

RADIO TO PLAY A BIG PART IN HOOVER'S PLANS

All of His Keynote Speeches In the East to Be Sent All Over Nation in Gigantic Hook-up.

Washington, Sept. 5.—The Republican Party will use radio broadcasting on a greater national scale during the pending campaign to elect Herbert Hoover than has ever been attempted previously, it was announced here today.

All of Hoover's "keynote" speeches in the east, where the Republican nominee believes the election will be decided, will be delivered at night, so the radio can be used to broadcast them to twenty million listeners across the country. In addition, a tremendous national hook-up of radio stations will be employed to broadcast Republican campaign doctrines for a half hour on each of the last forty-five nights of the campaign.

Begin Sept. 22
The nightly "air talks" will begin Saturday, September 22, and continue right up to the night before election. On that final night, Hoover himself will deliver the half hour, with a speech probably from his home in Stanford University, Cal.

Hoover personally endorsed this radio program. The experience he gained while directing the government's supervision of radio as secretary of commerce, convinced him that millions of people could be reached by broadcasted speeches, who would not otherwise take an interest in politics.

The three important eastern speeches, already determined upon by Hoover, will be delivered at night over the radio. This program includes the labor speech at Newark, N. J., on September 17, his "southern" speech at some point adjoining the North Carolina-Tennessee border, and a third in Carnegie Hall, New York City, on October 17. He will make one more big speech in the East, probably in Boston and probably about the second week of October.

The "Great West"
Following the New York address, Hoover will leave on his second transcontinental tour for the purpose of voting at home. He will visit Chicago again on that trip and there is a possibility he may even go to Detroit. From Chicago, his advisers want him to take the northern route westward, via Minneapolis, St. Paul and through the Dakotas and Montana. Final decision, however, will not be reached until close to the time of his departure and it will be determined by the political conditions then existing in the mid and far west.

POLICE OFFICIALS IN GRAFTERS' RING One Discovered Who Had Accounts in Half a Dozen Banks.

Philadelphia, Sept. 5.—A high police official stood revealed today as possessor of accounts in half a dozen banks and a safety deposit box filled with cash and securities, as a result of District Attorney John Monaghan's grand jury probe of underworld activities in Philadelphia.

Monaghan declined to reveal the name of the police official but intimated the funds discovered amounted to thousands of dollars. Unless the source of this wealth and huge sums owned by several police officials can be explained it will be considered tantamount to prima facie evidence of graft and corruption in office, the district attorney said.

His Question
"What business has a police official on the salary he obtains from the city, to have big bank accounts in half a dozen banks and to possess safety boxes filled with securities?" Monaghan asked.

The contents of the safety deposit box, the second seized since the probe began will be examined today by the Grand Jury. It is reported the official stored away graft money for use when he quits the force.

The man is declared to have risen from the ranks. He virtually holds the bootleggers and gunmen at his mercy, it is claimed, and is able to tap their profits at will.

The seizure of the box was followed by a two-hour examination by the Grand Jury of Captain of Detectives Charles Beckman, his 70-year-old mother, who came to City Hall from a sick bed and Beckman's brother, Gustave, well-known musician and composer.

Beckman publicly denounced reports that he had inherited $200,000 from an estate in Germany as false.

JOHN COOLIDGE GETS JOB IN GOV. TRUMBULL'S SHOP

And Not a High Collar Position, Either—In New York Now Awaiting Arrival of Florence.

Superior, Wis., Sept. 5.—John Coolidge may be the son of the President and a college graduate to boot, but when he enters business he's going in on the ground floor and work his way up.

It was learned here today that John is planning to go to work in the electrical appliances manufacturing plant of Governor Trumbull, of Connecticut. His first job will not be of the white collar variety, it is understood, but one actually in the shops. From there, of course, he is expected to work his way up as he learns the business.

Governor Trumbull is the father of Florence, that attractive young lady to whom it is rumored, and seemingly reliably so, that John is engaged.

In New York Today
John is arriving in New York today, having departed from the Summer White House here on Labor Day. On September 9, Miss Trumbull arrives from Europe, where it is whispered she has been selecting a trousseau, and John undoubtedly will remain in New York to meet her. From there, the couple probably will go to Hartford, Conn., and to the Trumbull camp in Maine before John buckles down to his first job.

Meanwhile, President Coolidge is showing some signs of annoyance over the amount of publicity the affairs of John are getting. It is thought that as his son holds no public position there may not be so many columns of newspaper devoted to him. It is also apparent that he fears so much attention may go to his son's head.

Those who have come in contact with John this summer do not hold to the latter opinion. Five years as America's "Prince of Wales" seemingly has accustomed him to public adulation.

Today, the President is going to give a trap shooting exhibition, which, in due course will be relayed visually to the general public. Camera men and reporters were notified that if they put in an appearance at Cedar Island Lodge they would be permitted to take pictures of Mr. Coolidge smiting at play pigeons and report the score run up.

THREE PERSONS KILLED IN A HARLEM BLAZE

Five-Year-Old Child Among Victims—100 Lives in Danger From Fire.

New York, Sept. 5.—Three persons, negroes or Porto Ricans, were known to be dead, one a five-year-old child, a man was expected to die and 100 persons were in peril in a fire that swept 1963 Seventh avenue in the heart of Harlem today.

Firemen were searching the ruins of the five story tenement for additional bodies.

All the known dead are still unidentified.

The body of the five-year-old girl was on the third floor burned beyond recognition. The man and the woman were taken from the top story of the burning tenement and both lived but a few minutes.

CURTIS WARNS NEW ENGLAND AGAINST DEMS.

Says Revision of Tariff Would Ruin This Section's Industries—His Boston Address.

Boston, Sept. 5.—Declaring a Democratic presidential victory would lead to downward revision of the tariff and resultant economic disaster in America, Senator Chas. Curtis, Republican vice presidential nominee, today carried the tariff war into the heart of New England's protected industrial area.

Curtis spoke at an outdoor rally of Republicans and he made the tariff the keynote of his speech. He warned New England's industry that Governor Alfred E. Smith, Democratic nominee, by endorsing the Underwood Tariff Bill, had demonstrated that "American labor, industry and agriculture will receive no tariff protection from the Democrats."

Part of Prosperity
The policy of tariff protection has been so interwoven with our economic growth that it is an inseparable part of our present national prosperity and success, said Curtis. "Its abandonment cannot be considered for a moment. Any general revision downward, such as was made the last time the Democrats were in charge of the country as a whole, would mean the economic ruin of the country."

Curtis read from the Democratic platform the tariff plank declaring the "actual difference between the cost of production at home and abroad with adequate safeguard for the wage of the American laborer, must be the extreme measure of every tariff rate."

No Extreme
"The Republican Party recognizes no extreme measure of any tariff rate," Curtis continued. "Whatever rate is necessary to protect American labor, industry and agriculture must and shall be applied."

Curtis warned his audience about the economic conditions which existed in New England in 1914 during the Wilson administration. He recalled how the governor of Massachusetts was asked to throw open armories to unemployed, a place to sleep and how appeals were made for bread lines.

"These conditions of distress were nation-wide and the country was saved from a staggering calamity only by the outbreak of the European war and the rush orders for American goods," said Curtis.

In closing, Curtis declared he believed "that tariff should be raised or lowered," in order to protect America against ever-growing imports of cheaper produced foreign goods.

RASKOB ANSWERS SLOAN STATEMENT

Says Prosperity Has Nothing to Do With Wet and Dry Issue.

New York, Sept. 5.—Returning to his desk today after a ten-day round-up of the middlewest, Chairman John J. Raskob of the Democratic national committee resumed his attack upon prohibition with a denunciation of the employer and industrialist who supports the dry regime as a factor in American prosperity.

"Prohibition is just a scheme to prohibit those without money from the party," he said. His statement was called up by the recent announcement of Alfred P. Sloan, Jr., president of General Motors Corporation, declaring his support of Herbert Hoover. Sloan expressed the opinion that our present unprecedented prosperity was due in a large part to the increased productive efficiency of workers under prohibition.

"I don't think there is any justification for that conclusion," Raskob declared. "Our prosperity is due to our high wages and enormous consumption of goods."

Turns To Maine
Satisfied that they have their middlewestern campaign under way, the Democratic national turned today to Maine, where the state election September 10 will give the first indication of the direction and force of the 1928 political winds.

The Democratic organization has put forth an unusual effort in Maine this year, determined that even should the state be lost to the normal Republican majority, the G. O. P. plurality shall be cut down to the last possible vote.

ROWLAND LEADS 38 AIRPLANES IN U. S. DERBY

First to Reach Columbus, O., In Race From New York to Los Angeles; Two Other Classes to Start.

Columbus, O., Sept. 5.—Edward Rowland piloting a Cessna monoplane in the Transcontinental Air Derby was the first to arrive in Columbus control, landing at Norton field here at 11:08 a. m., from McKeesport, Pa., on the third leg of the flight from New York to Los Angeles.

AT MCKEESPORT
Betts Field, McKeesport, Pa., Sept. 5.—Edward Rowland of Wichita, Kan., flying a Cessna Model A monoplane, landed here at 10:25 a. m. (Eastern daylight time) today, the first of the Transcontinental Air Derby fliers to complete the second leg, from Harrisburg to McKeesport.

The second arrival was Robert Dake, of Rogers field, Pittsburgh, who brought his American Moth to a perfect landing at 10:28 a. m.

An unconfirmed report reached the field here that one of the entrants had been forced down near Lebanon, Pa., east of Harrisburg.

At 10:15 a. m. the silver Traveler biplane piloted by W. H. Emery, Jr., of Bradford, Pa., zoomed out of the sky. This was the third Class A entry to appear at the second control station.

The weather was ideal for flying and Betts field was in good condition for the Derbyites, who were to rest here 30 minutes and then resume their flight to Columbus, O.

Rowland, the leader, took off at 10:55 a. m., on the third leg. Three minutes later he was followed by Dake, of Pittsburgh.

