

JAPAN TO KEEP CHILDREN FROM SEEING U. S. FILMS

Love Themes in Movies Cause Educators to Pass New Law; Film Industry Makes Protest.

Washington, July 6.—Japan's program to regulate by law the attendance of children at movies has aroused American film producers. They may seek the aid of the State Department in their attempt to prevent such drastic action by the Tokyo government.

Having its policy upon a recent survey involving more than 16,000 school children, the Japanese Ministry of Education has declared that "practically all pictures shown are intended for adults and are of a character likely to have an injurious effect upon the minds of children." The youngsters form an important part of the movie audience in Tokyo and other great Japanese cities. As most of the films exhibited in Japan are from American studios, the drive against the school-child trade is a direct blow at the American industry. No other nation ever has attempted such legislation, according to movie representatives here seeking a "gentleman's agreement" which would avoid formal regulation by the law.

Children's Shows

Japan's first attempt to keep the little Nipponese away from the movies was by agreement between the Tokyo municipality and the theatre operators, under which special children's shows were arranged twice weekly, with the films approved by the Ministry of Education. This plan failed because parents insisted on taking their young to the adult performances with them.

The law being advocated by the Ministry of Education, according to reports received by government agents here, would entirely prohibit attendance by children of school age save at performances approved from beginning to end by a government inspector.

Like Love Films

A questionnaire sent to thousands of Japanese school children revealed that the youngsters almost unanimously prefer pictures with a love theme. This preference, the Japanese education officials declare, is created solely by the prominence of love scenes in current reels.

They assert they must prevent this vicarious and premature stimulation of love interest in children by ironclad regulations it necessary. The movie men counter that the love scenes give a wholesome outlet to natural impulses and are in fact a good influence upon young minds.

RICH MAN'S SON KILLED IN CRASH

William Raskob Dies When Auto Overturns—Was a Student at Yale.

Centerville, Md., July 6.—Funeral services for William Raskob, 19-year-old son of John J. Raskob, vice president of the Dupont Company, of Wilmington, Del., killed in an automobile accident near here late yesterday, will be held here tomorrow afternoon. The body then will be taken to Wilmington, and interment will be at the Cathedral cemetery in that city.

Young Raskob, a student at Yale University, was driving his automobile from Wilmington to the Raskob summer home near Centerville, when the machine left the road. In an attempt to get back on the concrete, it was said, the youth lost control and the high powered car catapulted over an embankment. It turned over twice and righted itself, but young Raskob was thrown through the windshield.

Killed instantly when his head was crushed. Doctors W. H. Fisher and H. F. McCarron, of Centerville, were summoned and pronounced the youth dead. He probably had been killed instantly, it was said.

The body was ordered taken to an undertaking establishment, and a coroner's inquest brought forth a verdict of accidental death.

The elder Raskob, who had just returned from the Houston convention, where he had gone with a party including members of Gov. Smith's family, was in New York when news of the death of his son reached him. He reached Centerville last night. Other members of the Raskob family also are at the summer home.

Besides being an official of the Dupont Company, Raskob is chairman of the finance committee of the General Motors Corporation.

CANADA--U. S. TO WAGE WAR ON SMUGGLING

Railroad Officials to Meet on July 18 in Washington to Plan Methods of Stopping Present Practice.

Washington, July 6.—Officials of railroads operating between United States and Canada have been called for a conference on July 18 with Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Seymour Lowman for a check-up on steps taken to prevent smuggling between the two countries.

In announcing it today, Lowman explained that about a month ago, the entire situation had been laid before the rail executives and customs officers at Buffalo, where an agreement was reached to take drastic action against smugglers.

Because of the dictate of the Treasury Department for additional regulatory activities in connection with freight and express traffic, it was decided at that time to give the railroads an opportunity to work out an anti-smuggling campaign.

Advice Followed

Advices to Lowman indicate that such a plan has been devised by the railroad people and that it will be presented at the conference. It is probable that a group of Canadian and American customs officials will set in.

Included in the list of railroads to be represented are the Canadian National, Canadian Pacific, Pere Marquette, New York Central and Delaware & Hudson.

Officials indicate that if the railroads do not present a constructive, workable plan, they will be given additional time to check smuggling. Failure then will mean drastic action on the part of the Treasury.

NEW YORK GREETES "THE GIRL LINDY"

Big Parade as Thousands Welcome First Woman to Fly Atlantic.

New York, July 6.—Miss Amelia Earhart, the tall, slim Boston settlement worker who was the first woman to fly across the Atlantic in an airplane and her two companions on that dramatic adventure, Wilmer Stultz, pilot, and Louis Gordon, mechanic, returned today in triumph to their native country and were warmly welcomed by the City of New York.

"Welcome Amelia," was the greeting shouted from the windows of skyscrapers as the flyers were escorted by blaring bands up Broadway after they had been taken off the liner President Roosevelt which came in from Southampton, England, this morning.

The Girl Lindy

The blonde, brown-skinned Amelia, who bears a striking resemblance to Col. Charles A. Lindbergh and who has been referred to as "The Girl Lindy" blushed profusely time and again as she acknowledged the tribute with a wave of her hand.

An escort of several thousand police met the flyers as they landed at the battery at 10:30 a. m., and preceded them to the City Hall where they were officially welcomed by the city.

Miss Earhart seemed bewildered by the crowds that lined lower Broadway and the interest that her arrival had created. It was, however, a rather quiet reception, as such receptions go, lacking the uproar and excitement of greetings accorded other famous flyers in the past, but it was sincere enough. For one thing the weather was damp and drizzly. Then, too, the public had become accustomed to welcoming heroes and heroines of the air.

Meets Reporters

Newspapermen bombarded Miss Earhart with questions as she came up the bay in the city's official welcome boat, the Macom. She replied freely and graciously to the questions but none of the reporters was able to obtain from her confirmation or denial of the report that she is engaged to Samuel Chapman, an electrical engineer of Boston.

"That's my private life," she remarked.

Asked if she would continue to fly, she replied: "I'm not too sure certainly, I'm too young."

Trotsky, Ill, Is Removed To Resort In Mountains

Moscow, July 6.—Leon Trotsky, exiled leader of the dwindling "opposition faction" in the Communist Party, has been removed from Alma Ata to a mineral springs resort in the North Caucasus, it was learned here today. He is taking the baths in a small sanitarium, but whether his health has taken a turn for the worse is not known. The Soviet officials kept secret the name of the village.

When Trotsky was deported from Moscow last winter he was suffering from tuberculosis, but was understood to have improved after reaching the warmer climate in Turkestan. However, when summer set in the heat became so intense that Trotsky could not stand it and asked to be transferred, at least temporarily.

The hot winds which sweep from Alma Ata to the Gobi desert often cause the thermometer to rise to 125 degrees. The temperature hovers around 90 degrees even at night.

The central executive committee of the Communist Party finally gave permission for the removal of Trotsky to a small out-of-the-way resort in the Caucasus Mountains.

Trotsky and his family are in strained circumstances. They are reduced to the black "war bread" now being used to conserve wheat.

MISS BOLL THREATENS TO SWIM ATLANTIC

Plymouth, Eng., July 6.—Miss Mabel Boll, whose ambition to be the first woman to fly from America to Europe was frustrated by Miss Amelia Earhart, announced today that she was declaring she would fly Atlantic.

"I am either going to fly to America or else swim," said the aviatrix.

THRASHES BOY FOR THEFT; IS ARRESTED

Ralph Lupachino Trounces Son Who Treated Chums On Dad's Savings.

In order to punish his eight-year-old boy, Ralph Lupachino of 102 Clinton street tied the boy in the cellar after whipping him with a razor strop. This was yesterday at noon and after whipping the boy he left him and went to his work in the dressing mill. A short time later the cries of the boy were heard by Elizabeth Leemon who lives next door. She went into the cellar and released the little fellow. There are three children and both father and mother work in the silk mills.

The police were informed of the boy's condition and Sergeant John Cupachino was ordered to the charge of abusing his boy. In court the little fellow showed the marks of the razor strop on his back. He told the judge that his father tied him in the cellar.

Stole $10

On the witness stand Lupachino gave his reasons for whipping the boy. He had learned from neighbors that he was spending money very freely for ice cream during the forenoon. A number of children in the neighborhood had helped him eat the cream. The boy had spent about $2.00 for it. The father questioned the boy as to where he got the money and he refused to tell. He said he whipped him, because he thought he had stolen the money somewhere.

Finally the little fellow admitted he had taken $10 of his father's money which was in his bedroom.

WOMEN DEMOCRATS TO DESERT PARTY

So Says Mrs. Clem Shaver; Raps Smith for His Wet Leanings.

Washington, July 6.—Millions of Democratic women will bolt the party this November because a wet, Gov. Al Smith of New York, was nominated at Houston, Mrs. Clem Shaver, wife of the retiring chairman of the Democratic national convention committee, declared in a statement today.

She is one of the leaders of the National Woman's Democratic Law Enforcement League, which campaigned at Houston for a dry.

She criticized such Democratic leaders as Gov. Dan Moody of Texas, ex-Secretary of Navy Josephus Daniels, Senator Carter Glass of Virginia and Senator Joe Robinson, vice-presidential nominee for announcing their support of Smith.

If Gov. Smith had been "honest and sincere," she added, he would have declined the nomination on a dry platform.

Her statement in part, follows: "Regardless of what Democratic leaders from top to bottom may do, we dry Democratic women will not support the dripping wet ticket and the joke platform named by the Tammany delegates to the recent convention at Houston."

A "Booze-O-Crat"

"We say a man who will shut his eyes like an ostrich to the things which the Democratic Party has always stood for is a 'Booze-O-Crat,' not a Democrat."

The Democratic nominee has always said in his public utterances that the party should make the platform and the candidate should stand on it. He has always said that his one outstanding issue is whiskey and booze—the return of legalized liquor traffic, which means the return of the licensed saloon, every politician knows it, and when the party adopted a 'dry' platform if the nominee had been either honest or sincere in his public utterances he could have done nothing but decline the nomination. He did not and therefore stamped himself as a charlatan and a faker who is attempting to prove that Lincoln was wrong and that you can fool all of the people all of the time.

