State Organizations to Get Greater Tasks in Coming Campaign—Belgian Re- lief Plan.

Washington, Aug. 30.—The principles upon which Herbert Hoover conducted his vast relief operations for the Belgians and directed the American food administration during the World war will be relied upon to build a Republican organization which will bring victory to the Hoover-Curtis ticket at the November polls. It was disclosed today.

The policy called the Hoover policy by his aides—is described by them as one of centralized authority and decentralized responsibility. The plan, in brief, is to make the national committee, functioning under the discerning eye of Hoover, a purely administrative unit and place the major responsibility for the success of the campaign on state organizations.

Hoover himself, in talks with callers, has emphasized that the state organizations will be given greater tasks and more responsibility in the next two months than has been obtained in past campaigns. The policy is credited to Hoover himself although in talks he has given praise to National Chairman Hubert Work for the plan of operations.

Throughout Hoover's administrative career, it was pointed out, he has made a practice of defining objectives and policies, setting the wheels into motion and then depending upon the co-operation of his organization to achieve results. Hoover is supplying the "push and go" to the organization in conferences being held here with eastern political leaders and officials of the national committee. Today he planned to receive William H. Hill, chairman of the Hoover-Curtis club in New York, and J. Edmund Macdowell, state chairman to discuss the New York situation and emphasize the responsibility which he wants them to assume.

To Reduce Budget.

This method of campaigning is declared to be the reason for a determined effort by the national

MONROE DOCTRINE PUZZLES LEAGUE

Costa Rica Wants It Inter- preted Before She Joins in the Discussions.

Geneva, Aug. 30.—The fifty-first session of the League of Nations Council opened today with the Finnish foreign minister, Hjalmar J. Procopé, presiding.

The opening of the session was marked by the absence of Foreign Secretary Chamberlain of Great Britain, Foreign Minister Briand, of France, and Foreign Minister Stresemann, of Germany.

The ninth League Assembly opens Monday. Thirty-eight subjects on the council agenda will be discussed before that time. As president of the council, Foreign Minister Procopé will act as temporary president of the Assembly.

Much comment resulted from the non-appearance of Costa Rica's recent request for an interpretation of the Monroe Doctrine on the agenda. It was explained that the request had been submitted to a committee of jurists. It is understood that this procedure was followed to prevent the question from coming into public debate.

Costa Rica's Request

Porto Rica, at the time of making the request for an interpretation of the doctrine, had offered to enter the League if the interpretation was satisfactory.

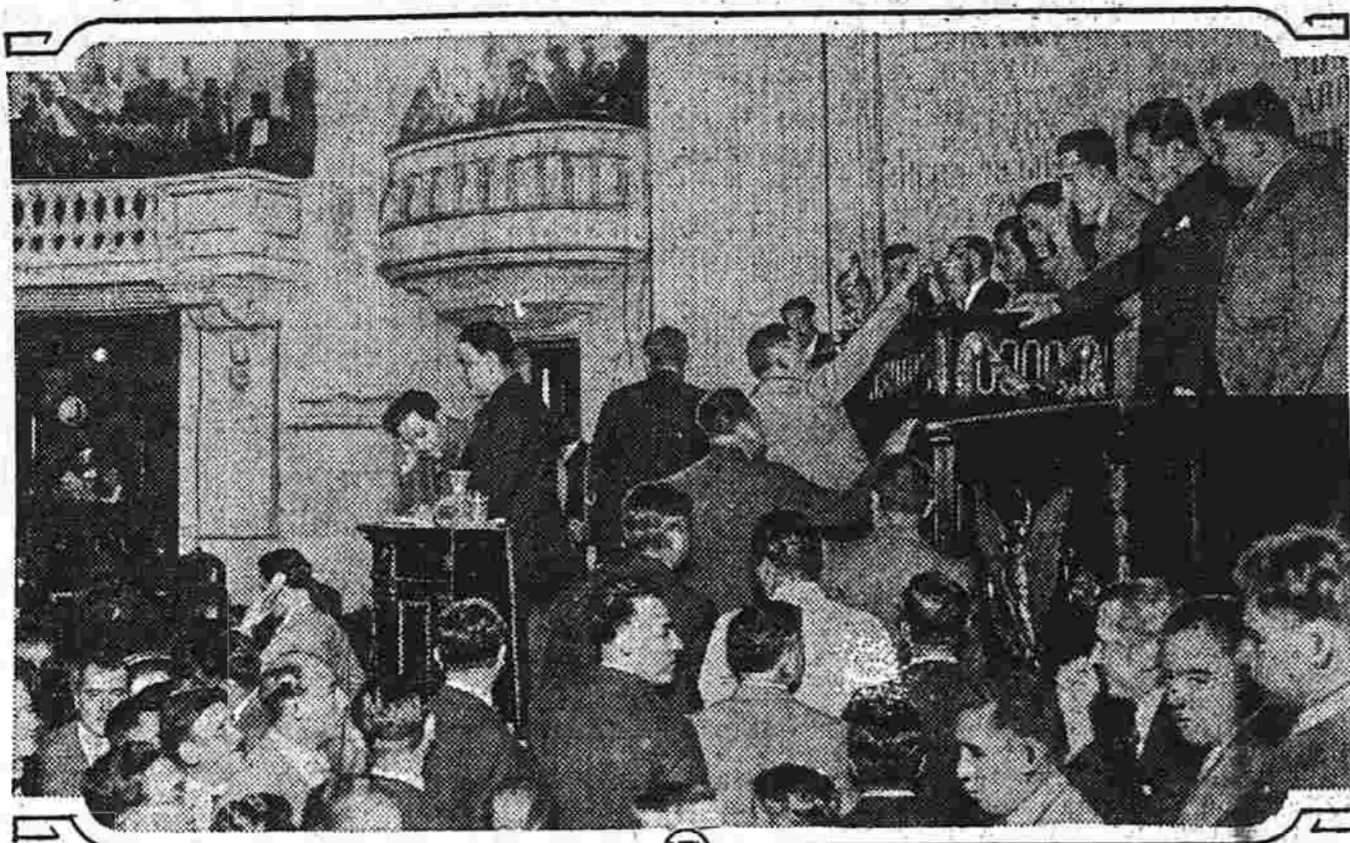

The Monroe Doctrine is proving one of the most vexing questions before the league. Colombia, which is retiring from the Council, is prepared to press the demand for an official interpretation of the Monroe Doctrine to ascertain if it has any status in international law.

Fear Suffragettes

It was feared that the militant suffragettes, headed by Boris Stevens, might shift their battleground from Paris to Geneva, but they had not put in appearance when the meeting was called to order.

Various phases of disarmament are being discussed informally prior to the meeting on the preparatory disarmament commission. The possibility is being discussed that the work of the commission may not be necessary in view of the Kellogg-Briand treaty for renunciation of war.

CONFESSES HE POISONED BEER THAT KILLED 3

New Britain Man's Own Brother Was One of the Victims; Fight Over Woman an the Cause.

New Britain, Aug. 30.—Samuel Weiss, 32, is locked up without bail pending a city court hearing on a murder charge. Police today declared Weiss has confessed putting cyanide of potassium in home-brewed beer and so causing the death of three men. Weiss's own brother was one of the victims and, police say, a quarrel between the two men over the brother's wife led to the wholesale killings.

The victims of the poison are John Weiss 38, John Steher, 58, and John Stein, 49.

Woman's Beer

Weiss and Steher died Sunday. They occupied apartments at 215 Curtis street. Police found they had been drinking beer, and an autopsy was ordered. A report was issued yesterday indicating a chemist had found cyanide poison in the stomachs. Samuel Weiss and Mrs. Weiss were arrested yesterday afternoon. Meanwhile the woman's brother-in-law, John Stein, of 325 Broad street, went over to the Curtis street home to console with the widow. He had heard the story of the poison-d beer.

"I don't believe" Stein told the woman. "Let me have some. I am not afraid."

Stein drank one bottle and liked it. He started another bottle and collapsed. He died in an hour.

Weiss and his sister-in-law were locked up soon after Stein's death. Police declared that the couple had run away together some time ago taking $500 of John Weiss's money. They came back a week ago.

A statement today police said Samuel Weiss admitted putting the deadly poison in "seven or eight bottles" of beer. The beer was of low alcoholic content. When Weiss had made a statement the woman was also ordered held because, the police say, Weiss admitted quarreling with his brother because of her.

The death of Stein is still to be decided officially. An autopsy is under way and will include a chemical analysis of the contents of the man's stomach. Police officials want to decide if his beer also had cyanide of potassium.

RUNNING MATE OF SMITH TO BE NOTIFIED

Hot Springs, Ark., Thronged With Visitors for To- night's Ceremony; Visit- ors From All Over South.

Hot Springs, Ark., Aug. 30.—In a ceremony marking a new epoch in the political history of the south, Senator Joseph T. Robinson of Arkansas, tonight will be formally notified of his selection as the running mate of Governor "Al" Smith. The notification will be in a picturesque natural amphitheater formed by the parallel ranges in the southern tip of Ozarks which form the valley of Hot Springs' Main street. Squarely in the bottom of the valley, from a vast platform of redolent Arkansas pine, Senator Robinson will deliver his acceptance speech. It is to be the keynote of the campaign in the Solid South.

Never before has Arkansas given a candidate to the national ticket of a major party. Not since 1856 has the south had a representative on a national ballot.

