OUR FOREIGN TRADE TAKES STEP FORWARD

Uncle Sam Will Sell 800 Million Dollars More Than He Will Buy From Others, Report Shows.

Washington, Nov. 30.—Uncle Sam will sell about $800,000,000 more to the world than he buys this year from other countries.

Statistics available at the Commerce Department today showed that 1928 has been one of the most successful foreign trade years in peace-time history of the country.

Estimates place the exports at approximately $4,985,000,000 and imports at about $4,100,000,000 providing the present ratios are maintained through December, which appears likely.

The gain in exports has exceeded $115,000,000 over last year, while the decrease in imports probably will run to $100,000,000.

The favorable balance of trade now indicated will be one of the largest on record, with the exception of the $951,000,000 excess of exports in 1924.

GIL TAKES OFFICE AS MEX PRESIDENT

Mexico City, Nov. 30.—Provisional President Emilio Portes Gil, who took the oath of office today as successor to the retiring president, Plutarco Elias Calles, in his inaugural address pledged...

Speaking in the national stadium before a crowd of 40,000, including the diplomatic corps, the provisional president, who will assume office at midnight, paid tribute to the retiring president and American ambassador...

More than half of America's sales abroad this year will be of manufactured goods. Completely manufactured articles comprise about 46 per cent of the total, a gain of 4 per cent over last year, while the semi-finished products accounted for nearly 15 per cent, the same as last year.

WINIFRED STONER IN POLICE COURT

Former Child Prodigy Says Broker Stole Bracelet and Beat Her.

New York, Nov. 30.—Winifred Sackville Stoner, the 26-year-old former "child prodigy" whose 4-year-old meanderings into the realm of advanced thought once startled the intellectual world...

Loeb, according to Miss Stoner, struck her with the car and walked over to the car and pulled her out. Discovering what had happened he promptly telephoned West Haven police who immediately took charge of the machine and drove it to an undertaker's rooms.

Dr. Stanley H. Osborn, town health officer in Unionville, today announced that at least two weeks will be required before the true situation is disclosed. Two weeks must elapse, he declared, before it is possible to determine just how far the disease will go.

Meanwhile, Dr. Osborn believes there is no danger of the disease becoming epidemic in Hartford, Avon and Simsbury, he believes, will escape because both towns are 99 per cent immunized.

Swannanoa Country Club, Va., Nov. 30.—A cold November rain silvered down steadily over the Blue Ridge and the Shenandoah Valley today, effectively putting to an end any plans President Coolidge may have had to go hunting for a while.

Both Shot Through Head and Gun Found in Car—Both Married But Not to Each Other.

West Haven, Conn., Nov. 30.—Ariene Mills Dudley 26, wife of a local house painter, and William J. Brocar, 30, well known in sporting circles here, were found dead in a car owned by Brocar's father...

Separated From Husband Mrs. Dudley, mother of one child, had been separated from her husband for a long period, and was living with her mother, Brocar was married and had two children. Police learned that the couple had been going together for five months.

Both Mrs. Dudley and Brocar had been shot through the head, a revolver that has been definitely identified as the weapon with which both were slain, was found in the car.

Dr. Victor A. Kowalewski, medical examiner, and Harry Tuttle, chief of police of West Haven, at once started an investigation. Nearly nine hours of work were required to identify the woman.

THIRD DOCTOR CALLED TO ATTEND GEORGE V.

Fierce Storms Sweep Ocean; Ships Delayed

New York, Nov. 30.—Trans Atlantic liners came limping into New York harbor hours late today, some of them badly battered, after battling one of the worst storms and gales seen at sea in many years.

Ship's officers and passengers told of gigantic waves reaching 30 feet in height, turbulent seas rocking the ship, and the excitement that prevailed when the dreaded SOS of sinking vessels were heard.

Separated From Husband Mrs. Dudley, mother of one child, had been separated from her husband for a long period, and was living with her mother, Brocar was married and had two children. Police learned that the couple had been going together for five months.

Both Mrs. Dudley and Brocar had been shot through the head, a revolver that has been definitely identified as the weapon with which both were slain, was found in the car.

GENERAL MOTORS HEAD SEES 1929 AS PROSPEROUS

Alfred P. Sloan Says It Will Be Biggest Year for His Company Which Reflects Nation's Condition.

New York, Nov. 30.—Alfred P. Sloan, Jr., president of the General Motors Corporation, which this year has established a high record for profits that no other industrial concern has ever approached in peace-time, predicted in an exclusive interview today that "the automotive industry in 1929 will experience the biggest year it has ever had."

"What is the prospect for business?" he was asked. "Do you see anything ahead that will interfere with the prosperity that exists in America today?"

"I do not see any influence tending to reduce the present trend of industrial activity," he replied. "As far as the automotive industry is concerned—and it is a very important factor in the prosperity of the country—I believe 1929 will be the biggest year we have ever had."

Mr. Sloan was seated in his sumptuous office on the 24th floor of the General Motors building overlooking Central Park. Here, for the first time in his career, he earned a net profit of $240,534,613. These earnings for the first nine months not only exceeded the total for any like period in the corporation's history, but they were greater than ever shown for a full year in peace-time.

"What will the total volume of business of General Motors for 1928?" Mr. Sloan was asked. "Total Business. Between one and one-half and three-quarters billion dollars—that is, between $1,500,000,000 and $1,750,000,000," he replied.

Of that staggering total the export business will aggregate approximately between $250,000,000 and $300,000,000.

But British Officials Say Public Should Not Worry As Monarch's Illness May Prove Lengthy—Pleurisy Develops—"Some Improvement Noted," Says Bulletin—Prince of Wales Hurrying Home.

Great Britain is becoming reconciled to the possibility that King George's illness may prove somewhat lengthy, but British officials close to the royal family declared today there should be no quickening of public anxiety over the fact that a third physician was called in at the morning consultation.

The King's illness, from the time he caught cold until the present development of pleurisy, was canvassed by the three doctors—Lord Dawson of Penn, Sir Stanley Hewitt and Sir Humphry Rolleston. Their detailed examination delayed the usual 12 a. m. bulletin.

The bulletin, which was posted at noon, said the lung inflammation "showed some improvement" and that the royal patient's temperature was lower. It pointed out, however, that progress must be slow. All three doctors signed it.

"A Little Better." In the meantime, however, a Buckingham Palace official informed International News Service that "the King was a little better all the way round."

The London Lancet, the world's foremost medical journal, in a review of the King's illness, warned the public there cannot be a sudden cure.

Advices from Dar-Es-Salaam, British East Africa, definitely indicate that the Prince of Wales will sail with his brother, the Duke of Gloucester, when he leaves for England on Sunday on the British warship Enterprise.

So far as is known here, the duke has not yet been advised of his father's illness, despite efforts to get native couriers through the jungle to his interior camp.

OFFICIAL BULLETIN. London, Nov. 30.—An official bulletin issued at Buckingham Palace at noon today reported improvement in the condition of King George, but warned that progress must be slow.

The text of the bulletin follows: "Inflammation of the lung and pleura shows some improvement. Temperature was slightly lower level. It must be noted that the time of possible exacerbation of infection has not yet passed and, in any case, progress must be slow."

The doctors thoroughly examined the whole illness, carefully examining the present situation in the light of possible future developments.

Crew of Maryland Holds Ceremony With President-Elect Interested Spectator—To Land Tomorrow.

Aboard U. S. S. Maryland, (Via Arlington, Va., Radio Station), Nov. 30.—President-Elect Herbert Hoover, elated over the success of his Central American visits, today put the finishing touches on the speech he will deliver tomorrow when he lands at Guayaquil, Ecuador.

He was interrupted, however, by the "equatorial ceremonies," which are a tradition of the sea when a ship crosses the imaginary line dividing the northern and southern hemispheres.

The Maryland crossed the equator just before noon. Mr. Hoover, who had been "invited" to witness the ceremony, was present.

Another Liner Near AS THE VESTRIS SANK Witness Says Tramp Steamer Was Only Six Miles Distance On the Day Before.

New York, Nov. 30.—While the Lampart & Holt liner Vestris foundered helplessly in the rough seas a few hours before she sank the tramp steamer Montroso of the New York-Porto Rico line was less than two hours sailing time away.

This was brought out today at the federal hearing into the cause of the disaster in the testimony of George Frederick Harrison, chief mate of the Montroso. Because of the absence of wireless equipment the Montroso was unaware of the loss of the Vestris until she reached Boston the next day.

TO DROP 50 INSPECTORS ON CHARGES OF BRIBERY

Some of Them on Canadian Border Get as High as $1,000 Every Month.

Detroit, Nov. 30.—An eight months investigation of graft and corruption among the customs border patrol was climaxed today with the arrest of nine inspectors on charges of conspiracy and accepting bribes. The men were stripped of their uniforms and credentials when taken before John R. Watkins, United States district attorney.

The arrests herald a wholesale house cleaning in the service, Watkins said. "Before we are through we expect that approximately 50 inspectors will have been dropped from the service," Watkins said.

The customs border patrol service is charged with the prevention of liquor smuggling from Canada. Some of the inspectors have been receiving as high as $1,000 a month in bribes, Summer C. Sleeper, chief of the customs border patrol said.

APE MAN ADMITS KILLING MEXICAN Says He and Nephew Sawed Off Head and Then Buried Body.

Aboard Northcott Prison Car, Bakersfield, Calif. Nov. 30—Gordon Stewart Northcott early today made a full confession to Deputy

Erle Redwine, of Riverside county, that he killed and decapitated a Mexican youth at his Riverside chicken ranch on January 31, 1928. In his confession, Northcott asserted he shot the Mexican youth eight times with his revolver and declared that his youthful nephew, Sanford Clark, shot the victim with a rifle. Sawed Off Head Later, Northcott said, he and his nephew sawed the head from the body and buried it and then buried the body near Puenie, Calif., the same night. Northcott continued to deny that he killed Walter Collins and Nelson and Lewis Winslow, three youths who are thought to have lost their lives on the Riverside county ranch. Northcott is being brought to Southern California from Vancouver, B. C., where he was arrested after fleeing from the United States, to stand trial. His mother and asserted accomplice, Mrs. Louise Northcott, is under arrest at Calgary, Alberta. NEW CANADIAN PACT Washington, Nov. 30.—Negotiations have been opened between Washington and Ottawa for a new Canadian-American liquor treaty. International News Service learned today. The American government is desirous of obtaining a treaty with the Dominion government along the lines of that already negotiated with Cuba. Under such a treaty it would become unlawful for a Canadian citizen to consign liquor shipments to points in the United States.

WINIFRED STONER IN POLICE COURT (Continued from Page 1.) today and attributed the entire affair to her "nervous hysteria." Miss Stoner, who has been twice married and who was recently reported engaged to Bainbridge Colby, former secretary of state, indirectly lays the blame for her trouble with Loeb at the door of psychoanalysis. She said she met Loeb last July as a result of their mutual interest in the art of delving into the subconscious and that their platonic friendship ripened fast. "We studied and analyzed together," she said. "Through my connections I was able to give him several tips on the stock market, and we used the money thus gained to further our educational methods." She also declared that while Loeb maintained bachelor apartments at the Dorset hotel he was very fond of his wife and two children and that she and he often visited them. Miss Stoner contends that Loeb eventually grew tired of the platonic phase of their friendship and that when he made his attentions to her personal she rebuked him. "Then," she added, "he attempted to make me jealous by renewing an old friendship with Mrs. Kirby. I don't really care for the bracelet, but I don't think Mrs. Kirby has a right to wear it."

The ceremonies was escorted to the "royal throne" above the forward gun turret. He was much amused to be introduced to "King Neptune," whose whiskers were made from shredded rope. The "king," in private life, is Captain Tesser, of Washington, D. C., chief turret captain. "The king's subjects" proved a motley crew in comic opera attire consisting of silk hats, pajamas, canes, gloves, white duck trousers and other odds and ends. Mingling with them were "pirates" and barefooted, shirtless sailors along with "mermaids." The ship's band played a "swimming party" for the benefit of the "polly wogs" victims. As the "indictments" against the ship's siren and whistle shrieked. The solemnity of the court was somewhat interrupted by the groaning of the courtiers. The "accusation" against John Griffin Moot, of Los Angeles, a friend of the president-elect, was "loitering on the Mack Sennett studio lot in Hollywood"—a location noted for its bathing beauties. Other Charges Secretary of the service, of the Hoover staff, was charged with "acting like Mary Pickford in Texas at Gulliver's night club in New York." A photographer was ducked in the quarterdeck tank twice for "sneaking on a portable phonograph on the ship's deck."

MISS BOLLING HELD FOR THE GRAND JURY

Charged With High School Boy of Breaking and Entering Brockton Stores.

Brockton, Mass., Nov. 30.—Looking wan and wearing smoked glasses, Miss Ruth B. Bolling, 18-year-old daughter of George Bolling, city chemist, arrived here today to surrender a charge of larceny. The palor of the girl, who had been sought for more than a week, left credence to the report that she had suffered a nervous breakdown, officials said. The father told police that Ruth was suffering from eye trouble, which previously caused her withdrawal from the high school. It was understood that she had been in a private institution in New York. Spectators, hoping to hear stories of midnight bathing parties and drinking affairs, with high school students and business men in the leading roles, crowded district court. Miss Bolling was charged with breaking and entering a house and local shop. In connection with the same case, George H. Grinnell, 17-year-old schoolboy, was also under arrest. The spectators were disappointed, however, for the proceedings were brief. Miss Bolling waived examination and pleaded not guilty. She was placed under $3,000 bond for the Grand Jury.