ITALIAN FLYERS SAFE AFTER REPORTED LOST

Yale's Pals Take Vow At Gangster's Funeral

New York, July 6.—With Frank's Yale's laid to rest, gangland's brief truce was over today. It was to endure only until the recognized leader of Brooklyn's gangsters and peer of "Scarface" Al Capone was buried. A quest for four western gunmen was anxiously rushed by police. They hope for arrests before the crackle of gunfire carries out the promises of revenge made by Yale's benchmen.

Yale's slayers are known. Inspector John D. Coughlin declared today. Four Chicago gunmen, it was learned, conferred in Miami last week with Scarface Al Capone, former Yale, ally with whom the Brooklyn gunman recently had a disagreement. The four left Miami in time to reach New York Sunday. Yale was shot that afternoon.

These are the four police hope to take into custody before Yale's followers can carry out the succinct threat expressed in flowers at Yale's funeral.

"We'll see them, kid," read the letter on a satin ribbon across a pillow of roses.

Five of those who mourned at Yale's grave were called to answer police questions before they had doffed the neat black suits they wore to the funeral. They were hailed ostensibly for driving through traffic signals, but questioned on other than traffic violations.

One of the five was "Little Augie" Pissano, Yale's right-hand man and his reputed successor. Inspector Coughlin ordered them then fingerprinted and their records checked up.

The records were strangely similar. Each time one of the five had fallen athwart the law, the notation "discharged" had been written on the police records.

VEIL OF MYSTERY SHROUDS TRAGEDY

Strange Rumors Follow Disappearance of Millionaire; May Be Suicide.

London, July 6.—While Captain Alfred Loewenstein, noted Belgian capitalist, was generally believed to be dead, the veil of mystery which surrounded his strange disappearance from an airplane while bound from this city to Brussels on Wednesday evening was not pierced today.

Many strange rumors were current that were grouped as follows:

1. That Loewenstein accidentally fell to his death from the plane while crossing the English channel;
2. That the capitalist, faced with the possibility of being injured by business rivals through his inability to contract huge loans, committed suicide;
3. That the Belgian financier is not dead, but may turn up later with an explanation of his mysterious "disappearance."

An official investigation in France has been concluded without any formal finding. The French police frankly admitted that they did not know whether Loewenstein had fallen from the plane accidentally or had plunged to his death through design.

The Loewenstein shares were a little stronger on the Stock Exchange.

HOOVER PLANS TO CAMPAIGN IN THE EAST

To Make Strong Bid for Support in New England; Has Hopes of Carrying Smith's Own State.

Washington, July 6.—A campaign program, by which Herbert Hoover hopes to carry the most Atlantic seaboard states, will be determined at a series of conferences here this week end between the Republican presidential nominee and his eastern advisors. It was announced today.

The conferences will evolve a campaign strategy designed to keep New York, New Jersey, Massachusetts, Connecticut and Rhode Island in the Republican column next November despite Democratic claims that Gov. Al Smith will win them due to his "wetness." The Hoover board of strategy appeared particularly hopeful of carrying New York, Smith's home bailiwick.

To Take Time Off

Mr. Hoover will take time off from his commerce department duties, it was understood, to attend some of the conferences. Hubert Work, the new Republican national chairman, will preside in his absence. Senator George H. Moses, of New Hampshire, the new eastern manager, will attend, as will Franklin Fort, of New Jersey, Ogden Mills, of New York, and the Re-

SEARCHERS SEEK MISSING SPINNER

John Anderson, Moody Hillardville Man, Gone Since Wednesday Afternoon.

John Anderson, a spinner employed by the E. E. Hillard Company, has been missing from his home on Adams street since early in the afternoon of July 4 and his non-appearance has caused much anxiety to his wife, who is the mother of three children, the youngest a month old.

Anderson, who is about forty years of age, lives in the small house on the east side of Adams street just north of the bridge over the Hockanum river. He is known to be of a despondent temperament and last September attempted suicide by hanging.

He was found in the cellar at his home at that time and was taken to the Manchester Memorial hospital for treatment.

He was reported to be in the vicinity of Middle Turnpike and Adams street last evening and a searching party was formed. They hunted through the woods in the vicinity, but could get no trace of the missing man. There is considerable anxiety lest he may again have attempted to take his life.

The last seen of Anderson by his family he was wearing no coat. He had on a brown cap and brown trousers and wore a blue work shirt. The hunt for the missing man continued late this afternoon, but no one has succeeded in locating him at Herald press time.

DEATH BY ACCIDENT

Dunkirk, France, July 6.—That the mysterious circumstances surrounding the death of Captain Alfred Loewenstein, world-famous banker and financier, will probably never be known and that a verdict of "death by accident" will be handed down by officials investigating the tragedy was indicated today.

Chief of Police Treillard, who is in charge of the investigation of the Belgian "Crosses" death today stated to International News Service that the apparent lack of cause for suicide would probably lead the investigators to hand down such a verdict.

"I am now certain Loewenstein was not murdered," Treillard said. "It was either an accident or a suicide. Under such extraordinary circumstances, it is most difficult to make an official decision but because there is no apparent reason for suicide, I think the investigators will prefer to pronounce a verdict of 'death by accident.'"

Rome to Rio Aviators Land at Touros, on Brazilian Coast—No Word of Them for Hours Before—Plan to Continue Flight as Soon as Machine Has Been Refueled.

Rio De Janeiro, July 6.—After being reported "lost" for hours, word was received here today that the record-breaking Italian aviators, Captain Arturo Ferrarin and Major Carlo Del Prete landed at Touros, on the Brazilian coast, near Cap Sao Paulo, at 10:10 o'clock last night, Brazilian time. Gov. La Martine, of the State of Rio Grande Del Norte, telegraphed that the flyers were safe and had spent the night at Touros.

Owing to the inability of radio stations to get in touch with the aviators, it had been assumed at first that they spent hours flying over the coast in storm and fog before landing.

LOST FOR HOURS

Rio De Janeiro, July 6.—After being lost for hours in storm and fog over the Brazilian coast, Captain Arturo Ferrarin and Major Carlo Del Prete, Italian aviators who made a record non-stop flight from Rome to Brazil, landed this morning at Touros, in the State of Rio Grande Del Norte, 50 miles north of Natal, said a dispatch from Natal.

Inability to get in wireless communication with the Italians led to fears they had made a forced landing in some isolated spot and an airplane had been sent out from Natal to search for them just before word was received from Touros that they had come down there.

Ferrarin and Del Prete had made their first landing on the beach ten miles north of Natal at 7:50 last night (local time) completing their 4,600 mile flight from Rome and setting an aviation distance record. After a rest of an hour and twenty minutes, they hopped off again for Rio De Janeiro about 1,200 miles, allowing for coast line detours.

"Hello Bill," Weather Bureau said the weather was bad off the coast with storms sweeping some sections of it, but the flyers said they would risk it.

Radio stations on the northeast coast tried to get in wireless communication with the aviators, but failed. It was reported that the Olinda station near Pernambuco had picked up a message from the plane at 3 a. m., but this was officially denied by the State Telegraph Agency.

Finally word came through from Touros that the Italian plane "had been picked up." This left it in doubt as to whether radio communication with the flyers had been re-established or that the plane had come down.

Immediately afterward another telegram referred to the "reception to the flyers" indicating they had made a forced landing. As Touros is 50 miles north of Natal and Rio De Janeiro is south of Natal, the indications were that the flyers had got lost in the thick weather and had circled through the clouds after losing their way.

This city is approximately 1,500 miles south of Touros.

Rush to Scene

Governor Lamartine of the State of Rio Grande Del Norte left immediately for Touros to give what assistance he could to the aviators and help them on their way, said a later dispatch from Natal, immediately after word was flashed from Touros that the Italian seaplanes was down there a caravan of motor cars set out for that place from Natal.

Following the long hours of suspense there was much rejoicing here over the news that the daring aviators had at last been found.

After hopping off at Genipabu Beach, 10 miles north of Natal last night, the aviators did not fly at once in the direction of Rio. In fact, there was some doubt as to their intentions. The Italians said they were going to look for a better landing field and turned northward.

Gov. Lamartine, who was attempting to keep in touch with the course of the flight, sent word to Rio at 2:50 a. m. (Brazilian time) that he had not received any word from the Italian plane since it hopped off at Genipabu beach.

The radio station on Cape North, which had been trying to get word from the aviators, reported that it had been unable to get any reply.

Storm increased

Meanwhile word had been received that the storm on the northeastern coast had increased in violence.

At 6 o'clock this morning the Brazilian seaplane "Lactocera" hopped on at Natal to fly up and deeply entangled in aviation to leave it now. With bands playing, Grover Whalen, silk hat and all, officially welcomed Miss Earhart and her companions in the Macomb nosed against the liner President Roosevelt at Quarantine. Whalen was accompanied by other city dignitaries, and there were present, too, a group of "Friends from Boston," a reception committee from Chicago (she is a graduate of the Hyde Park high school of Chicago) and a committee of citizens from Williamsburgh, Pa., the home of Stultz.

Wife Meets Pilot. Pilot Stultz's wife and mother, Mrs. Clara Stultz of Williamsburgh, were present, as was Miss Anna Bruce, the blue-eyed, brown-haired fiancée of Gordon. The two men flyers were greeted with hugs and kisses.

Miss Earhart wore a blue crepe de chine ensemble with large cuffs of white fox, grey silk stockings and patent leather pumps. Her skirt came well down below the knees. On her head she wore a fashionable like an aviator's helmet of close-fitting feathers.

She explained that she had two trunks of clothes on board the Roosevelt that she had purchased in London. "Only two trunks," she remarked. "Very modest, isn't it. And when I went over I took only a tooth brush and a hair brush."

It was three weeks ago, then, practically unknown, that Miss Earhart hopped off from Newfoundland in the Fokker monoplane "Friendship," and flying through blinding mists, fog and rain landed in Wales. She was the first in the first seaplane that ever made a non-stop flight to Europe. Three women had lost their lives trying to span the ocean.

Miss Earhart talked modestly, albeit freely, of her flight. "I kept a log to hand down to my grandchildren," she said. "Then you expect to get married?" a reporter asked. "Every woman hopes to get married sometime," she parried with a dazzling smile.

