

NOBLE GIVES MORE DETAILS OF AIR CRASH

Two of Crew Have Broken Legs—Three Others Start Search of Help.

Rome, June 13.—After several hours of silence another radio message was received from General Umberto Nobile today which revealed for the first time additional details of the disastrous landing of the dirigible Italia on the ice-floes north of Spitzbergen.

The disaster occurred at 10:30 o'clock on the morning of May 25. Nobile stated that a minute or two before that a radio message was received from the Italia and then came silence which was unbroken until operators began to pick up fragmentary messages in the latter part of last week.

The huge airship suddenly grew heavy and crashed to the ground from a height of 1,500 feet in two minutes, Nobile radioed.

The ship's gondola broke up into splinters burying Nobile and six others in the debris. All emerged alive, however, although two of the members of the crew suffered broken legs. Nearly all the supplies and other materials taken aboard the ship were saved.

Luckily, the radio apparatus and instruments for determining their position were also saved by the crew, although it was some time before the radio was repaired so that messages could be transmitted.

Those of the crew who were in the other parts of the dirigible with the tree gas bag as it soared upward after the crash and landed some distance away.

Nobile's latest message also revealed the identities of the three daring members of the crew who started trekking over the ice seeking aid and for whose safety fears are now held.

The commander stated that on the evening of the disaster, the Swedish professor Arvidren and the Italian navy commander Zappi and the Italian sailor Zappi were on the Italia on the 36-mile journey over the hazardous wastes covering six miles a day. Nineteen days have now passed since they left the other named members of the Italia's crew.

EXPLORER'S STORY
Anthony Fiola, noted explorer, now a resident of New York, describes in this article the perilous conditions which the Italia's survivors face far up in the Arctic ice fields. Fiola writes from personal familiarity with the territory where the Italia was wrecked.

By Anthony Fiola
I am very sorry to learn from the last wireless dispatches that Nobile and his crew seem to be in a very difficult position. I had not worried about him before, thinking that with previous polar experience, his men were all equipped for traveling over the ice and that he had sufficient food to show for himself.

It seems, however, that the party is separated on different floes of ice. If that is the case they are in serious trouble.

June probably is the worst month of the twelve to travel in the polar regions on account of the slush and the fog.

Continuous Daylight
Right now, the temperature probably is about freezing, sometimes above and sometimes below, and the sun is up all day.

It was in June that Dr. Nansen and Dr. Johannsen found their greatest difficulty in getting the sleds and the men to wading waist deep in the snow between the rough blocks of jagged ice where they could not use their skills. Fog prevailed the whole month and was extremely unpleasant.

Chicago Marathon Dancers Still At It At 255th. Hour

Chicago, June 13.—Grim-eyed, former colonel of marines, a lean-boned former Pyle Bunloner and a tired boy from Pittsburgh with no other distinction than that he has been out of a job for five months, supporting their three fair but wilted partners more dead than alive, were still snuffling along with their eternal see-saw step, originated in the national dance Marathon, as the endurance test entered its 12th day and 255th hour, today.

From a dancing contest, as it was first advertised, Harry Caplan's great show has developed into a grim battle between flesh and blood and the laws of nature which demand sane rest periods for the human body. There were rumors of civic interference, but the health commissioner and the city's corporation counsel have admitted their helplessness.

BRIDGE MAY SOLVE CROSSING PROBLEM

Selectmen May Propose Elimination of Oakland St. Danger Spot.

The elimination of the Oakland street grade railroad crossing and the construction of a bridge over the tracks at Woodbridge and North Elm streets is nearer than ever before with the expression by several members of Manchester's Board of Selectmen that they would favor such a move on the part of the town.

The fatal accident of Saturday, May 26, when three New York state men lost their lives as their automobile was struck at the crossing by an express train, has renewed discussion of the advisability of doing away with the danger spot entirely.

The plan
The proposition which the Selectmen have discussed is the building of a bridge across the tracks at North Elm street joining that highway with Apol Place, a narrow, but well-thought-out road which leads to Oakland street from the north. The proposed new highway would swing just east of the new coal pockets built by the Manchester Grain and Coal Company and through Apol Place.

With such a bridge connecting Apol Place with North Elm and Woodbridge streets traffic would be easily taken care of and the loss of the Oakland street crossing would scarcely be felt. Engineer J. Frank Bowen of the town highway department, has looked the proposition over and believes that the bridge and new highway plan could be accomplished in a comparatively easy manner.

FARMERS IN ATTEMPT TO CRASH CONVENTION

One Thousand of Them Start Anti-Hoover Demonstration Before Hall.

Convention Hall, Kansas City, June 13.—An embittered crowd of hundreds of anti-Hoover farmers made an unsuccessful attempt to "crash" the Republican national convention today at the hour of assembling.

After staging another protest parade against Hoover's nomination through Kansas City streets to the convention hall, the corn belt representatives demanded admittance, and when barred by the police at the door, tried to carry it by storm.

A tightly formed cordon of police and hastily summoned sergeant-at-arms barred their progress and finally forced them back.

Thousand in Crowd
Observers estimated there were about a thousand farmers in the parade, only the head of which, however, tried the crashing tactics.

The parade was led by Edgar D. Bush, of Salem, Ind., a candidate for lieutenant governor in Indiana. Banned from the hall, the farmers started about in the streets outside. They had a band, which vied with the band inside the convention hall. Just what they could do about it didn't appear clear, but they yelled about. There were several impromptu and fiery curbstone speeches.

LADY LINDY FAILS TO RAISE PLANE

Miss Earhart and Companions Unable to Hop Because of Heavy Load.

Trepassey Bay, N. F., June 13.—Miss Amelia Earhart, of Boston and her two flying companions, made two unsuccessful efforts this morning to hop off in the trans-Atlantic monoplane Friendship for Europe. In the first effort the plane covered three miles and in the second two miles, but failed to rise from the water owing to the heavy weight it carried.

After the second failure the plane was towed to the extreme northeastern part of the harbor where, it was believed, lifting conditions were better.

The weather was clear with a light west wind.
Miss Earhart, Pilot Wilmer Stultz and mechanic Louis Gordon said they were hopeful of getting away before sunset.

HOOVERITES CONTROL CREDENTIAL BOARD

Antis Outnumbered 36 to 15; Plan New Attack on Convention Floor.

Kansas City, June 13.—The anti-Hoover forces counted noses for a new assault upon Hoover's domination of the convention today, when the credentials committee gathered to write its report.

Under the leadership of Judge Daniel O. Hastings, who holds Senator Coleman Du Pont's proxy as a delegate at large from Delaware, the fifteen minority members of the committee undertook to present a dissenting report to the entire convention, thus paving the way for a test of strength before the nomination balloting.

Under the order of the convention, nothing could be done until the credentials reports were disposed of.

Out-numbered 36 to 15 in the credentials committee, in which the Hooverites quickly took control and confirmed the national committee's decisions in seating the Hoover delegates from the contested southern states, the anti-Hoover men consolidated their forces in the minority report enterprise.

An all night recess of the committee afforded opportunity for negotiations between the majority and minority groups, but as the committee assembled half an hour before convention time today the antis still were breathing fire and looking for denunciatory adjectives for a minority report.

HOW DEMOCRATS REGARD HOOVER

Senator Reed, of Missouri, Blames Sen. Vare for the Switch to Hoover.

EDITOR'S NOTE—How do the Democrats regard the impending nomination of Herbert Hoover by the Republicans?

Reed has been a spectator at the maneuvering leading up to the selection of Hoover by the Republicans here in his home city.

EDGE IS LOOMING AS RUNNING MATE

New Jersey Senator and Dawes, Strongest Candidates in Field Today.

Kansas City, June 13.—With the selection of Herbert Hoover as the Republican party's presidential nominee a certainty, a wild scramble got under way today for the vice-presidential nomination.

One man stood out from the crowd, Sen. Charles Curtis of Kansas, but it was stated on his behalf he would not accept second place on the Republican ticket, after going down to defeat in his drive for the presidential nomination.

His strength came from the desire of eastern Republican leaders, particularly in the New York delegation, to name a mid-western man, friendly to the farmers, as Hoover's running mate.

With Curtis eliminated, Vice-President Charles Dawes, and Senator Walter F. Edge, of New Jersey, were considered to occupy attractive posts in the race for the vice-presidential nomination. Dawes was said to be willing to run with Hoover and to have the tentative endorsement of Secretary of the Treasury Andrew W. Mellon. He was opposed, however, by a large number of Hoover leaders, and there was little sentiment for him in the allied camps, because of his apathy during the recent campaign.

Edge appeared to be in the most favorable spot. He had the solid backing of the New Jersey delegation, the active endorsement of Leaders Have No Fear of Bolt in November—Some Farmers Bitter.

Kansas City, June 13.—Hoover campaign managers have no fear of a farm bolt at the polls in November.

MOSES FLAYS TIGER, CHALLENGES SMITH

Convention Hall, Kansas City, June 13.—A ringing and defiant challenge to the Democrats to "bring on Smith and we will bury him," marked the second session of the Republican national convention today, while beyond the confines of the flag-draped hall the sullen farmers and anti-Hooverites growled and grumbled and predicted dire things in November.

PROGRAM FOR TODAY AT G. O. P. CONVENTION

Kansas City, June 13.—Today's program for Republican national convention:
Meet at 10:30 a. m.
Receives reports from four standing committees, resolutions, credentials, rules and permanent organization.
Election of permanent chairman.

The direct challenge to Smith and the Democrats was sent reverberating through the vast auditorium by Senator George H. Moses of New Hampshire, in his speech accepting the permanent chairmanship of the convention. It was an entertaining departure from the usual cut and dried prepared speeches of convention chairman and it went over big.

