LOCAL WOMAN DROWNS SELF IN RESERVOIR

Mrs. Michael Schutz, of 127
Prospect Street, Takes
Own Life; Ill Health Cause,
Her Family Says.

Mrs. Julia Schutz 42, wife of Michael Schutz of 127 Prospect St., committed suicide by drowning herself in Globe Hollow Reservoir late yesterday afternoon. Apparently the reason for the act was ill health. Four years ago, Mrs. Schutz suffered a nervous breakdown and had been subject to fainting spells ever since. She had been in the habit of going for walks by herself.

Miss Katherine L. Schutz, her only daughter, said that her mother was apparently all right yesterday. Katherine left her mother to go to meet her brother, Michael, who was coming home from school. When Katherine and Michael reached home their mother had disappeared.

Notify Police
Katherine thought nothing unusual of this occurrence because her mother had often gone out for long walks. Consequently, she began to prepare supper. Her father came home and they ate supper. When the mother still failed to return, the family notified Police Headquarters.

Captain Schendel received the call that the woman was missing at 7:30 and Officer Arthur Seymour with Sergeant John Crockett were detailed to the case. They visited the Globe Hollow reservoirs and on going to the larger parts near the dam and flashing lights into the water saw the body about fifteen feet from shore on the east side of the dam. The police were wearing boots and by holding each other's hands Officer Seymour was able to wade out and take hold of the body, which he brought to shore.

The medical examiner was then notified, the body being found at 9:30. Medical Examiner W. R. Finkler declares that the death was due to suicide and gave permission for the removal of the body to Watkins Brothers.

Born in Austria
Mrs. Schutz was born in Lunzitz, Austria, and had lived in Manchester for 24 years. In addition to her husband and only children, Katherine and Michael, Jr., she is survived by two sons, Mrs. Andrew Adams of 115 North Main St., Mrs. Jacob Neuman of 115 North Main St., and a step-son, Jacob Timmer of Hackmatack St.

The funeral will be held Friday afternoon with prayers at the home of the bereaved and service at the German Lutheran Concordia Church on Water street at 2:30. Mrs. Schutz was a member of this church. Burial will be in the East Cemetery.

KIWANIS ENTERTAINED AT HIGH SCHOOL TODAY

School Girls Provide Luncheon
and Soc and Buskin Club
Presents Play.

The Manchester Kiwanis club was entertained this noon at the High School assembly hall when the High School Dramatic club, Soc and Buskin, presented "A Speck of Peace" by Margaret Cameron. The principal parts were taken by Miss Mary Henderson and Winston Bendall as Joseph and Gladys Terrill. The role of the maid of the house was played by Miss Gertrude Campbell. The young folks gave an excellent portrayal of a clever little skit which centered around the husband's beloved meerschaum pipe which the wife traded off for an antique rocking chair and it turned out to be nothing but a cheap, modern affair. The play lasted about 20 minutes and the youthful Thespians were greeted with a round of applause.

The luncheon was also provided by the school and consisted of sandwiches, cakes, coffee and fruit. Frank Wilkie, the manager of the new Montgomery Ward store, became a member of the club this noon.

President C. P. Quimby reminded the Kiwanians that the "Ladies' Night" program will take place at the Country clubhouse next Monday evening. The nominating committee, headed by Ex-President William A. Knoffa, will bring in a slate of officers for 1929. The election will take place the first meeting day in December.

Last week's attendance prize which was to go to the member who came nearest to guessing the correct number of electoral votes, went to Herbert House, whose guess was 480.

PROF. RICE DIES.

Middletown, Conn., Nov. 14.—The funeral of Professor William North Rice, emeritus professor of geology at Wesleyan, will be held from Memorial chapel at Wesleyan Friday at three p. m. with the burial at Indian Hill cemetery, where Mrs. Rice is buried. The officiating clergyman has not been selected.

Prof. Rice died yesterday at Delaware, Ohio, at the age of 82 years.

FIRST TO REACH STRICKEN SURVIVORS

First to sight a floundering lifeboat from the ill-fated liner Vestris, the S. S. American Shipper (top) became the agency of rescue for 32 passengers and 90 crew members on the morning following the disaster off the Virginia Capes. The cruiser Wyoming, (below) while ploughing through wreckage found five persons clinging to it and saved their lives. Both ships stood by to render assistance during those long hours when the life boats tossed helplessly about.

ANNUAL FIRE DISTRICT TAX IS NOW CERTAIN

Meeting Last Week Disclosed
Big Jump in Regular Expenses—Water Charge and Extension the Cause.

The South Manchester Fire District meeting which on last Thursday evening was attended by about the usual score of voters, would have contributed considerably to the knowledge of the voters, with respect to what makes fire district taxation necessary, had more of them been present.

Annual meeting seldom does more than elect officers and there is not often anything in the way of a contest, so that usually about two-thirds of the leading citizens of the district get together and transact all the business and none of the rest pay much attention.

Tax Laid
This was true on last Thursday, despite the fact that it was known that the time had rolled round again for the laying of another tax, a proceeding which, in the South Manchester Fire District, is not an annual but an occasional affair, the tax laid last week being only the fifth since the organization of the district.

Developments at the meeting, however, made it clear that while former tax levies sufficed for several years, the present rate of expenditure warrants the expectation that the district will have to raise the South Manchester volunteer department and water protection will cost the taxpayers at the rate of about one mill a year on the district's grand list.

Costs $39,000 Yearly
The running expense of the district's fire protection now totals about $39,000 a year, and there would seem to be no reason to hope for its being less in the future, since a large part of the increase comes from the extension of the district's lines and the addition of a great deal of water pipe footage and many hydrants, all of which carry an annual water rental.

The latter is an item that seems to have been generally overlooked when the district lines were extended to the center line of the Middle Turnpike on the north, to the Manchester-East Hartford line on the west, almost to the Glastonbury line on the south and beyond the Cook development in Manchester Green on the east.

Began Charging
Now in 1924 the South Manchester Water Company instituted a system of charges for fire protection water service for the first time. Up to that time the company had made no charge at all. The charge was based on line footage and the gauge of the pipe lines—the rate being one cent per inch of pipe diameter for each lineal foot; plus a flat rate charge of $10 per year per hydrant. At the time when the district voted to extend its lines as above, it also authorized the district officials to enter into a contract with the water company covering the new territory.

Last week's meeting just what kind of a contract had been made was disclosed for the first time. The Council

SMITH MAKES PLEA TO END BITTERNESS

Urges United Support for Hoover in Valedictory;
"Not G. O. P. President, American President."

Washington, Nov. 14.—The long faces which most Democratic leaders have been exhibiting around Washington since their return from the scenes of last week's debacle at the polls were distinctly more cheerful today.

Governor Al Smith's "Message to the American People," a broadcast to the country last night, and revealing him to be "a happy warrior" in defeat as well as in victory, did a lot to perk up sagging Democratic hopes.

Gov. Smith's speech had been regarded with some apprehension by some of the party leaders here. A few of them feared that the governor might allow some of the bitterness of the campaign itself to creep into his valedictory address, or that he might take advantage of the occasion to rebuke some of the party bolters.

Fears Groundless
Their fears were groundless. Instead of the wall of the losers, or the accusing alibi of a disgruntled candidate they heard an appeal to forget the bitterness of the campaign, an appeal to support the Hoover administration in its constructive measure for public welfare, and a further appeal to continue their own fight for constructive, forward-looking party endeavor.

"It must be remembered," said the governor, "that while the political party may seriously divide public thought and public opinion during the progress of the campaign, after the American people have made their decision, the man selected is not president of the Republican Party, but is president of the American people."

"He is president of all the people, and as such he is entitled to the co-operation of every citizen in the development of a program calculated to promote the welfare and best interests of the country."

Great In Defeat
At the same time, the governor declared emphatically that "the principles for which the Democratic party stands are as great in defeat as they would be in victory, and it is our duty to vindicate the principles for which we fought." And he admonished the Democrats in Congress particularly to mobilize behind a constructive program embodying those principles. The Democrats, he said, cannot afford to sit back inactive, hoping to profit solely by mistakes of the other side, nor can it console itself with destructive criticism.

The party leaders here listened in vain for some hint of what Gov. Smith's own political future is to be, if any.

As they heard that he would continue to support the party and its principles "with all the vigor I can command—and, more, I will battle for it." That and another statement that "I pledge my unceasing interest and concern with public affairs," afforded the only insight into the governor's future political activities.

The Rec Girls' basketball team will practice tonight from 6 to 7 at the School Street building. Miss Viola Zalonde will be in charge.

