

Death Ray Inventor Is Here On A Visit

Englishman Says One Man Could Stun An Army; Will Stop Future Wars, He Says.

New York, Jan. 27.—When the "death ray," or the "electric beam" as he prefers to call it, is fully perfected it will prove a powerful agency for world peace and not an aggressive weapon of war, its inventor, H. Grindell Matthews, renowned scientist, declared in an exclusive interview today. Its effect is to stun, not to kill.

An invading army could be "bombarded" into submission by the light shocks of the "death ray" and forced to surrender, according to Matthews.

"It would be a purely defensive weapon but mighty powerful," he asserted. "It would make future warfare futile."

Matthews, a tall, florid-faced man who talks with a slight English accent, has just arrived here from Great Britain to interest American financiers in the commercial possibilities of some of his inventions, including the phonofilm, or speaking movie, which he believes will revolutionize the motion picture industry, and also a gigantic searchlight capable of throwing an image on the sky thirty miles distant. The commercial value of the latter invention would be, he said, in its adaptability for advertising.

"I visualize great possibilities in the electric beam," said Matthews. "I hope to return within a few months to Flatfish Island in the Bristol Channel to conduct further experiments. The use of the Caradit has been granted by the Caradit Council for the experiments. Because of the danger, only a few of us will be on the island, a farmer, his wife and myself. We will be seven miles from the mainland, and had difficulties experimenting in my laboratory. Lights were smashed and phones put out of commission."

The inventor's left eye is nearly blind and his right eye is badly afflicted by experiments with the "death ray."

"My idea that if the electric beam could be fully developed it will prove a great deterrent to war," he continued. "In my laboratory experiments two and a half years ago I was able to project the beam sixty-four feet. It killed rats and mice."

"I think it, in my experiments on the island, I am able to project the beam four or five miles my object will have been accomplished. My original object was to devise a beam that would bring planes down. England, you know, is no longer an island and is open to attack from the air. The beam of light, shot upward, would short circuit the magnet of the flying planes, and bring them to earth."

Matthews stressed the fact that the invention of the "death ray" is not to inflict wholesale slaughter on an invading army but rather to shock the enemy into surrender.

"World Shock Enemy
The electric beam would bombard the enemy with a series of shocks, having the same effect as bolts of lightning. The troops would be knocked unconscious for a period of 20 minutes to half an hour."

"It would be a most humane weapon. I cannot imagine any civilized power maiming or killing men with other weapons if they knew they could shock the enemy into submission."

The "electric beam" would be operated from a predetermined position. It would not be mobile. It would be purely defensive. The aggressor would always be put at a disadvantage, according to Matthews. He said it could be operated from a platform above ground and after the beams of light were shot at the enemy the platform would disappear into the ground.

"One man in a high-powered station could repel an army," declared Matthews. "It is without question a practical invention, the only difficulty in perfecting it being the heavy cost."

Matthews is also the inventor of the "tuningphone," an instrument which plays music by light. He is the man whom the British government in 1915, paid $25,000 (nearly $125,000) for the light control boat, the "Dawn." That boat could be sent against forts and controlled by light from an airplane. The engines were controlled, the guns fired and then the boat was brought back to port.

MARINES TAKE STRONGHOLD OF SANDINO'S MEN

Climb Mountain 5,000 Feet
High In Two Days' March; Meagre Details of the Battle.

Managua, Jan. 27.—Accomplishing what a few weeks ago had been deemed almost impossible, United States marines today were firmly established on the summit of El Chapote, the mountain stronghold recently occupied by the rebel leader, General Sandino.

At the peak was a force of about 400 marines and a Nicaraguan company, commanded by Major Archibald D. Young, who led his command slowly and carefully up the side of the mountain in a two day march. El Chapote is about 5,000 feet high.

Although definite details were lacking and news of the occupation was brought back by marine airplane scouts, it was reported that rebel opposition to the marine advance was strong. Definite casualties were not known, although it was reported here that two marines had been wounded.

The marine patrol started the ascent to the actual peak yesterday morning. A considerable force of rebels sought to derelict the stronghold and others continued sniping at the column. But after two hours the marines occupied the top.

All the defenders had fled and as yet there was no news of the whereabouts of General Sandino, who is known to have been wounded during a recent bombing raid by marine aviators.

Quillan, the former operating base of the marines, has been abandoned as unsafe and useless.

GUN RUNNING SHIP AND GUNBOAT FIGHT

Meagre Details of Battle at Sea 600 Miles Off the Chinese Coast.

Hong Kong, Jan. 27.—The story of a fierce three-hour battle at sea between the Czech-Slovakian steamer Praga and the Nationalist gunboat Fehiu, 600 miles off the Shanghai coast was told today in a dispatch from Tsingtau.

The Praga carried 90,000 rifles, millions of rounds of ammunition, and armored cars from Hamburg, Germany, purchased by General Chang-Tsun-Chang, met the gunboat on Wednesday.

After the battle, the casualties of which are still unknown, the Praga escaped due to her superior speed. She arrived on Thursday.

As a result of the incident, the Nationalist authorities ordered the branches of all German firms in their territory closed and sealed pending investigation.

Local Girl Complains to Police of Man Who Struck
Her—Police Believe Girl Was Pinched.

Miss Tier Calve, an attractive 19 year old girl, employed in the gassing room of the Spinning department at Cheney Brothers, reported to the police this morning that she had been accosted by a strange man last evening and struck on the thigh by what she believed to be a sharp instrument.

Examination by a physician showed a "black and blue" mark as though the young lady had been pinched. The skin was not broken, nor were her clothes torn.

Miss Calve said that she was on her way to her home at 995 Middle Turnpike East at 5:30 last evening. She was just passing the corner of Main and Bissell streets when a tall, dark complexioned man brushed against her, remarked that it was a "nice evening" and then struck her. The girl screamed and ran north on Main street. The attacker ran down Bissell street.

Although there were several on the street at the time no one seemed to have happened and the stabbler was seen to run. Miss Calve hurried home and was reluctant to tell anyone of her experience. She told her foreman in the mills this morning and he immediately reported the matter to the mill superintendent, Herbert Ingham. Mr. Ingham advised Miss Calve to go to the police headquarters and tell exactly what had happened.

Patrolman John Cavagnaro was on the desk when the girl reported and her statement to him was turned over to Chief of Police Gordon who immediately began an investigation. Chief Gordon is of the opinion that the girl was accosted by a "masher" and does not believe evidence bears out a stabbing theory. The young lady's description of the attacker was not complete and it will be difficult to trace him.

Young girls and women who have occasion to pass along Bissell street near Spruce and through Spruce street at this particular point have reported being accosted by "mashers." Descriptions given at various times of the man who approached the girls tally, to some extent with that given today by Miss Calve. Police are keeping a close watch on one man who they believe may be responsible.

GUILFOYLE TRIAL AGAIN POSTPONED

Mr. Alcorn Not In Hartford
So Case Was Put Over Until Tuesday.

Hartford, Conn., Jan. 27.—Another postponement of the case of Mrs. Harold N. Guilfoyle, held as a material witness in the fatal shooting of Mrs. Max J. Gaudet, of New Haven, here last week, was arranged in City Court today, and the trial was set for next Tuesday, after the adjournment of the county jail in default of $10,000 bail.

A large crowd gathered in the courtroom as the session opened today. Mrs. Guilfoyle was there, attended by a deputy sheriff. She was clad in black. For the first time she seemed in cheerful mood today. Her attorney, Judge Samuel Rosenthal, told the court that he had agreed to a continuance at Mr. Alcorn's request and indicated that harmony prevailed.

Harold N. Guilfoyle, federal veterinarian, who is in Hartford hospital with a bullet through the temple as a result of the same affair, still continues to show improvement.

AUTOS TO CARRY MAIL

Middletown, Conn., Jan. 27.—Motor trucks will be used to carry mail from the New Haven railroad's main line at Meriden along the airline division to Colchester, when steam trains are eliminated from the airline next week, according to announcement here today. Two trips will be made each day out of Meriden with stops here and in Portland, East Hampton and Colchester. A supplementary bus mail service to Durham also will be established.

LEAVING JAIL FOR COURTROOM

Will Teach Children Principles Of Flying

New York, Jan. 27.—Eighty-five school heads in cities having a population of 100,000 or more, including Hartford, Conn., are backing a movement started by the Daniel Guggenheim fund for promotion of aeronautics to teach the principles of aviation to school children of the country.

A statement issued on behalf of the trustees says that "certain sensational achievements in aviation in the past year, and in particular the trans-Atlantic flight of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, have effectively dramatized the use of the airplane for the American boy and girl and continues that there is a need to establish this interest upon a basis of accurate information."

PLUNKETT'S SPEECH NOW UP IN SENATE

Washington, Jan. 27.—Secretary of the Navy Wilbur will be asked by the Senate naval affairs committee to state whether the department approves the "war" speech delivered by Rear Admiral Charles P. Plunkett in New York last Saturday.

The committee's determination of the Plunkett speech was disclosed by Rep. Butler, Republican of Pennsylvania, chairman, and Rep. Vinson of Georgia, ranking Democrat. Committee members plan to open their inquiry upon Wilbur's expected appearance in connection with the Navy's $740,000,000 ship building program.

"Why Not Censured.
"I think the committee will want to take this matter up and find out why the admiral was not disciplined," said Butler.

MAHARAJAH OF INDORE APPROVES MARRIAGE

Bombay, Jan. 27.—The present Maharajah of Indore has finally approved the marriage of Brijraj Singh, son of Maharajah, to Miss Nancy Ann Miller, of Seattle, Washington. It was learned from a trustworthy source today.

The marriage will not be performed this month because, according to high caste Hindus, January is an "inauspicious month" for marriages. Unless something takes place to prevent the wedding it will take place some time after February 6 when a period of "auspicious days" begins.

Friends informed the Maharajah that as the Hindu ceremony will be observed, the marriage must take place on an "auspicious day."

"JACK THE HUGGER" IN SMITH CASE NOW

Prowler Had Been Annoying College Girls Until Frances Disappeared.

Northampton, Mass., Jan. 27.—Search for the "campus hugger" who far more than a month has been annoying girls of Smith college was renewed today by detectives investigating the strange disappearance of Miss Francis St. John Smith.

Casting about for a "clue," the detectives picked up the old "clue" of the "hugger and kisser" a prowler who has been sought before and since the wealthy New York Washington vanished. Two "suspects" have been under surveillance.

State police do not place much hope in the "Jack-the-hugger" or death by violence theory. They believe that Miss Smith either ran away for adventure or took her own life because of her scholastic standing.

Girls Hugger.
However, it was pointed out that several Smith college girls had been hugged and kissed by the stranger and the fact that he occupied his operations since search for Miss Smith here raised the belief that the man was mentally unbalanced.

Two weeks ago today Miss Smith ate breakfast in Dewey house and then disappeared as if by magic. The most intensive missing-person hunt in the history of the country rivaling the famous Dorset Arnold case—has failed to produce

MURDERS WOMAN, SELF IN STORE

Portuguese Was Jealous
Over Italian Married Woman, the Police Say.

Norwalk, Conn., Jan. 27.—Police today found the bodies of Mrs. Jennie Saccocio, 38, and Manuel Durate, 28, lying behind a counter in the woman's grocery store at 43 Raymond street, South Norwalk.

Five bullets had been put into the woman's body while a single bullet fired through the temple caused the man's death.

Investigation led the police to announce that Durate had shot the woman and committed suicide.

Husband In Jail
Mrs. Saccocio's husband, police say, is in jail in Canada, serving a term for a minor offense, while Durate, a Portuguese, who had been living with Mrs. Saccocio, was moved to the crime because of jealousy over the woman's apparent friendship with a Stamford man. Mrs. Saccocio leaves six children ranging from ten to seventeen years in age, and one of the youngest, according to the police witnessed the shooting.

The Stamford man, whose name has been withheld by the police, is said to be of Italian birth and is now employed by a wholesale produce company. He was at work when the killings took place.

Stole Friends' Clothes
Hartford, Conn., Jan. 27.—Edwin Stoelicks, of 513 Gregory street, Bridgeport, came here early today to visit his friend, John Kioe. Stoelicks today went to jail for four months after Judge John Bonee had described him as an in-grate, for Stoelicks pleaded guilty to stealing several suits of clothes from Kioe and selling them.

RESULTS!
Innumerable telephone calls and some two dozen individuals in person were the results obtained by a Red Rover of the Manchester Public Market from a three line advertisement in yesterday's Herald.

Under "Help Wanted, Female" he sought a woman for kitchen work. He had no trouble in finding just the woman he wanted. The cost was trial—the desired result quick and sure.

