

BUSINESS ON MAIN STREET TURNS WEST

Opening of Hale's and A & P Stores at Park Street Brings Out Great Crowd of Thursday Buyers.

So crowded were the streets in the South Manchester trading district last night that they gave every appearance of being part of a city of 50,000 people. No other reason for the traffic congestion, both street and sidewalk, can be found than the opening of Manchester's new meat and grocery stores—Hale's and the A & P. However, the entire trading center was crowded all evening and it was next to impossible to find a parking space.

Both the new Hale Park Street Market and the adjacent A & P store were visited by crowds that must easily have run into the thousands. No attempt at counting them was made but both managers were thoroughly pleased with the great turnout.

The new Hale's Self-Serve and Health Market which will hereafter be known as the Park Street Market is a store model, one that is designed from models in some of the most enterprising cities in the United States. It was laid out under the personal direction of Frank H. Anderson, general manager of the J. W. Hale Company, who visited stores in Rochester, Buffalo and Chicago to get ideas. It presents a handsome appearance from the street and its interior is even more attractive.

There are two entrances to the combination Self-Serve and Health Market. The entrance at Main and (Continued on Page 2.)

BATTLE EXPECTED OVER RADIO BOARD

Present Members Do Not Wish to Serve and Congress Must Decide.

Washington, Nov. 23.—War clouds were gathering today indicating a first-class battle over the radio situation when Congress meets in December.

Three phases of the fight are expected to develop. The terms of the Federal Radio Commission expire February 23, but the commission remains in existence as a licensing body until March 15. The question of extending the commission's life as a regulatory body must be settled.

The present members, or others to be nominated, will be up for confirmation and unless action is taken promptly the commission for several weeks will be a licensing body without personnel to act.

Up To Congress
Congress must decide whether the regulating of radio goes back to the Commerce Department, which under the present statute, would assume the authority to license stations after March 15, or whether the commission will be continued as a licensing organization.

The question of continuation of the commission may be taken up with President Hoover. When the commission was created Hoover was the "Radio czar." He favored a commission and officials believe that he would prefer to see radio permanently regulated by such a body rather than being placed in the commerce Department, despite his well known aversion to the commission system.

Peculiar Situation
The position of Chairman Ira E. Robinson of West Virginia, is a peculiar one. Robinson refused to take part in the commission's new allocation, which it is claimed, has formed the basis for real radio service, on the ground that it was too drastic.

SIGNS POINT TO BREAK IN N. Y. MYSTERY

District Attorney Ready to Ask for Two Indictments In Rothstein Case—Digging Up Evidence.

New York, Nov. 23.—While detectives sent west were reported hot on the trail of the man behind the gun in the murder of Arnold Rothstein, blue chip gambler and phantom power of the underworld, District Attorney Joab Banton today was preparing to seek two indictments at least, before the Grand Jury.

"The name of more than one man will be mentioned when I ask indictments," said Banton today.

"We want just a wee bit more evidence," supplemented Inspector John Coughlin, chief of the detective bureau. "Then we will be ready for the Grand Jury."

Everything pointed toward an early "break" in New York's biggest murder mystery since the Rosenthal case. Contrary to the optimistic declarations of the past few days, officials' lips were sealed tighter than a clam in the subway crush. It is a habit police have when on the verge of a big development when they figure further publicity will hamper their plans.

Police Silent
They didn't know anything. They weren't looking for Jack "Legs" Diamond, bodyguard of the slain Broadway plunger. Nor were they seeking any particular man. They didn't even know who was in the "death suite" of the Park Central hotel the night Rothstein was intruded there.

The 50,000 documents unearthed from the cabinet files of Rothstein did not interest them. It would be a dreary task to go through these scraps of paper and they were calling off the men assigned to study them.

"If anything of interest turns up in the Rothstein files, Nathan Burman, lawyer, retained to look after the interests of the temporary administrators, will let us know," said Banton.

All of which was taken with a grain of salt. Banton has the record of culling documentary evidence for over his secondary cases. Contain Secrets
And like so many ghosts ready to rise and point accusing fingers, the Rothstein files are said to contain the secrets of the gambler's sway over the underworld.

Meanwhile, the legal battle over his will between two known women in Rothstein's life was continued today before Surrogate O'Brien. Carolyn Rothstein, the murdered man's widow, is contesting the document which left a generous slice of the estate to Inez Norton, ex-show girl.

HARD TO HOLD ELECTIONS IN MANY PARTS OF RUSSIA

Women and Men Forbidden to Be in Same Room; Other Places No One Can Read or Count.

Moscow, Nov. 23.—Enforcement of the suffrage laws—both women and men—is leading to peculiar complications in the Soviet Republic. And the red revolution women were given the vote as well as men. But, in some parts of the republic, the Mohammedan religion prevents men and women voters from being in the same room—unless they are married to one another.

In other parts of the country the women—long used to Amazonian prerogatives—run things, to suit themselves. It is the men who suffer in these communities, so far as the franchise is concerned.

Postpone Elections
Municipal elections, postponed indefinitely last winter by a decree of the Communist Party, will be held next January throughout the republic. The elections will be conducted on the town meeting plan, there being no secret ballot in Russia.

MADE A SPECIALTY OF STEALING FORDS

Had Picked Up Five of the New Models When Caught in Stamford.

Stamford, Conn., Nov. 23.—Police here today announced they had confessions from Walter Ryan, of West Haven, and Thomas Kearns of Stamford that indicated the men's specialization in picking up new Ford cars without the owner's permission, driving them to New Haven, and either selling them or putting them in a garage to sell when an officer came. Police say the two men admit taking five cars, of which two were sold in New Haven for a total of $1,000; one was found in a New Haven garage, and two were in possession of the men when they were arrested.

CAPT. CAREY DID NOT USE A LIFE BELT

New York, Nov. 23.—A vivid picture of Captain Wm. J. Carey's last actions as he stood alone—a heroic figure—on the hurricane deck of the sinking liner Vestris, wrapped in a long black overcoat, without any life preserver and hoarsely shouting orders to his men, was given in an affidavit read today at the federal inquiry seeking to fix the blame for the disaster which cost 110 lives.

HOOVER AND PARTY IN TROPICAL SEAS

Heat Intense as Battleship With President-Elect Nears Central America.

Aboard U. S. S. Maryland (Via Arlington, Va. Radio Station), Nov. 23.—Steaming steadily southward along the Mexican coast at a speed of 17 knots an hour, the battleship Maryland carrying President-Elect Herbert Hoover to Central and South America on his Latin-American "good-will" mission, today entered the Gulf of Tehuantepec and is expected to pass a point opposite the Mexican-Guatemalan boundary line this evening.

Mr. Hoover and his party are beginning to feel the effects of the terrific tropical heat now being encountered. It is almost impossible to remain below decks either night or day. Even the president-elect remained on deck until midnight last night.

Intense Heat
The heat waves circling about the ship last night were so intense that the rollers of the printing press used to put out the Maryland's newspaper, "The Evening Hurricane," melted. They became so soft that they were put into the refrigerator plant for seven hours. They were then used but only enough copies of the paper for the Hoover party and the ship's captain could be turned out so the other officers and the crew will be without their paper today.

Fashionable Color
White is the predominant color aboard the Maryland. All of the 1,200 officers and crew have donned their tropical uniforms. The press correspondents are wearing light colored lightweight suits and almost everyone in Mr. Hoover's party is similarly attired. The president-elect still prefers to wear a blue double-breasted coat with white trousers and shoes.

Mr. Hoover was much interested in the first "general field day" on the Maryland since he came aboard. Inspired by their distinguished audience, hundreds of drowsy sea men scampered here and there, shining, polishing and scrubbing the main-deck floor from stem to stern. Trap-shooting has been added to the deck amusements. Mr. Hoover and his wife were interested spectators as clay pigeons hurled from the deck by an automatic catapult were hit by experts among the officers shooting from the deck.

Deck golf, however, is still the most favorite sport aboard, many four-somes being in evidence at all times of the day.

KING OF ENGLAND ILL; ONE LUNG CONGESTED

New York, Nov. 23.—One of the wealthiest, if not the wealthiest heir in the world today is Payne Whitney Payson, three years old. This was revealed today with the filing of a formal appraisal of the estate of the late Payne Whitney, sportsman and financier.

The appraisal showed the Whitney estate has the staggering gross value of $194,328,514 and a net value of $178,893,865.

Of this vast sum little Payne Whitney Payson, granddaughter of Payne Whitney, will eventually receive, provided she lives, more than one hundred million dollars.

Whitney's estate was the largest on record in this country and was nearly twice as large as that of Mrs. Anna M. Harkness, the second largest estate ever recorded. It exceeds by nearly $20,000,000 the combined estates of J. P. Morgan and Henry C. Frick.

Taxes of approximately $20,000,000 must first be paid by the executor of the vast estate. Then $45,000,000 was willed to charities, libraries and educational institutions.

Mrs. Payne Whitney, widow of the sportsman, was left a life income of $54,202,894 and was given real estate outright valued at more than $3,000,000. When Mrs. Whitney dies her estate will pass to her granddaughter.

Whitney's two children, Mrs. Joan Whitney Payson and John Jay Whitney, each was left temporary estates of $27,101,347. When they reach the age of 40 the funds are to go outright to the granddaughter.

Whitney remembered many of his close personal friends with bequests. Finley Peter Dunne, creator of "Mr. Dooley," was given $500,000.

POSSIBLE TO MAKE "GAS" FROM COAL, SAYS EXPERT

SHIP SAILS OFF DESPITE COURT CARRIES OFF SHERIFF WHO TRIES TO HOLD VESSEL AS SECURITY IN CIVIL SUIT.

Boston, Nov. 23.—Whether a court decree can be regarded as "a scrap of paper," whether a deputy sheriff carried to sea aboard a steamship was regarded by the captain as a stowaway or a passenger, whether the deputy was shanghaied or just kidnapped, or whether it was all just a mistake—these were among the many questions up for settlement in New York today when the tramp steamer Minnequa puts into that port.

Sheriff John A. Keliher's chief clerk, Arthur E. Burns, was in New York to intercept the Minnequa, to "rescue" Deputy Sheriff James F. Quinn and to have the laws of New York determine whether the sailing of the Minnequa from Boston was by accident or design.

The Minnequa sailed away yesterday for New York with Quinn aboard and yelling to the dock for someone to get word to the sheriff's office that the steamship captain was taking the ship to sea despite Quinn's protests. Quinn had been placed aboard as a keeper to hold the vessel as security until adequate bonds had been put up in a personal damage suit brought by Patrick Regan, a laborer, in an accident.

More Gasoline
"The problem of the middle west petroleum refiner is, and very probably will continue to be," Rittman asserted, "make more gasoline and less fuel oil from a given quantity of crude oil."

Hitting at the principle theme of the conference—the manufacture of petroleum from coal—Rittman went at the problem by describing a process of manufacturing coal from petroleum and suggesting that coal thus obtained may prove to be an ideal starting material for the process of manufacturing petroleum from coal.

W. L. Locomotive Fuel
The problem of the middle west petroleum refiner is, and very probably will continue to be," Rittman asserted, "make more gasoline and less fuel oil from a given quantity of crude oil."

"Ninety per cent of the locomotive fuel of the railroads of the United States is bituminous," he estimated.

Robinson cited the methods of supervision employed by railroads to insure economical utilization.

ALTHOUGH PHYSICIANS REPORT HIM AS RESTING EASILY, MEMBERS OF HIS IMMEDIATE FAMILY HAVE BEEN NOTIFIED—DUKE OF YORK AND PRINCESS MARY CALLED TO BEDSIDE—GRAVE ALARM FELT IN ROYAL CIRCLES.

London, Nov. 23.—King George, who is suffering from influenza accompanied by inflammation of the throat and congestion of one lung, was reported resting easier late this afternoon following a brief sleep. The King's personal physician, Lord Dawson of Penn, left Buckingham Palace at 4 o'clock

King George V

Despite the reassuring statements of the physicians and court attendants grave alarm was felt in many circles in view of the fact that the Duke of York, second son of the King, was called in and Princess Mary, only daughter of the royal family, was reported hastening to London. A cablegram was sent to the Prince of Wales and his brother, the Duke of Gloucester, in Africa, notifying them of their father's illness.

Large crowds stood all day outside the palace grounds awaiting the latest news of the stricken monarch.

