

LINDY HEADS NEW COAST TO COAST AIRWAY

To Devote All of His Time to Directing Flyers From New York to Los Angeles; Big Salary.

New York, May 23.—Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh gave new and practical impetus to the development of aviation in the United States by accepting a position as technical head of the newly-formed Trans-Continental Air Transport, Inc., a $5,000,000 corporation which will establish a coast-to-coast train and plane service, cutting the traveling time from New York to Los Angeles to 48 hours, or exactly in half.

"Lindy's" title is "chairman of the technical committee." His salary has not been announced, although it is said to be extremely liberal. It is believed, too, that he has been given a generous block of stock. He will devote all his time to the new job.

All matters concerning choice of equipment, fields, general service, flying routes, and safety appliances will come under the authority of the committee of which Lindbergh is the head. The president of the company is C. M. Kramer, who is also president of the Curtiss Aeroplane & Motor Corporation.

Railroads Interested
The railroads identified with "Lindy's" new company are the Pennsylvania and the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe. The two airplane companies involved are the Curtiss Company and the Wright Aeronautical Corporation.

Public interest in the new air-rail corporation, formation of which was announced a week ago, is reported to be great. The route to be followed is by train from New York to Columbus, Ohio, by plane from Columbus to Wichita, Kansas, thence over the Atchison by train to some station yet to be selected in New Mexico and then by plane again to Los Angeles.

The route was selected upon the recommendation of Lindbergh, who was in conference with officials of the railroad and airplane companies before the new corporation was organized. Passengers are to be carried in big, specially constructed planes equipped with the best safety devices. The service is to be both ways, from east to west, and

NOBIL STARTS AGAIN FOR TRIP TO THE POLE

To Cruise Over Greenland and Then Head For the Top of the World.

King's Bay, Spitzbergen, May 23.—Bound for the North Pole on its second venture over the uncharted wastes of the frozen Arctic, the dirigible Italia left its base here at 4:40 a. m. today.

Although weather conditions were not perfect, General Umberto Nobile, commander of the ship, felt that they were sufficiently favorable to allow him to start.

As the huge silver-sheathed craft poised its way upward through a murky haze, the crew of the supply ship Citta di Milano, and natives who had come miles to watch the dirigible's departure, cheered enthusiastically and wished "in trepid air-voyages: God-speed."

Before starting, General Nobile announced that he first planned to cruise to the top of Greenland. From there, he said, he would head for the North Pole.

Just before Nobile climbed into the control car of the Italia, the parade of the Citta di Milano blessed the cross which will be dropped from the ship when it reaches the pole.

FOR FLIGHT TO ROME

Italian Aviator With Two Companions Gets Plane Ready in New York.

Hudley Field, N. J., May 23.—Cesare Sabelli, Italian aviator, hopes to make off in a Bellanca sesqui-plane from Long Island in approximately a week for a non-stop flight to Rome. He will be accompanied by Roger Q. Williams as a pilot and Captain Peter Bonelli as navigator. Information concerning his intention was given here yesterday by Sabelli, who took formal possession of the plane at Hudley Field last night. It was turned over to him by G. M. Bellanca, the designer and builder.

NO MORE MINE VICTIMS ALIVE, RESCUERS SAY

So Far 152 Bodies Have Been Taken Out; 45 More Remain—Two More Mine Blasts Reported.

Mather, Pa., May 23.—Hope that the last of the bodies of the 197 miners killed in the Mather colliery explosion could be brought to the surface today spurred weary rescue teams on in their grim search in the wrecked mine. With no hope of finding any more of the victims alive, the work resolved itself into the task of locating and removing bodies. So far 152 bodies have been taken out, and it is believed 45 more remain. Fourteen men escaped alive, one after being entombed more than seventy hours.

Each succeeding trip of the mine-elevator brought more canvas-covered bodies to be taken to the temporary morgues. Every undertaking in the district has been pressed into service, and volunteers from Waynesburg college nearby are assisting in the work.

FIVE DEAD, 10 MISSING
Lexington, Ky., May 23.—Five miners are known to be dead and ten are missing as the result of a mine blast according to reports received here today from Mine No. 30 of the Black Mountain Coal Corporation at Kenvir, Harlan county, near the Kentucky-Virginia state line.

About 75 miners were caught in the mine shaft last night just after the night shift had relieved the day men. Cause of the explosion has not been learned, officials at the mine reported. Federal mine rescue crews were dispatched from Lexington and Norton, Va. Three of five bodies have been identified as: Asher Hall, Chester Bradley and Sam Edwards.

ANOTHER EXPLOSION
Bluefield, West Va., May 23.—Thirteen bodies have been recovered and four other men are missing in an explosion that wrecked the No. 3 mine of the Yukon Pocahontas Coal Company at Yukon, McDowell county, last night, according to messages received today.

Rescue crews were penetrating the deeper recesses of the mine in an effort to locate the missing. Fifteen men were unaccounted for at midnight in another explosion shortly after six p. m. yesterday in the Number 30 mine of the Black Mountain Coal Corporation at Kenvir, Ky., in the Harlan field.

The mine rescue car at Mather, which was being prepared to be sent to Kenvir, was on the scene at Kenvir. Both mines are located in isolated sections.

COOLIDGE VETOES FARM RELIEF BILL

For Second Time President Sends Famous Measure Back to Congress.

Washington, May 23.—President Coolidge vetoed the McNary-Haugen farm relief bill today for the second time.

Ignoring the advice of the Farm Bloc in Congress, and disregarding the threats of a grain belt revolt against the administration in the forthcoming election, Mr. Coolidge sent the famous measure back to the capitol without his signature, and accompanied it with a message explaining his reasons for disapproving it.

Although the bill had considerably to meet presidential objections of a year ago it still contained the equalization fee—which agrarian leaders characterize as the heart of the plan—and to which Mr. Coolidge has been unyielding in his opposition.

May Not Pass
In view of the short time remaining of the present session of Congress it is not anticipated that the bill can be passed over the veto. It is not even certain that an effort will be made to do so for some of the rebellious backers of the bill have declared their intention to let the party stand the onus of its defeat.

The presidential message of rejection was one of the longest he has ever sent to Congress, covering some 24 printed pages, which also included an opinion by the attorney general.

At the outset, Mr. Coolidge declared that the bill "still is unconstitutional" and then he proceeded at length to outline and explain his reasons for disapproving it.

What Price Her Motherhood?

Above are pictured Mrs. Edith Cromwell and her children paying for their supper of oatmeal by making garters—2000 for 50 cents. Left to right they are: Edward, 4; Mrs. Cromwell; Harold, 9; Eleanor, 12. Below are Eddie and his mother, who is doing the family wash. Right is Mrs. Cromwell and baby Arthur. Ten months old, he has no spine and always will be a helpless invalid. This picture was taken before he was sent to a hospital where he now is cared for.

Bridgeport Woman Fighting To Protect Weakening Brood

By MARIAN HALE
Bridgeport, Conn., May 23.—Mrs. Edith Cromwell believes that thirteen children are enough for any woman to bear.

She has started a legal battle for the right of voluntary motherhood by having her husband arrested for breach of the peace, alleging that he beat her when she argued with him about having more children. She has been married ten years.

Now, to add to her martyrdom, still another child is expected—the fourteenth. Would it, like eight of the others she had brought into the world, die of malnutrition and the other ills of poverty? Desperate, she sought the aid of authorities, but could find no protection other than the petty, technical charge.

"I've lost eight of my 13 children from sickness and being poor," this frail, faded 91-pound woman said, in a lifeless voice.

She prays for his death. "My last baby, Arthur, 10 months old now, hasn't any backbone at all. They take care of him at the hospital. Every time I go to him, I just pray they'll tell me he is dead. Harold is 9, but no bigger than a 7-year-old. He had five operations last year on his nose, ears and tonsils and is only skin and bones now. Eddie, 4 years old, has always been peaked. I'm sickly myself.

"I can't make my husband believe we have had enough children. He wants still more."

As she spoke, she sat at the dilapidated table in the low-ceilinged kitchen, making bright blue garters for men's sleeves. Eleanor, Harold and baby Eddie made their fingers fly helping her string the bits of metal on them. Five pieces of metal to a garter. It one is lost, its cost is docked from her pay.

MEMORIAL PARADE ORDERS ARE ISSUED

Sons of Veterans to Escort Whole Veteran Body, Not the G. A. R. Alone.

The Permanent Memorial Day committee held its final meeting before Memorial Day at the Municipal building last night. Marshal Michael J. McDonnell reported on his orders for the parade and the report stirred up something of a controversy between the marshal and Stephen Beebe of the Sons of Veterans over the place in the order of procession assigned to that organization.

The Sons of Veterans have long maintained their claim to a right to march in Memorial Day parades as the immediate escort of the G. A. R. Marshal McDonnell, however, had assigned the Sons as escort to the entire veteran division, which includes the World War Veterans, Army and Navy Club, American Legion, Spanish War Veterans and, in the part of honor at the left of the line, Drake Post, G. A. R. By this arrangement the Sons of Veterans are separated in the line from the G. A. R. by several intervening organizations, and

AFTER HONEYMOON

Hartford woman is suing prominent capital city merchant for divorce.

Hartford, Conn., May 23.—Judge Arthur F. Ellis today heard the divorce application of Mrs. Edward A. Slattery, wife of a prominent merchant, who is seeking freedom on the ground of desertion, and allimony.

A counter-suit has been filed by Slattery. Mrs. Slattery told Judge Ellis that she was married September 12, 1927, and returned from her honeymoon on September 30, of the same year. Her husband, she said, at that time told her to go to their home in West Hartford and that he would be "right out." That was the last she saw of him, she said.

Mrs. Slattery had been married twice before she wed Slattery. Her first husband was Charles Lovejoy, of Chicago and California, her second Harry K. Smith, secretary of the State Manufacturers' Association. She had been divorced twice before she married Slattery.

MRS. KNAPP CALLED
THIEF AND A LIAR

Ex-Secretary of State Hears Herself Denounced by State's Prosecutor.

Albany, N. Y., May 23.—Still suffering from nervous exhaustion which caused a 24-hour delay in her second trial, former Secretary of State Florence E. S. Knapp, today heard herself denounced by Prosecutor George Z. Medalle as a "thief, a liar, a schemer and a fraud."

Mrs. Knapp is being tried before Supreme court Justice Stephen Callaghan on a charge of stealing a $2,875 census check issued in the name of her step-daughter, Clara Blanche Knapp, Vermont college instructor.

The jury at the first trial disagreed, six to six, over the guilt or innocence of the first woman ever to hold high office in New York.

Mrs. Knapp's pale face flushed frequently as she heard herself scathingly denounced by the state's prosecutor. She heard three of her relatives, her brother, sister, and sister-in-law, characterized by Medalle as "liars." She heard Medalle tell the jury that she "stole" at least $16,000 of the $26,000 in census checks issued to seven of her relatives, and finally she heard Medalle declare:

"This woman perpetrated the greatest fraud in the history of the state."

HAS TWENTY WANTS 4 MORE

Boston Woman Does Not Agree With Views of Mrs. Cromwell.

Boston, May 23.—"I would not take a million dollars for any one of them."

Mrs. Catherine Pizzi, who recently bore her 20th child after 22 years of married life, was speaking today.

This Boston mother would like four more children.

She does not agree with Mrs. Cromwell, Connecticut mother who had her husband arrested for wanting more than thirteen children.

Said Mrs. Pizzi, 41, who lives with eight of her children and with her husband, Mario, 46, in East Cambridge:

"The wife who sees nothing but the poverty that often comes with big families is missing the joy of motherhood as far as she who sees nothing but the thorns on the rose."

FLAPPERS PRESENT
AT LIQUOR PARTY

Boston Clergymen Make Serious Charges Against Bay State Officials.

Boston, Mass., May 23.—Names of girls of the flapper type alleged to have attended a "liquor party" in a committee room of the State House immediately after the prorogation of the Legislature on April 28th, last year, were expected today to be drawn into the investigation of statements that seized "wet goods" from the state stores had been carried away and drunk on the premises by certain state officials.

William M. Forgrave, state superintendent of the anti-saloon league, who called for a public probe of alleged "high jinx" at the capitol, claimed to have an affidavit disclosing that young women figured in the alleged "prorogation party."

Conrad's Request
Major General Alfred F. Foote, commissioner of public safety, and chief of the Yankee Division, must not be permitted to attend the liquor investigating hearings by the state commission on administration and finance or the general public must be allowed to attend them, declared a petition filed today by Gov. Alvan T. Fuller, spokesman for a score of Greater Boston clergymen. Dr. Conrad further suggested that Superintendent Kimball of the state house also be removed from the hearing room unless the general public was admitted.

The demand of Dr. Conrad was based on the fact that most of the witnesses come under the direction of either state officer. Their testimony, the clergymen held, was bound to be influenced by the fact that their superiors were hearing them testify.

Gov. Fuller was expected back at the State House tomorrow to act on the petition of clergymen, labor union leaders, legislators and others that the star chamber sessions give way to public hearings on the ground that scores of innocent state officials and legislators have been placed under a cloud because of the apparent guilt of a few.

NATIONAL DELEGATES NEARLY ALL SELECTED

Will Rogers Is Candidate For President Of The U. S.

New York, May 23.—Will Rogers, the cowboy humorist, has chosen to run for the presidency. He will make the race as the candidate of a "Bunkless" Party, it was announced today.