Los Angeles, Calif., Jan. 27.—Defense attorneys today indicated nine of the twelve jurors tentatively selected to try William Edward Hickman would be swept from the box by peremptory challenges at the resumption of the Marion Parker kidnaping and murder trial.

Of the four women and eight men seated in the jury box when adjournment was taken yesterday, eleven had been tentatively passed by both the state and prosecution. "It seems remarkable" that we should be able to find so rapidly a jury which had formed no prejudiced opinions after reading newspaper accounts and listening on the radio to details of this crime," Chief Defense Attorney Jerome Walsh declared.

He commented upon the expressed willingness and apparent eagerness of the prospective jurors to sit in on the trial. Reports from the county jail said it was "just another night" for Hickman, who slept eight hours after sitting motionless throughout yesterday's court wrangle over the selection of the jury.

TO SPEED UP TRIAL
Los Angeles, Calif., Jan. 27.—William Edward Hickman and a western jurist, until now, at his trial for the kidnaping and murder of Marion Parker, entered his third day.

Within six hours after Superior Judge J. J. Trabucco, former cattleman who halls from the open ranges of north central California, had ordered trial to proceed, four women and eight men tentatively were seated in the jury box.

While the hearing was delayed practically a whole day at the start by the disqualification of Superior Judge Carlos S. Hardy, the judge's jurisdiction was upheld by his direct methods and his swift rulings which leave no room for argument.

"Objection overruled."
"We'll have no argument, gentlemen."
"Proceed with the next question."
Every maneuver on the part of the opposing attorneys tending to slow up the trial is met with a decisive and unalterable ruling from the bench to push the proceedings ahead.

When Judge Trabucco encounters a legal snarl he cuts the knot.

Questioned Collectively
He advanced the trial fully two hours when he personally took the prospective jurors in hand and asked them collectively a number of propounded questions individually by the defense and prosecution attorneys.

The state, so far, has used but the defense still has all of its allotted twenty.

Chief Defense Counsel Jerome Walsh indicated he would use the full score.

Here are his questions:

1. Who has contributed to any fund for the arrest and conviction of Hickman?

2. Who has devoted any effort toward Hickman's apprehension?

3. Who is a member of any organization which has gone on record concerning the kidnaping and murder?

4. Who is a member of any church whose pastor has preached on the Parker kidnaping-murder case?

5. Who is prejudiced against an insanity defense?

6. Who has a child attending the Mount Vernon junior high school from which little Marion Parker was kidnaped?

Among those who were not permitted to sit in judgment on Hickman were G. E. Burk, a neighbor of the Parker family, and Walter A. Overall, who lives in Manhattan place, a short distance from the spot where the kidnaping hung the mutilated form of his victim at the feet of her father.

MOVIES GIVE PUBLIC JUST WHAT IT LIKES

New York, Jan. 27.—The American movie audience knows what it wants "and the producers have wit enough to furnish it," today declared Ida Clyde Clarke, lecturer and author, before the annual conference of the national board of review of motion pictures.

"The only thing the matter with the movies is the audience," said Mrs. Clark. "The American public is tabloid-minded and has the tabloid soul. It wants a stimulant for its atrophied emotions and it prefers to take it undiluted and unrefined."

Neither agitation, education nor legislation can improve public or private taste, asserted Mrs. Clark.

THOUGHT TO START A CLASS FOR THE BOYS' FATHERS

She was a Sunday school teacher and she guided a group of young boys in the way they should go—on Sundays. She decided to find out what the boys did at home to help their fathers and mothers.

No one spoke up. Not to be discouraged the S. S. teacher called on proverbial Johnny—"Don't you do anything to help your father and mother, Johnny?"

"Yes'm," answered Johnny. "I put the sand in my father's beer bottles to get 'em clean."

Lodge, whose subject will be "The Mission of the Subordinate Lodge," Frank M. Canfield, of Bridgeport, Senior Representative of the Encampment branch of the Sovereign Grand Lodge who will speak on the "Higher Degrees of Odd Fellowship," and Mrs. Hattie Stickle, Past President of the Rebekah Assembly who will speak on "The Rebekah Degree" and William S. Hutchison, secretary of the Grand Lodge who will be toastmaster.

CONN. CO. DISAVOWS INJURY TO WILKES Says Bundles In Street Need Not Have Caused Serious Auto Crash.

Officials of the Connecticut company have announced that after investigation of the automobile accident caused by a bundle of magazines at the corner of Main and Bissell street yesterday morning in which George Wilkes of Lydall street was very badly injured, they have come to the conclusion that the primary cause of the accident was the fact that an automobile was backing out from the sidewalk, causing Wilkes, the driver of the wrecked car, to make a detour that ended in the upset.

Wilkes' car turned over after it had hit one of two bundles lying in the middle of the roadway. The right front wheel of the car struck the bundle, causing Wilkes to lose control. The machine swerved to the west side of the road, turning over and colliding with another car.

The trolley investigation was made yesterday by Harold R. Germaine, claim agent for the company. He came to the conclusion that the Wilkes car would have become involved in an accident of this kind if the bundle of magazines had not been there, because it had swerved to the west side of the road when another car backed out from the curbstone.

He was of the opinion that the bundle of magazines did not constitute a traffic menace because it was in the exact middle of the road, which is 90 feet wide. Other cars had passed that way and had steered clear of the bundles, he said.

There was no set rule to be observed by trolley car crews in the delivery of the bundles of papers and magazines which are sent out daily from Hartford, he said, the delivery being left to the discretion of the crews.

These papers are sent out by a Hartford news agency which has a contract with the Connecticut Company.

RENTED BEAU MAKES HIT AT M. E. BAZAAR

Play Is Well Produced; This Will Be Closing Evening of Fair.

"Renting Jimmy," the two-act college play given by about a dozen young women at the North Methodist church bazaar last evening, made a hit with a large audience. The parts were all well taken and the novel, "The Department of Bolivar," in the department of Bolivar.

Between the acts Rev. W. D. Woodward, one of Manchester's many retired ministers and a Methodist, entertained with funny stories and also played "Home, Sweet Home" on a miniature accordion.

The vestry was filled to overflowing. It was the Epworth League night and a large number of visiting leaguers and former attendants of the church from other places were present, and patronized the cafeteria and the various booths.

LATIN AMERICANS NOW ORGANIZING

Havana, Jan. 27.—The practical organization of the Pan-American Union as one of the principal agencies of Pan-Americanism occupied the center of the stage at Havana today.

Actual drafting of the agreement by which all the new world republics will maintain the union was begun by the leaders of the Pan-American conference at the meeting of the first commission.

The Central idea of the delegates was contained in the preamble proposed by Dr. Gustavo Ferrero, foreign minister and chief of the delegation from El Salvador.

LINDY IS ON WAY TO COLOMBIA, S. A.

Bogota, Colombia, Jan. 27.—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, flying from Cartagena to this city today in continuation of his Central and South American good will aerial tour, was sighted at 10:22 o'clock passing over the town of Since, Colombia, in the Department of Bolivar.

Lindbergh's Spirit of St. Louis was then following a south-easterly course directly toward Bogota. Since is about 100 miles south by east of Cartagena.

Col. Lindbergh's route to Bogota was over a dangerous country with alternating mountains and swamps and covered with dense jungle growths. Thick, misty fogs almost always cover the lowlands. The distance from Cartagena is exactly 400 miles in a straight line.

HOPS OFF

Cartagena, Colombia, Jan. 27.—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh hopped off at 8:59 a. m. today for Bogota, the second stop of his South American itinerary. A crowd at the flying field gave him a rousing ovation as the Spirit of St. Louis rose, circled the field and then sped southward.

Col. Lindbergh took advantage of his few hours of leisure here this morning to go "joy riding," taking three Colombian officials up with him. He did not use the Spirit of St. Louis, but made the flight in a seaplane belonging to the Andean Corporation.

Col. Lindbergh hopped off at 7:30 o'clock. Those accompanying him were Enrique Aranzola, Governor of the Department of Bolivar, and two other officials.

PROF. BASSETT KILLED Washington, Jan. 27.—John Spencer Bassett, 51, college professor of Northampton, Mass., died this afternoon four hours after being struck by a trolley car. The accident occurred in front of the Cosmos Club, to which Bassett belonged. He was in Washington to attend a meeting of learned societies at the club. Bassett was the author of a number of books on history.

BUILDING WAR PLANES

San Pedro, Calif., Jan. 27.—Giant Sikorsky amphibian bombing and patrol planes with a cruising radius of more than 3,000 miles, are being built for the use of the Pacific battle fleet, it was learned here today. Each plane will carry a crew of six men, four machine guns and a ton of explosives.

Cloverleaves 4, Highland Park 0.
Bon Ami 3, Beethoven 1.
Center Church 3, K. of P. 1.
St. Bridget's 3, Brit.-Amer. 1.

The opening of the second round of the Herald Bowling League last night was marked by the narrow margins by which some teams won their games. The Masons increased their lead over the nearest rival to three points but had a mighty hard time doing it because the Knights of Columbus offered very stiff opposition.

The Masons won the first game by two pins, 430 to 432 and the Knights got the next by three, 493 to 495. The last game which was close to the last two boxes went to the Masons by fifteen pins giving them a pinfall by fourteen and three points. Howard Murphy rolled 105, 120 and 118, Frank Cervini hit 110, 108 and 105.

The West Side Rec which has been sailing through a very mild sea ran into a storm worse than the one outside when only one point was secured. This match provided the fans with some real good bowling. The Rec won the first game by six pins but lost the next 540 to 527 and the last 530 to 452. The Cubs were surely hitting pins the last two games during which only one of their scores was under 100. Ernie Wilkie's 117 was high. The defeat helped the Masons increase their lead and Highland Park next on the Mason's schedule begins to look as if they are once more bound to get a good sized lead.

The Cloverleaves, however, are eagerly awaiting the night when they meet the Masons, two weeks hence. Last night the Cloverleaves regained the pinfall on the Masons by trimming Highland Park all four points. The boys from the hilltop are fighting desperately to climb out of last place before the second round ends and if they do not win things, they have a good chance to do so. Although beaten badly in two of the games last night, Highland Park dropped the other by five pins.

The Bon Ami and Beethoven Glee Club had a close match. The first game ended a tie but the Bon Ami won the roll-off. The singers won the next game 504 to 490 and the Bon Ami went up to 512 to win the final and three points. Brozowski's 116 was high. Harry Gustafson, the Beethoven's new addition, hit 103 twice.

The "happy-go-lucky" Center church which is noted for "laughing" its opponents out of spades, took three points from the Knights of Pythias in an interesting match. The first game went to the church by 20 pins, the second to the Knights by 18 and the last to the church by a comfortable margin. Starkweather's 112 was high.

The St. Bridget's got three points from the Brit.-Amer. in another close match. The church team won the first 459 to 442 and the Brit.-Amer. captured the second 438 to 436. The St. Bridget's grabbed the last by a good margin. Varrick's 112 was high. The scores follow:

GIANTS ARE AFTER MR. TRIS SPEAKER

Would Give Him $30,000 a Season If He Was a Right Hand Hitter.

By Davis J. Yalsh
I. N. S. Sports Editor

New York, Jan. 27.—Tris Speaker may have a contract with the New York Giants, calling for as much as $30,000 for the 1928 season, it was learned today. But, like a catch of that kind and, in this instance, it is something tantamount to requesting the leopard to abandon his spots in favor of dashes. The New York Giants, it seems, would give Speaker a $30,000 contract if he was a right hand hitter. However, the preliminary feelers for a Giant-Speaker deal have been sent out and both are understood to be ready to do business. I am informed that the first New York bid was for a high as $20,000 for the season and Speaker can hit any way he pleases, provided he go somewhere, preferably outside the ball park.

Want Speaker The Giants admit they want Speaker for two reasons, first, because he still is a fine outfielder and hitter and, second, because they need a so-called big shot to remove the departure of Rogers Hornsby from the civic conscience. Their only possible objection to Speaker, provided he doesn't want the $30,000, is the strong box, is that the Giants already have five outfielders who hit left handed when they hit at all. If Speaker comes to the club, therefore, somebody will take a left handed departure in a trade with another National League outfit.

Negotiations Opened Negotiations were opened here some days ago when Cleveland friends of Speaker came to town with the information that Tris would like to play ball with the majors. An intermediary was sent up against Charles Stoneham, the big merrymongering man. The former reversed his field and naturally met Charley running around the other from force of habit.

The result of their deliberations was that Charley would part with $20,000 a season for Speaker, provided he was given his unconditional release by the Washington senators and was willing to play left field. It seems that the "silent manager" of the Giants has kept in mind that Roush shall be kept in the outfield, at least for another season.