The fourth arrival was Theodore Kenyon, of Boston, who came down at 10:58. Seven minutes later James Charles, of Richmond, Va., landed.

THE START
Roosevelt Field, N. Y., Sept. 5.—Altogether 38 planes, including Albert A. Jacobs at the controls and Sam Gordon as passenger hopped off here at 6:43 a. m. (eastern daylight time), the first of 38 Class A planes in the National Air Derby to take the air in the transcontinental air race to Los Angeles, Cal.

The remaining 37 planes hopped off at one-minute intervals. Hundreds of spectators watched the planes dash across the runway and then lift gracefully into the gray skies of the morning.

One minute after the Waco left the field, a monoplane piloted by Dan R. Robertson, with Earl Doherty in the observer's seat, roared across the field, its Curtiss-OX-5 motor spitting flames, and soared into the air, winging away to the west.

It was not out of sight, before the Lincoln Vega piloted by Leslie C. Miller was tearing across the turf, lifting clear of the ground, and following hard on its tail.

Motors Roaring
Motors were roaring everywhere, as one ship after another taxied to position, waited for its signal to start, and dashed off on the way west.

The planes one after another zoomed into the sky, like a flock of birds roused from the bush by a hunter. They circled and dived over the field, got their bearings, straightened out and flew full speed for the west. As the planes left the field they were checked by official timers.

Harrisburg, Pa., is the first scheduled stop of the Class A planes. There they will halt for thirty minutes to refuel and make any mechanical adjustments necessary. Another half-hour stop will be made at McKeesport, Pa., today followed by an overnight stop at Columbus, Ohio. According to the rules of the race, each plane must remain thirty minutes in all but night stops and any plane failing to reach the night control city by 3:30 p. m. will be ruled out of the race.

RESULTS!

Shortly after six o'clock Saturday evening a man walked into the Macell Motor Sales showroom with a Herald under his arm. Opening it to the classified page he asked to see the Ford roadster they had advertised. In less than fifteen minutes this good used car was sold.

And The Herald helped to do the job—The Herald found the buyer.

It will do the same for you! Call 684 and ask for "Bee." She'll take your ad and words it for best results.

CROSSING DEATH TRAP KILLS BROTHER, SISTER

WHO IS TO BLAME?

Three years ago the Public Utilities Commission was petitioned by Manchester's Board of Selectmen to order gates as a protection at the Oakland street railroad crossing here. A hearing was called by the commission at the time, and the Manchester Improvement club sent several representatives to plead for an immediate remedy for a serious danger. After the hearing the Utilities commission declared that gates were not called for at the crossing, but suggested to the New Haven Road that a bell warning be installed.

It Died.
But somewhere in that big Yellow Building in New Haven the "suggestion" passed out. No warning bell was ever installed. On May 28 last three strangers lost their lives at the crossing through negligence which has never been definitely placed. Someone was to blame for those three men's deaths, but someone else legal procedure allows such a tragedy to creep into hazy memory.

Up to Somebody.
Last evening that tragedy of three months ago was very nearly re-enacted, but this time it struck home—almost like a warning from the Omnipotent that something must be done about that crossing. A Manchester father and mother are suffering cruelly today because someone failed in his duty. Someone is to blame for that tragedy last night, and whether that blame falls upon local authorities, on railroad officials or on that Utilities commission, one of these groups ought to stir to town toward preventing a repetition of those awful tragedies.

It's Bad Anyway.
That Oakland street crossing is treacherous even though a flagman is stationed there—part of the time. The approach from the north is over a trolley track, up a mean little grade and on to a crossing surface which never was any too smooth. And crossing the spot from the south the visibility either way is very poor because of a mass of shrubbery on both sides of the Oakland street crossing. Cut down that shrubbery for a distance far enough back so that approaching trains can be easily seen! Level off the gravel bank which also hinders the view up the tracks!

Tell Them It's There.
Just recently one man— an unused concrete house, formerly a firehouse—has been removed. The view up the tracks is improved, but it isn't good enough yet. It would be far better to plaster that crossing with signs than to allow one modest post to alone tell the traveler that he is near danger. Put up signs that compel attention! A sign that harmonizes with the beauty of the shrubbery won't make a driver look. Put up something that jars, and then maybe a strange driver will realize there is a crossing ahead.

Do Away With It.
But, better still is the suggestion which was made in these columns some time ago, sponsored by former Selectman Robert V. Treat—do away with that crossing entirely. A plan has already been prepared by Town Engineer Bowen for eliminating the danger spot. Build a bridge across the tracks near North Elm street and fence off the Oakland street crossing! That's a feasible plan and the New Haven Road could build two or three bridges for what accidents on this one crossing will cost it.

Why Not?
If another three months goes by without some action having been taken—call up a member of Manchester's Board of Selectmen and ask him why.

GERMANY TO WIN DIRIGIBLE RACE

Britain's Big Airship Will Not Be Ready Until Next Spring.

London, Sept. 5.—Germany, it now seems certain, will win the race with Great Britain to be the first country to produce a passenger-carrying Atlantic dirigible.

Already work upon the R-100, giant British dirigible, is several weeks behind schedule, despite the fact that 356 men are working almost night and day at Howden, Yorkshire, in an intensive effort to complete the dirigible before the end of the year. Howden is the home of the British aircraft industry.

Built Under Contract
The R-100 is being built under contract by the Airship Guarantee Corporation, in which Commander Burney, the famous airship expert, is largely interested. Burney now admits that the first trial of the dirigible cannot possibly take place before the first of November, when the Germans are confident that their Zepplin, christened "Count Zeppelin" will be in the air by the middle of this month, or a few days later.

Construction of the R-100 was begun early last year. At that time it was expected that trials could be started last autumn. Delays developed and the tests were tentatively set for April, but when April arrived the ship was far from ready. In the opinion of dirigible experts here it will be impossible for the vessel to attempt a trans-Atlantic crossing before next spring.

Burney's Opinion
"I hardly see how we can get the R-100 ready for her tests before the end of November," Commander Burney told International News Service. "How long the dirigible will last is problematical. It gives no indication when the ship will be ready for her first flight across the Atlantic."

There is keen competition among the men and women who want to be the first passengers to cross in the glinty air of the skies. Burney said if the westbound flight was successful he hoped to have the ship return to England from the United States with 100 passengers aboard.

The R-100 will cost $2,500,000 when completed. The chief delay in getting it finished arose from the difficulty of obtaining certain materials for the interior.

"PHOTOGRAMS," LATEST THING IN TELEPHONY

New York, Sept. 5.—"Photograms" are now the latest in communications. The Postal Telegraph Company today announced inauguration of a new service by which a person may send a telegram in his own handwriting or a picture of an object he desires to transmit. The cost is slightly more than that of an ordinary telegram. Direct "photogram" service will be operated between New York, San Francisco, Boston, Atlanta, Cleveland, Chicago, St. Louis and Los Angeles.

ROCKFORD FLYERS RETURNING HOME

To Sail for Copenhagen and Then to New York; Abandon Plane.

London, Sept. 5.—Bert Hassell and Parker Cramer, pilots of the plane Grater Rockford, who were rescued after two weeks of adventure in the wilds of Greenland, are preparing to leave Mount Evans at the earliest opportunity for Copenhagen, said a radiogram from Godhavn today. They will proceed to Holstenberg, where they will sail for Copenhagen upon the ship Disko. It is believed that the Disko will leave Holstenberg in about a week, but as its journey to Copenhagen will be by circuitous route it is impossible to say when it will reach the Danish capital.

Both Hassell and Cramer are well but are anxious to get started on their way home. They have given up the idea of proceeding to Stockholm, which was their destination when they hopped off at Rockford, Ill., last month, from Copenhagen they will sail for New York.

While the radiogram made no mention of the men's plans regarding the airplane, it is believed that it will be left stranded on the inland ice at Sukkertoppen where it was forced down by lack of fuel on August 18. Later, an attempt may be made to salvage it by representatives of the Danish government or by members of the University of Michigan.

Arnold and Shirley Wright, Children of Joseph Wright, Dead, Brother Walker Critically Injured When Auto Is Crushed by Express Locomotive on Fatal Oakland Street Crossing—Passage Left Unguarded Just Before Trains Rush Past—Girl Dead Before Reaching Hospital, Boy Dies in Two Hours on His Birthday.

The fatal Oakland street crossing of the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad at the north end last evening added to its victims two of the children of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Wright of 63 North Elm street, with the probability that the third child of the family will die, when a west bound express train crushed the automobile in which they were riding.

The dead are Arnold Wright, 17, and Shirley, his sister, 15. A younger brother, Walter, 12, is at Memorial hospital, so grievously injured that little hope of his recovery was entertained today. Shirley was dead before the automobile in which she was placed reached the hospital. Arnold died at 8:45 last night without regaining consciousness. Walter, with a broken leg, broken ribs and fractured collar-bone and suffering from shock, besides possibly being injured internally, received a blood transfusion late last night, but it was believed that his chance of recovery was remote.

Went On An Errand
The three young people had been into Hartford with their mother yesterday and completed their outfitting for school, to which they were to return today after the summer's vacation. It was Arnold's birthday. He was to have begun his senior year at Shirley's her junior year at Manchester High School this morning.

When their father returned last evening from his business in Hartford, where he is an automobile insurance adjuster for the Actua company, it is believed that he gave the children permission to use his car, a new Oakland sedan, to go on an errand. Arnold had only recently received a driver's license. Apparently the errand had been completed and Arnold was driving home just about the time when the 6:38 east bound express and the 6:43 west bound express on the New Haven road were due to pass through the north end.

The crossing tender at Oakland street does a twelve hour trick, the crossing being guarded from 6:30 in the morning to 6:30 in the evening, but completes his day's work and leaves the place unprotected a few minutes before these two expresses are due to pass the spot.

