U-SAVE MARKET SIMPLY VANISHES Owners Decided to Practice Their Own Preachings and Pull Out at Night.

The U-Save Market is no longer with us. There is an air of mystery about its passing. It was doing business as usual Saturday but yesterday morning the doors were closed and most of the stock had disappeared. It is reported that a large truck bearing Massachusetts markers backed up to the store late Saturday night and carried away a good portion of the stock. The U-Save opened its doors in the Orange Hall building about two months ago and made a bid for a share of Manchester's business, but evidently that share was too small to make business profitable. Just why the owners left in the night is not known.

82 RUNNERS LEFT IN UNION DERBY

Clinton, Okla., April 10.—C. C. Pyle's eighty-two New York-bound heel and toe artists today moved out of Sayre for their 38th control, 51 miles eastward. The warm Oklahoma sun and wide sandy roads were a boon to the Union Derbyists after a trying week-end in Texas in the throes of a blizzard that caused many of the stragglers of the race to fall by the wayside.

Andrew Payne, Oklahoma youth, headed the caravan out of Sayre with an elapsed time of 226:33:07 for the 1,335.6 miles from Los Angeles.

Increasing interest in the trans-continental race is evidenced with each passing day. At Erick, a town of 2,000, through which the field of runners and walkers passed yesterday morning, several times that number lined the streets. Local financiers lost no time in printing streamers, "Welcome Andy," a tribute to young Payne, which were readily purchased by his zealous supporters.

JUST AN OLD-FASHIONED GARDEN

But the Practicable Response to That Creative Urge Which Comes With Spring Flowers.

A glimpse into an old-fashioned garden

By ELLEN EDDY SHAW. Curator of the Brooklyn Botanical Garden.

The first gentle breath of spring reminds us that we really should have a flower garden of our own this year. Not alone for its fragrance and color, but because of the creative joy and inspiration that comes from working the soil.

Two American Types. Two types of gardens fit in well with the small yard space most Americans now boast. First, the perennial garden of more or less regular beauty that comes up year after year.

Must Have 'Em. Old-fashioned gardens grow a wide variety of posies. But grandmothers used always to have certain flowers that an old-fashioned garden nowadays just can't seem to get along without.

Plan your garden on paper before buying seeds or plants. Only one thing need be straight, the time of planting depends on where you live. In sections corresponding to New York, middle May is the best time to put the flower seeds in.

In a new movie palace recently, I saw three wads of chewing gum being used for decoration. One was placed on the side of a bronze-marble drinking-fountain, one on a wall near a mural painting, the other on the arm of a chair—not under it—on it.

The theater cost three million dollars. The price of admission is 50 cents. The price probably would be lower if the owners did not have to allow for depreciation through sheer vandalism and pay an enormous amount weekly to charwomen, painters, and carpenters, to keep the place clean and in repair.

It is strange but true that the very people who have so little regard for the property of others, as a rule, will forsake a place that begins to look dingy and soiled, and look for new worlds to destroy.

It is the same with parks. The departments of public works in large cities pay more to their cleaning squads than to their gardeners and botanists.

MILLER HUGGINS, YANKEES: "We will get stronger opposition this year and I do not expect to win the pennant by 19 games as we did last year, but I am confident we will win. We have more all-around strength than we had last year. The form shown in the pre-season exhibition games doesn't count. The Athletics will be our hardest opponent."

CONNIE MACK, ATHLETICS: "We have our hearts set in winning the pennant this year and if we fail we will have no excuses. The Athletics have been improved and even if the Yankees are a great ball club they surely can't win 20 ball games from the Browns again. We expect to get better pitching and no club in the league has better spirit."

BUCKY HARRIS, SENATORS: "I do not want to predict we will win the pennant, but I am willing to claim second place and if the Yankees should slip we ought to be in there. We have some fine young pitching and the team is in good physical condition and we won't make some mistakes we made last year. I do not think the Yankees are in danger of falling apart but I don't believe they are as sure as they were last year."

GEORGE MORIARTY, TIGERS: "I am not willing to do any claiming for the Tigers but I certainly am not going to make any concessions to any other club in the league. I think the Tigers are stronger, with a better throwing and faster outfield that ought to strengthen the defense by one or two runs. The Yankees look strong but they have a load to carry."

ROGER PECKINPAUGH, INDIANS: "With the Cleveland club in the process of entire reorganization, we are not shooting at the pennant. However, we have an ambition for the first division and have a chance of doing it if the pitching staff delivers up to expectations. The Yankees look hard to beat. They are a powerful club."

RAY SCHALK, WHITE SOX: "The promise of new players and the improvement expected in some of the young players from last season give us a chance to hit the first division. I know there are three very strong clubs in the league but that will not keep us from trying. The team that beat the Yanks will win the pennant."