WOMEN, CHILDREN MOST OF VICTIMS OF SEA TRAGEDY

Three Negroes Rescue Twenty-three Persons

New York, Nov. 14.—A tale of heroism that ranks with any in the annals of navigation was told by survivors of the Vestris who arrived aboard the Berlin here today. Every survivor saved one of the 23 aboard the Berlin owed their lives directly to three negro members of the crew, A. Bannister, Joseph Alexei and Fred Myricle.

Following the launching of the lifeboats from the Vestris and the capsizing of two of them it was Bannister who swam back to the sinking ship and succeeded in launching a life boat unaided.

FIRST LIFEBOATS SANK WITH WOMEN, CHILDREN

Port Tell Heart Rending
Stories of Great Sea
Tragedy.

New York, Nov. 14.—Of the first three lifeboats that put off from the stricken Lampert & Holt liner Vestris containing women and children, two sank and one capsized.

While the launching of the boats was in progress the Vestris turned over in the water and panic stricken passengers climbed from the water upon the keel, clinging there until the hull sank.

These grim facts were brought to port today by the five passengers and 18 seamen who were snatched from death by the North German Lloyd liner Berlin.

It was the old order of the sea—"women and children first"—that cost so many lives among the women and children on the liner. And it was the irony of fate that the order which usually is the salvation of women and children should have brought them doom in the foundering of the Vestris.

Women Hold Baby
The survivors on the Berlin brought a gruesome picture of the tragedy which followed the launching of the open boats. The passengers, while on shipboard and in the face of danger, remained calm. But panic followed the disaster to the lifeboats in the water.

As the rolling seas swamped and sank two of the boats and the other turned over keel up screams of agonized fear came from the water-filled with wreckage and struggling forms of women and children.

Lack of Discipline
"I was fatigued," said Quiros "at the lack of discipline among the crew of the Vestris at the launching of the lifeboats. The work was very slow and sloppy."

"One boat they got lowered had a big hole in it. The crew started dunnage and patching it up. It sank within from 50 to 60 feet of the ship."

"All the boats were overloaded. Twenty-five persons in one was ample."

"I started to get in a boat which I think was Number Eight. I got one foot in and saw it was overloaded so I stepped back and leaped into the sea."

Quiros was later picked up by lifeboat Number 13 after swimming in the sea for some time. There were 23 others in boat Number 13, he said. While he swam along in the wreckage-filled sea, Quiros said he saw many people swimming near him.

SEES MAN DEVoured BY HUNGRY SHARKS

New York, Nov. 14.—Belief that a fate worse than drowning befell some of those lost from the Vestris was expressed today by E. J. Marjory, chief of the American Shipper and told of seeing sharks swimming through the human loaded wreckage.

Marjory said he saw a man who looked like Earl Dwyer, Los Angeles automobile racing driver, pulled beneath the surface of the sea which then turned crimson. Seamen in the lifeboat with Marjory told of seeing sharks.

on the lost liner scrambled aboard as soon as the lines were fast. In the midst of the milling crowd of hugging, kissing, weeping humanity were sad faced men and women who were disappointed in the hope of finding loved ones on board.

There were no screaming whistles nor shrieking sirens as the ships of mercy steamed to their respective docks. They moved in amid tragic silence as befitting a ship which had just come from the presence of sudden death.

Children Missing
New York, Nov. 14.—Out of the tale of horror which came up from the sea today the outstanding note of tragedy was the large number of little children, helpless against the surge of storm and human strife for life, who are missing from the lost Lampert & Holt liner Vestris. Of the 105 persons not reported today about a score of them were children, whose parents also were passengers on the ill-fated ship.

The first of the survivors, still shaken by their battle against death in darkness and fog on the turbulent Atlantic, arrived here this morning on the North German Lloyd liner Berlin. They brought with them a narrative both thrilling and pathetic. The Berlin reached Quarantine at 5:45 a. m. and prepared to proceed as quickly as possible to her pier where relatives awaited the refugees from the Vestris.

United States Navy and Coast Guard ships reported by wireless at daybreak, that they were still combing the surface of the sea at the scene of the tragedy, 275 miles off the Virginia Shoals. But up to 7:30 o'clock this morning they had not reported the discovery of either survivors or dead.

Revised Figures
A revision of figures by the Lampert & Holt line, owners of the Vestris, put the number of persons aboard the lost ship at 328—129 passengers and 199 members of the crew.

When Ships Arrived
New York, Nov. 14.—There was a mingling of joy and sorrow today at the North German Lloyd line and the American Merchant line piers when the steamships Berlin and American Shipper docked with 150 survivors from the Vestris. The German line pier is in Hoboken, N. J., the American Merchant quay is in this city at the foot of Liberty street. Both were crowded, but an air of tense waiting and sadness hung over both.

The Berlin was the first at dock. Relatives of passengers and seamen now making his home in Hartford.

ment was signed by E. L. G. Henthall, Sr., as treasurer of the district, and by William J. Crockett, as secretary, and adopts the above rate of compensation to the water company for its service.

The charge on a four inch service pipe is four cents a foot and there are 120,987 feet of this size pipe in the district. Of six inch pipe, at six cents a running foot, there are 48,229 feet. There are 14,438 feet of eight inch pipe and 793 feet of ten inch pipe.

These are rated, in the agreement as service pipes and in addition the big reservoir mains are included in the contract, as follows: Ten inch, 4,058 feet; twelve inch, 10,275 feet; sixteen inch, 10,056 feet.

Other Contract In addition to its contract with the South Manchester Water Company the district has one with the Manchester Water Company, covering two hydrants in the tract developed just west of the South Manchester Railroad and south of Middle Turnpike, on which a flat rate of $30 a year per plug is paid. The total water bill for the fiscal year covered by the report to the annual meeting was $16,500. For the previous year it was $15,367.

Other department costs have risen, also, the total reported at the annual meeting being $38,011.95. A debt of $13,000 had accumulated and with the cost of replacing batteries in the fire alarm system it was estimated that it would require a tax of one and a half mills to clear the situation. A large part of the deficit had resulted from the installation of sixteen new boxes in the annexed district at a cost of $5,690. This is one item that will not have to be repeated in any such degree another year, but the extension of water pipes and the installation of hydrants is an item to be anticipated. The water bill, under the contract in force, will naturally continue to grow with such extension of service.

It is for this reason that the South Manchester Fire District voters who have not attended their meetings and kept in touch with the situation are likely to be surprised when they realize that they are pretty likely to have to pay a regular tax of about a mill on the dollar for their fire protection hereafter.

JIM MEETS OBSTACLES BUT PAYS HIS BET

"Swatz" Moynihan Just Dodges Arrest When Making Good on Election Wager.

Jim Moynihan has paid his bet, as Jim always will do. During the heated arguments preceding election, Samuel Woodward, chairman of the Republican town committee of Bolton was so sure that Hoover was going to be elected and Jim Moynihan, known to his friends as Dr. Swatz, was just as positive that Smith was going to win that Jim bet Sam that if Smith lost he would lead a cow from Sam's home in Bolton to Main and Charter Oak streets.

No provision had been made as to how the cow was to get back to Bolton after its long walk as Sam's small truck would not carry a cow, but would carry a calf. It looked as though the bet would be off, but Sam waived this part and agreed to see that the cow got back to Bolton if Jim would lead it to the South Manchester destination. When the election took place Jim was in New York and did not arrive home until later in the week. On Sunday he made known that he was willing to pay the bet, "It's a bet and it's got to be paid," Jim's reply, so this morning he was set for the date with the cow.

At 10 o'clock this morning with a halter around the cow's neck Jim started out from Bolton. The distance is just a little over five miles. There was no particular attraction until Manchester Green was reached when the news reached the employees of the Manchester Green mill that "Swatz" was coming. There was a big crowd at the Green and Charles Saunders tried to take the cow away, but Jim informed him that it was Sam Woodward's cow and that he had to lead it to the terminus in South Manchester or not pay the bet. "I've got to pay the bet. It was a bet you know," was Jim's reply.

Coming down Main street in South Manchester Officer John McGinn, who had been tipped off that the cow was coming placed Jim under arrest, which gave an opportunity for a lot of people to gather. He first told Jim that it was a violation of the town's by-laws or some state law about the distance that a cow could be led. It was figured out that it would not be five miles within the town's limit and Jim was allowed to continue, being greeted along the road by many of his friends.

He reached the South End trolley terminus at 11:45, where the cow was to be put in Taylor's market, but in the meantime Sam had got an offer to sell the cow, so he had to hurry around and get a large truck, bring it back to Bolton and this afternoon it was delivered to a cattle man in Hartford and tomorrow will probably be planked sirloins.

SMART SHOP OBSERVES BIRTHDAY TOMORROW

The Smart Shop in the State theater building will celebrate its first anniversary tomorrow. The shop is one of a chain of women's wear stores operated from 18 West 34th Street, New York City. The local managers are Miss Mildred and Miss Ruth Cohn.