Glad She's Home. She told the press that it "felt good" to get back home. Asked concerning her plans she said they were indefinite. "I'm not sure just what I'll do," she said. "I still have my job as a settlement worker. I hope, and of course I will continue to be interested in it."

Lupachino told the court that his oldest boy was at present in the hospital undergoing an operation and that he was saving the money to pay the hospital bill. He admitted he was angry when he learned the boy had taken $10 and that was the reason he punished him so severely.

Judge Johnson continued the case until Wednesday, July 11 until he could learn more of the true condition of the family. Other Cases. William McNally who lives in Hartford was before the court this morning charged with driving an automobile while under the influence of liquor. He was represented in court by Attorney William Harney and because of the fact that two of the witnesses did not appear today the case went over until tomorrow morning.

The case of Ross Ansello, charged with keeping liquor with intent to sell, was again continued for two weeks, this time to July 20. The police have been unable to locate the principal witness in the case.

'JUNGLE JIM' IS NEW PLAYGROUND STUNT

Expensive Apparatus Given to Community Club by an Anonymous Donor.

Something entirely new in the line of recreation equipment will be installed at the Community Club playgrounds at the north end next week, it was stated today by Director Jerry Fay. A mechanical contrivance known as a "jungle gym" will be erected on Tuesday. It has been donated by a well known north end resident who wishes her name withheld.

It is an expensive piece of apparatus made almost entirely of iron piping and costing $420. The jungle gym is a sort of aerial maze, 16 feet long, 10 feet wide and 8 feet high. It is built in such a manner that a person of ordinary size can climb through it in various directions.

According to Director Fay, the "jungle gym" provides opportunity for practically every kind of physical exercise. It is constructed in such a manner, the pipes running in all directions, that it is quite a trick to climb through the inside of it from bottom to top without touching the ground. Fay says that the "jungle gym" is for use of adults as well as children. He told of an instance where a man had "d one" installed for his own personal use, as an ideal exercise.

The playgrounds are open from 10 to 12 in the morning, 2 to 4 in the afternoon and 6:30 to 9 at night.

down the coast in search of the Italian machine. A Brazilian seagoing tug, with the commander of the Natal port aboard, set out to comb the beaches. While there was considerable anxiety, it was believed in official circles that the radio apparatus on the Italian plane was in trouble and that there was no immediate cause to fear for the safety of the airmen.

It was hoped here that the plane had not been damaged and that the Italians could continue their flight to this city today—weather permitting. The two Italian flyers now hold two of the most sought after aviation records. Recently, they established the 58 hours and 35 minutes in their Savoia-54, the same plane in which they crossed the South Atlantic in a spectacular flight yesterday.

The flyers' route took them across the Mediterranean sea, through the Straits of Gibraltar and then southward over the Atlantic via the Cape Verde Islands. They encountered perilous weather in the last part of their journey and apparently had some trouble in maintaining their bearings after reaching the coast of Brazil.

They were sighted over Natal several hours before coming down Pernambuco. Almost four hours later they came down at Point Genipabu. "The flight went splendidly during the first half," said Ferrarin. "After darkness fell it was pitch black and for hours we flew with only our compass to guide us over the Atlantic. Shortly after daybreak yesterday we ran into bad weather. As we approached the Brazilian coast we flew for hours through a storm at low altitude. We encountered stiff headwinds but fought our way through them. We heard radio stations calling us, but could not reply."

Ferrarin revealed that the wheels of the plane's landing gear were broken in landing. He continued: "After riding for a long time through the storm we sighted land. Then we knew that we had fulfilled our mission—that we had reached the American continent. After reaching the beach at Natal we turned northward in search of a better landing place. We flew out over the water at a low altitude until we saw the beach at Touros. There we decided to come down. But, owing to the heavy weight of the machine the wheels were broken by the sharp contact with the ground.

"I am afraid we cannot continue to Rio in our own plane because it may be impossible to obtain spare parts here of the same kind. We should need to repair the machine." A dispatch from Natal said that the Italian airmen had been taken on board the Brazilian seaplane "Accoreure"-5 Touros to fly to Natal. This telegram added that the aviators might decide to fly from Natal to this city in another plane.

New Resort Popular.

Sandy Beach smashed all previous records for attendance and business July 4th, a crowd of 3,500, surpassing any previous attendance record for a single day at Sandy Beach since the park was opened, being present for the holiday. The total admissions to the new beach since the opening June 27th has reached 3,000 for four nights or an average attendance of 750. A crowd of at least 2,000 was in the water practically all day on the Fourth until the shower sent a goodly number scurrying for home while at least 1,500 remained in their cars or entered the ball room where music by Rabeck's twelve piece orchestra provided music throughout the afternoon. Six hundred attended the dance in the evening bringing the total attendance figure to 3,000 admissions in a week. Tomorrow evening Sandy Beach ballroom will offer as an attraction Lionel J. Kennedy and his broadcasting orchestra and a crowd of at least 600 is expected to be on hand to enjoy the splendid program that will be featured.

HOOPER PLANS TO CAMPAIGN IN THE EAST

publican national committeemen from all the northern seaboard states. A decision also will be reached at these conferences fixing the date for notification of Mr. Hoover at his home in Alto, Cal. Once the date is determined, the itinerary of Hoover's trip to the Pacific coast will be settled.

First Week in August. It appeared this morning that the date would be sometime between August 4 and August 11 with the probability that it would be one or the other, as both are Saturdays and the Hoover leaders favor a Saturday notification. The itinerary of Hoover's trip to the Pacific coast will be settled.

The secretary's birthday falls on Friday, August 10 and some of his associates urged that the notification date be fixed for that occasion. There was so much opposition to a Friday ceremony, however, that the proposal has been abandoned.

With the notification date fixed, the Hoover managers will arrange his trip to the Pacific coast including a stopover at Brule, Wis., for a conference with President Coolidge. Mr. Hoover will ask the President to "relieve" him of his duties in the Cabinet. There has been much mystery here as to whether the secretary intends to resign or merely to offer to resign. One of his closest friends declared the secretary would not resign but would "ask to be relieved" of his duties. This phraseology would allow the secretary to remain in the Cabinet should the President desire his continued services.

There were indications Hoover would depart from Washington about July 16 and reach San Francisco about July 25 or 26. At present, it was believed he would go west from Brule by the northern route and return later by the southern route, through Kansas city.

His present plans call for his leaving California in the last week of August with a stopover at West Branch, Iowa, the town of his birth.

ORANGEMEN TO DEFER BOYNE CELEBRATION

Anniversary of Ireland's Famous Battle Falls on Lodge Meeting Night; Held July 13

On Thursday evening July 12, the anniversary of the battle about which all Orangemen sing, the regular meeting of Washington P. O. L. No. 117 will be held. Because the regular meeting night falls on the anniversary of the annual celebration program will be deferred until Friday night, July 13.

On Friday night July 13 a supper and entertainment program in Orange Hall is planned. All Orange men and their families are invited to attend this celebration and the invitation is extended to all members of the Daughters of Liberty, No. 99.

Those who chanced to be awake at three o'clock this morning heard the fire alarm of the South Manchester department blow two or three short blasts. SMITH BACK IN ALBANY AWAITS NOTIFICATION

Albany, N. Y., July 6.—Back at the executive mansion today after a series of conferences in New York, Gov. Al Smith was trying to catch up on some lost sleep and at the same time make plans for his notification ceremony.

Final details for the notification are expected to be mapped out here tomorrow at a conference between the governor and Senator Ke. Pittman of Nevada, who will preside at the ceremony.

The governor is understood to have expressed a desire to some of the Democratic leaders that the notification ceremony be held as speedily as possible, and for that reason, it is expected to take place the latter part of this month. The date probably will not be announced until after the national committee meeting in New York next Wednesday.

If tentative plans, which are said to have the approval of the governor are carried out, the ceremony will take place on the steps of the capitol.

The governor will remain in Albany until next Tuesday when he will go to Bear Mountain park for a Boy Scout outing and from there to New York.

The annual vacation school opened Monday morning for a two weeks session, with Rev. Mr. Wain in charge, assisted by Mrs. Wain and Miss Bertsch, with Ahlene Badge at the piano. There were 22 boys and girls in attendance, with more promised later. Besides their studies they are engaged in different kind of handicraft, and at the end of the school there will be an entertainment and exhibition of the work.

There are two new teachers, Miss Amelia Grot at Chestnut Hill, and Miss Marie Bargfredd at the Center.

Everyone is greatly encouraged to note that the weather prediction has changed from a long dreary routine of "Showers tonight and tomorrow" to "continued fair tonight and tomorrow." Let us all hope they will prove true.

Mrs. Welles of Wethersfield is staying at the McCorkell house.

Young people from the Lebanon Baptist church presented a two act play "Just Plain Mary" at the town hall Friday evening. The hall was well filled with an interested and appreciative audience. The play was well given, the characters entering into their parts in a remarkable manner for an amateur play. The acting of Rev. Mr. Littlefield in the role of Daniel Judkins the farmer, was especially appreciated. Between the acts four young ladies sang a Dutch song in costume, and Miss Beatrice Littlefield sang two numbers.

The interior of the chapel is being redecorated, the ceiling being painted white, the upper walls cream and the lower walls a deeper shade. The Christian Endeavor society is paying for the work.

C. A. Holmes, Mrs. Marlon Holmes and Frederick Hunt, visited relatives in New London Sunday. On their return they were accompanied by Francis Hunt, who will visit his grandmother, Mrs. Jennie Hunt.

Mr. and Mrs. Herman Brown and two children of Hartford, spent the 4th at the home of Mr. Brown's parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Brown. Hubert Little, of Meriden, spent the 4th of the home of his brother, Alonzo Little.

Miss Anne Krieger and Karl Levy, of Baltimore, are guests at Top Lodge.

It was a regular old fashioned Fourth of July, as far as the weather was concerned, the sun being very hot. There was no special program observed in Columbia, everyone celebrating to his individual taste. The lake proved a big attraction, one of the biggest crowds ever known coming from various nearby cities, hundreds of cars being parked during the day. Nearly everyone took a swim in the cooling waters of the lake, and many cases of sunburn were observed.