Great Reception

This is the history behind the enthusiasm of the day. Arkansas is here to honor her most distinguished favorite son. Hot Springs has outdone itself as a town of 25,000 persons to pay tribute to the "Joe" she sent to Congress in 1902. The south is here to honor the statesman who won for her a place in the national theater of politics after a dark house of almost seventy years.

The celebration today, the street car placards attest, is for "Our Joe." Flamboyant banners across the main street at intervals of every two hundred feet announce "Our Joe—The Next Vice-President of the United States."

Al's Picture

Over the speakers' platform, about which seats have been arranged for 25,000, hangs twin lithographs of "Al" and "Joe," but elsewhere throughout the city the dominating countenance is that of the vice-presidential nominee.

Governor Smith will not be here for the notification of his running mate, but has designated his eldest daughter, Mrs. John B. Warner, as his personal emissary. John J. Rasch, chairman of the Democratic national committee, who will preside at the ceremonies tonight, was scheduled to arrive from St. Louis shortly before noon. With him were Senator Peter G. Gerry of Rhode Island, chairman of the national advisory committee; Mrs. Nellie Taylor Ross, former governor of Wyoming and ex-chairman of the national women's committee; and Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, chairman of the woman's advisory committee. National committeemen, state chairmen, and rank and file representatives of the Democracy thronged the entire nation added to the throngs.

- 1—Revision of the constitution so that successor to President Calles can be chosen.
- 2—Selection of a provisional president.
- 3—A petition from prominent Catholic laymen asking revision of the constitution so that the conflict between the Catholic church and the state can be adjusted.

From the present outlook revision of the constitution will be one of the chief questions before Congress.

CUT IN TAXES WOULD ASSIST FARMERS' SMITH

Democratic Nominee Says They Should First Look Into Cost of Government Which Increases.

Syracuse, N. Y., Aug. 30.—If the farmers of America want real relief they should insist on a reduction in the cost of their local county and town governments which would bring about a corresponding reduction in their taxes.

This is Governor Al Smith's own action about solving the perplexing farm problem, as he revealed it to a group of farm leaders who are attending the New York State Fair. He is expected to emphasize this idea in the coming presidential campaign.

After he had announced at a meeting of farm leaders that he was willing at any time to sit down with them and attempt to work out a solution of their problem, Smith declared:

"I seriously say to men who want to reduce the overhead cost of their farms that they should look into the cost of their local governments."

Smith will be the guest of honor at the state fair today, but it is doubtful if he will have anything more to say at this time about the farm problem.

Speaks at Dinner

Speaking at the dinner given by Jerome D. Barnum, Syracuse publisher to farm leaders of New York state, the governor referred to the farm problem and gave a detailed explanation of why the cost of New York state's government had increased by over $100,000,000 in the eight years he has occupied the chair of chief executive.

He told the farm leaders that he had had several years ago that something should be done to bring about real relief; that he always had been ready to act in their behalf while governor, and that he had come to the conclusion that one way that relief could be brought about would be to cut down the cost of local governments.

"I told the farmers of New York years ago that I knew there was something the matter with agriculture, but that I didn't know how to cure it," Smith said.

The Farm Problem

He said he believed that this was a problem that should be worked out by farm experts and economists, but that while such a plan was in the course of formation some relief could be obtained if taxes on farm land could be reduced. He said he was convinced that the best way to bring this about would be to curtail the cost of all local governments.

"But the trouble is that the folks in the rural communities are not always willing to reduce the cost of their local governments," Smith added.

Because of Smith's lengthy explanation of why New York state's government has increased while he has been governor, the dinner was adjourned.

Three thousand birds were found dead after the storm had subsided.

TUNNEY ASTONISHES LONDON CELEBRITIES

His Speech at Banquet Sur- prises Authors and Paint- ers—Those Present.

London, Aug. 30.—Gene Tunney, retired heavyweight champion delved deeper into the atmosphere of literature this afternoon when he went down into beautiful and historic Surrey to visit Thornton Wilder, American novelist, with whom he will make a walking tour in Continental Europe. Tunney expected to remain overnight at Wilder's temporary home, returning to London tomorrow.

Natily arrayed in evening clothes, Tunney started the distinguished guests at last night's dinner, given by Harry Preston, publisher of the "Daily Express," by the clearest of thought and excellent diction displayed in his speech.

He modestly chided Europe for so handsomely acclaiming him, saying that he had done nothing to warrant glory. He explained that he quit boxing because there was no future in it.

Among those present at the dinner were Arnold Bennett, Hugh Walpole, Gilbert Frankau and Jeffrey Farnold, of the literary world, Sir John Lavery, painter, and Sir Henry Curtis Bennett, one of England's foremost barristers.

TORNADO IN ITALY KILLS 8, HURTS 60

City of Monza Hard Hit by Twister; Property Dam- age Enormous.

Monza, Italy, Aug. 30.—A terrific tornado which tore a path through this city today took a toll of eight dead and sixty injured and caused tremendous property damage.

The tornado lasted for fifteen minutes. Trees were uprooted. Houses were unroofed. Chimneys toppled. Streets were flooded as water poured forth from pipes torn asunder by the storm.

Hillstones, some as large as walnuts, added to the plight of the stricken populace.

A church spire weighing a hundred tons toppled to the ground under the impact of the wind. A fifty-ton statue in the spire crashed through the roof of the church. Fortunately, no one was in the church at the time and there were no casualties there.

Three thousand birds were found dead after the storm had subsided.

All But Six of the Delegates At Convention Vote for En- dorsement.

Rochester, N. Y., Aug. 30.—In a stormy session today delegates of the New York State Federation of Labor voted 594 to six to endorse "Al" Smith for president.

The vote was verbal and at first was believed to have been unanimous but six delegates jumped to their feet and insisted that their negative votes be recorded.

The action of the state labor body followed a speech yesterday by President Green of the A. F. of L. in which he spoke highly of the governor's record as state executive and a friend of labor.

Merrill and Ronne Met Death When Plane Crashed Into Mountain Near Port Jer- vis—Machine Burned But Bodies Not Touched by Flames—Found After Greatest Aerial Search In History.

New York, Aug. 30.—The bodies of Mabel M. ("Merry") Merrill, veteran Curtiss Field flyer, and Edward Ronne, head of the Buffalo airport, were found today in the woods near Milford, Pa., where their plane crashed while en route from Buffalo to New York.

Both bodies were lying about forty feet from the Falcon plane which had smashed into a thick underbrush.

Neither body was burned. It is believed the two aviators were hurled clear of the plane by the impact.

News of the finding of the bodies was conveyed to the Merrill home in Hempstead, L. I., shortly before noon by C. S. ("Casey") Jones, head of Curtiss Field, who had been at Milford directing the search for the bodies.

Plane Burned

The charred wreckage of the plane was found in a thickly wooded spot near Milford late yesterday after a search in which at least fifty airplanes took part. Search for the bodies had been deferred until this morning.

Information that the bodies had been found was also telephoned by Jones to N. Y. Clements, an official of the Curtiss Aeroplane and Motor Company at Curtiss Field.

Saw Bodies

Jones told Clements he had reached the plane on foot early this morning and saw the bodies. Both men had been in the plane when it crashed and were not burned by the fire which destroyed part of the wreckage.

Ronne's parachute pack was partly open, apparently having been opened by the shock of striking the ground. Jones expressed the opinion that neither man had an opportunity to use his parachute.

"I believe the plane struck the hill suddenly in the fog and that both men were dead virtually before they realized they were in distress," Jones reported.

Parts of the plane's wings were torn off in the crash while the remainder, including the fuselage, traveled beyond the ripped off wing sections and caught fire.

The wrecked Curtiss Falcon plane had been bought for Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh by the Transcontinental Air Transport, Inc., of which "Lindy" is technical director.

TANK EXPLODED

New York, Aug. 30.—Mabel M. ("Merry") Merrill and Edwin Ronne, lost flyers, met a fiery death when the gas tank of their orange-hued Falcon plane exploded as they were flying at a speed of 160 miles an hour near Milford, Pa., where the tragedy occurred, in the opinion expressed today by C. S. ("Casey") Jones, noted pilot who is leading the search for the bodies. Jones is now at the scene.

"I believe Merrill drove into the side of a mountain at top speed," said Jones this morning. "It must have been so foggy he was just flying by instinct. The gas tank must have let go and set the ship afire."

Merrill and Ronne were done for—I doubt if we'll find much left to identify them."

Famous Flyer

The charred and wrecked plane in which Merrill and Ronne had been riding, a machine built for Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh, was located from the air late yesterday by pilots and observers in a formation of three planes headed by Jones as they were zigzagging across the valley near Milford which is the boundary between Pennsylvania and New York.

Fully fifty airplanes had joined in the search for the flyers who had been missing since 4:10 o'clock Monday afternoon when they departed from Buffalo for the Curtiss Flying Field, near Mineola, N. Y.

The bodies were not sighted, as first reported, but the searchers were certain that they would be found somewhere in the vicinity.

Merrill, one of the best known of American aviators and a chum of Lindbergh, and Ronne had frequently made the air trip from Buffalo to New York and Jones, as well as other flyers, are of the opinion they must have got caught in a dense fog while over the flat ridge of the Kitzney mountains in the Pond Eddy section near Milford.

