

KEEP UP SPEED, WORK'S ADVICE FOR LAST WEEK

G. O. P. Chairman Warns That Overconfidence is the Only Thing That Can Defeat Hoover.

Washington, Oct. 30.—Although confident the American people will elect Herbert Hoover president next Tuesday, the Republican headquarters here today issued an appeal to the party's army of electioneers to "carry on to the end."

Warnings that "overconfidence" alone could defeat the Republican nominee were sent into every seaboard state, to leaders in the agricultural belt and to party chieftains in the mountain states. The Hoover board of strategy took the stand that Hoover will win if the party's organization maintains the speed it has shown to date, until after all votes are counted.

Dr. Hubert Work, Republican national chairman, voiced the Hoover strategy in a radio address last night.

Work's Warning.

"I would warn all good Republicans and our friendly supporters from all parties that straw votes cannot reach or record the full sentiment or purpose of all voters," said Work. "The results of all straw votes indicate a gratifying predominant faith in our national candidates but there must be no abatement of our efforts to get the vote cast—we must carry on to the end, up to the very hour that the polls close."

In his address, Work also praised President Coolidge's administration, declared Republican property to be the principal issue in the campaign and assailed the Democrats for conducting a campaign of vilification.

Up to Voters.

"I am willing to leave to the judgments formed in the quiet of the family circle the decision between the calm and lofty appeals to intelligence and conscience of Herbert Hoover," said Work, "and the outpourings of abuse and ridicule, misrepresentation and disparaging criticism, which have constituted most of the speaking campaign of the opposition."

The closing drive of the Republicans meanwhile was centered on the radio. Work and Secretary of the Treasury Mellon, in a special broadcast last night, Charles E. Hughes, the 1916 standard-bearer, and Secretary of State Frank B. Kellogg will speak tonight. Senator William E. Borah, the "Lone Wolf" of Idaho, and Daniel A. Hoops, editor of the Christian Herald, will speak tomorrow night. Hoover

MELLON DEFENDS TARIFF QUESTION

Must Always Remain in Politics; Makes for Prosperity, He Says.

Washington, Oct. 30.—Deploring the sort of "misrepresentation and appeals to prejudice which have been such a regrettable feature of this campaign," Secretary of the Treasury Mellon, in a special broadcast on behalf of Herbert Hoover, went into the tariff, immigration, agricultural and prosperity issues.

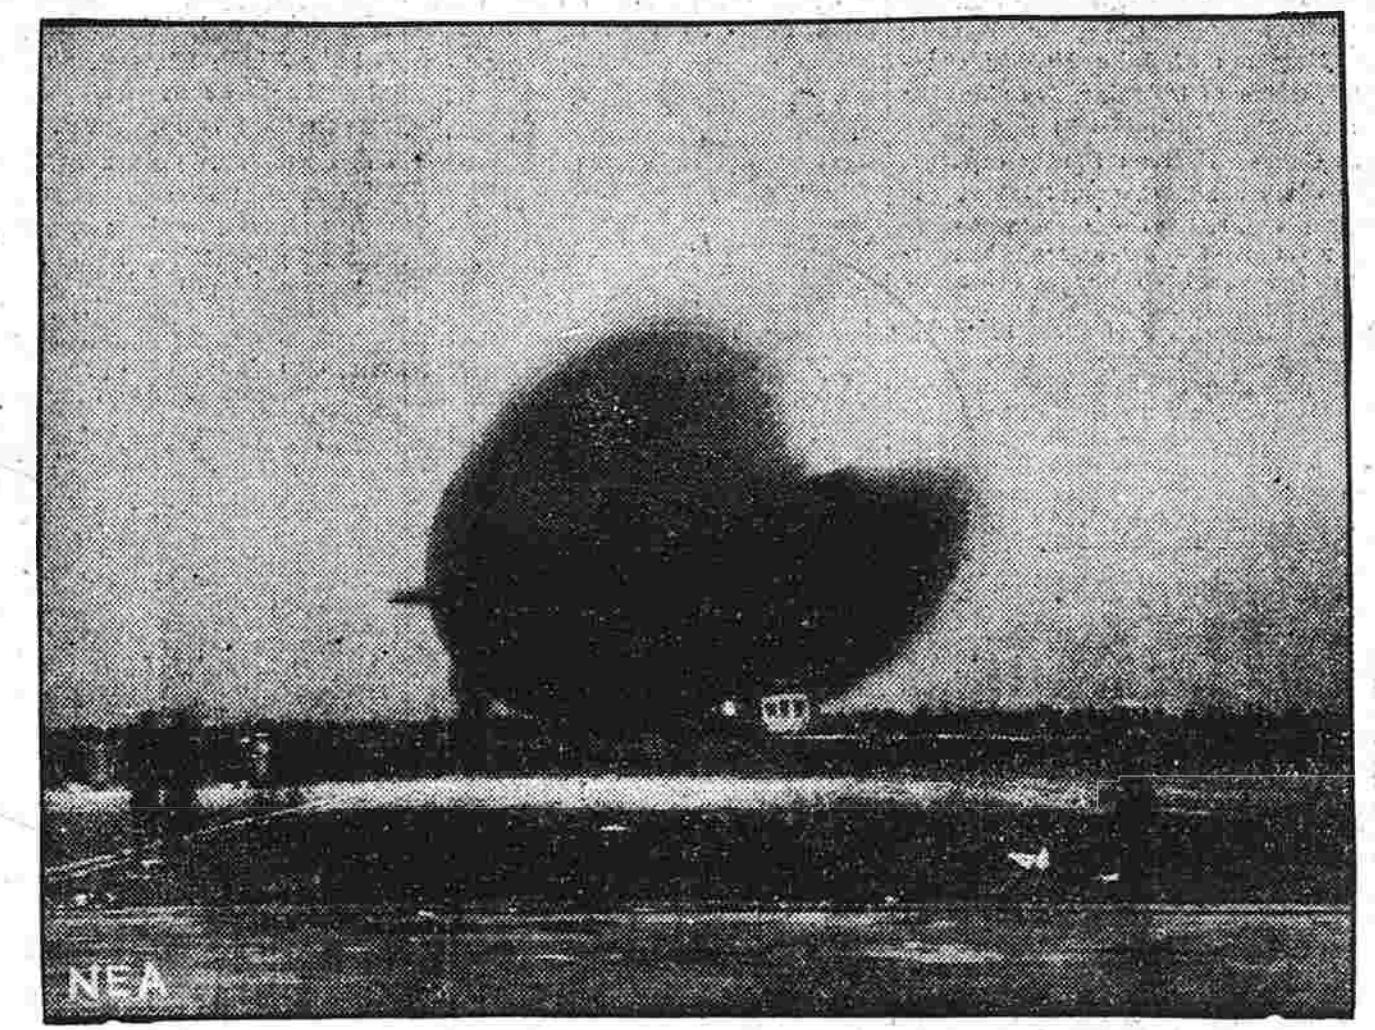

"The Republican Party, in general, has been the constructive party in these policies; has tended to keep up and promote stability in the Democratic Party not in the least," Mellon said.

He assailed Smith's tariff stand for gradual revision and removal from politics, remarking that "so closely is the tariff interwoven into the whole texture of our economic life that no material change could be made without necessitating far-reaching adjustments in business, in anticipation of such a change."

"The tariff never can be taken entirely out of politics so long as Congress must legislate on the subject," Mellon said. "Our tariff policy has been responsible largely for the development of manufacturing in this country. Our tariff and immigration policies have brought labor the highest real wages in its history."

Mellon declared that as a business Republican he was not in favor of any candidate or party who offer some recently discovered and "miraculous" cure-all for economic ills. He said that the "free silver" cure-all was proposed in 1896 and that now again a cure-all is proposed—the McNary-Haugen principle of farm relief.

UNUSUAL MOONLIGHT PHOTO OF BIG ZEP

This unusual photograph, taken with the aid of a full moon that illuminated the navy air field at Lakehurst, N. J., shows the Graf Zeppelin just before it started on the homeward voyage to Germany. Three hundred men of the ground crew hauled the giant air liner from the hangar. Here you see it, the moonlight scintillating from its silvered sides, as whirring motors sent it tugging impatiently to be off into the night.

SEEK DARROW TO DEFEND SOUTH'S THRILL SLAYERS

Officials Foresee Greatest SOLITARY BANDIT Legal Battle in South-land's History—Two Big Fortunes Back Youths.

Atlanta, Ga., Oct. 30.—Battle lines were being drawn today for one of the greatest legal fights in the southland's history.

On one side, backed by two great fortunes, were an extensive array of counsel.

On the other were Atlanta's prosecutors, who were determined to avenge society for two "thrill" murders.

In the vortex were two college youths, George Harsh and Richard Gallogly, who were indicted late yesterday for the holdup murders of Willard Smith and E. H. Meeks, store clerks. The killings were the culmination of an alleged career of lawlessness and banditry that extended over a period of weeks.

After Darrow

Friends of the two boys intimated today that an effort was being made to secure the services of Clarence Darrow, noted Chicago criminal lawyer, as one of the defense counsel. Darrow defended Leopold and Loeb.

W. S. Howard of the defense staff indicated today that plea of insanity might be advanced in behalf of Harsh, who, police said, confessed to the murders and implicated Gallogly.

"Harsh is undoubtedly mentally abnormal," said Howard.

Many Witnesses

Indications were that a voluminous mass of evidence would be amassed both by the defense and prosecution before the trial starts. It was believed, from the number of witnesses on hand at the Grand Jury probe, and others to be called, the trial would extend over a period of weeks.

However, trial for first degree murder was not the only court battle that started the two scions of wealthy families in the face. Two civil litigations are ahead. First, Mrs. Mary Belle Smith, 19-year-old widow of one of the alleged victims is suing for $100,000 damages, and I. V. Ellis, grocery store manager, is seeking $50,000 for a serious wound during one of the holdups attributed to the youths.

