McDONALD DIES FOR MURDER OF TAXICAB DRIVER

Goes to Death on Gallows In Canada Bravely—Re- porters Barred From the Prison.

Valleyfield, Quebec, March 23.—George McDonald paid the supreme penalty alone this morning for the crime which the Canadian courts say he and Julia Palmer McDonald committed together. At 5:37 eastern standard time, Hangman Arthur Ellis stamped his foot down on the metal spring to release the trap which sent the Broadway gunman into eternity with the cry "Jesus have mercy" on his lips.

Shivering in his open-necked, cotton shirt on the ice-coated gallows, the slim gunman, just before the end mumbled a prayer in English which fell on ears attuned to French. Paying the price for the woman he loved as well as for himself, McDonald went to his death bravely.

The church bells of Valleyfield rang up McDonald's payment to society as they tolled out the announcement that he had died to square his debt for the cold-blooded murder of Adelard Bouchard, Lachine taxicab driver, last July.

No Reporters Present.

McDonald died under circumstances never paralleled in the Dominion of Canada. None saw his death but the agents of the government whose duty it was to hang him. Press, relatives and attorneys all were barred by the editor of the Quebec premier—a hitherto unprecedented action.

Deliberately the high sheriff of Beauharnois, clad in purple robes and bearing his gilded mace of office, concealed the time of the American's death. An hour before McDonald had been hung, he solemnly announced to the Canadian and American press that the execution had taken place.

"It is all over, McDonald has been hanged." Thus Domine Crepin, high sheriff of Beauharnois, announced to newspapers at 4:30 a. m.

By the sheriff's side stood Chief Dan D. Lorraine of the provincial police. He grasped the sheriff's arm and just as solemnly announced:

Denies Statement.

"Nothing has been done yet." The sheriff swayed and smiled agreement.

Three-quarters of an hour later the shrill voice of Abbe Verschelden was heard beyond the high

REALLY DEAD NOW IS MYSTERY WOMAN

But Police Do Not Yet Know Identity of Woman Found In Pullman.

Washington, March 23.—The capital's "mystery woman" was back in the district morgue today. And this time, according to the puzzled doctors, she is really dead.

Taken from a Pullman berth on a New York train here Wednesday morning and pronounced dead, the woman was removed to the district morgue and laid out on a slab. An attendant noticed a slight twitching of the neck muscles. Other doctors were summoned, also the fire rescue squad, and for 36 hours a thrilling battle was fought to preserve the faint spark of life that was found to exist. Artificial respiration, blood transfusion, injections of stimulants into the heart—everything known to medical science was tried.

The battle ended late yesterday when the spark flickered out. Not identified.

The authorities were almost as much in the dark today as to her identity and the cause of her death as they were when the body was first discovered in the Pullman berth. She apparently had taken some of the deadly poison found in her effects. A towel soaked with chloroform covered her face when she was found. All marks of identification had been destroyed. There was only a note found in an envelope containing a withered white rose. It said "please bury this with me." Her purse contained seven dollars.

ODD LAW PASSED UP IN QUEBEC

Quebec, Que., March 23.—Although a 14-year-old boy and a 12-year-old girl may by one law legally become man and wife here, today, by another law, neither of them can go to a movie show even if accompanied by parents. The latter law was passed by the provincial legislature yesterday.

This law does not prohibit children from the legitimate theater, although one member pointed out that some plays are worse for children than any movie.

SCHWAB SAYS HIS WORKERS STICK BY HIM

Denies He Tried to Wreck Union—Has Had No Serious Trouble In Over 40 Years.

Washington, March 23.—Charles M. Schwab, millionaire chairman of the Bethlehem Steel Corporation today entered a denial before the Senate coal committee of union charges that he was engaged in an alleged conspiracy to wreck the United Mine Workers.

Expounding his labor policies, Schwab explained his companies' belief in taking their employees into "full confidence and understanding."

"We want our men to participate in our business just the same as the stockholders," he said.

Schwab explained that his chairmanship of the Bethlehem Mines Corporation, a subsidiary of the Steel Corporation was "an honorary position in which I act in an advisory capacity."

Schwab explained in some detail his plan of "direct contact with our workers."

Never Had Trouble

"I can say without boasting that in my forty years experience, I've never had any serious trouble with my men," he added.

Schwab indirectly criticized the committee. "I think agitation like this is harmful for the working

BRIDE AGED 120 TELLS HER STORY

She Is Blind and Memory Is Poor But She's Sure of Her Age.

Phoenix, Ariz., March 23.—One never grows too old for love and marriage, Senora Francisca Grifalva Valverde, who has just become the bride of David Valverde at the age of 120, opened today as she sat beside her 78-year-old husband in their little home near here, surrounded by some of their progeny.

Although the couple have just married, they have considered themselves man and wife since they came up from their old Mexico home thirty years ago.

Is Blind

Blind, and so weak from the weight of her years as to be able to do little more than move feebly about the one room in which she spends most of her time, Senora Valverde, nevertheless, professes to have some distinct recollections of the distant past.

She recalls the pomp and ceremony that marked the days of Maximilian on the throne of her country, she says; and the fate of that monarch; the days when the "gringos" invaded Mexico; the rise of Diaz to power—but she can't be sure, she admits.

Memory Poor

"I am old, very old, and my memory is poor. Perhaps I have forgotten, and my memories are imagination," she says, of those stirring events, but on the question of her age she is very positive.

"I was 90 years old when I came here from my home in Sonora, Mexico, and I have lived here for more than 25 years," she states positively. "I have always kept track of my age, and marked off a year each Christmas since my folks first told me how old I was, so I know I am 120 years old."

"I can't tell you much about the past. I don't try to remember now. The days pass, and I remember today and forget yesterday."

I have lived long, and now I am old and sick and tired. The priest told me we ought to be married by him before I died and I know I can't live much longer, so we were married. I am ready to die when my time comes, for I am old, very old."

And Arizona's only 120-year-old bride closed the interview by falling asleep in her chair.

From Lisbon to New York—Paddle by Paddle

It's a long, long way a-paddlin' from Lisbon, Portugal, across the Atlantic to New York, but Captain Romer, a German, is going to try it. It'll take him 110 days to get here—if any. Here he is out on a trial paddle in his collapsible skiff.

Byrd Arranges Details Of Photographing Pole

New York, March 23.—Commander Richard E. Byrd, U. S. N., is arranging details of his coming Antarctic expedition by airplane, said today that, in addition to making a camera record of every mile of the flight to the South Pole and return, he expects to photograph the exact Pole.

A special automatic camera, with which Commander Byrd will take shots at the sun as he flies toward the goal, is now being constructed at the laboratories of the Eastman Kodak Co., at Rochester, N. Y. The Fairchild Aerial Survey, Inc., is devising an automatic camera to be fastened to the bottom of the plane which will take a record picture of the path flown in going to the Pole. Flying at an altitude of 5,000 feet Byrd believes this moving picture camera will photograph a strip across the South

SEN. FERRIS DEAD; SICK SHORT TIME

Was Serving First Term From Michigan—Was 75 Years of Age.

Washington, March 23.—Senator Woodbridge W. Ferris, Democrat of Michigan, died here this morning after a short illness from bronchial pneumonia.

Death came at 6:15 o'clock this morning in the hotel where he made his home in the capital. Members of his family, summoned a week ago when the doctors virtually gave up hope of saving his life, were taken to his Michigan home, at Big Rapids, for burial.

Senator Ferris was 75 years old, and was serving his first term in the Senate. He recently announced that because of his advanced age and ill health he would not be a candidate for re-election.

He was the first Democratic Senator from his state in nearly half a century. He was elected in 1922, defeating Senator Charles E. Townsend.

Former Governor

Prior to his Senate service he had served as governor of Michigan for two terms, in 1913-14 and 1916-17, and it was largely upon his record as governor that the Democrats turned to him and elected him to the Senate in the off-year elections of 1922.

By profession, Senator Ferris was an educator. He was born in Spencer, N. Y., January 6, 1853, and after graduating from several schools went to Illinois where he became principal of a business college at Freeport. He later was identified with Rock River University at Dixon, and was superintendent of schools at Pittsburg. In 1884 he founded Ferris Institute at Big Rapids, Mich., and since then has been president of the institution. He was also president of the Big Rapids savings bank.

His first venture into politics was in 1892 when he was a candidate for Congress and was defeated. He was twice married, his latest marriage being in 1921. A widow and three sons survive.

Senator Ferris was known as one of the quietest men in the Senate. He barely made a speech, although he was an indefatigable worker in committees. He was a member of the committees on education, foreign relations, library and post-offices.

HAD BURGLAR'S TOOLS

Stamford, Conn., March 23.—Santiago Briceño, arrested behind a West Stamford tailor shop early this week, was today bound over for trial in the Superior Court on a charge of possessing burglar's tools and was held in ball of $2,500. Briceño, who said he was a seaman and lived in the seaman's Home, South Street, New York, served a term in Sing Sing for burglary, according to a statement in court today.

Cost Millions; Millions In It; Now What Is It?

A national institution is participated in yearly by millions of people, both actively and passively. It has become the biggest thing outside of business that there is and it follows closely the rules and regulations made more than 50 years ago.

This institution, which costs millions of dollars, makes itself evident in Manchester, and has done so for more than half a century. Forty years ago it was flourishing and there are a number of men who remember it.

One of them tells of it tomorrow in The Herald "OUT AT NOON"

$68,000 CHECK IN OIL CASE IS EXPLAINED

Signed By Sinclair It Went to Horse Trainer and Not To Foreman of Fall's Ranch.

Washington, March 23.—A four-year-old mystery, involving a $68,000 Harry F. Sinclair check—which Archie Roosevelt thought went to Albert B. Fall—was explained today at the Senate oil inquiry by Merritt W. Baldwin, of New Haven, Conn., former confidential secretary to Sinclair.

Baldwin said the check was sent Hildreth, trainer of Sinclair's racing stable. Roosevelt had seen the check, said Baldwin, and afterwards declared it was a check "payable to the foreman of Fall's farm" in New Mexico.

It was this check that caused Archie to resign a post with Sinclair on the advice of his brother, Theodore Roosevelt, then assistant secretary of the Navy.

Baldwin explained Archie's mistake by saying "they had had a couple of drinks."

It was on February 21, 1921, that Archie Roosevelt told the Senate committee about seeing the check. He came before the committee with his brother, Archie said G. D. Walberg, another Sinclair secretary, had shown him the check. Later Walberg took the stand and declared Archie was mistaken, saying they had talked "about six or eight cows on Fall's farm."

"Archie visited Walberg's office and they had quite a few high balls," said Baldwin. "I came in and saw the $68,000 check in Walberg's desk. I took it and said 'the chief has signed this, so I better shoot it out to Hildreth.'"

"Walberg showed it to Archie. It was a check for $68,000 to Sam Hildreth—his year's payment. Hildreth got $25,000 in salary and ten per cent of the purses won."

The next night, Baldwin said, Walberg sent for him because Archie had telephoned him from Washington.

Archie's Story

"He told me about Archie telling that he had said the check was for the foreman of Fall's ranch," Baldwin added. "He said: 'I couldn't hardly listening and I didn't know what was up.'"

"He was very much troubled by Archie's statements. He knew that Archie wouldn't tell a lie and he knew he hadn't said what Archie said he had."

"I told him he shouldn't worry

NEW HAVEN WINS ODD LEGAL SUIT

Man Injured in This State Brings Action Before New York Courts.

New Haven, Conn., March 23.—Word has just been received by the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad Company of the unanimous decision of the Supreme Court of the State of New York, Appellate Division, upholding a decision of Judge Arthur S. Tompkins of White Plains, in dismissing the action of Charles L. Douglas against the railroad in a personal injury suit, on the ground that the accident did not occur in New York state.

Douglas, who resided at 90 Knoll street, Waterbury, sued the railroad in Westchester county, N. Y., for an accident on December 1, 1927 in the railroad yard at Waterbury. Thomas J. O'Neil, attorney for the plaintiff, brought suit in New York, presenting an affidavit by Douglas in which he states he did not desire to bring the action in state courts of Connecticut "because the railroad company is the largest and strongest railroad operated in Connecticut and has great influence in the state."

Attorney Charles D. Lewis, associated with Mr. O'Neil in the case, who stated in an affidavit that the railroad company "is strongly entrenched in Connecticut and is not without powerful influence therein" and he therefore desired to bring this action "in a place which will constitute more neutral ground and where he will have an even chance of getting justice."

E. R. Brumley, assistant general attorney for the New Haven road, while driving an alcohol-laden truck, is suspected only of running, according to the state's attorney, according to the state's attorney decision and stated that the New Haven railroad intends to contest the New York jurisdiction of all actions of this kind.

