Why Does Furniture Cost So Much?

Perhaps you may have wondered—you may even have received a decided shock, if you have had occasion to shop for furniture to have seen some of the "high-price" tags after reading the "low-price" ads.

Furniture is advertised very cheap. Why is it that when you come to buy it, the figures seem to loom so large? Well, there are several reasons.

Second—it costs a lot to advertise. These big ads you see shrieking back and forth at each other, out-pricing, out-claiming, out-bidding the other fellow for your patronage—they eat up a lot of dollars.

Third—it costs money to keep up appearances, elaborate stores, costly facilities for show, high priced organizations of style experts, etc., such as are so often felt necessary—all of these things pile up expense—and it's all part of the price you pay!

Isn't There Any Way of Avoiding These Costs?

There is! A furniture store could be operated in an inexpensive location, far from city rents, with plenty of cheap space. It could find a different and less expensive way of securing public attention than by throwing out thousands of dollars in competitive advertising.

Furniture DOESN'T Cost So Much HERE!

SPRING HOUSECLEANING

What a task this spring housecleaning is! Here are committees of Congress investigating everything and everybody, even to campaign expenses of candidates for vice-president.

Some of these, and other investigations, are the result of general charges, the originators of which, like Senator Heflin, are unable or unwilling to be specific when pressed for definite statements.

SUMMER CAMPS

Those of us who look backward quite some years on the last day of school find no difficulty in recalling the plans for the summer's fun, not infrequently knocked in the head promptly by the insistence of a higher power that we "go to work."

There was no one to instruct us in the easier ways of making camp, of toting our luggage, of preparing our food over a small fire, of being comfortable under uncomfortable circumstances.

But we have progressed in camping as in other things in the last two or three decades. If there is a pond or lake, not strictly private, within two days journey of any city or town in New England, especially one that is accessible to automobile traffic, that has not a ring of cottages around it, once the address were to be known it would no longer remain in such a state.

Every organization of boys has a camp somewhere. Thousands of competent college men and their elders spend all of the summer months in well regulated camps where the boys under their charge live healthy lives during the long summer weeks. And what applies to boys is equally true of the girls. These modern camps are health giving and account for the far greater number of both boys and girls who learn early to swim than was the case in the years gone by.

MARK TWAIN'S MEMORIAL

The home in Hartford in which Mark Twain lived for more than twenty years and in which he did much of his most notable work may yet become a memorial to America's great humorist. It will be those in charge of the work of raising the necessary fund vigorously conduct the campaign and if the country at large can be aroused from its apathy towards the proposition, Hartford and the entire country ought to be ashamed that even the three years he spent in a house at the corner of Ninth street and Fifth avenue in New York is marked by a tablet, while this house in Hartford, built for him, of which he spoke as "a holy place and beautiful," has even a remote chance of destruction or change. It should be added to the many notable shrines of America.

Some years ago a movement to purchase it for memorial purposes was inaugurated but the plan died aborning. At least only the sum of $20,000 resulted from the brief activities at that time. The sum of $155,000 is involved. Option on the property was extended from time to time, the last expiring June 1. A renewal until January 1 is now sought. The owners of the property seem to have changed their attitude recently in that they have expressed a desire to see the building preserved and to aid in any way possible the renewed effort to raise the necessary funds for its purchase.

Campaigns for much less worthy objects have been easily won. This one can be begun at once and pushed vigorously.

TIME

Whatever else may result from the attempts of various filers to cross the Pacific and of others to cross the Atlantic they have an educational value. As despatches come over the wires into the newspaper offices editors are confronted with making Greenwich Mean Time fit with Island Time and either, or both, check with despatches giving Pacific Coast Time. From this conglomeration of times there remains to be determined where the Australian bound fliers are at a given-hour Eastern Daylight Savings Time. As we understand it a good time was had by all, except the man upon whose bowed head devolved the task of trying to ascertain for the edification of the readers of The Herald whether it was night or day at one and the same time where the Australian bound plane was roaring through the air at 80 miles an hour. It presents a new mental test that bids fair to approximate the cross-word puzzle in popularity, if anyone can be found who knows the answer.

