Reports Around State House Say Special Grand Jury Will Be Called to Investi- gate Bribery Charge.

Boston, Jan. 10.—Account books and records of the Boston National League Baseball Club today were examined by the finance commission, probing Sunday baseball bribery charges.

The books and records were brought down from the State House where they had been under scrutiny by the attorney general's office.

Meanwhile Assistant District Attorney F. T. Doyle was in conference with Assistant Attorney General Gerald J. Callahan, who was investigating to see whether the state Corrupt Practices Act was violated in the campaign for Sunday professional sports.

Some Rumors

Suffolk county courthouse observers thought that the visit of Doyle to the State House indicated that special Grand Jury would be called in on the Sunday baseball bribery investigation.

Upon leaving Callahan's office, Doyle said that the subject of their conversation was "confidential."

"Did it have to do with the baseball case," Doyle was asked.

"Yes," said Doyle.

Doyle was closeted with Callahan for one hour and 25 minutes.

FREAK MURDERS PUZZLE SLEUTHS

Boy and Aged Woman Kill- ed for No Apparent Rea- son in New York.

New York, Jan. 10.—Metropolitan detectives today were confronted by two mysterious murders committed last night. No possible motive could be unearthed in either case.

Leo Moore, a 19-year-old office boy, was found shot through the heart on the fifteenth floor of a downtown New York office building. No one had heard a shot nor could the weapon be found. Police were inclined to believe the murderer the work of a maniac.

Mrs. Margaret Fink, 74, was found strangled to death in her apartment in Brooklyn. Her body was discovered by Miss Clara Martin, 22, who shared the apartment with Mrs. Fink. A rag was tied around the aged woman's throat.

No Motive

Moore was shot through the heart while he was washing his hands in the firm's washroom. No trace was left by the murderer and no motive could be suggested. The case presents one of the most curious on record.

No revolver or shell was found and no shot was heard although workmen were within 20 feet of the scene. A small amount of money and a ring in the boy's pockets discounted any robbery motives.

Young Moore was the only support of his aged parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Moore and so far as the police have been able to determine had no enemies.

FALLS TO DEATH

New York, Jan. 10.—Miss Freda Lanz, 28, of Stamford, Conn., a maid, was killed early today when she fell from a second floor window into the back yard. The body was found by Miss Thomas Posner when she was awakened by the cries of her baby, who whose care Miss Lanz was charged. Mrs. Posner went to the baby's room and found the window opened. Looking out she saw the body in the yard below. Police notified relatives of Miss Lanz in Stamford.

Posner told the police that Miss Lanz had quarrelled with her sweetheart six weeks ago.

FLU WARNING

Washington, Jan. 10.—A warning that the present epidemic of influenza may be followed by a more severe type with a higher mortality rate was given the public today at the national influenza conference in a statement by Surgeon General Hugh S. Cummings.

It was ironic that on the day of the conference the surgeon general—the highest government medical officer—was taken ill with influenza and confined to his bed. Cummings caught cold while in Chicago some time ago and last night was forced to bed with a high temperature.

WITCH SLAYER GETS LIFE; PAL NOW ON TRIAL

John Curry Next to Get Hear- ing—Hess Another One of Trio to Get a Separate Trial.

Court House, York, Pa., Jan. 10.—With his mother sitting beside him in the prisoner's dock, crying softly, John Curry, 14, was placed on trial today charged with the murder of Nelson D. Rehmeyer, aged farmer-recluse. Young Curry, Wilbert G. Hess and John Blymyer, a "powwow doctor," bludgeoned Rehmeyer, whom they believed to be a witch, to death on the night of Nov. 27 last.

Blymyer, the first of the trio to be tried, was sentenced last night by a jury which found him guilty to life imprisonment.

Curry and Hess were brought in to court this morning. Immediately Curry's attorney demanded a separate trial for the boy. This was granted automatically.

Selection of the jury was begun at once.

Prisoner Calm

The boyish, apple-cheeked, black-haired Curry smiled jauntily as he gazed around the crowded court room. He paid little attention to his mother, Mrs. Anna Curry McLane, who sat just back of him, a handkerchief to her eyes.

Hess, who is 18, a skinny, gawky blonde youth, seemed frightened as he sat in court, shackled to a deputy sheriff. He had none of the assurance of Curry, or of Blymyer. After Curry's trial got under way, Hess was taken to the York county jail, where Blymyer is confined in a cell awaiting the day when he will begin his life term in the Eastern penitentiary at Philadelphia.