The wrecked plane was sighted by J. Nelson Kelly, one of the many

POLICE COURT

Bernard Smith of Ridge street was given a jail sentence of 25 days, and fines and costs amounting to $248.82 were imposed in the Manchester police court this morning by Judge Raymond A. Johnson. The charges against Smith were driving an automobile while under the influence of liquor and driving an automobile under a suspended license.

Smith was in the town court on August 15 for driving while under the influence of liquor and also for driving without a license. At that time he paid a fine and costs amounting to $153.47. Smith and a party of other men, including Charles Fogarty and Frank Novak, were out driving last night, and were picked up in Buckland near the railroad underpass. Sergeant John Crockett and Patrolman Arthur Seymour placed the men under arrest and the two officers and Dr. Moore testified Smith was intoxicated and in an unfit condition to drive a car. The other two men were charged in the police court this morning with intoxication. Novak has a long record in the local court and he was given a 15 day jail sentence. Fogarty has not given the police much trouble lately and his 15 day jail sentence was suspended.

Two tobacco workers employed by Hackett Brothers were brought in on an intoxication charge by Patrolman David Gailloger. About midnight last night complaint came from Hackett Brothers that these two men were intoxicated and the police were asked to come there. When they arrived the men could not be found but were placed under arrest at 7 o'clock this morning. As the men were sober when arrested, Judge Johnson thought there was no evidence upon which to convict them and therefore suspended judgement.

George D. Lawton was arrested Tuesday for speeding but failed to appear in court this morning, including Mrs. Horace Dodge, widow of the motor magnate and now Mrs. Hugh Dillman. She is reported to have lost $1,000,000 in the defunct club.

Berlin, Aug. 30.—Frederick Coleman, American minister to Lithuania, has been notified that the Lithuanian government has accepted the invitation to sign the Kellogg-Briand anti-war treaty and officially accepts it, said a dispatch from Kovno today.

WILL TAKE A WEEK TO MAKE VOTERS

1,400 Names to Appear on List and Previous 2-Day Plan Is Useless.
Because it is expected that about 1,400 names will appear on the list of new voters this year the plan of attempting to complete the making of voters on two days will be abandoned and sessions will be for a whole week.

Starting Thursday, September 13, the registrars, selectmen and town clerk will hold meetings each afternoon and evening for the purpose of making voters. Even spread over the work over a week it will mean more than 200 will have to be made each day. The hours for making voters on October 13 will be from noon until 9 o'clock in the evening and the same hours will be observed on October 20, but what hours will be arranged for the other days has not as yet been decided upon. Arrangements will be made by the selectmen clerk and registrars so there will be no delay.

$6,000,009 FAILURE OF FLORONADA CLUB

New York, Aug. 30.—Further details of the $6,000,000 failure of the Floronada Club, society backed real estate venture in Florida, will be disclosed within the next few days when Mrs. E. T. Stoebury of Philadelphia and New York will be examined at her summer home at Bar Harbor, Maine. She already has been served with a subpoena.

Mrs. Stoebury is said to have lost $750,000 in the venture which was headed by her son by a former marriage, James H. R. Cromwell.

Others well known in society circles lost in the project, including Mrs. Horace Dodge, widow of the motor magnate and now Mrs. Hugh Dillman. She is reported to have lost $1,000,000 in the defunct club. Bankruptcy proceedings which opened here yesterday before Federal Referee Robert P. Stephenson, will be re-opened September 20. Meantime Mrs. Stoebury will be questioned.

M. D. Carmichael, counsel for Benjamin Hoffman, builder, whose claim of $21,000 against the corporation occasioned the hearing here, elicited from witnesses the fact that the corporation's cash assets had been withdrawn from Florida banks shortly before the corporation went into voluntary bankruptcy.

He had apparently been in perfect health and was carrying bedding to an upper floor when he suddenly complained of a severe pain in his chest. He died a few moments later. A double funeral service for the two men will be held tomorrow afternoon in Washington. Besides Mrs. Gardner and Adam Lee of this town, William Lee leaves two other brothers and two other sisters.

Her case is still puzzling the doctors, who are not yet willing to fully give their opinion as to her possible full recovery.

HOOVER'S PLAN PATTERNED ON WORLD WAR JOB

committed to reduce its budget from $4,000,000, to as near $3,000,000 as possible. Hoover personally made known this object of conferences of national committee division heads and approved it while disclaiming that he himself urged the economy plan. Hoover also disclosed that it is likely that his speaking campaign will be limited to three or four set speeches before he starts up a swing to Palo Alto, Calif., where he will vote on November 6.

While it was said that he may change his plans in the future, it was indicated that he is strongly averse to undertaking a wide tour of the nation and will conduct a mixed "front porch" and stumping campaign. In New England, One of these speakers will be in New York and another in New England. It has definitely been determined. One of his first speeches too, will emphasize his views on labor. It is possible that he may speak in Chicago on his way to the Pacific coast.

The nominee has personally declined an opportunity to join the ranks of political prognosticators by assuring a "sweeping Republican victory." His own view, made known officially, is that it is too early to forecast the eastern trend and that the Republicans cause for gratification over the situation in the west. Hoover told callers that there is more unity among Republicans in the west than has existed for 30 years, despite the farm agitation. He pointed to the La Follette movement in 1924, internal strife with Progressives in the Harding campaign and the "Bull Moose" movement of two previous national campaigns.

NO BAN ON GROUSE

Hartford, Aug. 30.—Attorney General Benjamin W. Alling today told F. C. Walcott, state fish and game commissioner, that Governor Trumbull has no authority to order a ban on the shooting of ruffed grouse in this state and that such a ban can be arranged only by the State Legislature. Mr. Walcott yesterday asked both the governor and the attorney general if such a ban could be arranged in order to save ruffed grouse to the state. That bird is nearing extinction due to over hunting, disease and vermin Mr. Walcott declared.

The blond motion picture actress, supported by her mother, Mrs. Peg Talmadge, flung a complete set of denials. "I haven't the slightest intention to marry Mr. Collier. No, I'm not thinking of marrying anybody. I don't know how the papers got hold of the idea." Miss Talmadge went to the Hotel Ambassador to remain until tomorrow night when she sails for Europe aboard the steamship Paris. She is bound for the Rextingram Studios in Nice, where she will work for five or six months on a new picture, the actress said.

International Society makes the Blindfold Test MILLICENT, Duchess of Sutherland chooses OLD GOLD

While having tea with several American friends, someone suggested that we try the blindfold cigarette test, now so popular in America. I volunteered as the subject, and while blindfolded, smoked the four different cigarettes... each brand making its appeal "incognito." Without the least hesitation, I named Cigarette Number 3 as the best—and it proved to be an Old Gold. I am not at all clairvoyant, nor am I a particularly good guesser. I identified my favorite Old Gold, because its delightful smoothness and coolness immediately distinguished it from the other brands.

MILLICENT, DUCHESS OF SUTHERLAND, daughter of the Earl of Roslyn. She is deeply interested in social questions, and is widely known as a writer of notable books and plays. She is one of the most brilliant and active women in England.

What is this quality that tells? Old Gold's honey-like smoothness... that's the net of it. But this cool and fragrant charm can come only from the heart-leaves of the tobacco plant. No heavy, coarse top-leaves... no withered ground-leaves. That's why Old Golds are different, better... why you can pick them.

DEPARTED LEISURE

The abandonment of the mid-week half holiday by Manchester's retail stores cannot very well fall to bring a sense of deprivation to salesfolks and to some of the smaller dealers who cannot much more be masters of their own time than employed clerks.

Just the same, in doing away with the custom of closing up the town—so far as trading is concerned—it is highly probable that the merchants will discover that they have made a wise move.

It was a self-contained community standing in the middle of a hundred mile radius of prairie country, and could establish its own hours for doing business without considering competing towns.

The psychology of the customer has to be taken into serious consideration in such a matter as this. And the customer just naturally resents being required to accommodate his own habits to the customs of the stores where he does his trading.

This is more acutely true of the suburbanite who comes into town to do his trading. He makes quite a trip—and finds the store doors closed against him.

For the retailers of this town to put themselves in a position where customers can be sure of a business-like reception during all of the commonly accepted business hours of the week seems to us to be a step in the direction of safeguarding existing business and of preparing the way for more.

It would be lovely, of course, if we could all have more time to ourselves. But inter-community competition is keen and pretty nearly eternal vigilance is the price of retail prosperity.

ROW IN FIFTH

The complicated situation in the Fifth School District, involving the possible closing of the school because the district refuses to pay its water bill and is threatened with the shutting off of its water supply, may contain certain elements of comedy but as a whole is far too serious to be funny.

It is very much to be doubted whether the South Manchester Water Company would make good its threat to deprive the school building of water, thus in all likelihood precipitating the closing of the school, for the punishment would thus fall on the innocent heads of the deprived children—but it would undoubtedly be within its rights in doing so, and the incentive is powerful.

health authorities will permit the use of an old and long abandoned well, whose waters are exposed to contamination from several sources, even if extreme measures have to be resorted to.

And such a measure, as the indefinite closing of the school is certainly not to be seriously considered, if there is any way at all out of the dilemma.

In this whole business, no fault lies at the door of the water company, the Health Board or the town school authorities. It is the Fifth District committee, and particularly its combination treasurer and attorney, Mr. Manning, by whom the entire responsibility must be assumed, directly, indirectly and in the last analysis it is the archaic, outworn, nonsensical district school system which lies at the root of all the trouble.