Ms Ruth Cohn stated today that their business has grown during the past year and their success is due to the fact that the managers have striven to extend every bit of courtesy and service to their patrons. "That is the only way to succeed. Show them the right merchandise, and give them a correct fit. We never get peeved at persons who just come in to look around because we defy competition and are confident that shoppers will always come back to us," said Miss Cohn.

Both Miss Mildred and Miss Ruth Cohn have made their home in Manchester and hope that their firm will not see fit to transfer them.

LOW GRAPE PRICES CUT INTO CIDER BUSINESS

Wine Makers, With Cost Reduced, Use Fruit of Vine, Not Apple Juice.

Despite an unusually large apple crop it is reported that the output of cider mills in the vicinity of Manchester this year is not within a good deal of being as large as a year ago. There is, it appears, a subtle reason for this. It lies in the lower price as compared with last year, of grapes.

There are a few unsophisticated people in this part of the world who still think of grapes as something to eat. But the real market for grapes—the market where they are not regarded as commensurate with the labor and the risk of manufaturing alcoholic drinks for the bootleg market. So the wine makers turned to the elder mills for assistance. They mixed the cheaper cider with their wine—and after a while the kick resulting was sufficient until the desire therefor.

This year grapes are a lot cheaper. Instead of having to pay $200 a ton the vintners are paying only $100 to $110. Consequently there is far less percentage in blending the wine with the juice of the apple. Consequently the elder mills, while producing a moderate amount of the Farmer's Favorite, are less busy than in 1927's autumn.

HOLLISTER ST. SEWER WORK IS STARTED

Work has been started by the highway of the town in the laying of a storm water sewer on Hollister street that will take care of the water that fills on that street and remove a bad condition.

There has been a natural storm water condition in this section for years, which first came to the attention of the Selectmen when the Pinhurst tract was opened, as the water was allowed to flow down Hollister street, form a pond on the south side of the road and then pass off, either over the curbing or through a small pipe into a gully through what is now Cambridge street. When Hollister street was developed and houses built, a bad condition developed on the street, too near the school to be considered healthy, and the board of health complained. The work that is now being done consists of carrying a storm water pipe of fourteen inches from Main and Hollister street through Hollister street to Summit street, which will do away with the condition.

Mary C. Keeney Tent, Daughters of Union War Veterans will hold its regular meeting at the State Armory tomorrow evening. A large attendance is desired as important business is to be transacted.

There will be a well-baby clinic at 3 o'clock tomorrow afternoon at the Memorial hospital annex. Dr. Howard Boyd and Welfare Nurse Miss Dorothy Buttle will be in charge.

EPIC OF COAL MINES AT STATE THEATER

"The Toilers" Here Tomorrow and Friday—Olive Borden Co-Feature.

Reginald Barker's special production, "The Toilers," which comes to the State theater for tomorrow and Friday, is one of the world's great motion pictures. That sounds like an extreme statement, but when you have an epic theme and a great director perfection isn't so difficult to achieve after all. And while mechanical improvements may some day make present day films look slightly old-fashioned it is easy to predict that so long as movies are a form of entertainment, "The Toilers" will be spoken of as one of the great spectacles of film history.

The story concerns the struggle of the coal miners against earth's infinite reluctance to yield up her resources for the comfort or necessity of the human race. With the background of the daily toil, dangers and anxieties of their perilous, back-breaking labor, and the magnificent and sublime terror of the mine disaster for its climax, the tender love stories of Steve and Mary unfolds in vivid contrast to the impersonal majesty of the epic of coal.

Steve is played by Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., grown up into a brawny young giant. Jobyan Ralston displays a splendid portrayal in the role of Mary his sweetheart. Others in the cast include Boteler, Harvey, Clark and Robert Ryan.

The associate film feature is Olive Borden in "The Albany Night Boat" a sparkling and thrilling drama of youth, love and laughter. The current issue of the MGM news events will complete the program.

On Sunday, Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday the State will present "Wings" the film sensation of the year.

HIT, RUN DRIVER KILLS VALUABLE BULL-DOG

Francis Miner Seeks Witnesses Before Asking Police to Arrest Law Violator.

"Pal" a Boston bull-dog owned by Francis Miner, proprietor of Miners Pharmacy on Main street, was killed on Main street just north of the intersection of Bigelow by a hit and run driver yesterday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. Mr. Miner claims the driver did not stop to find out whether or not he had killed the dog but kept right on his way towards the south end of the town. An official report has not yet been made to the police regarding the matter, since Mr. Miner is seeking eye witnesses.

The driver, under the conditions outlined yesterday a state law and Mr. Miner feels that it would be also possible with the aid of witnesses to push the additional charge of reckless driving. He knows the name of the driver.

OPEN FORUM

GIVES CREDIT FOR FLOAT

Editor, The Herald: The success attained by the French float entered in Monday's parade was due in a great measure to the hard work and splendid cooperation of the following people: Gustave Fallo, Wilbrod Messier, Anthony Tournaud, Celestin Neuville, Jules Maigrot, Alfred Henniquin and Gustave Vanhavenbeck.

We also give credit to the young ladies the Misses Catherine Majeau, Antonette Jarvis, Germaine Desplance, Jennie Neuville, as showing splendid spirit in remaining in their places on the float during such uncomfortable weather, until the end of the line of march.

We are also very much pleased at having been able to do a little bit towards helping "the boys" make this—the greatest of all parades.

JOHN F. TOURNAUD, Chairman, French Committee.

GET RID OF YOUR FAT

Thousands of others have gotten rid of theirs by my simple and efficient method of fat reduction without starvation diet or burdensome exercise, often at a very rapid rate and WITHOUT PAYMENT until reduction has taken place.

I am a licensed practicing physician and have made a careful study of the physiological requirements of the human body. This has enabled me to select such ingredients and in such proportion as in my opinion will produce not only a loss of weight without harm and an improvement in health, but with it an alleviation of all of the troublesome symptoms which frequently accompany and often are a direct result of overweight, such as shortness of breath on slight exertion, palpitation of the heart, etc., not to speak of the relief from the embarrassment of being too stout. Stout persons suffering from such diseases as Chronic Rheumatism, Gout, Eczema, Asthma and high blood pressure are greatly relieved by a reduction of their superfluous fat.

My treatment will relieve that depressed, tired, sleepy feeling, giving you the renewed energy and vigor which come as a result of the loss of superfluous fat. If you are over stout do not postpone but sit down right now and send for my FREE TRIAL TREATMENT and my plan whereby I am to be PAID ONLY AFTER REDUCTION HAS TAKEN PLACE if you so desire. DR. R. REC NOTES

The first annual fair originally scheduled to be held at the School Street Recreation Center on Friday night of this week has been postponed until the following week Friday, it was announced today by Director Lewis Lloyd. The reason for the postponement was as a favor to the DeMolay Order, which has a minstrel and dance scheduled for that night at Cheney Hall.

The small pool table in the pool room of the East Side Rec has been removed and the one from upstairs put in its place. The table has been completely renovated.

Robinson, requests all members of the circle to bring their gifts this evening when the booths will be decorated and the articles marked and arranged for the sale.

Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Nevers who were married in Tilton, N. H., last week, were given a farewell surprise last night at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Davis of Centerfield street. Among the guests were associates of Mr. Nevers at the Lunt-Jillson company's office here, and Griswold Chappell, in his witty style and in behalf of the office force, presented to the bride and bridegroom a purse of $30 in gold. The evening passed pleasantly with music, dancing and a general good time. A buffet lunch was served by the hostess, Mr. Nevers is leaving Lunt-Jillson, with whom he has been for a number of years, to take a position in Rochester, New York, next week.

Housewives, who can make it convenient to do so should attend the cooking demonstration at the Manchester Community clubhouse on North Main street tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock. Mrs. Marlon Dakin, the lecturer, is no stranger to Manchester audience. She works under auspices of the state college extension service and her subject tomorrow will be "Supper Dishes." Miss Christine Mason, the new representative of the new era of rational and social director at the White House, has several such demonstrations and classes under consideration, and is anxious that the women of the community take advantage of them.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard G. Raymond of East Center street entertained a party of their friends Saturday evening, in honor of the 14th marriage anniversary of Mrs. Raymond's brother and his wife, Mr. and Mrs. James H. Johnston. Guests were present from Hartford, New Britain and Boston. The dining room was decorated in a color scheme of yellow and green, with yellow pompon chrysanthemums for the centerpiece. Games, dancing and other social pastimes filled the evening.