Judge Ray P. Sherwood speeded up selection of the jury by elimin-

GEN. BOOTH ASKED TO QUIT POSITION

High Council of Salvation Army Suggests That Aged Leader Retire.

Sunbury-On-Thames, England, Jan. 10.—The faction in the Salvation Army opposing the continued leadership of General Bramwell Booth won a sweeping victory in the High Council meeting today.

The High Council unanimously adopted a deputation to see the general and suggest that he retire. The fact that the resolution received unanimous consent caused a widespread sensation as it had previously been thought that the British members of the High Council would contest the efforts to remove the general in order to prevent the possibility of encroachment by the American branch of the Army.

The Resolution

The resolution said: "That the general, being as his doctors assure us, capable of considering important questions and giving decisions thereon. It is resolved that the president and vice-president and five members of the High Council be deputed to see the general and suggest that he now retire from office, retaining the title of 'general' and continuing to enjoy the honor and dignities attaching thereto."

News Leaked Out

The High Council had planned to withhold publication of the resolution until the general received an audience, but decided to permit its publication because the general's letter "was communicated to a London newspaper without the knowledge of the High Council."

(General Booth's letter, which was published by the London Daily Mail, announced the appointment of a commission, headed by Commissioner E. J. Higgins, to take over his duties as supreme chief, until he recovers from his present illness.)

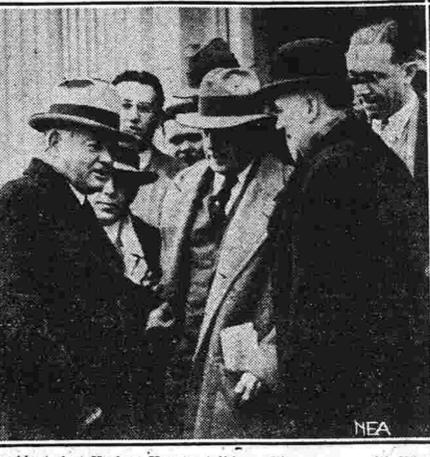

The following official statement was issued:

"The High Council adjourned early to give the appointed seven delegates an opportunity of visiting the general. After the hymn, 'O, God, Our Help in Ages Past,' a letter to the general, couched in affectionate terms was laid upon the table. An impressive, silent ceremony followed, 56 delegates walking in procession to the president's table where they signed what will doubtless prove a historic document."

"A veritable sacrament," was one commissioner's comment.

"The council will reassemble on Saturday."

HOHENZOLLERNS QUIT ALL HOPE OF MONARCHY

Letter to Newspaper Written by Ex-Crown Princess Cecile Reveals That Rela- tives Are Facing Facts.

Berlin, Jan. 10.—Prince Wilhelm, aged 22, eldest son of the ex-crown prince of Germany, and logical pretender to the throne in the Reich and Prussia, seems definitely to have abandoned all hopes of ever restoring the Hohenzollern monarchy.

This, at least, is the interpretation placed today upon a remarkable letter of Crown Princess Cecile contributed to a series printed by the Berliner Lokanzeiger and entitled "What German mothers feel around Christmas time."

The two notable passages of this letter which, according to the opinion of many German and neutral readers, seem to bear out motherly approval of her sons "facing hard facts," run as follows:

"He—Prince Wilhelm—is a student of the law, takes great interest in the history of his fatherland and holds the view that a young man in these days should, with all his mental gifts and power, render service to the community wherever he can make himself useful."

No Time To Worry

The crown princess concluded her letter by saying:

"You see, my life is filled with the duties of a mother and other tasks approaching me from without, so that no time is left for brooding or walling over sad conditions. We all live in a period in which there have to be created values instrumental in aiding our country to march again at the head of European Kultur."

Neutral readers argue that the boy's plain, himself at the disposal of the community unconditionally and without specifying the range of his ambitions, is tantamount to his having given up definitely all hopes for a monarchist revival and eventual restoration of the Hohenzollern dynasty.

The second paragraph is interpreted as meaning that the crown princess and probably the entire family to the former heir to the Kaiser's throne, have once and for all overcome the shock of the revolution and have settled down to "face the facts." That is, they have accepted the fact as irrevocable that Germany has become a republic.

SENATE PLANS PROBE OF BOOZE SITUATION

To Authorize President-Elect Hoover to Name Private Citizens to Make Investigation.

