

PARALYZED, HE IS SENTENCED TO THE CHAIR

Paul Jaworski, Who Killed Many, Is Denied New Trial—Is Carried Into the Court Room.

Pittsburgh, Pa., Oct. 22.—Paul Jaworski, Pennsylvania's arch bandit and killer, must die in the electric chair for the murder of Isalah Gump, payroll guard.

Jaworski today was denied a new trial by Visiting Judge J. Frank Graff, in Criminal Court and sentenced to death.

Jaworski was carried into the courtroom on a stretcher, paralyzed by bullets fired by Cleveland police after the leader of the notorious "Flathead" gang killed a policeman there recently.

He took the sentence without flinching, and refused to comment. Detectives, heavily armed, lined the courtroom and the "Bridge of Sighs" between the jail and courtroom.

In answer to Judge Graff's question, he replied: "I have nothing to say." His face flushed, and his hand, which held a corn cob pipe, trembled, slightly.

Wants It Over

Pennsylvania's most feared bandit, who himself admits he does not know how many men have fallen victim to his gun, seemed anxious to get the ordeal over and be taken to Bellefonte and the death chair.

His career in crime dates back many years and numbers among it the Mollemau robbery, in which Gump was killed, and the bombing of an armored payroll car of the Pittsburgh Terminal Coal Corp., in which $104,000 was taken by his gang.

SMITH PREPARING FOR EASTERN TOUR

Starts Wednesday for Boston—to Speak in Connecticut Also.

Albany, N. Y., Oct. 22.—Back home for a short breathing spell, Gov. Smith rested today for what he has described as "the battle of the eastern seaboard," the opening gun in which will be fired in Boston on Wednesday.

Gov. Smith will leave Albany tomorrow night, not to return to it again until he knows whether he is to be the next president of the United States, or just another defeated candidate.

From Boston he will go to New York on Thursday and from that familiar base engage in a fast-flying tour of the great eastern centers that are so vital to his success. The next two weeks will see him in Massachusetts, New York, Rhode Island, Connecticut, New Jersey, Pennsylvania and Maryland, seven states in which even the Republicans admit his candidacy has strong appeal this year.

SEeks OPINION ON VOTERS LAW

Dr. E. G. Dolan Asks State Committee to Consider His Protest.

Dr. Edward G. Dolan, local Democratic leader, today said that he had asked the Democratic State Central committee to take action with regard to the making of voters outside the Municipal building here.

On Saturday 14 persons in Manchester were made voters in the hospital and in their homes. All were ill and unable to go to the Municipal building. Dr. Dolan believes that it is illegal to do this and has asked the Democratic State committee to get an opinion from Attorney General Benjamin Alling, Town Counsel Rules.

Town Counsel William S. Hyde has ruled that the procedure is legal since the voters were made during the hours advertised. The law also states that the registration board can adjourn from time to time and from place to place.

On Saturday Democratic Registrar Louis Breen and Selectman Wells A. Strickland visited fourteen persons whose names were on the "to-be-made" list and legally made these persons voters. The first Rhode Islander thus made was Mrs. R. L. Carnody, wife of the president of the Smith-Robinson club. This procedure has been followed in Manchester and in many of the towns and cities in the state for many years.

MINER IS MURDERED WHEN WORKERS CLASH

Pickets and Workers in Fight Near Scranton, Pa.—Two Held as Suspects.

Scranton, Pa., Oct. 22.—One man was shot and killed in what police believed was a clash between miners working in the Diamond mine of the Glen Alden Coal Company in West Scranton and pickets posted along the road.

The dead man was believed to be Steve Petchinski, 30, of Scranton. Police were attempting to disperse a crowd of about 60 miners when the shooting occurred about a block away. The man was found in the street and died enroute to the hospital.

Two men were taken into custody, but no guns were found in their possession. Police said they believed Petchinski was on picket duty and was shot when he accosted a miner who was going to work.

KILLS HIS CHUM, AND THEN SELF

Love and Tragedy Mixed in Odd Mystery—Woman in Case Denies Reports.

Woonsocket, R. I., Oct. 22.—Death, love and tragedy which hovered over Francis H. Robbins, 41, Smith, 37, two close friends and who served together as constables, were joined by insane jealousy and today both men were dead.

Robbins was a brother of the late Fred Robbins, grand master of Rhode Island Odd Fellows, who was killed when his automobile was struck September 5th last by the automobile of Countess Miguel de Braganza, of the Newport summer colony, and driven by her chauffeur.

Since the death of his wife, police said, Francis Robbins had angered his friend Smith by his attentions to Mrs. Robbins' sister who was Smith's wife and from whom Smith had separated. Today Mrs. Smith at her Blackstone, Mass., home declared she had never thought of Robbins in any way save that of a brother-in-law and that the idea of loving him never entered her head.

The body of Robbins was found near his North Smithfield home. He had been clubbed to death. Searching for Smith, police learned that his body had been found near his automobile in an orchard two miles from Robbins' home. Smith had placed a repeating rifle between his knees, leaned his forehead against the muzzle and, pressing the trigger, had snuffed out his own life.

A COUPLE OF ENGINEERS

Two famed engineers are these, one the pilot of a great dirigible, the other a potential captain of the U. S. ship of state. When Dr. Hugo Eckener, builder of the Graf Zeppelin, visited Washington, he called on Herbert Hoover at Republican campaign headquarters. They're shown together in the upper photo and, below, you see Dr. Eckener placing a wreath on the tomb of the Unknown Soldier in Arlington National Cemetery.

1,700 INSPECT MODEL HOME HERE SUNDAY

Crowds File Through the Elizabeth Park House Yesterday; Congressman Fenn Is Speaker Here.

The Herald Elizabeth Park model home located on Henry street just east of North Elm, attracted 1,700 people yesterday, the day of its opening. Between 2:30 p. m. and 5 p. m., the hours of inspection yesterday, the sidewalk leading into the pretty house was crowded with people who wanted to see the interior furnishings and exhibits.

The crowd was far greater than the promoters of the idea had hoped for. A perfect fall day, with the sun just warm enough to make walking pleasurable, it seemed that nearly all Manchester turned out for the event.

Opening Program

At 2:30 p. m. Thomas Ferguson, publisher of the Manchester Evening Herald, speaking from the doorsteps of the home, welcomed the crowd that had gathered and commended the contractors who had taken part in the construction of the building. He then introduced Congressman E. Hart Fenn, of Wethersfield, as the first speaker on the program. Congressman Fenn is Connecticut's leading representative in Congress being the only Congressman from this state who holds a committee chairmanship. Mr. Ferguson stressed the fact that Mr. Fenn had always been the friend of the small home owner in that he had always striven to keep taxation down.

Mr. Fenn expressed pleasure at being in Manchester and also congratulated Senator Robert J. Smith and The Herald on the enterprise shown in developing a model home. The congressman quoted some statistics about the growth in the number of individual home owners in this country, an indication of widespread prosperity. He had traveled and visited throughout the country, he said, but could find no town or city more pleasing than Manchester, and no model homes any better than this one, from the average pocketbook point of view.

Mr. Rogers then introduced Police Commissioner Willard B. Rogers. Mr. Rogers stressed the fact that Manchester, as a town for home-owners, was the finest community in the country. He insisted that this town ran second to none in the conveniences it afforded and the low tax rate with which it has been able to progress. Mr. Rogers said that he had business interests in several towns and cities and could just as well make his home in any one of them, but he believed Manchester was by far the most advantageous.

Mr. Rogers announced the price of this model home as $8,750. The

Horrors! Here Is Machine That Spots Lazy Workers

London, Oct. 22.—A machine for recording the amount of work done by a workman in the absence of the "boss" is one of the most interesting exhibits at the international exhibition of inventions at Westminster.

Some would call this machine the most sinister of the exhibits. It can be connected between the office of the employer and any machine without the man in charge knowing anything about it.

When the employer arrives he can see at a glance whether the machine has been running in its proper time or whether the workman has had unoccupied moments; also, it shows how many articles have been turned out.

"I have a timber factory," said James Fildes, of Aberdeen, the inventor. "Among the other things I make barrels. In making a barrel 37 different machines are used. If they are all going, at full pressure they should make 148 barrels in an hour and a half. When I get into my office I can tell by a glance at the recording instrument how many have been made, although the office is 200 yards from the machines."

GERMAN IS FINED FOR PLAYING ANTHEM

Wiesbaden, Oct. 22.—At a court martial held here by the British Army of Occupation authorities a local restaurant proprietor was sentenced to pay a fine of 120 gold marks or spend 14 days in jail because he permitted the German national anthem to be played in his restaurant last Monday when news came that Graf Zeppelin had arrived at Lakehurst.

FIGURES TO PROVE PROSPERITY'S HERE

Nation's Manufacturers Report 93 P. C. of Members Have Increased Business.

New York, Oct. 22.—The general prosperity of the nation received a convincing substantiation here today at the convention of the National Association of Manufacturers through a report on a survey which showed 93 per cent. of 4,000 manufacturers with an increase in business over last year. Nearly twenty per cent of those answering the questionnaire declared that trade conditions are excellent and forecast continued expansion.

Better expectations for winter reported upon makes a better showing for the twelve months than the replies did a year ago. What was considered a significant fact was that the building supply concerns do not show that the building trades have decreased activities. The outlook for winter building throughout the country is regarded as favorably only less than 15 per cent. than those predicting the same last year.

Textile Industry.

A slight improvement in the textile industry, one which has been regarded as a weak spot in the industrial army, is now shown by the manufacturers' survey. Eighty-eight per cent of the textile men reported favorable conditions, compared with 83 per cent last year.

Better expectations for winter trade are harbored by 94 per cent of the nation's industrialists.

The supply of all classes of labor is regarded as normal, although 13 per cent of the employers report a shortage of workers and two per cent need unskilled labor. In 1927 only 8 per cent were asking for unskilled labor.

Wage increases were made by 77.4 per cent of the industries, 4.5 per cent being large increases and 72.9 per cent small. A state of virtually complete industrial peace exists, more than 99 per cent of the associations members being free from strikes or lockouts. Increased production over 1927 is reported by 65 per cent of the concerns, against 60 per cent for last year.

CALLS FOR PROBE OF BABIES DEATHS

Medical Examiner Wants Facts of How Guggenheim Heirs Fell From Roof.

New York, Oct. 22.—An inquiry into the tragic deaths of Terrence and Benjamin Waldman, baby heirs to the Guggenheim millions, was under way today on the initiative of Dr. Charles Norris, chief medical examiner, who announced that he had decided that it "would be best for all concerned to determine officially the facts in the case."

The babies, Terrence, four and one-half years old, and Benjamin, 14 months, plunged thirteen stories from the roof of the Hotel Surrey to the roof of a three-story adjoining building, and were killed. Since then the mother, Mrs. Milton S. Waldman, who was on the roof with the babies at the time, has been in a sanitarium suffering from shock.

Official Inquiry

Dr. Norris decided on an official inquiry after a two-hour inspection

STOP OIL SUPPLY

Washington, Oct. 22.—At seven o'clock this morning the Sinclair Crude Oil Purchasing Company's government royalty oil supply in the Salt Creek field was cut off, under orders of the Interior Department.

The Sinclair contract negotiated by ex-Secretary of Interior Albert B. Fall and renewed by his successor, Hubert Work, now chairman of the Republican national committee, was held invalid by Attorney General Sargent.

HOOPER TAKES FIGHT TO SMITH STRONGHOLD

First "Gland Robbery" Reported In Germany

Essen, Germany, Oct. 22.—The first case of supposed "gland robbery" in Germany is being investigated by the police today. They are seeking to learn if "gland hunters" were responsible for the murder and mutilation of Hellmuth Daub, a student.