A whist instead of a set-back party will be held at the West Side Rec tomorrow afternoon from 2:15 to 4:15. The first prize will be a five-pound roasting chicken. The usual card party will be held at the School Street Rec Friday afternoon.

Alfred T. Magnell, son of Alfred E. Magnell, a former resident of Manchester has been named as first principal for the appointment to the United States Naval Academy at Annapolis by Congressman E. Hart Penn because of his high standing in the examination taken in October. A year ago he was also the first principal named for the appointment, but because of illness was not able to enter. He is now a freshman at Amherst, but will leave that institution in February to accept the appointment at the Naval Academy.

A number of the delegates from the local League of Women Voters left this noon for the annual convention of the Connecticut League to be held at the Mohican hotel in New London which opened today and will continue through Friday. Chester H. Rowell of Berkeley, Cal., editor and lecturer will speak at dinner this evening on "The Unfinished Task of Peace." Other convention speakers will be Miss Belle Sherwin, president of the national league, Mrs. Frederick S. Chase of Waterbury, Miss Mary Bulkley of Hartford, Mrs. L. Grace Thompson Seton of Greenwich. On Friday, girls from Connecticut college will present a playlet entitled "Talking The League."

The barrels that were piled up on the hill off Cooper Hill street, which were intended for an Armistice celebration bonfire have been burned. Rather than attract a lot of attention by burning them at night the fire was set 5 o'clock in the afternoon and the unburned parts are to be cleared up and carted away by those who had planned the celebration.

With election over the town officials are again able to use their offices for the purposes for which they were intended. A general cleaning is being given the building and Town Clerk Turkington finds that among his possessions is an extra umbrella left in the office by one of the women voters.

The Trinity Past Noble Grands association will meet Wednesday, November 21, at East Hartford. The meeting will be held at Odd Fellows hall at 3 o'clock in the afternoon.

The Ladies Guild of St. Mary's Episcopal church will meet in the Guild room for sewing tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock.

Don't Let That Cold Turn Into "Flu"

That cold may turn into "Flu," Grippe, or, even worse, Pneumonia, unless you take care of it at once. Rub Musterole on the congested parts and see how quickly it brings relief as effectively as the messy old mustard plaster.

Musterole, made from pure oil of mustard, camphor, menthol and other simple ingredients, is a counter-irritant which stimulates circulation and helps break up the cold. You will feel a warm tingle as it enters the pores, then a cooling sensation that brings welcome relief.

Better than a mustard plaster

WEDNESDAY, NOV. 14, 1923

BIG NAVY BOOM Very quickly and very gleefully the Navy Department reacts to the Armistice Day address of President Coolidge by trotting out its detailed program for naval expansion. This is a program which has already received a great deal of severe criticism from non-military minds.

Whoever is right in this business of a bigger navy, its proponents or its opponents, nothing is surer than that the forthcoming session of Congress is not the one to act on the problem. And President Coolidge, it is altogether fair to add, is not the right person to advocate a decision on the question, either way, after more than five years in office and in the closing months of his administration.

If there was one reason which more than another animated hundreds of thousands of American voters in their choice of Herbert Hoover for the Presidency it was the conviction that he, far more than any other American, was qualified to bring about adjustment of our foreign relations. He is credited with the possession of a special genius in that direction. It is no particular detraction of President Coolidge to express the belief that, so far as the management of those relationships is concerned, he lacks considerably of possessing Mr. Hoover's capacity. Wherefore, instead of attempting to rush a navy bill through the short session of Congress, the manifestly right course would be to leave that and all other international questions of such gravity to President Hoover and the next Congress.

It would be an intolerable condition if, for the gratification of navy vanity or through any imaginative fear of falling behind in preparedness, a naval bill should be passed which would make it more difficult if not impossible for Hoover to call another disarmament conference, a project which he is believed in informed quarters to contemplate early in his Presidential career.

It would be not only in the worst of bad taste for Congress to pass a revolutionary naval bill and for the President to sign it, expressing as it would lack of confidence in the next administration to handle the problem, but its consequences as affecting our foreign relations might be very serious indeed.

However, the present Senate is scarcely likely to consent to the taking of irremediable action. It has too many oppositionists in it. For all the jubilation evident among the Big Navy men and the professional militarists nothing is in the least likely to materialize unless it may be a very ordinary sort of replacement measure.

THREE PARTIES The indomitable, never-licked kind of Democrats are beginning to talk about a renaissance of their party in 1932 under the standard of Franklin D. Roosevelt, who in New York proved himself to be "a greater man than Al Smith," so far as getting the votes is concerned.

We have always had a sort of affectionate admiration for F. D. Roosevelt. We felt it especially on the occasion of the Smith notification when the Tammany clique that filled the Albany senate chamber left him and Mrs. Roosevelt sitting out in the rain to hear the governor's speech over the radio along with the rest of the unconsidered ones. We felt it again when, despite this crest slight, the nominator of Smith consented to forego the healing of his paralyzed legs and run for governor so as to save Friend Al's scalp in New York state—and we have often wondered how many thousands delighted to vote for Roosevelt and against Smith on account of the sacrifice the politicians demanded and the victim granted.

But we haven't the remotest idea that Franklin Roosevelt or anybody like him could re-unite the Democratic party in 1932—or ever again.

What would be much more to the point would be the formation of another party—the Liberal Republican party would be expressive—in the North and West, leaving the Democratic party to the possession of the Solid South.

Suppose such a political step were taken. Suppose the South were left to its Democratic self. It would comprise states with not exceeding 114 electoral votes. That would leave 423 electoral votes to be divided up by the present Republican party and the Liberal Republican party and you couldn't fix up any kind of an arrangement under which one or the other wouldn't win.

The kind of a leader for the new party would not be a Franklin D. Roosevelt but somebody like Nicky Butler. The Honorable Nicholas Murray himself is too old to be available as a candidate in 1932—he is sixty-six now and seventy is a bit too mature an age for a Presidential nominee. But there are plenty of men of his type in the country, and there ought to be a place for them better fitted to their enthusiasms and their innate battling propensities than either the Republican or the Democratic parties.

A good candid, militant, wet, pro-American, pro-intolerance party with a mission for debunking could make things hum in these United States of America if it could shove the Democratic party out of the picture in the North and West. Stranger things have happened.

THE SOUTHERN WAY A Manchester resident making a business trip through the South sends to the Herald a clipping from a Richmond newspaper which he rightly esteems of interest to people in this part of the country as showing the seriousness with which the people of Dixieland take their politics.

The clipping is a dispatch from Jackson, Miss., telling of the introduction into the Mississippi Legislature by a state senator of a resolution requesting the governor of Virginia to permit the removal from "Republican soil" of the bodies of Robert E. Lee and Stonewall Jackson and providing for the re-burial of those heroic leaders of the Confederacy in the still "Democratic ground" of Mississippi. It declares that Lee and Jackson "cannot rest or sleep peacefully in said Republican soil."

Why we cannot see just why the Mississippi legislator should have confined the effect of his resolution to Lee and Jackson when there are so many other notable victims of the "lost cause" lying in the Old Dominion, we are less surprised at this Mississippi manifestation than at Virginia voting for Hoover or any other Republican under any conceivable conditions.

If the Mississippi legislature should actually pass that resolution it would merely be remaining in character, whereas Virginia has momentarily stepped out of it. Those foresighted politicians who are already beginning to lay plans for 1932 will do very well not to imagine that the "breaking" of the solid south is anything but a strain. Mississippi and Virginia are too closely akin for anything like a permanent separation political-ly.

BAD TEETH ANCIENT Pops up a New York dentist, Dr. Henry W. Gillett, who deals a haymaker to the oft-asserted theory that only modern man has developed bad teeth. Dr. Gillett has been poking around the country examining the teeth in all sorts of ancient human remains flung away in museums and such places, and he has learned that the ancient Pueblo Indians, denizens of our southwest areas many, many hundreds of years ago, in prehistoric times, in fact, had more different kinds of things the matter with their teeth than any dentifrice ad writer of this age could think of in a blue moon.

They had every tooth and mouth disease that modern dentistry knows about and a few special ones, such as the wearing off of the teeth by constant contact with bits of stone in the meal which they ground in rock mortars.

To be sure, Dr. Gillett discovers that the Pacific coast Indians of those far off times had excellent teeth, free from most of the ills of the Pueblos, which immunity he thinks may have been due to eating sea food raw, in part, and partly to the fact that they didn't live in houses like the Pueblos. But even the Coast Indians had tooth cavities and abscesses sometimes. So dentistry is falling in line with the rest of the scientists who are gradually arriving at an understanding that there isn't as much difference between the men of a million years ago and those of today as a lot of us would like to believe.