The east bound train was approaching and Arnold stopped his car on the north side of the crossing. There was another car there, just ahead of him, a red roadster occupied by one man. According to John Bonczek of 43 Mill street, the only actual eye witness who could be found, both cars waited till the east bound express had passed, then immediately the roadster started up and crossed the track. This car, while ahead of the Wright car, was also somewhat to the east of it and had more or less obscured the view of the track from the latter. This, together with the fact that the rumble of the east-bound prevented him from hearing the whistle of the rapidly approaching west-bound train, is believed to have prompted the young driver to follow the lead of the roadster and undertake to cross safely by the narrowest of margins, but the Wright car was struck squarely.

Car Torn To Bits
The locomotive of the express, driven by Engineer Edward Bruce, was drawing its heavy train, at a relatively high speed and of course the engine man was utterly helpless to prevent the accident. His great locomotive was upon the automobile, had struck it and thrown it high in air and directly in its own path, within two or three seconds. Bruce jammed on the air and stopped his train within a few hundred feet, but the sedan meantime had been torn to pieces.

A tattered and twisted remnant that had been the top and rear part of the body was slung onto the east-bound rails about thirty-five feet from the crossing, where contact with a switch seemed to have broken the car in two. Here train

BLAME SMOKING FOR BIG LOSSES IN FOREST FIRES

Portland, Ore.—Smoking comes high in Oregon and Washington, according to forest service officials here who declare that more than a third of all man-caused forest fires started in the national forests in these states are traceable to discarded cigar or cigarette butts.

With a total of 293 man-caused fires recorded so far this season, 100 of them were started by careless smokers, according to their records.

Statistics compiled by the forest service brand the careless smoker as one of the most dangerous firebugs the country has to contend with. Every time he throws a burning cigarette into dry grass or needles on the forest floor he gives the fire demon odds of one to nine that it won't start a fire.

These odds, they say, combined with the United States amazing total of 171,232 cigarettes smoked each minute, day and night, throughout the year, are held accountable for the large percentage of disastrous forest fires. If but one-third of the cigarettes consumed annually were smoked out-of-doors, they point out, there would still be over 50,000 chances a minute of a fire starting from a burning snipe.

Tests have been made by officials of the United States bureau of standards to determine the fire hazard from smoking materials. They were made by dropping lighted cigar and cigarette butts in prepared mats which contained combustible materials similar to forest undergrowth.

Fanned by Air

Air traveling at velocities from one to twelve miles an hour would then be blown over the set to determine ignition frequency under different conditions.

It was found materials ignited most readily under a gentle three-to-four mile wind. Out of 95 tests made 85 per cent ignited. The butts would burn for half an hour in some cases while the longest interval necessary to ignite the mat was only nine minutes.

MAHARAJAH OF INDORE IS SUED FOR $69,000

London, Sept. 5.—Alleging wrongful imprisonment of her daughter and herself, personal injuries, systematic cruelty and misappropriation of property, Mrs. Babal Pandarimath Rakpurkar, a Hindu, is suing the former Maharajah of Indore for $69,000 damages in the Bombay High Court.

A Central News dispatch from Bombay, Sept. 4 afternoon, says the woman claims that the former Maharajah, who is now the husband of Nancy Miller, of Seattle, lured her daughter and herself to Indore for immoral purposes and kept them imprisoned there for 10 years. The High Court is debating whether it has jurisdiction.

Sowkabal, who is a woman of striking beauty, testified in her petition to the court that both she and her daughter had been mistreated by Tatvasheb Holkar, cousin of the former Maharajah of Indore. In 1915 they were persuaded to go to Indore to participate in the festivities in celebration of the birth of a child by the former Maharajah's second wife. The ruler of Indore was smitten by the beauty of Sowkabal and her daughter. The day following the arrival of the party in Indore he had Tatvasheb arrested and lodged Sowkabal and her daughter in a residence surrounded by troops. According to Sowkabal the ex-Maharajah suggested to her that she and her daughter become his mistresses. When they refused both were arrested and imprisoned in Manchester fort for nearly 11 years, being released in 1926, following a petition to the English viceroy. They allege that their furniture and jewels were misappropriated during their imprisonment.

BOY DROWNED.

Stamford, Sept. 5.—Police today are searching the waters of the beach at Cummings park for the body of Warren Flanders, age 11, who failed to return to his home last evening after leaving in the morning with his bathing suit and lunch. The Flanders family came here from Willimantic about a year ago.

FLOWER EXHIBIT OPENS TOMORROW

Charles M. Murphey to Show Over Sixty Gladiolus Varieties.

Charles M. Murphey, chairman of the Manchester Garden club's autumn flower show which opens tomorrow at Center church, told a Herald reporter today that he plans to bring in from his farm at Coventry more than sixty named varieties of gladiolus, including the new "Catherine Coleman" on which Mr. Murphey was awarded prize for the best spike at the state fair at Charter Oak Park this week. The exhibit from the Murphey farm will occupy the entire platform. They will also bring in for decorative purposes lillium auratum and delphiniums.

Other choice varieties of gladiolus in the Murphey display will be "Blue of the year" which they took prize for best spike at the state fair last year; Mrs. Leon Douglas, the new French gladiolus; Jean Du Tallies, which has a large, open flower; Persia, the darkest gladiolus known; Marmia, Emil Aubern, Aristocrat, Mrs. J. K. Armsby, Don Juan, Purple Glory and other varieties too numerous to list.

Miss Mary Chapman, chairman of the committee to secure judges has been successful in gaining the consent of several well known horticulturists to act in this capacity. At least four names are listed of Glastonbury: Raymond, Newell, secretary of the Connecticut Horticultural society and Professor Piester who is connected with Hartford's park department and who on one occasion lectured before the local club.

W. E. Buckley's committee for special flower arrangement is preparing three groupings of flowers and decorative objects against fabric backgrounds, groupings such as might be arranged by flower lovers for home decoration. Members of the committee are requesting that these arrangements be a little special attention for it is hoped to have competition along these lines in the club's next show.

Everything points to the most successful exhibit the club has ever staged at this early date in the year. The public will be open to the general public at 3 o'clock tomorrow and remain open until 10. Friday the show will be open continuously from 10 a. m. to 9 p. m. Admission is free to all, and the committee are anticipating a large attendance on both days.

FEAR MANY KILLED IN RAILROAD WRECK

Milwaukee, Wis., Sept. 5.—Frantic efforts today are being made to rescue harvest and construction gang workers believed buried beneath the mass of wreckage of nine freight cars which piled up at Lynwood, a Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul Railroad station twelve miles east of here.

One young man, about 20, is dead, and nine others, all seriously injured, are at a Milwaukee hospital. At least four more are known to be under the pile of iron and wood.

Early reports stated that at least twenty men, railroad workers and harvesters "beating" their way eastward, were aboard the middle car which caused the wreck. About ten others were in following cars. The dead has not been identified.

Among the nine who were in a serious condition at the hospital are: Stanley Slinwaki, 21, Cleveland; Stanley Mattis, 40, Chicago; Chester H. Smith, 42, Altoona, Pa.; Fred Johnson, 41, Chicago and Gunnar Johnston, address unknown.

CHURCH OFFICIAL SHORT OVER MILLION DOLLARS

Atlanta, Sept. 5.—With an indicated shortage that may exceed $1,000,000, auditors of the Southern Baptist church continued today their work of unraveling the accounts of Clinton S. Carnes, missing treasurer.

For nine years Carnes was treasurer of the Southern Baptist Home Mission Board, and millions of dollars donated in pennies, nickels and dimes by children and adult communicants of the church, passed through his hands.

He had unlimited authority, and it has just been revealed he dealt with the work of handling the accounts of the state, and so complicated were his financing arrangements that it may take several more months to get at the exact shortage.

For the last quarter alone, however, Carnes was short between $300,000 and $400,000, the auditors reported to the executive session of a score of officials who have hastily gathered here to learn the truth.

Carnes suddenly left Atlanta, August 15, and no trace of him has been found.

WOMAN APPOINTED

Hartford, Sept. 5.—Mrs. Edward W. Frisbie, of Hartford, was today appointed an assistant secretary of the Republican state central committee. William M. Harney, a Hartford lawyer, was recently given a similar appointment. Clarence G. Willard, of New Haven, is secretary of the committee.

BRANARD IN RACE

Hartford, Sept. 5.—A last minute political rumor today indicated that Lieut.-Gov. J. Edward Branard, of Branford, had withdrawn from the race for nomination as lieutenant-governor, in favor of Francis A. Pallotti, of Hartford, secretary of state. The lieutenant-governor this afternoon emphatically denied the rumor and repeated his former statement that he is in the race to the very end.

TONY PRETE'S FORTUNE THE PIPE-DREAM KIND

Wife and Family Say They Haven't Seen Any of the Money—And Tony Is Only Laughing.

Tony Prete, concrete contractor, and builder of many of Manchester's pretty stone walls, was being congratulated today by a few persons who had heard he had just received $25,000 by the will of his dead cousin, the famous aviator, Major Carlo del Prete. But, Tony had told his story without thinking it would travel very far, and newspaper would print it.

If he has the $25,000 by his credit in a Hartford bank, as the story went, his wife doesn't know it—and what wife wouldn't? And, if Tony had written to his cousin congratulating him on his recent flight from Rome to Brazil, it must have been delivered by a spiritualist because the famous aviator never returned to Italy to which country it was addressed. And further more the letter Tony dictated to a friend of his never was mailed.

Tony's family says his story about receiving $25,000 is just a day dream. And, Tony himself is just laughing today.

And then, after you've read all that, just figure it out for yourself—Aviator del Prete died in Brazil less than a month ago. Try to have a will (if there was one) probated and settled in this country within that time—let alone the complications that would naturally arise because of the fact that the testator was an alien.

NEW GAME LAWS TO GIVE BETTER BIRD SHOOTING

Washington.—An increase in the number of woodcock is expected as a result of new open season game laws for this bird, according to experts of the Biological Survey of the Agriculture Department.

