Rips Leg From Bed and Beats Them to Death Be- fore Other Guards Arrived On Scene.

Bridgewater, Mass., Feb. 13.—Two guards at the State Hospital for the Criminal Insane were beaten to death early today by one of five insane patients, who had escaped from their rooms.

After a terrific battle other guards succeeded in capturing the five raging maniacs.

The two guards, who were beaten to death with a piece of a bed, were:

Eugon Amlaw, 50, of Providence, R. I., and Wilfred Gerrier, 40, of Middleboro.

The battle with the five insane men took place in one of the corridors and the shouts of many of the 960 other patients, who had been aroused by the noise, could be heard above the din of the five being captured.

The leader of the attempted delivery of insane patients at the state hospital escaped from his room by climbing to a trapdoor above the door of his room.

Had Leg of Bed
The man evidently had been in a great rage before he got out of the room because he had torn the furniture apart and carried with him the leg of a bed.

Crawling stealthily down a corridor outside of his room the man bounced upon a guard, who was in charge of the night watch and carried the keys to the hospital.

As Amlaw turned, the insane man dealt him a stunning blow with the weapon that he carried in his hands.

The prisoner delivered a second blow, killing Amlaw.

Joined by Others
Snatching the keys from Amlaw, the insane man hurried along the corridor opening the doors of the rooms occupied by four other patients.

The five liberated prisoners ran at Gerrier, who was hurrying up as he heard the body of Amlaw fall.

In a trice, Gerrier was set upon and beaten. He had no time to fight for his life.

Another guard heard the commotion and sounded the alarm.

Within a few minutes the sixteen night guards came hurrying from all directions to the corridor in which the five insane men had run amuck.

Leaping at the man with the keys, the guards quickly overpowered him while others captured his four mates.

Many of the other 960 prisoners had been aroused by the shouting incidental to the battle in the corridor. The cries of these men rent the air.

As the five patients were bundled back to their rooms and placed under guard, medical attention was being given to Amlaw and Gerrier, but both died.

Dr. W. W. Fullerton of this district was summoned.

To Be Sentenced Tomorrow; Lawyers Preparing For Another Trial Wednesday.

Los Angeles, Calif., Feb. 13.—Already branded by a jury verdict of "sane" as a kidnaper-killer, William Edward Hickman today began to assume his second role, that of bandit killer.

While attorneys for the Kansas City youth sharpened their legal weapons for the struggle to avert the death penalty, the state began today to prepare for its second attempt to send Hickman to the gallows for another murder than that of 12-year-old Marion Parker.

London, Feb. 13.—The doctor said she had died of "chronic intoxication." But neighbors insist she was pickled to death. The evidence submitted to a coroner's jury probing the death of Miss May Robsley, 60, brought out the fact that she had drunk a pint of commercial vinegar daily for 30 years.

Even in case of illness, when she could not eat, she still insisted on having her pint of vinegar, according to witnesses.

LOCAL MEN SAFE.
A telegraph report received at The Herald office this afternoon relieved considerable anxiety at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Edmund C. Pillard on 71 Lyness street when it carried the welcome news that their son, Arthur, was not one of the three sailors from the U. S. naval tug "Mohave" which was grounded on Harding's Ledge, a mile off Nantasket Beach.

Maurice Jobert is the other local man aboard the tug. Morning news reports told of the accident without the names of the missing men. The fact that two Manchester young men, former sailors, had re-enlisted in the service and just been assigned to duty on the "Mohave" a few weeks ago, caused considerable anxiety in the homes of both here until the good news was given to the parents by a Herald reporter.

Boston, Feb. 13.—Naval craft and a seaplane combed Massachusetts Bay off Nantasket Beach today in an unsuccessful search for three sailors missing as the result of the grounding of the United States naval tug Mohave on the rocks of Harding's Ledge, east of Point Alorton, Hull.

Twenty-three other sailors were saved when the navy tug was wrecked and some of them were in a serious condition today.

Meanwhile naval officials at Charlestown Navy Yard were trying to determine why the Mohave was so far off her course after time of the grounding.

Argentine Criticizes Tariff
Policy of the United States
At Conference.

Havana, Feb. 13.—With the final steps in the reorganization of the Pan-American Union due to be taken today by the Sixth Pan-American Conference, a wide open split between the Argentine government and Dr. Honorario Peyronnet, chief of the Argentine delegation, loomed as the session of the conference.

The split was forecast when it became known that the home government had instructed the Argentine delegation to accept the project for the reorganization of the Union without insisting on the declaration against "economic barriers."

Dr. Peyronnet, Argentine ambassador at Washington, has been firmly in favor of a declaration against "economic barriers" from the beginning of the conference's deliberations. After the news from Buenos Aires, it was reported that Dr. Peyronnet would decline to affix his signature to the Union project unless his declaration was contained.

Ambassador's Viewpoint
The Argentine ambassador's stand was authoritatively declared to be based on his conviction that, from the standpoint of the Argentine people, such a declaration is essential for the cause of Pan-Americanism. On the other hand, from the standpoint of the United States the declaration would be regarded as obvious criticism of the American tariff policy, which is viewed as purely a domestic issue.

Dr. Peyronnet's reported determination to stand pat puts the issue up to the Argentine government, which can either attempt to force his hand or wait and declare its official acceptance of the conference project after general approval is given here.

Friends of the Union here declared the situation might even involve the question of Argentina's membership in the Pan-American Union.

Identity Of Anastasia Starts Suit In Germany

Berlin, Feb. 13.—Whether Mme. Anastasia Von Tschalkowsky, the mystery woman whose arrival in the United States last week created a social sensation, is really the Grand Duchess Anastasia, the only surviving child of the last Czar of Russia, or only an imposter, will be legally determined at a trial opening before the courts here today.

The trial is a result of a libel suit by the Nachtausgabe, a German newspaper, against the Taegliche Rundschau, another newspaper which is often referred to as the organ of Foreign Minister Stresemann.

The Nachtausgabe had published what purported to be a diary of Anastasia's escape from the massacre that wiped out the Russian imperial family and her later experiences, as compiled by Anastasia's nurse from disconnected sayings that Anastasia uttered in her conscious as well as delirious moments of her illness.

Timmons, Ont., Feb. 13.—The Hollinger mine fire toll was put at 39 dead today.

The flames were checked within a few yards of the powder magazine. All of the explosives have been removed. Water is still being played into the shaft, and the smoke is being cleared away.

A story of hardship was revealed with the discovery of the remaining bodies yesterday. Some of the miners had clung to compressed air pipes and held tenaciously to life for a day or more. There were pathetic scenes as the bodies were brought to the surface; wives,

In Love With Lopez Tries To Kill Self

New York, Feb. 13.—While physicians battled to prevent pneumonia from setting in, Simeone Roseray, famous French dancer, prayed for death to end her suffering from unrequited love.

Following an unsuccessful attempt to drown herself early yesterday in a lake in Central Park, the torn photograph of a man was found in her purse. The photograph was that of Vincent Lopez, well-known orchestra leader. He is the proprietor of the Class Lopez Night Club, where she danced.

Apparently Roseray, as she is known on Broadway, was driven to her suicide attempt by her unrequited admiration for Lopez. On the jazz band maestro's picture, according to police, had been an inscription of endearment, written in French. Also in the handbag was found a note in which Roseray had written:

"Death is preferable to a life of desperation."
Lopez declared the beautiful blonde dancer was a stranger to him.

Roseray was in the Lexington hospital today, suffering from shock and immersion, and threatened with pneumonia. Thomas More, 25, saw her dive into the icy waters of the lake and rescued her, although she scratched and bit her heroic rescuer and screamed her desire to die.

Man Who Pursued Slayer Of Lincoln Is Identified

Old Letter of Princeton Graduate Is Published For First Time—Tells of Washington Tragedy.

Princeton, N. J., Feb. 13.—The identity of the two men who pursued J. Wilkes Booth across the stage of Ford's theatre in Washington after he shot President Lincoln appears to be definitely established with publication today in the Princeton Alumni Weekly of a letter from a Princeton graduate who witnessed the crime.

The letter, dated April 16, 1865, was written by James S. Knox Princeton '60, to his father. It described the events of the tragic evening and tells how the writer and a Colonel J. B. Stewart, Washington attorney, sprang to the stage and made a futile effort to catch the assassin.

The Letter
"Dear father," young Knox wrote. "It is with sad feeling that I address you. Last Friday night at 10 o'clock I witnessed the saddest tragedy ever to be enacted in this country. Notwithstanding my promise to you not to visit the theatre, I could not resist the temptation to see General Grant and the President, and when the curtain rose on 'Our American Cousin' at Ford's theatre my roommate and I were seated in the second row just beneath the President's box."

"The President entered the theatre at 8 1/2 o'clock amid deafening cheers and the rising of all. Everything was cheerful and never was our magistrate more enthusiastically welcomed. Many pleasant allusions were made to him in the play, while Mr. Lincoln laughed heartily and bowed frequently to the justified people."

Hears Pistol Shot
"Just after the third act, and before the scenes were shifted, a muffled pistol shot was heard, and a man sprang wildly from the national box, partially tearing down the flag. Then, shouting 'Sie Semper Tyrannis, The Youth is Avenged,' and with banished dagger, he rushed across the stage and disappeared. The whole theatre was paralyzed."

"But two men sprang for the stage. Mr. Stewart and myself. Both of us were familiar with the play, and suspected the fearful tragedy. We rushed after the murderer, and Mr. Stewart being familiar with the passages reached the rear door in time to see him spring to his horse and ride off. I became lost amid the scenery and was forced to return."

Knox then goes on to describe the subsequent events. The letter was turned over to the university by his widow.

SEARCH FOR MISS SMITH

Boston, Feb. 13.—Search for Miss Francis S. John Smith, missing Smith college student and New York heiress, today turned without success to "dope dives" of Salem and this city.

A thorough search of certain districts of both cities was made by state officials. They were acting on a "tip" from New York police.

Considerable surprise was caused by the announcement that Gilbert C. Weis had withdrawn from the search. Mr. Weis had been using his submarine lamp, in various ponds, in a search for the body of Miss Smith. Before leaving Northampton for Indianapolis, his home, the inventor stated that there were many things behind the search that he could not understand.

Becomes Full Fledged Candidate For the Presidency; Will Allow His Friends to Conduct Campaign—Senator Willis Says "Well I Warned Him" When He Hears News.

Washington, Feb. 13.—Herbert Hoover became a full-fledged, open and avowed candidate for the presidency today.

He gave his consent to the posting of his name in the Ohio primary, thereby paving the way for a slam-bang battle with Senator Frank B. Willis, Ohio's self-designated favorite son, and this is to be followed by entry into other state primaries, notably in New Jersey, Maryland, Michigan, Oregon, California and perhaps several others.

Henceforth the Hoover campaign, which has been prosecuted vigorously under the surface since last August, will be conducted in the open. The die is cast. Hoover is an avowed candidate, the most prominent yet to appear, regard as such he becomes the legitimate target for all other candidates, potential and otherwise.

Hoover's Letter
"My conviction that I should not strive for the nomination, and my obligations as secretary of commerce, preclude my making any personal campaign," said the Cabinet candidate in a letter to Col. Thad H. Brown, consenting to the use of his name. "I must rely wholly upon my friends in Ohio to conduct it and to conduct it in a fair manner and to assist, as far as they can, for the success of the Republican success in the state and nation. It is my special desire that expenditure of money shall be strictly limited and rigidly accounted for."

"If the greatest trust which can be given by our people should come to me, I should consider it my duty to carry forward the principles of the Republican Party and the great objectives of President Coolidge—all of which have brought to our country such a high degree of happiness, progress and security."

Willis' Warning
Senator Willis, who a week ago publicly warned Hoover that if he "dared" come into Ohio "it will be no kid glove or powder puff affair," took the attitude today, "Well, I warned him."

"When the primary in Ohio is over," said Willis, "Mr. Hoover will know whether these self-appointed friends of his (in Ohio) who have dragged him into this contest have advised him correctly. However, Mr. Hoover is welcome. I am confident of the state committee."