If elected he would be the first president in 62 years who was funny intentionally, his backers assert. They admit he is qualified for the high office and Will himself does not deny it.

Rogers' friends point out to the fact that he is a veteran of thirteen campaigns with the Ziegfeld Follies, which is something that can't be said for other candidates. They view with alarm the rising cost of government and assert that, if elected, the general Rogers will save the country money. For one thing he declines to have a running mate on the theory that the office of vice-president is an expensive superfluous whatever that is. "If elected," said Rogers, clearing his throat, "I'll do the work of both president and vice president for one salary, thereby saving the government the vice-presidential salary of $15,000 a year.

"Fifteen thousand berries is not to be scoffed at, even by the United States government."

Fourteen well-known Americans, including Henry Ford, Nicholas Murray Butler, General William Mitchell, Judge B. Lindsey and William Allen White, are acting as backers and endorsers of Rogers' candidacy, according to Life, the humorous weekly which today announced the tossing of Will's sombrero into the political arena. Will himself, it was stated, will make a formal speech of acceptance next week.

Two states, Texas and South Dakota, acted yesterday. South Dakota will send a Smith delegation to Houston, and a Lowden delegation to Kansas City. The Texas situation is somewhat muddled by controversy and intricate strife. Two Republican delegations will go to Kansas City and engage in a contest, one instructed for Hoover, the other unstructured. The forty Democratic delegates from Texas are listed in the doubtful column.

This leaves but two states, Florida and West Virginia, yet to choose their Republican delegations. Florida is beset with Republican factional strife, and West Virginia holds her primary on May 29. Slower to act, the Democrats of six states, Florida, Kentucky, Mississippi, North Carolina, Tennessee and West Virginia, are still to select their delegations. With the exception of West Virginia, this Democratic territory is largely unfavorable to Gov. Al Smith.

West Va. Important
Results in the states that are yet to act will materially affect the existing line-up in either the Republican or Democratic races. The West Virginia primary on May 29 will be important more from the moral effect than from the mathematical. Smith's support will go to the 16 Democratic delegates, and either Hoover or Senator Goff, the favorite son, the 19 Republican delegates. In any event, the result is not expected to make or break any candidacy.

Gov. Al Smith's delegate total as of today is figured in the most reliable tables in Washington as approximately 612, or 122 short of the necessary two-thirds. His supporters claim enough reserve strength among the favorite son delegates to nominate him on the second or third ballot, and even the "last-ditchers" against the New York governor are disposed to admit the correctness of the claim.

On Republican Side
On the Republican side, the tables compiled here give Hoover as of today a delegate total of approximately 508, included in which is the full Pennsylvania delegation of 79, but none at all from New York. If these figures can be made to stand up, they would put the Clinton party at a disadvantage in Kansas City with but two score votes standing between him and the nomination.

There is, however, considerable controversy over these Hoover figures, the Lowden people in particular insist on a revision. They are too generous in his claiming. They are not yet disposed to admit that he will get all of Pennsylvania's 79 votes, even though Secretary of the Treasury Mellon did say that of the available candidates Hoover appeared to him.

Hoover Claims
The Hoover claims are involved, too, with approximately 75 contests which the Republican national committee, sitting as judge and jury, will have to nominate him on the state, starting June 4. Most of these contests arise, as usual, in the southern states where the Republican organizations are constantly at loggerheads.

In most cases, Hoover has the so-called organization with him in these southern contests. The national committeemen, some of them negroes, have been supplied with funds from the Hoover war chest, as brought out by the Senate's investigation into campaign expenditures. Typical examples were furnished by Perry, Howard and Ben Davis, the negro national committeemen, who are also delegates, received $2,000 and $2,300 respectively. Lowden's friends on the national committee are planning to ask for a clarification of the difference between such transactions and that in Missouri in 1920, which killed Lowden's chances for the nomination.

Should the national committee throw out any appreciable number of these contested Hoover delegates it may have an important bearing on the final result, for the anti-Hoover "Allies" are militantly determined to stop the Cabinet candidate at Kansas City, and are not yet convinced they haven't the votes to do it.

BIG SHAM BATTLES IN CHESAPEAKE BAY

Coast is Defended by Planes, Big Guns and Infantry Against "Enemy Fleet."

Hampton Roads, Va., May 23.—Prepared to hurl 2,100-pound projectiles over a ten-mile sweep of the Atlantic, from the deep black maws of 16-inch howitzers, the United States Army Coast defense today inaugurated at the vital entrance to Chesapeake Bay the most elaborate war game ever undertaken on the American continent.

Under the new basic strategy of the coast defense system, this vulnerable spot—the naval gateway to the national capital and all the war plants in Maryland and Virginia—is the first point of defense against all hostile operations in times of national emergency.

Four 16-inch mortars of the fixed battery at Fort Story were supplemented in the defensive fire by four 12-inch howitzers and four 8-inch guns from the mobile artillery unit at Fort Eustace.

The strategy of the operations assumes that a hostile navy has damaged the Panama Canal, bottling the United States battle fleet in the Pacific for six weeks.

Chesapeake Bay and all its coast line as well as the vital Atlantic coast near Norfolk, must be defended by the Army, assisted by naval aircraft.

Aircraft from Langley Field scout the harbor for enemy craft. The fantry men are stretched along the shore line above and below Norfolk to guard against raiding parties. Enemy scouting planes drone over the harbor, safely beyond the reach of anti-aircraft guns.

The mouth of Chesapeake Bay is thickly strewn with submerged mines to challenge the enemy should his cruisers prevail against the fire of the land batteries.

Enemy aircraft are active near the approaching fleet, to prevent aerial observation and fire control. The approach of the Red enemy fleet was reported to the land commands at six a. m. today.

ALL GERMANY AROUSED OVER GAS POISONING

If Wind Had Veered Thousands Would Have Been Killed in City.

Berlin, May 23.—All Germany has been shaken by the comment following the poison gas explosion in Hamburg which killed seven persons outright and put 250 others in the hospital. Many of the asphyxiated victims are in such serious condition that it is believed they cannot recover.

Enemy aircraft are active near the approaching fleet, to prevent aerial observation and fire control. The approach of the Red enemy fleet was reported to the land commands at six a. m. today.

Experts testified that, had the wind been blowing towards Hamburg instead of away from it thousands might have been killed as the phosgene would have been carried into the heart of the city.

The unseen death menace hung over the suburbs until dispelled by a rainstorm.

Hugo Stolsenberg, owner of the chemical plant where the gas was stored, insisted that the deadly fluid was for dyes, most of which would be exported to the United States and Czechoslovakia. It has been reported that the gas was to be shipped in its native state for use by the United States Army, but this was emphatically denied.

Campbell McLachlan died at his home, 172 East Center street at 1:45 o'clock this afternoon, following an illness with anemia from which he had suffered for several years. He had been confined to his home for nearly three months. Mr. McLachlan who was 60 years of age was born in Lawrence, Mass., but had lived in Manchester for upwards of 40 years. For 35 years he was employed by Cheney Brothers as an engraver on copper rolls, remaining in that department until failing health made his retirement advisable.

Mr. McLachlan was one of the few surviving persons in Manchester who formerly made their home in what was called the "East boarding house," now Teachers' hall. Later he was one of the regular boarders at the Oxford hotel. After his marriage he purchased a house on East Center street, where Conroy's garage now stands.

After leaving Cheney Brothers' employ, Mr. McLachlan engaged in handling real estate and mortgage loans, for the most part in East Hartford. He lived in that place a time but returned to Manchester and continued in the same line of business while he was able to get around.

First Woman Named As A Federal Judge

By ALLENE SUMNER

Cleveland, O., May 23.—Women of this modern day have so permeated all the professions and businesses that its becoming increasingly difficult for any woman nowadays to be the "First Woman" in any particular line.

Miss Genevieve R. Cline of Cleveland became the "First Woman Customs Appraiser" when President Harding appointed her to the Cleveland port in 1922.

She will soon become the "First Woman U. S. Customs Court Judge," and automatically the first and only federal woman judge in the whole country.

This is a $10,000-a-year-for-life job. It is one of the highest priced jobs ever offered to a woman.

Her Honor Judge Genevieve Cline would become by this appointment just about the most important woman in the country's public official life.

And if the nomination is confirmed, Judge Cline, according to her associates, will owe it to "nothing but hard work and a sense of fair play that any woman in public life must give today."

Brother Started Career

It all began some 25 years ago, however, when Genevieve Cline, just beginning to grow up and wondering about a career, was taken night after night by her brother, an attorney, to tent meetings where the tariff question was being debated.

"Tariff," her brother told his schoolgirl sister, "is just about the most important question of the day and will become increasingly so. Everyone should find out all there is to know about it."

The tent tariff fights proved so interesting that Genevieve Cline decided to be an attorney, specializing in tariff law.

"I owed my 'career' determination to a mother far ahead of her time," Miss Cline says, "a mother who always said that her daughter should be trained for some specific profession, just as much as her sons."

Miss Cline has never in her public life worked as "a woman." She has never as customs appraiser felt any more interest or skill in handling lustrous silks, brocades, beautiful bits of pottery and glass, imported cakes and other delicacies than in examining massive machinery or the most delicate surgical instruments.

Detects Smuggled Goods
But her men associates, the boys who unpack and repack the dramatic variety of merchandise which comes into Cleveland from the four corners of the earth, and the examiners themselves, insist that their superior has "a woman's instinct," especially when it comes to sniffing out smuggled goods.

Not so long ago a carefully-packed box came in from Hungary. It was found to contain just a long loaf of rye bread. As she stopped to appraise this box, the first woman customs appraiser hesitated, then called for a knife, hacked off a crusty end—and drew forth a bottle of a beverage not legally sold in America.

At Eastertime a big chocolate egg came in from Paris. Again "woman's instinct" triumphed and the lady customs appraiser opened the egg and took out a nice big diamond.

But sniffing out smugglers is only a side line to a customs appraiser.

It means that the appraiser must know the standard average market price at time of purchase of everything imaginable. One mail's imports may include an antique Chinese article sold in every imaginable place every day of the year.

"The human interest stories which one mail tells make the job constantly fascinating," added Miss Cline, hesitating before a battered little pasteboard box with some red knitted wristlets and a little scrowled paper which, translated, read, "All the love in the world on your birthday from your mother, who prays God she may come to you soon."

As Judge Cline of a Federal Customs Court, Miss Cline's work will be quite different. She will sit on protest cases brought by purchasers claiming that their goods have been misclassified or appeal cases involving value placed upon merchandise.

For instance, as Miss Cline explained, dental mirrors might be classed as mirrors rather than dental instruments, but the court has ruled that they are dutiable as dental implements. The judge rules on the class, and there is no redress except appeal to the U. S. Customs Court of Appeals.

Not Guesswork Job
"Appraising," Miss Cline explains, "is not guesswork. It is black and white figures, received on the market price of every imaginable article sold in every imaginable place every day of the year."

"The human interest stories which one mail tells make the job constantly fascinating," added Miss Cline, hesitating before a battered little pasteboard box with some red knitted wristlets and a little scrowled paper which, translated, read, "All the love in the world on your birthday from your mother, who prays God she may come to you soon."

NORTHERNERS VICTORIOUS
London, May 23.—Chang Tso-Lin's Northern Army appears to have stemmed somewhat the Southern horde now sweeping northward towards Peking, an exchange Telegram dispatch from Hong Kong indicated today. The Northerners engaged in two fierce clashes with Gen. Chiang Kai-shek's Nationalist troops at Nagchow and Hokeifu and emerged victors in each, the dispatch stated.

plain his reasons for again disapproving it.

"The bill," he said, "contains not only the so-called equalization fee and other features of the old measure, but also new and highly objectionable provisions."

"In its entirety, it is little less undesirable than the earlier measure. The bill still is unconstitutional. This position is supported by the opinion of the attorney general."

The First Veto
The veto message which President Coolidge sent to Congress a year ago on the first McNary-Haugen Bill denounced the measure in the strongest terms. Mr. Coolidge ever used in a public paper, and the bill was "repeated" most of those arguments and added new ones.

"Cruelly deceptive to the farmer," "fantastic," "unworkable," "price-fixing fallacy," "encouragement to profiteering," "wasteful distribution," "governmental spying and policing,"—these were but a few of the stinging descriptions applied to the measure by Mr. Coolidge in the course of his long message, despite the endorsement of the bill by such economic authorities as Vice President Dawes, Frank O. Lowden, and others who were instrumental in pushing it through Congress.

Generally, the president said, he had six specific objections to the measure.

"A detailed analysis of all the objections," his message stated, "would involve a document of truly formidable proportions. However, its major weaknesses and perils may be summarized under six headings:

1. Its attempted price-fixing fallacy.
2. The tax characteristics of the equalization fee.
3. The widespread bureaucracy it would set up.
4. Its encouragement to profiteering and wasteful distribution by middlemen.
5. Its stimulation of over-production.
6. Its aid to our foreign agricultural competitors."

"These topics," he continued, "by no means exhaust the list of fallacious and dangerous aspects of the bill, but they afford ample ground for its emphatic rejection."

High Speed Elevators
De Paul's professional department including the College of Law and Commerce and pre-law school, will occupy the upper four floors. High-speed express elevators will carry the students to their classes, stores and shops will occupy the ground level and the remainder of the space will be leased out for office purposes.

On the roof will be club rooms for both the men and the co-eds. A moot court is provided for the legal students.

