HOOPER POLICIES

There is a tendency to accept Herbert Hoover as the individual, aside from President Coolidge, best equipped to continue the Coolidge policies of economy, debt reduction and tax cutting, together with the fundamental policy of simple honesty in the operation of the federal government.

In our opinion Mr. Hoover deserves a much more enthusiastic greeting as the Republican party's candidate. It is highly probable that no President could have fitted into the picture of the last six years any better than Calvin Coolidge; the qualities which he possesses happen to have been those most urgently needed for the period. But the next administration is quite certain to face problems not to be solved by a mere adherence to rudimentary principles; problems which will demand the application of active constructiveness as well as of righteousness and thrift—and it will be Mr. Hoover's justification as the party's candidate that he is fitted in very exceptional degree to attack these problems. It will be much more as an originator and a leader, sometimes in matters of rather startling innovation unless we are greatly mistaken, that Hoover will shine in the Presidency, if elected—and there is little doubt that he will be—than as an heir to the "Coolidge policies," which have had the merit of timeliness and virtue rather than that of originality, not to say genius.

It will be strange indeed if in the next five years do not develop rather startling economic questions demanding something more than common sense for their solution. One of them is likely to be the growth of the frenzy for speculation which is rapidly increasing and may become a very serious peril to the security of the people of the country; it is quite possible that extraordinary measures may be found necessary to curb this evil.

Another great problem looming in the near future is the tendency to centralization in the hands of a few people of the vast water power resources of the country; it may take a stroke of economic and political genius to adjust that issue. Without the most skillful employment of the powers of government it is not at all improbable that the coal industry may drop to pieces under the feet of three or four hundred thousand miners and their families, precipitating a debacle of unemployment. We are rapidly reaching a point where there must be cheaper transportation for bulk raw materials if we are to compete with a rapidly reorganizing world in certain important branches of manufacturing—and it will take leadership of the first class to bring our inland waterways out of obscurity and force their potentialities into use.

And beyond question, unless the agricultural states are to be driven into sullen sectionalism and the basic industry of all industries is to fall into disrepute and neglect, there must be genuine farm relief in the form of elimination of the enormous spread between the farmer's price and the consumer's price—and nothing and nobody can bring that about except federal government very wisely administered.

It is no mere follower of beaten paths of rectitude and unextraneousness that the country is going to heed at its head in the next few years, but a blazer of trails, a leader of emergencies, an economic general. And it is because Herbert Hoover is such a man that he is exactly the right man for the job. Coolidge policies have been excellent, they could not have been better—from 1923 to 1929. But what the country is going to need from 1929 to 1933 is Hoover policies.

CONNECTICUT'S 17

This may turn out to be an exact facio opinion, for there is at his early morning writing the arrest of possibilities that the Kansas City convention may have reached the nominating point by the time this issue of the Herald goes to the reader, though it appears unlikely; but this newspaper cannot, in default of the evidence of accomplished fact, believe that the Connecticut delegation is going to fulfill the morning paper prophesies that it will present the name of Calvin Coolidge to the convention and cast its seventeen votes for him on the first ballot instead of following the obviously right course of contributing to the Hoover vote at the outset.

The seventeen votes of Connecticut are to be cast by seventeen delegates. Each of those delegates is responsible to his constituents and to his conscience for his course in this matter. If for some inscrutable reason of his own the state chairman is determined to fight the nomination of Hoover to and over the last ditch, there is no justification in the seventeen delegates following blindly that kind of dictation.

How much damage has already been done by the peculiar attitude of the Connecticut delegation at Kansas City it would be difficult to guess—perhaps none that cannot be easily undone by the right action from this time on. But if the nomination of Herbert Hoover has to be made in the face of a sullen and mysterious opposition by the representatives of this state, the task of maintaining a normal Republican majority in Connecticut next November will be heavily increased, that is certain.

The Democrats have all along claimed that they have an excellent chance of carrying this state for Al Smith. It has, so far, been a rather nonsensical claim. But if the Republican leaders of this state so manage affairs at Kansas City as to discredit to the best of their ability the party's Presidential nominee within these boundaries, it will be giving aid and comfort to the enemy, with a vengeance.

The Herald cannot and does not believe that the Connecticut delegation is going to do anything of the kind. It firmly expects that the Connecticut action will be Hoover action when the crucial moment arrives, tonight or tomorrow, or whenever the first ballot is taken.

ANTI-WAR TREATY

It is expected that on Bastille Day, July 14, there will be signed at Washington, if all signs hold good, the Briand-Kellogg treaty to outlaw war, which will receive the signatures of the United States, France, Great Britain, Italy, Germany, Japan, Canada, Australia, New Zealand, Newfoundland and India, and perhaps two or three other nations.

It is to be hoped that the affair will be made as ceremonious as possible. The more fuss and feathers with which it is accompanied the better, for the treaty is an entirely psychological affair, valuable just so far as it makes an impression on the contracting peoples and the world at large and not worth a hoot except for the moral obligation which it succeeds in impressing on the minds of the populations concerned.

There is some doubt whether such gestures as this do more good than harm or more harm than good. The good that they do is, of course, entirely sentimental. The harm they may do is contingent on a more or less early scrapping of the treaty, likely enough to happen at any time since there is no provision for its enforcement, and the consequent discrediting of all anti-war treaty efforts.

However, it is sincerely to be hoped that the formal declaration against recourse to war of aggression will fasten itself on the minds of some of the people in each of the countries concerned. To that extent the pact may do some good. If it should, some time or other, have the effect of delaying a war for a single day it would be worth something.

