Two Ice Ships Forced to Return—Hope for the Rescue of Noble's Crew Fades as the Days Pass.

London, June 2.—Hope for the immediate rescue of General Umberto Noble and his 17 companions missing for eight days, dwindled still further today with the grim Arctic still holding the secret of the disappearance of the dirigible Italia.

Hampered by snow, fog, ice-floes and cold, rescue expeditions have made but small progress. Most of the rescue expeditions are still in the preliminary stage. Two have been forced back by ice floes.

Four Italian Chasseurs who set out from the Citta Di Milano at King's Bay, after the supply ship was forced to return to its base, are now trekking northward to scour the region in North Spitzbergen whence the Italia is last believed to have radioted.

Ice Ship Damaged.

The Soviet ice-ship, Aho, which started out from Archangel with a plane aboard, has been damaged by the ice-floes and forced to give up its search. Lincoln Ellsworth, wealthy American Arctic explorer who was Noble's comrade when the North Pole was first crossed by a dirigible in 1926, is reported to have offered to finance an expedition to search for the Italia.

Hobby on Way.

The ice-ship Hobby, which left Tromsø, Norway, several days ago with Lieut. Holm, an experienced Norwegian pilot, and a seaplane aboard is expected to arrive at King's Bay today. The Hobby will push out as far north as the ice will permit and then Holm will reconnoiter from the air, using the ship as a base.

Another ship, carrying Captain Hjalmar Riiser-Larsen and a seaplane, left Tromsø, Thursday and will not reach King's Bay before the middle of next week. The Swedish government intends sending three seaplanes to Spitzbergen and the Italian government will send a dirigible. These expeditions will not be available for at least a week.

ADVANCE GUARD AT KANSAS CITY

Elder Fathers of G. O. P. Meet to Settle Quarrels Among Delegates.

Kansas City, June 2.—The elder fathers of the Republican Party began assembling in Kansas City today, ten days in advance of the convention, for the quadrennial task of deciding who's who among the quarrelsome Republican office-holders of the always Democratic state. Settlement of factional differences in southern states before the convention has become as fixed an event as the convention itself. This year the contests have been brought from seven states and one territory, and involve some 60 seats in the convention. The full national committee meets Monday morning to act as judge and jury in the proceedings.

Important Bearing.

This year, for the first time since the history contests of 1912 between the Taft and Roosevelt delegates, the quadrennial fights may conceivably have an important bearing on the nomination. Hoover delegates are involved in nearly every one of the 69 contests. Should these delegates lose out to any appreciable degree the effect may be all-important, for the Hoover managers have had to take a lot of things for granted in making their claims of a nomination within three ballots.

Texas affords a good example of this year's contests. The entire delegation of 26 votes is affected. On the one side is R. B. Creager, national committeeman, who was among the earliest to find a seat on the Hoover band-wagon. The Creager delegates are for Hoover all down the line.

The Other Side.

On the other side are Rep. Harry Wurzbach, the only Republican Congressman from Texas, and C. C. Littleton of Fort Worth, who are leading an unconstructed delegation of 25 that are not pledged to anything, but are known to be against Hoover.

The Littleton-Wurzbach faction stole a march on Creager by beating him to the filing, which puts Creager in the role of challenger. Mississippi and Louisiana also provide contests involving the full state states. Each state has 12 delegates.

One Louisiana faction is headed

LINDY'S VISIT UPSETS WHOLE TOWN IN TEXAS

Editor Says Flying Colonel Has a Swelled Head and Populace Protests—Hold Mass Meetings.

Amarillo, Texas, June 2.—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh was the center of a storm of civic strife today that had this thriving town by the ears.

"Lindbergh has the swelled head," said Editor Gene Howe in his newspaper. "Some of his elders teach him some manners and courtesy."

"Treason!" replied a large section of the city's 25,000 population, including the local high school students who long have admired the trans-Atlantic flyer as an ideal.

The battle was on in full swing today, with Editor Howe standing by his guns, and the pro-Lindberghers threatening to boycott Howe's paper. Several mass meetings have been held.

No Apologies.

"I have no apologies to make," said Howe. "I said Lindbergh had a swelled head, and I meant just that. If he never returns to Amarillo that will be soon enough for me."

The controversy arose over an invitation which the city fathers telegraphed to Lindbergh at Wichita asking him to stop here on his way west. Lindbergh did not reply to the invitation, but in Wichita gave out a statement to the effect he would not stop at Amarillo, but would stop at Clovis, N. M.

Visits Town.

Then without any notice, the flying colonel did swoop over the city, performed a few stunts and landed at the field. Nearly all Amarillo rushed to the flying field.

"These people," said Editor Howe, "flocked to the field because he himself had advertised his arrival. Then he proceeded to act bored and annoyed, and was almost insolent. If he didn't want people to know he was here he shouldn't have advertised his arrival and at least could have been courteous to those who approached him."

Then, continued the irate Texas editor, the flying colonel passed over Clovis, N. M., "in the air," totally disregarding the thousands who had congregated there to see him as a result of his Wichita statement.

"Among those in the crowd were ranchers who had driven a hundred miles and wasted an entire day in order to see him," said Howe. "I said he had a swelled head and I mean it. If that's treason make the most of it."

MOTHER KILLS BABY BACKING OUT AUTO

Told Guests to Keep Eye on Child But It Slipped Under Car Unnoticed.

Chicago, June 2.—Mrs. Belle Britten was on the verge of collapse today following the death of her infant daughter whom she accidentally killed while backing her auto out of a garage.

Mrs. Britten had been entertaining guests and offered to take them home in her car. Asking the guests to "keep an eye on the baby," Mrs. Britten went to the garage to get the car.

But the baby slipped out unnoticed and was in the path of the machine when the mother backed out.

COLLEGE BOYS TO FLY FOR VALUABLE PRIZES

First Intercollegiate Aeronautical Meet to Be Held on June 16.

New York, June 2.—Eleven leading universities will participate in the first intercollegiate aeronautical meet ever held in the United States, on June 16 at Mitchel Field, N. Y.

To insure the minimum of danger and the maximum of skill, the competition will be limited to speed tests in attaining one mile of altitude.

Col. Charles A. Lindbergh will head the list of judges.

In addition to the presentation of the Loeming trophy, an annual award by Grover Cleveland Loeming to the winning flying club, there will be cash prizes of $500, $300 and $200. To meet expenses, $1,000 will be distributed among the teams which qualify.

NEW AVIATION RECORD

Rome, June 2.—Italian aviators Ferrarin and Delprete set a new aviation endurance record today. At 11:25 o'clock a. m., (Italian time) they had been in a continuous flight for 53 hours and 35 minutes. They sent word that they expected to remain in the air until 2 p. m.

SUCCESSFUL IN THEIR PACIFIC HOP

On much the same route as the tragic Dole flight of last summer—only longer—four flyers in the giant tri-motored monoplane Southern Cross, hopped from San Francisco and landed safely in Honolulu. They plan to fly to Brisbane, Australia, by way of Hawaii and the Fiji Islands. Captain Charles Kingsford-Smith, head of the expedition, is shown above (center) with Capt. Harry W. Lyons, Jr. (right) and Charles O. Ulm, pilot (left). Kingsford-Smith and Ulm are Australians, while Lyons and the fourth member of the party, James Warner, are Americans.

MIXED UP SIGNALS SHIP CRASH CAUSE

Inspectors Probing Collision Which Caused the Death of Seven Men.

Boston, June 2.—United States steamboat inspectors today were inquiring into the collision between the passenger steamship President Garfield and the freight steamship Kershaw, which sent the latter to the bottom off the island of Martha's Vineyard with the loss of seven of the crew.

Utmost secrecy was maintained by officers and crews of both vessels but it was understood that a misunderstanding of signals caused the sea crash. The 29 rescued men of the Kershaw, brought here aboard the President Garfield, were interviewed by company officials aboard the steamship Fairfax where they were quartered. The Fairfax takes them to Baltimore today. The President Garfield is undergoing temporary repairs before sailing for New York. She had two bad gashes in her bow above the waterline.

The death list of the sea crash was given as follows:

First Assistant Engineer R. T. Gotwall, Lebanon, Pa.; Second Engineer John E. Davis, Lillian, Va.; Second Cook Howard Lancaster, Norfolk, Va.; Fireman Joseph Davis; Walter Peter Hazel; Second Mess Mate Albert McGraw and Fireman John Brant. All were below at the time of the collision.

MERIDEN MAN DIES ON A FISHING TRIP

Body Found by Companions on Bank of Stream—Heart Disease, Cause.

Winsted, Conn., June 2.—George A. Foster, of Meriden, who for years had spent most of his time fishing either in southern waters or among the Maine lakes, died while fishing for trout in the Farmington river in Barkhamstead, yesterday, according to word received here today. Mr. Foster was 87 years of age. His death was due to over-exertion, according to Dr. John R. Lee, medical examiner for New Hartford, who today filed a death certificate showing that heart disease actually killed Mr. Foster.

Mr. Foster went to the Farmington river yesterday with John C. Nagel, a fellow townsman, and three Waterbury men. They had great success and Mr. Foster, was enjoying the outing. When the party decided to call it a day and start for home at sunset Mr. Foster was missing. His companions went up the stream and found him lying on the bank, dead.

In his crew Mr. Foster had twelve fine trout.

DRINKS POISON

Danbury, Conn., June 2.—Mrs. Katherine McDonough, of 6 Durant street, is undergoing treatment in Danbury hospital today after taking by-chloride of mercury in her home last evening. Mrs. McDonough is believed to have taken the poison by accident. Immediately afterward she ran screaming through the street to a physician's home nearby. Her condition today is reported as precarious.

BURN IN EFFIGY AMHERST PREXY

Students Protest Change of Systems—Say It Puts Them in Prep Class.