MARSH IS SUBPOENAED BY NEW YORK COURT

Democratic Treasurer Asked To Bring His Books—Nothing About Oil Probe.

Chicago, March 23.—Wilbur J. Marsh, former treasurer of the Democratic national committee, arrived in Chicago today after testifying in the Washington slush fund probe and went directly to the federal building where he accepted service of a writ of subpoena duces tecum.

The subpoena demands that Marsh appear before Federal Judge John C. Knox in New York with all cash books, ledgers and other documents showing contributions to the Democratic Party from 1918 to 1921.

New York, March 23.—United States Attorney Charles H. Tuttle revealed today that Wilbur Marsh, former Democratic committee chairman, is under subpoena to appear before the Federal Grand Jury here regarding a minor matter. He stated that the matter has nothing to do with the present Senatorial investigation.

REPORTS OF MERGER BOOSTS UP STOCKS

Wall Street Hears That Vic- tor Talking Machine Co. Is to Join Radio Co.

New York, March 23.—Reports in Wall street that Radio Corporation of America and Victor Talking Machine Company are about to be merged shot the price of Victor stocks up six points to 91 and Radio up four points to 155 during another blistering market on the New York Stock Exchange today.

Consolidation of the Radio and Victor companies, if effected, would bring together properties with combined assets of $126,000,000. The two companies have been closely affiliated for some time.

Another widely circulated report in Wall street is that Harry F. Sinclair, the oil magnate who is to go on trial on April 4 in the criminal cases growing out of the Teapot Dome naval oil reserve lease, is disposing of his New York mansion and several of his other holdings.

Sinclair's Rumor

The report that control of the Sinclair Consolidated Oil Corporation is about to pass from the hands of Harry Sinclair to other oil interests was also revived. There has been heavy trading at higher prices in Sinclair stock on the Exchange of late. The prevailing report is that the Standard Oil of Indiana is to acquire the Sinclair's fifty per cent interest in the Sinclair Crude Purchasing Co., and that the Prairie Oil & Gas Company will take over the remaining 50 per cent interest of the Sinclair company.

Sinclair is said to be asking $500,000 for his New York mansion.

NO MORE MESSAGES FOUND IN THE S-4

Admiral Andrews Says If Any Are Found They Will Be Made Public.

Boston, Mass., March 23.—A denial that other notes than the two already published by the press, had as yet been found on the submarine S-4 was made today by Rear Admiral Philip D. Andrews, commanding the First Naval District.

"All notes will be given out as soon as they have been found," said Admiral Andrews. "There is still a great deal of mud and silt in the interior of the submarine and many effects of the sailors have not been examined as yet."

Admiral Andrews agreed with a statement of Rear Admiral Richard D. Mass, who said it was unthinkable that the Navy Department would refuse to publish the contents of any note. "I too think that such conduct on the part of the Navy Department would be unthinkable," said the admiral.

OUR LEGION ACTIVE FOR NEW HOSPITAL

Played Part in Getting Million Dollar Building For Southern New England.

Members of Dilworth-Cornell Post, No. 102, American Legion, feel that they played an active part in winning a million dollar appropriation for a hospital for war veterans to be erected in Southern New England.

At a recent meeting of the local post's executive committee the question was discussed and telegrams were dispatched to Congressman Royal C. Johnson, chairman of the Veterans Legislation committee and to Congressman E. Hart Fenn of this district. The telegrams urged the congressmen to fight for the passage of this legislation. It was voted in committee yesterday and the new hospital is practically assured. It is hoped that it will be located somewhere in Connecticut.

The local Legionnaires are just inaugurating a drive for new members. Last year's membership was 255 and the post hopes to exceed that by a good margin. The next meeting of the post will be held Monday evening at the State Armory. The subject of two meetings a month will be brought up and the members will be asked to suggest means of making the meetings more interesting.

CHURCH MEN TO GIVE A PARTY FOR LADIES

Second Congregational Men's club will give their first "Ladies Night" program at the church this evening, beginning with a supper at 6:30. This will be followed by an excellent musical, literary and sleight-of-hand program. The committee in charge which is headed by F. H. Jones, has also been able to secure as a speaker a native of India, Habib Yusujji, who has received his higher education in the United States. Mr. Yusujji was born at Ujain, India, and in this country he has attended Colgate university and Gordon Theological seminary in Boston. He was graduated from Princeton college and is at present in Hartford, studying for his degree of doctor of philosophy at the theological seminary there. He is a speaker of ability and will have an interesting tale to tell of his native land and the progress of the christian movement there.

HARTFORD MAN DROWNED

Hartford, Conn., March 23.—Abraham Waldman, 35, of 161 Governor street, a fruit peddler, was drowned in the Connecticut river near the wharf of the Hartford & New York Transportation Company, soon after employees of the Windsor Cement company's plant near the place saw him walking toward the river. Police believe Waldman jumped into the river. Dr. Henry M. Costello, medical examiner, is investigating. Waldman's body was pulled from the river near the wharf. Personal checks in his clothing led to his identification. Waldman is survived by his father and mother.

people," he said. "The airing of sensational charges will not help." "Mr. Chairman, I'm not working for money. I don't need money. I've never made a dollar out of the Bethlehem Steel Corporation. It has been a work of love. My purpose is to leave a monument to my industrial work in this country."

His Labor Policy "I think our labor policy of mutual understanding, a modification of collective bargaining, is the right one. Other industries are following us. "There are too many miners in this country. That is one of the troubles today. Mellon.

NEW HAVEN WRECK TIES UP TRAFFIC

were completely destroyed. Much merchandise also was lost.

Worst In Years From a spectacular point and because of the amount of inconvenience caused railroad patrons, the wreck was the worst this district has seen in many years. Men walked from as far east as Westport in order to reach the first available train to New York.

The Connecticut Company put on extra street cars and busses into service between Stamford and points east and then permitted to use railroad tickets as fares. The New Canaan branch was hit by the accident, service being suspended for hours. Commuters living on that line either walked here or came down on trucks and other conveyances that were pressed into service temporarily. From all points east and north pedestrians poured into Stamford and sought out the railroad station while motor traffic suddenly jumped to a condition resembling that in New Haven in a full football day.

All tracks of the main line were finally opened for traffic at 10 o'clock. At that hour eastbound traffic was fifty minutes late. Westbound traffic then had reached scheduled time. The wiring above the westbound tracks was restored to service quicker than had been expected, thus helping out the situation.

Beside the regular commuter trains made up here daily for New York, the New Haven road put four extra trains into service during the morning and ran them through to Grand Central, thus cutting down greatly the masses of people seeking to get to New York. Points west of here, beyond the wreck zone, were cared for by the Westchester system and temporary connections.

OIL RESERVE IN DANGER

Washington, March 23.—Stating that the vast Elk Hills, California naval oil reserve, which the government won back from E. L. Doheny, is in danger of being drained by the neighboring wells. Secretary of the Navy, Willbur today appealed to Congress for authority to protect the reserves. He requested power to make trades with private companies and a $10,000,000 "protection fund" should an oil war result from the failure to reach agreements with private interests.

HOLD BURGLAR

Bridgeport, Conn., March 23.—John Hudich, 25, a hospital orderly here, was today locked up in default of $2,000 bail pending a City Court hearing on burglary charges. Police say he has admitted seven charges and they suspect him of twelve other jobs.

PUTS UP A PRIZE FOR BEST IN DRILL

Capt. John Pentland Cup to Be Awarded to Best "G" Soldier.

Jack Pentland, Commander of Dilworth-Cornell Post, No. 102, American Legion, and for years an officer in Company G 169th Infantry C. N. G., has presented to Company G a handsome loving cup to be awarded yearly to the member of the company who is best in individual competitive drilling. It will be known as the Captain John Pentland cup.

In addition, three medals have been put up for prizes, one gold, one silver, and one bronze. These will be the second, third and fourth prizes in competitive drill. The winner of the drill contest will have his name inscribed on the cup and will be in possession of it for one year.

The first competitive drill will be held within five weeks. Whether the contests will be public or not has not yet been decided.

MRS. CORBETT LOSES HER $250,000 SUIT

New York, March 23.—Counsel for Mrs. Alice Bland Corbett, who yesterday lost her $250,000 claim suit against Countess Marquese Gwendolyn Soranzo, announced today that they would appeal.

The jury, which reached its verdict in Supreme Court here after four hours of deliberation, decided that Mrs. Corbett is not entitled to damages. Mrs. Corbett, the wife of James J. Corbett, now in Sing Sing prison, brought suit for alienation of affections. She claimed that the countess, who was then Miss Stevenson, knew Corbett had a wife when she eloped with him to Buffalo, N. Y., where they went through an illegal marriage ceremony.

Mrs. Corbett, claiming that Corbett abandoned her and their baby, alleged that the society girl pursued Corbett and stole his love. The countess' father, Frederick A. Stevenson, wealthy vice-president of the American Car & Foundry Co., was elated over the verdict.

Married To Count The former Miss Stevenson was married to an Italian nobleman after annulling her alliance with Corbett.

It was learned that three elderly jurors held out for Alice, who is a department store salesgirl, on the ground that the countess must have been in the wrong because of her cabaret and alcoholic revelry.

Young jurors, however, signed the graybeards down with orations upon the present day propriety of such enjoyments.

The defeated Mrs. Corbett remains a very busy litigant. Through her attorney, Leo Schwartz, she is appealing and prosecuting a divorce suit against her husband.

Countess Soranzo, named in the blonde Alice's divorce action, will return to Florence, Italy, with her titled spouse, according to her father.

Corbett is serving five years for forgery. His wife, only 23, is supporting her baby Julienne, on the meagre salary her store job yields.

NYE AGAIN RAPS AL SMITH IN LETTER

Washington, March 23.—Senator Gerald P. Nye, youthful Progress sive from North Dakota, today asked Governor Al Smith, of New York, whether his five-year silence on the national oil scandals was due to his friendship for Harry F. Sinclair.

Nye projected this question at Smith in a letter replying to the New York governor's recent letter. "Might it be that you reticence to speak out against these scandals is attributable to the fact that Harry F. Sinclair was a member of your official family, and had as newspapers now report, contributed in 1918 when you were a successful candidate for governor, to a Democratic committee in New York?" asked Nye. "This thought is merely suggested by your letter."

HOLD YOUNG BURGLARS

Danbury, Conn., March 23.—Chester Rovela, of Greenwich, and Frederick Spina, of Danbury, arrested at Stamford yesterday while driving a car which they later admitted stealing here earlier in the day, were the means today of causing the arrest of William Carney, 22, on a burglary charge. Carney, local police say, admitted sending Rovela, Spina and a young boy to rob a cigar store. The three boys brought about $200 worth of loot to Carney after making two trips to the store with pillow cases. Carney told the police he drew a diagram of the store and furnished tools to force an entrance from the rear. Rovela, Spina and Carney will be placed on trial here tomorrow on the burglary charge.

their decisions on the winners. It would be almost impossible to give a detailed description of all the windows along Main street. Travel with a Herald man from the Center to School street and he will try to tell what the windows had to offer, in a few words:

At the Center Packard's windows featured boxed candies in one and drug and toilet accessories in the other. A background of yellow streamers made of cleverly trimmed crepe paper caught the eye. The Ladies Shop just down Main street featured women's dresses and negligees neatly arranged and harmonizing in colors. Benson's Furniture Company displayed a mohair three piece suite and vacuum cleaners. They simply placed a display of their hardware in the window neatly and without congesting the window. John I. Olson, who was not entered in the contest had a unique attraction in his window. A little cottage prettily painted and true to the smallest detail rested in a spacious green lawn. Rambler roses climbed the arbors and trees were growing in the yard. In the background was material stressing the value of paints in preserving a home.

The Well Dressed Man

Milkowski, the florist, not entered in the contest, displayed three handsome pots of tulips. The well dressed man in the window was very striking. George H. Williams displayed evening clothes in one section of his windows, golf togs in another and in a third displaying window suits the well dressed man should own. In this window Mr. Williams pointed out that to be in the well dressed circle a man should own four suits—a blue, a brown, a grey and a novelty. He showed examples of all four striking pair of windows were those of Murray's in the State theater building. One window was devoted to hats in purple shades with lights of the same shade playing upon them. In the other window were hats in bright red with red lights played from above. The Smart Shop a few doors further on depended upon lights to attract the eye. Dresses were neatly arranged with the lights everly emphasizing the dress colors.

"The Wedding March"

Fradin's displayed dresses, afternoon and evening, coats and accessories. His windows were neatly done and in each display were striking gowns placed before a tastefully decorated frame giving the effect of a picture. Both of the windows at Kemp's Music House were handsomely done. In one were musical instruments with a background of bizarre decorations giving the jazz or impressionistic atmosphere. In the other was a grand piano with a copy of "The Wedding March" ready for the pianist and in the background a model of a bride completely owned.