FOURTEEN SAILORS LOST WHEN FREIGHTER SINKS

Steamer Comes Into Port Three Days Late, Bringing Tragic Story.

New York, Nov. 30.—Three days late, the Transylvania came into port today with its passengers and crew telling of the loss at sea of the German freighter Herrenweck. Fourteen men went down with her. The Transylvania, answering an SOS last Wednesday, stood by the foundering ship for 17 hours and smashed its lifeboats in fruitless attempts to launch them in the mountainous seas. Tons of oil poured on the raging seas failed to quiet them sufficiently to allow life boats to be launched and the crew of the Herrenweck taken off. Finally, when Estonia appeared, the Transylvania was informed that the Estonia had succeeded in taking off 13 of the crew before the Herrenweck went down. The Transylvania bore plain markings of the buffeting it had received while standing by the sinking freighter, which had been damaged in a collision with an unknown ship. Her plates were loose above the waterline, her stem strained, ventilators gone and railings smashed.

BANTON TIGHTENS NET ON ROTHSTEIN SLAYERS

New York, Nov. 30.—Although the Grand Jury investigating the murder of Arnold Rothstein, gambler king, adjourned until Monday without announcing indictments, District Attorney Job Banton declared this afternoon that he had "a beautiful circumstantial case" against those concerned in the slaying. Banton also said that at least 10 witnesses identified "Smiling George" McManus, as one of the men in the death suite of the Park Central hotel where Rothstein was lured to his assassination. McManus, charged with the Rothstein slaying today had his arraignment postponed until next Wednesday at the request of the district attorney. The prisoner's counsel agreed to the postponement declaring that his client would await patiently exonerated.

HEARING OF McMANUS HELD OVER A WEEK

New York, Nov. 30.—The hearing of George McManus, charged with the murder of Arnold Rothstein, Broadway gambler, today was postponed until next Wednesday by Judge Francis X. Mancuso on request of State's Attorney Job Banton. Banton said that the hearing of testimony in the case would probably be completed by the Grand Jury today or Monday at which time a blanket indictment would be issued against McManus, John Doe and Richard Doe. John Doe, the mysterious woman who was featured in the testimony, has been dropped from the case, Banton said. McManus and his attorney, James D. C. Murray, appeared in court. McManus was his usually suave, confident self. "They have not sufficient evidence to hold McManus but I will not press that point until the hearing," Murray said. "My client will patiently await exonerated." After his appearance, McManus was returned to the Tombs prison.

LITTLE TOWN EXCITED OVER ROYAL WEDDING

Cousin of King of Sweden to Marry Miss Manville, an Heiress.

Pleasantville, N. Y., Nov. 30.—Princes, dukes, duchesses and lesser royal and noble lights continued to move on this excited hamlet today for the wedding at St. John's church tomorrow of Miss Estelle Manville to Count Folke Bernadotte, cousin of the King of Sweden. The completed group will be the largest gathering of royalty and nobility ever assembled at a wedding in this country. The village is all a-bustle in anticipation of the event. The rector is busy getting the church in order; the husbands are brushing up on the front yards and nailing flags on the porches; the matrons are diligently practicing the manner in which one bows before royalty, and the servants at the Manville estate, Hillmare, are rushed from dawn until dusk. The actual ceremony, however, will be a quiet affair.

THIRD DOCTOR CALLED TO ATTEND GEORGE V.

(Continued from Page 1.) ciation to "Old Kate," a race card seller of indeterminate age and identity, who is known to every English race goer from the highest to the lowest. Even King George knew the humble subject and chatted with her some times when he attended the races. The King saw a picture of "Old Kate" in a newspaper, snapped while she was inquiring after his health at the gates to Buckingham Palace. He ordered that a letter be written to her to be delivered at the "Kammon" race track this afternoon by Major Stanley Featherston-Haugh, manager of the royal stables. "The King was greatly touched by 'Kate's' kindly interest," said Sir Stanley.

ADMIRAL FLETCHER DEAD

New York, Nov. 30.—Funeral services were to be held in Trinity church today for Admiral Frank F. Fletcher, U.S.N., retired, who died Wednesday in Luke's hospital. Admiral Fletcher was born in Oskaloosa, Iowa. HOLD COAST GUARDS Buffalo, N. Y., Nov. 30.—The arrest of Seven Coast Guardsmen was admitted at Coast Guard headquarters here today. Those at headquarters refused to discuss the charges during the temporary absence of Martin Rasmussen, commander. He is expected to return later in the day. UPSETS GRAVESTONES Stamford, Conn., Nov. 30.—Three little boys will appear in Juvenile Court here tomorrow to explain the idea that caused them to upset 22 headstones in a cemetery. GOV. SMITH IS BACK TO DESK IN ALBANY

Albany, N. Y., Nov. 30.—Governor Smith was back at his desk today. Tanned, refreshed and rested after his vacation in Mississippi, the governor faced the mass of state problems which always confront a retiring governor. The most important task before him in his last month of public life is the preparation of the executive budget. Not least among the scores of matters which must receive his attention during the next few weeks is the problem of what to do with the hundreds of souvenirs, gifts and mementos which have been sent to him from every corner of the country. There then is the zoo at the executive mansion which must be disposed of before the new governor takes office. "I don't know what to do with the zoo," he said today in naming over some of the pressing problems he must tackle next month. "I don't know what to do either with all of these presents I've received," and he waved his hand about his private office to point out scores of pictures, statues, canes, derbies and other gifts and then he explained that the mansion was equally filled with them and Mrs. Smith is trying to arrange for their disposition. The zoo contains several dogs and monkeys, a couple of alligators, some deer, and elk and scores of other pets.

COMMUNITY CLUB TO PUT ON $3,000 DRIVE

has been rather too great a departure from the original purposes of the organization, which was to provide a general social center for the community with the interests of adults quite as much consulted as those of children and adolescents.

It is now proposed to return in large measure to that original purpose. This idea is particularly favored by Miss Christine Mason, who became director of the Community club early this month. She has been in conference with the Board of Directors on several occasions and has submitted a program of activities for the future that has been heartily endorsed.

Miss Mason's plans are for a wide variety of recreational activities and services, of which the whole population of the community will be the beneficiaries. Even now there is being organized a Girls Sewing Club, and a number of similar projects are in the works or about to be launched. It is also proposed to offer the facilities of the club to various special purpose organizations not large enough to be justified in the possession of regular meeting places of their own. One of these, for example, is the Manchester Rabbit Club, which has been meeting at the club for some time.

An organization of Boy Rangers is one of the activities in prospect. It is proposed also to inaugurate a special entertainment of special value in the winter months, in line with which idea there is a setback tournament for men, already arranged and about to start.

It is expected that when the entire program is formulated there will be a quick re-awakening of interest in the club on the part of the adult population as well as on that of the young folks, whose interests will be no less closely observed than in the past.

It is not proposed to drop athletics from Community Club activities; not by any means. But during the winter, these will be largely of the nature of preparation for the outdoor activities to come later.

Eleven Teams The drive which is expected to put new life and vigor into the beautifully housed club is to be made by eleven teams, which will be captained by members of the Board of Directors, each of whom will select his own personnel.

One contribution of $100 has already been made, Cheate Brothers having started the ball rolling with a check for that amount and a letter from Howell Fitch offering his services in any undertaking that may be made to convert the club into something more of an actual community center than it has been in the past.

GENERAL MOTORS HEAD SEES PROSPEROUS YEAR

culture in its importance to the welfare of the country. He regards the automotive industry as the greatest in the world. Four of the years ago it passed, in volume, steel and steel products, the next largest industry.

"The importance of the automotive industry to the prosperity of the country is apparent," said the General Motors chief executive, leaning forward on his seat. "It has passed steel. The wealth produced annually through the production of motor cars and the use of cars is approximately equivalent to the wealth produced yearly through the process of agriculture. This makes the automotive industry just as big as agriculture!"

"I estimate that ten per cent of the people of the United States are dependent, directly or indirectly, on the automotive industry for their purchases power. That means that 10,000,000 to 12,000,000 people are directly or indirectly, on the automotive industry for their livelihood."

Mr. Sloan leaned back. He gazed out upon the towering structures of Broadway reflectively. His thoughts were interrupted by a long distance call. Then, by another. Several important executives interrupted the interview to discuss a business matter. Stenographers and private secretaries came in and quietly laid papers, containing masses of figures, upon his desk. Obviously, in directing General Motors he is a very busy man.

"To what do you attribute the amazing development of General Motors?" he was asked. His rather heavily lined face took on a thoughtful expression. "First of all, I have a product that everybody fundamentally wants," he replied. General Motors, as virtually everyone knows, manufactures a variety of the best known motor cars produced in America. It has plants in more than 50 cities here and overseas. It has more than 18,000 dealers in 103 countries. It has nearly 60,000 stockholders.

The measure of success of any institution or business depends first on having a fundamental demand," Mr. Sloan continued. "Second, it must have a reasonable amount of capital. And third, there must be proper management—that is, constructive management."

General Motors is an example in a big way of "democracy in business," he declared. He amplified this statement thus: "First of all, all decisions are made on an equal question of policy or procedure. The policy is to get the best thought from the entire organization as to what should and should not be done. Any and all persons who can contribute to the welfare of the organization are welcome to express their opinions. We are more concerned in getting the best solution than from whom the solution may come. In that way we have the advantage of the viewpoints of many trained minds rather than being dependent upon one individual."

Mr. Sloan modestly remarked at this juncture that "there is no genius in the management of our corporation." However, his associates are quick to attribute to their president the qualities that make for a business genius. They say he is eminently fair and indomitable worker, a splendid organizer and the ideal type of executive to coordinate and crystallize the corporation's policies.

General Motors has about 100 executives and 210,000 employees. Mr. Sloan said. As chief executive of this great organization Sloan never issues orders. He "convinces" and decides. He declares frankly that the organization has become so large and far-flung that it could not be conducted successfully if any one man sought to impose his will arbitrarily upon everyone else.

"I believe," Mr. Sloan said, "that there is some thought along the direction that the great industrial institutions this country is developing—that is, big business—tends to prevent the development of the initiative of the individual."

"This is not true in the case of General Motors. Our administrative policy is to place the responsibility squarely on the individual for operating the organization. Those individual executives have equal or more opportunity to exercise their initiative than have the directing heads of the usual small business concern."

SMALLPOX CASES IN UNIONVILLE

At the same time the department sent a large supply of vaccine points to the town, and then announced that there is a sufficient supply on hand to care for any emergency that may arise. The state has 100,000 vaccine points in reserve.

Plainville was the first town today to ask for vaccine points. Three thousand were sent there. Town officials there wished to be on the safe side, and will arrange to vaccinate all comers. The State Health Department announced that Plainville is in good health today and probably will remain that way, but that officials of the town desired to take no chances.

ABOUT TOWN

The hedge growing between the curb and the sidewalk on North Main street from Nelson Place and Oakland street, has been removed. This hedge, which originally extended from Depot Square all the way to Oakland street and was highly decorative, has latterly become overgrown and patchy. It also interfered with the parking of automobiles. Its removal was started on Wednesday by employees of the Park Board. The space occupied by the hedge will be grassed.

Sleeping Beauty!

awakened at the touch of skin-deep cleanliness

The beauty of a truly clean skin is something that no cosmetic can equal; a complexion that is clean deep down in the pores has the fresh glow, the clear, fine texture that is beauty itself.

Cleanliness, say authorities on the skin, depends first of all on frequent washing with hot water and pure soap. A plentiful stream of hot water for night and morning cleansing, for instance, is more than a convenience—it is a necessity for a lovely complexion.

Those extra-time, all-the-time demands for hot water are supplied abundantly, dependably, when there's a

WEISS IS GIVEN LIFE IN BROTHER MURDER

New Britain Beer Poisoner Pleads Guilty to Second Degree Murder.

Samuel Weiss, 32, of New Britain, has been sentenced to life in prison for the murder of his brother, John Weiss, who formerly lived in Manchester. Weiss was indicted by the grand jury on a charge of first degree murder but at the recommendation of States Attorney Hugh M. Alcorn, this was changed to second degree and the defendant pleaded guilty.

The murder was the result of a love tryst involving Samuel Weiss and his brother's wife, Mrs. John (Katie Stein) Weiss, formerly of Manchester. On two or three occasions, the pair had left New Britain together but always matters were patched up. Finally when Mrs. Weiss discovered that her husband's affections were more valuable than her paramour's, she decided to turn over a new leaf. It was then that Samuel decided to get rid of his brother.

Taking a quantity of cyanide of potassium obtained at the Stanley Works plant where he was employed, Weiss put some in bottles of home-made beer in his brother's cellar. John invited John Stehr into his cellar to have a drink the morning of August 26, and both died a few hours later.

New Britain police, although suspicious, failed to confiscate the beer and four days later, John Stehr, brother of Mrs. August Kanehl of West Center street, and a former Manchester resident himself, went into the cellar of the Weiss home. He did not believe that the beer was poisoned and took a drink in attempt to prove his belief, but collapsed within a minute and died on the way to the hospital.

States Attorney Alcorn termed the case purely a sex one and said that Mrs. Weiss and her brother-in-law had lived together as man and wife. He said that it would be difficult to prove that Weiss had not been forced to sign the confession; police allege he made following a lengthy and severe grilling.

Judge Brown was on the bench and he sentenced Weiss to spend the rest of his life in the Wethersfield State Prison when the defendant entered a plea of guilty to second degree murder of his brother. Mrs. Weiss, who had been held as a material witness, was released by police. Weiss listened to his fate without any visible emotion and was hustled away to prison immediately afterward.