The Hoover managers plan to go into every one of the 22 districts in Ohio and organize a slate of delegates to the Kansas City convention. They face a tough fight, for in most of the districts the congressman and the state committeeman are on the Willis side. Willis controls the Republican organization in Ohio, through his power in patronage, and he intends to compel his supporters to stand up and be counted. A majority of the congressional delegation and almost the entire state committee are on record as opposing Hoover's entry into the state.

The Hoover managers, on the other hand, take the position that these organization leaders do not represent the thought of the rank and file of Ohio voters. April 24 will tell the story.

Hoover's Hopes
The most optimistic of the Hoover managers do not expect to capture all of the Ohio delegation of 51. They would regard anywhere from 12 to 25 as a substantial victory. It is conceded that Hoover will get some of the delegates from larger cities of the state. The Cincinnati organization, which is wet, is avowedly against Willis, but most of the delegates from smaller cities are on the Hoover side.

EXPECT TWO MORE DEATHS IN EVERETT
Everett, Mass., Feb. 13.—Fear that the death toll of the explosion at the Beacon Oil Company's plant here may be swelled by two, was expressed by physicians at Whitden hospital today.

Paul Shea, East Lynn and Joseph Gillis Everett, are both dangerously ill, pneumonia having set in as a result of breathing smoke.

The families of the 12 victims, as they prepared today for the sad task of burying their loved ones, found their suffering alleviated somewhat by the prompt payment of indemnity.

Of the 12 victims, eight were to be buried today, while interment for the remaining four will be tomorrow.

Meanwhile the triple investigation into the cause of the explosion is being continued.

While attorneys for the Kansas City youth sharpened their legal weapons for the struggle to avert the death penalty, the state began today to prepare for its second attempt to send Hickman to the gallows for another murder than that of 12-year-old Marion Parker.

The second attempt will be launched Wednesday when Hickman, together with his 16-year-old confessed accomplice, Welby Hunt, comes to trial in Superior Judge Carlos S. Hardy's Court for the slaying of C. Ivy Thomas, Los Angeles druggist, in a robbery on Christmas Eve, 1925.

To Ask Continuance

Jerome Walsh, chief defense counsel, indicated today that he will ask for a 30-day continuance of the trial, on the grounds that the Marion Parker case has not permitted him and his associates the opportunity to prepare evidence.

Although they feel confident that Judge J. J. Trabucco will impose the extreme penalty when Hickman appears before him for sentence tomorrow, members of the district attorney's staff indicated that the Thom's murder charge will be pushed.

These findings were accepted as conclusive by the general public opinion of Europe.

Thereupon, the Taegliche Rundschau published a new series of articles by the same nurse, purporting to give new proofs of Anastasia's identity with the Czar's daughter. In these articles the nurse charged that the Nachttausgabe had been bribed with $5,000 by the German Grand Duke of Hessen, brother of the late Czarine, to publish the denial of her identity.

Doris had not divulged her mother's identity. Nor had she intentionally revealed details of her past through newspapermen traced her history and located her mother. A Chicago woman who made led them to Mrs. Snyder here.

Is 20 Years Old

The girl was born 20 years ago last September 20 in Pittsburgh, her mother revealed. She was christened Eleanor Maywirth Snyder. She has one sister, Clyde, 12, residing with the mother, and a sister, now the ward of Dr. Frances Palmer, a woman physician at Oklahoma City.

"She was wealthy, and when she proposed to take my two daughters to New York she agreed only because I wanted every advantage for them," the mother sobbed.

"I had not known of my daughter's marriage to McDonald."

"Whatever she has done in recent years I know that she has not committed murder."

From Dr. Palmer in Oklahoma City, more details of the girl's life were learned. In 1925 she went to New York and married Buster Allen. Shortly thereafter the couple separated and Doris went back to Oklahoma City to obtain a divorce. Mrs. Palmer gave birth to a child. This ordeal, Dr. Palmer suggested, permanently unbalanced the girl's mind.

Allen obtained a divorce in New York. Last summer she met and married the man at whose side she is sentenced to be hanged.

state primaries, notably in New Jersey, Maryland, Michigan, Oregon, California and perhaps several others.

Henceforth, the Hoover campaign, which has been prosecuted vigorously under the surface since last August, will be conducted in the open. The die is cast. Hoover is an avowed candidate, the most prominent yet to appear, and as such he becomes the legitimate target for all other candidates, potential and otherwise.

Hoover's Letter

"My conviction that I should not strive for the nomination, and my obligations as secretary of committee, preclude me from making any personal campaign," said the Cabinet candidate in a letter to Col. Thad H. Brown, consenting to the use of his name. "I must rely wholly upon my friends in Ohio to conduct it and to conduct it in a fair manner, set to appear, and as such he becomes the legitimate target for all other candidates, potential and otherwise.

If the greatest trust which can be given by our people to a man, I should consider it my duty to carry forward the principles of the Republican Party and the great objectives of President Coolidge—all of which have brought our country such a high degree of happiness, progress and security."

Willis' Warning

Senator Willis, who a week ago publicly warned Hoover that if he "dared" come into Ohio "it will be no kid glove or powder puff affair," took the attitude today, "Well we need him."

"When the primary in Ohio is over," said Willis, "Mr. Hoover will know whether these self-appointed friends of his (in Ohio) who have dragged him into this contest have advised him correctly. However, Mr. Hoover is welcome. I am confident of the result."

The Hoover managers plan to go into every one of the 22 districts in Ohio and organize a slate of delegates to the Kansas City convention. They face a tough fight, for in most of the districts the congressman and the state committeeman are on the Willis side. Willis controls the Republican organization in Ohio; through his power in patronage, and he intends to compel his supporters to stand up and be counted. A majority of the congressional delegation and almost the entire state committee are on record as opposing Hoover's entry into the state.

The Hoover managers, on the other hand, take the position that these organization leaders do not represent the thought of the rank and file of Ohio voters. April 24 will tell the story.

Hoover's Hopes

The most optimistic of the Hoover managers do not expect to capture all of the Ohio delegation of 51. They would regard anywhere from 12 to 35 as a substantial victory. It is conceded that Hoover will get some of the delegates from larger cities of the state. The Cincinnati organization, which is well as avowedly against Willis, but most

COMMISSION UNDER FIRE

Washington, Feb. 13.—The present membership of the Interstate Commerce Commission came under fire in the Senate today when Senators Swanson and Glass (Democrats) of Virginia, served notice they would oppose all reappointments.

The famous "Lake Cargo Coal Rate Case" was drawn into the debate when the Virginians charged the commission with usurping powers never given it by Congress and powers which even Congress did not hold under the constitution.

Glass said the commission recently had discriminated against Virginia industries.

PLANES OF FUTURE WILL DEFY STORMS

Lindbergh's Testimony Read At Meeting of Congressional Committee.

Washington, Jan. 5.—Aviators of the future, flying vastly improved planes, will defy rain, snow and fog to reach their goal, in the opinion of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh.

This picture was given by the "Lone Eagle" to a house appropriations sub-committee in testimony disclosed today.

"I believe that airplanes should be established, not only with a view to the development that exists at the present time, but also with a view to the development that we are bound to have, both in navigation and in development of aircraft in the future," said Col. Lindbergh.

"I do not think that our aircraft today are nearly as efficient as they will be a few years from now. I believe, also, that we will be able to fly and land in practically any kind of weather condition when radio instruments, radio beacons and other means of combating weather conditions have been fully developed."

He told the committee that he believes regular passenger airplane service will be started in the United States next spring, but did not indicate that he would be connected to it. He urged complete backing of the commerce department's plans.

The young flier declined to accept a bit of good natured flattery from Rep. Griffin, the record revealed. After Col. Lindbergh had stressed the need of emergency landing fields, he remarked:

"I have no doubt they are necessary for some fliers, but I always thought that when you started out you reached your destination without any interruption."

"Well, in our air-mail service there are as yet certain conditions which we cannot overcome," he replied. "For instance, we cannot as yet fly through and land in a dense fog, nor can we fly through clouds. We must either turn back and go back, or drop down to an emergency field."

FATHER AND SON "SAIL" TOMORROW

"Ocean Trip" to Be Feature Of Tomorrow Night's Annual Get Together.

Decks on the U. S. S. Friendship sail aboard for happy cruise tomorrow night through the realms of good fellowship. Fathers and sons from every section of Manchester and many from out of town will feast together tomorrow night at the South Methodist church in the annual dad and boy get-together.

The principal speaker will be Bishop William F. Anderson of Boston and there will be three entertainment acts. Bill Waddell's orchestra will play during the dinner. The ladies of the South Methodist church will furnish the "eat" and there will be plenty to satisfy the biggest appetites the ocean journey can whet.

The decorations at the church have been designed to give the appearance of an ocean liner. There is a ship's bell, a fog-horn, a wireless and the room will be fairly covered with pennants. The guests will enter the ship's dining room over a gangplank and a jolly sail is promised. Mess call will be at six p. m.

BIRTHDAY PARTY

Mrs. Andrew Gleason of North Main street reached her sixty-third birthday today, was the honored guest at a dinner party given last evening at the home of her daughter, Mrs. William A. Knoda of Henry street.

Twenty-seven guests were present, including the wives or husbands of sons and daughters, their children and a number of close friends.

The decorations of Mrs. Knoda's home were cut flowers, hearts and other emblems of the approaching St. Valentine's day. Mrs. Gleason had no idea of the celebration planned in her honor and was genuinely surprised when she reached her daughter's home to find so many members of her family from this town and other places. She spent a very happy evening and was remembered with many beautiful and useful gifts.

CENTER CHURCH MEN TALK WAR PRO, CON

Hear A. N. Potter's Theories on Outlining Armaments—To Study Bible Parables.

A. N. Potter, superintendent of evening schools here and director of Americanization spoke to the Men's League at the Center church yesterday morning on "Outlining War." Mr. Potter based his talk on the premise that wars to secure peace are a failure, that all wars are futile and that war is a crime and, therefore, the nations should form an alliance or league to punish offenders.

General discussion was entered into on the subject following Mr. Potter's talk. Those who took part were Captain Allen Dexter, William Parks and E. L. G. Hohensthal. Mr. Hohensthal maintained that the teachings of Christianity faithfully followed would in itself outlaw war.

For the Sundays during the Lenten season the Men's League members will study the parables of the Bible. Various members have been assigned certain parables to study and discuss at each session. Rev. Watson Woodruff will lead the Bible study.

SEC. HOOVER TO RUN IN OHIO PRIMARIES

The Ohio contest furnishes the first practical test of Herbert Hoover's popular support for the presidency. As such it will rivet the undivided attention of political clans and president-makers for the next two months.

Washington, Feb. 13.—Herbert Hoover's announcement of his candidacy for the Republican presidential nomination caused widespread comment here today. Senator Edwards, Democrat of New Jersey declared that Hoover's entry into the Ohio primary against Senator Willis "gives reasonable assurance that the Democratic Party will carry the Buckeye State this fall."

He predicted Ohio Republican will be split wide open. "Let the Houston convention nominate Gov. Smith and Ohio will be found in the Democratic column because no matter how the Willis-Hoover primary fight terminates, Willis will not be the Republican nominee."

DIVORCED AT 18, BRIDE IS SENTENCED TO RETURN TO SCHOOL

Cleveland, O.—Divorced on condition that she return to school is the "fate" of Mrs. Maxine Mitchell Borosky—and she likes it. Mrs. Borosky is now 18, the age when most girls weary of text-books. But Mrs. Borosky was only 13 when she married Walter Borosky, 34, in Illinois, when she was in the seventh grade and now she is sorry.

She was granted a divorce in Common Pleas Court here recently by Judge Walther on condition that she attend night school for at least a year.

"I wish I could look back on a peaceful five years of school instead of on my five years of marriage," Mrs. Borosky told the court. "I am glad now I can't hand a thing to any kind of marriage—I'm getting another kind of education from now on," the young divorcee remarked.

"Companionate marriage? Mine wasn't and just now I can't hand a thing to any kind of marriage—I'm getting another kind of education from now on," the young divorcee remarked.

34-FOOT SCHOONER TO CROSS ATLANTIC IN 3-MONTH CRUISE

London—Three young Englishmen are to attempt to sail a 34 foot schooner across the Atlantic.