Derry and Richards displayed handsome stationery featuring the beautiful designs in envelope lining in one window and jewelry neatly arranged in another with a beautiful ostrich feather fan neatly placed among the jewels. The Manly Electric Company, not entered in the contest, displayed electric household apparatus neatly arranged.

Cheney Cravats

Glenn's windows attracted attention perhaps largely because of the handsome display of Cheney cravats. In one window were the newest in shirts with the new Spring cravats neatly arranged in harmonizing groups. In the other window were the new Spring suits and tops for men. The Manchester Public Market though not in the contest had one of the most attractive windows on the street at least to one who likes sea food. Mr. Poove had arranged fresh fish on a carpet of parsley and the window was a relish in itself. Every bit of sea food in the window looked tempting.

The F. T. Blish Hardware Company had a neat window displaying tools and hardware of all kinds. Like Bamforth's the Blish store did not attempt an elaborate display. It was neat and attractive, however.

Al Grezel's windows were not entered in the contest. He merely displayed radios and electric refrigerators. He attracted large crowds to his store, however by giving carnations as long as his supply held out.

Simplicity

Rubinow's windows are attractive in themselves but they were even more so last night. Handsome dresses, gowns and coats were displayed with the new line of accessories neatly placed on the window floor. The windows did not contain too much—simplicity being the keynote. The May Jewelry Company windows featured stationery in one and silverware in the other. The stationery was neatly arranged with a beautiful basket of flowers being the center attraction. Decorative butterflies hovered over the display. The contents of a chest of silver were arranged on a beautiful stairway effect in the second window. Bluebirds were used to give the spring atmosphere to the silverware window. The shoe store Textile store featured handsome new patterns in yard goods neatly arranged and well lighted. Marlow's windows were completely filled ed with exhibits of the many lines that store carries. A display of children's wear featured one of his windows.

Hardware and Paint Although J. H. Quinn, the druggist, did not have his windows entered in the contest they were neatly arranged with displays of drugs, toilet articles and stationery. The Manchester Plumbing and Supply Company's two windows displayed hardware and tools in one and paints in the other. The familiar electric display of the paint covering the world was placed in the rear of the paint window. Miner's Pharmacy windows were not entered in the contest but they were neat and attractive featuring well known medicinal products.

Miss Naven's windows did not allow for a large display and this store was not in the contest. A neat shoe display was in the small space, however. Nor were Barrett and Robbins entered. They displayed sports equipment. Hultman's two windows were outstanding in beauty and attractiveness. Both were done in a similar manner. The background was done in golden hued rayon with the fabric folding artistically along the floor of the display. Two pretty and novel floor lamps were at the rear of each window. In one display were shoes simply arranged on stands. In the other were blue serge suits. Jud Gallup and Earl Clifford were responsible for the trimming, the idea being Gallup's.

At Oak Street

Watkins Brothers devoted both of their large windows to porch furnishings. They were handsomely arranged and almost shouted "Spring." In the smaller windows were novelties in furniture. The J. W. Hale Company windows displayed the light colored spring dresses against a gold cloth background. One window had a cleverly done hand painted scenic piece for a background. In the Oak street windows were two handsome displays. One exhibited beautiful silk negligee in pinks and greens. The other displayed handsome new patterns in yard goods arranged in a novel manner.

The C. E. House and Son windows exhibited shoes and clothes for men. This display, stressed simplicity and neatness and under the bright lights was very attractive last night. Flowers always lend beauty to any display and when that display is made up entirely of flowers it must attract. The Park Hill Flower Shop, the only entry among the florists, had a window dazzling in beauty. At the left was a huge pottery vase of long stem Pink roses. Banking away from the rose vase was a large grouping of the new spring flowers—hydrangeas, azaleas, tulips, spruce—all banking up to the ferns palms which made the background. Another large vase of the same variety of roses stood further away in the background. The Premier roses used in this display were part of the picking which went to New York yesterday to be entered in the New York Flower Show.

The Stork Window

Keith's windows were all exceedingly well done. In the left window was a clever idea. A new model baby carriage stood as though on the lawn. A neat placard read "Reflecting the Newest in Baby Carriages." Keith's center window was a reproduction of a Colonial bed room suite and was handsomely done. The right window was a green Glenwood range with green lights playing upon it.

ACCEPT RESIGNATION OF COLLEGE PRESIDENT

New Haven, March 23.—The Board of Trustees of Connecticut College for Women at New London, meeting here, has accepted the resignation of President Benjamin T. Marshall. The board also requested the resignation of Prof. John Edwin Wells, head of the English department of the college. The vote was by a solid ballot and in each case was said to be 10 to 3.

No light was shed on the real cause of the resignation of the college head or for the request for Prof. Wells' resignation. The usual atmosphere of mystery which has surrounded the affairs of the college during the controversy was successfully maintained.

No member of the board would make a statement elucidating the troubles at the college. Mayor May of New London, ex-officio member of the board, who was willing to talk, appeared to be as much of an outsider as the newspaper reporters. He said that the meeting was apparently cut and dried in advance.

WAPPING

Rev. Truman H. Woodward, Walter N. Foster and Luther R. Burnham, all of this place attended the Hartford County Y. M. C. A. meeting at the Hotel Sheridan, South Manchester, the first part of the week.

About twenty of the local young people of this place gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Homer Lane of Pleasant Valley, where there was a kitchen shower for Miss Lois Stiles, who is soon to marry Ralph Collins. Games were played and refreshments were served. Miss Stiles received many useful things for use in the kitchen.

Mr. and Mrs. David Burnham and son Luther Burnham are all sick in bed with the grip.

Mrs. Ernest Hack of Pleasant Valley has been confined to her home for the past two or three weeks by illness.

The young people of the Christian Endeavor Society will motor to Andover next Sunday evening, where they will assist in the missionary meeting at that place. The subject will be "What is my share in the missionary enterprise," and the reference is found in I Thess. 1-01; the leader from the society is Miss Martha Stoughton.

At the regular church service of the Federated Church here Rev. Truman H. Woodward will give an illustrated lecture on the land of the Lotus-Flower, (a wealth of color) with lantern slide pictures.

TEST ANSWERS

Here is one solution to the LETTER GOLF puzzle on the comic page:

Grid of letters for a word search puzzle. The letters are arranged in a 10x6 grid.

They called Lindbergh "Lone Eagle." We suggest for the schemer who aims to shoot himself to Venus in a rocket "the lone zuckoo."

New York, March 23 — Larry the pigmy messenger boy, is a considerably better known figure in and about Manhattan than, say J. P. Morgan or John D. Rockefeller. Larry is a sort of gnome, just a bit too tall to qualify as a side-show midget, but sufficiently wee to hide behind the average office desk or table. He has a way of bobbing up from behind the office waste baskets as though some Aladdin had rubbed a magic lamp.

They know him in at least half the offices of the mid-town section and most of the Broadway buildings. Office employes use him for pranks on each other when he comes to deliver messages. And he makes a healthy income from the accruing tips.

For the largest city in the world is no different from the smallest Main street hamlet when it comes to adopting odd personalities and giving them a sort of temporary prominence.

Thus when Mary, "the apple woman" of the Wall Street district, disappeared about a year ago, there was just about as much fuss in and out of the newspapers as though the heiress to millions had vanished from sight. It developed that Mary had merely taken a few days' vacation, but Wall Street clerks, stenographers and magnates alike were going about asking what had happened to Mary.

There are a number of Bowery characters equally well known. There's "Tom," of the Salvation Army Bowery Mission, who boasts that in 25 years he has never been on Broadway, and has never allowed himself to wander beyond 14th street.

Having been "saved" at a time when drink and high life were buffeting him in the gutters, he looks upon Broadway as a symbol of the flesh pots and, hence, has no desire to look upon it. He is content to work among the derelicts, some of whom have known their Broadway only too well.

There is an old fellow who appears each winter at the flop houses and holds his job by writing letters for the bums who filter through and want to "write back home." They tell me that some of these letters are masterpieces of imagination.

The two patriarchal pretzel men of Union Square are known far and wide. Romany Marie is the symbol of old Greenwich Village, with her gay Gypsy shawls, her bright waists and her "arty" tea rooms. The man who trains fleas in the Broadway belt is visited by folk from the four corners of the earth. "Coffee House" Mary is the toast of the Battery lunch counters at an hour when the good folks are in bed and when the first editions of morning papers are coming off the presses.

And so it goes. For the halfwit lad of the tank town railroad station and the crippled pencil peddlers of the subways hold about the same rank as public characters.

One of this town's most inconspicuous spots remains, the horse market. Here, within walking distance of Broadway, men of rural appearance come every morning to talk horse flesh and dieker in horses. David Harumescque stories are swapped about and the air is pungent with the aroma of hay-loaded barns. Horses are walked up and down the streets, often interfering with the hectic auto traffic. Men stand about corners with straws in their teeth. It is a tiny land of overalls, stable smells and horse flesh—a rural note strangely lost in the midst of the greatest metropolis.

TOWER 165 FEET HIGH FOR LOOKOUT MT. NEAR BUFFALO BILL'S GRAVE

Denver.—An observation tower, 165 feet high, will be an added attraction on Lookout Mountain, near the grave of Buffalo Bill, according to announcement here today.

The tower, equipped with electric elevator, observation rooms and instruments for viewing "Colorado's matchless scenery," will cost approximately $60,000.

The site of the tower is at an elevation of more than 8,000 feet above sea level, and on a clear day it is expected observers can get a glimpse of several states surrounding Colorado on all sides.

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES

On April 13 the annual inter-scholastic glee club contest will be held at the High school. As in past years cups will be awarded to the winners in both the girls' group and the boys' group. The prize song that must be sung by all competing schools is "The Dream Boat Passes By."

The Leap Year Hop has been postponed until April 14. It was planned to hold the dance sooner but because of other events it had to be put off till that date.

Thursday, April 5, a food sale will be held at Hale's under the direction of Group Leaders Misses Swanson, Little and Keeney. As in past years the principal item will be hot-cross buns. The supply of buns has usually been insufficient to supply the large demand and it will be necessary to give orders in advance in order to insure delivery.

Next Wednesday evening Suffield Prep will bring its crack swimming team to the Res for a match with the local swimming team. The unusual success of the local team is worthy of recognition and it is hoped that a large crowd will be on hand when the team will try to chalk up another victory.

The Senior Class has been awarded a banner for winning the inter-class swimming meet. The banner will be hung in some Senior home room and in succeeding years will be presented to the class winning the meet.

At the assembly yesterday the Girls' Glee club sang the prize song for the coming Glee Club contest. Marjorie Little spoke briefly on the coming presentation of "The Road to Romance" and asked the support of the school in making the affair a success. It was also announced that the high school orchestra will present a program at the performance. Miss Lathrop and some of her pupils, were interested spectators to the assembly and Principal Quimby welcomed them and said that he hoped they would all be back next year as the class of 1932.

After the Missouri legislature had appropriated $10,000 to strengthen the sinking Missouri Memorial at Cheppy, France, the French contractor who had been awarded the job announced that his figures had been high and that he could do the work for $7500. Just try to picture how far that man would go in the contracting business in America.

Check Flu-Grip By Using Vicks at First Sneeze

Health Authorities Urge Precaution to Prevent Epidemic

If all colds were checked at the beginning, influenza, pneumonia and grip would be greatly reduced.

It takes quick action to get ahead of the germs of these dread diseases. Many cases of flu start from germs breathed in. The effective way to attack them is direct—with vapors of Vicks VapoRub.

When rubbed on the throat and chest the ingredients of Vicks are released in the form of vapors which, being breathed in, carry medication to the inflamed air passages and lungs direct and instantly. In addition, it acts like a poultice and helps the vapors inhaled to break up the congestion.

While grip and influenza are so prevalent local people are urged to keep Vicks VapoRub ready at all times for instant use.—Adv.

Putting Your Dollars To Work

Whenever there is an industry to be developed, a crop to be moved, a railroad or a steamship line to be financed, a waterfall to be harnessed, a public improvement to be made or a new human want to be satisfied, dollars are invited to go to work for their owners.

The savings bank gathers up the small amounts that each individual depositor adds to his account and puts them to work. The income received from these investments are returned to the depositors in dividends.

The best way to keep your dollars busy is to deposit them regularly in this savings bank. Thus employed, they will produce a second income, a dependable income which continues regardless of how your own personal earning capacity is affected.

COLLECTION OF CHINESE ART TO PENN. MUSEUM

Philadelphia.—A magnificent collection of Chinese art, and a great crystal sphere of international fame, has been presented to the University of Pennsylvania Museum by Eldridge R. Johnson, a manager of the Museum for many years and chairman of its board, as a memorial to the late Dr. George B. Gordon.