DAN HOWLEY, BROWNS: "I don't know what the St. Louis club will do this year although I can be frank in the admission that we do not expect to win the pennant. We have almost a new team and while it has promise for the future only actual championship games can be the test. We won't lose 20 games to the Yanks this year."

BILL CARRIGAN, RED SOX: "We are not expecting too much from the Red Sox but we all think that we will escape from last place. We are not interested so much in what team takes eighth place. We will figure in the pennant race, however, as we expect to knock over the favorites more than we did last year."

DONIE BUSH, PIRATES: "We're stronger than we were last year and the opposition is no stronger, so why shouldn't we expect to win the pennant again? I am perfectly satisfied with the team and the condition of the squad. We know that we will have to play ball in every game and that's what we are going to do."

BILL McKECHNIE, CARDS: "From our experience last year we know how much the breaks figure in a pennant race and we figure it is about time that we should lose bad luck. I don't know yet about the Cards, but I do know that we'll be in there trying. The Pirates are not a cliché."

JOE McARTHUR, CUBS: "I notice that not much has been mentioned about the Cubs and that is to our liking but when we get up there this year I hope we'll not be named another dark horse because we have a club that belongs here. We know what caused us to lose out in the last quarter in 1927 and we have made the necessary improvements."

FARRELL TO TELL HEENEY'S HISTORY TO LOCAL READERS

Sports Expert Prepares Series of Six Articles Dealing With Hitherto Unknown Facts.

Not many months ago, there arrived in New York a heavyweight fighter of no great reputation named Tom Heenev.

He was broke and discouraged and his arrival caused no great excitement among the promoters and managers of the big city.

All he sought was enough work to provide transportation to his native New Zealand where again he could ply his trade as a blacksmith.

But he had no friends and those whom he asked for aid frowned upon him. That is, all except one man.

There lived in New York a man named Charles Harvey. A square shooter, and an importer of English fighters for many years.

Luck had never smiled on Harvey. But he was cheerful and optimistic and he still held hopes of a "break."

It was this man who gave encouragement to Heenev. He heard Heenev's tale. He had experienced similar tough breaks. But he had his great faith that some day he'd get a break and he took Heenev on feeling that at last Luck might smile on him.

Many obstacles had to be pushed over, but Honest Tom and lovable Charley Harvey raced them with courage.

Once an attempt was made to steal Honest Tom from Harvey, as Luis Firpo had been edged away from Jimmy De Forest, the man who might have managed him into the championship.

Honest Tom listened and smiled and stuck to Harvey because Harvey had had faith in him when the others had given him the air.

Time passed . . . and Heenev and Harvey progressed . . . and their obstacles were shoved behind. Today, Heenev is matched for a championship fight with Champion Gene . . . and Harvey is enjoying the break that he waited for for 20 years!

Such is the story of Tom Heenev and Charles Harvey as told for The Herald by Henry L. Farrell in a series of six articles which starts on tomorrow's sport page. One day will follow on the sport page.

The story of Heenev and Harvey is a story of friendship and gratitude and implicit faith. Its human-interest quality is one certain to appeal to every reader. It is timely.

We believe the author, a close observer of the boxing racket for years, has written one of the most interesting stories of the fight game that has been related in many years.

"Good Weather", News From Most Of Cities

Cincinnati is Only Exception As Forecast Says Possible Rain—Games in Eight Cities at Opening of Season Tomorrow—Where the Teams Play.

BY DAVIS J. WALSH

New York, April 10.—Trusted couriers, riding in wildly from various frontiers after gruelling nights in the saddle, arrived at headquarters today to fall from spent horses in exhaustion. But ere they swooned at our feet, they were able to gasp the tidings that favorable weather might be forthcoming tomorrow on at least seven of the light sectors where an opening of the Major League baseball season is scheduled and undoubtedly the thanks of a grateful nation will be theirs.

For tomorrow is the day of days in baseball, the one day of the 365 on which murder lacks the virtue of being really good taste; the one day of the year when the focus of national attention is upon the ball field.

Attendance At Games Not everyone can attend the inaugurations in the eight fortunate cities; but, granted a break in the weather, the total attendance is likely to top a quarter of a million souls.

Only for the Cincinnati opening, between the Reds and Chicago Cubs, are the weather prophets disposed to be pessimistic. They have declared for overcast skies with a possibility of rain. However, "probably clear" is the word for the Polo Grounds' ceremonies involving the Giants and Braves and for the Ebbets Field affair between the Dodgers and Phillies.

At Shibe Park, Philadelphia, where the Yanks and Athletics will hold forth, the forecast is for fair weather. At St. Louis, the outlook is for "probably clear and warm" for the Cardinal-Pirate game. Fair and cool comes the word from Chicago for the White Sox-Indian contest and Detroit, where the Tigers and Browns will play, reports clear and cold weather in the offing. That is Boston's story, too, for the Red Sox-Senator opening.

