

NEEDLE-IN-HAY HUNT GETS HER FUGITIVE MATE

Mrs. Noworick Finds Ab- sconding Hubby on N. Y. Street, Has Him Held for Extradition Here.

Mrs. Annie Noworick of Charter Oak street believes if you want a thing well done you must do it yourself, and not leave it to others, just as Miles Standish found to be true when he sent John Alden to do his love making.

This time it was not altogether love that prompted Mrs. Noworick, for her husband, Richard, had deserted her and she was in need of his help. He was the father of her children and when he left Manchester last August she was left without visible means of support.

She told her story to the charity commissioner and was given some aid, but not enough to keep her as she felt her station in life demanded. So she also told her story to the criminal authorities.

They were not getting results fast enough to suit Mrs. Noworick so she took a gambler's chance that she might meet the absent one somewhere in New York. It is a pretty large city, she knew, but she had a suspicion that he might be in one locality, so yesterday morning she went to New York.

Just walking about the streets of New York in the afternoon she was rewarded by catching sight of the deserting husband and just walking about. He didn't see her. She followed him until there was a hand policeman. Then she grabbed Richard, told her story to the policeman, showed her wedding picture and several other proofs that she was his legally wedded wife.

As a result of this little side-walk meeting Richard was locked up and Chief of Police Gordon was last night notified.

He sent back word by wire that there was a complaint against Noworick and that he should be held.

Wife Must Return
The next step is to have Mrs. Noworick return to Manchester, where, in a complaint which has been drawn charging non-support, she must make oath to the fact that she is Noworick's legally wedded wife and that she has been deserted. The sworn complaint next goes to the state attorney's office, and the state attorney must make application to the governor, filing a copy of the complaint drawn in Manchester, and his own statement that he believes the complaint true.

After this the governor must make a request, backed by a large legal looking document, trimmed with blue ribbons and a gold seal, asking the governor of the state of New York to release to a Connecticut officer, who will be named, to bring back to Connecticut and to Manchester, this Richard, that he may be given a fair trial to answer to the allegations contained in the warrant on which the arrest is made.

But Mrs. Noworick wasn't hampered by blue ribbons or red tape.

SOLID SOUTH STILL SOLID, SMITH SAYS

Warm Reception Given Can- didate in Virginia and North Carolina Gives Him Much Encouragement.

Enroute in the South with Gov. Smith, Oct. 12.—Governor Smith left the Solid South today firm in the belief that it is still solid.

Glowing from the warmth of his reception in Virginia, and North Carolina, were bear stories of Democratic disaffection have abounded since the Houston convention, the Democratic nominee moved over into Tennessee today. Tennessee is one of those border states that the Republicans have claimed for their own.

The home state of Andrew Jackson has a mottled political history. Only once since reconstruction days have the twelve electoral votes of Tennessee been cast for a Republican presidential candidate. That was in 1920 when Harding carried it by a scant 13,000, after vigorously campaigning the state. But it has frequently happened in that span of years that Tennessee has elected Republican governors, and this spotted history, coupled with the known Democratic disaffection of this year over the religious and prohibition issues, has promoted a good deal of Republican confidence.

It is the belief of Democratic leaders of the state, however, that Tennessee is still Democratic, and will be so revealed on November sixth.

Davis carried it four years ago by nearly 30,000, in the face of the great Republican landslide, and the Democrats do not believe that, however great the religious and prohibition disaffection, the pendulum will swing far enough to put the state in the Republican column for the second time.

In Smith Party when he entered the state today were two Tennesseans, Representative Joe

New York, Oct. 12.—Kidnap gang, believed to have held an unusual number of victims for ransom, was unmasked today as a result of the confessions of five blondes, used as lures by the gang, police revealed. The "sirens" felt underpaid for their parts in enticing the wealthy victims into the hands of the kidnapers, police said.

Los Angeles, Calif., Oct. 12.—Dr. Robert Meals, young Hollywood surgeon, today was credited with performing an astounding operation—on himself.

GOVERNOR EXPLAINS THE WATKINS DEAL

Bought Stock From Sales- man Who Wanted to Help Him Recover Loss.

Hartford, Conn., Oct. 12.—Governor Trumbull and Secretary of State Francis A. Pallotti today repeated an old explanation of their purchases of the stock of R. W. Watkins Corporation, the National Associated Investors. Both men purchased the stock just as J. Verne Anderson, former Watkins' employe, explained on the Superior Court witness stand here Wednesday.

Both the governor and the secretary of state had known Anderson for a long period and had dealings with him before he came into the Watkins deal. They had purchased some automobile insurance stock which went bad. Anderson wanted to make amends for a poor recommendation caused by this deal, he told them, and gave them a chance to buy National Associated Investors below the market because he owned the stock himself.

SPECIAL PLEA TO BUSINESS, HOOVER PLAN

New York City Speech Will Appeal to Big and Little Business to Vote for Pros- perity.

Washington, Oct. 12.—A special appeal to business interests to support the Republican Party and a restatement of his declaration on religious freedom will feature the address of Herbert H. Hoover when he invades New York City, the backbone of Gov. Al Smith's territory, on Monday, October 22, it was learned at his headquarters today.

Hoover will make his appeal to "big business" and "little business" on the "three cardinal Republican" issues of prosperity, economy and efficiency in government. He will touch upon the record of the Coolidge administration in reducing taxes and in refunding wartime income. He will stress the danger to business stability in changing governments in the midst of a wave of prosperity. This will be the high light of the address.

The nominee was at work today on the speech, after having secluded himself all day yesterday to begin his preparation. All engagements were cancelled so the nominee could devote himself exclusively to this task. The address undoubtedly will cover very nearly every issue in the campaign even though briefly but its high point will be an effort to win New York business away from Al Smith.

Hoover will prepare the speech with as much care as he used in drafting his acceptance speech and in his mind, his preparation is just as important.

The Hoover board of strategy meantime pondered over the selection of an itinerary for the nominee's trip to the coast to vote.

Hoover will leave Washington during the last week of October, although he personally prefers to delay his departure until just a few days before election. His advisers, however, have insisted that he make a number of personal appearances and short speeches on the westward trip, because it will occur

LEGIONNAIRES LEAVING SAN ANTONIO FOR HOME

27 Special Trains Start for Various Parts of Country; Educator Is Elected to Head American Legion.

San Antonio, Texas, Oct. 12.—The hosts of the American Legion who were in attendance at the organization's tenth annual national convention here were on the way to their homes today. Not all of them, however, for many have gone to border points and Mexico on tours arranged by the legion. Others from the west coast have gone north and east for brief vacations. Quite a few have stayed over in San Antonio for the big air circus scheduled for today at the Army flying fields here.

With the exception of reaffirming itself in support of rehabilitation, child welfare, universal draft and aeronautics, this year's sessions were not of great moment. There were no fights, no high church either in the committees or on the floor. The rumors that the aeronautics committee had a fight on its hands and prospects for a minority report with a floor fight were left. The sad story of the "Old Grey Mare" and the troubles of the famous "Mademoiselle from Armentieres" were missing last night and probably will not be revived in such volume until the eleventh annual convention meets at Louisville, Ky., next year.

Paul V. McNutt, of Bloomington, Ind., dean of the Law School of the University of Indiana, was elected national commander at the closing session yesterday. Five national vice commanders were chosen and the convention for the first time in its history elected a Jewish rabbi as its national chaplain. He is Rabbi Herman J. Beck, of Pittsfield, Pa.

John P. Chick, Comby, of Fargo, N. D., was elected chief of eight men of the Forty and Eight last night. Six sous chefs were chosen each from a different section of the country.

Most of the distinguished guests of the legion will leave here today.

HICKMAN IS GLOOMY AS HIS DEATH NEARS

No More Laughing for "Fox" Who Will Die on Gallows Oct. 19.

San Quentin Prison, Calif., Oct. 12.—With the spectre of death on the gallows looming in the offing, William Edward Hickman, condemned to die on October 19, for the murder of Marion Parker, Los Angeles school girl, was gloomy and downcast in his cell in "condemned row" today.

Ordinarily Hickman has laughed and joked with his fellow prisoners during the recreation hour, but yesterday he would have nothing to do with his companions. He declined to join them in the usual games of dominoes, and he kept to himself during the time allotted the prisoners for games and exercise.

DIRIGIBLE TURNS SOUTH TO AVOID STORM AREAS

New Route May Take Her Over Bermuda Which Will De- lay Her Arrival Until Sunday Night or Monday Morn- ing—In Touch Now With American Radio Stations; Making Good Speed When Last Heard From.

New York, Oct. 12.—At 12:30 p. m. this afternoon, (E. S. T.) the liner Stuttgart reported to the Radio Marine Corporation it had heard the Graf Zeppelin talking with the Marconi station at St. Miguel, Azores, the airship reporting: "All is well."

At 12:47 o'clock the S. S. Mojave was heard calling the Zeppelin and instructing her radio operator to transmit direct on 1,986 metres.

Veering southward to avoid storms, the mighty German super-dirigible Graf Zeppelin, bound from Friedrichshafen for Lakehurst, N. J., on her initial trans-ocean voyage with passengers and mails, is out over the Atlantic today following a route which will probably take her over Bermuda.

The British tank ship Mymeric wireless that it had sighted the airship well off the Spanish Moroccan coast and a little later the Western Union Cable Company received a report that the zeppelin had passed over the Madeira islands at 1:35 this afternoon, Greenwich Mean Time, or 8:35 Eastern Standard Time.

The dirigible encountered good flying weather at Madeira and it was believed that it would be assisted all the way across to Bermuda by favorable tail winds. In Touch With U. S.—The U. S. Naval Radio station at Arlington, Va., established direct radio communication with the Zeppelin early this morning. At 3:35 a. m. Eastern Standard Time, the station received a message from Commander Rosendahl, U. S. N., who is on the airship asking for a synopsis of weather conditions in the areas of Madeira, the Azores and Bermuda. Later, the Arlington station picked up a radiogram that the airship had passed over Madeira "in the direction of the Azores."

By turning southward beyond the southern steamer land the arrival of the Zeppelin will be delayed. It may not reach Lakehurst until Sunday evening or Monday morning, all depending upon the nature of the weather encountered after reaching the western side of the Atlantic.

Passes Over Gibraltar
Passing over Gibraltar at midnight, Eastern Standard Time, the zeppelin left the Spanish coast an hour and 30 minutes later and headed southwestward along the Spanish-Moroccan coast. Ships in the vicinity reported fine, clear weather with light winds. Flying conditions were called ideal.

While passing Gibraltar the ship exchanged code messages with the Gibraltar station. For long periods the ship's wireless was silent, indicating heavy static conditions. All the way from LYONS to Gibraltar the great air liner fought strong headwinds and some times her speed was reduced to a bare 50 miles an hour.