Is Co-Educational
De Paul, Father Levan declares, prides itself on the fact that it was the first Catholic institution of higher learning in the country to become co-educational. It has been admitting women to all departments, in both its downtown and north side schools, for the last 19 years.

Although operated under Catholic auspices, the students, Fathers being in charge, almost 40 per cent of its enrollment is non-Catholic.

Many of its professors, like students, also are of other faiths.

present opposition.

The First Move
The first move to iron out differences between the House and Senate on the new tax reduction bill was taken today. The House enacted a $250,000,000 reduction while the Senate limited the slash to $204,000,000. House leaders have announced there would be little trouble in reaching an agreement, indicating that most of the Senate rules will be accepted.

Congressional leaders, meanwhile, were waiting for President Coolidge to act on a large number of bills, opped by the McNary-Haugen measure. All reports from the White House have predicted a veto for the Farm bill and there seemed little likelihood that any effort will be made in Congress to pass it over his veto. Farm Bloc leaders appeared to favor carrying their fight into the national conventions in June rather than to run the risk of having Congress reject the bill in a test of power with the President.

OBITUARY DEATHS

Mrs. A. V. Loomis
Mrs. Alice V. Loomis, wife of the late James L. Loomis, who was a Civil War veteran, died last evening at the Manchester Memorial hospital after a short illness. Mrs. Loomis had been a resident of Manchester practically all her life, living in the so-called Bunce place on the West Side. For a number of years she has made her home with her daughter, Mrs. Edwin C. Bunce. She leaves a sister, Mrs. William H. Todd of North Haven, Conn., and four grandchildren.

Funeral services will be held Friday afternoon at 3 o'clock, daylight time, at the home of Mrs. Bunce, 386 Hartford road. Rev. Joseph Cooper of Norwich, formerly pastor of the South Methodist church will officiate. Burial will be in the West cemetery.

SKYSCRAPER FOR UNIVERSITY TO OPEN BY JUNE

Chicago—Chicago's first "skyscraper university" is nearing completion.

Classes will convene in it for the first time June 1.

The building, erected by De Paul University, is 16 stories high. Six additional floors later may be added, according to the president, the Very Rev. Thomas F. Levan, C. M.

The structure, costing $3,000,000 was financed through the efforts of De Paul Educational Aid Society.

Trustees of this corporation include George E. Brennan, political leader; D. F. Kelly, State Street department store head; Francis X. Busch, former corporation counsel and dean, emeritus of De Paul's College of Law; F. J. Lewis, manufacturer, and Dean William F. Clarke, of the university's law school.

Attorney Busch also is a trustee of the university proper. He boasts that he is the only non-Catholic holding such an office in a Catholic educational institution in the United States.

POLICE OFFICER KILLS HIMSELF IN STATION
Had Planned to Take Children to Circus But Shoots Self Instead.
Ithaca, N. Y., May 23.—Lewis J. Oliver, police headquarters desk sergeant, had planned to take his kiddies to the circus this afternoon but instead he shot and instantly killed himself in the police locker rooms shortly after reporting for duty this morning.

No reason could be found why he should take his life, superior officers said.

He entered the station and greeted Patrolman Daniel Flynn who was on desk duty. He went to the locker room but did not change to his uniform. Instead he sat down in a chair, put the muzzle of his service revolver in his mouth and blew off the back of his head.

BOARD OF CENSORS FOR CHURCH PLAYS ADOPTED BY BISHOP IN ENGLAND.
London.—Aboard of censors to censor sacred plays for churches, the first body of the kind in England, has been constituted here.

Appointed by the Bishop of Southwark, London, the Board consists of three members, who will examine plays submitted for presentation in the Southwark diocese. Plays will only be allowed to be staged after they have been passed by the Board.

The Bishop feels that nothing of a secular character should be performed in church, and the duties of the Board will be to see that any plays presented are of a purely religious nature and based on the writings of the Bible.

NEW EFFORT TO FREE "PINT OF GIN" LIFER

Fred Palm, Michigan's "pint-of-gin lifer" and his wife, shown in inset.

Michigan Supreme Court to Hear New Plea of Man Sent Up as Habitual Criminal.
Jackson, Mich., May 23.—On June 2 the black-robed justices of the supreme court of Michigan will consider the case of Fred Palm, who is serving a life sentence in the penitentiary here, because police found a pint of gin in his home.

On that date Palm's case will come up for final review. Present to plead for him will be Clarence Darrow, famous criminal lawyer; Louis C. Miller, New York assemblyman, and other attorneys.

As the time for the hearing approaches, Palm's friends have busy marshaling facts to support their plea for his release. They outline their case something like this:

Has Criminal Record
Palm drew a life sentence under Michigan's habitual criminal law, which makes a life term mandatory on the fourth conviction of a felony. In 1914 he served a term in prison for breaking and entering; in 1920 he was sentenced to the federal prison at Leavenworth for passing counterfeit money; and in 1925 he was sentenced to six months to one year in prison here for violating the liquor law. The subsequent finding of the gin in his home made the list of four offenses complete.

Yet, on the record books of the state prison, there are names of men, sent to prison since Palm was sentenced, who had been convicted of four felonies but did not receive life. The judge that sentenced Palm said that he had no option but to impose a life term; yet these others, some of them in for burglary, others for larceny, were let off with sentences ranging from 15 months to seven years.

In addition, Palm insists that he pleaded guilty to the charge of possessing liquor without being warned that it would make him liable to a life term. He also asserts that the police who searched his house did so without a search warrant.

His attorneys have prepared an attack on the constitutionality of the habitual criminal law and are ready to assert that the law classing prohibition offenses as felonies is null and void.

That is the outline of the fight Palm's attorneys will make. His friends are particularly stressing the cases of other fourth offenders who did not get life sentences.

Others Escape Penalty
The records at the prison, for instance, tell of one man who is serving a term of 18 months to five years for grand larceny. He had previously served 30 days in a house of correction, five years in the Minnesota prison, and two terms in the federal prison at Leavenworth, where he was sent for peddling drugs.

Another man is serving a term of seven and one-half to 15 years for burglary. He served one three-year term in the Nebraska prison and two five-year terms in the Missouri prison, all for burglary.

Still another is doing one to five years for larceny. His record shows one previous imprisonment in Michigan and two in Texas.

Palm says that when he was arraigned in the Lansing courts on the gin charge he pleaded guilty and was sentenced to six months to two years in prison. Then, as he started to walk away, he says, he was called back by the judge and informed that because it was his fourth offense he would have to serve a life term. That, he says, was his first intimation that he faced such a severe penalty.

Wife Aids Prisoner
Palm is a barber by trade, is 36 and married. He has been in prison a little over six months, during his confinement his wife has been obliged to sell their home to get money to live on.

His lawyers do not attempt to gloss over his unsavory record in their plea for his release. Palm himself, however, insists that he was innocent of both the breaking and entering and the counterfeiting charges.

Palm's previous record, in detail,

AMERICAN PLAN LITTLE THEATER OPENS IN PARIS

Paris.—An American Little Theater was recently born in Paris and has already produced several amusing little plays. A Boston girl started the ball rolling and found enough Americans to form a little group called "The Yagabond Players." They mean to establish a large repertory and will devote their time and effort to their love of the drama. Hard work and a little histrionic ability are all the dues required for entrance into the organization.

Crime is on the increase according to recent figures gathered by the various departments of the Paris police. Arrests for the past year of 1927 numbered 16,551, against 13,475 during the previous one. Criminal cases numbered 1,657, among which were 389 burglaries. Automobiles caused 3,148 accidents.

The old country post-man who tramps from hamlet to hamlet, on foot or by bicycle, in any kind of weather, is soon to be replaced by automobiles that will carry mail as well as passengers and their baggage and do any little errand for the housewife, such as getting some medicine for the baby or a spool of thread from the corner store.

It is estimated that two million dollars will establish 350 circuits and with this as an annual rate, all of France can be covered, within five years.

No sooner had the maid awakened Mademoiselle Yvonne Ernoter on her wedding morning, than she was seized with a violent fit of yawning which continued for several hours. Three doctors were called in who attributed it to nervous depression and gave various treatments which finally brought happy results and enabled her to go to the altar later in the day, with not even the bridegroom being any the wiser.

"Jimmy," one-time barkeeper at the well-known "Dingo" is now keeping the college-boys straight at a famous little-bar room near the Senate building in a wide circuit which was once a high-road to Rome. He has a knack for starting up bars and managing new liquor resorts and is very often called out of the city for the purpose. He invariably blows back again to the capital, however, for he misses his old friends here. He is short and fat and everybody likes him, especially the college boys of "Les Trois As" whom he throws out when they begin their rough-housing.

Madame Jeanne Bequerel of Brest has just found her engagement ring which she lost six years ago. It was in a carrot. The ring was undoubtedly swept up and carried to the pile of refuse which was later distributed over the garden enclosure. A sprouting carrot must have come into contact with the ring and encircled it during its growth.

HOSPITAL NOTES
A son was born this morning at the Memorial hospital to Mr. and Mrs. Cyril Bragg of South Windsor.

Three admissions were reported. They were: Mrs. Christina Kelsh, of 91 Norman street; Raymond Miller, 11 years old, of 743 Tolland turnpike; Nora Leary, of 41 Prospect street.

ABOUT TOWN
The Manchester Rod and Gun club will hold a shoot tomorrow afternoon at 5:30 at the range in Bolton.

Heartly Hoover Breakfasts Help Color Picture Of Their Home Life In Palace

This is the second of a series on the wives of presidential candidates, by Allene Sumner, staff writer for The Herald and NEA Service. Miss Sumner has interviewed the leading prospective First Ladies for this series.

By ALLENE SUMNER

Washington, May 23—The breakfast of Herbert Hoover always and invariably consists of fresh strawberries with powdered sugar and Mrs. Hoover.

This does not mean that the secretary of commerce has cannibalistic tendencies. It merely means that his day starts all wrong without both strawberries and "The Madame," as he calls Mrs. Herbert Hoover, in the bosom of the cheery Hoover home.

What's more, Mrs. Hoover just as unabashedly declares that her day's all wrong, too, if she doesn't have Herbert for breakfast. This despite the fact that Hoover breakfasts are famous in official Washington for their heartiness. There are always the strawberries when humanly possible, big platters of waffles or hot cakes with syrup, sausage or bacon and eggs, buttered toast and coffee.

The Hoover breakfasts have been almost as famous during the past administration as the pancake-and-syrup-and-sausage ones in the big White House on Pennsylvania avenue, for the Hoovers are always "at home" to their friends at breakfast time.

"Tut" is honored guest. The Hoover breakfasts cannot be dismissed without mention of Tut, the big police dog, who quite humiliates the mistress of the Hoover breakfast table by poking his aristocratic nose over the table's edge every few minutes for nibbles of toast and sausage and strawberries.

"I know that feeding dogs at table isn't done in the best families," Mrs. Hoover laughs, "but Daddy will feed Tut, and, to tell the truth, I don't mind it so much myself."

The Hoovers are like that at home—jovial, cheery, informal, "folky." If there's time before she drives with "Daddy" down to the Department of Commerce building, Mrs. Hoover will show him her latest baby sacque or booties, knitted for baby Peggy Ann, 2, whom her grandmother pronounces "the very image of her Grandfather Hoover." Peggy Ann and her senior brother, Herbert the Third, 3, are the children of Herbert Hoover, Jr., who lives in Cambridge.

There are those who will tell you that Mrs. Hoover is "highbrow." They are awed by her college degree from Stanford, her authorship of a recondite work on mining, her affiliation with this organization and that.

But the picture of Mrs. Hoover, the "highbrow," has been much more painted than that of Mrs. Hoover, the sweet-faced, gray-haired woman in the 50's, who knits whenever she sits down for a moment and who has a dozen knitting bags scattered over the lovely red brick house on S street. Who is as proud of her Italian cutwork luncheon set, with the Capitol and Lincoln Memorial design, as of her authorship, and who likes nothing better than to time-seasoned morocco. Poetry, fiction, history, everything.

Hammered brasses in the form of samovars, bowls and plaques are everywhere, telling the story of the Hoovers' life in China.

Mrs. Hoover, by the way, doesn't especially like the legend which had her shooting over the barricade with Herbert during the Boxer rebellion.

"That's so luridly melodramatic," she says. "As a matter of fact I was two blocks behind the barricade and merely tried to see that the men at the barricade were well fed."

Samovars and coffee urns are as numerous as pictures of Herbert, second, and Herbert's children and Allan. For the Hoovers are always ready to drink a cup of tea with anyone who drops in in the afternoon.

"No Home Without Garden" The secretary's study opens on to the porch, from which the most beautiful garden ever seen carries its prim little shelled walks down the ravine. Purple and pink and white hyacinths, yellow forsythia, lilacs, gaudy tulips and trothy bushes of white were everywhere.

"There is no home without a garden," according to Mrs. Hoover, who believes that homes—happy ones—are the most important things in the world.

"It is the right of every child to have a happy home." One of her few creeds which Mrs. Hoover will crystallize in words. "Every wife's first job is her home," she says further, intimating that no home can contain two fully-developed individuals and that, when necessary, the wife should submerge herself to make "a background" for her husband.

Mrs. Hoover is medium height, gray-haired, with that striking combination of blue eyes and jet black eyebrows. Her skin is pink and white. Her clothes are modish but simple. She seems to prefer line to fuss and frills. She never goes to a beauty parlor, putting her own water wave in her pretty hair, and not even letting her maid "fuss" with her very much. She's not "fat" at all, but she looks at her slim young secretaries ruefully and says, "I was just like you once."