Dr. Gordon, who was one of the foremost authorities on archaeology in the world, was connected with the University of Pennsylvania for 24 years, and from 1910 until his death on January 30 of last year, he served as Director of the University Museum.

The memorial collection which numbers 28 pieces includes Chinese carving in jade, lapis lazuli and coral, and early bronze tripod, Chinese painting and a group of ritualistic objects of ancient jade types.

The gems of the collection are the 18th century carvings from the workshop of the Emperor Ch'ien Lung, that great patron of art under whose reign a renaissance of art flourished in China.

Two royal table screens of green jade are probably the most exquisite pieces in the collection among those known to have stood in the Imperial Palace. These screens are thin slabs of jade about nine inches square, carved on one side with small figures in a landscape all in low relief, and on the other side with large figures of the phoenix bird, peony tree and rocks, and engraved with an original poem by the Emperor Ch'ien Lung copied from his handwriting and inlaid with gold.

Another pair of screens, also from the Imperial Palace, is of lapis lazuli, a rich blue shot with green and gold.

A pair of carvings in pink coral which are unusually tall and of great beauty and refinement, bear all the earmarks of having been made for the Imperial pleasure. One carving represents a tall siphon-like fairy standing on a phoenix bird, symbol of the Empress; the other shows a companion fairy with a five-claw dragon, symbol of the Emperor, at her feet.

Although there are many Chinese carvings in coral in existence today, these two examples are said by authorities of the Museum to be by far the finest known to them. Each is over eighteen inches high.

Among these magnificent carvings is the famous crystal sphere known to have belonged once to the Emperor and named after her, the "Dowager Empress." It is made of a very silvery white crystal and represents many years of painstaking work with jewel, sand and wheel, a triumph of skill and perfection.

Flawless Crystal
The crystal is ten inches in diameter, being the second largest in existence as far as can be ascertained, and is without a flaw. In the middle ages in Europe and even later, crystal balls were used for purposes of divination and many persons, besides fortune tellers, have engaged in the popular pastime of crystal gazing.

The Chinese seem not to have indulged in such practices with their crystal spheres, however, employing them merely for ornamentation. This one is indeed worthy of an Emperor's palace. The stand is in the form of a wave of silver rising to foamy sprays upon the tips of which the sphere floats like a bubble, in spite of its weight of more than fifty pounds.

The sphere has been installed in a small round alcove hung with soft dark blue so that confusing reflections are eliminated, and the silvery whiteness and limpidness of the crystal have been emphasized.

From one angle the ball appears to be edged with a silver ring. Completing the Johnson collection is an interesting group of objects of the type of ancient ritualistic jades, reddish brown in color, silk, belonging to the Ming period and said to be a picture of the cemetery in which this group of ritualistic objects was discovered.

GIVE RECORD OF OUR CIVILIZATION TO FUTURE AGES

Denver.—The Egyptians of many years ago made records of the civilization of that age in order that future people might profit by their experiences in the worlds of science and learning.

Today, Dr. Druen J. H. Ward, 76 years old, a long time resident of Denver, has on his shelves and nearly complete, a set of books composed of 500 volumes in which is recorded a complete story of present day civilization. This set of books, the product of 30 years' labor by Dr. Ward, will be placed in a vault in Denver's proposed "Tower of Memories."

The rust proof iron boxes in which the books are to be placed will be opened at 200 year intervals so that future thinkers, scientists and men of the business world may come to know their ancestors and profit through the knowing.

Provides Fund
A last will and testament recently made by Dr. Ward provides that sufficient funds will be placed in a local bank at the time of his death to perpetuate the undertaking. A librarian is provided for, and plans are made for additions to be made constantly to the already enormous set of records.

"The future starts with what the past hands over," says Dr. Ward.

"It is with this in mind that I have made this almost a life work. There are descriptions of the elements of all our leading sciences with which the people of the future may guide themselves."

Every modern study and industry is described completely. Agriculture, sociology, anthropology, manufacturing, selling, and many other subjects are treated in detail. During the 30 years of labor, Dr. Ward obtained this information from prominent thinkers and leaders of the American nation.

Dr. Ward, a graduate of Leipzig and Berlin Universities, and formerly an instructor at Harvard, has not limited his endeavor to this alone, however. Some of his work is acclaimed by scientific critics as the greatest of his kind. Among many books written by him in the "Receivership for Civilization," which has received much comment and admiration from leading educators of the day.

Dr. Ward believes the Egyptians were the most far-sighted race ever to tread the earth. The records they prepared, however, were very incomplete and their methods of recording were so imperfect that modern people are able to profit very little from the ancient day effort.

With this in view, Dr. Ward has endeavored to shape his work into a form that will be understandable thousands of years hence. The English language is one of the most widely spoken in the world today and it will probably live for centuries. Therefore he thinks that this is the proper language with which to make such records.

PLAN MEMORIAL TO BRITISH AIRMEN WHO FIRST FLEW ATLANTIC

London.—A proposal to create a memorial to the British airmen, Sir Arthur Whitten-Brown and the late Sir John Alcock, who were the first to fly across the Atlantic Ocean, is receiving strong support in air circles here.

Their feat was accomplished in June, 1919, when they flew the 1,890 miles from Newfoundland to Clifton, on the west coast of Ireland, in 16 hours 12 minutes, an average speed of 116.67 miles an hour.

HARDING OUT OF IT

A detailed statement of the bond holdings of the late President Harding, made to a St. Louis newspaper by the executor of the wills of both Mr. and Mrs. Harding, discloses that none of the Liberty bonds included in those estates was identical with any of the bonds at one time owned by the Continental Trading Company and which are being traced in connection with the Sinclair oil scandal.

While it is true that the executor, C. D. Schaffner of Marion, O., was an old friend and associate of President Harding, he is said to be a most methodical and highly scrupulous banker, and there is not the slightest reason to suspect that there has been any juggling of the data with relation to the Harding estate. He submitted the original schedules, made out long ago and including the serial number of every one of the bonds owned by the President at the time of his death, as well as the issue and denomination.

Whether the oil committee investigators will deem this statement conclusive or whether they will still go through the form of a probe into the Harding estate is not likely to make much difference, except that it would be a little more decent to let that end of the inquiry drop. There seems to be not the remotest shadow of a chance that the dead President was, even unknowingly, a beneficiary of the Sinclair benevolences.

NICARAGUA

The American advisors of President Diaz of Nicaragua have found the simplest of imaginable ways out of the difficulty created by the refusal of the Nicaraguan Congress to sanction American military supervision of the coming national election. They merely had Diaz sign an executive decree investing the necessary supervisory authority in the United States. The decree naively declares that since the Nicaraguan supreme court had already appointed General McCoy president of the national election board there was nothing else to do but to take the matter out of the hands of the congress.

What the effect of the precedent may be in some future time, when the United States may be highly desirous of seeing real constitutional government operate in Nicaragua, it is not up to the American steersman to guess just now. We are in the mess up to our necks and an honestly supervised election seems to provide the only way out. Unfortunately the only way to get the honestly supervised election appears to be by getting in a little deeper in the meantime.

There isn't, now, the slightest chance of withdrawing from Nicaragua until the conclusion of the elections, next October. Then, having set up whatever administration the people of Nicaragua elect, our marines will probably come home. And it is a good guess that it will be many a long day before they are landed in that particular spot again. The mahogany men will have to whistle louder than they ever have heretofore to bring about a repetition of this experience.

CONNECTICUT COLLEGE

Acceptance of the resignation of President Marshall of Connecticut college ends the second of two phases which together make up the history of that institution subsequent to the original promotion of the idea of a college for women by the Hartford College club. The first phase was the regime of the late Dr. Frederick Sykes and constituted perhaps the most brilliant period of promise ever experienced by a new college in America. It ended when the trustees of Connecticut college, in the majority failing utterly in the conception of their responsibilities, brought down the edifice that Dr. Sykes had erected in a ruin of petty jealousy.

That the second administration of the college has compared with the first in magnificence of conception and genius of execution is not likely to be maintained by many; but that it has not been an adequate administration or a successful one would be hotly disputed by hundreds of alumnae and disinterested observers.

And both of these administrations have terminated unhappily under circumstances that contribute to the belief that Connecticut college will never attain to its hoped for place among the institutions of higher learning in America until there is a radical change in the quality of its directorate. Since the beginning it has been handicapped by the presence on its board of trustees of individuals in no wise interested in or qualified to be interested in college administration; persons of archaic views, of meagre and narrow impulses, of selfish and self seeking purposes. The personnel of Connecticut college's board of control is littered up with impossibilities. So long as this continues to be the case the institution will never gain the confidence of the people of this state or of the country to anything like the extent it otherwise might.

There is likely to be a disposition on the part of the people of the state, who contributed of their large or small means to bring the college into being, to let it work out its own salvation as best it may.

Perhaps the trustees may be able to get some first-class man to take the place of the retiring president; but he will have to be a sanguine soul indeed, and he will face a terrific problem—unless he be young enough to have every prospect of outliving the misfits on the board of trustees. Possibly, when time in its course brings new and better blood into that body Connecticut college may have a chance.

MORE FADS

At the opposite side of the picture from the Childs restaurants, trying to convert their many thousands of patrons to vegetarianism, we now find Vilhjalmur Stefansson, Arctic explorer, who seems to think that he has proved that a diet exclusively of meat and water is all right. Stefansson has been living on his lion's diet at Bellevue hospital under the observation of physicians—not for the cure of any ill, because he is in sound health, but to put over the theory that a white man can live on the same kind of food as an Eskimo or a Kafir gun bearer and remain strong and well.

Both Stefansson and the doctors seem to make a lot of the fact that he has developed no evidence of high blood pressure, hardening of the arteries, kidney trouble or other trouble so often attributed to the eating of too much meat.

And how long do you suppose this experiment has been going on? Just three weeks.

Of what value is an experience of three weeks in demonstrating the effect of a diet—any diet not absolutely poisonous—on a strong man? Mighty little, we should say.

It is entirely possible, of course, that an exclusive meat diet might serve a Caucasian permanently, as well as it serves the little brown man of the Arctic. Or it might not. The point is that it is manifestly impossible to prove anything, either way, in any such trifling period as three weeks. Why, there are plenty of people who have gone that long without eating anything at all. But we never heard that they claimed to have proved that eating was all a notion and that a person could live and be well on a diet of air.

FALL

Whether that swashbuckling old crook Albert B. Fall is actually sinking into the Valley of the Shadow under the weight of his years and his sins or whether he is merely malingering again, as he has done on every opportune occasion in the past, he has at least succeeded in avoiding retrial in April for his share in the Teapot Dome conspiracy. The District of Columbia court has separated the cases of Fall and Harry F. Sinclair and the latter will have to face trial alone.

To what extent this situation has been brought about by the illness of Fall, and to what extent by uncertainty as to what amazing lies he might swear to in the "full story" he has promised—or threatened—to tell, one may guess. But at best Albert Fall is near the end of his long and devious trial; and nothing is more certain that nothing he could say in court or out, under oath or otherwise, could have the slightest value in determining the truth.

Nor is there anybody who cares a rap whether Fall is any further punished, even if he is in a fit state for punishment. He is the most discredited, utterly disgraced individual in America. He has gotten his.

WASHINGTON LETTER

By RODNEY DUTCHER

Washington, March 23.—Many stories have been written about the passing of the "Ohio gang" which President Harding brought with him to Washington. But the story of the "gang" Harding put in his cabinet has been almost as tragic.

Of the 10 members of Harding's original cabinet, but three—Mellon of the Treasury, Hoover of the Commerce Department and Davis of the Labor Department—remain. Of the 10, only four remain unaffected by scandals of the brief Harding administration. These are Hoover, Davis, former Secretary of States Hughes and former Secretary of Agriculture Wallace.

Secretary of the Interior Fall, Secretary of the Navy Denby and Attorney General Daugherty were driven from office. Postmaster General Hays has admitted receiving $260,000 in bonds from Harry F. Sinclair, the oil man alleged to have bribed Fall, and omitting to tell about $185,000 of them when first questioned by a Senate Committee.

Secretary of the Treasury Mellon has admitted receiving $50,000 of the bonds from Hays. Although he promptly returned them on learning that they came from Sinclair and that Hays wanted him to buy them so that $50,000 could be entered as Mellon's contributions and not Sinclair's, Mellon has been scored for failing to report his knowledge until faced with a subpoena.

The late Secretary of the War Weeks has been revealed as accepting $25,000 of the bonds in order to help conceal the Sinclair gift.