After leaving Marseilles, the Zeppelin drove out over the Mediterranean passing the French and Spanish coasts, and soaring over Barcelona at 8:30 p. m. Thursday just after darkness had fallen.

The ship kept in touch with steamships continuously to receive weather bulletins except when static interfered.

Friedrichshafen, Oct. 12.—The first direct radio word that Zeppelin Works had received from the Graf Zeppelin since yesterday evening when it was passing over the Windsor Castle station. It said: "We have passed the Straits of Gibraltar. Wind five metres per second. Course, West."

News that the ship had passed over Madeira was communicated to the families of the crew by International News Service.

Berlin, Oct. 12.—The menu on board the Graf Zeppelin today, to be tomorrow and Sunday will be as follows, according to word received here:
Friday: Breakfast: Sausages, bread, butter, coffee. Noon meal: Consomme, with egg, sauerkraut and noodle, cornpot or cheese. Evening meal: Ham, apparatus, tea, butter, bread.
Saturday: Breakfast: Hot sausages, coffee, bread, butter. Noon meal: Vegetable soup, veal tripe, champagne, rice, cornpot. Evening meal: Cheese, sausage, tea, butter, bread.
Sunday: Breakfast: Coffee or tea, sausage, bread, butter. Noon meal: Consomme, goulash. Evening meal: Hot sausages, tea, bread, butter.

Newsy Bits About the Zep

Washington, Oct. 12.—Direct radio communication was established today between the Graf Zeppelin and the naval radio station at Arlington, Va.
At 6:35 a. m. Washington time, the Navy received a message inquiring about weather conditions from Commander C. E. Rosendahl, the American observer aboard the Zeppelin.
"Request morning Atlantic synoptic, especially Madeira, Azores and Bermuda region."
A 9 o'clock message to the Radio Corporation, picked up by the Navy, declared the ship had passed over Madeira in the direction of the Azores.

FACTS ABOUT CONNECTICUT
 Compiled by the CONNECTICUT CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

(187) State Highways Worth $41,500,000.

Connecticut has more miles of highway per square mile of land area than any other state in the Union. The land area of Connecticut totals 4,820 square miles. There are approximately 12,150 miles of public highways in Connecticut, exclusive of city streets.

The average number of miles of road per square mile of land area for the United States is .99, while the mileage per square mile of land area for Connecticut is 2.52, the most of any state. Massachusetts is second with 2.34 miles of road per square mile of land area.

The latest comparative figures on highway expenditures for all states showed that Connecticut's expenditure per capita of $6.12 during a recent year was below the average for the United States which was $9.85. Connecticut's annual expenditure per square mile of area, however, was five times the average for the United States. There were only the states exceeding Connecticut's $1,752, the average for the United States being $348. The average expenditure per mile of road for the United States was $352. For Connecticut the expenditure per mile of road was $695. This figure was exceeded by ten states.

Highway properties owned by the state or controlled through the highway department were valued at $41,526,335 a year ago. This was $10,000,000 more than the value placed on the same properties in 1927. Of the $41,526,335, $38,689,760 was the value placed on improved roads, $9,814,575 on bridges and $12,000 on ferries.

AMERICAN FILMS FACE BATTLE IN WORLD MARKETS

London.—For the first time since a dim flickering image upon a white screen heralded the birth of the motion picture, the American movie industry is beginning to feel the pinch of competitors.

Undisputed leader of the industry for more than 20 years, Hollywood is at last being made to realize that the production of salable motion pictures is possible in other countries than America.

And England is attempting to take the lead in breaking the grip of the American monopoly.

Given an unprecedented impetus by the passage of the Cinematograph Bill in Parliament, which provides that English exhibitors must show a certain percentage of British pictures in the programs, the cinema producing companies of this country have begun a new lease of life.

Signs of activity

Everywhere there are signs of movie activity. New studios are being built all over the country. The old ones are the scenes of real activity for the first time in years.

In an effort to determine just how serious the British competition is becoming, the International News Service made a canvass of the companies which are at present producing here. The center of activity was found to be at Elstree, where the British International Pictures Corporation has its studios.

Here no less than eight pictures were in the process of taking at the same time. A list of twenty or thirty future productions was on hand. Scores of extras were being employed daily; an army of technicians, cameramen, directors and actors are now on the payroll.

Similar activity was noticed at the Stoll Studios in London, where three producing companies are turning out films under the handicaps of limited space. In this studio, which served as an aircraft factory during the war, five pictures were being made at once.

The same situation exists all over England. The motion picture craze has at last gripped the country seriously. Presented with a ready market in England by virtue of the Quota Bill, producers are now going to attempt to capture the world market, or at least gain a foothold in the far-flung territories where the United States has so long held undisputed sway.

Talking Competition

Even the "talking pictures" have not been overlooked. A British patent called the "Photophone" is described by some who have heard it as being better than any similar American product. Just as in Hollywood, the voices of screen stars are now being trained for talking movies, and plans are completed for the production of several full length speaking films in the near future.

"We are out to make an assault upon the world market," a prominent producer said. "We are not going to be satisfied merely with presenting our pictures in England. We are going to tackle the problem of showing our pictures all over the world, and we hope to make them so good that even America will have to make room for them."

BROWN BEETLES FROM JAPAN AS NEWEST MENACE

New York.—A little brown beetle from Japan has invaded the gardens of the East, according to officials of the New York Botanical Garden in Bronx Park. The beetle, they warned, is rapidly spreading through New Jersey, Pennsylvania, and Southern New York. It has already reached the neighborhood of New York City.

"This little" insect has proved such a dangerous pest to all kinds of trees and shrubs that everybody interested in flowers, in shrub trees or in any kind of growing plants should learn to recognize and control it," Lorea B. Smith, member of the Garden's staff, who is in charge of the Japanese Beetle Control Laboratory at Morristown, N. J., declared.

"We dare not hope to exterminate the beetle. We can only keep it in check. It is here, and probably here to stay."

In Great Numbers

"A thousand grubs" have been found on a square yard of ground. Starting at the root of a blade of grass, they work to the surface, and then on the next blade, devastating entire lawns and meadows by this up and down method of travel.

"The mature beetle feeds preferably on elms, horse chestnuts, lindens, roses, and the Japanese knotwood, but they will eat anything, and are a danger to peach, apple plum, and all fruit trees. They have been known to kill Lombardy poplars by stripping the foliage.

"The Japanese beetle should not be confused with the Asiatic or the Oriental beetle. The Asiatic beetle feeds only at night. The Japanese beetle feeds only in the daytime and in bright sunlight.

"The most effective method of control yet discovered is the introduction of parasite enemies.

"Five kinds of parasite enemies, used in Japan for control purposes are being experimented with in this country. Two of the most important, a wasp and a fly, lay eggs on the larvae of the beetle. When the larvae hatch, the parasite eats the grub and stays in the ground until Spring, and when it comes out to lay eggs on more larvae.

Parasites Attack

"One parasite attacks the mature beetle, laying eggs on its head. When the parasite develops it causes the beetle for some reason to burrow down into the ground. This parasite, of course, kills the eggs.

"Use of sprays against this beetle was not at first successful for a curious reason. The throat of the insect is very short. Food goes quickly into the stomach and begins to digest. Leaves, therefore, sprayed with lead arsenate or some other poison made it immediately sick, and it stopped feeding before it had taken enough poison to kill it.

To get over the difficulty a soap coating was used on the poison to retard its digestion. But a spray, no matter how thoroughly applied, will kill only about half the beetles in a region. The parasites are more effective. They can be introduced, however, only where beetles exist, since they will eat nothing but beetles."

THE PERFECT TEST

The professor, a noted botanist, had given instructions that a dish of mushrooms he had gathered himself were to be cooked and given to his wife at supper time.

At breakfast on the following morning the professor greeted his wife anxiously.

"Sleep well, my dear?" he asked. "SPLENDIDLY."

"You didn't feel ill at all during the night? No pains or anything like that?"

"Of course not, dear."

The professor gave a shrill cheer. "Hurrah!" he cried. "I've discovered yet another species of mushrooms that isn't poisonous.—Answers.

BUSINESS OUTLOOK BRIGHT—COUSINS

Financial Expert Makes a Survey of Conditions for Last Quarter.

By W. S. COUSINS.

I. N. S. Financial Editor.
 New York, Oct. 12.—American industrial and business conditions in the fourth quarter are unusually favorable, and all indications point to a record-breaking season for the major industries, as well as for numerous branches of trade which have been on the "slack list" since 1925. The "profitless prosperity" complained of by the heads of the steel, copper and other industries appear to be passing as the result of the stiffening of prices for raw and manufactured goods.

The stock market is a problem and a conundrum which the bankers and economists seem unable to solve. In the face of the most adverse criticism of stock prices (trends, over-use of bank credit, undue speculative activity in all parts of the country) and the indications against the pyramiding of stock values, the market rushed ahead at a break-neck pace this past week, numerous speculative favorites scoring new high price records for all time.

Distribution-time for the pools and professionals, according to the Wall Street experts—yet the pools enthusiastically report that the public is eager to buy their stock that it is much easier to sell at the top than to buy at the bottom. So much momentum has been created in the rise of favorite stocks that in many cases they continue to climb after the distribution has been completed. Never in the history of the country has there been such an enormous volume of money awaiting investment, and never has the investing public been so willing to accept such small immediate returns in anticipation of future profits on its investments.

The gradual increase of freight car loadings, the American railroads is a favorable commentary on the movement of goods in domestic commerce. Lo dings are now close to a million and a quarter cars per week, an increase of 100,000 cars weekly from the same period last year. Important developments are now pending in the railroad consolidation field, attention to which has been sharply drawn by the acquisition this week of the Buffalo, Rochester and Pittsburgh road by the Van Sweringen brothers of Cleveland.

Steel Industry.

The steel industry continues to make very favorable records, both in production and sales, as well as in net earnings of the principal companies. The United States Steel Corporation reported a gain of 7,000 in forward tonnage in September, in the face of a considerable gain in quick-delivery business during the month. The railroad and motor car industries are absorbing an ever-increasing amount of finished steel, providing a background for a prosperous period in the steel and related industries.

The farm implement manufacturing industry is in the best condition since the close of the world war and the same can be said with few reservations for the shoe industry, the textile trade, clothing manufacturing, copper and metals trade generally. With copper selling at 15 1/2 cents a pound, the low-cost producers are in a position to make the best profits in a decade, and the booming market for the stocks of the Cerro de Pasco and other well known copper companies is an evidence of the public's appreciation of the fact.

NORTHCOTT PREPARING TO FIGHT EXTRADITION

Sends Telegrams to Darrow, Noted Lawyer, Asking Him to Defend Him.