WEISS IS GIVEN LIFE IN BROTHER MURDER

New Britain Beer Poisoner Pleads Guilty to Second Degree Murder.

Samuel Weiss, 32, of New Britain, has been sentenced to life in prison for the murder of his brother, John Weiss, who formerly lived in Manchester. Weiss was indicted by the grand jury on a charge of first degree murder but at the recommendation of States Attorney Hugh M. Alcorn, this was changed to second degree and the defendant pleaded guilty.

The murder was the result of a love tryst involving Samuel Weiss and his brother's wife, Mrs. John (Katie Stein) Weiss, formerly of Manchester. On two or three occasions, the pair had left New Britain together but always matters were patched up. Finally when Mrs. Weiss discovered that her husband's affections were more valuable than her paramour's, she decided to turn over a new leaf. It was then that Samuel decided to get rid of his brother.

Taking a quantity of cyanide of potassium obtained at the Stanley Works plant where he was employed, Weiss put some in bottles of home-made beer in his brother's cellar. John invited John Stehr into his cellar to have a drink the morning of August 26, and both died a few hours later. New Britain police, although suspicious, failed to confiscate the beer and four days later, John Stein, brother of Mrs. August Kanehl of West Center street and a former Manchester resident himself, went into the cellar of the Weiss home. He did not believe that the beer was poisoned and took a drink in attempt to prove his belief, but collapsed within a minute and died on the way to the hospital.

States Attorney Alcorn termed the case purely a sex one and said that Mrs. Weiss and her brother-in-law had lived together as man and wife. He said that it would be difficult to prove that Weiss had not been forced to sign the confession, police alleged he made following a lengthy and severe grilling. Judge Brown was on the bench and he sentenced Weiss to spend the rest of his life in the Wethersfield State Prison when the defendant entered a plea of guilty to second degree murder of his brother, Mrs. Weiss, who had been held as a material witness, was released by police. Weiss listened to his fate without any visible emotion and was hustled away to prison immediately afterward.

"THE SIREN" OPENS AT CIRCLE TOMORROW Film Starring Dorothy Revier Heads Big Double Feature Bill. "The Siren," Columbia's latest picture starring beautiful Dorothy Revier, will unfold an interesting story upon the screen at the Circle Theater, where it opens tomorrow for a two-day engagement. It is a society drama of card tables, ballrooms and a murder trial with gamblers, tricksters and innocent victims enmeshed in a fabric of thrills and spectacular sequences. A storm rages outside a hunting lodge where a beautiful girl seeks shelter for the night with a wealthy clubman; a fistie encounter in a burning building and a race with the hangman's noose are the highlights of the production. Interwoven in this action is a pretty love interest presented from a new angle. Besides Miss Revier, the cast includes Tom Moore, Norman Trevor, Ted Protry and Otto Hoffman. The companion-feature at the Circle for tomorrow and Sunday is "The Grip of the Yukon," a thrilling and red-blooded romance of the frozen northlands, starring Francis X. Bushman and June Marlowe. The current chapter of "The Haunted Island" and "Ko-Ko novelty reel" will also be shown. Tomorrow's performance is continuous from 2:15 until 10:30.

LOCAL MARKETS REPORT RECORD THANKSGIVING Most of Them Had Sold Out Completely Wednesday Night—Chicken in Big Demand. The Markets of Manchester this year enjoyed the best Thanksgiving trade in some time. There was a decided increase in the demand for native turkeys with a decided drop in the calls for western birds. It was also noticed that the chicken has deteriorated the turkey as the main item on the Thanksgiving menu. Ducks and geese were items in demand than ever before. The markets in a great many cases underestimated the demand so that by Wednesday noon a great many of the stores were trying by phone to replenish their stocks. On Wednesday evening the majority of the stores had completely sold out. It is estimated that the 54 stores in Manchester that catered to the Thanksgiving trade did close to $8,000 in poultry alone. INCENSANTLY. Green. Can your wife play an instrument? Gableigh (wearily): Yes, she plays a lot on the ear-drum.—Answers.

Fire Place Material To the uninitiated, that sounds very simple. But there's more to building a fireplace than the mere selection of bricks. There are the cleanout doors, the ash dump, the damper, and the basket if you want to burn coal. All those are on hand at the Manchester Lumber Company. Just come in and select everything at once. IN THE LIFEBOATS Because William McFee, who has a marvelous facility with the pen and whose stories of the sea are rapidly becoming recognized as classics, has scoffed at the idea of launching lifeboats containing only women and children, there appears to have been a sudden and violent public reaction from faith in the reputed sea tradition of "women and children first."

Mr. McFee has pointed out the necessity of manning each boat with members of the crew of the vessel to be abandoned and that to turn boatloads of women and children loose in a stormy ocean would be to send them to their deaths inevitably.

We wonder if the Scottish engineer-author is quite as candid in this matter as he knows how to be. Of course the boats containing the women and children should be manned by able bodied seamen. He would go a long way before finding anybody to dispute that. But why does he assume that the "women and children first" idea involves putting them into unmanned boats? Never in our life have we encountered anyone who entertained such an obviously poor notion.

What the landsman does conceive to be sea tradition is, "women and children in every place in every boat not occupied by a competent boatman, and every rower's seat filled by a boatman who is competent, with a competent officer or petty officer in charge, before a sailor or a male passenger is permitted to take up a boat-passenger's room."

If we are not very much mistaken, that has always been the custom of the sea, and is today, even though Mr. McFee rather skillfully, without quite saying so, leads the land-living public to believe otherwise.

For reasons of his own Mr. McFee has been doing some subtle special pleading for the owners of the Vestris as well as for the dead captain. There is, however, one point on which he is undoubtedly fully informed but concerning which he has been saying nothing. It could be wished that, with his high intelligence, his long sea experience and his gift of expression, he would make it clear how many members of the crew of a ship like the Vestris, say two hundred men, ever pulled an oar in their lives, ever had one minute's experience in the handling of an open boat in a seaway, or would be, for the purposes of keeping such a craft afloat, any more use or half as much use as a woman who understood handling a canoe.

If one out of every four members of the Vestris' crew had any more watermanship than a desert rat she must have been an exceptional ship.

One of the things that the investigations has failed to bring out is what a steamship company means by "boat drill." There is no boat drill—none that would make the average ship's steward, stoker, oiler or even seaman of any more use in a small boat, save for the relatively unimportant matter of sheer muscle, than the women and children themselves.

SMALLPOX The presence of smallpox in a Unionville family, several members of which have been employed in a big Hartford insurance company's offices and in contact with a large number of other employees living in half a dozen towns in this vicinity, provides good ground for a scare. That there would be every reason to expect a general epidemic of the disease, if it were not for the intervention of medical science, everybody, even the most confirmed anti-vaccinationist, will probably admit to himself, though the anti-vax will not grant that the virus preventative treatment is the thing that has lessened the ravages of smallpox in the last half century.

On the theory of vaccination there is sharp divergence of opinion. On the fact that since vaccination came into existence smallpox has been robbed of nine-tenths of its terrors and its destructiveness there is no room for disagreement. The split comes on whether vaccination has been the agency for the defeat of the disease or whether it has merely traveled alongside of better general hygienic conditions and a gradual immunization of the race to the malady.

On the latter point a great preponderance of medical opinion supports the belief that vaccination and vaccination alone has rendered smallpox comparatively harmless to a community. The lay population, not considering itself competent to judge of such a technical question, has followed the opinion of the doctors, with the exception of a small minority of anti-vax. Now and then there is a physician—generally an old timer like the Unionville man who has led many of his townspeople in opposition to the inoculation—who also scoffs at the efficiency and wisdom of vaccination. But he is a rarity.

It has always seemed to us that it required a rather exalted opinion of one's own natural gifts and intellect for any person, wholly uneducated in medicine or possessing a mere smattering of second hand information on the subject, to set up his opinion against that of practically the entire medical profession on any question for the understanding of which a highly technical special education is required.

There is one thing that any layman can understand, especially if he has ever had opportunity to observe the ravages of smallpox at first hand, and that is that an epidemic of that disease, particularly in a community where the protection of vaccination has been generally neglected for an entire generation, is a very dreadful thing. Against it the lay community could do very little if unguided by expert advice. Is it not better to accept the advice of the profession to which we turn when our bones are broken or we get pneumonia than that of obstreperous anti-vax who could neither set our bones, cure our pneumonia or tell within a foot of where our spleens are located or where the carotid artery runs?

TOURIST "BUSINESS" The Waterbury Republican, while falling into the spirit of the New England Conference's program for "selling New England"—lamentable and misapplied term—nevertheless feels, we suspect, that Connecticut needs a more thorough presentation of her attractions in order to obtain her share of the New England tourist business. Maybe so; yet there lurks at the rear of our mind a stubborn conviction that there is as much to this tourist business—in the way of gain to the toured sections, we mean—as has been taken for granted.

It is a very serious mistake to assume that if tourists leave ten thousand dollars in a certain town in a certain time that town is ten thousand dollars better off. It is nothing of the kind. It is better off only exactly the amount that represents the proportion of profit in the transactions.

No tourist coming to New England, or going from New England to any other section, spends a nickel for which he gets nothing. If there is a net ten per cent in the tourist business that's as much as there is, in all probability. We seriously doubt if there is even that percentage of profit when the cost of highway maintenance and policing are figured in, as they should be.

And if the value of Connecticut lives lost in accidents in which out-of-state tourists figure be counted, perhaps the added congestion of our highways may pay us, perhaps not.

If it desired to bring in visitors to New England for social reasons, for the cultural effect of meeting many men from many parts, and for the good that we can do these strangers through letting them have a look at the loveliest state in America, bar none, that is a horse of another color altogether. We wish they might all come—all tourists from all states.

But as a business—tut, tut! Just small change compared with our regular lines.

FISH-GAME LICENSES Proposal to increase the fees for Connecticut fishing and hunting licenses from $2.25 to $3.25 each, which apparently received sufficient favor at the conference of officials and representatives of sporting associations in Hartford to make its consideration by the Legislature probable, is likely to meet with strenuous opposition throughout the state. The principle of the license fee is almost universally admitted to be correct and there are very few anglers or hunters who object to such payment. But the size of the fee is another matter. Originally it was a dollar for anglers and a dollar for hunters. It has now advanced till the cost is $2.25 for either license. That would seem to be about as high a figure, as can be charged without bringing the expense to the individual up to an unwarrantable point.

Enthusiastic sportsmen such as make up the more active memberships of the sporting associations may regard a license fee of $3.25 as small matter. But it should be remembered that these people constitute a very small minority of the licensees whose combined contributions go to provide the money for fish and game propagation and conservation. Probably four out of five of the holders of licenses do not wet a line or pull a trigger three times in a season, and there are hundreds who take out licenses with little expectation of needing them except on a couple of holidays.

There is another point. One of the items of expense which the increased license is expected to meet is the state-leasing of trout brooks and their stocking. The experience of last year, in this connection, was far from being calculated to create any particular enthusiasm for great expenditures in this line.

If the voice of the rank and file of license holders does not raise itself in opposition to a higher license fee we miss a guess.

Washington — Democrats in the west appear to be no more disheartened than they would have been had they lost the election by a narrow margin. Their attitude seems very similar to that expressed by Governor Smith in his post-election radio speech, which party leaders in this territory, as elsewhere, enthusiastically endorse.

At the same time, some of the most important western Democratic leaders are willing to concede that there is little in the present situation to inspire hope of a Democratic victory in 1932. These men are frank enough to concede that Hoover is likely to make an able president; that he will satisfy a majority of the people.

They don't all think that, of course. Hoover has a few bitter personal enemies, such as Senator Jim Reed of Missouri, who have such a poor opinion of him as to claim to be confident that he will turn out so bad as to be refused re-election.

But there is a surprising tendency among Democrats, including some of the old leaders of the party, who saw their best days during the Wilson administration, to consider Hoover as an extraordinarily able public servant. They believe that, on the basis of the campaign waged and on the issues as treated by the two candidates, Smith should have been elected. But, privately at least, they are in accord with Smith's plea to the people to support the new president until his performance in office gives the Democratic leaders provocation for a general attack.

The tendency among Democrats to admit publicly that they are a minority party has been growing for several years. Smith's open confession was good for the party's soul; it was also valuable in an educational sense, for Smith told the people just what a minority party was and what it ought to be.

Apparently no responsible Democrat anywhere has echoed the party was on its last legs. They have all leaped quickly to hug the consolation that the party pulled more votes on Nov. 6 than it ever had before.

Some Democrats go so far as to hold that it is stronger after election, despite its electoral losses in the south. Of course the main foundation of the national party organization, the Democratic state and municipal machines which are usually accustomed to electing governors, members of Congress and mayors either regularly or intermittently, goes on unimpaired. And Smith's efforts to make the party a liberal or progressive party have helped for the time being, at least.

He polled the great bulk of the 5,000,000 La Follette voters of 1924, and it is quite conceivable that his party will be able to hold most of this strength in the future.

The attitude of Democrats in Congress during the next four years will be indicative as to whether or not the party wants to measure up to the liberal standards Smith has set for it. If he used to be such a good Democrat that I personally think he will choose his men with the idea of giving us the best government we ever had.

Health and Diet Advice

By DR. FRANK MCCOY

Dr. McCoy will gladly answer personal questions on health and diet, addressed to him, care of The Herald. Enclose stamped, addressed, large envelope for reply.

PHYSIC CAUSES OF DISEASE. The human mind has many powers which we are just beginning to understand. It is intimately connected through the brain and nervous system to every part of the human body. We know that the mind can have a powerful stimulating effect toward either health or disease. When the mind is properly used and controlled, health may be maintained under many adverse conditions, but when the mind is torn by conflicting destructive emotions, it kills the very cells it is supposed to guard over and control. Some of our thinking is conscious, but by far the greater part is unconscious and can only be felt through our emotions.