Although Mellon and Hays may have clear consciences, they certainly have been embarrassed by their forced revelations. How Hoover's enemies would delight to tack something like that on him! But both Hoover and Hughes have emerged from their service under Harding with no odor of gasoline upon their garments. The scandals haven't left the party without honest leaders.

Senator Frank R. Gooding of Idaho, in the national spotlight since he espoused the cause of the striking Pennsylvania coal miners, is one of those farm relief senators who know how the farmer has been hit. Gooding was one of the DUTCH ADVENTURERS IN BARREL SHAPED VESSEL WILL CROSS ATLANTIC.

London.—An attempt to cross the Atlantic in a lifeboat, which is claimed to be unsinkable, is to be made shortly by four Dutchmen.

The lifeboat, which is shaped like a barrel, has a hollow keel that is partly filled with water which will help to counter-balance the thrust of wave and wind. The keel is said to be the secret of her stability. It is stoutly built of oak, iron-ribbed and water tight.

The life-boat has developed a perpetual roll, says the Captain, C. J. Ellissen, so therefore, she cannot sink. It will carry three compasses and a wireless.

The first lap of the journey from Rotterdam to the Westminister pier, London, took four days. It is expected that the journey to America will take forty days or more.

INDUSTRIAL GAS HEAT DISCUSSED AT YALE MEETING

Conn. Manufacturers and Engineers Gather at Large Technical Session at New Haven.

One of the largest groups of heating engineers that have ever met in one conference in Connecticut gathered in the Mason Laboratory of Yale University at New Haven Wednesday to discuss latest methods of heat control brought about by the invention of new furnaces and appliances for the utilization of gas in industrial heating.

The conference which was held under the joint auspices of the mechanical engineering department of Yale University and the Manufacturers Association of Connecticut, found that by noon the lecture rooms of the Mason laboratory were not adequate to hold the continually augmented group of engineers and manufacturers, so that in the afternoon it was necessary to continue the conference in Lamson Lyceum. Although the main part of the audience came from Connecticut, there were engineers present from places as distant as New York and Pennsylvania, and in the case of one, from Detroit.

Engineers at the conference brought out the fact that gas is becoming an extremely important factor in industrial heating, and that manufacturers of other appliances for industrial heating tended to be unfair in comparing their equipment with the more antiquated industrial gas heating equipment rather than modern equipment. The development of gas use for industrial heating is comparatively recent, it was pointed out, and many of the new uses and methods of heat treatment by gas are comparatively unknown. The advantages of close and automatic temperature control was explained. It was said that there are over five thousand industrial uses for gas.

The morning session of the conference was presided over by Professor S. W. Dudley of Yale University and in the afternoon by Professor H. L. Seward. In the evening meeting, A. H. d'Arcambal, of the Pratt and Whitney company, Hartford, took the chair. A general discussion taking place after the morning meeting was led by J. Arnold Norcross, vice-president and general manager of the New Haven Gas Light company. Among the Connecticut men to address the conference were George S. Hawley, vice-president of the Bridgeport Hydraulic Co. and president of the Connecticut Gas Lighting Association; Dean C. H. Warren of the Sheffield Scientific School; Prof. H. A. Curtis and L. E. Seeley of Yale; W. P. Eddy, Geometric Tool Co., New Haven; S. P. Rockwell and R. W. Woodward, Stanley P. Rockwell Co., Hartford; H. F. Cosgrove, The Wallace Barnes Co., Bristol; and H. J. Rose, The Koppers Co., New Haven, who discussed the availability and uses of coke, an important by-product of gas manufacture.

JETTA GOUDAL AT THE RIALTO TONIGHT

"Fighting Love" Is Unusual Drama—William Fairbanks In Co-Feature.

"Fighting Love," is the title of Jetta Goudal's latest starring vehicle for Pathe-DeMille and it comes to the Rialto Theater for a two day showing commencing today. "Fighting Love," is a screen adaptation of a well-known magazine story by Rosita Forbes and presents the beautiful and exotic Jetta in one of the most striking and impressive roles of her career. Miss Goudal has been recognized among leading film authorities as the screen's most popular emotional actress. In this picture she lives up to her reputation and offers a most vivid impersonation of her ability. Supporting Miss Goudal in the cast are Victor Varconi and Henry B. Walthal, two of filmdom's leading favorites. "Fighting Love," was directed by Nils Olaf Chrisander, noted Swedish genius.

Paired with the Jetta Goudal feature is "When Danger Calls," a melodrama of action and thrills. It is a Gotham production with the husky William Fairbanks in the leading role. Supporting Fairbanks in this picture are Eileen Sedgwick, former serial queen, Hank Mann and Sally Long. If you like lots of fast motion you will do well to see this feature.

Hayden Stevenon and Gloria Grey again share honors in the current episode of "Blake of Scotland Yard," that thrilling Universal serial. This chapter is called "The Missing Heiress," and promises to be more mysterious and exciting than ever. A mirth-provoking comedy will round out the program.

The usual continuous performance will prevail at the Rialto running from 2:15 until 10:30.

30-FRANC BANK NOTE MAY BRING LAWSUIT BY THE DESIGNING ARTIST.

Paris.—Much criticism is being aimed at the new fifty franc bank note recently put into circulation, owing to its strong resemblance to the old 100-franc one. Both the general public and the bank cashiers find fault with it, especially the latter who must now carefully scrutinize large packets of one hundred-franc notes instead of simply turning up the corners.

The new note is also likely to be the subject of a lawsuit brought about by the daughter of the artist who designed it, who finds that the engraver has turned her father's work into a caricature. The Bank of France says that its business is not to produce a work of art but to put in circulation a banknote which cannot be counterfeited. The judge will probably decide the matter.

The territory included by Wisconsin was first seen by a white man in 1634. He was Jean Nicolet, the French explorer.

GIRL ALONE

BY ANNE AUSTIN "SAINT AND SINNER"

THIS HAS HAPPENED
SALLY FORD is little at the state orphanage when she is four by a woman who says she is the mother, but who never returns. At 16 Sally shows a genius for acting which sets her apart from the other girls in the orphanage. She is "farmed out" for the summer to CLEM DAVID, a farmer, who meets DAVID NASH, a handsome young student who is working on the farm during the summer. PEARL, Clem's daughter, hates Sally because David is plainly fond of the little orphan and determined to make Pearl and her crowd accept Sally as their equal.

One Sunday morning Sally is left alone in the kitchen while the Carson family goes to church. David sits on the back porch, looking on and studying. They are surprised when Pearl returns suddenly from having stolen her diamond pin.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY
CHAPTER VIII
SALLY stared at Pearl, color draining out of her cheeks as she looked at the girl who had been glowing and sparkling under the sun of David's affectionate interest.

"I haven't seen your diamond bar-pin, Pearl," she said at last. "Honest, I haven't!"

"You're lying! I saw you stoop and pick something up in front of the sofa last night. I was crazy not to think of my bar-pin then, but I remembered all right this morning, when it was gone off this dress, the same dress I was wearing last night. See David?"

David said nothing, but a slow, odd smile curled his lips without reaching those level, narrowed eyes of his.

Slowly, his eyes not leaving Pearl's face for a moment, David thrust his right hand into his pocket. When he withdrew it, something lay on his palm—a narrow bar of filigree set with a small square-cut diamond.

Still without speaking, he extended his hand slowly toward Pearl, but she drew back, her eyes popping with surprise and—yes, Sally was sure of it—fear.

"Where did you get that?" she gasped.

"Do you really want me to tell you?" David spoke at last, his voice queer and hard.

"No!" Pearl shuddered. "No! Does she—does she know?"

"No, she was telling the truth when she said that she hadn't seen the pin," David answered, flipping the pin contemptuously to the kitchen table. "But next time I think you'd better put it away in your own room. And Pearl, you really must try to overcome this abominable habit of yours. It may get you into trouble sometime."

Pearl shivered, seemed to shrink visibly under her fussy pink georgette dress.

"Haven't you better go back to church?" David suggested mildly. "Tell your mother you found your pin just where you'd left it, that contemptuous smile deepening on his lips."

"You won't tell Papa, will you?" Pearl whined, as she turned toward the door. "And you won't tell—her?" She could not bear to utter Sally's name.

"No, I won't tell," David assured her. "But I'm sure you'll try to make up to Sally for having been mistaken about the pin."

"You're lying! I saw you stoop and pick something up from in front of the sofa."

me if dinner is late," David said casually, but he paused to pat the little hand that was clenching the table.

Sally was so puzzled by the strangeness of the scene she had witnessed, so tormented by brief glimpses of something near the truth, so weak from reaction, so stirred by gratitude to David, that she was making poor headway with dinner when Clem Carson, who had not gone to church, came in from the barns, dressed in overalls in defiance of the day.

"Got a sick yearlin' out there," he grumbled.

He took the big black iron teakettle from the stove and filled the granite wash basin half full of the steaming water.

"Have been hanging around the kitchen this morning, ain't he?" Sally's hands tightened on the rolling pin and her eyes fluttered guiltily as she answered, "Yes, sir."

"Better not encourage him, if you know which side your bread's buttered on," the farmer advised laconically. "I reckon you know by this time that Pearl's picked him out, and that things is just about settled between 'em. Fine match, too. He'll own his granddaddy's place some day—next farm to this one, and the young folks will be mighty well fixed. I reckon Dave's pretty much like any other young whippersnapper—ready to cook an eye at any pretty girl that comes along, before he settles down, but it don't mean anything. Understand?"

"Yes, sir," Sally murmured. Somehow Sally managed to finish cooking the big Sunday dinner before the family returned from church. Out of deference for the day she decided to change from her fadedingham to her white dress before serving dinner.

In her little garret room she scrubbed her face and hands, plaited the heavy braid of soft black hair about her head, and then reached under her low cot bed for her small bundle of clothes, in which was rolled her only pair of fine-ribbed white hose stockings.

As she drew out the bundle she discovered immediately that other hands than her own had touched it; the stockings had been unrolled and then re-rolled clumsily, not at all in her own neat fashion. Then suddenly full comprehension came to her. The pieces of the puzzle settled miraculously into shape. It was here, in this bundle, that David had found the bar-pin.

If David had not seen—But she could not go on with the thought. Trembling so that her teeth chattered she dressed herself as decently as her orphanage wardrobe permitted, and then went downstairs to "dish up" the dinner she had prepared.

Immediately after dinner David went across fields to call on his grandfather, a grouchy, sick old man who almost hated the boy because he would soon own the lands which he himself had loved so passionately. He did not return Monday there was no time for more than a smile and a cheerful "Good morning," which Sally, with Clem Carson's eyes upon her, hardly dared return.

Sally wondered if David had been warned, too, for as the days passed she seldom saw him alone for as much as a minute.

On Thursday morning at 10 o'clock David appeared at the kitchen door, an axe in his hands. "Will you turn the grindstone for me while I sharpen this axe blade, Sally?" he asked casually, but his eyes gave her a deep, significant look that made her heart flutter.

Mrs. Carson, standing over her bubbling preserving kettles, grumbled an assent, and Sally flew out of the kitchen to join him.

"Fine!" she faltered. "I get awful tired, but there's lots to eat—such good things to eat—and Pearl's given me some dresses that are nicer than any I ever had before, except they're too big for me."

"Isn't she fat?" David grinned at her, and she was reminded again how young he was, although he seemed so very grown-up to her. "She wouldn't be so fat if she worked a tenth as hard as you do."

"I don't mind," Sally protested, her eyes misting with tears at his thoughtfulness for her. "I've got to earn my board and keep. Besides, there's such an awful lot to be done, with the preserving and the canning and the cooking and everything. Mrs. Carson works even harder than I do."

David's eyes flashed with indignation and a suspicion of contempt for the meek little girl opposite him. "You're earning five times as much as your board and room and a few old clothes that Pearl doesn't want are worth it. It makes me so mad—"

"Sally!" Aln't that are ground yet? Time to start dinner! I can't leave this pie! I'm making." Mrs. Carson shouted from the kitchen door.

"Wait, Sally," David commanded. "Wouldn't you like to take a walk with me after supper tonight? I'll help you with the dishes. You never get out of the house, except to the garden. You haven't even seen the fields yet. I'd like to show you around. The moon's full tonight—"

"Oh, I can't!" Sally gasped with the pain of refusal. "Pearl—Mr. Carson—"

"I want you to come," David said steadily, his eyes commanding her.

"All right," Sally promised recklessly, her cheeks pink with excitement, her eyes soft and velvety, like dark blue pansies.

Braving the wrath of Carson, Sally goes to meet David. In the next chapter.

(family on that shouldn't have a husband."

"He says that if you take his salary away from what he owes, the amount left on the debt side is what his wife's clothes cost."

"He told the judge that he couldn't pay her any more alimony. If he gives her any more he'll have to go to the Old Man's Home, he says, but she insists that he is rich."

while he would just throw it away."