For years the feudal character of the Fifth School District rumpuses have excited alternate laughter and disgust on the part of the rest of Manchester. The fights have been petty in origin, worthy only of the most cantankerous characters out of an old-time bucolic comedy, but they have always been injurious in their effect upon the Fifth's school and now this one has assumed a gravity which should arouse the people of the town to the necessity of putting an end to such capers for all time.

NO PANACEA

The New York Herald Tribune makes frank reply to a reader who writes in courteous inquiry asking what measures that newspaper would propose as a solution of the prohibition question, saying, "Your editorials lead me to believe that you are opposed to the law and favor some modification or change."

The Herald Tribune says: "We should be delighted to submit our remedy for the evils of prohibition if we knew what that remedy was. We do not know, and despite the confidence of Governor Smith in his remedies we doubt if anyone knows." It then goes on to some further discussion of possibilities; but the point is that here is a very pronounced objector to Volsteadism which has the courage to admit that it cannot formulate a panacea.

This is frank. This is candid. This is honest. And if all the people in America who hate drunkenness and the ruin it creates would be equally candid and honest about this liquor matter, it is our belief that in a very short time the country would hit upon a solution.

But it is only a small part of the people who face the issue in this spirit of self-understanding. The Smith kind of wets propose to solve the puzzle with a haphazard plan through which looms the shadow of the mahogany palace on every corner, replacing with legalized debauchery the poison of the speakeasy. That is no good. The dregs, with a strange perversion, insist that Volsteadism is the cure, when years of experience have proven that it is not. They block any real reform.

There are so few who are so genuinely anxious to rid the country of the curse of alcoholism! Wets like Smith are not—they admit it. The standard dregs are not—they are only anxious to force the world to believe that they did not make a mistake; they have forgotten the purpose of their earlier efforts in a vast conspiracy of self-justification.

The liquor problem in America is not to be unraveled with the country aligned as at present. It can be worked out when all the earnest and righteously disposed people who want to see drunkenness and its attendant evils done away with can get together on a common understanding that, so far, legislation has accomplished no substantial good; that our experiment has been a failure; and that the thing to do is to seek and find another and a better way.

When honest prohibitionists and honest anti-prohibitionists join forces against the charlatan preachers of Volsteadism and against the bootleggers, the speakeasies and the illicit distillers and rectifiers, they can lick old King Booze. So long as they spend their time abusing each other they will get nowhere and the bootleggers will thrive, grow into a moneyed aristocracy and control the nation.

PREPARATORY?

Whatever may be the ultimate destiny of the automobile and the airplane it should be obvious to the most casual thinker that a corollary of the development of these agencies of movement has been the growth of a pronounced disregard for danger. The whole attitude of the people of America and Europe toward risk of death and personal injury has undergone a marked change since the use of these machines became general in the case and increasingly common in the other.

Such tragedies as the disaster to Merrill and Ronne, leading figures in aviation as they were, have little effect on anybody who wants to save a few hours in the making of a journey, or even on those who seek their first plane thrill. Every day the air takes its grisly toll of human life; every day men and women embark on it, certainly not in ignorance of the risks but calmly disregarding them.

It is much the same with the automobile. Sundays and holidays the great pikes are crowded with speeding machines, and every Sunday and holiday the dead are carried away, the wounded taken to hospitals, the wrecks of smashed cars pushed into the ditch, and the whirl of traffic goes gaily on, with every person on the road fully aware that it may be his or her turn next.

It is said that before every great war there are more boys than girls born to the nations that are to be involved. There are studious persons, not all of them fools, who are convinced that Nature provides in advance for her great debacles. Sometimes one is inclined to wonder whether the reckless disregard for danger which is growing up in the midst of our civilization is not a subtle preparatory course, laid out for us by nature, for some period of stress in which it will be vital that human beings generally shall be able to laugh in the face of annihilation.

By ROONEY DUTCHER

Washington, Aug. 30.—The Tariff Commission will soon settle down to the task of preparing its report of findings following public hearings and receipt of briefs on the proposed higher corn tariff and will make recommendations to President Coolidge.

The Department of Agriculture and the American Farm Bureau Federation insist that there is a need for greater protection for corn growers in the middle west and that Argentine maize enters into direct competition with our own. The president has the power to raise or lower duties 50 per cent. The Tariff Commission is confined to recommendations based on any inequality of production costs working to the disadvantage of our farmers.

The Farm Bureau Federation says, using the year 1926, that there was a difference of between 35 and 36 cents a bushel between the Argentine and American production costs for corn.

The Argentines told the commission that Argentine corn didn't enter into competition with ours and pointed out that in no year under the present tariff had the price of corn in Chicago differed greatly from the price in Buenos Aires by the amount of the existing duty.

They produced evidence from grain importers who insisted that Argentine corn couldn't compete with domestic corn more than 200 miles inland because of present duties and high freight rates. It is used almost entirely by eastern farmers for feed, they said, and these farmers would suffer if higher duties caused higher prices.

In their brief, they held that their protest was largely a matter of principle—that the proposed duty boost would further aggravate the unfavorable position under which Argentine imports into this country had been placed.

Less than half of 1 per cent of Argentina's corn exports are sent to this country, but that amount represents 95 per cent of our corn imports. Corn imports from the Argentine dropped from 2,220,000 bushels in 1924 to 792,000 bushels in 1926. The Argentines say this amount would be virtually eliminated if the tariff were increased.

Not publicly but privately, the Argentines complain that most of the American witnesses before the commission were politically minded and anxious on statistics to prove the need of an increase. They include Senator Howell of Nebraska and a representative of Iowa's governor.

They were shocked to hear the charge that many shipments of Argentine corn had contained weevils. They are convinced that the agitation for increase was motivated by political considerations on the part of those seeking to give some semblance of relief, real or imaginary, to the American farmer.

But in the likely event that the commission finds itself sharply divided on the question it is believed that President Coolidge probably will take no action.

AUGUST 30 1498—Columbus returned to town of Isabella in Haiti. 1776—Washington abandoned Long Island in a fog. 1871—New Nevada state capitol completed. 1908—Fire did $1,500,000 damage at New Orleans.

Render therefore to all their dues.—Romans 13:7.

Health and Diet Advice

By DR. FRANK MCCOY

Dr. McCoy will gladly answer personal questions on health and diet, addressed to him, care of The Herald. Enclose stamped, addressed, large envelope for reply.

APPETITE AND DIRTY EATING.

A new food flavor is not usually relished at first, but one acquires a taste for it. Most of us can remember when we disliked the flavor of carrots when we were children, or perhaps turnips cabbage or squash.

Foods that seem repugnant to one individual may be relished by another. Some find calves brains delicious and others find them repugnant. Some enjoy the raw oyster, and others would not swallow it on a bet. Those who do like oysters usually flavor the oyster with some strong condiment such as horseradish or catsup. The oyster eater would be made sick if he put sugar or honey on as a flavoring.

Some nations have foods which seem odd to others, as the Chinese preserved egg which may be kept many years, and their bird's nest soups, made of nests which are formed of the saliva of a certain type of bird of the swift family.

In some parts of the world, notably in some of the Russian Siberian villages, there is a type of individual with a large belly. Because of their fondness for dirt, which they eat as a regular addition to their meals, these people are called "dirt eaters." For a long time science ridiculed the idea that there was any nourishing quality in the diet, but after a careful investigation, it was found that the soil in these particular localities was rich in small dried and living animal structures and these were actually digested by these individuals and used as nourishment. The strain of handling such a large amount of inorganic mineral matter however, produced pendulous abdomens.

Mothers are often driven to the verge of despair by seeing their children gnawing at pieces of wood, or nibbling the paint off of their toys and scooping up the soil into their mouths. Dirt eating children and babies are very common. Children may taste small quantities of these things when they are babies and later actually acquire a taste for them so that they enjoy their flavor.

While a lack of mineral elements in the food undoubtedly contributes to the craving for these substances, the dirt-eating habit is actually a habit, and must be broken even after the diet is corrected. The dirt-eating tendency in adults seems to be associated usually with feeble mindedness.

Babies undoubtedly need some hard substance to bite on when they are developing their teeth. Pieces of hard rubber and celluloid are good for them to chew on. They may also be allowed to bite on washed raw carrots. It is unlikely that babies will be able to chew off enough of the carrot to cause any disturbance. Celery stalks may also be employed. If the baby shows the tendency to chew at its crib, it may be necessary to wrap the exposed areas in fuzzy cotton material.

The first efforts to correct this habit should be to change and improve the diet. Usually the addition of some raw food is necessary. Orange juice and raw carrot juice may be given to babies, and some of the raw salad vegetables to children. The taste for raw vegetables is instinctive, and most children prefer raw carrots and turnips to cooked ones. They should be encouraged in this by their mothers, since some of the uncooked foods are necessary to our good health.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

Question: Mrs. C. writes: "I would like to know the cause of a pain in the left shoulder, wrist and arm. What would you advise to relieve it? Can one take a fruit fast, changing fruits each day?"

Answer: Your trouble might be neuritis or it might be a reflex from angina pectoris, a form of heart derangement. You should have a thorough examination by a local doctor to determine the cause of your trouble. If you will send me a report on his findings I will be glad to give you ideas as to the best method of overcoming your trouble.

Question: Mrs. K. O. writes: "In your health column you advise that it is safe to eat canned spinach. From laboratory report I have heard that a certain mineral element contained in spinach attacks the can and draws off objectionable matter which makes it difficult for the kidneys to eliminate. Please explain, if this is so."