Fred Ayers, 6-year-old grandson Fred Barney was playing around the water at So. Coventry Lake and found a fish book in one row boat. Looking around he found a part of a worm in another, pulled a piece of common cord from his pocket and tied it to the old book. Standing in one of the boats in less than 4 feet of water he threw the hook in and in a very few minutes his folks saw him hauling in a 4 lb. house. On looking they found he had caught a 4 pound 4 ounce bass. He never stopped to take it off the hook and cord but dragged it all the way to the house.

An elephant weighs several tons, but nevertheless can travel at an astonishing speed and when angered he will charge his adversary, who must be unusually lithe to escape. Captain Haynes has captured many of these big fellows, outwitted them in their own game, and has tamed them to haul great loads of teakwood through the Burma jungles. An interesting story of some of his adventures will be told over WTIC this evening. 8:00-Antique Organ recital. Chante Celeste, Matthews. Romance, Gillette. Cavatina, Raff. Tocatta, Dubois. EACH season our buyers visit all of the big furniture markets of the country. Every piece of furniture they select is chosen after careful comparison. It must be of correct design—of Watkins quality—and must be rightly priced.

Now it is time to make new selections at Grand Rapids. The things that still remain from the Summer markets must be closed out.

And that's just what makes Watkins Brothers Semi-Annual Clearance Sales different. Our regular stock pieces—the distinctive things that our buyers so painstakingly selected—are the ones that are reduced.

Discontinued patterns, suites from which one or more pieces are missing and odd pieces remaining from suites are, of course, included at tremendous savings. This Summer's Semi-Annual Clearance opens tomorrow, July 7th. Come just as early as you can for many pieces and suites are limited to one of each and duplicates cannot be secured at the low sale prices!

ALL WET

It is not easy to see how the forthcoming political campaign is to be fought out, as Dr. Work is said to have indicated, on the issue of the tariff. The tariff cannot be, this year, as important an issue as it has been in the past, because the Democrats have, for the first time, definitely abandoned their historic position of advocating a tariff for revenue only and have at last admitted the entire validity of the equally historic Republican principle of a protective tariff.

Only in one way can the tariff, apparently, be employed as a commanding issue—and that is inferential. There is force, and a great deal of it, to the very fact that the Democratic party has changed front on this most vital of economic differences. That party has admitted, in effect, that for sixty years it has been as wrong as wrong could be in its conception of a correct tariff policy for American, and the Republican party utterly right.

In campaign after campaign, ever since the Civil War, the Democrats have appealed to the people to be reborn to power so that they could cut down the tariff to a bare revenue basis. And now they admit that their whole theory of taxation of imports has been completely mistaken. The Democrats' about-face on the tariff policy does create an issue, or rather a point of illustration, which Republican debaters cannot help but make use of. It provides self-confessed proof of inadequacy as a governing element. And a party which admits that it has been for half a century absolutely wrong in its conception of the most basic provision for American industrial prosperity is not likely to inspire sufficient confidence in its wisdom to induce the voter to place his and his family's future in its hands.

NICARAGUA PROPAGANDA

A report of the collector-general of customs of the Republic of Nicaragua, just now being circulated in this country as a document of the 70th Congress, will be principally interesting to the average American from the fact, not so widely known as it might be, that there is such an official as the collector-general of customs of the Republic of Nicaragua and that he is an American official who reports to the United States government.

It is eighteen years since President Diaz, to whom Nicaraguan nationalists object as being a dummy for the United States, agreed to the placing of Nicaraguan customs in the hands of an American overseer, the purpose of the deal being to protect the interest of American bankers who had loaned Nicaragua $5,000,000.

There has never been the slightest intimation that the job of the collector-general was not being honestly administered. But the fact that a foreign government had its fingers on the revenues of the country, with no immediate prospect of ever letting go, could hardly be expected to be flattering to the national consciousness of the Nicaraguans or improve our popularity among them.

Nor will it strike Nicaraguans—nor perhaps all Americans—that the report of this official ought to take the form of a rather ingenuously frank discussion of the question of American intervention in the present insurrection. When Mr. Hamm, the collector-general, goes a bit out of his way to declare that this or that would have happened if it hadn't been for the coming of the American marines he is departing from the realms of known fact and entering upon fields of speculation, and he ought at least to modify his declarations to the indicated extent. Moreover, the discussion of the Nicaraguans' characteristics with relation to revolutions and national temperament would seem to have no proper place in such a document.

However, it is probably because these things are in the report that it is now being circulated. Propaganda for retention of the United States' grip on an independent neighbor state. We don't like it.

ITALIAN ACES

The achievement of the Italian aviators, Captain Arturo Ferrarin and Major Carlo del Prete, in flying without stop from Rome to the Brazilian coast, quite definitely puts the kibosh on all other long distance overseas flights, including those of our own American air adventurers. The 4,600 miles flown exceeds by just about an even thousand miles the New York-Paris flight of Colonel Lindbergh. It is 700 miles longer than the Chamberlain-Levine journey from Roosevelt field to Eiselben, Germany, and it even exceeds by 400 miles of travel the estimated distance covered by the Byrd expedition which flew from New York to Ver-Sur-Mer, France, plus many hours of wandering in fog and rain somewhere in France. Ruth Elder had flown something more than half the distance covered by the Italians when her plane wound up its voyage in the ocean. Miss Earhart's recent crossing, notable event as it was, of course belongs in another class, being a comparatively short hop.

Whether the effect of the triumph of the Italian aviators will be to spur American aviators to new and more perilous strivings or whether it may have an opposite effect there is no way of telling. Perhaps it is quite as well that the palm for this particular kind of achievement has passed to hands other than American. It is not a good thing for any nation to get the idea that it can always do anything and everything better than any other nation.

The feat of the Italian aviators is a notable one. No praise or adulation extended to any of our American aviators for courage and skill can be withheld from them. Right now they stand at the top of the heap in their specialty. It would annoy plenty of Americans very little if the palm for long distance overseas flying should remain with Captain Ferrarin and Major Del Prete and with European plane and engine builders.

SUDDENLY A MODEL

Massachusetts, which has been notoriously the worst state in New England for a motorist to find his way around in, has all of a sudden climbed into the spotlight of popularity in other quarters because its legislature passed a law providing for a uniform system of traffic signals. And such partly informed authorities on the subject as the New York Herald-Tribune are advising the rest of the New England states to hurry up and follow the Bay State's example.

In what? If Massachusetts' sudden reform from palpable neglect in road marking proves to be producing something better than we have in Connecticut, there will be little time lost in accepting the lesson on this side of the boundary. But up to yet it isn't observable that they do things so much better over the line.

Connecticut traffic signals may not be completely uniform—and it is yet to be proven that a uniform system of traffic systems is workable—but in this state there are very few towns or cities where the signal system isn't readily understandable, even by total strangers. Hartford, to be sure, has complicated her arrangements considerably, but the state as a whole has been for some time quite clearly traffic-directed, certainly much better than its northern neighbor. And its people will rather resent being told that they must hurry up and copy the Bay State's new law.

Suppose we wait a few minutes and see whether they've really got anything.

MISUNDERSTOOD

Jim Reed, who flopped from pronounced wetness to arid dryness all of a sudden when he was seeking the Democratic nomination for President with the aid of Southern dry votes, is frantically flopping back into wetness again, having found that the red hot rocks of rum denunciation have burned his political fingers.

The "moral forces of the country" are not embodied in the Anti-Saloon League, Jim now declares. He says the newspapers "strangely misunderstood" him at Houston when they represented him as saying so. That is a queer thing about newspapers—that when a man says "black" they cannot understand that he means "white." But Jim ought to know that he is bound to be thus misrepresented in anything he says—and not talk so much.

THE OLD RETURNS

Quite soon, it is announced, the movies are to show the development of the wigglers in vinegar, the growth of bacteria in cheese and such like weird demonstrations of the microscope. All of which will be brand new—to people too young to have attended, forty years ago, lectures illustrated by microscopic slides in a calcium lighted projector.

Right now we can recall the exact appearance of some of the monsters that live in yeast, in flour-and-water paste several hours old and in vinegar. To say nothing of the frightfully horrible creatures that dash madly about, devouring each other at a terrible rate, in a drop of sea water.

The kids of that generation got a fine kick out of the glorified magic lanterns that magnified invisible living organisms by some ten thousand diameters. Also some of the unholiest nightmares that ever human being was ridden by. When the movies spring the vinegar phalanxes, be warned and tie the youngsters in their beds after they have beheld the awfulness thereof. Children may be a good bit more hard boiled nowadays than they were a generation ago—but if they can watch one terrible looking animal being swallowed and digested by another much more terrible, four times as big and quite translucent into the bargain, without having the heebie-jeebies that night, we miss a guess.

New York, July 6.—In those hours just before dawn, when the all-nighters are starting for home and the "early to bed" are disturbed by approaching morning disillusions through the gilded and becrystallized open spaces of Manhattan ritzy ballrooms.

Disillusion enters in the shape of the scrubwoman. Whether she happens to be the scrubwoman at the Ritz "crystal room" or the Staten Island ferry lunch room, she is the same scrubwoman who came to "help out grandma" on Saturday. That is to say, she's the same type. Ofttimes she passes like a wrinkled, bent wreath before the bedridden guests who have clung to the bitter end.

The large and liveried gent who spins the revolving doors, or the other large and liveried gent who opens your taxi, may wear gold buttons and gold braid; but the scrubwoman always her own humble self, splashing her pall and mop about from spot to spot, wearily greeting the Manhattan dawn with the slush of water and the slapping up and down of her mop rag. Her eyes do not rise from the floor to survey the lonely glitter of rosettes, decorations and ornate fixtures.

Whether you find her in the lobby of a skyscraper or the office of a Wall street magnum or the ball room of a ritzy hotel, she remains the symbol of humble toil—perhaps the best symbol one can find in New York.

Noted in passing: . . . George Collins, the executive secretary to New York's mayor, was a truck driver for 17 years. . . . And one of the suavest, best dressed, genteel individuals, outside of Walker himself, or Adolph Menjou.