It was announced tonight that the Prince of Wales, the heir apparent, is being kept informed of his father's progress, but that "no messages are being sent which might tend to shorten his African visit."

Queen Victoria, of Spain, called at Buckingham Palace and took tea with Queen Mary.

EARLY BULLETINS
London, Nov. 23.—Public anxiety over the condition of King George, who is suffering from throat infection and congestion of one lung was soothed by an early this afternoon by the following official bulletin issued at Buckingham Palace:

TEAMS TOO BUSY AT COLLECTIONS TO REPORT—SMALL GAIN OF $94 SHOWN.

Though the Red Cross drive teams are hammering away at the objective of a $2,500 quota objective, only two of them found time to report the result of their labors last night or this morning, so that the visible total of the subscriptions has not greatly increased since yesterday's report.

Miss Doris T. Langdon's team reported additional collections amounting to $33.60 and Mrs. Anna Della Ferris reported new subscriptions to the amount of $44.50. Besides this the pupils of Washington school sent in a contribution of $11. This addition of $94.10 makes the total acknowledged so far $1931.

There is no doubt that the whole sum contributed up to date is considerably in excess of this, since three teams have made no report at all and the great majority of the others have twenty-four hours' work up their sleeves and will probably report it in a lump tonight.

C. C. to Receive
In order to make the work of the canvassers as light as possible it has been decided that contributions will be received at the office of the Chamber of Commerce from those who find it convenient to take out their memberships in that way. All such membership contributions will be credited to the teams covering the territories in which the contributors live.

MAN WHO SKIRTED NORTH POLE COMPLETES HIS RECORD BY SKIRTING SOUTH POLE.

New York, Nov. 23.—Captain Sir George Hubert Wilkins, who flew over the top of the world, skirting the North Pole, has made his record complete by making an airplane flight over the bottom of the world, skirting the South Pole, according to messages received here today. This was the first Antarctic flight ever made.

The Wright Aeronautical Corporation, builders of the motor used by Wilkins, received a message saying the macho "beha" perfectly. Wilkins sent the radio-gram with his own apparatus via the wireless station at Port Stanley, in the Falkland Islands.

16 YEAR OLD YOUTH, STRANGLES BOY, FOUR

Charged With First Degree Murder; Doctors Think Killer Is Insane.
New York, Nov. 23.—Charged with first degree murder a sixteen-year-old boy was held today as a thrill-killer in a crime having a parallel similar to the Leopold-Loeb case.

He is Astor Hero, Lindhurst, Long Island, and it is alleged that he drowned Frederick Bassler, Jr., four, son of a carpenter, in a pond on the outskirts of Lindhurst. Hero was arranged before Justice of the Peace Wolter after having a dramatic scene at the side of the pond in which the Bassler boy's father leaped upon the defendant, who was being questioned by police and tried to strangle him. Detectives, however, pried off the maddened father in time.

Wolter held the boy without bail and remanded him to the county jail at Riverhead. An autopsy report states that Frederick Bassler, Jr., met death by drowning, following an assault. Psychiatrists will be called to probe Hero's mind.

employer or employee, that we can reach the peak of prosperity unless every single industry can dispose of its product at a profit that yields a satisfactory return to its owners and a proper wage to its workers.

Textile Industry.
At the present time, he said, there are a number of industries that are in an unstable condition. He referred particularly to the textile industry.

"It has not kept pace with the onward march of many of our great divisions of business," he said. "It is true that the textile industry has had to contend with problems not easily foreseen or controlled. Substitutes, changing styles, over-development, and many other disturbing factors have sadly cut into the health of this once great industry of New England and business prosperity. In a lesser degree the shoe industry has been troubled by too much capacity to produce that which we now consume, with subsequent unsettlement in many sections."

Park streets leads into the Self-Serve grocery department. A few feet north of this entrance is one that leads directly to the Health Market. This allows a buyer to go to either department from the street without danger of running into crowds in either of the other departments.

Fruits, Vegetables Separate
The front display windows of Hale's Park street market were filled with fruits and vegetables. And here just inside the two entrances will be found all that a shopper can possibly desire in fresh fruits and finest of vegetables.

There are two compartments containing the great selection of goods in this department. The fruits and vegetables are apart from the Self-Serve so that they may be purchased without passing through the gates. A high grade of fruits and vegetables is being carried at this new store and it is not possible to allow purchasers to help themselves in selecting these goods.

Entering the Self-Serve gate the view is unobscured with the simplicity of arrangement. There are no tables in the center of the floor stacked high with package goods. Instead there are bins and shelves. The shelves along the three sides of the store contain every imaginable article in the grocery line. They are all arranged in coordination for the utmost convenience of the buyer.

For example, scouring powders, soaps and everything that pertains to cleansing materials are all in adjacent shelves. One does not need to look elsewhere for a particular item in this classification because it must be in its own section or it isn't carried in the store. This applies to all the goods that are on the Self-Serve shelves.

Sloping Shelves
Another feature of the shelving arrangement is the fact that they slope from top to the floor. The bottom shelf being two feet wide and the top one but one foot. The advantage of this sloping idea can be seen by looking down at the shelves. The buyer can easily see what is on the lowest tier without bending over.

This official said there was no question of the Prince's African tour being curtailed. The Prince of Wales is heir to the British throne.

of tin trying to tack it down over the hold. Captain Carey was shouting. His voice was hoarse. On the last order his voice broke. "After the ship sank I saw his body floating in the water. He wore no life preserver." The veteran captain had died true to the traditions of the sea.

Women Crying "I came on deck and saw women hanging to the rails," said Walcott. "Some were crying quietly. We tried to cheer them up by telling them of a rumor that a rescue ship was only fifty miles away. Shortly after 8 o'clock some of the passengers donned lifebelts. An officer said: 'Why do that, you are only alarming others.' I put on my lifebelt shortly after ten."

Helped Women He told of helping two women over the starboard side; of his assisting a colored woman when he found himself in the water. He said she was in a lifeboat which contained about 19 persons. They were eventually picked up by the American shipper.

Another Witness After Walcott's affidavit was read, his friend, John O. Johnston, an oil man from Trinidad, British West Indies, related substantially the same story as Walcott.

Water was flowing copiously through the cooling half door on Monday," he testified. "The carpenter tried to fix it but could not. We started throwing cargo overboard Monday noon."

CLEAN SHOW FOR KIDS IS TOM MIX'S GOAL

Famous Star Comes to State Theater Saturday, With New Stunts in "King Cowboy."

Probably no actor that the stage or the screen has ever known has been idolized by the children of the country in anything like the degree that it has been the good fortune of Tom Mix, the world-famous film star, to inspire.

If evidence of this were based only upon the popularity of his pictures with the youngsters of the land, in the smallest hamlets and in the great, teeming cities, it might be open to question. But it was proven during his tour last spring by the tumultuous thousands of kiddies who jammed the parks and open spaces in all the cities where Tom made public appearances, who packed the theaters at which he showed and parked themselves for weary hours outside stage doors that they might get a peek at their hero.

He has never consented to the presentation in his pictures of anything that would shock or demoralize a child. "I'd rather take a knife and cut off one of my fingers than purposely offend a child," Mix said to an interviewer recently when this subject was brought up. Tom and his famous horse Tony are seen at the State Saturday in F. B. O.'s super western feature, "King Cowboy," in which he plays the star role, with charming Sally Blane opposite in the feminine lead.

Another of these gay exuberant comedies of youth with Glenn Tryon and Patsy Ruth Miller will be offered on this splendid double feature program. It is a comedy race-track epic called "Hot Heels" and was directed by William T. Craft, the man who made "A Hero for a Night," which featured the same brilliant players.

The Steeplechase in this picture is without a doubt the most thrilling horse race ever filmed. There are uncountable laughs and many delightful surprises in "Hot Heels" which promises a full and satisfactory evening's entertainment.

The principal speaker at the assembly yesterday was A. L. Krissler of the Rider College of Commercial Training at Trenton, N. J. His topic was "What a High School Education Means to Us." Mr. Krissler gave seven definite reasons why pupils should go to high school and finish the course: First, the happiness both for the pupil and parents to be derived from a student's successfully completing the high school course; second, a high school education enables a student to show his appreciation to his parents for their sacrifices; third, a high school education enables a student to advance further in the social field; fourth, a high school education is instrumental in building up a pupil's character; fifth, a high school education teaches the student the spirit of real rivalry and shows the value of competition; sixth, a high school education is worth over nine dollars a day to the pupil in increased wage earning capacity and it has been stated that in future years a high school diploma will be worth about thirty-five thousand dollars to the student; seventh and last, a high school education gives a pupil the proper preliminary training for the pursuit of a professional career.

CELEBRATES HIS 90TH BIRTHDAY IN THE AIR

John M. Allen Goes Up in Airplane and Enjoys His Experience Immensely.

Mrs. George M. Cox of 29 Main street has received a letter from her father, John M. Allen, who is visiting his daughter in Norwalk. Mrs. H. A. Fenner, telling that he celebrated his ninetieth birthday, which occurred last Saturday, by going up in an airplane with his son-in-law, Howland Loveland of Manchester who, with his wife, was also visiting Mrs. Fenner. It was Mr. Allen's first air ride and he enjoyed it so much he said that was the way he should prefer to cross the ocean.

Mr. Allen has been the subject of a Herald feature story. He is a veteran of the Civil War and has served as a legislator. Next to R. N. Strong he is believed to be the oldest man in Manchester. He is a great lover of the sport of fishing and hardly a day has passed this summer or fall that he has not been angling in the salt water or fresh. He spends eight months of the year with his daughter here and came up election week to vote in Manchester. His summers are usually spent in Norwalk because of ready access to the salt water for his favorite pastime.

REC NOTES

The first annual fair sponsored by the Recreation Centers will be held this evening in the large gymnasium in the School Street building. Arrangements have been completed and the personnel of the booths has been selected. The "gates" to the "fair grounds" will open at 7 o'clock.

Attractions inside include nearly everything of the regular fair nature with the exception of horse races and gambling devices. Refreshments of various kinds will be on sale and the booths will include many "freaks" well worth seeing. All the "freaks" will be represented by local persons and it will be interesting to see how many visitors will be able to see through the camouflage enough to identify them.

Bridge, straight whist and set-back will be played down stairs.

The whist party at the West Side Rec yesterday afternoon was well attended. Mrs. William Hudson of Ridge street won the roasting chicken while Mrs. Thomas Weir of Summer street took home the basket of groceries offered for second prize.

Director Lewis Lloyd of the Recreation Centers today announced a new scheme which he hopes will bring new members to the men's apparatus and gymnastic classes. He has devised a point system which will be put into operation starting Monday, December 3 and will extend over a period of four months. The points will be awarded, five for every session attended, ten for obtaining a woman member, fifteen for a man, twenty points for participating in the annual gym exhibition. A silver trophy cup donated by George H. Williams, well known local clothing dealer will be awarded to the person getting the largest number of points.

Classes which will be eligible for the prize competition are the morning gym class which meets at 7 o'clock every Monday, Wednesday and Friday morning; young men's gym class which meets Monday and Thursday evenings; faculty class which meets Tuesday and Thursday afternoons, and the apparatus work class, which has sessions Thursday evenings and Saturday afternoons. The total membership of the Recreation Centers on Nov. 15 was 657 as compared to that of a year ago which was 592.

Plans 4,600 Mile Flight in Five Hops—New York to Bogota, Columbia.

New York, Nov. 23.—Lieutenant Benjamin Mendez, crack flyer of the Columbia army, hopped off this morning from the Rockaway naval air station, on the first leg of his flight to Bogota, Columbia. The first stop will be at Jacksonville, Fla.

Lieut. Benjamin Mendez, ace of the Columbian army, plans a good-will flight of 4,600 miles to Bogota, Columbia. He plans to make the flight in five hops, in as many days, weather permitting.

Mendez expects to make the 1,040-mile hop to Jacksonville in about 10 hours. From the Florida metropolis the next stage of his flight lies 600 miles to Havana, Cuba; thence 700 miles to Puerto Barrios, Guatemala; 1,000 miles to Colon, Panama and on the final day, 1,250 miles to Girardot, on the Magdalena river, where he will change his pontoon for landing wheels and hop the last 50 miles directly into Madrid field, Bogota.

With him Lieut. Mendez is taking John Todhunter, mechanic.

COOLIDGE OFFERED JOB.