Daub's student friend, Karl Hussmann, is on trial charged with the murder, but the evidence so far presented indicates that Hussmann will be acquitted.

It was brought out in the testimony that the mutilation of Daub's body had been performed by an expert hand. His throat had been cut and then certain glands had been removed from the body as though by an expert surgeon.

Hussmann is not an expert surgeon, but only a student. He was born in Guatemala, but was reared in Germany.

"Only Danger Lies in Over-confidence" Candidate Declares on His Arrival in New York City.

New York, Oct. 22.—A Republican victory in November is assured beyond any doubt, Herbert Hoover declared today in a conference with newspapermen which featured the opening of his personal effort to win New York state.

The Republican nominee declared over-confidence was the only danger to the chances of Republican success. He said that reports reaching him from all sections of the country indicated Republican workers were active, zealous and confident of victory.

"I think there never has been greater unity in the Republican party in the last quarter century than there is now," said Hoover. "We have an able organization and there is more zeal throughout the country for the Republican cause than we have had in a number of years."

No Doubt Over Outcome

"There is not the slightest doubt about the outcome of the election if Republicans keep up their good work until November 6. The only danger lies in over-confidence."

Asked for the causes of Republican enthusiasm Hoover cited stability, prosperity and confidence in the Republican party as the issues enlisting support for his party.

The nominee shied away from two questions, one touching on the oil scandal and the other on the proposal for a national department of education.

"Do you feel like Dr. Work that the country is tired of hearing about oil?" a newspaperman asked. "I do not care to answer that question," Hoover replied.

He then added that as he intended to discuss campaign issues in his speech tonight he did not care to enter such discussion with newspapermen.

"How do you like the campaign?" he was asked. "Fine," Hoover retorted. "I like any sort of intense activity. It keeps one mentally stimulated."

"How do you feel after this grind?"

"I never felt in a better physical condition in my life," said Hoover, ending the interview.

ANGLO-FRENCH PACT TO BE MADE PUBLIC

Official "White Paper" to Clear Up Misunderstanding About Agreement.

London, Oct. 22.—An official "white paper," containing a comprehensive outline of the disarmament negotiations leading to the signing of the Franco-British naval accord, will be issued by the foreign office at 5:30 p. m., tonight, for publication in Tuesday morning's papers. It was authoritatively learned today.

The white paper, it was said, will contain extracts from the minutes of the meeting of the preparatory disarmament commission, in Geneva, and will reveal the conditions of the impasse which that commission reached on both naval and military disarmament, owing to the divergence of views held by the British and French governments.

The paper also will reveal, it was said, that the preparatory disarmament commission was fully cognizant with the discussions going on between London and Paris, leading to the conclusion of the accord.

The paper will make clear from internal evidence and correspondence that there is no foundation for the allegation that England and France aimed at a secret agreement.

Furthermore, the paper will point out that Great Britain and France receded from their former positions only because they desired to find a basis upon which the work of the disarmament commission could be resumed. They hope that the new basis would prove strong enough to satisfy the other nations interested in the progress of disarmament and that it would lead to definite results.

New York, Oct. 22.—Estelle Taylor, screen star, who in private is Mrs. Jack Dempsey, said today that reports that she is seriously ill, are exaggerated—that, on the contrary, she has virtually recovered from "over-tiredness" due to hard work in the play in which she and her husband were co-stars.

EVEN THE HONEY BEES READ THE LOCAL PAPER

The Manchester Evening Herald is Read. There has been many proofs of this, but here is a further proof. A few days ago The Herald printed a notice in the news columns that owners of bees must register.

The next day the town clerk left his window open and soon found it necessary to close it and give up his time to killing bees. Other bees thinking that they came under the jurisdiction of the board of health swarmed into the office and Mrs. Johnson found that the fly swatter was a handy instrument.

"DODGER" DOWD GETS FINE APPOINTMENT

To Instruct A. T. & T. Construction Gangs in First Aid Methods on the Job.

James "Dodger" Dowd left this morning for Manchester, Vt., where he will instruct a class of workmen in the American Telephone and Telephone Company in first aid work. Mr. Dowd, who is a graduate of the Arnold School of New Haven has been in New York where he has been undergoing examinations in this line of work and John J. Dwyer, head of first class aid of the company has passed his work as satisfactory and today Mr. Dowd starts on his new duties. He carried with him the wishes of a host of friends.

Compelled to leave school when a youth he looked for an education and knowing that travel broadened a person he enlisted in the United States Navy. He went around the world with the fleet and at the same time took up and learned the trade of a machinist. On his return to Manchester he entered the employ of Cheney Brothers in their machine shop. He continued to study nights, saved his money and enrolled in the Arnold School. He was a natural athlete, a good ball player, a good tumbler, and although light was heavy and as a quarter-back was a good football player.

On his graduation from school last June he was placed in charge of the West Side playground, where he had a successful season and won the respect of all the boys and girls and their parents for his work among the youngsters. There was no opening for him in any of the shops in town when the summer season closed so he went to the cable gang of the American Telephone and Telephone Company and was employed in Amsterdam until called to the New York office last week. His work will take him from camp to camp and from job to job where there are different men in the employ of the company in construction work and he will teach first aid. He will be in Manchester, Vt., for ten days when he will be assigned and his work will take him to many different parts of the country where the different gangs are at work.

30 YEARS IN SCHOOLS AS JANITOR, RESIGNS

Joseph Ferguson to Be Caretaker at New Home of The Herald, on Bissell Street.

"Joe" Ferguson, for 30 years a janitor in the schools of the Ninth District has resigned that position and today becomes caretaker of the new home of the Manchester Evening Herald. For 18 years he has been a janitor in the high school building and the last 12 years he has spent at the Washington school.

West Side residents adopt or reject people readily, but in the twelve years that "Joe" has been janitor of the West Side school he has been well liked and a friend to all. Many stories have been brought home by school children about the little acts of kindness that "Joe" would do for them, such as fixing a roller on a skate, seeing that their kite strings were properly tied, the pumpkin at Hales' was cut and hundreds of other little things that he just considered a part of the fun of life. These made Joe Ferguson a household name among the residents of the West Side. Joe and Miss Leonora Hanna, the principal of the school, were able to do many things for the children of the West Side, some of them now grown to manhood.

When Joe left Friday he was remembered by the teachers, who always found him a willing worker and ready to step outside of his regular work to do a little favor. They presented him with a purse, not a large one, but given from the heart, which, as Joe said himself, "is what counts."

ROCKVILLE VIOLINIST OPENS STUDIO HERE

Arthur A. Stein, a violinist, and music instructor of considerable repute in Rockville, has opened a studio here in connection with the music store of Bradley and Smart in the Farr building at the corner. Mr. Stein is now booking pupils. He is especially equipped to instruct beginners and is also most efficient with advanced pupils and in orchestral work.

Mr. Stein has had 20 years experience in teaching the violin. For a period he was orchestra leader in the Keith-Albee theater in Woonsocket, R. I. He is now leader at the Palace theater in Rockville.

FRIENDS SURPRISE MR. AND MRS. LEARY

Sixty of Them Stage Party for Popular Couple on Wedding Anniversary.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Leary of 64 Florence street were much surprised and please Saturday evening when they returned from a shopping tour to find that about 60 of their relatives, neighbors and friends had taken possession of their home. Guests were present from New Haven, Hartford, Rockville and this town, and the occasion for the celebration was the fifteenth wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Leary.

A merry evening was spent with the aid of games, instrumental music and dancing. Rolf Hillman of Highland Park and William Beattie of Summer street played the violin for general dancing which took place in the basement. Joseph Ferguson, Sr., sang one or two old-time songs, and John McConville prompted for the old-fashioned dances. Thomas McFall, in behalf of the gathering, in a fitting speech, presented to Mr. and Mrs. Leary a complete coffee set with urn, and they warmly thanked their friends for their kindness and fine gift. A buffet lunch was served.

The "big shot" will come tonight. Then, before a great gathering in Madison Square Garden, he will make his last speech of the eastern campaign. He will have Vice President Charles G. Dawes at his side, a host of other Republicans on the platform with him, and Elihu Root, the "Grand Old Man" of the party, to introduce him. Immediately after his speech, he will return to his special train, which will not leave for St. Louis until 2:45 o'clock Tuesday morning. This will land him in the capital at 8:45 a. m.

The nominee's next public appearance probably will be his departure from his home at Stanford University, California, to vote at present, his plans call for leaving Washington on November first, with stops in Wheeling and Charleston, W. Va., possibly in Indianapolis, and then to St. Louis. He will probably take the overland route again, with rear-platform appearances in Iowa, Nebraska, Colorado, and Utah. His itinerary however has not been decided definitely and new plans may be arranged before he departs.

TELLS KIWANIAN OF CHILDREN'S AID

Supt. F. A. Verplanck Explains What Is Being Done for Underprivileged.

F. A. Verplanck, superintendent of schools in the Ninth district was the speaker before the Kiwanis club this noon at the Hotel Sheridan. His subject was "The Underprivileged Child and What is Being Done for Him in Manchester." He highly praised the work of the Kiwanians in giving poor children of the town who could not otherwise have a real vacation, two weeks at the Hebron camp the last few summers. He said it was worth while, as well as the work done for New York children by the club previous to that time.

Among the other agencies accomplishing much for the underprivileged child, he said, was the clinic at the hospital, the Child Welfare club, the nurses in town and the Zion hospital in Springfield. He then told what the schools are doing for children, with particular reference to the Ninth district. He cited the case of underprivileged children as being the boys and girls in families where servants are employed to do the work in and about the house. The boy or girl who does not have to use his or her muscles or exert themselves are not likely to be as physically fit as the one who has certain things to do. Mr. Verplanck mentioned many pitiable cases in our own town where children are not cared for in the home as they ought to be. Parents fail to look after their welfare in many respects and thereby the school authorities have to step in and do something. He said the child mentally or physically handicapped because of lack of nourishment or other reasons stands a poor chance of being educated. If he is physically unfit he cannot study. The speaker went into detail in the short time allotted to him as to what had been done for the children with regard to care of the eyes, teeth and body as a whole; 2,500 children had their eyes examined last year in the schools of the Ninth district below the high school, and 108 are now wearing glasses as a result.

He considered a child underprivileged whose parents because of lack of funds were unable to pay for glasses or other expert attention which they needed. Another common trouble is adenoid growths and tonsils. Children to the number of 1164 were examined on these lines and 525 were operated upon and 139 pupils need to be operated upon immediately; 25 of these pupils were operated upon during the last of the school term and still others during the summer vacation.

In looking up the record of diphtheria, the speaker said he found there were about 30 cases on an average during the year. He did not believe we were doing all that could be done to fight this dread disease. He believed the doctors should receive full cooperation in administering toxin anti-toxin. They have been doing a splendid work in that direction, and while he believes the town is in a better position in regard to diphtheria today than it has ever been before, he hoped to see it as free from it as it is from smallpox.

Mr. Verplanck said another thing they were doing at the schools is to buy toothbrushes and cleaning pastes wholesale and dispensing them at low cost to the children. All this work is showing good results. Another fact he was proud of, was that during the year, 3,180 children had been examined for vaccination and close to 98 per cent were vaccinated in the Ninth district. Another thing he pointed to with pride was that during the 35 years he has been superintendent of the schools here, not once have they been closed on account of contagious diseases. He reminded the Kiwanians that this health work had cost about $4,800 during the year, but the value of it to the underprivileged children in our midst could not be estimated. If these children can be given a fair start they have a greater chance for success.