Amherst, Mass., June 2.—Campus talk at Amherst College, at which John Coolidge, son of President Coolidge, is a senior, centered today around the midnight burning in effigy of Dean Thomas C. Esly.

To the booming of a dozen toy cannons, the torch was applied to the effigy, marked with the sign "Tom" which had been placed between the library and the home of the president of the college. The students then marched to the top of the hill for a meeting of protest.

The demonstration was the result of the abolition by the college faculty of the honor system in examinations, which has been in effect here for more than 20 years. The "proctor system" was put in its place. This and other restrictions placed Amherst in the prep school class, the students asserted. The other restrictions included the abolishment of smoking during examinations.

WILDLY LOVES SON SO SHE KILLS HIM

Mother Feared He Would Not Have Advantages Other Boys Had.

Fowersville, Mich., June 2.—Mrs. Ruby Snell, 46, was being held today for the death of her son, Paul, 6, who was drowned in a bathtub late yesterday.

The mother is said to have admitted drowning the boy because she "loved him and did not want him to grow to manhood without the advantages other boys have."

The body was found in the Snell home by the father, John Snell, when he returned from work.

Snell is a painter and his family lives in moderate circumstances. The mother is said to have been worrying lately over the boy's future, fearing a lack of money would retard his progress.

Neighbors with whom she has talked recently told police they believed her mind was unbalanced. Paul was the only child in the family.

LONGER FLIGHT FACING BIRDMEN ON NEXT HOP

Executioner Of Sacco Throws Death Switch

Trenton, N. J., June 2.—Last-minute efforts of his attorney to secure a reprieve for him failed to save the life of George Yarrow, convicted of shooting and killing Rose Sarlo, 15-year-old Sunday school teacher. Yarrow was put to death at the state prison here last night. The execution was delayed for thirty minutes while Yarrow's attorney conducted a frenzied search for Gov. A. Harry Moore.

The lawyer sought a reprieve on the ground that evidence tending to prove that Yarrow was of unsound mind, had been unearthed. He said he had learned that Yarrow, while serving in the army during the World War, had been kicked in the head by a horse and that his mind had been affected by the blow.

Robert Elliott, executioner for Sacco and Vanzetti, whose home in New York was bombed last week, adjusted the straps and turned on the switch that ended Yarrow's life. Rose Sarlo's body was found on the bank of a creek near Woodbury, N. J., a bullet wound in the head and wire taut around her neck. A friend of the girl told of having seen her get into Yarrow's auto earlier in the evening.

FIND GIRL'S BODY IN BOSTON SUBURB

Identified by Family—Was Last Seen Riding With Sweetheart.

Boston, June 2.—The bullet-riddled body of a girl discovered in an isolated section of the Blue Hills reservation was that of Miss Mary C. Mahon, 21, of "C" street, South Boston.

Two brothers and the father of Miss Mahon made the identification from a newspaper description of the victim and her clothing. After giving the information to Boston police the brothers and father went to Quincy to view the body and make sure of the identification.

An unusual feature of the identification was the fact that the girl was a close friend of Mrs. Mary Ross, of New York City, a former South Boston girl, who was at first believed to be the murder victim. Relatives of Miss Mahon expressed the opinion that she was wearing the coat of Mrs. Ross, who had been visiting in this city.

When Last Seen

Miss Mahon was last seen yesterday riding in the taxicab of her sweetheart. The name of the man was withheld by police, and inspectors were sent out to pick him up for questioning.

J. D. ROCKEFELLER, JR. IS HEAVIEST TAXPAYER.

Tarrytown, N. Y., June 2.—John D. Rockefeller, Jr., is the heaviest individual property taxpayer in the United States, it was revealed with the opening for public inspection of the tax assessment maps here. He is assessed for $5,588,050 worth of property on the basis of an average rate of $25 per thousand. It is estimated that he will enrich the coffers of Mount Pleasant and Greenburg townships and the villages of Tarrytown and North Tarrytown to the extent of $137,000.

END OF CIVIL WAR LOOMING IN CHINA

Northerners Ready to Retreat Into Manchuria Leaving Peking to Victors

London, June 2.—The end of the two-year civil war in China loomed today as the Northerners prepared to retreat into Manchuria and allow the Nationalists to take the city of Peking without a bombardment.

Marshal Chang Tso-Lin, who for two years has been the dictator at Peking, has dispatched officers to the battle front at Luliung, 30 miles away, to prepare for an orderly retirement into Manchuria dispatches from Tokio and Peking state.

Chang has assured the representatives of the foreign powers in Peking that foreigners will have full protection and need have no fear of bombardment by the Southerners or looting by his troops.

Japan's next step is being watched with interest. Japanese troops are concentrated at the Manchurian border under orders to prevent retreating Northerners from crossing into that territory, where the Japanese have extensive interests.

Land Safely in Honolulu After 2,400 Mile Trip—Had But Little Gasoline Left; Get Wild Reception From Natives—May Start To- morrow For Suva in the Fiji Islands.

Honolulu, T. H., June 2.—Behind 2,400 miles of conquered ocean! Ahead, 2,130 more miles, stretching to Suva in the Fiji Islands—3,130 miles of sea not yet traversed by man in his mechanical flying device—3,130 miles which offer the longest non-stop flight over water ever attempted.

Such was the prospect glimpsed today by the four exultant aircrew of the good ship "Southern Cross," who yesterday successfully negotiated the first great flight from California to Australia. It was at 12:19 p. m., Pacific coast time that the ponderous wheels of the trimotored Fokker monoplane touched Hawaiian soil. 27 hours and 27 minutes after the plane had slipped into the aid at Oakland Municipal airport.

Who Acclaim

Honolulu acclaimed the event wildly. Honolulu had been worrying, intensely, for three hours. The City had lost contact with craft and men, and for three agonizing hours felt the hand of doom. And then, riding along the wind which blew off the beaten sea came the thing which had conquered it. Straight for the field boomed the monoplane, and exultation replaced doubt on Wheeler Field.

Throats grew hoarse in cheering against the noise of the airman. For the fifth time, man and his space-devouring flying contraption had rocketed through traps set by the wide Pacific.

Captain C. E. Kingsford-Smith, C. T. P. Ulm, James Warner and Harry Lyon, pilots, radioman and navigator—had done this. And here they were—safe.

Only a few gallons remained of the 1,200 gallons of gasoline with which they started the long over-water flight.

A few gallons. Perhaps enough to keep the "Southern Cross" and its crew in the air for 20 minutes. Had an error of but a few miles been made during the last three hours when fears were growing here: had the navigator, or pilot, or navigator—had done this. And here they were—safe.

Kingsford-Smith, grinning, was the first to clamor from his big machine. There was a brief reception on the field, led by Gov. Wallace H. Farrington. Then the fliers hurried to their hotel, announcing plans for "food and rest."

No Change in Plans

But before they left the field, the fliers checked their gasoline tanks. They estimated the few remaining gallons, and in spite of what they found they said:

"No change in plans. We're going on to Suva."

That means that within a day or two—probably tomorrow morning, these four men in their monoplane will start the perilous jump to the Fiji Islands—750 miles more of ocean than from California to Honolulu.

For this hop they intend to carry 1,350 gallons of gasoline. And that in the take-off alone, they face a tremendous hazard.

Total weight of the plane will be 15,600 pounds, which must be rolled over the non-too-firm surface of Barking Sands Field with sufficient speed to lift the terrific weight. Even should the plane get off the ground, a bigger hazard stretches ahead.

Will the gasoline supply suffice? That is the question most seriously discussed.

Depends on Minutes

On the basis of speed and gasoline consumption as demonstrated in the flight just ended, it is estimated that success or failure will depend upon a few minutes—as it did today. But Kingsford-Smith, Ulm, Warner and Lyon are not worrying. They are confident of doing it.

Army planes that went out to look for the overdue Southern Cross were successful in locating the giant plane and leading it to Wheeler Field. They found the ship, cruising about, south of its course, from that point saw the summit of Maunakea, high point of the island of Hawaii, jutting above the clouds. And

Mary, said that he was seated in his cab at his stand in South Boston when he saw his sister and her sweetheart drive by. Mary, he said, weaved to him and seemed in a happy mood.

Thomas F. C. Mahon, another brother, and James A. Mahon, the father went with Edwin to Quincy to view the body.

Members of the Mahon family told police that a week ago Mary purchased a revolver and officials thought it possible that it was with this weapon that she was killed.

Elmore Watkins, who recently returned from a several months' stay in Arizona will tell the Kiwanis about life on a ranch at the regular meeting Monday noon at the Hotel Sheridan. To make the talk more interesting he will show pictures taken while out there. George Glanney will donate the attendance prize.

Coming Kiwanis events are the supper at the Hebron camp Wednesday night at 8:30, put on by the "Nuts" who lost to the "Peas" in the attendance contest, and the Ladies' Night program for June 18 in charge of Arthur Knofia.

HEBRON

A daughter was born to Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Keefe at the hospital in Willimantic on Wednesday, Memorial Day. This makes two children born to Hebron parents on that day, the other being a son to Mr. and Mrs. Fred Brehant. The average birth rate for the town is from 12 to 15 a year.

WAPPING

Mrs. H. E. Hayes of Windsorville has returned to her home there recently after spending the winter in St. Petersburg, Fla.

Mr. McGowan, of Burnside avenue, who has bought of Orcutt F. King of South Windsor a building lot next to the house of Alfred Willson, has started to build a two-story brick house which will cost the work being done by a South Manchester contractor and the style of the house will be colonial.

Miss Alice E. Hall, a junior in Storrs College entertained five of her classmates at her home Memorial Day. Miss Marjorie Wildman, Lucy Flagg, Elizabeth Goodwin, Selma Osterman, Lydia Brown.

TOLLAND

The Tolland Fire Department will give an entertainment in the Tolland Town Hall Friday evening. Miss Bernice Hall was a guest of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Pearson of Hartford, Memorial Day.