She takes a nap every afternoon and makes Herbert go to bed early. "Girl on the Horse" "Plenty of sleep can make one fit for anything," she says. She is like her name, Lou, which she insists is just Lou, and not short for Louise or Lucy or anything. She is like that—crisp and to the point and breezy and peppy and delightful.

They called her "the girl on the horse" out at Leland Stanford when she went to school there. She is just that—and it's not a high horse. It's a horse carrying a gracious, alert, modern woman right into the thick of life. She likes to be there. But she likes best to come home again.

"Don't that smell good, though, miss?" the smiling boy asked, inviting me to come and inspect his table. "Do you like this bouquet or that one best?" he asked, trying yellow poppies and pink snapdragons.

A Homey Palace The Hoover home is that rare combination, a homey palace—a livable rich man's home. The Green Room, with looped back green taffeta curtains, pink frescos in a blue bowl, white panelled walls, was a haven for books—hundreds of them—first editions in being imported. England is importing African cedar to take the place of eastern red cedar or juniper. The fruit of the juniper is a large, dark blue berry, much used in flavoring gin.

TOMORROW: Mrs. Dawes.

CLAN McLEAN OBSERVES 70TH ANNIVERSARY

Clan McLean celebrated its seventh anniversary last night. A business meeting was called for 7:30 at Odd Fellows Hall and at 8:30 the members adjourned to the banquet hall where they were joined by the members of Helen Davidson Lodge, D.O.S., who were the honor guests. A community sing and refreshments took up the early part of the evening. The entertainment followed with this program: Duet, James Barr, John Munsie; Song, R. Wright; Reading, Mildred Sutherland; Song, Charles Garrow; Highland Fling, Mary Thompson; Song, J. Clark, a guest from Clan Gordon in Hartford.

The evening was brought to a close by short addresses by Past Chief Fraser on "Formation and growth of local lodge," Chief A. McBride, on "Hopes and plans for future growth and development," Chief Daughter Mrs. Sutherland, on "Appreciation of the co-operation between the two organizations."

THE PENCIL WOOD Because its heart was always sound its ancient thought the juniper an emblem of faith. It is supposed to ward off evil and a spray of it tacked upon the door is bait for good luck.

Since early Colonial days the wood of the eastern cedar or juniper, because of its exceptional cutting qualities combined with durability, rich color and aromatic fragrance, has been much in demand. As a pencil wood it never has been equaled, but it no longer can supply the demand.

Juniper grows throughout the eastern half of the United States from Maine to Minnesota and southward to eastern Texas and southern Florida under a wide variety of conditions—in good soil and poor, on hillsides and in swamps. The largest remaining stands are in the mountains of Kentucky, Tennessee and Arkansas.

The fragrance of juniper and its reputation for keeping away moths has made it popular for chests, wardrobe and closet lining.

The Fabers for generations have maintained their own forests of juniper in Germany to supply their pencil factories. Incense cedar is being used to some extent in place of juniper for pencil wood and some red cedar from Haiti is

JOHN CHILDS' FLIGHT FROM NORTH CHURCH WAS MADE WITH ROPE

Boston.—The Massachusetts Society of the Colonial Dames in 1923, the year of the first trans-continental flight across the United States, placed a tablet in the Old North Church Yard, dedicated to John Childs, supposed to have made the first flight in a glider in this country. Childs' flight, so history says, was made from the steeple of the famous old church on September 13, 1757. Otis Rice, a lay assistant at the church, is the iconoclast who now seeks to tear the statueque memory of John Childs from the heights at which his flight placed him. Mr. Rice maintains that information recently discovered leads to the belief that John Childs really did not use a glider at all, but came down from the steeple of the Old North Church, with the air of very un-aeronautical equipment to wit: a rope and pulley. Rice is going over old parchments found an account of Childs' flight.

He's Holding the Bag

Wheaton, Ill.—Thomas Novilla is jail, but he's not the guilty party. He confessed to bootlegging, was convicted of the crime and sentenced to 150 days in prison because his friend, John Rinilli, who was the real culprit, wanted to go on his honeymoon. Rinilli promised to confess when he returned from the gala event, but he hasn't, as yet, and they're holding Novilla for security.

CANNED VOICES TO DOUBLE FOR PICTURE STARS

Hollywood, Cal.—Mechanical voices will "double" for film stars in "talking pictures of the future," says Director Fred Niblo.

The automatic voice, recently demonstrated by Sir Richard Paget, British inventor, will prove a boon to actors when they are called upon to speak their titles, he points out.

Mechanical intonations also will solve the problem of translating spoken titles for foreign audiences, according to Niblo who predicts the "talkies" eventually will force high priced title writers in idleness.

"Predictions are that many titles of the future photoplay will be spoken by actors interpreting the cinema characters," Niblo says. "Already several studios are concentrating upon this phase of picture progress."

And here is the reason for the mechanical speaker. Many an idol of the screen Niblo observes, whose eyes and gestures speak volumes on the silver sheet is dumber than an animal actor when emulating the histrionic.

"This has been proven with the Vitaphone, Photophone and other screen-sound synchronizing devices," Niblo contends. "More carefully pitched voices are required for screen projects, than for phonograph or radio recording," this noted director says.

Lillian Gish, for example has a pleasing voice, but it is too highly pitched and does not record as well as other types.

Foreign stars, such as Vilma Banky and Dolores Del Rio would find difficulty enunciation American titles distinctly, because of foreign accent.

"Stars employed by these corporations need to cultivate their natural voices to a high degree or broadcast by proxy of the mechanical voice which may be selected as soprano or alto, depending upon choice

"A technical difficulty is presented in translating titles into the foreign language of various countries exhibiting American pictures," says Niblo. "At present, any type of sound reproduction is actually attached to the film, unwinding as the picture unfolds also. Additional difficulty would arise if American titles were required to speak all stars in a variety of languages, to meet the international market."

Prince Charming would have had a trouble in finding Cinderella in Hollywood!

Whether or not it is a fact that all good actresses have small feet is a debatable question. However, the shops in Hollywood carry a larger stock of small sized shoes than in any other town in the world.

Joan Crawford is five feet four laces tall and wears a size three and a half slipper.

Cwen Lee is five feet, seven and wears a four and a half. Dorothy Sebastian and Renee Acoore ask for three's when they go into a shoe shop. Norma Shearer and Marceline Day both wear size four slippers.

Louis Lorraine, who plays the leading feminine role in the George K. Arthur-Karl Dane co-starring vehicle, "Monkey Business," is just over five feet tall but she wears one of the smallest slippers in Hollywood. Her shoes are made to order for her, she wears a two.

Bert Edson has left for the rancho Santa Fe, where he will take a brief vacation before returning to the free lance game in Hollywood.

With his final picture at De Mille's, Edson completed his two hundredth screen role.

All the men and women who are going through life with unpropitious names will applaud Eleanor Boardman and King Vidor for a revolutionary departure in child raising.

The film couple have decided not to name their baby girl until she is old enough to disclose a personality. They will then give her a name sympathetic to her temperament.

3,205 MILE HIGHWAY ATLANTIC TO PACIFIC READY FOR TOURISTS

Washington.—Westward, in the path of empire, along routes traversed by the pioneers of America from the Atlantic to the Golden Gate, and including, in the Ohio valley, the longest stretch of practically straight road in the country, United States Route 10-40 crosses 14 states, and offers to the trans-continental motor tourist a panorama of the mid section of the country that epitomizes the westward expansion of the nation from Colonial days to the present.

Details about this route have just been issued by the bureau of public roads of the Department of Agriculture. From its eastern terminus at Atlantic City this highway following for 3,205 miles the same course or one closely parallel to that of the earliest settlers of the Ohio, Mississippi and Missouri valleys. It touches on the two great gold fields of California and Colorado which accelerated so greatly the settlement of the western half of the continent. It traverses also the Mormon settlement in Utah, the great pioneer agricultural experiment sponsored by Brigham Young.

From Wilmington, Del., to St. Mary's, Kan., the highway is paved for the full distance, 1,224 miles. From Salt Lake City to San Francisco—890 miles—it is surfaced. Less than 14 per cent. of its length is unpaved. This road, designated United States route 40 by State and federal highway officials runs a central course through the country. East of the Rockies the road is passable the year around. In the passes of the Rockies and in the Sierras it has not proved feasible to keep the road open in the winter and the route is not to be depended on from October 15 to April or May.

Federal aid has played a large part in the improvement of this road. The United States government has contributed nearly $18,000,000 to its improvement. Federal aid projects on this route include 700 miles of pavement, 725 miles of surfaced road, 132 miles of graded road, and more than 4 miles of bridges. Although not yet completed the highway is everywhere in passable condition except when blocked in the mountains.

WOMAN ASPHYXIATED

Stamford, Conn., May 23.—Mrs. Mary Moylan, 87, was found dead in the kitchen of her home, 193 Henry street, today by her son Michael, as he returned from his night's work. Dr. Ralph W. Crane, medical examiner, investigated and determined that accidental asphyxiation had caused death.

Mrs. Moylan apparently had put a tea kettle on the gas stove and dozed while the kettle boiled over and extinguished the flames, the gas killing Mrs. Moylan as she slept.

RAINBOW DANCES MORE POPULAR THAN EVER

The new dance schedule at the Rainbow Dance Palace in Bolton has proved exceedingly popular with the young folks in this vicinity. Modern dancing is now enjoyed Thursday and Saturday nights. Lionel J. Kennedy's orchestra furnishes the music on both of these nights.

Over 500 attended last Saturday night's dance and nearly as many were present on Thursday night. The mid-week dance is drawing even larger crowds than the management anticipated, and the reason for it is the fine music Kennedy's orchestra furnishes.

TEXAS CONTEST

A rump convention of Republicans in Texas has named a contesting delegation opposed to the nomination of Herbert Hoover for President. It is to be noted, however, that an instructed Hoover delegation was chosen in the regular convention, regularly called and sitting in the place designated for the official gathering. Also that the leader of the Hoover forces is the Texas member of the Republican National committee.

Rump conventions, throughout American political history, have been proverbially failures. The quality of regularity is highly esteemed. Kansas City is not such a terribly long distance from any part even of the huge state of Texas, and the contesting delegation will not have as much chance to pay as if it were going from Maine. Which is a matter on which it is likely to congratulate itself later, because the Texas contestants are likely to have, under the circumstances, the celebrated Chinaman's chance.

MIDWEST AND HOOVER

It is our belief that the Kansas City Star knows more about the state of mind of the people of the Middle West than is known by those eastern Republican leaders who affect to be afraid that Hoover could not carry the farm states on account of his refusal to subscribe to the equalization fee feature of the McNary-Haugen bill.

It is mere bosh, says the Star, to say that because Lowden and his group have a goodly number of delegates the farm states, normally Republican, could not be carried by the Republican party with Hoover at the head of the ticket. Hoover has made his appeal on his record as a public official, on his training for public service, on his combination of abilities for the post of chief executive, and that appeal has been national, not sectional, not local. It has had an extraordinary response. What reason is there to believe that single Midwestern state, otherwise Republican, would go to Al Smith if Hoover should be his opponent? Why should farmers prefer Smith to Hoover? What has Smith done to compare with the record of Hoover in dealing with great problems? What has Smith to offer against Hoover's expressed recognition of the farm problems, his constructive proposals to solve those problems and his known ability in coping with complex things?

This is an authoritative voice from the very heart of the Midwest. It challenges most effectively the whisperings and the hints that the Middle West would back Hoover— which are stock-in-trade only east of Buffalo.

LET VENDOR BEWARE

When federal investigation into particularly vicious bankruptcy frauds in this state ends in a suspended jail sentence for a principal offender, the general impression is likely to be that nothing much has happened, and there may be a tendency to smile at the court's reason for deferring the execution of sentence—that the family of the fraudulent bankrupt needs his support; because this is a consideration that sometimes cuts little figure in the case of far less deliberate and injurious offenders.

Nevertheless the courts, in such cases, perhaps take into their thoughts an aspect of bankruptcy frauds which many persons overlook—the moral responsibility of the creditors. The vendor, in many an instance, accepts no responsibility whatever for his own act in extending credit to individuals concerning whose characters he knows nothing; he puts the onus of the whole proceeding on the legal machinery of the state. He depends on the law to protect him from the consequences of his own indifference or recklessness. And this is an undue proportion of the responsibility to shoulder off upon society at large. If the government eventually displays something of the same softness as he himself has shown in his dealings with uninvestigated jobbers he need not be surprised.

Everybody who knows anything knows that there are in mercantile business, in the United States, thousands upon thousands of persons from every part of the world, some of them hampered by few scruples and many of them complete strangers to the American code of business honor. Vendors who extend credit to these folks without closest character inquiry ought to understand that they do so somewhat at their own risk. Neither the states nor the federal government can underwrite such haphazard credit giving.

We are not at all sure that there would not be far fewer crooked bankruptcies if the government lay off criminal prosecutions altogether and put it up to the vendor to insure his own risks.

FEDERALIZED SCHOOLS

With the enthusiasm of youth the National League of Women Voters is very actively trying to accomplish things. Some of them are things which, were they once accomplished, we have every faith this same League of Women Voters would be just as actively trying to do, inside of ten years. One thing which the League is advocating is "increasing general provision by the government for education."