A CONTRAST

No lover of animals, dogs in particular, except fanciers, objects to the new law in Massachusetts forbidding the cropping of dogs' ears. The legislature passed the law and Governor Fuller immediately approved it. Just why cropped ears ever became the standard for certain breeds of dogs is lost to the layman in the dim distant past. Memory goes back to those days when it was essential to a standing in society to drive a horse or horses with close cropped tails sticking straight up. Many crusades against that practice on the ground of cruelty stopped it. But the poor little terrier, devoted companion of man, escaped the attention of the lawmakers until very recently.

It is going to mean, in Massachusetts at least, a new standard in judging dogs, for a fine of $250 is to be imposed for the showing of a dog with cropped ears. But in New York the same old practice of cropping ears will continue. Gov. Smith vetoed a somewhat similar bill on the ground that it was not within the police power of the state to enforce it. The bill was not so drastic. It merely was to prevent the showing of dogs with cropped ears. And Governor Smith, candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination, had so poor an opinion of the police power of his state, that he does not believe they can prevent a dog with cropped ears being shown at a bench show!

USELESS SIGNS

Few city or town officials do not drive their own, or municipal, cars over the highways of this and adjoining states. Like the stranger on our roads they seek guidance from signs. Assuming that they are exercising due care in the management of their cars on catching sight of a sign advising caution because of a school it is second nature with a reasonably careful driver to tense his muscles a trifle. He looks for the school and when he discovers it is a small, abandoned one, with windows boarded up and very evidently in disuse for some time it does not have a tendency to increase the habit of caution. We all know the story of the boy who cried "wolf, wolf, when there was no wolf." It is a tough enough task touring through strange territory to select the signs one needs for direction and safety from "tooth paste and cigarette and hot dog markers without cities and towns permitting to remain those which have lost their usefulness.

PROGRESS

New York police are making progress in capturing hold-up men. They yet have to capture the perpetrators of daily hold-ups of banks and bank messengers but they have made a start. One policeman captured two men who were holding up a lunch wagon. With this start it seems reasonable that in due course they will work their way along in the scale of business through the hold-up of a pedestrian, the hold-up of a gas station, next a store, then a jewelry shop and, who knows, but that in time, a bank robber will be caught. Great oaks from little acorns grow.

A LESSON ON THE DIGESTIVE TRACT PART 2

It is very important that the food be very finely divided by the teeth so that the digestive juices may reach into the innermost portion of the food particles. Whenever there is an incomplete digestion, there is danger of food fermentation.

The food passes from the mouth down the throat, through the esophagus, and into the stomach. The stomach is a highly elastic, muscular organ which will hold about three pints and when full is about a foot long and four inches wide. When empty, however, the stomach contracts and occupies very little space.

The stomach acts as a storehouse for food until it has been acted upon by the gastric juice which is secreted by glands within the stomach walls. These gastric glands secrete very powerful digestive juices containing hydrochloric acid and pepsin which not only kill the bacteria present in food, but are used to digest protein.

You will realize what a wonderful apparatus the stomach is when I tell you that the stomach glands will secrete from two and a half to five quarts of gastric juice each day. The stomach is lined with circular, longitudinal, and oblique muscular fibers. These muscles keep contracting in such a way as to thoroughly churn the food and mix it with the gastric juice.

After digestion has taken place, the pyloric muscle relaxes slightly and allows the more liquid parts of the food to pass through into the duodenum part of the small intestine. The larger particles are usually held back until there is a good deal of surplus hydrochloric acid which is not absorbed by the food. This produces a reflex nervous impulse to open the pylorus, allowing all of the food to pass through into the duodenum.

When the duodenum feels the food passing into it from the stomach, an impulse is sent to the liver, gall bladder and pancreas, and their yellowish green liquid mixture is formed and emptied into the stomach, this assists in breaking up the fat globules, producing a kind of soap, and it also acts as a

what do you think I brought my plug hat with me for if I wasn't," he retorted. One of my favorite commentaries concerning Manhattan is the classic line credited to an unknown downtown-outer: "Thank God, here's a place a fellow can starve to death without being disturbed."