A swarm of bees in the old Hell's Kitchen belt. . . . Five people pursuing a rolling dime, and all but losing their lives. . . . After all, the middle of the street is not the safest spot in Manhattan. . . . Song pluggers. . . . Suburban real estate salesmen meeting the commutation trains. . . . And wearing lavender bands on their panamas. . . . Skeletons of umbrellas lining the gutter after a rain storm. . . . More trade for the street corner umbrella salesman.

The blind news butcher who sits in front of the Pennsylvania Station, talking things over with the Pullman porters. . . . Here he hears of the world; of things going on in Chicago, Florida, California.

And there's the blind man who mingles in the subway crowd each night. Here is a true miracle man of Manhattan. Many a night I have seen him leave the shuttle train, feel his way along the long, rushing lane at Times Square and take a Brooklyn-bound express. . . . Once aboard, he feels his way along with his stick, slapping it against the feet of those who line the seats.

PTOMAINE POISONING. More people are killed from what they eat than die from no eating. While most deaths are caused by a very slow food poisoning which interferes with some part of the body, we sometimes read about people dying suddenly from something they have eaten, and it is important that you know what causes this and what to do if you or some one close to you are so stricken. These substances that are poisonous in themselves, for example some classes of mushrooms containing a poisonous liquid called muscarine, while sometimes mistaken for food, can scarcely be classed as ptomaines. Some types of fish contain poisonous substances even when fresh, and one can only guard against these by knowing the varieties or by depending upon reliable markets.

Far more frequently met with than these poisonous substances are cases of poisoning from food that has become contaminated by improper handling. This is sometimes caused by the presence of air and live bacteria in metal containing foods, or from specific organisms such as tubercular bacilli, trichinosis or typhoid. Animals or bees may be fed upon substances that make their products poisonous to man. Rye may be infected with a smut causing epidemics or ergotism. Potatoes have been known to produce poisoning from using well sprouted potatoes or those which have lain in the sun after digging. Wild potatoes sometimes will do this also, producing jaundice. Peaches will sometimes cause "summer complaint" for some unidentifiable reason, possibly in some cases because the seeds are also used.

The treatment for any of these food poisonings is to give an emetic so as to freely wash out the stomach, and to give copious enemas. Then keep the patient active, exercising enough to produce sweating if possible. Sometimes the symptoms do not appear for several days, in which case it is advisable to give a cathartic and large quantities of water, with sweating and enemas.

The foregoing cases can not be classed as true ptomaine poisoning, since this is only caused by an alkaloid poison from putrefaction. The most poisonous of the ptomaines is mytilotoxin, found in spoiling mussels. Another very poisonous ptomaine is produced by the bacillus botulinus, and produces what is known as botulism, first known as sausage poisoning. This organism has also been found in ham, and as it is very widely distributed in the soil, it may be present in many vegetable products, most likely those that are home canned. The poisons are not present in raw or freshly cooked foods. The presence of bubbles of gas and the softened appearance of the soil.

He talks as though he had dreamed all or indeed to. He talks of people who pass of things that happen around him. . . . Sightless, he sees more than any one in the hurrying crowd about him. . . . And there's the blind man who mingles in the subway crowd each night. Here is a true miracle man of Manhattan. Many a night I have seen him leave the shuttle train, feel his way along the long, rushing lane at Times Square and take a Brooklyn-bound express. . . . Once aboard, he feels his way along with his stick, slapping it against the feet of those who line the seats.

Finally he locates the iron bars that guard the sliding train doors and there he perches, counting the stations on his fingers, keenly aware of each stop. And, they tell me, he never makes a mistake. GILBERT SWAN.

FACTS ABOUT CONNECTICUT
Compiled by the CONNECTICUT CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

(147) Connecticut Casualty Insurance Companies.

Like the life and fire insurance companies of Connecticut, the casualty companies of this state have a tremendous business each year. Premium income of the eight such companies and the casualty departments of the three life companies that write both life and casualty policies amounted to $166,000,000 last year. This is 1,006% more than the $15,000,000 in premium income during 1908.

The assets of these companies at the beginning of this year totaled $252,273,342, or 869% more than the assets of the six casualty companies in the state in 1908 which had assets totaling $26,287,437.

The paid up capital of the present casualty companies and the three life-casualty companies amounts to $44,900,000. Twenty years ago the combined capital was $4,250,000. Total liabilities (excluding capital and surplus) amounted to $264,212,874 last year. This included the liabilities of the eight casualty companies. Total liabilities excluding capital amounted to $15,984,679 twenty years ago.

Total disbursements a year ago amounted to $151,000,000. Twenty years ago disbursements totaled $14,847,706. The largest single expense each year was the net losses and claims paid, which a year ago amounted to $68,600,000 and twenty years ago to $6,200,000.

The surplus of the 11 companies over all liabilities today is more than 12 times the surplus of 1908. The figure for 1927 is $86,387,461 and for 1908, $7,032,757. Today the surplus as regard to policy-holders in these companies is almost $100,000,000.

The Romance of Shouldering a Civic Responsibility

The modern department store is much more than a market place. In clothing the people and furnishing the homes in any community, it shoulders a civic responsibility just as surely as do the police and fire department. In keeping people informed on new trends in fashion and interior decoration, it fulfills an educational job as certainly as do the schools. In arranging exhibits, fairs and special shows, it fulfills a public service as certainly as do libraries and museums. To realize that we contribute to the cultural as well as to the material side of this community is to find romance in business.

COLLEGE CREWS BATTLING TODAY FOR HONORS AT OLYMPIC REGATTA

Yale, Columbia, California and Princeton in Semi-Finals; Anything May Happen.

By MALCOLM ROY

Philadelphia, July 6.—Yale, Columbia, California and Princeton. These are four names to conjure with in the rowing world today, for it is from this group that the crew which will carry Old Glory to the Olympic regatta in Amsterdam next month, will emerge. They will race on the Schuylkill in the semi-finals today and in the finals tomorrow.

Each one of the four more than lived up to its fame of rowing greatness in the trial heats held yesterday and two of them, Columbia and Princeton, more than outdid themselves. It had hardly been expected that either of the two would stand out as such superlative crews as their splendid races stamped them to be. Just how they will endure their second trial by fire in the semi-finals this afternoon is a matter of conjecture but after yesterday's surprise almost anything is likely to happen in the two big clashes which bring California and Columbia together in the one semi-final and Yale and Princeton in the other.

On past performances Yale and California should win but this regatta is seeing past performances thrown into the discard right and left. Only sheer power and speed count on the Schuylkill these July evenings.

Dramatic Victory

There was something peculiarly dramatic in Columbia's smashing victory over Harvard yesterday and something of the epic about Princeton's dogged battle with the championship California crew, a battle in which the Tigers did not admit defeat until the last waning stroke had been rowed and the Golden Bears had jammed the prow of their slim craft, the Golden Gate, across the finish line by a scant length.

Yale's victory in its race with the highly praised but disappointing Wyandotte B. C. crew was expected. The Blue rowed in a perfunctory manner to defeat a relatively weak crew which had faltered digmally to come up to expectations.

Columbia was determined upon a rowing salvation after its heart rending defeat by California at Poughkeepsie and the shock occasioned by the loss of its main-spring, Edie Lambert, veteran stroke, only two days ago. The New Yorkers rowed Harvard into the ground in the first dozen strokes and won by five lengths.

Last Minute Switch

Captain Alister MacLean of the New York eight, switched from No. 2 to stroke only a few hours before the race, had a baptism of fire such as few novice stroke oars men have had, and he emerged a Columbia hero.

Princeton, a green and inexperienced crew, found itself for the first time in the heat of battle, and against the admittedly great California crew, Princeton jumped out from the back of the pack, as a scared rabbit and pulled a stroke that varied between 40 and 44 and never let the Golden Bears come within a quarter of a length of the lead until the race was over.

The rugged strength of California triumphed, however, despite these wild upsets by the Tigers. California finally

NEWS OF JACK WARHOP

Jack Warhop, who was with the New York Yankees for eight seasons until 1915, is now manager of the Spartanburg team in the Sally League.

HOW TIME HAS CHANGED!

Larry Lajoie once led the American League in hitting with a mark of 329. A player whose average doesn't beat that these days isn't reckoned a very great batter.

battled forward to win by three quarters of a length. In addition to the eight and four, the single scullers will get into the picture today with the veteran Walter Hoover seeking to regain some of his lost glory by racing to Amsterdam in the quest of Olympic victory. Against Hoover are eight other scullers with Russell Colman of Boston, Ken Myers of Philadelphia and Otto Schoppe of New Orleans standing out.

BY HENRY L. FARRELL

There is something with an instinctive kick in a ball game when the leader of the infielders holds up a pair of fingers and shouts—"Two down, everybody! Two down!"

It means that the biggest part of the job has been done and with two batters of the opposing side retired the momentary crisis has been passed in the average case.

Getting two men of the batting side is a happy relief for any ball club and getting two on the same play is a regular joy. And when a team develops a combination that can kill two as easily as one and makes a habit of it it has the fundamental foundation of a great team.

It is an old adage that the power of a ball club is shown by a line drawn through the middle of the diamond, meaning that a ball club to be good must have a good catcher, a good second baseman and a good center fielder.

Every great team has had a great second baseman but a great second baseman is not always a great pivot in a double play. It has been rare comparatively when a great second baseman was a great individual and a great combination man on a double play. Hornsby is one who is not and so is Frisch.

The value of a double play combination was shown by the famous old Chicago Club machine with Tinker, Evers and Chance, a combination of double killers that has passed its name down as a trade-mark for that play.

Barry to Collins to McInnis was the killing combination of the famous $100,000 infield of the Philadelphia Athletics and Peck to Harris to Judge spelled two pennants for the Washington Senators.

This season another smoothly functioning second base combination is threatening to double play the Cincinnati Reds into the National League pennant. Ford to Critz to Kelly had accounted for almost 100 double killings in the first quarter of the season and there is no telling what kind of a record they will be able to make before the season closes.

The Reds do not depend entirely upon their double-play combination, however, as the team has fine pitching and good hitting, but the spectacular work of Ford, Critz and Kelly has inspired the whole team.