Calgary, Alta., Oct. 12.—Gordon Stewart Northcott and his mother, Mrs. Louisa Northcott today were seeking the services of Clarence Darrow, internationally known criminal lawyer to defend them.

Mr. Northcott was accused in telegrams exchanged between Northcott and his mother, who are facing extradition to California on charges that they murdered little boy in their abandoned chicken ranch.

The wires dealing with the advisability of retaining Darrow of the record and Loeb fame were reported intercepted by California investigators. The first message was sent by Northcott from Okalla prison at Vancouver to his mother who is held in the city jail here. This led officers to believe rumors that Northcott was married to a wealthy California widow who may be financing his spectacular fight against extradition.

Northcott is said to have boasted to his niece, Jessie Clark, that he had married a "very rich old woman for her money."

COUNT 2,940 NAMES ON TO-BE-MADE LIST

Men-Number 1,230 and Women 1,710—Will Have to Make 108 an Hour.

In the rush to get the names of the men and women who filed applications to be made voters printed there was an error made and a couple of sheets containing the names of men got mixed up with the list of women's names. This resulted in the announcement that there were 1,019 men to be made and that there were "about 1,800" women.

The printing of the names, which was started just as soon as the different sets were finished has been completed and they show the total number of names of new voters to be made to reach a total of 2,940. Of this number there are 1,230 men on the list to be made and 1,710 women.

The first session for making voters will be held tomorrow and will start at 9 a. m., and last until 8 p. m. On Saturday, October 20, the same hours will be observed and the last opportunity that a person will have to be made will be up to 8 o'clock on October 20. On Monday, October 13 the board will hold a session from 7 o'clock until 9:30 in the evening and the same hours will be observed on Wednesday evening, October 15.

These sessions total twenty-seven hours and with a list of 2,900 to be made it means that the board of selectmen, the registrars and the town clerk will have to make 108 an hour. This could not be done if they were to be made in the old manner, one at a time. New voters will be sworn in in groups. It will require more than one selectman present when the voters are being made, and the registrars will have to have the assistance of their deputy in order to get the job completed.

TRAINMAN KILLED

Buffalo, N. Y., Oct. 12.—Charles Vester, 45, conductor of the New York Central railroad, was killed today when he fell beneath the wheels of a moving train.

An unidentified man was killed when he stepped on a fallen high voltage wire beside the New York Central tracks in Tonawanda, a suburb.

Another unidentified man was found hanging from a tree in the outskirts of the city. He is believed to have committed suicide.

If Peter Didn't Get The Medal, Neither Did Jim

Peter Happeney did not win the horseshoe pitching tournament among the members of Hose No. 3 of the South Manchester Fire Department, nor did he lose it. He did prevent James Schaub from carrying off the honors, and it just proves that some day when Peter is made a voter, he will be a ward heeler.

The tournament, which was started last summer, dragged along until the greater number of the players had gone through their stunts and had been left by the roadside, beaten and bruised, but there were four survivors, the Barrett brothers, Peter and James Schaub.

Peter played a few "friendly" games with these men and came to the conclusion that he had a fair chance to get by the Barrett brothers, but when it came to beating

Schaub he didn't have a chance in the world.

He had told nearly everybody in the company and a whole lot of others not in the company, that he was going to win the tournament and when he saw that he wasn't going to be able to get over the Schaub obstacle and that Schaub was sure to be the winner he started in to prevent it.

He could never do that if the games were played out, he knew, so last week, when the company had its regular meeting, Peter took the floor, pointed out the lack of interest shown, argued that it would be foolish to spend good money for prizes when nobody cared anything about the tournament, and then moved that the tournament be discontinued and no prizes awarded. Jim Schaub refuses to be interviewed.

TARGET SHOOTERS RUIN A MONUMENT

Damage $600 Stone in St. James's Cemetery, Probably Beyond Repair.

For some time past somebody has been using a monument in St. James's Cemetery as a target for rifle and revolver practice and as a result a monument which cost $600, has been badly defaced and probably cannot be repaired.

The target practice has not been of recent date alone, but has been going on at times for a year or more. But with the coming of fall and the increased seasonal use of rifles and revolvers, there is fear that it will be continued.

Harry Whittel, sexton of St. James's Cemetery, made a complaint to Chief Gorman this morning. While he said, there has not been any shooting done to his knowledge within the past week, past experience had shown that it was about this time of the year that the cemetery was used by target shooters.

Shoot Lock Also

The report today brings to light another report received early in the week, concerning the shooting up of a lock in a building where merchandise used as a target for rifles and so accurate had been the aim that the lock was rendered useless and had to be broken before the owner could enter the place.

In both cases complainants lay the trouble to boys.

K. OF C. QUARTERS ALL READY TONIGHT

Located in State Theater Building—Herald Branch Office Moves Tomorrow, Rest of Plant Nov. 11.

The new quarters of Campbell Council K. of C., in the State theater building will be opened for the use of the members this evening. Yesterday afternoon James Burke, the retiring grand knight is on his vacation and he started yesterday afternoon to do a little carting and carrying.

Leo Cleary came to his assistance and last night others took a hand. The result was that at 10 o'clock last night the greater part of the social room furniture had been moved and arranged and this afternoon a truck man got out the remaining pieces of the social room furniture.

There is still considerable furniture that is owned by the council that is stored in the basement and in the main hall, but this will be moved out and will not prevent the starting of alterations that will be made in the building by The Herald, the new owners of the building.

The south end office of The Herald, which has been located on the Bessell street side of the State theater building will be located in the new building beginning Monday. The arrangements that will be made in the new building will be only temporary as it is expected that the entire Herald plant equipment can be moved to the new home over Armistice Day.

SALVATIONISTS TO ASK FOR 2 PARKING STALLS

Want to Co-operate for Safety But Dislike to Give Up Meeting Place.

Adjutant Joseph Heard, commander of the Manchester corps of the Salvation Army, has called a meeting for Monday evening at the Citadel of all officers of the Manchester corps to discuss the proposed change in the place of holding the Army's open air meetings.

The police commission, acting on a suggestion of a number of citizens, that the meetings held at Birch and Main streets, and drawing crowds there, are a source of danger from the traffic will confer with the corps. It is hoped that a satisfactory solution of the problem may be found.

The Army officials say they are willing to cooperate with the police commission in this matter, but they hope, however, that they will not have to materially change the location of their street meeting and will suggest that two of the parking stalls nearest the corner be reserved so that the meeting place would be far enough from the corner not to interfere with traffic.

KEEPING CLOSE TAB ON FIRE ALARM SYSTEM

Men in the employ of the Manchester Electric Company are making a survey of all of the fire alarm boxes in the South Manchester Fire district, which now covers from Manchester Green on the east to the East Hartford town line on the west, with Middle Turnpike as the north boundary and the Glastonbury line on the south.

When asked what was the trouble, they replied that there was no trouble and the check-up and tests were being made merely to see that the boxes are in working order in case of need. The idea is that of Superintendent of Fire Alarm L. N. Heebner, who wants to be "sure rather than sorry." He will be able to make a report on the exact conditions of the system when the annual meeting of the department is held next month.

Rockville

Dance Season Opens Saturday.

There was no organized observance of Columbus Day in this city despite the fact in a general way it took on a semi-holiday appearance by reason of the fact that several of the individual concerns closed down last evening for the balance of the week while others closed for today only. Many from this city took advantage of the opportunity afforded to attend the Stafford Fair which opened yesterday for three days. Tomorrow night the dance season will be ushered in at the Princess Hall by the first of a series of dances sponsored by the Two Black Crows who have engaged the popular Kings Restaurant Melody Boys of Hartford numbering ten splendid musicians for the opening dance and in addition as a special feature will award $50 in gold for a prize fox trot. Director Saegart of King's orchestra, has surrounded himself with such well known players as Tommie Marshall, Henry Murphy, Harry Goldfarb, Jack Keesey, Herman Wise, Bob Cutler, George Wolf, Carl Arens and Raymond Duval and will offer a special dance program of latest dance hits. The Princess Ballroom will be decorated in an autumnal setting of extraordinary splendor and judging from the advance sale of tickets, Saturday night's dance should prove a popular and fitting opening of the season at this popular ballroom. The best amateur dancers in the state will compete in the $50 prize fox trot.

"WALKING BACK" AT THE STATE TOMORROW

Drama of Our Modern Youth Stars Sue Carol; Reginald Denny in Co-Feature.

Modern youth's desire to crowd all possible thrills and action into each hour is not a characteristic derogatory to this generation, but simply an outgrowth of the fast moving era in which their lives have been spent. So says Robert Julian, one of the best known film-directors, in discussing his latest DeMille production, "Walking Back," which will be on view at the State theater tomorrow.

The entire action of this picture takes place between dusk and dawn of one eventful night.

The leading feminine role, that of a high school miss, is played by Sue Carol, while the part of Smoke Thatcher, a fast-moving youth, is in the hands of Richard Walling, a player of unusual cleverness. Both are featured.

Ivan Lebedeff has the role of a crook, Robert Edeson is the father, and Jane Keckley and Florence Turner are seen in mother roles. The picture is an adaptation of the well known magazine story, "A Trip Into the Country," written by George K. Turner.

"Walking Back," is truly a drama in which the comedy and tragedy of today's generation stalk side by side.

The associate film feature for tomorrow is "That's My Daddy," Reginald Denny's latest Universal production.

Can you imagine a little child running up earnestly to the bridegroom during his wedding ceremony and claiming him to be his "pap"? Such is the case in this picture and it starts a series of exciting episodes for Denny that brings forth many thrills and laughs.

Denny is given able support by such famous film favorites as Barbara Kent, Tom O'Brien, Lillian Rich and many others. William A. Selter directed.

Sunday and Monday the State is presenting "Forgotten Faces," a weird mystery drama starring Olive Brook and Mary Brian.

PICK AMERICAN OIL FOR GRAF ZEPPELIN

Tide Water Oil Company's Veedol Motor Oil Wins World Wide Competition.

The Tide Water Oil Company announced today receipt of official word from Dr. Hugo Eckener, commander of the Graf Zeppelin, that the world wide competition among manufacturers of lubricating oils to furnish the oil for the Zeppelin's motors, had ended in the choice of its product Veedol.

This choice, it appears, was made after numerous oils had been tested in the five Maybach motors on the various test flights which the Graf Zeppelin has made preliminary to its crossing the Atlantic. After each of these flights, the various oils tested were carefully examined and it was on the basis of these tests that the decision was reached to use an American product made entirely from Pennsylvania and other paraffin base crude.