Senator Moses, one of the original Hoover men, boldly took cognizance of the "feast" of the assistance of the rebellious corn belt spokesmen and the anti-Hoover leaders.

"We enter this campaign," he declared, "in no posture of defense. We come upon the field aggressive and militant. We intend to carry this fight to the enemy. And we challenge them to bring forth their strongest champion."

108 Round Battle
"Whether he emerged from another spectacle like the one-hundred-and-three round battle of Madison Square Garden, or whether he come from an over-powered opponent held spellbound by the glare of the Tammany Tiger, we are ready for him. Bring him on and we will bury him. We welcome him with hospitable hands to a bloody grave."

"And we care not whether his name be Brown, Jones, Robinson or Smith."
In every line of Senator Moses' speech it was indicated that the Republican leadership now on the ground in Kansas City envies the success of the Democrats in their fight against Smith, and is preparing for it.

Hits Tammany Hall
And the convention chairman provided a peek into the future by savagely attacking Tammany Hall by name, the dampness of Smith, the Democratic disfranchisement of the negro in the south, and Democratic fiscal policies. Graft charges, too, were thrown in.

It was a militant, fighting speech, and calculated to raise the morale of those Republicans which confidence regarding November has been shaken by the bitterness and bickering that has marked the fight between the Hoover people and the coalition for many weeks.

Text of Speech
The text of Senator Moses' speech follows:
"The honor which you have conferred upon me is very great and I thank you for it. The duties which your generous action lays upon me may prove to be difficult; but I hope to be able to perform them satisfactorily."

"We come now to the central and most important tasks for which we are assembled. First, we are to formulate a declaration of principles which will embody the essentials of Republicanism and with which we shall submit our cause to the people."

"Inevitably, in a party thoroughly national in its vision and contact as ours is, there will from time to time arise differences of opinion. This is by no means the first occasion when Republicans have found themselves at odds regarding a question of cardinal consequences as affecting party policy. Heretofore, we have succeeded always in settling our difficulties within our own ranks through that wise spirit of accommodation which must characterize a great and far-flung organization like ours. Upon which depends so much for the advance and prosperity of our country. So it will be now."

"No one can doubt the essential sympathy with which the Republican Party has always looked upon the great and diverse interests which make up the fabric of our national existence. This sympathetic viewpoint has not changed. Agriculture and industry and the social order continue to be the prime objects of our solicitude, and in dealing with them the Republican Party will not shirk its responsibility.

Follow Constitution
"We shall, however, now as always, chart our course within the limits of the Constitution and within the operation of sound economic law."
"Half a century ago the Republican Party stood firm against inflation through an intimidated issue of paper money—and the people stood with us then."
"Generation ago the Republican Party stood firm against a debasement of our currency through the free coinage of silver—and the people stood with us then."
"Less than 10 years ago the Republican Party stood firm against the surrender of our national sovereignty, through minority of membership in a foreign super-state—and the people then stood with us twice by a majority of more than seven millions."
"So we shall stand firm again here and now—and in November the American people will again crown our courage and reward our sincerity in a victory as splendidly triumphant as any which we have ever achieved."

"Upon the platform which we shall thus here construct, we shall place a candidate whose personification fits our principles and the nation's present necessities. We are not barren of presidential timber. However, our choice may fall, we know, it will not rest in unworthy hands and that the leadership we shall here set up will assure the country a Republican ascendancy which will endure for at least eight years more."

"There are at least five million reasons why this must be so—because there are at least five million more Republicans than there are Democrats in this country. These millions united, as we know they will be when this convention has concluded its task, and joined by millions more to whom our candidates and our principles will appeal will overwhelm any and every overwhelming victory at the polls."

No Reason for Distrust
"There is no occasion for the people to distrust our party and there is no occasion for our party to distrust the people. Their sober judgment will rest with us because—"

"In seeking for a foreign policy for the United States we know our people will not turn to the party which conceived and nurtured the League of Nations."

"In seeking for fiscal policy for the United States, we know our people will not turn to the party which advocated rag money and free silver."

"In seeking for an economic policy for the United States, we know our people will not turn to the party which clings to the fetter of free trade."

"In seeking for a policy to make the tariff effective for every interest in the United States, we know our people will not turn to the party whose strength and weakness alike lies in its sectional character."

Talks of Graft
"In seeking for a policy to assure honest administration of the government of the United States we know our people will not turn to the party whose most recent and most outstanding achievement in this year of grace is the revealed gratings of twenty million dollars from a single city."

"In seeking for a policy of law enforcement in the United States, we know our people will not turn to the party which maintains itself in the places of its power through fulfillment of two amendments to the Constitution and which openly flouts a third."

"In seeking for a policy to assure honest elections everywhere in the United States, we know our people will not turn to the party which...

FLOWER SHOW TO OPEN TOMORROW

Will Be Held at Center Church Thursday and Friday.

Center church chapel is being transformed into a scene of great beauty today under the hands of the decorating committee for the Manchester Garden club's spring flower show which opens at 2 o'clock tomorrow and continues through the evening, and Friday from 10 a. m., for the balance of the day. Garden clubs from other towns, Granges, schools, clubs and the general public have been invited to attend through the malls, through the columns of The Herald and out of town papers, and by personal solicitation so that a record attendance at the show is confidently expected.

Mrs. Florence Shearer of the poster committee today announced the winners among the art students at the High school. One of the latter painted the large poster on Center church signboard. Three other pupils of Miss Harriet Condon did such excellent work that the committee awarded prizes to each of them. They are Lena Obrenski, Florence Schiedge and Frances Schultz. Others who received "honorable mention" were Lucille Clarke, Josephine Plessek and Francis Coleman. The posters have been placed in the stores and public buildings.

The local Garden club won third prize in the exhibits by garden clubs from this section of the state, at the Connecticut Horticultural society's show now being held at the old state house in Hartford. Its entry consisted of a gazing globe on a pedestal, the whole surrounded by a circle of turf, and at the base of the pedestal was a beautiful display of purple columbine, striped ribbon grass and huge bright red oriental poppies, grown by members of the club. The exhibit was awarded a slightly location at the entrance to one of the halls in use for the flowers and hot-house plants. It was arranged by L. J. Robertson, general chairman of the show at Center church tomorrow and Friday, and will be set up again here. Mr. Robertson's exhibit of a garden border at the Horticultural show last spring won first prize and added to the library of the club valuable works on gardening.

The Connecticut Valley Garden club, which won first prize, had an unusually attractive display occupying one end of the upper corridor. It consisted of a semi-circular section of greensward, with stepping stones leading to a pool, quantities of evergreens, shrubbery and iris on either side with a background of cedars on either side of the arched window. The whole exhibit is worth making a long trip to see and is attracting throngs from Hartford and surrounding towns.

G. O. P. PLANNING FIGHTING CAMPAIGN

will not turn to the party whose sole title to success has rested upon intimidation and the issue ballot and which now rests upon the obliterated vote of four million American freemen;

"And in seeking for an agency to carry forward the program of the social order in the United States, we know our people do not intend to throw our country within the tender embrace of Tammany Hall."

"We enter this campaign in no posture of defense. We come upon the field aggressively militant. We intend to carry this fight to the enemy. And we challenge them to bring forth their strongest champion. Whether he emerge from another spectacle like the one-hundred and three-round battle of the Madison Square Garden, or whether he come from an over-powered convention held spellbound by the glare of the Tammany tiger, we are ready for him. Bring him on and we will bury him. We welcome him with hospitable hands to a bloody grave."

"And we care not whether his name be Brown, Jones, Robinson or Smith."

Kansas City, June 13—A plank calling for vigorous enforcement of the 18th Amendment was incorporated in the 1928 Republican Platform today by the resolutions subcommittee following an all night session.

Further, the plank pledged the party's nominees to observance and enforcement of the amendment.

Not since constitutional prohibition has been in effect has such a sweeping dry program been adopted by either of the major parties.

The plank was a victory for Sen. Borah of Idaho, who has threatened to carry a fight before the convention and the country if the party straddled on prohibition this year. Its approval by the entire committee, which it must do before being sent to the convention floor, was anticipated.

The plank Law Enforcement:

"We reaffirm the American constitution as announced by George Washington in his farewell address, to wit:

"The Constitution which at any time exists until changed by the explicit and authentic act by the whole people is sacredly obligatory upon all."

"We also reaffirm the attitude of the American people toward the Federal Constitution as declared by Abraham Lincoln:

"We are by both duty and inclination bound to stick by the Constitution in all its letter and spirit from beginning to end. I am not for the slightest amendment into the Constitution of the United States, as our forefathers made it inviolate."

"The people through the method provided by the Constitution have the right to amend the Constitution. The Republican Party pledges itself and its nominees to the observance and vigorous enforcement of this provision of the Constitution."

Sen. Borah reported there were only two dissenting voices on the plank.

Farm Relief
With the adoption of the prohibition program, only the controversial farm relief plank remained before the subcommittee. On that question the 16 members were split wide open. When it was found that no progress was being made on a compromise, the committee recessed at 4 o'clock until 10.

Little trouble was experienced in accepting the other planks in the platform. They were agreed upon substantially as written by Sen. Smoot of Utah, Chairman.

Announcement of the approval of the prohibition plank was made by Borah. Shortly after three o'clock this morning he emerged from the committee room with a sheaf of papers under his arms. His steps were weary, his eyes sunk, but a smile lighted his face.

"Here boys," he told newspapermen who had camped outside the door all night, "here is the prohibition plank." He deposited it on a table and retreated hastily into the room again.