Chief of Detectives A. Lamar Poole declared that Gallogly who at first denied any knowledge of the slayings, had made a "partial oral confession" since, but declined to divulge any details, fearing he would "jeopardize the state's case."

TORAL TRIAL THURSDAY

Mexico City, Oct. 30.—Juan Correa Nieto, prosecuting attorney for the federal district, announced today that the trial of Jose de Leon Toral, self-confessed assassin of President-Elect Alvaro Obregon, and Abessa Maria Concepcion y de La Lita, a Catholic nun, will open on Thursday. The abess was pleaded not guilty. The press and public will be admitted.

By order of the federal military commander at Queretaro, forty Catholics, including a priest, were arrested yesterday charged with holding religious services in violation of the law. A majority of the prisoners are women.

PRISON GUARDS TO USE MACHINE GUNS ON DUTY

Fear Mutiny Among 3,000 Convicts in Illinois Penitentiaries.

Joliet, Ill., Oct. 30.—Fear of a general mutiny among three thousand convicts at the Stateville and Joliet penitentiaries here, today caused Warden Elmer Green to issue several drastic orders designed to prevent the outbreak.

One precaution will be the immediate erection of steel cages in the dining halls to house guards equipped with machine guns, rifles and tear bombs.

It was in the dining halls recently that guards were booed and the general discontent of the prisoners made known. Other precautions ordered by Warden Green include the following:

Extra guards stationed on the walls with machine guns, installation of a lighting system to illuminate the outside of the cell houses at night, the searching of all visitors, and the questioning of several of the convicts said to be ringleaders in the mutinous escape plot.

New York, N. Y., Oct. 30.—Leaving behind him a ringing defiance to the Anti-Saloon League and the Ku Klux Klan to do their worst to him next Tuesday, Governor Al Smith returned to New York today to wind up his campaign for the presidency.

Save for the short trip across the Hudson tomorrow night to Newark, N. J., Gov. Smith has now delivered his last speech of the campaign outside New York. He closes the fight this week on home territory.

ZEPPELIN HALF WAY ACROSS OCEAN; FIGHTS BIG STORMS

Stowaway, Trade Of Clarence Terhune

Wichita, Kan., Oct. 30.—It is not surprising that Clarence Terhune, 19-year-old stowaway on the air liner Graf Zeppelin, was successful in his latest adventure as he is an expert stowaway, according to his sister, Mrs. Luella Woods.

The boy, according to his sister once hid away on the Maipo bound from San Francisco to Hawaii and was not discovered for several days. At another time he got a free ride to Alaska by hiding on a boat bound for the north. But this experience was rather unfortunate as it was the last boat of the season and Young Terhune was forced to spend many months in the frozen north.

He also crashed the gates of the Beeny-Tunney fight, according to Mrs. Woods, when he hid in the upper regions of the Stadium until the crowd gathered.

Young Terhune has been a professional caddy since he was 14 years old and traveled from coast to coast in this capacity, his sister said.

BUT WEATHER CLEARING AS THE DAY ADVANCES

Many Messages Picked Up During the Day—Sighted by Atlantic Steamers—Eckener Reports "All's Well," as He Steers Northward to Escape Storms Reported From the Irish Coast—Now In Direct Communication With European Radio Stations—May Sight Land About Noon Tomorrow.

The Graf Zeppelin, huge transoceanic air liner, today was bucking headwinds over the North Atlantic and making slow progress, on its return flight from Lakehurst to Friedrichshafen, according to word flashed from ships at sea to International News Service.

According to present indications the airship will not sight the coast of Ireland until about noon tomorrow, and will not reach its home port until Thursday.

The long over-water journey of the Zeppelin was plotted through messages from the S. S. Ascania and the S. S. American Banker, and from points in Newfoundland, Nova Scotia and Europe.

The report from the Ascania stated that she was in communication with the Graf at 7 a. m. (E. S. T.) at a point about one-third of the way across the Atlantic. The ship gave its position as 53:22 North, 42:03 West.

Later the American Banker reported by radio that the air liner passed over her at 10:40 a. m. E. S. T., at 52:30 North, 37:40 West, headed east northeast.

This indicated that the Zeppelin was not keeping up to its intended schedule.

However, other reports stated that later in the day the Graf reached an area where she would benefit by favorable tail winds, thus increasing her speed considerably.

Berlin, Oct. 30.—The Graf Zeppelin entered an area of good weather today after a storm of cyclonic proportions which lasted through Monday afternoon and last night, according to a copyrighted message filed from the airship at 10:30 a. m. Eastern Standard Time, by Rolf Brandt, correspondent of Lokalanzeiger, who is a passenger. At that time the Graf had covered one-third of the ocean route and a half of the total trip from Lakehurst, N. J., to Germany.

PASSES OVER SHOP

Aboard S. S. American Banker. At Sea, Oct. 30.—(By Radio via Chatham, Mass. Station to International News Service)—The Graf Zeppelin passed over this ship at 3:40 p. m. G. M. T. (10:40 a. m. Eastern Standard Time) today, heading east north east. The position of the American Banker when the Zeppelin nosed into sight was 52:30 North 37:40 West.

The position given by the S. S. American Banker indicates that the Zeppelin is still some 1,050 miles from the coast of Ireland, and is not making fast time. At the present rate of speed it is probable that the air liner will not sight land much before noon tomorrow, unless there is a decided change in the weather for the better.

Although the message from the steamer to International News Service, did not state the weather conditions, it was regarded as probable that the Zeppelin was bucking headwinds which greatly retarded its speed.

RESULT OF BET

St. Louis, Oct. 30.—Clarence Terhune, the adventurous 19-year-old St. Louis youth who "crashed" the gate of the Graf Zeppelin and is now washing dishes aboard the big airship as the result of a bet with his brother-in-law, G. N. Hall.

This was revealed today by Clarence's sister, Mrs. G. N. Hall, Clarence until a few months ago had lived with the Halls at 2922 North Union Boulevard. It was this address that the youth gave when found on the Graf.

"The bet was a big joke of course," Mrs. Hall told newspaper reporters. "Clarence made it long before the big Zeppelin came to this country. 'How much do you want to bet that I can't crash my way aboard the big ship,' Clarence asked George, my husband."

"George laughed. He thought Clarence was fooling. They didn't either of them put up anything. But I guess Clarence must have taken it pretty seriously."

TALKS WITH SHIP

Aboard S. S. Ascania. At Sea, Oct. 30.—(Via Chatham, Mass. Radio Station to International News Service)—The Ascania was in wireless communication with the Graf Zeppelin at noon, G. M. T. (7 a. m. E. S. T.), but the airship was not sighted. At that time the Ascania's position was 53:22 North and 42:03 West. The signals were strong abeam the liner. The weather was fine with a strong southerly wind.

PRIVATE MESSAGE

Berlin, Oct. 30.—A private radio message from the Graf Zeppelin reported picked up here today indicated that the dirigible was about 250 miles northeast of Cape Race, N. F., at 10 p. m. (E. S. T.) last night, on its return flight from

RECORD BREAKING VOTE MAY DELAY THE VERDICT

Unless There is a Landslide, the Result May Not Be Known Until Wednesday Morning.

Washington, Oct. 30.—Americans by the millions will troop to the polls a week from today to select a new president.

Whatever the outcome it is certain that this year's election will be a record breaker. Estimates of the total vote range from 30,000,000 to 35,000,000. The total in 1924 was 29,033,856; in 1920, 26,705,346.

The size of the vote not only is perplexing to party leaders in forecasting the result, but it also may cause considerable delay in determining the verdict. Reports from many sections of the country indicate the balloting booths will be swamped and the returns will be correspondingly slow in coming in. Unless there is a landslide either to Herbert Hoover or Gov. Al Smith, the result may be in doubt until late Wednesday.

Much Interest

Few campaigns have aroused such public interest as this one. The issues have been fairly well drawn and partisanship feeling has been strong.

The Republicans have sought a continuance of power chiefly on the issue of prosperity and the record of the present administration. Smith has described the prosperity clause as "State Socialism."

Prohibition, agriculture and water power have become the primary controversial issues of the closing days and this has been so largely because Hoover characterized the Democratic stand on these questions as "State Socialism."

Sharp Replies

Smith seized the opportunity for a series of sharp replies.

In a finishing flourish Gov. Smith will close in New York, home among the people who kept him in the governor's mansion at Albany for four terms.

Hoover, starting Thursday, will travel across the country to California for a final speech on election eve and to vote. Enroute he will deliver a number of short speeches, and a set address in St. Louis on Monday.

Both concluding speeches will be broadcast over a nation-wide radio hookup.

As usual, both parties are highly confident of the outcome, but impartial observers predict the election will be the closest in years.

PICKS ARNOTT AS MODERATOR ELECTION DAY

Registrar R. N. Veitch Wins Toss for Official—New Voting Lists Ready; G. O. P. Meeting Tonight.

Republican Registrar of Voters Robert N. Veitch today announced that Judge Alexander Arnott will be moderator at the polls here on Presidential election day, November 6. Registrars Veitch and Louis T. Brown tossed a coin for the appointment, Veitch winning. Judge Arnott, who is a Republican, is remaining in town this fall so that he can be here for the election. He generally leaves earlier than this for his summer home in St. Petersburg, Florida.

The new voting lists completely revised and bearing the names of this year's new voters were completed by the printer this afternoon. The lists bear the names of 9,200 voters. Already workers in both the Republican and Democratic parties have asked for copies of the voting lists with which to prepare their plans for getting out a big vote here.

Instruction Machines.