In one of the prominent actors' clubs the other night sat a very disconsolate looking young actor. His head was buried in his hands and misery was stamped upon every feature. "What's the matter with him?" someone inquired. "Oh," replied Will Pennington, the big scenery and stage set man, "his wife left him and he's taken it to heart." Consensus of critical opinion gives the laurels of the best dramas of the Broadway season to "Strange Interlude," "Coquette," "Escape," "Folpone," "The Royal Family," "Porgy," "Papa Boudin," "Twelve Thousand" and "Marco Millions." Question—K. W. writes: "When changing from high-heeled slippers into low-heeled ones I seem to have a cramp in my foot and just before I get into the low-heeled slippers my foot seems to snap like when you try 'finger-breaking.' Can you tell me what causes this, and what to do about it?" Answer: The change from high-heeled slippers to low-heeled ones must be made gradually. The unnatural position of the foot in a high-heeled shoe changes the positions of the bones of the foot, and it takes some time before they will return to their normal shape after such a shoe has been continually worn. The "cracking" is due to the bones or ligaments slipping into position.

Question—Mrs. S. L. asks: "with what foods may cheese be combined, and what particular kind of cheese do you think . . . ?" Answer: The best way to use cheese is to make it the protein part of a meal, serving with it, plenty of green vegetables, both cooked and raw. It also combines well with pineapple. No starches should be used with this meal. "Fresh homemade cottage cheese is the most wholesome."

Question—J. F. writes: "My right hand and arm sleep so much I can hardly do any writing. What do you think is the cause of it? I am 63 years old, and had it a few years when I was about 49, but it left me. Please tell me who to do." Answer: The numbness in your right arm is due to poor circulation and this in turn may be caused by pressure on the nerves which go from the spine to the arm. A chiropractor or osteopath may be able to help you in one or two treatments.

WASHINGTON LETTER

By RODNEY DUTCHER
 Washington, June 5.—Stories having been written about what the Senate looked like in all-night filibuster session, one suspects it may also be interesting to describe its appearance in the daytime, toward the close of the session. Anyway, there are always plenty of tourists in the gallery who seem to consider the spectacle worth looking at.

Senator William Cabell Bruce is speaking as your correspondent, in the role of tourist, enters the press gallery. Senator Bruce doesn't exactly speak. He sputters, with a pause between every two or three words. It is as if he feels that having lost valuable time on each pause it's up to him to get out the next couple words rapidly to make up.

As usual, he wears a bat-wing collar with a dark gray suit. A stocky man, with gray mustache and gold specs. A most pleasant person, off the floor and unusually learned.

One's eye soon spots Tom Herlin of Alabama because Tom is wearing a yellow cream summer suit, with yellow shoes. The other day, after one of his daily anti-Catholic speeches, a correspondent wrote that he had appeared wearing the papal colors with his face a cardinal red. He seems sunburned. Big flat black bow tie, nose glasses on a long snooting and a Masonic emblem are part of his makeup. His desk is piled a foot high with letters and papers.

Toward the rear is another notable, Cole, Blaise, sometimes called Coal Blaze, of South Carolina, who always wears a pearl gray suit, matching his hair, mustache and bow tie. His creamy shirt shows to his belt line.

Jim Reed of Missouri, listening to Bruce attack his Mississippi barge proposals, sits cross-legged, wedged back into a corner of his chair and an arm over the back of it. Rather sad and serious, Jim looks. Beneath his silvery hair are his ruddy face, a baby blue tie and shirt of like color, but a white soft collar. As usual, he wears gray tweed suit—ant chews tobacco.

Sensors Swanson and Glass of Virginia sit side by side, chinning Swanson, with gold-rimmed nose glasses, large watch chain across his tummy drooping and a pair of tachios resembles a middle-aged horse doctor. He has reputation among his brethren of knowing more about what's going on and what's coming off than any other man on Capitol Hill. Glass, who acts, looks and talks like a peppery little gamecock, is nearly always dressed in black. His hair is white. His face always indicates pain except when he chuckles.

Transferring attention from the Democratic to the Republican side, one notices a number of bald heads en route. None of them extraordinary distinguished heads. Just senators—Fess, Shortridge, Hayden, Harris and Metcalf. Freddie Hale of Maine is losing his hair, one observes, but still has some.

Capper of Kansas is gliding about, thin almost to the point of emaciation, but with a youthful expression which goes with a large capacity for work.

Most senators appear to be wearing various shades of gray. The nattiest are in blue serge or worsted.

Dorah never looks natty. Always refuses to wear a vest, unless he leaves it unbuttoned. Absence of any belt in sight indicates suspensives concealed. There's room for argument whether he bears most resemblance to a lion or a bulldog. Like President Coolidge, he puts on tortoise-shell glasses when reading. His hair, parted in the middle, is getting a little scarce along the dividing line.