Walter Gorman won the attendance prize today. It was an order for 10 gallons of gasoline and was donated by Charles Pickett. It was voted to hold "ladies night" on Monday, November 19. Harlow Willis was nominated chairman of the committee to arrange the details.

500 ATTEND MUSICAL AT SOUTH M. E. CHURCH

Choir Shows It Has Lost Nothing as It Resumes Its Musical Treats.

The musical given at the South Methodist Church last night was attended by 500 persons, and was successful in every feature. The choir gave evidence that, notwithstanding its long period of inactivity, it has not lost any of its ability. The director, Archibald Sessions, by last night's results, proved that the royal road to successful musical rendition is through concentration, and assiduous rehearsal.

The opening number was "Hear My Prayer," by Mendelssohn. It was most interestingly presented. Miss Eleanor Willard was the soloist, and her rendition displayed high artistic skill in accentuating the contrasting themes in which this number abounds. It is full of reverential and devotional feeling, which was impressively portrayed. The theme "O for the Wings of a Dove," was delightfully interpreted. Miss Willard's voice and technique were both admirable.

The choral work in this cantata was of a very high type and sustained the reputation achieved by the choir in former musicals. The "Redemption Hymn" by Parker, was a distinct contrast to the preceding cantata, but in part with equal felicity. In this work the chorus has more opportunity, and the audience was enabled to grasp more fully the artistic possibilities of this ensemble. Its work here was of a type to add further honors to those already achieved.

Mrs. Bertine Lashinske had set for her a task of exacting requirement, which she met in a manner that proved her an artist. A noticeable point in her work was degree of confidence that added materially to her success. Very touching was her interpretation of the part, "Sorrow and Mourning Shall Be No More." Rarely has this singer been heard to better advantage. Clarity of tone, and a fine blending of registers were features of her work, and in the extremes of range, there was excellent tone production. To Miss Willard and Mrs. Lashinske must go largely the honors for the success of the rendition.

At the organ, Archibald Sessions added materially to the effect of all the work. His support to the soloists was mastery. In the individual numbers, in particular, the "Andante in C Major" by Beethoven, was an impressive piece of musicianship.

AUTOS SMASH, DRIVERS UNHURT, ON SATURDAY

Automobiles driven by John Spillane of Strickland street, and Archibald Sessions of Highland street came together on Charter Oak street, between Spruce and Main, at 6:40 p. m. Saturday. Both cars were badly damaged, but the occupants were unharmed. Mr. Spillane lost control of his car and drove on the wrong side of the road before he could get out of the way of the Sessions automobile. Sergeant Crockett investigated, but since Mr. Spillane agreed to pay all the damages connected with the accident no arrest was made.

WEST ASKS RULING ON CAT CREEK CASE

Washington, Oct. 22.—The attorney general was requested today by Secretary of Interior West to rule on the validity of the government royalty oil contract with the Lewistown Oil & Refining Co., in the Cat Creek field in Montana.

This contract, which was negotiated under conditions somewhat similar to the Sinclair Crude Oil Purchasing Company's Salt Creek, Wyoming oil contract, which the attorney ruled was not binding upon the government.

The Lewistown contract was negotiated in 1922 by ex-Secretary of Interior Fall and renewed in March, 1923, by Secretary Work, now chairman of the Republican national committee.

KIRKWOOD TRIAL. New York, Oct. 22.—The trial of Mrs. F. Kirkwood, charged with first degree manslaughter in the fatal stabbing of her husband, Dr. Glenn Kirkwood, on August 7, today was set tentatively for Nov. 5, by County Judge Frank F. Adel.

Trials have been delayed because Mrs. Kirkwood's attorney, Dana Wallace, has been engaged in the Queens sewer scandal case.

house lot has a frontage of 67 1/2 feet on Henry street and depth of 200 feet. All modern conveniences are in, such as gas, electricity, water, sewers, and even storm water sewers. The price includes attached fixtures and not the furnishings which are on display at the present time.

Mayor Opens the Door. Judge Ferguson introduced as the last speaker, Mayor John H. Hyde. Mr. Hyde was presented with a large key suitably decorated. The smaller house key was attached and the mayor opened the door, inviting the assemblage to enter and inspect the model home.

The visitors were first directed through the second floor, then through the first floor and then into the cellar and out through the kitchen rear door. Congressman Fenn, Senator Smith, Police Commissioner Rogers, Judge Raymond A. Johnson, Judge Ferguson and members of the Board of Selectmen were on hand to greet the visitors. The crowds were greatly impressed with the home and congratulations to the contractors were in order.

The home will be open this week, afternoons between 2:30 and 5 and evenings between 7 and 9.

OUR COMMUNITY CLUB TO HOLD OPEN HOUSE

Public Invited to Meet the New Director on Wednesday Evening.

Wednesday evening the Manchester Community club will keep "open house" at the clubhouse on North Main street in honor of the new director, Miss Christine Mason. The directors are desirous of not only having the public meet Miss Mason, but wish it to inspect the clubhouse which has been improved and considerably improved during the past few weeks. A quartet from the Beethoven Glee club will sing and there will be other music and an opportunity for playing cards and other games.

The directors also desire to get an expression of what a portion of the community would like this winter in regard to social, card parties and other activities.

They call them "permanent waves," the word "permanent" here meaning "once every two months."

WARD STORE HERE WILL OPEN OCT. 27

Manager F. J. Wilkie Explains Why Mail Order House Needs Stores.

As was announced in these columns several days ago, Montgomery Ward and Company, the big Mail Order firm, is opening a store on Main street near Park. Painters and decorators have been at work in the building for some time and considerable remodeling has been done.

Mr. Wilkie stated that his company is installing a limited number of the stores. "We are trying to discover," said Mr. Wilkie "the most practical method of carrying in stock a large range of the more than 33,000 items in our catalogue. While our business has grown to enormous proportions, we feel that a great many more people will order by mail if they have an opportunity to buy some of our merchandise over-the-counter and thus have an opportunity to judge the quality of our goods.

SCOTTISH DRUM-MAJOR FOR OUR KILTY BAND

SCHOOL THRIFT GAINS BUT ONLY 2 ARE 100 P. C.

Getting on the hundred per cent honor roll in the School Thrift System seems to be a bit more difficult than it was last year in Manchester schools. Today's report for the week ending October 16, shows only two schools with a hundred per cent of their tending pupils making deposits. They are the two standbys—Manchester Green and the South Main street schools.

Rockville

Rockville to Have New Industry. Thomas H. Brookes and Edwin L. French of this city have announced that they will open a new industry in town as they have purchased the Hartford Hat & Cap Company, Inc. and would move the entire equipment to the basement of the Brooks Clothing Co. on East Main street.

Meeting of Cornelia Circle. The Cornelia Circle will hold their next meeting Tuesday afternoon at 3 o'clock at the home of Mrs. Frank M. Brigham, North Park street. The books to be reviewed are "The Prophet," "Black April," by Julia Peterkin; and "Giants of the Earth," by O. E. Rolvaag.

The first session of the Institute of Religion will be held Thursday evening, Oct. 25th, at 7:30 o'clock at the Union Congregational Church. These meetings are sponsored by the Rockville Council of Religious Education and will consist of four courses for inspiration and study as follows:

Polish Political Rally Wednesday. A Polish Republican Rally will be held at St. Joseph's hall Wednesday evening at 8 o'clock. Prominent Polish speakers from Springfield, Hartford and New Britain will address the voters, speaking in the Polish and English language.

Auxiliary Plan Halloween Party. The American Legion Auxiliary will hold a Halloween party Wednesday evening following their meeting. The member have been requested to appear in costume and masked. There will be a program of Halloween games and novel refreshments will be served.

Military Whist Planned. Hope Chapter, O. E. S., will conduct a military whist on Friday evening, Nov. 16th for the benefit of the Masonic Home Fund. The lodge runs a whist every year for the purpose of raising money for the home. It is expected that a large number will attend the whist as it is open to the Masons and their families.

BIG DIRIGIBLE READY FOR ITS WESTERN HOP

To Start Wednesday or Thursday for St. Louis and Other Cities on Route. Naval Air Station, Lakehurst, N. J., Oct. 22.—The fact that repairs on the Graf Zeppelin's left port horizontal wing is completed tomorrow afternoon and the ship's fuel gas and hydrogen supply replenished at the same time, makes it possible for Dr. Eckener to take the airship on its mid-western trip the early Wednesday morning. While final decision as to the start rests with Dr. Eckener, naval officers here express the opinion he will not delay it until Thursday since the ship will be ready for a take-off Wednesday morning and he is known to be anxious to return to Germany either Saturday or Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Frederick R. Hoffmann and their attendants had their wedding breakfast at the Hillside Inn this morning. Captain Fleming confirmed the Graf Zeppelin's itinerary, announced by Hugh Allen, Dr. Eckener's American representative. He said however, that certain changes might have to be made, depending on weather and wind conditions. At daybreak Wednesday the Graf Zeppelin will proceed via Pittsburgh, Columbus, Cincinnati and Indianapolis to St. Louis and to Scott Field, Illinois. There it will be moored to a mast or house in the Army hangar. At dawn Thursday it will resume its flight over Chicago, Detroit, Cleveland, Akron, Buffalo, Niagara Falls, Syracuse, Albany, New York and Lakehurst.

SMITH PREPARING FOR EASTERN TOUR

(Continued from page 1) A confident candidate has ever been so confident of victory two weeks before election as Gov. Smith is at the end of his campaign in the west. He fairly radiated confidence in his observations at the daily press conferences.

Everywhere Gov. Smith was greeted and acclaimed by crowds almost unprecedented in presidential campaigning. From Richmond, Va., his first stop on the tour, to Indianapolis, his last, the crowds were literally enormous. And Chicago gave "Al" such a show as Chicagoans said had not been seen since the delicious Armistice celebration.

Do They Mean Votes? Whether these great outpourings mean votes two weeks from tomorrow is the riddle of the campaign. The Republicans say no and point to the historical precedent of the Bryan campaign when the "Commoner" had relatively as great audiences only to find that people were more interested in seeing him than in voting for him.

On the trip just ended, Gov. Smith tore into Senator Borah of Idaho; Dr. Work, the Republican chairman; President Coolidge; Secretary of the Treasury Mellon; Under-Secretary Mills; Budget Director Lord; and even the Republican candidate himself, Mr. Hoover, all by name. Mr. Hoover has yet to mention Gov. Smith by name in his campaign addresses.

Not only in his public addresses, but in his daily press conferences as well, does Gov. Smith go after his opponents by name in a blunt direct fashion. Gov. Smith's only personal caller after his arrival home was Thomas J. Spillay, national committeeman from Connecticut, who came to urge him to make a speech in the Nutmeg State. Gov. Smith told him the speech schedule beyond Boston and Philadelphia is still in process of adjustment.

Unknown to himself or to any members of his party the governor's special train reached Albany yesterday with a man on the catcher that the Albany police said today was an escaped lunatic. The man gave his name as Lester Skinner, 23. He said he had run away from a state hospital at Westboro, Mass., three weeks ago, and had since that time been wandering. He told the police he "jumped" the Smith train at Syracuse. There was nothing to indicate he planned any harm to Gov. Smith, but the police were holding him for observation today while they investigated him.