Two voting machines for the instruction of voters will be set up and ready on Friday and Saturday of this week. Attendants will be at these machines day and night to instruct in their use. The exact hours for machine voting instruction will be announced later.

The Republican town committee will hold a meeting tonight in Judge William S. Hyde's probate office in the Municipal building to plan a final drive for the Republican ticket. Republican leaders hope to record a 2 1/2 to 1 victory for the Republican party in Manchester and they plan to exert every effort to attain that mark on Election day.

The Mauretania operator reported that the Zeppelin was believed to be about fifty miles away to the northward. A moderate southwest gale was blowing, but the Zeppelin reported all well aboard.

Nolde had made reservations to Europe on an ocean liner but at

LOGIC AND FACT

There is so much of acrimony and heat in the present political campaign that it is refreshing to find Chairman Wood of the Republican National Congressional Committee saying an important part of the tariff is a good-naturedly to be done in a statement just issued.

"Governor Smith," he points out, "declares that he pledges himself and his party to write no tariff that will hurt business. We did not assume that when our Democratic friends pass a tariff law they intend to hurt business and produce armies of the unemployed. They are wrong in their theories of the tariff, however, and their legislation produces that result, regardless of their good intentions."

It seems to us that in these last days before the election there is something further to be said along this line.

It is unquestionably a fact that there are a great many people in the United States whose economic and ethical senses are antagonistic to the theory of a protective tariff, and this has made, in the past Democrats of most of them. Only the intolerant will deny that there is considerable valid argument on their side of theoretical tariff discussion.

Let us even grant for the moment that the anti-protectors have the better of the debate—that the weight of argument from the sum of all viewpoints, ethical, moral, economic and international-political, is against the protective tariff. There remains a substantial reality which still must be taken into account unless we are all to go to smash together. It is the fact that the argument against the protective tariff is like an argument against the Mississippi floods of last year—it is by far too late.

The time for America to have set its face against the protective tariff policy, if ever, was a hundred and thirty-nine years ago, when the first protective tariff act was passed in 1789; or possibly at the time of the adoption of the tariff bill of 1816, when the theory of tariff protection for American infant industries got into full swing.

Because for considerably more than a century the development of the industries of the United States has been predicated on the theory of their protection against cheaper production abroad; we have grown from small beginnings to the greatest industrial country in the world; under that system, and to go back and start over again, on any other basis, would involve the complete destruction of the edifice which we have built in order to make possible the building of another—possibly better—edifice in its place.

Now it may quite well be that, if we had never yielded to the temptation to artificially foster industries in this country by employing the device of the protective tariff, we might have a happier and wholesomely civilized than we now have in this country. As to that, anyone's guess is as good as anyone's else. But the fact remains that we have erected a nation on the economic foundation of a protective tariff. And if we undermine the protective tariff we spill the whole thing into a pile of ruins.

Tariff reformers, beguiled by the loss of their theories, fall to grasp the practical difficulties in the way of application of the logic. Obsessed by a certainty that their ideas are fundamentally right, they forget that they cannot build up an economic state based on them without first clearing the ground of an already existing economic state founded on an opposite set of ideas; and that to clear the ground of the second state would be to set up a condition of chaos.

A great many millions of American men, women and children are living today on the earnings of protected industry. Destroy the protection and you destroy the industry. Destroy the industry and you destroy the livelihood of these scores of millions of human beings.

It is rather futile to assure these people that the system under which they are living is an artificial one, a scientifically mistaken one—no matter if you be right a dozen times over. Because under it they are living, and are reasonably secure in their living, and because without that system, while waiting for some other system to be evolved and perfected, they would starve to death and be in their graves for generations before the new structure of civilization could be built from the ground up.

It is of infinitely less concern to the people of this country whether protection of American industry is the best of all conceivable economic systems than it is to support a system which, sound or otherwise, has operated to give them good homes, comforts and luxuries, and without which they would not be able to keep breath in their bodies—which, if it were to be destroyed, would leave them and their helpless refugees without hope of relief for two or three hundred years after they were dead.

When the Democratic friends tell you that the protective tariff is all wrong, ask them what provision they propose to make for you during the several lifetimes it would take to put something adequate in its place.

"IGNORANT" PREACHERS

One wonders whether William Douglas Mackenzie, president of the Hartford Theological Seminary, was speaking by the book or at large when he made the statement, at the convocation exercises at Berkeley Divinity School yesterday, that a majority of the ministers who preach to the American people have had no college or seminary education.

No doubt the Gospel is preached by many a Negro minister who has never attended a college or seminary. No doubt in the hills of Tennessee and Kentucky, in the back counties of Georgia and Alabama, in the Mississippi swamps and in other occasional isolated regions of the country there are still numerous old-time preachers whose equipment consists largely of a "call" to spread the Word of God. But it seems difficult to believe that, on the whole, the ministry of this land is for the major part in the hands of men not especially educated for it. Still, of course, Dr. Mackenzie should know and we must take his word for it, if he has been correctly quoted.

There is one point, however, on which it is perhaps not necessary to accept the word of Dr. Mackenzie or anybody else. That point is the one introduced when he said: "We want a religion that is not preached by ignorant men."

It is impossible to refrain from suggesting that the greatest Teacher of all was a graduate of the carpenter's bench and never heard of a university or a theological seminary. While the assumption that the lack of a sheepskin must necessarily stamp a man or woman as "ignorant," or the possession of one guarantees his erudition and intellectuality is open to debate.

RELATED

In his speech at Baltimore last night Governor Smith devoted himself largely to three topics—water-power, foreign relations and the Ku Klux Klan. Dealing with the former he continued to thump the man of straw that he erected at Boston by declaring that Herbert Hoover proposed to turn the national power resources over to private interests for private profit—ignoring the fact that Mr. Hoover has definitely pledged himself that no interest of the people shall suffer in any such way. Dealing with foreign relations he said in effect: "There is no hard and fast rule in these matters but I am a good fellow and you can trust me to get along with them all." These, of course, with the exception of the declaration that there is "no hard and fast rule," were not his pro-

FACTS ABOUT CONNECTICUT
Compiled by the CONNECTICUT CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

(190) Connecticut Forest Products.

Less than one-fourth of the amount of lumber that was sawed in Connecticut 20 years ago is being cut from our forests today. In 1909 when the lumber production in Connecticut reached its maximum, 429 saw mills made 158,371,000 board feet of lumber. By 1925 the number of mills had been reduced to 138 and the amount of lumber cut to 41,650,000 board feet.

Hardwood produces the greatest amount of lumber in Connecticut. In 1925, 31,248,000 board feet were hardwood and 10,407,000 board feet were soft woods. The total production of 41,655,000 board feet for 1925 is an average production of 23 board feet per acre for our 1,800,000 acres of woodland.

Connecticut ranks about 40th in the amount of lumber produced. In 1925 Washington led all states, having produced almost one-fifth of the total of 38,338,641,000 board feet for the entire United States. Oregon was second. Eleven other states each produce more than 1,000,000,000 feet annually.

The decline in the amount of lumber cut in Connecticut is largely due to the death of the chestnut through a fungus imported from Asia in about 1905, the disease having killed most of the trees by 1915. From 1904 to 1925 inclusive, 841,702,000 board feet of chestnut were sawed in Connecticut. During the same 22 years, 389,697,000 board feet of oak and 324,999,000 board feet of white pine were cut.

There were 65 mills in Connecticut in 1925 with an annual production valued at more than $5,000 each. These establishments employed approximately 150 persons who received more than $400,000 in salaries and wages. The cost of the materials used by these establishments was $424,000. The productions were valued at $1,183,647 and the value added by manufacture was $749,644.

These words but they might as well have been.

Concerning the Ku Klux Klan the Governor, for reasons of his own, omitted to refer to the fact that the Klan was born in the Democratic South, of Democratic parentage, has been fostered in that region far and away beyond any encouragement it has received elsewhere, and draws its membership, in bulk, from members of his own party below the Mason and Dixon line.

Only once did Governor Smith arise to anything like heights in last night's speech and that was when he said, "I want no support because of my religious belief. I repeat my firm adherence to the American doctrine of absolute separation of church and state."

The only trouble with this declaration is that it does not elicit with his Oklahoma speech, which, if it did not bid for the support of every member of his religious faith, was susceptible of that interpretation, for it represented all opposition to his candidacy as being predicated on religious prejudice.

Governor Smith's position in this connection at Baltimore is immeasurably more dignified, even though it was largely contradicted by his attempts to link the Klan and the Republican party, than his attitude at Oklahoma. It comes, however, rather belatedly to be at all effective.

PANSIK

Theodore Pansik came to America from Russia eight years ago. He has never been naturalized. He has been too busy making money. He has had a place in Great Neck, L. I., with an imitation cigar store in front and a barroom in back. Pansik found the United States a great country. The racketeers would sell him double-cooked alcohol for $6.50 a gallon. Adding an equal amount of water he had a product that netted him $3.25 a gallon, plus the insignificant cost of a little prune juice and coloring matter. Customers paid him 25 cents a drink for the stuff. There are at least eighty drinks of it in a gallon. That makes $20 a gallon that Pansik was getting for his $3.25 hooch.

Mike Kullah, a prosperous hostess, was a recent customer of Theodore. He stood up to Pansik's bar for six hours, talking to Theodore and drinking hooch at a quarter a jolt. Then he dropped dead. That's how Pansik came to be known about outside his own Great Neck neighborhood.

Pansik represents the "new immigration." He is one of those who would have some job to get into this country, legally, under the present immigration laws with the quotas based on "a census thirty-eight years old," as Governor Smith puts it. He is a fair representative of the kind of immigration which would come in, in preference to Irish, English, German and Scandinavian immigrants, if the quotas were amended according to the census of 1910 or 1920, which is the basis for which so many of Governor Smith's alien friends in New York are working.