Probably no group of persons in America would be quicker to recognize the error of bringing the duty of education under centralized control, once it had been accomplished and the fruits of the blunder had begun to develop, than the women of the League. Nor is it likely that any group would go further, or be willing to make greater sacrifices, in combating the subtle poison generated by such a system as this they are now advocating, once the evils of it had a chance to demonstrate themselves.

If there is one thing that far-sighted Americans hold in abhorrence above all other political propositions so far advanced, it is the thought of a bureaucratic federal control of the formal education of the young people of this land. In our state and town management of the public schools it is possible, by close watchfulness, to keep the schools and the schools' teachings out of politics. But once let them fall under the influence of entrenched political power, and there is absolutely no telling to what lengths administrations might not go in bedeviling the minds of the young through curricula of propaganda.

We feel entirely sure that the League of Women Voters has surveyed this problem from only one angle, and that the most obvious one. We feel just as sure that the League will never carry its championship of the proposal very far, because it will wake up much too soon for that.

GREATNESS

Utterly tragic was the death in Accra, West Africa, of the Japanese scientist, Dr. Hideyo Noguchi, whose life had been devoted to the problem of isolating the germs of the various widely varying types of yellow fever. Yellow fever killed him—the virulent African kind which he was studying in its lair. It was he who succeeded in isolating the germ of the South American variety of the yellow plague.

Little, frail, he risked his life over and over again for the sake of humanity—and it was not given him to be fortunate enough to get away with it longer. But he achieved greatly before he was stopped.

It is quite conceivable that the time will come when it will be such men as he who will be acclaimed by the world, who will make the history of civilization and be recognized as its makers, rather than the soldiers and the political masters.

WHERE THEY GROW

When a boy in messenger uniform loitered into the office of Frazier, Jelke & Co., Wall street brokers, and casually asked if there were any stocks to be delivered, the cashier, Leonard Hermus, handed him securities valued at $26,342. Afterward the firm had the gall to ask the police to find the boy and get the stocks back. At this writing boy and stocks are still missing.

There are many wonderful things about the great city of New York. But perhaps the most wonderful thing of all is the lamb-like unsuspectance of those of its citizens who handle the scads in Wall street. The boy, ought really to be ashamed of himself for piking in such small change.

HIS SERVICE

Alan Dale, dean of New York's dramatic critics through point of service, was probably the most notable example in American journalism of ability to hold a job continuously, for a great many years, through an ability to say disagreeable things in a clever way. Mr. Dale, who died suddenly in England on Monday, was celebrated in the theatrical and newspaper world for sheer inability to see more than a smattering of good in any play or any player, and for the trenchant and caustic manner of his "panning."

Yet very few people, comparatively, have ever read any of the half dozen or more books that he wrote, while his one play expired after a short run. His gift was that of the sophisticated fault finder.

He probably did his greatest service to the stage and to the art of dramatic criticism by providing other and younger critics with a shining example. There is far less of wholesale, ill-considered condemnation of either plays or performances, in the metropolitan press nowadays, than there was before Alan Dale unconsciously provided students of criticism with such concrete specimens of the thing to avoid—the "roast."

New York, May 23.—Many of the huge skyscrapers of New York are similar to that of an incorporated city. The Equitable could be flattened over a city area it would cover 43 blocks—a business section that any thriving city would like to add. To operate such buildings requires an administrative policy similar to that of an incorporated city.

The superintendent is the theoretical mayor, and has under him an organized body of workers. Such buildings boast their own police department and a fire organization, assisted by "volunteers." The operation of the scores of elevators constitutes the traffic problem for the expresses and the locals must leave on the dot and the whole mechanism of such a structure must click if confusion is to be avoided.

A couple of years ago someone started a newspaper for a couple of the skyscraper populations, figuring that a potential drawing power of 20,000, or thereabouts, was at his command. Of course he failed. For he overlooked the fact that, when all is said and done, these buildings lack community interest.

In a city of 20,000 pretty nearly everyone is likely to know pretty nearly everyone else, whereas in a building of 12,000 persons two stenographers are likely to sit desk-to-desk for years with only a polite nod in the morning and a "good night" at quitting time. Each office—and there are 2400 in these steel giants—is a tiny hamlet within itself, without the slightest interest in each other. Under such circumstances a newspaper could not survive.

For those who are impressed by statistics, some idea of the magnitude of these great citadels can be gained from the following figures: In a single sky giant more than 100,000 persons enter and leave within an eight-hour day. The combined elevators travel more than 907 miles a day. Something like 400,000 gallons of water are consumed daily and 4500 telephones keep the switchboards active. Postmen distribute nearly 150,000 pieces of mail from the various chutes, and the lighting system could supply a good-sized town.

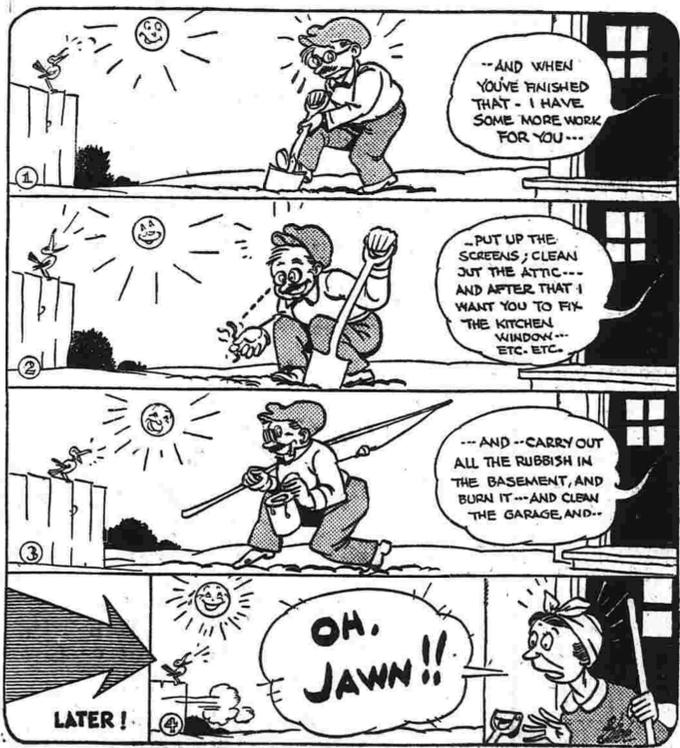

The story goes around that a well-known young man by the name of Lindbergh and another young man by the name of Tunney finally met at the home of a friend. Immediately both began to regret the fact that fame knocks out all hope of privacy. Each suggested to the other ways of affecting a disguise.

"At least I have the best of you in that I can retire," laughed Tunney, while Lindbergh sadly shook his head.

Yet, I am told, when they shook hands on the sidewalk a few moments later and turned to go their separate ways, not a soul so much as looked around.

FACTS ABOUT CONNECTICUT

Compiled by the CONNECTICUT CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

(128) Conn. Leads N. E. in Per Capita Wealth. Connecticut with an estimated tangible wealth of $6,040,000 leads New England in the estimated per capita value of all tangible property and is well above the average for the United States. The intangible wealth of Connecticut is incalculable. Greenwich has the wealthiest per capita population of any city in America.

Connecticut's per capita estimated value of all tangible property is $3,842, according to latest comparative figures. For New England it is $3,268 and for the United States $3,215. Nevada leads all states with a figure of $7,299 while Alabama is lowest with $1,306.

Connecticut has not always led the other New England states in per capita tangible wealth. As late as 1904 both Massachusetts and Rhode Island were higher. The 1912 figures, however, placed Connecticut in the lead, which she has since held. In 1900 Connecticut's total tangible wealth amounted to $1,198,754,000 and her per capita tangible wealth amounted to $1,198,754,000 and her per capita tangible wealth $1,320. The per capita value for New England was $1,386 and for the United States $1,165.

The estimated value of taxed real property in Connecticut today is almost five times the $637,500,000 value of 1900; for New England it is only slightly more than three times the 1900 value.

Connecticut's estimated tangible wealth amounting to $5,286,445,000 in 1923 was apportioned as follows: Real property and improvements, $3,024,483,000, of which $2,580,042,000 was taxable and $444,441,000 exempt; livestock, $22,608,000; farm implements and machinery, $9,025,000; manufacturing machinery, tools and implements, $457,135,000; railroad and other equipment, $179,075,000; motor vehicles, $58,221,000; street railways, shipping, water works, etc., $205,737,000; all other, $1,349,951,000.

WASHINGTON LETTER

By RODNEY DUTCHER.

Washington, May 23.—Either there are more press agents than ever or they are working harder. The bulk of the great mass of publicity material which they fire at editors and correspondents to be printed in the newspapers grows larger from month to month.

It is only human for a correspondent to take advantage of this huge wall. Here are a few of the more interesting bits picked from a pile of "canned news" nearly a foot high:

General Superintendent F. Scott McBride of the Anti-Saloon League says:

"Whether prohibition will win or lose will depend upon whether the cities are awake to the prohibition question. Fifteen years from now the city will be in control. There is today a greater population in the seven city areas than resides on all the farms of the country. These city areas are as follows: Boston, New York, Philadelphia, Detroit, Chicago, Los Angeles and San Francisco." Prohibition, McBride explains, "came up from the rural sections."

Other Anti-Saloon publicity includes a digest of a speech by Congressman-at-large Henry R. Rathbone of Illinois, who says that "prohibition is demanded by the requirements of civilization, which requires a clear brain and full possession of all the faculties."

Once, says Rathbone, it didn't greatly matter to society whether a man drank liquor or not. But this is an age of machines and automobiles, he explains, and of mass production and efficiency. Each of us must be on his toes to keep up with the parade and avoid losing legs and arms in machinery.

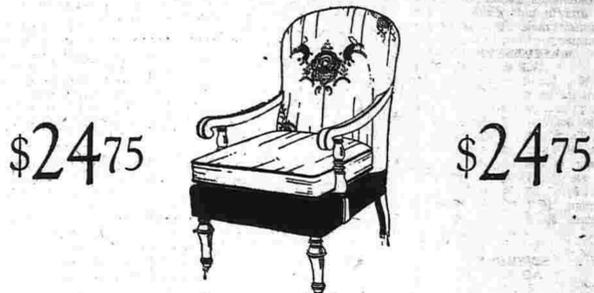

The Department of Agriculture reports, among many other things, that bad cold waves and heavy rains have handicapped farmers this season and that more than a million cattle were tested for tuberculosis during March. Field work and growth of early crops was retarded, and considerable replanting of corn and cotton was necessary in the south. It looks like a bumper potato crop and the department warns that it may be big enough to break the potato market if farmers

REACHES SETTLEMENT IN SUIT FOR HIS FEE

Atty. Foley Calls Agreement on Disputed Claim Against Mrs. Hurley Satisfactory.

Attorney John Foley of Manchester has settled his suit brought against Mrs. Josephine Hurley of Fairfield street, claiming $2,000 due for service rendered in defending Mrs. Hurley's interests under the will of Julia Dunn, a sister, who died in Willimantic.

Mrs. Dunn was the widow of Mayor Daniel P. Dunn of Willimantic, former state comptroller. On his death Mr. Dunn left his estate to his wife and she died shortly afterwards. In her will she left the bulk of her estate to Mrs. Hurley, wife of Peter Hurley of Manchester.

Atty. Foley claimed that he had successfully defended Mrs. Hurley's interests in reaching a settlement. In his suit, which was to have gone to trial yesterday, he had for his attorneys William and David Wilson, while Attorney Frank Foss of Willimantic acted for Mrs. Hurley. The case was settled before it had gone to trial. It was satisfactory to Atty. Foley, he asserts.

TWO BIG FEATURES AT STATE TOMORROW

"Circus Rookies" and Pola Negri to Divide Honors; Also Two Features Tonight.

For tomorrow and Friday the State Theater is offering a big double feature program of unusual merit. Both attractions are among the latest releases, and should prove immensely interesting to local picture fans.

Karl Dane and George K. Arthur leaped to fame as laughmakers supreme in "Rookies" and added to the world's sum total of hilarity in "Baby Mine," but in "Circus Rookies" came their big chance. This is one of the features booked at the State for tomorrow.

Right from the start, the play moves with a bang and a laugh. It starts in a circus, and one sees intimate glimpses of how circus folk travel, live and work. Professionals from big shows stage a performance of their own. Dane gets a job as animal trainer and Arthur becomes the show's press agent and then the fun begins. Despite the hilarious comedy, however, there is a pretty romance running through it, between Arthur as the earnest young press agent and Louise Lorraine as the trapeze star. "Circus Rookies" is one picture that you should not miss, if you want a good laugh.

The second film feature will be Pola Negri in "Three Sinners," a pulsating story of love and honor. Miss Negri presents a new interpretation in this, her latest starring production. All the power and force of her unusual ability is brought to the fore in the absorbing personality of Countess Gerda Wallentin, queen of the Monte Carlo gambling circles.

Two features are also being shown at the State tonight. They are Chester Conklin in his latest film fun special, "The Big Noise," and Fatsy Ruth Miller in "The Tragedy of Youth," a story of modern marriage problems told in a thrilling and dramatic way.

"Dress Parade," one of the screen sensations of the year, is coming to the State on Sunday and Monday.

MANDELL'S VICTORY AIDED HIM LITTLE

Can't Get a Match He's Too Good But Loser Has Two Ahead.