When one is happy or enthusiastic, one can digest a meal of rich foods in wrong combinations and suffer few bad effects; if one is depressed, sorrowful or worried, even the best of foods may lie heavily upon the stomach.

In health the normal wastes from tissues are expelled quickly, because they would otherwise be poisonous to the body, but when the nervous system is run down or upset, one lacks the needed vital force to expel them. So you can see that anything which you do to waste your nervous force will cause a retention of these poisons and their gradual accumulation may lead to serious disease.

Distressing mental states cause an almost immediate stoppage of all the processes of digestion and seriously interfere with the working of the bowels, liver and kidneys. Harmful emotions, such as fear, criticism, malice, jealousy, hatred and worry will squander the vitality to such an extent that they are frequently followed by bilious attacks, headaches and other symp-ptoms of auto-intoxication. These unpleasant symptoms are almost immediately stopped if one can fill one's self with the joyful thoughts of friendliness, courage and love.

The powerful, unpleasant emotions always result in a toxic poisoning of the body. In many cases they result in actual disease and there have been few instances where sudden death has ensued from these causes. It is said that the famous surgeon, Vesalius, while dissecting a woman, was so affected by seeing her heart still faintly beating as he was cutting through the tissues of the chest that he immediately dropped dead, and it is also said that Louis of Bourbon dropped dead from horror as he witnessed the exhumation of his father's corpse.

You must realize how potent the mind is as a factor in the production of many chronic disorders. Sometimes this process is so insidious as to be unrecognized except by the closest intention of a skilled diagnostician. In my practice, I have seen a number of cases of paralysis which were induced by a slight injury associated with fear. Although these patients had been to many different doctors and undergone different types of treatment, they were not cured until this fear of factor was recognized, and then the cures took place almost instantly even in some cases of years' standing. This is undoubtedly the reason for some of the so-called miracles that occur during religious revivals. The real source of the disease being psychic, the cure takes place as soon as the afflicted one's mind has reached a high enough pitch of exaltation.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS. A Sallow Look. Question: Mrs. R. E. M. writes: "Kindly explain why my 3 1/2 year old child is getting a sallow look about her. It's not sunburn or tan from being out, but a horrid yellow color. She seems to be in good health though."

Answer: Your child is undoubtedly suffering from some serious disorder for it is uncommon for such a young child to become jaundiced. You must have her carefully examined at once and not depend on any general information which I can give you through this column. Chronic Appendicitis. Question: Mrs. R. E. M. writes: "I have had chronic appendicitis for seven years. And each year it is getting worse. Is there anything I can do in a medicinal way to keep from an operation?" Answer: You are doubtless suffering from colic or inflammation of the colon. Your appendix would also be inflamed but this would not necessarily require an operation. Do everything you can to correct the colitis, and the chronically inflamed appendix will respond as well as the rest of the intestines. The treatment is mainly dietetic, but you must remember that it is necessary to stay on a strict diet for months and even a year or two before the colon will be restored to its normal condition. Hardening of Arteries. Question: Mrs. H. writes: "Please outline treatment for woman 55 apparently in good health, who has hardening of the arteries, little short of breath when climbing stairs and (what seems) a regular heart-beat in the ear, noticeable only when lying down."

Answer: This woman is no doubt suffering from high blood pressure, which is caused by hardening of the arteries. Have her take a fast on about a week on "in water, with the addition of a little lemon, orange or grapefruit juice" if desired, then put her on a diet free from all starches and sugars.

Social Calendar

The next two weeks in this city are to be replete with socials and dances of various characters and one would judge from the efforts to provide high class exceptional programs that the several organizations sponsoring the affairs are determined to attract record crowds before the usual lull in social activities immediately preceding the Christmas holidays. Tomorrow evening there will be dances at the Princess Ballroom and Ellington Town Hall will witness a capacity crowd at the dance given by the Jewish societies of Tolland County of which music will be furnished by Mac's Harmony Boys of this city. Next Wednesday evening, December 5th, the Lucky Six will hold the second of their series of dances at the Princess offering Major Ed Gurley and his Palais Royale Colored Jazz Band with a group of colored dancers and singers in a program said to represent their premier offering of the season. Thursday and Friday evening, the Men's Union of the Union Congregational church will present the "Jade Doll" at the Sykes Auditorium with a cast of more than a hundred under the direction of Miss Lella Churen. Mac's Harmony Boys of ten pieces directed by Max C. Kabrick will provide the musical numbers of the production and the dancing to follow each evening. It is expected that more than 1500 people will attend the two performances. Saturday evening, December 12th, Geo. IN NEW YORK

New York, Nov. 28.—The exhausting pace set by history's greatest "bull market" has forced an army of floor traders on the Stock Exchange to face the grim possibility of nervous and physical collapse.

Scores have undertaken courses in training as rigid and disciplined as that imposed on a prize fighter on the eve of a big battle. Only eye witnesses to the daily battle waged within the low hanging gray stone building in the mid-Wall Street belt can appreciate the intense strain imposed upon men who, day upon day, have been forced to appear in the ring at the stroke of the gong, there to put a month of effort into a day of trading.

Tension has long since reached the breaking point. Only the strongest can survive. And these are surviving by giving themselves an athlete's discipline.

I know a trader, for instance, who happens to live "down the island." Each day when the closing gong has rung he hops a train for home. There he puts himself through a course prescribed by an expert trainer. He has an electric horse a la Mr. Coolidge—and, after a short canter, goes through a course of rubeolous and strenuous physical exercises. Then he jumps into bed and sleeps until the dinner hour. His dinner is served in bed and he again goes to sleep. He denies himself all social contact, and has disappeared even from his golf club course on Sunday afternoons.

In the morning before breakfast he again trains for half an hour and is ready for the "floor" at the opening gong.

Even then his robust face has become heavily lined within a few weeks. His eyes are heavy and circled and his cheeks sag below them.

The "street," in spite of the millions that are being exchanged daily, is definitely worried. The realization has long since crashed upon it that this sort of thing cannot keep up. Yet, to date, no remedy has been found. The men must go on, like football players in a seemingly endless game—willing when the day has ended.

I am told that, within the next two years there will be hundreds of new millionaires in the "who's who" of finance. These will be men who, at this moment, are insignificant clerks. They will be taken in as partners in great firms, and sent into the fray as shock troops to represent the firm. They will be allowed to return the money advanced as they go along. From total obscurity they will doubtless rise to the status of financial kings. Many will probably be tomorrow's prominent financiers.

Then, too, I am told, the rules of the Exchange will be revised. More members will be allowed to trade on the floor. At present membership is limited to 1100. To attain a seat is to pay an exorbitant sum. These are jealously held and oftentimes sold at huge profits.

But if, as planned, the membership is doubled, then the tension will be relaxed somewhat, for trading will be scattered over a greater number of people. Also the floor space will be almost doubled. For it six or seven million shares are to be dealt in, there must be more man power.

Meanwhile, those engaged in the struggle must survive as best they can.

SILENCE. Sometimes the most eloquent thing a man can say is—nothing.

Ruth Dewey Groves

1928 By NEA Service Inc. RUTH DEWEY GROVES AUTHOR OF "WHEN A GIRL LOVES LOVE FOR TWO"

THIS HAS HAPPENED

Fate introduces JERRY RAY to ALESTER CARSTAIRS when he crashes his airplane into the camp she is sharing with her roommate MYRTLE. She likes his pilot, DAN HARVEY, but Alester admires her beauty and shows her attention. Unable to buy a gown for a party he has invited her to, Jerry yields to the temptation to slip one from the store for the evening. The party becomes rowdy and the dress is ruined.

When she confesses, Jerry is discharged from the store. Dan tries to win her, but when he proposes she tells him she does not believe in love but hopes to marry for money. He leaves after trying to warn her against Alester.

Alester makes advances which Jerry repulses. But when he learns that she has lost her gown, he uses his influences to get her a place in a chorus.

Rehearsals are hard, but she is befriended by EVELYN STARE, who is in love with JAELE THANE. Evelyn gives a party at which Jael takes exception to Jerry's presence. A scene ensues and Dan forces an apology from Jael.

Realizing that Alester is jealous, Dan tells Jerry she is bringing him to her feet but to guard her reputation on account of his family.

Alester drives her to Atlantic City for the opening show, but Jerry refuses to attend a midnight party he wants to give. The chorus, angered, he gives the party anyway and Jerry does not see him again until after the opening—and he is with LEONTINE LEBAUDY.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XXXVI

Jerry stopped short in surprise as Leontine rushed up to her and began pouring out enthusiastic congratulations.

"We've been sitting in an upper box," she declared excitedly, "admiring you, but you wouldn't look up at us."

"I wondered where you were," Jerry said to Alester with simple truthfulness.

"Leontine put me in a rear seat," he laughed. "I had one in the first row but when she phoned that she wanted a ticket I was obliged to exchange mine with her in a box. They had to put in extra chairs for us, and I missed most of the show," he added complacently.

"I dashed down to see you open," Leontine said to Jerry, "because you were such a mouse when I first met you and I wanted to see for myself that you really had become a chorus girl."

"That... was nice of you," Jerry said politely. "Will you excuse me now? I must get to the dressing room. There's a telegram for me," she added, lest she appear rude.

"We will wait for you, Alester," she said. "I've got a chair outside to take everyone to the hotel."

"Jerry had started to turn away. Now she hesitated. "I'm not coming," she said quietly.

"Jerry!" Alester strode up to her and caught her by the arm. "Jerry, you will not make me go. I've told everyone I'm giving this party for you."

"I'm sorry," Jerry said, shrugging herself free. "I told you I would not go."

Leontine laughed very softly. "Perhaps you'd better let Miss Ray read her message," she said to Alester. Then, to Jerry: "May come to the dressing-room with you?"

Jerry could think of no excuse for refusing her. She might have tried harder, perhaps, had she not been too excited to foresee the introduction she would be obliged to make between Leontine and Evelyn if she took the former to the dressing-room.

Evelyn, seeing that Alester had brought someone to Jerry, had slipped away. She had tied a towel around her head and was patting cold cream on her face to remove the grease paint when Jerry and Leontine came in.

Jerry introduced them and something in Evelyn's manner told her that her friend had drawn an invisible line about herself. But she had no time to consider what Evelyn would think of Leontine. She wanted her telegram.

Mrs. Dwight gave it to her and Jerry opened it with trembling fingers under Leontine's watchful eyes. The latter saw an expression of infinite relief pass over Jerry's face and give way to one of tenderness. A soft, little smile played tremulously in the corners of the girl's lips as she unfolded the sheet of paper and put it back in the envelope.

Evelyn was regarding her anxiously. Jerry saw. "It's good wishes from a friend," she said. "The young man I brought to your apartment."

She had not thought of Leontine, or that she might carry word of the message from Dan back to Alester.

"Well, since you have no bad news, are you coming to the party?" Leontine asked her.

Jerry felt that she hung upon the answer. Perhaps she was being very unwise, unless she wanted to lose Alester, to treat him so harshly when there was a woman like Leontine Lebaudy on hand to soothe his ruffled feelings, Jerry did herself. But she couldn't reverse her decision after Alester had broken his dinner engagement with her and given a "spite party" that might not have been so bad as it was pictured, but certainly couldn't have been very innocent.

"Tell him I'll go to my hotel and if I change my mind I'll come over," she said to Leontine.

"Jerry, you may be driving Alester away from you," Evelyn warned her when Leontine left, with a smile of triumph that she could not conceal.

"You know what that party will be like," Jerry returned.

"Yes, it will be gay, I know," Evelyn conceded; "but everyone will be there. Even Mr. Weinertz and Mr. Harsell, Mrs. Weinertz, too."

"Alester's first night parties are institutions," she went on. "I'm sorry you refused. That isn't the way to stop Alester from sowing his wild oats. You know what he did last night. He wouldn't have... I suppose you quarreled over this party," she added, half inquiringly.

"Yes," Jerry admitted. "But I'm not trying to keep Alester straight. Evelyn. I'm just trying to stop people from talking about me. I might have changed my mind, though, and gone to his party. Miss Lebaudy had not been with him, but I don't think so," she concluded slowly, remembering the message from Dan.

"Well, I'm sure your decision pleased Miss Lebaudy, at least," Evelyn remarked dryly. "Who is she, Jerry?"

Jerry told her all she knew of Leontine. "I wonder if Alester asked her to come to Atlantic City?" she ended.

"I doubt it," Evelyn declared with a great deal of emphasis. They both began speaking in subdued voices because of the presence of other members of the chorus, but now the room was fast becoming deserted.

Someone had overheard what Jerry said to Leontine, however, and word was passed that she and Alester were "missing fire." But the only really important thing, in the girls' estimation, was to get to his party and find out what the favors were.

A strange silence fell upon Jerry as she drove to her hotel with Evelyn. She had no intention of going to the party. What she had said to Leontine had been intended to keep Alester from urging her further. It wouldn't have done her had Leontine repeated it truthfully.

"She wants to go to her hotel first," she said to Alester. "To dress, I think. You'd better come along—some of your guests will be waiting for you. Besides, I want to know why you didn't show up at my place on Saturday night."

"I was frazzled with a significance that Alester did not care to ignore. They went out to his car and as they drove to his hotel he made up some excuse for having broken his date with her. It did not approach the truth and Leontine knew it, but she was too wise to question him."