Washington, Jan. 10.—After virtually deciding to make the proposed Hoover presidential inquiry into prohibition enforcement a public investigation, the Senate judiciary committee today postponed until next Monday final action on the joint "wet and dry" plan.

The proposal, agreed upon by Senators Jones (R) of Wash.; Dry leader, and Edge (R) of N. J., Wet leader would authorize President-Elect Hoover to name a commission of nine citizens to conduct the inquiry.

LOS ANGELES "LOST" FOR OVER 12 HOURS

Finally Sighted by Watchers on Ship Near Pensacola, Fla.—Fog Slows Trip.

Pensacola, Fla., Jan. 10.—Watchers aboard the leadership U. S. S. Patoka sighted the Los Angeles at 11:26 a. m., today according to reports relayed here from Port St. Joseph, Fla.

Groping its way through low-hanging clouds and its vision of the earth obscured by dense fog, the dirigible neared its objective 12 hours behind schedule, after battling head winds throughout the night.

BATTLE OVER KELLOGG PACT NEARING END

By Agreement Between Fac- tions Final Vote on Anti- War Treaty Will Be Tak- en Tomorrow.

Washington, Jan. 10.—The end of the battle over unconditional ratification of the Kellogg-Briand peace treaty was in sight in the Senate today with the irreconcilable band fighting vainly for a resolution setting forth the American terms of adherence.

Senator Moses (R) of N. H., author of the resolution, publicly proposed to Senator Borah (R) of Idaho, leader of the treaty forces, that they negotiate an agreement for a final vote on the treaty. Borah consented at once and it was understood both sides were willing to take the vote tomorrow. A final agreement probably will be reached later in the day.

Meet Early

The Senate met an hour earlier than usual in order to provide more time for debate, but the discussion was slow in getting under way. Only five Senators were on the floor when the Senate convened, and it required 15 minutes to get a quorum.

Sensors Bingham (R) of Conn., and Barkley (D) of Key, opened the debate, both urging action by the Senate to protect American interests under the treaty. They warned that the British and French interpretations gave the treaty a meaning and importance far beyond its original limits.

HE TOLD PRESIDENT NEWS THAT MADE WAR

Washington Policeman Who Notified McKinley About Maine, Dies Today.

Washington, Jan. 10.—The man who carried the news to the President that the battleship Maine had been blown up in Havana Harbor was dead here today—John S. Jamison, for 41 years on the police force.

Jamison was stationed at the White House during McKinley's administration. Early on the morning of February 15, he answered the telephone at the White House. Secretary of the Navy Long told him to awaken the President at once and inform him that the Maine had been blown up.

McKinley, according to Jamison, paced the floor repeating, "The Maine blown up. The Maine blown up."

Husband Kills Bandit Hired To Murder Him

Detroit, Mich., Jan. 10.—Mrs. Grace Wood, estranged wife of Ralph A. Wood, president of a construction company bearing his name, was under arrest today in connection with a plot to kill her wealthy husband.

One of the four would-be assassins, said to have been hired to dispose of Wood, was killed last night when police, state troopers and deputy sheriffs, who had been "tipped off," frustrated the plot. Wood's own gun dropped the man who would have killed him. The other three gunmen escaped.

The officers, after notifying Wood to be on the lookout, secreted themselves about Wood's office in Wyandotte, Detroit suburb. When the thugs drove up in an automobile, the officers and Wood fired from ambush.

Deputy Sheriff Thomas Dunningan was seriously wounded in the exchange of shots with the gunmen. The dead man was identified as William Thompson of Wyandotte.

An hour later, Mrs. Wood, head of the Grace Land Co., was placed under arrest for questioning. She was found bedridden at her home.

RUBINOW ELECTED MERCHANTS' HEAD

C. of C. Division in Session at Hotel Sheridan—Dis- cuss Parking.

At the meeting of the Merchants Division of the Chamber of Commerce last evening at the Hotel Sheridan William Rubinow was elected president to succeed F. T. Ellis, Earl Seaman was reelected treasurer and George Rix secretary.

The Senate met an hour earlier than usual in order to provide more time for debate, but the discussion was slow in getting under way. Only five Senators were on the floor when the Senate convened, and it required 15 minutes to get a quorum.

Sensors Bingham (R) of Conn., and Barkley (D) of Key, opened the debate, both urging action by the Senate to protect American interests under the treaty. They warned that the British and French interpretations gave the treaty a meaning and importance far beyond its original limits.