New York, Nov. 23.—In the hope of adding strength to its efforts to curb over-production of oil, the American Petroleum Institute will ask President Coolidge to accept leadership of the organization at a salary to be named by him, it was reported today.

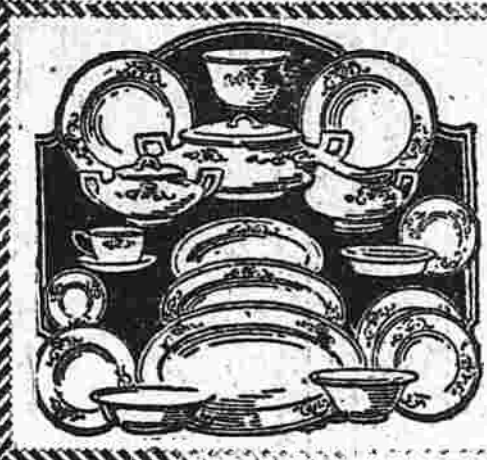

The invitation will be extended during the institute's annual meeting in Chicago, December 16. To date, President Coolidge has not been sounded on his attitude toward such a proposal.

SEA PSYCHOLOGY
 It seems inexplicable to a great many landmen that ship's officers and even ship's owners should neglect to keep life-saving apparatus, including primarily the boats and their launching gear, in perfect condition, an understanding of the facts may possibly be aided by taking into consideration a psychological condition peculiar to followers of the sea.

It is well known that a great many lives have been lost through fishing dories, operating from vessels far at sea like those on the Newfoundland Grand Banks, becoming lost in fogs and detached from their mother ships for such long periods that their occupants succumbed to hunger and thirst. The landman's first question, in such cases, is: "Why on earth don't they have provisions and fresh water always in the dories?" And the answer to that is that fishermen, as a rule, would flatly refuse to enter a dory that had been provisioned. It is a matter of sheer superstition. To provision a dory with emergency rations and water would be, in the smackman's eyes, to deliberately invite a disaster that would call for the use of the provisions. It is this, and not indifference or any wretched parsimony, that makes a lost doryman so often a quick victim to starvation and thirst.

There is every probability that something of the same superstition enters, subconsciously, into the business of keeping ship's boats in proper condition—or rather into the failure to do so which is far commoner than most people realize. No sailor, no ship's officer, will willingly let his thoughts rest on the possibility of abandoning ship at sea for an instant longer or in any degree more seriously than he is absolutely compelled to. To the sailor mind any undue amount of advance preparation for disaster is to court disaster. He gets such things off his mind as completely and completely as he can. He believes in his ship. He has faith in her. He hates a small boat and the thought of a small boat.

This being a well nigh universal attitude of seagoing people toward the function of the lifeboats it is understandable that, in default of extreme pressure from authority, the lifeboat service is the last thing to receive careful attention on hundreds of ships. It is understandable that wooden boats will be allowed to dry out till they are like crates, that gear and chocks will be allowed to become caked with dozens of coats of paint, that old-fashioned davits will be rusted in their sockets so that they will not swing outboard and that releasing gears on the newer ones will be rusted to the breaking point, that the so-called boat drill is seldom anything but a mustering alongside the boat, a checking of names and dismissal without a hand being laid on the gear.

In considering the testimony in the Vestris case this strange sailor's attitude toward the means of abandoning ship must be taken somewhat into account.

BINGHAM AND PORTO RICO
 Those Connecticut people who ever since the Porto Rico hurricane, have had an uneasy feeling that the utmost has never been done for the relief of the distressed people of that unhappy island, will experience profound satisfaction in the knowledge that our own Senator Bingham, who as chairman of the Senate Porto Rico committee has been personally surveying the situation, is coming away from the island resolved to make the people of this country understand Porto Rico's plight. They will know that the Porto Ricans will have no weakling champion in Hiram Bingham, and that when he starts out to get something done about the matter something will be done.

"The loss of the coffee growers," said the senator before leaving the island, "can be understood partly if you imagine a state, the size of Connecticut and with Connecticut's population, one-third of whom are dependent wholly on raising apples. Destroy ninety per cent of the orchards and for five years they would be without source of livelihood. That is the position of the coffee growers. The coffee district covers a large area and the towns in that section will be without normal income for five years, while their needs will be greater than ever before."

Senator Bingham said he was convinced that no other section of the United States had ever suffered damage in proportion to that sustained by Porto Rico.

For some reason we in this country have never seemed to sense either the suffering occasioned in our island possession by the great tornado, nor in any important degree our responsibility toward the Porto Ricans. Senator Bingham can be depended on to correct all that when Congress convenes.

"MASTER MIND" FOOL
 It begins to look as if the gambler Rothstein, shot in a New York hotel room, presumably when he welched on a three hundred thousand dollar loss at cards, were in very fact the "master mind" criminal so often exploited in fiction and always scoffed at by police authorities.

There are indications, in the multitude of private papers left by Rothstein, that he was at the head of a huge narcotic ring, that he employed and rented out gunmen for purposes of murder, that he financed the thuggery in the communists' strike in New York a couple of years ago, that he was the money man and fence for many separate gangs of thieves, that he was a partner of Nicky Arnstein in the five million dollar securities theft—that in fact he was the city's chief criminal, and an underworld backer and promoter on even a bigger scale than any of the story writers has ever evolved.

In the course of these activities Rothstein, besides living at an extravagant pace and spending vast sums of money, had accumulated an estate said to be worth three million dollars.

And yet he was a fool of a criminal, if there ever was one; for he kept record of his multifarious doings—many thousands of documents, carefully filed and tabulated. Records which, in spite of the fact that he kept them in a tight safe, might have fallen into the hands of the police at any time—for no crook can ever know at what moment a new and determined regime may be instituted and start out to get him.

Rothstein happened to die by the bullet of some person of his own kind. If he had lived he was bound sooner or later to be wrecked by his own bookkeeping.

All of which contributes again to the theory that every criminal, no matter how clever, has something the matter with the inside of his head.

TWO MEN IN ONE
 If half the charges brought against him were true—and courts said they were—former Mayor Eugene Schmitz of San Francisco was the finest possible illustration of the double standard of morals followed by many a politician. It is not uncommon to run across men who are the soul of rectitude in their personal dealings with individuals but whose ethics are those of the alligator where political corruption promises to produce private profit. It is not so common, however, to encounter one such who, in a great public emergency, arises to almost sublime heights after having regarded public office as a private snap.

Schmitz originally was the move creature of Abe Ruef, blackleg boss of San Francisco, and there is very little doubt that he was as deep in the political mire which distinguished the Ruef regime as the boss himself. Yet when the great earthquake came Schmitz instantly summoned to his side the finest and ablest men of the city, some of them his own desperate enemies, and his administration of affairs during those ghastly days has become a Pacific coast saga. The noblest character in the state of California, gifted with ability without end, could have done no better.

The United States Supreme Court saved Schmitz from prison and ignominy after conviction on the testimony of Ruef—afterward repudiated—that they had been mixed up together in the taking of franchise bribes. Schmitz, a professional musician, went back to his music and continued to live, until Tuesday, a popular and respected figure in his native city by the Golden Gate. Then he died and San Francisco remembers the good in him.

HOOVER'S GREAT PLAN
 Herbert Hoover is not yet President of the United States but he is wasting no time in preparation for the work of his administration. The presentation before the Conference of Governors of a vast plan for the absorption of unemployment in a public works construction program, always deferred till unemployment appears, was at Mr. Hoover's request. Apparently the magnitude of the proposition—the plan calls for the creation of a reserve of credit to the extent of three billion dollars by federal, state and municipal governments, co-operating—was so great as to daze the Conference of Governors, since that body passed the whole business up without endorsement or action of any kind.

On the face of it, this is the simplest and surest expedient imaginable for the prevention of industrial panics and of converting slackness in private employment into a national asset instead of a national liability. There is involved, however, a maze of economic and financial problems, having to do with the building up and maintenance for indefinite periods of such a credit reserve without dislocating credit and taxation generally, that the governors are hardly to be blamed for feeling unequal to the absorption of the idea all at once.

However, much has been gained by having the subject introduced to the people at this time. It is certain to receive an immense amount of discussion and by the time Mr. Hoover comes into the Presidency the magnificent scheme will have had time to work its way into the national intelligence—with most of the puzzle cleared up, we have no doubt.

IN NEW YORK

New York, Nov. 23.—New York's Chinatown has long since ceased to supply sinister snatches of melodrama. A demonstration of "Young Nationalists," parading pennants that express their opinions of political events in the homeland, is the most exciting thing to happen in many a month. The color, spice and tradition of the district is best revealed on certain holidays when the old-world customs are dragged from their hiding places and staged in an incongruous background of Orientals wearing knickers and panamas.

"Long guns" gather rust in back rooms and "killers" have had to go to work. Chinatown learned that long wars are not good for business. Such sporadic outbursts as may have threatened were soothed as the merchants' organization insists upon peace. Threats of boycotts against potential war-torn goods have had their effect. Also peace parleys have been introduced. The plain clothes detectives who once went about spotting their prey spend most of their time scrutinizing the faces of suspicious characters as they drift into the Bowery. The hatched man of old is a curiosity and his hatches have been peddled to curio seekers. The Americanization of the slacker scores progresses yearly. The chop suey restaurants cater to the trade of the tourist and jazz tunes tinkle in their phonographs and automatic pianos.

Around the corner from Chinatown, the peddlers' markets flourish. Up and down the Bowery sidewalks are rows of cellars lined with stalls displaying slightly patched shoes. On the ground floor are the cast-off clothing shops. Here the persistent barker literally grab their customers from the streets. The wandering sailor has small chance to escape. The bargains are driven hard and fast. For a few dollars it is possible to take home a suit of clothes, which may have passed through half a dozen hands before reaching this final junk-heap of apparel. Every known device for camouflaging wear and tear has been applied.

The salesman of this belt apply no sense of discrimination. Jimmy Walker, himself, walking past in all his sartorial splendor, would be halted and urged to buy a suit cast off, mayhap, by a member of his street-cleaning department.

Chinatown reflects most of its daily color through its children. The youngsters still wear the gay and decorative costumes of the homeland. Now and then a Chinese woman patters past, in a costume of silk pants and mandarin coat. Slowly the city begins to edge in on the quarter. The number of tourist buses increases annually. The skyline of lower Manhattan comes gradually nearer. Only a few blocks of tawdry tenements and the shops of the Bowery now protect it from invasion.

Noted in passing... Philadelphia Jack O'Brien, the expug, entering a broadcasting station in the early morning to recite his routine of "setting up" exercises... A mother bird teaching her young to fly from a nest beneath the inviolate tracks... George Gershwin, the Brooklyn boy, who still cashes in on his "Rhapsody in Blue"... They say the talking offered him $50,000 for its use... Tex Gulsan's mother, a shopping bag under her arm, leaving the Gulsan menage in the heart of Greenwich Village... A moth-ball peddler... And the fellow who peddles strings of dried herrings.

THE INFLUENCE OF HEREDITY
 Although doctors have claimed for some time that diseases are not hereditary, we must not assume that there is no influence from heredity. In Nature, like produces like. Fig trees can not be propagated from grapevines. To humans are born human offspring. General characteristics both physical and mental are transmitted to children and there is no doubt that the latter may inherit special traits of strength that either or both parents possess.

This tendency to pass on characteristics sometimes undergoes peculiar forms and changes. It is just as important for a person contemplating marriage to choose for a partner one who has a good sound mind and body and a history of qualified ancestors, as for a farmer to select good seed for his next year's planting. He would be foolish if he selected seeds haphazardly from runt plants as well as good, saying that it made no difference. A good farmer always selects seeds from the strongest stock, showing that there is an inheritance of heredity throughout all living things. Only the finest and strongest parents produce the best children. There is an old saying that a great man must have had a great mother.

It is interesting that most of those who achieve the greatest success in life come from the ranks of ordinary people who have lived for generations on a simple diet and hard work. There is a natural tendency to transmit the best characteristics to the offspring so that the general tendency of a race is toward a higher type.

We sometimes notice the peculiar fact that a man who lives abstemiously becomes old prematurely, and that a man who drinks and smokes heavily and uses little or no care in the selection of his food, lives to a ripe old age. Although this is the exception rather than the rule, it is frequently brought up as an argument to show that it makes very little difference how we live. It will be found, however, that heredity plays an important part in the life of a man. A short time ago it was found that his parents' grandfathers extending back for several generations were very short lived and, in the case of a person who is careless with his living habits and yet lives for a long time, his parents or grandfathers were remarkably long lived—probably longer lived than he will become.