Her hold upon him was growing very strong, she called it. But he had not yet reached the point where her fascination failed to appeal to him. At times he forgot Jerry when he thought of Leontine. But she had tricked him and he'd discovered it; since then she had held him only by the fullest exertion of her charm.

Tonight neither of them wanted to quarrel. Alester wasn't ready to break and Leontine was fearful of it.

But Jerry always rode uppermost in his thoughts when she seemed most remote.

When an hour had passed after his party was well under way in the suite of reception rooms he had engaged for the occasion and she had not arrived, he went in search of her.

She was dressed in cloth of gold. Heaven, and her skin was covered with tawny make-up. Her black hair was tight against her shapely head and her big black eyes were pools of emotional depths.

As she leaned against Alester and smiled up at him, he was reminded of a Bengal tigress. Black and gold. "Golden skin and a black soul," he laughed.

She was a woman for a man—not that little white kitten with her prim "don't touch me" attitude.

He put an arm around Leontine's waist and walked with her to the improvised bar. They drank cocktails. There was a room for dancing. Leontine swayed in rhythm with the music.

"Drag me around," she said, putting down her glass.

In the dance she made love to him. Her perfume, her eyes, her laughter—she used them all, and an arm about his neck, caressing fingers stealing up to his ear.

At supper she had made him forget Jerry completely. He gave her Jerry's place beside his own. And he gave her something else that he had meant for Jerry. It was a square case that Leontine opened with eagerness.

A jade bracelet, set with a priceless emerald, lay on the white shining. Leontine emitted a cry of admiration and slipped the jewel upon her arm.

"Here's...," Alester fumbled in his pockets for the jade and emerald ring. He'd have given that to Leontine, too, had it not been in the pocket of the suit he'd worn down from New York.

Leontine admired the bracelet and thought what a fool Jerry was. Jerry, asleep with her head on a pillow beneath which she had tucked a precious piece of paper, was dreaming of a man with dark blue eyes and a very, very stubborn chin. He was going to kiss her.

That part of her dream Jerry remembered very clearly in the morning, but she could not remember why he hadn't.

Evelyn had called to her suddenly and she had dream recollections out of her head the moment with the demand that she look at the paper.

Evelyn had read it quietly up to a certain point. Then, "Oh, Jerry," she cried and jumped out of bed to run over and shake Jerry by the shoulders. "Jerry, you've got a notice! Listen to what the critics have to say about you."

Lettuce soup: Shred two medium size heads of lettuce and put into a large kettle over a low fire with three or four cups of water. Let simmer for an hour and strain off the liquid, mashing as much as desired of the cooked lettuce through the colander. If liquid does not equal three cups, add hot water. Next, add a tablespoonful of chopped parsley and three cups of whole milk. Return to the stove and heat to almost boiling point, seasoning with a little salt. When ready to serve, add a generous sprinkling of whipped cream to each plate. Thin strips of Melba toast may be used if desired.

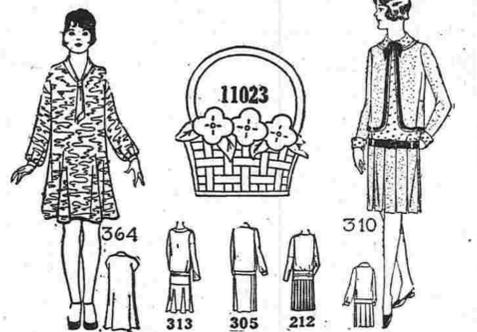

Dwarfed Child. Question: Mrs. H. J. writes: "Our little girl now six years old is very small for her age and backward. Two of the doctors who have examined her say she is a cretin and another says the trouble was diphtheria. Is there any cure for cretinism and how may we be sure that that is the trouble?"

Answer: Cretinism is caused by improper functioning of certain ductless glands, while rickets comes from a lack of organic salts and minerals in the food supply of the child or adult. X-ray examination of the bones of your child will determine whether or not she has rickets but the diagnosis of cretinism is more difficult, and you should seek the services of an experienced diagnostician who through physical examination and various tests will be able to tell you the truth about your child's condition. It is possible to bring about at least a partial cure, but the general treatment usually advised for this trouble would be injurious to your little girl if she has rickets.

Overlain Cysts. Question: Mrs. O. H. W. asks: "Is there any method of curing a cyst of the ovary without an operation? I have been told that electrical treatments would be helpful."

Answer: "Various kinds of cysts have been reduced by the patient using electrical treatments and living on a restricted diet—virtually a fast which allows the blood to absorb these false growths. These treatments should be tried first, and surgery resorted to later if the treatments do not show good results after a short time.

HINTS ON HOW TO KEEP WELL by World Famed Authority

HOW THE BODY REACTS TO TEMPERATURE CHANGES

By DR. MORRIS FISHBELN Editor Journal of the American Medical Association and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine.

Question: How often should one bathe?

Answer: Every day, if possible; three times a week to be in the best of civilization; at least once a week to avoid being a public menace.

Sometimes when one wakes up in the morning and steps out of bed into a room that is somewhat cool, his face immediately has obstructions of the nose, sneezing, the appearance of tears in the eyes and similar symptoms.

Sometimes if a shoulder or an arm only is exposed during sleep, the person will immediately develop these symptoms. On other occasions passing from a room to the outdoor sunlight will bring on an attack.

Dr. S. E. Roberts calls these reactions thermic allergy, a term which means that the person concerned is sensitive to heat changes.

Among the predisposing causes he mentions superheated apartments or homes with insufficient humidity, the chilled air of theaters and cafes, improper clothing, indiscretions of diet, lack of exercise, improper bathing and infections.

Of course, the reactions here described are not the same as the true allergy or sensitization to food substances and plant poisons known as hay-fever or asthma. It is another reaction of the blood to changes in temperature.

It is possible to accustom the body to cold, and the lighter clothing worn by women today is perhaps doing something in this direction.

The control of the temperature of the body lies in a heat regulating center in the brain, which governs the supply of blood to various parts. If one sits all day in an extremely warm room, accord-

YOUR CHILDREN

by Olive Roberts Barton

©1928 by NEA Service, Inc.

"Mother, I'm going to stop at Aunt Eleanor's after school, and stay at dinner. She can bring me home right afterward. I won't be late."

Peggy's mother stared at her daughter in astonishment. There was no request in the words of this ten-year-old, just a flat statement that she was going.

And instantly rebellion rose in her mother's heart.

"You'll do no such thing, young lady. You'll walk right home here and see if I need you for anything." Then thinking, no doubt, that this sounded rather thin, she added, "I may have to go out myself and I'll want you to look after Harry."

There was a reason for her half apologetic supplement; she felt vaguely guilty at refusing Peggy permission to do an entirely reasonable thing.

Do you realize how much we enjoy our authority over our children? Well, we do, whether we realize it or not. To have human beings, however small, to do our bidding, to be at our beck and call, is very sweet—too sweet! Are we always thinking of their good when we boss them? Not by any manner of means. It's a pretty safe guess to say that half the time when we command them or deny them or in some other unpleasant way show our authority, we do it because it suits our own selfish convenience.

And sometimes, as in the case of Peggy's mother, we like to exert that authority just because we like the feeling of it. Sad but true— for no higher reason on earth but that.

If we allow our children to do anything, they must put it first in the form of a request. Vassalage—that's what we demand.

The moment an impulse becomes independent it is put to us squarely, as Peggy did in announcing her intended visit, it stings us.

What's this! Mutiny! This small child whom we have taught to say, "May I do this?" "May I do that?" daring to tell us what she is going to do without first asking our permission! Preposterous!

It was a perfectly practical thing that Peggy suggested.

Had her mother been wise, she would have taken a second breath before she answered, "That will be fine; it's such a lovely day and Aunt Eleanor has been wanting you for so long."

And she should have smiled with inward satisfaction that her daughter had taken one more step toward self-reliance which all of us must learn sooner or later.

Peggy's sort of independence did not mean insubordination. We must not confuse them. The right kind of independence is a grand thing indeed.

One of the first relief problems President Hoover can take up is that of the Stock Exchange clerks these 7,000,000-share days.

The WOMAN'S DAY

by ALLENE SCHAVER

Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, ditcher have it, is about to wed. Yes, that's been said before. But this particular rumor has been in the works for some time. The lady in the case is said to be Maxine Amiasador Morrow's daughter, which laughter? "That's just the point. The dispatch very seriously says that Lie Colonel is "up in the air" as to whether it shall be Elizabeth, who is 25 and described as "a serious minded school teacher," or Anne, aged 22, who is quite a social light.

Now the death which floods the maiden heart of the world at hearing "the flying colonel" is engaged will be as nothing as the death of all of us if we must admit that this hero of the air is so poor a hero of the heart that he can just with the idea of marriage without knowing which of two girls he wants.

I don't believe a word of it. I believe that when Colonel Lindbergh takes a flyer in romance it will be quite as satisfactorily done as the flight which made him beloved by the world.

SWAPPED FAMILIES

Here's a funny marital mix-up. Out in New Auburn, Wis., Mr. and Mrs. Edward Heidelberg had six children, and Mr. and Mrs. William Brown had five, and the Heidelbergers and Browns lived on neighboring farms. Ed and his wife didn't get along so well, and William and his wife didn't either, so what so simple as for the two families to swap? Mrs. Ed. took her six children to Mr. Brown's house, and Mrs. Brown took her five to Ed. Heidelberg's house.

It's too soon to tell just how this primitive solution of primitive trouble will work. But aside from that, it's significant to note that, so far as is known, neither papa has made much outcry about losing his own offspring, and each seems quite content with the substitution of a set of progeny belonging to someone else! Just try that stunt on a mama!

MORE ROMANCE

Speaking of romance, here's word of the engagement of Dolores Costello and John Barrymore. There was a time—and it still exists, to some extent—when stage people would do anything rather than let their public know they were married. Their creed explained that they must represent potential ro-

BANNER WEEK-END

BILL AT THE STATE Two Big Features Tomorrow; Lon Chaney Sunday.

To round out a week of splendid screen entertainment, the management of the State Theater is presenting another of its popular weekend double feature programs for Saturday only. The features are Buster Keaton in "The Camera-man" and Belle Bennett in "The Power of Silence." As usual, the performance will be continuous from 2:15 until 10:30.

"The Camera-man," Buster Keaton's latest starring vehicle for MGM, is one picture that promises plenty of laughs—and then some! The famous frozen-faced funster goes through a series of antics that would make even a horse laugh. He is seen in the role of a newsreel cameraman, who goes from place to place gathering pictures that are supposed to be current happenings of the day. But alas! Poor Buster gets everything inside out, much to the enjoyment of his audiences.

Marceline Day furnishes the beauty and romance in this exciting tale—and when we say "exciting," we mean it!

"The Power of Silence," is a vivid and dramatic portrayal of human love and sacrifice, in which Belle Bennett again gives an excellent characterization of a mother who doubts her own daughter's word of honor. Marian Douglas, John Westwood and Anders Randolph have important roles opposite the star.

Sunday and Monday brings to the State, the one and only Lon Chaney, the screen's greatest character-actor, in "West of Zanzibar," his latest picture.

CONAN DOYLE IS SURE HAIG AND CONRAD RETURN

London.—Field Marshal Earl Haig, England's war-time hero, and Joseph Conrad, the greatest novelist, both live in some mysterious spirit world and their souls are striving to communicate with the friends and relatives who were reared by their deaths.

This is the assertion and the belief of Sir Arthur Conan Doyle, the writer and spiritualist, who declares that he has received "spirit messages" from both men months after they have been laid to rest.

Sir Arthur's intense belief in the subject which now holds such great interest for him, is so deep and profound that what might seem to be idle boasts are vested with credibility when the assertions come first hand from his own lips.

To Finish Novel.

Conrad, Sir Arthur declares, wants Doyle to finish for him a novel on which he was working at the time of his death. Earl Haig is anxious above everything else to communicate with his widow and family.

Here is the way Sir Arthur tells the story:

"I was informed that Joseph Conrad had asked, through a medium, for Doyle," he declared.

"I immediately got into communication with him. He wanted me to do something I could not do. He wanted me to finish a book of his. Of course I could not. And I found that the book was being published. It was 'Suspense'."

"It was only two days after the death of Earl Haig that I had from him a long and intimate communication. I asked him for something evidential that I could transmit to his family to convince them of the authenticity of our conversation. He supplied it, but naturally I cannot divulge its contents.

"I sent the communication verbatim to his family. I have heard nothing since. Perhaps my message went astray, but if not, I am surprised that his family has not communicated with me. Lord Haig was an ardent spiritualist, and often attended seances. I am convinced that he is anxious to get in touch and keep in touch with his relatives of this world.

Through Medium.

"The statement I received from Marshall Haig was through a very well-known medium, the daughter of a famous Shakespearean authority. It was of such a personal nature that I have not made it known to anyone except to his family."

Sir Arthur caused a sensation here shortly after the Field Marshal's death by exhibiting a photograph of the man carriage on which Earl Haig's body was carried to its grave. Directly over the coffin was a blurred, indistinct head, which Sir Arthur declared was indubitably a "spirit picture" of the dead soldier.

If you want to keep your husband happy and contented, give him a room where he may be as untidy as he likes.

This is the advice broadcast to wives of the world by Mrs. Baillie Reynolds, the well-known English novelist.

"What effect does the woman usually have upon the man she marries? Mrs. Reynolds asks. "Does she, in average circumstances, change his way of life for the better?"

"I think it is a pity for any woman to try to alter too much the habits of her husband. All she can do is to try to persuade him to keep his rubbish in certain parts of the house, and let her have the rest of the house to keep in good order."

"I don't think any man is happy, if he is that kind of a man, unless he has a place in which he can be as untidy as he likes."