LEADERS AND LED

It is our guess that, when the returns are all in and private reports received from the delegates after they get back home, it will be disclosed that it wasn't the plain or garden variety of delegates who took orders from their bosses to drop Coolidge and vote for Hoover, but the bosses who were compelled to acquiesce in the determination of the delegates to do as they darn well pleased.

It is, for instance, a little bit ludicrous to read in the dispatches the information that Chairman Butler put the kibosh on the draft-Coolidge scheme by turning the Massachusetts delegation over to Hoover, when on a show-down it is pretty well established that the Bay State delegates would have voted for Hoover anyhow, utterly regardless of Mr. Butler's wishes.

A political leader can always remain a political leader so long as he recognizes the limitations of his authority and makes sure to lead in the direction in which his followers are determined to go. When he undertakes to bully those followers, in nine cases out of ten, he very quickly quits being a leader.

There are very few influential politicians who do not recognize this essential fact.

STOCK COLLAPSE

The collapse of the stock market on Tuesday, upon receipt of the news that President Coolidge was definitely out of the situation at Kansas City, demonstrates the unsubstantial quality of the stuff of which speculative values are made.

There probably wasn't a single individual among the thousands who rushed in their orders to "sell at the market" who had the remotest notion that the selection of Herbert Hoover instead of Calvin Coolidge as the Republican Presidential candidate would have any important or immediate influence on the earning capacity of the stock he was hastening to unload. But each of the little "bulls" feared that somebody else would fear that national prosperity was going to end with the termination of the Coolidge administration; and so he hastened to get out from under before the other fellow should begin to sell.

Added to this, of course, was the knowledge possessed by everybody that there was no economic justification whatever for the towering prices to which many of the securities, especially of big industrial combinations, had soared. But the real cause of the sudden and drastic slump was the fear that the other fellow was going to be afraid.

New York, June 14.—Chorus men are to wear whiskers in next year's musical shows, according to the Broadway gossip. The fashion comes direct from Paris where this summer's gentlemen of the ensemble have been growing their own.

The demand for "he-men" types has been steadily growing. Only a brawny athlete could engage in some of the chorus business demanded by last season's musical shows. Add to such gymnasium acts a set of whiskers and the chorus man will finally succeed in living down an ancient reputation for effeminacy.

A savings bank in the Broadway belt advertises that more than 1,000 men and actresses have healthy deposits.

There are, generally speaking, two legends concerning the people of the theater: one pictures them as prodigal spenders who never have any money; the other endows them with fabulous salaries which they are totally unable to squander because of its size. Both legends have a slight basis of truth. The average actor is a bit careless with his means and a few performers enjoy a very fat income.

But the great rack and file of theater folk have learned by bitter experience the moral of "the rainy day." Saving a few pennies is more than a sign of thrift; it is an utter necessity. The lean seasons are as frequent as the fat seasons in the stage world. Even the mightiest have fallen and continue to fall. It is not uncommon for an entire season to find a very important performer without a chance to work. The right show doesn't come along, or the show falls, or something happens—and the income is indeed slim.

Then there are those thousands who make but medium salaries when they do get work. Often they are on a payroll but twenty weeks or so out of the year. They have to save! They have to learn the value of money.

No profession teaches sterner lessons and, hence, none is quite so charitable. Few indeed are the performers who escape being called upon many times a year to contribute to comrades who have come upon evil days.

Broadway is often lined with "have-beens," quite willing to accept a dime for a cup of coffee. They belong to a never-say-die brigade which, in the face of dire necessity, will tell of fat engagements that wait just around the corner; will lie like gentlemen and casually comment on a visit to David Belasco that is to be made on the morrow. All their bright prospects are built upon the tomorrows which never come.

It is slight wonder, then, that faced daily with such pictures, the sensible folks of the theater store away their dollars.

Sighted about town—those grand new stockings the girls are wearing. . . . The color is named "grege." . . . It's somewhere between beige and gray. . . . And combines the best features of each. . . . Also those lavender hose which, they tell me, will be quite the what's-what this summer. . . . And the straw hat bands are appearing in modernistic designs. . . . So is the linoleum.

EGGS AND EGGS

When the average person speaks of eating eggs he usually refers to hen's eggs, but the omnivorous human appetite also delights in the eggs of many other creatures. For example, the eggs of ducks, geese, turkeys, and many wild birds such as gulls, guineas, and plovers are considered great delicacies. Some hotels specialize in ostrich eggs, but they are rather expensive since they are so valuable for hatching purposes. Terrapin eggs are considered a very attractive addition to the menu. Caviar is a very expensive dish prepared from the eggs of the sturgeon, and the eggs of other fish are usually known as roe, and many varieties are appetizing.

It is apparent that primitive people have always used eggs for food. These were obtained from robbing the nest of birds and even reptiles. Many centuries before the domestication of the hen, which occurred in India about the 15th century before Christ, the natives of the jungles learned to catch the wild fowl and confine them in pens so that their eggs could be gathered more conveniently, without exposing the gatherer to the possibility of being a banquet himself for some wild animal.

Eggs form a very valuable addition to our diet since they contain one of the finest proteins that is obtainable. The whole egg contains about 12 1/2 per cent protein and 12 per cent fat, and is entirely free from starch. It contains much mineral matter in the form of phosphorus, sodium, potash, lime and chlorine.

American people understand the value of eggs in their diet, for they consume about $5,000,000,000 worth of eggs per year, each individual consuming on the average of sixteen dozen per year. Preserving eggs by drying is a very satisfactory method, since thirty-two eggs may be concentrated into a pound of this water-free material. This is usually the type of egg which you eat in baked goods. They may also be preserved to some extent by closing the pores of the shell with an airtight material, most common covering used is water glass or silicate of soda.