One man fussed about bills. His wife had bought the children new coats which she sent back at once and bought cheaper ones instead.

"Where did you get those coats?" asked her husband a day or two later. "They are awful. You know I like the children to look nice."

If you remember an old song it might mean something to you. If we say right here: "What could the Poor Girl Do?"

There it is! That and much more of the same kind. Wives who do not know the condition of their husband's finances!

Yet it is not always the fault of the wife, by any means. Men are just as culpable.

Often a man deliberately gives his wife every reason to believe that his income is larger than it is. Foolish pride sometimes, and sometimes an anxious desire to keep himself up to par in her estimation. Nothing hurts some men so deeply as the knowledge that their wives have a feeling they are not making good.

It is a mistake, though, for husbands to let wives feel that there is more to spend than there actually is. It is one of the chief causes of women overspending.

Again some men object to their wives knowing anything about their business affairs at all, just on general principles. They like to keep things a secret, even from the family. One woman said, "I don't know this minute whether Max is worth a thousand dollars or a million."

There are other reasons for extravagance in women. Recently a friend said, "I may as well spend it. If I don't John will. And I'll have something to show for it."

MARYE and MOM

Their Letters
BY RUTH DEWEY GROVES

Darling:
Mom, you were just lucky, that's all. Lucky about me, I mean. Because in your innocent yet warmly appreciated trust in my angel-like ways you gave me all the rope I needed to act like an imp. Do you really think that a girl is thinking much of how she's been brought up when she's out with a boy who makes her dizzy? I'd like to say your attitude was perfectly correct but I can't. What a girl does depends upon her nature more than upon the sermonettes she gets at home. If she's the obliging, unselfish kind of a girl, she won't please the boy she loves. If the boy is the sort that has listened to his father's advice: remembered it as well, there's nothing to worry about.

Believe me, mom, I'll bring my daughters (if any) up to be selfish both before and after marriage. And I'll know that our marriage customs and economic conditions are at variance with Nature's laws.

To seek to deny an undeniable fact is stupid and dangerous. We "moderns" realize that and we should make better parents because of it. And there won't be much trusting of an untried girl's pledge to remember her mother while her sweetheart is holding her close and kissing her. Chaperonage is not resented by girls who are accustomed to it. Girls in Europe are chaperoned, and even in our country those from our best families have been carefully protected, until lately.

Now please don't get the impression that I don't believe in the virtue of the modern girl. I do, but I think instead of placing reliance upon the young girls to protect themselves we ought to give the girl the care she needs.

In Mabel's case there is ample proof for my point about belated authority. Her mother allowed her to run wild when she was a kid. I can well remember Mrs. Clary's house. She was never home to look after it or give Mabel bread and jam after school. Remember how she used to come home with me to get some eats? Yes, I know I'm outlining a stiff course for parents. And believe me I want to be well informed before I become one. It's my belief that parents "parent" too much at the wrong time. They slave for babies and then call it a day when the kiddies are half grown. With all my love,
MARYE.

This And That In Feminine Lore

Styles in picture frames change as do styles in other things. Fred Hughes at the Old Wood Shop prides himself on keeping the newest and most desirable framing mouldings in stock.

Every now and then a new spring printed silk is placed on the market depicting some sport or pastime. One of the gayest of these has for its inspiration Parisian night life, translated into a series of gorgeous colorful silks and woven on American looms. These patterns, however, are intended for lounging robes or pajamas, they're just a bit too bizarre to wear much beyond the boudoir.

Some of the leading shoes manufacturers are taking advantage of this vogue for the unusual in figured silks and making them up into the most intriguing footwear.

of oranges to prepared fruit. Bring to the boiling point and add raisins and sugar. Simmer ten minutes and add nuts. Cook ten minutes longer and pour into sterilized jelly glasses. Seal with paraffin when cold.

Men's Modes
The haberdashery shops are showing all the new styles in snappy spring headgear in which light or pearl hues lead. Crowns seem to be raised higher, either that or the narrowed brims give that impression. Some have the finished, silk-bound curled brims while many are in the favorite snap brims. When it comes to topcoats the older men prefer the straight cut models, and the young fellows the sporty, youthful raglans with generous flares. Topcoats are longer if anything this spring. Smart spring shirts sport stripes in a variety of fabrics, with madras as the leader. For a wide apart stripe a pen line of navy blue will be used with a satiny white stripe in between. Some of these colored, striped shirts have pleated bosoms. The newest idea is to have one wide pleat running each side of the front and the rest plain. Flannel shirts are popular for golf and sports.

April Fool's Day
This day dates back to the Romans but perhaps the best known practical joke on record occurred on the morning of April 1, 1860. A battalion of cabs rattled about the Tower of London vainly searching for the mythical white gate, where according to invitations sent out by some prankster the annual ceremony of the washing of the white lions would take place. The trick proved highly successful. Many a disgruntled Englishman drove back home that morning and wore off his disappointment with a hearty dinner of roast beef, Jack pudding—England's April Fool dessert—and tea.

We will give a recipe for Jack pudding and one or two other dishes appropriate to the first of April some day soon.

THE WOMAN'S DAY

BY ALLENE SUMNER

You've heard of the Senate Ladies Luncheon Club, of course. It's the one club which the wife of the president of the nation attends. But, after all, that no longer means so much since the visiting mother-in-law of a senator's wife kissed one First Lady and brought into effect a rule that no guests could be lodged to the meetings. And after all, senators' wives see the First Lady often enough for it to be no rare treat.

REAL ONES ONLY
But it seems that exclusive as it is, the Senate Ladies Luncheon Club has its troubles just like any Four Corners Sewing Society. The wives and daughters and mothers and other women folks of actual operating senators complain that the club is so over-run with "lame duck" members, the wives and daughters and sisters and aunts and grandmothers of erstwhile, dead or decadent senators, that there's no room left for a real senator's wife.

TROUBLE!
It seems that somebody wants a new rule limiting the club to the women folks of actually working senators. Naturally, the "lame ducks" want to stay in and see what the First Lady's wearing this Tuesday. Just like the rest of 'em. Trouble! And how we lesser females love it!

NO, NO, NANETTE!
It's one thing for the University of Chicago to say that a girl must earn $1800 a year before she can even think of holding silk stockings, and it's quite another matter what the girls do. A curious investigator has just discovered (after all, why was any investigation needed?) that a girl may earn but $12 a week and have her silk stockings. One girl quoted, said:

"GET FREE MEAL"
"After all, if your legs are decently covered there's always the chance that someone will blow you to a meal, and if you don't get the meal you'll keep your figure and have more chance to get a free meal in the future." A dried girls questioned admitted that the board and room bill came first—the lowest possible—and that after that, every cent went for clothes or beauty. Why worry about being sick or out of a job, seemed to be the general opinion. Clothes first. More chance to get a man and not have to work.

There's something awfully likeable about this modern frank working girl, going without her lunch for a powder compact!

PAPA KEEPS BUSY
A Belgian farmer's wife has just had her twenty-second child. Van Hul, the farmer, was quite alarmed about a year ago when King Albert, who christened his twenty-first child, told him of another Belgian family with 21 children. One wonders if the spirit of competition is quite so keen in the mother of the 22!

FIND ONE CAUSE OF LEAD POISONING IN SNUFF.
By DR. MORRIS. FISHBELN.
Editor Journal of the American Medical Association and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine.

Years ago Sir Clifford Allbutt, the famous British physician, ventured the opinion that certain conditions presumed to be gout were actually lead poisoning, resulting from the use of snuff contaminated with lead.

Recently Drs. W. Bauer and M. W. Ropes have made available the results of an investigation of a similar case occurring in a Swedish seaman, aged 53. His complaints of cramp-like pain, constipation, and general illness were found to be due to the fact that he had been using one or two ounces of moist snuff tobacco daily for a period of one to five years.

Eliminating Symptoms.
His blood was found to have the typical changes associated with lead poisoning. The cleansing of his system resulted in a complete elimination of the symptoms.

Examination of the moist snuff tobacco indicated the presence of lead in samples of both brands used by the patient. Once upon a time lead chromate was used to adulterate snuff because it improv-

OLDEST CAR NOW IS ON PENNSYLVANIA
Paris, France's oldest car, "Antoinette," has been given a pension for faithful service and now lives the life of Riley at the museum of the Automobile Club of Picardy.

"Antoinette" was purchased in 1895. Her owner, an abbe, towed it home behind a horse because she couldn't get there under her own power. Since then, the little engine has taken "Antoinette" over more than 175,000 miles of road.

There are Two Ways of Lining Brakes

The Old Way is to cut off the old rivets with a hammer and cold chisel, to drill the new lining with a hand drill (sometimes the holes are made with a hammer and punch) and then rivets are set with a hammer and the heads are battered into the lining as well as can be done with the pen of the hammer.

The Modern Way—the old rivets are punched out with a Manley Riveting Machine. The holes in the new lining are drilled with a Manley Brake Relining Machine and with the same machine larger holes are counter-bored in the brake lining for the heads of the rivets. The rivets are finally set with a Manley Riveting Machine.

Result—the lining is riveted snugly to the band or shoe, the heads of the rivets are deeply counter-sunk, and this kind of a brake relining job lasts twice as long, eliminates cutting of the brake drum by rivet heads and actually costs you a lot less, because the use of Manley Brake Relining Equipment saves so much time over the old hand method.

This is another reason why car owners prefer to have us do their work.

Tunney Signs To Fight No Later Than July

Heeneey or Risko to Be Opponent and Bout Is to Take Place in New York.

New York, March 23.—Through devious channels comes the word from Miami today that George Rickard and Brother Tunney have reached an "understanding." If they are referring to the heavy-weight situation, this makes them exactly one up on the rest of us, anyhow, the word is that Tunney will defend his title no later than July, that his opponent either will be Tom Heeneey or Johnny Risko and that the site of the transaction will be New York.

Heeneey, it seems, is the preferred candidate at the moment and it is assumed that, if the championship were to be fought for tomorrow, he is the man who would be in there taking uncalculated liberties with Brother Tunney's knuckles.

July the Month—Apparently for lack of more adequate data, it has been decided that the time might as well be July and the chin might as well be Heeneey's. However, I understand that neither George nor Brother Tunney is definitely committed to any opponent. They simply have agreed that Heeneey is a superior attraction that Risko, provided this pair doesn't have at it in the meantime, which probably it will.

Incidentally, it is Brother Tunney's thought that July will furnish the ideal date, it being his quite logical contention that, if an opponent is unavailable by "then, he, the opponent, will be equally "non est" in September and probably more so.

Sharkey's Sad Case—Brother Tunney, it need be, could site the melancholy case of Jack Sharkey, the ex-orator, as proving that one can afford to give a heavyweight contender almost anything, except too much time.

Six months ago, our Mr. Sharkey was the bellwether among heavyweights only remove his attention from himself long enough to sign on the dimpled line for a little fight. Just for the sake of making a little character, however, it was deemed advisable to send him along with Heeneey for a "breather." After it was over, they all got around and hoped he choked.

Then they rallied gamely and rushed into the light of Jay with the Sharkey-Risko fight, it any. The result of that elimination contest serve to eliminate Sharkey

McGRAW THINKS BUCS NOT SURE TO WIN PENNANT

Although the Pittsburgh Pirates probably will be the majority choice to win the National League pennant again this year, John McGraw, manager of the New York Giants, for one, does not believe the 1927 champions are the outstanding favorites.

"The Pirates," McGraw says, "are a good ball club but they are not one of those great teams that stand out way above the other teams. If their pitching staff does not deliver 100 per cent they will be in trouble."

"I think the Cardinals, the Cubs, the Reds and the Giants have to be figured. The Cubs are strengthened. The Cardinals will be better with Thevorn and O'Farrell playing regularly and the Reds will be improved with Kelly on first base."

HONESTY OF BOXING

While it proved of no value in bringing out a suitable opponent for Gene Tunney, the recent heavy-weight elimination tournament conducted by Tex Rickard might be taken as evidence that boxing at least has its honest moments.

Rickard made no secret among his friends of the fact that he would prefer to have Jack Sherkey in the ring for one of the summer bouts that Tunney has demanded and that he would rather have any other challenger than Tom Heeneey or Johnny Risko, but they turned out to be the winners if there were any winners.

Those who think that all of Rickard's big championship shows are a result of shrewd pre-arrangement believe that he is a power who can do any business he wants with the fighters. But if he ever did have any influence it didn't work for him this winter.

He figured after the Chicago fight last summer that the heavy-weight championship battle this year would be worth about $3,000,000 at the gate. But he hasn't a challenger now who would be sure to furnish a million-dollar show.