Their captain will be Godfrey Baxter, a young actor with a passion for the sea.

"Our boat," says Baxter, "is 34 feet long with 9 feet 6 inches beam. The registered tonnage is only 3 1/2. It is a two-masted schooner, and we have a spare sail for running before the wind. We realize we shall have the northeast trade winds blowing us straight along our course. We shall take two tons of provisions with us.

"We've christened our boat 'Yellow Sands'. It has two cabins—a main one ten feet long and a smaller one on the other side.

"We shall head first for Vico and then make for the Canaries. After that we shall start on the Great Adventure—the journey of 2,600 miles to the West Indies, selecting Jamaica for our first port of call on the other side.

"I estimate that we shall do the voyage in three months possibly less. From the West Indies we shall set out on a course through the Caribbean Sea, and after that our course will depend on the weather."

MERCY MURDER TRIAL

Cambridge, Mass., Feb. 13.—Nine jurors were chosen today at an opening session in the trial of Joseph Foster Buckley, Westport youth, accused of slaying his sweetheart, Miss Grace E. Mills, after a midnight automobile ride last November.

The slaying was known as the "mercy murder" as Miss Mills was alleged to have been in poor health, which she could never marry and, according to Buckley, begged him to shoot her and then take his own life.

With the body of his sweetheart propped in the seat at his side, Buckley drove into Waltham Square, and turned his pistol on himself. He was in a Waltham hospital in a dying condition for over a month from the effects of the self-administered bullet wound.

The trial opened in Middlesex Superior Criminal Court before Judge Hugo Dubuque.

TAXES IN CHINA FORCING PEOPLE TO URGE PEACE

Peking.—An appeal for peace was broadcast by the annual meeting of Chinese Chambers of Commerce in a resolution which urges that a peoples' conference be immediately convened to discuss the question of peaceful unification of China.

That the whole nation is tired of the pointless civil war is unnecessary to point out. However, the movement toward peace is crystallizing now that the nationalists have cast off the Russians. With that obstacle of peace removed the articulate Chinese groups are beginning to make themselves heard.

Merchants Suffering. Probably no other group suffers from this constant fighting as does the merchant class which has just ed taxes. Business must forever be stifled if the present method of commerce. Among their outstanding resolutions was one demanding vigilance by Burns detectives in the Sinclair-Pull conspiracy trial.

Many people begin to get a sluggish feeling along about this time of year. They need a tonic and Riker's Maltolene is just what they need to renew their energy and mental activity.—Quinn's—Adv.

DEFENSE LOSES POINT

Washington, Feb. 13.—The defense in the Sinclair-Burns contempt hearing before Justice Siddons in District Supreme Court suffered an upset setback today, when the court refused to permit the defendants to offer testimony that the government made a practice of maintaining espionage of juries during important trials.

Ruling after nearly two days of argument, Justice Siddons sustained the prosecution's objection to testimony of John R. Kissell, former Department of Justice agent, who was prepared to testify he had maintained surveillance over jurors while employed by the government.

The contempt was against Harry F. Sinclair, William J. Burns, and three others, grew out of jury surveillance by Burns detectives in the Sinclair-Pull conspiracy trial.

BRITISH 'WHO'S WHO' NOW HAS 34,000 BIOGRAPHIES. London.—Containing 34,000 biographies, the English "Who's Who," for 1928, just published here shows that more and more people are becoming famous—or at least well-known. Described by the publishers as "144 cubic inches of fact," the volume, which contains 2,000 more biographies than the previous issue, certainly presents a varied and interesting panorama of the lives of England's famous and less-famous.

CURWOOD STORY NOW ON RIALTO SCREEN

"Old Code" Is Drama With Action and Punch; Vaudeville Again Tomorrow.

Three or four months ago the entire population of North America mourned the loss of one of its most eminent writers of fiction—James Oliver Curwood. This famous author, who died from a series of complicated diseases, has left two or three of his late novels with a number of the different film companies for production on the screen. Among them is "The Old Code," the principle film now showing at the Rialto Theater. This picture, which was adapted from the Curwood story by Edward Condon, brings out once more the life that Curwood loved and wrote about—that vast Canadian Northwest. "The Old Code," boasts of an unusually fine cast of noted film favorites. Walter McGrath and Lillian Rich are starred. They were given excellent support by J. P. McGowan, Neva Gerber, Rodney McDougall and Clifford Lyons. The Pathe News Events shows some interesting snapshots of the severe gales that took place along the New England Coast two weeks ago. Another chapter of "The Collegians" and a Hal Roach comedy complete the bill. On Tuesday and Wednesday Manager Campbell is again presenting another of his popular stage shows, "Three Acts of Splendid vaudeville has been secured for the occasion. The film feature will be "Alias the Deacon," a Universal-Jewel special production starring that veteran character actor, Jean Hersholt.

Speakeasy Better Than Open Saloon

So Declares Canon Charles K. Gilbert in Law Enforcement Address at St. Mary's Church.

Rev. Charles Kendall Gilbert, executive secretary of the social service commission of the Episcopal diocese of New York, speaking in St. Mary's Episcopal church here last night on the 50th anniversary of the Manchester Division, Sons of Temperance, credited the 18th amendment to the Constitution with having "driven the liquor traffic under cover" and said that "booze no longer bears the sanction of our government." Dr. Gilbert's address dealt with law enforcement and the duties of a Christian people in obeying and seeing that others obey the statutes.

Granting that man individually has a right to satisfy his taste, and that there are those who can indulge in intoxicants without serious physical detriment, Dr. Gilbert said that no Christian man can live into himself, and that all laws are binding upon everyone. He said that the 18th amendment was a great social experiment and believed that the "speakeasy" is better than the "glamorous saloon" and that "underground traffic" is liquor is better than the open bar.

Rev. Charles Kendall Gilbert

Dr. Gilbert spoke to an attendance of about 300. St. Mary's church was filled to capacity when the service opened at seven o'clock. It was a Union Protestant service and Rev. J. Stuart Neill, rector of St. Mary's, Rev. Watson Woodruff, pastor of the Center Congregational church, and Rev. Joseph Cooper, minister at the South Methodist Episcopal church, took part.

The address followed: "Eight years ago the United States entered upon the greatest social experiment of its history. By the free and deliberate choice of its people, and in full accord with the legally established procedure, our national charter was so amended as to prohibit the manufacture, sale or transportation of intoxicating beverages."

"By that action the nation outlawed a traffic which has existed among men almost from the beginning of commercial intercourse—a traffic which had attained staggering proportions—a traffic which in our own country represented the investment of billions of dollars and yielded annually many millions in profits."

"Moreover, that traffic was intimately related with the personal taste and habits of a very large proportion of our population. The action which placed this enormous business under the ban of the law was, as we know, the result of no hysterical impulse. It did not come out of any sudden upheaval of public sentiment. It was the culmination of long years of study and thought and observation—a carefully reasoned and well deliberated conviction that traffic in intoxicants was detrimental to our national well-being. That conviction was registered first in laws and ordinances which were merely local in their application. Then, one after another, the states, by legislative enactment or constitutional provision, established state-wide prohibition. At the time when the Federal amendment was ratified twenty-two of our forty-eight states had outlawed intoxicants, and several others had local prohibitory laws; with the result that ninety-five per cent. of our territory, and fully sixty-five per cent. of our population had already come under the restriction which the Eighteenth Amendment imposed."

"It is not an easy matter to amend the Constitution of the U. S. Since that constitution was adopted one hundred and thirty-eight years ago, more than three thousand proposals have been made to change it. Out of all these only nineteen have been adopted, and none of these have ever come as the result of sentimental hysteria or political propaganda. And it is well to remember that the Eighteenth Amendment received a larger number of votes in Congress, was ratified by a larger number of states and by larger vote of the legislatures of those states than any other Constitutional amendment in our history."

"It must be evident to anyone who will deal justly with the facts that traffic in intoxicants was outlawed by the carefully deliberated

How far does it contribute to the welfare of human life; what extent does it insure to man the privilege and opportunity for that free, wholesome, happy existence which is just and benevolent Providence has designed for them? Judged by this standard, what shall we say of this wretched thing which has left its trail of devastation all down through the ages? Let all the honors, respect, glory and degradation and suffering, the multitude of broken and defeated human lives which drunkenness has caused, over against any legitimate claim of the business man who needed, as a "tracer," of the social company that must have its artificial stimulation, of the self-respecting citizen who enjoys his occasional drink at his own table and finds no harm in it; and then let the Christian honestly decide whether the benefits and pleasures of intoxicating beverages outweigh the value which God attaches to the human life those beverages have destroyed."

"Our statesmen know, social workers know, employers know that the evils which inevitably attend the manufacture, sale and transportation of intoxicating beverages have always been a corrupting influence in our political life, a disrupting and demoralizing and industrial and community life. Under any constructive form of government, the social principle of the 'greatest good to the greatest number'—the liquor traffic has always stood condemned. It has never had any possible justification apart from the selfishness of selfish men, who have indulged their own tastes in accordance with their own desires."

"No, I believe that every Christian should rejoice and thank God that this whole wretched business is now outlawed by the fundamental law of the land. I believe the Eighteenth Amendment will remain as long as our Constitution endures, to place the ban of the national conscience upon a thing which, in the hands of selfish men, has wrought nothing but evil in our national life, and nothing but defeat for God's own benevolent purposes for man. And it is not only love of country and respect for its laws, it is not only common regard for social welfare, it is loyalty to our God and fidelity to His designs which enjoin upon all of us the duty to uphold the Eighteenth Amendment and honestly to fulfill its requirements."

"We may not ignore the practical difficulties that are encountered in securing the enforcement of the provisions of that amendment. All laws are difficult to enforce. So long as the death penalty falls to deter men from ignoring the law against murder there will be those who will evade and defile the law against the manufacture and sale of intoxicants."

"But at least the Eighteenth Amendment has driven this business under cover. It is no longer flaunted itself as a legitimate traffic in which the government itself thought it no disgrace to participate. The more or less cleverly concealed 'speakeasy' is better than the glittering saloon. The bootlegger and his patrons present a sad enough spectacle, but at least this sneaking, furtive, underground traffic is preferable to the open bar and the high-class saloon."

"I am not here to deal with the political or legal aspects of the prohibition problem. As a Christian church, and before a gathering of Christian people, I feel that there is a higher appeal that ought to be made. I would base that appeal upon the assumption that we who are here aspire to be fellow-laborers here with God in fulfilling His designs and purposes for the world in which we live."

"This involves a further assumption: first, that God has some design and purpose for our world, and in the second place, that He has the right to expect from us some contribution toward the fulfillment of that purpose. 'Well, now, one cannot read very far into the record of our Lord's life and teaching without recognizing that the supreme purpose of His mission to the human race was primarily one of revelation, rather than one of salvation as we commonly construe that term. We are told that He came to show men the Father. He came to show men the meaning and dignity and destiny of life. He came to show men the deplorable consequences of the repudiation of those values which God attaches to human life. The Cross on Calvary is pre-eminently the sign and proof of the saving, redeeming, reclaiming design and purpose of God for the humanity. He had created it as the measure of God's valuation of human life. 'If that be true, then the essential thing for us, if we would share in the fulfillment of the divine purpose for our world, is to recognize what a supremely sacred, and infinitely precious thing human life is. God has endowed it with marvelous capacities and capabilities for high and holy attainments. He made it a thing which shall continue forever. He placed it in a natural environment which was designed to minister to its health and enrichment. Its wholeness and its happiness. As we draw more and more skillfully upon the wealth of that environment, we reach out to new conquests of earth and sea and air, as we enlarge our use of all the amazing resources which God has put at our disposal, the value of all our discoveries and attainments is measured in terms of the benefits which they bestow upon human life."