Parents owe it to themselves to be as healthy as possible, but they have, perhaps, a greater debt to their children if they undertake the responsibility of parenthood. Children brought into the world without their consent are entitled to the gift from their parents of strong bodies and minds, unhampered with the taint of disease or weakness.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Large Pores
 Question: W. S. asks: "What is the cause of large pores in the skin on nose and cheeks? What ointment or lotion would you advise using or would you let Nature take its course and depend upon them disappearing in time?"
 Answer: The large pores in your skin can be partially closed if you will use an application of ice to your skin each day. Move the ice about for several minutes over the entire face, and bathe your face frequently in cold water. Besides doing this you should wash your face several times daily with soap and water to keep the pores as clean as possible.

Growing Taller
 Question: H. J. asks: "Is there anything a young person can do to grow taller?"
 Answer: Anyone under the age of thirty can increase his height to some extent through a combination of dieting, exercising and taking certain treatments. The diet must contain plenty of bone-building material, which is found in the leafy green vegetables and in whole grains. Exercises should be designed to twist and stretch the spine. The treatment should be with manipulative therapeutics, such as given by the osteopath, naturopath or chiropractor. You are about a half inch taller in the morning than in the evening. This is due to the settling of the bones of the body, principally in the spine. Treatments given the spine to loosen up and separate the vertebrae will help the circulation of blood to these parts, and tends to stimulate the growth of bones.

SEE TARRED ROADS AND AUTOMOBILE EXHAUSTS AS CAUSE OF CANCER

London—Gas from the exhaust pipes of motor cars and tarred roads are one of the main causes of cancer. The diseases has increased tenfold during the last few years as a result of their effects. This is the latest theory put forward by a British research expert, J. Ellis Barker. Meat, tinned food, hot food and drink are also among the direct causes, according to Barker. To Elio-yntsu, d veeced durvve/a "Cancer mortality is three times as great among large consumers of meat as among agricultural laborers and clergymen, who are too poor to buy meat," he said. "Hot food and drink, particularly drink, are liable to result in cancer of the stomach. Tea or coffee too hot or too strong is harmful. To pour a hot strong hot drink on an empty stomach is suicidal."

Until the Harding and Coolidge landslides, however, one election after another showed that a switch of a few thousand votes—sometimes even a few hundred—here and there would have changed the election result. But in 1920 and 1924 Republican pluralities were so huge in so many of the most im-

WATKINS BROTHERS, Inc.
 54 YEARS at SOUTH MANCHESTER

WASHINGTON LETTER
 By RODNEY DUTCHER

Washington, Nov. 23.—Perhaps we are traveling back toward the good old days when election results were sure to be close in a large number of important states.

College professors and newspapermen with mathematical minds have discovered that if Smith could have switched 500,000 additional votes in the right places he would have been elected, thanks to the electoral college system, and that 150,000 more properly switched votes for Hoover would have given him every single electoral vote.

Yet, in the first instance, Hoover could still have had a popular majority of more than 5,000,000 and would still have had 15,000,000 popular votes without a single electoral vote.

All sorts of funny and seeming-unfair things can happen under the electoral college system. Fortunately for the system, they seldom do.

In 1888 a change of 7,200 votes in New York alone would have elected Cleveland over Harrison and in 1892 a switch of 24,000 in seven states would have elected Harrison over Cleveland.

In 1880 Hancock would have been elected if he could have picked up 10,517 Garfield votes in New York or changed 11,452 others in Maine, New Hampshire, Connecticut, Indiana and Oregon.

In 1876 Tilden had more than 250,000 more popular votes and needed no more until the attempt was made to pilfer some of his electoral college votes.

Many more instances would be tedious, but it may be noted that such interesting figures have been consistently announced as something of a sensation for a long way back. A switch of 2,200 Pennsylvania votes from Van Buren in 1836, for instance, would have thrown that election into the House.

Old Bryan men still sometimes moan that their hero, with a change in 1896 of 19,000 votes in California, Indiana, Delaware, Kentucky, Oregon and West Virginia, would have defeated McKinley in 1896.

The most classic recent example of what a few little votes might do occurred in 1916 when a change of 197 votes in Minnesota would have elected Hughes over Wilson. That one is really the prize stake of them all.

SHAW GETS MAD AS EDITOR PUTS BLAME ON HIM FOR PICTURE

London—George Bernard Shaw demands and gets big money for treaties on all conceivable subjects. Nevertheless his free contributions to newspapers during the last few years would fill several volumes.

Shaw has the delightful habit of writing letters to the editor. Butter as the letter may be it always has a few real Shavian quips. The editor who receives a letter from Shaw considers himself lucky. It adds tone to his paper.

The "Londoner's Diary" in the Evening Standard got the latest "rise" out of Shaw by commenting unfavorably on the appearance of Shaw's new book, "Intelligent Woman's Guide to Socialism and Capitalism." The editor commented that the cover design, which he considered bad, had been executed by Shaw himself.

"If, as seems likely," wrote Shaw to the editor, "your informant alleges that the famous bust of me by Rodin and the statue by Trowbridge in the Venice Exhibition are also my own handiwork, will you be good as to blue-pencil the information."

"I trust it was not the same hand that started in another quarter the statement that 'Mr. Shaw disapproved with the original draft of the entire book' but that rewrote the entire book but the utter and gratuitous untruth of the report fills me with indignation, as I am I have not yet come to bungling my job like that."

The WOMAN'S DAY

THIS HAS HAPPENED

Fate introduced JERRY RAY, a shop girl, to ALESTER CARSTAIRS when he crashes his airplane into the camp she is sharing with her roommate, MYRTLE. She likes his pilot, DAN HARVEY, but Alester is struck by her beauty and shows her attention.

Unable to buy a gown for a party he has invited her to, Jerry yields to the temptation to slip one from the store for the evening. When they tumbled her for being "dry" at the party, Jerry drinks too much. A rowdy dancing partner throws her into the pool to revive her.

Dan appears to help her, but Alester takes her home. She is discharged from the store when she confesses about the dress. Jerry seeks another job, and is surprised one evening when Dan calls. He proposes and she tells him she does not believe in love, but hope to marry for money. He leaves after warning her.

Alester drives Jerry out to the deserted camp, where he makes advances, which she repulses. Dan happens by and Jerry makes Alester take her home. When he learns that she has lost her job, on his account he uses his influence to get her a place in a chorus.

Rehearsals are hard for her, but she is befriended by EVELYN STARR, who is in love with JAEK THANE. Evelyn gives a party, and when Alester says he cannot take her, Jerry invites Dan. Jaek takes exception to her presence in Evelyn's home and a scene ensues. Then Alester arrives and demands that Jerry leave Dan and come with him. She refuses and he leaves in a rage.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XXXI

Dan knew Alester Carstairs well. He knew that he held fast to his purpose until it was achieved. And there was no mistaking, a second time, his interest in Jerry.

Alester had fallen hard. Well, Jerry could be relied upon. Dan trusted, to take care of herself. Dan acknowledged as the cab turned in to her street. It looked at last as if she had a good chance to marry her million.

When they stopped before her door, Jerry opened her eyes and sat up straight. She put out a hand in the semi-darkness of the car and found one of Dan's.

"I'm sorry I got you into trouble," she said softly.

The driver reached around from his seat and opened the door. But his fares made no effort to move.

"Jerry," Dan said suddenly, "this may be the last time I'll see you. You know I love you," he added quickly, briskly.

Jerry withdrew her hand from his.

"No," he said, "I'm not going to make love to you. I know when I've lost," he added, holding his tense voice low. "At times I've thought I'd rather take you up and crash with you than have Alester win you," he went on hurriedly, "but my mind was with deepness in those moments, Jerry. I was afraid that you... well, I know better now. But don't be a fool, don't let people talk about you. That might be the one thing that would stand in the way of your happiness."

Jerry's voice came in, tones pitched as low as his own, but not so steady, when she answered.

"You're talking in riddles," she said. "I'll never see Alester again."

"Oh, yes you will," Dan assured her with a near your soul, "he added with a false laugh, "but watch your step. Alester's family won't accept a tarnished reputation."

"Well,..."

"Well,..."

"Dan interrupted. "It isn't what you do, Jerry. It's how it looks to the world. Be careful where you're seen and what you do. That ring on your finger—it's Alester's, isn't it? Give it back to him and let him keep it until he puts it on to confirm your engagement."

He stopped abruptly and for a few seconds a weighty silence hung between them. It was Jerry's voice—a queer sound, half laugh, half sob—that broke it.

"Why are you so sure that he will want to marry me," she said, "and that I will want to marry him?"

"Because that is what you both want. Alester may not have known it as soon as you did," he added, "but when a man rushes all the way in from Long Island to a Hundred and Fourth Street just because he suspects that his girl is out with another man it proves that he is jealous. And when Alester is jealous he is jealous of something he wants for himself. That's why I'm warning you not to make it too hard for him when he goes to the mat with his family. You see, Jerry, I know it will come to that. At first I didn't think so, but I didn't know then how much a man could love you."

"Alester doesn't," Jerry said.

"Don't misjudge him," Dan retorted shortly. "Maybe no other girl could stir any real feeling in him, but a man could help loving you, Jerry..."

"But what if—I don't want him to love me?" Jerry asked, moved by a reckless impulse that was urging her to delay their parting—to hold Dan, to forget Alester and all her well-laid plans.

Dan drew in his breath sharply. "You want to marry him, don't you?" he asked gratingly.

"I don't know," Jerry cried. "I don't know what I want. I'm afraid... it would be terrible to be unhappy all my life!"

"But pleasant," Dan volunteered bitterly, "in marble halls."

"Don't be so cruel," Jerry sobbed. Dan seized her by the shoulders, none too gently. Her gasping cry reached the ears of the driver who glanced over his shoulder. Then he stuck his hand in his coat pocket and pulled out a pack of cigars. The scene he had just glimpsed would not be brief, he reasoned. There would be time for a leisurely Jerry put her tear-stained face against Dan's while he held her. She wished blindly that he would kiss her.

Dan found off a corresponding desire. He was slightly bewildered by Jerry's change of heart, and he would not trust it.

He told himself that she did not believe that Alester would return to her. If he took advantage of her emotional weakness now she was sure to regret it when Alester appeared. Moreover, he reminded himself, she never had said, or even hinted, that she loved him. His wish had been father to that thought.

Just because she lay passive in his arms was no assurance that she'd willingly yield to his kisses. She was simply unstrung, and ready to weep on anyone's shoulder. This thought aroused Dan to action. He lifted Jerry away from him and she felt back against the leather upholstery with a suddenness that surprised her.

Dan stepped out of the cab and turned to assist her. Jerry looked at him with startled eyes. His face, now made plainly visible by the street lamp, was grim and set.

A wave of mortification swept over Jerry as she made her way out of the cab. It was with shame that she thought of her yearning to have him kiss her. Why, he despised her!

They walked up the steps to the stoop of the old brownstone house in silence. Jerry quietly fished for her key and inserted it in the lock herself. She pushed the door open and with the silence still unbroken ran blindly up the stairs to her room.

Dan stood in the deserted hall until he heard a door slam. Then he went hurriedly out to the waiting cab and drove off.

Evelyn Stairs was hating herself for her lapse from self-control. What could Dan think of her—except that she was cheap? Openly out to marry one certain man and then doing her best to take another kiss her! It would look like something out of the Grand Vizier's nuptial banquet in the Arabian Nights.

THERE'S FOOD EVERYWHERE.

We can conceive of no form of social diversion today without a good dinner. It is the old-fashioned variety with cold duck and other fowl, then fish, then roast of beef, then roasted fowl, a dozen vegetables, a half dozen desserts, and we wonder how they did it.

Gene Tunney's wedding luncheon menu didn't and so far different, though. I've forgotten some of the gastronomic marvels, but I know there was caviar and sole marguery and breast of chicken under glass with mushrooms, and two or three desserts that sounded like something out of the Grand Vizier's nuptial banquet in the Arabian Nights.

Do you ever go to market? Have you ever contrasted the wares there with what you found when you, as a little girl went to market with your mother? The efficiency of commerce has knit together the whole world of food. Cheese from Italy, figs from Smyrna, anchovies from South America, avocados from California, terrapin from Australia, are here under one roof.

TO MARKET, TO MARKET.