The intermediary then wired Speaker, reporting progress and what not. Tris came with the information that he could consider offers while held on the reserve list. Speaker's agent, also of the Senators, then folded his cards, saying in effect and with some emphasis, "blah to you, too."

Since then, the Senators have relinquished all claim on Speaker, effective February 1. So the door is open and he has to do as he likes in properly with his hat in his hand. Speaker is understood to have drawn $25,000 last year. He might be able to get as much as $25,000 here, provided Stoneham thinks he needs him. It is the writer's opinion that Stoneham will and does.

CALIFORNIA EXPECTS PLACE ON CREW FOR OLYMPIC ROWING

Berkeley, Cal.—No matter what happens at Poughkeepsie this year when the class of the college crews battle it out for supremacy, the University of California eight intends to be there or thereabouts when the crew is chosen to represent the United States in the Olympic games.

Coach "Cy" Ebricht, California coach, has not counted his crew out of the Poughkeepsie event by any means, but he holds that California will be much stronger over the mile and five-sixteenths course than the four-mile grid.

The Olympic trials will be held a week or ten days after the Poughkeepsie regatta this year, and if we are once more entered in the Hudson races, there is no reason why we should not stand a chance of winning the trials on the Schuylkill at Philadelphia," Ebricht said.

Although Ebricht will lose three men from his 1927 boat, his prospects for a capable combination are nevertheless encouraging. The crew from stroke to No. 4 is intact.

Ward Von Tillow, bow, discontinued his studies at California, Christmas, but Wyman Vernon, a regular of 376, has returned, and will probably take care of that position.

Hutchison and de Jonge, who pulled second and third, will probably be succeeded by Gilmore and Thaxter, likely-looking youngsters from the freshman crew.

Frank Labes, freshman at Southern California last year, has left that school. He was regarded as one of the best track prospects ever to attend the Trojan school.

Doesn't Fear Yankees Howard Ehmke, Philadelphia pitcher, is one person who doesn't think the Yankees are certain to win the American League flag again this year.

Local Boxer Loses By Narrow Margin But His Condition Greatly Improved.

(By Staff Correspondent)

An unusually clever bill was presented by the Massachusetts High Foot Guard Hall in Hartford last evening, before a jammed house which numbered several hundred local boxing fans.

The majority of the bouts were in the heavy division which meant that they were slugfests, many knockdowns and several knockouts which seemed to please the fans hereabouts.

Herman Fink the local boxer was in better condition than he has been in a long time. He is training at the Rec, and that might have been the reason for his improved condition. He fought his usual game battle but lost by a narrow margin. His legs, the weakest part of him, which generally gave way after the first round in past bouts, carried him through the whole three stanzas last night. He was given a good hand by the fans.

Results of the bouts:
150 pound class: Frank Nichols, Windsor Locks, won the decision over Joe Preston, Worcester; 160 pound class: Joe Trux, Ellington, knocked out Gleason Halloran, Springfield; 155 pound class: Vic Morley, Hartford, won the decision over Stan Zremnicki, Springfield; 120 pound class: Ray Strong, Hartford, won the decision over Charlie Pepe, Windsor Locks; 142 pound class: Frank Columbus, Windsor Locks, won by a technical knockout in the second round over Charlie Shea, Springfield; 160 pound class: Leo Cava, Worcester, won the decision over Herman Fink, Hartford.

JAIL TERMS FOR ROUGHNECKS... IN NORTH-SOUTH ICE CONTEST

Hockey Rule Violators Are Put In "Jug" For Brief Period; Some of Major Rules; Weather Man Good.

For throwing a stick except when penalized by award of a goal. For the first offense the player shall be ruled off for five minutes; for the second offense, ten minutes; and for the third shall be ruled off for the remainder of the match.

When a player deliberately throws his stick to prevent a goal, the referee shall immediately award a goal to the side offended against and the puck shall be faced and game re-started as though a goal had actually been scored.

If any of the five fouls occur within the last ten minutes of playing time, the referee shall have the right to impose as an additional penalty, a fine not exceeding fifteen dollars.

A player incurring two major fouls shall be cautioned by the President; a third major foul will lead to his suspension. After the suspension has been served the same player shall not be again suspended on this account until he has incurred three other major penalties.

Match Foul. A match foul shall consist of deliberately injuring or disabling an opponent. For this offense a player shall be ruled off the balance of the match and no substitute for the penalized player shall be permitted to go on the ice until twenty minutes have elapsed from the time the penalized player left the ice.

Any player incurring a match foul shall not be permitted to play in any further games until his case has been decided by the President, who shall have full power to impose such further penalty as he deems fitting.

When a player has been ruled off for a major or minor foul he may not be replaced by a substitute, but when ruled off for a match foul a substitute shall be permitted at the expiration of 20 minutes playing time from the time the offending player was ruled off.

Goal—How Scored. A goal shall be scored when the puck shall have passed between the goal posts from in front and below the line drawn across the top of the posts, and across a dark line drawn from post to post, in or on the ice.

Should the puck be accidentally put through a goal by one of the players defending it, it shall be a goal for the team attacking that goal.

The uproar at Washington University in St. Louis that accompanied the resignation of Dr. William P. Edmunds as athletic director failed to smear the game of football with as much mud as those endeavoring to put the game in its place would have liked.

To be frank, the entire affair can be classed as one of those things which, while not helping football any, reflects mostly on the institution particularly concerned.

Dr. Edmunds, blaming a certain clique of alumni for the athletic trouble at Washington, charged them with trying to place Washington on the athletic map by hiring athletes to attend that school.

These alumni promised good jobs to young men. Most of the young men never got the jobs. The athletic association had to support them—and went in debt doing so. If these charges are true, there's a rather humorous angle to it in that the desired prestige in the athletic world failed to wrap itself around the Washington team.

Washington certainly has not been any too prominent nationally because of its football team. Neither have we noticed any great amount of publicity concerning its other teams.

Because Washington is none too widely known nationally in athletics, the upheaval at Washington failed to draw much comment, one way or another, and it is good that it is as it is.

Linemen will predominate as captains in the "Big Ten" next fall. Neither Indiana nor Ohio State have an elected captain for the season, but five of the other eight squads have already chosen line men as leaders. Wisconsin has not been heard from. Rich at Michigan and Holmer at Northwestern are the only backs chosen captain to date.

Texas, never having had a four-letter man in sports, finds its chances of having one this year in Ralph W. Hammonds fast disappearing. Hammonds will be a four-sports man this year if he makes the baseball team. But he wants to make the Olympic wrestling team and it is likely that his baseball activities will play second fiddle to his Olympic tryst.

A football player these days often does other things than those possible on the athletic field. Buck Smith, the Colorado University back who was rated the best in his class this year, recently was chosen to play the lead in the annual opera-etta of his school.

Here's "Too Beautiful" Girl; Doesn't Like It

Billie Dove . . . "too beautiful to be human."

Hollywood, Calif. — The too beautiful girl—that's Billie Dove. In and out of the movies Miss Dove is in a class by herself. She is absolutely camera-proof—that is she can be photographed from any angle and still be just as beautiful. The majority of actresses have certain angles from which they are more attractive. Billie is different. She is almost too beautiful to be human.

It has only been during the past year that Billie has been ranked as a star. Had she not been quite so pretty, she might have climbed faster. Billie can act and now that she has her place in the celluloid heavens, she should remain there for quite some time.

Won't Admit It

Now here comes the strange part of the actress's make-up. While millions of other girls are envying their friends and neighbors who happen to be a degree prettier, Billie is wishing that she weren't quite as pretty. She won't admit it though—because she won't admit that she's moviana's "queen of beauty."

"I would rather be like the girls who write me letters than the sort of person they seem to think I am," declares the actress with considerable sincerity. "I want to be a human, happy sort of person who really enjoys life—not a girl who people think should do nothing all of the time."

Billie is now letting her hair grow, hoping almost against hope that with long tresses she will be given a different type of picture to make. She is tired of always being the sweet, beautiful maiden who never does wrong and never gets mussed.

"I would give anything to portray a poor, ragged girl just once," says the gorgeous actress. "To discard the clothes and sweet characterizations just once would be the greatest treat in the world. But my producers say 'no'—that I am not the type for such a portrayal, that the public wants me to look beautiful and act the same way."

Giving Her a Chance

First National officials may be right. The beautiful Billie may be an actress whom the public wouldn't accept in any but her natural state. But it would be an interesting experiment to try her out in something else.

Gloria Swanson, too, appears far better fitted for roles of grandeur but she has just veered from her course in "Sadie Thompson"—and at least hasn't hurt herself any.

"Why not let Billie do the same? It might result in discovering her all over again. And if it doesn't prove successful—well, she can always go back to her same old characterizations again."

America Denationalizes London By "Peaceful Penetration"—Chesterton

London.—New figures show that Americans pay out on account of sickness a mountain of gold equal to half the entire earnings of British industry.

And Sir W. Arbuthnot Lane, editor of the "New Health" magazine in an exclusive International News Service interview says that practically the whole of this expenditure is because the people fail to follow primary health habits.

America's huge sick-expenditure, a sum of over two billion dollars, is many times the amount England spends for illness. Yet, with ten million Americans being treated annually in "free clinics," the large expenditures indicate only a portion of the actual sickness from which the nation suffers.

Actually, there is a sick person on one out of ten American homes every day in the year—a person sick enough to require medical attention.

These facts come from the statistician's figures of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company.

Expert Comment

In comment on them, Sir Arbuthnot Lane said: "The tragedy of these facts is that the sickness and expenditure is almost entirely unnecessary. The expenditure in Britain of course is nothing like it is in America, but as for actual sick, the British toll in proportion to population is just as large as the American."

"We have our sick because we do not take the simple health precautions to prevent sickness. Malady's strongest barrier is a healthy body. We destroy the health of our bodies by our unsound habits: eating habits, sleeping habits, exercise habits, and elimination habits. We eat improper food and take improper exercise and we become constipated. Constipation is the direct source of more physical degeneration than any other one disease. It is at the root of most of present-day sickness. Elimination should occur after each meal as was the practice with the primitive peoples. When this has become the popular habit, the amount of sickness and sick-bills of both Britain and America will see sharp decline."

Doctors' Fees

Sir Arbuthnot Lane then commented on the present doctor fees in England and America. They were far lower in England than they were in America. He thought, however, that high charges were entirely justified where the patient could afford to pay. In England, he said, the doctor graded his fee according to the income of the patient.

This method of fee graduation is being abandoned in America, he said. An American doctor fixes a minimum fee for his services, and the one time he goes below this is in his "free clinic" work. This is because the income graduation method of feeling has been found impractical; people have falsified incomes in order to receive small doctor-bills.

"This leaves the middle-class man in a precarious condition," he said. The fixed minimum charge of good physicians are often too high for him to pay. And he does not like to use the "free clinics."

A movement has been recently announced at the Cornell Medical School Clinic in New York where there is organized a special clinic for the "middle class". Here the best medical treatment is available at a "reduced rate." And it is said that this movement is pointing the way towards the ultimate solution of the "doctor-fee" problem.

ST. PAUL'S CATHEDRAL NOW OUT OF DANGER FROM COLLAPSING

London.—St. Paul's Cathedral, threatened several months ago by the ravages of time, is now out of danger.

The work of repairing was started immediately after the warning was issued that the cathedral was a "dangerous structure," and so efficiently and rapidly has it been carried out that much more has been accomplished than had been hoped for.

There remains, however, a good deal more to be done. The most important part of the work of restoration was the strengthening of the crypt. This is now finished. The pillar, once thought to be solid stone, were found to be mere shells—and these cracked. They have now been filled with concrete.

The bases of the pillars, which were embedded in the floor of the crypt, have been strengthened with steel rods and cement.

Eighty million pounds of ice cream were produced in the United States in 1926.

Double Features. Now at the Rialto. "Reno Divorce" and "Red Clay" Features For Today and Saturday. For tonight and Saturday Manager W. R. Campbell of the Rialto Theater is presenting another popular double feature bill. The first feature is "A Reno Divorce," a Warner Brothers production starring beautiful May McAvoy. This picture depicts vividly the modern marriage problems of today, plus a generous amount of comedy and pathos. Ralph Graves, who plays opposite Miss McAvoy in this production, was also responsible for the story and the direction. Graves is considered by many of the leading motion picture critics to be the most capable man on the screen. His talents are forever in demand with all of the big film companies and Warner Brothers production starting beautiful May McAvoy in his under contract.