Bitter Fight
Bitter words were exchanged before Borah finally succeeded in obtaining a majority for his plank. Sen. Elect William S. Vane of Pennsylvania, who proposed repeal of the 18th Amendment, led the fight for the Wets.

The scene within the committee room was reminiscent of conventions from time immemorial. The meeting was held in the Chamber of Commerce quarters in the Kansas City Athletic Club.

Unusual precautions were taken by Sen. Smoot to prevent eavesdroppers from overhearing any of the proceedings. No elevators were allowed to stop at the floor, and all doors were locked. The newspapermen were shunted to a landing on the stairway and a guard was stationed nearby to watch them.

As the long night wore on the temper of some of the delegates snapped and angry words were bandied back and forth. As usual the committee room was filled with a smoky haze.

Just before three o'clock, a messenger, armed with a yellow-back, was sent out in quest of food for the members. The delegates are as they worked.

Today's Meeting
A meeting of the entire committee was called for 2 o'clock this afternoon when it is expected the platform will be completed.

The 16 members of the resolutions subcommittee who sweated through the night in drafting the 1928 Republican platform were: Sen. Smoot of Utah, chairman; Sen. Borah of Idaho, Sen. Bingham of Connecticut, C. C. Teague of California, Henry W. Anderson of Virginia, W. W. Barbour of New Jersey, Earle C. Smith of Illinois, Alanson B. Houghton of New York, A. M. Hyde of Missouri, H. H. Clements of Tennessee, William Allen White of Kansas, Sen. Eliot A. Ross of Pennsylvania, J. O. Schafer of Iowa, Sen. Metcalf of Rhode Island, Sen. Odell of Nevada, and J. J. Sullivan of Washington.

Sullivan was elected after he had charged "nobody was on the committee to watch out for the veterans' interests."

J. I. Green of Florida charged favorably to the farmers. The committee was selected by Sen. Smoot of Utah, chairman, and included four of his Senatorial colleagues.

Green's Charge
"It's hand-picked," said Green. "It's a job lot. It is controlled by New Englanders and Easterners. It's packed against the agricultural south and west."

"I've just started to fight about this. In going to carry this fight to the floor and let the delegates decide whether they want their platform written in secret by a hand-picked group."

Sen. Smoot declared that all interested had full opportunity to be heard before the committee and denied there was any favoritism shown to any particular group.

Two other fights will be carried to the committee to the floor. Sen. LaFollette, the Wisconsin Progressive leader, plans to submit the 1929 draft to a minority platform. He will be supported by the likelihood that any of the minority moves will be successful, convention officials declared.

The fight over farm relief broke over the demands of the Illinois and Iowa representatives for a plank embracing the principles of the McNary-Haugen bill, endorsed by all the presidential candidates save Herbert Hoover. Hoover's forces favored a promise of tariff relief to farmers, and an extension of federal aid to assist cooperative marketing. The committee twice tried to break the deadlock but did not succeed. It was agreed that some form of farm relief would be written into the platform before it is submitted to the convention.

A corruption plank sponsored by Borah pledged the party to give publicity to campaign receipts and expenditures. It was designed to cover the election scandals of past years, and to serve as a warning against excessive campaign funds. Every facility will be accorded Congressional committees in running down election expenditures.

The foreign relations plank declared that American marines were in Nicaragua, solely to protect American lives and property and to supervise next fall's elections there. There principle of outlawing war by treaty was endorsed.

The plank urged development of inland waterways. In agreeing upon the platform the committee first considered the proposals in the Smoot draft which drew little objection and left the controversial planks, such as prohibition and farm relief, to the end.

The corruption and farm relief planks, while approved in principle, were held up for minor changes in the phraseology.

HOOPERITES' PLANS
Kansas City, June 13.—Booted and spurred, the Hoover forces climbed into the saddle in the Republican national convention today and prepared to ride down all opposition.

It appeared there are enough ruffled Republican feelings in Kansas City already without incurring more.

There is the raucous grumbling of the disappointed farm element, the sullen resentment of the defeated Allies, and the admitted lukewarmness of some powerful eastern leaders to be met, but with the nomination prize sewed up, the Hoover captains were everywhere in command.

Their wishes will be sought, and probably will prevail, in the only two important tasks that remain in this convention, the adoption of the platform and the selection of a running mate for the Secretary of Commerce.

The last task, the selection of a vice-presidential candidate bids fair to be no easy one.

Daves or Curtis
The two outstanding candidates this morning admittedly were Charles G. Daves and Sen. Charles Curtis, and every hotel in Kansas City harbored other convention delegates observed that "vice presidential candidates are sleeping in all the parks, there are so many of them."

The farmers are insisting that an agriculturist be named; the war veterans are lobbying for an ex-soldier; eastern interests are insisting that somebody be selected whose name and personality would be calculated to offset some of Al Smith's admitted popularity along the wet upper Atlantic seaboard. As for favorite sons, they bloomed in nearly every delegation. New York alone offered four—Ambassador A. E. Houghton, Rep. Hamilton Fish, Assistant Secretary of Treasury Ogden L. Mills and Col. Theodore Roosevelt. That is just one example of the numbers available.

The Hoover leaders themselves have been non-committal thus far. At least they haven't got together on anyone yet.

It is understood they would not object to either Daves or Curtis, but there is some doubt about the attitude of either man.

The Kansas Senator remains in his hotel room, conferring with his friends, and is said to have declared with some heat that he would not have it. However, some of his supporters are counselling him against taking any such stand, pointing out that he is 85 years old, and that 1928 probably offers his last opportunity to go on a national ticket. The Senate offers him no further advancement for he is now

Republican leader of it. Other of his friends are advising him to "have nothing to do with it, but go down fighting for his original objective."

Daves Possibility
The Daves possibility also was beclouded with considerable conflicting advice among the general's supporters. Daves would be satisfactory to many of the easterners, and his work for the McNary-Haugen bill endeared him to many of the middle-westerners. On the other hand, there are many of the vice president's friends. In Kansas City advising against his acceptance of it on the ground of prestige. These point out that General Daves is in the position of having had his subordinate in public life, a Cabinet officer, promoted over his head while his party, in effect, has denied him promotion here at Kansas City.

Thus the argument goes. In the end a compromise may have to be effected and someone like Senator Walter E. Edge of New Jersey, or Rep. John Q. Tilson, Republican leader of the House, chosen. As the convention turned into the second day the situation was muddled.

There have been no withdrawals as yet among the bitterly disappointed Allies, nor will there be, their vehement spokesmen asserted today, despite the seeming certainty that Hoover will be nominated on the first ballot with some 700-odd votes.

Generally, the allied lines have held fast against the lumbering Hoover bandwagon. The accretions to the Hoover standard have been mainly the "draft Coolidge" delegates. But no large allied blocs have yet gone solidly.

Lowden Delegates
The Lowden delegates, which constitute the most numerous opposition block to Hoover in the convention, insisted today they were going down the line for the farmers' candidate. Sen. Curtis' 28 loyal Kansas insisted today they were going to vote for him whether or no, and the 33 anti-Hoover delegates from Indiana remained clust-r under the banners that proclaimed "Water for President."

"Hold the lines fast, and go down fighting," was the slogan of the crushed coalition leaders.

They were united on the slogan, but not upon much else. There was some talk about pooling everything they had and concentrating on some anti-Hoover candidate in a final grand effort to stop the seeming inevitability of Hoover's nomination. But a quick check of the tables of delegate strength convinced them of the hopelessness of the undertaking, and so they fell back upon beaten, non-plussed candidates again.

There the situation rested today as the convention turned into its second session which is slated to open Saturday morning at 10 a. m. The original Hoover man, take over the gavel as permanent chairman.

ULSTER CONSTABULARY HAS A REAL BARONET SERVING IN ITS RANKS

Belfast.—The Royal Ulster Constabulary probably the only police force in the world with a baronet serving in its ranks.

He is Sergeant Sir John Eohlin, who is in charge of the police barracks at Enniskillen, and head of one of the oldest families in Ireland.

He draws $30 a week pay, and apparently is quite content.

The Schlin estates have long been encumbered, and Sir John's great grandfather was probably the last of the family to derive any financial benefit from them.

Wild ancestors, it is stated, dissipated the family fortunes. The fifth and sixth baronets were forced to work as hired help, and the eighth baronet, Sir John's uncle kept an English inn.

Vilma's Face Is Jeanette's Fortune

By DAN THOMAS

Hollywood, Calif.—"She looks just like Vilma."

The speaker was Rod LaRocque. He was looking at some photos of Jeanette Loff, his leading lady. The Vilma he mentioned is Vilma Banky, otherwise known as Mrs. Rod LaRocque.

Rod spoke the truth. There is a striking resemblance between the young beginner in filmdom and Miss Banky, and it is greatly enhanced by the camera.

Jeanette's first "break" in pictures came quite accidentally. She had played in a couple of films without much success and was just about to give up and return to her home in Portland, Ore. She had once earned a living by playing the organ in a Portland theater and knew that she could do the same again.

One day while she was eating lunch alone in a Hollywood cafe, Jeanette was noticed by a woman who was managing several screen players. The woman approached Jeanette and asked if she had ever done any work in pictures. On learning of her experiences, the woman immediately took Miss Loff to Cecil B. DeMille. A long-term contract followed.

Miss Loff is one of the few blonds in Hollywood whose tresses remain uncut. Although she has been in Celluloid only a short time, the actress already has played opposite Rod LaRocque in two films, "Holds 'Em, Yale" and "Love Overnight." She probably will be LaRocque's leading lady for a third production.

Jeanette Loff . . . one of the few blonds in Hollywood whose tresses remain uncut.