The fruit and vegetable stall offers things of which even our mothers had not heard a generation ago. Take the simple matter of a green. Once upon a time it was lettuce, and that was that. Today you can buy romaine, lettuce, endive, chicory, cress, a score of others. Winter makes no difference. Here are your fresh lima beans, peas, celery, tomatoes, strawberries, peaches and pears, egg plant and oyster plant, radishes and green onions, mushrooms and fresh spinach.

"Forgetting the pleasure and dignity of eating?"

Perhaps the "dignity," whatever that is. But we are certainly not forgetting the pleasure, nor according to it any less time than ever!

A THOUGHT

They all hold swords, being expert in war: every man bath his sword upon his thigh because of fear in the night.—Solomon's Song 3:8.

To fear the foe, since fear oppresses strength, gives in your weakness strength unto your foe.—Shakespeare.

ANGORA SOCKS

Winter sports promise bright ankles. For there is a genuine vogue among the younger folks now for orange, scarlet, hunter's green and bright blue angora socks, worn over the stockings.

NEW CORSETS

The molded silhouette brings in many new corsets. One little confection in fine brocaded satin and rubber, in lavender, has inserts of real cream lace.

A successful monopolist is a person who succeeds in occupying both arms of his theater seat.

servants greeting a caller like that! She crept back into her room and closed the door softly while the landlady tramped half way up the stairs and stopped to call out the message in a loud voice.

Jerry threw open the door.

"Yes, what is it?" she said in a high, gay voice. "Oh, Mr. Carstairs."

She came to the top of the stairs. "Why, hello Alester," she said to him. "Nice of you to come for me, but I can't leave right now. I've an engagement to lunch at the Ritz."

(To Be Continued)

Are we "forgetting the pleasure and dignity of eating?" The American Restaurant Association believes that we are.

The Association does not particularly elaborate its contention. We are not sure whether it refers to our table manners, our lack of discrimination in ordering, the fact that we diet and count calories and don't eat whole roast boars as we did when we were pretty largely a nation of "farm hands," or just what does all them.

WE'RE STILL EATING.

But none of us can help observing facts about the great national custom of eating. It hobs up at us in so many, or any, of them indicate that we are "forgetting the pleasure and dignity of eating" is another question.

Sometimes one is inclined to believe that exactly as much time and attention and interest is given food these days, popular opinion to the contrary, as back in the days when a box social or a family reunion or a church supper or an ice cream and cake bazaar or a quilting bee or barn raising, with emphasis on the refreshment phase of the program, were about the only forms of social diversion our forebears had.

HOW DID THEY DO IT?

We laugh at time-yellowed old menus of wayside inn and hotel dug from ancestral boxes of souvenir. We read of dinners beginning with oysters, cold pheasant and grouse, going on through cold duck and other fowl, then fish, then roast of beef, then roasted fowl, a dozen vegetables, a half dozen desserts, and we wonder how they did it.

Gene Tunney's wedding luncheon menu didn't and so far different, though. I've forgotten some of the gastronomic marvels, but I know there was caviar and sole marguery and breast of chicken under glass with mushrooms, and two or three desserts that sounded like something out of the Grand Vizier's nuptial banquet in the Arabian Nights.

YOUR CHILDREN

by Olive Roberts Barton

©1928 by NEA Service, Inc.

About the question of sleeping and keeping children warm and covered in cold winter nights, there is much to be said.

Like everything else, it is up to our own good judgement, for homes are different, children are different, weather is different, and climate, too, plays a great part.

There exists a certain popular idea about "hardening" children. That is, not allowing them to become accustomed to too many bed-clothes at night, and shoving up the windows regardless of cold and wind.

I've seen parents do this who wouldn't have thought of sleeping in such rooms themselves. I have gone into bedrooms at night where there were sleeping children, when it was all I could do to endure the cold with my street wraps on.

The coldest days and nights of the year are ahead of us now. We face three or four months of our bitterest weather.

A wise mother is going to think this thing out now.

First of all, there should be plenty of warm, light bed-clothes. This is important. Heavy bed-clothes are not always warm, and they are never healthy. Blankets should be made of wool. Comforts may be cotton-filled, but cotton is likely to lump in places, leaving other parts thin or entirely empty between the chintz covers. The ideal comfort is wool, or fleece filled. Elderdown is ideal but very expensive.

Nightgowns should be loose and warm. For winter they should be made of soft, fleecy material, such as outing flannel or the flexible knitted fabrics made for the purpose. Ready-made sleeping garments with feet, for children, cannot be improved upon.

For little babies, sleeping bags are very practical. These can be made of small blankets folded double and sewed up the sides. Snappers can be put at the top, enough space for the head. This is better than a draw-string.

There should be plenty of room to kick about the inside of the bag. Blankets should be fastened to the bed if children toss. Tapes can be sewed on the corners and tied to the bars at the side.

The air of the room should be fresh and cold, but never bitter and never blowing on the bed or around the head. Attractive bedroom screen may be made cheaply by covering a clothes-horse with acetone. The sides and head open beds should be lined.

There is something else to be remembered, however. Not all winter-nights are bitter. You can't fix a child for below-zero weather and expect him to be comfortable on a night registering 40 above. Don't keep him too hot on such nights.

This is where the question of judgment comes in. Consider your house, rooms, location of beds, and your climate. If you want your child to be well, give special attention to the way he sleeps.

ONE MAN'S MEAT IS ANOTHER'S POISON

By DR. MORRIS FISHBEN

Editor Journal of the American Medical Association and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine

One of the most remarkable manifestations of modern medical science has been the discovery that human beings may be especially sensitive to certain substances in their diet or in their environment and react by development of severe symptoms, including eruption, high fever, asthmatic attacks, and not infrequently complete prostration.

By means of skin tests with extracts of the suspected substances it is possible to show the nature of the things to which the person may be sensitive.

Among the leading causes of such sensitization specialists have found women who react with these symptoms in the presence of dust, to pollens, to strawberries, indeed to almost every type of plant or animal product.

Scientific detective work is necessary to determine the causative factors in some cases. A baby girl six weeks of age had suffered from an unusual form of swelling. The baby had received nothing but its mother's milk and had gained weight steadily until it was 21 days old.

At that time its left leg was found to be swollen and the child was fretful. The swelling lasted five days and involved later the face and the right arm, as well as the right side of the patient.

For three weeks the swelling came and went in various portions of the body while the physician studied the case. It was decided to examine the mother's diet. The family lived in the mountains of West Virginia. The mother had not eaten any green vegetables since the infant's birth, and she had had no beef steak, liver or red meats. She had subsisted principally on pork and bacon, supplemented rarely with chicken.

Tests were also made with extracts of food taken by the mother. The infant did not react to cow's milk, egg, beef, potato or cereals, but did react promptly to extracts of navy beans.

Occasionally she had had potato, onion or canned corn. Skin tests were made on the infant with the mother's milk and with the milk of three other mothers. It was found that the infant reacted promptly with swelling following injection of an extract of its mother's milk, but did not react to the milk of other mothers.

Tests were also made with extracts of food taken by the mother. The infant did not react to cow's milk, egg, beef, potato or cereals, but did react promptly to extracts of navy beans.

Mother on Diet

The mother was put on a diet from which beans and corn were eliminated, and the infant was given a preparation which aids in the control of this condition of

THEN ALL-BRAN SAVED HIM FROM CONSTIPATION

A message for people who use laxatives

Mr. Skiles wrote us a voluntary testimonial after Kellogg's ALL-BRAN had saved him from dreadful constipation. Read his tribute:

July 12, 1927

"For years I have been so constipated. After trying every kind of drug possible, I could only get temporary relief. I became discouraged and gave up hope, when a friend told me to use Kellogg's ALL-BRAN. I had read so many testimonials I had no faith. I was of the opinion testimonials were put out by friends. I will not only give you the privilege to use my name, but I will go on the witness stand and testify to my statement. I cannot express words great enough to meet with Kellogg's food."

—JENNIFER SKILES, 325 N. Keokuk Avenue, Chicago, Ill.

If constipation is pressing upon your health, check it before too late. If you are using habit-forming laxatives, stop it before this harmful practice fastens its grip too tight.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is guaranteed to relieve constipation. Just eat two tablespoonfuls daily—chronic cases, with every meal. Doctors recommend ALL-BRAN. A 100% bran cereal—delicious with milk or cream—fruits or honey added. Use in cooking, too. Sold by all grocers. Served everywhere. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek, Chicago, Ill.

MOVING PICTURE
BY X-RAY SHOWS
GROWING ROSE

Berkeley, Calif.—Moving pictures of a bone in the process of knitting; of the living, growing embryo of an egg; of the inner column of a rose as it expands from a bud to a full blown flower, have been made.

Science has made all this possible and opened alluring new fields of scientific research. It was disclosed at the University of California through the invention of the first X-ray moving picture camera.

The inventor is Arthur C. Pillsbury, photographer-botanist, already widely known for his success in his chosen field.

He has successfully photographed a growing rose over a period of 72 hours. His intricate camera with its coordinated apparatus for operating the X-ray produced a film of the rose in which the growing inner of the flower is plainly shown. This, according to Pillsbury, is the first successful X-ray moving picture. He predicted that the new camera will prove immensely valuable in the field of medical research.

Now, for the first time, it will be possible to watch on the screen a bone in process of knitting. For this film, the next to be produced in Pillsbury's laboratory at 1147 Keith Avenue, rats and other small animals with fractured bones will be used.

Scientists will be able to observe for the first time the interior of a life cell in its strange process of development.

Perfection of the X-ray camera represents a lifetime study and preparation on the part of two world famous scientists. Dr. Wm. D. Coolidge, inventor of the Coolidge tube and discoverer of the Coolidge ray, became so interested in Pillsbury's plans that he devised a special tube to go into the new camera. The ordinary X-ray tube carries 50,000 to 70,000 volts. But such tremendous power might be damaging to the delicate subjects used in the camera.

So Dr. Coolidge perfected a tube of 4,000 to 11,000 volts capacity. That this tube delivers exactly the quality of ray expected of it was amply demonstrated in Pillsbury's first movie film, "The Story of the Rose."

Not only did the rose fail to wilt during the 72 hours, it was intermittently exposed to the powerful X-ray but it actually flourished and continued to live days beyond its allotted span under normal conditions.

Dr. H. H. Evans, University of California biologist and famous as the discoverer of vitamins D and F, assisted Pillsbury in the biological features of his work.

Three days were required to film the story of the rose. Every five minutes for three days the shutter of the camera opened, the X-ray flashed and the image of inner cells of the flower had been transferred to the film.

Few Changes Expected In Second Game Of Series

STAVNITSKY SIGNS WITH REC; DIAMOND MATCH FIRST BATTLE

Town Champs Open Season Thanksgiving Night; Six of Seven Players Selected; Rec Girls in Preliminary.

The fast Diamond-Match team of Springfield will close the Rec Five when Manager Ben Clune's outfit opens its season here Thanksgiving Day evening, it was announced last night.

In the preliminary encounter, the Rec Girls who have already rolled up one victory will entertain the Actna Fire Lassies from Hartford. Clyde Waters of Bristol will referee the two games and dancing will follow.

Expectations are that the Rec Five will have a successful season, both financially and from a standpoint of victories. Although the team will not have the services of "Cap" Bissell, Elmo Mantell and Ding Farr, who are now at college, it will nevertheless be strong. Manager Clune said last night that he had signed George Stavnitsky, rated by The Herald as being the best basketball prospect Manchester has had in many years. For several weeks, Stavnitsky has been "on the fence" regarding whether to stay here or out of town, but finally wisely decided to cast his lot with the Rec combine.

Seven players will be carried by the Rec Five this season and six of them have been selected, namely, "Ray" Madden, Roy Norris, Ty Holland, "Hank" McCann, George Stavnitsky and Ev Strange. The other one will be either Billy Dowd or "Gyp" Gustafson. In all probability, Manchester's lineup for the opening night will be Holland and McCann, forwards; Norris, center; Stavnitsky and Madden, guards. Offhand, that combination sounds fully as good as the one which won the town championship last season from the strengthened Community Club.

Cubs Alter Plans on Spring Training

Plans for the Cubs' spring training have been altered as a result of the determination of the Pacific Coast League managers to open their season March 27. The Cubs had in mind to play exhibition games in Los Angeles until April 1, then jump to Kansas City, but now they must revise their spring schedule.