William Rubinow

Reports of the various officers were read and accepted. Discussion of an summer schedule for June, July and August was tabled to be taken up at a later meeting.

The present parking situation on Main street was brought up by Christopher Glenney who expressed himself as being not at all in favor with the present situation.

He believed that some further action must be taken to remove the cars of merchants, clerks and professional men from Main street to give more room for customers.

Frank H. Anderson was of the opinion that the one hour parking rule was still the best solution. He said that it seems very hard to get people to use parking spaces even when provided free. Hale's well lighted space in the rear of the store only had 65 cars at the most at any one time even during the Christmas rush.

It was also the opinion of several members that a "stop and go" light at Main and Park streets would be much more practical than an of deer. Many people complain that due to peculiar lighting conditions motorists cannot see the officer and his sign at night.

It was decided to appoint a committee to confer with the selectmen on this matter and the matter of traffic problems.

WOULD OUST STEWART

New York, Jan. 10.—John D. Rockefeller, Jr., let it be known today that there will be no let-up in his bitter fight to oust Col. Robert W. Stewart as chairman of the board of the Standard Oil Company of Indiana.

In a letter to the company's stockholders today, Mr. Rockefeller asks for proxies for the annual meeting in March to oppose Stewart's re-election as chairman of the board, and declares that he already has received the support of holders of "substantial amount of stock." His fight against Col. Stewart dates from the time that the head of the Indiana company refused to testify before the Congressional committees investigating the oil scandals.

HOOVER MUM ON MEMBERS OF CABINET

President-Elect Listens to a Score of Job Seekers But Makes No Decision—Mel- lon Only One Picked.

Washington, Jan. 10.—Herbert Hoover is putting in union hours listening to the volunteer cabinet-makers. His visitors fairly tread on each other's heels as they pass, endless chain fashion, in and out of his big suite at the Mayflower hotel.

He listens, occasionally asks a question, but for the most part permits his visitors to do the talking. It has been made any commitments at all—save that concerning the retention of Andrew W. Mellon as secretary of the treasury—political Washington does not know of it, despite its ear-to-the-keyhole attitude.

The stock question asked all visitors as they emerge from the president-elect's office, which is buried deep in the center of his 12-room layout, is: "And what did he say?" invariably the reply is: "Well, he appeared interested, and he listened."

Good Listener

As a listener and as one who can keep his own counsel, Mr. Hoover is proving daily that he hasn't been sitting at the front of Mr. Coolidge's Cabinet table for five years for nothing.

The reticence of the president-elect concerning his Cabinet appointments has given rise to many rumors, and it is giving a good deal of left-handed courage to those who are backing various candidates for jobs. They apparently feel that so long as there is reticence there is hope.

There are rumors that Mr. Hoover already has made up his mind concerning his official family, and that he is merely going through the ceremony of listening to this endless stream of recommendations merely out of politeness and a sense of political duty. There are other rumors that he will announce his entire Cabinet before leaving for Florida next week. There are still others that he won't even begin the actual consideration of a slate until he is safely away from the pulling and hauling of capital politicians.

Has Picked Cabinet

The truth probably lies somewhere between, undoubtedly, the president-elect has settled upon some of the men he wants around his cabinet table for the next four years. But he doesn't choose yet to make the information public. There is still plenty of time. It is seven weeks yet before inauguration. And to announce half a cabinet would only increase the pressure upon him for the remaining places.

South Seeks Job

The south, militantly aggressive in its new-found Republicanism, is conducting an energetic drive for Cabinet representation. Kentucky Republicans are working in daily reports, presenting the name of Alvin T. Hirt, vice chairman of the national committee, who had titular charge of the feminine end of the Hoover campaign. Virginia Republicans have advanced the name of C. Rasmus Siemp, former secretary to President Coolidge, and credited with being the "master mind" of the Hoover campaign in the south.

There are few in Washington who seriously believe that Mrs. Hirt stands any chance of a cabinet appointment, despite the great drive in her behalf, or that, in fact, there will be any woman in the Cabinet. Mrs. Hirt may be given an appointment in the Hoover administration, if she wants it, but the betting is that it will not be of cabinet rank.

Siemp's Chances

Siemp would like to be in his Cabinet. His reputation as secretary to President Coolidge after the 1924 campaign was attributed to his unwillingness to continue in the administration without promotion in recognition of his services in 1924.