Cold storage of eggs is an industry which has developed greatly within the last few years, and eggs preserved by this method are in almost as good condition as when fresh.

The Chinese have a method of preserving their eggs by a pickling process which keeps them edible without cold storage for an indefinite period, actually improving in flavor according to the Chinese idea, with the passage of years. The eggs are immersed for two or three months in a thick infusion of tea leaves to which lime, salt and lye are added. At the end of this time they are drained and coated with a mixture of clay and rice husks. When these eggs are only moderately old, perhaps a year, the yolk is brownish green and of a soft almost pasty consistency, and the white is stiff jelly of translucent amber. Eggs of ten years or more are considered very delightfully flavored. At this time the yolk has increased to such a size by the absorption of water that the entire shell content is a deep brown. The eggs are eaten raw sometimes, accompanied by vinegar cured ginger.

While we often joke about Chinese eggs, there is no more reason they should be objectionable because of the changes that have taken place in the egg meat than there is to the transformation of milk into cheese. In fact, the Chinese preserved egg is a very mild product compared to some of the popular strong cheeses.

Questions and Answers
Question: Mrs. J. H. writes: "Will you please advise me what to do and what causes my stomach to have a rough raw feeling that seems to extend up to my throat and even to the nasal passages? My throat looks rough, red, with a burning sensation, and I have ulcers in my mouth. Am very nervous and cannot sleep after eating even light food such as toast and milk. Have gas on my stomach and my heart beats hard and fast after eating."

Answer: Your trouble is at least gastritis and you possibly have the start of stomach or duodenal ulcers. The cause is over-acidity of the stomach which is created through dietetic indiscretions. Milk and toast are not particularly a light diet, but an exclusive milk diet should prove helpful in your case. Try taking four ounces of certified milk every hour for a few days, and then double the quantity used each time, so that you take eight ounces every hour from early in the morning until you go to bed. If this does not relieve you, consult a good diagnostician and have a careful examination made, which the x-ray is used to determine exactly your condition.

Question: A.P.M. asks: "What are the non-mucous-forming foods which will cure ringing in the head?"

Answer: Head noises are usually caused by catarrh of the inner ear and will disappear as soon as the excess catarrhal mucus is thoroughly drained out. The diet for such a condition should consist principally of small amounts of meat, fish, fowl, eggs, and non-starchy vegetables cooked and raw, and fruits. It is best to avoid all starches and sugars, as well as milk products. These may be said to be mucous-forming if used in excess quantities, and the one who is trying to cure himself of catarrh should avoid the carbohydrates and hydrocarbons as much as possible until the cure is effected.

ALABAMA CONVICTS LOSE PAY FOR OVERTIME WORK ON ROADS AND MINES
Montgomery, Ala. — Alabama's convicts employed in road building, according to a ruling by the state attorney general, can receive no "overtime" for work done over and above their required daily tasks.

The question came up in connection with the employment of prisoners on state highways. Convicts working in coal mines, have been paid for their "overtime" heretofore, but the ruling, it appears, will repeal this provision. By working overtime, convicts in the mines have formerly made enough to send some to their families, or else save it until released, when they would have enough to start a small business with which to begin their fight back toward respectability.

ANDOVER

There was a large attendance at the Mens' club meeting, Monday evening. The guests of the evening were the Liberty Hill Mens' club members, who furnished the program. The speakers were Town Clerk Frank P. Fenton and Edwin J. Donnelly of Willimantic who discussed "Sidelights of Past National Political Conventions." Town Clerk Fenton has attended two national conventions, explained the procedure in opening, and carrying on conventions. There was also a fine musical program, which was much enjoyed. A supper was served.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Bishop were in Willimantic Tuesday, to see Mrs. Bishop's doctor about a growth in her nose. Mrs. Bishop will probably have to have an operation on her nose when the soreness is gone.

Mrs. A. E. Frink and grandson Albert Frink, of Malden, Mass., who is spending the summer here, spent Tuesday with Mrs. E. W. Platt in Manchester.

Mrs. D. W. Williams and son of Madison, Wisconsin, arrived Wednesday for a visit of several weeks with Mrs. Williams parents Mr. and Mrs. Ward Talbot.

How She Hints?

By ISRAEL KLEIN.

Science Editor, NEA Service.
Although failure of the cooling system and improper operation of the engine and its accessories, causing overheating of the motor, may be traced indirectly to negligence on the part of the motorist, there are some causes that may be directly ascribed to the driver himself.
There is the little matter of improper use of the spark lever. When, after starting, the spark is kept retarded, not only is power reduced, but excessive heat is produced from the hot gas left in the cylinders.
A retarded spark keeps the gas burning not only during the power stroke of the piston, but during the first part of the exhaust stroke. This puts an extra burden on the engine with a resultant loss of power, besides an increase of heat.

The result is an overheated engine. The final result, of course, is an ineffective clutch and a stalled automobile.
Riding the clutch is another habit. The clutch will slip and the engine will then be called upon to furnish the excessive power and pull that has been lost through the slipping clutch.
Another burden on the engine is due to neglect of the times. If the tires are too soft they pull hard. Of course, the tires should not be over-inflated to avoid the opposite condition, or hard riding and greater possibility for punctures and blowouts will result.
If the driver knows his car thoroughly, he will know exactly when to shift into low gear. At least, he won't do this unless he has to. For excessive use of low gear will cause the engine to overheat.