"There must be give and take, and I think a great deal of married unhappiness comes from the fact that a woman often does try to enforce her own ideas too much in the house."

Mrs. Reynolds suggests three other means of keeping your husband contented. They are:

"Don't try to reform him too much. Help him to be thrifty, and (sometimes) manage his money matters for him. Improve his personal appearance—IF YOU CAN."

Mount Etna, Al Smith, a cyclone in South America, the Vestris—it's about time for the people next door to come over and complain that there's nothing in the papers these days except calamities.

Storrs College Runner Cross Country Winner

Walks Ten Miles of Way Here and Then Cops Race With Little Exertion; Crowe Takes Local Honors.

James M. Gwin, 21-year-old sophomore student at Storrs College, won the five-mile cross-country race yesterday morning by the Recreation Center. Gwin, whose home is in Tyrone, Pa., established a new record for the course when he made the distance in 27 minutes, 44 3-5 seconds.

What makes Gwin's feat all the more deserving of praise, is the fact that he "bummed" his way to Manchester from Storrs on the morning of the race and had to walk between eight and ten miles before he was "picked up" by a passing motorist. Judging from the manner in which Gwin ran, other cross-country runners might profit by emulating this stunt.

The race was even more successful than last year. In 1927, twelve runners started and nine finished. Yesterday eleven took off, and ten made the distance. The only one to fall was Johnny McCluskey, winner of the race last Thanksgiving. McCluskey, however, had sufficient excuse in the fact that his right ankle is not fully recovered from a bad sprain. Many were surprised that he even started. Johnny lasted until he had almost reached Highland Park.

James Crowe of 371 Adams street was first place for Manchester. He came in sixth and thus captured the 1928 town championship. Crowe, who is 26 years old, finished in 30 minutes and 24 seconds. His feat is made all the more commendable by the fact that he entered the race at the last minute and ran with his regular shoes instead of wearing the much lighter ones made for such occasions. Crowe took his lead over Johnson Thompson on the down-grade after leaving Highland Park.

Thompson and Haugh crossed the finish line less than a minute after Crowe had finished and Bobby Dougan, the other local man to finish, was a little over two minutes behind him. An early lead was in evidence in Thompson's victory over Haugh, who finished strong. While the out of town runners carried away all the prizes by taking the first five places, they did not, of course, figure in the town championship placing.

All runners from out of town were unatched. Four are members of the cross country team at Hartford Public High School while the other two hail from Connecticut Aggies. Scott H.P.H.S. took the lead at the start of the race in front of the High School and maintained it until Gwin forged ahead at the top of the steep hill leading to Highland Park. Monstream, also from C.A.C., was running nip and tuck with Gwin and Scully until this point.

Gwin took the lead coming down the grade on Porter street and set a pretty pace which he kept until a few yards from the finish when he proved he was far from all in when sprinting to the finish line. He appeared little the worse for his exertion. Datri of H.P.H.S. finished fourth. He was the shortest runner entered and flashed the best sprint in finishing.

RACE RESULTS

Following are the names of those who took part in the Recreation Center's five-mile cross-country run yesterday and the order in which they finished together with their time:

Local Sport Clatter

All-Burnsides have been pestering the Cubs for a game for a long time and made all kinds of promises when Vendrillo finally booked them. The showing they made is sufficient grounds for the Cubs to get back twice another year before they book them.

Anyone in the Rec last night could tell the basketball season was on without going into the gym. Bill McKee, Manchester's individual cheering section, was having his fun rooting for the losing team again. Bill says quite a bit of satisfaction in cheering for a losing team, especially when the cause is hopeless. When the North & Judd girls were getting whipped last night, Bill kept shouting, "Hey, No. 1, take a pop, will ya?"

A pick-up basketball team from Manchester was defeated 28 to 25 by Dutton last night. Campbell, Boyle, Martelli, Anderson and Quina were the local players. All figured in the scoring but were handicapped by professional rules.

The Herald's selections for an All-Manchester football team apparently are with satisfaction in most every case. The chief comment heard in the ranks of the Cubs and their ardent supporters was that Walter Harrison should have been given a tackle berth. Perhaps, he should. At any rate, Harrison is a mighty good player to have on any football team.

The Cubs' players expect to have between $40 and $50 coming to them as their share of the season's meam.

The North Ends were idle yesterday due to a pair of cancellations. All-Meriden called off its game Wednesday night and the Meriden Acorns who were booked in their place, failed to appear here.

Tom Conran's league resumes play tonight. All four teams will be in action.

"Ding" Farr, who has been carried on the substitute list of Canisius College, took part in the last play of the last game of the season against the U. S. Coast Guard Academy in New London yesterday. "Doc" Keeney and Jimmy Misfretta, both of Manchester, are with the same team. Misfretta has played a half game, but Farr is the only one of the three that has accompanied the team on its long jumps. Coach Luke Urban has written to a friend that he is pretty well pleased with the ability of Farr as a football player and has taken him along to get him fully acquainted with the game and system as Farr is only a freshman and is one of the sub halves on the team, expecting to have him in the game next season.

The Holyoke Falcons will oppose the Rec Five and Rec Girls here a week from tonight, Manager Ben Clune said this morning.

OREGON AGGIES DEFEAT N. Y. U.

Westerners Win 25-13; Meekhan's Tribe Spent Itself Against Carnegie Tech.

By DAVIS J. WALSH

New York, Nov. 30.—Still dazed and suffering from lacerations as painful as ever its pride and vanity had known, the east today continued prattling aimlessly about the miracle that was enacted at the Yankee Stadium with the 55-13 defeat of New York University's championship candidate by Oregon Aggies. There is little happening, of course, for what may happen on any football field but after yesterday's amazing development, human credulity simply had snapped its bonds. Even at this moment, there is said to be a suspicion abroad that John L. Sullivan really was a French Canadian after all.

Twenty-four hours ago, they were hailing New York University as potentially and actually the greatest football team the country over. This was the most reprehensible thing to do, as precedent has proved but hadn't N. Y. U. run up 21 points on Carnegie Tech? And didn't this make N. Y. U. the greatest, since Tech itself previously had been the greatest? For hadn't Tech run up 27 points on Notre Dame, which was of its victory over the Army had become the greatest in its turn? Yes, yes, spoken rapidly and with rising inflection.

What, therefore, did that make Oregon Aggies, which hadn't been able to beat its own field in the far west? You will find the answer today in the dictionary under the word "miraculous": The outfit that travels 3,000 miles to beat a team like N. Y. U. can be no less than this. The Aggies' performance, which made coast football look quite swank on the basis of sectional comparisons and officially laid ghost to all eastern alibis over trans-continental journeyings, was the miracle of as hysterical a season as ever the game has produced.

As miracles go, however, it was outclassed by a circumstance which, trust, will be excused by those whose tolerance is large. The almost eight per cent. wrong club had a very bad day. It was only 18 per cent. wrong and may have to apply for a writ of mandamus. It isn't quite sure just what this is but is confident that only something like a mandamus, its natural remedy sharpened by days of confinement, can avert the tragedy.

Many Upsets

Anyhow, it was a day that had something in common with the liveness and herub. Business of the old and the new. The Aggies, which having admitted that she spawned only one cub, said, "Yes, but it's a lion." Upsets yesterday were climactic in character but very few in number. The Aggies-N. Y. U. affair tops this short list, followed by Southern Methodist's defeat by Texas Christian, Washington's victory over Washington State and Kentucky's scoreless tie with Tennessee.

This latter may rally the intelligentsia around a new banner and it may require great vigilance by the Chamber of Commerce of Atlanta, Ga., to restrain the lads from ruining Georgia Tech. Even now, some of them are muttering in the boards about something that sounds like "greatest." It is suspected that they mean to hang this pall-bearing's necktie on either Tech, which beat Alabama Poly, or on Florida, which again showed the authority of its hand with a total of 60 points on Washington & Lee. Tennessee's failure to beat Kentucky doesn't mean the doom of its championship hopes but neither have I been given to understand that it has them any great good. It means that Tennessee must beat Florida to have a chance for the Southern title.

In the East

In the east, Pennsylvania's 49 to 0 rout of Cornell, N. Y. U.'s defeat of Princeton, and the Aggies' 25 to 13 victory over Carnegie Tech, the matter looking like a laundry ticket. Nebraska, of course, remained in sole charge of its sectional affairs with an 8 to 0 victory over Kansas State, the short score being the result of the Huskers' recent jump east and back. Oklahoma's defeat of Missouri wasn't exactly what the doctor ordered but it didn't disturb Nebraska's position.

Utah in the Rockies, Utah took the title for the second straight year with its impressive victory over the Aggies while the cast fully recognizes Southern California as its best. The Southwest may have a champion but it is holding it out on the rest of the country. Offhand, I'll undergo the famous blindfold test and name Texas because of its 19 to 0 decision yesterday over the Aggies.

And if that turns out to be funny, I can only say that I have heard funnier. For instance, N. Y. U. trying before yesterday's game to arrange a post-season affair with Pennsylvania with the idea of furthering its right to the championship.

Jack Dempsey Declares He'll Enter Ring Again

By DAN THOMAS

Los Angeles, Calif., Nov. 30.—Less than 12 months from now Jack Dempsey will again reign as king of the heavyweights.

The gentleman who educated the fight racket to million dollar gates in himself authority for that statement.

"I am going to fight again next summer and I am going to win," Jack told the writer shortly after his arrival from New York. "No, I haven't the faintest idea who will be my opponent. This is entirely up to Tex Rickard. In all probability it will be the winner of his heavyweight eliminations this winter. Jack Sharkey, Paulino Uzcudun and Knute Hansen seem to have the best chances of coming through the eliminations victorious.

"I am not a bit anxious to fight again for a course money talks and Rickard has made it very much worth my while to return to the ring. My eyes, which gave me considerable trouble some months ago, are all right again and I feel I can do anything I like to do in the ring. However, even though the heavyweight crown is again placed on Jack's head, his staunchest supporters can't consider him as anything more than a synthetic king—unless you figure that he should have been champ ever since that night in Chicago when Champion Gene Tunney was given the new famous "long count." Tunney's retirement from the fight racket led the heavyweight division wide open for any man who can whip the mediocre fighters left in it. Dempsey should be able to take any of them into camp despite his age, long layoff and any other handicaps you may want to consider.

Dempsey daily refused to discuss any of the conferences he has had with Rickard to date. "Tex" told me to keep mum," he says. However, it is reported from quite authentic sources that he will receive $500,000 or more for a fight next summer. And he will earn it, as he can still draw two or three times as much money as any other living fighter, not excepting Tunney.

"I plan to stay at home until after the holidays and then Mrs. Dempsey and I probably will take a trip to Florida," declared the one-time "man-killer." "Yes, I will see Rickard while I am in Florida and we probably will talk business. But I can't say anything about that. All such news will have to come from him.

"For the next few weeks at least I hope to spend considerable time at Tijuana. I still have an interest in Dr. Wilson and then I have another horse, Beowolf, whom I think will make quite a showing this winter. Besides that I like horse racing as a sport. Every time the horses go under the wire I get a new thrill."

Dempsey appeared to be very little overweight upon his arrival here. About three weeks in the open under the watchful eye of faithful Jerry the Greek, who still refers to Jack as "the champ," and every trace of fat will be gone. Although he will do no regular training for the present, Jack plans to do some light road work and he will work out occasionally in his Manhattan Gymnasium here.

CUBS TROUCE ALL-BURNSIDE ELEVEN AT MT. NEBO 18 TO 0

Visitors No Match for Local Champs; St. John and Dietz Make Touchdowns; Ockfords Here Sunday.

All-Burnside proved easy picking for the Cubs yesterday afternoon when the Manchester town champions beat them without much exertion, 18 to 0 at Mt. Nebo. The Ockfords of New London, the only team to even tie the Cubs this season, will appear at Mt. Nebo Sunday in the final contest of the season.

An idea of how thoroughly Burnside was outclassed yesterday may be seen in the fact that the visiting eleven did not register a single first down compared to ten for the Cubs. The All-Burnside management had promised to bring a team here that would give the Cubs real opposition, but the visitors were clearly a patched together organization.

Manchester scored at the very outset of the tussle. Jimmy Quish returned a punt kick-off to his thirty yard line from where the Cubs made five successive first downs. St. John skirting right end for the score from about the ten yard line. His place-kick went wide. Long gains by "Coody" Donnelly, Johnny Groman and Tommy Melkie were instrumental in putting the Cubs in position to score.

The second score followed a forty yard march after Felix Mozzer had blocked a Burnside punt. Donnelly made a first down on the next play and Groman and Melkie and St. John added timely gains. The first quarter ended with the Cubs near the ten yard line from where Connie Dietz scored on the next play, executed a pretty cutback through tackle after starting around and, incidentally, this has always been one of Dietz's best ground-gaining plays. Happen tried for the extra point from placement but missed.

The Cubs took matters easy throughout the remainder of the game. The final score came in the third period when Melkie, after running from midfield almost to the sidelines, hurled a thirty yard forward pass which St. John snared, took a half a dozen steps, and was over the goal line. Merrer tried a dropkick for the extra point but was unsuccessful.

Joe Daddario, the big gun of the Burnside team was unable to break loose for any big gains from scrimmage but ran back a couple of kick-off well. He was the best player on the visiting team, Groman and Donnelly made the biggest gains for the Cubs while the tackling of Mozzer and Skoneski was especially accurate. Harrison and Vescoe also played well.