ROD AND GUN CLUBS QUARTERLY MEETING

Raising Pheasants For Leased Land—Discuss Installation of New Trap at Bolton.

The quarterly meeting of the Manchester Rod and Gun Club was held last night at the School Street Recreation Center. A general discussion of matters brought out in the reports of the different committees and relating to the future expansion of the club was held. A change in by-laws will be disposed of later.

The club, it was reported, last year raised 100 pheasants to turn free on the land that had been leased in sections of Windham, Tolland and Middlesex counties. This year they propose to raise 300 and in fact have pheasants sitting on eggs for 100 at present.

MAN ABOUT TO DIE PROVES POWER OF PURE PERSONALITY

The International Sunday School Lesson for June 3 is, "Jesus Facing Betrayal and Death"—Mark 14:1-42.

Peril proves men. During the war I once rode on a dispatch boat through the North Sea submarine zone with an American millionaire, whose power is great and whose name is common in print; and he went literally yellow with fear—sheer, panicky, undignified dread of death. On another occasion I was unknown to fame, was as calm and unexcited as though in a rocking chair out in his North Dakota home. When death from the bullets of pursuing Arabs drew very close to us in the desert, so that the end seemed inescapable, my wife was as steady as though about her household duties.
 "How did he die?"—that is a test of character. Jesus gave this supreme proof of manhood and of moral heroism. He knew that the vindictive vengeance of the Pharisees was irresistible; yet he moved forward, calmly unafraid; seeing the larger purposes of God in it all. As we contemplate the spacious serenity of the Saviour on this last day of His mortal life, we cannot forget the dark background of bitter and bloody and subtle scheming of His powerful foes. That His love lived amidst hatred is a truth which carries its message for character.
 A Man Who Went Bad
 Somehow, the world has found the Pharisees more forgivable than Judas. They slew the Saviour; but Judas betrayed Him. To call a man a "Judas" is the worst epithet that can be applied. No human spirit ever sinks so low that he does not think himself above this traitor.
 "How could he?" every Bible reader asks, facing the fact of Judas. One grotesque novelist has tried to distort the deed into a mistimed attempt to serve the Master. It seems incredible that one who had accompanied with Christ for three years, had shared His intimacy and been the recipient of His love, could have been guilty of this of Christ is not contingent upon our desserts. On His last night, Jesus carefully planned for a farewell with His friends. Least the occasion should be interrupted by His foes, He hedged it about with preparations. He coveted these final hours of communion and remembrance. At the table of the Last Supper, the Master poured out His breaking heart for the comfort of His friends. Aye, more; He instituted this Feast of Remembrance, to be kept in perpetual observance. By it should the spirits of all of Christ's friends be sustained to the end. In the symbols of the bread and the wine He portrayed His broken body and His shed blood. The Last Supper points backward to the life and love and sacrifice of the Saviour; and it points forward to that reunion in the Father's house, where there are—to quote the original—"many abiding places," or homes that never break up. That little company in the upper room in old Jerusalem has expanded until today, around the earth, there are millions of members of the Fellowship of the Feast.

 Into The Garden
 Out from the secret rendezvous of the upper room, the little company comprising Christ and His companions went forth, in a hush of spirit and sense of awe. The old streets they followed were familiar, yet their journey was new and mysterious. Questions were not now so easy to ask. Through the dark ways of the city the band followed its Leader outside of the eastern wall, where a full moon rode radiant in the sky. It was clear midnight, and the city was asleep.

 Their path was familiar, the road to Bethany, down into the valley of the Kedron, and up the slopes of the Mount of Olives, where the bright moon made dark shadows beneath the groves. But the Master did not continue toward Bethany. Instead, He made the group wait by the highway, while He turned aside into the thick olive trees, taking with Him only Peter and James and John.
 It was a familiar place of prayer for the Teacher who could not live and work with men without hours apart with the Father. Probably the disciples saw nothing more in the action than the Master's usual sequestration into solitude. They talked as they waited, the city spread out before them; and soon they were asleep.
 Then, alone, the brave heart of the Saviour sought the silence and seclusion and sympathy of the gnarled olive trees, while He underwent His greatest ordeal. Sidney Lanier, in a somewhat analogous experience in his own life, when the doctors had decreed his death, pen-

SUBMISSION

BY GEORGE HENRY DOLE
 International Sunday-School Lesson Text, June 8.
 Not what I will, but what thou wilt.—Mark 14:36.

Thus prayed Jesus when the cross rose immediately before Him, and He resolved to go through the death upon it.
 Here was the laying down of all, complete submission to His will. A most successful financier recently declared, "I never made a mistake." His meaning flashed when he added, "Neither did you." The Lord's providence operating within us never errs. By our mistakes, we learn. Learning is not a truth, and as one advances into the true life, and looks back, it is seen that there are innumerable mistakes in thought, affection, and act. Yet there are no mistakes in God's operation within us. As we submit to His will, out of our mistakes comes the real wisdom of life.
 Submission in the right spirit is neither defeat nor weakness. It is always victory and strength. It recognizes that the tender mercy and loving kindness of the Lord are over all His works. It brings the mind into joyful light, and the triumphant powers of God into the soul. Indeed, if we could see the end as clearly as He does, gladly, happily, submissively would we pray, "Not what I will, but what thou wilt."
 submission. There are two essentials in genuine submission; first, the recognition of God, and second, that He overrules all and, by His Providence, the everlasting welfare is always promoted.

THE SOLID SOUTH

It seems beyond dispute that Governor Smith will prove to be the nominee of the Democratic convention for the presidency. His election is another matter despite the enthusiastic claims of his more ardent supporters. Claims and predictions are the heaviest crops of presidential years. Enthusiastic Republican leaders predict the breaking of the "Solid South" with any candidate their party nominates if Smith leads the Democratic forces. Democratic zealots are no less inclined to attach exaggerated importance to anti-Hoover feeling in certain well defined quarters. Plenty of salt is necessary to make palatable pre-convention and pre-election predictions.

Yet to those who have spent some time in the South in the past few months and who have had opportunity to discuss the political situation with men of all classes a surprising amount of opposition to the candidacy of Governor Smith is evident. It is freely predicted in Florida by those who are opposed to the Smith candidacy that the state will go Republican. But only if the nominee is Smith, and regardless of who is the chosen standard-bearer of the Republicans.

A bitterness that is very strong is evident all through the South against New York's governor as a presidential possibility. It is evident in every walk of life. But it does not justify the claim that Florida will go Republican. It is proof, however, that all is not harmony in the Democratic ranks, not only in Florida, but in others of the states of the Solid South. It is a condition that has a disturbing effect upon Democratic leaders and one of which some Republican chieftains are inclined to look with more enthusiasm than good judgment. It takes quite a change of the political heart to overturn a two to one majority, surface evidence to the contrary notwithstanding.

CITIES NEED AIRPORTS

The day is not far distant when the city without an airport will have the same standing in the world of business that the isolated town without railroad or bus service has. But we are always slow to recognize the certain advent of something new. Already towns and cities are avoided by airmen because they have no suitable landing fields. In Congress are some members who do not like to be reminded of their attitude toward the air mail not so many years ago. They know now that the air mail has come to stay. So has aviation. Make no mistake about it, passenger carrying planes and freight planes are becoming daily more and more common. But they make non-stop flights over cities lacking landing fields.

The location of an airport, the first cost and that of maintenance to the point of high efficiency, are matters not to be considered lightly or to be decided in a moment. But for a modern city the time is near when an airport will be necessary to business success as a railroad station. The week does not pass that sees no new airport dedicated and open for business. Chambers of Commerce, private individuals, corporations, all are responsible for them. They have seen the vision and are determined that their respective communities shall not fall behind. It's good business. It's good advertising. An airport invites business, invites visitors, to say nothing of being a harbor to the distressed traveler of the air.

Primarily the site for an airport must be one providing a safe landing field for planes of all sizes and sufficiently large to permit the take-off of the largest. Secondly it must be easily available to the city which sponsors it. Already the airport ten miles from the city it is intended to serve is shunned by visitors.

Airports are a new necessity that must be taken into consideration by every progressive city.

Massachusetts has awakened to the fact that they must be provided and the Governor has just signed a bill which permits cities and towns to borrow money for municipal airports. It doesn't matter where the money comes from for an airport but come it must in every city that lays the slightest claim to progressiveness.

REWARDS OF HEROISM

We are prone to forget deeds of real heroism performed in times of great stress. We are appalled by the monetary extent of a great calamity, missing entirely the fact that an individual by his or her act in time of peace prevented loss of life. But once a year some few of them are recalled to us by the awards made by the Bell Telephone System to employees who have distinguished themselves. Were it not for these awards the recipients would forever go un-sung. Fred F. Brown, for instance, a foreman, is given a gold medal and $500. During the flood last fall at Bradford, Vt., all he did was to hitch his safety belt over four wires sagging between two poles, haul himself hand over hand over a raging torrent, untangle the four wires, and get back on three wires. One had broken under his weight. But Bradford was again in communication with the world.

There was Mrs. Pitkin at West Hartford, Vt., who sat at her board relaying messages for help to suitable agencies, notifying subscribers, one by one, of the danger, until finally the last line on her board went out of commission. Only then did she leave and wade to comparative safety through a torrent racing through the street.

And up here at Becket, Mass., was Patrick B. McCormick, also a telephone man. Word reached him that the dam above the town would go out. He warned every subscriber, urged that they notify others with no telephones and warned the towns below. Then he waited two hours before the dam broke. The waters swept through the lower floor of his home and his switchboard went "dead." But he climbed a pole, cut in on a toll wire and telephoned Pittsfield for aid.

These are but typical instances. With others they have been selected by the officials of the telephone company for distinctive awards, not because the company believes that rewards are needed to induce good service, but because it believes in marking exceptionally meritorious service when that service has been in the interests of humanity. And there are few who do not agree with this attitude.

