigh to a standstill, but instead of hurtling to earth in a dizzy spin, have simply "hung" in the air.

The nose of the machine drops slightly, and the plane thus automatically regains flying speed. It gives to flying a degree of safety that has never before been attained.

Act Automatically
"It acts entirely automatically," explained Handley Page. "It is a development of the original slot invention, and is the result of more than eight years of research work."

"It entirely eliminates the human element when a machine stalls. The pilot can fly 'stalled' with just the same control as at the highest speed. With it you can do things which, without it, would be sheer suicide. It has been flown by the Royal Air Force, with some of their own experts on board."

"It is no more than the addition of a tiny curved plane, fixed to the leading air—on the top planes. It is so simple and so effective that the pilot does not worry in the least about its operation. At the danger point, however, it acts like magic."

OLD MCKINLEY HOME AT CANTON, OHIO, TO BE GAS STATION

Canton, O.—A new chapter in the history of an old property at 815 Tuscarawas street here, which studies memories to the "old timers" of Canton, has been written in the books of the City Building Department, when a permit was issued for a gasoline service station to be erected on the premises.

More than 40 years ago the site was the home of William McKinley, a rising young lawyer of Canton. McKinley left in when he moved to Columbus to act as governor of Ohio. His mother and father, Anna and Abner McKinley, sold it while he was away—a year or so before he was elected President of the United States.

The home was later occupied by Dr. James P. DeWitt, Canton's most prominent physician at the time. The doctor used it for his residence and office. After his death it was found that the timbers of the famous home had rotted. Now his daughter-in-law, who has not occupied it for years, has sold it. A gasoline station will now mark the place of McKinley's erstwhile home.

AERIAL KILLS FAMILY

Buffalo—A homemade radio aerial electrocuted an entire family here, when the wire came in contact with a high tension line over their home. Fred Volts and his son were found that the timbers of the famous home had rotted. Now his daughter-in-law, who has not occupied it for years, has sold it. A gasoline station will now mark the place of McKinley's erstwhile home.

A New Ford Comes to Congress
When Senator James Couzens, former business partner of Henry Ford, went to buy a new Ford, he was given one—the thirty-fifth turned out at Detroit. You see him here in front of the Capitol at Washington receiving the machine from Warren G. Eynon, Ford Washington manager.

EUROPE'S 'WILD WEST' FOUND IN HUNGARY! UNDER TRIBAL RULE

London—A European mystery land is discovered—a great Wild West "more romantic and more uncivilized than the ones shown by a thousand American films."

Open spaces roamed by cattle and wild horse, inhabited by cowboys of a thousand years ago—open desert no-man's land in the heart of Central Europe's broiling nations—this is the land which has recently been discovered, to the Westward World. Towards the borders of Hungary it lies "only a few hours journey from Budapest."

Cowboys (Chicos they are called) wear black "ten-gallon" hats with brims broad and curled. Long riding boots reaching almost to the knee they have and skirts platted and divided like Buffalo Bill's Western "chaps." The rough silk scarf of the American cowboy the Chico replaces with a red, blue and green embroidered mantle thrown rakishly as a cloak over his shoulder. The pipe this warrior carries is one resembling the Indian's long clay pipe of peace.

The Chico rides his horse saddleless—but with a blanket thrown across the animal's back. The blanket is ungrithed and to it sides stirrup straps are attached. Around the pony's neck the lariats is wound (the Chico is never without this). A single movement—a jerk of the hand—and the lariats is loosened and ready for action.

No six shooter for weapon—but a whip the chico has with a "phenominally long lash." He uses this with trained skill on offense and on defense. He can catch and bind a pig, sheep or other small animal at will with his up. A savage cast and the lash coils about the animal's body.

The Chicos live on their "no-man land" for life. They live in camps and the camps lie distances apart. They are so "open air camps" for their huts are only partly roofed.

THOUGHT FARMING.
FARMER: Thought you said you had ploughed the ten-acre field?
PLOUGHMAN: No; I only said I was thinking about ploughing it.
FARMER: Oh, I see; you've merely turned it over in your mind.

TOLLAND

The following pupils of the schools of Tolland were perfect in attendance for the term ending Dec. 23, 1927.
Hicks Memorial school: Mrs. Meacham, teacher; Florence Luff, William Albert, Louis Grantz, Grant's Hill school; Miss Hansen, teacher; Esther Piarsuk, Katharine Pivazuk, Sophia Pivazuk, Henry Szymerys, Erma Ursin, William Gorsky, Marion Ursin.
Cedar Swamp school; Miss Crota, teacher; Elizabeth Leonard.
River school; Miss Lane, teacher; Viera Kollar, John Elmirth.
White school; Miss Folan, teacher; Elizabeth Leonard.
Snipic school; Miss Roberts, teacher; William Albert, Louis Grantz, Grant's Hill school; Miss Hansen, teacher; Esther Piarsuk, Katharine Pivazuk, Sophia Pivazuk, Henry Szymerys, Erma Ursin, William Gorsky, Marion Ursin.
The regular meeting of Tolland Grange was held Tuesday evening and a class of seven candidates was initiated into the order in the first and second degrees. About 40 were present including visiting members from Coventry Grange.
The Fire department was called into action Wednesday evening to extinguish a chimney fire at the home of Mrs. Sarah Young.