Sometimes speed can be picked up easily in high by judicious use of the throttle without straining the motor and without being obliged to resort to lower gear. At any rate constant shifting from high to low doesn't help the transmission, either.
But this shouldn't deter the driver from shifting to low gear at the proper time. An engine will overheat from improper use of high gear as well.
As soon as the engine begins to labor on a hill, or in pulling against mud or sand, the shift should be made into second and then into first if necessary.
But high should be resorted to as soon as possible after enough momentum has been regained on the hill or the mud hole has been passed, or the engine will overheat.
THIEF-PROOF DOORS
In making automobiles thief-proof, the latest invention is a non-releasing door catch. Forcing a door handle is fruitless, for when pressure is brought on the lever, the handle turns but doesn't release the catch.

Loughran Is Better Man Than Heeny, Walsh Says

Tells How Light Heavyweight Beat Up Challenger in Training; Heeny Unable to Continue Bout.

By DAVID J. WALSH
New York, June 14.—Mr. Rickard, acting on the impulse of that great, big heart of his, has steam up on his yacht in the East River this morning, ready to sail down the bay with a party of prominent yachtsmen. Just a sociable outing, you know, and it is only a coincidence that their destination happens to be the place where Tomato Heeny is ensconced at the moment. It is a mere coincidence, too, that Mr. Rickard's yachting guests will be newspaper reporters exclusively and that they know all about Tomato and may be a bit too much. I wouldn't mention the matter at all, only the fact that Heeny looks in relation to his terrific battle with Brother Tunney on July 26 and it occurs to me that the question of whether or not he can beat Eugene is quite secondary. The question I would like to see decided is whether the official heavyweight challenger can beat the current champion in the class immediately below.

DO YOU KNOW THAT—

The pill with which John Kuck made the new world's shot put was two ounces shy of sixteen pounds. . . Moriarty was going to make one of the Detroit baseball writers not long ago. . . McGraw is beating the signal thieves. . . He calls the batter clear into the bench when he wants to change orders. . . Charley Moran, the ump, and Capt. Kouch, the flyer, look enough alike to be brothers. . . Wally Pipp used to be rated as the best fellow in the American League with his fists. . . Mark Koenig started to play real baseball after he socked the Babe on the jaw. . . One of his boys once held Miller Huggins over the rear rail of an observation car and took a vote to see if he should be dropped. . . Jimmy De Forest never has told if Dempsey's hands were packed at Toledo. . . The Brooklyn club and the caterer argued over the size of the bill for the grub for the press during the 1927 world's series. . . The club said one cup of coffee appeared on the bill that wasn't served. . . Three cents. . . No kidding.

Local Sport Chatter

Two twilight baseball games are on the books for this evening in the Community Club League. Manchester Green plays the North Ends at Hickey's Grove and Gibson's Garage meets the North Ends at the Community playgrounds.

"Lefty" St. John whaled a ball over the right field wall in the Manchester Green-States Prison game at Wetherfield recently but his efforts go for naught when it was found that he had batted out of order.

All of the local tennis courts are being used daily. A girls' tournament is being conducted at the high school. Players are also getting ready for the annual town championship tournaments which are to be run again this year by The Herald sports department. Sherwood Bissell and Kathryn Giblin were the winners last year.

Paul Cervini, who at one time, was a pitching sensation for the old Echo and Atlas teams, may pitch for Gibson's Garage against Manchester Green Monday night. Jerry Holmes, the star twirler, has a sore arm. Cervini has not done any pitching for several years but the team, of course, naturally, doesn't brag at all about his ability to come back.

Cheney Brothers and Manchester Green will engage in a girl's baseball game tomorrow night up at the Green playgrounds. Coach Harry White is confident that his team, the silk mill outfit, will come through victorious in its initial start.

Manchester Trade School meets New Britain Trade in one of its most important baseball games of the season tomorrow afternoon on Mt. Nebo grounds. Jimmy Adams will pitch for Manchester.

The Heights have re-organized with Ted Fields as manager and Billy Wiganowski as captain. Johnny Lovett is out with an injured ankle. Desperate attempts are being made to rejuvenate the team so that it will win a few games.

All members of the Victors are requested to report for practice at Mt. Nebo tomorrow night. An important business session will follow.

OLYMPIC HOPES

Sabin Carr of Yale was the first pole vaulter in the world to clear the bars at 14 feet. A consistent vaulter of more than 13 feet, he can be considered as much of a certainty for the Olympic squad this summer as any man in the country. . . Until Lee Barnes soared over the bar at 14 feet one inch, Carr held both the indoor and outdoor world records. He holds the indoor record with a vault of 13 feet 9 1/2 inches, made at New York in February, 1927. Carr won the pole vault event at the 1927 and 1928 I. C. 4-A meets. He stands a good chance of making a new Olympic record. The present record is held by F. K. Ross of the United States and was made in 1929. Ross vaulted 13 feet 5 inches. Carr lives in Dubuque, and was a senior at Yale this year.

PENNSY CREW IS DOPED OUT TO WIN OVER NAVY OARSMEN

Sailors in a Slump for a Week; Inter-Collegiate Regatta at Poughkeepsie Held Next Tuesday.

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., June 14.—Pennsylvania's slashing time trial over the 4-mile regatta course last night definitely placed it ahead of the slumping Navy crew in the preliminary forecasts of the outcome of the inter-collegiate regatta next Tuesday. Penn's time for the four mile route was 19 minutes flat, sensationally fast.

Navy, on the other hand has been slumping for a week. Every seat in the bow four of the varsity shell has had not less than two occupants in the last week and this constant shifting has broken the morale of the boat.