A RAPID PACE

Trying hard as most of us do to keep up with the procession in these days of speed the prediction that in eighteen months there will be regular trans-Atlantic dirigible service is setting a trifle too rapid a pace. Admitting that a huge dirigible has crossed successfully and that the ocean has been spanned in both directions by airplanes there remains yet considerable to be done and much to be learned before anything like regular service can be inaugurated and maintained. Even the experimental craft is not completed. To build a fleet of four, the minimum number required, calls for eighteen months under most favorable conditions. It looks as if Commander Burney, M. P., is just a bit optimistic in his prediction. If he and those associated with him manage to turn the trick in three times eighteen months it will be the speediest job ever done in the introduction of anything approaching that magnitude. But it will be done sometime. Of that there is not the slightest doubt.

APPROACHING THE IDEAL

Since the days of the Wright Brothers' early experiments men have bent their efforts to build an airplane that will rise almost vertically, that can be held almost motionless in the air and that can descend at a reduced landing speed to obviate the necessity of a big field. The helicopter principle has been thought the solution of the problem. Fortunes have been spent in the effort to perfect it. Now England presents a new fighting plane that embodies some of the most desirable qualities. This plane, according to reports, can travel at two miles a minute several miles in the air while carrying a load of two tons. More than that it can slow down and almost hover in the air, can remain up twelve hours with a full load, alight either on land or water, take off with a run of less than 150 feet and ascend almost vertically. Approaching so close to the desired qualifications of the ideal plane without using the helicopter principle may indicate that inventors have been on the wrong track.

AN INTELLIGENCE TEST

Some interests, hopeful of the defeat of Mr. Hoover for the Republican nomination for the presidency, harp on the President's failure to clarify what he intended, as clear—"I do not choose to run."

They place the President on a train speeding towards the summer White House in Wisconsin while the balloting is going on for presidential candidates. They visualize a stamped to Mr. Coolidge. And they want to know how Mr. Coolidge can stop such a thing if, being on the train, isolated from news as it were, he knows nothing about it. And they assure us that he is a very keen politician. Expecting us to believe that such a situation, if and when it develops, is Coolidge-ism in politics is to rank us on an intelligence plane slightly lower than that generally accorded the goose.

THE PAPER WOOD

About fifty years ago red spruce began to be used as a raw material for making paper. Today it is the leading paper wood of the nation. Its long strong fibres, light color and the ease with which its pulps make it particularly adapted to paper manufacture. Fully half the red spruce cut in the United States goes to the pulp mills. One big Sunday edition of a New York or Chicago newspaper with a circulation around a million uses all the pulpwood from 75 acres of spruce forest. The demand for paper pulp has become so enormous that large quantities of red spruce are imported from Canada. The red spruce was not much used for building purposes until the supply of white pine in New England began to decline. A large per cent of red spruce lumber goes into planing mill products, especially interior finish. Because the wood imparts no taste it is used extensively for packing food products.

As an airplane wood spruce, including the red, Sitka, and white varieties, is the leader because of its lightness and strength. The same properties have brought about its use for ladders, scaffold planks, cars and paddles. Because of its resonant nature it is used in the manufacture of musical instruments.

JUNE 2 1665—Legislatures first met in New York and North Carolina. 1851—Maine governor signed prohibition law—the first in America. 1886—President Cleveland married Frances Folsom in the White House. 1892—Peary sailed from New York for the North Pole.

COLLEGE GRADUATES PICK LAW, DENTISTRY, MEDICINE AS PREFERRED LIFE WORK

Chicago.—Into what occupation does the college graduate go? A survey of some 7,000 graduates of Northwestern University recently completed here reveals that the greatest number of them become lawyers. Forty-five hundred replies to a questionnaire sent out to graduates were received. The leading occupations reported are as follows: Law, 1,017; dentistry, 929; medicine, 922; accountancy, 260; manufacturing, 179. The answers revealed one artist, one undertaker and one diamond importer.

New York, June 2.—There's a smile on Broadway that goes something like this—"He sticks closer than Harry Thaw's bodyguard."

And, on Broadway, no smile comes into being unless the subject thereof has been well mulled over by the ringleaders, the reporters and the gossipers. Harry's bodyguards have long been a source of Broadway banter. He has had a number of them. They're generally husky young men who look as though they could heave their rivets if they knew it. They're well groomed and frequently good-looking. Only Thaw knows where he gets them. Only the bodyguard knows what he's for. But he has to accompany Harry on his endless rounds of the night-life, and sit about looking bored.

I have heard that they have to pass an extremely severe barrage of questions and, like the three wise monkeys, neither think, see nor hear evil of their employer. Harry has been known to become slightly obstreperous on occasions when he has been interrupted, whereupon they intervene, their very presence keeping away the possibility of personal remarks becoming too personal and constitutes a warning to potential challengers. Also they make it difficult for Harry to be "framed" and I am told he has had more than one occasion to fear such a possibility.

If Harry suddenly becomes enamored of a cutie from the night life, the bodyguard must sit patiently and boredly by while Thaw makes his present, as well as his presence, known. On more than one occasion stories have gone along the street concerning personal encounters between Harry and his shad-w.

One of the "main stems" favorite yarns concerns Harry and the bodyguard relates that Harry found himself fond of a girl in one of the "came dawn" e-sorts. On a certain evening, so goes the tale, the bodyguard excused himself saying that he felt an attack of gripe coming on. Harry nodded his assent and the bodyguard limped away.

Some hours later, when most good alarm clocks are getting ready to wake the city, Harry beheld him to whirl over to the nightclub where the cause of his extra heart beats sings and dances. Upon arriving there he found his "sick" bodyguard trying to hold the hand of the young lady in question.

Which, if true, is rubbing it in just a little thick!

Murray Hill which is Manhattan's most exclusive residence quarter, has had to admit that its silk hats and frock coats are threatened by the dust of encroaching commerce.

Such notables as J. P. Morgan, the George Bakers and the Tiffanys have begun to cast the hat-casting shadows over their mansions. For, it seems, the ruthless armies of builders insist on putting up office buildings and business blocks on Madison Avenue. To Murray Hill this is nothing short of sacrilege.

Murray Hill, strangely enough is overlooked by most tourists bus trips through New York, though I've often thought that visitors would like to look upon the mansions of the Morgans, the Tiffanys, the Bakers or the Rockefeller's. It's a slight elevation of land that runs from about 34th to 43rd street, from Fifth Avenue almost to the river. Here, in those grand old days of 1776, General Howe, of the British forces, started a little scrap which wound up with Washington's retreat to Harlem. Then it

WASHINGTON LETTER

By RODNEY DUTCHER

Washington, June 2.—This might be a dandy year for a third party if it were not for Tom Heflin. The senior senator from Alabama seems to have put a curse on any such movement from the start.

If anyone has enough influence to organize a real third party movement this year, he would have plenty of material to work on. There is a large group chronically disgusted with both parties. Then there are the classes who haven't been getting their share of prosperity—farmers, coal miners, textile workers and the unemployed. And a bunch of Democrats who will hate to vote for Al Smith on account of his Tammany connections, his wet record or his religion.

One big handicap for such a movement is the fact that Hoover and Smith, assuming their nominations, will each appeal to large groups of independent voters. Both happen to be men of ability and considerable popularity.

But the worst handicap is Heflin. Any movement of anti-Smith Democrats to organize another political party be damned from the start as inspired by religious bigotry. Self-respecting persons will keep out of it. Hardly any of the 5,000,000 La Follette voters of 1924 would support it. The group of Wilson and Bryan progressive leaders who oppose Smith are in a bad quandary. They are constitutionally and honestly opposed to Tammany and many of them are dyes, some of them would rather be licked in November than win with Smith.

Yet, after Heflin's ravings they can't organize a protest ticket without identifying themselves with the anti-Catholic sentiment. Hence, most of them will wind up by supporting Smith, realizing that he is better than the political machine which created him and hoping for the best.

The Republican independents aren't much better off. One or two western senators are talking about a third party if they can't have a farm-minded candidate, but they haven't any leaders. Neither Borah nor Norris want to lead an independent movement. And such a bolt from the G. O. P. would have to line up with Heflin's party—if there is one.

Anyway, organizing a permanent third party would be a gigantic task. It would take lots of money and, even more importantly, lots of organization. It would need politicians and it wouldn't have any, because it couldn't promise any jobs for a long time.

Members of Congress and other elective officials could hardly be expected to join it meanwhile, for they would lose their jobs and the country would lose the services of most of the independents now in office.

Whether Heflin will lead a third party is doubtful. If he does, he will have to lead almost alone. He might conceivably cause the defeat of Smith, but the possibility seems remote.

was that Mrs. Murray became party to a little row worthy of a Broadway third act. She entertained the British leaders with wine and cake, thus distracting their attention until Washington and his men could make their getaway. They would have surely been trapped, for the Continentals had hardly gone beyond where 39th street now runs before a line of British soldiers stretched across the cornfields that then waved across Manhattan Island. GILBERT SWAN.

BUCKINGHAM

The members of the Buckingham church have been invited to attend a union service at the East Hartford Congregational church Sunday evening at 8 o'clock, daylight saving time.

The directors of the Glastonbury Visiting Nurses Association will meet at the home of the president of the association Mrs. S. H. Williams on the evening of June 5.

Rev. and Mrs. J. G. Appleton returned home last night from Cincinnati, Ohio, where they have been during the last two weeks on their vacation. Mrs. S. W. Plank went with them to visit her son William Plank who is working as a chemist for a firm in that city. Mrs. Appleton's sister and two children returned with them for a visit at the parsonage.

Burton J. Bell returned home Thursday from the Hartford Hospital after a two weeks stay there. Mr. Bell was operated on May 17 for appendicitis.