COLUMBIA

The changeable weather of the past few weeks has caused a number of local people to suffer from hard grippe colds. Postmaster H. W. Porter has been unable to be in the store for a few days, and Mrs. Hattie Johnson is also ill with a cold. Rural Carrier Lyman also has one of them, but has been able to keep at work.
Mrs. W. H. Carpenter is visiting relatives in Hartford.
Ethel Newberry, who goes to Windham High school from this town has just made the Basketball team of the school. She has worked hard all the fall practising with this goal in view.
The regular meeting of Columbia Grange was held Wednesday evening owing to the fact that travel there was only 17 present, but all had a good time. The lecturers hour was "Officer's night" and each officer present furnished a number on the program. Following the program various games were played, testing the physical and mental skill of those present. The next meeting will be the installation of new officers, one of the big nights of the Grange calendar.
The cold snap has frozen up the mud holes on the roads, but the frozons nuts make travelling in some sections of the town exceedingly unpleasant to say the least.
Miss Ida Wain has returned to the parsonage after spending two weeks in Niantic with her brother, Rev. Yvo Wain.
Mrs. E. P. Lyman has been ill this week.

A WORD TO THE THRIFTY

We are sorry, of course, for those who are affected by the recent cut in wages. But just being sorry is not going to make up for those lost dollars. The buying of food is the big expense in any household. Thrifty housewives can derive tremendous savings by selecting their own foodstuffs. Be wise like thousands of others—see what you buy, get what you buy, at the Self-Serve and Health Market.

Our buying power combined with our volume and modern method of doing business has earned for us the reputation of having the lowest priced quality food departments for miles around. We will not be undersold on competitive quality goods. Bear in mind—"A Dollar Saved is a Dollar Earned."

A LIVE ONE. It's easy to get a BURN from WIRE if it's a live one. Just four strokes and you're there. See the par solution on another page.

THE RULES

- 1.—The idea of letter golf is to change one word to another and do it in par, a given number of strokes. Thus to change COW to HEN, in three strokes, COW, HOW, HEW, HEN.
2.—You can change only one letter at a time.
3.—You must have a complete word of common usage, for each jump. Slang words and abbreviations don't count.
4.—The order of letters cannot be changed.

SENSE and NONSENSE

The scene is the dining room of a little hotel. The actors are a fussy Chicago salesman and dinky waiter. After ushering the guest to a seat, the waiter inquired: "Will you have pigstails and sauer kraut?" "No, I never eat 'em," the guest replied. "In that case," said the waiter, "dinner is over."

"I'll be a champion runner," said the man in boasting tone. The only record that he broke was on the graphophone.

JACK LOCKWILL'S HELPING HAND

by Gilbert Patten

Cooling down between halves, Hargon realized that he had failed to show his own unusual ability at the game because of his determination to baffle Lockwill. Cub Maddox, who had proclaimed himself a good basketball player, was waiting to get into it. "Cub's going to give me a chance now," Cub whispered to Price in the dressing room. "Watch me fix Lockwill!"

When the second half opened, Maddox was on the floor as one of Hargon's team. Within a minute, he fouled Jack, and the latter, given a free throw, oged the ball.

Price Hargon's sister, Jane, and her chum, Betty Darling, were in the balcony. "I can't see why my brother has anything to do with that Maddox fellow," said Jane.

Relying on Maddox to take care of Lockwill, Hargon quickly demonstrated that he was a swift and clever player. Round after round of applause came from his admirers, of whom there were many in the freshman class. Having been warned by the referee, Cub watched for a chance to try to smash Lockwill cold. It came. Cub crashed into Jack, hurled him down, and fell on him. (To Be Continued)

THE TINYMITES STORY BY MAL COCHRAN—PICTURES BY KNICK

READ THE STORY, THEN COLOR THE PICTURE

The bunch helped Jack Frost to his feet. He laughed and said, "That was a treat. I haven't coasted for so long, I couldn't help but fall. It made me dizzy as could be. A snow bank loomed in front of me, and suddenly I tumbled, but it didn't hurt at all! "Oh, we have taken lots of spills," said Copsy, "but the speeding thrills. We're glad that you are safe and sound. What can you all do next?" Jack Frost sat down upon the ground and thought, and thought and looked around. "I'm trying to think of fun for you, but I am quite perplexed." The Tynmites let him think a while and then his face broke in a smile. "I have a hunch," he shouted, "if you all are tired of snow, I think the doorway can be found that leads to far, far underground. I'll help you try and find it if you'd really like to go." "You bet we would," wee Copsy cried, "I'll bet it's fun to be inside this funny world. But, tell us, will we all be safe from harm?" Jack Frost laughed loud, and then he said, "Why, there is nothing you need dread. The inside of the world is great. There's no cause for alarm. "And now I'll show you all the way to try and find this great doorway. It's buried in a bank of snow not very far from here." He brought some little shovels out, and with a very merry shout, the Tynmites followed old Jack Frost without a thought of fear. They soon were digging in the snow, while old Jack shouted loud, "Heave, ho!" He watched them work away until their little arms were sore. Then Scouty hollered out in glee. "The door is where you said 'twould be." And sure enough, they'd dug right through and reached the hidden door.