Influence Didn't Work
In connection with the failure of Sharkey to come through for Rickard against Heeneey or Johnny Risko, there is another angle that lends an honest look to the game.

Gray, W. Hartford, 12 4 28 That angle involves Jimmy Johnston, who was announced before the Heeneey fight as a purchaser of a 10 per cent interest in Sharkey.

Johnston is supposed to have a tremendous influence with the New York Boxing Commission and with other unofficial powers of the sport.

bership in the Sharkey firm the wise boys said—"Ho, Ho! They're lining up the works for Sharkey."

But the influence of Johnston, if there is a Johnston influence, didn't work for Sharkey. The same Johnston influence hasn't been working for other fighters in his control during the past year. He has been behind a parade of losers including Mike McGrade, Johnny Dundee, Phil Scott and Sharkey (twice).

After watching Johnston in action for a number of years, it was easy to become convinced that he got all the breaks possible for his fighters. He was on the job every morning when some of the other managers were just waking up, and he thought three times to their once.

Rickard Will Profit
Rickard may deserve some sympathy over the failure of his heavy-weight tournament. On the other hand, his accounts may show that he doesn't have more than a million-dollar heavy-weight attraction or no heavy-weight show at all.

It will be recalled that the Dempsey-Tunney fight in Chicago did draw almost $3,000,000, but that the net profit to Rickard's corporation was only some comparatively few hundred thousands.

Directors of the corporation yelled all over the place.

There was serious talk, in fact, that Rickard had been threatened with removal from the general management if he did not cut down guarantees to fighters, or consent to the board before he made big matches.

Without a heavyweight show this year, Rickard and his firm are bound to show a nice profit from matches for the light, heavyweight, featherweight and bantamweight championships. Rickard has them all lined up and one or two of them, at least, are certain to run up to a half-million each in receipts.

PAYS PLENTY IN SALARIES

The New York Yankees have the largest payroll in baseball, more than $300,000 a year being paid its players.

STAR TO MEET

Four of the outstanding performers in the track world will participate in the fourth annual Rice relay to be run at Houston, Tex., late in March. Officials of the relays have received definite assurance from Charley Paddock, Harold Osborne, Ray Dodge and Phil Guthrie that they will appear there.

FINE ATHLETIC RECORD

Three-letter men are rare these days, and those who do earn three-letters are also captain the three sports are about as rare as anything one knows, but in October, 1913, went five games during which every member of the club made at least one hit per game. In the sixth game every player made a hit except Tierney.

Newsy Notes From The Training Camps

Tampa, Fla., March 23.—Fresh from an easy victory over the Reading International, 19 to 3, the Senators take on the Giants today. The Senators pounded the Reading pitchers for 16 hits. Kioza, a recruit outfielder, gathered a homer and a triple.

Dallas, Texas, March 23.—The Chicago White Sox were here today to tackle the Dallas Club of the Texas League. In the final game against the Spudders yesterday, Ray Schalk's boys took a walloping to the tune of ten to five.

Los Angeles, Cal., March 23.—Joe McCarthy's Cubs, having bid final farewell to their Catalina Island training camp, were here today to engage the Hollywood Club of the Coast League.

GALLUP WILL ACCEPT COTTER'S CHALLENGE

Three Hundred Point "Home and Home" Match May Start Next Week Tuesday at South End; Title Not at Stake.

"Sure I'll play him." That was the statement which came from Jud Gallup, new town pocket billiards champion, when he read the Bill Cotter's challenge for an exhibition match in The Herald last night.

Gallup is willing to play a three hundred point exhibition match but is uncertain whether he will be able to play next Tuesday night as requested by Cotter. A week later would be better, he said. However Gallup will try to make arrangements to play next Tuesday.

PRaise FOR WILCOX

Jay Wilcox, a freshman at Kansas, is being boosted as one of the best sprint prospects in this country today.

State Champions Prove Superiority Over Jerry Fay's Team; Aetna Subs Trim Chase Girls of Waterbury 28-12.

The Community Club team was outscored the first quarter 13 to 0 and was blanketed the last stanza, too, being outscored 10 to 0. These decisive margins off set the middle periods in which the Community both outscored and outplayed their rivals. For a time in the third quarter, it looked as if the Community Girls might catch up to the Aetna. The locals brought the score up to 13 to 11 and then fell to pieces again.

Lillian Stuedtner, Aetna's great guard, whom this writer, regards as one of the best basketball players in the state, barring none, was outstanding in the play of the winners, although she tallied but twice. Ann Cain, the other guard, was also instrumental in breaking up the Community offense time and time again. The Kraemer twins, Ruth and Doris, and Catherine Connaughton took care of the scoring and did a good job. Miram Welles and Ethel Richmond were high scorers for Manchester. Mary Drew also played well. The defense, live work of Peggy McLaughlin, however, was the best individual work on the Manchester team. She worked on the Manchester team. She broke up many plays and was in there fighting for all she was worth every minute. It was not her fault the team did not function better. Anne Scranton played a hard game, but had some hard luck on her shots.

The Community Girls spotted the Aetna Life thirteen points right off the bat last night and then tried in vain to overcome the advantage. That they were unsuccessful, was only to be expected. The final score was 30 to 11. It was a worse beating than the Community took last time, it played the state champions in Hartford and proved conclusively that the insurance ladies are superior to Manchester at least this season. Maybe next year, they won't be. Who knows?

The Aetna Life not only disposed of the Community Club but also annihilated the Chase Girls of Waterbury by a 28 to 12 score. In the first game of the double billed crowd in the Broad street gym in Hartford, the Aetna regulars played only three minutes. Two guards stayed in until the first quarter was nearly over. Then in went the scrubs, and the regulars did not have to return.

CLEVELANDS MISS THEIR OLD LEADER

Indians Are Weak in Infield But Have Some Mighty Fine Pitchers.

New Orleans, La., March 23.—Midway between the 1927 and 1928 seasons, the Cleveland Indians, having lost the pennant the year before on the final day of the season, suddenly were deprived of Tris Speaker, great centerfielder and a successful manager.

The Indians have yet to produce a man to succeed him in either position, as their surprising reversal of form in 1927 so clearly proved. Roger Peckinpaugh, veteran of many a campaign, has come forward this year as the 1928 managerial hope of the Indians and to his experience and judgment has been supplemented the acumen of Billy Evans, former umpire. Between them they should furnish the Indians with the drive and inspiration that featured Speaker's leadership. But the furnishing of a centerfielder, per se, is something else again.

Three young outfielders named in the order of their status with the management, Ed Morgan, a college sensation who comes up from the New Orleans club; George Gerkin, back from Milwaukee; and Johnny Gill, up from Shreveport.

Morgan is the favorite with Peckinpaugh because of his hitting qualifications. He is regarded by some of the players as the best all-around man of the three but they concede that he will have to swing a hefty mace to take the job away from Morgan. He will be flanked in left by a real gardener, Charley Jamieson, and by an acceptable man in right, Homer Summa.

The infield is another of Peckinpaugh's problems. He has one stand-out man, Joe Sewell, the Alabama shortstop. The rest of the combination is rather uncertain, due to the arm injury of Fred Spurgeon at second base and the departure of Walter Lutzke from third base. The latter's post has been usurped by Johnny Hodop, although the Cincinnati boy has yet to live up to his American Association notices. Aaron Ward has been brought in from the White Sox as an emergency second baseman but Wardie never has been the same man since his great season in 1927.

Low Foucaea is a good man for utility duty at second. It is this lack of class in centerfield and the inner works that prevents the Indians from being the club their pitching merits. They have a great staff, composed of George Uhle, Emil Levson, Willis Hudlin, Joe Schaute, Walter Miller and Garland Buckeye. Uhle, they say, is due for a comeback, which, if true, means that the Indians will get pitching, if nothing else. The following are the best of the newcomers:

COLUMBO IS KAYOED IN THE FIRST ROUND

To the surprise of local boxing fans at the show of the Massasoit Club in Hartford last night, Frank Columbo, of Windsor Locks, victor in every battle he engaged in for nearly a year, was knocked out in the first round with practically one punch. The boy behind the wallop was Marino Pagoni, of Springfield, who is soon to turn pro.

The remainder of the bill was unusually good.

Following are the results of last night's bouts:

118 pounds: Trip Callaro, Worcester, defeated Adolph D'Onofrio, Hartford; 150 pounds: Joe Prestero, Worcester, outpointed Frank Nichols, Windsor Locks, four rounds; 133 pounds: Pancho Villa, Hartford, outpointed Sammy Kraft, Bridgeport; 115 pounds: Art Chapdelaine, Springfield, outpointed Eddie Reed, Hartford; 115 pounds: Hector Perry, Worcester, knocked out Carl Stalling, Hartford, one round; 175 pounds: Vic Carlson, Terryville, knocked out Louis Carmel, Holyoke, two rounds; 147 pounds: Vic Morley, Hartford, outpointed Bill Lieberman, Springfield; 133 pounds: Gerald Enard, Holyoke, outpointed Wilfred Savageur, Worcester; 135 pounds, Marino Pagoni, Springfield, knocked out Frank Columbo, Windsor Locks, one round; 170 pounds, Ray Saborn, Hartford, knocked out Lou Sherman, Bridgeport, one round.

Morgan is the favorite with Peckinpaugh because of his hitting qualifications. He is regarded by some of the players as the best all-around man of the three but they concede that he will have to swing a hefty mace to take the job away from Morgan. He will be flanked in left by a real gardener, Charley Jamieson, and by an acceptable man in right, Homer Summa.

Uhle, they say, is due for a comeback, which, if true, means that the Indians will get pitching, if nothing else. The following are the best of the newcomers:

Bill Bayne, E. C. Collard, George Grant and Mel Harder. They probably will round out the staff, with the rest going back somewhere for more experience.

There isn't a great deal of doubt about the catching, either, with Luke Sewell, Glenn Myatt and Martin Aurry. Last year's regulars, available, Sewell is the best of the lot but the other two are good enough.

SURE, IT'S FOOTBALL!

"Give us a little attention," the footballers are clamoring from the big colleges where squads are being called out for spring practice. While the rookie ball players are being looked over in the south, the track athletes are warming up for the Olympic trials and the golf bugs are shining clubs, the football candidates are doing their stuff just as briskly. In the picture above two of the candidates for Northwestern's varsity squad are running down a path of boxes. The stunt is supposed to teach them how to shift.

REC AND KNIGHTS CONFIDENT OF WINNING DECIDING BATTLE

Large Crowd Expected to Flock to Rec Gym Tonight; Roller Skating Game Added Attraction; Herb Smith Referee.

There is nothing new to write about the basketball game at the Rec Gym tonight between the Knights of Lithuania of Hartford and the Rec Five. Both teams are all set for the third and deciding game of their series and each is confident of winning. The only other thing necessary to make the game a big success, is a big crowd and indications are that the attendance will be heavy.

The game is the only sporting attraction in town the rest of the week and the great battles which the teams took part in the first two times they met seems to assure another red hot battle this evening. Herb Smith will be the eleventh man on the floor and play will start at quarter of nine. The preliminary game between the Rec Girls and New Britain Machine is on the books for 7:30. This will also be handed by Smith. It will be recalled that the Hardware City team gave Manchester a defeat in its first game of the season.

Coach Earl Bennett will probably start Shages and Girattis at forwards, Stan Shimkus at center with Red Masotas and Charlie Shimkus in the backcourt. Manager Ben Clune has not announced his starting lineup but it will probably be selected from these players, Mantell, Faulkner, Bissell, Norris, Madden and Farr. Anyone who saw these two teams play in either of the first two games, will not miss tonight's battle unless absolutely necessary.

And don't forget the basketball game between the halves of each game on roller skates. The teams will be composed of local players and the fun which will happen should be worth the price of admission alone.

KELLEY TAKES PIPP'S JOB

Don't be surprised if long George Kelley displaces Wally Pipp at first base for the Reds this year. His work in spring training has been far better than Pipp's.

ANOTHER ROCKNE COACH

"Chlie" Walsh, end on the 1927 Notre Dame eleven, will be an assistant coach at Washington University in St. Louis next fall.

Jack Sharkey's Downfall Due To Too Much Money

BY HENRY L. FARRELL
No fighter in modern days arose from the middle class as rapidly as Jack Sharkey and no fighter of prominence descended as quickly as he did when he slipped.
In less than a year Sharkey pulled himself from the ranks of an ordinary young heavyweight to the position where he was the outstanding choice as the challenger for the championship. William Muldoon, among others, saw in him the next champion.
Then, with almost the same speed, he started sliding and in less than a year found himself a thoroughly discredited fighter, a fighter removed from $100,000 shots to the circuit of small-time clubs.
Many reasons are being offered to explain the failure of a young man with the potential qualities of a champion, who rose within an inch of the heights and fopped almost to the bottom.
They say that he is yellow and the ones who say it are those who grab at every reason when they have no better one.
They say that he fell from a well-head. It is not to be denied that he was a vain, arrogant and flippant young man.
They say also that Jack Dempsey aimed him. There may be something in the legend that they're never any good after Dempsey gives them a beating, even if Tunney does brand it a myth.
It is a fact of record that Sharkey made mistakes in training and in fighting that must have been the result of a private opinion that he knew better than any of his counselors. And it is quite certain that if the beating Dempsey gave him didn't actually ruin him, it didn't do him any good.