9TH DISTRICT PUPILS EXHIBIT HANDIWORK

Show at School Street Rec Draws an Unexpectedly Large Crowd.

An exhibition of the work of the pupils in the Ninth School District was held in the Gym of the School Street Recreation Center last night. Among the articles shown were floor lamps, table lamps, tables, tabarets, medicine cabinets, tool chests, racks, clothes trees and broom racks. The work was all nicely finished and creditable to pupil and instructor.

The girls demonstrated their culinary ability by exhibiting several tables of products they had prepared. The tables looked much like those seen in a pastry shop and contained everything from rolls and muffins to French pastries. The instructors of the cooking department, under instructor Henry H. Miller, had an impressive display of wood work turned out during the past year.

PICK ALL SIZES OF MANNEQUINS FOR PARIS STYLE

Paris.—Every woman will soon see herself as others see her, according to a new scheme of the French dressmakers who intend to have mannequins of every size, shape and form display their chic models in their rue de la Paix and Champs Elysees establishments.

Up to the present time, it has been the general rule to employ only tall, slender, well-built girls to wear the new costumes of every season. Naturally, almost any frock looks well on their adolescent figures, and fat, elderly women looking on were led to believe that they would be transformed by the Parisian creation, only to learn the sad truth, once a fat roll of bills was in the dressmaker's possession.

One of the fashionable dress designers started the ball rolling a few years ago by adding small children from the age of six up to his "collection" of models. They were in the dressmaker's possession, designed for small tots.

Another followed close on his heels with mannequins of forty or fifty years, gray-haired "mothers" but well-formed women who could easily wear any dress made for the younger set.

The new plan of the French dressmakers is to engage models who are by no means perfect, the average woman of the street and the type of woman who comes to buy their frocks. There will be short women who have grown stocky with age and tall, thin, lanky ones who will never grow fat. There will be young women, middle-aged ones and older ones. And they will all have dresses suitable to their forms and years.

"Our task will be much harder," acknowledges one of the most prominent dressmakers, "there is no doubt about that, but we will certainly improve our imaginations."

It is easy enough to create a chef d'oeuvre for a beautiful body; the point is to make even the "ugly duckling" look divine."

"If I were not a Frenchman, I would certainly prefer to be an American," recently declared professor Andre Siegfried, of the Ecole des Politiques et Morales, who has made several visits to the United States.

"I would be a great satisfaction to belong to a nation that provides, invents and creates something new every day."

Although high in his praise for

AMERICAN PROSPERITY AND ITS STANDARD OF LIVING

Professor Siegfried finds many things to criticize in American methods, which, he affirms, France should adapt, but not adopt. He warns against the danger of two great standardization and confesses that he is one of the Frenchmen who does not always like machine-made products.

"The aim of the Frenchman is not always cheap production," says Monsieur Siegfried, "and if in the future the chief consideration in life is quantity, we French are doomed. We are superior when quality is very good and when the price is very high."

"This does not mean that France has not much to learn from America. I think the thing to do is to take you at your best and try to keep up at our best."

Doctor Voronoff is to do some grafting in the Liban, according to plans of the Ministry of Agriculture. This time the grafting will have to do with sheep.

The results of the doctor's work in Algeria on the flocks there have been so satisfactory that credits are being obtained for the opening of experimental stations in the Liban for both sheep and goats.

The hot climate in the Liban has a retardative effect on the animals and it is hoped that Dr. Voronoff will strengthen the race and bring them up to the standards he has already attained in North Africa.

Balon of this town.

Mr. Jarvis saw three years' service with the Second Company, Coast Artillery, of the United States Army, during which he was stationed at Fort Wright, Fisher's Island, and in Panama. He had been a member of the Howitzer Company for two years.

TO CONTINUE HALL AS BOARDING PLACE

Teachers' Hall to Be Conducted by Cheney Brothers—Rates Increased.

Teacher's Hall will be continued as a general boarding house, it was announced today by Cheney Brothers. The house, located on Main street just south of the High school, will be open to the general public and it will be managed by the service department of Cheney Brothers.

Discontinuance of the hall as a residence for teachers was announced by the Ninth District school committee on May 31. It was at first thought that the idea of a general boarding house there would also be abandoned, but Cheney Brothers today decided to continue service at the hall.

Rates Increase Mrs. Olive Hayward, who has been matron of Teachers' Hall for a long period, will continue, it was said. There are accommodations at the hall for seventy persons. Rates will vary in accordance with the size and location of the rooms, but a general increase over the old rates of 50 cents a week has been decided upon.

This decision to open the hall as a general boarding house puts the building again to the use originally intended for it. At the time of its construction by Lewis Taylor, a leading contractor in town at the time, it was built for a hotel or boarding house. When Cheney Brothers took it over in 1869 it was maintained exclusively for the use of school teachers.

Accused of Slaying Miss Marguerite Stewart, School Teacher; Faces Chair. Cambridge, Mass., June 13—Frederick Hinman Knowlton, Jr., young Framingham business man and father, early today was found guilty of first degree murder for the slaying of Miss Marguerite Isabelle Stewart, instructor at the Beverly School for Deaf and Dumb. A Middlesex county jury brought in a verdict after six hours and fifteen minutes deliberation. With hand upraised, Knowlton heard the verdict. His face became white. He dropped his hand to the railing of the prisoner's dock and began to stare in a vacant manner straight ahead. The penalty for first degree murder in Massachusetts is death in the electric chair.

PEOPLE'S NOMINEE

At this writing there appears to be no shadow of doubt of the nomination of Herbert Hoover as the Republican candidate for the Presidency, probably on the first ballot, which will be taken, according to the program, tomorrow.

Despite reports that Connecticut's delegation would be found insisting on the drafting of President Coolidge, even though alone in doing so, it is altogether unlikely that the members of that delegation will permit themselves to be dragged or cajoled into any such nonsensical action. In her place high up on the roll call of states, Connecticut will respond by casting her seventeen votes for the secretary of commerce—and that will mark the finish of the long and stubborn fight of a very small minority in the party to withhold the nomination from the man most desired by the rank and file of its voters.

By making this nomination the Republican party will have insured itself of victory in November. By making any other nomination possible to make the party would have courted a contest the result of which could not have been foretold with any certainty. Which is another way of saying that the pressure of a great volume of public opinion, of mass political thought, has overcome and totally submerged the influence of that very small group of arrangement makers who, for special reasons of their own, would have preferred some one else to Hoover for President—and has insured victory where that minority courted risk.

Here is a nomination made by the rank and file of the Republican party, aided by the great majority of Republican newspapers—as far away as noon and midnight from the dreaded "two o'clock in the morning" decision of a handful of bosses.

As an expression of the considered will of the voting members of a great political party the nomination of Herbert Hoover will deserve a monumental place in history.

"KEYNOTING"

Frankly, we are not often—never, for that matter—impressed by "keynote speeches" made at national political conventions. We don't know why there should be keynote speeches. They commit the party to nothing, they do not constitute a real political asset in any event, and they do, on the other hand, run the risk of being converted into a liability, if by any chance they become definite enough to give the opposition a finger-hold, and compel the party's orators later to explain and apologize for them.

Senator Fess' keynote speech at Kansas City was a nice speech. It complied with the formula by asserting, as everybody knew it would, that the country's prosperity is due to Republican government, it sympathized graciously with the farmers, it crowded properly over America's philanthropies abroad and was well calculated to make the convention delegates pleased with themselves and their party, if they had listened to it—which it was too long to do.

But when Senator Fess tackled prohibition it was like one of those scenes in an old-fashioned spectacular play which used to be conducted behind half a dozen gauze screens. Only in the plays they used to hoist the screens away, one at a time, and let you see the nymphs and the mermaids unveiled, whereas Senator Fess kept the veils up all the time. He talked about human conservation and self-preservation, but he never mentioned the eighteenth amendment or Volsteadism or anything else with a handle to it.

Yet who could have done any better? If he had been outspoken he would have been mobbed, no doubt. If he had not even this closely approached the big question he would have been roasted. "Keynote speeches" are archaic. They make no votes; they give the

(137) The School for Feeble-Minded.

The Mansfield Training School and Hospital at Mansfield is maintained by the state for feeble-minded epileptics. Prior to July 1, 1917, the feeble-minded were cared for at the Connecticut School for Imbeciles at Lakeville, a private organization which received state appropriations for maintenance and necessary additions, and epileptics received instruction at the Connecticut College for Epileptics at Mansfield. The Lakeville school was merged with the Mansfield school on July 1, 1917, the institution since being known as the Mansfield State Training School and Hospital.

The institution with a normal capacity of around 800, last year had present a daily average of 726 inmates. The average number of attendants employed last year was 200. The number of epileptics in the institution is about 20-25% of the feeble-minded.

Last year $412,817 was spent in maintaining the institution. $194,646 went for salaries, wages and labor, and $61,910 for food. About $100,000 was expended for new buildings, enlargement and alteration of existing buildings and additional equipment. Receipts from board for the year to apply on maintenance costs amounted to $38,638. Miscellaneous receipts totaled $2,209. The average per capita cost of inmates per week was $13.16. The property of the school is valued at $1,571,992.

other side something to sneer at. And once in a while somebody makes a terrible break in one of them. But not a Fess—no, never a Fess! He did no harm and he probably did no good.

TIMELY SPEECH

It may be early, but perhaps not too early, to speculate on certain aspects of the Hoover administration to come. And there is one point in which there is reason to anticipate the Hoover administration will provide a refreshing contrast to the Coolidge administration. Mr. Hoover is not likely to regard it as obligatory upon him to conduct himself after the manner of the Sphinx.