City Compromises. Danbury, Conn., Jan. 27.—The City of Danbury will accept the sum of $10,000 from the Danbury Power & Transportation Co. in settlement of a claim for $17,000 which the city has against the transportation concern for the building of a new pavement on Main street eight years ago. Mayor Anthony Sunderland had vetoed the council vote to accept the compromise and retained W. H. Comley, of Bridgeport, state's attorney, to sue for the full amount. The council today passed the compromise acceptance over the mayor's veto.

STANDARD OIL COMPANY OF NEW YORK

WHY POOR GASOLINE AND MOTOR OIL RUIN YOUR ENGINE IN COLD WEATHER

THE 3,000,000 motorists in New York and New England can save themselves several million dollars by standardizing on Socony Gasoline and Motor Oil in cold weather. The facts are very simple: To start in cold weather, you pull out the choke and flood your engine. If your oil is poor, every moving part of the engine is gummed up and turns over slowly. Socony Motor Oil is put through a final process in the refinery which presses out the extra paraffin and gives the oil a "low cold test." If your gasoline is poor, it ignites slowly. The extra gasoline leaks down into your crank case and dilutes the oil. Hence, poor lubrication, wear, destruction and repair bills. So neither good gasoline alone, nor good oil alone, is sufficient in cold weather. You must have both. We have been refining for fifty-four years. We test our product 13 times before it reaches your engine. This insures uniformity of quality at all times and wherever you may buy it. Standardize on Socony Gasoline and Motor Oil this winter and save yourself a lot of money in repair bills next spring. You are cordially invited to use our Socony Touring Service

WHEN you are planning motor trips, Socony Road Maps will be useful. You can get them at almost every Socony pump. In addition, the Socony Touring Service is constantly collecting reliable data on roads. This information is gladly placed at the disposal of motorists in New York State and New England. Don't fail to call on the Socony Touring Service, located at 26 Broadway, New York City. It can help you.

"SEVENTH" HEAVEN IS NEW THING UNDER SUN

Big Picture at State and Circle Theaters on Sunday Said to Be Unique in Every Way. There is something new under the sun and that is the portrayal of the role of Diane by Janet Gaynor in Fox Film's version of "7th Heaven," which shows at the State and Circle theaters on Sunday. The flower-like charm of this young actress is something new, appealingly refreshing and spiritually beautiful. Words can not describe the winsomeness of her fear-dimmed smile, her happy laugh or the manner in which she shows her spiritual growth from a cringing street waif to a woman fearless in the face of appalling danger and who meets the worst that life threatens to offer unflinchingly. Charles Farrell, who also rises to stardom with his performance in the role of Chico, that "remarkable fellow" is equally appealing with his stalwart manhood and his careful way of leading Diane from the gutter up the long winding flights of stairs to his heaven in a garret beneath the stars. Space does not permit an outline of the story, except to say, that for sheer simplicity and at the same tremendous interest, it has probably never before been equaled on the screen. The cast, too, is not only an unusually fine one, but each member of it seems to have poured his heart into the interpretation of his or her part. It includes Ben Bard, David Butler, Albert Grand, Emilie Chataud, George Stone and many others almost equally well known. "7th Heaven" was directed by Frank Borzage, from John Golden's stage success by Austin Strong.

HARVEY IN TROUBLE. London, Jan. 27.—John Harvey, the young Englishman who deserted the French Foreign Legion with Bennett J. Doty, and who was recently released from a French prison through intervention of the British government, was today charged with deserting his wife and three children in the Monmouthshire Court at New Tredegar. His real name is David Harvey Jones. He was ordered by the court to reimburse the local municipality at the rate of $50 weekly until the sums spent by the municipality in supporting his family were paid off.

COSGRAVE LEAVES CAPITAL. Washington, Jan. 27.—William T. Cosgrave, President of the Irish Free State, has said goodbye to Washington. He left for Philadelphia at nine o'clock this morning. Mr. Cosgrave arrived here Monday from Chicago and ran through a heavy schedule of official calls and sight seeing trips. WHAT A QUESTION! "Would you love me, Foodles, even if I were poor?" "Oh, don't be irritating, darling. If you were poor I wouldn't have met you."—Life.

How's She Hitting? Hints On Car Care

By ISRAEL KLEIN
An engine may be running smoothly in cold weather, and still may be giving poor results.
To run efficiently the engine must be hot, although not so hot as to overheat the water in the cooling system. But if the proper temperature is maintained in the water, greater economy will result.

The proper temperature of water as it comes from an efficient engine, no matter what the weather, outside, is about 180° F. Fahrrenheit. If it's higher, there's danger to the motor. If lower, there's loss in performance efficiency.
How to maintain this temperature, especially in cold weather, is the trick.

One way to do this is to attach a shutter front to the radiator and keep it closed until the red in the thermometer above the radiator reaches the point of efficient operation. Then the shutter may be opened, but only so much as to keep the water cooling down to that temperature of 180 degrees.

If the thermometer falls below the red, the shutter should be closed down a bit.

Some motors now have thermostats at the upper hose connections.
These keep the water from flowing through the radiator so be cooled until after it has reached the proper temperature.

Even with use of the thermostats, however, the shutter fronts should be regulated to such opening that would keep the water temperature constantly at the required height.
This is adjusted in accordance with the temperature outside.

Instead of a shutter front, a piece of cardboard over the bottom part of the radiator will help. The suction of the fan will hold it there while the engine is running.

The fact that there is alcohol or glycerine in the cooling system is no reason why it should be driven with the radiator wide open to the cold blasts. These are merely put in to keep the solution from freezing. They have no other duty to perform. The same attention must be paid to the cooling system, whether anti-freeze is in it or not.

The sooner the engine is heated to the proper temperature, as shown by the motor meter in front, the greater will be its economical performance and the easier will be the driving. The saving will come not only in a more efficient use of the gasoline, but in the proper action of the engine lubricant.

BEST WAY TO FIGHT GAS IS, OPEN THE WINDOWS!

By DR. MORRIS FISHBEIN

Some years ago various firms throughout the United States endeavored to exploit devices for the manufacture of ozone.

It was claimed that these devices could be placed in theaters, halls, in other places where the ventilation was likely to be poor and by the supplying of ozone a sufficient amount of oxygen could be produced in the air. It is now known that the difficulty under such circumstances is not with the oxygen but in most instances with the movement of the air, the humidity, and similar physical factors.

One of the most serious of modern ventilation problems is the control of poisonous carbon monoxide gas in garages. Again the ozone salesman has come to the front and many commercial garages and service stations have put in the ozone machines in the belief that the oxygen given off will convert the deadly carbon monoxide gas into the comparatively safe carbon dioxide.

Mr. C. W. Salls, technical engineer of the New York State Department of Industrial Hygiene, has just made available the results of an investigation of the practicability of such devices for the purposes for which they are sold.

He finds that the ozone generators do not convert the carbon monoxide into carbon dioxide at a rate that is fast enough or in a proportion that is complete enough to be of any practical use.

It is far better and more effective simply to open a few windows and to permit the removal of carbon-monoxide by the process of natural diffusion. If there is not proper diffusion, it may be necessary to install mechanical ventilation.

ARMY EXPERIMENTS HELD THIS SUMMER

Washington. — Experiments to determine how far the Army can go in providing motorized transportation for its many different units will be held at Camp Meade, Maryland, during the coming summer.

According to a War Department announcement, the tests will be conducted "with a view to developing correct doctrines with respect to the motorization and mechanization of appropriate units of the Army. As far as practicable, the force to be assembled at Camp Meade will be equipped with motor vehicles of the latest approved design. Its operation will include work over terrain sufficiently varied and difficult and under such conditions of weather as will determine the powers and limitations of motor vehicles as compared with animal-drawn transportation under similar conditions."

The following will take part in the experiments: One battalion of the 34th Infantry, Fort Eustis, Va.; the second platoon of the 4th tank company, Camp Meade; the second battalion, less one battery, of the 8th Field Artillery, Fort Hoyle, Md.; one battery of the 61st Coast
Artillery (anti-aircraft), Fort Monroe, Va.; one company of the 1st Engineers, Fort DuPont, Del.; the 1st signal company, Fort Monmouth, N. J.; a medical detachment from Carlisle Barracks, Penn., and the motor elements of the 1st ammunition train, Fort Hoyle.

In addition the commanding general of the Third Corps Area, under whose direction the tests will be conducted, may also require the participation of the 15th and 17th tank battalions, Camp Meade, and

WHAT CHANCE HAS THE DEVIL?

Constantinople, Jan. 27.—To those who are troubled with visions, bad omens, or the old fashioned "D. T.'s," Mahamet zey, who taxis around this ancient town, has a tip.
Mahamet has a charm. It's not a rabbit foot, neither is it a horse shoe. But adorning Ma-hame's radiator cap is a string of blessed beads and a few amulets.
These, he says, made four dogs, bent on destroying him, turn into demons and dash mad-

FALLING OUT

An extraordinary difference of opinion has suddenly manifested itself between the New York Times and the New York World as to the method to be adopted to combat Heflinism in the interest of the Presidential aspirations of Al Smith.

On Wednesday the Times took for the text of its leading editorial article the following words of Henry Morgenthau from a forthcoming article in the Review of Reviews:

"The simple truth is that if Governor Smith, instead of having been born in Oliver street of Catholic parents, had first seen the light of day in some Protestant parsonage, as Presidents Cleveland and Wilson, nobody would doubt for an instant that he would be the next President."

This the Times calls "a pungent and conclusive way of stating the one great obstacle—religious intolerance—which today stands in the way of Governor Smith's political advancement," and proceeds to enlarge upon the extent to which bigotry has taken possession of the country.

Yesterday the World came leaping into the situation with loud shouts of protest against this kind of "dynamite." It seems the utmost peril in any acceptance of the Heflin challenge to cast ballots according to the voters' religions. And in the course of its stentorian warning the World, it must be admitted, talks sense as well as turkey.

"Has Mr. Morgenthau forgotten," it asks, "that Governor Smith is a Democrat, that the Democrats are a minority party, and that since the Civil war the Democrats have won only three out of sixteen elections against an undivided Republican party? . . . Not only is he a member of a minority party but he is the leader of only a faction—perhaps the larger faction but still only a faction—of his party. And here again it is dangerously misleading to talk as if all Democratic opposition to Smith were bigoted, when, as everybody knows, there are great numbers of conscientious Democrats who oppose him because he is a wet, great numbers of sincere agrarian Democrats who oppose him because they think he lacks national and international experience. . . . We resent it bitterly when Heflin fight Smith on religious grounds. We resent it also when zealous supporters fight for Smith by the threat that they will brand a failure to support him as an expression of bigotry."

Obviously the World, in this emphatic protest, is reading a lesson to that part of the Democratic party which, while demanding that a Presidential candidate's religion be ignored, actually proceeds to predicate a candidacy upon a religion and so challenges the opposition of a large majority of the voters of the country, at the polls, the Catholics could not win. There are simply not enough of them.

Also, it is to be suspected, the World has begun to sense the extreme likelihood that Smith is not going to run, blames his militant friends for it, and couldn't refrain from cussing somebody out.

NATIVE BEEF

Once in a while we love to propound a question which we well know will be greeted with derisive hoots. Here is one:
 Why is it that, among all the subjects of discussion brought up at Orange and other farm association meetings in Connecticut, and among all the branches of agriculture that are looked over and considered as at least tentative possibilities for Connecticut, nobody in a generation has ever so much as whispered the words, "Beef cattle?"

Fifty years ago native beef—not old cows but great heavy steer beef—was to be had in all the markets of this state. There are fine old mansions in a good many of the country towns of this state, most of the material and labor on which were paid for by the sale of "beef criers." That was, to be sure, in a day when the cost of raising beef was far, far less than it would be today. Also it was in a time when prime sirloin steak brought about fourteen cents a pound on the butcher's block.

A great deal of the western beef coming east today is hay-fed through the winter. A great deal of it is raised on comparatively small farms, the acre-price of which exceeds many a pasture farm in Connecticut.

Connecticut farmers quit raising beef because they could not compete with the range product of forty years ago—at a base price of something like a nickel a pound. If they could have gotten the present wholesale price of western steers for their animals they would have grown fatty rich.

We do not in the least know whether beef could be profitably raised in Connecticut now. But we would feel surer that it could not if we were to be authoritatively informed that anybody at all, who knows about such matters, had given the subject a thought in the last twenty years—especially since the price of beef began to approach its present plane.

AROUND ABOUT

The esteemed Hartford Courant seems inclined to flap its wings somewhat over the circumstance that it has attracted the notice of so highly important a personage as Senator Borah, even though that notice takes the form of an attempt on the part of the Idaho statesman to show the editor of the Courant that he doesn't know what he is talking about.