Whether or not the decision to test Veedol was induced in part by its selection by Commander Byrd as the motor oil to be used by his airplanes in his Antarctic Expedition or whether the fact that it was used by Bert Balchen when he flew to Greenland Island to rescue the German flyers, has weight, was not disclosed. It is known, however, that Veedol Motor Oil is becoming increasingly popular among aviators as it was recently selected by Clarence Chamberlain for use in his amphibian planes on his New York to Washington Air Line and also has more recently been adopted by Art Goebel who not long ago broke the time record from Los Angeles to New York City. Other famous flyers whose choice of Veedol may possibly have influenced the interest of the Zeppelin authorities are: "The Raach," the German Aviatix, Martin Jensen and Eddie Stinson.

Immediately upon receipt of word from Dr. Eckener of the results of their test of Veedol, an ample supply was sent to Friedrichshafen by the Tide Water Oil Company German representatives and arrangements made to rush enough Veedol to Lakehurst to supply the Zeppelins for its trips over this country and on the return journey.

officials point out that the selection of Veedol, an American oil by the Zeppelin authorities, is a great tribute to the efficiency of American oil producing and refining methods.

PREPARE ARMY-NAVY CLUB FOR OPEN HOUSE

House Being Renovated—Veteran Gives Painting of War Front Village.

Painters were at work today remodeling the interior of the Army and Navy Club in preparation for the "Open House" in connection with the tenth anniversary of Armistice Day next month.

Kalsomine is being applied to the panels in the main hall and to the ceiling in the reading room. The floor will be sandpapered to make it more suitable for dancing. This work may be done by the State Trade School.

Yesterday, a force of workmen, under the supervision of the park superintendent, spent all day cutting down branches and trimming the large trees in front of the club to improve the lighting conditions. These branches have overhung the clubhouse and often during a storm some have broken off and damaged the roof.

One of the things which visitors may view when they come to the Army and Navy club over the Armistice Day observance will be a large oil painting of a scene in France. This is a World War scene painted by Raymond Brookman of Robert Road, Burnside, who formerly lived on Charter Oak street here. Mr. Brookman is a World War veteran and was a member of Company G, 102nd Infantry when that unit went overseas.

Brookman was transferred to the Headquarters Company of that organization and took part in several engagements. He was badly gassed. His respect for the Army and Navy club caused him to donate the painting, which he made from memory nearly ten years after the war. Hamville is a little village near the Toole sector and was about a half-mile from the front line trenches. Although the buildings plainly show the effects of shellfire, the village was one of the least damaged in the battle front. Local ex-service men say this was due to the fact that German sympathizers lived there.

SAYS SCHOOL PUPILS COURT PERIL, DEATH

Porter Street Children Use Roadway Habitually, Says Nearby Resident.

The lives of scores of Manchester school children attending the Porter street school are imperiled daily, according to a resident of that vicinity. This, the resident says, is because the children habitually use the road in preference to the sidewalk.

"Most of the children scatter like a flock of chickens when an automobile comes up the street, but some of them persist in seeing how many times they can dart back and forth across the road before the car reaches them."

The enrollment of the Porter street school is now about 140 pupils and the majority of them come down Porter street to East Center street. There is no paved walk from the school to Autumn street, but there is an unpaved one wide enough to make it unnecessary for children to walk in the street.

CHANGES IN TRANSCRIPT MADE UNDER FR. TIMMINS

A change in "dress" of the Catholic Transcript, of which Rev. James Timmins, for ten years assistant pastor of St. James's Church here, is no editor, was noted in the issue of the paper that arrived in town today.

The change is particularly noticeable on the editorial page where the one column style has been changed to the double column and the state news has become more interesting and covers a different field than was covered before.

"PLASTERED IN PARIS" COMING TO CIRCLE

Film Starring Sammy Cohen Here Tomorrow and Sunday.

"Plastered in Paris," the William Fox special production starring the popular Hebrew comedian, Sammy Cohen, will open for a special two day engagement at the Circle theater beginning tomorrow.

Sammy needs no introduction to local movie fans, for hundreds of them remember his funny antics in "What Price Glory" and then later in "The Gay Retreat." Both of these vehicles served to place the prominent young star in the field he now occupies—that of leading comedian.

In "Plastered in Paris," he is teamed with Jack Pennick, the hilarious iceman character in "Four Sons," and together with two funny lots of thrilling excitement and loads of hearty laughs.

The story revolves around the adventures of two ex-doughboys of the American army, played by Cohen and Pennick, and their dealings with French models and a bevy of beautiful Harm vampires.

Most of the scenes are laid in the heart of the French East Africa, where two youths find themselves members of the French Foreign Legion.

Not once does the audience lose interest. They are either laughing one minute, or sitting on the edge of their chairs the next.

The companion feature for tomorrow and Sunday at the Circle is "Beware of Blondes," a pulsating and red-blooded story that is filled with romance and adventure.

Dorothy Revier has the leading role, and she is ably supported by Matt Moore and Roy D'Arcy. A pleasing variety of interesting short subjects will be shown in conjunction with the two features.

Continuous show Saturday from 2:15 until 10:30. Two boys Sunday evening at 7:00 and 9:00.

MANY MISSING DEMS.

This week's tabulation of the Literary Digest's Presidential election poll, while mounting to the imposing total of nearly two million votes, leaves the student of its figures in a state of complete confusion when he undertakes to analyze the "switch" which, for most observers, has become by far the most significant feature of the polling.

On the face of the returns Hoover has all the best of the argument, for there are recorded for him no less than 1,201,869 votes against 688,829 votes for Smith, and any such ratio as this would be certain to sweep the country for the Republican candidate, in spite of any possible freakishness in their division among the states, if it were to hold good on election day.

There are any number of angles, however, from which the "switch" can be viewed. Here, on the face of the totals, Governor Smith is getting much the better of the swapping of votes. Of Hoover's 1,201,869, there are polled 167,386 votes by persons who report themselves as having voted for Davis in 1924.

There seems to be, here, a singular contradiction. If three times as many Republicans in the country were turning to Smith as Democrats are turning to Hoover, the fact would be expected to show up more conspicuously in the totals. But of the whole vote, Hoover receives 63 per cent as compared with Smith's 36 per cent, the odd one per cent going outside to the small party candidates.

Now in 1924 Coolidge polled in the whole country fifteen and three-quarters million votes while Davis polled just short of eight million four hundred thousand. Roughly, Coolidge got 65 per cent and Davis 36 per cent. And the Digest's poll shows Hoover almost exactly retaining Coolidge's final percentage and Smith gaining only a negligible fraction over Davis—while apparently almost three times as many Republicans are turning Democrats as there are Democrats turning Republican. Somehow the figures don't click.

There is, in fact, a mysterious disappearance, on the face of the returns, of a substantial part of the Democratic vote of 1924. One is not inclined to believe that this disappearance is real. This is not a year when people are going to refrain from voting, even in a poll. The situation could be accounted for if it were known that a large number of Democrats who voted for Davis in 1924, as well as the known large number who voted for Coolidge, were voting for Smith in the Digest poll and representing themselves as Republican voters of four years ago.

This could only be done through widely extended pre-arrangement, to be sure, but we have seen plenty of worse political tricks pulled before now. Its purpose would be, of course, to indicate a wholesale plunge of Republicans to Smith, for its effect upon the young voters and the fence straddlers. Meantime the most striking item in the "switch" is the slamming that Smith is getting in Alabama, where the reported vote for Hoover exceeds that for Smith and 5,813 of his 11,137 votes come from Democrats; in Arkansas, where more Democrats than Republicans are voting for Hoover; and in Virginia, where the Hoover vote is as 16 to 11, with half of it coming from the Democratic side. Whatever else may be said of this campaign it provides the best opportunity for a guessing match of any for a long time.

FAR FROM HOME

Governor Smith, the first Democratic candidate for the Presidency in many a long year who has felt the necessity of delivering campaign speeches in the Solid South, has just been telling the folks down there that he really can't see any difference in people—couldn't see any difference between the people of Manhattan and those of Syracuse, couldn't see any between the people of Syracuse and those of the West, can't see any between Virginians and North Carolinians and the people of his own East Side or the West Side of the United States.

That must have made a hit. Any one who has ever been in Virginia can have one guess as to the effect on the people of the Old Dominion of being told that they are as like as peas in a pod to the polyglot rabble which, in the Virginia understanding, makes up the entire populace of the metropolis of the nation.

About the last thing that the Virginians and the North Carolinians care to be told is that they even remotely resemble, in any way, the majority of the people of America. They are quite firmly convinced that they are a race apart, infinitely superior. They are even confident that there is a biological difference—that their men are handsomer as well as braver and their women more beautiful as well as cleverer, than any others anywhere. To tell them that they are not so, perceptibly, was just another of those mistakes that Smith's inherent cockynism is forever leading him into—he does not know his United States; only his own big hive of a city.

The dispatches say that Governor Smith expressed himself as delighted at being called "Al" by everybody in Virginia. Isn't he aware that in Virginia, if he stood at all with the people in the position he needs to occupy, they would have called him "Governor Smith, sah?"

NOT SO NEW

At the risk of being rated old fogey by the highly progressive apostles of the new, it may be said that once in a while the new turns out to be not so good as the not so new. We do not refer, this time, to prohibition, but to the art of telephony as it relates to transatlantic conversation.

A year or two ago, when wireless telephone service between New York and London was instituted, the enterprise was pictured as one more of the marvels of the bigger and better civilization. It was going to revolutionize international correspondence, speed up foreign trade and do a lot. Almost everybody has forgotten all about the marvel by this time. And not, by any means, solely because it cost twenty-five dollars a minute to talk across the ocean. It was because the wireless telephone wasn't so good a telephone as it might have been and they never have been able to get rid of the static and interference which make a conversation in English sound like Sanscrit and one in French sound like the gabble of the stockyards.

Meanwhile the Bell Telephone Company has kept on plugging along the lines of the old cable idea, trying to develop a cable that would carry sufficient current for telephone purposes without fading out—lack of which has hitherto made submarine telephony a wash-out. Now they have it and such a cable, it is asserted, will be laid. So we shall probably do our telephoning to the old country, if any, along the good old wire for a while yet.

RASPBERRY

Mrs. Helen Brunley Baldwin, a member of the Bonton, N. J., chapter of the D. A. R., stimulated by the writings of professional bogey hunters to a high state of indignation against all advocates of international peace, publicly accused Rev. William H. Bridge of "playing the communistic game."

It was all right for Mrs. Baldwin to accuse the minister of being a communist. It was terrible for him to say that she was a liar. It made her quite ill. So she brought suit against the clergyman who had had the audacity to defend himself.

Mrs. Baldwin has had her day in court—several of them. The jury brought in a verdict of "No cause for action." The bill of costs will be quite heavy. Mrs. Baldwin will have to pay it. Mrs. Baldwin will doubtless report to the Bonton D. A. R. that the reds have captured the courts and all is lost. It is certainly the end of all of that sort of Americanism when a perfect lady and member of the D. A. R. can't call whom she pleases a red, an assassin, a perjurer or a thief, without having the low creature answer her back.