For years the Cubs fulfilled their preparation for the championship campaign with a week in Kansas City. They will do so again next spring. However, the interim between the start of the Coast League season and the Kansas City engagement will be spent by returning to Catalina Island, according to tentative plans.

After the final stay at the island the Cubs will proceed to Kansas City via Houston, where the Texas League pennant last season. They haven't showed in Houston for a long time. That city has one of the best minor league plants in the country and Rogers Hornsby will assist in attracting cash customers.

The change in Coast League schedule came about as a result of a profitable series the Cubs and Pirates played in Los Angeles last spring. They drew immense crowds, lugged a lot of loose change out of town and caused the Californians to cast the green and baleful eye.

The Coast folk came to the conclusion that all this pre-season enthusiasm detracted from the formal opening. No doubt it did.

Hornsby's still a young man. If he behaves himself he may have six or eight years more in the national game before being offered a contract by Connie Mack.

What Judge Fuchs will do with the five men he got for Hornsby is not known, but they would come in handy should the judge decide to organize a basketball team.

Several fast business men took a workout in Stillman's gym down in N'Yawk the other night. Among them was an old fellow who gave his moniker as W. H. Dempsey, weight 205.

The heavyweight crop is nothing but a bunch of "trial horses," writes a St. Louis scribe, disgustedly. He means it's a trial to watch 'em.

DID YOU KNOW THAT—

Al Weston, Paddy Creedon and Charley Murphy are stars on the Boston College football team... And they are bigger stars on the B. C. baseball team... And they are all pledged to the Red Sox... And the Irish boys in New England are all again the Braves... The Cards got waivers on 15 out of 23 of their players... They say... Ray Schalg is getting better than ten grand from the Jints... Fred Leach, Philly outfielder who went to the Jints, doesn't smoke, drink, chew or eat meat... And he used to be a telegraph operator... And the Jints had to give O'Doul and $25,000 for him... The Reds wanted Leach but when Jack Hendricks got there McGraw had been there... Herbert McCracken is through as the football coach at Lafayette... But he's not going to Penn State... Because Hugo Bezdek is not leaving.

Cochet and Wills King and Queen of 1928 Tennis World

By HENRY L. FARRELL

No difficulty of any kind attends the selection of the outstanding tennis stars of 1928. The process requires no heavy thinking and involves no manipulation of mathematics.

The ritual of crowning Henri Cochet as the tennis king of the year and Helen Wills as the queen warrants no more ceremony than the mere writing of their names on the ticket. Because there was no contest and there is something drab about acclaiming someone on an acclamation ballot.

In the case of M. Cochet there is a mental warning against rash judgment in giving him the honor without a struggle and a lingering hunch that he didn't knock every rival dead.

The records show that he was beaten at Wimbledon in the British championship by the American champion, who was the 1927 champion beyond a dispute. But the records show that just previous to the British show Lacoste was trimmed by Cochet in the French national championships, and that in the American championship, the Davis Cup, Cochet was the hero in repelling the American challenge and that Lacoste was beaten in one of his singles matches.

Lacoste might have made much in a rubber match at Forest Hills, but his father became too serious for the father-son world champion and ordered his boy to take his mind off tennis and go to work in his automobile factory. Lacoste, under the circumstances, had to make the most of a compromise. He succeeded in reaching the United States, but his arrival was just a casual event that occurred weeks after the Forest Hills tournament, and so many weeks after, in fact, that all but the official recorders of the tennis association had forgotten that Cochet had won the American championship and a lot of other district championships.

The critics who take their tennis seriously, however, are willing to accept Cochet as the best performer of 1928, even though they might not admit that he was a champion to compare with the great Lacoste when they were enjoying their best years.

It is quite probable, however, that from now until they arrive at the ripe old age where the legs go, Cochet will continue to be the No. 1 rank player. It was unfortunate for Lacoste, perhaps, that just when the time arrived when his had to cease making tennis a business and go to work, Cochet found conditions would permit him to quit hard work and make tennis his life.

Cochet is his own boss. He is the proprietor of a string of sports goods stores, and after a life of early hardships he has reached the point where his business works for him. And Lacoste is in a hurry. The crowning of Helen Wills in the years following the retirement of Suzanne Lenglen is a chore like winding a clock. She is so far ahead of the field against her that the only chance for them to catch up is for her to ramp down.

She won every championship in 1928 that she cared to go after, and she made a very judicious choice of her appearances. She fits her tennis in with her business as an artist, and as long as she can arrange her schedule so conveniently she will continue to be the champion.

The California girl probably will reign as long as Mlle. Lenglen did, unless she gets tired of the game, and that would be very poor business.

Miss Wills has intimated that she will retire after one more campaign and devote herself entirely to the pursuit of art, but it may not be impertinent or unkind to advance the opinion that tennis is the greatest art of the very attractive young lady, and that to retire from the game would convince her quickly that her tennis is too valuable a talent to cast it off for a typewriter or a drawing board.

O'BRIEN KAYOES ADONIS IN FIFTH; TUCKER TRIUMPHS

Bay Stater Makes Marvelous Comeback; Roberts Thoroughly Beaten; Card Best of Season.

By TOM STOWE.

After giving one of the gamiest exhibitions seen in a Hartford ring in a long time, Eddie Adonis of Athol, Mass., was finally put to sleep for the full count in the fifth round of a ten round encounter with Frankie O'Brien of Hartford in Foot Guard Hall last night. The card fairly sizzled with action and was the best of the season.

Down twice in the first round, once for a count of nine and the other time Adonis took an unmerciful beating in the first round when O'Brien hit him with everything but the ring stops. Scores of persons actually got up and started for the exits, only to be stupefied and amazed when Adonis managed to weather the storm.

In fact, after his handlers got through working on Adonis, the Bay Stater looked as fresh as a cucumber. Even so, O'Brien took the second round by a wide margin and again had his rugged opponent near the border of dreamland. Fans could not help but further marvel at Adonis' great work when he came back and plainly took the third round.

O'Brien Covers Up. Adonis tore out of his corner at the going in the third and was after O'Brien like a tiger seeking its prey. Adonis is the sort of fighter who is willing to take two punches to get across one solid one. And he landed several hard rights and lefts that for a time had O'Brien covering up and apparently slightly in danger of taking the road labeled for Adonis in the opening session.

However, the Hartford middleweight who seemed to be burning out as the fight progressed, came back in the fifth to open up with a barrage of hard rights and lefts to the jaw that finally sent Adonis tumbling to the canvas flat on his back. Three times Adonis rolled completely over as he struggled in agony to regain his senses but it was not to be and O'Brien scored a well-deserved knockout victory.

In the other feature bout of the evening from a Manchester standpoint of interest, Cleveland Brown Tucker, Hartford's sensational colored featherweight, completely overpowered his opponent, Mickey Ryan, who had been a member of an undefeated victory over Frankie Flannery a few weeks ago. Last night Tucker took every round after the first.

Five For Four. Neither man offered much defense in the first round which was a hard one for both. It was clearly Robert's session but in the second Tucker had the advantage. The colored lad became a bit peeved when Mickey snit on his leg toward the close of the round. In the third Mickey was warned for hitting low. The fourth round Tucker landing a terrific right uppercut which staggered Mickey and had him on the verge of a knockout but he managed to weather the storm. Mickey took a bad lacing and cuffing in the final round but Brown could not string him again.

The best bout of the evening so far as combined boxing ability and hard effective punching is concerned, was the half-raising clash between Buster Nadesau of Holyoke and Jim Pierce of Boston. The latter deserved the decision but each man landed plenty of punches for any hungry fan.

Other Bouts. Pancho Villa of Hartford won from Eddie Thomas of Boston in the first bout of the evening. Leo Flynn of Hartford was awarded a technical knockout victory over George Krah of East Hartford when the latter broke a finger in his right hand. This bout was much like the main go of the evening. Flynn took a bad beating in the first round, but came back wonderfully well and had Krah at the verge of a knockout when the fight was stopped by Krah's seconds. Vic Morley of Hartford was given a technical kayo over Jack Berlenback of Poughkeepsie, N. Y., when the latter dropped to the floor without being hit in the first round.

There will be no card next Thursday night because of Thanksgiving but on the following Thursday, December 6, Bat Battalion will appear in the star bout. He may be matched with Jimmy Garcia of Worcester, the only boy who has been able to floor Brownie Tucker for the court twice.

MAY USE TH EROOKIE. Detroit fans think Manager Harris will use Jonathan Stone, a rookie who looked great the last few weeks of the summer in left field regularly next summer.

HE'S SELLING AUTOMOBILES. Harry Wolverton, former outfielder with the New York Yankees, is now selling automobiles in Los Angeles.

FOUR BIG GAMES ON SATURDAY BILL

Harvard vs. Yale, Carnegie Tech. vs. New York U., Army and Nebraska, Wisconsin and Minnesota and California vs. Stanford—Some Predictions.

New York, Nov. 23.—Pittsburgh, Pa., West Point, N. Y., Madison, Wis., and Berkeley, Cal., will be the four points of the football compass tomorrow, the quarrelsome focus of a nation's eyes. Full many a ball game will clamor for national interest elsewhere—with that halloved institution, Harvard versus Yale, by no means in the background—but Carnegie Tech and New York University, the Army and Nebraska, Wisconsin and Minnesota, and California and Stanford must and will claim major attention.

Traditional rivalry is the thing that pays off the mortgage. But overnight rivalry, engendered by the momentary prominence of the principals involved, this time takes the play away from mere tradition in the least two cases. Carnegie and N. Y. U. haven't been rivals for too many years but if Carnegie wins it will fall heir to as sound a claim on the national title as ever a team had. Likewise, West Point and Nebraska are meeting for the first time but victory will be a prize rich in the gift of its consequences.

Minnesota and Wisconsin and Stanford and California are and ever will be arch-rivals so the fact that a sectional title is the stake in each instance draws the nose of necessity just that much tighter.

The 98 Per Cent Wrong Club has just concluded its weekly meeting. The club would rather be right than be president but it doesn't look as though it ever is going to be either. The club, according to its custom, has gone about arranging things for the week-end, not wishing to leave anything to chance. In fact, about every element of chance for the winners nominated was eliminated when the club arranged the following results:

Advance Dope. Carnegie Tech beats N. Y. U., Army beats Nebraska, Yale beats Harvard, Stanford beats California, the club has averaged more than 70 per cent on major games for three straight Saturdays, thereby surprising itself among others, but it has more than lived up to its name with Wisconsin. It has been exactly 100 per cent, wrong on the baggers, so the selection of Minnesota undoubtedly will be greeted by a tremendous ovation in Milwaukee, Madison and the state in general. The club says it likes Minnesota's power, particularly on top of the bruiser Wisconsin had with Iowa last week.

The nomination of Carnegie couldn't miss after what this team did to Notre Dame. It has been playing tough ones for a month, it may be taking on a tougher one tomorrow and it may be due to fall away from its best. But only the lunch-players could string with N. Y. U., as for Nebraska, that long trek east after the game should be Naugatuck Overwhelming Favorite To Beat M. H. S.

Although The Herald intentionally concealed the fact so as not to discourage members of the High School team, it can now be stated that Naugatuck is an overwhelming favorite to trounce Manchester High in their important football battle at the West Side playgrounds this afternoon.

The Garnet and Gray eleven from the western part of the state is considered much better than Manchester. The enrollment of Naugatuck High is also said to exceed Manchester by considerable. Officers of the team say Naugatuck should win today by at least three touchdowns. Its forward passing is said to be the best of any high school team in the state.

Manchester's biggest hope will be in the ability of its 175 pound line to hurl back the Naugatek line and the extent to which Manchester's backfield men can solve Naugatek's overhead game. If both of WESTERN COACHES PICK FRED HOVDE Voted as Outstanding Big Ten Star of Season; Plays With Minnesota.

Chicago, Nov. 23.—Fred Hovde, quarterback, playing his last season with the University of Minnesota eleven, today was voted by western conference coaches the outstanding Big Ten star of the 1928 season.

A compilation of the selections made by the Big Ten coaches for International News Service showed that Hovde was picked for the western conference all-star mythical eleven by more coaches than any other player. Six of the mentors cast their ballot for the Minnesota luminary for quarter in the galaxy of stars.

Second Chance. Walter Holmer, the fast, plunging fullback of Northwestern University, was the second most popular selection of the football instructors, five coaches naming him as their choice.