The Courant believes that Mr. Hoover is eligible to become President of the United States, being equipped to meet the constitutional requirement that he has been a resident of the United States. Mr. Borah believes the same way. But the Courant doesn't particularly admire the progress by which Mr. Borah arrives at agreement with it and challenged him to show that his process was better than the Courant's. Which the Idaho man has undertaken to do.

The interesting part of this discussion is that each party to it is convinced that he knows just what went on in the minds of the framers of the Constitution when they adopted that fourteen-year provision, and is bound that other folks shall accept his deduction. So Borah and the Courant chase about the opposite arcs of a circle and come out at exactly the same spot.

Our suggestion would be that the problem be submitted to the psychiatrists who are engaged in the Hickman case. Meantime ordinary folks, who don't profess to know what precise brand of psychology produced each phrase of the Constitution, nor how many drinks intervened between phrases, are utterly content with the profound conviction that the fact that the American-born engineer, Herbert Hoover, remains an American despite having taken some jobs beyond the frontiers; simply because he is an American and never dreamed of being anything else. As a subject of controversy Hoover's citizenship is supremely silly.

KILLING TOTS

The projected model town which a limited-earnings corporation proposes to build near Paterson, N. J., is interesting, if not fascinating. To accommodate a population slightly larger than that of Manchester, it is to be laid out that each of its numerous groups of apartment houses will be situated in such a relationship to the highways that children will be able to go to school, playground and athletic field and at least some of the shops, without crossing a highway on which automobile traffic will be permitted. This is being frequently cited as the most attractive of the many attractive features of the new town.

We hate to be pessimistic, but the mere fact that there will be no necessity for the children to get run over by automobiles cannot be regarded, we greatly fear, as any guarantee that they will not do so. Once in a while a child is killed while necessarily crossing a street. Time and again the little victim has bolted into the roadway without any good reason beyond a spontaneous whim.

Unless children from the hour when they begin to walk are taught with the utmost pains that every highway is a peril and that constant sticking to the sidewalks is the price of life, there will continue to be these most pitiful of all tragedies, the killing of babes by automobiles.

Unless, again, the fairy dream may come true of a time when drivers will at all moments have their cars under such control that they will not kill the tots who run into the streets in front of them. Which is too much to hope for, because that would be civilization.

WHAT'S IN A NAME?

FACTS—ABOUT CONNECTICUT
Compiled by the CONNECTICUT CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

(50) Cotton in Connecticut.

Connecticut which produced the genius whose invention revolutionized cotton production is losing ground in the manufacture of cotton goods which was the state's predominant manufacture through the middle of the nineteenth century. Latest figures place this industry sixth in value of product of all Connecticut industries.

Connecticut cotton factories turned out 45 per cent of the total for the United States during 1900. Twenty-five years later the value of this state's cotton goods was only 33 per cent of the combined output of all states. Whereas the combined value of the product of this industry was 415 per cent greater in 1925 than 1900, Connecticut's increase was only 236 per cent.

The total value of all cotton goods manufactured during 1925 was $1,714,867,787; Connecticut's share was $52,100,276, making her ninth in ranking with other states. Massachusetts with an output valued at $345,864,097 led. North Carolina, South Carolina and Georgia ranked second, third and fourth respectively, the combined value of their output being worth $740,156,647. Rhode Island came fifth with an output valued at $107,708,169. New Hampshire factories turned out cotton goods valued at $57,868,732, and Maine's, $41,188,496.

Twelve thousand wage earners of 42 factories engaged in this industry in Connecticut during 1925 received wages totaling $12,314,933. Materials cost $32,449,516. During 1900, 13,000 employes in 55 factories received $4,393,502 in wages. Materials that year cost $7,535,926, and the value of the product was $15,489,442.

Tomorrow—Connecticut's Peace-Time Army.

societies instead of a single unit. Humanitarians of the trade of those who constitute this benevolent body may find it difficult to understand, but the average man and woman is slightly repelled at the apparent leveling of human beings to the plane of dumb animals inevitable when a society undertakes to protect both in much the same degree.

There are of course, separate "family" and "animal" divisions of the society and the work of the one, as we understand it, does not impinge on the operations of the other. Nevertheless the ordinary person in this state is at a loss to know whether the Humane society is an institution devoted more to the interest of sick cats than of beaten babies or contrarily.

There would probably be difficulties in adjustments of funds and endowments, to say nothing of more trouble and conceivably more expense, if somehow these two divisions were erected into sufficiently separate organizations to get away from this confusion in the public mind. But if the lawyers can manipulate corporate existences so as to successfully set off apparent separate identities where none actually exist, in the business world, it would seem as if they might do so easily enough in the world of humanities. And whether the officers and members of the Humane society realize it or not, it might well be up to the trouble.

Uninformed people who now make a great outcry against child welfare activities on the part of a "cat society" would surely be less obstreperous if the intervention were by a "Children's Society."

A THOUGHT

Behold, how good and how pleasant it is for brethren to dwell together in unity!—Psalms 133:1.

Peace is liberty in tranquillity.—Cicero.

A "dime" was originally a tenth of a man's earnings paid as church dues.

New York, Jan. 27.—The "stage names" adopted by Broadway chorines of today seem quite as ridiculous, and quite as familiar, as those of the grand old burlesque wheel days.

Glancing down the list of "ladies of the ensemble" in a successful musical show, I find such names as Lotta Pepp, Ima Joye, Betta Nickle, Topsy Turvy—and so on. And yet, on this same Broadway, have flashed, from time to time, names that seemed singularly fictitious, yet which turned out to be the monikers with which proud parents actually adorned their children.

Perhaps the most unbelievable name that the big street ever became familiar with was A. Toxin Worm. And, with such an adornment, what could the poor child do but become a press agent. And what on earth could a fellow by the name of Dexter Follows be but the world's greatest circus advance man. Dixie Hines certainly sounds assumed and, scratching our memory a bit, we can recall Cephau Day, Thornton Delahante, Glaxton Wiltach and a few others.

Had he searched through all the possible nom de plumes, Heywood Brown, for instance, could not have picked out a better writing name. And what of such perfect "writing" names as "Zane," whose last name is Grey; or Temple Bailey, or Allan Updegraff. Getting into another realm, we call upon you to improve on J. Borden Harriman, or Ivy Lee.

Doc Disagrees

WASHINGTON LETTER
 BY RODNEY DUTCHER

Washington, Jan. 27.—Ain't government wonderful? This story is about government, a spur, a mule and an estimable lady doctor, one Frances Rothert. Dr. Rothert is one of the physicians of the Children's Bureau of the Department of Labor, which works for better health among babies, children and prospective mothers and for fewer deaths among mothers and infants.

Kentucky had asked the bureau to study maternal mortality rates, and some of the most important studies had to be made away up in the mountains. Dr. Rothert had to climb up into and out of such places as Wooten, Hayden, Obed, Red Bird Creek and Bear Branch, and the time came when she would no longer travel on the mail wagon. Probably the mail wagon didn't go any further.

Anyway, Dr. Rothert had to hire a mule. But the mule wouldn't go without artificial stimulation. Dr. Rothert bought a spur, just one spur, mind you, not a pair. Before buying the spur, Dr. Rothert must have given the matter serious consideration. When government workers go out traveling, the auditing department generally takes them off to one side for a heart to heart talk and lists the many things the government won't pay for on expense accounts.

But Dr. Rothert concluded that there was surely an exigency, for if the mule wouldn't proceed—the government would be out so much mule hire and the state of Kentucky out so many mortality statistics. Dr. Rothert entered the spur again as a separate item and gets her 50 cents, she will have to send the spur into the bureau, where it will become government property with all of us owning a part interest. It must be accounted for from year to year, and anyone else who rides into the mountains on mule-back may write for it, but may not buy a spur at government expense. The spur will remain government property forever unless the bureau can get it condemned or will swear to its loss.

Recently in came Dr. Rothert's expense account to the bureau. "One spur—50 cents." This gave the bureau pause. Never before had any one charged up one spur. There was an item that must be checked with the statutes at large, the revised statutes, the controller's decisions and the organic act of 1924, with special reference to the controller's decisions on traveling expenses. The question was, did Dr. Roth-

Blanche Watson, "Whisky Expert" Does Only "Legitimate" Business

By JAMES B. KILGALLEN New York—The name of Miss Blanche Watson, of Covington, Ky., has figured in a mysterious fashion in the remarkable story of George Remus, the ex-bootleg king who recently beat the electric chair for wife murder. Throughout the trial the state constantly intimated that Miss Watson was a bootlegger but this she quietly denies, and so do her friends.

Whisky certificates and engaging in other activities in the "greatest liquor center in the world," Remus drew heavily upon the experience of Miss Watson. She was, he said, his private secretary. After he was in prison she advised him on many of his business matters, then involved in litigation. During his trial for murder she frequently visited him in his cell in the Hamilton County jail and advised him as to his courtroom demeanor. It is understood she was one of those who advocated that he not take the stand. He did not, although he wanted to, he said.

THE 'CANARY' MURDER CASE

PHILO VANCE
JOHN F.-X. MARKHAM, District Attorney of New York County
MARGARET ODELL (THE 'CANARY')

THE STORY THIS FAR
A scream had come from Margaret Odell's apartment. The man who had just left rushed back to her room and knocked. 'She answered,' said Jessup, 'and told him everything that had happened in the evening. He called for the 'Canary' but she had been told she was out. He satisfied himself by knocking on her door and then leaving. The next morning the strangled body of Margaret Odell was found in her apartment. The side door to her apartment was open and the floor was covered with blood. The murderer must have left the apartment by the side door. Both phone operators said no one other than the woman they mentioned had called from her apartment when someone phoned about a murder to twelve,' said Jessup.

CHAPTER XI
MARKHAM, clearly annoyed at the interruption, cut in sharply with a demand for the operator to proceed with his description. 'He wore his hair smoothed down,' Spively continued, 'and you could see it was kind of long; but it was cut in the latest style. And he had a small waxed mustache; and there was a big carnation in the lapel of his coat, and he had on chambray gloves. ... 'Me word!' murmured Vance. 'A cigar!'

Markham, with the incubus of the night-clubs riding him heavily, frowned and took a deep breath. Vance's observation evidently had launched him on an unpleasant train of thought. 'Was this man short or tall?' he asked next. 'He wasn't so tall—about my height,' Spively explained. 'And he was sort of thin. ... There was an easily recognizable undertone of admiration in his tone, and I felt that this youthful telephone operator had seen in Miss Odell's caller a certain physical and sartorial ideal. This palpable admiration, coupled with the somewhat outre clothes affected by the youth, permitted us to read between the lines of his remarks a fairly accurate description of the man who had unsuccessfully rung the dead girl's bell at half past nine the night before. When Spively had been dismissed, Markham strode about the room, his head enveloped in a cloud of cigar smoke, while Heath sat stolidly watching him, his brows knit. Vance stood up and stretched himself. 'The absorbent problem, it would seem, remains in statu quo,' he remarked slyly. 'How, oh how, did the fair Margaret's executioner get it?' 'You know, Mr. Markham,'