The secretary of commerce has had much broader experience of men and the ways of the world than Mr. Coolidge had had when he entered the White House. He has encountered many situations of the greatest difficulty which he had to solve by making the clearest and most comprehensive verbal demonstrations. Those who worked with him in Europe during the war have testified to the fluency and amazing adequacy of his argumentation. It is characteristic of him that when he gets through developing any subject in which he is interested there is nothing left to be said. Mr. Hoover does not talk idly or loosely, but he knows how to use language for the conveyance of ideas, and he has no timidity about employing that gift to the full.

If, or rather when, Herbert Hoover has been elected President and has served his term and the question of his re-election comes up, and if he then undertakes to communicate his wishes in the matter to the nation by the spoken word, it is to be taken for granted that there will be neither ambiguity in what he says nor any possible opportunity in it for any human being to be in doubt as to his meaning.

There is, of course, a certain majesty in vast and impressive silences but there is often more of practical utility in a few well chosen words. This is true particularly of Presidents of the United States in those crises where Presidential leadership becomes necessary. Mr. Hoover's record for clarity of expression is such as to warrant the belief that if, or rather when, he becomes President, the people of this country will not waste a single moment, let alone many millions of such moments, guessing at what he means.

THE FARM BELT

We confess to a lively interest in the survey of the political strength of the Corn Belt evolved by an editorial writer of the New York World, who concludes that the "agrarian revolt" in the Republican party, which is so often threatened and which never amounts to anything, never will amount to anything simply because the Corn and Wheat Belt hasn't got votes enough.

The real political alignment of the voters in the United States, the World points out, are best exhibited by the Congressional districts. There are 433 Congressional districts in the United States, of which a little more than half, about 240, are genuinely rural. The rest of the districts are in big cities or small cities and towns. Of the 240 rural districts about sixty-five are in the solid South, about fifty-five are in Pennsylvania, New York and New England, about six are on the Pacific Coast and about twenty-one are in the Rocky Mountains and great plains. This leaves about ninety to ninety-five districts in the Corn and Wheat Belt which are genuinely rural.

The real political weakness of the agrarians is even greater than these figures indicate, the World continues. In the very regions where they predominate, that is to say, in the Dakotas, Nebraska, Kansas, Iowa, Illinois, Indiana and Ohio, their ninety-odd rural districts are matched by at least sixty-five urban districts. Therefore, even in the region where the disoriented farmers are in a majority they are by no means in control.

On our own, we feel impelled to add to these deductions of the World another reason why the Western farmers don't bolt the Republican party on such issues as the McNary-Haugen bill. They generally come to the conclusion, between convention time and election day, that what matters most of all to them is the continued industrial prosperity of the country and the continued ability of the thickly populated East to buy their products. Which shows sense.

GOVERNOR WALCOTT

It within the next few days there should fortuitously arise some dire emergency calling for the exercise of the full power of the governor of the state of Connecticut in the protection of the populace or the vital interests of the commonwealth, in the absence of Governor Trumbull and Lieutenant Governor Brainard, the people of the state would have reason to be profoundly grateful that the responsibility would rest on shoulders so well prepared to bear it as those of Frederick Collin Walcott, president pro tempore of the Senate.

Acting Governor Walcott may be somewhat less well known to some of the people of the state than some of its other public men, but Connecticut has very few able citizens and none whose interest in its welfare is more profound nor who are acted with broader vision. The acting governorship is well within the capacities of Senator Walcott—and we don't mind saying that in the fullness of time we should like to see the Norfolk man take over the duties of the office as a regular job.

FRANCE AND GERMANY FORGETTING OLD SCORES IN STUDENT EXCHANGE

Paris—That the war is fast being forgotten, is shown by the number of French and German students who are planning to exchange their respective homes for the summer holidays.

The Committee of International Exchanges has already received two hundred and fifty applications from French students, twice the total number of the summer of 1927 and it is expected that, before the lists are completed in two months, there will be an entirely new story to tell.

Germans are showing even greater desire to come to France, five hundred of them already shown on the lists.

Many of the names of the students never appear in the hands of the Committee, for having found favorable conditions, the students continue to write each other and arrange their own exchanges when the vacation time comes.

Permanent Linoleum Floors

Did you ever know that the boards in your wood floor swell and shrink as the temperature changes and the seasons come and go? Warm, damp weather expands each board, closing the spaces between. Cold, dry weather dries the boards again, opening up those spaces.

When your linoleum is tacked directly to the wood there is always the danger that this gradual movement of the boards will cause it to crack, buckle and open up at the seams.

The modern Watkins way to lay linoleum is to cement it over a layer of builders' heavy deadening felt. This felt takes up all expansion and contraction of the wood underfoot. It makes your linoleum floor, warmer, silent and more resilient.

The Watkins Way of laying linoleum means longer life and better service from your floor. Ask about it when you call to inspect our Armstrong's linoleum display.

THE FRAMEWORK OF THE BODY

The main difference in the appearance of people is produced by the shape of their bodily framework. If the bones were removed from a person's body, the flesh would fall into a shapeless mass very much as a tent falls down when the poles which support it are removed.

During infancy and childhood the bones are flexible and easily bent. As a child becomes older, the cartilage out of which the bones are first formed becomes filled with a lime substance and thereby becomes hard and brittle. After this hardening has occurred, it is exceedingly difficult to change the shape of the bones without breaking them. For this reason, babies and children often sustain falls without serious injury which would completely disable an adult.

The positions of the body are controlled by the muscles which move the bones. It has been found that many children develop slight curvature of the spine from carrying their books habitually with the same arm, or from sitting at desks that are either too high or too low. The clothing of children may likewise interfere with the proper development of the bones. This is sometimes caused by tight belts, tight hats and tight shoes. We all remember seeing pictures of Chinese women who had their feet bound as babies.

Special care should be taken that children form the habit of carrying their bodies erect while the bones are hardening. The shape of these bones may be altered to some extent until about the age of twenty-five.

When a bone is broken, the broken ends are soon covered with a jelly-like cement. In a few days this begins to harden, and it is very important that the broken bone be held in its correct position until this hardening process has been completed. A physician should be called to set the broken bone. If it is necessary to move the individual before the physician arrives, a pillow or blanket should be tied around the limb, and then boards or canvas tied around the outside to keep it straight. If this is not done, there is danger of the powerful muscles pulling the two ends of the bone past each other, ripping through the muscles, blood vessels and nerves which surround it, and making a very serious, complicated fracture which is difficult to heal.

When the bones slip out of their sockets we have a dislocation. In some people, these joint sockets are very shallow, and the bones may be dislocated without breaking the ligaments. With most people, some of the ligaments are torn at the time of dislocation, inducing a very painful joint. A dislocated bone must be put back into its place and kept there until the ligaments are firmly re-established. In some joints, such as the finger, it is possible for the average person to stretch the joint and allow it to slip back into its proper place, but usually a physician should set the more important joints.

In sprains, some of the ligaments or fibres are broken or torn loose. Both dislocated and sprained joints should be bathed in either hot or cold water or, better still, in hot and cold water alternately. This keeps down the swelling and reduces the pain.

A dislocated or sprained joint should not be kept entirely at rest. Lightly exercising it, even though painful, keeps up a good circulation through the part; and this carries away the congested blood and dead tissue, hastening the healing process.

Once a dislocation has taken place, it is very easy for that joint to slip out of its normal position again.

Questions and Answers
 Question: H. V. writes: "I have a friend who, three years ago, was in a sanitarium for tuberculosis. She has been home for three years and is a frequent visitor in my home. She has a habit of kissing my children. She claims she is cured, but do you think there is danger to the children or to myself in having this lady visit us?"

Answer: Authorities now claim that only one out of one hundred is susceptible to tuberculosis through kissing. As ten out of every hundred deaths are from tuberculosis, it is apparent that there is some other more important cause. Keep your children strong and healthy by proper care, and they need not fear infection from any source.

Question: Mrs. D. H. J. asks: "Are onions, kidneys and liver harmful foods? If not, what is the particular usefulness of each?"

Answer: The onions are too gassy, and kidneys and liver have their best use while in the living body of the animal.
 Question: Constant Reader asks: "What causes a young man to take cold so easily, and to be troubled with boils, tonsils and adenoids removed a year ago. Has a good appetite, sleeps well, but does not gain weight and always has pale yellow color. If this means a rundown condition, what tonic would be advisable?"

Answer: Do not depend upon the removal of tonsils and adenoids to cure boils. The toxic cause of the boils and the enlarged tonsils is the same. The yellow color will disappear as soon as the blood stream is thoroughly cleansed of waste matter. A bodily house-cleaning is what this young man needs, and not a "tonic." I will be glad to send an article called "A Cleansing Diet" if you will send a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

DIAMOND CRAZE HITS AMERICA SUPPLY IN EUROPE IS TOO SMALL

London.—That a diamond craze has apparently seized America is the belief of London dealers, who are unable to compete with the enormous and unprecedented demand for these precious stones from the United States.

During the past three months the demand for fine-quality rough stones has by far exceeded the supply not only in England but in Amsterdam and Antwerp.

A diamond syndicate, consisting of S. B. Joel, the Anglo-American Corporation, and De Beers, has completely disposed of its stock which about eighteen months ago was worth roughly $35,000,000.

In February, America imported from Amsterdam the record quantity of 14,811 carats of cut diamonds, valued at $1,500,000. America is absorbing eight per cent of the world's output, and is credited with possessing 10,000,000 carats.

A baby alrship that can be folded up when not wanted, or attached to a mooring mast brought along on a lorry, is due to fly from England to America this summer. It will carry 30 people in addition to a crew of six to ten men.