Among the teams the University of Minnesota and the University of Iowa were tied in the number of players voted positions on the eleven. Three players from the Hawkeyes and three from the Cornhuskers were picked.

Michigan, Wisconsin and Indiana each got two players on the eleven and Northwestern Ohio and Illinois one each. Purdue and the University of Chicago failed to obtain representation, although several coaches liked Welch, the holder-maker back, but failed to give him enough votes to place over Glasgow of Iowa and Bennett of Indiana.

DETROIT COUGARS BEAT BOSTON BRUINS EASILY

Detroit, Nov. 23.—The Detroit Cougars outplayed the Boston Bruins in a fast, hard game last night at Olympia to win 2 to 0 with 25 seconds remaining in the second period. Lewis, Detroit's flashy young center on a solo play carried the puck through the Boston forwards, outsmarted the defense and smashed the puck past Thompson for the first goal.

The Cougars displayed the best team work they have shown this season in making the second goal. Hay, Cooper and Heberts passed the puck back and forth three times in the scoring zone. Heberts were completely at sea. Finally Cooper drew Thompson out of the net by bluffing a shot and instead passed to Heberts who had an easy goal.

MODEST ALEXANDER, BACHELOR GENIUS BEHIND GEORGIA TECH

COACH ALEXANDER

Editor's Note—Have you noticed that in all the stories you read praising the Georgia Tech football team that seldom you see very much about Bill Alexander, the coach? Morgan Blake, sports editor of the Atlanta Journal, was asked by NEA Service to tell The Herald readers something about Alexander. This is his story of Alexander as he knows him intimately.

BY MORGAN BLAKE

The only man connected with sports in this writer's acquaintance who seems afflicted with too much modesty is Bill Alexander, the 37-year-old coach at Georgia Tech, a team that every year is capable of putting up a good scrap against any opposition and in special years rises to great heights in national prominence.

Alex has been head coach of Tech since 1920. In his first year he won the southern championship by defeating the famous Centre College team, 24 to 0. This Centre team included Bo McMillin and Red Roberts, both on Walter Camp's All-America team.

Georgia Tech has another fine team this year, one that conquered Notre Dame, 13 to 0, and Vanderbilt, 13 to 7. The Tech-Notre Dame game was one of the few in the last decade in which the Irish have failed to score a point.

Well, what sort of a fellow is this Bill Alexander, coach of the Teroids?

He is absolutely one man without any bull or baloney. He has not one iota of showmanship, although he has one of the most attractive and engaging personalities of any man I know. But he shuns the spotlight for himself as though it were the plague.

Sometimes we sport writers in Atlanta get real peeved because Alex won't do a little bragging. Alex always gives the other fellows the best of it. When his team wins a game, his traditional statement for publication is "We got the breaks." Of course, when he is having those heart-to-heart talks with his men Coach Alexander opens up and lets them know how proud he is of them. But they never learn this fact through the newspapers.

The angriest I have seen Coach Alex get was on the morning of a game this year when a sports writer faked an interview with him, in which Alex was credited with boasting brazenly of how Tech was going to eat its opponent alive.

When he saw it, he asked me to do him a favor, about the first request like that in the many years of our acquaintance. "Please reply to that in some way for me, will you?" he requested.

Coach Alexander has had some lean seasons since he has been in charge at Tech and the fickle public has hidden him a lot. Especially during the years when Alabama was riding the crest in the south, and Tech was suffering from the poorest lot of material in many years, did Alex take a roasting.

But neither criticism nor praise make any impression on him. He is the man who can meet with triumph and disaster and treat those two imposters just the same.

Tech won the Southern Conference championship in 1927, although the team had a bad year in 1926. At the annual banquet to the champions, Alex made a little speech. He said:

"At the end of the 1926 season folks met me on the street and asked, 'Alex, what was the matter with your team this year?' This year they meet me on the street and say, 'Alex, didn't WE have a great team!'"

Alexander is worshipped by his men. They know he is a square shooter and that every man will get his just deserts. He is a hard driver on the field. In teaching the fundamentals of tackling and blocking, we don't believe he has a superior.

He can put the iron in his men's craws. The Jackets are the sturdiest crew in the south. They seem to be immune from injuries. In the recent hard game against Vanderbilt eleven Tech men fought through practically the entire four quarters, together and not one of them was breathing hard. They hadn't taken time out a single time. The fine physical condition of Tech's football players are always a source of wonder to outsiders.

Coach Alexander is a graduate of Tech. He never was any great shakes as a football player, but he scrubbed manfully for four years and got in a few games and won his letter. He became assistant coach to John Heisman and succeeded him to the head role when Heisman went to Pennsylvania to coach.

Coach Alexander is a bachelor and has absolutely no interest in the female of the species, except those of his own family. For years he and Kid Clay, head coach of the Tech baseball team, and freshman football coach occupied bachelor quarters together and it was thought that neither would ever marry. But finally Dan Cupid got the kid. But the boy with the bow has a tougher job in Alex.

YALE'S HOCKEY TEAM GETTING UNDER WAY FOR STIFF SESSION

Yale's thirty-first year of hockey and the third year of hockey as a major sport is under way with "Larry" Noble, football and hockey star as head coach. Richard G. Cadby, of Hartford, Conn., is captain and P. C. Farnsworth, of Memphis, Tenn., is manager of the team. Yale's hockey team plays home games as follows:

Dec. 12, Boston U.; University Club of Boston, Dec. 15; Jan. 2, Dartmouth; Jan. 12, University Club of Boston; Jan. 15, Brown; Jan. 19, Dartmouth; Feb. 13, St. Nicholas; Feb. 19, Boston College; Feb. 22, Princeton; March 9, Harvard.

Games away from home will be McGill, at New York, Dec. 22; Toronto at New York; Jan. 5; Dartmouth at Hanover, Feb. 9; Princeton at Princeton, Feb. 16; Harvard at Boston, March 2.

If a play-off is needed with Princeton, the game is slated for New Haven on Feb. 27. If a play-off is needed with Harvard, the game goes to Boston on March 13.

Yale has an undefeated freshman hockey squad of last year and six men of a strong Varsity team to build this year's Varsity about. A year ago Yale won all her hockey games except against Harvard, and then Harvard fell before the teams that were easy for Yale. On the Varsity team is Winthrop Hale Palmer, who is looked upon as another "Hobey" Baker, and led the team in scoring last season. Palmer is expected to near the crest of his hockey career this winter when he is in his second season as a Varsity player. Meanwhile some of last year's freshmen are considered to be nearly as good as Palmer.

SONS OF ITALY SURPRISE GREEN

Grab All Four Points; Beethoven Duplicates; Night Hawks Still in Lead.

LEAGUE STANDING

Team	W.	L.	P.
Night Hawks	8	1	11
Sons of Italy	7	2	9
Man. Green	5	4	7
High. Park	3	7	7
Bon Ami	5	4	7
Construction	3	6	5
Beethoven	4	5	5
Charter Oaks	4	5	4
Center Church	0	9	0

Howard Murphy's Night Hawks still lead The Herald Bowling League today after taking three points from the Charter Oaks. A team single of 561 in the second game did most of the damage.

The Sons of Italy sprung at least a mild surprise when they knocked off Manchester Green for four points. Nine pins dived the first game but the Sons swamped them in the next. The third game found teams "groggy" and making very low scores. Frank Cervini's bowling was the steadiest.

The Center Church gears still fail to function properly. The Beethoven slammed them all over the alleys last night to take four points. The Center Church is yet to win a single game. Sam Nelson did the best for the losers while the Swedish team's work was well divided.

The Manchester Construction seems to have a hobby for two points. Again last night it did a fifty-fifty stunt with Highland Park after taking the first game. The second was tied and the hilltop boys won the roll-off and the third game. Axel Anderson and Tom Miner were beat.

The Bon Ami hit some mighty classy scores to take three points from the West Siders. They lost the first but too grabbed the next pair. Suhle's work was best but Conran and Canade also hit wood approvingly.

There will be no matches next Thursday night because of the giving day. The next contests are set for December 6.

1926 LOCAL GRID SITUATION CHEATS FANS IN MERIDEN

Manchester fans can consider themselves somewhat fortunate in that they are able to witness a town football championship series. Often times when semi-pro teams get together they are unable to agree. Two years ago the Cubs and the Cloverleaves couldn't get together and no series was played at all. That Manchester isn't alone in this respect may be seen from the following clipping from the Meriden Journal:

"Following a meeting of Manager Hennie Salecki of the Falcons and Manager Owrie Gaffney of the Communities last night, it was announced that plans for a city championship grid game between the local teams have been abandoned. Manager Gaffney agreed to play minus the services of Eddie Barnikow but refused to meet Salecki's demand that he pay 15 per cent for the use of the field. According to present indications there'll be no big city title game here this year."

NEVER MISSED A GAME.

Joe Munson, Tulsa outfielder who led the Western League in hitting, never missed a single one of the 165 games played by his club.

JOINED GREAT MAJORITY.

When Massachusetts citizens voted for Sunday baseball in the recent elections, they joined fans of 35 other states who want Sunday baseball.

Football Briefs

New York, Nov. 23 — Accompanied by 2,000 rooters and a 75-piece band on four special trains, 29 New York University football players are enroute to Pittsburgh today for their important game with Carnegie Tech tomorrow. They left here last night after long signal practice.

Annapolis, Md., Nov. 23 — A short signal drill here this afternoon will complete Navy's preparation for Princeton. The team will not leave for Philadelphia until tomorrow morning.

Princeton, N. J., Nov. 23 — Princeton's lineup for the Navy game will be the same as that which started against Yale, according to Coach Roper. The Tigers are relying upon Trix Bennett, elusive back, to best the midshipmen.

Cambridge, Mass., Nov. 23 — The Harvard team starts for New Haven this morning heartened by the cheers of 1,000 undergraduates who watched the Crimson players polish up their aerial attack yesterday. O'Connell may replace Pickard at left end in the annual battle with Yale.

New Haven, Conn., Nov. 23 — Indications were today that Yale's injured backfield regulars will get in to the Harvard game tomorrow, although some of them may not last for more than one period. A crowd of 8,000 persons is expected to witness the classic.

West point, N. Y., Nov. 23 — Army reserves will be plentiful if Nebraska's bone-crushing attack crumples the forward wall of the Cadet eleven tomorrow. Every player on the squad participated in yesterday's final scrimmage.

There's A Real Moral In These Words Of Price

Berkeley, Calif., Nov. 23 — The wise boys were betting four-to-one on California and spotting the Bears opponents 20 points in a recent game. And "Nibs" Price, the California coach, was told about it. "That is one of the things that makes a coach's job so easy and nice," he commented.

"The same fellows who are making those bets are the ones who roast the tar out of a coach when the team fails to win their bets for them. If my team should lose, well, heaven help me, I'll probably be fried in oil."

It might be said that the twenty-point spotters lost some of their dollars as the Bears were hard put to win that game and it wasn't won by any twenty points.

GETS ANOTHER CHANCE.

Mike Cvetengros, veteran left-hander of the Texas and Southern Leagues, was drafted by the Chicago Cubs for a trial next spring.

WAS RIGHT ON JOB.

George Knothe, shortstop for the Tulsa Oilers this year, started 78 double plays for his team and figured in 167 during the year.

WOULD COST $85,000.

Experts value the worth of the five players sent to the Boston Braves by the Chicago Cubs at $85,000.

CO-ED SPONSOR

Whenever a southern football team goes into action, you always see one or more pretty young things adorning the players' bench. They are the sponsors and their duty is to wear a bouquet of flowers and lend moral support to the team. Here's Miss Addalgin Morgan, Alabama co-ed, who was sponsor for Alabama when Wisconsin was played. She's a member of Alpha Gamma Delta sorority and lives in Chicago.

FRIENDS TO BE ENEMIES FOR THIS ONE GAME

Boon companions of high school days will find themselves grid opponents here on Dec. 1 when Southern California plays Notre Dame.

Francis Tappaan, Trojan end, and Johnny O'Brien, the young man whose leap for a pass brought a touchdown and fame against the Army, are the young men in mind. Tappaan, in high school, played one tackle and O'Brien the other. They were the best of friends, being constantly together.

They differed, however, when the time for college arrived, Tappaan choosing the Trojan school and O'Brien the Irish school.

Tappaan is sure to play against the Irish and O'Brien, if he is used by Rockne, will play against Tappaan.

Homeless!