Such reports from Alabama are typical of those from other southern states. Regular Democrats were given ample time to ameliorate the effects of the "whispering campaign." Southern senators, governors and other trusted leaders have almost unanimously come to bat for the national ticket, and there have been few major defections among the Democrats.

In Georgia Bishop Chandler's assertion that the churches should keep out of politics undoubtedly helped Smith, and the Klan appears to have failed to resuscitate itself on the Smith issue. The defeat of ex-Congressman Upshaw, a bolter, in the primaries, was regarded as a significant straw in the wind. The anti-Smith movement is virtually leaderless and it is reported that even Ben Davis, colored Republican and national politician, refuses to co-operate in the "whispering campaign" waged by the bolters. The state seems sure for Smith.

Republican National Chairman Work has conceded Texas to Smith. There has been plenty of bolting in the Lone Star State, but since Governor Dan Moody came out in support of the ticket Democrats have considered it only a case of a reduced majority.

There has never been much question about Louisiana.

Mississippi also is regarded as a sure Smith bet, although the Republican vote is expected to be much larger than before.

In Florida there have been evidences of strong Republican efforts and Florida is perhaps more likely to go Republican than any of the states previously mentioned in this story. At one time there was some worry among regular Democratic leaders, but it appears to have disappeared.

A STRONG SPINE

The back bone is considered by many anatomists as the most important structural part of the body. To the thirty-three bones of the spinal column are attached the skull, the ribs, the pelvis and, indirectly, the bones of the legs and arms. The spine also forms a safe canal for the protection of the delicate spinal cord and between each two vertebrae of the spine there emanate two sets of spinal nerves.

Because of the normal curves of the spine, and because of the cartilage separating each section of the bone, the joints of walking, running and jumping are largely absorbed and prevented from reaching the brain.

From this brief description you will understand what an important relation a strong spine has to health. The powerful muscles attached to the spine must be strong, elastic and evenly balanced, one side with the other.

The old expression, "plenty of backbone" implied in a crude way the value of a strong spinal column. People with strong spines and necks are usually independent in spirit, self-reliant and courageous. A spinal irritation produces a disastrous nervous drainage which may lead to serious disorders.

The only method of strengthening the spine is through using bending and limbering exercises. The spinal column not only contains nerves and the spinal cord, but small arteries and veins. A stiff spine means that the blood circulation of the spinal cord is impeded.

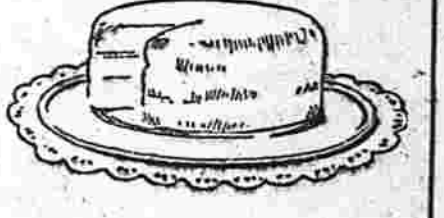

It is a well known fact among diagnosticians that an irritation of an internal organ, such as the stomach or liver, is also indicated by an irritation at the spinal column.

Many cases of headache are only reflex pains from internal congestion, and there is no doubt that this process is frequently reversed—that pressure upon the nerves and blood vessels coming out of the spinal column will produce disease tendencies in the organs supplied by those nerves. This fact has had you of your trouble.

Are These Vegetables Starchy?

Question: Bear writes: "I would appreciate your opinion regarding the following vegetables, especially as to their starchy content: varieties of summer squash, eggplant and French artichoke."

Answer: The amount of starch contained in these vegetables is so small that they may be classed as non-starchy vegetables. This is not true of the Jerusalem or root artichoke, however.

Pimples

Question: Jack C. writes: "I have pimples on my face. Can you do anything for me? I drink about fifteen glasses of milk a day, and take epsom salts once a week. Besides this, I scrub my face every night with soap."

Answer: The pimples are caused more by intestinal uncleanness than from not washing the face often enough. The salts will help temporarily but you must overcome intestinal putrefaction and constipation. The excessive fat from so much milk will only make your trouble worse. Write again, giving me your full name and address on a large, stamped envelope, and I will send you a special treatise on the dietetic cure of acne.

IN NEW YORK

New York, Oct. 30—Those gentlemen of the nobility who wear their titles on their sleeves, even if the cuffs are a bit frayed, are to be found almost anywhere in Manhattan.

Particularly prevalent are Russians of the gentility, who once served the czar and saved their necks by making their way out.

One of the czar's generals is quite likely to be opening your taxicab door, or bowing you into an atmospheric cafe on the East Side, or waiting on your table, or standing guard at the speakeasy door.

In one of the theaters there now appears as leader of an orchestra one Count Berni Vici. He got the bright idea of organizing a lot of attractive girls into a jazz band, which recently has become an important Broadway attraction.

Last winter a "Hindu noble" appeared in Greenwich Village, all be-turbaned and be-jeweled. He started a mystic cult and read poetry. A few weeks ago someone recognized him as a man named Singer from Brooklyn. He had taken the disguise largely as a joke, but got away with it so well that he kept up the deception.

Four alleged members of European royalty have appeared in high-class honky-tonks as piano players, and any number have taken stage jobs. One was recognized in a music show chorus recently.

And there's the hard-boiled gal who, taken by surprise, gasps, "Well, you could knock me over with a feather."

A friend tells me he met one of those marathons who danced for days and days and days at Madison Square Garden last winter. The marathoner was having difficulty getting a taxicab because of a traffic jam.

"Well, it's nearly 10 blocks," said the youth who had danced and danced for days.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Poor Hearing

Question: Teddy O. writes: "From lying on my right side my ear seems to close up, and again it will seem to open. The hearing is not good in that ear. Would sleeping on that ear cause that, and what could I do?"

Answer: It may be that sleeping on your right side tends to close the eustachian tube because it can more easily fill with catarrhal mucus in that position. Living on a diet comparatively free from starches, sugars and fats should bring about a change in the over-production of catarrhal mucus and relieve those nerves. This fact has had you of your trouble.

SPLENDID PROGRAM

AT STATE TOMORROW

Two Features and Gift Night Ideal Hallowe'en Bill.

In keeping with the Hallowe'en atmosphere, the management of the State theater is presenting a selected program for tomorrow only, which will consist of two feature film attractions, a variety of interesting shorter subjects, and another of the weekly Merchants and State Theater Gift Night events.

The first film feature again brings to the fore the famous and magnetic personality of Hobart Bosworth, eminent character actor, who has the leading characterization in "After the Storm," Columbia's new picture, which is adapted from a well known story by Will M. Ritchey.

"After the Storm," is a powerful and stirring melodramatic accomplishment that has all the essential qualities to please even the most particular of movie fans. Its theme is gripping and its action moves swiftly, cleverly interspersed with hair-raising thrills and a sweet love romance.

Bosworth is given excellent support by Eugenia Gilbert, Charles Delaney and Wade Boteler. George B. Seltz directed.

No picture show is complete without laughs. Therefore, this is the time to mention that Harry Langdon in "Heart Trouble," will be the companion feature for tomorrow.

"Heart Trouble" is one of those hilarious pictures that keeps an audience howling until the final fadeout, and this vehicle is said to be Langdon's best, so Manchester film fans know what to expect.

Tonight marks the final showings of "King of Kings," the screen masterpiece that has been thrilling local audiences beyond all expectations since its premier.

U. S. HISTORIANS TO HOLD FORUM AT INDIANAPOLIS

Indianapolis.—Unsolved problems of history will be discussed by leading scholars at a series of forums at the forty-third annual meeting of the American Historical Association to be held here December 28, 29 and 31.

More than 700 historians, representing schools, colleges, universities and learned societies in all parts of the country will attend. Public health, and political conditions in the South will be chief themes.

The Committee on History and Other Social Studies in the Schools will consider objectives to serve as guides for the preparation of texts. Among the objectives listed is "tolerance toward religious, national, and social." The announcement added:

Know Other Races
"Acquaintance with and understanding of other races, religions, nations, and social groups is believed to contribute toward this end."