THE VESTRIS TRAGEDY

Sadly different from the prospects yesterday morning, the affair of the Vestris turns out to be not only a sea tragedy of the first magnitude but one accompanied by conditions that call for a determined reservation of judgment until the whole tale has been told. That an unduly large proportion of the crew was saved and a correspondingly undue proportion of the lost consisted of women and children is a fact so utterly at variance with the traditions of the sea, and particularly of the British merchant marine, that it seems almost impossible that some adequate explanation shall not be made.

Surface appearance look sinister. But surface appearances do not always tell the whole of any story. Let us, before we criticize the officers and crew of the Vestris—let alone condemn them—wait until it can be shown whether or not the one-sided losses were not the consequence of circumstances over which there could have been no control.

SMITH'S GOODY

In his valedictory to the American people Governor Alfred E. Smith last night said at least one thing that was well worth while. He pointed out the proper function of a minority party to be the formulation of a constructive legislative program and to work for its adoption, instead of merely sitting as an obstructive body, waiting to take advantage of the majority party's errors for its own aggrandizement.

If the Democrats in Congress will remember this advice and live by it we shall have far less talk and considerably more achievement in the national capitol during the coming four years than would otherwise be the case.

IN NEW YORK

New York, Nov. 14.—The customary superstition connected with the numeral 13 does not attach to Boy 13 in the Metropolitan's famous "diamond horseshoe."

Instead of being viewed with superstitious eyes, this location is in great demand. Not so long ago George Henry Warren, who occupied the safety of No. 14, leaped at the opportunity of getting the "jinx" number when an opportunity afforded. I am told that a score of eminent folk have made bids for it.

Death has removed most of the figures who made the "diamond horseshoe" the social institution that it is. Its fame rose in the dear old nineties, when the society folk came to the opera in their carriages and when the "400" was "400" and not the 4000 Stanford White, who was slain by Harry Thaw, was one of the original group, occupying box No. 9, which became the E. H. Harriman property. Henry C. Frick was another of the pioneers. The Gary estate took over his box.

While Percy Rockefeller's name is to be found on the lists, neither John D. nor his son have shown any particular interest in joining the operatic semi-circle.

There is a grand old tradition surrounding No. 1 which, although its location is not so central, boasts a particular rating because it was first on the original list. The Goetts have handed it down and still possess it. The Astors, Morgans, Whitneys, Vanderbilts and Wetmores are among those who have kept the Met box in the family. The newest comer is Otto Kahn, who took over Warren's box when he moved to No. 13.

In the language of the Metropolitan, these are "parterre" boxholders. Part of the arrangement is that the holder must also be an owner of stock in the opera.

There is a secondary "box" section which has attracted little attention, largely because the same sentiment is not attached to the ownership. These change hands frequently and scores of the newer folk appear from season to season. Here, for instance, one may find J. J. Raskob, who tossed over his mighty business affairs to take on the management of Al Smith.

Having mentioned superstitions in an earlier paragraph, I am minded of a tale that reached my ears to the effect that Earl Carroll has refused to move into his old office since returning from his bath-tub term in Atlanta prison. This office, scene of his earlier activities, has not so much as been entered by the producer since he came back to New York, I am told. He ordered a smaller office built back stage, and when anyone comes to his general office to see him they are sent back there.

Health and Diet Advice

By DR. FRANK McCOY

Dr. McCoy will gladly answer personal questions on health and diet, addressed to him, care of The Herald. Enclose stamped, addressed, large envelope for reply.

SOME THOUGHTS ON COOKING.

Even in the earliest historical and mythological records, we find cookery mentioned. Through the ages of these many hundreds of generations the digestive system of man has undoubtedly accustomed itself to cooked foods. In fact, most civilized human beings, upon attempting to live entirely upon raw foods, notice pronounced gastric disturbances because of the increased difficulty in digesting vegetable foods not previously softened or sterilized by heat. Some foods, such as string beans, peas, wheat, artichokes and brussels sprouts, may be eaten raw, but their flavor and digestibility are improved by cooking.

The purpose of cooking food is not only to increase its digestibility and improve its flavor, but to kill dangerous organisms, which can be destroyed even at as low a temperature as 160 degrees Fahr., a temperature far below the boiling point.

It is unfortunate that the entire development of the art of cookery in the past has been more influenced by flavor than by nutritional value. Many of the complicated modern dishes are indigestible abominations. Fortunately, many chefs are now making a study of dietetics, and a few dietitians are making a study of the art of cookery so that some day we may look forward to restaurant food which is not only appetizing but wholesome as well.

An untrained cook can spoil perfectly wholesome food and render it either valueless or actually harmful by improper preparation, whereas, a scientifically trained chef increases the nutritive elements of almost every food by breaking up the tougher particles with heat and dissolving the cellular portions so that they can be more readily acted upon by the chemicals within the digestive tract.

The evils of bad cooking are far-reaching any may lead to a disease, a craving for drink and stimulants, indigestion, headaches, and mental melancholia which may so interfere with the life and personality of an individual as to result in financial failure and early death. It is not surprising then that the victims of poor cooking turn to stimulants, such as alcohol, coffee, tobacco, drink and drugs.

Under-nourished people are overfed, but are still starving for the right foods out of which they can secure the proper elements to build and repair their bodily tissues. Craving something else, their appetites try to secure satisfaction by the use of sweets. This is particularly true of the earnest student of dietetics who in his experimental years may attempt to live on an exclusive uncooked diet. The craving for sweets seems to be always present and is never satisfied, and in place of deliberately choosing a good steak he will invariably fall upon beer, meat on ice cream, candy and soda drinks.

To cook properly it is necessary to have a clear understanding of the effects of heat on various foods. For instance, vegetable and animal proteins are coagulated at a temperature of 175 degrees Fahr., far below the boiling point, which is 212 degrees Fahr. When a piece of meat is heated far above this point it is hardened and shriveled and its digestibility proportionately lessened.

Heat applied to dry starchy food will convert into a soluble form of dextrin, and when applied to wet starchy masses it will swell and burst the cellulose coverings which surround the starch granules so that the digestive juices of the saliva and pancreas may more readily penetrate. Even this process of breaking down cellulose may occur at times at temperature points below the boiling point. 190 degrees Fahr. is sufficient to break down any starchy structure.

Fats are less affected by heat than proteins and starches, but it is true that when they are subjected to an excessively high degree of temperature, some portions of fatty acids are liberated which make them more irritating to the stomach than cold or uncooked fats. (Continued in my next article.)

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

Pot-Bellied.

Question: Mrs. G. F. P. writes "My baby took ultraviolet ray treatment last winter for rickets and seems to be cured, but her abdomen extends out and she is sort of 'pot bellied.' Should a support be worn to correct this, and if so what kind? She also has flat feet. How can that be cured? She is 18 months old."

Answer: Your child should have a diet of pure Holstein milk, each feeding to be preceded by a plentiful amount of orange juice. In six months or so some non-starchy vegetables, such as spinach and carrots should be added to the diet. Keep up the ultra violet treatments occasionally but you must depend upon correct dieting for a permanent cure. An abdominal support will not help any, but the abdominal distention can be corrected when your child is old enough to take the proper exercises. This is also true about the flat feet. Send your full name and address on a large stamped envelope, and I will send you special articles on developing a flat abdomen, and also for curing fallen arches.

WASHINGTON LETTER

By RODNEY DUTCHER

Washington, Nov. 14.—No one ever knows how much is spent to elect the candidates in a presidential campaign, but there is reason to suppose that the 1928 bill has been higher than $15,000,000.

Difficult as it is to obtain accurate data for comparison, there is little question that this year campaign costs set a record. In the first place, the Democrats had a large war, which is most unusual for them. New requirements for expenditure and expansion of the old ones was another reason. Lastly and very importantly, certain powerful organizations which ordinarily keep out of national elections poured money into this one.

The two national committees have spent somewhere around $10,000,000 of the suggested $15,000,000. Such organizations as the Anti-Saloon League, the National Board of Temperance Prohibition and Public Morals and the Ku Klux Klan made a great and costly effort. The sum total of their political expenditures cannot now be told.

It must further be remembered that the national committee is only the one big collecting unit. There are many smaller ones. Money given to and used by the state and local organizations instead of to the national committee is not included in the national committee budgets. All sorts of so-called volunteer organizations raise and handle their own money. In effect, some of them are many holding companies for the cash.

It is regarded as common knowledge that a great deal of secret contribution and expenditure goes on, ordinarily and for the most part in doubtful states and the largest centers of population.

How is all the money used? Let's confine ourselves to the official budget money of the national committees, because that's much easier to trace. It is too early to learn the respective financial apportionments of the national committees for 1928, but the run pretty well along the lines of previous expenditures by whatever party had money to spend and the only important change is in the amount spent for radio.