IN BANKRUPTCY. New Haven, Conn., Oct. 22.—John Perlestein, a Collinsville clothing merchant, and Harold Karlsen, a Norwalk building contractor, filed voluntary petitions in bankruptcy in United States District Court here today. Perlestein owes $17,370 and his assets valued at $3,927, while Karlsen owes $54,920 and has nominal assets of $49,725.

ABOUT TOWN

Miss Helen Alton, a student at Connecticut College, New London, spent the week-end with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Alton, of East Center street.

Tickets have been placed on sale at various stores in town for the Cloverleaves benefit for Stanley Jamroga, injured football player. The show will be held at the State theater Thursday and Friday of this week. Tickets may also be purchased at the box office.

Miss F. B. Bowring will demonstrate the Lenders, Frary and Clark electric stove at the Herald Elizabeth Park Model Home daily starting today. The home will be open each afternoon this week between 2:30 and 5 and each evening between 7 and 9.

Mr. and Mrs. David Armstrong will be joint chairmen of the Ways and Means committee of the Buckland Parent-Teacher association which will run this evening in the school assembly hall. This is the second whist of the fall season. The usual prizes will be given and refreshments served. Cases or checks will be on hand to provide music for all who care to remain for dancing.

The Ladies Aid society of the South Methodist church will open its fall rummage sale Thursday at noon in the vacant store of the Hotel Sheridan building and continue through the afternoon and evening, and all day Friday, or until the supply of merchandise is exhausted. A collection will be made Thursday morning. Friends who wish to donate articles should notify any of the ladies of the committee and they will be called for.

The Ladies auxiliary of the Ancient Order of Hibernians will meet tonight in St. James's parish hall. The Women of Mooseheart Legion will hold their regular business meeting tomorrow evening at the home of Mrs. Margaret Griffin of Hilliard street.

William Taylor, who was designated by the final meeting of Sixth School District to collect the district's uncollected taxes, about $400 in amount, is now receiving the taxes. There are some properties on which liens will have to be placed in order to protect the district, but in each case it appears to be a case of carelessness rather than inability to pay, as the larger amounts uncollected are owned by people who can well afford to pay them. Mr. Taylor and the collector for the Ninth School District.

Campbell Council K. of C., will install its newly elected officers this evening. District Deputy Arthur O'Connor of Hartford and suite will be the installing Grand Knight Wilbrod Messier, who has the appointment of the financial secretary, lecturer and chaplain, today announced that for the office of chaplain he has named Rev. William P. Reddy, pastor of St. James's Church, and that Attorney William J. Shea will be the lecturer. J. I. Sweeney will again be the financial secretary. The officers will be installed in their new quarters in the State Theater building.

The Epworth League of the North Methodist church will meet at the church at 7 o'clock tonight, for the purpose of casting "Hurry, Hurry, Hurry," a three-act farce to be presented by the society the latter part of November. The following are in charge of the arrangements: Chairman, Beatrice Shaw; Mrs. Marvin Stocking, Walter Hanna, Hilda Magrason and Len Holmes. The casting and direction of the play will be in charge of Louis Smith.

PARIS TRAINS WRECKED. Paris, Oct. 22.—Three passenger trains were reported wrecked today between Lyons and Geneva, due to washouts caused by the torrential rains which swept over the region during the week-end. No casualties were reported from any of the wrecks. Telegraph and telephone lines were down and communication from the affected regions was meagre. Heavy property damage was reported from all sections.

BOLTON'S LIST BEARS 211 VOTERS' NAMES

Forty-Five New Voters Made This Year But Town Has Lost Some Old Voters. Bolton made forty-five voters in the September sessions and in the two sessions held this month. Twelve were made on October 13 and one was made on October 20, Saturday, but the total number of voters on the list will not be increased more than eleven over the list of 1927. The registrars of voters of that town know their residents and they know when a person dies they must come off the list. They also know when a person leaves one of the farms and when the name should come off the list.

In 1927 there were 202 names on the list. Thirty-two were made during the September sessions in order to vote in the town election, but when revised and ready for checking at the town meeting there were 208 on the list. Of the thirteen new voters made in Bolton during the October meetings about ten people have been made in other places and their names will be removed when the registrars meet to revise the list this week. One family has moved away, taking off three voters. Hartford gains in a few cases and Manchester also takes a voter or two. From the figures this morning it was estimated that the total number of names on the list will be 211.

There is a possibility that three others that may be made, two of them on naturalization papers that did not arrive in time, but will be in before election day and one who will have attained her twenty-first birthday between now and election day.

FLIES UNDER BRIDGES

Curtis Field, N. Y., Oct. 22.—"It was easy," said Elenor Smith, 17-year-old aviatrix of Freeport, N. Y., today when praised for her feat in flying under the four East river bridges in a Waco biplane. This feat had never been done by a woman flyer alone in a plane. The Aviatrix reported she had to dodge a couple of ships but that there was plenty of room.

WEEK END CRASHES

Chicago, Oct. 22.—More than six persons are dead here today as a result of week-end grade crossing accidents. An entire family was wiped out in one instance. Three were killed when a fast Chicago and Eastern Illinois freight train struck a small sedan at the grade crossing of an obscure country road here.

TO PROBE DEATH

Washington, Oct. 22.—An investigation was instituted today into the death of Blackburn Esterline, 41, special assistant to the solicitor general. He was killed when he fell down the elevator shaft from the ninth floor of the Justice Department building. No one witnessed the plunge.

A CHARMING QUALITY

Almost all Americans are either Republicans or Democrats—the by-parties cut very little figure. Candor demands the admission that in a great many cases individuals cannot give any very clear reason for being either Republican or Democrat. Yet in a great many cases there is a reason, unsuspected by the citizen himself.

We confess, while being Republican, to a certain admiration for New England Democrats; first, because it takes a certain sort of courage to continue to be allied with the losing side; second, because New England Democracy is a state of mind which is largely emotional—and we should hate to see emotionalism stamped out of the world under the feet of practical self-interest, because about all the color would be washed out of life in that event.

Self interest; self preservation, in fact, makes New England Republican. The Democrats are just enough in numbers to add the fillip of emotionalism needed to save us from becoming crassly materialistic. Also they provide us with almost all our political fun.

Take the case of the Manchester to-be-made shut-ins, for example. Who on earth can imagine a Republican political worker leaping suddenly to his feet with a loud and excited protest against the board of voters adjourning to hospitals and homes of sick folks, because he has permitted himself to scent therein a dark and evil plot of the opposition to gain two or three votes? Especially if the first voter so to be made turned out to be a member of the family of a Republican leader, visited at the leader's request?

There is something altogether charming in the naivety and spontaneous excitement of such blundering bull-rushing as this. We need such emotional hot-heads in our society and in our politics. Life would be drab without them. And without them there wouldn't be any Democratic party at all in New England, since the cold logic of our economic situation requires that the most of us shall be Republicans.

A MUM DERBY

Hartford is merely to see the brown derby, not to hear his voice. After having been given to understand that they were to have the opportunity to listen to a political address by Governor Smith, delivered direct to them without the mediation of the radio, Democrats of the Capitol City and environs are now informed that their candidate will not, after all, speak at the State Armory, but will content himself with one of the automobile parades which have come to be so large a part of his campaign.

Ardent admirers of the governor will, no doubt, accept without question his excuse that a candidate cannot make a good speech every night and that he would rather not make any if he cannot make a good one. Critics, however, may make the point that the Democratic candidate's speeches, so far, haven't been so remarkable but what he might be expected to be able to make not only one every night but several during the day, for good measure. And such people are likely to see, in Smith's determination not to bother with speech making in this state, his conviction of the hopelessness of trying to win the electoral vote of Connecticut.

It is a long time since the Democrats had a "personality" candidate for the Presidency until they nominated Smith. The last one was Bryan—we mean the Bryan of 1896, not the later Bryan, who was an entirely different sort of person. In '98 Bryan came storming out of the west like a cyclone of flame. Huge crowds greeted him everywhere. He swept through New England raging like an inspired prophet, and men stood open-mouthed at the magic of his mvelous voice and the thunderous logic of his oratory.

A good speech every night? Bryan made the finest spell-binding speeches in the history of American campaigning not only every night but three, four, five times a day. He spoke all over Connecticut. Only two Republican candidates since the Civil War ever drew such crowds or commanded such respectful attention in this commonwealth—Blaine and Roosevelt. And then Connecticut, on election day, quietly went to the polls and gave a swamping plurality for McKinley.

So, after all, the only effect of Smith's making a speech at Hartford or not making a speech at Hartford would be, it is to be assumed, on the emotions of his ardent admirers. Even if he were another Bryan—which he falls a long way short of being—probably wouldn't make a straw's difference in the way this state will vote on election day.

TWO VIEWS

Two editors discussed prohibition in a Hartford debate last night—Editor Maurice S. Sherman of the Hartford Courant and Editor William E. Gilroy, D.D., of the Congregationalist. It is not our purpose to go into the merits of that discussion save in one respect, Dr. Gilroy's argument for prohibition consisted very largely in portraying the evils wrought by alcoholic indulgence. It is that fact which impresses us in this connection and frequently does impress us in prohibition argumentation everywhere.

It strikes us that in this pro or anti-prohibition discussion which is so general throughout the country it is a sheer waste of time to cite instances of the ruin worked by drink. No human being, not even the veriest gutter bum, denies that alcohol is the agency whereby millions of weak human beings have been destroyed during countless centuries. No sane human being will deny that the world would be an infinitely better place in which to live if nobody ever got drunk.

There is nothing to argue about on that point. Yet over and over again we have the spectacle of prohibition advocates seriously and honestly standing up and advancing the well known horrors of alcoholism as a sufficient reason for the eighteenth amendment and the Volstead act.

Aside from the professionals who make their living by such advocacy it is our belief that most of these people are utterly sincere. Yet their position is not only untenable, it is essentially unfair. They assume, when they take it, that their opponents are advocates of drunkenness and the evils attending it.

This, of course, is utterly untrue. It is our conviction that Editor Sherman of the Courant is just as sincerely desirous of eliminating the curse of drunkenness from the world as is Editor Gilroy. We know perfectly well that we are. And so are scores and hundreds of other editors who are fully convinced that federal prohibition is not promoting temperance at all—that America is on the wrong track in dealing with liquor debauchery. Prohibition will continue to be a bone of angry contention so long as its supporters arrogate to themselves alone a desire to benefit mankind. We may get somewhere in the fight against rum when all the forces of genuine reform get together in an honest effort to work out a solution of the problem—never, so long as part of the advocates of temperance persist in outlawing that other part which cannot intellectually subscribe to the method now under experiment.

SOCIALISTS

Very few people, comparatively, have followed with any interest the campaign made by Norman Thomas, Socialist candidate for the Presidency. Yet it is entirely possible that the Thomas campaign may prove, historically, to be of more account than the campaign of Governor Smith.

Heretofore Socialist Presidential candidates in the United States haven't cut much of a figure, principally because the Socialists themselves were a long way behind the times in the development of socialistic thought. Thomas is a modern socialist. That is, he is as far as possible from being a communist. He is a socialist of the modern European school, which is hardly more radical than what we call in America a progressive.

He hasn't the slightest idea of capturing a single electoral vote. He is, however, sitting pretty in the position of critic of both the old parties. And particularly has he an excellent talking point in showing the liberals and progressives what a futile proceeding it is to turn from the Republican party to the Democratic party.

Assuming that Smith is beaten in the coming election—emphatically and decisively beaten, what chance is there that the Democratic party will hereafter be even a ponderable opposition force? And an opposition force we must have if we are to have good government—nothing is more certain than that.