Answer: I do not know of any poisonous element which is developed in canned spinach, of course, there have been many beliefs and rumors about all canned goods, but my investigations have shown that these reports have very little foundation in fact.

Question: Mother writes: "For the last four or five weeks my baby five months old has been breaking out in a rash. It seems to come on during the night. The doctor does not seem to know what it is. His diet is one pint of milk to one pint of water each day, with a little sugar in it."

Answer: I don't blame your baby for having a rash if you dilute his milk so much, and put sugar into it also. Give him four ounces of pure Holstein cow's milk every four hours, and do not dilute the milk or put anything into it. Just before each feeding give him a teaspoonful or two of pure orange juice.

New York, Aug. 30.—Scattered notes from an afternoon's ramble in Manhattan:

That little slice of Germany and Austria which is to be found in the east Eighties. . . . Particularly on E. 86th Street, where a row of brick fronts have been disguised by the painter's brush to resemble the entrances of old world taverns. . . . And, just beyond, the array of currency scattered about the windows. . . . And, all about the signs of America. . . . The chop suey palaces; the tawdry, stained signs of the cheap dance halls; the pawn shops; the movie theaters with their lurid announcements of western thrillers; the fake auction sales, and the penny arcade.

The shrine ceremonials which start in mid-summer in the Italian quarters of the East Side. . . . The streets are draped in rain-streaked red, white and blue bunting. . . . Along the sidewalks the decorated stalls display alluring tid-bits. . . . The push carts try vainly to crowd in. The candy vendors reveal great blocks of nut-studded taffy. . . . From the end of the street a waxen Virgin looks impersonally down upon the welter of popillations. . . . The shrine of the Virgin has been hastily built between the entrance ways of two tenements. . . . It rises almost to the second story window. . . . On one side is a Jewish delicatessen store. . . . On the other a Russian tailor sits cross-legged upon his work bench. . . . And, in her frame of gold, the Virgin smiles ever so sadly. . . . At her feet is a huge silver platter. . . . Upon the platter are little heaps of coins and, pinned to the solid rows beside her, are crisp new American bills. . . . Rather strange company, when one thinks of it, for the wax symbol of Mary.

Through the nearby streets marches a strange parade. . . . At its head is a band that seems to have been hurriedly assembled. . . . Just behind the band march some cunning youngsters, dressed in what started out to be immaculate white, but it has long since been soiled. . . . Clusters of oft-used cloth flowers adorn their heads. . . . And behind them, lumber a half dozen sweating men, bearing upon their shoulders a shrine. . . . On the shrine rises the wax replica of some saint. . . . Again, good crisp American bills are pinned to the surrounding bunting as an invitation to others to swell the fund. . . . It seems that some parish is in need of funds for some purpose or other. . . . The band plays an ancient march. . . . Yet two East Side flappers attempt some syncretized steps. . . . A throng, gathered upon the sidewalks, tosses coins upon the passing float. . . . Though this is obviously a Catholic affair, two patriarchal Jews throw money. . . . Upon the Jewish holidays the Italians would aid if called upon. . . . That's one thing the East Side has done. . . . It's all very neighborly. . . . They've learned, after a while, to live and let live.

In the evening, long strings of electric lights appear. . . . The gaiety of the occasion increases as the cool winds appear. . . . The band is now ensconced in a rough board stand. . . . The neighboring fire escapes are crammed. . . . There are half a dozen heads for each window. . . . And, at the head of the street, the pallid wax face of the Virgin is dimly lighted by flickering tapers. . . . The thin reflection of the candles falls upon a fat pile of good American silver.

How's the Hittin'?

By ISRAEL KLEIN
Science Editor, NEA Service
Due to the overheated condition of the motor, in summer, the cooling system requires close attention. Water has to be up to the top of the radiator, especially on a long trip. The fan belt should be tight. The rubber hose connections should be in good condition and the pump packing should be secure. These, however, are comparatively unimportant while the condition of the interior of the cooling system remains unattended. It is here that trouble might start, if no attention is given it.

Water, with its impurities, isn't at all beneficial to the metal casing that contains it. Rust accumulates easily, in the radiator and in the cooling jacket. Lime, in some parts of the country, collects along the walls of the jacket and in the radiator pipes. It is essential that these be cleaned out, or the motorist will face the hazard of holes being eaten through the metal and of leaks resulting. The cooling system, therefore, should be flushed out about once a month, especially after a long trip. The old water should be drained out and fresh water poured in slowly through the top, while the engine is kept running. It is advisable to let the water run from a hose, with the engine running, while the pet cock below is open. The water can be kept flushing the radiator until there is a semblance of clearer water than what first came out of the system.

Sometimes no end of flushing will clear all the rust out of the cooling system. Then, a solution of ordinary baking soda—about half of a cupful to a gallon of water—should be poured into the radiator, the pet-cock below shut, and the engine kept running with the spark retarded until the water boils. The spark should be advanced and the engine kept running for about fifteen minutes, after which the solution in the cooling system should be drained out. Then the system should be flushed, as described, and filled with fresh water.

When lime accumulates in the radiator or water jacket, or rust is too thick even for the baking soda to wash out, pure muriatic acid may be used—about a quart to three gallons of water. The engine should be run, with the spark retarded, until the solution boils. Then the spark should be advanced and the engine kept running for about 15 or 20 minutes. After this, the system should be drained and flushed thoroughly with fresh water. It is good practice, in this case, to repeat this process with the use of baking soda in order that the acid may be neutralized. The baking soda solution then should be drained, the system flushed and new water put in.

Never use a liquid solder, or other automotive "nostrum," to cure radiator leaks. There is considerable possibility of plugging up the entire radiator with such cure and preventing circulation of the water. If there is a leak in the radiator, no matter how slight, it is best to

"GYPPING" SUCKERS

The "gyp artist" is loose in the country and is taking his toll of motorists right and left. He is forming motoring clubs and insurance societies, he is selling automobile parts, supposedly faster than a mushroom bed after a rain. The time is ripe for these "gypps". Thousands of motorists are looking for chances to check their ever-increasing automobile budget and therefore jump at an opportunity to buy things cheap. The American Automobile Association says car owners are paying thousands of dollars monthly to many fly-by-night concerns that are masquerading as motor clubs or motor vehicle organizations. They get nothing but promises from them, for when an emergency arises they find their "club" has flown to another state. Thousands of motorists also have been trapped by salesmen who sell parts at a big discount on the contention they are the real products of reputable firms, and that they have been able to make a large reduction because of their tremendous purchases. The parts have therefore turned out to be poor seconds, or rank imitations. Only after a such experience have many motorists learned the valuable lesson of buying only of reputable firms and paying full value for parts or services. It has always been found cheaper in the long run.

DEALERS CHECK ON AUTO BUYERS

San Francisco.—The Motor Car Dealers' Association of this city is checking up on automobile buyers. An elaborate system of indexing which contains a complete record of all time sales is supplied each member. In the index is a record of repossessions made since July 1 of last year—1,432 cars are so listed.

Twenty-two per cent of the total number of repossessions were, on new cars; the remaining 78 per cent were on used cars.

TEN STATES IMPROVE

While automobile fatalities increased in this country in 1922 some eight per cent, ten states lowered their percentage and four increased. Illinois had the largest numerical decrease, from 1776 in 1918 to 1647 in 1922. Montana, with a 22 per cent decrease, had the largest percentage.

WHIRLWIND

THIS WAS HAPPENED

SYBIL THORNE, Boston society girl, returns from a drive in the country with CRAIG NEUWALL to find that her father has died during her absence.

In order to please her father, whom she adored, Sybil had just consented to marry Craig, the most eligible bachelor in town. His death is a fearful shock to Sybil and her trail little mother. But they rally bravely for TAD'S approaching marriage.

Tad, Sybil's handsome brother, is engaged to VALERIE WEST, an empty-headed little debutante. The wedding is three weeks off; and Sybil, fearfully apprehensive, speculates grimly.

"Anything," she reasons, "can happen in three weeks. Maybe Val will elope with a count."

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER VII

Mrs. Thorne, engrossed in preparations for the marriage, was busier than the bride's mother. She monogrammed Tad's handkerchiefs and pajamas, and debated endlessly on the problem of a real "nice wedding gift."

Almost every day she made the weary round of shops and stores, pricing silver and glass, rugs and china—comparing values all the way from Copley Square to Scollay. Finally, in an antique shop on Charles street, she compromised on an ancient secretary and a high boy with a bulging front.

"But, mother," remonstrated Sybil, "Valerie doesn't like old things."

Mrs. Thorne bristled defensively. "There're extraordinarily fine pieces," she said, "and there's nothing could be in better taste than antiques."

Craig had chosen a silver cocktail set; a tray, and a mammoth shaker and many goblets. Poor Craig—he tried so hard to be one of the family. Sybil's heart went out to him, when he discussed with Valerie the advantages of a wedding breakfast as against a buffet luncheon, very solemnly, like a rise old uncle.

He listened patiently to Mrs. Thorne's hemming curtains for Valerie's kitchen. Did he think yellow checked gingham would be cut, or would be like plain white, banded with delicate blue? The blue would match an ordinary linoleum best, of course, but then, wouldn't the yellow afford a pleasing contrast?

Craig was confident and lacking for the lot of them. He ran errands for Valerie, made reservations and bought tickets for Tad. Mrs. Thorne, when she took to weeping, found his shoulder always accessible. Even Mrs. West sought his advice.