GREEN SEES CHICAGO WORLD'S BIGGEST CITY WITH INDUSTRIAL AREA Gary, Ind.—A metropolitan Chicago industrial area extending from Michigan City, Ind., to Peoria, Ill., is predicted by William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor.

Green's prediction was made to the Calumet District Labor Federation. Such an industrial area, according to Green, would make Chicago the largest city in the world, and the labor center of the world.

Already, according to Green, plans are being laid by industrial leaders to extend the Chicago industrial region, and to bring all the units into active co-ordination.

How We Rallied Round Flag In The Old Civil War Days

Ninety-Year-Old Local Veteran Tells of Little Bits of War Experiences Brought to Mind When Memorial Day Came Around—But He Forgets Grim Scenes When Fishing is Mentioned.

ON Wednesday Manchester observed Memorial Day. Along both sides of the Main street in the south end, almost the entire population watched the parade.

The picture is still with us. The noisy motorcycles of the police clearing the way. The squad of patrolmen and police officers. The Spanish and World War veterans. The bands. The children carrying flags and the overseas men carrying wreaths. And bringing up the rear, the guests of honor, the men who were responsible for the annual observance—the veterans of the Civil War.

Because of its timeliness this week's feature article will concern itself with one of these heroes of a past war. Like the theme of the lecture "Acres of Diamonds" one did not have to go far afield to find this treasure of a story. In times past the interesting folks of the town had a habit of living in the outskirts or on little known streets. It was partly the fault of the searchers because he thought, like the persons who think distant fields are greenest, that persons who lived in the heart of the town had no story to tell.

An Exception There are exceptions to all rules and it was within the shadow of the Herald building that John M. Allen was located. He was found at his home at Main and Hudson streets, the day before Memorial Day.

Mr. Allen is 90 years old. Is this your picture in a shady nook. A little bowed down figure of a man, gray of beard and wearing glasses. A faded blue uniform. A weak voice. A faulty memory? That's your picture and that would be the picture conjured up by the statement that Mr. Allen is 90 years old. Now here is the true picture:

"Grandpa, somebody to see you." A door opens and in strides a presumably young man in a neat blue suit. Strides, is the word that best describes his mode of locomotion. It is a springy step that you associate with athletes, the drooping toe and heel motion of the professional walker. Yes, this youth has a mustache, a small one and gray. No glasses. A firm resonant voice. A firm hand clasp. And busy!

A Busy Man A man at the door with an auto. "One second, I will hurry through my meal and be with you in a jiffy to decorate those graves." Then to another of the inmates of the room: "Must be up early for the parade tomorrow. Then that Unionville trip, remember? Sorry I have to make the trip as I was figuring on a fishing trip but, at Memorial Day the fish must wait, at least for me."

That is John M. Allen in the flesh. The local fishermen will tell you all about him; of his untiring stride; how he walks miles after miles whipping streams for the elusive trout or stalks over hill and dale to spot the lightning fast bunny. O, yes, they'll tell you he's not an old man. Don't they know after they bathe their blistered feet after a day in the woods trying to follow the pace set by this young-old veteran of the Civil War?

REMARKABLE MEMORY OF 91 YEAR OLD VET.

BETWEEN times, Mr. Allen was induced to tell a little of the Civil War. It is a pleasure to listen to him. His keen memory is a revelation. No groping for dates or names, just a running story of things that happened years ago. It was as if he were telling of some occurrences of yesterday. Although Mr. Allen has been living here for the past seven years it was only recently it was learned that he was a Civil War veteran. This, because he is not enrolled in the local G. A. R. Post but is a member of Burpee Post, of Rockville.

A little family background for his tale was suggested and the speaker gave it cheerfully. He is one of a family of eight, five boys and three girls. His father's name was Silas B. Allen and he was born in the Town of Union, this state, on Nov. 17, 1833.

"Long before the war," he said, "my father spoke against slavery in his discourse by stating that the issue could only be settled through a war. I never thought during those times that what my father said would in time come true."

War is Declared. The prophecy was realized and soon the nation was in the throes of the most tragic of conflicts, a civil war, with brother fighting against brother.

It was no trifling matter for the local man to enlist when the word came. He had just been married. As a matter of fact it was just five months before since he had led to the altar Miss Nancy V. Kenyon. And it was no trifling matter to

Abraham Lincoln, a Sad Man; Grieved All Through the War.

John M. Allen, the 90 year old veteran who talks about the Civil War on this page today, was asked if he ever saw Abraham Lincoln.

"Yes, many times. I saw him at the front at Petersburg, Richmond and on the Appomattox going to the Point of Rocks hospital to visit the wounded.

"He was a sad appearing man. He was tall and gaunt looking. He wore a stove pipe hat which made him appear so much taller and a long black coat and black trousers. He walked with an awkward gait. If he told any funny stories we never heard them for he seemed to be always grieving over the war and worrying about the poor wounded soldiers. At times, though, I heard that he would ask the men to sing for him.

"Of course, Grant and the other Union officers were familiar sights to all of us as they were forever inspecting the lines of battles."

leave for the front during the honeymoon period of the young couple's lives but it was the call of duty and John Allen answered the call.

The family was then living in Woodstock, this state. As soon as young John decided to enlist he lost no time in leaving for the war. His friends and the many soldiers of the time, Deacon Bosworth, Joseph Hallock and Alby Hiscok, came around to his home to bid him farewell.

"The parting with my wife left me unstrung," said Mr. Allen. "I was afraid to look back after I started to leave home. I kept right on walking briskly."

Passed Examination. Mr. Allen with others were soon passed by the medical officers and "if they had not passed me there I would have gone to the next callist-greenest," that persons who lived in the heart of the town had no story to tell.

There are exceptions to all rules and it was within the shadow of the Herald building that John M. Allen was located. He was found at his home at Main and Hudson streets, the day before Memorial Day.

CONNECTICUT TOWNS IN NEW FEDERATION TO AID HARMONY IN NEW ENGLAND

Winsted, Conn.—A Federation of the Litchfield Hills is in process of formation here so that twenty-six towns in a famous summer playground section of New England may work harmoniously together. Instead of trying to tie the territory up as a political unit, leading citizens have worked out the Federation plan which at first will be used to boost the recreational features of the district.

The Federation plans to divide the section into four districts, each with two directors to handle things, and then give each of the twenty-six towns an executive committee member.

Business men of Torrington, the metropolis of the hill country, will name the Federation president, and presumably, stand most of the cost. The Federation idea is looked upon as a Yankee notion highly to be desired.

HOW TO REDUCE VARICOSE VEINS

Rub Gently and Upward Toward the Heart as Blood in Veins Flows That Way

Many people have become dependent because they have been led to believe that there is no remedy that will reduce swollen veins and bunches.

If you will get a two-ounce original tin of Moone's Emerald Oil (full strength) at any first-class drug store and apply it night and morning as directed you will quickly notice an improvement which will continue until the veins and bunches are reduced to normal. Moone's Emerald Oil is a harmless, yet most powerful germicide and two ounces last a very long time. Indeed, so powerful is Emerald Oil that old chronic sores and ulcers are often entirely healed and anyone who is disappointed with its use can have their money refunded. Magnell Drug Co. sell lots of it.—Adv.

"The Jolly, Friendly Mrs. Jim Watson"

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the last of a series of prospective "First Ladies" by Allene Sumner, writer for The Herald and NEA Service. Today's article deals with Mrs. James Watson, wife of the senator from Indiana, who is a Republican presidential aspirant.

By ALLENE SUMNER
Staff Writer for The Herald and NEA Service

Rushville, Ind., June 2—If "The Jim Watsons" move into the White House on March 4, 1929, the politicians might just as well know first and foremost that the president'll have little time to bother with the likes of them on April Fool's Day.

April Fool's Day is a red-letter day in "the Jim Watson family," just as it's apt to be in any household full of Impish kids.

To be sure, all the Watsons, big and old, know all the jokes. But somebody's bound to get caught. The Watsons like their pancake joke. They have pancakes and sirup for breakfast every morning, so there's nothing in the mound of brown crisped cakes in themselves to label the day and make one suspicious.

But somebody's bound to get a cotton cake that morning. That April Fool cake has gone the rounds from Dad and Mother down to Joseph Edwin, grandson, aged one.

The Watsons and their April Fool joke give a hearty good idea of the sort of family they are: a "close family," a family which prefers its own society to all the other people in the world; a family which thinks home the best place anywhere.

Naturally, someone is responsible for this family solidarity. In the case of the "Jim Watsons," they say honors are about equally shared in the home job by Mr. and Mrs. Watson.

Mrs. James Watson

Mention Mrs. Watson down in Washington and they'll say: "Yes, the handsome Mrs. Watson." Mention Mrs. Jim Watson here in Rushville, and they'll say: "Yes, that jolly, friendly Mrs. Watson." Mention her around the home and they'll call her "Tom." Whenever the senator makes a speech, those who have heard him before are sure of one passage. They say his secretary takes it down even before the senator says it. It goes like this—

"The home is the supreme thing to every man. I am proud to say that for 34 years I have enjoyed as happy and, if you will pardon me, as beautiful a home life as falls to the lot of any man."

What's more, his secretary will tell you, he means it. He says it because it's the good political stuff, but because he just has to say it.

Flora Miller and Jim Watson went to school together back in Winchester, Ind. The day after their marriage they moved to Rushville, which has been home ever since.

The Watsons courted days in Winchester were a mixture of dirt roads, horse and buggy rides, box socials, church suppers, and the annual road-company of "Uncle Tom's Cabin" at the Opera House. Even to this day, they say, the Watsons like an old-fashioned buggy or sleigh ride or hayrack ride in fragrant hay under a harvest moon.

But in Washington no senator's wife is more polished in sophisticated social circles than "the handsome Mrs. Watson."

"The Jim Watsons" are always popular in a bridge game, though the senator likes his solitaire better. They say his idea of a 100 per cent evening is to settle down before the fireplace at his solitaire while "the Mrs." sits by reading or sewing, throwing out an occasional comment about "the children."