Last year it was feared this fowl would become extinct, and a number of changes were agreed on for this year in the migratory bird laws. A general readjustment in federal seasons on the bird has resulted. Changes were worked out so that there would be a minimum of conflict with state laws, the Agriculture department declared.

In most instances it has been arranged so the woodcock seasons would open simultaneously with, or later than the state seasons on quail and other upland fowl.

Season Limited

The hunting period on woodcock throughout the country this year will be limited to one month. The new schedule for open season on woodcock is as follows:

Maine, Vermont and North Dakota, all of October.

New Hampshire, Massachusetts, Rhode Island and Connecticut; October 20 to November 19.

New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Indiana, Michigan, Wisconsin and Iowa; October 15 to November 14.

Maryland, District of Columbia, and Missouri; November 10 to December 10.

Delaware, Virginia, West Virginia, Kentucky, Arkansas and Oklahoma; November 14 to December 15.

North and South Carolina, Georgia, Alabama, Mississippi and Louisiana; all of December.

Other changes in the bird treaty effective this year affected fowl in Massachusetts and doves in Georgia and Louisiana.

October 1 to January 15 will be established as the period for hunting waterfowl in Barnstable County, Mass., south and east of Cape Cod canal, under the new provisions. This conforms with the open season in Dukes and Nantucket Counties.

The open season on mourning doves in Georgia extends from October 16 to January 31, conforming with the state season; a split season on this fowl will be established in Louisiana, from September 1 to 30 and from November 20 to January 31.

74 NATIONS JOIN TO FINISH WORK ON BIG WORLD ATLAS

London.—A world atlas, with each nation's contributions of maps, drawn to exactly the same scale and on the same lines, comprising about 1,920 sheets to cover all the land on the globe is in process of formation.

Delegates appointed by forty-seven governments attended a great International Geographical Congress at Cambridge to report on the progress of the map.

The work, though first conceived in 1891 and begun in 1909, will not be finished for many years. Indeed some countries, including America and Australia have hardly made a beginning.

Brazil, on the other hand, a country with vast tracts of unsurveyed land, has sent in more sheets than any other nation.

More than 200 maps have been drawn up so far, the uniform size for each sheet being six degrees longitude and four degrees latitude. The completed maps are done in layer tint, the contours being shown by various colors from green at sea level to dark brown at 3,000 metres above the sea.

men and citizens found Shirley and Walter Wright, both still alive. The chassis and front part of the car was carried about a hundred feet further and dumped, a crumpled mass of wreckage, in the middle of the right-of-way. Gus Ulrich, north end restaurant man, and several others who ran to the scene immediately, saw the unconscious form of Arnold Wright in this mass of debris and succeeded in extricating him. All three children were placed in automobiles and hurried to Manchester Memorial hospital. Shirley died on the way, her neck having been broken.

Identities Confused Among the first arrivals, who removed the victims, there happened to be none who recognized the children and it was some time before their identity was established. The car registration card, which was picked up, indicated its ownership however and early reports around the north end were that the victims were Mr. and Mrs. Wright and one of their children. It was not until neighbors went to the Wright home to break the news to the surviving members of the family that it became generally known just who the occupants of the car were.

Repeated blasts on the locomotive whistle gave notification of the accident and a large crowd gathered. At the hospital both the Wright boys were unconscious, but it was obvious that there was no hope for Arnold while the younger lad appeared to be somewhat less injured. Arnold was attended by Dr. LeVerne Holmes, while Dr. A. F. Lundberg, the Wright family physician, and Dr. D. M. Caldwell, hospital surgeon, devoted themselves to efforts to save the life of the younger boy. Arnold died at 8:45 and about two hours later blood transfusion was resorted to in the case of Walter. Today it was said that he showed some signs of improvement.

Highly Regarded Family Mr. and Mrs. Wright were taken to the hospital by friends as soon as the identity of the victims was established. Mrs. Wright has been in indifferent health for some months, and both parents were completely unnerved by the tragedy. They have no other children.

The family is one of the best known and most highly regarded in the north end. Mr. Wright is president of the Manchester Community club and both he and Mrs. Wright have a wide circle of friends, while their children were among the best liked young folk in the community. A great wave of mingled grief and indignation swept over the north end and the town generally when the news of the tragedy became known—indignation that such valued lives should be sacrificed to the indifference to consequences that leaves the Oakland street crossing unguarded.

Sightseers in Peril Last night the scene of the accident was haunted by a constantly changing crowd. The wrecked automobile had been rolled into the ditch beside the tracks and hundreds of the morbidly curious stood gazing at it. Shortly after the accident the crowd was driven from the tracks by police. Sergeant John Crockett, Patrolman Michael Fitzgerald and Motorcycle Officer Roberts taking charge, while Station Agent John J. Dwyer assigned a railroad employe to watch the wreckage.

Later in the night, however, the curious throng again invaded the tracks and when a picture of the wreck was being made by a photographer some of the onlookers became so interested in watching his torch that a passing freight train was almost on them before they realized that they were standing on its track. Two or three persons narrowly escaped being killed.

The necessity of watching the wreckage was demonstrated when a Rockville man tried to remove the motorometer from the wrecked car. It is said that one citizen, indignant over this piece of ghoulishness, gave him a beating. At all events he did not get his souvenir.

Uncle Aunt Victim The tragedy recalls the circumstance that an uncle of the Wright children, George Lang, also met his death in an automobile accident when the car in which he was riding collided with a trolley car on the night of Dec. 20, 1919. Lang and Andrew Sebula had been to Hartford on a Christmas shopping trip. On McLean hill, near the Hoekannum river bridge, their trolley car was crushed by a Hartford bound electric car. Both were killed.

Private Funeral The double funeral of Arnold and Shirley Wright will be held at Watkins Brothers, 11 Oak street, at 2:30 Thursday afternoon. It will be private. Rev. F. C. Allen of the Second Congregational church will officiate. Bearers will be classmates from the high school and from the Sunday school of the Second Congregational church. Burial will be in Buckland cemetery.

The Wright Children Yesterday was the seventeenth anniversary of the birth of Arnold Lang Wright. He was born in Manchester on September 4, 1911, and was the first child born to Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Wright. He attended the Ninth District schools while the family lived on Russell street and later the Blith District school, entering Manchester High school with the class of 1929. He was to have returned to school today as a senior.

His sister, Shirley, was born on May 8, 1913, and she, too, was a student at Manchester High school, being a member of the incoming junior class.

Walter Edward Wright, the youngest of the three, was born November 16, 1915. He is a pupil of the eighth grade at the Robertson school.

Three Earlier Victims It is only a little more than three months since the Oakland street crossing was the scene of another fatal accident, when a small automobile in which three men were riding was struck by the noon express train, west bound, on May 26, and all three killed. The victims in that tragedy were strangers, later identified as Vincenzo Pascalli, 35, of Penn Yan, N. Y.; Constantino Farinelli, 44, of Quincy, Mass.; and Frank Sumbe, of Penn Yan. In that case even the presence of flagman was of no avail. It was raining and the driver of the car failed to note his warning signal.

ROOKIE COP KILLS EX-CONVICT IN DUEL

Taxi Driver Wounded by Flying Bullets—Women Suspects Held.

New York, Sept. 5.—A rookie policeman early today killed an ex-convict with a single bullet through the head shortly after the man had robbed a restaurant while two women companions and a male accomplice waited outside in a speedy roadster.

A taxi driver, who picked up the policeman and drove him in a thrilling chase after the bandit car, was wounded. The officer escaped though the man he slew fired point blank at him. The women witnessed the killing.

The dead man is Frank Gallagher, thirty, who got out of Sing Sing after the last of numerous terms only this summer. Patrolman James A. Cronin, five months on the force, is the one who "got his man." The women are Mrs. Edna Klemme, twenty-five, and Miss Helen Fernine, twenty-one. The wounded cab driver, Samuel Stein, twenty-nine, Brooklyn, was taken to a French hospital. His wrist was shattered by a slug from Gallagher's pistol and his abdomen was torn by the lead as it glanced from his wristbone.

GERMAN PRESS SEES U. S. RED ALLIANCE

Berlin, Sept. 5.—With Chancellor Mueller at Geneva pressing for evacuation of the Rhineland, the German Press today features the possibility of a rapprochement among America, Germany and Soviet Russia.

The forthcoming trip to Berlin of Georges Tchitcherin, Soviet commissar for foreign affairs, is being hailed by its object the smoothing of Russo-German relations which were recently ruffled by the trial of several German engineers at Moscow charged with complicity in the Don Basin sabotage conspiracy. A Russo-American rapprochement is seen as a possible result of the Soviets' adherence to the Kellogg-Briand pact for outlawing war; also, America's eagerness for Russian business.

News advices state that counter between the United States and Soviet Russia is expanding rapidly.

NEW STATE RULING

Hartford, Sept. 5.—A married woman takes the residence of her husband for voting purposes, even though she has never resided in that town, according to an informal opinion issued by Attorney-General Benjamin W. Alling here today. The attorney-general sent the opinion in a letter to C. J. Atwater, of Seymour, saying "a woman married to a man who was a voting resident in Seymour, but who (the woman) now is working in Washington, if she has been married to that man more than one year. A woman takes her husband's residence as her voting place although she has never resided there."

CLOSE THAT CROSSING

The terrible tragedy at the Oakland street crossing last evening provides just cause for bitterness of spirit over the continued peril which, for one reason or another, has been permitted to exist at that fatal spot. It is futile to say that persons using the crossing should exercise due caution, that its elimination at grade would be expensive, that this, that or the other condition argues for delay in its eradication.

The Oakland street crossing has taken enough and tragically more than enough of such lives. Every atom of energy of the people of Manchester should be applied to wiping out this ghastly peril—at once.

That a substitute crossing is needed for the convenience of the public is a safe assumption. That it would be better to close the crossing now, and leave the solution of the problem of convenience to be attended to afterward, is certain.