By DAVIS J. WALSH

New York, May 23.—They say that nothing succeeds like success but an epigram like that is good only as the inevitable exception and the old-oaken, moss-covered, and iron-bound minority report are out somewhere playing with their split infinitives.

Having eased that burden off my troubled conscience, we now will hasten to consider the sad story of Samuel Mandell, the lightweight champion. Samuel may be said to have been markedly successful in defending his championship title on Monday night. And does that mean he is to prosper in proportion to the success of his undertaking? Yes, indeed; it does not.

No More Work
Mandell was all-fired successful the other night that it looks as though he might have the rest of the summer quite to himself. He apparently fought himself right out of work.

New children, let us pass along to the next picture. What do you see? That's right, Constance; you see a man. Is the man big? No, the man is little. Was the little man successful on Monday night? No, the little man was very unsuccessful. Is the little man winking at you? No, the little man closed his eye by mistake on Monday night and now he can't open it. Would the little man wink if he could? Undoubtedly, Hassenpfeffer. If the little man doesn't feel like winking today, he ought to have the other eye closed for him.

Made for Jimmy
But James McLarin, the unsuccessful candidate at Monday's lightweight election, has a sense of humor and so he will wing almost involuntarily as he considers the fact that they are busy at this moment trying to match him into plenty of money. Our Mr. Rickard is not taking the winner of Monday's championship and sending him along after bigger and better purses. He is playing the loser in that spot, the idea being that Mandell simply was too successful to bother with from now on.

"I have nothing in mind for Mandell," said our Mr. Rickard today. "But I figure on dropping McLarin in with a lightweight or two during the outdoor season. I'd like to bring him back with Sid Terris."

Although he didn't say as much, it is believed that our Mr. Rickard will wait to get the winner of the Terris-Bruce Flowers fight and then sign him to a McLarin contract. Then, according to the tentative program outlined, McLarin, provided he gets by the Terris-Flowers winner, will be dropped in with Billy Wallace for a late summer attraction.

Meanwhile, where does Mandell come in? It seems that he doesn't. He fought a perfect fight; in fact, he made only one mistake all night but that one settled it. He was so ill advised as to prove that he was too downright good.

Kansas City has found enough hotel rooms for the G. O. P. delegates and will rent them at a fixed rate. Must be going to raise the price a little on the meals.

'Tis a fast football team,
Who has such nice a name,
Through the victories we have won,
We gathered up much fame.

The we've lost the town championship
We think we did fine,
For it isn't good sportsmanship
To win all the time.

Cheer up there Cloverleaves
We're going mighty fine,
Next year we wish to march
Up the line abreast by nine.

It didn't seem much like a parade
It resembled a mardigras
And when they passed the Turnpike
They got the Ha! Ha! Ha!

Down in Depot Square
A funeral was held in air,
To bid for such short notice,
Or a canopy would have been there.

Then they all marched back, hearse and hack
They were very glad
To think they were at a funeral
Opposite of being sad

Because they won
Aroused much air,
If we the Cloverleaves would have won
They'd say the referee wasn't fair.

Cheerup Cloverleaves
We'll never lose faith
We live for revenge
On the team we hate.

FOREIGN WAR VETERANS URGE NEW PENSION BILL IN HOUSE AND SENATE.

Kansas City.—Forces of Veterans of Foreign Wars of the U. S., under the leadership of state legislative chairmen, are to be marshalled for a concerted drive in behalf of a world war service pension bill for disabled veterans, now in the hands of the House Committee on Pensions in Congress.

Edwin S. Bettelheim, Jr., chairman of the national legislative committee, sent out an appeal from national headquarters here today urging every V. F. W. post to contract its respective senators and congressmen stressing the need of such legislation.

The pending measure, known as H. R. 9138, contemplates pensions for disabled world war veterans suffering from disabilities incurred in the service but thus far excluded from Veterans Bureau compensation.

CRASHING INTO DEER MOTORCYCLIST KILLED

Finding of Bodies of Animals Leads to Man's Dead Body.

Kent, Conn., May 23.—Frank Gavel, eighteen, was instantly killed last night when his motorcycle plunged into a group of deer on the state highway four miles north of here and was catapulted over the handlebars of his machine. Two deer were killed by the crash and the sight of their carcasses on the road led to the finding of Gavel's body.

Dr. Walter M. Barnum, medical examiner, investigated and today expressed the belief that Gavel had been going at high speed when the deer suddenly appeared in the path of his machine. Death was instantaneous, according to Dr. Barnum.

The accident occurred near Benson park on a straight stretch of road that has induced motorists to speed ever since the state built the highway here. Mr. and Mrs. A. Angelvitch, driving south toward their home here, found the deer, and then discovered the wrecked motorcycle and Gavel's body just beyond.

Farmers had for some time complained of the increasing number of deer as herding like cattle and wandering at will through this district, doing heavy damage.

Gavel is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Gavel.

TOWARD HEAVEN

Sam Jones was on the spot when the explosion occurred. He was blown up, and they couldn't find any trace of him. When his wife called the foreman said, quietly: "He's gone, ma'am."

"Gone?" she said "For good?"

"Well, in that direction," said the foreman.—Tit-Bits.

LINDY HEADS NEW COAST TO COAST AIRWAY

vice versa. The cost of the coast-to-coast trip will be slightly more than the cost of a railroad journey with drawing room accommodations.

Worth a Million
"Lindy," through his identification with the company, will be steadily increasing his earning powers. It is estimated that he already has earned $1,000,000 from various enterprises, including newspaper articles and the book "We." It was a few days more than a year ago when he made his epochal non-stop flight from New York to Paris, and since that time he has given his time unstintingly to enterprises from which he drew no revenue, such as acting as America's "good will ambassador" to various countries.

The technical committee which Lindbergh will head will be composed of practical aviation men. Some of its members remain to be chosen and its personnel has not been announced. This committee will lay out an air pass route that eventually will connect with the trans-continental line. In due time, officials of the company say, a network of air-rail routes all over the country will be in operation, these feeder lines connecting with the main New York-to-Los Angeles route.

It has been decided that three-motored planes, capable of carrying 12 to 14 passengers and their hand baggage, will be used over the trans-continental route but no make of plane has been selected.

GIRLS BEST SPELLERS IN NATION'S SCHOOLS

These Words Stumped Many: Knack, Bacillus, Magic, Occurred and Middy.

Washington, May 23.—Girls always were the best spellers, anyway.

They proved it again in the national spelling bee, annually conducted by a group of newspapers in various parts of the country, by finishing one, two, three.

Betty Robinson, of South Bend, Ind., won the national title and the prize of $1,000. She spelled "knack" after Pauline Gray of West Salem, Ohio, had failed to include the "k" in the word. Pauline was second and won $500.

Bessy Dolg of Detroit, won third place. The word bacillus proved Bessy's undoing. She thought there were two c's in it.

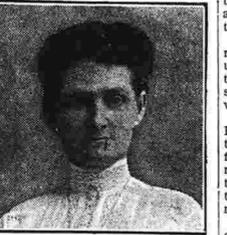

Anne Murphy of New Britain, Conn., tripped over "magic." Emma Malarkic of Youngstown, Ohio, stumbled on "occurred." Abraham Belanger of New Bedford, Mass., failed on the word "middy" and his feminine opponents all giggled, much to Abraham's discomfiture.

There were 23 contestants in the national bee.

The pulse of a new-born infant is from 130 to 140 beats a minute; in adults it is 70 to 75.

"I USED TO LIE IN BED AND CRY WITH AGONY," SAYS TORRINGTON LADY

Mrs. Mary Bunnell, of 220 Brightwood Ave., Torrington, Conn., Had a Happy Experience With the New Medicine ERBUBUS.

The pains I suffered run me down and I got so weak that it tired me to get around.

My appetite was fitful and I was restless at nights. My eyes puffed up and were swollen on account of the kidney trouble. My feet would swell and my back ached as if it would break.

I had heard a great deal about ERBUBUS and decided to give it a trial. I am very glad I did as the first dose seemed to soothe and help my bladder trouble. I have now taken very near three bottles and the results have been very much more than I expected.

I sleep the nights through and can eat anything without distress. That terrible backache has disappeared entirely. I cannot thank this medicine too much for the wonders it has performed in my case and deem it my duty to make this public statement as to the great good that ERBUBUS did me."

BIRTH RATE FALLING

Berlin, May 23.—Germany, which formerly had one of the highest birth rates in the world, has gone in for birth control, according to statistics compiled today. Whereas more couples in Berlin marry than ever before, fewer children are being born. It is claimed the population of the city would die out, if it did not recruit itself from the country districts.

The figures for 1927 in Berlin are: Births—44,433; deaths—50,479. The Berlin marriage rate increased from 9.44 per thousand to 9.80 in 1927 whereas the birth rate dropped from 13.13 to 10.63.

TRADE SCHOOL SHOW RESULTS IN ORDERS

Working Demonstration Attracts Much Attention and Big Crowd Attends.

Orders were placed and cost estimates asked on considerable work by persons who attended the tenth annual Parents' Night demonstration at the State Trade school on School street, according to Director A. A. Warren.

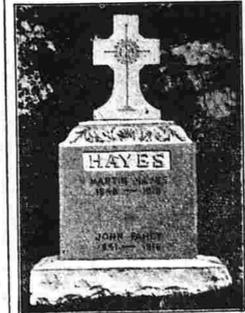

A check taken at the school revealed that at least 700 persons passed through the building during the demonstration. The number was about evenly divided between men and women. School street was lined on both sides with parked automobiles. Director Warren said he was highly gratified by the type of people who visited the school. Practically all of them were parents of students now enrolled at the Trade School or of prospective students who will begin vocational study on the completion of their grammar school work in June, or in September.

The large number of business men present, Mr. Warren said, showed a growing curiosity about the internal working of the institution. Many of them expressed surprise at the advanced grade of work being done. They had the impression that the vocational school work meant little more than elementary treatment of trades but when they discovered that the courses are really comprehensive, their interest was keenly awakened. The visitors seemed about equally interested in all the departments, although the rooms in which machinery was in operation naturally attracted somewhat more attention than others. The assembly hall, where a display of finished work was on exhibition, was crowded all evening.

Every department was represent-

When A Girl Loves

© 1928 by NEA Service

by RUTH DEWEY GROVES

THIS HAS HAPPENED NATRANIEL DANN is engaged to VIRGINIA BREWSTER, whose father dies suddenly after losing his fortune. NIEL begs her to marry him in haste, but FREDERICK DEAN and his daughter CLARRISSA persuade her to make her temporary home with them. This angers NIEL for he suspects DEAN's motives. VIRGINIA becomes unhappy in her new home and resolves to tell NIEL her fears. But when she phones his studio late at night his model, CHIRI, answers. This causes doubt and a lover's quarrel which is later mended.

Hoping to get NIEL out of the way, DEAN has a cunningly contrived offer him a high-salaried commercial position in San Francisco. NIEL begs VIRGINIA marry him and go west, but she refuses to let him sacrifice his art study. CLARRISSA becomes furious when she discovers DEAN's plan. RUSSELL WAINGOLD, making love to VIRGINIA, and accuses her of trying to marry for money. VIRGINIA resolves to leave the house immediately, but she is stopped by DEAN who tries to get her to stay and make her return to him. She tells her she had better reconsider "in order to redeem your father's honor."

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XIV VIRGINIA wheeled in a flash and stared at Dean as though he had aimed an arrow at her head. He stood, hands in pockets, and returned her wordless gaze with an air of victory that tortured her. "What do you mean?" she managed finally to gasp from lips grown lifeless.

Dean motioned to her chair. "Sit down," he directed with a quiet note of command in his voice. Virginia found herself reluctantly obeying him. Her need for support was imperative. Reaction from the shock of his thunderbolt was turning her body to fluid, it seemed to her.

From the depths of the Sleepy Hollow chair she continued to stare at him, gripped with fear of a nameless evil. "If you weren't such a romantic little fool I could have spared you this," Dean snapped impatiently, turning away from her stricken expression. Virginia did not answer him. She could not. Her throat was constricted until she felt she would choke if she could not soon draw a free breath.

Dean waited. "Do you remember, do you not," he said at last, "that your father's lawyer told you he could not account for the money that was raised on your Glen Cove estate?"

Virginia nodded. "Well, I can tell you what became of it," he went on, talking fast. "Your father lost it in a bootlegging deal."

At this amazing statement something seemed to break through the thrall in which Virginia was held. "That's not true!" she exclaimed fervently. "My father wouldn't have had anything to do with bootlegging."

"Bootlegging is not so bad, my dear," he said pleasantly. "In fact, it's a thrilling business. I know, because I was in it with your father—at his invitation, I might add."

"Do you expect me to believe that?" Virginia challenged. "I shall prove it to you. But first I must tell you that your father engaged in a rum-running venture that I asked you to listen to me."

Virginia pulled herself erect in the big chair. "If you intend holding such a ridiculous charge as that over my head to make me listen to your insulting proposals you are making a mistake," she stormed hotly. "No one would believe you any more than I do!"

"I do not imagine we will have occasion to test the faith of the world at large," Dean remarked

"Married!" Virginia cried. "Married! I'd rather die!"

soberly. "I expect your loyalty to your father to save his memory from being forgotten. But you, Virginia, your lips curled in contempt. 'Say what you like. Father's friends will never believe you.' 'That is not the point, I myself, should not care to advertise my little adventure to the public, but the fact that your father cheated me is another matter.'"