IN NEW YORK

New York, June 13.—Recently society was startled a bit by seeing the names and pictures of some quite "important people" connected with a cigarette advertising stunt.

It seemed that certain prominent ladies were engaged to distinguish one cigarette from another while blindfolded. The gossip now is that they were given $1000 each for the use of their names, and the money was donated to a certain charity.

It is quite the thing for socially prominent young sub-debs to pose for various department store ads, turning the money thus received over to some orphanage, hospital or welfare work. However, there are a few who, due to sudden reverses, actually need ready money and to whom a hundred dollars here and there is a windfall.

More than one young woman has to play a hand-to-mouth game to keep up the eternal social pretension that is part of the accepted routine.

The noisiest point in New York, say those experts who make their main the intersection of 34th Street and Sixth Avenue. To the average stranger, Fifth Avenue or a Broadway intersection has a wider reputation for confusion—as it has for the average New Yorker.

At 34th Street and Sixth Avenue, however, Broadway converges, as it leaves behind the modest shops and money belt and becomes the Great White Way. Above roars the elevated and below jams the traffic of three highways.

There are now two movie theaters in Manhattan that open at 6 o'clock in the morning. And, within the past few weeks, two Broadway palaces started 9 o'clock shows. These are patronized largely by the jobless, who want to kill time. Or by night workers who want a little diversion before going home to bed.

Notes in Passing—The old horse market on East 24th Street has at last been sold. . . . And thus passes the most rural of Manhattan odd spots. . . . And they are going to tear down the Jefferson Market prison, most colorful of New York's public buildings. . . . With its turrets, its red brick clock tower, its mosaics, stained glass windows and medieval architecture, it was a breath of another world and another time set refreshingly in the midst of standardization. . . . It has been used as a woman's night court and jail. . . . And here, dramas. . . . Ah, well, there's still a grand old weather vane atop the Wendell mansion barn on Fifth Avenue; there's the picturesque old hoist atop the 55th Street theater and the youngsters in overalls who gallop on an ancient horse ahead of trains.

The vogue for red-haired gals this season. . . . And the new make-up, whatever they call it, that the girls are using on their lower lids to make them "interesting." . . . And those hordes of young things who are now fixing their hair a la Greta Garbo. . . . They tell me of a "Garbo Club" where all the young things have that sort of hair. . . . Whatever became of the very boyish bob?

With the movies going in more and more for the spoken word, voice culture teachers are experiencing a sudden rush. While the scores of young women who have had minor roles in grand opera are camping on the movie doorsteps, hoping that their chance will come now, I met three Metropolitan performers in one film executive's waiting room the other morning.

One of the rising jobs in the cinema world, I am told, soon will be "ghosting" for the voice of a star who photographs well but who enunciates none too well.

EMPLOYMENT FIGURES FOR CONNECTICUT

Hartford, June 13.—Connecticut's free employment bureaus had 5,216 applications for work during the month of May and supplied work to 3,639, or 69.7 per cent as compared with 63 per cent in April. Women fared better than men. Out of 3,037 applications from males

1,928, or 63.4 per cent were filled successfully while out of 2,179 applications from females 1,711 or 78.5 per cent were filled with success. Stamford appears on the employment list for the first time. That office had applications from 199 men and 114 women, a total of 313, and gave work to 125 men and 71 women, a total of 196. Norwich had applications from 640 men and 124 women, a total of 663, and gave work to 159 men and 64 women, a total of 223. Waterbury took care of 414 men and 521 women applicants, a total of 935, by giving work to 244 men and 405 women, a total of 649. LADY AZGAPETIAN STIRS AUDIENCE

Deeply Impresses Smallish Dinner Party for Near East Relief.

There were a good many vacant places at the Near East Relief committee's dinner at the South Methodist church last evening. Arrangements had been made for a hundred guests. About sixty persons were present. The speakers were Herbert L. Willett, Jr., head of the national Speakers Bureau for the Near East Relief; Captain Yarrow, head of the Near East drive in Connecticut; and Lady Anne Azgapetian, formerly of the Imperial Russian Red Cross in the Army of the Caucasus. Rev. R. A. Colpitts, pastor of the South Methodist church, introduced the speakers.

Mr. Willett and Captain Yarrow both proved to be pleasing and interesting speakers and they were largely on the moral obligation they said America has assumed in the Near East and the need for her to carry on. They spoke of the generosity that is America's heritage, the pride that is America's in the work accomplished. They emphasized "Americanism," praised the audience for the support it had already given and then told of the need for the continuance of the work. The conditions they described were pathetic but neither apparently succeeded in arousing his hearers to any great degree of enthusiasm.

Then Lady Anne Azgapetian, clad in her uniform of the Russian Red Cross, arose. In a low, well modulated voice she told of her personal experiences in the Near East. With tears in her eyes, as if almost seemed as though she were reliving the horrors she had witnessed during the war, it appeared that she would not be able to finish her speech. At times her voice broke under the stress of emotion as she described the massacres of her people, the breaking up of their homes and their scattering throughout foreign lands, the agony of months spent in bread lines. It was an intensely dramatic performance. The silence in the hall was almost oppressive.

Lady Anne urged the need of America continuing her work and told of their appreciation of the work already done for her people. Her plea for aid was generously responded to. The dinner consisted of scalloped potatoes, baked ham, cold slaw, rolls, strawberry shortcake and coffee. The High School orchestra furnished music.

Miami, Fla., The citrus crop of south Florida which was actually a bumper crop last year, although somewhat dry due to the protracted drought, probably will be one of the best Florida has enjoyed in years. The rainfall for the month of May was well over normal and there is no immediate indication of another dry spell, according to the weather bureau. The rainfall of the past weeks broke a drought of 20 months.

At 7:30 the regular church service was held and Rev. Truman H. Woodward gave a lecture, illustrated by lantern slides especially for the children. The subject was "With the Boys and Girls Abroad." There was also a hymn illustrated by twenty-eight slides. We were especially favored by a mandolin duet by Mr. Maxwell and Mr. Helm of South Manchester, with Miss Maxwell assisting them at the piano. Many words of praise have been heard from all, who were delighted with their fine musical talent.

FARMERS THREATEN TO VOTE FOR SMITH

Indiana Speaker Raps Hoover in Address Before New York Delegates.

Kansas City, June 13—"If they nominate Hoover, we'll lick him with Al Smith."

With this public declaration by William H. Settle, president of the Indiana Farm Bureau, ringing in their ears, from 75 to 80 of New York's 90 delegates to the Republican national convention today were preparing to jump on the Hoover band wagon.

The Indiana farm leader was addressing an impromptu meeting of "We-Won't-Vote-for-Hoover" farmers in the lobby of the President Hotel, where the New York delegates are quartered. He suddenly blazed forth with the assertion that if Secretary Hoover is nominated for the presidency the farmers of the middle west will do all they can to put New York's governor in the White House.

"You bet we will," the farmers yelled back at Settle.

This was the first time that Gov. Smith's name has been flung into the faces of the Republican delegates, although he has been the chief topic of discussion in many a private conference.

His farmers. Suddenly some of the New York delegates were gathered in groups on the sidelines and who, 24 hours ago, were fighting Hoover's nomination, seemed to remember that this was a Republican and not a Democratic convention—and they started to hiss the farmers.

"We'll not only beat Hoover with Al Smith, but we'll send Democrats to Congress," shouted Settle.

The farmers were shouting, "We Won't Vote for Hoover" when Sen. Watson of Indiana, appeared suddenly in the lobby balcony. Out over the rail, he called down to the farmers:

"Gentlemen, you have just made my speech."

And for 10 minutes the New York delegates heard Sen. Watson question the republicanism of Secretary Hoover, the man they will support for the presidential nomination.

When the New York delegation is polled at 5 o'clock this afternoon by State Chairman George K. Morris, 75 to 80 of the 90 delegates are expected to vote for Secretary Hoover for president.

Morris will poll the delegation in place of Charles D. Hilles, national committeeman and chairman of the delegation, who still is confined to his room with a severe cold.

BOLTON TAX COLLECTOR BRINGS PECK OF CASH

Tax Collector Andrew Manegia of Bolton came to town early this morning to make a deposit. He spent yesterday at Bolton Center collecting taxes. He collected $2,100. Of this $1,300 was in cash almost all small bills. One tax payer paid in $2 one dollar bills. Mr. Manegia when he entered the bank was carrying a roll that would almost fill a peck measure.

FARMERS TO STICK HOOVERITES ASSERT

other prediction that there would be no bolt—from Gov. A. G. Sorlie of North Dakota, who led a farm caravan here.

"It is my judgment that the Republicans will carry North Dakota if Hoover is nominated," said Sorlie. "We in North Dakota believe in fighting our battle within the party."

Bitterness Grows The bitterness of the farm leaders, however, appeared to increase with every additional vote pledged to the Hoover banner. The threat went beyond Hoover, to include state and congressional tickets.

F. W. Murphy of Wheaton, Minn., chairman American Council of Agriculture; Will Hirth, of Columbia, Mo., chairman of the corn belt committee, and William H. Settle, chairman of the Indiana Farm Bureau, all continued their bitter attacks on Hoover.

"Staging impromptu parades, the 'dirt-farmers' here for the convention stormed through the hotels, even into the Hoover headquarters shouting 'We Won't Vote for Hoover.'"

At another conference a proposal was made that all delegates to the Hoover banner, the threat went beyond Hoover, to include state and congressional tickets.

numerous Hoover leaders and the tentative approval of Senator-Elect William S. Vare of Philadelphia, who was instrumental in forcing the nomination of Hoover. With Vare's influence behind him, Edge will be the nominee if the outcome of the race for first place is any criterion.