The time made by California in the last mile of its trial on Tuesday night was better than Columbia's and the New York oarsmen realize they will have tough opposition in the Golden Bears.

Washington, too has had fast time trials.

To Form Junior Baseball Loops

James "Dodger" Dowd, Recreation Center summer playground instructor, is going to attempt to organize two baseball leagues for the boys who patronize the West Side playgrounds.

One is going to consist of four teams not averaging over sixteen years in age to play twilight ball and the other circuit will consist of teams with players under fourteen to play daytimes. The former will be formed as soon as possible, but the latter will not be held until school closes.

Gold baseballs will be awarded the members of the winning team.

LATZO WINS OVER LOMSKI ON A FOUL

New York, June 13.—Pete Latzo, former welterweight champion, won on a foul from Leo Lomski, Aberdeen, in the scheduled ten-round feature bout at Ebbets field last night.

The foul came in the sixth round. In the main event Harold Barnes and George Hartwick were judges, and referee Lou Magnolia. The crowd was 18,000 and the receipts $30,000. Lomski weighed 175 and Latzo 170 1/2.

Eddie Kid Whalen, Welterweight champion of the National Guard, who has grown into a 185 pounder, won a laughing and punching contest from George Lee, Jack Sharkey's stablemate from Worcester, 152. Eddie had the last laugh.

Lou Barba of Greenwich Village won from Joe Oliver of Sheepshead Bay in Six rounds of purposeless mugging. Lou weighed 189 1/2 and Joe 182 1/2.

Conrad Foss, 152, of Elizabeth, N. J., took the decision over Tony Ferrenti, 155, of the east side, in the four-round opener.

GAS GOING FAST

Last year saw the consumption of more than 10,500,000,000 gallons of gas, valued at more than $2,500,000,000. That averages 428 gallons for every motorist, and he spent about $120 to get it.

PUZZLING PLAYS Baseball

PLAY THAT PUZZLES
Why is it that patted balls, which apparently strike in fair territory in front of the batter and then strike him on the rebound as he is about to start to first, are invariably called foul balls?

The batter's box is almost entirely within foul territory. When a batsman assumes the proper stance he is always in foul territory. . . Not nine times out of a hundred, a batted ball that strikes in front of the plate in fair territory and strikes the batsman as he is about to leave the batter's box, comes in to contact with his person in foul territory. . . When a batted ball strikes the batsman in foul territory it immediately becomes dead, is simply a foul ball.

Taftville Plays Here Next Sunday

At a special meeting of the Connecticut Baseball League last night, Taftville was definitely admitted to replace New Britain. The meeting which was in Meriden was attended by Manager Francis McCarthy of the Community Club.

Manager McCarthy reported this morning that the schedule was rearranged at the session with the result that Manchester is playing Taftville next Sunday at Hickey's Grove instead of Meriden.

Might as well abandon the safe and sane Fourth idea. Firecrackers can be legislated out of existence, but there seems to be no way of abolishing the honking motorist.

Miss Earhart has earned the nickname, "the Girl Lindy." Great chance for some newspaper to offer a prize for "the girl Levine."

In addition to this race, there will be several professional and amateur events, calling into action a record field of pro and amateur riders.

The others in the field are: Francesco Zuchetti, the great Italian rider; Larry Gaffney, one of the best of the homebreds; Henri Wunsau, Vincent Del Ponte and Alfred Letourner. Letourner is rated the best of all the French riders.

In addition to this race, there will be several professional and amateur events, calling into action a record field of pro and amateur riders. The cream of New England's professional sprint riders are entered, including "Chick" Meyers, the brilliant Providence rider. George Olds of this town will do the announcing.

There will be band concert at 7:30 and the first of the races will be called at 8:15. The band will play in the intervals between the races and will play the riders in the various events down the stretch to the finish line.

The Texas liquor act makes possession of more than a quart evidence of bootlegging. Some exception should be made, of course, for politicians.

Misplay And Perfect Squeeze Bunts Kill Manchester's Eight-Run Rally

Fifteen Local Runners Left on Bases During Ultra-Exciting Ten-Inning Battle; Manchester's Seventh Inning Rally Most Thrilling; Eells Comes Through in One Pinch and Fails in Another; Four Pitchers Used.

Failure to run down a trapped runner between third base and home plate in the ninth inning prevented Manchester High from scoring what would have been a well-earned victory over Windham High yesterday afternoon at the West Side Oval. Misplay allowed the runner to score the tying run and then Willimantic won out in the next frame. It was the second time that Willimantic had beaten the local team this season.

The game was easily the most exciting of the year. Trailing by five runs when it went to bat in the "hucky seventh" Manchester staged a thrilling rally that netted eight runs—a lead of three. Windham equalized in the ninth and won out in the tenth scoring three very important runs on squeeze plays.

Both teams were forced to use two pitchers. Herby Fraser started for the locals but gave way to Dave McConkey when the going got too hot in the ninth. Willimantic started for Willimantic but was kayoed in that hectic seventh. Dillon finished the game. He was the winning pitcher; McConkey, the losing.

Missed Two Stars
There is little doubt in the minds of local baseball fans who witnessed the game, that Manchester would have won had Nino Boggi and Ab Lupien not made themselves ineligible by playing with an outside team. Johnny Hedlund, who took Nino's place behind the bat, and Ted Lupien, who replaced his brother in left field, both gave their best, but were naturally not as effective as the regulars would have been. Lupien misjudged a long fly in the ninth that helped Willimantic start its tying rally and Hedlund's whop to second was such that all of the eight runners who attempted to steal, arrived at a laudable rate.