Ford was nothing but an ordinary shortstop until he got working with Critz, who is the greatest defensive second baseman in baseball. They have established the fastest work around second base in the majors and in Kelly they have not only a good big target but the best arm in the league. The work of Kelly may be overlooked in the attention given to the starter and the pivot man but he was a woe double play man when he was with the Giants and when he had no such help. He is as good a pivot man on a double play as he is on the finishing end as he proved once in one of the greatest plays of world's series history and he can start them as well as any first baseman of all time.

There will be arguments, of course, about the greatest double play combination of all time, but Ford, Critz and Kelly are going after the record and you can't get behind records.

Evans Calls Kress Best Rookie At Bat

By BILLY EVANS

Unquestionably the batting star of the early season in the majors has been Shortstop Ralph Kress of the St. Louis Browns. He went so good during the first month of play that he crowded the veteran Walter Gerber out of the lineup and won for himself the job as a regular.

It is a rather interesting coincidence that the passing of Gerber from St. Louis was a good thing for the Boston Red Sox. Sold to that club, his presence in the infield steadied the youngsters and Carrigan's team put on a winning streak that carried it from last place to fourth.

While this chap Kress has been impressive in all features of play, his work at the bat has stood out. During the first month of play he was better than 500 a goodly portion of the time. Since then he has gone back considerable, but he remains among the first five.

Will Kress fade as the season progresses or will he continue to hit all kinds of pitching as he did during the first few months of play? Time alone will tell the story. During the 22 years I called balls and strikes in the American League, I saw a score or more of youngsters who started as has Kress. A few of them continued merrily on their way while a majority were stopped cold.

Kress has a nice free style at the bat and takes a healthy cut at the ball. He looks like a player who should stick in the 300 class or mighty close to it. In his first trip around the American League circuit, he wasn't bothered by the pitching. If he can survive the second and third meeting with the various staffs of the seven other clubs, then he must be labeled a real big league hitter.

The phenomenal start made by Kress at the bat is certain to make the youngsters a marked man. Rival pitchers are sure to work on him carefully. If he has a weakness it will soon be discovered. As major league pitchers have a habit of gossiping that knowledge will soon be broadcast all over the league. Last year Kress played with Tulsa in the Western League. His batting average was a few points better than 300. In the same league was Carl Lind, who has filled in so well for Cleveland at second base. In the minors last year, Lind rated about 15 points better than Kress as a batsman. Yet in the majors, Kress in the first 50 games of the year tops Lind by about 100 points. Explain that one.

In the National League, Lloyd Waner was the 1927 sensation. He did much to help the Pittsburgh club win the pennant. National League pitchers said he was away over his head, that he had a fatal weakness that would make itself apparent this year. So far the joke is on the pitchers, for Waner is hitting well over 300.

Manager Dan Howley of the St. Louis Browns will be more than satisfied if Kress hits within 100 points of the high mark he maintained during the early months of the race.

HOLDING FINAL TRYOUTS TODAY FOR PLACES ON OLYMPIC TEAMS

Cream of American Athletes at Cambridge for Trials; Paddock May Be Defeated in the Sprints.

By DAVIS J. WALSH Cambridge, Mass., July 6—America's challenge to all who would say it may be flung down this afternoon before the eyes of a world justifiably sceptical of its ability to take issue with this super-nation of the athletic ages.

The occasion will be the final tryouts for places on the American Olympic team of 1928, the dairy process when the cream is separated from cream, leaving cream. There will be no cheese, the American athlete being notoriously devoid of that product. In fact, these facts led to the separation of the separator, to begin its work tomorrow night, would be the Grade A article in a country less fortunate in its resources, which means nearly all countries.

Given favorable conditions, the challenge of the tryouts may take on the aspect of a warning of what is to come at Amsterdam. World's records were trembling in the balance this morning in at least four events and the class of competition in the others was so high that the performers anticipated were, in many cases, as good as those who the ultimate Olympic winners themselves will be able to offer.

Hahn... Lloyd Hahn, for one, was to go out after Peltzer's 800-metre record and, when that young man starts record-hunting, the chase is virtually over. He already has beaten the record in running to new world time in the half mile indoors and at the eastern tryouts some weeks ago, he got down under 1.53, in spite of a spotty track and the fact that obviously he was "shaded" in work. Hahn probably will want that record in order to show all foreigners just where they stand with him.

Another record they say is destined to go in the pool vault and now unofficially credited to a German, John Kuck, the western Ajax, is said, variously, to have done 56 and 59 feet in practice, eastern daylight time, nothing has been said about John using a tennis ball, so the assumption is that the record is his for the taking.

Other Records... Other records were more than possible today in the pool vault and running broad jump. Any time you get Sabn Carr and Lee Barnes vaulting over the same standard, the record is not long for this life, provided conditions are favorable. In that goes, too, the sprint jump to which De Hart-Hubbard is lending his presence, particularly with Ed Hamm in there to make him do at least 25 feet or take the consequences.

As for the sprinters, Los Angeles recently advertised its race of the century, featuring Paddock, Wyckoff, Lombardi and Borah. Conceding that the coast didn't overstate its case, which of course it wouldn't, the sprint series today and tomorrow will have to go down as the dashes of posterity; either "of" or "to" will do in this instance. The fields are such as 100 and 200 metres that the great New York handicapper, who rather esteems himself as a prophet, has gone so far as to leave Paddock out of the money in each, which means of the team for the first time since Charles they first attracted international attention in 1919. It may so happen that this seer, far from being wrong, may be sustained in full. In fact, even Charles himself need not be very far wrong and still finish behind sprinters like Bracey, Simpson, Wyckoff, Russell, Scholz, Hussey, Cumming, Draper, Lombardi, Winfrey, George, Haynes, Forster, Beckler and Jimmy Quinn.

Soran and Bowman suddenly come to overnight form, there will be no nattering for what might happen to the records in either event or both. With men like these available, all America needs to reclaim its printing prestige at the Olympics is a break in conditioning when it lets its men to Amsterdam. Application of this estimate can be made almost general with the team that finally will be selected for the international games.

The challenge that will be filed in the field of competition today and tomorrow will be such as to save little doubt as to the accuracy of this statement.

Local Sport Chatter

Sammy Massey's All-Star baseball team is to play the Economy Stores nine in East Hartford Sunday.

Alex Simpson is planning to take part in the Connecticut Professional tournament which will be held in the near future.

The caddies up at the Manchester Country Club are anxiously awaiting their annual tournament. Two were held last year according to the age of the participants and to say they were big successes would be putting it mildly.

The motor paced bicycle races scheduled for the Hartford Velodrome last night were naturally postponed because of the heavy rain. Incidentally, the weather man is again proving a big jinx for the Hartford sports promoters to overcome.

Jack Dwyer, former sports editor of The Herald, will be back on the job for the next two weeks to substitute for the writer who will make his annual trip to Niantic with the National Guard as staff correspondent.

Sam Prentice says he's about "fed up" on the job of managing the Manchester Green baseball team and plans to step out and let someone else handle the reins shortly. Sam is a great organizer and has put together a winning team at the Green. It is hinted that his efforts will be to perfect the Manchester Green girls' ball team in the future.

Incidentally, the Green Girls and Cheney Girls are scheduled to meet in the second game of their series at the Four Acres tonight at 8:15. The Green won the first game after a red hot struggle before a large enthusiastic crowd. The playing of tonight's game depends entirely on the weather man's disposition.

Dominick Excellenti says he is training to take part in a bout at Waterbury soon under the direction of "Hi" Mulley. The local boy weighs about 120 pounds.

GARCIA-ROY BATTLE ON MONDAY EVENING

Bobby Garcia and Kid Roy headline a card of four ten-round bouts to be presented at the Hartford Velodrome Monday night. Garcia will be making his first appearance in the Velodrome ring since he fought Kid Kaplan in a bout for the world's featherweight championship.

The Maryland Assassin is not at the peak, as far as his ring career is concerned, but he still has plenty of fighting left in him and he has been campaigning the past year with marked success against several good boys. Both Roy and Garcia are aggressive, game and hard hitters, which should mean a slashing battle as the two men meet.

Garcia's ring career is one of the most colorful of any boxer in the ring today; he has fought scores of battles meeting the best, and he has compiled a great record of wins. Harry Scott, Atlantic City, about two of Garcia's victories—his gameness and his ability to hit. The former soldier has put these qualities on display in rings all over the country.

Roy is a great favorite in Canada where he punched his way to the featherweight championship of the Dominion. In the semi-final of ten rounds, Bobby May of New London, will meet Bill Grimes of Australia. Harry Scott, Atlantic City, colored boy, meets Tommy Dunn of Holyoke in one of the prelims while Eddie Elkins takes on Frankie La Fay in the other.

Ladies will be admitted free if accompanied by escorts.

PUZZLING PLAYS Baseball

COACHER SUFFERS PENALTY What action should be taken by the umpire if with a runner on third the coacher at that base by his actions causes the fielder and causes him to make the wrong play?

The duties of the coacher at third or first base is that of adviser to the runner. The position of third base coacher is more important, since his judgment plays a prominent part in the scoring of runs.

The duties of the coacher are purely of an advisory capacity. Whenever the coacher steps out of his role and by his actions makes it appear that he is a baserunner, thereby confusing the fielder with the ball, he lays himself open to a severe penalty.

In the first place the position of the coacher is definitely defined by white chalk lines. These lines are for the guidance of the coacher and umpire in the proper performance of their duties.

The coacher is supposed to stay within these lines. His roving territory is limited. When a coacher at third with a runner on that base runs in the direction of the plate or near the base line while a fielder is making or trying to make a play on a batted ball not caught on the fly, a thrown ball or a fly ball, and thereby draws a throw to the wrong base, the umpire should penalize the coacher by declaring out the runner entitled to third base.

TENNIS TALKS—Seek Weakness Of Opponent

By George M. Lott, Jr.

Players at the start of a match seem to be doing a lot of experimenting, trying out their shots. They are, however, attempting to find their opponent's weakness.

It is necessary to determine at the very beginning the best way to play. Many a match is lost because a player has gone into the conflict without a definite purpose in mind. Of course there are certain players who have known weaknesses and in these cases it is necessary to do very little experimenting. Even in these cases, though, you occasionally find a man weak at his ordinarily strongest point.