Would it be at all surprising, then, if four years from now, either under Mr. Thomas or somebody else of his political school, the Socialist party should come into the light as a substantial political factor in American politics—hear to the policies of protest of the Democratic party, but freed from the hampering traditions and historic handicaps of that organization?

Perhaps the seeds that Thomas is sowing this campaign will perish—and perhaps they will take root and flourish four or eight years hence. The latter would not be surprising.

Health and Diet Advice

By DR. FRANK MCCOY

MASCULINITY AND FEMININITY

For many years psychologists had no difficulty in describing the differences between masculine and feminine characteristics. Men were more aggressive, adventurous, untiring, and had a scientific, reasoning mind. Women were shy, retiring, more emotional, delicate, imaginative.

But within the last few years, there has been a remarkable change in the mental attitude of the two sexes so that they are becoming more alike. Men are cultivating many of the finer qualities, such as a love of the artistic and the finer emotional qualities, and women are entering the business, scientific and athletic fields and acquiring much of the aggressiveness and scientific reasoning of the male.

The clinging vine type of woman who used to faint whenever a strong man came near, has disappeared. Women are learning to brag about their strength rather than expect sympathy for their weakness. They have discarded their enveloping skirts, bustles, corsets and other clothing monstrosities so that their wearing apparel today is actually more sensible than that worn by men. Girls' feet are becoming larger and their figures slenderer. In fact, many writers describe their heroines as having figures slender as a young boy's.

The bullying man who built his superiority by sheer physical brutality has passed on with the going years. Intellect is today far more important than muscle for maintaining leadership. Men are becoming slenderer, more alert and possibly more sensitive. Men excel at the more trades that might be considered effeminate. Some of the leading dressmakers, perfumers, artists and poets are men. On the other hand women are entering the business world. Two among the largest real estate concerns in Los Angeles are headed by women. Women are entering politics, mechanics, newspaper work, and many other trades that were formerly considered exclusively men's domain.

In spite of this switching of positions, there is no danger of any great biological change, but the mental and emotional adjustments which are taking place in our time should bring about more happiness and better health to both sexes.

Many of the lower forms of life are bisexual as, for instance, the snail is both male and female inside of the same shell. Such abnormalities occasionally appear in the human family, but they are not able to reproduce themselves. But it is true that in the embryo, both male and female begin from the same original form, and only develop differently so that both man and woman have some physical as well as mental qualities in common.

While men and women will never appear alike physically, the mental changes which are taking place will lead to a better understanding between them and the age old sex antagonisms will gradually disappear. We can no doubt look for a better civilization when women are stronger physically and more mentally aggressive, and the masculine force and ruggedness of men is tempered by the more delicate qualities.

Questions and Answers: Question: A. J. asks: "What causes the skin to become yellow about the eyes and mouth? What can be done for it?" Answer: Your trouble is undoubtedly caused by what the layman knows as biliousness. This means some disorder affecting the liver or gall bladder. When these organs do not function properly because of overwork, some of the bile is retained in the system, making the skin show a decided yellow tinge. A short fast followed by a proper diet usually brings about a clearing up of the skin within a short time.

Question: Reader writes: "My mother made some bacon gravy for the cornbread and, knowing there was no bacon in the house for two weeks, I questioned her and found she has been holding the bacon grease over for two weeks in a can. She stood me up and told me that it was still healthy food if kept even longer in the cooler."

Answer: In the first place I do not advise the use of bacon grease in the making of cornbread, but it will keep for weeks and even months without spoiling if it is kept in a fairly cool place.

By RODNEY DUTCHER

Washington, Oct. 22.—From the standpoint of progressives and of consumers who hope for lower public utility rates through political air, the results of ballot contests to date have not been altogether encouraging.

The first of these this year was in Maine, where Senator Fred Hale, with the backing of the power interests, defeated Governor Brewster in the Republican senatorial primary. Export of power from Maine was the principal issue and the Sam Insull interests were a strong factor in the campaign.

The election subsequently ratified the "power trust" victory. In the Ohio primaries, Attorney General Turner, Republican candidate for governor, came out for further regulation of utilities. He was defeated.

In Wisconsin, where the "power trust" fight was perhaps more predominant than anywhere else, the progressives renominated Senator LaFollette but failed to nominate Congressman Beck, their candidate for governor. The issue now figures in the election and it is assumed that LaFollette and Walter Kohler, the conservative candidate for governor, will be elected.

Critics of the utilities, however, point to some of their own victories, past and prospective. Senator McKellar and Congressman Garrett took issue on the power question in Tennessee, where Muscicola Shoals is the big problem, and Garrett was licked despite supposed support from the power companies which is now said to have been transferred to the Republican candidate against McKellar.

Senator Howell of Nebraska won renomination while criticizing the utilities and is now using the same issue in his election campaign. The same goes for Senator Frazier in North Dakota, another Republican. Senator Dill received renomination from the Democrats and is now putting the power question forward in the campaign, while his Republican opposition has taken the side of the utilities.

Senators Wheeler and Walsh are assailing the "trust" in Montana, where Wheeler is a candidate for re-election and the Montana Power Company is under the gun to be supporting his Republican opponent, Joseph M. Dixon. In Minnesota the utilities are lined up against Senator Shipstead, the Farmer-Labor candidate, who is making power one of his main campaign points.

The power issue cuts party lines, as may already have been observed. Republicans and Democrats are likely to be found on either side of the fence and where the issue is not raised it is generally because both candidates are sympathetic with the utilities.

There has been a power fight on in New York for some time over Governor Smith's program and this has been considerably accentuated by selection of H. Edmund Machold as Republican state chairman and of Albert Ottinger as Republican candidate for governor. Machold is a power magnate and Ottinger is closely allied with the opposition to Smith's program.

In Arizona the question is paramount because of the Boulder Dam project. The Democrats are also using the power issue in Colorado, with special stress laid on it by Congressman Taylor. In California Senator Hiram Johnson is making his entire campaign on power and Boulder Dam.

In Missouri the Democrats are using propaganda methods as revealed by the Federal Trade Commission. Joseph Daniels recently charged that in North Carolina the utility interests had entered the campaign and that many of their leaders were in the anti-Smith group.

MILTON SILLS AT THE STATE TOMORROW

Is Starred in "The Crash," Also Another Feature and Gift Night.

All the power, the pathos and the dramatic events that have made railroad building and railroad operation in cut of the way places one of the most colorful episodes in the progress of this country, is vividly depicted in "The Crash". Milton Silks' latest starring vehicle, which is scheduled at the State for tomorrow and Wednesday.

The picture was adapted from Frank L. Packard's magazine story, "The Wrecking Boss," and tells how the soubrette of a struggling burlesque troupe marries and tries to make a home for the loss of the wrecking crew. They have nothing in common except their love for each other. The girl has been used to the free and easy ways of the traveling show. The man knows nothing of women except what he learned as a boy. A wonderful situation and every advantage of it has been taken in unfolding the picture.

Sills is seen to the very best of his ability and he is given splendid support by Yola D'Avril, Wade Boteler and Thelma Todd.

The associate feature at the State for tomorrow and Wednesday will be "Brotherly Love," a screaming satire on football adventures, featuring that incomparable pair of comedians—Karl Dane and George K. Arthur. In this picture these two boys go through a series of hilarious and hair-raising adventures that would make even the Sphinx laugh.

BEAT JEWISH STUDENTS IN RIOTS IN BUDAPEST

Budapest, Oct. 22.—Feeling was running high here today following the arrest of fifty workers who clashed with Nationalist anti-Semitic students who attempted to storm the building of the Socialist newspaper Nepszava.

The attempted storming of the newspaper's building was the climax of a day during which students rioted in front of the university and in other public places, beating up Jewish students, pedestrians and even foreigners.

The workers' papers today protested the fact that the police showed partiality to the students in arresting none of those who attacked the Nepszava building while arresting fifty workers who protected the building. All the workers arrested were given eight-day jail sentences.

Textile Industry In U. S. Faces Stiff Competition

What is the extent of Europe's industrial recovery and how does it menace the wide spread prosperity of the United States? Who are the men and what are the movements involved in this restoration of Europe's power? The Philadelphia Inquirer, believing that answers to these questions are of vital importance to the United States at this time, sent Richard J. Beamish, a staff correspondent and trained observer of industrial movements and conditions to Europe. He has just returned and the series of which the following article is a part is a result of the economic survey.

Article Number Three
By RICHARD J. BEAMISH
Work in the textile trades is easily learned, and it is so light that women and children in their "teens" find plenty of employment. That explains the number of mills in rural communities, the readiness with which they are manned, and the low scale of wages as compared with other crafts. It also explains the rising tide of competition faced by England, a tide which has brought about the amazing amalgamation plans described in yesterday's article, by which the entire British cotton industry will operate as one gigantic corporation.

Far From Through
The impression has gone abroad in the United States that England is through as an outstanding industrial factor in the world's markets. That assumption is ridiculous. With the Melchett amalgamation project in full swing, with virtually unlimited capital to back the project and with plenty of skilled, cheap labor to operate it, the road is clear for a return to pre-war power.

To understand the new competition from England with which the textile mills of the United States is about to be faced it is necessary to note the differences between methods of manufacture in both countries. Modern American plants of great size turn out finished cotton goods. They card, spin, weave, bleach, dye, finish and market their product. Such self-contained operation is unknown to British corporations. Carding and spinning are separate operations from weaving. Bleaching is done by another set of corporations and plants. So are the dyeing and finishing processes. So is the marketing of the goods. The organization of the British cotton industry is in parallel horizontal layers. An American cotton plant, on the other hand, is like a vertical column with all the layers of the various processes bound together in a solid unit.

Discard Old System
While Lancashire ruled the cotton industry the wastefulness of the British method still left enough profits to still cover for their satisfaction. They stolidly held on for years as increasing competition cut into these profits. Now they have resolved to hold on to the horizontal layer system no longer. Many factors have contributed to this determination. There is the world shrinkage in women's wear. When Dame Fashion cut out petticoats and furbelows; when she shortened women's frocks and reduced underthings to a minimum, she put a fearful crimp in the earnings of Lancashire. The World War and the boom years that came later greatly added to the number of plants and spindles in England and brought speedy and labor-saving machinery into the mills, thus greatly increasing production. This excess of equipment has added to the glut in the cotton market.

The Armistice was followed by the dumping upon the world's markets of textiles of all kinds bought by the warring countries. That added its weight to woe to Lancashire. Then along came King Cotton's saucy new rival, Queen Rayon. What that fabric has done to the textile market makes strong men in the industry weep when they contemplate their losses.

Thousands Bankrupt
The net result has been to pile up the obligations to the banks of textile mill owners in all parts of the world. Many plants have been bankrupt and thousands of others are tottering on the verge of extinction.

The bankers of England have been carrying the bag for years, and they have called for a show-room. The writer was in Manchester, while the show-down was in process. He sat in with bankers and mill owners as the reorganization of the industry was being worked out. The method by which this was accomplished was simple. The bankers drove the manufacturers into a corner and said: "The old order of things must go. The cotton industry must be rationalized and amalgamated in the Melchett manner. Inefficient mills must be scrapped. Thousands of spindles must be cut out. We will start with the spinning corporation, then amalgamate the weaving mills, and so on until there will be one great spinning corporation, one weaving company and so on throughout the industry. When that has been done, we will make one super-amalgamation which will be, in effect, the British cotton goods industry producing and marketing as a unit again the world, with the backing of the British Government."

Details Are Told
This is in condensed form, the plan as outlined in conferences at which he was present. President Tattersall, of the Yarn Spinners' Association, and Captain John Ryan, secretary and general manager of that association, the largest and most powerful of its kind in the world, comprising, as it does, every spinning company in England, told in detail the working of the program for amalgamation.