15 Runners Stranded
During the first six innings of the battle, Manchester had runners on base time and again, but the much-needed hit never materialized. No less than nine runners were stranded in these frames, fifteen in all. During this time, Windham was connecting with Fraser's offerings when they meant runs. Consequently the five run lead at the start of the seventh.

Dowd Starts Rally
What happened in this eventful, long-to-be-remembered stanza is best told play by play. Ernie Dowd, who had already singled thrice, drew a pass. Foley shot a single to left and the bases were full when Lupien got a base knock through the box. Kerr rapped a single to left and Dowd scored. Farr dropped a single to right and Foley trotted across the plate. The fans were in an uproar. Hedlund fanned but this was quickly forgotten when McConkey singled to left.

Only one run was scored on the play, the runner being held at third. The bases were still loaded and the score stood 5 to 3. Hugh Moriarty was due to bat, but Coach Tommy Kelley inserted Bobby Eells to pinch hit for him. A bullet line drive through the box into center field scoring Kerr and Farr and tying the count was the result. The run was not over yet, although Dilson took Wilkinson's place on the mound for Willimantic. M. H. S. Takes Lead

Fraser greeted him with a fly to left that scored McConkey with the run that put Manchester ahead. Dowd, batting for the second time, walked and then Foley got his second hit of the inning scoring Eells and Dowd who had stolen. Lupien and Kerr were passed filling the bases again, but Farr's short fly to right was caught by Wilkinson after a hard run to retire the side. Eight runs on seven hits without a single error, was the summary of Manchester when his fly to left for the next two batters grounded out in the tenth, Manchester also had a chance to score. Kerr opened with a double, but Kerr, Hedlund and Eells were strike out victims although McConkey walked.

Squeeze Play Works
Now for Willimantic. Undismayed by the three run lead Manchester obtained through its mammoth rally, Coach Tommy Callahan's tribe, although held safe in the eighth, started after Fraser in the ninth. Warren singled to left and Tinker walked. Melkie doubled scoring Warren and sending Tinker to third. At this point, McConkey took Fraser's place on the hill. A perfect squeeze play by Dillon brought Tinker home and then came Manchester's big faux pas.

One Big Mistake
Melkie was on third. One run was needed to tie the score. Woodward was at bat and a squeeze play was anticipated. Manchester's infield was in close. Down came McConkey's pitch. Woodward crunched to bunt, but missed! Hedlund caught the ball and Melkie, who did not have the usual start, stopped abruptly and started back for third. The ball was thrown to Farr and the runner chased back and forth for several seconds before Hedlund dropped a late throw allowing Melkie to score the tying run. During the play on Melkie, no attempt was made to run him up following a quick throw or feint. This would have insured an easy out and cleared the bases with only one more out needed to give Manchester the victory.

Squeeze Play Again
Max Heller opened the tenth with a single to left and promptly stole second. Merrill moved him along to third with a neat bunt and Warren brought him home with another similar hit. It was a perfect squeeze and Manchester had no chance to get the runner at the plate. Just to make victory certain, Warren, who was safe on an error, scored on another.

Famous star selects OLD GOLD

MR. CHAPLIN was asked to smoke each of the four leading brands, clearing his taste with coffee between smokes. Only one question was asked: "Which one do you like the best?"

How does OLD GOLD do it?

What's the secret of OLD GOLD'S winning charm? The answer is very simple. Three types of leaves grow on the tobacco plant. . . coarse, heavy top-leaves, irritating to the throat. . . withered ground-leaves, without taste or aroma. . . and the heart-leaves, rich in cool and fragrant smoking qualities. These golden-ripe heart-leaves give OLD GOLD'S their golden-like smoothness. That's why so many people choose them. And that's why you too can pick them. . . even in the dark.

Ernie Dowd, popular center-fielder on the Manchester High School team, and, incidentally, one of the best all-around schoolboy players in the state, provided the fans with a chance to give him the "Ha-Ha" in yesterday's game when he caught a fly trailing the side in the eighth inning. Thinking it was the ninth inning, he put the ball in his back pocket and started for the dressing room, only to learn of his mistake.

Smoking O. K., Prohibition Wrong, Says Girl Law Grad

Miss Gold, a Schill, New Orleans—The prohibition law is all wrong and smoking by girls is all right, says Miss Golda Schill, New Orleans, the only woman due to receive a degree at the law school graduation exercises at Louisiana State University in June.

Miss Schill has some pronounced ideas, but let her tell them:

"I am opposed to national prohibition because I don't think it can be enforced, because violation of the prohibition act lessens the respect for law, and last of all, because it could be enforced, it shouldn't be because drinking is not a fit subject for legislation.

"Drinking is not a moral question but one of hygiene. Only excessive drinking becomes a moral question."

"Women have as much right to smoke as men."

"It is not a sin for a woman to smoke or drink although she may suffer more serious physical consequences than a man and should be governed accordingly."

"It is bad taste for a woman to smoke or drink in the presence of conscientious persons who find it offensive."

Miss Schill intends to go into the practice of law when she is graduated.

"There is no more worthy profession than that of housekeeping," she said, "but I haven't spent five years in college just to be a housekeeper."

Cocktails, Food, Electric Signs, Jazz Taxis, Show London Americanized

London.—Patriotic Englishmen complain that London is becoming Americanized.

Conservative opinion admits that England is borrowing much from America, and that almost everyday sees some change in the complexion of this city which brings it nearer to the characteristics of New York.

The annual rush of tourists to England since the war has done a great deal in effecting the slow metamorphosis. And the annual rush of Londoners to New York has contributed also to the change, for Londoners find in New York things they like, and demand them here upon their return.