"Moreover, that thing which we call the 'Kingdom of God' has for its sole purpose the conservation and enrichment of human life. If there is virtue in righteousness, if there is value in prayer or worship or fellowship with God—it is because these things make human life the fine and beautiful and sacred thing which God intended it to be. 'For the Christian, then, there is one unerring standard by which to gauge the validity of any governmental principle, any legislative enactment, and any social pracice: How far does it contribute to the welfare of human life; what extent does it insure to man the privilege and opportunity for that free, wholesome, happy existence which is just and benevolent Providence has designed for them? Judged by this standard, what shall we say of this wretched thing which has left its trail of devastation all down through the ages? Let all the honors, respect, glory and degradation and suffering, the multitude of broken and defeated human lives which drunkenness has caused, over against any legitimate claim of the business man who needed, as a 'tracer,' of the social company that must have its artificial stimulation, of the self-respecting citizen who enjoys his occasional drink at his own table and finds no harm in it; and then let the Christian honestly decide whether the benefits and pleasures of intoxicating beverages outweigh the value which God attaches to the human life those beverages have destroyed."

"Our statesmen know, social workers know, employers know that the evils which inevitably attend the manufacture, sale and transportation of intoxicating beverages have always been a corrupting influence in our political life, a disrupting and demoralizing and industrial and community life. Under any constructive form of government, the social principle of the 'greatest good to the greatest number'—the liquor traffic has always stood condemned. It has never had any possible justification apart from the selfishness of selfish men, who have indulged their own tastes in accordance with their own desires."

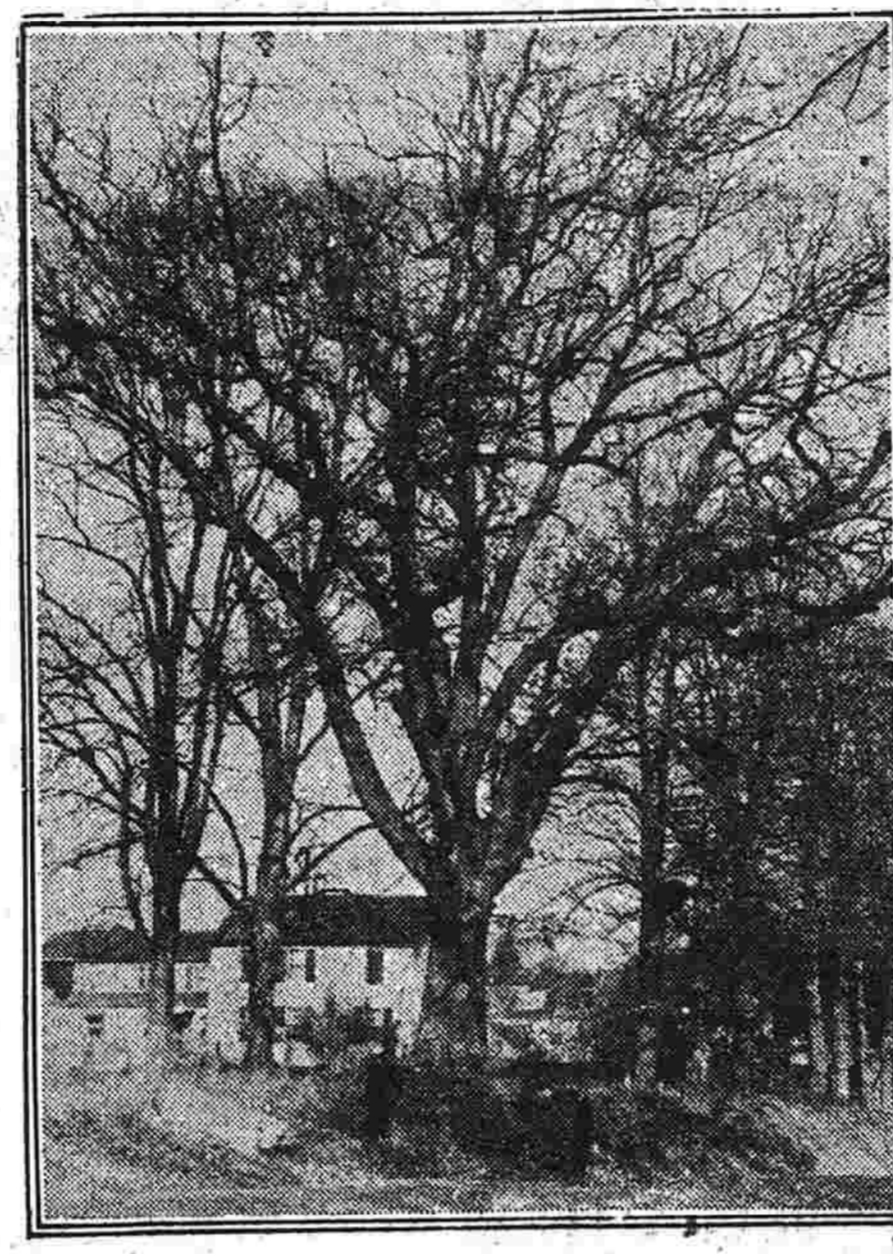

"No, I believe that every Christian should rejoice and thank God that this whole wretched business is now outlawed by the fundamental law of the land. ### Levine and the Columbia A-Wing Again

Charles A. Levine and his historic New York-to-Germany monoplane "Columbia", rebuilt after its crash in Italy last fall have taken the air again preparatory to an attempted non-stop flight to Cuba. You see the "Columbia" taking off from Mitchell Field, Long Island, on its first reconditioning flight. Below (left to right) Levine, Mabel Boll, who is to make the Cuban hop as passenger, and Wilmer Stultz, who is to be pilot.

Doomed, After 500 Years!

"Motoring, spare that tree..." might well be a modern parody of the old-time poem. For it is to automotive expediency, not the woodpecker's axe, that this historic "whipping post" tree near Hartford, Conn., is to bow. The staunch old oak, probably a half a thousand years old and used in colonial days as a whipping post, must go because a new concrete turnpike has been routed right over the spot where it stands.

GERMANY MAKES MOST PROGRESS IN AIR SERVICE

London.—Crippled by the war, Germany has made miraculous use of the resources at its command, and has made more progress in the development of commercial aviation than any other nation of the world. The ability, undreamed of a few years ago, of a person of moderate means flying to practically any large city of Germany he may desire, gives ample proof of the perspicacity of the German government in giving its commercial aviation concern, the Deutsch-Lufthansa, all the support it possibly could muster.

With the help of the $15,635,500 handed it as governmental subsidy since 1924, the Lufthansa has established a system of air-line such as exist nowhere else in the world. The entire nation is a criss-cross of air routes, and there is regular service operating between Berlin and Moscow which someday will be extended across Russia to the Pacific coast.

Covers Republic A glance at the Lufthansa's air-line map would express better than words the completeness with which the organization has covered the Republic. Practically every large city is served by airplanes that operate with the regularity of railroad trains, with more than twice the speed. There are now approximately 350 airplanes operated by the Lufthansa, covering almost 25,000 miles daily. More than 60,000 passengers were carried in the year just ended, representing a total passenger mileage of almost 7,000,000 miles.

The Lufthansa has extended its lines outside of Germany, to Scandinavia, Morocco, Egypt, Austria, Switzerland, Czechoslovakia and Poland. The German government has realized the full advantages of commercial aviation, and has demonstrated its faith in the potentialities of the airplane by ready cash. As in the case of England, the air-lines of Germany have been transformed from a scattered, struggling, struggling mixture, to a well-ordered, regular, dependable means of transportation.

The Lufthansa also carries mails, but no country has proved so efficient in this direction as the United States. The Lufthansa has occupied itself more with the transportation of passengers and merchandise that demands speedy delivery, and has been astoundingly successful.

The policy of the French government in regard to civil aviation has been not dissimilar to that of Germany. The appropriation in 1923 was approximately 60,000,000 francs, and during the period of 1924 and 1925 the total expenditure of 3,000,000 miles on regular routes.

French Lines There are four main French lines—Paris to London, Paris to Amsterdam, Paris to Constantinople by way of Prague and Bucharest, and Paris to Toulon by way of Casablanca. At present it is possible to travel from Paris to Constantinople by air in 36 hours, an approximate saving of two and one-quarter days over previous methods of transportation. By means of these routes, France is connected with her North African Empire, with the United States, the North African Empire and with the British Isles and the important cities of Europe, for the air-lines of Europe are timed so that it is possible for passengers to change at terminal cities to planes of another nation. But France, England and Germany are not the only countries which have taken active steps to foster development of civil aviation. Soviet Russia, despite its scattered population and immense expanse of area, has established commercial air routes which carry a large number of passengers; Holland possesses an air service; the Royal Dutch Air Service Company, with an excellent record of reliability and safety, Sweden, Denmark and Norway have not been lax in this matter, and their aggregate efforts have succeeded in placing Europe in an enviable light in the important field of commercial aircraft development.

RELICS OF OLD RACE FOUND BY DIGGERS AT LAMOKA LAKE, N. Y.

Rochester, N. Y.—Evidences of a culture far antedating the Seneca Indians and others of the Six Nations, have been brought to light by an expedition of the Rochester Municipal Museum to Lake Lamoka, N. Y. More than 5,000 specimens, including 1,200 arrow and bone implements, many of rare and unique form, have been shipped here by the excavators working under the direction of Dr. Arthur C. Parker, director of the Rochester Municipal Museum and former state archaeologist, who discovered the site in 1905.

Notable among the rarer objects are implements of antler painted with red stripes, now faded a light pink. So far as research has gone these painted bone implements are the only specimens ever found in America outside of certain Pueblo communities in the Southwest.

The Lake Lamoka discoveries set the site as that of a prehistoric fishing camp, immense numbers of finely made fish hooks and net sinkers being found. Little pottery was discovered indicating that the site was pre-ceramic. What was found was the characteristic inland Algonkian type of the early second period.

Dr. Parker cited the finds and the expedition as by far the most important in the state for many years. The site has been the object of attention by the museum for three years and has been thoroughly mapped. Shipments to the museum include several graves lifted bodily from the ground. Exhibits showing the cross section are being set up here at the present time. The earth is hardened by a chemical process to prevent moulding.

U. S. FILM CONCERN TO PAY $25,000 FOR BEATING EDERLE CHANNEL RECORD

London.—Miss L. Sharp, an English seventeen-year-old Channel swimmer, has been offered $25,000 for her record of 22 hours and 55 minutes in crossing the English Channel in shorter time than Miss Ederle, the American Channel swimmer, she will receive $25,000 from an American film company. James Wolfe, who has trained many Channel aspirants and who is preparing Miss Sharp for her coming attempt, announced the offer. Miss Sharp has received, but refused to divulge the name of the film company. Miss Sharp, he declared, is much speedier in the water than Miss Ederle.

FEAR OF LIFE CALLED CHIEF CAUSE OF ALL MENTAL DISORDERS

London.—Mental disorders are brought about in man by the fear of life almost more than anything else. When man gives up his life's work without leaving enough interests to give a real meaning to life, he runs a great risk of mental breakdown. He has created a report issued by the National Council of Mental Hygiene, who have recently finished a several years study of the causes which bring about mental disorders. Unmarried men are more apt to lose their mind than those who have taken on all the responsibilities of life, while many mental breakdowns occur when the prospect of marriage is imminent, adds the report.

Denying that heredity has a great deal to do with the general cause of mental disorders, the report continues: "Established mental disorder is only the result of a long series of morbid changes, initiated perhaps in childhood or youth, a series in which many of the stages are missed, and the origin of which may be altogether hidden."

The sudden flaring up of acute mental disorder is often only the terminal manifestation of a long process of slow combustion, smouldering during a period of years. "Periodic examinations of disturbances from an early age are essential, special attention being directed to the teeth and the state of the digestive organs. The public must learn to regard mental disturbances as something to be handled frankly and without prejudice—just like physical disease."

Coffee, the favorite beverage of the Turks, was not known in that country until after the fifteenth century.

EDUCATION ENDORSES HISTORICAL MOVIES JUNIOR PROM CLEARS COST FOR FIRST TIME

Two Photoplays to Be Shown at Rialto on Thursday Are Recommended.