'Are you absolutely certain that no one could have been hidden in these rooms at the time you went home?' (this statement was quite true.) 'What about the clothes closet in this room?' Markham put the question hopefully, but again the maid shook her head. 'Nobody was in there. That's where I keep my own hat and coat, and I took them out myself when I was getting ready to go. I even put away one of Miss Odell's dresses in that closet before I left.' 'And you are absolutely certain,' reiterated Markham, 'that no one could have hidden anywhere in these rooms at the time you went home?' 'Absolutely, sir.' 'Do you happen to remember if the key of this clothes closet was on the inside or the outside of the door when you opened the door to get your hat?' 'The woman paused and looked thoughtfully at the closet door. 'It was on the outside, where it always was,' she announced, after several moments' reflection. 'I remember because it caught in the chignon of the old dress I put away.' Markham frowned and then resumed his questioning. 'You say you don't know the name of Miss Odell's dinner companion last night. Can you tell us the names of any men she was in the habit of going out with?' 'Miss Odell never mentioned any names to me,' the woman said. 'She was very careful about it, too—secretive, you might say. You see, I'm only here in the daytime, and the gentlemen she knew generally came in the evening.' 'And you never heard her speak of anyone of whom she was frightened—anyone she had reason to fear?' 'No, sir—although there was one man she was trying to get rid of. He was a bad character—I wouldn't have trusted him anywhere—and I told Miss Odell she'd better look out for him, but she'd let him alone. I guess, and had been pretty soft on him once.' 'How do you happen to know this?' 'One day, about a week ago,' after lunch, I was around in the other room. They didn't hear me, because the portieres were drawn. He was demanding money, and when she tried to put him off he began threatening her. And she said something that showed she'd given him money before. I made a noise and then they stopped arguing; and pretty soon he went out.' 'What did this man look like?' Markham's interest was reviving. 'He was kind of thin—not very tall—and I'd say he was around thirty. He had a hard face—good-looking, some would say—and pale blue eyes that gave you the shivers. He always wore his hair greased back, and he had a little yellow mustache pointed at the ends.' 'Ah!' said Vance. 'Our gigolo!' 'Has this man been here since?' asked Markham. 'I don't know, sir—not when I was here.' 'That will be all,' said Markham; and the woman went out. 'She didn't help us much,' complained Heath. 'What!' exclaimed Vance. 'I think she did remarkably well. She cleared up several moot points.' 'And just what portions of her information do you consider particularly illuminating?' asked Markham, with ill-concealed annoyance. 'We now know, do we not,' rejoined Vance serenely, 'that no one was lying hidden in here when the lady departed yesterday.' 'Instead of that fact being helpful,' retorted Markham, 'I'd say it added materially to the complications of the situation.' 'It would appear that way, wouldn't it, now? But, then—who knows?' 'Heath, who was now staring with meditative pugnacity into the closet, shook his head helplessly. 'What I don't understand,' he murmured, 'is why, if the fellow was hiding in the closet, he didn't ransack it when he came out, like he did all the rest of the apartment.' 'Sergeant,' said Vance, 'you've put your finger on the crux of the matter. ... I know, the neat, undisturbed aspect of that closet rather suggests that the crude person who rifled these charming rooms omitted to give it his attention because it was locked on the inside and he couldn't open it.' 'Come, come!' protested Markham. 'That theory implies that there were two unknown persons in here last night.' Vance sighed. 'Harrow and alas! I know it. And we can't introduce even one into this apartment logically. ... Distressin', ain't it?' (TO BE CONTINUED)

The WOMAN'S DAY by ALLENE SUMNER

A 'wealthy, intelligent, cultured' New York woman of 42, Mrs. Grace Burham, has created no little excitement with her recent baby girl born without benefit of clergy. The mother, who is a widow, that, though she did not care to remarry, she did want a child, and believed in her innate right to one with or without matrimony. The father was selected for eugenic reasons, and everything sounds quite hotly today.

I have no comment to make on the woman's decision and action. It is very likely, as Judge Ben Lindsey says, that 'social experimentation by those who care to risk it is quite as well justified, as experimentation in other dangerous fields. Society ought to sanction it and tolerate it and even encourage it. Nobody suggests that we put a stop to aviation because the path to discovery in this field is marked with the graves of those who took their chance with the Unknown. Incredible as it may seem, there are still people who look upon experimentation in the scientific fields as immoral and displeasing to God.'

What'll She Do? A potato may be baked in 60 seconds and a steak broiled in half a minute by a new principle of electric cooking which creates intense heat and which is now being perfected in London. Many people will ask 'what is the housewife going to do with all her saved time?' These are the people who are very sure that 'housewife' is a 'modern day of science is a grand cinch. But I haven't a doubt in the world that for many many years the average home maker will find plenty to do even if she can bake a potato in half a minute and a steak in 30 seconds. I have always been very impatient of the theory that the average housekeeper didn't have enough to do these days to keep her busy.'

Tattlers Social workers are supposed to frequently breathe the wish that girls of 14 could be put into a state of coma until at least 18 to spare society from the troubles caused by them. Year after year some man is released from prison when the adolescent girl who lied about him changes her mind and tells the truth when she has grown older. Girls must be the center of attraction at this age even if they wrong other human beings by being fat. Remember this the next time a 14 or 15 or 16-year-old tells you some horrible tale about someone: it was these girls who caused most of the witch burnings, we are now told by authorities.

'Ideal Fashions' TROTZKY'S WIFE STILL REMAINS PARTY MEMBER by Jean Belle Hamilton. Moscow.—The Trotzky family has split, mentally but not legally, on the question of the opposition. Natalie Ivanovna, Trotzky's wife remains a member in good standing of the Communist Party, while he is at least temporarily out in the cold. During all the bitter fight between her husband and the Stalin administration, Natalie Ivanovna's name was never mentioned, partly because she was ill in the Crimea when the party split, and partly because she refused to take any active part in the opposition movement and signed none of its scathing declarations against the Central Committee. Interested in Art In sympathy, it is known, with her husband's 'radical' views, she is more interested in art, education, and literature than in politics. Her husband is authoritatively given as the reason why she was forced to abandon her work as director of the museum division of the Department of Education, which supervises all the museums and art galleries in the country. She was granted several long leaves of absence with pay and has rested alternately in the Crimea and Moscow. She is about to emerge from seclusion. She has been offered a job as assistant to Constantine A. Stantslavsky, famous director of the Moscow Art Theatre, which is also under the supervision of the Department of Education. May Visit U. S. As such, she may visit the United States in the spring of next year if the theatre decides to accept Morris Gest's proposition of another American tour. Natalie Ivanovna is Trotzky's second wife and three years younger than the Abraham who is 48. There are no children. Trotzky, however, is extremely fond of his three grandchildren, two boys and a girl, the children of his sons and his marriage. He spends virtually all of his vacations with the children in a cottage near Moscow and in the Crimea. Daily Health Service HINTS ON HOW TO KEEP WELL by World Famed Authority. ANGINA PECTORIS WARNS MAN TO CHANGE HABITS. By DR. MORRIS FISHBELN Editor Journal of the American Medical Association and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine. William Oeler once said, 'Many a man's life has been saved by an attack of angina pectoris.' By this statement he signified his belief that the attack of angina was a warning to the patient as to the condition of his heart. As a result of the angina, the patient changed his habits of living and gave a crippled heart a chance to exercise its functions more satisfactorily. Angina pectoris is a frequent cause of sudden death. The pain comes on suddenly and severely and is an indication that the circulation of the blood to the heart is being interfered with in some definite manner. In many cases when reports announce that a person has died suddenly of acute indigestion, the cause is the throwing of unusual burden on a crippled heart. In such instances usually the person has eaten a large meal and has been lying in such a position that the over-distended stomach pressed upon the heart. In its search for methods of treatment of this condition, medicine has discovered no more im-

TWO MANCHESTER LAW SUITS REACH AN END

Gates vs. Stein Settled For $1,500, Armstrong Loses to Stonington Suit.

Two cases involving Manchester people have been settled either in the Superior Court or by the contesting parties.

It was reported to the court that the suit of Mrs. Ada S. Gates of this town against Edward P. Stein, administrator of the estate of Grace A. Stein and Edward L. Gates, also of this town, for damages in an automobile accident on September 29, 1926, has been settled for $1,500.

Mrs. Gates was a passenger in her husband's car, driven by her son Claude, when it collided with Mrs. Stein's car, which was driven by her husband.

George Armstrong of this town lost a decision to Manuel Travers of Stonington, who was awarded $493.37 by Judge Thomas B. Molloy in the court of common pleas.

DIRIGIBLE TO TRY LANDING ON SHIP

Newport, R. I., Jan. 27.—Shrouded in secrecy the United States Navy dirigible Los Angeles, carrying Commander O. E. Rosendahl and a crew of 47 officers and men this afternoon attempted the unusual performance of attempting to land on the flying deck of the U. S. S. Saratoga, the Navy's new airplane carrier.

The experiment, the first of its kind in history, was made, it was learned at naval headquarters here at sea off the Southern New England coast.

Success or failure of the swoop of the giant airship to the deck of the new airplane carrier was to be flashed by radio to the Navy Department at Washington and the hangar of the Los Angeles at Lakehurst, N. J.

Weather conditions off the coast were ideal for the unusual experiment, the success of which will have a bearing on future warfare and is of great importance to aeronautics of the future.

Details of the plan were kept secret. The visit of the Los Angeles from Lakehurst was wholly unexpected. It had been given out that the dirigible was off on a training flight which was expected to keep her in the air all day.

Whether the Los Angeles will attempt to land on the flying deck of the Saratoga while the airplane carrier is under full steam or whether the landing will be attempted with the Saratoga at anchor was not known here but it was understood that both plans would be carried out.

The landing of the Los Angeles on the flying deck of the Saratoga was not considered in naval circles here to be fraught with much danger. The great airship in good weather is always under perfect control of her navigators.

The broad flying deck of the Saratoga was especially designed for the landing and take off of large planes although the possibility of a dirigible attempting it had not been revealed, as far as known here.

AUCTION BRIDGE BOOSTS PRODUCTION OF PLAYING CARDS

Washington, Jan. 27.—Auction bridge, whose intricacies have severed the diplomatic relations of many an otherwise happily married couple, was held today as one of the chief factors in the remarkable increase in production of playing cards in the United States.

In 1927 manufacturers reported an output of about 50,000,000 packs of cards, of which 7,000,000 were exported, the Bureau of Internal Revenue announced.

Ohio holds the distinction of producing about three times as many playing cards as any other state.

America's propensity for speculating in stocks and bonds resulted in the collection of $18,330,000 taxes on Capital stock sales and transfers. This marked a gain of $6,000,000 over the year before.

Out of the total collection, New York was the source of $17,275,000.

PILOTLESS AIRPLANE

Los Angeles, Calif., Jan. 27.—Minus pilot and passenger, an airplane capable of carrying both will be flown from Los Angeles to New York early this summer, Robert L. Mack, electrical engineer, announced here today. The phantom ship will be controlled, Mack said, suitably by radio operated from a second plane, flying 2,000 feet behind. Tests of the apparatus will be made here shortly.

STEWART IN MEXICO

Mexico City, Jan. 27.—President Robert W. Stewart of the Standard Oil Co., of Indiana, which has extensive interests in this country, will arrive in a few days to confer with President Calles upon the interpretation of the recent amendments to the petroleum laws. Dwight P. Morrow, the United States ambassador, has arranged for the conference. Stewart has been in Havana for some time on business.

MYSTERIOUS EXPLOSION

New York, Jan. 27.—Mystery surrounds the blowing of a package of gunpowder early today against the front porch of a two-story frame building in Brooklyn occupied by Italians. The explosion blew out all of the windows and demolished part of the porch.

HARTFORD-SPRINGFIELD BUS LINE SOLD TODAY

Hartford, Conn., Jan. 27.—Purchase of the Hartford-Springfield Coach Co., by the New England Transportation Company was announced at a hearing before the Public Utilities Commission here today by W. L. Barnett, of New Haven, attorney for the New England Transportation Company. The purchase price is about $250,000 with the New England to assume all the outstanding obligations of the Hartford-Springfield line.

In announcing the purchase Mr. Barnett declared the acquisition of the Hartford-Springfield line by the subsidiary of the New Haven railroad is done to perfect the interstate operations of the New England system. Mr. Barnett also announced the impending plan to put interstate bus transportation under federal control as steam railroads now are, and declared that such plan would greatly facilitate the operation of busses.

The announcement came during a hearing before the utilities commission on an order to show cause why the Hartford-Springfield certificate should not be revoked because of poor service.

PARENTS DISCOURAGED Northampton, Mass., Jan. 27.—Negotiations with a band of blackmailers or kidnapers having produced negative results, as have other "clues" in the search for their missing daughter, Mr. and Mrs. St. John Smith, heartbroken and discouraged, today prepared to return to their home in New York City.

It was undetermined whether an attempt would be made from there to communicate with the band of criminals claiming to have Frances St. John Smith, the golden haired college freshman, a captive in New York.

A trap set for those who have been making ransom demands was sprung secretly late yesterday but failed to produce results. Under prearranged plans $12,000 in bills was brought to Springfield from New York on a forenoon train. It was dropped at an appointed place inside a Springfield department store.

Police watched and waited but the writer of the so-called "ransom letter" failed to appear.

Plot Falls The failure of the plot was said to have cleared the way for more open investigation of the mysterious disappearance of the college freshman.

Brig. Gen. Alfred F. Foote, state commissioner of public safety, was in charge of the investigation today, promising definite action at once. General Foote had with him several important members of the state police force.

At the same time three psychoanalysts were called into a family conference, they will undertake to put together a mental state of Miss Smith at the time she dropped from sight. With all "clues" having failed this was regarded as the "last hope." Dr. D. A. Thom, Boston psychiatrist, Dr. John A. Houston, superintendent of the Northampton state hospital and a trustee of Smith college, and Dr. Lyneard H. Norton, Boston psychoanalyst, were called into consultation by the family.