"We have just concluded arrangements for the incorporation of the amalgamation of the entire spinning industry," explained President Tattersall in the impressive quarters of the association in Blackfriars House, Manchester, "and the merger of the weaving mills and other branches of the cotton industry will soon follow. It was difficult to make many mill owners see the good to come from the plan, but that stage has been passed, and the British spinning industry will hereafter function as one corporation.

"It is a revolutionary move," said Captain Ryan, "and a transformation of the entire British cotton trade, but when completed it will place us again in the leadership of the industry."
The bankers of England have come to the conclusion that the British cotton trade can be galvanized into world leadership only through the Melchett plan. They are wiping off the uncollectable debts they have been carrying on their books for years. They are keeping deferrable obligations in a reservoir, charging only enough interest to keep them alive, and are backing to the limit those companies and individuals whose record in the cotton industry give them a clear right to be considered in the rationalized and nationalized amalgamation of the industry.

This is the British cotton industry of tomorrow. How can the textile industry in the United States compete with it?

HEBRON

The sudden death of Francis Henry Raymond which occurred Saturday morning, Oct. 20, came as a shock to the community. Mr. Raymond was 73 years of age and had been in failing health for several years, but was not confined to his bed and at the time of his death he was taking care of his favorite horse, dropping dead in his own door yard. Mr. Raymond was born in Brooklyn, N. Y. He was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Raymond. The maiden name of his mother was Ida Vandervoort. His first wife was Harriet M. Bissell, and he leaves a son, Sherwood Raymond of New Britain, and two daughters, Mrs. Lulu Lord, of South Manchester and Mrs. Emil Johnson of Farmington. He also leaves several grandchildren. Two sisters, Mrs. George Kibbe, now of Hebron, and Mrs. J. T. Eslin of Washington, D. C., and a half-brother, Edward A. Raymond of Hebron, also survive him. A son, Howard F., died 1897, aged 2. Mr. Raymond was a farmer and in politics a Republican. He represented the town of Hebron in the general assembly 1904 and 1905. He also served as doorkeeper in the House of Representatives, and later in the Senate. Dr. C. E.

Enjoy a Maytag no-rub washing

THE Maytag is so much faster, so much easier to handle, so quiet and smooth-running, so thorough, so remarkable in every way that the most forceful way of convincing the housewife is to let her do a washing with it.

The Maytag Company originated the seamless, heat-retaining, non-breakable, cast-aluminum tub, the gyroform washing action, and many other outstanding washer improvements.

The Maytag deserves every opportunity to demonstrate how it will save you time by doing an entire washing in an hour or so, save your health by making hand-rubbing of badly soiled clothes unnecessary, save clothes by its easy way of cleansing by soap and water action alone, and by its Roller Water Remover, with a soft top roll and hard bottom roll.

Test It in Your Home
There's no cost, no obligation whatever. You are to be the judge. On this plan the Maytag won World Leadership; on this plan the New Maytag is bringing washing day happiness to 1400 additional homes every day.

1928 By NEA Service Inc. RUTH DEWEY GROVES AUTHOR OF "WHEN A GIRL LOVES LOVE, FOR TWO"

"Was Dan Harvey around this morning?" he asked abruptly.

THIS HAS HAPPENED

JERRY RAY decides that love is a delusion and makes up her mind to marry for money. She works in a store and saves carefully for a vacation at Atlantic City in "the best hotel." But her money is stolen the night before her departure, and she is stunned by the loss. Nothing remains but to go camping with her roommate, MYRTLE, on the north shore of Long Island. Myrtle's sweetheart, GEORGE, drives them out and arranges their tent and equipment before returning to New York.

But their camp is wrecked the first evening when an airplane crashes into it, injuring Jerry. The plane is owned by wealthy young ALESTER CARSTAIRS, who is taking a flying lesson from his pilot, DAN HARVEY. Myrtle and Dan pick up the unconscious Jerry and when she comes to, Dan is holding her in his arms. Then Alester orders Dan to go for the doctor and promises to pay Myrtle for the damage to her camp.

Dan arrives with her doctor, who says Jerry is not seriously injured, but that he desires to see her at his office next day for further examination. She hesitates on account of the expense and both men offer to drive her there in a car. Jerry accepts Alester because of his money, although she cannot forget Dan's tenderness when he was administering first aid.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER IV

It was the novelty of the noises she heard and not their volume that weakened Jerry that first morning in "camp." The racket sounded for all the world like a chorus of cats having a concert in the trees.

"Oathbirds," Myrtle said when she opened her eyes and saw Jerry sitting up in her cot, listening to the symphony of strange sounds. "You'll get used to them."

"My first chance to sleep late on a Monday morning, and the birds have to spoil it," Jerry wailed. "An elevator train would not have bothered me half so much."

"Well, you should worry," Myrtle grinned. "It's a wonder you could sleep at all with Alester Carstairs on your mind."

Jerry turned to her with an eager light breaking over her countenance.

"Isn't he wonderful?" she cried enthusiastically. "I never thought I'd meet anyone like him."

"Yeah, God's gift to shopgirls," Myrtle answered with a short laugh. Then, suddenly serious, "Better watch your step kiddo. The boy seems to like your company."

Jerry threw the camp blankets back with quick impatience. "Let's get something to eat," she said, reaching for her shoes and stockings.

"You'll have a touch time if you're always so overcome with his nibs' glory that you can't eat in his presence," Myrtle teased her. "That was some swell supper you passed up last night. I wish I knew what the salad was."

"I think it was alligator pear," Jerry replied, desiring to keep Myrtle off the subject of Alester Carstairs. She wasn't going to like being teased about him in connection with her avowed ambition to marry money, she told herself. Myrtle had a way of making it look cheap, while really, if you considered it sensibly, . . .

"Well, anyway, I'm glad you made a hit with him," Myrtle broke in on her thoughts. "I'll have a swell camping outfit next year with the money he's giving me for the damage his plane did, and we've got a stove that works so we can have a hot breakfast."

She paused and looked around the room. "Fixed this place up great, didn't he? Just like rubbing a magic lantern. Marsh do this and Marsh do that." Freely. But you know," she added confidentially, "I think the other chap would wear better."

Jerry stood still and looked at her unsmilingly.

"That's the trouble with most girls like us," she said quietly. "We're suffering from inferiority. As a class, I mean. But to me a man's a man. I can't see any reason for being less afraid of a poor man than a rich one."

"Oh, go hire a soap box," Myrtle retorted good naturedly. "But don't think you can kid the rest of the world like you kid yourself. If you think there's any chance of your marrying Alester Carstairs you're cuckoo."

Jerry flushed darkly.

"I wouldn't want to marry Alester Carstairs without knowing him better," she said sharply. "But you don't need to be warning me about him. I've known some boys with half of next week's pay spent in advance who weren't anything to go around with blindfolded. The reason some people stop right where they were born is because they think everyone who has money is the villain in the piece. And it's a sure thing you'll never interest a man by showing him you think he's better than you are."

"That isn't it at all, Jerry," Myrtle came back earnestly. "This guy doesn't speak your language. He might as well be living on different worlds. I was born here. I know. If you were a chorus girl, now . . ."

"What's the use of our arguing it?" Jerry interrupted. "Whatever happens will be between Alester and me."

"All right, but there isn't going to be anything between me and breakfast but just time to wash my face," Myrtle agreed hungrily.

Jerry said nothing more and in a few minutes they were trying out the new oil stove and finding it satisfactory. After a hearty breakfast they set about cleaning up the living room and arranging the porch furniture.

Myrtle noticed that Jerry frequently cast her eyes in the direction of the highway and assumed that she was thinking of Alester. As a matter of fact she was thinking of Dan Harvey. The men who were to repair the plane hadn't come and Jerry was wondering if he would be with them when they did arrive.

She was impatient with herself because he had entered her thoughts. He had no place there. What could he mean to her? He wasn't half so pleasant as his employer. She could, however, for when she came to consciousness in his arms. It had been, for a brief moment, startlingly agreeable.

An hour passed. She told Myrtle that her head was aching and her feet were aching. Myrtle teased her that she was high now and the buzz of countless insects was vocal proof that the day was running a temperature.

Jerry seemed reluctant to leave the house, but she gave in after a little coaxing because she did not want Myrtle to guess what was on her mind. And while they were in the water the man came to repair the plane. The girls saw their car enter the grounds but they could not recognize any of the occupants. Myrtle said, swimming for shore. Jerry followed, but when she waded out of the water she dropped down on the sand and sat there. She had changed her mind. She wouldn't go up to the house. If Dan Harvey was there she didn't want to see him. And yet something caused her to watch closely while the men worked. She did not see Dan among them.

"Well, I'm going up and get dressed," Myrtle announced firmly after a while. "You'd better come along and make yourself look like you need that trip to the doctor's. Your friend might think you're going just for the ride."

By three o'clock Jerry was really pale and tired. The men had gone, though the plane remained. It was not yet ready to be flown. Jerry did not ask so she did not know that they were leaving. Jerry thought of Dan to fly. The thought robbed the prospect of driving with Alester of a little of its pleasure.

Her attitude, when Alester came, surprised him. He was telling himself that she was flattered by his attentions, a shade too ready to accept them to suit his taste. But that kind of girl would be easy to handle. If she wasn't amusing after the first meeting or two he'd drop her.

He came in a black roadster with yellow leather upholstery and much gleaming nickel. Jerry thrilled when she climbed into it and Myrtle stood by, unable to still a slight pang of envy. It had never crossed her mind to wish she had fallen in love with anyone other than George, but she realized now that Jerry certainly was getting the break she had wanted.

"How's the head?" Alester asked when they were under way.

"Much better, thank you." She said it rather listlessly.

He turned to look at her.

"Sleep well?"

She nodded without looking at him. He jerked his head around to sight the road ahead, then turned back to her. Jerry let him look, with her eyes straight ahead. She wondered at herself. In her plans for the opportunity with the "rich man" had found her sparkling, vivacious, alluring. But now she didn't feel like sparkling. Perhaps something serious had happened to her head.

Alester was satisfying himself that she was as pretty as he had thought last night. Suddenly a possible explanation of her new manner flashed across his mind. Harvey was capable, he told himself, of interfering.

"Was Dan Harvey around this morning?" he asked abruptly. Jerry started.

"No," she said. "Why?"

"I thought he might have wanted to look over the plane by daylight," Alester replied. "Good pilot, Dan, but a little fruff at times."

Jerry could have told him that Dan could be tender also, but she wasn't out with Alester Carstairs to talk about his aviator, she reminded herself sharply.

"Don't be long," he begged her when they reached the doctor's office. "And tell him to send the bill to me . . . no, here, it might find its way to dad's and there'd be a rumpus. This isn't the first accident. Please take this money and pay Dr. Belden." He held out a folded bill and after a moment's hesitation Jerry took it.

A casual glance at the figures on it brought a protest to her lips. A hundred dollars!

Why, no doctor would charge so much. But the protest was never uttered. Jerry had a second thought.

YOUR CHILDREN

by Olive Roberts Barton
©1928 by NEA Service, Inc.

Does your child blink his eyes, or rub them frequently? In the morning when he gets up, do the lids stick together and when open leave tiny granulations along the edges?

Sometimes the irritation which causes the blinking and rubbing of the lids to adhere, may be overcome by the regular use of an eye-wash every morning.

An excellent eye-wash can be made at home by dissolving a level teaspoonful of boric acid in a pint of water. The water should be boiled first and then allowed to cool. When ready for use, stir the boric powder into it. The powder will dissolve.