President To Be There The latter, by the way, will be a translated repetition of today's "gun-beating" ceremonies in Washington, the season being advanced one day in order that Mr. Coolidge may first-ball the situation in the immemorial manner.

New York, Philadelphia, Brooklyn, Detroit and St. Louis figure to outscore the other openings in attendance. In fact, the first two can hardly miss a sell-out. At the Polo Grounds, McGraw will marshal his Giants against the Braves and that means that Rogers Hornsby will be playing against the club that sent him away in that highly emotional trade of mid-winter. Even if it wasn't the start of a new season, the boys would rally around the turnstiles to see the fighting Hornsby try to make the Giants look sour. A crowd of at least 50,000 is expected.

Philly The Shibe Park affair is even more interesting. Not only does it couple the two leading clubs of the American League but it will be a contest of Ruth and Gehrig on one side and Cobb and Speaker, playing together at the sunset of their careers, on the other.

SENSE and NONSENSE

We're still old-fashioned enough so that we look away, after a minute or so, when we see a well-dressed young woman sliding out of an automobile seat, facing us, as they sometimes do.

"How did you happen to get hit?" asked a friend of the much-banded victim of a collision between a truck and a filver. "Well, I was rolling along in my old bus watching the road and driving as I should when along came a truck with a sign on the windshield, 'Howdy, half the road is yours.' I thought to myself 'That fellow's a gentleman,' but I didn't find out till later that by 'half' he meant the outside quarter of each side."

The young lady put out her arm indicating that she was making a left turn. Imagine my surprise when she turned to the left.

"Is he a good driver?" "Well, when the road turns the same time he does, it's just a coincidence."

A Hebron man came in and said he had an item for an automobile page. He said he went for a drive to several towns with a friend and in the course of the journey they had to cross several railroads. "At every crossing," the young Hebron man declared, "that fellow would slow up, look both ways up and down the track, and if there was a train coming anywhere in sight, he would stop the car and wait for the train to pass. I asked him why he was so careful, and he looked surprised and said he always did that. He said he saw an automobile try to but a train of the track once and was convinced that it could not be done. Besides that he said his wife promised to have strawberry shortcake for supper that night, and he didn't want to die before supper."

LETTER GOLF

A WARM WEATHER PUZZLE

Just in case any letter golf fans suffer from spring fever, today's puzzle is not too hard. There's a bit of spring in going from WILD to ROSE and the par is four. You may be able to beat the solution.

THE RULES

- 1.—The idea of letter golf is to change one word to another and do it in par a given number of strokes. Thus to change COW to HEN, in three strokes, COW, HOW, HEW, HEN. 2.—You can change only one letter at a time. 3.—You must have a complete word, of common usage, for each jump. Slang words and abbreviations don't count. 4.—The order of letters cannot be changed.

The husband was showing his wife over the new home in which they were to live. "Do you like it, dear?" he asked. "Oh, it's perfectly wonderful," she replied. "Those beautiful windows! The wonderful floors! The fine furniture—why, it's almost as nice as a filling station."

Bob: "Any speed traps around here?" Village Constable: "None. Not any more. Catchin bootleggers pays better." "Just bought a new car." "Thought you were going to have your old one repaired." "Oh, I couldn't afford that!"

THE TINYMITES

READ THE STORY, THEN COLOR THE PICTURE.

The queer parade moved right along, and not one little thing went wrong. The butcher said, "You Tinymites can trail along behind. The meats are leaving us today. That's why they're on their merry way. They're heading for the station, where a train they're going to find." "Come on," yelled Scouty, "fall right in." The butcher then began to grin to see the band of Tinymites do just as they were told. "I guess I'll go along," said he, "to see what fun there's going to be. 'Tis well it isn't far 'cause I am getting pretty old." Then Clowny said, "Oh, no, you're not. That's just a heap of tommy rot. Don't say you're old, although the years may very quickly pass. Just live as happy as can be. 'Twill help to keep you young, you see. Who ever does that sort of thing's a happy lad or lass." The butcher promptly shook his head, "That's very good advice," he said. "There's happiness on earth for all. 'Tis foolish to be sad. I've watched you Tines quite a while. I'm glad to see you always smile. It's best to see the good side of all things, and not the bad." Just then the queer freight car was reached. "Oh, here we are!" one small ham screamed. "We're going for a long long ride. That ought to be real fun. Inside that car we'll soon be stored. Come on, now, let's all hop aboard." And, while the Tines watched them all the meats began to run. The sight was one that made them grin. The meats all scrambled to get in. When they were all on board the butcher man exclaimed, "Hurray!" And then the train moved out real slow. The meats all shouted, "Here we go!" The Tines waved good-bye to them as they were on their way. (The Tinymites meet some little pork chons in the next story.)