Health and Diet Advice

By DR. FRANK MCCOY

Dr. McCoy will gladly answer personal questions on health and diet, addressed to him, care of The Herald, Enclose stamped, addressed, large envelope for reply.

INFLAMMATION OF THE EYE.

Inflammation of the eyeball, termed conjunctivitis, is indicated by a reddish bloodshot appearance, usually accompanied by a discharge from the mucous membranes of the eye and may be caused by several distinct diseases.

The most frequent disease that attacks the eye is acute catarrhal inflammation which causes a bright redness on the surface of the eyeball, with a feeling of pain and dryness, extreme sensitiveness to light and a copious mucus secretion, at first having the consistency of tears. This turns into a glue-like pus as the disease progresses and may even fasten the eyelids together during the night.

This disease frequently follows measles, small pox, influenza, colds and scarlet fever. Sometimes the disease, instead of being acute is chronic in nature and lasts for a longer time, but usually without as violent symptoms.

A chronic catarrh of the eye may be caused by eye strain, irritation from foreign particles, smoke or other causes. The eye is reddened, but there is not as large a supply of mucus present.

Another type of inflammation of the eye, or conjunctivitis, is known as trachoma, and is often called granulated eyelids. In this disease small plus lumps appear on the under surface of the eye lids. This disease is quite contagious and is usually carried from one person to another by towels or by the hands.

There is another very dangerous type of conjunctivitis that often results in blindness resulting from a gonorrheal infection that may be carried either on towels or on the hands. This disease begins very much like the acute conjunctivitis but also causes a pronounced swelling of the front of the eyeball, accompanied by a thick pus discharge. The eyelids are sometimes so greatly enlarged as to be pushed forward entirely concealing the eyeball. There is a severe pain and tenderness accompanied by some fever.

This disease frequently results in blindness, as it may produce a sloughing off of the cornea or front of the eye, and permit the escape of the gelatinous interior of the eyeball. Even if this does not occur, the cornea usually becomes more or less opaque. The disease is very contagious. A small part of this disease often occurs in babies about the third day after birth from infection during birth. Practically every nation now requires that the doctor place some weak antiseptic in the baby's eyes as a protection against this occurring.

The simpler types of conjunctivitis can be handled with an acid fruit fast, and the renewed application of cold wet cloths to the eyes.

A person with conjunctivitis should of course be kept away from the possibility of infecting others, and his eyes should be guarded against light until the inflammation has subsided. The gonorrheal type of conjunctivitis is very dangerous, and while a fasting regime accompanied by wet compresses is helpful, it is also necessary that your doctor employ antiseptic measures to overcome this trouble in its early stages before it has an opportunity to destroy the precious eyesight.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

Extracting a Wisdom Tooth.

Question: E. C. writes: "I have been having trouble with my wisdom teeth. Is it necessary to have these extracted?" Answer: I do not advise extracting the wisdom teeth unless they are badly decayed or so far out of their normal position as to injure the jaw or other teeth. The wisdom tooth is as valuable as any other tooth, and it assists in filling out the jaw. Better get the opinion of more than one dentist.

Prolapsed Stomach.

Question: Mrs. R. D. S. writes: "I am very interested in your health and diet advice, and would like to ask what causes fallen or low stomach and intestines. Is this a serious condition?"

Answer: Prolapsus of the stomach and intestines comes from the abdominal muscles being too weak to hold these organs in position. Since man has learned to walk upright it has been found necessary to an extraordinary degree, or the abdominal viscera tends to slip down into the lowest part of the pelvis. Exercises, particularly those taken while lying on the back, are a sure cure, but must be persisted in even for months to get complete results. Diet has an effect only as it influences the general health and strength.

Gray Hair.

Question: Mrs. W. F. asks: "Is there any kind of food one should eat that would bring more color to the hair when it is beginning to turn gray?" Answer: The use of plenty of green vegetables unquestionably has some effect on preventing the graying of hair, but there is no one single food. I know of which is specific to be used in keeping the hair its natural color.

WATKINS BROTHERS, Inc. 54 YEARS AT SOUTH MANCHESTER

WASHINGTON LETTER

By RODNEY DUTCHER

Washington, Oct. 12.—Nearly two years after the last great flood began to wreak its havoc in the Mississippi valley, work on the nation's big flood control project will actually begin.

The army engineers expect that by January or February they can begin erecting the side levees on the Bonnet Carré spillway above New Orleans. This will be the first major operation in the project. Two things remain before it can be done. First, President Coolidge must approve the report of the flood advisory board which Congress directed to reconceive the plan of the army engineers with the ideas of the Mississippi River Commission.

Contrary to a widespread impression, Congress did not appropriate $325,000,000 for the flood control project. It merely authorized the appropriation of such a sum and the appropriation can be made by Congress alone. The army engineers expect that the president will have approved the advisory board's report before Congress meets in December and that Congress will lose little time in appropriating money with which they may begin the job. Subsequently Congress will take up the question of work on the tributaries. The flood control act passed at the last session covers only the main stem of the Mississippi from Cairo, Ill., to the Gulf of Mexico.

The army engineers obtained a total appropriation of $24,000,000 for immediate work on the Mississippi and are expending it on measures regarding as immediately necessary and not on the main object. They have been spending $10,000,000 a year on flood work and $14,000,000 was added for emergency and repair work. They were unable to spend money on features of their main project which were in dispute.

Hence, the work in progress since Congress adjourned was designed to take care of urgent necessities. The necessary operations were divided into three main classes; levee construction, bank revetment and dredging.

This was merely a continuation of what the engineers have been doing for many years along the "levees only" theory.

When the 1927 flood hit the valley not all the levees had been completed up to the standard set by Congress in 1914. Before beginning construction of new levees, the flood control act provided that the old levees be brought up to the 1914 standard.

age is one of the indefinite factors. Tentative estimates for the work on the control project for the first year have been placed at $30,000,000 and the money will be provided for in the appropriation bill, which will be ready when Congress meets.

Surveys have been made, plans laid out and options obtained on the rights of way for the Bonnet Carré spillway, so that this relief measure, regarded as the most important, can be begun promptly as soon as money is available. The first task is to build side levees from the river to Lake Pontchartrain. The five-mile floodway between these levees will have a capacity of 250,000 second feet of water, and discharge into this floodway from the spillway dam will begin whenever the flood stage at New Orleans reaches a certain point.

The other main new features are diversion floodways in the Atchafalaya and Tensas basins and a river bank floodway from Cairo to New Madrid, Mo.

IN NEW YORK Lights now play quite as prominent a part in death as in the life of New York. One of the city's largest mortuaries now displays a huge and fiery sign to the night skies. Seeing it from a distance, one would expect it to mark some gay pleasure resort. New York, Oct. 12.—The bright buildings, some of them a block in dimension, and so built that they can some day take on skyscraper proportions. If desired, lack of actual ground space and general lack of property make the old-fashioned graveyard all but impossible, and frightfully expensive. Hence the growth of the individual crypt system. In some of them there is room for tens of thousands of corpses. One has a "legion of honor," where space has been reserved for more than a thousand dignitaries who some day will have to go the way of all flesh.

And while minded of such matters—it has always seemed to me that there is nothing quite so depressing, quite so melancholy and suggestive of the loneliness in which some die and live as the dust covered crepe symbols that can be seen hanging from the outside doorways of cheap rooming houses.

Sometimes there is not so much as a door upon which to hang crepe. Sometimes the stairway to the rooming house is caught tightly between two mean looking stores and the crepe is placed just inside the entrance way.

Generally the attached spray of flowers is faded, and windblown; stained by wind, rain and dirt and hanging dimly before a half-day is done. I am told that a number of convicts rent out artificial flowers and crepes and that they are used over and over again. Certainly some of them seem much used. And always there is the suggestion of anonymity—some poor soul who lived and died in a squalid darkened room, without friends, perhaps without any human sympathy. The cult of "tea reading" has become a vogue in certain airy little tea shops of the mid-town belt. Here a corps of colorfully costumed gossips, some of whom took as though they might be gypsies, platter-patter from table to table, staring into the emptied cups, studying the arrangement of the dregs and commenting: "How very interesting! What an exciting time you have in store."

When we of course more than the good tea-bibblers can stand. They chortle, "Tell me more!" And they tell me, it's becoming a very profitable racket. But with cold Fall winds opposition in fortune telling can always be expected from the real gypsies. With the approach of winter they drift in from the highways, dressed in their gay skirts and silken headgear. They choose Manhattan as a wintering place, I am told, because of its gullibility. Doorways are turned into fortune telling booths; empty store-rooms display huge charts of palms—and business goes on as usual.

A large number of them have a list of customers that keep them busy through most of the winter. GILBERT SWAN.

WHAT'S THE DIFF? LONDON.—The former Manchester residence of Sir Miles Sharp, 10 P. near Bradford, Yorkshire, is now being used as an experimental station for traps. An attempt is being made to learn "how many tramps are actually genuine and how many just 'no-er-do-wells' is the motive.

ONE BANK'S CHRISTMAS FUND TO REACH $90,000

Manchester Trust's Statement Shows General Deposits Nearly $1,750,000.

General deposits in the Manchester Trust Company now reach nearly $1,750,000. The company, which was organized with $100,000 capital and a surplus of $100,000 and undivided profits of $105,325, or total resources of $405,325. The resources includes $76,678 cash on hand and only $51,277 in foreign currency included in the resources.

That the people of Manchester have been giving much attention to the Christmas Club fund is also indicated by the fact that on October 3, the date on which the statement was called for, there was on deposit in the bank, in this fund, $68,550. This amount represents three-quarters of a year's Christmas savings and indicates that there will be about $90,000 to be sent out in Christmas checks from this bank alone this year.

WHIRLWIND

BY ELEANOR EARLY

THIS HAS HAPPENED

Sybil Thorne, Boston society girl, was engaged at 18 to a young soldier, John Lawrence, who was sent to France on the eve of their marriage—and never returned. Sybil mourned him for months—and then, in the way of youth, gave herself up to romance and indiscretions in a vain attempt to forget.

Years later she contracted a wretched marriage, of which a beautiful child was born. When her son was a year old, Sybil brought suit for divorce. On the day on which her case was to have opened, her husband was killed while motoring from his home in New Haven to court in Boston.

Sybil incurred her family's wrath and the displeasure of her friends by celebrating his death with a theatrical party.

Shortly afterward she goes apartment hunting with Mabel Moore, her dearest friend. The real estate agent calls for them at Mabel's flat. When he opens the door Sybil shrieks "John!" He recognizes her, and falls, fainting at her feet.

Sybil and Mabel revive him—and he tells the story of his strange disappearance. John Lawrence—back from the dead!