"The children" are James E. Jr., who is 31, married, lives in Chicago, and has two sons of his own; Edwin G., aged 32; Katherine, 20; Joseph C., 18, and "Hoosier," the family bull dog.

Edwin G. says he's never going to marry. "There's no girl like mother," which may help describe Mrs. James E. Watson, another possible "First Lady."

Miss Ellen M. Lewis To Wed Philip C. Magnuson Today

Miss Ellen Mildred Lewis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Lewis of 112 Highland street, and Philip Carl Magnuson, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Magnuson of 24 Henry street, Hartford, will be married at 4 o'clock this afternoon at the South Methodist church. The ceremony will be performed by the pastor, Rev. Robert A. Colpitts, the single ring service being used.

While the guests are assembling selections will be played on the organ by Theron W. Hart, organist of the Congregational church in New Britain. He will play the bridal march from Lohengrin and recessional from Mendelssohn as well as accompany the soloist, Frederick Shlpman, also of the New Britain church choir.

The bride will be attended by her sister, Miss Elsie G. Lewis as maid of honor, and by the following bridesmaids, Miss Ruth Magnuson, sister of the bridegroom, and Miss Edith Magnuson, his cousin. The best man will be Milton Magnuson, brother of the bridegroom, and the ushers Raymond Kinnecom of Providence, cousin of the bride, and March O'Connell of Hartford, cousin of the bridegroom.

The bride who will be given in marriage by her father will wear a gown of white satin trimmed with lace, rhinestones and pearls. Her veil of tulle will fall from a cap of lace and orange blossoms, and her bouquet will be of white bridal roses, gardenias and lilies of the valley, with a shower of lilies of the valley.

The maid of honor will be attired in robin's egg blue georgette with cream colored lace with picture hat and slippers to match. Her arm bouquet will be of yellow Pernet roses and pale blue delphiniums. The bridesmaids will each wear period gowns, one of pale green taffeta and the other of rose taffeta, picture hats and silver slippers. They will carry bouquets of Madame Butterfly roses and orchid sweet peas.

A reception at 4:30 will follow the ceremony and will be held in the banquet hall which has been artistically decorated with palms, ferns, and a profusion of white and purple lilies and early flowers. At least 155 are expected to attend the reception. Interesting features will be the display of the beautiful wedding gifts at one side of the hall; the tiered wedding cake which will be cut during the service of the buffet-lunch and distributed to the guests.

The bride's gift to the bridegroom is a white gold pen knife with a Masonic emblem; to her maid of honor and bridesmaids gifts of friendship pins. The bridegroom's gift to the bride is a turquoise pendant on a white gold chain, to the best man, cuff links and to the ushers fountain pens and pencils.

During the evening the young couple will leave on a motor trip to New York, Philadelphia and Washington, the bride wearing a blue ensemble traveling costume. On their return from their wedding trip they will occupy their newly furnished home at 720 Broadview Terrace, Hartford.

The bride was graduated from the Manchester High school with the class of 1926. She is a member of the South Methodist church, has been a teacher in the church school and prominent in activities of the young people. The bridegroom is a member of Tuscan Lodge of Masons, Hartford, a member of the Hartford Choral club and sings in the Congregational church in New Britain and the Central Baptist church in Hartford. Both have been employed in the Travelers Insurance Company, Hartford.

A morning fog usually breaks away before noon.

Eagle Scout

Francis Burr

The highest honor a Boy Scout can win, the Eagle Scout badge, was awarded to Francis Burr (above) son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis St. Clair Burr, of 302 West Center street, on Thursday night. Full details of the award were reported in yesterday's issue of The Herald.

WEDDING ANNIVERSARY
Mr. and Mrs. Clayton F. Holmes of Main street were surprised at their home late yesterday afternoon by a large party of their friends and relatives, largely those who attend their wedding just a year ago, and returned to celebrate the first or paper anniversary. The guests came provided with a generous supply of delicacies for supper and everybody had a thoroughly enjoyable evening.

It was also the birthday of Mr. Holmes' mother, Mrs. Clayton E. Holmes, and she was remembered with a number of acceptable gifts as well as the young couple.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

ned his beautiful "Ballad of Trees and The Master":

"Into the woods my Master went,
Clean forspent, forspent,
Into the woods my Master came,
Forspent with love and shame,
But the olives they were not blind to Him,
The lilies the gray leaves were kind to Him,
The thorn-tree had a mind to Him
When into the woods He came.

"Out of the woods my Master went,
And He was well content,
Out of the woods my Master came,
Content with death and shame,
When Death and Shame would woo Him last,
From under the trees they drew Him—last:
'Twas on a tree they slew Him—last,
When out of the woods He came."

Not all sorrow is a Gethsemane. This was not merely the Garden of Suffering, but it was also the Garden of Sacrifice. What made the agony divine was that, out of His soul's incomprehensible turmoil, He could say, "Not my will, but Thine, be done." Sure of the oneness of the Father's will with His own work, Jesus arose and went forward unblanchingly to the torture-hall, to the Cross and to the grave. While His soul's suffering had forced drops of bloody sweat from His brow, yet He had won through to peace. He would not fall in God's great programme of love for mankind. His faith was fortified in the Garden to bear upon the shameful wood the whole load of human sin. Jesus became a Saviour on Olivet's slope even before He was lifted up on Calvary's Crest.

5 Record Months

THE GREATEST IN 20 YEARS OF WILLYS-OVERLAND HISTORY

MAY SALES SET NEW HIGH MARK

With May reaching a new high peak—Whippet and Willys-Knight sales continue to mount, month after month, week after week, day after day.

The five months just completed were by far the greatest in all Willys-Overland history. In spite of the fact that April had produced the greatest sales on record, May established a new mark with an increase of 14% above the previous record-breaking month.

The perfected Whippet Four, at greatly reduced prices, is a tremendous national success. The new Whippet Six —the world's lowest price six-cylinder motor car—is paralleling the Whippet Four in popular acceptance.

The recently announced low price of the Willys-Knight Standard Six has resulted in greatly increased demand for this splendid car. Sales of the Special Six and the Great Six continue in unabated volume.

When A Girl Loves

© 1928 by NEA Service by RUTH DEWEY GROVES

THIS HAS HAPPENED

VIRGINIA BREWSTER, upon losing both father and wealth, goes to live with her father, DEAN and her father. Her fiancé, NATHANIEL DANN, objects to this for he mistrusts DEAN'S motives. A misunderstanding between the lovers is cleared up and VIRGINIA phones NIEL'S studio late one night and his model, CHILL, answers.

Meanwhile, DEAN plots to get NIEL sent away from VIRGINIA, but fails.

CLARISSA becomes jealous of VIRGINIA, and the latter resolves to leave but DEAN insists that she marry him. When she refuses, he threatens to reveal that her father cheated him out of $100,000 in a deal. Recklessly, VIRGINIA declares that she will give the money to pay him in one year—or watch him die.

Realization of her plight comes to VIRGINIA when she discovers her bank balance overdrawn, and she has to pawn a ring before sending a reasonable hotel in which to live.

CLARISSA, who does not dare reveal her contempt for NIEL, insists that she marry him at once. NIEL, in a desperate manner in the "Village" where they happen upon a place where his model is dining with another man, and the familiarity with which she treats NIEL leads him to believe that she is VIRGINIA. Next she calls upon an old friend, OLIVER CUTLER, who is a successful broker.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XXII.

"Oliver, don't talk nonsense. You might remember you're married."

"Of course not," Virginia said emphatically. "I'm surprised you ask me that, Oliver. It seems that everyone doubts my sincerity," she complained with a touch of exasperation.

"I'm sorry, Virginia. Misunderstanding," he apologized shortly. "It makes me think none of you have ever been in love," she said recklessly.

"That's hardly fair," she protested. "Coming from you, because it's entirely your fault that I've never lived for that much-talked-of emotion."

"Oliver, don't talk nonsense. You might remember you're married."

He smiled. "It would amuse Jeanie to hear that. She's quite aware that our friends all know we've never mentioned love to each other. She wouldn't mind my admitting it to you. In fact I think she rather boasts of it. It's about all the claim either of us has to distinction, I fear."

"It's a decidedly unworthy distinction," she told him with an edge on her voice. "But don't believe you mean what you say."

"Well, never mind," he replied placatingly. "It doesn't matter so much does it? It's apparent that you still believe in Santa Claus, and let me tell you I'm glad of it. When you jumped on me so hard a moment ago for my hasty conclusion I was just going to tell you how disappointed I'd be if you suddenly turned out to have feet of clay. I always did worship you a bit, you know, Virginia."

"I wish you wouldn't say such things, Oliver! It isn't decent, especially in a business office."

"Ah, so the cat's out of the bag. This is a business call!"

"Of course. What did you think it was?"

"Now you know you don't want me to answer that one. Watch your step, Virginia, especially in a business office."

"A fair bit," she agreed and laughed with him.

"But seriously, if there is anything in the world I can do for you, Virginia, just let me do it."

"You know how to make money, don't you?" she returned directly.

"At times, yes. Is that what you wish to do? Make money?"

She nodded wordlessly but her eyes spoke volumes.

"It's always a risky game making money on the Street," he pointed out discouragingly. "And I thought you said you wouldn't need money to be happy with the man you're going to marry."

"A long moment slipped by before Virginia answered.

"I must have it to pay an obligation that father left," she said.

"I'll help you, if I can," he promised as quietly. "It was as though both were aware of some invisible but powerful force that subdued their voices and made speaking difficult. He had caught the feeling from Virginia, who was completely in the grip of suppressed excitement. To obtain Oliver's aid had been her one big, her only hope to make the money she must have."

"Thank you," she tried to say, but the distance between them increased with the speed of thought and the next thing she knew she was prone on the floor while his secretary was wiping her face with a handkerchief and Oliver Cutler, prominent broker, was on his knees, chafing her hands.