The charge that he is yellow, however, is not fair. He had to have courage to fight Harry Wills and to mix punches with Dempsey when no other heavyweight in the world was willing to try it.
It is true that he couldn't "take it," but there is a vast difference between inability to "take it" and unwillingness to "take it."
When Dempsey was training for the Sharkey fight, Leo Flynn, who was handling Dempsey, openly charged that Sharkey was yellow and that he would cry foul when he was hit in the stomach.
"That is right," Tommy Loughran said one day during that time. "I know a lot about Sharkey. He can't take it in the body. But it is not that he is lacking in courage. He is not strong in the stomach and punches in the body hurt him so much he has to back up. He has a natural frailty that you never would expect in an otherwise strong and powerful physique."
The real reason for his failure, we think, is one that is not quoted so much because it does not seem possible that in these days anyone could resist the temptation of a million dollars.
The other reasons given above were contributing factors, but we believe, and some of those who know him best agree in the belief, that too much money and easy living ruined him.
No intention is meant to convey the idea that a sudden fortune of several hundred thousand dollars and the assurance of a comfortable income for life led him into dissipation, but success destroyed his incentive and dulled his ambition.

gray walls of the prison courtyard intoning "Jesus have mercy, Jesus have mercy," as the stumbling steps of the death procession mounted the nineteen ice-coated steps of Canada's crimson-hued gibbet.

Jesus have mercy on my soul," the loud tones of the French-accepted voice rang sharply through the cold dawn. Then suddenly McDonald's voice was heard. As the New Yorker spoke, the heel of Arthur Ellis put the period of death to his uncompleted sentence.

At 5:34 McDonald was led from the cell-block in which he spent his last hours, in a solemn procession led by Father Verschelden, his spiritual adviser, who intoned the death-ritual in solemn chant.

Five convicts from Bordeaux prison guarded McDonald in the dreary march of death up the nineteen oaken steps to the gallows platform.

At 5:35 Hangman Ellis placed the noose over the head of the playboy of the roaring Forties and clamped down the black cap on his head.

WIFE'S FATE
Kingston, Ontario, March 23.—While George McDonald was being propelled into eternity at Valleyfield this morning, the governor and his assistants at the federal penitentiary here were making ready to receive his wife, Doris Julia Palmer McDonald, within the grey limestone walls of the prison that will be her home for the next 25 years and possibly for life.

Already the bare eight-by-four cell that will house the former actress has been made ready for her. The cot bed, with taut chicken wire for a spring and unpainted scantlings for its supports, has been covered with a straw-stuffed mattress. Grey woolen blankets, folded in barrack fashion have been placed at its foot. The prison pillow of yellow homespun, stuffed with straw, awaits the Titan bit of the girl who boasted that she and her mate "only played the best hotels."

Prison Costume
In less than a week Doris will pass through the barricaded gate of Kingston penitentiary. All the finery and accessories which McDonald's forged checks purchased for her in the exclusive shops on Fifth avenue will be shed in the ante-room when the cold particulars of birth and antecedents are recorded in the prison files. The trim boyish bob will be slashed with prison shears in hands which give no thought to the decrees of Paris or Broadway. Knee length silk day or night gown, drab gray cotton reaching to the cold penitentiary floor. Sheer negligee will be thrown into the prison matron's old-clothes basket and will be supplanted by prickly, durable woollens.

Her Routine
At dawn every morning when, in happier days Doris and her lover were wont to return to exclusive hotels from all-night road house parties, a gong will clang through the cement-walled corridors of the pen, summoning the flapper-lifer to her day of prison-coil. Morning ablutions will be performed under the eye of a woman warder. The simple prison breakfast of coarse oatmeal bread and tea will be passed through the bars to the blithe adventuress who greeted her days at noon.

Morning devotions conducted by a prison chaplain will be followed by long hours of work in the penitentiary workshops.

Fingers which have never known household labor will adapt themselves to manual shopwork. Closely disciplined hours will mark every day. Each day will be a replica of the one which preceded it.

Gongs will resound through cold stone corridors and the girl who jumped every fence of domestic discipline for twenty years will fall in the long line of female felons.

Eight hours of sleep, twelve hours of closely-watched labor and four hours for solitary meditation in her rectangular cell will replace the wine parties, pliffed limousines, forged checks and gay journeymen of the life that Doris McDonald and her con-man lived together.

DIES AT 90

Mystic, Conn., March 23.—Mrs. Bridget Craddock died at her home on Prospect hill, Noank, today at the age of ninety years after a long illness. She was born in Mystic August 15, 1837 and lived in the town all her life.

ANOTHER TARZAN STORY AT THE CIRCLE TODAY

"The Golden Lion" Here With "Her Summer Hero" Today and Tomorrow.

"Tarzan and the Golden Lion" and "Her Summer Hero" are the two features at the Circle theater today and tomorrow. And on Sunday and Monday the Circle will present "The Rose of Kildare" with Helene Chadwick, and "The Stronger Will" with Percy Marmont in the leading role. Amazingly picturesque backgrounds are to be found in "Tarzan and the Golden Lion." The famous African veldt with its strange beauty is depicted in a very realistic fashion. One of the loveliest scenes is a glade almost surrounded by giant boulders, while the most spectacular of all is a precipitous cliff of remarkable proportions. There are also some marvelous caves into which the light filters, giving the picture such sharp lines that it resembles an etching. These natural beauties are rivaled by the magnificence of the Palace of Diamonds.

Made under the direction of James Dugan, "Her Summer Hero" is a story of collegiate life during the summer at a gay beach resort. Perhaps its greatest feature lies, it is said, in the realistic manner in which the director has portrayed this brilliant existence.

Two life guards love two beautiful girls and through a misunderstanding almost lose them both. But the sincere and earnest one wins his love, while the other, a carefree but lovable giant, returns to his task of saving beautiful little blondes and feeding the orange-ade to revive them.

James Pierce, known all over the country as a football hero, plays the giant life-guard, friend of the leading man, Hugh Trevor. Duane Thompson plays opposite Trevor and Sally Blane with Pierce. Harold Goodwin is the heavy and Cleve Moore has an important part.

JERUSALEM DOES NOT PERMIT LIQUOR TO BE SOLD ACROSS THE BAR.

Jerusalem.—In an effort to keep the Holy City as good as its name the authorities are not permitting bars in Palestine. Prohibition on alcoholic beverages does not exist but the thirsty must go to hotels or restaurants for their drinks.

The familiar bars found everywhere in the Middle and Near East with the too familiar lady dancing partners are not allowed anywhere in Palestine.

The absence of drunkenness in Palestine was commented on at the last session of the Permanent Mandates Commission where it was pointed out that the Moslems are supposed not to drink on religious grounds, the Jews although not laboring under such prohibition are habitually non-alcoholic, and the rather small number of Christians are as abstaining as their neighbors.

Discarded theories far surpass in number the proved facts.

STAMFORD, CONN., MARCH 23.—George Bergehneder, of Darien, was sending his car up to a speed of sixty-two miles an hour early today as he tried to get away from policeman, according to Hagen's report of the affair. Hagen stuck to Bergehneder from the foot of Noroton hill into the center of Darien and then arrested him.

Bergehneder was locked up on a charge of driving while intoxicated after he had been examined by a police surgeon.

RAILWAYS FIGHT MOTOR BUS FOR BRITISH TRADE

London.—The war between the railroad corporation of Britain and the motor-coaches which, by inducing passengers to travel by road instead of by rail, have made such deep indentations into their traffic, is becoming acute.

The railroad corporations are now seeking legislative powers to enable them to run motor-coaches and freight wagons on the road which will compete with the rival motor-coaches and probably undercut their rates.

A certain bitterness has crept into the dispute on both sides, and strong public feeling is also evident. A glance at the old transport system of Britain will explain this.

Ancient Methods

Until the advent of railroads, transport in Britain was conducted either by the old-fashioned coach, immortalized by Dickens, or in the case of freight, mainly by canals. With the coming of the railroads, the old-fashioned coaches with their four and six horses, and the old fashioned inns, were forced out of business. The canals were mainly bought up—and left disused—by the railroads—who for a century enjoyed a monopoly of both passenger and freight traffic.

The high rates imposed by the railroad companies after the war brought the motor-coaches into being. Today they have expanded to the point where they offer a complete network of service throughout Britain, practically comparable with the service of the railroads themselves.

Their service from the viewpoint of time is regularly itself. They may be a little slower than the trains, but the passengers have the advantage of traveling on the open road, and stopping anywhere they wish, should the majority so desire. The coaches are built on the plan of low level safety and most of them compare with parlor Pullmans for comfort.

And their fares generally range about 25 per cent below the rates of the railroad competitors.

Frequent Coaches

In a case such as a town like Southampton, about 80 miles by road from London, there are usually about 30 coaches running daily carrying an average of thirty to forty passengers each, all traveling on the open road in comfort.

The giant plane, which is known as the Beardmore Intexible, has a wing span of 150 feet and a total weight of fifteen tons. It is declared to be capable of carrying twenty passengers and sufficient fuel to take them on a flight of many hours' duration.

With appropriate ceremonies, the plane was launched on its first test flight at the Royal Air Force Aerodrome recently, and although it was kept in the air less than half an hour and put through no complicated manoeuvres, it is declared to be a marvel of perfection in control and flying ability.

The machine is equipped with three Rolls Royce engines, each of 650 horsepower. It has been constructed with a view to carrying a large number of passengers, with the added advantage of sufficient room to store a large supply of gasoline.

There are but few planes in the world which in any way approach the Beardmore Intexible in size. The nearest competitor in span is the French Penhoet flying boat, which is 131 feet from wing tip to tip, and is driven by five Jupiter radial engines of 425 horsepower each. The French Farman night bomber has a span of 114 feet, and a weight of just less than eleven tons.

The machine was ordered by the Air Ministry from the original plans of Dr. Rohrbach, the German airplane designer. It is to be used for experimental purposes mainly, as a vehicle from which the most valuable data for further development can be secured.

Real Estate for Exchange

FOR SALE OR EXCHANGE property in town, in good locality. What have you to offer? Wm. Kanehl, Telephone 1774.

It's little wonder that the railroad companies are becoming successful under this competition and are asking legislative aid to meet it. But whether they will receive popular sympathy in their attempt is more than doubtful.

The general public feeling is that if the four big railroad corporations succeed in obtaining powers to run vehicles over the high roads, then, with their enormous resources, their first act will be to suppress their present competitors and put up all rates to the present level of trains. And remembering what the railroads did to the old canals, the average elector is likely to fight this process to the bitter end.

HOLD SUSPECT.

San Francisco, March 23.—Suspected of being implicated in the $140,000 swindle of Thomas Needham, wealthy English traveler, James Barry, Alias Jack Harris, was held in the city prison here today after he had been caught as a stowaway on the same liner in which Needham and his wife and daughter arrived here from Honolulu.

ALL-METAL MONOPLANE IS ENGINEERING FEAT; HAS SUCCESSFUL TRIAL

London.—Characterized as one of the greatest achievements of modern aeronautical engineering, the largest all metal monoplane in the world has undergone successful trial flights at Croydon, where it was constructed, and is soon to be put into actual service.

THE BOOK OF KNOWLEDGE: (244) Uses of Oil

Sketches by Bessey; Synopsis by Braucher

The main uses of mineral oil are found in power, in lighting and in lubricating, but modern chemists are developing many by-products. About 200 substances have been derived from crude oil and chemists say they will get many more. In time to come it is likely we will use dyes, artificial India rubber and so on, taken from petroleum.

REFINED PETROLEUM AND VASELINE, OR PETROLEUM JELLY, ARE VERY VALUABLE AS MEDICINES. PARAFFIN WAX IS ANOTHER USEFUL BY-PRODUCT.

When Dr. Gorgas fought the deadly mosquito in the building of the Panama Canal, he used petroleum to coat the surface of the waters in which mosquitoes bred.

Many great ships use oil to generate steam. Oil being cleaner than coal and in many ways more efficient, it is being used to heat many homes, also. A new electrically driven steamship uses oil to drive steam turbines which in turn drive electrical generators which run the ship, load the cargoes and even peel the potatoes.