When he concludes his dramatic and tragic story of battles and death and shellshock—all as true as the history of the bravest of the brave—he takes Sybil in his arms.

And, "Do you love me, Sybil?" he asks her.

But, meantime, Sybil has had another lover—CRAIG NEW-HALL.

Her heart is pounding wildly as she tries to answer.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XLIII

Sybil drew away, but he held her in the circle of his arms.

"Oh, John!" Prayerfully she besought him. "Not now—don't ask me now, John. It's been such a long, long time. So much has happened. How could I have forgotten? His arms about her tightened, and he kissed her hair as he had done so many times before.

"You've bobbed it, dearest," he accused her.

He held her away again, and looking up, she saw that his forehead was wrinkled as though he were puzzled.

"It's that odor," he said surprisingly.

"What odor?" she repeated stupidly.

"The stuff you use on your hair," he told her, and pulled his eyebrows together perplexedly. "What is it?"

"Verbenas," she said. "You used to like it."

John closed his eyes tightly so that they made a faint, furious and furtive memory drew her skirts tantalizingly across his senses.

"It was a girl in Paris," he said at last. "She used that same stuff. Girl at Maxim's. Something about her reminded me of somebody. But I didn't know what it was—or who it was. She drove me almost crazy. I used to sit and watch her—and listen to her. One night—she was a coquette you see, Sybil—and this night she asked me to buy her a drink. I stood there, staring like a fool, and all of a sudden I got giddy. I didn't know what it was. God, Sybil—don't you see—that girl had on verbenas too!"

John passed his hand over his forehead.

"I can smell her now, Verbenas. That's what it was."

"Poor darling," Sybil took his thin cheeks between her palms, and drawing his head down, put her lips to his hair. "She reminded you of me, I suppose, only you couldn't know."

"An odor," he said brokenly. "Like a breath from the past."

"And it didn't bring back anything?" she asked. "You used to kiss my hair, John—remember? Remember that big psychic I worried when I had it cut. I put it all away, and kept it in memory of you and your kisses on it. I remember I had some perfume in a little green atomizer with pink roses on it—Tad gave it to me one Christmas. And I always squirted it on my hair when I was going to meet you because you told me once I had the sweetest hair in the world. That thrilled me awfully. Tell me about that girl, John. You didn't associate her magnificence with any particular thing about her?"

"I knew there was something," he repeated, "but I couldn't quite lay hold of it. I sort of thought it was her hands. She kind of fluttered them. You know the way some girls do, when they talk."

"I used to wonder if those white hands of hers held the secret of all I'd forgotten. I don't remember of having been conscious of any scent about her. But now it all comes back. I can close my eyes, and see her sitting there."

"She always wore black. French women do mostly, you know. Her hair was sort of goldy—bleached, I suppose. And it used to kind of slip out from under her hat. She'd be there, toying with a glass, and smiling quietly. . . . Sometimes I thought it was her smile that would bring things back."

"Didn't you ever talk with her?" demanded Sybil.

John raised his shoulders.

"Yes," he said heavily. "I talked with her—after a while. It didn't do any good, of course."

"Oh, well," Sybil slid her arm through his. "Let's talk about something else. Come—sit down. We'll talk about me. Have I changed, John? Much, I mean. Of course I've grown older."

They sat on the divan in front of the fire, but he did not touch her.

The WOMAN'S DAY

by ALLENE SCAMNER

The one hundred men and one hundred women who were questioned by Dr. G. V. Hamilton, noted psychiatrist, on what was wrong with their respective marriages and what they would do to improve them, have become pretty well known by now, with practically every magazine picking up some one phase of the findings for elaboration.

It is interesting, if not surprising, to learn that wives proved much more critical than husbands—that wives averaged three bad traits each which their husbands generally mentioned but one fault in their wives. Eighty-six of the women, for instance, suggested specific changes in their husbands while only 79 of the 100 husbands wanted changes in their wives.

One amusing little point, and not surprising either, is that wives were much more concerned with their husbands' mental and moral and emotional habits than with their personal appearance. Sixty-two men cited annoyances with their wives' appearance in the way of dress or looks, while only 55 wives criticized their husbands' make-up.

Common Sense

"The Woman's Journal" in an editorial entitled "Is There a Woman Vote?" says this rather well, "It is amusing to see how responsibility for the presidential election is being piled on the shoulders of women. Ever since they were enfranchised women have been scolded because it was said, they did not vote and had no interest in politics. Now, newspapers and spokesmen for both major parties are declaring that the woman vote will decide the coming election."

Husbands For Him

By the way, a group of husbands in Cookston, Minn., is organizing a club with its object the subversion of women as advocated by The One and Only Mussolini. The new organization has called him congratulations on his stand and is taking up a collection for a monument to the Italian premier. The monument will refer to him as "Champion of the Husband's Cause."

Dangerous Viewpoint

If I were Mrs. Gene Tunney, I would make a special point of breaking up any tea-table between her Gene and Mr. Benito Mussolini. For it would be rather difficult for a modern American girl to swallow Mr. Mussolini's opinions on the state of woman and the proper place of a wife. For example, read these:

"It is the duty of women to accede to the mandates of man."

"No woman has ever really dominated man's life."

Husbands For Him

YOUR CHILDREN

by Olive Roberts Barton

It is almost impossible for mothers of boys to keep from worrying when fall comes along and the inevitable football teams organize.

The first frosty air seems to reek of pigskin nowadays for the average boy, be he 5 or 18. Nutting parties and "cooning" are no longer the autumn pastimes they used to be.

There are anxious moments when mothers first observe the symptoms of football fever, and they begin to look anxiously to their supplies of arnica, bandage rolls, adhesive plaster and other first-aid equipment. It is the best they can do, for most of them have discovered the futility of protest.

The affinity of a boy for a football either personally or by proxy, is as natural as the day, but when an obsession of the small, medium, or big boy does for a football, there is usually a reason. There is decidedly a reason in football.

It is group spirit—team spirit, of whatever you want to call it. Let us not despise the thrill of a forward pass or a goal kick, but such things alone would not make the ellipsoid immortal.

Team spirit is one of the finest influences of character that can be found. It need not, of course, necessarily be football; other games can and do arouse team spirit. But I mention football particularly not only because it is in the air just now, but because so many mothers are beginning to worry about their boys getting hurt.

True, every year brings its crop of sprains, breaks and even more serious casualties, but I venture to suggest that the average boy is safer on a football field than he is in an automobile nowadays. I mean safer from really serious accident.

The question of football versus lessons is different. Each father must decide that for itself, or rather for his young Grange.

I can only answer that there is a time and place for everything. My thought is chiefly for apprehensive mothers who are hesitating about giving their boys permission to play, on the ground that they are likely to get hurt in a "foolish game that doesn't amount to anything."

No clean-out outdoor sport ever can be that.

SUCCESS COMES

WITH CHOICE OF SIMPLER SONGS

BY ROSA PONSSELLE

Here we come to a big item in making your song a go. In selecting songs you cannot always follow your own choice. You sing to please others, therefore, you must also consider the taste of others when you choose your songs. Not that anyone should sing the songs which she dislikes or considers trash, but good songs that have a decided appeal to others.

I believe in a high standard of taste, but there are plenty of good songs that are strong in appeal to people generally. There also are good songs that are so much above the understanding of the general run of people that to sing them means to create boredom.

Majority Should Please

A few songs of that type, just to help in musical advancement, is well and good. But to try to force a lot of them against the wish of listeners is a great mistake.

Another unwise thing to do is, to select a song because all the great singers of her type of voice, soprano, contralto or whatever it may be, sing that song. By following a course the young singer challenges a comparison which she cannot meet.

Later, after advancement, she may be safe in attempting it, but not too early. Her songs that do best will be those which do not recall to so many perfect performances by singers who have spent years in learning to do them.

For a young singer in the difficulties which present themselves; singers should not be guided as to choice in what is sung merely because they like a thing. It is a good plan to take certain celebrated arias as private study, when you are far enough along to do so safely, and then grow up in them, as it were.

Success in Simplicity

Before the time comes that you are sufficiently advanced to sing them before listeners you will have grown thoroughly familiar with the music.

As I have said before, but cannot impress too often, the young singer makes her best successes with songs that require a less degree of finish than she in reality commands. Then she stands above any difficulties in range or interpretation that they may present.

Then the very certainty with which she sings shows she has the ability to do still more, that "reserve power" for which every finished artist aims.

Hooverettes

By Anna Steese Richardson

Herbert Hoover's modesty is an instinctive thing. In San Francisco, when somebody congratulated him on his great reputation in that city, he agreed that it was great—and then he added, "The only really bad thing was my speech."

It was a very good speech, especially good for San Francisco. It told how he had come to that city thirty-three years before looking for a job and getting one. How he had saved for 15 cents and slept for a quarter. How he had gone to Europe in 1914 at the request of the city to interest foreign governments in the great San Francisco Fair. How he was still there on that job when the war broke out.

But the elevator boy at the Hotel St. Francis didn't like it.

"Too short," he said to Frederick L. Collins of the "Woman's Home Companion." "All right for an engineer, but if he can't speak longer than that, he'll never be President."

Mr. Collins repeated this comment to Hoover.

"That's funny," Hoover laughed. "I thought it was too long." Then he added: "Which only goes to show that in a country of such diversified people with such diversified ideals, the only safe thing to say is absolutely nothing."

This sentiment might have fallen from the lips of the present occupant of the White House, commented Mr. Collins; but spoken by Herbert Hoover it was rich in that somewhat surprised good humor with which he is facing the terrors of a political campaign.

The new leader of the Republican party doesn't use many more words—for publication, at least—than the old one did. But there is a vast difference in the silence of the two men.

"Tell your friend, the elevator boy," he said, "that next time I speak I'll have him specially in mind."

He was thinking of his acceptance address, his longest oratorical effort, and the shortest acceptance speech on record.

SOME HAIR DYES CONTAIN DANGEROUS SUBSTANCES.

By DR. MORRIS FISHBEIN.

Editor Journal of the American Medical Association and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine.

Hair is a valuable thing, dead or alive. It has been said that the average woman who loses her hair buys hair, whereas the average man buys hair tonic.

Ever since the first woman looked into a mirror and decided that her appearance might be better edited by certain modifications, women have been tampering with their crowning glory. All sorts of hair dyes, hair tonics and hair restorers are on the market.

A few of them still contain substances dangerous to the general health, many of them merely serving to pour on without any very specific virtues. It is difficult to get legal action in the matter, because legislators refuse to take the subject seriously.

The manufacturers object to legal control because they realize that investigation will mean an exposure of many false claims that are made for hair tonic and hair restoring preparations.

Restoring Color.