The solution should put into a clean glass jar or bottle and covered or corked tightly and set away until needed. A little may be poured out at each using. Nothing should ever be poured back into the jar and nothing should be dipped in.

Eye Cup Is Useful

A clean piece of absorbent cotton should be used for each eye and then thrown away. An eye-cup costs only 10 cents at a drug store and is very useful. It fits over the eye socket and allows the fluid to flow freely around the eye when the head is tilted. Boric solution is cooling and soothing and is good for tired eyes, too. Do not make the solution any stronger than the directions.

If bathing the eyes does not help the trouble I should consult a good oculist without loss of time. The eye is the most delicate organ in the body and is not to be trifled with.

There are things a parent can do that often will obviate any necessity for remedies, by minimizing the chances for trouble.

If you find a child reading in a glaring light, stop him at once. Don't allow him to read when lying down, and don't allow him to read too soon after an illness such as measles or scarlet fever of any illness that has left his body in a weakened condition. His muscles are as weak as the rest of him.

Reading Rules

Show a child that when he reads he should have the light fall on his book over his shoulder. He should not face the light himself. A book should be held 14 inches from the face. Schools usually regulate these things, but it is home reading that parents must look to.

If a child cannot see the blackboard in school on which the writing shows plainly to other children, he should be taken to a doctor for examination—or if he has to hold a book close to his face to read.

If children live in a country where there is glaring light on snow, it is well to have them use yellow or brown glasses for part of the time at least.

A child with an abnormality such as cross-eyes, should be taken to a specialist as early as possible. The cure often depends on the early age at which treatment is begun.

Hints on How to Keep Well by World Famed Authority

PELLAGRA NOW FOUND IN ALL PARTS OF THE WORLD.

By DR. MORRIS FISHBEN.

Editor Journal of the American Medical Association and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine.

Considered formerly a disease largely limited to the southern parts of the United States, pellagra has been found in Minnesota and in Illinois, and indeed in all parts of the world.

In 1915 more than 10,000 died of this disease in the United States, and it is reported that in 1917 and 1918 at least 200,000 people in the southern portions of the United States suffered from it.

Rare in Winter.

Pellagra usually occurs in the spring and new cases rarely occur in the fall and winter. It has been suggested that the disease might be an organism distributed by the bite of some insect, since many insects appear in the spring and disappear before fall.

However, more recent views incline to the belief that pellagra is due to a deficiency of certain substances in the diet, because it occurs largely among people who devote themselves to raising cotton and buy their food from the grocery store.

The first signs of pellagra are soreness of the mouth and tongue, disturbance of the bowels, a bronzing of the skin and later severe symptoms associated with the nervous system.

In Italy the peasants who suffer from pellagra live chiefly on cornmeal mush. In the United States people who suffer from this disease live largely on highly refined cornmeal, wheat flour, rice, sugar, molasses and pork.

Doctors who have made significant studies of the problem say that the diet of the person with pellagra contains three m's—meat, meal and molasses.

Dietary Remedy.

The cure for pellagra has been reported in many people by adding to their diets yeast, lean meats, fresh vegetables, eggs and milk. The use of a well balanced diet, including fresh fruit, is of course the most desirable method of cure.

Yeast is to be considered as a medical substitute when the need is urgent and the food supply difficult.

WOMEN'S POLITICAL QUESTION BOX

Q.—What is Senator Curtis' stand on Prohibition?

A.—He is uncompromisingly for law enforcement. In his speech of acceptance he said: "For the Federal Government now to adopt or even to propose or to favor a policy which will result in allowing each state to determine for itself the alcoholic content of beverages to be manufactured, sold and transported throughout the country, would be a direct and indefensible attempt on its part to evade or to repudiate the responsibility so delegated and assumed . . . without any justification for such action."

Q.—Did Mr. Hoover fix the price of wheat during the war as asserted by Democratic speakers?

A.—Mr. Hoover had nothing whatever to do with determining the price of wheat. The basic price of wheat during the war was fixed at $2.50 a bushel by the Fair-prices committee of twelve appointed by President Wilson. Dr. Harry A. Garfield, President of Williams College, was Chairman.

Q.—How old is the Republican party?

A.—It came into existence as a political factor at Jackson, Mich., in 1856, when Fremont was nominated as President.

Q.—Was George Washington a Republican or Democrat?

A.—Neither. He was a Federalist; but in a general way the Federalist policies, particularly in the protective tariff, correspond with those of the Republican party of today.

Rome—The marriage of a beautiful Italian princess may rest the future of the Balkans.

This is the belief on European political circles as regards the bidding of two European Kings for the hand of Princess Giovanna, twenty-one year old daughter of the Italian Royal Family.

Thrown by the whirl of events into the central European political intrigues, this girl, now a sort of "security bond" for countries seeking Italian support, has become one of the most sought after Princesses in Europe.

The daughter of the King and Queen of Italy, tall, with dark hair and clear-cut features, she is considered strikingly pretty.

Royal offers

During the past few years numerous bids have been made for her hand by Princes of Royal Houses, but her two main suitors are now considered to be the newly proclaimed King of the Albanians, Ahmed Zugo, and King Boris of Bulgaria.

On the day of his ascension to the throne it was intimated that he would pay a visit to Rome, presumably for the purpose of asking the hand of Princess Giovanna.

On the other hand the betrothal of the Princess to King Boris has long been a Court rumor. It was two years ago that the rumor first gained ground, and only recently it was stated that negotiations with the Vatican to grant mutual concessions for the marriage. King Boris being a Greek Orthodox, were completed.

Mussolini to Decide

However, it is generally believed that Mussolini is the deciding figure in the background, and in some quarters it has been alleged that the Duce is using the Princess as a puppet to strengthen the bonds of Italian friendship with her neighbors.

Undoubtedly with him lies the question as to whether this pretty young Princess marries the Mohammedan monarch, Ahmed Zugo, or the man so often described as the "loneliest King in the world," King Boris of Bulgaria.

The WOMAN'S DAY by ALLENE SUN OVER

WHERE'S YOUR HUSBAND?

Even in this modern world no woman with a "Mrs." handle to her name escapes the spoken or merely thought question of "where is your husband?" when she emerges in public life but gives an explanation of why she isn't home darning said husband's socks.

Which is exactly why the many people who have wondered about a "Mr. Mabel Walker Willows" must have gloated a little over the recently published more or less authentic interview with the lady's mother. The mother is supposed to have explained that Mabel was just born "for a career," even as the sparks fly upward, and that when her husband proved a dumper and seemed to cramp her style there was nothing for Mabel to do but eschew the husband.

GRANDBABIES, TOO!

To be sure he has been frequently photographed with Mrs. Hoover, but I have never seen a single campaign picture of him with his two baby grandchildren. Perhaps it's all part of the same psychology which revealed him as a no-baby-kisser politician earlier in the campaign!

HOW DYE BET?

One wonders who is doing the canner thing—Al Smith who believes that the way to a nation's vote is via the reminder that, after all, even the great are only husbands, or whether Hoover's unpractical belief that such another candidate is a candidate and his personal life has little or nothing to do with the matter, is the wiser way of approach.

ARE WE DEMO?

The staid New York Times gets quite agog all over its front page because some action of an old and prosperous family, one Samuel Thorne, 3rd, to be exact, married his sister's governess, one Mme. Vera Sokoloff Dabrowsky.

We talk a great deal about democratic America, but we get as stirred up at such another adventure as would England if the Prince of Wales married one of the girl cooks of Buckingham Palace.

HOOVERETTES

By Anna Steese Richardson

So far as the Republican National Headquarters is concerned, this campaign might be summed up as just one little Hoover story after another. Ask almost any man or woman who drops into the Washington offices to offer his services for the balance of the campaign why he has come and he will answer with a reason pointed by a story.

This is a typical case.

"A distinguished looking man was waiting for Hoover automobile plates which he was taking lack to New England at the request of workers in his factory. He stopped to admire the gorgeous dahlias a friend had sent to my desk from Chevy Chase garden."

"Couldn't we ship the plates to you?" I asked. "Or have them sent to your factory from your state headquarters?"

"You could, of course," he replied, "but it gives me a certain satisfaction to be toting a bundle again for Hoover. Probably I'll have a chance to hand some out on the train, too. The smoking room is still a good place to discuss politics."

"One hears many weird stories about presidential candidates but whenever I hear some one say that Herbert Hoover is not a real American or that he is more interested in foreign affairs than American business, I long to rise and make a speech."

"We engineers who served with him abroad or who followed his career in Australia and China, know that America and its interests always come first in his plans, his thoughts, his dreams. Wherever he went he introduced American methods of organization and American equipment. The success of one Chicago firm is founded in the orders Herbert Hoover placed for the mining machinery he needed in Australia. Today in that country and in China, the new, up-to-date machinery of this firm is used almost exclusively in the mines."

Both The Cubs And Cloverleaves Score Victories

Cubs Are Winners 23-0 Over Bristol Eleven In First Game At Mt. Nebo

Large Crowd Witnesses One-Sided Game; Stratton, St. John, Mantelli Make Touchdowns; All Extra Points Made.

What credit, if any, the Bristol Maple Ends received for pinning a 13 to 0 defeat on the Cub's team last year, was more than squared yesterday afternoon when the town champions completely outplayed them in dedicating their new home field at Mt. Nebo. The score was 23 to 0, three touchdowns, three extra points and a safety.

A large crowd watched the game giving evidence to Manager Pete Venditti's argument that Mt. Nebo is the best place to play football at the south end. The gate receipts were the largest of the season, even bigger than they were at the old Golf Links in the first game of the season. Close to $300 was taken in. Next Sunday, the New Britain Blues will play here, having exchanged dates with the Wallingford Eagles who will come here the following Sunday.

Stratton Goes Over. The first score came early in the first quarter. Manchester received and marched straight down the field employing line plunges and skirting the ends with good interference. Jack Stratton took the ball over on a run around left end from the twelve yard line and added the extra point by a place-kick. The second score came in the next period. At twenty-two yard forward pass from Stratton to St. John caught in the end zone accounted for the score and again Stratton made good the extra point.

Bristol made one desperate attempt to score and would have only for Tommy Melkie, Swinerton, the visiting fullback, broke through the Cub's forward line on a fake kick and raced 40 yards before Melkie felled him from behind on Manchester's twenty yard line. Bristol, however, was unable to gain further and Manchester took the ball on downs. Incidentally, Swinerton was later injured and removed to Memorial hospital where it was stated that he was not seriously injured and would be discharged in a day or so.

Skoneski on Job. The third score of the game came in the third quarter. Manchester marched to the two yard line where it lost the ball on downs. Alexander dropped back of his goal line to punt but a poor pass delayed him and this was long enough for the alert, Tommie Skoneski, to pounce on him for a sack that gave the Cubs a safety score, two points.

There was no further scoring until the last minute of the final period when a 25 yard forward pass by Deliquist to Mantelli was caught at the ten yard line. Elmo finished the distance unmolested and Jack Cheney place-kicked the extra point. Thus, the 1927 defeat was avenged.

Mantelli plans to come down here from Lewiston, Me., where he is now playing. He will play two or three games before the series. He played his usual good football, being used nearly a half a game, part in the backfield and part on end. His forward passing ability makes him a threat. Mantelli, being used part of the game at guard. He is in fine physical condition and is counted upon to be a big help to the Cubs in the coming series.