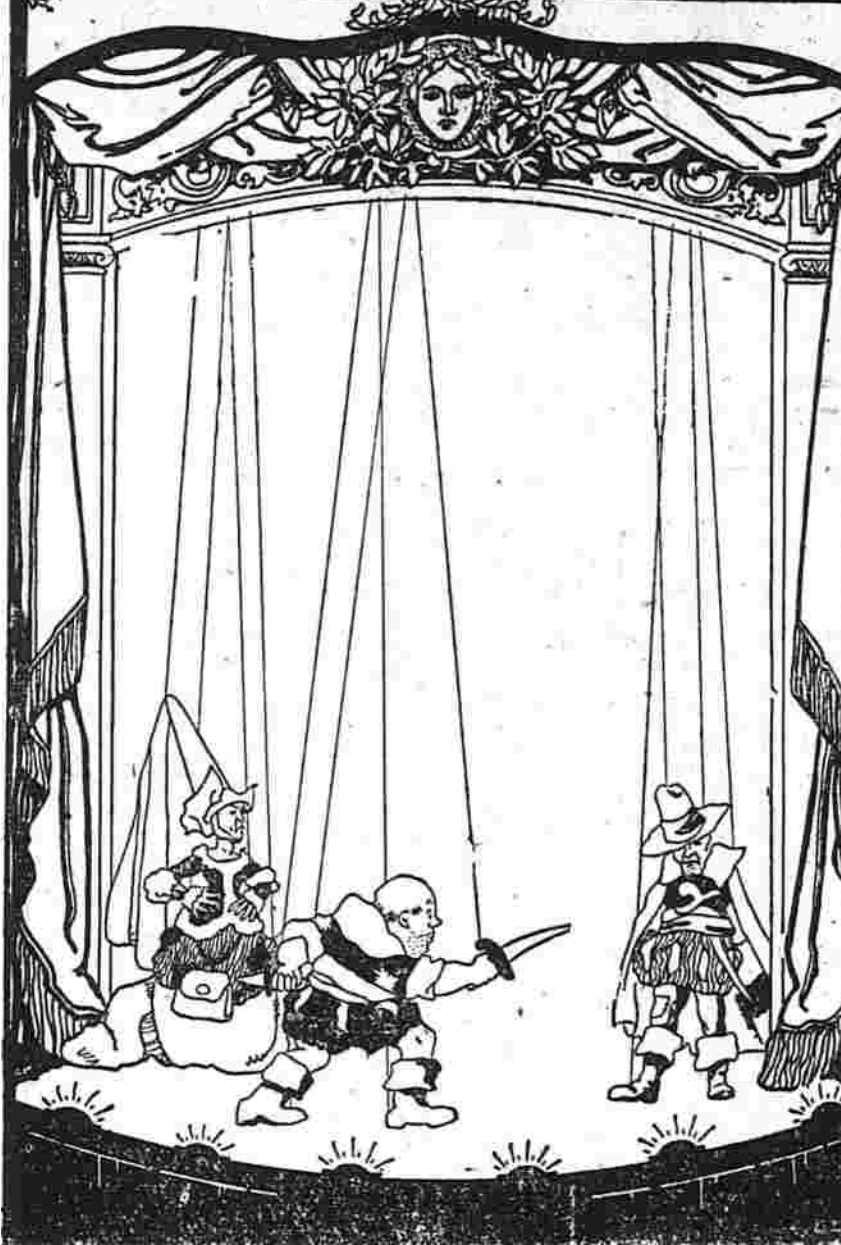

"Objectives," it was explained, is the term now in general use in the schools for the "aims and values" of an earlier day.

At a sectional meeting Prof. Frank Mayo Anderson of Dartmouth College will present for debate a problem involving the identification of the author of the anonymous "Diary of a Public Man," published in the "North American Review" in 1873.

Prof. Anderson's paper will be entitled "Who Wrote the 'Diary of a Public Man'?" Amos Kendall, Henry W. H. Wood, or X?"

"Three or four other historians who have worked upon this problem of identification," the announcement said, "will open the discussion, at which it is hoped progress may be made toward a definite conclusion of this question."

AT HIGH SCHOOL HALL TONIGHT

Circus clowns, acrobats who swing over bars, jugglers who perform almost unbelievable tricks; dancers, singers, old fashioned minstrels, all these and many others will be seen here tonight in High school assembly hall when the Manhattan Marionettes appear. There are more than thirty dolls, operated by 800 strings. There are seven artistic scenes, incidental music and many other delightful features. The Manhattan Marionettes are the last word in puppeteering and the program is one of the highest artistry and exquisite charm for young and old.

CHICAGO MURDER
Chicago, Oct. 30.—An unidentified man was shot and killed early today as he ran down Calumet street in a vain effort to escape his assailant. The murderer's identity is being sought by the police.

Police are seeking the identity of the slain man in the belief that the killing has some connection with the recent gangster shootings on the south side.

HEADS OIL CO.
New York, Oct. 30.—Arthur W. Cutten, of Chicago, was elected today to the board of directors of the Sinclair Consolidated Oil Corporation at a meeting of that body here today.

Mr. Cutten fills the vacancy created by the resignation of P. W. Thirtle, comptroller, who was elected a vice-president of the company.

With stops scheduled in Maryland, West Virginia, Kentucky, Indiana, Missouri, Kansas, Colorado, Utah, and Nevada, he will reach his California home late next Monday afternoon. # QUESTIONS ON VOTING SWAMP ALLING'S OFFICE

Want to Know What to Do if Polls Close While Voters Are Outside.

Hartford, Conn., Oct. 30.—The opinion of Benjamin W. Alling, attorney-general, that people standing in line at a voting place when the time comes for closing the polls cannot vote, today caused a swarm of inquiries to pour in upon the attorney-general's office.

Voting officials in all parts of the state want to know if the ruling applies to people who are inside the voting place when the closing hour comes, or if it means those who happen to be outside the building. The attorney-general, absent from the capital today, is expected to make a supplementary ruling when he returns.

MAY BREAK ALL RECORDS
When Georgia Tech and Georgia meet in December for their annual game all southern attendance records are expected to be broken.

Interesting developments in the manufacture of lightning may be expected soon. Chicago gangsters are said to be disgusted with the old-fashioned bombs.

SEE MONTH'S TRIAL IN WATERBURY CASE

Waterbury, Conn., Oct. 30.—Three of the state's fifty-eight witnesses were on the stand before Judge Carl Foster and a Superior Court jury today when the trial of Louis M. Leopold, furniture merchant, charged with the deaths of two boys in the Baldwin street fire of last February, was resumed. Peter M. Kennedy, treasurer of the Merchants Trust Co. testified of the foreclosure that was later granted. He also told of the bank asking more insurance on the property prior to the fire.

Isaac Newell, of West Hartford, and Harry Jonquist, of Waterbury, chemists, told of analyzing contents of two cans found at the scene of the fire. One had contained gasoline and the other water, the chemists declared. They were cross-examined this afternoon.

The Leopold trial today seemed to have a month ahead of it. The state has ten more witnesses, and the defense will then put on seventy-five, according to attorneys for either side.

RUSSIAN COSSACKS AND JUGOSLAV CITIZENS IN A BATTLE AT ZAGREB

Berlin.—A pitched battle between Russian cossacks and the civilian population was fought at Zagreb, Yugoslavia.

The cossacks formerly belonged to the army of General Wrangel, who tried to overthrow the Bolsheviks. Now they belong to a circus at which they exhibit their riding skill.

To advertise the circus they rode through Zagreb's streets in full uniform, with the czar's banner at their head, while their band played the old Russian national anthem. Communist spectators objected and tried to tear the banner to the ground. The cossacks drew their swords and stormed the crowd as they had done on the Russia of the Czars.

HAWAIIANS AT DAYTON

Eight Hawaiians are on the football team at Dayton University this year. Swart, a back, is one of the best in the country.

Perhaps what is lacking in solving the traffic problem these days is a little horse sense.

ANOTHER RED LEADER IS TO BE THROWN OUT

Berlin, Oct. 30.—Ernst Thaelmann, titular head of the German Communist Party, president of the Red Front Fighters League—the "Red Army" of Germany—and Von Hindenburg's rival in the presidential election of 1925, has been de-throned.

He has been suspended by orders of the Moscow executive committee of the Communist party, which ordered to proceed to Moscow to defend himself personally against charges that he tried to cover up corruption within the party.

Thaelmann is the fifth leader of the German Communist party to be de-throned by Moscow. Others were Ruth Fischer, noted woman political leader; the Herren Maslow, Brandler, and Thalheimer.

All the others, however, were deposed because they refused to follow the changing directions from Moscow. Thaelmann is the first to be ousted for non-political reasons.

The specific charge against Thaelmann is that he knew about the embezzlement of some $500 of party money by his friend, Wittorf, of Hamburg, and tried to cover it up. The Socialist papers, which are the greatest rivals of the Communists, charge that Thaelmann is more intimately involved in the alleged embezzlement.

Communists point to the de-thronement of Thaelmann as proof that their party discipline is excellent and that justice within their ranks is no respecter of persons.

Right Think

1928 By
© NEA Service Inc. RUTH DELWEY GROVES AUTHOR OF "WHEN A GIRL LOVES LOVE FOR TWO"

All through the dinner Jerry tried to keep her mind on her avowed purpose in life.

THIS HAS HAPPENED
JERRY RAY decides that love is a delusion and makes up her mind to marry for money. She works in a store and denies herself petty luxuries to save for a vacation at Atlantic City. But she is stunned by the theft of her money the night before her departure. Nothing remains but to go camping with her roommate MYRTLE on the north shore of Long Island.

Their camp is wrecked the first evening when an airplane owned by young ALESTER CARSTAIRS crashes into it. The others escape injury but Jerry is picked up unconscious by DAN HARVEY, the pilot. Alester drives Jerry to the doctor who finds her injury is not serious.

On the way back, Alester stops at an inn for dinner and is amused when Jerry refuses a drink. He introduces her to LEONTINE, the LEBAUVY, who invites them to her birthday party. Alester showers attentions upon Jerry and tells her that he loves her. But he does not ask her to marry him, and Jerry is puzzled about his motives and those of Dan Harvey, who had remained aloof although she fancied that he loved her.

The vacation is over and Jerry is packing for the return to the city when Dan comes to say goodbye.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XI
Dan was changed. Jerry noticed it at once. His unshakable calm seemed shaken at last. But she saw also that it had not given way to anything approaching Alester's ease of manner. There was a suggestion of mental strain etched into his features; and she looked at her with an expression that reminded Jerry, of the first time she saw him—when she opened her eyes after the crash and found her head pillowed in the crook of his strong arm.

"Hello," she said, outwardly casual but aware that his presence had stirred her. "Where have you been?" It was said in a light vein of banter but she waited eagerly for an answer.

"Busy," Dan said disappointingly. "So he wasn't going to be any more communicative than usual."

"Well, you almost missed us; we're leaving in a little while."

"Yes, I know," Dan said, and Jerry was sure she detected a note of relief in his voice. "I'd like to ask if I could drive you to town."

In a way it was a relief not to have to pretend and beat around the bush as you did with so many boys. Usually if you said yes right out they thought they had you. Jerry was not so sure of her own wisdom.

Jerry was not sorry for the decision she reached. The drive to the city in spite of the terrific jams at crossroads and on the Queensboro Bridge, was more pleasant than she had anticipated. Dan seemed to have left his forbidding gruffness behind.

Jerry would have been astonished had she been able to read his mind and to know how happy he was to be taking her away from Alester Carstairs's vicinity.

And still more startling to her would have been the story Dan could have told of the session he had had with Alester, and the promise he had wrung from his employer to "pick on some girl who was out to be picked on."