KILL TRAFFIC HEAD TO SPEED DELIVERY

Riga, Jan. 27.—As part of the recently declared "drastic measures" by the Soviet government to "speed sluggish grain supplies," official announcement was made today of the execution of Leonid Narkis, chief of the grain department of the Trans-Caucasian Trade Commissariat.

Novikoff was shot by "G P U," the Soviet secret police. He was convicted of enabling private traders to purchase grain from the Soviet trade organization.

FLIGHT DELAYED

Washington, Jan. 27.—Reports of adverse weather over the mountains near Cumberland, Md., and Uniontown, Pa., caused Charles Brooks, Ford pilot, to delay his take-off for Detroit in a silver plane this morning. He had planned to leave shortly after 8 o'clock. "I will get away as soon as the weather clears, probably before noon today," he said. Brooks failed in an attempt to make a non-stop flight from Detroit to Miami and is returning to Detroit for a second try.

STORK VISITS PRINCESS

London, Jan. 27.—A son was born this morning to Princess Anna Ilyichna, wife of Grand Duke Dimitri, of Russia, who before her marriage in 1925 was Miss Audrey Emery, a New York heiress. Grand Duke Dimitri is a cousin of the late Czar and is titular head of the remaining members of the imperial family.

NIGHT MAIL FLYERS SKIM 5000-MILE PATHWAY MADE SAFE BY BEACONS

The above map of the air mail in the United States shows how, gradually, the country is being covered by the flyers. To the lower left is the map of two proposed new routes in Michigan. These two routes offer a pattern that is being followed in many other states where branch lines, connecting with air mail terminals, are being started soon.

Chicago.—Under the sun by day, and with a blaze of artificial light more than 5,000 miles long by night, the air mail "goes through." Daily air mail transports, traveling paths that criss-cross the nation, cover more than 16,000 miles. More than 6,000,000,000 candlepower lights the night pilots on their way across the dark skies.

Field floodlights on the transcontinental routes between New York and Salt Lake City supply the greatest brilliance. On this route are 12 such floodlights, each of an estimated 5,000,000 candlepower. The other great lights are the revolving beacons, of the 24-inch electric type, of which there are 191 in the routes now lighted, including the new Chicago-Dallas line.

Another Lighted Route.—The lighted mileage will be increased greatly by spring when the New York-Atlanta route, 763 miles long, is to start. Lines from Dallas to Galveston and to Laredo, which are to go into operation earlier, will be lighted, as well as the Salt Lake City-Great Falls, Buffalo-Albany and New Orleans-Atlanta routes.

The vast net work of air mail lines today reaches a territory in which there live 70,000,000 people. The National Air Transport planes, which carry air mail and express over the 1728-mile Chicago-New York airway, comprising two routes, eastern and southwestern, in the quarter year ending Nov. 30, 1927, had flown 435,343 miles.

GERMANY'S ARMY IS DEMOCRATIC IN NEW UNIFORM

Berlin.—Officers and soldiers of the German army will hereafter wear soft collars with cravats and jackets open at the neck, and generals will no more be addressed "Your Excellency." These are decrees just issued in army orders by Minister of Defense Gessler.

Adherents of the old regime greet the new regulations with indignation declaring the army is going to pot. Republicans welcome the change as a step toward democratization of the military.

The new uniforms are being introduced gradually, at first only in a few regiments. The jackets resemble the English cut, and the overcoat the American model. For "fatigue" wear the men will wear white or field grey shirts with sport collars and field grey cravats.

Make Milkshops.—The inauguration of soft collars and cravats has especially touched the feelings of old officers. They insist that the enervating effect of the more comfortable uniform will make milkshops of the soldiers.

Equally unpopular among the prewar officers is the abolishing of the title of "Your Excellency" for generals. Gessler has ordered that hereafter generals be addressed, also by private soldiers, merely "Herr General."

shortly before its departure on a cruise around the world. Democratic newspapers, reporting that the Prince had made a speech to the crew, blew up the incident into a nationwide scandal, to prove that the navy was still under the influence of the Hohenzollerns.

PLAN DRASTIC CUTS IN BRITISH ARMIES AS ECONOMY MOVE

London.—Drastic cuts in the British Regular and Territorial Armies will follow a new War Office policy of economy and reorganization during the present year.

These cuts have been dictated by the necessity of reducing the big manœuvres at Salisbury Plain last fall. As a result the process of mechanizing the British Army is being largely abandoned.

It seems as though the present territorial (volunteer) force is likely to be almost abandoned. It was a magnificent nucleus for the British Army during the last war, but in peace time it is a very expensive luxury. In its place, it is likely that a selected group of officers and men are to be trained as instructors, so that in an emergency a civilian army could be trained rapidly along the lines of the latest and every-changing military developments.

EUROPE SPEEDS MOVES TO AID AIR COMMERCE

London.—With commercial aviation firmly established in the principal countries of Europe, their efforts are guaranteed by liberal subsidies from the governmental coffers, every possible effort is being made to make it a profitable and smooth-working proposition.

Although the statements for the year 1927 show a tremendous increase in business by practically all of the commercial air lines, it is not unreasonable to assume that they would have difficulty in existing without governmental subsidies.

There is in existence the International Air Congress, the members of which are representatives of the principal nations of Europe. They have agreed to co-operate in the preparation of meteorological data, which is distributed almost hourly to guide commercial pilots on their flights.

Two chief obstacles still stand in the way of European flying, however. One is the problem of night flying, and the other the customs barrier. Nightflying, however, remains practically impossible. In the United States, where only one government rule, it is an easy matter but to each 25 miles on the transcontinental route and every ten miles apart on the other airways. The fields, besides floodlights, carry boundary lights of incandescent bulbs, with hazards like trees, poles and buildings, marked with red obstruction lights.

EUROPE'S FARMS FACE BIG 1928 IMPROVEMENT

London.—An improved status for the agricultural industry in Europe is promised in 1928 as a result of steps taken during the past year, and hundreds of thousands of persons engaged in providing the world's food face the new year with hope that a successful livelihood in return for their labor may now be assured.

Thus far only one European nation—Denmark—has succeeded in solving the "farm problem," and a thorough examination of Danish methods, especially those having to do with financing and scientific discoveries relating to agriculture, has been undertaken by the "best minds" of the farming industry.

A serious approach to the problem on an international scale was made at Geneva last year when representatives of fifty nations met to consider the agricultural situation from all angles, and to discuss ways and means of solving it.

Help For Farmers.—The conference's report suggested that the emancipation of the farmer would come after the following steps had been taken. First, that popular opinion should be brought to realize the importance of agriculture; that the majority of the world's workers were farmers, and that the exchange of agricultural products for products of other industries was, in fact, the basis of all trade; agriculture was one of the large factors which determined the maximum limit of industrial development.

Secondly, agriculture must keep pace with the times in the efficient with which it produced; scientific findings about crops, stock, and about disease prevention must be brought to the farmer and he must follow these findings. Farmers must form associations to handle the marketing of the crops. They should make an effort to standardize their products.

Thirdly, government legislation should be effected in the farmer's behalf. Governments should take steps to stop the high interest rate and the high taxations, while they should encourage the farming co-operative associations.

Workmen's laws should be made protecting farm laborers as laborers in the industries were protected. It should be one of the government's tasks to conduct scientific farming investigations and to bring the results to the farmer. Governments should also reduce tariff as far as possible without endangering the farmers of the product concerned.

The Dane had his efficient production; his farming was scientific, his taxes were not high, and his interest rate on borrowed money was low.

NEW BRITISH LAW TO REGULATE HOURS FOR LIQUOR DRINKING

London.—The Government is to introduce, when Parliament meets next month, a short bill to make drinking hours uniform throughout Britain. Clubs will probably be included in the measure.

This measure has been mainly forced by 3,000,000 club voters who, for several years, have been insisting that restrictions imposed in war time should be taken off.

Betty Nuthall's Tildenesque Tennis Expected To Crush 1928 Opponents

By F. A. Wray. London.—One of the great national discussions in Europe at the moment is—will Betty Nuthall attempt to crush all opponents this year with a de-stating, thunderbolt-like, Tildenesque overhead service during the great lawn tennis tournaments?

Players, spectators and newspaper readers discuss the point from every angle and the main question put is—"Would Miss Helen Will be more troubled by the overhead smash than by the present fast, awkwardly-breaking impetuous underhand service?"

"Betty," she said, "has been practicing an overhead service for some years. I now believe it is a very good service. I think very few women players have an overhead service as good."

Coached By Husband.—"I have followed implicitly the wishes of my husband, who taught me the overhead stroke, then I shall advise her to return to the old method, which in the main, has acted well."

IT TAKES ALL-BRAN TO RELIEVE CONSTIPATION

More and more people are eating bran for "health's sake" these days. And it's a fine thing. But not everybody realizes what a difference there is in so-called "brans." Doctors say it takes 100% bran to supply enough roughage to relieve constipation.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is 100% bran. It furnishes roughage in effective quantities—and in the most effective form: cooked and krumbed. It does a work part-bran products cannot hope to equal. Two tablespoons daily—chronic cases, with every meal—are guaranteed to relieve constipation.

French Town Has Year Without Single Death. Le Mans.—The little hamlet of Force, a few miles distant, is the one place in France where no one has died during the last twelve months. There were three hundred fifty people in the community at the beginning of 1927 and the same number when the New Year of 1928 was ushered in.

Lend an Ear, Gentlemen

Here's What Blonde Ruth Taylor Thinks of You.

Ruth Taylor—all three of them

By RUTH TAYLOR

The "Lorelei Lee" in the film, "Gentlemen Prefer Blondes."

When a girl like I—as Anita Loos taught me to say—suddenly is given as much attention as if she had committed a really first-class murder, she ought to be excused if her brain begins to rattle and wobble.

Now I'm asked: "What does a blonde think of gentlemen?" As one blonde among many, I object very strongly to the old feminine formula that "they're all alike." I think the girl who starts out on that theory will have no more bracelets on her arm at the finish than she wore when she left home.

Not that gentlemen all are different. A statement like that also is a little too much, really.

I think the answer to variations in masculinity is for a girl to try to be different to all men. If she can develop a chameleon variety of method and mood which recognizes the little weaknesses and the little virtues and the nice ways they all possess one way or another, then she can begin to call herself dangerous. Which, of course, is the ultimate way to flatter herself. It requires close attention and a lot of sympathy and shrewdness to spot the little differences in men. You never can tell simply from conversation, and compliments whether a man will yield a diamond tiara or merely an invitation to lunch.

There is much difference in the gentlemen one finds in different parts of the country. This was impressed on me as I traveled from Hollywood to New York recently.

In Denver there was a frank, natural, capable quality to the men I met. In Texas there was a great deal of potential dash masked behind the southwestern drawl. From New Orleans to Charlotte, one noticed a sweet-spoken deference which made even a professional-al-blond feel rather helpless.

In New York, the typical gentleman has about him an air of wise comradeship. Lately, the particular blonde who is writing this piece has been living in the golden dawn of good fortune. In this spell all men seem to be romantic knights and all women generous big sisters. But I guess it will not last forever.

SOVIETS DECORATE SAFETY INVENTOR WHO PROVED PATRIOTISM

Moscow—Daniel Samuelovitch Traeger, former errand boy and telegrapher, has been decorated with the Order of the Red Flag because he turned down a British offer of one million rubles for his ingenious railroad safety device and gave the patent to his native Soviet government without accepting a single kopek reward.

"I did not work for money, but for my country," he said. And all he asked was that the 25 percent of the money which the railroad administration saves by the use of his invention should be devoted to the construction of an esquadre of giant bombing planes named for Djerzinsky, late head of the dreaded Cheka.

Traeger, who is only 28 years old, got the idea when an errand boy in the Krasnoyarsk railroad yards during the war he witnessed a collision in which 74 persons were killed and hundreds injured. His work was interrupted by army service. He was a Bolshevik even at that time and was later jailed by General Kuchelav. He almost half-starved with nobody willing to give him a chance, he gained an audience with the Cheka Chief in Moscow. Djerzinsky was so impressed with his idea that he had an old freight car remodeled into a laboratory, supplied food, clothing and tools so that Traeger could go to work.

Four years later at the beginning of 1927 trials of his automatic electrical device for stopping trains when they run through a block signal set against the engineer, proved successful. An English firm heard of it and offered him a fortune for the patent. Traeger presented it to the Soviet Government. He even spurred the 75,000 rubles offered him by the railroad commissariat, and accepted only the highest honorary award of the Soviets, the Order of the Red Flag.