Principal Clarence P. Quimby of the local high school who has seen the Yale historical photoplays, "Jamestown" and "The Eve of the Revolution" heartily endorses them and commends Ever Ready Circle King's Daughters for its enterprise in securing them for a showing at the Rialto theater, Thursday. A matinee performance will be given at 4 o'clock and the admission fee to both high school pupils and to those of grammar grades will be the same. A comedy picture and news reel will also be part of the program. The educational pictures will be shown again for adults at 7 and at 9 p. m. Tickets are on sale by all members of the circle, but admissions may be paid at the door afternoon or evening. The entire profits will be used for community charitable work of the King's Daughters.

Local teachers, several of whom have seen the historical films while at Yale summer school highly recommend them. Others who are cooperating with the Ways and Means committee of Ever Ready Circle are Miss Mabel Lanphear, principal of the Manchester Green school, Miss Henrietta Devon, Mrs. Arthur Seymour and Mrs. Fred Carpenter.

The story of the Eve of the Revolution is told in three reels, yet the settings are more costly and accurate than is the case sometimes in a nine or ten-reel photoplay. The most notable even preceding the actual outbreak of the War of the Revolution at Concord, Lexington and Boston are impressively recreated.

The picture "Jamestown" portrays the colonists in the fall of 1612, stoutly fighting off starvation and the onslaughts of the Indians. The capture of Pocahontas, daughter of the powerful Powhatan, (the romance culminating in her marriage with Captain John Rolfe) and the kinship established with the Indians, is an interesting chapter in early American history. No one, young or old, can view these pictures and not come away impressed with the sacrifice of those who laid the foundation of our country, and renewed appreciation of our privileges at the present time.

Hundred and Six Couples Take Part in Young Folks' Big Social Event

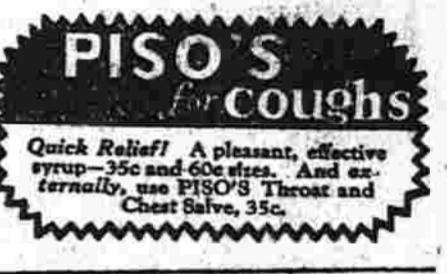

For the first time in several years the annual Junior Prom at the High school assembly hall Saturday night, resulted in a slight profit. It was revealed today by Principal Quimby, in many years a deficit has resulted, but this year there was a slightly favorable balance.

One hundred and six couples attended the Prom, which is regarded as the biggest social event of the season among the younger folks in town. The majority of the young men wore evening clothes and the costumes of the young women made the scene in the assembly hall a colorful one.

The grand march was led by Elliot Knight and Miss Olive Smith. They were followed by the twelve ushers in couples. The line of dancers extended all the way around the hall. The conventional letters "S" and "M" were very prettily formed after which the dancers enjoyed fifteen dance numbers to music by Worthy Hills orchestra of Hartford.

Seldom has the hall been more prettily decorated. In entering the Moorish Palace, the dancers had to pass through the archway of green cedar trees. At the end of the vista, one could see the tiled roof of a Moorish house. Silver water sprayed from a fountain in the garden in front of the house. Over all was a soft blue light. Lanterns were hung about the hall surrounded by golden frames bearing each a festoon of rich feathered plumes in variegated colors.

The orchestra, which played among ferns and green trees, was clad in Moorish costumes during the first half of the program. The girls who gave out the dance programs were also in Moorish attire.

WHAT PRICE ADVICE, OUR CHAMBER ASKS

Manchester People Warned About Fraud But Still "Bite" at New Schemes.

(Prepared by Manchester Chamber of Commerce.)

Oh, heck, what's the use! This is what those in charge of the Chamber of Commerce Investors Protective Service feel like saying many times when someone comes in and says, "I have been reading your articles ever since they started—and then proceeds to tell you how they've signed a contract without reading it, given a deposit to a salesman they never saw before and haven't seen since, or bought some stock certificates which were only good to paper the hen house; then we are tempted to say, 'What's the use! It is all a waste of time and are these articles really doing any good?'

Just now when the results of our three year's work is beginning to be of value and our files of information are becoming more and more complete and information can be given in a simple and readily, it does seem a pity that people will persist in getting themselves into trouble and then come asking to be saved from their own foolishness when they might have kept out of trouble by simply asking a question. Only in one case out of ten can redress and restitution be obtained after a contract has been signed or money paid, while practically 100 per cent protection can be guaranteed if people would only appeal to the Chamber of Commerce before they sign contracts or pay money, as it is always possible to obtain facts.

In spite of this, however, book salesmen, advertising solicitors, charity collections, puzzle contests, salesmen for every known commodity—demanding deposits before the receipt of the goods, tipster sheets on stocks and investments, smuggled goods salesmen, jewelry auctions, and mail solicitations for fake merchandise, continue to get their stuff across. It is a rich harvest, simply because they are able to talk convincingly, often without regard for the truth. In other words they use their heads, and talk fast so that the victim, otherwise known as the prospect, is either hypnotized or worn out and signs on the dotted line without resistance.

The foregoing remarks are not intended to discourage anyone from appealing to the Chamber of Commerce after they have made a mistake. It is important to report one's losses and unpleasant experiences in order that others may be warned and the activities of the swindlers stopped.

There seems to be a deep seated aversion on the part of the average person toward asserting their personal rights where the house to house canvasser is concerned. Many times people are too shy to complain and are discourteous when people call at their doors. It is a question whether this dislike of being discourteous to a trespasser in your home is not a camouflage for plain weakness and lack of backbone.

There seems to be a deep seated aversion on the part of the average person toward asserting their personal rights where the house to house canvasser is concerned. Many times people are too shy to complain and are discourteous when people call at their doors. It is a question whether this dislike of being discourteous to a trespasser in your home is not a camouflage for plain weakness and lack of backbone.

The Chamber finds that the practice of giving to salesmen lists of friends as prospects is still very common and is considered both a menace and a nuisance, as the salesman uses this as a means of gaining entrance to homes where it would otherwise be impossible. This practice is an imposition on your friends and should be stopped. As a matter of fact anyone who does this should be ashamed to meet their friends.

House to house sales are known to cost more than sales over the counter. There is nothing that is offered at your door but what can be obtained for as little or less through a local merchant.

During the past week three old friends (or enemies) have reappeared. The mails are again flooded with the Universal Lock Tip Company's fraudulent literature. These people are selling ordinary $3.00 shoes for $6.50 and you take a hundred to one shot that the shoes will fit you. You are induced to buy these shoes on the promise, yes, practical guarantee that you will make $20,000 within a few months from shares of stock in the Universal Lock Tip Company, which will be given you with the purchase of every $6.50 pair of shoes. Does it sound reasonable? No, it sounds like "bunk", just what it is; still many Manchester men fell for it a year ago, and will undoubtedly fall again. The reason they can't be stopped by the law is because they do send you a pair of shoes.

The I-on-a Company, which was brought to our attention by a number of Manchester people about a year ago is again active. These people sell an absolutely worthless electrical heating device which imposes upon the credulity and hopes of people who are sick either physically or mentally. The device has been denounced as a fraud, by an investigating committee from the National Better Business Bureau, and by the Federal Trade Commission.

Reports come to us from outside that Harry Stone, stocking salesman is still active. This man's unlimited many Manchester women by taking orders for Fashion Tailors and knitted sweaters, taking a 50 per cent deposit and disappearing. He is last reported as selling Gotham Hosiery but the manufacturers state that he is not known to them and that they do not employ house to house salesmen. Stone is only one of thousands of men who are making a good living, taking orders for goods, collecting a deposit and disappearing.

Amounts of money paid on deposits to unknown salesmen for goods which are never received must run into the millions if Manchester is any criterion. Your local merchant never asks you to pay for goods before they are received, yet you should be more ready to pay a deposit to him than to an entire stranger who calls at your door. As long as this practice continues the public must expect to continue to be misled.

FLOOR LAMPS AGAIN AT STATE TOMORROW

Gifts With "The Coward"; Last Command" on Wednesday and Thursday.

Greta Garbo was if anything better than ever in her latest picture, "The Divine Woman," which was the feature at the State last night. This same feature will be shown for the last time tonight. Miss Garbo plays the part of a little French girl who becomes a great actress and the lover of a man who has deserted from his regiment through love for her. She reaches the heights and is plunged into the depths, only to be brought back by the man she has discarded.

The features for tomorrow and for Wednesday and Thursday are among the best that the State has offered so far this year. Tomorrow night, instead of the usual Country Store the management will give away another batch of six beautiful floor lamps and will show the remarkable picture, "The Coward."

Warner Baxter is starring in this story of a young society man who goes into the wilds of northern Canada to redeem himself after a disastrous scandal which has left him shunned by his former friends. His redemption forms the main part of the story.

Emil Jannings, the incomparable, comes to the State on Wednesday and Thursday in his greatest picture, "The Last Command." "The Last Command" is a story of the red revolt in Russia, showing Jannings as a mighty general, strictly military but beloved by his men. He befriends a girl but imprisons her. In the end she turns saving him from death at the hands of the blood-mad revolutionists. He then comes to America in search of his fair saviour, and there the thread of the story takes a strange twist.

It is a gripping story, one with poignant love and drama, mystery, and thrills, so far different from "The Way of All Flesh" and "Variety" that it is hard to believe the same star played in them all.

HARTFORD PREPARING FOR ITS AUTO SHOW

21st Annual Exhibit Will Be Most Pretentious—Fine Models to Be Shown.

Hartford, Feb. 13.—With the Hartford Automobile Show only a little over a week away, final preparations are being made for the big opening on Saturday, February 18. This will be the twenty-first annual show staged by the Hartford Automobile Dealers Association and it will probably be the most ambitious ever attempted.

The show committee, headed by Chairman A. C. Hines in its person, Major Thomas W. Campbell and H. C. Hine, Jr., with Arthur Fifoot acting as show manager. Developed to an almost undreamed of state of perfection, the 1928 model automobile will be seen in all its stately magnificence and fittingly set off with a beautiful background of velvet hangings, indirect lighting and orange, purple and green color scheme, similar to that adopted by the great New Orleans Mardi Gras. Given a decent "break" in weather the show is sure to break all former records for attendance. The crowd today are "motor-wise" as never before in the history of automobiles. In a few brief years, Mr. John W. Public has discovered a lot of things about cars and the answer is found in the practically perfect motor at a price that sales competitors have forced to low levels. The public's comparisons are searching and critical. The public seeks big value for its money this year—and the dealers promise they'll get it.

More than a hundred cars will be on exhibition. As a supplementary feature of the show there will be separate exhibits of accessories, shafts, bearings, oil apparatus, braking devices, etc. Restaurant service will be maintained and the parking space about the grounds will be lighted with seven 2,000 watt lamps—about the largest available, making the grounds almost as light as sunshine could make them.

Many people begin to get a sluggish feeling along about this time of year. They need a tonic and Riker's Maltolium is just what they need to renew their energy and mental activity.—Quinn's—Adv.

SCARFACE AL IS READY TO FIGHT TO STAY 'HOME'

Chicago.—"Scarface Al" Capone paced up and down his cell. He had been picked up in Joliet, Ill., upon his return to Chicago from Los Angeles and confined to a cell upon the charge of carrying concealed weapons.

"I'm mad!" he shouted in such a loud tone that jailers came running with shotguns. Capone turned to them and sneered.

"Law and order! Protectors of the common people! The great police! Law and order—hell. They are hounding me to death. I'm through with all police. They can go to hell and be damned!"

Capone resumed his pacing while his interviewer waited until the great gang chief's rage subsided. Finally he sank to the hard coked bench—bench and bed— and sighed.

"I'm going back to Chicago. It's my home. I pay taxes there. My friends are there. I've done nothing—all that—all that—should make me leave Chicago. I've lived there for ten years. It's 'home' to me," Capone said.

"Afraid of Police? They call me a great gang chief. I'm not. Why do I carry guns—why do I have a bodyguard—why do I have machine guns? In fear of gang assassination? Hell, no. Because of the police."

"They drag me into jail on every excuse. They tell the world I'm a killer, a bad man, the terror of the world. Naturally I get a reputation. They arrest me if I am a murderer. 'Capone gangsters did it' they tell everybody. Then they have nothing on me, they book me for disorderly conduct and the judge discharges me for lack of evidence."

"A man gets tired of that in the end. It's the end for me now, I'm mad and I'm going to fight these protectors of law and order."