North Carolina, which also went Republican, has a candidate for whom real and high hopes are held. He is Stuart W. Cramer, a cotton manufacturer of Cramertown, N. C. Independently wealthy, possessed of a distinguished business and administrative record, and an important cog in the machinery of the Hoover victory in the Old North state.

Annapolis Graduate

Cramer is graduate of the Naval Academy, Class of '88, and one can hear in Hoover circles that he already has been tentatively selected as secretary of the navy. Cramer is 51 years old. He is a big mill owner, a former president of the American Cotton Manufacturer's Association, was a member of the Council of National Defense during the war, and came into intimate contact with Mr. Hoover as secretary of commerce on various trade problems affecting the cotton manufacturing industry.

Hoover is known to think highly of him. However, the prob-

HOUDINI MESSAGE IS NOT BELIEVED

Scientists Will Not Give $31- 000 Reward to Arthur Ford.

New York, Jan. 10.—Mediums, spiritualists and explorers of "The Great Unknown" today can still contend for $31,000 in awards for producing spiritualistic manifestations which cannot be reproduced by scientific or natural means.

This was the announcement of the magazine through which the prizes are offered despite the fact that Arthur Ford, minister of the First Spiritualist church, says he received and decoded the secret message of the late Harry Houdini to his wife from the world of spirits. Officials of the magazine, a scientific publication, pointed out that the message in code had been published in a book, "Harry Houdini, his life story" by Harry Kellogg, and that since its publication someone may have been successful in decoding the message.

A Third Person

Joseph Dunninger, head of the physical research committee of the magazine, expressed the opinion that a third person, possibly the nurse in the sickroom in which Houdini was confined, may have overheard the message both in code and decoded when Houdini and his wife discussed the message shortly before the magician's death. Mrs. Houdini is now seriously ill and has at times been delirious and she may have revealed the message herself, Dunninger said. Mrs. Houdini herself is reported to have grown skeptical of the message received by Ford.

Officials of the magazine said Mrs. Houdini claimed to have withdrawn her $10,000 award several weeks ago without notifying the magazine. The magazine, however, will continue its $21,000 offer for true spiritualism. Ford has expressed no intention of claiming any of the prizes.

Magic Machines Peer Into Fairies' Secrets Of Sound In Bell "Lab"

This is the second of a series of four articles on the wonders of modern science that are everyday matters in the laboratories of the Bell Telephone company.

BY ISRAEL KLEIN, Science Editor, NEA Service.

New York.—When a child asks "What makes grandma hear us over the telephone?" and we answer, "as most of us surely have," "Tiny little fairies that take our messages through thin copper wires."

—Little do we realize how close to the actual truth we really are. For there are millions and millions of tiny fairies, which we conveniently call atoms, that shove one another about in their excitement to deliver the messages that we speak or telegraph from one point to another. These countless and invisible atoms, which subjects that intrigue the minds of scientists in such fairylands as the Bell Telephone laboratories in this city.

Uncanny Instruments. It is here that they are counted, segregated and even dissected, numerous and invisible as they are. But to accomplish this almost impossible achievement, this fairyland must be equipped with instruments that are superhuman and uncanny in their operation.

There is, for instance, the microscope laboratory of the Bell Telephone laboratories, Francis F. Lucas, a leading authority on this kind of research, is its director. He has a corps of assistants who call themselves "microscopists," all preparing metals and other substances for examination under powerful microscopes and studying these at various angles and temperatures.

Miss A. K. Marshall, for many years at this fine work, took me into this realm of fairyland—and a most intriguing magic city it proved to be.

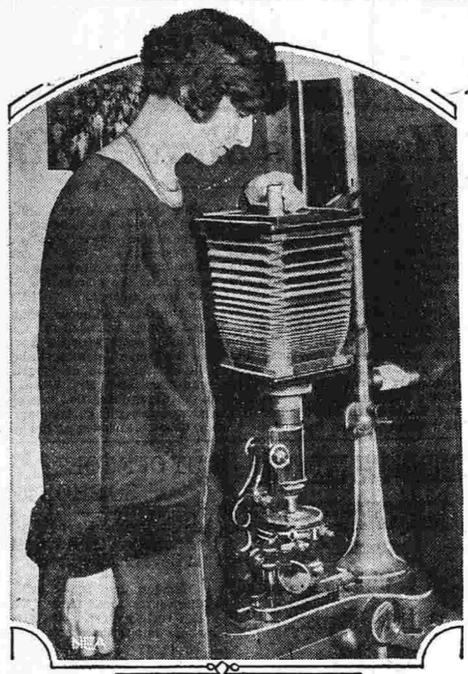

This is the city of the invisible. Here the inhabitants delve into things too small for us to see and bring them up to a size that makes them visible to our eyes. Here also they work with waves, invisible and tiny, that help them greatly in seeing those little fairy atoms about which they want to learn more.