After this stormy meeting Dan had ceased to make a watchdog of himself. He believed that Alester would not seek Jerry in New York.

When they arrived at Jerry's rooming house Jerry noticed that Dan kept his eyes fixed on the number over the door. Memorizing it probably. He carried her suitcases up the dark stairs, but Jerry did not ask him into her room. It wasn't allowed, yet Jerry did not fret about it for in many ways she was strictly conventional.

They stood a moment outside Jerry's open door after Dan had put down the suitcases just inside the threshold. Jerry put out her hand to say good night. Dan took it, pressed it gently, and Jerry thrilled at the feel of his strong fingers. Alester's hand was soft, she remembered.

"Come out to dinner with me," Dan said suddenly, and Jerry felt sure that he was reluctant to leave her. It was as though his invitation was a suggestion of mental strain etched into his features; and she looked at her with an expression that reminded Jerry, of the first time she saw him—when she opened her eyes after the crash and found her head pillowed in the crook of his strong arm.

"Hello," she said, outwardly casual but aware that his presence had stirred her. "Where have you been?" It was said in a light vein of banter but she waited eagerly for an answer.

"Busy," Dan said disappointingly. "So he wasn't going to be any more communicative than usual."

If Dan hadn't, Jerry smiled wanly. She thought of the crash that had changed her world. Fallen was right. But would it do her any good?

Perhaps she wasn't smart enough for Alester. He admired Leontine. She knew that. And Leontine was smart. Jerry looked at herself in the mirror. She had put on her prettiest frock to dine with Dan but she realized that it lacked something.

It wasn't chic in that distinctly Parisian way that gave class to Leontine's clothes. And Leontine had the proper accessories—odd things to match her exotic beauty.

But thoughts of Alester and Leontine could not survive in competition with her thoughts of Dan. The first day back at Fan's Jerry found herself thinking more of the past than of the future. The continuity of her thoughts might have been unbroken had not a necessity of the present thrust itself upon her attention. She must consider what she would wear at Leontine's party. It was only two days distant now—on Friday. And this was Wednesday.

Alester had come to see her on Tuesday night to remind her of the affair. He had again brought up the subject of an evening gown for her. Jerry detoured. She had heard her brother say once that men didn't respect girls they could buy clothes for. Alester had to respect her. Jerry told herself fiercely.

"I'm getting a new dress," she told him proudly and even looked him straight in the eye.

After this declaration of independence she faced a real problem. Alester might be sore, she feared, if she made him ashamed of her appearance after refusing his aid.

Altogether it had been a bad day for her. But by night she had thought of a solution that was so simple she wondered why it hadn't occurred to her before. She had to wait until Myrtle came in from the movies, though, before she could be sure she wasn't taking anything for granted.

"Listen, Myrtle," she cried excitedly as soon as her roommate opened the door. "I want to redress some of that money Alester gave you. If I don't have a decent dress for Miss Lebaudy's party I can't go. I'll pay it back a little each week like I saved that money for Atlantic City!"

She looked expectantly at her friend. And Myrtle's face slowly took on an expression that killed her hopes.

UNEASY LIES THE HEAD THAT WEARS A FROWN

By NINON
The frowning girl gathers no beauty prizes. Sometimes, to be sure, one frowns because her eyes are weak. She should see a specialist immediately. For no one can afford to give the impression of crossness just because she needs glasses or eye exercises.

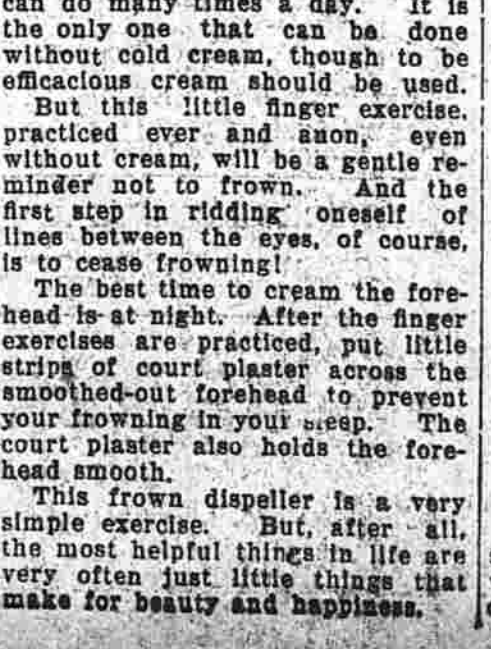

With firm, smooth strokes of your fingers, erase those frowns!

It is worry. Or it may be just petulance!
A frown cannot be brushed lightly aside by the sweep of a hand. But if all the little ingrowing lines are given care immediately and finger exercises practiced all over their surfaces, chances are that they will grow discouraged and disappear.

Can Be Erased
The finger exercises for frowns require the use of the middle fingers and the thumbs. With the thumbs you hold your head firmly while you erase the frowns with the middle finger.

DEVILLED EGGS
Devilled eggs served with capers as an appetizer before dinners, are twice as attractive if you put the mixed yolks through the pastry tube in fancy patterns.

YOUR CHILDREN

by Olive Roberts Barton

One of the causes of lowered efficiency, we know, is lack of emotional control.

If one is angry, jealous, or hating someone actively, he cannot work well. Other things, such as over-excitement, worry, shame, fear, or even a more pleasant sensation such as intense love will undermine not only work, but mental processes and health.

A temperamental person with a half-developed nervous system, jumping from the extremes of happiness one day to the depths of despair the next, or lost in an abyss of hate or other emotion, is seldom well. Moreover his work is likely to be erratic and none too dependable.

The daily job of being a parent requires that mentally, morally and physically, he be efficient. But he cannot be efficient if he loses emotional control.

It is easy, of course to tell fathers and mothers never to get angry or overcome their dislikes and hatreds, to banish discontent. But it is a fact that parents can do a great deal of harm to children by lack of emotional control in themselves.

Worry, we cannot get away from so easily. But half the time we worry about things that are not necessary. For one thing we worry too much about what other people will think. Besides, half our worries are not worries, but longings.

Self control, an even disposition, liking people, ceasing to be envious of other people's luck, not getting foolishly worked up over trifles—all these things will make home happier and the care of the children easier.

In other words, the best parents are those who are satisfied and happy, and like Emerson's unforgettable motto, are those who "avoid excessive joy and complaining grief."

Children instinctively respect the mother or father who refuses to give way to petty emotions. If, however, obedience will follow much more readily in the wake of this respect.

Makes Life Sweeter

Children's stomachs sour, and need an anti-acid. Keep their systems sweet with Phillips Milk of Magnesia.

When tongue or breath tells of acid condition—correct it with a spoonful of Phillips. Most men and women have been comforted by this universal sweetener—more mothers should invoke its aid for their children. It is a pleasant thing to take, yet neutralizes more acid than the harsher things too often employed for the purpose. No household should be without it.

Phillips is the genuine, prescription product physicians endorse for general use. Its name is important. "Milk of Magnesia" has been the U. S. registered trade mark of Charles H. Phillips Chemical Co., and its predecessor Charles H. Phillips since 1875.

HOOVER CAMPAIGN
By Anna Steese Richardson
In the current campaign, Mrs. Thomas G. Winter has proved that experience as a club leader develops executive ability. Mrs. Winter was president of the General Federation of Women's Clubs from 1920 to 1924, during which she visited every state, increased the membership of the Federation about 100 per cent and left as a legacy to the organization an admirable book, "The Business of Being a Club Woman."

When she was asked by Mrs. Alvin T. Hert, vice-chairman of the Republican National Committee, in charge of women's activities, to organize homemaking women in the campaign, she threw into her work all her knowledge, zeal and executive ability gained in her club experience. She has written seven pamphlets addressed especially to homemakers, and prepared an equal number of effective radio speeches. She addressed an open letter to club women advising them why they should affiliate with parties and work in the campaign. Her letters and literature have reached millions of homemaking women and her thoughtful comments are used in thousands of daily and weekly papers.

Among the more popular of her sayings about Mr. Hoover are these:
"So far as we women are concerned, one of the big things in which Mr. Hoover has helped us has been in the stretching of the family purse. He has used the office of Secretary of Commerce to do an immense amount to simplify both production and distribution, to eliminate wasteful methods, to standardize things that can be

Conn. Mother Proves Claim

Children don't ordinarily take to medicines but here's one that all of them love. Perhaps it shouldn't be called a medicine at all. It's more like a rich, concentrated food. It's pure, wholesome, sweet to the taste and sweet in your child's little stomach. It builds up and strengthens weak, puny, underweight children, makes them eat heartily, brings the roses back to their cheeks, makes them playful, energetic, full of life. And no bilious, headachy, constipated, feverish, fretful baby or child ever failed to respond to the gentle influence of California Fig Syrup on their little bowels. It starts lax bowels quick, cleans them out thoroughly, tones and strengthens them so they continue to act normally of their own accord.

Millions of mothers know about California Fig Syrup from experience. A Connecticut mother, Mrs. Nicholas Lynch, 162 Wetherfield Ave., Hartford, says: "California Fig Syrup is certainly all that's claimed for it. I have proved that with my little Patricia. Her bowels seemed to be weak. I started her on Fig Syrup when she was a few months old and it regulated her quick. I have used it with her ever since for colds and every little set back and her wonderful condition tells better than words how it helps."

Don't be imposed on. See that the Fig Syrup you buy bears the name "California" so you'll get the genuine, famous for 50 years.—Adv.

Jack May Fight Again, He Tells Sport Scribe

Dempsey, in Unguarded Moment, Hints That He May Try Again to Regain His Crown.