Craig was to be Tad's best man, and Valerie's cousin, Bertha Onts, was to be maid of honor. She was dark, and rather florid—a little greasy looking, Sybil thought, with straight, oily hair, and small eyes. An admirable contrast for Valerie's blond beauty.

Bertha was so dull she made Valerie positively radiant, and more exquisite than ever. Sybil had heard that beautiful girls sometimes chose ugly friends, in order to seem more attractive themselves; but never before had she lent any credence to the notion.

It was to be a very simple ceremony at St. Margaret's-by-the-Sea, the little stone chapel where Valerie's grandmother had been married 50 years before. Not that there was anything sentimental about the Wests, but only that St. Margaret's afforded such an admirable solution. It was much smarter than had been in the days of Valerie's grandmother, and the rector was very High Church.

It was quite the thing to be churchy about a marriage. Jazz weddings were distinctly passe. Dignity had become a sacramental thing, and Valerie, who six months before had contemplated carrying a swag stick to the altar, ticked new for suitability.

St. Margaret's was austere. It was, indeed, the very place for a "little family wedding." There seemed to be nothing even faintly disrespectful to the memory of Mr. Thorne about getting married at St. Margaret's. A city church, of course, would have been different.

Tad was beginning to wonder if he had ever really known Valerie before. Her conversation was entirely exclamatory. She was either "simply furious," or thrilled to death. She "despised" things or "adored" them, knowing no half way emotions.

"You'll be a wreck by the time I get you," he told her gently, when she came to him one evening from the dressmaker's, exhausted and in tears.

"Caveman!" she retorted, and he knew she had misunderstood. Valerie was not as innocent as Tad had thought. She discussed their married life with a great deal of modern frankness.

"I don't propose to have any children for at least five years," she told him.

"All right, baby," he agreed. "And if I should ever stop caring for you, I wouldn't live with you for a single minute," she went on. "That wouldn't be anything short of legalized—"

"Valerie!"

He stopped her sternly. "I don't like to hear you talking like that, baby. You're my little girl, and I'm crazy about you, I guess that doesn't leave you anything to worry about, does it?"

"Where'd you get all these ideas?" Tad persisted. "What's got into you, Valerie?"

Idea's," he persisted. "What's got into you, Valerie?"

"Oh, I suppose I've changed," she conceded. "One does, you know."

Valerie had forgotten to bring a gift from Paris for her maid of honor, and Tad had driven her down to find something. He cruised around the congested streets, seeking a place to park while Valerie ran into a jeweler's.

"I shan't be a minute," she promised. "Any old thing will do for Bertha. She hasn't an idea in the world what's what. It won't take me a sec."

Tad parked the car in front of a caterer's. Valerie was to leave an order there for pastries for a luncheon she was having the next day, and Tad was to wait outside.

An hour passed. A policeman requested him to move on. He drove up West street and down Temple Place and slowly along Washington street. He was beginning to worry about Valerie. Probably they had missed each other when he had to move. Perhaps he had better go back to the jeweler's. Val would be annoyed if he kept her waiting. She had so much to do—poor kid!

He left the car at a garage in Park Square and took a taxi back. Almost two hours. "Wow! Valerie'll be having a fit."

He saw her first. Hanging over a counter, where precious stones rested on velvet pillows of white and royal purple. She was holding her hand to catch the light. And on her little finger a diamond ring sparkled and gleamed. A man was bending above her. A stick hooked over his arm, and a glass in his eye. He was smiling fondly and twirling a small blond mustache.

Tad had never seen Valerie look happier, nor more beautiful. He wanted to shake her as though she were a naughty child. Yet he felt a contradictory impulse to crush her to him, and kill the rest of the men who sought her smiles. He had an absurd desire to slap her in the forehead across his smiling, crimson lips.

"Oh, Taddy! I want you to know the grace to look guilty."

"Oh, Taddy! I want you to know Lord Montford. And, Monty, this is my darling fiancé—don't you love him, Monty? Isn't he beautiful! Mother and I met Lord Montford in London, Tad."

The men were bowing stiffly. "I'm sorry I kept you waiting, dear—but Monty just insisted upon buying me a wedding present. And he simply MADE me choose it myself. Wasn't it the funniest thing, running into him like this? The Levitan is in this morning, you know, and Monty hasn't been in town an hour. I think it's just the screamingest thing!"

"See my lovely present, Taddy!" Valerie held out her hand. Gravely Tad took it, and bent to look. He must be able to control his voice before he spoke. He wondered if Valerie and her Monty had noticed how completely the dazzling thing eclipsed the solitaire on Valerie's third finger. Of course they had. No wonder the idiotic spark looked so complacent.

"You are very kind, Lord Montford," he said, and every word was barbed with the venom that choked him when he tried to speak quietly. I am sure. But I cannot permit my fiancé to accept so valuable a gift."

"Why, Taddy!" Valerie sounded like an outraged exponent of all the conventions.

"Why, Tad Thorne, what do you mean—talking like that! I will, too. The very idea! Anybody'd think...."

"But if Miss West wishes," began Lord Montford smoothly, "I scarcely understand...."

"Valerie, give Lord Montford back his ring."

YOUR CHILDREN

by Olive Roberts Barton

Don't leave children at home all day when you go out. Take them with you once in awhile. They will probably pick up more information in a day than you could tell them in a month.

Don't drive through the country as though you were going to a fire. Get out and give the children a chance to become acquainted with trees and wild-flowers, birds, streams, and farms. Farm animals are always interesting. Stop and give them an idea of what farm life really is.

Don't take them to movies and then later when they ask questions remark impatiently. "You wouldn't understand." They love to talk things over and should, therefore, be full of information. But to children they need expanding. I know of no more bewildering experience for children than to see a picture that they do not understand and then find no one willing to talk it over with them.

Don't live in a city almost next door to interesting galleries, or museums, and never give the children a peep inside. Take them in and let them learn about these things. Factories and mills are the most fascinating of places. Take the boys through them. Show them the new buildings that are going up too—the new way of pouring foundations of concrete, structural-steel work, air hummers, the materials that go into building. It is an education in itself.

I lived in a city of three rivers for the first 20 years of my life and was never on a boat. I lived in a community surrounded by a complete diamond of large beautiful parks, but for every tree there was a sign—"Keep Off the Grass."

Within an hour's ride on a street car from our old home was one of the most famous views in the United States. I never saw that view until last month when I took my own children to see it.

Children then were "seen and not heard," nor taken around very much. The world has changed considerably. If parents are going to keep abreast of the times they will take their children to see things and explain as they go.

HERE'S AVERAGE BABY!

By DR. MORRIS FISHBEN
Editor Journal of the American Medical Association and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine.

The average baby walks when it is about 18 months of age. As the colored boy said when asked as to his tip, "The average is a dollar, but most of them do not come up to the average."

Mothers should not be disturbed if their babies fall to walk at 15 months of age, merely because a neighbor's child or Aunt Susie walked when she was 13 months old.

When the child is born its brain is a well developed structure capable of learning. It has certain patterns to conduct that are inherited. If anything put in its hand and hang on.

By the time it is six months old it can roll over.

Some children begin to say recognizable words at 18 months, few children use more than five or six words by the time they are 13 months old.

Some infants can drink from a cup at the age of a year, others continue to use a bottle after two years, although this is somewhat delayed development and can probably be corrected by proper teaching.

The 4-year-old child should be able to dress itself and to wash its face and teeth. Some children point to the nose, eyes or hair and can climb steps at one year of age, but the average for this conduct is about 18 months.

Listening to Stories
A 2-year-old child, as established by Dr. Arnold Gessell, can fold paper, use simple sentences and phrases, name familiar objects like keys, pennies, watches, etc., and listen to stories and look at pictures, and attempt to describe its own experiences and ask for things at the table by their names.

Above all, it is important to remember that children differ. Not all of them can be educated in the same way; much depends on the environment and handling of the individual child.

Reading Cards
Cards may be read from the fall of certain other cards in the suit which is led. When west, the leader, opens a suit, east should try to signal definite information about his holding.

The leader's partner should either encourage him to continue the suit or discourage him from doing so.

When the 7 or a higher card is played by the leader's partner, it is a signal to lead that suit again—an encouraging card.

Assume that your partner's opening lead is the spade King. You hold spades, Q 9 7 3.

Interpreting the lead, you know that your partner also holds the spade Ace and others in that suit. You should play the spade 7 which will inform your partner of the fact that you hold strength in that suit and want it continued.

Assume now that you hold spades, 7 5 3 and your partner leads the spade King.