Two scars, one on the forehead, the other on the left cheek, became crimson as blood rushed into his face. He rose from the bench and resumed his pacing of the narrow cell.

DOROTHY-MACKAYE IS READY TO 'PAY PIPER' IN ST. QUENTIN CELL

Los Angeles, Cal.—Dorothy Mackaye is going to be a long time paying the piper for those hectic months which led up to the "knuckle slaying" of Ray Raymond, last spring, the conviction of Paul Kelly for manslaughter and later her own conviction on charges of attempting to conceal facts in the death of her actor-husband.

From one to three years in San Quentin, is the tender exacted anew by the piper since Miss Mackaye's appeal for a new trial was denied—from one to three years in San Quentin added to the loss of a promising stage career, separation from her baby, four year old Valerie, and almost six months in the county jail.

"But I ain't dead yet," said Dorothy Mackaye today, or words to that effect.

"Everything's a state of mind," she said. "And I guess mine's still healthy. I'll show 'em yet."

"Sure, I'll go up to San Quentin. I'll serve my time. Perhaps, if I'm good they'll give me the minimum. Anyway, I'll see this thing through till it's a closed issue. And then—"

"Then, I'll come out with my $5 or whatever it is they give you, and I'll start over!"

"Probably people will think I'm silly to begin planning so soon—but I have to. If I didn't—" she stopped again, but her plans and hopes seemed too strong, too definite, to talk about.

"I don't have hope of a renewal of my stage career," she said. Wise Dorothy.

"Yes, I think all of this has been a terrible price to pay for carelessness and thoughtlessness, but—"

"The blame? Well—I believe it was I who got into it. I know that I was, I know that Paul was, and Ray was, too. You see, you don't think much about what you are doing until it's done. You don't count costs until you begin to pay them. We all just played. Everyone did, it was the only life I had ever known. It wasn't all gin, it was just that we went ahead, unseeing because we didn't look for anything."

Who Will Profit? "Now, Ray is dead, Paul is in jail, and so am I. I wonder, sometimes, who will profit by it. All just ourselves. I am afraid, in the world, not other girls who read about me, nor other men who read about Paul. Not Valerie, even. Just Paul when he comes out of prison a bigger and better person. Just me when I come out, better and stronger. As for the rest, people will go on playing as careless as ever, until their own lesson catches them up. I am certain that there's not one gin party less in Hollywood because of 'the Raymond murder case.'"

CALIFORNIA TO HAVE OFFICIAL ROAD STATION

Sacramento, Cal.—California may soon have the trail for the nation in a new field—the business of government by air.

Creation of a powerful state government radio broadcasting station, the first step in the new venture, has been proposed. It was learned today by International News Service, with a member of Governor Young's official cabinet as sponsor of the plan.

The government super-station, as proposed to the governor and his advisers, would be owned and operated by the state to bring government closer to the people and carry California's message of welcome to the four-corners of the earth.

In event the plan receives state approval, the great broadcasting station would be located on the top floor of the new Capitol-annex building here, according to backers of the project, and it is probable that the station would be placed on the dial by taking over KFKB, the present Sacramento station.

Market reports, released by federal and state cooperative agencies, together with crop forecasts, agricultural bulletins, news of the state highway projects and all government activities affecting a large number of people would be broadcast nightly over the station.

The station would also be utilized to broadcast California's attractions to the nation and acquaint prospective settlers and industrial groups with the state's advantages.

This was supplemented, it is planned, by musical programs and other entertainment features.

To remove the only objectionable feature of the proposed enterprise, the station would be conducted on a purely non-partisan basis, with politics being the one subject banned in the entertainment program.

No political addresses, or talks on controversial governmental issues, would be permitted.

The first proposal, it became known today, was made at a luncheon of the gubernatorial cabinet by G. H. Hecke, directors of the State Department of Agriculture, who declared that the state could be made of great value to farmers of the state in carrying marketing and crop reporting news now sent out by telegraph.

WESTERN FILMS PUT MANY STARS INTO BIG GAME

Hollywood, Cal.—Seated at luncheon in the Montmartre recently, Virginia Lee Corbin, Carmel Meyers and Alberta Vaughan launched a discussion of feminine film celebrities who received their start in western pictures and here are the results of their discussion, as checked on the back of the menu card.

Clara Bow, one of the biggest box office attractions of today, played opposite Tom Mix and his horse Tony, a few years ago.

Ether Tilton, beautiful blonde, was a star in western features at Universal before she began her career in comedy dramas.

The second screen version of "The Virginian" was an important factor in sending Florence Vidor to stardom in more serious productions.

Doris Hill started her life in pictures with George O'Hara in "The Timid Terror," after she was discovered dancing in a theater prologue in Los Angeles.

Sally Blane, who recently played the feminine lead in a Wallace Beery-Raymond Hatton comedy feature, starred not long ago in a Tom Mix picture.

Thelma Todd and Mariett Miller received their screen training in westerns. Thelma played opposite Gary Cooper in "Neveda," and Marietta was featured in "Drums of the Desert."

But Mary Brian, on the other hand, "backfired" into westerns after being introduced to the public as Wendy in "Peter Pan."

"Which only shows that Mary is the exception to prove that westerns are the first rung of the ladder to motion picture success," concluded Carmel Myers, as the luncheon discussion ended.

A glance at the earliest of the new dresses for spring wear in the film colony reveals that scarfs, belts, ties and kerchiefs play colorful and decorative roles.

Jacqueline Logan is wearing, with her pleated skirt, sports suit, a wool shantung scarf of blue and red geometrical designs on a white background. It is out on the bias so the scarf falls in soft draped lines about the throat.

A gay fashion adopted by Lea-tracy for wear with a white flannel sport dress is the kerchief belt. It is a diagonally folded square of blue and white polka dot silk wrapped about the hips and tied at one side.

With straight green crepe dress, Vera Reynolds is wearing a belt of heavy silver links, resembling the earlier types of slave bracelets. It is fastened in front with a buckle or four slightly larger links.

Elinor Fair also is wearing a belt of woven silver, flanked at both edges with tiny silver beads. The buckle is of dull silver.

KIWANIS TO CONVENE IN SEATTLE IN JUNE

Annual Gathering to Be Occasion For Many Sightseeing Trips in the West.

"The 12th annual convention of Kiwanis International to be held in Seattle, Wash., June 17-21, will bring 6,000 delegates and visitors," Merton S. Heiss, convention manager for the service organization, stated today. Convention offices were opened in the downtown section of the city on January 15 to care for the thousands of hotel reservations for the Kiwanians from the United States and Canada.

This is the organization's second convention in the far west. In 1920 the 4th annual gathering was in Portland, Oregon. "We hope to make the convention in June the finest in the history of the organization," says Henry C. Heiss, of Atlanta, president of Kiwanis. "Delegates and visitors are being offered every inducement. The convention program will include outstanding men prominent in public affairs as well as general Kiwanis business sessions and special entertainment." Trips to Alaska are also being planned.

"Adequate hotel facilities in first class establishments are assured for every delegate and visitor to the Seattle Convention," says Fred C. W. Parker, the International secretary. Clubs are being urged to promptly forward hotel reservations for members through the club secretaries to the Kiwanis convention office in the western city.

Manchester Kiwanians are urged to attend the International Convention at Seattle this year. This will be a four weeks trip and any Manchester resident whether a member of Kiwanis or not can make the trip spending the convention week in side trips. Further details can be had by addressing G. H. Wilcox, the local Secretary.

WAPPING

George A. Collins lost a valuable horse last week. Miss Josephine McGrath of East Windsor Hill spent Sunday with friends in Springfield, Mass.

A gay fashion adopted by Lea-tracy for wear with a white flannel sport dress is the kerchief belt. It is a diagonally folded square of blue and white polka dot silk wrapped about the hips and tied at one side.

With straight green crepe dress, Vera Reynolds is wearing a belt of heavy silver links, resembling the earlier types of slave bracelets. It is fastened in front with a buckle or four slightly larger links.

Elinor Fair also is wearing a belt of woven silver, flanked at both edges with tiny silver beads. The buckle is of dull silver.

From the east word comes to Hollywood that Charles Ray, who soared to fame as a film comedian only to suffer bitter financial reverses when he attempted production, has written a play, "Phoenix," and will star in it at the Court Theater in New York. Rehearsals are being held in Providence, R. I., with the Broadway opening scheduled for late in February.

For the first time in the history of the screen, black titles will be seen soon on a feature photoplay. Edwin Carewe will launch the novelty in "Ramona, Dolores Del Rio's first offering for the screen. The director-producer is convinced that black titles on a white background will be welcomed as more restful to the eyes of motion picture audiences.

Did you know that? Ernest Lubitsch's program for physical fitness includes spending two nights a week in a track outfit running slowly over a course of three miles?

Jean Hershoff is said to be the only motion picture star in Hollywood who has never been in New York City?

Bebe Daniels recently told an interviewer she will never marry until she retires from the screen. Dorothy Dwan studied the pipe organ in Philadelphia, and her early ambition was to be church organist.

Free airplanes and equipment are given by the Canadian Department of National Defense to any Canadian city where civil flying clubs are prepared to meet certain conditions.

HIS 111TH ARREST

Orange, N. J., Feb. 13.—Nichols Workowitz, who the police say holds the town record for being arrested for intoxication, today chalked up his 111th arrest on the same charge here.

Before the World War Workowitz was reported to be a member of the Russian nobility on remittance, and always dressed aristocratically.

THE CANARY MURDER CASE

By S. S. VAN DINE AUTHOR OF THE BENSON MURDER CASE

CHARACTERS
PHILO VANCE, District Attorney of New York County
MARGARET O'DELL, THE "CANARY"
CHARLES CLEAVER, a manufacturer
KENNETH SPOTSWOOD, a manufacturer
LOUIS MANNIX, an importer
DR. AMBROSE LINDBLUM, a fashionable physician
TONY SKEEL, a professional burglar
WILLIAM ELMER JESSUP, telephone operator
HARRY SPIVELY, telephone operator
ERNEST HEATH, Sergeant of the Homicide Bureau

THE STORY THUS FAR
The jewel case had been opened with a steel chisel after being battered with a poker. This leads Vance to the theory that the real murderer had not opened it, but someone after him, someone who was hiding in the closet when the murder was committed. That man, he thinks, was Skeel, whose fingerprints were found in the apartment of the strangled Margaret Odell. Markham ridicules the theory and Vance pathetically explains his reasons for thinking the crime not the work of a highly intelligent man who wanted the girl out of the way.

CHAPTER XXV

(Wednesday, September 12, evening)

WHEN Vance finished speaking, there was a long silence. Markham, impressed by the other's earnestness, sat in a brown study. His ideas had been shaken. The theory of Skeel's guilt, to which he had clung from the moment of the identification of the fingerprints, had, it must be admitted, not entirely satisfied him, although he had been able to suggest no alternative.

"Vance had categorically repudiated this theory and at the same time had advanced another which, despite its indefiniteness, had nevertheless taken into account all the physical points of the case and Markham, at first antagonistic, had found himself, almost against his will, becoming more and more sympathetic to this new point of view.

"Damna it, Vance!" he said. "I'm not in the least convinced by your theatrical theory. And yet, I feel a curious undercurrent of plausibility in your analysis. . . I wonder—"
He turned sharply, and scrutinized the other steadfastly for a moment.

miss all the fine distinctions in psychology. This man was annoyed by a certain person, and set to work, masterfully and reasonably, to do away with the source of his annoyances. And he did it with surpassing cleverness.

"To be sure, his act was a bit grisly. But when, if ever, you get your hands on him, you'll be amazed to find how normal he is. And able, too—oh, able no end."

Again Markham lapsed into a long thoughtful silence. At last he spoke.

"The only trouble with your ingenious deductions is that they don't accord with the known circumstances of the case. And facts, my dear Vance, are still regarded by a few of us old-fashioned lawyers as more or less conclusive."

"Why this needless confession of your short-comings?" inquired Vance whimsically. Then, after a moment: "Let me have the facts which appear to you antagonistic to my deductions."