"Oh," Virginia cried, sharply. "How can you say such a thing about the man who was your closest friend?"

"Because it happens to be true; and the fact that he was as you say, my closest friend, is what makes it all the more bitter to me." Virginia made a move to get out of the chair. "I won't listen to you any longer," she declared through trembling lips.

"In this case I shall have to admit that I've underestimated your loyalty," Dean assured her. "I thought you would prefer to clear your father's name. You can do that by consenting to become my wife."

"But I don't believe what you say; you're just trying to trap me!" Dean turned to his desk. "Wait," he said curtly, and opened a drawer from which he quickly drew out two envelopes. One he handed to Virginia.

"She drew a folded sheet from the envelope and spread it open. The handwriting was her father's. 'Read it,' he ordered. Virginia wet her lips with the tip of her tongue and began to read:

"Dear Frederick: The failure of our first venture in B. L. was an overwhelming blow to me but I shall not give up. As you know, I raised the better part of one hundred thousand dollars on my property at Glen Cove. It was the only unencumbered real estate that re-change the facts at all if you persist in your blindness." "I can never believe that father deliberately tricked or cheated anyone."

He shrugged. "As you wish," he said coolly, "but it is still true, nevertheless, and you are giving up the one chance to make good for him. He wanted to do it himself. Can't you see that in his letter? He asked for time, but he knew he couldn't raise the money."

Through Virginia's mind shot a perplexing question, one that strengthened her faith. "But if father really thought you why didn't he have the money to pay you back when you found it out?" she asked cunningly.

"A very bright idea, my dear, but not so confounding as you think. He hadn't the money for the simple reason that he had double-crossed me. It goes that way in B. L." He flipped his hand in a negligent motion and smiled. "It was rather a joke on Richard, an expensive one. He informed me that he'd been hi-jacked, and so he was, later. I got to touch with his lieutenant and found out for myself, because I don't allow any man to lose $100,000 for me without looking into it."

His voice was hard as steel now and Virginia felt the first pang of genuine doubt creeping into her heart. But she fought on.

"He was ready to try again," she said. "Would he have wanted to do that if he had been . . . hi-jacked?"

"Richard would, yes. He was always a fool about money. You can see for yourself in his letter that he admits failure and still expresses his willingness to take another chance. All his life he's been wrecking the Brewster fortune because he didn't know how to handle it. And at last he was driven desperate to keep up appearances. His doctor and his lawyer both advised him to put on the brakes, but he hadn't the faintest idea of how to do it."

"A tortured cry rose in Virginia's throat but she stifled it, determined not to show her fear and grief. "But I can say that I believe he wanted to return my money," Dean went on, his tones a little less sharp. "Perhaps he would have done it, too, if he had lived. And I dare say he never would have taken advantage of a friend if he hadn't been fighting with his back to the wall. Adversity is a great leveler of character, you know. But your refusal to acknowledge the debt is a greater surprise to me, Virginia, than your father's dishonesty."

"He wasn't dishonest! No matter what you say I know my father never cheated you. But if you believe it, if you want your pound of flesh, you shall have it!" She was on her feet now, hands clenched at her side and her whole body trembling with emotion.

"In the first place," Dean gazed warily under the lash of her scorn, but only for an instant. Then he was coolly assuring her of his whole-hearted desire for the last ounce of the proverbial pound. "And you must change your mind about leaving the house," he added. "We will arrange to be married quietly in a few weeks and slip away to the Mediterranean for our honeymoon."

"Married!" Virginia cried. "Married! I'd rather die!" Dean's face darkened instantly. "How then, may I ask," he said frigidly, "do you propose to pay the debt?"

NOT A DOLL HOUSE, BUT A REAL HOME

Keeping house in The Gordon would be like playing dolls again, so cute and small and compact is this charming cottage. Of course, one could set most grown-up entertaining in such a really large living room for so small a home, a room 23 by 12—and with a fireplace, too. And there is a real dining room and two sizable bedrooms! The kitchen, with all its little tricks such as hiding its breakfast around the corner in order to make it look like an extra room, is the room of rooms. Here a business woman could bestir herself only slightly and find a meal on the table very soon. This is essentially a home for a couple both of whom work. Or an ideal nest for a young pair who have only one or two children. Considering the very reasonable price of this neat house, it has tremendous appeal. Its cost is only from $4,500 to $5,500.

For further information concerning The Gordon, write The Building, Washington, D. C.

Styles by ANNETTE Paris—New York. One-Minute Interviews

OUTSTANDING SMARTNESS

An important detail of chic is jabot frill slipped through bound opening at center-front just below collarless V-neckline. Style No. 188 achieves a graceful flare through box-plaited skirt, showing smart up-in-the-front waistline. It can be made at a decided saving, for the 38-inch size only takes 3 yards of 40-inch with 1/4 yard of 40-inch contrasting fabric, pattern for which can be had in sizes 16, 18, 20 years, 36, 38, 40 and 42 inches bust. Printed linen with plain linen, silk crepe in geometric print with plain crepe, Nile green shantung, black canton-faille crepe with white silk crepe, printed and plain chiffon, beige flat silk crepe, navy blue georgette crepe, and crepe satin with reverse side used for jabot frill and piping are becoming for immediate and summery wear. Price 15 cents in stamps or coin (coin preferred).

Hard-boiled eggs that will be used for salad should be plunged into cold water the minute they are done. This prevents their discoloring.

OPEN SANDWICHES. Sunday night supper is simple if one serves some kind of hot open sandwich. Use creamed shrimp, lobster, eggs or meat over toast and garnish with tomato and watercress.

CURTAIN HOLDERS. Paint several safety clothespins gay colors. Snap them onto curtain holders, to keep curtains clean when you open the windows.

Fashion Plaque

DELIGHTFUL is this white felt sports hat with a heavy fold of red silk twisted around the crown.

The WOMAN'S DAY

George Bernard Shaw, thinking it is about time for him to make some epigrams, recently remarked, 'Women love hotels; men hate them,' thereby putting woman in a class of those who love the standardized, the ornate, the impersonal, the superficial; whereas, man, bless him, has an eye for the sterling worth of home and hearthside. Perhaps the reason women love hotels, if they do, and men don't if they don't, is because women never get away from home and men are never at home. That's a slight exaggeration, but it's only human to enjoy a change, and to a woman a hotel's the change; to a man, home is.

AUTO DRESSES Frilly, feminine clothes never will return in this automobile era, according to some fashion authority who insists that automobiles demand aloof, simple, sport clothes. One might argue that ruffles and bustles and panniers and sashes thrived in a horse and buggy era, and that buggies would crush clothes just as much as autos. But our lady forebears didn't live in buggies to the extent that their lady descendants live in autos. They occasionally had to dry and candles to make, to say nothing of soft soap to boil and yarn to dye.

LEGS NOT ART? Speaking of legs, painters now are fighting mad at the short skirt—not because they think it ugly so much as that it's putting full length painting out of business, and the bigger the canvas and the more the oil used, the bigger the bill for a starving artist. Just why ladies won't be painted full-length with their legs showing is somewhat of a mystery, if they believe in the aestheticism of the style! Maybe they're afraid future generations won't be so sure. After all, we do see take our leg display for what we would no more wonder what future generations would think of legs than our Great-Aunt Emma wondered what we'd think of ankle-length skirts.

NOT SO MODERN! Is modern woman so modern after all? We have made no little to-do about our women aviators—our Ruth Elders, Frances Grayson, Mildred Doran, Princess Wertheim-Lowenstein, Herta Junkers and the rest. But in 1838 the world was exactly as excited about balloonists as it is about aviators today, and of 471 balloonists 49 were women. They say that today there are only about 50 women in the world who can really safely handle a plane. Considering that there are many more aviators than 471, women of the long ago stand out a bit more adventurous than those of today. Sometimes one wonders if all "the modern woman's" cockiness about her modernity isn't a bit mistaken!

MAD BUSINESS! Commercial interests control the National Federation of Women's Clubs according to a charge made by Anna Steese Richardson, a club editor who has been in intimate touch with all women's clubs for years. She claims that chairmen of various departments of the federation are in the hire of commercial interests who have an axe to grind along the particular line which this department represents.

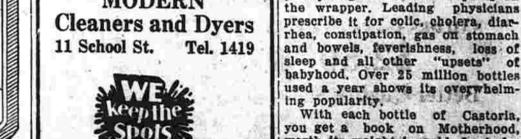

MARYE and MOM Their Letters My dear Marye: You certainly can twist things around to suit yourself. But I really am amused at you. Can't you see that Florence already is applying the experience she has gained with you? She sees you doing precisely as you please? Why shouldn't she? Do you suppose she knows that Alan wouldn't approve of your going out with Norman? But you do it anyway. Then why should your disapproval keep her from doing the same? If you do not care for what Alan thinks, why should she care for what you think? No, I don't consider she has done anything to you to call a betrayal of your trust. Though naturally I do think it terrible for a girl to stay out most of the night. I don't know why it is but most of the world's mischief is perpetrated after sundown. Late hours are as conducive to evil as is idleness. One reason, I think, is that people need artificial stimulus to make the time pass pleasantly at night. Late at night, I mean, when, if there was nothing exciting to do everyone would go home. And when the senses are excited and a sleepy body kept animated with music and gaiety the mind becomes less rational than usual. I can't believe that a girl isn't running a risk of making a mistake that she can't undo. Beyond that, she is dangerous. I don't care how you depend it; I think it cheapens a girl. Now I suppose you will say you told Florence to turn in early. What if you did? It was not your own ends and to keep Alan from being cross, and not because you have tried to make Florence keep sensible hours for her own good. No, Marye, you are only reading as you sowed with Florence. But I am not amused at your seeing the Pedro again. That worries me. Lovingly, MOM.

Don't Make a Toy Out of Baby Babies Have Nerves By RUTH BRITTON

Much of the nervousness in older children can be traced to the overstimulation during infancy caused by regarding baby as a sort of animated toy for the amusement of parents, relatives and friends. Baby may be played with, but not for more than a quarter of an hour daily. Beyond that, being handled, tickled, caused to laugh or even scream, will sometimes result in vomiting, and invariably causes irritability, crying or sleeplessness. Frequent crying and sleeplessness from this cause can easily be avoided by treating baby with more consideration, but when you just can't see what is making baby restless or upset, better give him a few drops of pure, harmless Castoria. It's amazing to see how quickly it calms baby's nerves and soothes him to sleep; yet it contains no drugs or opiates. It is purely vegetable—the recipe is on the wrapper. Leading physicians prescribe it for colic, cholera, diarrhea, constipation, gas on stomach and bowels, feverishness, loss of sleep and all other "upsets" of babyhood. Over 25 million bottles used a year shows its overwhelming popularity. With each bottle of Castoria, you get a book on Motherhood, worth its weight in gold. Look for Chas. H. Fletcher's signature on the package so you'll get genuine Castoria. There are many imitations.—Ad.

Daily Health Service HINTS ON HOW TO KEEP WELL by World Famed Authority

INDUSTRY'S CAMPAIGN CUTS DOWN ACCIDENTS. By DR. MORRIS FISHBEN. Editor Journal of the American Medical Association and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine. The great campaign against accidents occurring in industry is beginning to yield successful results. The report of the experience of members of the National Safety Council for 1927 revealed a lowering of the accident frequency rate from 31.31 to 25.95. The days lost because of injury equals 71, whereas the previous year was 73. One hundred thirty-three out of 2,089 establishments completed the year of 1927 without a single injury causing a loss of time among the workmen. Great gains were made in every type of industry. MILLION and a Half Men. In the 2,089 establishments which reported, 1,565,747 employees were concerned. Out of this tremendous number there were only 522 deaths due to accidents in 1927, but the total number of accidents causing lost time was 97,123. It is impossible to realize that the great campaign has brought about also a lessening in the severity of the results of the accidents. The accident severity rate of 1.61 for 1927 was 8 per cent. below 1.74, the rate for 1926, and that rate was 14 per cent. below 1.97, which was the rate for 1925. The prevention of accidents in industry has resulted from two main factors: 1—Provision of adequate devices to guard machines with which accidents were frequent; 2—Education of man in carefulness and the stimulation of accident prevention as a goal with adequate rewards. Disability. Approximately two million people are disabled in industry at all times on account of sickness. The average worker in this country is disabled on account of disease eight days of each year. Out of 10,000 cases of illness lasting more than six days, the duration of 2,000 cases was 25 to 77 days; 625 cases lasted from 4 to 6 months, and 348 cases lasted more than six months. From 1870 to 1910 there were 300,000 fatal accidents among men employed in industry in the United States, 9,000,000 disabilities from accidents lasting four weeks or longer and 30,000,000 disabilities lasting less than four weeks. The economic cost of this tremendous amount of preventable disease represents a constant drain on the community.