The Cubs' lineup: Mozzer, lb; Harrison, C; Vendrillo, lt; Merrer, C; Chapdelaine, Welles, lg; Pentore, S; Vendrillo, Vescoe, c; Happen, S; Cozz, rb; Quish, rb; Skoneski, rb; Mantelli, Melkie, lb; Groman, lb; Dietz, lb; Donnelly, Dietz, rb; Melkie, Mantelli, rb.

All-Burnside: Lo Costa, lb; Frink, lt; Callahan, Pietka, lg; Clark, c; Leziera, rg; Sheehan, rt; Driscoll, re; Dinnaio, lb; Correll, rb; Tosi, rb; Daddario, lb.

Score by periods:

WEST POINT PLAYS LELAND STANFORD

Another Attempt to Be Made to Restore the Prestige of the East Saturday.

New York, Nov. 30.—An earnest attempt is to be made at the Yankee stadium here tomorrow to restore the prestige of eastern football, shattered on the same ground yesterday when the Oregon Aggies toppled New York University from the front rank of contenders for the eastern title. The attempt will be made by the gridiron warriors of West Point, who have been running a neck-and-neck race with N. Y. U. for sectional honors.

Sanford will provide the opposition, and lots of it. Football as she is played on the coast was demonstrated to 40,000 fans yesterday. Quarterback Howard Maple of Oregon completed fifteen passes out of twenty and his mates brushed would-be tacklers aside like flies. Twice that number of gridiron enthusiasts are expected to flock to the stadium tomorrow to see "Pop" Warner, coach of the Cardinals, unleash a fresh bag of tricks against the more orthodox style of play used by the Army. All seats were sold long ago.

If both teams are on their good behavior, a close, hard-fought game should result. The Cardinals looked like world beaters in some of their starts this season, but broke out in a rash of fumbles against the University of Southern California and took a 10 to 0 shelling.

The Notre Dame defeat is the only Army's record. The cadets wallowed on sectional champion, Wake Forest, and on Southern Methodist, Harvard and Yale. The chief fear of the Army coaches today was that team may have suffered a natural let-down after its grueling battle with the Cornhuskers, just as beating Carnegie took the steam out of N. Y. U.

ALUMNI TRIMS SCHOOL 7 TO 0

Donnelly Plunges Over Following Two Forwards; High School Almost Scores in Second Half.

Two forward passes, Mantelli to Shannon and Mantelli to Treat coupled with some sharp line thrusts by "Coody" Donnelly, gave the Alumni a 7 to 0 victory over the High school in an exhibition game at the West Side field yesterday morning.

The High school outplayed the Alumni in the second half and almost scored two or three times. Of course, close doesn't count and there are some who will argue that the graduates left the High school gain just to "have a little fun," but when one realizes that the school-boys once missed a touchdown by the narrow margin of a single foot, it must be admitted that that is coming a bit too close to be comfortable.

The first quarter was marked with fumbles, no less than six being made. It was late in this period that the Alumni started the advance which ended with Donnelly crashing over for a touchdown on the first play in the second quarter. Dahlgquist fumbled but recovered the ball and dove across the goal line for the extra point.

Thereafter the Alumni was content to play a defensive game and the High school tossed many a forward pass into the air in desperate effort to score. Once Johnson dropped a long pass that might have been a touchdown.

Another time, the High school made three first downs in a row only to lose the ball on the four-yard line. On still another occasion, Coach Tom Keeler, playing quarter back for the school, intercepted a pass and dashed into a threatening position only to have the Alumni break and take the ball on downs. Several members of the town champion Cubs appeared in the Alumni lineup. The total first downs were six to five in favor of the High school.

Alumni lineup: Farr, lb; Madden, lt; Welles, lg; S. Vendrillo, c; La-Coss, rg; T. Shannon, rt; J. Shannon, re; Mantelli, qb; Treat, lb; Donnelly, rb; Dahlgquist, J. Shannon, Lathrop, fb.

Touchdown: Donnelly.
Rebuses: Lefty St. John, Umpire, Jack Stratton.
Head-linesman: Walter Harrison.

HAWLEY DECLARES GRID RULES O. K.

Dartmouth Mentor Says Changes in Code Are Serious Handicap to Coaches.

Chicago, Nov. 30.—What's the matter with the football rules? That's the question that bobs up each year at the close of the season, and about which, there are decided variations in opinion.

An eastern coach and resident of the west, Jess Hawley of Dartmouth, who has developed both eastern and national championship teams, is one of the first this fall, to express an opinion on the subject.

"Leave the rules alone. They are all right as they are, both from the spectators' angle, that of the players and the coaches. And above all let's keep all the kicking there is in the game. There's little enough now."

It takes a coaching staff several years to work out the possibilities of an offensive scheme and coaches think that even a slight change in rules can upset a team's progress. Very often what appears to be a minor or even harmless change in rules will ruin several years of development.

"By this I do not mean that there should be no changes, because there must be changes. If the game is to improve as it has in the past, I mean that changes should be inaugurated only when we know they will be of value. It's the guesses that hurt."

Coch Hawley's view on gridiron rules was revealed here today in the eye of his return to the Newcombe-Hawley loud speaker factory at St. Charles, Ill. Three months of football and nine months of radio have, for the past six years, kept Jess one of the busiest men in the country. Now he has to work to pay for his fun—of coaching.

The town champion Rec Five opened its basketball season last night with a 41 to 32 victory over the Diamond Match quintet of New Britain. A holiday crowd of about 400 persons watched the contest which was the first of the season in Manchester. It was played at the Rec Gym.

In the preliminary contest, the Rec Girls won their second victory of the season when they overpowered the North & Judd quintet of New Britain to the extent of 46 to 8. The score stood 22 to 2 at half-time. The visitors were no match for the well balanced Manchester team which made a splendid showing. As usual Miriam Welles was the leading scorer, but Charlotte Foster and Etta Clulow also had their eye properly gauged on the basket.

With the exception of Elmo Mantelli, Dixie Farr and Tommy Faulkner, the Rec Five took the floor with the same lineup which faced the Community Club in the town series last season. The local line-up was high scorer for the evening, making eight field goals and three out of three foul tosses for a total of 19 of his team's 41 points. Roy Norris also figured heavily in the scoring. It was a pair of baskets in quick succession by this player which put the game on ice in the last few minutes when Manchester's lead had been whittled to only four points. Holland and Madden were instrumental in the victory.

The visitors gave the Rec Five strong opposition and played good basketball. They took too many long shots but this was only when they were having difficulty piercing the Rec's stubborn defense. However, for these long pops, quite a number of which were successful, the score would not have been as close.

The game was much faster and more interesting than the average opening contest of a season. Both teams played in comparatively mid-season form. Manchester started the scoring when Ev Strange sunk a basket sum under the hoop for the first score of the season. Diamond Match fought hard, but Manchester gradually forged ahead until at half-time the score stood 24 to 16.

The Rec Five's next home game will be played a week from tonight.

Manager Vendrillo Strengthens Team for Big Clash With New London Ockford Eleven.

Manager Peter J. Vendrillo of the Cubs' football team announced this morning that Jerry Fay, coach of the Cloverleaves and former Grove City College and professional football star, and Brunk Mosk, star backfield member of the Cloverleaves, will appear in the Cubs' lineup against the Ockford A. C. of New London Sunday afternoon at Mt. Nebo.

Fay will hold down a tackle assignment, Vendrillo stated, with Mosk being used in the backfield. Several of the Cubs' backfield men are nursing injuries and some of them will be unable to play. Johnny Groman is in the Memorial hospital with a strained knee and Charlie Minicucci is out of the lineup with a bad ankle.

"STEP UP" PLAN BEGUN IN CHURCHES CAMPAIGN

A "Step Up" plan to increase support for the work of the Congregational churches throughout the country will be inaugurated this month. The plan will be introduced in connection with the annual Every Member Canvass which will be taken by most of the churches on Sunday, December 9. All members are asked to "Step Up" to a higher level of giving. Those now giving ten cents a week are asked to increase to fifteen cents, those giving fifty cents to sixty-five, those giving a dollar to a dollar and a quarter and those giving other amounts to make similar increases.

The plan has been launched nationwide by the denomination's Commission on Missions. It was initiated several years ago in the Flatbush church, Brooklyn, and proved so effective that it has been repeated there each year since. It has also been used with great success, it is said, by the Broadway Tabernacle, New York, and by a number of other progressive congregations.

The basic principle of the plan is stated to be that the Christian church can do more with nothing less than a "Step Up" each year in its work for human redemption.

BOSSY COMING HOME

Salem, Mass., Nov. 30.—There was a quiet unrecurrent of excitement at the Essex County jail today for Andrew J. (Bossy) Gillis, mayor of Newburyport, was to leave tomorrow, his two months sentence being ended. Gillis pleaded guilty to a charge of illegally operating a gasoline filling station.

Staid old Newburyport had prepared a rousing welcome for its mayor when he arrives there Saturday night. "Hizzoner" was expected to witness the Boston College-Holy Cross game in Boston before coming to his home.

FACTS ABOUT CONNECTICUT

(205) Power Production Triples in 10 Years. Public utility power plants of Connecticut today produce more than three times the amount of electric power than was produced in the state ten years ago. Last year the total production of electric power was 1,195,099,000 k. w. h. or 1.49% of the total production for the United States.

Connecticut's growth in this industry has been greater than that for the country as a whole. In 1919 the total production of electricity by public utility power plants in the United States was 39,921,000,000 k. w. h. and in 1927 it was 79,724,000,000 k. w. h. This is an increase of 104%. Connecticut's production in 1919 totaled 386,476,502 k. w. h. The increase to 1928 was 209%. The total production for all New England last year was 5,465,463,000 k. w. h.

Of the amount of power generated in the state, 272,832,000 kilowatt hours were derived from water power and 922,267,000 kilowatt hours from fuel energy. In the production of the latter 824,080 short tons of coal were burned and 374 barrels of oil were consumed. The power plants in Connecticut in 1927 used 1.97 per cent of the coal used in the power industry and only .01 per cent of the oil.

There are 24 public utilities companies in Connecticut operating 42 plants with a total generation capacity of 514,141 kilowatts. In the New England district there are 1324 companies operating 330 power plants with total generator capacity of 2,466,705 kilowatts.

The use of water power to generate electricity in this state is steadily increasing. New projects have been recently or are being developed in several sections of the state.

KEITH GIVES PRIZES THANKSGIVING EVE

Local Furniture Store Awards 3 Turkeys and Other Supplies—Winners

One of the high spots of the Thanksgiving holiday in Manchester was the annual turkey drawing held by Keith Furniture Company on Wednesday evening—a repetition of a practice which Keith's have followed for several years past and which has grown in proportions from interest until now it is one of the principal events of the Thanksgiving season.

This year it is estimated that fully a thousand people were in attendance when the coupon box was opened. They came from Hartford, Glastonbury, Rockville and other points further removed. Keith's had been giving out coupons all month to all of their customers either for cash purchases or for payments on account.

When the crowd collected it surely was a representative gathering of the customers of Keith's store—big and more enthusiastic than ever before. G. E. Keith addressed a few words of welcome and of appreciation for the patronage that made such a gathering possible.

The prize winners were as follows: First turkey, Mrs. Joseph Carlson, 414 Hamlin street. Second turkey, Elsie Miller, 42 Thomas street, Rockville. Third turkey, J. J. Behrend, 411 Center street.

HALE'S 'RED AND GREEN' RACE STARTS TOMORROW

Employees Divided Into Teams and Losing Group Will Have to Set Up the Winners.

Hale's annual Christmas contest among the employees starts tomorrow. All of the Hale workers have been divided into two teams, one the Red and the other the Green.

The team running up the highest total in sales between tomorrow and Christmas will be entitled to a banquet on the losers. Mrs. Kellum, of the hosiery department, is captain of the Greens and Miss Rice, employment manager, is captain of the Reds.

That the Greens don't expect to let any grass grow under their feet during the race was indicated today when a letter was sent to The Herald by Mrs. Kellum, their captain. She said "Root for the Green team. Its members will do all they can to make your Christmas shopping easy. Just scan the list of team members posted in Hale's store and you will find that all the 'Old Standbys' are on the Green team."

Mrs. Kellum insists that the Reds will have a real fight on their hands this year, and already several novel schemes have been worked out by her team members. Team members will wear ribbons to show Hale's customers just what teams the employees belong to.

GRAIN CRISIS IN RUSSIAN AGAIN WORRIES SOVIET

Moscow.—The Soviet government is once again confronted by a grave crisis in buying enough grain of the fall harvest to feed industrial centers and non-grain producing regions in the coming year. The bread war with the peasants is continuing despite the recently announced conciliatory measures of the Central Committee of the Communist party which increased prices of grain from 10 to 20 per cent.

Grain purchases for July and August, the first two months of the present harvest, slumped to 50 per cent of the average for these months in the last three years. Government and cooperative purchasing agencies succeeded in buying only 740,000 tons of all kinds of grain in this period, or 40 per cent of the expected amount.

Small Purchases. In a pessimistic article, "Pravda" the official newspaper of the Communist party, said the grain buying campaign so far clearly shows the difficulties confronting the government. It ascribes the alarming small grain purchases to the following causes: 1. The best harvest this year is in Siberia and Northwest Russia east of the Volga river where railroads are scarce and difficulties of transportation greatest.

2. The crop ripened latest in those regions where the crop was the best.

3. The grain buying campaign started without sufficient supplies of manufactured goods on hand in the provinces so that peasants could have something to buy with the money they get for their grain. This situation prevails despite the fact that many months ago the government anticipated such a shortage and began building up a fund of goods for the provinces, even curtailing the sales in cities.

Increased Prices. 4. The increased prices offered for grain, instead of inducing peasants to sell, are having just the opposite effect. Peasants are holding their grain in the expectation that the government will be forced to pay even higher prices.