Curtis of Kansas, Republican floor leader, dressed as usual in black coat and dark gray trousers, hovers in the center aisle, toying ceaselessly with a pencil. His hands are always in the same position.

Hiram Johnson of California, the Boulder Dam hero, is dressed up, refusing to abandon the starched collar. In appearance Johnson resembles an old woman, but the resemblance ends there; he's a grand fighter. His hair is parted in the middle, gray in front and black in the rear. His specs are gold-rimmed.

Little old Furnifold Simmons of North Carolina, well along in his seventies, arises to give some important information. He looks like a cartoonist's conception of "the people," washed out, not quite moth-eaten but wistful. His voice is low and becomes, shrill when raised, but everyone listens to it with respect. Little Furnifold is an able man and his record entitles him to all the respect he gets.

Dave Reed of Pennsylvania, forever slouched in his chair as if in the depths of dejection, scratches his head. Wears a blue serge suit.

So does George Higgins Moses of New Hampshire, the square-jawed New England spinner type but, like Johnson, a good fighter. Way in the rear sprawls young Bob LaFollette, likely to be the youth of the Senate for some time. Nearly always he has on a little bow tie.

Philips of Colorado, in the key seat nearest the chair, sometimes known as the "hoodoo" seat because its previous occupants died before relinquishing it, resembles a handsome but modest cake. He is forever turning pages of something.

So is the ancient octogenarian, Warren of Wyoming, who still has plenty of snow white hair and mustache.

OUR TREES

THE TREE OF CHEER.

The Chinese consider the fir a symbol of longevity. In northern Europe it stands for peace and good cheer and is consecrated to the Christ Child, for this reason taking a prominent part in the Christmas festivities.

Perhaps the best loved fir in the United States is the white or balsam fir, which grows in the Rocky Mountains and coast ranges at high elevations. It is beautiful with bluish-green foliage and a silvery under-surface. The camper loves to make his bed of the elastic, fragrant balsam boughs, and its needles make the prized "balsam" pillows which retain their fragrance for years.

The most important commercial specials of white fir grows from Colorado west to Oregon and California, south to New Mexico and Arizona. The wood is extensively used for butter-tubs and packing boxes and supplies a considerable amount of lumber used locally.

The bark is dotted with little blisters or reservoirs filled with resin. These are drained and furnish the market with "Canada balsam."

This species of white fir is sometimes known as silver fir, deriving the name from the color of the under side of its foliage and from the gray bark of its branches. It is also known as California white fir, white balsam, Colorado white fir and balsam tree.

Sour Stomach
 "Phillips Milk of Magnesia"
 Better than Soda

Instead of soda hereafter take a little "Phillips Milk of Magnesia" in water any time for indigestion or sour, acid, gassy stomach, and relief will come instantly.

For fifty years genuine "Phillips Milk of Magnesia" has been prescribed by physicians because it overcomes three times as much acid in the stomach as a saturated solution of bicarbonate of soda, leaving the stomach sweet and free from all gases. It neutralizes acid fermentations in the bowels and gently urges the souring waste from the system without purging. Besides, it is more pleasant to take than soda. Insist upon "Phillips." Twenty-five cent and fifty cent bottles, any drugstore. "Milk of Magnesia" has been the U. S. Registered Trade Mark of The Charles E. Phillips Chemical Co. and its predecessor Charles E. Phillips since 1875.—Adv.

When A Girl Loves

© 1928 by NEA Service

by RUTH DEWEY GROVES

THIS HAS HAPPENED VIRGINIA BREWSTER, upon losing both father and wealth, consents to marry her father's enemy...

There was no effort on his part to persuade her to do anything against her wishes. Marriage was not even mentioned.

VIRGINIA awoke the next morning after a restful sleep following a perfect evening with Nathaniel. It wasn't quite perfect, of course, for there was always the shadow of Frederick Dean's monstrous bargain hanging over her.

For a moment Virginia lay yawning drowsily and half consciously waiting for the entrance of her maid to tell her the bath was prepared. Then her eye caught a glimpse of the sheet she had tossed away from her silk-clad body and she sat up, wide awake in an instant.

Virginia was taken by surprise. "In earnest?" she repeated wonderingly. "Why, of course I am. It is necessary for me to earn a living. Mrs. Phelps," she added gratefully.