There are American jazz bands, and American barber shops. There are glittering electric signs on Piccadilly, practically unknown here a few years ago, and their called from G. K. Chesterton, the famous writer, a stream of expletive which ended in their characterization as "dancing devils from across the sea."

American Bars.

Strangely enough, there are American bars in every hotel and tavern. Here strictly American cocktails are dispensed, and their very names shriek Americanism. Bronx, Manhattan, Martin, Siderar, Clover Club and hosts of others that originated on the other side of the water have been transplanted here and have become indispensable.

Certain brands of American cigarette are to be had everywhere. American foods, cosmetics, and patent medicines have their places on the shelves of grocers and chemists.

The extent to which London has become Americanized is borne out by the following examples. An International News Service representative, fresh from America, walked into a large, unpretentious but typically English restaurant. Desiring that his American accent be tute it on the floor for the committee's farm plank.

On a test of strength, the committee voted 35 to 15 to reject the Allies' proposal. Representatives of Illinois, Iowa, North and South Dakota, Florida, Arkansas, Minnesota, Wisconsin, Indiana, Georgia, Virginia, Michigan, Montana, West Virginia, Hawaii and Alaska were reported to have voted for the fee principles.

"The unwillingness of the party leaders on the committee to support a plank which sets forth specifically the provisions by which crop surpluses can be properly and effectively controlled, make necessary a farm plank to the floor," announced Earl C. Smith of Illinois, leader of the farm group.

Farmer's Demands

"The farmers are demanding a pledge specifically setting forth the manner in which they may secure economic equality."

"It is our hope that the convention will meet this issue squarely."

Little hope exists, even among the most sanguine farm leaders, that the regular plank can be upset. Evidence of how firmly the Hoover people are riding in the saddle was furnished during the consideration of the entire committee of the platform draft prepared by the subcommittee. It was a hotly contested and interestingly argued one.

Mr. Fess said "if it's the will of the convention we will pass Montana's vote." The negative yells indicated that it was the will of the convention that Montana should vote. So Montana voted. They had eleven votes, five and a half were cast for aye and five and a half for nay.

After all that fun it turned out that chairs belonged to those that sat in them and the rest were free to seek easier ones.

And we got onto the business of making rules for the convention. It seems that a convention has to have rules. They had rules since 1923. Practically the same rules. But every time they have a convention they have to re-read those old rules and approve them again. That took quite a while. After the rules had been read awhile I asked some one how much longer that man was going to recite. "Oh, this never takes longer than five or ten minutes." He'd been talking a couple of days by that time.

Eventually that was over and Mr. Fess arrived on the scene. Escorted upon the platform by Senator Sackett of Kentucky and Sarah Butler (Nicholas Murray's daughter), they introduced him to Mr. Fess. It was all very formal and impressive. Flashlights and cheers and whoopee.

ed Edge's chances, it was said, because the Hoover leaders desired a man who could help the ticket in the dry west.

The Edge candidacy may develop a row in the convention, should Vane swing him the Pennsylvania delegation. If the New Jersey Senator also carried New York, together with scattered states in the south, he might overturn the Hoover bandwagon. The Hoover leaders however, laughed at the possibility of such an upset.

Dawes Room.

The Dawes boom died slowly. He had scattered support in the east and south. His western friends seemed to have deserted him because of his failure to help in the battle to put a McNary-Haugen plank in the platform. The allied generals dropped him because of his silence during their fight on Hoover. The Hoover leaders were lukewarm because of his known coolness toward President Coolidge. Yet, despite all this opposition, the delegates themselves continued to boom Dawes for renomination.

It was alarm over the agricultural situation, according to the Hoover Marshal, that brought about the decision for a "Dry from west of the Alleghenies." It also brought Fess into the picture. It was pointed out that Fess was acceptable to President Coolidge, having been known as the "administration spokesman" in the Senate the last two years. The Hoover leaders believed too that he would help the ticket in Ohio, a doubtful state which may furnish the Democratic candidate for vice-president, and a state in which Hoover was under vicious attack from the late Senator Frank B. Willis during the primary campaign.

Deneen Talk.

There was much talk about Deneen among Hoover leaders. It was said he would help Hoover in the west by his stand for the McNary-Haugen bill, his great record of law enforcement and the prominence he won by defeating the Thompson-Crowe organization in the recent Chicago elections. His selection, it also was felt, would enable Hoover to carry Illinois and placate the allies.

The names of Rep. John Q. Tilson of Connecticut, Republican floor leader of the House, Senator George H. Moses of New Hampshire, the convention's permanent chairman, former Gov. Charles E. Gurnea of Michigan, and Hartford Mac Nider, of Iowa, the "soldier" candidate will be presented to the convention, along with a half dozen others. Stiff opposition to Tilson in his own delegation and geographical location of Moses were said to have destroyed their chances of victory while the others had only scattered support and were not being considered seriously by Hoover leaders, who control the convention.

The New York delegation itself, killed four booms when it rejected a resolution, by an overwhelming vote, that would have pledged the state to a "native son." This action automatically ended the hopes of Ogden Mills, Theodore Roosevelt, Alanson B. Houghton and Hamilton Fish, all New Yorkers. Only an expressed command from Hoover, himself, it was said, could revive any New Yorkers boom.

Similarly an expression from Hoover could carry the nomination to Senator Arthur Capper or former Gov. Henry Allen, of Kansas, both of whom are "dry" and strong among the farmers. The Hoover leaders meanwhile were sounding out sentiment on Fess, Deneen and Dawes.