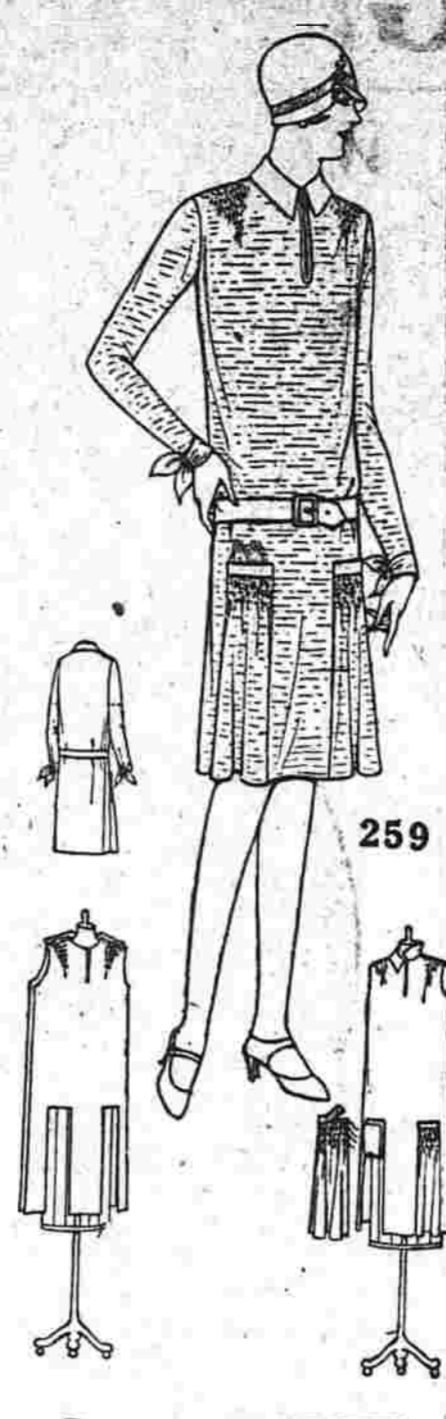

You want to inform your partner of the fact that you do not hold strength in that suit and you should therefore play the spade 3. This is known as a discouraging card and is a signal to your partner that you cannot help him in that suit.

BREAKFAST CHANGE
A change in breakfast dishes, good at this time of year, is grilled fresh tomatoes with crisp bacon, rather than eggs. Slice about a half inch thick, sugar, salt and pepper, dip in flour and fry in a skillet with plenty of fat, very hot.

COLORFUL CONTAINER
A very inexpensive yellow glass jelly dish heightens the beauty of the breakfast marmalade. Similarly, lettuce and tomato salad look enticing when served on green glass plates which cost only a few cents.

LAUNDRY SAVINGS
If you hang all your clothes of a kind together, when laundering, and sprinkle and iron in the same order, you will find much time saved in extra handling required in sorting afterwards.

This And That In Feminine Lore

Youthifying are the facials and skin treatments given at the Lily Beauty Parlor to correct the wrinkles and tan caused by sun and salt air. Upstairs in the House & Halls building; phone 1671.

This is a good time to plan flower gardens for the coming year and to plant those hardy perennials and bulbs that will provide masses of gay color throughout the season.

Within the next two weeks all the garden clubs in surrounding towns will be having flower shows—the one of the Manchester club is on the 6th and 7th at Center church. Don't fail to attend it and as many others as you can find time to visit. It is educational and altogether delightful. Large drops will form at the edge of the spoon and break off quickly. This is called "sheeting." When it has cooled and stiffened, pour on melted paraffine and put on tin lid or the paper over tops of glasses. In nearly all cases where the fruit is just ripe two cups of sugar to three cups of juice makes a better jelly than the customary proportion of 1 cup sugar to 1 cup juice.

Usually people just about to take trips study up on the places they plan to visit. Why not get out some catalogues or garden books and look up names and illustrations of the flowers, then if they are in season, seek them out at the exhibits and decide whether you want them for your garden. Many people visit the iris and gladiolus gardens and other commercial flower gardens hereabouts and buy on the spot or make lists of the blossoms that appeal to them. Just now some of them are making it an inducement for gardeners to purchase, especially when they have an overstock of some varieties.

By the way, we are about to begin a series of "Flower Talks" on the home page by Romaine B. Ware. As a magazine writer he is known to thousands of gardeners. His talks will be on autumn planning and planting. Don't miss them.

The writer was one of the party that went to Rockville the other evening to see the night blooming cereus. Another Rockville lady informs me that she had one of these plants that grew to an immense size and on one occasion had 30 blossoms. She said they fragrant with the beautiful fragile flowers which perish when the daylight strikes them, and found that by putting them in the icebox they could be kept for two days further. They were accustomed to leave the plant outdoors in the summer after danger of frost was over. A leaf that has blossomed may be planted in a flower pot and a new plant started in that way. She also said you can tell when the petals are about to unfold as the stem supporting the flower begins to turn up.

Mrs. E. L. Gates of North Elm street called me up to take a look at her fuchsia recently, which is growing in a flower bed in the yard and was planted there about the middle of May. From a small branch or two, it has grown very thick and bushy and is literally covered with pretty bright cerise blossoms. There are hundreds of them fully out and in tight buds. I mildly hinted that she ought to take it up and enter it in the flower show next week. This might give it a setback and perhaps it would be wise to allow it to go on until frost.

This seems to be a garden column today. People frequently tell me of interesting things in their gardens and I have more invitations to come to see this and that plant than I have time to accept. Monday evening I stopped to see from a garden in East Hartford, when the call came about the cereus blooming out in Rockville, and as I had never seen one before I was eager to go.

There is much more interest in flowers than in vegetables. Most people are willing to leave the raising of garden produce to the market gardeners or those who make a specialty of it. I do want to speak of some ponderous tomatoes raised from seed by William Shaw of Edwards street. Henderson's "Wing All" is the variety. Many of them weigh a pound and a half easily, and the vines seem to have all they can do to support some of the clusters. They make those on our own tomato vines look like marbles. In the early summer when tomatoes are sold by the pound they would bring about 35 cents apiece.

The two ways of testing jelly most commonly used are the following: Pour half a teaspoon of syrup on a very cold saucer. Let stand in a cool place for a minute. If it jells the mixture is done; or, dip a spoonful of jelly from the pan and pour from spoon into pan. If it is cooked to the proper consistency, large drops will form at the edge of the spoon and break off quickly. This is called "sheeting." When it has cooled and stiffened, pour on melted paraffine and put on tin lid or the paper over tops of glasses. In nearly all cases where the fruit is just ripe two cups of sugar to three cups of juice makes a better jelly than the customary proportion of 1 cup sugar to 1 cup juice.

KING SOLOMON'S BARN

FOUND AT ARMAGEDDEN
BY AMERICAN EXPEDITION

Chicago.—Discovery of the famous horse stables of Solomon during the excavations of the ruins at Armagedden, Palestine, recently announced by the Oriental Institute of the University of Chicago, is described in a full report of the University by P. L. O. Guy, field director of the Institute's Megiddo expedition.

The 3,000-year-old stables on the town site of the great battle city of Armagedden north of Jerusalem and about ten miles inland from the Mediterranean Sea, cover half an acre.

"Solomon laid out his stables very systematically," says the report, "the stalls being arranged in double rows. The horses, about twelve to the row, stood facing each other, with a passage between the two rows of heads for the groom and feeders. In front of each horse was a manger, and the rows of mangers were divided by massive stone hitching posts, which still contain the original tie holes for the insertion of the halter ropes."

HEX MOTHERS TURTLES

Lancaster, O.—A hen is the foster mother of 13 black snap turtles on the farm of Charles George Pleasantville. After 32 days of waiting, 13 of 15 turtle eggs were hatched. The hen became frantic when she saw the result of her work and had to be removed to the chicken run.

RABALM QUICKLY TOOK STING OUT OF INSECT BITE

"Riding through the swamps of Louisiana last summer, I felt a painful sting on my arm, followed by an immediate swelling that had all the earmarks of becoming serious. As soon as possible I applied a little Rabalm on the sting, which had become badly inflamed. In spite of my delight to find that within a few minutes the pain had gone. The swelling had begun to disappear, and within an hour, no trace of the bite was apparent." H. D. Arthur, New Orleans, La.

Rabalm is the result of a scientific effort to find an effective remedy for inflammation, wherever it occurs in skin or tissue. Smoothed lightly on the affected part without painful rubbing, Rabalm quickly penetrates to the seat of the inflammation and relieves the pain. It is how quickly it stops the itching and stinging when applied to any kind of insect bite. Then, a little more slowly the redness and inflammation disappear. Two sizes, 50-cents and $1.00 containing 3 times as much. RABALM is for sale by all druggists.

WORLD'S CHAMPION SPORTSMAN

LIPTON HAS SPENT MILLIONS IN EFFORT TO CAPTURE CUP

By HENRY L. FARRELL. A sportsman could have strict interpretations. Another million dollars was tossed on the water off Cowes recently when a new Shamrock boat was entered by Sir Thomas Lipton in the annual regatta just to see what she could do.

Mantelli Beats Edgar In Good Pitching Duel

BEHREND, MALLORY WIN NET MATCHES

Three more matches in The Herald's tennis tourneys passed into history last night. Paul Jesanis had little trouble in eliminating Allan Dexter in straight sets losing only one game. The scores were 6-1 and 6-0. According to Dexter, Jesanis played far better tennis and easily outclassed him. The winner's serve was especially good. Jesanis meets either Henry McCann or Jim Gush in the third round or quarter-finals.

SHARKEY-HANSEN BOUT POSTPONED

Jack Is Angry Because Dane Is to Be Managed by Gibson.

New York, Aug. 30.—In the course of events in the next heavyweight tourney it is not ordained that Jack Sharkey and Knute Hansen will meet before next spring. This was the burden of a disclosure yesterday by James J. Johnston, spokesman for Sharkey, and in his own naive way James Johnston declared the famous ten-year feud between the two men who are being maneuvered into the spotlight by Tex Rickard.