Eyes That See All. To do this, there is a battery of microscopes of all sorts and sizes, backed by cameras that take pictures of these invisible particles of matter. A microscope is an instrument that enlarges objects before us to see directly and bring them into our vision. It is nothing but a series of lenses, aided by a strong spot of light.

By this simple means, however, we can peek into the eyes of a microscope that can see a surface object as high as 6000 times so that we may be able to see it and study its construction.

A shiny surface becomes a rough field under such inspection. That makes study of the southwest cut, so that exact measures possible must be taken to produce an extremely smooth surface before it is put under the microscope.

This is done by grinding down the metal to be studied first roughly, then more and more carefully. Several grades of emery cloth are used down to the finest obtainable. Then the surface is polished with a fine powder called alundum, and then with an even finer powder of magnesium oxide while water keeps thinning it down even further. To make this operation even more refined, the last polishing is done with a velvet cloth aptly called "kitten's ear."

No finer surface can be obtained after this, it is said. So the surface is etched, or eaten into by an acid, so that its crystal structure may become more distinguishable under the microscope.

Examining Demands. Magnified 6000 times, this surface looks like mountainous territory, but that is clearer than the rough-and-tumble surface seen before polishing. That's fine enough for many purposes, but not for the exacting demands of the men in this laboratory.

They want even more details revealed to them. So they call upon the invisible ultra-violet rays that would be injurious to them under prolonged exposure—and these rays bring out what ordinary light can't.

Protected against these rays by suitable "filters," the scientists peer through a strong microscope or Utah and come to a stop before the chamber of commerce building, center of information. One car with a Vermont license plate must have started early. All Set To Go. The chamber is headed by Dr. Roy W. Martin, Colorado river commissioner and ardent worker for the Boulder Dam project. Dr. Martin is a physician by profession and owns the Las Vegas hospital, but he also is interested in the real estate business. So are lots of others.

"Everything will work out now," he tells you enthusiastically. "The signing of the bill means we're all set to go. I believe that Arizona will ratify the seven state dam compact within a month and Utah within three months, that the power contracts will be signed within a short time; that the railroad to haul men and supplies from Las Vegas to the dam site will be under way before spring, and that work in constructing a concrete highway between Las Vegas and Boulder Canyon will be started then also."

PRINCE LOUIS VISITS GRANDFATHER AT DOORN. Berlin.—Prince Louis Ferdinand of Prussia, the ex-Crown Prince's second son, celebrated his coming of age with his grandfather, Wilhelm II, at Loorn, Holland, Louis Ferdinand who passed some time in Spain as a guest of King Alfonso and in Argentina at talks Spanning recently, is seeking a degree in political economy at Berlin University. Later on he is going to South America as a clerk for a big exporters firm.

NARROW ESCAPE. Milton, Mass., Jan. 10.—Skidding onto the railroad tracks here during the snowstorm today, Edmund Wilder, 40, a naval man, escaped death by inches when he leaped from his car just as the locomotive of a Braintree to Boston train wrecked the vehicle. Badly cut and bruised but with no bones fractured, Wilder was removed to the naval hospital at Chelsea.

A two-headed snake was found the other day near Stillwater, Okla. It would have been easier to understand that discovery just after New Year's.

OBITUARY

DEATHS

Hugh Moriarty
Hugh Moriarty, one of the oldest of Manchester's business men, was buried this morning in St. Bridget's Cemetery following funeral services in Hartford.

Mr. Moriarty's first venture in business life of Manchester dates back to 1870 when he opened a store in a frame building on Pleasant street, just west of Pine. He was associated with his mother, Mrs. Catherine Moriarty in a general store business. Later he moved to a one story frame building at Maple and Main street and entered the stove, hardware, plumbing and tinning business.

He later bought property on Birch street and built a store building on that street, almost at the corner of Spruce. Twelve years ago he gave up active business but continued to look after his real estate interests until he became ill. He has not made his home in Manchester for the past five years, having been a resident of Hartford.