NEW RELIGIOUS CULT

San Francisco.—Led by "Brother" Nelson, a new religious cult, nameless, and with only one law, "Do that which seems good to you," is being formed in Southern California. Men and women are joining this organization, and after establishing themselves, they plan to discard all clothing, "so that the body will have full expression."

CITY BOY PRANKS MAY SOON LEAD TO 'SOCIAL EXPLOSION'

Cleveland.—A "social explosion" will occur in the near future if some remedy is not soon found for crimes committed by "our youths," Common Pleas Judge George P. Baer told visitors to his court recently.

Judge Baer suggested that he believed crime could be checked before it was committed by forcing city bred boys to attend summer camps where discipline was taught.

The waiting list of prisoners in growing daily because Ohio prisons are now packed far beyond capacity, the Judge declared. He added that it is the same way in almost every state that has large cities.

"Unless the public soon opens its eyes," Judge Baer asserted, "to the us, there's bound to be a social explosion." The jurist blames the seriousness of the situation to the laxity of fathers in disciplining their sons.

"Most city fathers work all day and can give no attention to their sons until night," he explained. "That leaves the upbringing of the boys to the mother, and the duty is one for which the father alone is fitted."

BANK OF FRANCE TO MAKE NEW MONEY DURING 1928

Paris.—The Bank of France promises several surprises this new year. It is stated that, for the first time, a 5,000 franc bill will be printed and placed in circulation. At the present time 1,000 franc notes are the largest denomination printed.

The Bank officials also state that a new 1,000 franc note will be circulated having four interposed colors as well as an entirely new type of fifty franc note.

OLD EXPLORERS WERE PAID AT BARGAIN RATES

Chicago.—The present-day world should be thankful that the greater portion of the world's area was discovered before the costs of exploration went skyrocketing along with the cost of living. When the gigantic costs of such expeditions as Byrd's and Amundsen's flights over the North Pole and Byrd's contemplated South Pole expedition, as well as many other modern scientific exploring expeditions are considered, compared with the costs of outfitting such men as Columbus, Drake, Frobenius, the Cabots, Magellan and others of their day, it will be seen that most of the world was revealed to mankind at what amounted to bargain-day rates.

Christopher Columbus worked for less than a dollar a day when he discovered America. In fact, he was working on a salary of $320 a year at that time, and his trusted aids, Captain Martin, Juan and Anton Peres were on the pay roll at $192 a year, according to figures just announced at Northwestern University, which were received from the German Professor Ruge, cost accountant who has been auditing Columbus' books from all available information.

Wages Were Low The cost of outfitting Magellan, the Cabots, Drake, Frobenius, and other noted discoverers of that day, have not been revealed, but it is known that Columbus and his aides were working for what then passed for union wages for continent discoverers.

The total cost discovering America, according to Prof. Ruge's figures, was 1,140,000 "maravedis," which would be equivalent to about $15,768. Considerable more was spent in the way of upkeep and capital investment for exploitation purposes during the next few years, but this investment eventually was more than paid back through the sale of produce from America—chiefly gold.

The good Queen Isabella was the financial "angel" to Columbus. After she had gathered up all the loose maravedis she could lay her hands upon, and had augmented this pile by taking the family jewels to the place where they realize the most cash, she had the round sum of $7,296 to give the ambitious voyager. The city of Palos managed to scrape together an additional $7,500, according to Prof. Ruge.

Many Were Failures The combined sum would not purchase one of the several planes which Commander Byrd plans to take on the South Pole jaunt, nor would it begin to pay for the dirigible which Amundsen used on his North Pole flight.

Of course, many of the early expeditions were rank failures, from a business point of view. Ponce de Lep's was a bit previous in his discovery of the "Spring of Youth" in Florida. It is not on record that either he or any of his descendants sold any of the real estate made famous in after years by his discovery. De Soto died before he could realize any income from the water power derived from the Mississippi, which he discovered, and so far as known, Baboia was unable to commercialize his discovery of the Pacific Ocean.

But not all of the more recent discoveries and explorations, conducted at far greater costs, have yielded greater immediate returns than those of the Fifteenth Century.

KING'S COUSIN STUDIES HARD TO BE SINGER

London.—The tide of democratic spirit that has swept many persons of royal blood throughout the world, has touched another member of the British royal family. She is Princess Arthur of Connaught, the former Dutchess of Fife, whose husband is a first cousin of King George V.

The shedding of the mantle of regal dignity which her lineage afforded her, came about when the Princess decided she would cultivate her voice. But instead of engaging private tutors to coach her in the gilded music room of an ancestral palace, the Princess, international News Service has learned, has chosen a far more democratic way.

Three mornings a week, she leaves her home in Belgrave Square, walks a quarter of a mile unescorted through parks and busy streets, to a modest, unpretentious building, a few steps off Oxford street, one of the principal shopping thoroughfares in the city.

Up Three Flights Up three flights of creaking stairs, she trudges, past a Bohemian tea room on the second floor, to the singing school of the traditional English brew and buttered crumpets, and bangs the rusty knocker on a dim door on the top-most floor in the house. A maid admits her to a tiny studio. A few chairs, a sofa and a piano comprise the fitting of the room. The Princess throws off her hat and coat, and the lesson begins.

Princess Arthur's teacher is Madame Kate Opperman, a South African contralto, who has coached a number of successful singers for the professional stage. The Princess came to Madame Opperman a little less than a year ago. She came incognito, and identified herself as a nurse with a penchant for singing, and sufficient funds to study seriously. For six months Madame Opperman gave the Princess lessons three times a week, utterly ignorant of the fact that her pupil was an intimate member of the royal circle, and a relative by marriage of the King himself.

Identity Disclosed The secret of her identity was kept for six months, and then Madame Opperman learned who her apt pupil really was. But even then, the fact that the Princess was studying did not become known, outside of a very small circle, and it is reported that only recently she told an acquaintance of the fact when "Bobbie"—as the Princess is known at home—told King George that she had given up smoking for fear it would hurt her voice.

The Princess has no professional aspirations, but she has taken up the study in a very serious manner. She had a small amount of training in her girlhood, but those who have heard her sing declare she has profited tremendously by conscientious practice under the skillful hand of her teacher.

Princess Arthur has progressed so far that two phonograph records have been made of her voice, and they will be heard at a royal gathering this month. Princess Arthur, incidentally, is the first member of the Royal family to have her singing voice recorded.

The Princess's voice is a full, clear soprano.

ACTRESS TO WRITER

Hollywood, Calif.—By Mary Aiken—

Newspapers and magazines may soon be carrying that "by-line" if the former screen star is able to carry out her present plans.

Mary Aiken is going to write.

"I am going to write," declares the pretty Mary. "I have always wanted to write and now I have the opportunity. Maybe some day I will be able to contribute something really worth while."

In the property settlement that followed their separation, Miss Aiken received ample means to care for herself and children the rest of their lives. But she wants to do something. She intends to start a column on the social activities of the film stars around Hollywood and Beverly Hills.

Since being released from her contract with United Artists, Estelle Taylor is stepping high and wide in financial. She has hardly been idle a moment, not even over the holidays.

Those who think that movie stars never have to do anything dangerous should see "Skyscraper"

BRITISH LOAN SHARKS FACE RESTRICTIONS UNDER LATEST LAW

London.—Severe statutory restrictions are imposed on money-lenders in Britain by an act of Parliament which came into force on January 1.

Before the money-lender can carry on business at all, he must take out an Excise license which will cost him $75 yearly. This license must bear his true name. Usually, British money-lenders, whatever their own patronymics, prefer to trade under such names as Colquhoun, Fitzmaurice, Stuart, Rosslyn, Plantagenet or Montgomerie.

And before he can obtain a license the money-lender must secure from a Court of Law a certificate which will be granted on direct evidence of good character. Apart from this, he will no longer be allowed to circulate his clients through the mails, and even the delivery of an advertisement containing only his name, address and telephone number is prohibited unless the person receiving it has made a written request for the document.

Conditions are also prescribed for the form of money-lenders' advertisements in newspapers, and many other restrictions are imposed on their activities. Interest is limited to 48 per cent. annum.

DOUBLE FEATURE BILL AT THE STATE TODAY

"Love and Learn" With Spoilers of the West Scheduled Also for Tomorrow.
Ether Raiston, star of "Figures Don't Lie" and many another feature of equal success, is the star of one of the features at the State theater tonight and tomorrow.

CURTIS BOOM

New York, Jan. 27.—A presidential boom will be launched next week for Senator Curtis, Republican whip of the Senate, it was announced today.
At a reception under the auspices of the newly-organized Curtis for President Club, to be held Monday afternoon, Gov. Ben Paulsen of Kansas will explain the qualifications of the Senator.

IS AGAINST WAR.

Rome, Jan. 27.—"I am in favor of outlawing war—if a way can be found to do it," declared Foreign Minister Titulescu, of Rumania here today.
M. Titulescu, who came to Rome to confer with Premier Mussolini upon an agreement which would draw Rumania and Italy closer together, said he does not believe former Crown Prince Carol would be willing to return to Rumania.
"The regency is working well and it would be a pity to modify the system," added the Rumanian statesman.

THE BOOK OF KNOWLEDGE (196) Roasting

Sketches by Bessey; Synopsis by Braucher
There is no doubt that McCoy, who came to the screen only little more than a year ago, does his best work in this picture, not only as a soldier and stunt rider but as a lover.

Our grandmothers always bought the kind of green coffee they liked, roasted it in a pan or oven and ground it in a noisy little coffee mill.

Years ago this actor became a "blood brother" of the Arapahos and it is interesting to watch the great deal more naturally than they would if associated with white men whom they had never known.

Sunday brings to the State theater that great film classic, "Seventh Heaven," called the masterpiece lead in his production. They will have two showings during the evening and will also remain here on Monday and Tuesday.

Tickets have been placed on sale at the box office of the State and these tickets will be honored also at the Circle theater, where the same picture is being shown on Sunday evening.

Bullstones weighing more than a pound have been reported on good authority according to the U. S. Weather Bureau.

The Roman emperor Claudius wrote a book on dice playing.

The coffee then passes through a grinder, and into a wooden machine which is called a purifier and removes dust and any part of the husk remaining.

This scene shows the final packing process. Thousands of cans pass along on belts which cross a table. At the end of the table is a rotary transfer which weighs exactly one pound into each can and the girl puts tops on the cans as they pass.

LOS ANGELES IN AIR

Lakehurst, N. J., Jan. 27.—The Navy dirigible Los Angeles left here at 3:55 a. m. today on a training flight. Lieutenant Commander C. E. Rosendahl was in command.

The dirigible carried a total of 47 officers and men, it probably will cruise off the coast and return to Lakehurst at sunset.

Cardiff, Wales, Jan. 27.—Despite unprecedented appeals for clemency to all authorities, including King George and the Prince of Wales, Daniel Driscoll and Edward Rowlands were hanged together at the Cardiff jail yard today for the murder of David Lewis, Welsh football player and pugilist.

John Rowlands, brother of Edward, was also sentenced to die for complicity in the murder, but he still lives. He became insane during his prison confinement and was ordered to be held "during His Majesty's pleasure."

SENSE and NONSENSE

HOT DOG
My grandad, viewing earth's worn cogs,
Said things were going to the dogs.
His grandad in his house of logs
Said things were going to the dogs.
His grandad in the Flemish bogs
Said things were going to the dogs.
His grandad in his old skin logs
Said things were going to the dogs.
There's one thing that I have to state:
The dogs have had a good, long wait.

"How come all the scratches on your face?"
Sailor: "The wife's teachin' me to eat with a fork."

CHURCH ARMY CAPTAIN TO PREACH AT ST. MARY'S

Is Officer of Marching Body That Carries Religion to Towns and Camps.

The congregation of St. Mary's church will hear, on Sunday morning, Captain Frank Bloxham, of the English Church Army, which is sponsored by the Episcopal church. He will preach at the regular Sunday morning service in St. Mary's. The Church Army is a militant organization which has no regular church. Members of the army take part in marches through various parts of England, conducting services in the towns in which they stop. They have bands as part of their equipment and their visits are usually looked forward to with great interest. A division of the English Church Army came to Manchester some years ago and preached before large crowds here.

Captain Bloxham, who has been assisting in marches of the Church Army of the United States through the Episcopal dioceses of Long Island, New York, Albany and Central New York, has conducted services for campers at various resorts and lately has been conducting preaching missions in this state and in Massachusetts.

He is a native of Birmingham, England, and before he became connected with the Church Army was a mechanical engineer. He saw service in the English army during the World War and fought side by side with American troops in France.

He is to preach on Sunday evening in Trinity church, Hartford.

The Willing Workers society will meet at the Lutheran Concordia church this evening at 6:30.