It is safe to say there is no substance known that will restore the original color to gray hair, regardless of what the hair may have been in the first place. Nevertheless, innumerable women spend money every year on hair preparations supposed to have this virtue.

One of the products now being investigated, claiming to be a secret formula for restoring gray hair to its original color, and not a hair dye, was found on examination to have as its essential ingredients for restoring gray hair the chemicals, lead and sulphur, the former being exceedingly dangerous.

Among the vegetable dyes used for hair, henna is the best known, but indigo wood extracts, sage and camomile root have also been popular. Hair treated with any of these dyes, as well as with hydrogen peroxide is likely to end up with all sorts of peculiar colors, sometimes even with a strange spotted appearance.

Dyes are difficult to prepare; results are not, of course, permanent, since the hair grows. Most of the dyes do not penetrate the hair shaft but merely coat it, so that their repeated use tends to make the hair quite brittle.

Danger of Eruptions.

Most cosmetic establishments use a synthetic product in their hair rather than gray. It is probably best not to trifle with the hair one has. Unless the appearance of youthfulness is an absolute necessity to continued employment or to the maintenance of domestic affection, hair dyeing might best be left to those professions which hinge almost wholly on personal appearance of youthfulness.

To the man or woman who is of an age with which gray hair is not unreasonably associated, it may help to bring a respect and consideration where spotted and obviously dried hirsute adorning bring only laughter and ridicule.

Expect A Big Shake-Up In St. Louis Cardinals

Yankees, Also, Contemplating Changes for Next Season—After Ruffing, the Boston Pitcher.

By DAVIS J. WALSH

New York, Oct. 12.—Neither the World Series club that almost finished third in a field of two nor the one that equalled par for the course with four straight victories will be quite the same when next it appears in public in the spring. No one yet knows who will get the contract for alterations in the St. Louis Cardinals but it is understood that sealed bids are being received. It is inevitable that changes will be affected, if only on the theory that a change might be for the better since the likelihood of it being for the worse is at something of a minimum.

The Cards as a ball club were good enough to win the National League championship but were so had in the series as to indicate that they might have won from New Canaan after a game, uphilly, that kind of an outfit, regardless of what it might have been a few weeks ago, simply doesn't figure to repeat now and everybody on the ball club knows it. Almost any head can be guttled without astounding the populace.

With Two Men

It may be somewhat surprising that a club which won so readily as the Yankees can contemplate shifts, renovations, additions and subtractions, however. But the Yankees know, too, that they won with two men and not nine. The other seven were in there mostly on guest privileges and, if they stay much longer, they will be in danger of imposing on someone's hospitality.

Local observers today were commenting on the possibility that Mark Koenig might play third base next year. But they didn't say where Joe Dugan is another of that kind and so are Collins and Grabowski, the catchers who never missed a splinter on the bench all season.

GOOD GAMES ON TOMORROW'S BILL

Pittsburgh vs. Virginia a Headliner—Yale, Princeton and Harvard Play.

New York, Oct. 12.—The Pittsburgh-West Virginia scrap and inter-sectional contests between southern eleven and Yale, Princeton and Harvard feature tomorrow's football card in the east.

At New Haven the Yale warriors are determined to go marching through Georgia for a flock of touchdowns in revenge for the defeat inflicted by the Georgians last year.

Due to minor ailments of first string players, Yale has had no scrimmage this week. Ellis is at quarter in place of the injured Johnny Hoben.

Injuries have lessened Virginia's chances against Princeton.

North Carolina, the third southern eleven that will take on the Harvard team. Another inter-sectional game is the Boston College-Duke contest, in Boston.

The Pittsburgh-West Virginia game has lost much of its importance because of the weakness of the mountaineers this year. The Panthers anticipate an easy victory.

The annual scrap between New York University and Fordham promises to be the hardest-fought game of the day.

The Cornell-Hampden-Sidney game at Ithaca, N. Y., the Colgate-V. P. I. contest at Hamilton, N. Y., and the clash between Brown and University of Dayton at Providence, R. I., are in the inter-sectional class. Army will get one of its rare "breathers" with Providence college.

Other eastern games are Dartmouth vs. Allegheny, Penn vs. Swarthmore, Syracuse vs. Johns Hopkins, Penn State vs. Bucknell, Columbia vs. Wesleyan, Lafayette vs. George Washington, Rutgers vs. Holy Cross and Washington and Jefferson vs. Duquesne.

An Ohio farmer was shot by a holdup man the other day. He is said to have told the robber that the only thing he had to give was his farm.

THE CUBS IN 1929?

There isn't a doubt in the minds of the Chicago baseball writers that a part of the world series will be played in their city next year. And they do not think it necessary to explain that the Cubs will be the entry.

Despite the denials that greeted the first report that Rogers Hornsby and Glenn Wright would be sold to the Cubs during the coming winter, the Chicago men insist that the purchases are as good as made.

Mr. Wrigley, the multi-millionaire owner of the Cubs, has been convinced, it is said, that all he needs to win the championship is a good second baseman and he is going to get him regardless of the cost.

Show the Dough

Boston men were not shocked when the first rumor was spread that Hornsby would be elsewhere in 1929. They seemed to be expecting it and Hornsby also seemed prepared for a change.

He was expecting the series from a spot in the press box and during one of the early games he was asked about the report that he was going to Chicago.

"I'm going some place, I guess, and as long as I get the dough it doesn't make any difference to me whether I play in Philadelphia or Brooklyn," he said.

Mr. Wrigley, of course, not only is fixed financially so that he could give the Boston owners some sweet money for Hornsby, but he could pay Hornsby more than he is getting now if he so desired and isn't inclined to quibble over a few dollars.

Fuchs is No Sucker

Hornsby's salary has been a terrific load on the Boston owners, Judge Emil Fuchs, the principal owner of the team, is a man of con-

KAPLAN DEFEATED BY BELGIAN PUG

De Vos Has New Yorker in Bad Way at End of the Tenth Round

New York, Oct. 12.—O. Phil Kaplan encountered Rene De Vos in a 10-round fistie duel in Madison Square garden last night. In the second round the Belgian crashed a terrific right hook and a left to Phil's chin, flooring him. At the end of the fight both of Kaplan's eyes were nearly closed; his nose and left ear were bleeding and his face was puffed up.

Kaplan made a brave showing and was by no means disgraced. He was whipped by probably the best middle-weight in the world at this time.

O'Brien Wins Decision Over New York Battler

Has Chances to Score Kayo But Fails to Take Advantage; Card Credit to Hurley.

BY TOM STOWE

Although opportunity stared him in the face on at least three occasions, Frankie O'Brien, Hartford's pugilistic football warrior, was unable to finish Frank Konchina of New York, in their ten-round star bout which marked the opening of Ed Hurley's indoor popular priced boxing shows at Foot Guard Hall in Hartford last night. Each time O'Brien failed to follow up his advantage when doing so probably would have meant a kayo victory for him. However, he deserved the decision given him by Referee Bill Conway.

The show was one of the best that has been seen in Hartford in a long time. Everyone of the six bouts provided action and plenty of entertainment. This is a compliment to Promoter Hurley who worked hard to make his opening card a success. It was announced that Bat Battalino, Hartford's sensational featherweight kayo king, will meet John Moore of Boston, who recently beat Chick Suggs, in the next Foot Guard Hall show which will take place two weeks from last night—October 25.

O'Brien opened up with a vicious body attack but changed his tactics when he found that Konchina's mid-section was ripe of the toughest variety. He staggered Konchina with a hard left to the jaw in the third but failed to follow up the advantage. Meanwhile the New Yorker was working hard and scoring often to O'Brien's head. This was further attested when he inflicted a nose-bleed on O'Brien in the fourth but O'Brien's eyes which bled profusely at times.

It was a good fight for six rounds with little to choose between the gladiators, but Konchina began to weaken noticeably in the seventh and the Hartford claimant of the middleweight championship of New England took the lead. The former Crimson football player had the New York lad missing repeatedly by ducking. Nevertheless Konchina found opportunity to land some crashing right hand blows to the jaw that did O'Brien no good at all. We gave O'Brien five rounds, Konchina two and called three even. O'Brien weighed 156 1-2 and his opponent, 157 1-2.

The card opened with Jimmy Roberts, 160, of Springfield knocking out Jack Slattery, 157, of New Haven in the first round of what resembled a clash between two longshoremen. Both men used their faces for defense, consequently the abrupt termination. Mickey Travers, 138 1-2, of New Haven, won a six round decision over the aggressive and game Al Matera, 136 1-2, of Bristol. The veteran Travers' body attack won the decision for him although he hit low often enough to disqualify two or three fighters.

Frank Marchese, 125, of New York, who would have met Browie Tucker but for the latter's sprained ankle, won on a knockout from Chris Leno, 124, of Springfield, in the third round. He was much smarter and hit cleaner and harder. Vic Morley, 146, of Hartford, sprung quite a surprise when he led instead of resorting to counter fighting in his scrap with Bill Johnson, 151, of South Deerfield, Mass. Morley was rewarded with a clean kayo victory in the third round. It was the most impressive fight we've seen Morley put up in a long time.

Del Poulter, 120 1-2, of New Britain, learned a lesson in losing to Hop Wah, 119 1-2, of New York, and that is that a man can't always depend on one punch to win. Poulter hit the Chinese much harder and had him groggy several times, but in each instance, for some unexplained reason, he failed to follow up the advantage. Meanwhile, Hop Wah kept boring in and piling up point after point through much less effective punches. There is little doubt but what the New Britain boy is a better scrapper, but he beat himself last night.

AMERICA BEING 'AIR MARKED' AS AID TO FLYERS

New York.—America is being "air marked," says a flyer.

The air traveler needs guide posts just as much, if not more so, as does the motorist.

"We're just beginning to mark the country for the aviator. It should have been done long ago. And within the next two years I predict that the country will be completely marked for pilots with the aerovane."

Many Lost. "It is almost a daily occurrence for flyers to get lost over densely populated sections of the country because there are no signs with which to identify the places they fly over."

The aerovane, a brightly painted apparatus that is easily discernible from a great height, is anchored at the tip of the 30-foot marker is a wind-sock giving wind direction.

The marker is visible and readable at a minimum height of 3,000 feet.

Markers Soon Ready. J. J. White, president of the Aerovane Company, and a well-known New York capitalist, believes that thousands of these airway markers will be in operation in the not distant future.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS. Canker Sores. Question: D. F. writes: "I am frequently troubled with canker sores. Can you give me any information as to the best method of treating them?"

Digestive Troubles of Children. Question: G. D. W. writes: "I have been reading your articles on health with interest, and wish your advice in regard to my grandchildren, ages three and one-half and five years."

HEARD THIS ONE? "Heard the sneezing song?" "No, what is it?" "My heart stood still."