"Big Three" Split The "Big Three" delegations, New York, Pennsylvania and Illinois, were badly split over the vice-presidential nomination. The New Yorkers had four candidates of their own—Theodore Roosevelt, Ambassador Alanson B. Houghton, Ogden Mills and Hamilton Fish. The Pennsylvanians favored Dawes, Edge and Sen. George H. Moses of New Hampshire. The Illinois delegation contained votes for Curtis, Edge or Moses, while Sen. Charles S. Deneen had a small following.

In all, there were 14 candidates, aside from Curtis, mentioned for the post. Many of them may never be placed in nomination but all had their friends in the convention crowds.

Summary of Reports A summary of reports, heard about the hotels and headquarters, was as follows:

Curtis: Widely urged but reported certain to refuse to become candidate.

Dawes: Favored by Mellon but opposed by Hoover managers with little if any support among the Allies, because of his apathy in the recent campaign.

Edge: Occupied strategic position, because of a belief that he can carry New Jersey and help to carry New York. Vare's approval aided his cause.

Deneen: A real "Dark Horse" candidate because of the desire of some eastern leaders to name a mid-westerner, friendly to the farmers.

Moses: Generally acceptable but hurt by his geographical location.

Roosevelt Out Roosevelt often discussed but without material support, due to his defeat 1924 by Gov. Al Smith of New York.

Houghton: Mentioned frequently, helped by reports he can carry German vote.

Fish: Mentioned by New York friends but accorded little chance because of split in New York delegation.

Senator Arthur Capper: Mentioned by easterners as a possible compromise candidate to soothe the agricultural middle west.

Henry Allen of Kansas: Mentioned in some discussions as a possible compromise candidate, acceptable to agrarian midwest.

Rep. John Q. Tilson: Endorsed by Connecticut delegation and acceptable to Hoover leaders but weakened by geographical location.

General Clarence R. Edwards: Endorsed by Massachusetts as a soldier candidate with good overseas record. A possible "dark horse" because of his geographical location and appeal to the World War veterans.

Col. Henry W. Anderson: Endorsed by Virginia but accorded no chance on account of geographical location.

Hanford MacNider: Soldier candidate, endorsed by Iowa, without strength elsewhere.

The New York and Pennsylvania delegations were to caucus late today to decide which candidate to support. Should they agree on the same one, the vice-presidential band wagon probably will be driven through the convention and their choice nominated Thursday night. It may be Dawes or Edge.

let of Republican leaders the man who spent 23 years of his adult life as a resident of England, as the organizer of British syndicates.

Think of It "Think of the party of Lincoln and Roosevelt accepted a man who maintained his permanent habitation in London, who never during that 23 years cast a vote in an American election, who in England declared himself to be a Liberal, who returned to this country to beat down the prices of farm products for the benefit of his British associates, who immediately began booming himself for president and who was so doubtful of his political affiliations that he started as a Democrat and ran in seven states as a Democrat but who trimmed his sails with the veering winds and waters to accommodate himself to changing political weather.

Congratulates Vare "Consider" the old Republican party sitting at the feet of William S. Vare and accepting his dictation merely because, as the boss of the corrupt machine of Philadelphia, he would be able to swing the vote of that state for or against the Mellon forces. Truly, Vare is to be congratulated upon the power of his machine.

"The Coolidge myth has vanished in thin air. The retiring shadow of Coolidge greatness will soon be invisible to the naked eye and in 30 days, will not be observable through the most powerful telescope.

"What becomes of the rank and file of the Republican Party, notwithstanding its political state, that always remained loyal to flag and country? Where is it to go? Is it to follow the corrupt banner of Vare upon which is emblazoned the cross of St. George.

"Let me say in more serious vein, and I am addressing myself to the great central west. The nomination of Herbert Hoover is a dirt-slap at the interests of the whole Mississippi valley and the entire west. His nomination was accomplished by organized propaganda and a machine well greased with funds collected from doubtful sources. The expenditure of those moneys enabled him to secure a majority of delegates in states where not infrequently only one in 100 citizens went to the polls.

Southern Delegates. "Many of the Hoover delegates came from states that not in 30 years had cast a vote. In the electoral college for a Republican candidate. Colored brethren were bought and sent out to influence men of their race in southern states. One other great interest, not to be overlooked, is Mr. Hoover's intimate relationship to the international banking clique. Every member of it worked for the nomination of Mr. Hoover.

"The sound and progressive Republicans of the West and the believers in constitutional government throughout the country, must now look to the Democratic Party as the sole hope of honest government and patriotic Americanism.

Good news from Hollywood, folks. Fifty thousand are said to be unemployed. At least they are not making pictures in which the cub reporter is Sherlock Holmes, in which the villain reforms and marries the district attorney's daughter or in which the farm boy goes to the city and spoils the life of the slickers.

How Much Water Should Baby Get?

A Famous Authority's Rule

By Ruth Brittain

Baby specialists agree nowadays, that during the first six months, babies must have three ounces of fluid per pound of body weight daily. An eight pound baby, for instance, needs twenty-four ounces of fluid. Later on the rule is two ounces of fluid per pound of body weight. The amount of fluid absorbed by a breast fed baby is best determined by weighing him before and after feeding for the whole day; and it is easily calculated for the bottle fed one. Then make up any deficiency with water.

Giving baby sufficient water often relieves his feverish, crying, upset and restless spells. If it doesn't give him a few drops of Fletcher's Castoria. For these and other ills of babies and children such as colic, cholera, diarrhea, gas on stomach and bowels, constipation, sour stomach, loss of sleep, underweight etc., leading physicians say there's nothing so effective. It is purely vegetable—the recipe is on the wrapper—and millions of mothers have depended on it in over thirty years of ever increasing use. It regulates baby's bowels, makes him sleep and eat right, enables him to get full nourishment from his food, so he increases in weight as he should. With each package you get a book on Motherhood, worth its weight in gold.

Just a word of caution. Look for the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher on the package so you'll be sure to get the genuine. The forty cent bottles contain thirty-five doses. Adv.

Community Club Wins First Round Championship

Yanks So Far Ahead There Is No Contest

National League Race Better Matched; Minor Leagues All Show More Evenly Matched Teams.

By DAVID J. WALSH.

New York, June 13.—Bucket-headed souls, far from niggardly with other people's property, are suggesting that the New York Yankees distribute their largesse of player strength among the other seven outfits because they have made a race into a pageant. But if the American League is looking for condonances, it will find them at engravers, listed under resolutions, as far as the rest of organized baseball is concerned. The best the latter can do about it is to break right down—and laugh.

The ideal baseball race, according to a national league president of another era, would be one in which the eight clubs involved would enter the final week deadlocked at .500. If that gentleman were available today, I could show him where he could get a lot of first class "idealizing" neatly and quickly done, while you wait. Races tighter than the average handicuff are the rule rather than the exception in the more important leagues this season.

Race in National.

The National League affair, with the first five clubs separated by some five games and only the Braves and Phillies definitely out of consideration, is a natural example. The way that one looks, it will take another Ford speed ship to get them out of the trenches by Christmas. And compared with some of the big miners, the National League ought to be thrown out of the ring and the thing called "no contest."

Bigger, better and busier races can be had in each of the Class AA Organizations, the International, the American Association and the Coast League and the Southern Association, for the asking (or without it). The International is one of the best with all eight clubs well beyond the .400 mark and about nine games separating Toronto, the leader, from Baltimore and Jersey City, the two last place clubs; and the latter are only three games out of the first division, at that.

At last reports, less than five games separated Indianapolis, Toledo Kansas City, St. Paul, Milwaukee and Minneapolis, running more or less in that order in the American Association.

The Southern association can do even better, with Little Rock and Atlanta playing .400 baseball at the foot of the column.

The Coast League is staging a two-club heat for first place between San Francisco and Hollywood. Portland, in seventh place, is only some nine games out of the lead.

Pat Carlson Named Captain of Arnold College Ball Team

Herbert "Pat" Carlson of Hamilton street, a graduate and star baseball player of the local high school, has been named captain-elect of the Arnold's College baseball team at New Haven, it was learned today.

Carlson concludes his training at this institution next year and then plans to enter Springfield College for his degree. . . . Pat, as he is more familiarly known, first broke into the baseball limelight while at the local high school where he caught every game of the school played during his sophomore, junior and senior years. During his last year, he batted over .520. At Arnold's, he has also been regular catcher for two seasons. His batting average for the one just concluded was .365. . . . The New Haven aggregation played some of the leading college teams, won two, lost two and tied one. They beat Washington College 11 to 6 and Yale Junior Varsity 3 to 1. The defeats were inflicted by the Middletown Insane Asylum and Washington College. Cornwall was played to a 6 to 6 tie. The team was coached by Sammy Massey, well-known local athlete. Incidentally Massey reports that Carlson has done remarkably well for Arnold's this year.

Nothing Hard About Method Of Babe Ruth

New York, June 13.—This process of hitting home runs is a very simple process, according to Babe Ruth in an interview given recently. "All you have to do is stand up to the plate with a bat in your hand, make the pitcher know you are better than he is, swing at the ball you like best, hit hard enough to send the ball over the fence, run around the bases and return to the bench," says Babe. . . . And that explains how it is done, dear readers, by the man who does it better than anybody in this world.

TO FORM TENNIS TEAM AT THE REC

"Mac" Macdonald Named Manager of Team With Power to Select Players; To Start Soon.

The Recreation Centers are going to be represented by a tennis team, it was stated today by Director Lewis Lloyd. The personnel of the team has not been selected, but Matthew Macdonald, finalist in the men's singles town championship tournament run by The Herald last year, has been named as manager with authority to select the players. Mr. Macdonald said this morning that he had not yet made any selections. No names were even mentioned, but it is probable that Sherwood Bissell, Francis O'Brien, Ty Holland, Walter Dunn, Earle Bissell, Joe Wright and others will be on the list.