By DAVIS J. WALSH
New York, Oct. 30.—"Maybe I'll have to fight again!" The truth at last broke through the studied evasion of months today and Jack Dempsey, his guard down, was telling for the first time the real story of a losing battle against the most insidious of all temptations—the utterly human urge to "try, try again."

"Maybe I'll have to fight again!" There was the story of a man's life in those six words, uttered simply, almost wistfully. Men speak like that in the presence of truth. No posturing, no thought for effect, not the bland patter of a carefully rehearsed speech. The writer simply happened to be present while Jack Dempsey was talking to himself. He was conceding the melancholy fact that the words he had mouthed these many months might prove to be only so much sparkling banter, after all.

Maybe he will have to fight again and the answer rests with the aged promoter of all humankind: Money.

Speaks of Money
He could have spoken of honor, of the "public demand," of any of the senseless reasons men advance for doing something they want to do. Instead, he spoke of money and one knew that sincerity was speaking. The matter came up very naturally.

The writer had started the inevitable inquiry and Dempsey had countered with the inevitable rejoinder, something that sounded like "the game's too tough for an old guy like me." I didn't believe he meant anything of the kind and said so, with elaborations concerning the type of men he would be asked to beat. And so, with the unceasing effort all we make at self-justification, he spoke unguardedly, perhaps too quickly:

"Oh, I'm not worried about those guys. What I'm thinking about is that it costs me a lot of money to live. Maybe I'll have to fight again."

May Change Opinion
Maybe his guard will be up again tomorrow and he will be singing the old refrain of the man who says he has fought his last fight. Let him say it. The writer knows now that Dempsey himself is far from sure he believes his own words. He may not want to fight again. He may have to.

And, if he does have to, he at least will have the moral courage of a man who still thinks he can. It is Dempsey's personal opinion that he could make a better fight the next time out than the night he had Tunney plucking wildflowers in the seventh round. Let us go. He said so, by inference, in answering a hypothetical question as to what manner of puncher might be the man who hit another seven times on the chin, knocked him down and couldn't keep him there.

"That's easy," said he, "I was no fighter that night. I had left all my fight in the training camp. I made the mistake of training for it as I did for the Willard fight at Toledo, forgetting all the time that I was eight years older. If I ever had the same chance, I wouldn't do that again. In fact, if I ever come back, I would handle myself in training. I know better than anybody else just what I need to be right."

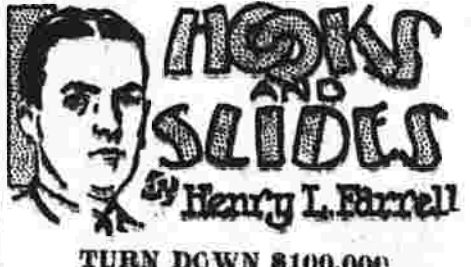

Meanwhile, he is marking time while seeking the answer to this very pertinent question:

"Have I made all the money I'm due to make, outside the ring?"

Undoubtedly, the failure of his fight show has given him something to think about in this connection. But the final returns are still out. One venture has failed, another may succeed.

I understand Dempsey has signed contracts for the talking pictures, involving a matter of $750,000, a stake big enough for any man's lifetime. He is said to have a guarantee of $150,000 for the first picture but, to get any part of the remainder, the first picture must be something of a financial woe.

If it isn't, Dempsey may turn to the one thing that will get him the reward he wants—fighting. If it is, the crisis will have passed. Likewise Jack Dempsey—from public life.

TURN DOWN $100,000

The Washington Senators, in exchange for Bucky Harris, got Jackie Warner from the Detroit Tigers. Which means, if all the facts of the trade were disclosed, that Washington got practically nothing for him.

Yet, less than a year ago, Washington could have parted with Harris and received $100,000 in very good cash.

When the Bradley interests took over the Cleveland club an immediate need of a good second baseman and a manager was faced. Bucky Harris would have filled the double bill and Cleveland offered $100,000 cash for him. And Washington wouldn't sell.

No Bad Feeling
The transfer of Harris to Detroit on bargain terms has been taken by some baseball men as an indication of a serious break between Harris and Clark Griffith. Such is not the case. They parted as good friends and Griffith made a sacrifice to help Harris get the job he wanted.

It has been suggested that Griffith wanted to replace Harris with a manager who would follow his instructions and that Walter Johnson will be manager of the Senators only when a picture is to be taken of the manager.

Harris, however, says that Griffith never seriously interfered with him and that their relations always were pleasant.

Had Some Talks Though
"There were times when Griffith and I talked things over after a game and there were times when he disagreed with my methods but there never was any serious friction," Harris told the writer.

"Griffith was the old army game of playing for one run and I didn't always do it. In fact, I seldom played for one run when there was a chance to shoot for two or three. I didn't have a pitcher in every game upon whom I could depend to hold a one run lead and I had to play for plenty. That was the only disagreement we ever had."

Changes in St. Louis?
Instead of being used in a trade, as has been reported in rumors, Frank Frisch will be retained by the St. Louis Cardinals but will be moved over to third base. The management seems to think that Selph, a youngster from Houston, will do at second and that Charley Gelbert, from Rochester, will fill the job at short. The Rabbit and Andy High are slated for utility roles. Some changes probably will be made also in the outfield. Taylor, Douthitt is being held in bad with the owners and he may be traded. He didn't give any lessons in outfielding during the world's series.

The Answer Was—Nay
One of the infielders of a major league club, from whom much was expected, broke his leg in the early days of the season and was out of the game for the entire year. The club had a big home and sent him his pay check regularly.

When the season closed the business manager of the club received a phone call telling him that the fractured leg was in perfect shape again and asking him for permission to go barnstorming with a team for which he was to get $100.

Personal note: Ty Cobb, who retired from baseball so he could give more time to his family, has gone on a barnstorming trip in oriental countries.

GOLF HAS BEEN ADDED TO THE CURRICULUM OF FORT SMITH, ARKANSAS, HIGH SCHOOL. PROBABLY ON THE THEORY THAT THE PUPILS MAY AS WELL KNOW NOW THAT LIFE HAS ITS SEAMY SIDE.

Looking over the names of some of the football players this year—Kenneth Strong, Bery Pollett, Horace Davenport, Morley Dury, Gilbert Welch, for instance—it begins to appear that little Reginald, who used to stand on the sidelines, has stepped out and is slamming the Mikes, Pats and Charlies all over the place.

O'Goofy has been trying to get an interview with El Ound. He expects to obtain some interesting information about what race horse he was named after.

If his name is pronounced Oof, rather than Watee, O'Goofy says he's probably O. K.

The news that more than 70,000 people saw a game between Ohio State and Indiana makes us wonder how long it will be until Tex Rickard bids for a couple of colleges.

Electricity of nearly two million volts, capable of jumping gaps of nearly 15 feet, has been obtained from the air.

SATURDAY'S TUSSLE IS IMPORTANT

THE PRINCETON TIGER

MILES REQUARDT WITTMER HOWE LOWRY

Although they know the Ohio State line is one of the best in the country this year, Captain "Chuck" Howe and this quartet of Princeton backs expect to gain ample yardage when Ohio State and Princeton meet at Columbus, O., next Saturday in what will be the most important intersectional football contest of the day. Wittmer is the big gun Princeton will fire at Ohio State. Big Mike Miles, a powerful fullback, is another Tiger who expects to snarl. Lowry and Requardt are nice running backs who may gain many yards through the Ohio State line.

Local Sport Clatter

The Springfield Arena opens for public skating Thursday night of this week. Frank Walleit said last night. The hockey season opens November 13 when Providence plays at Springfield.

"Frenchy" Merrer and "Tony" Ambukewicz played a good game at guard for the Cubs Sunday. With the exception of the fourth quarter when the Blues made their big march through the center of the Manchester line, this pair was continually in the limelight.

Only two more Sunday games before the big series between the Cubs and Cliverleaves starts for the town championship. The first game will be at Mt. Nebo and the second at Hickey's Grove with the third, if necessary (the Cubs say it won't be) at Mt. Nebo. The games will be played November 13, November 25 and December 5.

Jack Stratton is going to play an important role in the series. The former Pirate player who helped that team win the town championship three years in a row, is one of the mainstays of the Cub backfield. He is not only a dangerous ball carrier, both through the line and in a broken field, but also the best punter in Manchester today. This latter factor is going to be a big advantage for the Cubs unless Jerry Fay develops something unexpected over north.

One Cub player who watched the Cliverleaves play the other day said that in his opinion there's only two men on the Cliverleaf team that will bear extra watching. Brunig Mookie and "Witex" Mullen. Possibly, but Ted McCarthy, Leo Coughlin, Walter Mookie and others are no man's foot.

No matter what you size up the situation, it's bound to be a real struggle this year. Confidence reigns in both camps and a close score is to be expected. The Cubs may be the favorites because of being the champions. That's usually the way, but that doesn't decide the title by a long shot.

Jim Bausch transferred from Wichita to Kansas this year, and his doing so caused a lot of squabbling between officials of the two institutions.

Bausch said to be the whole team at Wichita last year, worked at Lawrence this summer, and it was thought he would enter Kansas. Just before school started in September he went back to Wichita, but registration day found him back at Kansas.

Officials of both schools accused the other's organization of trying to lure a football player away from the school of his own choice.

Anyway, it is all settled now, and Bausch is at Kansas. He is one of the reasons why Coach Hargis thinks the Kansas eleven will be a powerful one next fall, regardless of what they do during the current campaign.

Ohioans Expect To Get Revenge for 1927 Defeat

New York, Oct. 29.—The Princeton Tigers, with a squad of fast-stepping backfield performers, will clash with a powerful Ohio State eleven on Saturday, Nov. 3, in what is regarded as the most important intersectional game of the day.

Princeton has played one intersectional game already this year but the result was totally unsatisfactory. Virginia held the Tigers at bay and a scoreless tie was the result.