Virginia was told to come up right away. After a few minutes more with Mrs. Phelps, during which she received some helpful hints, she took a cab to the towering apartment building that sheltered the German family.

"But if she is not interested in society, as you say, what would her social affairs be?"

"It is only my opinion, but I should say she will want to play the grand dame among her acquaintances. There will never be any occasion, I am sure, for you to come in contact with your former friends through her."

"The salary is excellent. They will be generous, I believe, but of course it is doubtful if you will find their company endurable."

"What's your name?" he asked, not at all impersonally. Virginia told him and when he had gone to announce her she surveyed the foyer in which she had been left to wait with amused engagement.

"LOVE INSANITIES" The insanities of love manifest themselves more than any other form. THE DEAD LINE Another human being was "raised from the dead" by modern science the other day. Little 5-year-old Marion Norton of Lansing, Mich., was restored to life by adrenal injections five minutes after her heart stopped beating and she was pronounced dead.

Women suffered in childbirth needlessly for years because one school of thought opposed anesthetics by saying, "such suffering was meant to be, it's wrong to tamper with God's ways."

GAS BUGGIES-Disorder in the Ranks

AND NOW THAT WE HAVE COMPLETED THE DETAILS OF ORGANIZING OUR NEW AUTO POLISH COMPANY, WE MAY AS WELL WORK OUT THE POLICIES WE INTEND TO PRACTISE.

THERE MUST BE SOMEONE ELSE I'M SURE I'VE DONE NOTHING TO OFFEND YOU. NO, SOMEONE ELSE HAS ENTERED HER LIFE SINCE THAT NIGHT SHE WAS SO INTERESTED IN ME... AND MY BUSINESS, WHO CAN IT BE?

WHY DIDN'T I THINK OF HIM BEFORE! HE'S THE ONE WHO HAS PASSED UPON ME AGAINST... THAT LOOK, WOULD-BE SHEIK OF A HAIRDRESSER...

I REMEMBER NOW HOW SHE RAVED OVER THE WAY HE CUT HER HAIR. MY BLOOD RUNS HOT WHEN I THINK OF HIM. HIS HANDS TOUCHING HER BEAUTIFUL HAIR, THAT OILY EEL... HE'S THE ONE, AND NO MISTAKE...

SAY... WHAT WAS THE IDEA OF LAYING BACK AND LETTING ME DO ALL THE WORK... HEY... SNAP OUT OF IT...

A model of a Roman man-of-war is sketched here. From the ninth to the fifteenth century, this type was common on the Mediterranean.

Rome built huge ships with luxurious deck houses, bronze baths, marbled rooms, libraries decorated with mosaics and wonderful statuary.

SENSE and NONSENSE

In the course of a trial it became necessary to establish the date of certain events with relation to the age of the witness on the stand—a very dark colored woman.

The old negro preacher was introduced a white preacher. The white preacher had offered to preach a sermon for the colored brother, and introducing the white preacher the old negro could not find enough adjectives with which to praise the visitor.

"Ah heah yo' wife done presented yo' wid twins!" ejaculated Mr. Johnson on meeting a friend on the street.

A negro was being questioned during an investigation after a trespasser was killed when he fell from a freight train.

Liza, the negro cook, answered the telephone one morning, and a cheerful voice inquired, "What number is this?"

Consolation. "Well, Mrs. Johnson," a colored physician announced, after taking her husband's temperature.

LETTER GOLF

Here seems like an excellent chance to beat par on the letter golf course. Can you go from GOLF to CLUB in less than eight strokes? If so, you'll beat the solution on another page:

THE RULES 1-The idea of letter golf is to change one word to another and do it in par, a given number of strokes.

 Let ICE Make your Meals A Delightful Success

EVERY meal in the day from breakfast to dinner demands its full quota of ice to make it a tasty and appetizing success. The early morning grapefruit, orange juice or prunes need ice to give them the zest that helps one start the day off right.

The noon-day salads and relishes must be ice-freshened to dispel afternoon drowsiness. Meats and vegetables for dinner should be kept in the icy depths of a refrigerator until prepared, in order to insure their juicy savor. Fruits served for dessert must be ice-chilled to bring out all their luscious delicacy.

Through the whole day ice must be on duty both winter and summer protecting not only the delicious flavor of food, but its wholesomeness as well. An invaluable safeguard for appetizing meals—at a cost of only a few cents a day!