Meantime, if the crossing is to be kept open even for a week or a day, perhaps the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad Company might be prevailed on to abandon its cynical and unbelievably stupid schedule of guardianship which relieves the crossing tender ten minutes before two express trains are due at the spot.

HUGHES A POWER

Unquestionably the strongest Republican in New York state, so far as ability to command the respectful and serious attention of the intelligent vote is concerned, is Charles Evans Hughes. And Mr. Hughes has cabled an offer of his services as a speaker for Hoover in that state during the campaign.

The offer has, of course, been eagerly accepted and the voice of the former Governor, former United States Supreme Court justice and former secretary of state will be heard all over the empire state during the crucial weeks of the campaign.

Hughes' appeal to the New York voter is, in a strangely contradictory sort of way, something like that of Governor Smith. That is, it is definitely personal and it is local to the state. Elsewhere in the country, it is probable, there are a dozen speakers who could do the Hoover cause more good than Mr. Hughes could. But in his own state there are thousands upon thousands of voters who listen to the Hughes voice as the one of final authority. It is doubtful if another individual lives who exercises an equal degree of influence among a very large and very important part of the electorate of that commonwealth.

The entry of Mr. Hughes into the New York fight may very well indeed prove to be the decisive factor in carrying Smith's own state for Hoover.

WOMEN'S VOTES

Straw votes and canvasses during Presidential campaigns would carry more weight of conviction if we could always know more about the circumstances under which they were conducted and the extent to which scientific research exceeds partisan bias in dictating the methods of those who conduct them—or to what extent bias controls.

We should not, perhaps, place complete reliance on the canvass of 50 apartment houses "in various localities in Manhattan" which shows that of the two thousand woman residents interviewed two favored Hoover for every one favoring Smith; because we have no assurance that even if these fifty houses stand in various localities they are not, after all, pretty much one type or grade of apartment house. Quite possibly a canvass could be made by a Democratic women's committee which would show the exact reverse—this one was made by a Republican committee.

Just the same it is improbable that the canvassers would make any actual misrepresentation of facts and one fact related would seem to be significant—a fact having to do with the changing of votes. It is reported that in one house where forty women were questioned as to their intentions, five Republicans expressed their purpose of voting for Smith while two Democrats said they intended to vote for Hoover.

This item seems to us to be much more significant than the total of the report. The latter might easily fail to be representative of the feeling of the community. But these canvassers certainly did not pick out preponderantly Democratic neighborhoods for their canvass. And if they found, in a neighborhood naturally Republican, more Democratic women shifting to Hoover than Republican women shifting to Smith it is extremely probable that many more Democratic women than Republican women in the city as a whole are changing their political affiliation this year.

BIG PUBLIC WORKS

There is essential wisdom in the proposal urged by President Green of the American Federation of Labor that the federal government make protective provision for great public works, holding their authorization as a safeguard against possible periods of unemployment and putting them into actual operation at any time when such unemployment may become serious.

There are those who hold that with a long distance program of such works—interstate waterways, great trunk highways, reclamation and irrigation projects, reforestation, seaboard dyking, etc., stretching into the future and provided with emergency authorization, it would always be possible for the government to profitably absorb any serious excess of labor that might develop in the country temporarily, and by creating in turn a market for many materials that must enter into such works, materially assist in rectifying the seemingly inevitable periods of depression.

However effective our individualistic system of production and distribution may be, on the whole, it can hardly be maintained that it is scientifically exact in its balances; so that there are always likely to be brief periods, even in the midst of very genuine and very general prosperity, when the wheels will slow down in certain branches of industry, as they have now slowed down in cotton manufacture and soft coal production. Private enterprise can never, in the nature of things, take care of such contingencies, and in some way or other the preservation of the balance between the number of jobs and the number of workers must be assumed by the people as a whole.

The emergent use of unemployed in the conduct of big public works is the sanest and probably the most effective plan for meeting such contingencies that has ever been proposed. Fortunately it is attracting the attention of leaders of thought in very different positions from that of the head of the country's largest labor organization. Under Mr. Hoover it would be certain to crystallize into an active national policy.

CROOK BANKRUPTCIES

The executive manager of the National Association of Credit Men makes the formal statement that fraudulent bankruptcies cost legitimate business five hundred million dollars a year, a sum equaling much more than half of the total turnover of the entire silk industry of the country, which is about eight hundred and nine millions annually. Also he places the responsibility for this "new giant of American business," on easy credit, cheap money and sharp competition among manufacturers.

He has not told the whole story. It is true enough, of course, that opportunity for commercial crookedness is enlarged by these factors of easy credit, cheap money and sharp competition, but in themselves they do not account for the terrific tolls taken of general business by criminal debtors in the last twenty years. Underlying the whole fabric is the fact that there are an infinitely larger number of deliberately dishonest, unscrupulous persons engaged in trade in this country than there was a generation ago.

There is a marked relationship between the fraudulent bankruptcies and the immigration schedules. There are scores of thousands of traders in the United States bankruptcy court records who made their appearance in this country subsequent to that 1890 census in which Governor Smith does not believe as a basis for national quotas of immigrants. People who came here, not to take part in the development of the country, not intending or expecting or willing to do any of the nation's work, but to lap up some of the cream after the work had been done by other hands. Scan the bankruptcy lists and see the preponderance of their alien names.

Nine-tenths of the commercial dishonesty of this country is imported. Governor Smith wants new quotas established, so as to let in another food of the same element to further poison the stream of American business.

LEARNING HOW

They are now discussing, at this and that editorial desk, the probability of the genuineness of the reform of George Babb, George, it will be remembered, is the Brule guide who had the distinguished honor of being President Coolidge's companion on most of the latter's forays against the Brule river trout. It has been reported that he was the cussiest guide on the Brule, but that, having been advised that the President regarded with great coldness the use of hot language, he set himself diligently to the task of self-reform, with such success that he, like the famous Captain Corcoran, never, no never, uses the big, big D any more.

Some editors believe. Some doubt. We go further. We are absolutely and irrevocably convinced that if President Coolidge has been associating at one and the same time with wild trout and a wild cussier, and has had any one of at least sixteen experiences that he certainly must have had in a whole season's fishing, it is the President and not the guide who has learned the new method of speech. Let a pound and a half trout carry the leader around a snag after the angler has once caught a glimpse of his gleaming underbody—and if there's any new kind of talking done it isn't going to be by a guide, saying, "Well, well, how unfortunate!" Not by a jugful.

HELIUM GAS BOOMS QUIET KANSAS TOWN

Dexter, Kan.—This quiet little village located in the southern part of Kansas, is now humming with active life and growing by leaps and bounds, all because the dreams of a former army officer became a reality.

Lieut. R. R. Bottoms, discovered huge helium gas deposits here recently. Lieut. Bottoms was assigned to the dirigible service, during the war and knew, to his horror that every dirigible "sailing" faces—an explosion of the gas bag in mid-air. Bottoms had heard of helium gas, and he started making researches along that line. He located a deposit of the gas in Kentucky, and resigned from the army to form a company. The deposits failed and Bottoms once more started in search of helium gas deposits. He learned of a small strike of this kind of gas here and, tracing it down, found there were possibilities for a vast field.

Now his factory covers several acres of ground adjacent to the village and his company has leases covering all surrounding territories with a number of producing wells and others drilling or located. His company is selling all the helium gas it can get, about two-thirds of it to the United States government.

Helium gas is non-inflammable. A lighted match can be thrown into it and it will not ignite or explode. The factory refines this gas and ships it in huge tanks.

CALIFORNIA FARM GIRLS WEAR SCIENTIFIC SHOES FOR BIGGER, BETTER FEET

Berkeley, Cal.—California farm girls who "know their onions" are avoiding bunions by wearing shoes with a college education. This was disclosed today by the extension division of the University of California. More than 2,000 farm families in the state and more than 3,000 farm girls in 41 counties have been urged by the Extension division to preserve their health by wearing shoes that will insure "bigger and better feet."

"Comfortable footwear to dispense with care," is the slogan of the girls who have joined the 4-H clothing clubs sponsored by the Extension division.

Explaining the movement, Miss E. Dodson, specialist in the agriculture division of the university department says:

"If we are to keep good feet, we must treat them fairly during the first twenty years of our life. Then we should continue the same treatment throughout the rest of our lives."

GOITRE. This disease has been found in every country in the world, and many theories have been advanced as to its cause. For a long time it was supposed that the absence of iodine in food was responsible for this condition, and this idea is still being exploited by manufacturers in many parts of the country, but this cannot be the true cause of goitre since it is present in the female sex about six times as frequently as in the male, and both sexes presumably consume about the same amount of iodine. The fact that goitre is very prevalent in Switzerland and in other mountainous districts where people do not obtain much iodine in their drinking water or food, has been frequently used as proof of this statement. However, along the Jersey coast and in many parts of Japan, where iodine is plentifully supplied in both food and drinking water, goitre is frequently met. Excessive use of starch seems to be an important factor in producing enlargement of the thyroid gland.

It is a well known fact that the thyroid gland is slightly larger in woman than in men, and this gland becomes swollen at various periods in a woman's life. In fact, many goitres in women originate and are associated with some type of female derangement; possibly one-sixth of the cases of women or about an equal number of the cases of men can be traced to toxic substances that accumulate in the thyroid gland and cause it to become enlarged.

The thyroid is one of the ductless glands that have furnished material for much research and probably more is known about the function of the thyroid than of the other ductless glands, such as the pituitary, adrenal, or gonads. This little organ, situated at the base of the throat in front of the windpipe, is shaped very much like two small kidneys, one at either side and connected together in front below the Adam's apple. Experiments tend to prove that it is a regulator of other glands, too much thyroid secretion speeding up, and too little causing a slowing down. A person affected with too much thyroid secretion will have a pulse of 130 or over, which is probably the most dangerous effect from the thyroid.