The game with Princeton is the only intersectional contest on Ohio State's schedule this year and they hope to win it.

The two teams met last year at Princeton. Ohio State was humbled by a 20-0 score and the memory of that defeat still rankles in the minds of those Ohio State players who fought their hearts out that day only to lose.

Several All-American candidates will be in action in this game. Rakowski, tackle; Barratt, center; and Holman, quarterback, have been mentioned in mid-west circles as worthy of a position on the All-American squad. Eddie Wittmer, quarterback, and Captain "Chuck" Howe, center, are also regarded highly by eastern critics.

KANSAS YEARLING ALMOST CAUSES A YOUNG BATTLE

Lawrence, Kas., Oct. 30.—It isn't often that a freshman football player, he be ever so good, gets more notice from the scribblers than the varsity players do, but that is what Jim Bausch, Kansas freshman, did the first week of this season.

It came about from the fact that Bausch transferred from Wichita to Kansas this year, and his doing so caused a lot of squabbling between officials of the two institutions.

Bausch said to be the whole team at Wichita last year, worked at Lawrence this summer, and it was thought he would enter Kansas. Just before school started in September he went back to Wichita, but registration day found him back at Kansas.

Officials of both schools accused the other's organization of trying to lure a football player away from the school of his own choice.

Anyway, it is all settled now, and Bausch is at Kansas. He is one of the reasons why Coach Hargis thinks the Kansas eleven will be a powerful one next fall, regardless of what they do during the current campaign.

OHIO GRID STAR EARNS EXPENSES BY PREACHING

Delaware, O., Oct. 30.—A football player on Saturday and a preacher on Sunday—that is how Norman Scribner, giant tackle of the Ohio Wesleyan team is spending his week-ends. He is from Baltimore, Md.

Scribner earns enough money to pay his expenses by serving as pastor for Methodist churches in central Delaware.

Last year his ministerial duties and his studies kept him too busy to play football, but he is squeezing in at the time this year.

He weighs 245 pounds, stripped, and gets advantage of every pound when in action. You ought to ask some of his opponents.

Here Are Leading College Elevens

The outstanding football teams of the country, rated on the basis of their records in all games, follows:

- East—Army.
- Big Ten—Ohio State, Iowa, Illinois.
- Big Six—Nebraska.
- South—Georgia Tech, Vanderbilt, Tennessee.
- Southwest—Southern Methodist, Texas Christian, Texas.
- Far West—Stanford.

All teams are undefeated except Stanford, which lost to the Olympic Club, 13 to 6; Southern Methodist to Army, 14 to 13, and Texas to Vanderbilt, 13 to 12.

The Phantom Reserves of New Britain would like to arrange baseball games for this coming season with any team in Manchester or vicinity averaging 16 to 18 years of age. Last season the Reserves swept all teams before them and this season they hope to continue their good playing. For games write to Mr. Milton Berkowitz, 65 Smalley St., New Britain, Conn., stating guarantee.

Very truly yours, Milton Berkowitz, Mgr. Phantoms, A. C. 65 Smalley St., New Britain, Conn. October 29, 1928.

At New York—Tony Canzoneri, former featherweight champion, won decision over Gaston Charles, of France, 10; Kid Chocolate, negro bantam, stopped Joey Ross, Hoboken, 1.

At Philadelphia—Phil McGraw, Detroit lightweight, won from Benny Bass, Philadelphia featherweight, on foul, 4; Eddie Pilkington, New York lightweight, out-pointed Emory Cabana, of Philadelphia, 10.

Speaking of Football

Passes Can Be Used From Any Part of the Field, Depending on Formation of Offense.

By "JOCK" SUTHERLAND
University of Pittsburgh Football Coach

"Don't use the forward pass unless you have to!" were the final instructions given to a quarterback ten or twelve years ago. The pass was then considered an emergency play. Many coaches refused to use it, and some used the pass only when defeat seemed certain.

The forward pass has come into its own. Today, a team unable to pass effectively faces defeat. Football now is essentially built around the forward pass. Strategic movements to weaken or worry the defense lay more in the power of a well-conceived passing attack than in any other department of the game.

The pass is a potentially great ground-gainer. It spreads the defense, keeps it worried, and makes the use of other plays stronger when used in combined effect. All backs should be taught to throw passes. It is time well spent to drill passers and receivers. There have been whole seasons when I have devoted nearly half of the practice sessions to improve the passing game.

Practicing passes are most successful when used from the so-called regular formations. The reason for this is that the defense is just as likely to be expecting any other play. If it is obvious that a pass will be attempted, the chances for its success are lessened.

Contrary to the general notion, passes are usually as safe done in defensive territory as in any other part of the field, if the defense is not in position. The idea prevails that passes should not be used inside one's own 35-yard line under any circumstances.

In 1922, while I was coaching Lafayette, I instructed the quarterback to throw passes from behind his own goal line, which he did with good results. The Rutgers fullback in the first half had been coming up on the line, hoping to block punts. Two Rutgers men went back to the safety position to receive the punts, leaving only one man between the line of scrimmage and the safety man, some 40 yards back.

There was no danger of a pass going wrong with this kind of a defense. The position of the defense determines what play should be used, and when it should be used. Six or seven years ago, Penn State met Pitt on Forbes Field, Pittsburgh. Glenn Killinger, Penn State's quarterback, called for a pass from behind his own goal line, which was completed and carried for a touchdown.

I am not advocating the use of passes from behind the goal line, I merely point out that it is possible to use passes in any part of the field, depending upon the position of the defense.

High School Must Win Two Or Three of Four Remaining Games to Defend C. C. I. L. Reputation.

With five victories safely stowed away in their 1928 football record along with the first C. C. I. L. pennant, Manchester High School is preparing for its remaining four games.

This quartet of non-league contests, to a certain extent, at least, will show the caliber of the C. C. I. L. as compared to other schools about the state. In Warren Harding of Bridgeport, Buckley of New London, Windham of Willimantic, Naugatuck, Manchester is meeting a fair representation of the best high schools in the state.

While Manchester may not win all of its four remaining games, it must win two or three to successfully defend the Central Connecticut League's reputation. The next game will be at Bridgeport Saturday with Warren Harding.

Some may argue that the teams remaining on the local schedule do not constitute the cream of the state, but it is at least interesting to know that George Cassidy, coach of New Britain High rates Stamford High as the best in the state with Central High of Bridgeport second. Warren Harding beat Stamford Saturday 6 to 0.

Naugatuck is said to have a woe of a team this season. The reports are that it has yet to taste defeat. Naugatuck plays here Friday, Nov. 23. Buckley beat Windham and entertains Manchester Friday, Nov. 9.

The game with Willimantic, Manchester's traditional rival, will be played in the Thread City Saturday, Nov. 17. Last year, Manchester gave Windham a real lacing and Coach Tommy Callahan's charges are pointing for revenge despite the fact that their team is admittedly not as strong as some in the past. It has tasted defeat once or twice. Although it is important that Manchester beat Willimantic, it seems certain that Coach Kelley will do his utmost to win the other games as well, because of the possibility of being considered as a possible mythical state champion eleven.

Football Briefs

New Haven, Conn., Oct. 30.—Johnny Garvel, Yale's big star, is in the infirmary as a result of the battering he took in the Army game and will not be able to play until Yale meets Harvard on Nov. 24. The squad was given a hard workout in preparation for the Dartmouth game.

Princeton, N. J., Oct. 30.—Princeton realizes that it will meet tough opposition at the hands of Ohio State next Saturday. Monday, usually an off day, was the occasion of an extensive practice.

Philadelphia, Oct. 30.—Refreshed by two days of rest, the Penn football reported for practice today determined to atone for its defeat by the Navy by beating Chicago in the Windy City on Saturday. The regulars are all in good physical condition.

New York, Oct. 30.—Joe Stanek, star Columbia fullback, will be kept out of scrimmages this week as Coach Crowley wants him to be in good shape for the Blue and White's annual clash with Cornell.

Cambridge, Mass., Oct. 30.—With the week long team playing here next Saturday, Harvard is taking things easy this week.

West Point, N. Y., Oct. 30.—The Army coaches are the underestimating De Panu, which plays here this week. The visitors have an excellent record and the cadets may use some of the new plays they had been saving for Notre Dame.

MAY SEVER RELATIONS
Texas and Vanderbilt, which have been playing football annually for years, may not meet in 1929. Texas is eager to play Oklahoma University at the Texas State Fair instead of Vandy.

"GOOD THINGS TO EAT"

WEATHERLY

Keen weather this. Nights at the end of which you find the cream on the top of the milk bottle frozen don't usually come in October, even in this neck of the woods, where we have cold weather plenty, take it all in all.

Makes you think of cakes and sausage for breakfast, roast pork dinners—it's "meaty" weather, if you get what we mean.

We want to say, in this relation, right over again what we said yesterday: That this Pinehurst shop stands ready at every moment to serve you with just whatever your palate and your budget dictate. We find that there are a few folks, some of them comparative newcomers to Manchester, who have somehow gotten the idea that Pinehurst is a dandy place to trade when you want something elaborate for dinner, but maybe not so interested in the small order, the lesser items of diet.

All wrong. It's completely wrong. It's one of Pinehurst's articles of faith that the Soup Bone order is just as important as the Rib Roast order—because it's what the customer wants. We're not setting menus for anybody. We're supplying the demand. And the demand regulates itself.

Why, we'd rather hate to see any family on our list ordering the materials for a banquet everyday—because we should anticipate that by and by that family would just naturally die out; and you can't sell food to folks who have eaten themselves into their graves, so to speak.

Everybody, pretty much, eats more or less light, economical meals. Well, Pinehurst wants the fact to register that it's prepared to serve the customer with the materials for the light, economical meal as well as those for the big feast.