Home Page Editorial PUTTING A PRICE ON PETS ON PETS By Olive Roberts Barton

A woman sued the driver of an automobile for $5,000 for the loss of her dog. The dog was valuable but that was not his price. She claimed that he was as dear to her as a child and that she had suffered to that extent. The jury returned a verdict of several hundred dollars, for those who had seen the accident declared it to have been the driver's fault. However the driver had no money and could not pay damages. It seemed to be up to the insurance company, for it happened that the carrier liability insurance. The insurance company contested it and there it stands. People will say, and do say, as they read of cases like this, that it is silly to make such a rumpus about a dog. But if I had a dog and he was killed by a careless driver, I'd make a rumpus too. It is pretty hard to keep a dog these days, particularly in a city. Sooner or later he is almost certain to be killed unless care is taken to keep him within the yard where he belongs. That is very hard to do. Even the canniest dogs are likely to be caught unawares, and we cannot always be on guard. But let us consider that, although nine times out of ten it is the dog's fault, it is not always even an accident when he is killed. One day he car ahead of us ran over a dog, and never stopped to look back. It was deliberate murder for the car could have turned a foot or two, or blown its horn, or slowed down, or something. The dog was in plain sight and standing still. Two men were talking one day. One man confessed that he had had the bad luck to kill four or five dogs. The other man said, "That's queer, Sam, I've driven cars for twelve years and I've never killed a dog." Of course accidents will happen but surely we could use care. It spoils a day completely to see an animal hurt or killed on the road.

CHICOPEE BALL CLUB PLAYS HERE ON SUNDAY AFTERNOON

Community Club Engages Strong Opposition For Sabbath; Also Plays New Britain Friday Night at Playgrounds.

The Community Club baseball team will meet New Britain Falcons in a state league contest at the north end playgrounds Friday evening. The same two teams were scheduled to play last week but rain prevented the meeting. Sunday afternoon, the Community will face the Chicopee Hillside. The Bay State combination is said to be a top-notch outfit. Their lineup includes several stars from the famous Boston Twilight league. Also included in their lineup will be Trauska, who will be remembered by Manchester fans as a former member of the Fisk Red Taps of Springfield. The Chicopee lineup will be as follows: Noonan c, Murphy p, Brown 1b, Beloski 2b, Trauska ss, Boker 3b, Lintan rf, Healey cf, and Gregory lf. The game will be played at Hickey's Grove and will start at 3 o'clock sharp.

Twilight Baseball Tomorrow Evening

There was an error in the twilight league pairings for tomorrow as announced yesterday. The North Ends were matched with Talcottville but these two teams played the opening night.

The correct pairings follow: Heights vs. Depot Square, at Hickey's. Firemen vs. North Ends at Playgrounds. Bon Aml at Manchester Green. Highland Park at Talcottville. The Highland Park-Talcottville game may be played Friday night as church services at Talcottville may interfere Thursday. This will occur but seldom during the schedule.

HOME OF BIG LEAGUERS

Somerville, Mass., is becoming known as the home of big league ball players. Pie Traynor, Danny MacFayden, Shanty Hogan, Horace Ford, Lew Fonseca, Haskell Billings and Bill Barrett are some Somerville products in the majors. Crocodiles grow quickly for the first few years of their lives; then their rate of growth slows down to about one inch a year.

TENNIS TALKS

Start Off Right in Tennis By Adopting Proper Form

BY GEORGE M. LOTT, JR. America's Third Ranking Player.

Good form is one of the most important things in lawn tennis. Yet, good form is rare. The average player by making his strokes badly and committing nearly all the faults within his power handicaps himself to a great extent.

As a result of this, he does not play very well and falls to get out of the game anywhere near the pleasure he should. The reason he has had form is because he started on the wrong fundamentals. When players start playing tennis, they usually do whatever is natural to them. If this happens to be wrong, their game later suffers.

The proper thing for a beginner to do is to take a few lessons and get the fundamentals right. A player gets started wrong and often cannot change. He won't cast away his natural game and acquire a new and better one. The importance of the correct start cannot be stressed too much.

FLAPPER FANNY SAYS:

It's wrong the way young folks bet nowadays; they never bet right.

SENSE and NONSENSE

Expert in Some Branches At mathematics women are not thought to be such birds. And yet a woman is a star at multiplying words.

The married men's quartet will now sing that popular selection, "My Wife is an Open Book to Me, But I Cannot Shut Her Up."

"I want a rake—a metal one. That wooden one you sold me last year was no good. It had pyorrhoea!" "Had pyorrhoea?" "Pep! All the teeth fell out!"

Times change; and a short skirt when skirts were long is a long skirt when skirts are short.

After the elaborate ceremony the well-wishers were throwing the customary rice at the young people. One excited guest station-holed the bride's father and demanded, "Have you any old shoes?" "Yes," replied the bill-footer patiently, "but sh-h-h! I'm wearing them."

I do not long for gems or gold; For nubile fame I worry not. But when it's hot I long for cold. And when it's cold I want it hot. —Cleveland, Ohio, Plain Dealer.

I do not long for gold or fame. All weather I can stand with ease. But I've a longing just the same To reprint silly rhymes like these. —Louisville, Ky., Times.

If one can curb his longing he May reap reward two-fold or more; Our longing's well in hand, you see, We add this quatrain and count four.

There are 112 miles of thread in a pair of ladies' silk hose—and very few blocks of walking.

Every man is where he is because that is his place.

Hubby, tackling his first meat-pie: "Well, well, where did you get this?"

Young Wife: "I made that out of Mrs. Thomas' cook book. It's a— 'Ah!' he broke in. 'This leathery part is the binding, I suppose?'"

Such experience is recommendation enough for anyone: A mistress of a boarding house hired a young Irish girl who had just arrived in this country.

She was somewhat dubious of the girl's ability to wait on the table. So she said, "Norah, do you think you can wait on the table; I have ten boarders, you know?"

Norah: "Sure, and that's all right, Ma'am. Why in Ireland I used to feed forty pigs every day."

"Money" is your servant if you know how to use it; your master if you don't.

Do you remember way back when torchlight parades were features of every political campaign?

LETTER GOLF

THIS IS CHILD'S PLAY.

Today's letter golf problem consists in cutting out PAPER DOLLS. Sounds childish, but it's not so simple to do in five slashes. One solution is on another page.

Word search grid with words PAPER and DOLLS.

THE RULES

- 1—The idea of a letter golf is to change one word to another and do it in par, a given number of strokes. Thus to change COW to HEN, in three strokes, COW, HOW, HEW, HEN.

Our arithmetic seems to be so different from that used by the bank that we have at last decided to give up the unequal struggle and just simply give their kind the priority.

Mrs. Snapper: "Every time you see a pretty girl you forget you're married." Mr. Snapper: "You're wrong dear. Nothing brings home the fact with so much force."

THE TINYMITES

READ THE STORY, THEN COLOR THE PICTURE.

In about an hour the meal was over. "Oh, my, I can't eat any more," said Clowny, as he stood up, and then flopped upon the ground. "That food, I think, was quite the best I've ever had. Now I must rest." He crawled across the grass until a nice soft place was found. Right soon he made the whole crowd roar, and Copy cried, "Oh, hear him snore. He always eats too much, and then is tired as he can be. He is a shameful Tynmite. He doesn't even act polite toward our little visitor." The girl said, "Don't mind me."

tel girl. The others did the same. And when she started on her way and said, "We'll meet some other day." When she had gone, wee Carpy sighed. "I'm mighty glad she came." When everyone had had a rest, the woodsman said, "I think it best that we all get to work now. There is plenty we must do. I'm going to build a houseboat strong, and it won't take us very long. "Oh, goody," shouted Carpy, "we will soon be helping you." And so the hard work soon began, and here and there the Tynmites ran to get some nails and hammers, and some saws and other things. "Well, this is fine," the woodsman said. "It seems we're moving right ahead, and soon we'll see the fine results that hard work always brings."

ABOUT TOWN

Delegates to the annual state convention of the Spanish War Veterans will be named at a special meeting of Ward Cheney Camp, local branch, tomorrow night at the club rooms in the State Armory building here. It is customary to name two delegates. The convention will be held June 15 and 16. A. T. Dawson of Norwalk, department commander, will be present at the meeting tomorrow evening and a special reception is planned for his honor. The meeting will begin at 8 o'clock sharp. Three candidates will be initiated.

Miss Ruth Wilcox, kindergarten teacher at the Washington school will not teach next year according to her plans, but will matriculate at Columbia University in New York City.

Mrs. John Chambers is ill with lumbago at her home at 24 Knox street.

Gustave Schriber today started foundation work on the new home of R. La Motte Russell, president of the Manchester Trust Company, in the Lakeview tract. Cellar excavation was completed yesterday. Mr. Schriber is also remodeling the home of Sherwood Bowers on Deming street and the Philip Cheney residence on Hartford road.

The regular monthly meeting of the physicians of the Memorial hospital staff will be held at the institution at 8:30 tomorrow night. Both scientific and business matters will be dealt with. A paper on blood transfusion will be read by one of the local doctors.

The Princess Candy Shop, at Main and Pearl streets, has just installed a new Butter-Kist popcorn machine.

Had Mr. and Mrs. Charles Gannon of Main street carried out their intentions it is probable that they would not have been living in Manchester when the body of their boy arrived at the railroad station this morning and was taken to Rockville for burial in Grove Hill cemetery. Mr. and Mrs. Gannon, former residents of Rockville, have been living in an apartment in the Blish & Quinn building. They had intended to vacate it and move to East Brookfield, Mass., but were held up a few days, and in the meantime the telegram announcing their son's death came. They had part of their furniture packed.

Tonight at the Buckland school the Ways and Means committee, of which Frank Ed Smith is the newly appointed chairman, will give another dance. They have engaged Wehr's orchestra to play and Dan Miller to prompt for the old-fashioned dances.

The Ladies' Sewing Circle of the Concordia Lutheran church will meet tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock.

Group 1 of Center church womenworkers will have a May social at the home of Mrs. George Smith, 158 East Center street, Friday evening at 7:30. Mrs. Smith will be assisted by Mrs. C. E. Willis, Mrs. A. Frank Cottrell, Miss Bertha Mohr and Miss Hulda Butler.

Linne Lodge No. 72, Knights of Pythias, will hold its regular meeting in Orange hall tonight at 8 o'clock.

The case of Mary Rubacka, charged with keeping liquor with intent to sell, scheduled to come up in the police court this morning, was again postponed until next Monday because of the illness of Attorney William Shea, who represents her.

MODERN DANCING

Thursday Night
AT THE RAINBOW

Lionel J. Kennedy's Orchestra

The dance which was to have been held in the City View dance hall on Keeney street tonight has been indefinitely postponed.

Claude E. Truax, who has been ill for the last few days, showed considerable signs of improvement yesterday, being able to move about a bit for the first time since he was stricken.

Loren C. Clifford, of 41 Foster street, formerly Rockville and Manchester exchange manager for the Southern New England Telephone Co., is resting comfortably after a severe attack of asthma which necessitated his removal last Thursday to the Litchfield County hospital in Winsted. Mr. Clifford was obliged to give up work about six months ago.

Stuart Wasley, real estate and insurance broker of 827 Main street, is confined to his home with the grip.

Lester Hohenthal of 42 Ridge-wood street, who was injured last week while working for the Manchester Lumber Company and was taken to the Hartford hospital, is back home but it will be several weeks before he will be able to return to work.

John Jensen, who has served on the Memorial Day committee, having charge of the school children, was unable to attend the general committee meeting last night. It is the first time that he has missed a Memorial Day committee meeting in 22 years. His absence last night was due to the fact that his daughter is seriously ill in the Memorial hospital.

FLAG DAY PLANS

Plans are nearing completion for the annual Flag Day exercises by the Elks Lodge No. 1359. They will be held Thursday evening, June 14, in Talcott Park, Rockville. If the weather should be unfavorable the exercises will be held in the Sykes auditorium. They will start at 8:30 p. m., daylight saving time. All the patriotic organizations of Rockville have been invited to participate. The exercises are sponsored by the Elks as follows: Joseph Lavitt, chairman; Herbert Clough, M. J. Conway, George Williams, Edward L. Newmarker and Daniel J. Sullivan.

CHENEYS TO HIRE ONLY GRADUATING STUDENTS

Follow Last Year's Policy But Have Found Jobs For 22 of Class of '23.

Cheney Brothers following a precedent established last year will not employ any undergraduate High school students for summer work. This course is to insure as far as possible employment for graduates of the commercial course. The Cheney concern has already found places for 18 girls and four boys of this year's class. The positions will be assumed by the students after their graduation in June. Cheney Brothers' employment office is co-operating as far as possible with the school authorities so those who contemplate obtaining employment might find it advantageous to confer first with Principle Quimby.

PHONES Pinehurst "GOOD THINGS TO EAT"

STAGGERED DELIVERIES

Probably you have noticed that there is constant talk of "staggering" the New York subway traffic. Meaning that if the clock-and-suit trade would only start its day say at 7:30, the mechanic trades at 7:45, some other great industry at 8 o'clock and another at 8:15 and so on, instead of all at the same time, 8 o'clock, the load on the subways would be distributed far better and much of the congestion prevented.

Now Pinehurst deliveries suffer from no congestion. We pride ourselves on being the greatest little deliverers ever. But it wouldn't hurt the system a bit, and might even serve the convenience of some of our patrons better, if more of the deliveries were made in the afternoon.

By which we mean that if there are housewives who are now ordering for morning deliveries solely because they believe they can be served more easily and promptly that way, when they would really prefer to have the foods sent to them in the afternoon, we hope they will accept our assurance that it is absolutely all right with us to make the deliveries later in the day.

As a matter of fact, if we could "stagger" our deliveries a bit it wouldn't hurt our feelings a mite. Not for a moment do we expect any customer to discommodate herself to this end—the deliveries are for our customers' convenience. But any time the afternoon delivery is actually preferred, please remember that we are rejoiced to make it.