A TERRIBLE WORD. A word whose true meaning is hard to grasp—until you find yourself without a roof over your head.

Half a million people were rendered homeless by the West Indies Hurricane in September. Twenty thousand of them were taken ill.

To whom would YOU turn

if you saw your home in ruins, your loved ones ill, your future darkened by the spectres of poverty and disease? First to aid you would be the American Red Cross—with food, clothing, shelter, medicines and aid in reconstruction. The Red Cross succored a half-million people during the West Indies Hurricane disaster—and the Red Cross today is still giving relief to many thousands in the devastated regions of Porto Rico, the Virgin Islands, and Florida.

Shelter, food, clothing, medicines for half a million people cost money. How much will be needed next year no one knows. But the Red Cross wants and deserves 5,000,000 members this year. You can do your share simply by responding to the Red Cross Annual Roll Call now. The need is immediate; the cause is great; resolve now to renew your membership at the first opportunity. Think what it means to be homeless—remember that the Red Cross would be first on the scene if calamity visited your community. Then join.

Here's Most Popular Of Campaign Poems

During the last Presidential campaign The Herald was flooded with letters dealing with the religious issue which has become injected into the electioneering. The Herald believed and argued editorially that the religious issue had no place in a Presidential campaign. It refused to print letters which dealt with religion as it concerned the candidates for the presidency.

Naturally this newspaper was criticized by those who sent in such letters and found that they did not appear in these columns. Letters came from all classes and creeds. It was just as fair to one group as to the other that none were published. Letters, jokes, poems and puns that would only have aroused a bitterness that was unnecessary came in The Herald's mail. If all those who had sent such epistles could have seen the entire lot they would have agreed, without a doubt, that it was best to put all of them in the wastebasket.

However, The Herald, strongly Republican as it is, does not bar its columns to any matter that is within the bounds of decency, is not libelous, and comes to this newspaper with the name and address of the writer attached. This paper's "sportmanship" has been attacked simply because it was adhering to a policy adopted long before its last campaign was ever talked of. Of the documents that reached The Herald the one printed below came in most frequently. Because it has come to this newspaper so frequently and because The Herald believes that its publication now is not antagonistic, it is printed here.

Say, Daddy, won't you tell me the terrible news I heard?

I scarcely can believe it, each cold and cruel word.

They say because I worship Christ and Catholic doctrines share, I never can be President, or hope to fill that chair.

You fought beneath Old Glory, in the late and terrible war,

And the shot and shell that rose, and fell, some Catholic heart tore.

Both pain and desolation the Catholic home did share;

And if I serve my country, Dad, why can't I fill that chair?

You've often spoken of Grandpa who fought in sixty-three,

You have followed in his footsteps and expect the same of me.

I promise to follow Old Glory and my country's troubles share,

And serving both God and nation, Dad, why can't I fill that chair?

Wasn't Columbus who found our country, a Catholic by birth?

Wasn't Isabella's sacrifice a tribute to Catholic worth?

With the signers of Independence whose memory we revere,

Wasn't Charles Carroll of Carrollton fit to fill that chair?

Didn't the father of our Country, to his men as he bid "Farewell,"

Speak of his Catholic soldiers, who fought, and bled, and fell?

He praised the Catholic nation who helped sweet freedom there,

Why, keep the Yankee Catholic from filling the President's chair?

Wasn't the Constitution, Daddy, written for one and all?

Won't the stars and stripes protect the one who answered every call?

Won't Catholic life and Catholic blood, that always gave its share,

Convince the world that we are loyal and fit to fill that chair?

And far away in Europe, Dad, in many a silent grave,

There rests the form of a Catholic boy, so noble, true and brave.

And they didn't tell him, Daddy, as he started "over there,"

That he was only fit to fight and die and not to fill that chair!

Oh! Glorious Flag of Freedom, Oh! Flag of our native Land,

Uphold the Constitution and by its doctrine stand!

Protect your native children, let despots not ensnare,

And give to them their birthright—The right to fill that chair!

ZANE GREY STORY

ON CIRCLE SCREEN

"Avalanche" Starring Jack Holt Plays Saturday and Sunday.

Zane Grey's latest literary work, "Avalanche," was acquired by Paramount and serves as a vehicle to feature that western favorite, Jack Holt.

This is Holt's third picture under his new contract, and it is reported to be an even better picture than "The Water Hole," the part-color film recently completed.

"Avalanche," which will open at the Circle Theater Saturday for two days, is a story of adventure in the new west and shows Holt in another virile role. Plenty of swift-moving action and thrills are to be found, coupled with a sweet love theme that is both romantic and inspiring.

Holt is given splendid support by a selected cast of notables, including Doris Hill, Baclanova, Duke Lee, Buck Connors and Clarke Coombs. Otto Brower directed.

The associate film feature presents Pola Negri, famous Polish dramatic star in "Loves of an Actress," her newest Paramount starring effort.

Passionate love and tense drama are the chief highlights in the story of a favorite of the footlights who toys with men's souls. Nils Ather, Richard Tucker and Paul Lukas are seen in support. Rowland Lee directed.

The current installment of "The Haunted Island" and "Krazy Kat" cartoons will round out the bill.

Four valises full of hashish, quantities of heroin and cocaine were found.

Police said that the proprietor of the house, Bernardo Redo, 33, told them the hashish was obtained from city dumps at Flushing, where the plant from which it is derived covers a couple of acres of ground.

The rear entrance to the house was guarded by a police dog, which growled and snapped viciously at the raiders before being subdued.

GOLF ASS'N ANNOUNCES CHAMPIONSHIP DATES

New York, Nov. 23.—Golf's long hitters will be turning in considerably higher scores in 1930 if the larger, higher and less lively ball is adopted by the United States Golf Association, as intimated here yesterday at a meeting of the executive committee of the association.

The committee decided to hold the next women's national championship at the Oakland Hills Country Club, Birmingham, Mich., near Detroit, during the week of Sept. 30. The course is a long one, measuring almost 7,000 yards.

The date of the men's national open, to be held at the Winged Foot Golf Club of Mamaroneck, N. Y., was fixed at June 27, 28 and 29. The sectional qualifying rounds are slated for Monday, June 10.

LIGHT PENALTIES FOR YOUNG ELOPERS

Providence, R. I., Nov. 23.—Storm clouds that hovered over Edward Sulzberger, of New York City, and Miss May Dorfman, of Waterbury, Conn., student elopers, began to disappear today.

Both will suffer discipline via the suspension route but indications at Brown University and Pembroke College were that the suspensions would be of short duration.

The student bride and bridegroom were taking the matter philosophically but declined to discuss their affairs.

Under the faculty laws of Brown and Pembroke, undergraduates may marry when they have the approval of their parents and the sanction of college authorities. The son of the New York judge and the girl from Waterbury eloped last month however, making themselves subject to severe discipline.

Dean Otis E. Randall stated he had been informed that approval of the marriage by the parents had been secured. The dean said that as Sulzberger had been on the senior honor roll and had never violated a rule before, he would not be regarded in any other light than that of a student who had broken a single strict rule. The suspensions begin with the Thanksgiving recess next Wednesday and will probably last until the close of the Christmas holiday recess.

CONVICTS AS WITNESSES AT RED MORAN'S TRIAL

Taken From Dannemora to New York City Under Extra Heavy Guard.

New York, Nov. 23.—Joseph LaCurto and James De Michaels, convicts from Clinton prison at Dannemora, today were brought into County Court, before Judge Alonzo G. McLaughlin, as witnesses in the hearing of the application of Thomas "Red" Moran, Brooklyn bandit under sentence of death in Sing Sing prison, for a new trial.

The convicts were brought from Raymond street jail under heavy guard. Handcuffed together and under constant watch of two keepers from the prison, they were surrounded by police and deputy sheriffs. A large number of uniformed policemen and detectives were scattered through the courtroom and a special squad of uniformed men was thrown around the outside of the building. Sheriff H. M. Hessberg was present in person, in charge of the deputies.

As the men were marched from the prison van into the courtroom they were preceded by policemen who cleared the way. Once in the courtroom the men, still handcuffed together, were put into the pen, while Judge McLaughlin disposed of his calendar and motions.

16 YEAR OLD SLAYER

New York, Nov. 23.—On his alleged confession that he pushed four-year-old Fred Bassler into an artificial lake, in which the child was drowned, a 16-year-old boy was held today for hearing on a charge of homicide.

The young prisoner is Astor

Hero, a neighbor of the Bassler child's family in Lindhurst, Long Island. He told police where to look, after they had been searching the entire day for the missing youngster.

Hero gave no reason for his action, police said.

Heaven is a state of mind, and so is the other place.

DIPHTHERIA IN SCHOOL

Middletown, Conn., Nov. 23.—Two cases of diphtheria have been discovered in Farm Hill school, according to announcement here today, and an official of the State Board of Health will come to town Monday to take charge of the situation. The school is still open.

Dr. John H. Mountain took cultures in the cases and discovered the disease. He has three other children of the school under observation.

Adv.—The New York cars are ready.

 Gibbons Assembly, Catholic Ladies of Columbus will hold its regular meeting in the K. of C. club-rooms in the State Theater building this evening.

The spotlight that was placed on a pole at Main and Park streets by the police commission, to be turned on when a traffic officer was on duty on busy nights, was placed in a different position last night so that motorists could see the officer much more easily.

A special Missionary service will be held at the Swedish Lutheran church Sunday afternoon at 5 o'clock. The members of the Ladies' Missionary society will serve refreshments following the service. The speaker will be Rev. Helland of the Hartford Theological Seminary, a missionary from Africa, who is home on a furlough.

Main street, south end, was the scene of much activity this afternoon as several hundred students from the High school, headed by their band, marched from the school to the West Side playgrounds where the High school football team plays Naugatuck in the season's most important contest. The students cheered and sang along the line of march.

A son was born last night to Mr. and Mrs. Hubert Hemingway, of 271 Oak street. The baby was born at Mrs. Howe's Maternity home on Wadsworth street.

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert B. House, of 201 East Center street, had as their week-end guests Waldemar Boiz, of Binghamton, N. Y., Delkin Jones of Atlanta, Ga., Lincoln Robinson of Hingham, Mass., Donald Robinson of Boston, Mass., classmates of their son Charles in Harvard. With their daughter, Miss Emily L. House, a student in the Wheelock School, are Miss Hope Bradford, of Cambridge, Mass., Miss Margaret Russell of Erskine School, Boston and Miss Marjorie Smith, of this town, a student at Wellesley. The entire party with Mr. and Mrs. Herbert House and Miss Laura C. House will witness the Yale-Harvard football game at the Bowl in New Haven tomorrow.

The Good Will club of the Fifth District will give a whist and dance at the City View dance hall this evening. Turkeys will be given for first prizes. Refreshments will be served and a full evening's enjoyment is assured to all who go over there tonight.

Rev. Marv S. Stocking has chosen for the subject of his talk before the Men's club monthly meeting and supper at Second Congregational church this evening, "Communism's Building, or the Four Corners of the Temple." The men of the North Methodist church will meet with the Congregationalists at 7:30 p.m. expected that Manager A. W. White of the Montgomery Ward store will speak. Harry Ryden, heads the committee of arrangements.

Modern and old-fashioned dancing will be on the program tomorrow night at the Green school assembly hall, with Dan Miller to call off the old-time numbers and Wehr's orchestra to furnish the music. These dances are conducted every Saturday evening at the school by the young men of the Manchester Green Community club.

The Y and U Whist club met at the home of Mrs. Carl E. Bolin of St. John street Wednesday evening. The first prize was won by Mrs. Charles R. McCarthy. It was a luncheon set. Mrs. Harold Balch received a card set. A buffet lunch was served.

Mr. and Mrs. George Ramsdell of Pittsburgh, Pa., who have a number of relatives here are celebrating 25th anniversary of their marriage today. Mr. Ramsdell is a son of Mrs. W. F. Ramsdell of 35 Main street.

The final whist in the series of five held every other Friday evening at the Manchester Green school will take place this evening. The whists have been so popular that the same committee has been prevailed upon to continue with another series, and it is probable the new series will begin Friday evening, November 30. Mrs. Fred Mohr, chairman, has for her assistants Mrs. Thomas Sullivan, Mrs. Ralph Cone, and Mrs. Henry Stanley. The special prize will be awarded tonight to the player holding the highest score for the series. Six other awards will be made and refreshments and a social time will follow.