In playing an opponent you have never played before, I suggest giving him from the start a variety of shots to learn his likes and dislikes. By variety, I mean alternating drives and chops to both his forehand and backhand. This will tell you whether he likes low or high shots.

I also would vary the length of the shots. By that, you may discover a weakness in his handling of short shots. Try everything that seems reasonable until you hit upon something that is successful, but don't keep up the experimenting too long because you are likely to get too far behind for your knowledge to be of any use.

Another good plan is to rush the net from the very start in an attempt to sweep the other man off his feet. This idea often succeeds because an opponent is put on the defensive and his shots become soft and lose their sting.

If you have exceptionally good ground strokes an excellent method is to draw your opponent into the net and pass him, thereby demoralizing him and causing him to lose confidence in his game right at the start. This is the best plan if it falls as you are the one who loses confidence.

Mr. Landis, the high commissioner of the Purified Ivory Industry, ought to get Mr. Farnol to write a book on baseball. Perhaps it would be revealed that Swede Risberg, Eddie Cicotte and those other lads were only stamp collectors, after all.

Overcalling Partner's Bid—4 When you possess the minimum of "normal expectancy" or less, it behooves you to furnish your partner with information as follows: 1—When holding minimum normal support as X X X or A X or K X in trumps, bid other major only if it is better than an original bid. 2—When holding X in trumps, bid (a) other major if as good as original bid or (b) no trump with two other suits stopped and total hand worth at least two quick tricks. 3—When holding less than Q X X or (b) a no trump if two other suits are stopped and worth more than one quick trick.

Examples of third-hand bids follow. In each instance the third hand is depicted, and in each instance partner has bid one club. The best bid for third hand is shown. Spades X X; hearts A Q X X X; diamonds X X X; clubs X X X. Hand is as good as a defensive bid. Game can more readily be made in a major suit than a minor. Bid one heart.

Spades X X; hearts A X X; diamonds A Q X X X; clubs X X X. Hand contains sufficient strength for a defensive diamond bid. It also contains a stop in hearts. Game can more readily be made at no trump. Bid one no trump.

Spades X X X; hearts K Q X X; diamonds K X X; clubs Q X X. Hand contains two suits other than clubs, stopped. It is worth more than one quick trick. Bid one no trump.

Spades X X X X; hearts J X X; diamonds K X X; clubs X X X. Hand contains sufficient strength for a defensive diamond bid. It does not contain a stop in any other suit. Your partner did not bid a no trump because his hand may contain a singleton in diamonds. With the information obtained from you, he may enthusiastically return to a no trump bid. Therefore bid one diamond.

Maybe It's Strategy. Germany has been installed by the experts as a most serious threat to the United States in the Olympic Games this summer. The American coaches are talking wolf for the benefit of the athletes, but some of them really feel that it's going to be a tough battle in Amsterdam.

Apparently the Germans do not think they are so good, however. They admit, in their home publications, that they have a good team and a team almost strong enough to FINISH SECOND. They haven't a thought of beating the United States out of first place.

"No Splitting Allowed." The rather drastic rules drawn by E. S. Barnard, American League president, to speed up the game haven't had a pronounced effect in promoting snappy play. The reason is the very good reason that no rules will work if they are not enforced.

The umpires have not attempted to use the count on a pitcher when he gets set to deliver, and the players still use their own judgment in getting to and from their positions on the field.

After it had been called to their attention several times in the papers the umpires remembered that it was against the law for an outfielder to sit in the bull pen when he didn't have to report to the plate for a little batting.

Playful Old Men. For a bunch of old men, the Philadelphia Athletics are as kittenish as any club in the major leagues. Jimmy Dykes and Joe Bush aren't professional clowns of the Altrock and Schacht class, but they are experts at horse play. And the excellent Ty Cobb can handle his end of club give-and-take jokes.

The Athletics have more individual color than even the Yankees and they are more interesting to watch in pre-game antics. Leaving the Babe and Gehrig out of it, the Yankees really are a rather drab team. They are all very serious young men. It seems that they have assumed the air of dignity that they think should go with a team rated as one of the greatest of all times.

Has Simmons a Groove? Al Simmons, the star outfielder, is the target of a lot of club jokes which he manages to accept without too many displays of petulance.

It is one of the favorite stunts of the players to kid him when they are tossing the ball back and forth before the start of a game.

Acting as pitchers the players take their turns in shouting for the benefit of the box seat fans: "Two and three now. Simmons up!" And then the thrower will toss in a little "Simmons out."

When Lefty Groves is warming up they also pester him with suggestions to "Show the boys in there how you hold your fast one."

The Athletics must realize that they have only a slight chance of winning the pennant this year, but they're not acting lickered like the other clubs before they go out on the field.

ALREADY PLANNING FOR ARMISTICE DAY

Red Men and Pocohontas Auxiliary Each to Have Float in Parade. Miantonomah Tribe No. 58, Improved Order of Red Men, is already forming its plans for participating in the Armistice Day parade and celebration. Invitations will be extended to other tribes of the state reservation to send delegations to march in the parade with the local tribe. Tribes unable to send delegations will be asked to lend regalia so that every brave marching will be in full warrior dress.

The local lodge will also have a float dealing with some particular scene from the life of the American Indian. It is expected that at least 200 braves will march.

The Daughters of Pocohontas, it is expected, will also have a large delegation in the parade. Other auxiliaries will be invited to send representatives or to lend costumes. The Daughters of Pocohontas will also have a float in the parade.

RUTH DEWEY GROVES © 1928 By NEA Service Inc.

"Looks like we'll need a new budget," she said, striving to speak lightly.

THIS HAS HAPPENED BETTIE LOU WARD, on the eve of her wedding to ROD BRY...

she remembered that it was her own gang that had done it. Many times she'd been along when other homes were upset.

Bertie Lou laughed at him. Then she saw the bowl. "Grimm's old public utility," she moaned.

The first dinner in the new home was a failure but Bertie Lou makes up her mind to be a good cook and housekeeper.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER VI

It was just as she feared. Bertie Lou admitted the fact as she lay staring out of the open window at the street lamp on the corner.

"But if I pull down the shade there won't be any air," she reflected. Sleep was impossible anyhow, she knew.

Marcella's remark kept her awake. It proved to Bertie Lou that everyone was aware of the nation that troubled her.

Her face had flamed resentfully when Marcella had told her of keeping Lila in ignorance of the party.

"I wonder if I am afraid of her?" Bertie Lou asked herself with an honesty she did not hesitate to indulge in secret.

In the morning she got up quietly to avoid waking Rod and went out to put her little home in order.

The rug was rolled into a corner. Chairs were piled upon one another, wilted flowers drooped in vases and the curtains were knotted together to let in more air.

Bertie Lou could have wept, but jumped to her feet, scattering thickly scribbled sheets of paper to the floor. She was in the kitchen when he opened the front door.

"Never mind it. We're going out, Tom Fraser's in town. He wants us to have dinner with him and Molly."

"What time must we be there, Rod?" she called. "Where are they?" "The Arlington?"

"Thank goodness. That gives me time to dress decently. I wish people in this town would stop eating with the six o'clock whistle."

"The idea of two pounds of salted almonds! Nearly four dollars worth! I'll have to remind Rod that our appropriation for entertainment isn't quite as big as the French war debt."

"They set the cost of the party down against the emergency fund and Bertie Lou said she would try to make it up from her household expenses."

"Looks like we'll need a new budget," she said, striving to speak lightly.

"I know it," Bertie Lou answered dejectedly. "But I don't see what we can do unless we send out notices that we're not keeping open house."

The weight of the budget remained on her mind until they entered the Arlington Hotel and saw the Frasers waiting for them in the lobby.

MARYE and MOM Their Letters Dear Mom. I've been so busy writing to you lately about myself, that I have never told you about the interesting new girl at Madame Elise's shop.

But to the people here in the shop, she is human, and extraordinarily kind. And the women who cut, and fit, and really carry on the work of the place adore her.

Helen is the most amazing character you have ever seen. She looks like an angel—her hair parted in the middle and coiled on her neck, blue eyes, wide apart, and a mouth that is everything mouth could be, and a figure like nothing I ever even aspired to.

Madame Elise is very much worried for fear she may lose her looks, because of her late hours. And yet she is the best advertisement the shop has ever had.

By the time Bertie Lou was dressed he had the accounts straightened out for her. She came up and but an arm on his shoulders.

"Looks like we'll need a new budget," she said, striving to speak lightly.

The weight of the budget remained on her mind until they entered the Arlington Hotel and saw the Frasers waiting for them in the lobby.

Real Chorines Actually Will Appear In Movie!

By DAN THOMAS
Hollywood, Calif., July 6.—There's nothing unusual about picking up a story about some screen actress and finding that a good share of it pertains to her life on the stage.

But when 11 girls of some stage repute are gathered together in a single cast for a motion picture—well, that's worth noticing, particularly when the girls are as pretty as they are in the comedy series, "Confessions of a Chorus Girl," now in production at the Christie studio.

The usual procedure in Hollywood when making a picture of backstage life would be to cast it with girls who had never been inside of a theater except on paid admissions. Christie is going at it differently. There must be a mistake somewhere. Not only the principals but every girl who appears in this film of what goes on backstage has had at least one featured role on the stage.

Frances Lee . . . a real chorus girl, in the movies.

Backstage Humor
This series of two-reelers will be the first attempt on the part of comedy producers to tell a legitimate story of backstage life in a humorous vein. Similar plots have been burlesqued to death but that is all.

Frances Lee is being starred in the series. Young brunet Miss Lee, who just radiates personality, spent three years behind the footlights before donning movie makeup. First she was in Gus Edwards' revues. And then she spent nearly two years in vaudeville as the dancing partner of Billy Dooley, who also has become a member of the film colony.

Other important roles in the series have been assigned to Lorraine Eddy and Natalie Joyce. Miss Eddy played with the Duncan sisters in "Topsy and Eva." Miss Joyce's experience as a legitimate actress includes two years with the Ziegfeld Follies and a season in a Winter Garden show in New York.

Each comedy in the series will deal with a distinctive incident in a chorus girl's life, with no attempt being made to keep them in continuity.