Touchdowns, Stratton, St. John, Mantelli; points after touchdowns, Stratton, Cheney 1, (placekick); safety, Alexander tackled by Skoneski; referee, Johnny McGrath; umpire, Jake Greenberg; head-linesman, Ed Bailey; time of periods 40 12 5.

Cubs lineup: Cheney, lg; Quish, lt; Mercer, rg; Harrison, c; Vesco, c; Ambukewicz, La Cross, Chapdelaine, rg; Harrison, C. Vendrillo, rt; Skoneski, Mantelli, rb; Stratton, Dahlquist, qb; Minicucci, Donnelly, lb; St. John, Groman, rfb; Melkie, Kwash, Mantelli, fb. Bristol lineup: not submitted.

NUMEROUS UPSETS OVER THE WEEK-END

Results of Saturday's Games Shocked the Dopesters; How the Teams Fared.

By DAVIS J. WALSH
New York, Oct. 22.—After looking over Saturday's football results, have reached the conclusion that the week-end has been a complete back to back to yesterday when the Cubs can't use Jimmy Mietretta or Ding Farr, while the Cloverleaves will not be allowed to use Eddie Gill!

The eligibility lists were also submitted last night instead of waiting until October 27th as was first planned. There were no changes except for the addition of Jack Linnell who played with the Cloverleaves a few minutes at tackle yesterday. Elmo Mantelli came down from Bates to play, but he was eligible anyway, having played in the first game of the season against Windsor Locks.

Rumors spread about town over the week end that the series had been called off; that the Cub players had refused to play a series, insisting on one game. It is true that the Cub players did object at first but after the matter had been discussed, it was decided to go ahead with the series but to demand the eligibility lists to be submitted yesterday. This was agreed upon at a meeting of the club officials.

The series starts Nov. 18 at Mt. Nebo with the second game at Hickey's, Nov. 25. Following are eligible players as agreed upon last night in the Herald office:

The undersigned coaches of the Cubs and Cloverleaves, do hereby agree that the following players are eligible for the 1928 football championship series:

Cubs: Felix Moszer, John Cheney, Billy Skoneski, Louis Farr, Joe Sylvester, Jimmy Quish, Walter Harrison, Camillo Vendrillo, Paul Vesco, John Chapdelaine, Stuart Wells, Albert Mercer, Thomas Hapenny, Anthony Ambukewicz, Clarence LaCross, Arver Dahlquist, Robert Donnelly, Jack Stratton, Elmo Mantelli, Conrad Dietz, John Groman, Arthur St. John, Charles Minicucci, Thomas Melkie, Edward Kwash, Albert Fiddler, Harry Hampton, Frank Brennan, Harold Ford, Herbert Wright, Brunig Moske, Walter Moske, Buck Rowe, William McLaughlin, Jack Benny, Jack Linnell.

Cloverleaves: J. L. FAY. October 21, 1928.

Manchester High's football record for 1928 bids fair to go down in the pages of local sport history in bold face print.

Ability to follow up its advantages in the pinches and stamina to become a virtual Rock of Gibraltar in the face of impending danger, were the conspicuous characteristics of Manchester's play in over-whelming Meriden. However, in justice to Meriden, it must be stated that while Manchester deserved all of its three touchdowns, the teams were much more evenly matched than the score indicates.

Meriden got a golden opportunity through a fifteen yard penalty imposed on Manchester when Ted Lupien unintentionally punted onto a play, gave Meriden the ball on Manchester's twenty yard line.

Manchester High cannot afford to go into the West Hartford game Thursday with over-confidence simply because it has won its first four league games. A defeat at the hands of West Hartford is far from impossible. Saturday West Hartford trimmed Bristol 24 to 13, scoring a touchdown in each quarter. Manchester defeated Bristol by the comparatively scant margin of 6 to 0.

It seemed mighty good to see the High school and Cubs start making good points after touchdowns Saturday. Billy Johnson dropped two out of three and might have made the other but for a bad pass. Stratton and Cheney made the Cub points. Incidentally West Hartford failed in all of its four chances. Who knows but this may be the deciding factor Thursday.

We couldn't help feeling sorry for Sam Houston. They gave him a job of head-linesman and it seemed that the referee was for ever ordering measurements. Being of a slight avoirdupois build, Sam was out of breath running back and forth across the field. Director Lloyd of the Rec says it serves Sam right; that he's invited him over to gym class time and again.

No doubt there will be a general sprinkling of Manchesterians at Foot Guard Friday night when Bat Battalion takes on Jules Sombath of Bridgeport.

Don't forget to jot down the dates of the Cub-Cloverleaf title games in your memory, or, better still, your notebook. They play at Mt. Nebo, Nov. 18, and at Hickey's, Nov. 25. Who's going to win, did you say? Draw your own conclusions. You can't have the result of this early date. Wait a few weeks and maybe, we'll take the risk of daring to predict the winner. Then again, maybe not.

The members of the High school varsity football team will view the Army-Yale classic next Saturday for the mere task of acting as ushers. Some people don't know when they're lucky. There are many who will not be able to get inside the bowl Saturday due to a scarcity of tickets.

Just by way of spiking a persistent rumor, Jerry Fay declares with emphasis that he positively will not play with the Cloverleaves against the Cubs. His work is coach and nothing more, he insists. Repeatedly he has made it clear that he would end to induce Jerry to reconsider and don a uniform. The general opinion, however, seems to be that Jerry would have everything to lose and nothing to gain by such a move. This was borne out in basketball.

Out with an injured knee, Connie Dietz spent the afternoon scouting the Cloverleaves.

If we were asked as to who is the champion football fan in Manchester, without hesitation, or fear of contradiction, we would answer, "U. J. Lupien." The head of the Service Department at Cheney Brothers never misses a Saturday or Sunday game involving the High school or Cubs unless through absolute necessity. Saw him down to Meriden again Saturday.

NORTH ENDS TIE

BURNSIDE SQUAD Sully Siamonds Snares Pass to Knot Score Six All in Third Period.

Al-Burnside outwitted the North Ends at Burnside yesterday afternoon but could not outgame the plucky youngsters from the frigid zone and was forced to accept a 6 to 6 verdict after forty eight minutes of exciting football. De Alro starred for the home club, but was forced to the sidelines shortly after the start of the second half with a badly injured knee.

The Burnside team used its weight in the first ten minutes of play but could not skirt the ends or use the overhead game to its advantage. An intercepted pass, put the home club in position for its only score shortly after the second period started. Reardon snared one of "Happy" Egeleson's forwards in midfield and sent the ball on the 50 yard line to the North End's 12 yard line. A penalty put the ball on the 7 yard stripe and from this point De Alro smashed through the line three times before he could score. Burnside failed to register the point after touchdown.

Shortly after the second half started, the North Ends got the better of a punting duel in which Burnside's punter, Fred, made a smart bit of football by passing to Mullens gave the North Ends their chance. However, the heavy lines of the home club proved too hard a nut to crack and the ball was lost on downs. On the next play, however, Fred, center for the North Ends, intercepted a forward pass and put the ball on the home team's 26 yard line. Charter heaved a perfect forward pass to Sully Siamonds and the score was tied. The point after touchdown also failed, a hurried pass causing "Chip" Chartier to kick slightly wide.

From this point, the North Ends outplayed their heavier opponents until the final whistle. The ball was in play continually on Burnside's side of the field. When the game ended, the ball was in possession of the Manchester team on Burnside's 21 yard line. The officials handled the game in excellent fashion and gave the silk city aggregation a real square deal.

De Alro, Eliza and Reardon starred for the Burnside team and gave the Manchester lads plenty of trouble from start to finish. Led by Sully Siamonds, the entire North End team played snappy and hard football throughout the game. Siamonds, DeHan, Elliott, Angelo and Kutkevack hurled the opposing team for big losses time and again. Egeleson gave splendid exhibition of punting and forward passing, much credit goes to Chartier for the way he handled the team.

The lineup: North Ends—Siamonds, lg; Rowe, Billy Seherk, lt; Mack, Bronkie, lg; Cruller, Tyler, Piny, c; L. Wolfram, Mullens, rg; Rowe, Kutkevack, rt; DeHan, Elliott, rb; Chartier, qb; Egeleson, qb; Angelo, Squatrito, lb; Mike Seherk, fb.

Burnside—Eliza, lg; Frink, lt; Callahan, Lynch, lg; Clarke, c; Colton, rg; Shean, r; Keegan, rg; Lancy, qb; Reardon, rb; Klefa, Garella, lb; Andros, Andrus, fb. Officials—Leroy, referee; McLaughlin, umpire; Stangle, head-linesman.

The North Ends will practice Tuesday and Friday nights hereafter.

The Cubs will practice tomorrow night at the School Street Red at 8:30 sharp. All players must attend.

TURKEYS AS PRIZES AT TONIGHT'S PARTY

The first public setback party of the winter season will be held at the School Street Rec at 7:30 to 9:00 p. m. These card parties were formerly run by Cheney Brother's Athletic Association which no longer exists. They will be continued during the winter months. A large attendance is expected because of the interest shown last fall. The turkeys also come in handy for Thanksgiving Day and Christmas.

SALVATION ARMY HAS NEW PLAN FOR SUNDAYS

Under the leadership of Adjutant Joseph Heard the Salvation Army has discontinued its Sunday night meetings at Main and Birch streets. The Adjutant said that the reason for this was that the corps had devised a plan for Sunday night whereby each section of the town in turn would be visited by a delegation of the Army. Last night the corps was divided up as follows: the Young People's Band met at Bissell and Forest streets; the Senior Band met at Pearl and Holl; and the veterans of the corps met in front of the Citadel. Next Sunday these different bands will hold services at other points so that in the course of a short time all sections of the town will have been visited by some division of the corps.

SEASON'S FIRST 'COON

Senkbelts Exhibit Ten Pounder In Barrett and Robbins Store Today.

They say that "Where there's a will, there's a way" and such was proved by "Pete," a young 'coon dog owned by August Senkbelt, veteran Manchester sportsman, early today. "Pete" was given his first test at treeing raccoons today and although the dog has yet plenty to learn about this art, he was responsible for the only 'coon Mr. Senkbelt and his son, Otto, bagged out of three trilled.

The Senkbelts had two dogs along and "Pete" was the younger. They had to rely on the veteran to lodge the raccoons, but he was too stocky to enter the hole far enough to reach the animal. It was then that "Pete" volunteered "do or die." The dog was in the hole over an hour and when he finally came out his head reminded one of Jack Dempsey's that rainy night at Philadelphia. He had done his work nobly, however, for the raccoon was dead when pulled out.

Eastern Gentleman: "Don't you get rather bored from so many traveling salesmen approaching you?"
Nevada Merchant: "Wal, yo' see its jest this a-way. Out here in the Southwest we get so used to the wind that we don't mind the high-powered salesmen who want to sell us goods."

THE STORY, THEN COLOR THE PICTURE
"Hey, wa, a minute," Clowdy cried. And all the Tynies vainly tried to catch one of the ground folk, as they ran with all their might. Then Scouty said, "I'm sorry we were just as thoughtless as could be. If we had let the tots alone, all would have been all right."

saw overseas duty. They are Ensigns Florence and Myrtle Turkington; members of the Army's famous doughnut brigade at the front. They will parade in their overseas uniforms.

The Manchester corps of the Salvation Army has not definitely decided on the type of float it will enter in the parade. Two suggestions have received approval. The first a scene representing a doughnut stand conducted by the Army in France and second a scene from Flanders Fields with crosses and poppies. The latter, a suggestion of one of the Turkington girls, is a strong favorite and providing, none of the other organizations have decided on that theme, will probably be used by the army.