Nearly 5,000,000 people in the United States suffer from some form of thyroid trouble, and most of these are the hyper-thyroid or over-thyroid cases. It is one of the principal causes of heart trouble which claimed over 12,000 lives in California alone during a period of one year. This friendly little gland can become your greatest enemy if it is dressed in toxic material. Its activity is increasing and your heart action more rapid, your little thyroid may be responsible. There are many forms of thyroid

WASHINGTON LETTER

By RODNEY DUTCHER Washington, Sept. 5.—One of the things that now seems pretty obvious in this presidential campaign is that the professionals are going to keep away from the Tammany issue.

It's all right for the guerrillas, the camp followers and the unofficial spokesmen to yell blue murder because the Democratic candidate is a grand sachem of Tammany Hall, but the boys who occupy official positions of responsibility will find other subjects to discuss.

Apparently there is something almost like a gentleman's agreement in effect, based on the theory that pots which live in black houses shouldn't call kettles black. For the sad truth is that despite the unquestionable probity of the two presidential candidates and despite the undeniable noble sentiments expressed in both major party platforms, both tickets must depend very importantly on the support of political machines which, if they are not corrupt, are commonly supposed to be.

However firmly they may be convinced of the wickedness of Tammany, the Republican campaigners are faced by the painful fact that in recent years it has been the wickedness of Republican machines in big cities which has been getting all the publicity.

It is quite true that one cannot go many years back into Tammany history without being forced to call for oxygen tanks, but it is also true that Tammany in recent years has kept its face washed regardless of what anyone might suggest about its neck.

One hears some funny things about Tammany's habits in presidential years, about the late George Brennan's tactics in Chicago, about Tom Taggart in Indiana and about the Democrats in Boston, but it has remained for the Republican machines to prove themselves definitely as bad as painted.

All this, of course, does not indicate any downright iniquity on the part of the national political organizations, nor does it mean that the candidates are responsible for the nature of the support they have to have. But it does

FACTS ABOUT CONNECTICUT

Compiled by the CONNECTICUT CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

(172) Twelve Street Railways

Three months after the first successful street railway system in the United States was put into operation at Richmond, Va., the first trolley passenger car was run in Connecticut. It was operated by the Ansonia, Derby & Birmingham Company on May 1, 1888. On July 1, of the same year, what is believed to have been the first electric freight transportation system in the world was inaugurated by the same company.

There are eight companies operating street railways in Connecticut and two other trolley lines are being operated under lease. Two trolley companies are not now operating. There are nearly 5,000 persons employed by the street railway companies. The total length of main track under operation at the beginning of last year was 429 miles, as against 985 miles of thirteen operating street railways in 1912. The total car mileage for 1926 was approximately 37,000,000, as compared with 33,000,000 seventeen years ago.

Approximately 180,000,000 regular fare passengers were carried on Connecticut trolleys during the year. This was only 5,000,000 more than were carried in 1912. The revenue from transportation for 1926 totaled $15,621,359 of which $15,107,276 was from passenger carrying and $514,083 from freight. Total operating revenue for the year amounted to $15,836,734. Total operating expenses for 1926 were $13,059,872, and the total gross income was $2,776,862. Operating revenue for 1912 amounted to $9,300,000 and operating expenses to $6,000,000. Of the 2,018 stockholders of street railway companies in 1926, 1,629 were in Connecticut. They held 509,312 shares valued at par at $45,398,730.

New York, Sept. 5.—Some late summer notes gleaned here and there about New York:

There is a store that, aside from its cut-rate sales, boasts that it refunds or makes right anything found not up to expectations. One day a little old lady timidly asked the floor walker where they kept their gold fish. Receiving directions, she stopped at a counter where gold fish swam in tanks, reached into a battered old black kerchief and unrolled it to show the waiting saleslady a dead gold fish.

"It was dead when I got it home," the little old lady looked up over her spectacles, "can I please have another?" She got it.

On the east side, under the Third Avenue elevated, several stores fill their windows with their specialty, big, square, hard pillows, with wearable red covers. They range in price from small 59-cent ones to almost a dollar. So many of them dotted the windows for a few blocks that curiosity overcame us, inquiring their use, we were told that they are "fire-escape and window ledge pillows." In other words, women living in tenements buy them, one apiece for the whole family, so they can lean on the window ledge or the fire-escape comfortably and watch the life in the street below of an evening.

Monogrammed teeth are among the season's personal accessories, it seems. The wife of a chauffeur, a sweet-faced young woman in her 20's, with a Scottish accent, was in a local hospital for an operation. When the nurse came along the first night she asked for a glass of water to put her teeth in. The nurse started to help her, when she exclaimed:

"Please be careful of them. You see, they are gifts from my sister and my brother-in-law who are dentists in the old country." Upon close examination it was seen that the upper set had on them, "With love from Janet," and the lower set, "To Jean from Tom."

One hooch addict that might be able to give information on Mrs. Willebrandt is a certain "Mc. Dooley." We might add that he is a parrot. Ten years ago he had a severe case of pneumonia and was pulled through by being given vaporized liquor. He seems to have acquired a regular taste for liquor, for no one can bring a bottle of it near without his sneezing until he gets a whiff. But Mr. Dooley insists that it must be good. Recently he was given some hooch alleged to have been purchased in a night club and he refused it.

The same Mr. Dooley has figured in many interesting incidents. Once, bringing him back from abroad, his mistress had difficulty in getting him by the customs man at the Canadian border, who insisted that he was an English bird. Mr. Dooley seemed to sense trouble, for in a cheerful tone he began to sing the "old song," "I'm Mr. Dooley, the greatest man the country ever knew," an American song in vogue when he was born early in the century. The customs man was convinced, without further argument.

The age of sex equality seems to have dawned on the great White Way. A new version of the old sandwich man appeared when a girl, rigged up as a smart walking sign-board, stepped into Broadway with flaming signs front and back and a tall orange stovetop stop her golden bob—all displaying some well-known lozenge.

"THE MATING CALL" THRILLS AT STATE

Beach Drama Plays Tonight Again—"Forbidden Hours" Tomorrow's Feature.

"The Mating Call," which came to the State theater yesterday, is another sensational Thomas Meighan vehicle and, like "The Racket," his previous offering, is one of the best pictures of this masterful star's brilliant career.

Action, suspense and heart-thrills are reeled off in rapid and convincing continuity in the newest Meighan picture.

Adapted from the widely read novel by Rex Beach, "The Mating Call" is a scintillating and fast-moving romantic thriller, a brilliant film version of a superior story.

Evelyn Brent and Renee Adoree share honors in the feminine department, providing Meighan with double support in the leading lady division.

Coming Thursday and Friday to the State will be Ramon Novarro's spectacular new Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer vehicle, "Forbidden Hours." It is a vivid, modern story of European court life with Novarro in the role of a king in a plot of court intrigue. Renee Adoree is the heroine, and a notable cast appears.

Also on Thursday and Friday the State will show Columbia's "The Opening Night" featuring little Annabel Magness.

many growers from the remainder of the state.

First prize on Hale and Belle of Georgia peaches also went to them. This is another much prized award.

Pine Knob Orchards have seen a large growth and expansion in the past few years and its reputation for quality in every variety of fruit is known far and wide. The outlook for this year is the best ever with a bumper crop of fruit of every kind.

A large force of workmen are now engaged in picking a d boxing fancy apples for the hotel trade in New York City. Mr. Gully says that this and the large fruit stands in the big cities are the best source of disposal of fruit to be found.

Thousands of office workers at noon often in passing a fruit stand if they see an attractive display of apples will buy where they would not buy in quantities. The same is true of the hotel patrons.

In Chicago most of the butter and egg men seem to have become yeggmen.

LICENSES SUSPENDED

A list of operators whose licenses to drive automobiles in Connecticut have been suspended for one year for driving while under the influence of liquor was given out today at the state motor vehicle department as a part of the effort to reduce this highway menace.

The department's statement is available to notify the department or the police in case they should see any of those drivers operating motor vehicles.

Dr. Caldwell's 3 Rules Keep You Healthy

Dr. Caldwell watched the results of constipation for 47 years, and believed that no matter how careful people are of their health, diet and exercise constipation will occur from time to time regardless of how much one tries to avoid it. Of next importance, then, is how to treat it when it comes. Dr. Caldwell always was in favor of getting as close to nature as possible, hence his remedy for constipation, known as Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, is a mild vegetable compound. It can not harm the most delicate system and is not a habit forming preparation. Syrup Pepsin is pleasant-tasting, and youngsters love it. It does not gripe. Thousands of mothers have written us to that effect.

J. B. Caldwell, M.D. AT AGE 83

Dr. Caldwell did not approve of drastic physics and purges. He did not believe they were good for human beings to put into their systems. In a practice of 47 years he never saw any reason for their use when a medicine like Syrup Pepsin will empty the bowels just as promptly, more cleanly and gently, without griping and harm to the system.

Keep free from constipation! It robs your strength, hardens your arteries and brings on premature old age. Do not let a day go by without a bowel movement. Do not sit and hope, but go to a druggist and get one of the generous bottles of Syrup Pepsin. Take the proper dose that night and by morning you will feel like a different person. Use for constipation, biliousness, sour and crampy stomach, had breath, no appetite, headaches, and to break up fevers and colds. For a free trial, mail the special coupon printed here:

LAST MONTH HOTTEST SINCE THE YEAR 1863

New Haven, Sept. 5.—Not since the darkest days of the Civil War has Connecticut seen such a warm August as the one this year. Not only did the mean temperature of the month break all August records for the fifty-six years the government has had a weather bureau here but it reached a point that hadn't been reached since the year 1863.

September 5. 1609—Henry Hudson landed on New Jersey shores. 1774—First Continental Congress and Second Colonial Congress met in Carpenter's Hall, Philadelphia. 1894—Minnesota forest fires destroyed 16 towns.

THEY NEED IT, TOO London.—A local police surgeon says Irish bones mend better than English bones. His theory is that the calcium in the potatoes, so much eaten in Ireland, strengthens the bony structure.