"Too stupid," she murmured apologetically. Then her white lips parted in a heart-wrenching smile. "You were overwhelmingly kind," she whispered.

"Come out of it, Virginia," he begged in great distress. "I'm going to send you home in my car."

Virginia struggled to sit up. Between them, the secretary and Oliver, they got her back in her chair.

"Don't bother, please," she urged. "This is a business call."

"Indeed we will not. I'll come up and see you this evening, or this afternoon, if you prefer. Staying with the Deans, aren't you?"

Virginia shook her head. "Not any more," she said; then the secretary who was standing by with a glass of water, "it won't happen again."

"That's all, Miss Evans, thank you," Oliver said in dismissal.

"Now Virginia, out with it. What want you at the Deans?" he demanded when they were alone. I heard you were with them."

"You don't expect me to talk about it, Oliver! Clarissa and I seem to have drifted away from each other. Please let it go at that."

"All right, if you say so, but I've an opinion of my own. Where are you now?" he asked abruptly.

"In a hotel," she thought it best not to name it at the moment.

"You ought to go to someone," he advised her. "If Jeanie were back from Aiken I'd invite you to put up at our place. I could move over to the club," he suggested on second thought.

"That would be a topic for bridge table conversation," Virginia exclaimed, laughing a little.

"I suppose so. Pity we can't do as we please."

"Well, I please to stay where I am, Oliver. With all appreciation of your kindness, but I'd rather have you help me in another way. I've got three hundred dollars and I want you to make it a hundred thousand."

"Oh good lord! Do I look like John D? If I were an alchemist I'd be here or would I be fishing in Maine?"

"You have a year to do it."

"All of that? Well, that does make a difference I think though. It would save a lot of time if I lent you the money."

"I'll never have a hundred thousand dollars, Oliver, unless I make it, so it's out of the question to borrow."

"Well, let's see your three hundred. I suppose you brought it with you?" He was teasing but Virginia opened her bag and handed him the money she had gotten from "Uncle Simon."

"Poor little babes in the deep black woods of Wall Street," he sympathized over the bills. Then catching sight of Virginia's forlorn expression, he laughed. "But I'll be their papa and bring them up right," he promised heartily. "Don't you worry, mama. Come in day after tomorrow and I'll have news for you."

He was at the door with her before the thought struck him that this might be all the money she had.

"I believe I could do as well with two hundred," he said and started to separate $100 to give back to her.

"You mustn't risk it, Oliver. I've just got to have that hundred thousand. Perhaps I'll have more to bring you when the estate is settled, but please do the best you can with this money."

"As you say, Virginia. See you day after tomorrow."

She nodded and went over to his secretary's desk to thank her for her ministrations. Miss Evans was a capable-looking woman in the early thirties, and it came to Virginia as she talked with her that here was a person who could give her some helpful advice. Everyone else had driven her nearly distracted with their refusal to see her in anything but the social butterfly who should cling to her place even if she had to assume the role of little sister to the rich in order to hold it.

All except Nathaniel, of course, and he made it hardest of all for her to pursue the course she had set her feet upon, but she could forgive him because of his motive.

"I wonder if you would have lunch with me?" she asked.

"I shall be glad to, Miss Brewster," Miss Evans assured her after a slight pause of consideration.

Virginia glanced at her wrist watch. Why she had forgotten all about it at "Uncle Simon's!" "It's 11:30," she announced. "May you go now?"

"In five minutes."

Virginia waited in the reception room, looking out over the park of Manhattan. For the first time in her life the immensity of the city frightened her. What was her pitiful strength compared to the power that had built this great, roaring metropolis? Would the brains represented by these incredible piles of steel and concrete allow her to wrest even the comparatively small sum of $100,000 from them? Virginia shivered with awe.

But once on the street, tea room-bound with Miss Evans, her balance was restored. When finally they were ensconced in wall seats with a dolly-covered table before them she turned to her companion with a thrill over the novelty of what she intended to do.

(Abbreviations: A—ace; K—king; Q—queen; J—jack; X—any card lower than 10.)

3—Average Probabilities

Quick tricks may be described as positive or reasonably sure tricks. A quick trick is one that may be fairly counted on to win a trick on the first or second round, and, possibly on the third round. An Ace is a quick trick. King-Queen in combination is a quick trick.

The basis of all sound bidding is a knowledge of quick trick values. Without a knowledge of these values, bidding becomes guesswork. With a knowledge of them, your bidding becomes orderly and dependable. How quick tricks are described and valued is shown in this table:

Q	1-4
J	1-4
AJ 10	1-2
KQ J	1-2
AQ J	1-2
A K	2
A Q	2-4
J K Q	2-4
Q X X	1-4
K X X	1-2
K X	1-2
K J 10	3-4

The foregoing table should be memorized before any effort is made to make any further progress or advancement.

To know the quick trick value of your hand is the first essential of all sound bidding. Bridge is a game of information; you cannot give proper information unless you know the value of your hand. The value of the hand is determined by its quick values, and you cannot make a sound bid unless you know its quick trick value.

The necessity and importance of knowing the quick trick table cannot be stressed too strongly. All bidding is based upon it.

MARYE and MOM

Their Letters

Dear Mom:

Maybe you don't believe it, but I do take your letters to heart. And sometimes, I go further and follow your advice.

This I did yesterday. Said I to me, I'll find out if I have a romantic husband or not.

So I started to provide the setting. I ran up quite a bill at the florist's in so doing, but everything has its price. I bought the most heavenly apple blossoms, and arranged them around the living room.

I placed a big bowlful of red tulips on my little black lacquer table.

I wanted to have a romantic dinner, but I remembered that Alan has a very realistic appetite, so I saw to it that we had a nice thick steak, mushrooms, and some French pastry that would knock your eye out.

Since it has been quite a long time since Alan and I have had a quiet evening at home, with the dressing gown and slipper idea predominating, I decided we would just start out with that general idea, and that I would be the nice, sweet little wife you are always asking me to be.

Everything planned well, but did not execute according to the recipe. About five o'clock, just as I was getting out the bus, preparatory to going after my husband at his place of toil, the telephone rang. Yes, it was the husband. He couldn't come home to dinner. He was working late—would just have a bite to eat at the restaurant. In the building, and I would probably work until 11. I remonstrated, but Alan was so impatient that something in me grew reckless, and the vision of his stenographer came to my mind, and so I told him not to let my pleasure interfere with his work.

I Langed up the phone, and so did he. And the apple blossoms and the tulips seemed to wonder what it was all about.

Then the phone rang again. I thought it might be Alan, reconsidering. It was not. It was Norman. He began by being apologetic for having made trouble for me the last time I saw him. I told him I had nothing else but trouble, and it ended by his asking me out to dinner, since Alan was not on the job. I grabbed on the idea.

All we did was just to go out to dinner and to a movie. Then we went home the next day about 10 o'clock, and Norman said he would have just one cigaret and leave.

We fell to talking, about a little bit of everything—I never felt less sentimental—but we were both of us sitting rather cozily together on theavenport when Alan came. Unfortunately we did not hear him come, nor notice his presence until he announced rather bitterly he hoped he wasn't disturbing anybody, and bolted upstairs.

We have not spoken since. I guess you had better advise me how to get out of the situation.

Lovingly,
MARYE.

The WOMAN'S DAY

by ALLENE SUMNER

The plain collarless manual laborer of husband gets little recognition. Up before sunlight to a early inarticulate five minutes with his wife over a cup of coffee, he goes off sulkily to work to come home dead tired to make a sure evening. The children, who live by the sweat of his brow but who are too wild to understand, fear and dislike him and run at his coming.

It is such men as these who go down to the mines in cages and come out dead. The bodies brought up from the Mather, Pa., mine only remind us again of the courage of the commonplace and the heroism of the world is built on the dead bodies of those deemed least glorious, but who are really the only glorious humans of us all.

She's Royal Polisher

Because she gave Her Majesty, the Queen, of Abyssinia, so royal and lustrous a nail polish when the queen was on her recent tour of Europe, Felicia Sawicki, a manufacturer of Warsaw, has signed a two year contract as the royal manicurist in the palace at Kabul. Just by way of reminding us humble workers, the romance lies in a rainbow's end of any job well done.

Books, Books, Books!

Here's the last installment on that "Hundred Best Novel" list for ambitious summer reading—only I don't think it's quite a hundred. Anyway, if you read all mentioned, you'll probably have enough!

"Ghosts in the Earth," by Roivaag; "The Tree of Heaven," by Sinclair; "The Crook of Gold," by Stephens; "The Matrilineal," by Kidnapped Beatrice Fosenbaum of Youngstown, has stopped a second mortgage onto his little house in order to offer reward for his child, living or dead. And yet the real news would be a father who refused to go into debt for the sake of a wild. The parental instinct is so taken for granted that any evidence of its weakening is the surprising thing, not its proof.

HINTS ON HOW TO KEEP WELL by World Famed Authority

GIRL STUDENTS DIFFER WITH BOYS IN HEALTH

By DR. MORRIS FISHBEN

Editor Journal of the American Medical Association and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine

Recently an investigator surveyed the health habits of girls in a woman's college in the eastern portion of the United States. The persons involved in the survey were asked as to what habits they had that were injurious to health; they were questioned about their likes and dislikes, about the time of going to sleep and getting up, about the amount of rest taken about their food and vacations, whether they overeat or under-eat, eat too fast or wash the food down with too much water.

Inquiry was also made as to the amount of exercise and outdoor sunlight as well as to the use of tea, coffee and tobacco. These may be taken as some of the most important factors involved in a healthful life.

Freshmen Win

According to the common sense of the habits of living of the students the investigator rated their health intelligence. As might have been expected, the Freshmen showed a higher degree of health intelligence than the sophomores, the latter more than the juniors, and the seniors least of all.