Gene Fowler, new public relations counsel at the Garden, got on the job yesterday with an announcement that Flynn or no Flynn, young Stribling would positively pry open the Madison Square Garden lid with Johnny Squires as party of the second part. Jack Curran has assigned some of his best wrestlers to train the South African champion with the idea of teaching him to break Stribling's favorite holds.

St. John Accounts for Both Runs as Prentice's Colts Win 2-1; All-Stars Fail in Thrilling Finish.

Manchester Green scored another victory to its already overcrowded list of victims last night by taking Dodger Dowd's All-Stars into camp to the tune of 2 to 1. The game was played at the West Side Playground in conjunction with the track and field meet program.

It was an interesting pitcher's battle between Elmo Mantelli and Pop Edger with the former emerging as the winner by a deserving margin. Each man allowed five hits and was effective with men on base.

The Green scored a run in the second inning. St. John drew a base on balls and took second on a sacrifice hit by Bob Boyce. He scored on Edger's high single to right. The All-Stars tied the score in the third. Massey's base on balls coupled with Kotsch and Brennan did the damage.

The winning run was scored in the fourth. It was unearned. With one out, Linnell was safe on Brennan's costly error. He scored when St. John rapped a double to right field having already taken second on Brennan's misplay.

The All-Stars had men left on base every inning for want of timely base knocks. In the final inning Hewitt and Zwick opened with singles and were advanced to third with a sacrifice by Carlson. There was one out. Vince struck out and Edger grounded out Boyce to Cheney ending the game.

Following is the box score: MANCHESTER GREEN (2) AB R H PO A E. Stevenson, 3b. 2 0 0 0 0 0. Dowd, 3b. 1 0 0 0 0 0. Mantelli, p. 3 0 1 2 1 0. Linnell, ss. 3 1 0 1 2 0. St. John, lf. 2 1 2 0 0 0. R. GAS BUGGIES—Where To Get Off

FLAPPER FANNY SAYS:

If the flying boy-friend is behind on his correspondence he may have sky writer's cramp.

SENSE and NONSENSE

Briggs: "I've lost my new car." Griggs: "Why don't you report it to the sheriff?" Briggs: "He's the one that took it."

Auto Salesman: "Ever drive a car?" Prospect: "No, but my neighbor and his wife frequently take us riding and I've listened to her drive."

The rumble seat isn't new. Many a farmer has ridden the old spring wagon seat for years.

People are funny. We know a bachelor who thinks marriage a lottery and won't take a chance, and he just bought a used car.

Driving in the Rain. The tires hiss softly on the pave; The lights make jewels of the rain; Across the glass a tiny wave Ripples again and yet again.

The water magic of this night Brings back a dear and tender pain. Reminding me of old delight— When we drove slowly through the rain.

He (disgustedly): "I think I've got a flat tire." She (oh! grieve a chance, we're not a block away from home yet."

The old parlor sofa may be old stuff—but anyway, it wasn't apt to smash into a tree just when we used to get romantic.

We noticed a sign on the bumper of a Lincoln car in front of the Herald Office today as follows: "Lizzie's Poppa."

The old-fashioned, indigent tourist cooked in a tin can instead of riding in it.

Don't start trouble—it never is equipped with four-wheel brakes.

The fool who used to rock the boat now wrecks the car.

No wonder the old-fashioned family was larger. A wagon holds more passengers than a sedan.

A Heavenly Jingle. Jack and Jill Sped up a hill; The curve up there was sharp. The car upset, Jack's rolling yet— Jill's playing on a harp. "This gearshift doesn't work." "That isn't the gearshift, Don. It's er-er—it's my knee."

Policeman: "How did you come to get hit by an automobile?" Rubie: "I didn't come to get hit by an automobile. I came to see my nephew."

The steering wheel rim needs no grease but many a garage mechanic thinks so.

LETTER GOLF

TWO CAN DO THIS

TEAM WORK comes in handy often and in letter golf it makes a nice par six. Perhaps you can beat the solution on another page.

Grid for letter golf puzzle with letters T, E, A, M and W, O, R, K.

THE RULES

- 1-The idea of letter golf is to change one word to another and do it in par, a given number of strokes. Thus to change COW to HEN, in three strokes, COW, HOW, HEW, HEN.

The Tinies practiced quite a while. The big band master had to smile to hear the funny sounds they made but he was very kind. "Don't be impatient, boys," he cried. "There's nothing learned, if nothing's tried. If you keep on at practicing, you'll soon know how, you'll find."

LOSES CAR HE LET STRANGER NAP IN

John Shiebel's Wayfaring Guest Disappears Same Time as Auto.

An automobile belonging to John Schiebel of 114 Summer street was stolen from the yard of the new Central School, Winsted, on Tuesday noon. Schiebel is employed by the Manchester Construction Company, which is building the school. While enroute to Winsted to the job Tuesday morning he was halted by an unknown man in Hartford who asked for a lift. Schiebel took him in. Upon arriving at the job in Winsted the man asked if he might remain in the car for a nap.

Schiebel was reluctant, as for some reason he didn't quite trust the man. However, he had nothing definite to base suspicions on, so he consented. During the morning Schiebel saw the man still in the car and everything apparently all right. At 12 o'clock the man and the car were still there. Three minutes later, when Schiebel came out of the building, car and stranger were both gone.

100 CHILDREN GUESTS OF MANAGER SANSON

Revue Kiddies and Others Have a Wov of a Time at the State Theater.

Over 100 children were the guests of Jack Sanson at a farewell party held on the stage of the State theatre after the matinee yesterday afternoon. Originally it had been Schiebel's intention to invite only the members of the cast of this year's Kiddie Revue, but at the last moment he invited all the children who attended the matinee as well as the Revue cast.

Tables were set on the stage for over 100 and paper hats were distributed among the young guests. Then the mothers, the ushers and several of the leads in the show served ice cream, cake and orangeade. Parents and friends seated in the auditorium were also served with refreshments.

Clatterers, a complimentary contribution of the Manchester Dairy Ice Cream Company, made a fearful racket for a while, but finally the youngsters got down to brass

PHONES Pinehurst "GOOD THINGS TO EAT"

NEPTUNE'S OFFERING.

The deep salt sea keeps coming to the rescue of the grass grown land in the latter's temporary difficulty in supplying animal food in quantities sufficient to meet the demands of a hearty nation. The New England fishing fleet continues to have good luck and workable weather, so that the supply of seafood this week is liberal in quantity, superb in quality and widely varied.

Even the swordfishermen, who hunt their game with the harpoon and lead an exciting life, find the season of their activities extending beyond the season's usual length. Many splendid "swords" have come to market, and Pinehurst has a considerable quantity of this delectable seafood of the very finest quality. Patrons who have a special yen for this kind of fish will do well to take advantage of the opportunity, for the season is normally about over and the supply is likely to quit, any time now.

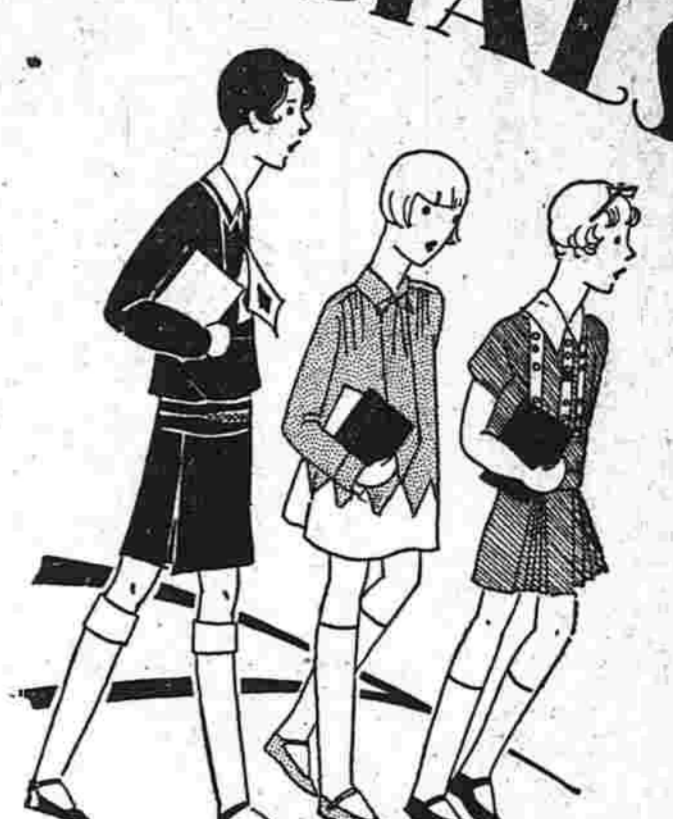

Any day, too, the mackerel are likely to disappear from this coast—and not even the wisest of the fishermen knows where they go. When the schools vanish—presto! no more fresh caught mackerel till another year. And who wants the storage kind? The newly caught ones are running a beautiful size—pound and a quarter to a pound and a half each; fat and hard and delicious. Cod is running well again. You can buy the fish either to bake or boil or steaked. The halibut schooners have brought in quantities of prime, big fish and Pinehurst got its share. We can supply plenty of those carefully prepared filets of sole or haddock, while dressed haddock, the always dependable and always good staple, is in the list as usual.

There are a good many epicures who consider boiled fresh salmon the finest hot weather dinner food in existence. They won't change their minds this week if they get their salmon at Pinehurst. It's fine.

Altogether old Father Neptune has been kind to Manchester folks this week. Call or phone, it's all the same. You get the best, one way or the other with equal certainty.