WIRELESS PHONE CALLS FROM PARIS TO U. S. NET GOVERNMENT PROFIT

Paris.—In spite of the relatively high cost of transmission, more than 2,500 wireless telephone calls have been put through from the French capital to New York, Chicago, Boston and other American cities since the beginning of the service on March 23.

The charge is approximately fifty dollars in round figures and France receives an average profit of nearly one dollar on each call made, so the total has brought the country some additional fifty-six thousand francs in the four months of operation.

WHIRLWIND

COPYRIGHT 1928 BY NEA SERVICE, INC.

THIS HAS HAPPENED

SYBILL THORNE, recuperating from her father's death and various affairs of the heart, sails for Cuba with MABEL BLAKE, a social worker, admittedly on a man hunt. Mabel longs for marriage. But Sybill, though she is more or less engaged to CRAIG NEWHALL, the wealthiest young bachelor in Boston, is filled with misgivings.

When he was very young Sybill fell desperately in love with JOHN LAWRENCE, who went to France with the A. E. F. and never returned. After his death she sought forgetfulness in such reckless fashion that society gazed at her indiscretions.

When Craig begs her to marry him she implores time to think things over; and leaves Boston, thoroughly distracted, about the time her brother Brad returns with his frivolous little bride from their wedding trip.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XI

It was the evening of the second day, and Mab began to feel ill. "I'm going in to lie down," she told Sybill. "It would be so ghastly to die on deck."

The Joneses—mother and daughter—had already retired. Miss Wiggins, a trifle green, took deep breaths of ocean air and made desperate conversation with Mr. Winsor. Father Finn was reading his office as though nothing troubled him.

"It's blowing up," announced Mabel nervously, "and I'll bet it's going to storm. If I get any sicker I'm going to jump overboard."

Mrs. Parkins sat up straighter, put her hand resolutely to her mouth, folded her baby dresses deliberately. And, suddenly appreciating the advantages of haste, dropped her work basket and lumbered frantically within. The pretty Cora-rigged.

"Me and grandma," muttered Mabel, and sought her feet unsteadily. "Tell the Senoritas, Sib, I'll kill 'em when able."

They laughed heartlessly as she stumbled past. Beyond words, Mab shook her fist at them and made hurried flight.

"If you would lie down," suggested Sybill, "you'd feel better."

"If I could die I'd feel better," Mabel turned her face to the wall.

"Go way," she implored. "Go way and let me die."

There was a knock at the door. "Kill him," ordered Mabel weakly. "Whoever it is, kill him."

"Mr. Arnold and Mr. Eustis send their compliments," the steward said, "and would Miss Blake and Miss Thorne join them this evening in the captain's cabin for a game of bridge?"

"Three cheers for old hero!" "Don't be mean."

"My dear, I've the greatest respect for all the smart boys who kept out of war. But I'd like to hear a few of them tell the truth about it. They all had bum lungs, or bad hearts, or poor eyesight. That's nothing but bunk. It was influenza they had. Not that I'm calling your precious friend a liar. He may have two bum lungs for all I know. I'm only theorizing."

"Well, stop your theorizing and get dressed."

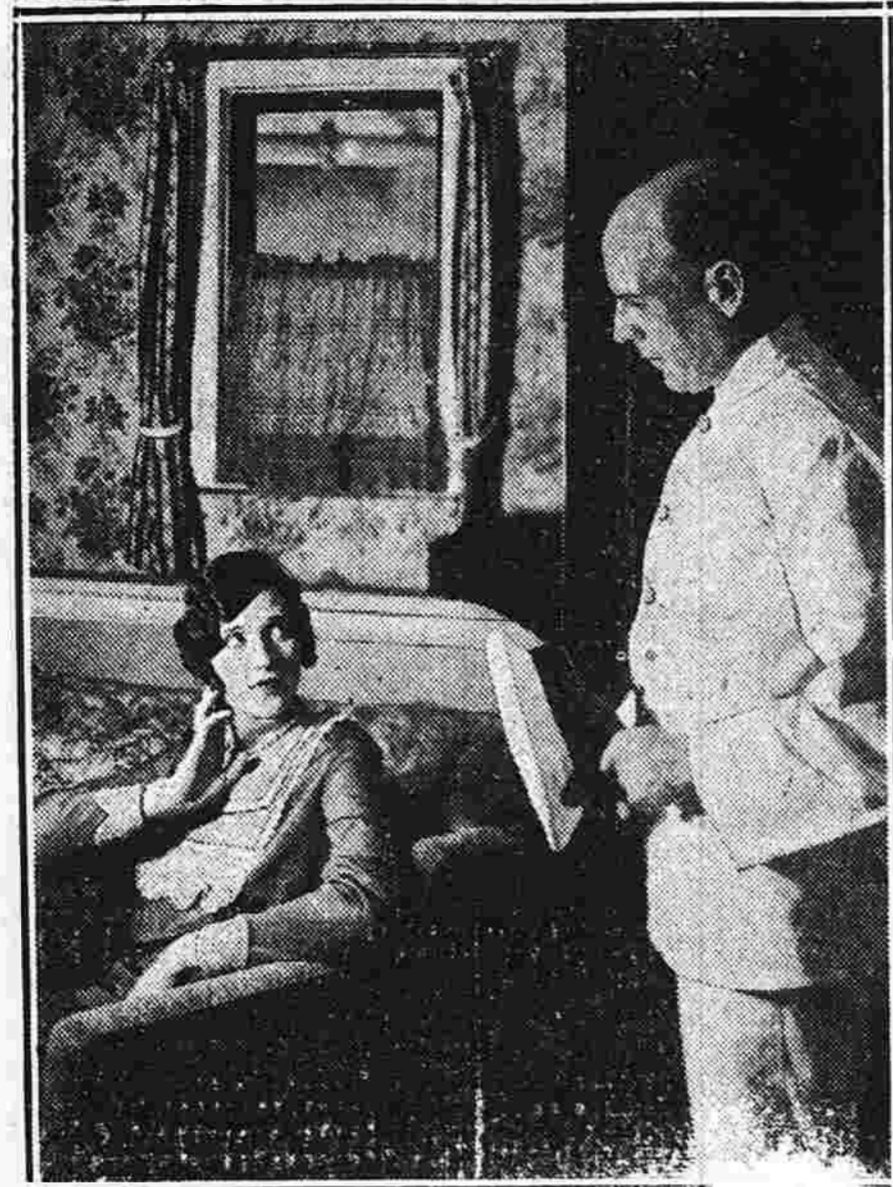

"Must I go?" "Well, I could hardly trot up there alone, could I? Wouldn't I look cute? Hello, boys. Miss Thorne has a few sweethearts of her own, so she's given me a clear field. I'm only a cranky old maid—but how I'd like a little spooning!"

"You're crazy, Mab." "No, darling. Only desperate. Crawl in the berth, there, will you till I get this trunk open?"

Mabel took a black chiffon from its hanger. "Kind of wrinkled, but you'll have to do."

"I guess you won't! Want to make me look like a poor relation? Wear that black crepe de chine, like a good kid. And let me wear your crystal beads. I need something to brighten this old rag of mine and my pearls wouldn't fool a blind man. Lord, Sib, I wish I had your nice things!"

"I'll bet you spend more money on clothes than I do."

"Mr. Arnold and Mr. Eustis send their compliments," the steward said, "and would Miss Blake and Miss Thorne join them this evening in the captain's cabin for a game of bridge?"

hand through them expertly. "But you'll have to depilate your legs. Tell me, Mab, how did you work it?"

"Oh, I pumped the steward, if you must know," confessed Mabel. "He said that Mr. Eustis spent the night before on deck, and slept most all day. The steward thought he was kind of queer, I guess. But the poor man's got insomnia. And, besides, he's writing a book."

Sybill chuckled. "I'll hand it to you, Mab. You're a great little fixer. I suppose the lamb never suspected you were stalking him all through the stilly night? Did he tell the story of his life?"

"Well, I know he's a Harvard man, and his people had barrels of money, but they lost it during the war."

"That's what they all say. Was he in service?" "No, he's got a bum lung. He handled a lot of Liberty Loan publicity, though."

"Three cheers for old hero!" "Don't be mean."

"My dear, I've the greatest respect for all the smart boys who kept out of war. But I'd like to hear a few of them tell the truth about it. They all had bum lungs, or bad hearts, or poor eyesight. Mabel took a black chiffon from its hanger. "Kind of wrinkled, but you'll have to do."

"I guess you won't! Want to make me look like a poor relation? Wear that black crepe de chine, like a good kid. And let me wear your crystal beads. I need something to brighten this old rag of mine and my pearls wouldn't fool a blind man. Lord, Sib, I wish I had your nice things!"

"I'll bet you spend more money on clothes than I do."

ROOTS OF TEETH OFTEN SOURCE OF ILL HEALTH

By DR. MORRIS FISHBEN
Editor Journal of the American Medical Association and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine

We all realize that the old policy of not going to a dentist unless the teeth hurt is a "pennywise pound foolish" policy.

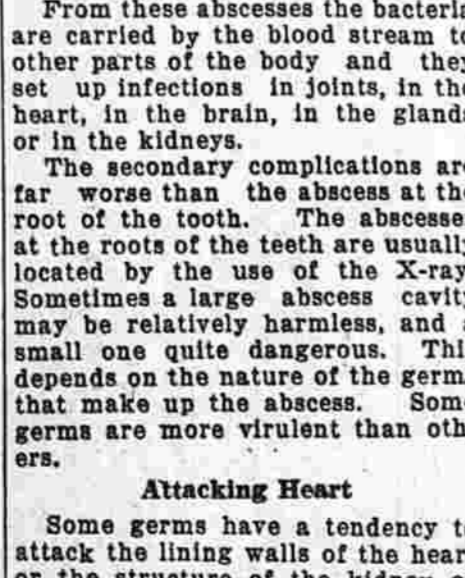

Continuing his series of dental superstitions in Hygiene, the Health Magazine, Dr. W. M. Gardner points out that an aching tooth usually means that the decay has penetrated far into the tooth and that the acid formed by the development of bacteria is irritating the nerve. The only way to help such a tooth is to kill the nerve and fill it, a procedure now done with considerable doubt, or to remove the tooth and put in a substitute.