SPECIAL PLEA TO BUSINESS, HOOVER PLAN

only: Smith would fix the rates to the customers in the contract. "The indications are that Smith would have signed the Muscle Shoals bill last June while Hoover would have vetoed it as did Coolidge."

It was stated on behalf of Hoover that he would not discuss the water power issue any further, believing he had stated his position clearly in his announcement last Monday.

At present, the strategists are considering invitations to have Hoover speak in Indianapolis, Kansas City, or St. Louis, Chicago, Minneapolis, or St. Paul, Denver, Butte, Montana, Ogden, Utah, and either Los Angeles or San Francisco.

At first, it was reported Hoover would close the campaign with a speech in San Francisco on the Monday night before the election.

MAKE MISSOURI NAVIGABLE FOR FREIGHT BARGES

Kansas City, Mo.—Making the Missouri River navigable between Kansas City and St. Louis will become a reality in 1929, Maj. Gordon R. Young, who is in charge of the work, predicts optimistically.

Since Major Young came to Kansas City to take charge of the navigation work on the river, 109 miles of the river have been brought under control and made ready for barges, records at his office show.

The mileage is not all in one stretch but is scattered between Kansas City and St. Louis. According to Major Young it included the worst places in the river.

Completed in 1929. He and his staff estimate that two-thirds of the river is ready for navigation and that the remainder will be completed next year.

A huge map hangs in the private office of Major Young, showing every curve and turn in the river from Kansas City to St. Louis.

The visitor generally finds Major Young seated in his swivel chair staring at the map. It is his battlefield and in it he has pins with red, blue, white and yellow heads stuck at various points, showing the location of the few remaining bad points in the river.

Thirty pins are in the 500 mile stretch today. Of these five represent projects under way by the government, four with hired labor; fourteen represent projects under way by outside contractors.

Many At Work. About 3,000 men are working on the river projects, Major Young said. The work this summer was slowed up by unfavorable weather conditions until the middle of August, but now with the ideal fall weather setting in, crews are getting ahead of schedule.

Recently $300,000 was apportioned to Major Young's division of the navigation work on the Missouri River to keep up with the cost in current by getting ahead of schedule.

The total to be expended to March 31, 1929, will be $2,450,000. Major Young has been called away from his office here several times during the last year on account of his knowledge of flood relief work on the Mississippi river.

New $10,000 bills will bear the picture of Salmon P. Chase. That one way to attain obscurity.

SOLID SOUTH STILL SOLID, SMITH SAYS

Byrnes, one of the Democratic authorities in Congress on tariff and fiscal legislation, and Norman Davis, former federal office holder and one of the men Woodrow Wilson took with him to Paris in 1918.

They have not minimized the dangers of the present situation to Gov. Smith, but neither have they subscribed to the panicky sort of reports that have been sifting into Democratic headquarters in New York.

Properly handled, they say, Tennessee is as safely Democratic as ever.

All the various factions of Tennessee's democracy seemed united today in bringing the Smith candidacy into Tennessee full force.

Boarding the Smith train to accompany it through the state this morning were Senator Kenneth D. McKellar, a candidate for re-election, and Finis J. Garrett, the Democratic floor leader of the House, who opposed McKellar for renomination in the August primary.

Gov. Smith will spend all of today in Tennessee. His special train crossed the Tennessee border and passed through Knoxville early this morning, enroute to Chattanooga, where a stop of an hour is scheduled just before noon.

Gov. Smith's tour of North Carolina, one of the states upon which the Republicans are figuring upon carrying out of the Solid South this year was one continuous ovation.

Rarely has any candidate for any office been greeted by the tremendous crowds that turned out to see the Democratic nominee from North Carolina to Charlotte.

Iron-bound instructions of the Smith management, whisked the governor to the Auditorium where several thousand persons had gathered in anticipation of a speech.

Sponsored by such distinguished North Carolinians as Gov. A. W. McLean, and Josephus Daniels, secretary of the navy in the Wilson administration, the governor could not disappoint his Raleigh audience, and he made a brief speech.

The gist of it was that there was no sweeter music to his ears than the mingled strains of "Dixie" and "The Sidewalks of New York."

"I haven't found," he said, "that the people of Omaha were not much different from the people of the Bronx, nor the people of Denver essential, different from those who call Brooklyn home. After all, we are all one big family and we only job we live is to find what is best for the greatest number."

Instead of leaving the hour that was on the schedule, he remained nearly two hours and as a consequence, the balance of his trip through the state was sadly disrupted. The stops at Durham, Greensboro, Salisbury, and Charlotte last night were all curtailed as a result, and all that Burlington saw of the governor was a sight of the brown derby, despite the fact that Mayor Earl J. Hov had turned out the town for him.

Thousands of people had congregated about the station but the special only stayed down there and Gov. Smith felt to hurry there and that he issued a formal statement expressing his regret at the incident.

The statement was addressed particularly to the "Young Peoples Democratic Clubs of North Carolina, who had turned out en masse at Burlington. It said: "I have just learned from Democratic leaders in North Carolina and from Tyre C. Taylor, state organizer of Young Peoples Democratic Clubs of the great interest that the young people of this state are taking in public affairs. I want, therefore, to take this occasion to express to the one hundred and fifty thousand young men and women of North Carolina my grateful appreciation for the enthusiastic and loyal support. Nothing has given me greater satisfaction and inspiration than the knowledge that this large number have organized into Democratic clubs supporting the ticket of our party from constable to president. I will never forget their loyalty, and am confident of their ability to cooperate in the carrying of North Carolina to a great Democratic victory on November 6th."

Goes North. Governor Smith's last stop in North Carolina was at Charlotte late last night. From there, his train bore north and westward through the Appalachian mountains into Tennessee.

Charlotte turned out an enormous crowd for Smith. There innumerable small boys armed with red fire torches, banners borne aloft by volunteers in brown berbies, and other appurtenances of bye-gone campaigns.

Paris, Oct. 12.—The French submarine Ondine which disappeared while on an endurance voyage from Cherbourg to the North African coast, was sunk off the Portuguese coast by a Greek steamship, according to a dispatch received here this afternoon. The fate of the four officers and forty men in the submarine's crew is unknown.

Today at 4 o'clock the first beginners dancing class was to be held followed at five o'clock by the advanced class. Over 135 pupils have signed up for both classes, but as usual the larger percentage of pupils have signed their intention of joining the beginners' class.

Next week will mark the end of the first marking period. Tests will be given next Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday. There will be no mid-year exams but a final exam will be given at the close of the last marking period.

The following officers have been elected in the Freshman class: President, James O'Leary; vice-president, Edwin Elliott; secretary, Marjorie Muldoon; treasurer, Ernest Nell. Principal Proctor of the Franklin building introduced Freshman Class President O'Leary to the assembly yesterday.

The speaker at the assembly yesterday was Miss Juanita Jones of Lexington, Kentucky, who spoke on "Temperance." While serving in an official capacity on the Kentucky Women's Christian Temperance Union, Miss Jones had many experiences with youths whose younger years had been spoiled because of drinking. She declared that it depends on the youth of today whether America will be able to retain for herself the supremacy that she has won in the past. In order for the youth of today to be able to cope with the fast pace set by the countless improvements over the slow going methods of past times it is necessary that he be all the time alert and quick thinking, stated Miss Jones. She said that experiments have proved that alcoholic liquor ruin a person both physically and mentally. Most of the statements telling of the evils wrought by prohibition are branded as baseless propaganda. "If prohibition had done nothing else," she stated, "it has made the streets safe for women and children."

The first awards of the year in the commercial department were announced yesterday. A sterling silver royal pin was awarded to Julia Selwitz for 43 net words typed per minute and a similar award to Francis Lewis for 41 net words.

Mr. Duktig is sick in bed and friends are taking this way to make things a little easier for Mrs. Duktig who has to carry the water a considerable distance at present.

GAS BUGGIES—Getting Complicated

WELL, ALEC, I MIGHT AS WELL BREAK THE NEWS. AMY WALKED OUT AND LEFT ME FLAT THE OTHER DAY. I FIGURED SHE'D RETURN WHEN SHE WAS COOLED OFF, BUT I HAVEN'T HEARD A WORD SO FAR.

President Roosevelt was elected in 1904 over Alton B. Parker. Great progress was made in the government of our colonial dependencies and a war against the waste of our natural resources, such as forests, was declared.

FLAPPER FANNY SAYS:

It isn't the original cost of a pet dog, it's the pup-keep.

SENSE and NONSENSE

THE JOB OF A MAN. It isn't the work we intend to do Nor the work we've just begun That puts us right on the ledger sheet...

Little Willie was late for Sunday school, and the teacher inquired the cause. "I was going fishing, but at the last minute father wouldn't let me," he told her.

It is not true that all the world loves a lover. Only his sweetheart does that.

Many girls are getting men's wages now-a-days—but then, they always have. Carl: "Were you ever vaccinated?"

A Manchester woman thinks the couple in Arkansas who asked for a hunting license to get married, intended to make a companionate marriage.

"Whoopie!" shouts Cleveland. "I don't mind looking at a girl's leg if she has a pretty knee, because a lot hinges on that!"

Girls should guard against being kittenish, for fear they may grow up to be catty.

Well, what if we don't reforest? This generation has forgotten how to whistle, anyway.

Queries Answered. A manufacturer tells me that the girls are not wearing bloomers as much as they did a few months ago. Do you think he is correct?

The manufacturer should know. The figures show.

"So I have to go to school on Columbus Day, do I?" "Yes, dear—it isn't a legal holiday."

"All right! All right! But if Columbus had known this was all the thanks he'd get for discovering the old country, I'll bet he'd have stayed home in the first place."

The artist who puts himself into his work oftentimes produces a poor picture.

Forgive and you shall be forgiven. There's no other way.

LETTER GOLF

ANVIL YOU PAR THIS?

"The smith a mighty man is he" —and mighty tough it is to make the trip from BLACK to SMITH in eight. Perhaps, however, you can do even better: than that. One solution is on another page:

Grid for letter golf puzzle with letters B, L, A, C, K and S, M, I, T, H.

THE RULES

- 1—The idea of letter golf is to change one word to another and do it in par, a given number of strokes. Thus to change COW to HEN, in three strokes, COW, HOW, HEW, HEN.

North: "Are you in favor of women taking part in public affairs?" South: "It's all right if you really want the affairs public."

THE TINYMITES

(READ THE STORY, THEN COLOR THE PICTURE)

While all the birds and Tinies slept, an eagle stayed awake and kept close watch to see that nothing happened to them in this night. The eagle thought, "Somebody might come up and take the plane from sight. I'm going to make real sure that in the morning it's all right."

What's in store. We have no engine in our plane. How are we going to fly. You said you had a plan in mind, and we will think you very kind if you will only make it clear how we can sail on high.