BOGGINI, LUPIEN OFF SCHOOL NINE

Ruled Ineligible for Playing With Outside Team; Team's Chances of Windham Victory Greatly Diminished.

Nino Boggini and Ab Lupien, two of the best ball players on the Manchester High School team, have been declared ineligible on the eve of the conclusion of the annual series with Windham High this afternoon. Inasmuch as both are senior students, they have played their final game in any sport for the school.

The two players have been put off the team because of violating an interscholastic rule prohibiting high school players from playing with outside organized teams during the school season. Boggini played with the Economy Stores in East Hartford Sunday and again Monday night with the North Ends against the Bon Ami in the Community Club Twilight League. Lupien also took part in the local game.

As a result of their loss, Manchester is entering the Willimantic game this afternoon under quite a handicap. Windham beat Manchester up there 6 to 4 and Coach Tommy Kelley was anxious to win this battle. Now his chances appear just about "shot". Hedlund will replace Boggini and Ted Lupien may take his brother's position. Herby Fraser is the local pitcher. Only one other game remains to be played, that with Rockville in that city Friday afternoon.

The Manchester Community club has won the championship of the first round of the state league and will compete in the play-off series for the league title at the end of the three round schedule. Manchester hasn't lost a single game in the first round in nine starts, the defeat suffered in Bristol last Sunday being in the second round.

Last evening over at Hickey's Grove, fans saw another splendid exhibition of ball-cuffing and the Community won as it pleased from Meriden. The final score was 10 to 3. Weber was in fine form allowing only eight hits. Meanwhile he and the other eight Community players socked the offerings of Cygan and Buckley hard to collect thirteen bingles. Jack Linsell and Frank Brennan got triples. The Community scored in every inning. Their hitting was a treat to watch.

The two teams will probably meet again at Hickey's Sunday. However, there is a state league meeting Friday night at Meriden and the schedule may be slightly re-arranged at that time. Taftville will probably replace New Britain in the league, starting the second round with a clean slate. Manchester has only one more first round game to play and that is with Torrington.

Flag Day is June 14, and, judging by some previous displays, many of us do not know how the flag of the United States should be displayed.

There are only two ways to display the flag properly. One is to fly it freely unfurled from a staff. The other is to hang the flag flat, with its full horizontal or vertical length falling evenly.

WHAT HAS HAPPENED VIRGINIA BREWSTER is in love with a poor artist, NATHANIEL DAN, but she is tricked into promising to marry FREDERICK DEAN in one year if she fails to earn $100,000 with FREDERICK. Her father cheated him out of a bootlegging deal.

OLIVER was smiling, but not with his eyes. In them Virginia saw a peculiar, challenging question. It was as though he were thinking of some secret he shared with her.

"See here," Oliver stared; "I think all this miserable mixing up with the world you're indulging in is doing something to you, Virginia. You act as if I'd picked you up on the street corner."

"I think it's about the only chance you have," Oliver was not to modest to tell her. "I don't think it's very flattering to me to worry so much about it. You might make an effort to enjoy yourself."

MILTON SILLS AT THE STATE TOMORROW

Brings Thrills and Mystery as Star in "The Hawk's Nest"; "Lady Be Good" is Co-Feature.

A world of itself—with its own kings, its own peculiar set of scruples, rules of conduct and breaches of etiquette, a world possessing almost a language of its own—that is "the underworld" of America today.

Fascinating, dangerous, silent; the underworld of any great American city is rarely called to the attention of the general public, save only, perhaps, when it pushes its way into the newspapers by some extraordinary event.

Such a world is dramatically depicted in "The Hawk's Nest," Milton Sills latest starring vehicle, which comes to the State Theatre for tomorrow and Friday. Thrills and action are crammed into this fast-moving story of law and honor among thieves.

The story of "The Hawk's Nest," revolves around the conflict between rival "gang" leaders, with Sills, as the mysterious and much-fated "hawk" battling for supremacy against the character enacted by Montague Love. Both have their organizations, their henchmen and their strengths and weaknesses.

The actual conflict is provided by the fact that the Hawk's pal is sentenced to death—to hang—for a murder actually committed by the rival "gang" leader.

A beautiful love interest is furnished throughout the story between Sills and Doris Kenyon, who is his wife in private life off of the screen. The companion-feature for tomorrow and Friday is "Lady Be Good," a film version of the famous musical comedy. Jack Mulhall and Dorothy Mackall are starred.

Amusing glimpses of backstage life in vaudeville theatres, with the performers as the principal characters, is provided in this rollicking comedy-drama of love and laughter. Mulhall is seen in the role of a hard-up magician who is trying to earn a living with his clever tricks, and Miss Mackall is his assistant.

Together, the two form a series of adventures that prove to be just as funny as they are thrilling.

On Friday evening at 8:30, the State will give away absolutely free two "Ramona" dresses and one Ramona Jacket, donated by the Smart Shop, also four Ramona hats, which are furnished by Murray's Millinery Store. The lucky ones must be at the theatre on Friday night to receive their prizes.

On Sunday and Monday Manager Sanson is pleased to present the long-awaited screen hit "Ramona," featuring Dolores del Rio. The song "Ramona," now one of the popular ballads of the day, will be sung in accompaniment with the picture.

Tonight marks the final showings of Norma Shearer in "The Actress," and "Harold Teen," the film version of the famous newspaper cartoons.

F. B. CLARKE OFFICER OF COLLEGE ASSOCIATION

New Parents Organization Formed to Influence Policy of Connecticut College.

Fayette B. Clarke of Manchester was elected second vice-president of an organization formed at New London this week and to be known as the Parents Association of Connecticut College for Women. The organization was effected during the presence in New London of a large number of parents of students at the college who had come from various parts of the country for the graduation exercises.

Ever since the flurry over the removal of President Marshall from the headship of the college there has been a feeling in the student body and among the students' parents that there should be an enlargement of the membership of the Board of Trustees, which has always been smaller than permitted by the institution's charter, and this, together with certain other objectives looking to the welfare of the college, will be sought by the new organization, which hopes to become a helpful force in co-operation with the constituted authority of the institution.

The new association starts off with several hundred members and it is expected that the large majority of parents of students will at all times affiliate with the organization.

The officers, aside from Mr. Clarke, are: Paul B. Mann, New York city, president; Mrs. Mabel E. Underwood, New London, first vice-president; Mrs. Arthur L. Kent, Glenridge, N. J.; secretary; James D. Copp, New London, treasurer.

LaMotte Russell, president of the Manchester Trust Company, who is standing on the right in the second row, was elected treasurer of the organization for the fifteenth term. The others in the above group are, seated, left to right, Henry Trumbull, treasurer, Trumbull Electric Manufacturing Company, Plainville, first vice president; Arthur Reed Kimball, director, Chase Companies, Waterbury, president; James T. RAMONA APPAREL TO BE THEATER GIFT

Seven valuable pieces of clothing will be given away free to women holding lucky ticket numbers at the State theater Friday night. It was announced today by Manager Jack Sanson.

The prizes include two Ramona dresses, one Ramona jacket and four Ramona hats. The dresses and jackets are being given away by The Smart Shop and the hats, by Murray's Millinery Shop, both located in the State theater block.

Tickets may be obtained at either store or at the theater. The gifts are being made in connection with the showing of the famous film, "Ramona," at the State on Sunday and Monday. This powerful drama, one of the most stirring love pictures ever filmed, was shown here privately recently and made such an impression that Manager Sanson immediately booked it.

Century Eight Sedan, five-passenger, custom-equipped, $2025, f.o.b. factory

HUPMOBILE'S development of the high compression principle gives a startling new range of performance in the new Hupmobile Century Six and Eight. And the reason for far faster acceleration, greater smoothness and ample reserve power, is found in Hupmobile special engine design. Above the valves are domed combustion chambers which assist in extracting the last ounce of power from present day fuels, delivering it with immense force, yet without vibration or spark knock. Drive any of the new Century Hupmobile models for an hour or a day. You will surely pronounce it as typical of the century's best in performance as in the readily apparent qualities of beauty and striking appearance.

24 body and equipment combinations, standard and custom, on each line. Six of the Century, $1345 to $1625. Century Eight, $1825 to $2105. All prices f. o. b. Detroit, plus revenue tax.

JUDGE HYDE AGAIN TO DEFEND FLORIAN

Stewart R. Florian, who has twice been tried on the charge of being implicated in the Plainville bank robbery, in which three Chicago crooks have confessed having a part, is again to go on trial at the present term of the Superior Court, now in session.

In the first trial the jury disagreed and on the second, when he was defended by Judge William S. Hyde of Manchester one of the most interesting trials in Hartford County was attended by large numbers. Again the jury did not agree. State's Attorney Hugh M. Alcorn has decided to again bring him before the court and again he will be defended by Judge Hyde.

SEDAN DOES STUNTS AFTER TRUCK CRASH

Acceleration in Midst of Collision Puts Burke's Car in Hospital.

A 1926 Nash sedan driven by James M. Burke of 283 Spruce street and a 1927 Ford delivery truck driven by Henry Nutrie of 152 Center street figured in an accident at Bissell and Spruce streets at 4:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon.

The car driven by Mr. Burke was going south on Spruce street and not till practically up to the Bissell street crossing did Burke notice the Ford coming up Bissell from Main street.

Eimer Phelps of Middle Turnpike East who witnessed the accident, said the Burke car approached the cross street pretty fast. He likewise claimed the Nutrie car was under control.