"I expect to have more fun making these pictures than I have ever had before," Frances Lee told me. "We will be mixing all the fun there is in stage and film work—and there's plenty in both. It will seem pretty good to get back in a stage atmosphere again too."

G. O. P. NOT TO MIX RELIGION-POLITICS

Washington, July 6.—Hubert Work, Republican national chairman, today issued instructions to the members of the Republican national committee to refrain from raising the religious issue in the presidential campaign.

"The campaign policy we propose to follow will be informative and constructive only," said Work in a letter to members of the committee. "The promptings of conscience and personal liberty within the law are not proper subjects for political debate.

"We wish to secure complete unity in our common purpose of good government. The Republican Party is interested solely in preserving the foundations of good government administration through our party organization."

Work said one of the outstanding issues of the campaign is the Republican tariff which "protects our workmen from the cheap labor of competing nations." He urged the committee to stress this issue.

"Our people should vote to protect the American payroll. It is our universal asset. We must protect it to maintain our high standards of living."

ORDERS A PERMIT.

Bridgeport, Conn., July 6.—"An abuse of discretion," said Judge A. C. Baldwin in Superior Court today, was apparent in the refusal of Mayor Anthony Sunderland, of Danbury, to issue a gasoline station permit to Louis De Fluamri, in the same city. The judge ordered the Mayor of Danbury to issue the permit forthwith, but Henry C. Wilson Danbury corporation counsel, immediately appealed the judge's order. Judge Baldwin declares that no reason was apparent for refusing the permit.

EXPECT REORGANIZATION OF BAMFORTH CONCERN

Settlement of Hardware Company's Differences This Afternoon Likely.

A settlement was expected to be reached this afternoon of the difficulties between stockholders of the Bamforth & Rood Hardware Company of this place. The receivership petition brought by Frank H. Bullard of Middletown, owner of one-third of the shares of the company, was to have been heard last Monday, but no hearing was held. In the meantime other stockholders have been in conference with Mr. Bullard and a buy-or-sell proposition made. The meeting this afternoon, which was to be held in Hartford, was expected to result in an agreement whereby Mr. Bullard would dispose of his interest in the company, in which case reorganization will be effected.

Bamforth Brothers, who opened the store and who last December disposed of the controlling interest, are expected to become more actively engaged in the business again and will also have a greater money interest. The store will be continued as a retail hardware store.

CUTS OUT ON DRENCHED ROAD, CAR TURNS OVER

Rockville Man's Haste Causes Accident But Nobody Is Hurt.

While driving south on Oakland street last evening, George H. Andrews of 14 Park place, Rockville, accompanied by Mrs. Andrews, met with an accident which resulted in his car being overturned, three tires blown and a windshield broken.

According to the story told to Officer John McGinn, who investigated, Mr. Andrews was driving toward Depot Square following another car coming in the same direction. When opposite 275 Oakland street he attempted to turn out to pass the car, but saw another car coming from the opposite direction. In order to prevent a head-on collision he started to pull back into position. The road was wet and the car skidded, one tire blowing out. He lost control of the car and it shot to the west, just missed a tree and turned over. Both Mr. Andrews and his wife were thrown out, but escaped uninjured. Aside from the three blown tires and broken windshield the car was uninjured.

CARLOAD OF PIANOS IN KEMP'S BIG SALE COVENTRY. Both New and Used Instruments Included-Announcement Made Today. The annual June clearance, or mid-summer sale of pianos at Kemp's Music House, to which the people of Manchester look forward each year, was officially announced today. The sale includes a car-load of Gulbransen Registering and straight upright pianos, as well as the remaining stock of new and used instruments. This sale has always been a big success, as prices are exceptionally low, and selections are of such a character that people can easily decide on the piano they most desire. The Gulbransen registering piano, is not a new name in Manchester, as already many of these fine instruments have been sold in and around Manchester. This wonderful "Easy to Play" piano, is made in the largest piano factory in the world, and more Gulbransen pianos are sold annually than any other make of piano. This proves that they are a quality instrument, and that they are so made that they will give satisfactory service. Beautiful new models have just come in and are included in this June sale. A very fine stock of used pianos are also included in this sale, and include many at very low prices, as well as some that are but slightly used. Also, the remaining stock of new pianos and players and grand are included in this sale. These include the Hobart M. Cable, Gordon & Sons, Kohler & Campbell, and McPhail, pianos and grands. Terms are being arranged for convenience of the purchasers, and it is needless to say that those who come first, will get the best selections.

THE BOOK OF KNOWLEDGE: (332) Box Furniture. Sketches by Bessey; Synopsis by Braucher. Many people think boxes are things to be thrown away, but with a little planning and work boxes can be converted into useful pieces of furniture. Several pieces shown above were made from boxes, as described in Louise Brigham's book, Box Furniture. Save all the boxes that accumulate around the house. It is well to have a varied assortment of nails.

FOR THE LEGS WE MUST HAVE FOUR STRIPS ONE-FOURTH INCH WIDE AND ONE-HALF INCHES LONGER THAN THE DEPTH OF THE BOX; AND FOUR MORE STRIPS ONE BY ONE-FOURTH INCH AND THE SAME LENGTH. Here is a small plant box that is easy as a starter. Take a box five inches deep by six or seven inches square. The box should be trimmed and planed.

It's only in the novels that a girl can get married and live flappily ever after.

SENSE and NONSENSE

Gasoline was never so plentiful, so look out for the increase in price.

Here's one of the new cracks on Henry Ford's transformed flivver: A big Lincoln car stood in the middle of the steep hill. The driver couldn't make the grade, and he didn't dare try to coast back down the rock road.

Enter our hero, the new Ford. The driver stops. "Give you a lift?" he asks. The driver of the big limousine scoffed, but if he didn't want to perch half up and half down the mountain, he had to take a chance.

Teacher of Motoring—What is the greatest danger for motorist? Pupil—The police.

"You seem to be walking all the time now."

"Yes, the only parking space I can find for my car is in front of my house."

"What is your car, a five passenger?"

"Yes, but I can get eight in it if they are all acquainted."

The Gay Nineties: "Shall we drive out to the Park?"

The Vicious Twenties: "Shall we park out on the drive?"

"Hey, you!" yelled the traffic officer at the armoured driver, "Why don't you use both hands?"

"I'm afraid to let go the steering wheel," grinned the irrepressible youth at the wheel.

Automobiles are about fool-proof now. But there hasn't been much change in pedestrians.

A slogan for the windshield of your car: Pedestrians should be seen, not hurt."

Old Dobbin has his faults, but he didn't start a fuss with a telephone pole when you needed both hands for courting.

The cop: Hey! Pull over to the curb! She: But this isn't where I live.

Sign on Flivver. "If driven recklessly, will last a lifetime."

Buyers of cars are more particular nowadays than they used to be, are they not?" we asked.

"Oh, yes!" responded the dealer. "While they used to ask all sorts of questions about the mechanism, power, and so forth, now all they want to know is, 'What is absolutely the lowest advance payment I must make?'"

LETTER GOLF

HANDLE WITH CARE A BAD EGG should certainly be handled with care, and you may have to handle this puzzle the same way to make par five. One solution is on another page.

Letter golf grid with letters B, A, D, E, G, G in a 3x3 grid.

THE RULES

- 1-The idea of letter golf is to change one word to another and do it in par, a given number of strokes. Thus to change COW to HEN, in three strokes, COW, HOW, HEN. 2-You can change only one letter at a time. 3-You must have a complete word, of common usage, for each jump. Slang words and abbreviations don't count. 4-The order of letters cannot be changed.

And then again early marriages prevent automobile wrecks. There's no temptation to hug the driver if you've got a right to do it.

THE TINYMITES

READ THE STORY, THEN COLOR THE PICTURE

The monkeys chattered in delight, but each and every Tynmite felt just a wee bit frightened, as they looked out of the cage. "Our being prisoners makes me sore. What did they cage us here for?" said Clowzy. "If we're not let out, I'll fly into a rage."

Perhaps the monkeys understood. At least their treatment was real good. They slowed right down and made the trip much better for the bunch.

COURT REJECTS OLD CLAIM OF BOARD BILL

Buckland Suitors Lose Action Against Estate of Deceased Woman.

An attempt through court action to obtain payment of a fifteen-year-old back board bill from the estate of a deceased Manchester person has ended in failure.

The Hacketts alleged that on September 21, 1910, an agreement was entered into with Mrs. Davis whereby they agreed to provide for her room and board for eight dollars per week and two rooms for storage of her furniture at an additional two dollars per week.

Mrs. Davis is said to have stayed with the Hackett family on this basis for several years. The amount sought through the court was $2,380.79.

The agreement is alleged to have been made in 1910. The alleged debtor at all times had ample funds with which to pay—in fact the plaintiff himself handled investments for her amounting to as much as $4,000 and yet on no occasion did he mention the alleged debt, or ask for payment.

The claim languished for more than 15 years, during all of which time it could have been easily collected if it existed, yet nothing was done until after she is dead and cannot deny it and until it was found that she had willed her property to a comparatively stranger.

The evidence is unconvincing; the only doubt cast upon my conclusion is caused by the account book. I have given it careful consideration and have concluded that I must discard it. Judgment is for the defendant, dismissing the appeal.

ROCKVILLE NIGHT

A LARGE AFFAIR

Rec Centers Plan Elaborate Program for Inter-town Occasion.

Next Wednesday, Manchester-Rockville night will be celebrated more elaborately than ever before, at the West Side Playgrounds.

There will be competition in baseball, tennis and horse-shoe-pitching in addition to a band concert and a public dance.

Music for the dancing, which will be held in the gymnasium of the West Side Rec. will be furnished by Max Kabrick's orchestra of Rockville.

First on the program will be the athletic contests, baseball tennis and quiet pitching going on simultaneously.

It is likely that the Rec baseball team will consist largely of players who are members of Sam Massey's All-Star team.

The band concert will begin directly after the conclusion of the baseball game, about 8:15 and will be followed by the dancing.

PUBLIC RECORDS

WARRANTEE DEEDS Giovanna Ratti to Theresa Ratti, one-half interest in a tract of twenty-two acres of land located in the Birch Mountain district.