The name of the nominee may not be known for another day. This morning, it appeared to be Fess or Deneen but the final word will be said by Herbert Hoover after his nomination for the presidency.

ings airy and sophisticated "Berthia" were portrayals that evinced not only talent and polished stage training but a very special study of the manners and fascinations of the period. Among the minor roles there was not a single "stick."

This is a musical as well as a theatrical outfit, and a dozen winsome little lyrics are interpolated, every one of them fittingly.

The play was accurately and very handsomely costumed, the colorful garments of the 15th century fitting the florid qualities of "The Trip." The little stage requires frequent re-setting as there are some dozen and a half short scenes in the piece. Special scenery for the play is one of the features of the production and the celebrity with which the changes were made was remarkable.

If the Jitney Players come back in 1923 with as much improvement as they have shown this year over previous efforts, they will secure us all into silence. Perhaps they'd better stick right to their present level—it's good enough for any audience, anywhere.

"One man told him that Al Smith would carry 75 per cent of the vote in some southern Illinois counties and Mr. Mellon replied that the situation was just reversed in other pieces."

Charging the male leaders of the demonstration here with failure, Mrs. Zula Bredem of Oklahoma City, put "pep" in the farmers by organizing a woman's committee. She planned to take her committee to many Republican leaders.

There are all sorts of stories about men who "invented the first steamboat." But the honor of building the first steam-propelled vessel probably belongs to an Englishman named Jonathan Hulls, who built a steamboat in 1736. Here is a copy of Hull's own drawings of his vessel, which are still in existence at the patent office.

Stage Hand: "Did you say you wanted a window or a widow?" Show Manager: "I said a window, but they're both much alike. When I get near either of them I always look out."

Good morning! At first the world was flat. Then some one discovered that it was round. Now it is crooked.

The attorney conducting the cross-examination disgusted with the evasive answers of the witness.

"Answer my question 'Yes' or 'No,'" he admonished. "Your question can't be answered 'Yes' or 'No,'" replied the witness.

"Any question can be answered 'Yes' or 'No,'" expostulated the lawyer. "Ask me one and I'll prove."

The witness replied: "Have you quit beating your wife?" "Fred has a sure thing."

"What-in contesting a will? Ha! ha!" "Don't laugh. The lawyers have agreed to give him 10 per cent. of what they get."

A Manchester home proudly exhibits a rolling pin, in good condition, that must have been handed down for 175 years. Must be a family of pacifists.

Wise: "How you going to prove, she is a good chorus girl?" Willie: "She only owns a cloth coat."

Wise: "I accept the amendment." Schoolboy (translating): "She slipped and fell into the river. Her husband, horror-stricken, rushed to the bank."

Teacher (interposing): "What did he run to the bank for?" Boy: "To get the insurance money."

"No lady, a meadow lark is not a party thrown in the country." Mrs. Glantz: My what a charming baby! And how he does resemble your husband!

THE KNYMITES

"I'm glad our boat will be all right," said Scouty, "but it's out of sight. How are we going to find it, when we're stranded way up here. There's naught but water down below. Where we can go to, I don't know. Perhaps you've tried to aid us, but you've hindered us, I fear."

departments and organizations of the church, will have charge of the nine booths and cafetria. The goal set is one thousand dollars, which seems not too high in view of the fact that the date set is November 14, 15 and 16 (about the time people are beginning to buy for Christmas) and that much attention will be given to the display of a large variety of articles suitable for Christmas gifts. The committees will meet again Wednesday evening, June 27, and the work of making and soliciting articles for sale will be begun at once.

PHONES Pinehurst "GOOD THINGS TO EAT" HOT WEATHER DIET. Summer came galloping into town yesterday. And we don't mean maybe, no matter what the calendar says. It isn't the calendar but the thermometer that gives you that hot weather feeling about what you eat. Almost everybody gets finicky about his grub when the temperature soars. That's one of nature's arrangements. Plenty of things you could eat, and get away with, on a snappy February day, that would lay you low in an August hot wave. If ever there is a time it behooves the purveyor of the family meals to watch what's what, it is when the mercury goes up and human vitality goes down. Especially these first hot spells, before we get acclimated. Only the absolutely fresh, scrupulously cared-for food things are right for blazing weather. Pinehurst would as soon think of sprinkling its steaks with arsenic as of selling wilted vegetables, fish or meat kept a day too long, inferior or suspicious foods of any kind. And when summer suddenly jumps in, like this, it finds Pinehurst doubly alert. Hot weather quality, exacting as it is, is maintained at this shop. You betcha. By express from Boston, fresh from the ocean to you: You can "bank on" the freshness of Pinehurst Fish—we do not carry any over. Fancy Fresh Mackerel This is Mackerel season—have one broiled or baked—just tell us how you want it fixed and we will have it delivered to you all dressed ready for the pan. Fresh Steak Halibut Nice white steak Halibut, covered with a butter sauce and garnished with parsley makes a pretty dish—and it tastes better than that. Fresh Salmon, Butter Fish, Sole Filet of Haddock, Cod to bake or boil. Steak Cod, Filet of Sole Special on Salt Mackerel, 2 for 29c. Look in our south window—you will think you are walking down through the rows of a melon patch in the Imperial Valley, California. We suggest ripe Cantaloupes. Buy a half dozen so that you will have enough to last over Sunday. For a salad these hot noons—Boston Head Lettuce 9c; Ripe Tomatoes, Hearts of Celery, Cucumbers, Ripe Pineapples, Beets or a can of Fruits for Salad. Cold Boiled Ham, Pressed Ham, Jellied Corn Beef. Baked Ham, Veal Loaf, Minced Ham.