Indeed it has been the general experience that the health habits which the children learn today in the grade school tend to lessen in the high school and apparently the decline becomes even greater when the girls reach college age.

Whereas college life should be a positive factor for inducing outdoor living and suitable exercise, seniors spend much less time outdoors than do lower classmen. Moreover, the requirements of the last year of college seem to induce hasty eating, irregular meal times, inadequate vacations and increased indulgence in the candy and coffee habits.

Dr. William R. P. Emerson found in a similar study of 2000 students in a college for men that there was a steady improvement from the freshman to the senior class.

Dr. Emerson feels that the more theoretical knowledge the students seemed to have on health subjects the less likely they were to practice health habits.

This he explained on the ground that health teaching did not involve practice. Thus he recommends weighing and measuring of all students at regular intervals, and at the same time giving personal instruction in proper health habits.

It is, of course, generally recognized that personal instruction is far more successful in securing results in the health field than any form of mass instruction.

A Musical Immigrant

By Olive Roberts Barton

As he sits in his house, he ponders over the difference between the great roaring American city and the quiet little village in the Vosges Mountains where he was born.

Over there, when he was very young, he lived with a German peasant who sat outside his doorway on still summer evenings and played softly on his flute.

Now the little immigrant knows these tunes by heart, and perhaps you can persuade him to perform for you.

But first of all, you must be of the elect, for he chooses his audience—and his stage! We will suppose he has had some success, now on the other, he is waiting patiently for his answer. He comes to his open door and looks you over. He prefers his audience to be seated, so you sit down.

Suddenly he emerges, then cocking his head on one side, now on the other, and he waits until you have been subjected to such a test.

"Ah! You are chosen. For the next thing he does is to mount the stage, and the stage is your knee, or shoulder, or perchance the top of your head! Already he is attired for the performance, a rose-colored vest, a black velvet cap, gray bolero, and long black coat tails.

Without warning, softly, deliberately, he plays for you, four distinct melodies on his tiny flute. No minors, no waverings, no flats—every note hit fair and square in the middle, piercingly clear, agonizingly sweet—your heart turns over!

He numbers many famous people among his acquaintances. Some he has elected to play for, some he has not. Probably his standard of excellence is his German master in the mountains.

The little immigrant is a bull-finch!

High School Loses Most Important Game 6 To 4

Big Four Of The West On Invasion Of East

Cubs, Reds, Cardinals and Pirates to Try Their Luck Here For the Next Twenty Days.

BY DAVIS J. WALSH

New York, June 2.—That ding-dong race, the National League is about due to ring some Chinese as an obligato, what with the big four of the west venturing into this section for first time at least one eastern club showing an inclination to arise and do battle against the invaders in collaboration with the Giants. They say the test of a ball club's fighting soul is met only on the road, therefore the exact nature of twenty days should tell us much about the Cubs, Reds, Cardinals and Pirates.

The latter, for example, either are going to start winning now or abandon further pretense of being a championship club. They must play to an average of at least .650 on this road trip, if they expected to figure in the immediate proceedings with any degree of prominence. The Reds will have a few questions they must answer, too, during their absence from Cincinnati. But, unlike the Pirates, theirs will not be a question of improvement but one dealing with an inquiry as to how long they can sustain the gallant pace that carried them to the head of the league and keep them there. If the club can win a few more games than it loses on this trip it will have to be definitely accepted as a pennant contender of the first rank—something the wise men of the east have declined to do to date.

A Serious Threat There is, in fact, a disposition here to rank the Cubs and Cardinals among the best in the east against the chances of the Giants bringing a pennant east for the first time since 1924. However, much of this attitude will be subject to change unless the Pirates can do something in the next few weeks or stand convicted of being a poor road club, which almost means that they can't and won't win the pennant. Show me a club that only can win at home and I'll show you one that figures to miss a pennant victory in a race such as this.

The Cubs and Reds must take slightly the worst of the going at the outset, the former being coupled with the Giants in a three-game series, the latter with the trail-blazing Reds in Boston. The latter is "hot" right now, having undergone a rather revolutionary change for the better since Hornsby took charge. The Cincinnati-Boston series opened yesterday. So did the Cardinal-Phillies meeting in Philadelphia, the idea being to get the jump on the closed Sunday that prevails in those cities. Pittsburgh, meanwhile, will open its season tomorrow, this being something of a break for Dreyfuss and Bush in view of the fact that the Dodgers have been going none too well, if at all, in recent weeks. However, the Phillies have been hurrying nowhere at a terrific clip themselves, so I guess it is all even.

Anyhow, the real showdown for each western entry will come at the Polo Grounds which will be visited by the Cubs, Cardinals, Reds and Pirates in that order. I wouldn't declare that this succession of visitations from ranking contenders is any laughing matter to the Giants, either. The truth of the matter is that the status of the various contenders may be pretty well defined during the month of June.

Justification for this feeling is found in the fact that, as soon as the east-west meetings are opened and the Giants are casing alone against the Phillies and Dodgers, whom they seem able to beat consistently, the western clubs must go back to blackjacking each other. This will continue beyond July 1 and, if there still is a five or six club race going on by that time, it will be dead against the laws of average or percentage or both.

Each School Wins Two Singles and a Double as Match Ends 3 to 3.

BY DAVIS J. WALSH

Manchester High and West Hartford High schools broke even in a tennis match yesterday afternoon played in that city. Each team won two singles and a double. Lengthy matches featured.

In the singles, Deming of West Hartford beat Yules of Manchester, 6-3 and 6-1; Toretsky of West Hartford won from Smith of Manchester, 7-5 and 6-3; Gatt of Manchester trimmed Hamilton of West Hartford, 6-6 and 7-5; Markley of Manchester beat Kortorn of West Hartford, 6-3 and 6-3.

In the doubles, Toretsky and Deming won from Yules and Smith, 6-1, 6-8 and 6-3; Markley and Gatt beat Hamilton and Kortorn in two hard fought sets, 9-7 and 8-6.

O'BRIEN TO DEFY WALKER IF WINNER Hartford Boxer Hopes to Bring Champion Here to Defend His Title.

Hartford, June 2.—Mickey Walker, world's middleweight champion, will be offered and guaranteed $25,000 to defend his title in this city this summer against Hartford's own, Frankie O'Brien, in the event that the hard hitting Irishman hangs defeat on Al Mello, Lowell's rugged contender, when they clash in a 12-round New England middleweight championship contest at the Velodrome Monday night.

In making this announcement to Gay Promoter Homer Rainault said that he felt reasonably sure that Walker would agree to come to Hartford and as evidence of good faith stands ready to deposit $25,000 in the Phoenix State Bank and Trust Company. The Velodrome promoter has been in communication with Jack Kearns, Walker's manager, but has withheld the startling offer pending the outcome of the local battle.

PHILANTHROPIC ARTHUR

Arthur Woodbridge is to be commemorated for his philanthropic deed in offering the Manchester Green baseball team free use of a portion of his pasture land for a baseball diamond. The Green boys have already done quite a bit of work in making the field and before they get through it will be highly satisfactory. Incidentally, through the efforts of Sam Prentice, Manchester Green's enterprising sportsman, recently in the limelight because of his horse racing episodes, considerable interest has been worked up among the baseball fans in the residential section of the town. What's more, they've got quite a snappy ball club up there.

Torrington Plays State League Game At Hickey's Sunday

Community Playing State League Games Today and Tomorrow; Webber Pitching Sunday; Games at Green and West Side Also.

BY DAVIS J. WALSH

There will be three baseball games in town tomorrow afternoon. The principal one, of course, will be the state league clash between the Community Club and Torrington over at Hickey's Grove at three o'clock.

Charles Weber of Rockville will probably be on the firing line for Manchester, Russ Fisher working in East Haddam's state league contest at New Britain. Bill Du'vak may pitch for Torrington. His battery mate will be the old favorite, Tom McLeod.

What We Think In Sports

By THOMAS W. STOWE. COMING FROM BEHIND One reason why Manchester High was beaten by West Hartford yesterday in its all-important school boy battle was because the local players were too willing to concede victory to their opponents as soon as the four-run lead was lost.

TIE GAMES

To be sure, there is no use crying over spilled milk. Manchester has been beaten and that's all there is to it. But coming as it does under such similar circumstances as last season, the defeat cannot help but be received with regret. Moreover so has the fact that the team has every chance in the world to win the game. In fact, it should have. But that's neither here nor there. It didn't. The chances are now that a tie will exist between the two schools for first place at the end of the league season.

INCONCEIVABLE

Being in a criticizing mood today, I might as well rake something else over the coals. There was a case in Hartford last week in which a motorist ran out of gasoline in a race at Charter Oak Park. This can be excused as a pleasure driver, but not a racer who spends countless time and expense getting his motor in that condition before a race. Can you imagine attendant so careless as to scrutinize every bit of an engine meticulously before a race and yet fail to look at the gas tank? To me, at least, it's inconceivable.

Grabs Four Run Lead But Cracks At Finish

By TOM STOWE. For the second year in succession after having a most successful baseball season, Manchester High School had the hard luck yesterday to lose its most important contest when West Hartford was a 6 to 4 winner on its own field. A victory for Coach Tommy Kelley's crew would have practically assured the locals of the championship of the Central Connecticut Interscholastic League. Last year, they were East Hartford that turned the trick.

ICE and a good refrigerator keep foods at their best

THERE is no other refrigerant like ICE. You can depend upon it. In a good refrigerator it maintains a temperature cold enough to keep foods fresh, dry enough to prevent mold, and moist enough to retard the drying out of meat, cheese, butter and fruit.

It is nature's way of preserving the delicious juices and precious, elusive flavors of food.

It is important to have a good refrigerator. This does not necessarily mean an expensive model. You can get a thoroughly good one, correctly designed, tightly constructed and well insulated, at moderate cost.