Promptness an Advantage
No substitute was ever as good as the original article. Regular trips to the dentist permit the discovery of cavities while they are still small, and the use of tiny fillings in the place of large, complicated fillings.

When the nerve is taken out of tooth the pain may stop tempo-

BRIDGE MADE EASY

by W.W. Wentworth

Six Alibi Conventions—1
There are six conventions which you will repeatedly hear at the bridge table—six popular fallacies to which many players mistakenly adhere regardless of circumstances—six rules which are not really rules at all. These are:

1—Always cover an honor with an honor.

2—Always return partner's lead.

3—Always play second hand low.

4—Always play third hand high.

5—Always play through strength.

6—Always play up to weakness.

The player who constantly follows these conventions frequently sacrifices tricks which logical play would win. He has his excuse handy when he fails to achieve his object but there is scant consolation in that.

Bridge is most enjoyable when it is played by reason rather than rote. The stereotyped player excuses himself to every strategic maneuver of his opponents—he misses most of the worth-while thrills of the game. The accomplished player knows when to deviate from the alibi conventions. He knows their real meaning and follows them rationally. He recognizes the moment to cast them aside.

RADIUM IN ASHES

London.—Radium, valued at $400 was recently recovered from an ash heap at St. Thomas hospital. It was contained in a plaque which, after it had been used for the treatment of a patient, had been wrapped in a mass of adhesive plaster and thrown out by an attendant. It was thrown into the fire before the loss was discovered.

They took a pig to a middle western fair in an airplane the other day, but it takes the Board of Trade to give pork a real sky ride.

"FLAPPER" BRUIN OF RAINIER NAT'L PARK BECOMES FOOD BANDIT

Seattle, Wash.—'r air Betty Bruin, well known 'flapper of Rainer National Park who used to content herself with sweetmeats, taken from park visitors, is now a full fledged bandit, outlawed by official edict of the park administration and thus because of three new hungry cubs.

In days gone by, Betty could get her supply of sweets by suddenly appearing full height before a group of picknickers or hikers and growl, "Honey or your life."

But her reputation spread and visitors began to watch for the wily dame. Her loot grew small.

And then the babies came, three of them, clamoring for food, so what was a mother to do?

Well stocked cabins were broken into sugar, molasses, honey and jam disappeared. The thefts were traced to Betty. Now her name is in the book.

A BELATED HONOR

Quebec.—More than 150 years after the defense of Quebec against the "Continental" armies, a tablet has been unveiled to commemorate the part played by the Royal Fusiliers. The tablet is at the corner of the principal wall of the Chateau Frontenac.

The WOMAN'S DAY

by ALLENE SCAINER

I had Sunday night supper with the Blanks last night, topping a ride with the Smiths in the afternoon, and one aspect of the two occasions has rather haunted me ever since.

Each family contains an old lady, and it's the contrast of the two that impressed me, bringing home the fact that there are as many types of old age as there are types of youth.

Mrs. Blank, aged 72, is very decidedly mistress of her own home. Two unmarried daughters and a son live with her, and that's exactly what it is—she does not "live with them." She manages her home absolutely by herself, and it's only of late years that she very reluctantly consented to yielding a part of the actual work to a woman who comes in three times a week to clean, prepare dinner, and so on.

Sundays, however, the girls put mother in her chair by the porch and insist that since housework is a change for them it's their day to do it while she takes her holiday.

But the vitality and vividness of Mrs. Blank is called upon a dozen times. It was other Blank who opened a light pickle jar when no one else could budge it.

If a stubborn window needs opening, Mrs. Blank opens it. If a key just won't unlock a door, Mother Blank is called upon. But her vitality is not a physical vitality only. It is a vitality of mind and spirit. She has willed to be necessary and stay in the thick of things till death do her take.

Mrs. Smith of the other family is the very same age as Mrs. Blank, but she long ago stopped mistress-ing a home. Her son's wife runs the establishment—that is, she does all the actual work but remains in the position of a menial in the house, for Mrs. Smith insists on the title as head of the home.

Her health is exactly as good as Mrs. Blank's, but she just accepts without investigation the tradition that any person over 70 has a perfect right to be nervous, ailing, and waited upon.

The ride into rolling hills and green wooded valleys could have been a delight without her. But she fussed and worried so much about the roads and the hills and the street car that she would have to be crossed if we took such and such a road, that there was no pleasure in it for anyone.

Two old ladies—which kind are we going to be? It's partly, of course, a matter of inherent characteristics. But it's more largely a case of how one chooses to grow old.

YOUR CHILDREN

by Olive Roberts Barton
©1928 by NEA Service, Inc.

I suppose that most mothers know the things that are dangerous to little children and babies, but a reminder here may not be amiss. It is much better to guard against trouble than to look the stable door after the horse is stolen.

To begin with, watch the toys you buy a little baby. Fortunately the manufacturers of baby toys have come to realize the necessity of making safe toys for very young children, and as a result we have the soft dolls with no paint or hair, or shoe-buckles or eyes to come out in exploratory mouths. Also there are the rubber or bathtub toys that are so attractive.

A bottle with a cork in it or an empty tube, can, or box with a removable top should not be made into a plaything. Also no small toy such as a whistle or balloon or any object that can be stuffed into his mouth.

A baby may swallow a penny or other small coin without any damage—even an ordinary pin need not cause hysteria in the family. They will very likely go through him without causing any particular trouble.

But coins and pins should be kept absolutely out of his way. An open safety pin is reason to get the nearest specialist at once.

In no case give him a laxative. If a child swallows a pill or poison, try to make him vomit by giving him warm salt water in large quantities, or a teaspoonful of syrup of ipecac. But get a doctor at once.

Screen time is not yet over. Screens corrode and at this time of year get pretty rotten. A push will send them through. So watch little children playing near screened windows.

If the children are starting to school for the first time this fall, caution them about looking to both right and left before crossing.

Watch gas stoves and rubber tubing. Go over all the fixtures before lighting fires after the long months of disuse. Rubber tubing is always unsafe. Never turn a gas stove up too high, particularly when it is first lighted. You cannot smell deadly carbon-monoxide gas.

PHONES Pinehurst "GOOD THINGS TO EAT"

THE BLUE, BLUE SEA

This is the month when the sea is bluer than at any other time. And the ocean air is tangier. And the breezes from it saltier and more invigorating. And, what counts perhaps more than any of these things, to us inland folks who can't often see it or feel it or smell it, the fish that come out of it are firmer and sweeter and more delicious than at other seasons.

Pinehurst has a double fish day this week, to take care of the growing demand for seafood. And they are September fish. Were alive and kicking, so to speak on Labor day. The trawls and the hook-and-liners and the seiners caught them on the rush, steamed into Boston harbor with them, hurried them to Manchester—and of course a few hundred other places—with the tang of the September seas on them.

With Pinehurst's absolute refrigeration seafood now goes onto the table in this town in just as perfect condition as though the Manchester dinner or breakfast table were in Provincetown or Gloucester.

Plenty of seafood means plenty of the iodine content which the medical profession long ago discovered is the reason why there is never any goiter among seacoast peoples. Everybody ought to eat more or less of it. It's getting nowadays so that almost everybody does, because they like it.

Inquire early tomorrow about Pinehurst's supply for this week.

OWING TO THE EXTREMELY HOT AUGUST OUR FUR COAT CLUB

Will Be Open For Members

Thursday, Friday and Saturday, This Week

MR. PAUL HERRMANN, Our New York Fur Expert

Will Be Here Again In Person

Your last chance to save at least 10% and have the advantage of buying a coat for as little as $10 down and $10 a month

HERE IS THE REASON YOU SHOULD BUY YOUR FUR COAT AT HALE'S JUST READ IT Does Price Interest You?

Of course, it does. It interests everybody. There is no legitimate concern in the country, quality considered, that can sell you a fur coat, whether it is one hundred or one thousand dollars, at any better price than we can. We are associated with one of the best buying organizations in New York City. Stores doing a business of over two hundred million dollars a year. If anybody buys their furs at the right prices, we do. You may rest assured that our prices are the lowest that dependable merchandise can be legitimately sold at.

Does Quality Interest You?

To many of you quality may be more important than price. We do not allow anybody in our employ to select a fur coat without having it passed on and approved by a fur man from our New York office. Every coat is gone over and inspected in detail. Many times we pay an extra price for choice selection of skins. This price is from ten to twenty-five per cent more than coats of apparently similar grades might be purchased. Mr. Herrmann, the New York fur man, who is with us this week, has devoted his lifetime to the fur business. They have built their business up entirely on quality. Everybody appreciates quality in furs. Buy here for quality.

Does Confidence Interest You?

Mr. Hale started business here in 1873. For over thirty years The J. W. Hale Company has been on the corner of Oak street. We have developed the largest retail business in town. More than anything we cherish the confidence of our customers. We have built our business up on that confidence. Isn't it worth while buying your fur coat from a concern that has been here for over a quarter of a century and whose reliability has never been questioned?

Why Should You Buy Now?

People do not wear fur coats in summer. Fur manufacturers that want to do business in summer offer the choicest selection of skins, many times at a price advantage if they can sell the retailers early. We pass this on to our customers by inducing them to make their selection early. Your minimum saving will be not less than ten per cent and you have the benefit of joining our Fur Coat Club for the remaining three days of this week and have ten months in which to pay for your coat. In addition, you buy it at least ten per cent better than the regular cash price. Furthermore, Mr. Herrmann has brought over twenty-five thousand dollars worth of his own fur coats with him from which you can have a wide selection.