The Democrats told this writer their radio bill would reach $650,000. The Republicans owned up to $350,000. The Democrats say the Republican bill must have been far above $350,000.

The frequency of Governor Smith's national hookup speeches made radio an expensive item for the Democrats. Twenty such speeches at a radio cost of from $7,000 to $10,000 apiece meant an outlay somewhere between $140,000 and $200,000. And the governor was only one of the speakers. Radio stations charge for time from $30 to $600 an hour, depending on their power, prestige and clientele. The $600 price is set by WJAF.

In 1924, the Republican National Committee spent just over $3,000,000 and reported some of its principal expenditures as follows: Publicity Bureau $741,278, grants to state committees $656,300, general administration $410,000, Speakers' Bureau $266,443, Congressional Committee $170,000, Senatorial Committee $87,000, Labor Bureau $101,188, Colored Bureau $88,111, Women's Bureau $67,900, Young Men's Bureau $33,418 and Foreign Language Bureau $24,000.

Ordinary Speakers' Bureau expenses have been reduced by the radio. On the other hand, both parties made strenuous drives for the women's vote, the colored vote, the foreign extraction vote and the farmer vote.

The most important was in ways sent into the precincts just before election day. Political students say that the party with an adequate supply of money to handle the precinct workers almost invariably wins if the other party is poor.

Figures have been cited to show that, with one exception, the biggest campaign fund has always won the presidency. The exception was in 1916. In that year the Republicans spent considerably more money than the Democrats, but the Democrats had more to spend than at any other time since 1892 up to 1928.

Everyone seems to agree that a large part of the campaign money is not the greater part, is always wasted. Business men have estimated the "waste" at from 25 to 50 per cent.

Two Ways to Avoid Sour Stomach

PAMPERING the stomach as you grow older is one way to keep out of trouble! But it's far more pleasant to eat what you choose, and let Pape's Diapepsin keep the stomach free from excess acid. Plenty of people past "three-score-and-ten" keep stomachs young because they know this one secret. Because it is so quick, so safe and so sure in ending digestive troubles, millions rely on "Pape's Diapepsin." "Pape's Diapepsin" is unequalled as an indigestion remedy and dietary corrective, yet it costs only 50 cents a package at all druggists.

If your stomach ever torments you get "Pape's Diapepsin" at once and recapture the pleasure of care-free, painless digestion. You may have felt that nothing can help your particular difficulty, but so have others to whom this remedy proved a pleasant surprise. This experiment with diapepsin may do as much for you.

Proposals!

A glance at her blonde loveliness tells better than words why this beautiful New York City girl has received such flattering proposals from stags and movie and stage leads. She's Collette Francis, of 255 East 55th St., Brooklyn; now one of the charmers in the Broadway hit, "Rio Rita."

Miss Francis says: "Since I've been on the stage, so many people have asked me what I do to get the beautiful golden gleam and sparkle in my hair that I am beginning to think I'm really taking wonderful care of it. I really never thought much about it. What I do is so simple. Like so many of my girl friends here in New York, I just put a little Danderine on my brush each time I use it. That keeps my hair silky and gleaming, makes it easy to dress and holds it like I arrange it, for hours. My scalp was very dry and I had a lot of dandruff when I first started on it, but all of that trouble stopped quickly. And Danderine keeps my hair so clean I don't need to shampoo half as often, now."

Danderine removes that oily film from your hair and gives it new life and lustre. It isn't oily and doesn't show. It gives tone and vigor to the scalp. The generous bottles are just 35c at any drug or toilet counter. A delicately fragrant necessity for the well-groomed girl.—Adv.

A DOCTOR'S ADVICE:
 GO LIGHT ON LAXATIVES!

Everyone needs a laxative AT TIMES. But there's no need for making it a HABIT. If you have the habit, you can be rid of it in thirty days. Or less! And this is how:

The next time you go to take any strong cathartic—don't. Instead, take a little cascara. That's not a vicious drug, but the bark of a tree. The laxative made with cascara couldn't harm a child. It is, in fact, the one cathartic many physicians will approve for children. Gentle as it is, cascaring is just as thorough in cleansing the colon as the more powerful purges that actually sap a person's strength.

Proof that there's no habit from cascara begins the very day after taking. Instead of being clogged worse than ever, the bowels are more inclined to move OF THEIR OWN ACCORD. You may have to take cascara several times to establish regularity. But the times you need this gentle stimulus grow further apart. And you NEVER and you must increase the amount. Cascara's ideal form is the candy Cascaret that pleases any palate, and you'll find them at the first drug store you ask.

High Flight

1928 By RUTH DEWEY GROVES AUTHOR OF "WHEN A GIRL LOVES LOVE FOR TWO"

THIS HAS HAPPENED

Fate introduces JERRY RAY to wealthy ALLESTER CARSTAIRS when he crashes his airplane into the camp she is sharing with her roommate MYRTLE. Her heart responds to his pilot, DAN HARVEY, but Allester is struck by her beauty and showers attentions upon her.

Unable to buy a gown for the party Allester has invited her to, Jerry yields to the temptation to take one from the store—intending to slip it back next day.

Jerry is discharged from the store when she has to confess that the dress is ruined. She seeks another job and is surprised one evening when Dan calls. He proposes and she tells him she does not believe in love but is going to try to marry money. He leaves after trying to warn her.

Allester asks Jerry to take a drive with him and goes to the deserted camp where he offers a ring and a proposal which stuns her. She repulses his advances and is glad to hear Dan's whistle as he approaches from the beach. Under cover of his presence Jerry forces Allester to take her home. He is contrite and when she says she has lost her job on his account, he promises to try to get her in a chorus.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XXIII

Jerry opened her eyes on Monday morning with a start when the alarm clock struck seven. She was about to throw back the top sheet and jump out of bed in a hurry when she remembered that this Monday morning was different from any other in her life.

A day of promise lay ahead of her. And it was not necessary to sacrifice half an hour of sleep for the sake of cleanliness. Let the other roomers use up the limited supply of hot water if they wanted to—she could wait until morning was here.

It wouldn't matter to her any longer that no hot bath was available on Sunday night after a day spent in moist and sticky pursuit of pleasure aboard crowded subway trains, ferries or excursion boats. She was going to leave all that behind forever.

Allester was coming or her some time in the afternoon to take her to see Jake Weinert, Jake—famous for his choruses.

Jerry fell back on her pillow and stretched her arms above her head with a yawn of sheer creature comfort.

"You lucky little dingbat," Myrtle said to her, while she strolled on a cotton kimono to the bathroom, hoping to find it unoccupied. Jerry had confided to her the night before that she was going to have a chance to go on the stage.

"A girl can watch her step after she's had one lesson," Jerry had argued to herself while Allester filled her car for an hour with his pleas for her forgiveness.

She had been convinced finally that he was sincere, contrite. And the project of employment that was pleasant, thrilling even, was irresistible. No more alarm clocks. No more wild dash for a bath. No more hurried breakfasts of coffee in thick cups and a cruller or some half-burned toast.

And the lure of the footlights! Jerry felt it strongly. People had always told her she should be on the stage, but never before she met Allester had she known anyone who had the slightest connection with it.

She thought of the dress she had planned to wear that day in search of work. It hung, nicely pressed, in the clothes closet. Nothing to do but manure it with pins and prepare to look her best. She pulled the sheet up to her neck and curled down for a late sleep. But sleep was impossible.

When Myrtle returned from her tepid plunge Jerry was sitting up in bed, her arms clasped around her drawn-up knees, day dreaming in bliss.

Allester was to telephone her when he made the appointment with Weinert. Jerry had an occasional moment of misgiving when she thought of the assurance with which he had taken it for granted that he would have no trouble getting the appointment. Weinert was a big man in the theatrical world, she knew.

But Allester's influence with him must have been all that he claimed, for at 11 o'clock Allester called her to say he would come for her at three.

Jerry flew up the stairs and danced a drag in the middle of the worn carpet on her floor. She would have her chance! Now it was up to her!

She ran over to the mirror to seek encouragement there. And even in the slightly distorted vision that met her gaze she saw loveliness. Her eyes were filled with the spirit of adventure, of youth, of elation. They were fairly sparkling with her electric vitality.

"If only I'm not too scared to dance," she breathed prayerfully, satisfied that Weinert would find her pretty enough.

Stage fright began to grow upon her then. She found it nerve wracking to wait until three o'clock, doing nothing, if she knew what to expect.

"I hope they won't ask me to dance today," she said to herself with a touch of panic.

"What will I have to do?" were almost her first words as she addressed to Allester when he arrived.

"Scared?" he laughed. "Why, Jerry, you have nothing to worry about. Jake's going to bless me with the rest of his life for bringing you a girl like you."