5. In some regions, especially in South Russia, the crop is almost a total failure because of bad weather conditions. In other regions the acreage sown to grains was considerably reduced because of the conciliatory measures taken by the government last spring in getting grain from the peasants.

The "Pravda" said there is no cause for a panic. The grain purchases in periods of five days from August 1 have steadily increased. In the first five days of August 20,000 tons were bought, and in the sixth five days 200,000 tons. But even this last figure is far below that for the sixth five days of each of the preceding three years.

The "Pravda" admits that the resolutions of the July plenum of the party are not being carried out by provincial authorities. The peasants were given to understand that confiscation of grain would be stopped; yet village Soviets in certain districts even today are forcing peasants to sell at fixed prices far below those which the government promised to pay.

The bonuses of some provinces are guarded, and peasants carting their grain from one province for sale in another are held up at the point of rifles and forced to sell their grain at certain prices. In still other districts peasants are absolutely prevented from giving their grain to state flour mills to have it ground for their own uses. At other mills where grain is accepted and milled the flour is confiscated. Authorities want to starve peasants into submission, but the clever capitalists of the land refuse to be bullied and are hiding their grain in underground caves.

The "Pravda" further deplores that the sharp competition between "Soyuzchiel," the government grain buying corporation, and two cooperative grain buying societies, is demoralizing the buying campaign. Peasants are forced to wait in long queues to sell their grain, and hence prefer to sell to "chasniki," or private grain buyers, because they save time and get better prices.

NEGRI GETS CONTRACT London, Nov. 30.—George Bernard Shaw today agreed to permit Pola Negri, the screen star, to film his play "Cesar and Cleopatra." The agreement was reached at a luncheon party, but the price was not revealed. The picture will be made in Europe early next year.

CHILD BORN WITH TAIL

Baltimore, Md., Nov. 30.—From the anti-evolution belt in Tennessee, Dr. Adolph P. Schultz, anthropologist at Johns Hopkins medical school, is expecting an exhibit that will go far to prove the theory that somewhere in the world's back history men and apes were about the same.

Dr. Schultz said he had been advised that a few weeks ago a child was born in Knoxville with a tail that measured 7 inches. It was amputated by a physician, and Dr. Schultz said he had been promised it for study and research purposes.

PHONES Pinehurst "GOOD THINGS TO EAT" POST-THANKSGIVING And this is another day. Odd, isn't it, how a big feast like the Thanksgiving spread gives you the notion, along about the time you get up from table, that you're not going to care so very much about anything more to eat for at least a week—and then, the very next day, it's just as though there hadn't been any feast at all and you're all set for a square meal at the regular time? But the chances are that neither tomorrow or Sunday will you care about another turkey, probably not even the so-frequent roast or fricassee chicken. And yet you'll want a Sunday dinner just the same as ever. We have many of those particularly nice Legs of Lamb, some of them quite small, that fit into this after-Thanksgiving situation pretty nicely. Also plenty of white, tender Fresh Pork—roasts or chops—the kind that taste just exactly the way fresh pork ought to taste, with all the sweetness that you remember but don't always get. Another post-Thanksgiving day item that ought to appeal today is Pinehurst Corned Beef. The kind of Corned Beef that justifies Mr. Jiggs in dodging Mrs. Jiggs' social functions and sneaking off down to Dinty Moore's. Anyhow, if the after-Thanksgiving Sunday dinner is still a problem, call up Pinehurst on the phone this evening—the phone service goes on till nine o'clock though the store is closed—and talk it over. Deliveries any time tomorrow you may specify, after 8 o'clock in the morning. Remember that 1 o'clock delivery—gets the week-end order to your home before you go out for the afternoon, Madame the Housewife. Phone number is two thousand. MARRIES AMERICA'S MOST ELIGIBLE BACHELOR

STENOGRAPHER WINS MILLIONAIRE EMPLOYER AFTER CHANCE MEETING IN DOMINICA

This is the way the newspapers of New York and Boston head-lined the marriage of Hollis Hart, "America's most eligible bachelor," to his beautiful private secretary, Ashtoreth Ashe, in "Orchid," Eleanor Early's newest serial, which begins Friday, Dec. 7 in The Herald. Hart was first attracted to Miss Ashe by her unusual name, "Ashtoreth." Its meaning, when he learned it, made a deep impression on him, but when the two met by chance in Dominica he changed it to "Orchid," because, he said, her beauty resembled nothing so much as that rare and costly flower. The details of this unusual romance form a thrilling love story. Begin "Orchid" Friday, Dec. 7 in The Herald.

STEAMER SINKING

Seattle, Wash., Nov. 30.—The fate of the British steamer Chief Maquilla, which was reported foundering in mid-Pacific, was unknown early today as the Japanese steamer Yoken Maru, under forced draft, rushed to the stricken vessel's assistance. Latest advices received here said that the engine room of the Chief Maquilla was awash under 13 feet of water and that her starboard boats and load had been washed overboard. The pumps were out of commission, the ship reported. The Chief Maquilla is a 9,500-ton freighter and carries a crew of eight officers and 38 men.

The world grows better. We can remember when bare feet gathered carpet tacks for several days each time the family moved.

FOLKS IN BOSTON

GOOD SAMARITANS

Boston, Nov. 30.—Smiling and happy once more, his losses replaced by good samaritans, Louis E. Henry, 60, of Hartland, Me., today was in Washington, D. C., enroute westward to Fillmore, Calif., to the bedside of his wife and son who were seriously injured in an auto-Stranded in Boston when his meager savings of $150, and a ticket to Washington, D. C., were stolen by a pickpocket at the North Station, Henry had visions of a thankless Thanksgiving.

However, it was only a short time later when Henry, wiping away the tears, planned $230 in the depths of an inside pocket, money provided by persons who had read of his plight. Many more had called offering their assistance, but he refused, promising to repay the amount no had taken at the earliest opportunity.

NORTHCOTT RENEWS WINSLOWS' HOPES

In Confession He States That Winslow Boys "May Turn Up Yet."

Some hope remains that Lewis H. Winslow, age 12, and Nelson H. Winslow, age 10, sons of the sister of Mrs. Emil Carlson of Knox street, Manchester, may still be found, although it is admitted this hope was raised by the confession made last night by Gordon S. Northcott, who is held in connection with the murder of five boys, the Winslow two boys being considered among them. While on his way back from Canada where he was captured Northcott made the confession aboard the special train that is bringing him to Los Angeles. He confessed that he had killed an unidentified Mexican boy and later saw his head off, but expressed the opinion that the Winslow boys might turn up all right.

On the night of May 16 the two Winslow boys left their home in Pomona, Cal. They were known to have left the Sloyd building, also in Pomona, at 8 o'clock and it was supposed they had returned here, while the family became alarmed it was not until June 12, that a general letter telling of their disappearance was sent out by Constable A. B. Chambers of Pomona and giving a description of the boys and offering a reward for their return. On June 23 the sheriff of Los Angeles county sent out a description together with pictures of the boys, but nothing was heard from them.

On September 14 the Los Angeles police questioned Gordon S. Northcott and as a result he and a woman, supposed to be his mother both disappeared.

The finding of the dead body of the Mexican boy and graves and bones of other bodies started a wide search and within a week after their disappearance the Northcotts were captured in Canada, but in two different locations.

They were held in Canada while the necessary papers were secured to have them returned to Los Angeles county. When the papers had been served a special train left Canada yesterday enroute to Los Angeles with Northcott of Los Angeles while he was on this train that he is alleged to have confessed to the murder of the Mexican boy, but said that there was a possibility that the Winslow boys may turn up.

Northcott, when first arrested in Canada made the announcement that he would engage Clarence Darrow as his lawyer. He was first termed the "Ape Man," being described as covered with hair about his body and arms, but pictures that have since appeared of him and the ranch where the murders were supposed to have taken place do not show this to be true. Northcott, late dispatches say, is refusing to give all the details and wishes to have his mother exonerated from any part in the killings.

GROMAN, CUBS' PLAYER, INJURED; IN HOSPITAL

Probably Will Not Play Sunday—Expect Moske to Take His Place.

Johnny Groman, 22, of 55 Florence street, a member of the Cubs' football team, is in the Memorial hospital today with a knee injury suffered in the football game between the Cubs and All-Burnside eleven yesterday afternoon at Mt. Nebo.

Groman, picked as a first string backfield member of the Herald's 1925 All-Manchester eleven, was injured when he was tackled hard after intercepting a forward pass. X-ray pictures were taken this morning and are not yet developed. However, it is believed that he is suffering from a sprain rather than a fracture of the right knee.

Although Groman may not remain in the hospital more than a day or two, it is highly improbable that he will be able to play with the Cubs in their important game with the Ockfords of New London here Sunday afternoon. This is the only team the Cubs have not been able to defeat this season, the teams battling to a scoreless tie earlier in the season.

It was stated by Manager Peter J. Vendrillo that Brunis Moske, star of the Cloverleaves, will probably wear a Cubs' uniform and play in the backfield for the Sunday game.

Last year there were fewer trades disputes causing stoppages of work and fewer working days lost through these disputes than in any of the last 40 years.

PARLEY ON CENTER PARK SHELTER NOT YET YELD

President of Skating Club Delays Conference; Freezing of Pond Imminent.

The expected conference of members of the Park Commission, representatives of the Manchester Skating Club and officials of the Ninth District School Recreation committee concerning the taking over of the care of the proposed shelter building at the skating pond at Center Springs Park has not as yet been held, although Winslow already has reported skating and the character of the season is such that the ponds in town seem likely to freeze over any time.

Proposed changes from the plan of the Park Board for the erection of three-sided shelter would call for an enclosed and heated building with a garment checking room, where coffee, hot dogs and sandwiches would be sold under direction of the Ninth District Recreation building. Arrangements for bonfires outside the shack, for the comfort of skaters, are another proposal.

"Woody" Wickett, president of the Skating Club, has not called the meeting. He has been at the skating rink in Springfield for several days acting as an instructor. Skaters are wondering if anything will be done before the season is half gone.

"The Ladder," a lesson play, has closed up shop in New York with losses of $1,500,000. It certainly did prove to be a lesson for somebody.

THE BOOK OF KNOWLEDGE: "Famous First Ladies"

Sketches by Bessey; Synopsis by Braucher

Whereas President Wilson and the first Mrs. Wilson had slept in the same twin beds the Tafts had used, the president and the second Mrs. Wilson used the large Abraham Lincoln bed which had been used by preceding presidents. President Wilson used to rise early, play golf and then breakfast with Mrs. Wilson in her boudoir.

By NEA, Through Special Permission of the Publishers of The Book of Knowledge, Copyright, 1922-25.

Mrs. Wilson proved to be a wonderful companion for the president. She often sat near him sewing, while he worked far into the night.

Mrs. Wilson had a pleasant voice and often played the piano and sang for the president. Often she played for him for hours.

Washington, Nov. 30.—Colonel Thomas W. Miller, former member of Congress and alien property custodian, who is now serving a sentence in Atlanta penitentiary for conspiracy to defraud the government, has been recommended for parole by the Atlanta parole board.

The board's recommendation has gone to Attorney General Sargent, who has not yet acted on it.

Miller has served about two-thirds of his sentence of 18 months.

During the Taft days the President and Mrs. Taft had gone to different churches. President and Mrs. Wilson also were members of different churches, Mrs. Wilson being Episcopalian while the president attended Presbyterian services, but they adjusted this difference by going to church together and alternating between the two churches.

BROTHERS HURT IN MOTORCYCLE CRASH

George and Charles Luce in Hospital Here After Ditching Accident.

George Luce, aged 20, and his brother, Charles 14, were brought to Manchester Memorial hospital Wednesday night after a motorcycle accident in Vernon, near Lang's corner, both seriously injured. Both are much better today, according to reports from the hospital.

The two boys were riding a motorcycle toward Tolland, where they at one time lived, when rounding a corner the motorcycle ran up a bank throwing them both to the ground. The accident occurred near the home of Axel Anderson (on the Tolland turnpike). They were both unconscious when Mr. Anderson, driving home, found them.

Rockville Hospital Crowded
He notified the Rockville police and also the Rockville City hospital. The hospital authorities sent an ambulance, but also the message that the hospital could not find room for the accident victims. So Dr. Metcalf of Rockville accompanied them to the hospital here.

Both were unconscious when they were entered at the hospital. George was taken to the fractured skull, it was reported. Charles, although badly injured, was not considered in as bad a condition as his brother.

They are sons of Fred Luce of this place and had lived in Tolland the greater part of their lives. The older brother is employed by the State Highway Department, working in Norwalk and had ridden his motorcycle to Manchester. Here he picked up his brother and they were on their way to visit relatives in Tolland when the accident occurred.

TOWN FREE OF BAD AUTO ACCIDENTS ON HOLIDAY

One Car Trapped at Trolley Crossover on Center Street, But Nobody is Hurt.

Nothing in the way of a serious accident developed in Manchester over Thanksgiving, although the traffic was heavy all during the day. At 1 o'clock Thursday morning an automobile driven by William Backus of John street, Hartford, trapped when an automobile going in the opposite direction and driven by Cyril Russell of Portsmouth, N. H., and a west bound trolley car all reached the same point at the same time at the junction of Center and Olcott where the trolley tracks cross from the center of the street to the north side. No great damage was done and nobody was injured. The accident was investigated by Officer Prentice, who decided that Backus was to blame, according to the report, but no arrest was made. On Adams street yesterday afternoon, three dogs, playing in the road, failed to get out of the way of an automobile driven by B. F. Ball. One of the dogs was killed.