"Well, there are only four men of the type you describe who could have had any remote reason for murdering the Odell woman. Heath's scouts went into her history pretty thoroughly, and for over two years—that is, since her appearance in the 'Follies'—the only welcome ones at her apartment have been Mannix, Doctor Lindquist, Pop Cleaver, and, of course, Spotswoode. The Canary was a bit exclusive, it seems; and no other man got near enough to her even to be considered as a possible murderer.

with the psychological reactions which are apt to follow the inhibition produced by such mortification," submitted Vance. "But what does he do? Whence cometh his lucre?"

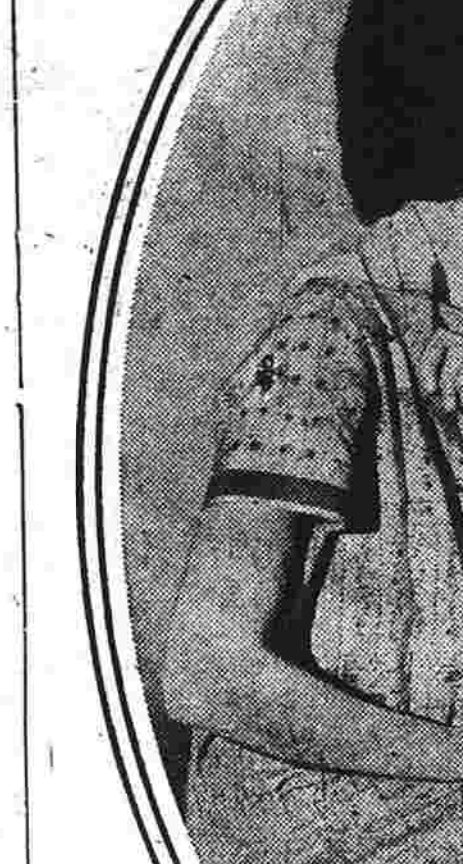

"His father manufactured automobile accessories, made a fortune at it, and left the business to him. He tinkers at it, but not seriously, though I believe he has designed a few appurtenances."

"I do hope the hideous cut-glass oils for holding paper bouquets is not one of them. The man who invented that tonneau decoration is capable of any fiendish crime."

"It couldn't have been Spotswoode then," said Markham tolerantly, "for he certainly can't qualify as your potential stranger. We know the girl was alive after he left her, and that, during the time she was murdered, he was with Judge Redfern. . . Even you, friend Vance, couldn't manipulate those facts to the gentleman's disadvantage."

"On that, at least, we agree," conceded Vance. "And that's all you know of the gentleman?"

"Doesn't help any. . . And now, let's have Mannix's history." Markham referred to a typewritten sheet of paper.

Worry and Weakened Hearts

By Olive Roberts Barton

The American heart! That's the thing that puzzles the health dispensers now. We have a better chance of living our full three score years and ten than our grandparents—if—our hearts hold out.

But our hearts aren't holding out, that's the trouble. And it is becoming the great American mystery. Why?

The specialist marks you over with blue chalk like a game of hop-scotch, listens, shakes his head, and remarks sternly, "You have been running up all the hills on high. Take it easy, shift your gears, and don't work so hard."

But nobody with fixed habits ever listens to him, any by the time we need heart specialists we usually have affixed habits. But it is bad business. We must listen and we must shift gears or the old bus is going to the scrap heap.

But all bad hearts are not caused by over work, or by burning the candle at both ends. The chief contributing cause of nerve and consequent heart trouble is worry. The old adage "Worry doesn't kill but worry will" was never as true as in the year of Our Lord 1928. We worry more every month. We can't stop. It is a disease as progressive as tuberculosis.

A woman worried because she thought she had a malignant growth. It looked indeed as though she had. At last an operation proved to be only a small tumor and she recovered her health completely. Did she stop worrying? It wasn't a month that she was worrying herself to death. Literally over a rug with a hole eaten in it by radio acid!

A man faced ruin. He had taken a long chance and missed. For a while it looked as though his creditors could make things very unpleasant. Friends helped—he came out clean, with a new start and a sunny future ahead. But by the second month, he was fretting himself high into madness because his neighbor was building a garage that spoiled his view.

When we Americans learn to accept a lot of trouble and for ourselves a few extra years.

MARYE and MOM

Their Letters
BY RUTH DEWEY GROVES

This is the first of a series of intimate letters exchanged by a modern daughter—MARYE—and her "old-fashioned" mother—"MOM"—to be printed daily in The Herald.

DEAREST MOM:
Who in the world do you think I met today? But of course you can guess for it must have been in the papers about Norman Darling coming to visit his aunt.

She has an apartment in the building right next to ours and I didn't even know it! That isn't strange though because I never met her when Norman and I were engaged, and naturally I couldn't think of asking him for her address when I married Alan and came to this great city to live.

Norman was coming out of their building as I left ours this morning on my way to look for some orchid bath curtains, and we bumped right into each other on the street. At first I thought he wasn't going to speak to me because you know he was simply refused to jibberjank when I jilted him. But I smiled and we got on the bus together and I decided to let my shopping go because Norman looked so sort of sad. I felt it was my duty to cheer him up.

It's terrible to be responsible for a broken heart and I'm so happy with Alan that I want to make Norman forget me. I'm sure he will see that's best after we've had a few more talks. I'm going to have lunch with him again tomorrow and try to convince him that I could never have made him happy if we had married.

Today he said there'd never be another girl for him but he was so beautifully calm and resigned about it I couldn't mind his saying it even if it did sound just a little bit like making love to me. After all, I suppose I really treated him shabbily and if I can help him to enjoy his visit I ought to do it even if he does insist upon raking over the past.

He is going to stay two weeks, he says, so it looks as if I must give up a lot of time to making him happy again. It isn't exactly a hardship, though, to bat around with Norman. He always was nice looking, and now that he has that romantically melancholy expression he's just too interesting for words.

Fortunately, Alan and I agreed before we were married that we would continue to have our own friends and see them whenever we liked. So that's all right. But he will expect dinner sometime. Carroll I mustn't tell you any more about Norman now.

With dearest love,
MARYE.

The WOMAN'S DAY

By ALLENE SUMNER

The bill reported to the Senate a few days ago by Senator David A. Reed, of Pennsylvania, which would give wives and unmarried children of alien residents in this country first preference in the quota in one of the most humane and necessary bills introduced in a long time.

Social workers in every city say that the shame of America is the tragedies of our alien residents and even naturalized citizens who come to this country full of hope and eagerness to provide the wherewithal for their families to come to them, only to learn when it is too late that the quota may keep their wives and children away from them for years.

And there isn't a doubt in the world that Mrs. Keller grieved as much for the dead "freak" baby as she would if it had been normal. This instinctive mother love is why "defectives" will never be weeded from the world of the living, and science demands. Perhaps "blind instinct" is wiser here than science.

JUST ANY BABY
Siamese twins were born not long ago to Mrs. Frank Keller of Marseilles, Ill. One baby seemed normal, and the other, a breastless creature, pumped a stock company made a small fortune out of it—made a small fortune out of it;—the Freudian motif!

"Ah, the Freudian motif!" returned to New York, and opened a private sanitarium; charged outrageous prices, and thereby endeared himself to the new rich. Has been at the endearing process ever since. Was defendant in a breach-of-promise suit some years ago, but the case was settled out of court. He's not married.

"He wouldn't be," commented Vance. "Such gentry never are." . . . Interest in summary, though—yes, decidedly interesting. I'm tempted to develop a psychoneurosis and let Ambrose treat me. I do so want to know him better. And where—oh, where—was this egregious healer at the moment of our erring sister's demise? Ah, who can tell, my Markham: who knows—who knows?"

"In any event, I don't think he was murdering any one."
(TO BE CONTINUED)

SPARE THE ROD TO 'SAVE' CHILD IS NEWEST CODE
Denver.—Spare the rod to save the child is the admonishment of Robert W. Steele, judge of the Denver Juvenile court, in a code of ethics which he recently broadcast for the express benefit of parents.

Judge Steele succeeded Ben Lindsey on the juvenile bench. The judge's code is strictly modern and accords with the latest teaching of scientific education and places a vigorous and more enlightened responsibility upon parenthood.

IT'S EYE PROPORTION THAT COUNTS

For all that is said about the wide open, large eye being the most attractive, if we give a moment's thought to the matter, we will see that while it may be beautiful in itself, yet it is when the eye is in agreement with the other features that we have true beauty.

Proportion is the deciding factor. This has brought forcibly to my mind recently by observing a pair of large and appealing eyes set in a face that was otherwise coarse and heavy, so that my outstanding impression was one of intense disappointment.

Think of some of your acquaintances for a moment, of their eyes in particular. Now, if Eleanor's rather small, but undeniably vivacious and humorous eyes could be exchanged for a large, round pair, would friends of Eleanor's beauty be enhanced? Or would it be swamped by the new pair?

The deepest, twinkling eye has as much charm as any other type. And is not an eye with a little slant, a la Japanese, an attractive thing? Of course too small an eye or too large a one or one that protrudes unduly is not so good. Nothing whatever can be done to alter the original shape of this feature, but in a later article we will consider what cosmetics will do to deepen the shadows and lines around it so as to simulate a change in size and shape.

Victory Tomorrow Will Mean Lot To Community

State Title Chances Hinge Partly On Outcome of Game With New Haven Collegians; Massey's Athletes Coming.

If the Community Girls basketball team can win tomorrow night's battle at the Harding gym on Hollister street, they positively cannot be considered out of the running for the state championship because in meeting the New Haven Collegians, they will be paired against a pick of the best in the State League.

Banner Attraction But, the Community Girls are only part of a banner attraction for tomorrow night. Sammy Massey, former north end luminary, is bringing the best athletes in Arnold's college at New Haven to Manchester.

For this star attraction, there will be no increase in prices. It is expected that the largest crowd of the season will pack into the school.

Stars in Lineup The lineup of the New Haven Collegians includes Jennie Kasper of the Park City Girls and Edith Olson of the Meriden Insulcos, recognized as two of the best players in the state in feminine ranks.

Bill Cook of the Meriden Endees and Al Slocum of the New Britain five are two of the stars who will appear with the New Haven college team which is coached by Massey.

North End's Only Title Threatened But Conran Confident Of Comeback

Official Statistics. Table with 6 columns: Game Number, Player Name, Score, Breaks, Strikes, Spares, Filling Lead. Includes First Game through Tenth Game and Total Statistics.

BY TOM STOWE One-man bowling, the sole remaining town championship which rests at present in God's country north of the Mason-Dixon line, was seriously threatened Saturday afternoon when Howard Murphy grabbed a 71 pin lead in the first half of his twenty game match with Tommy Conran who has held the title for three years.

North End fans, however, are confident that when the final ten games are over next Saturday night, the title will still rest north of Middle Turnpike.

In those games Conran won by 131 pins, taking the match by 44 pins. He erased the lead in the first two games with scores of 148 and 120 against 89 and 85 which gave him a seven pin lead.

In chalking up a 71 pin lead, Murphy won eight out of the ten games, winning six in a row. The first and last games, however, were such a lead. In these two games alone, the south end pin artist gained 51 timbers.

Another strike on the next and then got a spare with nine on it. Had this counted as the first three boxes of the first game, Murphy would have rolled 165. The south end man did not get a spare, but Conran with two breaks, a strike and a spare rolled only 92.

After winning the first game by 29 pins, Murphy won the next five by margins of 10, 1, 5, 6 and 11 pins. In the third game which went to Murphy by one timber, the south end man made two spares and missed one in this game. The scores were 103 to 97.

SENSE and NONSENSE

Rastus, out in a boat with his best girl, Mandy, had been teasing for a kiss, but she refused again and again. Finally he became desperate. "Mandy," he threatened, "even you don't lemme kiss yo, I see gwine to upset dis here boat."

Unfair to Rastus Rastus: "Chief, ah needs protection! Ah done got a unanimous letter this morning which says, 'Nigger, let mah chickens alone.'"

Judge: I sentence you to hang by the neck. Have you anything to say? Prisoner: Judge, I'm agin neck-ing.

The newly appointed pastor of a negro church faced a packed audience when he arose to deliver a sermon on the burning question: "Is There a Hell?"