Jerry felt a trifle reassured, but only a trifle.

"I don't know any dances except

"Scared?" he laughed. "Why, Jerry, you have nothing to worry about."

those Myrtle teaches me," she said weakly.

"They're enough," Allester replied. "Do the Varsity Drag if you have to show your stuff, and remember that I said you outstep any girl I've ever danced with."

That was praise indeed, for Jerry recalled the graceful dancing of Leontine and thrilled to think that Allester compared her favorably with such a woman as that.

She was a little calmer when they reached Weinert's office in the Forties. The building they entered was far from impressive and they walked up to the second floor, where Jerry was surprised to see the producer's name on all the hall doors.

She'd have thought, if he had so much business, that he would conduct it from more pretentious quarters. But perhaps the inside.

Allester led her toward a door with no other lettering besides the name of the producer on the glass. The other doors were sub-titled with the names of his assistants and their departments.

The lack of magnificence saved Jerry from being awestruck. She couldn't be impressed with poor surroundings. Allester opened the door to the waiting room outside Jake's private office. Jerry stepped over the threshold and paused in astonishment.

Along the walls ran benches, hard benches such as would not encourage prolonged recumbency. The floor was bare, and liberally covered near the benches with tobacco ash. People sat on the benches, people who begged description as far as Jerry's vocabulary was concerned.

She felt as if she'd been suddenly transported into a new world. Wherever did such people keep themselves when they weren't here on the benches? Now and then a very queer looking human had come to her lace counter, but to find a large-sized crowd of them together.

There were a few girls with red lips and silken knees posed like the news pictures of prominent ship arrivals, sitting apart from the others in chairs. Plainly they were preferred applicants. Jerry learned later that word had gone out to the profession that Weinert was casting character parts.

Only at such times did the "freaks," as she heard them called, through the office. They could be seen there at all times in smaller groups, their bulbous or scrawny features set in lines of patient resignation to a long wait. Often they came day after day and sat the office hours through.

Jerry and Allester were shown at once into the private office. Jerry was prepared to find it as bare and uninviting as the other. But it was very different. She had not known that offices ever were furnished so much like luxurious living rooms.

A man, a bald, round-faced man with a squat body, sat at a desk of some dark, gleaming wood. He was leaning back in his chair, his hands folded over an ample paunch, his eyes closed.

"Mr. Carstairs," his secretary announced in the rear of his callers. The man sat up with a start and thrust out a hand to Allester. Then he saw Jerry and got to his feet. Allester introduced them.

"No experience, I understand," the producer said to her cordially. "Well we're glad to see what you've got." He went on, not waiting for Jerry's reply. "Owe a lot to our friend Allester, here. Where's your car, Al? We'll drive over to the theater and give this young lady a tryout."

He had touched a button while his talk ran on and when his secretary appeared to answer it he asked for his hat and cane. They were brought to him and Jerry almost allowed a smile to break forth when he walked over to a mirror to adjust the hat on his head. It took quite some few minutes. The cane was grasped with jaunty carelessness.

There was a stir in the outer office as they passed through and Jerry fancied she heard a few sighs. There was no doubt, however, about the muttered remark that came from a pair of red lips. Jerry expected to see Mr. Weinert turn upon the girl but, apparently, he must have been slightly deaf; at any rate he appeared not to hear what had been said. Jerry made a mental note to speak in a raised voice when she addressed him.

A moment later, when she had occasion to do so, he said: "My dear, I hear perfectly. . . . what I wish to hear."

Jerry flushed.

They got into Allester's car and started off. Jerry thought the theater must be several blocks away, and when Allester drove to Broadway and down a block, then west again, she was both amused and surprised. They could have walked the distance in a few minutes.

But there was no time to wonder about Mr. Weinert's idiosyncrasies. He had her by the arm leading her into his theater where, if she was fortunate, a golden future lay ahead of her.

YOUR CHILDREN

by Olive Roberts Barton
©1928 by NEA Service, Inc.

They say the region of the condemned is paved with good intentions.

I wonder then, with very great curiosity, just what sort of place is paved with useless threats.

Mothers of children, have you ever stopped to count how many times you have said impatiently and meaninglessly, "If you do that again I'll tell your father." "If you don't do this, I'll smack you," without any idea of doing either.

Such threats soon cease to have any effect on children. They are as peevish as biscuit without baking powder.

One of the first things a young school teacher is taught in her normal course is never to make a threat. But if in the course of human events she finds it necessary to fracture this cast-iron rule of good pedagogy, she must keep her word.

The ethics of a broken threat in school management are on a par with a broken promise. And what place has a broken promise in a court of law? See, then, how important it is not to make a threat at home that it is impossible or difficult to keep.

Children soon become absolutely impervious and callous to ineffectual threats. "She's said that a hundred times," they think to themselves, if they think about it at all.

She doesn't mean it—she's just talking." And at that it doesn't make pretty conversation.

One day in a store I heard a mother say to a child who had lifted a toy off a counter to look at it "I told you not to touch those things. If you do it again I'll burn your fingers."

She looked around with a smile at the startled customers who had heard it. The little boy paid no attention. I rather think it was her habit of making conversation.

A threat at best is a confession of weakness. A parent summons to his aid visions of punishment to accomplish what he cannot do by will or wisdom.

When personality fails, he summons up a picture of dire chastisement to help him out.

Few things in the world are without use. We must acknowledge that there are times when a good, healthy, earnestly-meant threat is worth while. Then it should mean business and be carried through to a finish.

But such times surely need be few and far between.

Children will have ten times as much respect for parents who never threaten. And in the wake of respect follows obedience.

FASTING, AS CURE FOR EPILEPSY, IS IMPROVED
By DR. MORRIS FISHER

Editor Journal of the American Medical Association and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine

In 1921, the suggestion was first made from a scientific source that starvation as a method of treatment would have beneficial effects in epilepsy.

This disease has been known almost since the beginning of time. It is described in ancient Roman works as the "falling" disease and it was described by Hippocrates as the sacred disease because people in his time believed that it represented a special act of some higher power.

For many centuries men have grasped at every possible hope with a view to controlling its manifestations. Today it is known that the number of convulsions may be controlled by certain drugs, but this is no cure, merely temporary relief.

A Number of Diets

All sorts of special diets have been tried, including milk diets, vegetarian diets, meat diets, salt-free diets and similar combinations, but again without sufficient scientific evidence to establish any of them as specifically valuable.

In many cases in which digestive disorders were present, proper attention to diet and bowel action has resulted favorably, as it would result favorably in a person with such conditions who did not have epilepsy.

The starvation method was offered as a specific method and in the seven years that have passed hundreds of persons have fasted from a period of a few days to a period of several weeks in an attempt to test its virtues.

Many investigators have reported a lessened number of convulsions or a reduction in the severity of the convulsions during the fast. However, as a method of cure, the starvation treatment has been disappointing and its results essentially negative.

Ketosis

During the scientific investigation of the method, however, it was found that abstinence from food was associated with the production in the body of a condition called ketosis, associated with the appearance of certain chemical substances in the blood. This condition could be induced by feeding a person a diet which contains large amounts of fat as compared with the amount of sugar taken into the body.

Extensive studies are now being made on the use of such diets, and it is found that they will secure results just as good as can be secured by fasting without the associated general disturbances and mental attitudes that are the accompaniment of starvation. The new diet is called ketogenic diet because of the substances that it produces.

Millions of Families Depend on Dr. Caldwell's Prescription

When Dr. Caldwell started to practice medicine, back in 1875, the needs for a laxative were not as great as they are today. People lived normal, quiet lives, ate plain, wholesome food, and got plenty of fresh air and sunshine. But even that early there were drastic physical and purges for the relief of constipation which Dr. Caldwell did not believe were good for human beings to put into their systems. So he wrote a prescription for a laxative to be used by his patients.

The prescription for constipation that he used early in his practice, and which he put in drug stores in 1892 under the name of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, is a liquid vegetable laxative intended for women, children and elderly people, and they need just such a mild, safe, gentle bowel stimulant as Syrup Pepsin.

Under successful management this prescription has proven its worth and is now the largest selling liquid laxative in the world. The fact that millions of bottles are used a year proves that it has won the confidence of people who needed it to get relief from headaches, biliousness, flatulence, indigestion, loss of appetite and sleep, bad breath, dyspepsia, colds and fever.

Millions of families are now never without Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, and if you will once start using it you will also always have a bottle handy for emergencies.

It is particularly pleasing to know that the mass of it is bought by mothers for themselves and the children, though Syrup Pepsin is just as valuable for elderly people. All drug stores have the generous bottles. Or, to prove at our expense how much Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin can mean to you and yours, use this special coupon:

The WOMAN'S DAY

Marion Talley who at 19 became a Metropolitan Opera prima donna and the envy and personification of the most fairytale-like dreams of thousands of American girls, and who now commands thousands of dollars every time she sings, confesses that the one thing she now wants, her life's dearest dream, is a farm.