"An. de Lord made two axes for the world to go round on one axle at the North Pole and one axle at the Souf Pole.

"And de Lord put a lot of oil and grease in de center of de world so as to keep de axes well greased and oiled."

Mandy, why haven't you brushed down that cobweb? Cobweb? Lor', man, I thought that had something to do with yer wireless.

Two colored men down in southern Indiana were bewailing the hard times being felt in the agricultural district there.

Commenting on the present political lineup in Washington, Senator Borah said: "It reminds me somewhat of Moses, who was shipped overseas on an army transport. Everyone liked Moses, even the officers, and one day, as the dejected darkey leaned against the rail, his captain asked: 'Mose, do you feel sick?'"

LETTER GOLF

HOW'S YOUR AIM.

If your shooting is good you may be able to bag this one in less than five shots. Five is par, however, in going from GAME to BIRD. The solution is on another page.

A grid for letter golf. The top row contains the word 'GAME' and the bottom row contains the word 'BIRD'. The middle rows are empty for the player to write letters.

THE RULES

- 1-The idea of letter golf is to change one word to another and do it in par, a given number of strokes. Thus to change COW to HEN, in three strokes, COW, HOW, HEW, HEN.
- 2-You can change only one letter at a time.
- 3-You must have a complete word, of common usage, for each jump. Slang words and abbreviations don't count.
- 4-The order of letters cannot be changed.

THE TINYMITES

READ THE STORY, THEN COLOR THE PICTURE

When grandma found the clothes were done, she thanked the Tynmites, one by one. Said she "Twas very kind of you to help Red Riding Hood. I like small lads, who never shirk. Now that you've saved me lots of work, I have a small surprise for you. It's something very good."

The Tynmites shouted, "My, you're kind." Then grandma said, "See who can find a little box of candy I have hidden right nearby. Now all of you just look around and I am sure 'twill soon be found. Don't be afraid to snoop a bit. Go right ahead and try."

They looked for half an hour or so, and then we Clowny said, "Ho, ho! I knew that I would find it. There is more than we can eat." He held the box of candy high and all the bunch said, "Me, oh, my! It surely looks real tempting. We are going to have a treat."

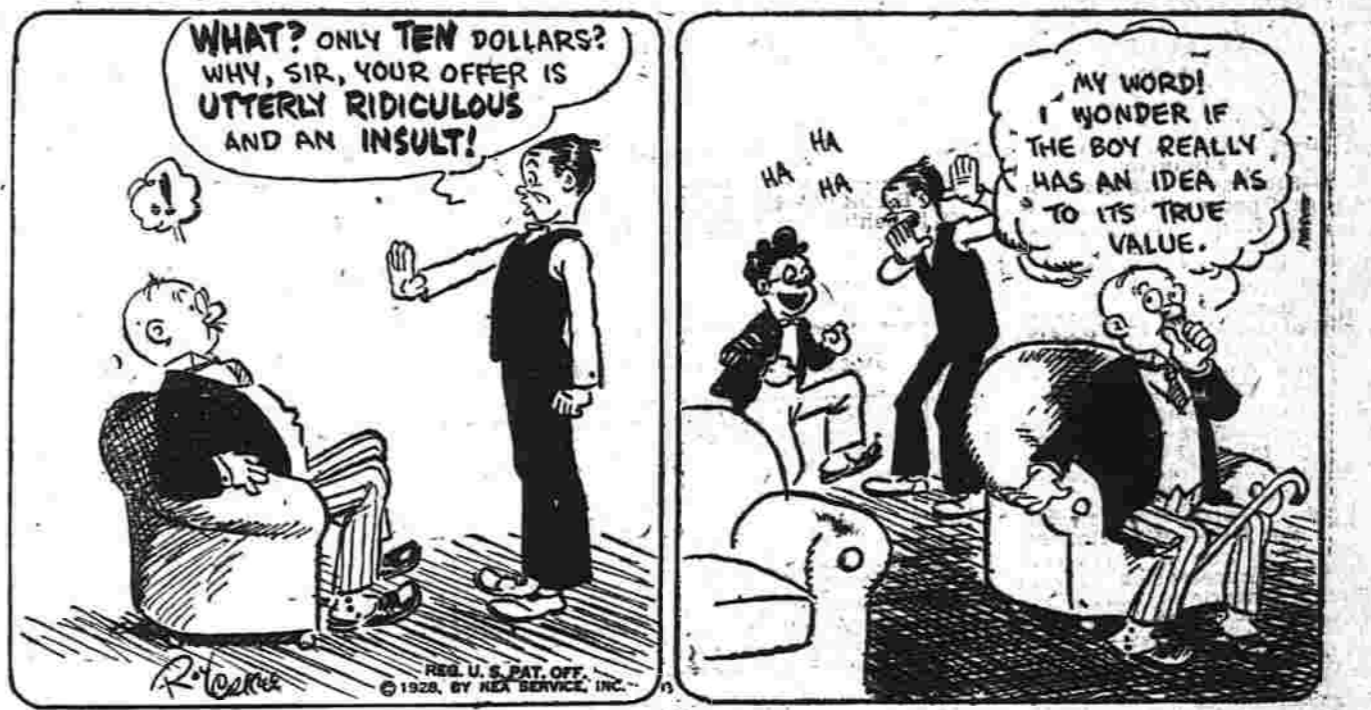

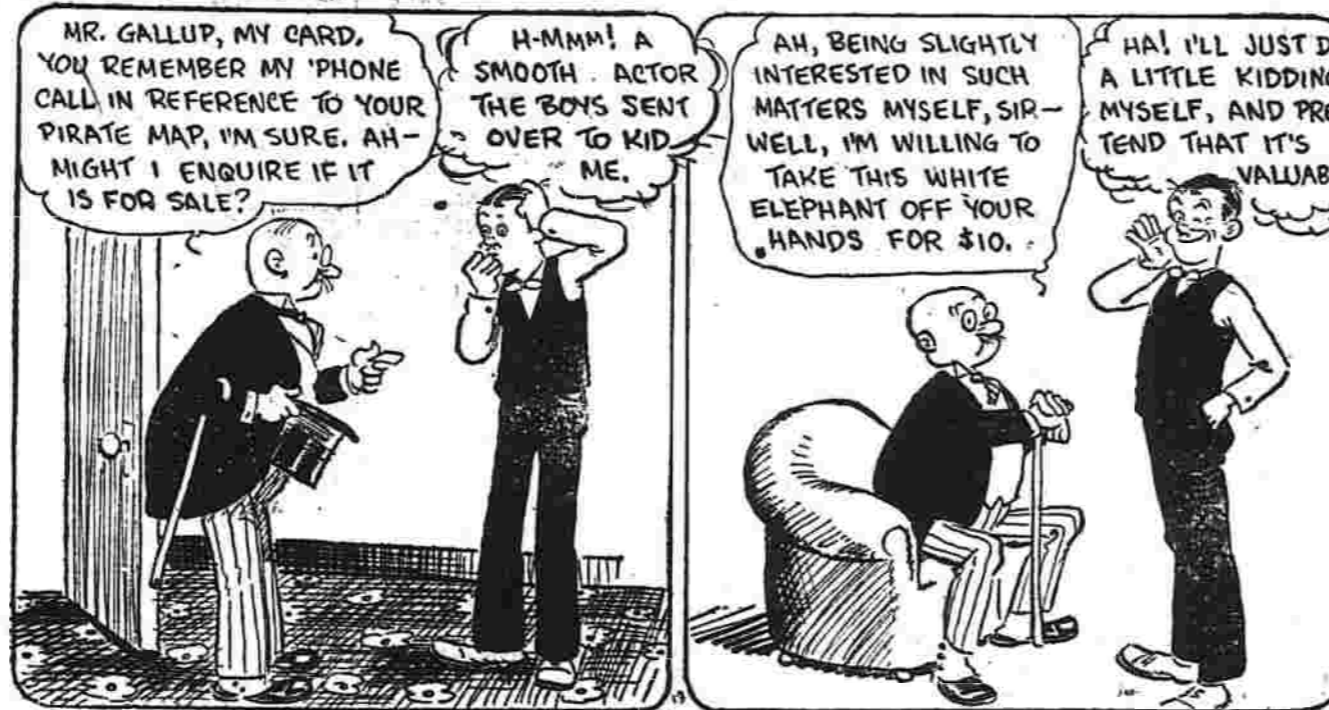

need to stuff." And that's just what each Tynmy took. They all seemed satisfied. Just then they heard a dog bark loud, and to a window rushed the crowd. "Oh, look," exclaimed we Coppy, "our old woodsman friends' outside."

Red Riding Hood then saw him too. "Why, I know him. Does he know you?" said she. And then they all rushed out, and loudly yelled, "Hello!" The woodsman smiled, and shouted loud, "My, what a happy looking crowd. I'm sorry I can't stop a while, but really I must go."

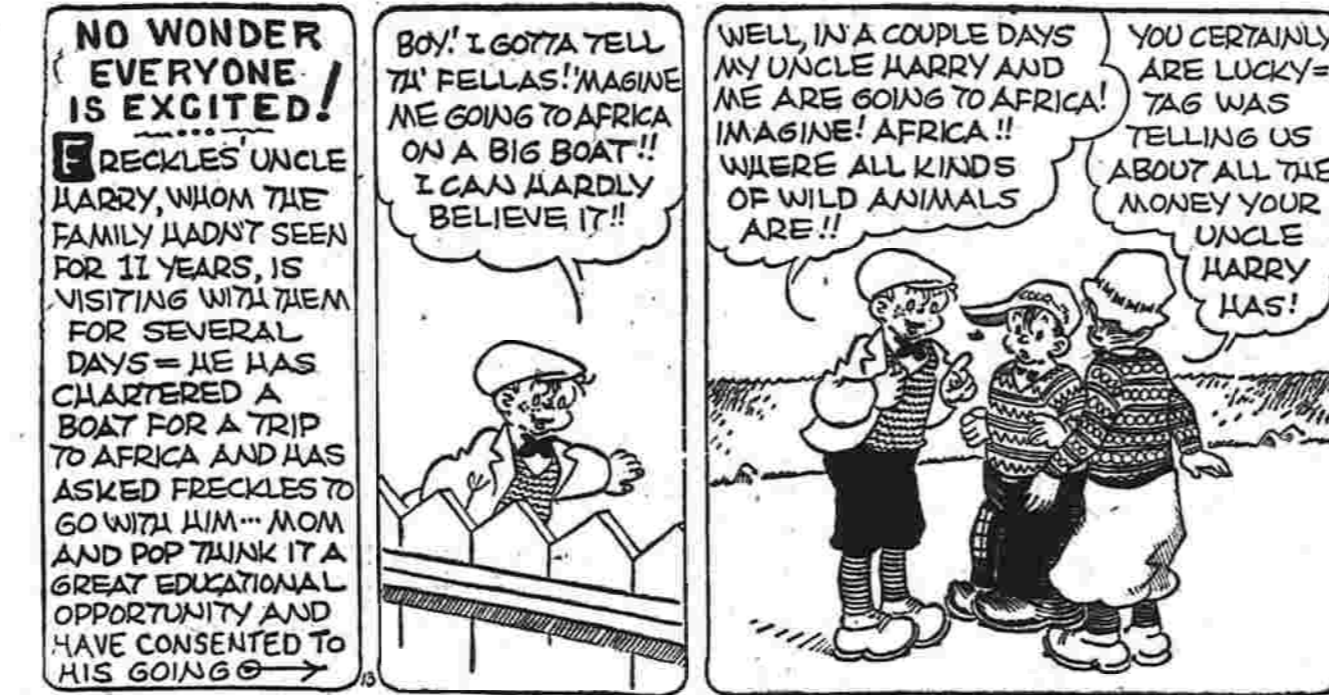

Red Riding Hood then said, "Well, say, I guess I'm going down your way. If you don't mind, I'll walk with you until I reach my home." So, very soon they started out. "Good-bye," they heard the Tynmites shout. Then Scouty said, "What shall we do, and where next shall we roam?"

(The Tynmites see a big balloon in the air, in the next story.)