In explaining just why she wants her farm she insists that the things she has—fame, money, position, which make her seem the veritable fairy princess to American girlhood, is not worth so much and that she is little, if any, happier than when she was just an ambitious girl dreaming of the glory which now she has.

"I want a farm. I want to live on it, manage it and make it self-supporting," says Marion Talley. "I want my home and my real life to be my farm."

It Puzzles Us

Things like this make some of us occasionally despair and wonder why we should struggle toward the goals we think we want. Is anyone ever satisfied with the goal attained, even with the rare experience such as Marion Talley had of attaining a goal so big, so rarely reached, that most people would have called her dream merely fantastic and pathetic?

If, and when, Marion gets her farm, will she be any happier and more contented with that? Or is the only thing which gives living a zest at all the longing for "the next thing," once the immediate dream has come true?

Is it as pathetic as it seems or is there hope in this fact that all human beings are doomed to eternal seeking of the thing they think they want, only to find the treasure turns to dust even as they hold it first and feverishly in their hands?

"Dodo" Women

"In another generation a woman who knows how to make bread or an apple pie will be as extinct as the dodo."

This rather startling statement comes from no less an authority on the trend of men and women than Carrie Chapman Catt. The baker, the delicatessen, the wholesale grocer have invaded woman's balliwick or work so completely that chasing the pay envelope is her only way of activity left, she says.

Kelley And Fay Agree On Men To Handle Series

Coaches Save Teams Many Dollars By Selecting 3 Nearby Officials, Clyde Waters, Merriman and Holm

Massachusetts Officials Cost Nearly $300 Last Season; Men Selected Both Capable and Reliable; Waters Best Known.

The Cubs and Cloverleaves have agreed on the officials who will handle their football scrap which starts next Sunday at Mt. Nebo, it was learned yesterday afternoon.

Usually the officials of the two teams argue for many weeks over this point, but this year it is different. Why? Simply because two men with common sense have handled the arrangements. They are the two coaches, Thomas F. Kelley of the Cubs, and J. Leo Fay of the Cloverleaves.

The three men upon whose shoulders fall the difficult task of handling two teams who are such extreme rivals as the Cubs and the Cloverleaves are as follows:

Referee—Clyde Waters of Bristol.
Umpire—D. W. Merriman of Hartford.
Head-linesman—Charlie Holm of West Hartford.

Waters and Merriman are members of the Central Board of Football Officials in Connecticut but Holm, although he has applied for membership, has not yet been admitted. Of the three, Waters is the best known. He officiates basketball and baseball as well as football and has worked in Manchester several times before. He handled the basketball series between the Crescents and the Rec Five in basketball several years ago and has also played baseball here with Bristol New Departures many times. He is a catcher by trade in this sport.

Merriman is at present physical director at the Kingswood school in West Hartford. He is a graduate of Geneva College and his home is in Beacon Falls, Pa. Holm is also from West Hartford and has officiated at some of the Manchester High School games this season.

Last year, the Cubs and Cloverleaves could not agree on any officials in Connecticut and finally decided to write to Tad Jones, Yale Coach, for advice. After much argument, three men from Massachusetts were obtained. They were James A. Keegan of Pittsfield, Mass., rated as one of the foremost college football officials in the United States, H. F. "Dad" White, head coach at Amherst College and Alfred G. Wheeler, coach of the Amherst Freshman team.

Going to this extreme cost the teams nearly $150 a game, or $300 for the two battles. Many regarded this as an utter waste of money, claiming that there was no need whatever of employing out of state officials to handle a Manchester series. And there is more truth than poetry in this statement. Consequently, it must be stated that Messrs. Kelley and Fay have acted both wisely and economically in agreeing on officials from the immediate vicinity. All three men have fine reputations, both as of-

Officials and sportsmen. Yet, their total fee for each game will be but $50 as compared to nearly three times that amount last season. Several other officials were discussed by the rival coaches but Waters, Merriman and Holm were their final choices. These men have been notified of their selections and, having open dates for the next two Sundays, have agreed to handle the Cubs-Cloverleaves fracas.

BATTALINO VS. COHEN TOMORROW'S FEATURE

Featherweights Clash on Dry Ring to Settle Long Discussed Question.

Milton Cohen of New York and Bat Battalino of Hartford will settle their little dispute tomorrow night at Foot Guard hall—and on dry footing.

They battled last summer at the Velodrome, but the bout was fought in a downpour and the ring was awash so that neither could stage a real display of his real talent. Battalino won on that occasion and insists he would have scored a knockout under normal conditions. The former national amateur featherweight champion promises that he will be returned winner on a kayo this time.

Cohen, on the other hand, says he was unable to unloose any footwork against Bat in the rainstorm that summer's night at the Velodrome and that Battalino will find him a constantly moving target this time. The New York boy is not a hard hitter, but he is a clever boxer and a fast puncher. He fought at the Drome several times during the summer season and won every bout with the exception of the Battalino scrap.

He outpointed all his other opponents by a wide margin and his relentless attack always wore down his rival who, in each case, was tired and wobbly at the final bell. The Battalino-Cohen bout tops an attractive card.

The first bout is set for 8:15.

RAJAH COST $125,000 PLUS FIVE PLAYERS

Chicago, Nov. 14.—Rogers Hornsby today was a full-fledged member of the Cubs family, having affixed his signature to a contract in the presence of President William Wrigley.

It was a very little ceremony which all three seemed heartily to enjoy. A half dozen newspaper cameramen, with a booming flashlight salute also witnessed the Rajah's signing.

Hornsby came to the Cubs from Boston Braves in exchange for cash stated to be in excess of $125,000 and five players.

President Veeck said Hornsby's contract with the Bruins covers two years of service, but the prey did not disclose the salary figure. It is reported, however, that Hornsby will receive $27,000 a year, plus an attractive bonus.

REC FIVE OPENS ON THANKSGIVING

Manager Clune May Bring Knights of Lithuania or Diamond Match Here for Opener.

The Rec Five basketball team will open its season on Thanksgiving Day night which will be Thursday, Nov. 23, it was stated last night by Manager Ben Clune. All home games, of course, will be played in the School street Rec gym.

Manager Clune is dickering with the speedy Knights of Lithuania of Hartford to usher in the 1928-29 basketball season in Manchester and if unsuccessful in getting this club, he may bring the Diamond Match team of Springfield here.

Five of the seven players who will compose the Rec Five have already been selected. They are Harold Madden, Ty Holland, Roy Norris, Henry McCann and Everett Strange. The other two are in doubt. Clarence Gustafson, Billy Dowd and Nino Boggini are among those who are seeking the other two berths. There will be another practice session Friday night from 7 until 8:30.

Although it was expected a few weeks ago that "Cap" Bissell would play with the Rec, he has not definitely decided to cast his lot with Trinity College.

The game Thanksgiving Day night will be the only sport attraction in Manchester that night and probably that day.

THE TINYMITES

THE TINYMITES: The Tinymites slept sound and long. They didn't hear the breakfast siren aboard the ship, so they were late when things were set to serve.

PHONES Pinehurst
"GOOD THINGS TO EAT"
 A GLORIOUS QUARTET
 Presenting four beautiful chaps, today, in the way of the finest eating apples to be had at this season—Jonathan, Pippin, Delicious and Northern Spy. These four constitute the very pick of November apples; and those in Pinehurst's stock today are admirable specimens of the varieties.
 Which shall it be, a Four Quart Basket at 39 cents or a Peach Basket at $1.29? Surely you'll want one or the other—the time to buy apples, this year, is when the good ones are in sight.
 Also we have some excellent Baldwins, wonderfully good for Pies or Sauce. Two grades. One at 59 cents the Peach Basket, the other at 69 cents.
 Thursday, for some reason we don't pretend to explain, seems to be Sauer Kraut Day among Pinehurst's customers. We have been selling a surprising lot of it for the last two or three weeks. Perhaps it's because the Fancy Bulk Kraut we are putting out is so "zesty" and flavorful—so exactly what Sauer Kraut ought to be.
 Anyhow, we have made special preparation this week in the way of meat pieces to go with Mein Herr S. K. They are Ends of Pork, Sparicis, Pigs' Hoops (the traditional Sauer Kraut companions) and Eckhardt's perfectly delicious Frankfurts.
 Mentioning again that these things, as well as any others, can be delivered either early in the morning, later in the morning, very early in the afternoon—which is especially convenient for some of our customers—or, in fact, just about any old time at all, as requested.