"BUD" FISHER AGAIN IN DIVORCE COURTS

Noted Cartoonist is Trying to Prove That He Was Not Wed Legally.

Albany, N. Y., Jan. 10.—The marital troubles of Harry C. ("Bud") Fisher, cartoonist, and his wife, Aedra S. Fisher today were before the Court of Appeals.

Counsel for Fisher argued that the report of the referees which gave Mrs. Fisher a separation should not be confirmed because it was "contrary to law and evidence."

Fisher's lawyer questioned the validity of the marriage, pointing out to the court that the ceremony was performed on Oct. 24, 1915 by Captain Hartley of the Leviathan on the "high seas." The ceremony, the cartoonist's lawyer said, was invalid because Captain Hartley was not vested with the necessary legal authority to perform a marriage.

Fisher also is opposed to paying the $5,000 fee claimed by the referee who heard the separation suit.

LATEST STOCKS

New York, Jan. 10.—The motor stocks were the leaders in a moderate upturn in prices on the big board today. There was not much "push" to the forward move in the Coppers, the Oil, or the Electrical stocks.

Studebaker, the outstanding growth gainer in the big market since Monday, has been widely tipped to go above 100 on the current move and the stock sold today about 87 1/2.

Chrysler Motor, Willys Overland, New General Motors and U. S. Rubber sold at a slightly higher level of prices, but there was too much stock offered to permit these shares to climb more than a point or two. U. S. Rubber sold up 2 points at 47 1/2.

After the first hour the whole market wobbled around unsteadily, with only a few of the favorites and pool "pets" making any progress. Radio, Montgomery Ward and Sears Roebuck were side-tracked in favor of the lower-priced Industrial and Utility shares, Central Alloyd around 49 took the lead in the independent steels and Hudson and Manhattan in the traction.

England Couldn't Keep Her

The little blonde third from the left, or somewhere, in a London show, drew the attention of an American movie director. Nobody knew her; she was "just a fairly clever dancer." But the director decided she was more a "fairly clever" looking and found that her name was Miriam Segar, an American herself, and just two years out of high school in Indianapolis. Miriam was offered a leading role in a British feature film and now she has won a contract to come back to her native land and star in her pictures.

FILM STAR QUIT FOR TRADE JOB; LOSES BY FAKE

Paris.—Gabriel de Gavronne forsook national popularity as a motion picture star to become sales director for a string of investment companies, being engaged for his handsome appearance. Police hated the companies' operations. Now de Gavronne is neither popular star nor sales director.

What is considered the most sensational financial scandal since the Panama Canal fiasco stopped de Gavronne's apparently successful transition from make-believe to finance.

He was the executive managing the sales force that built up the "Gazette du France" financial publication, co-operating with five investment companies into a $20,000,000 business.

His employer, Mme. Marie Hanau, aged 42, and her former husband and active partner Lazare Bloch are in jail while state examiners attempt to ascertain what illegality figured in their operations and what can be returned to thousand of investors in France and Belgium.

De Gavronne admits his sales experience dates from the first of 1923. Unlike bottle-washers and soda clerks who rose to movie stardom he is considered the only actor who took his name out of electric lights to put it behind a business for the purpose of making money.

De Gavronne tells the following story: "Two years ago Mme. Hanau asked me to produce films on religious subjects for her, but the scheme fell through. She came to me again last January with an offer to become sales director for the Gazette.

"I was vice-president of the Movie Actors' Union and engaged in producing several films. My experience in business was negligible but the offer was so tempting and the future so bright that I immediately accepted.

"Everyone considered the Gazette a sound financial rock. My job was to set the stage for more extensive operations. "We had 250 agents in Paris and the provinces. I was to put the branch offices on a more efficient basis and organize new agencies.

"I sought only the best-known, reputable business men in their respective communities. Proof of their honesty is the fact that they are the principal victims of Mme. Hanau and Bloch. For example, our agent at Tours and the one at Grenoble both lost their entire fortunes. Everyone who worked for us followed the company's investment hints.

"What will I do now? Probably try to find a job in the movies."

inating conscientious objectors to capital punishment in a body. Eight jurors were selected within twenty minutes.

Defense Plans.
The defense sought to show that Blymyer, the "powwow doctor," dominated the jury. Carry, through one witness Clayton G. Hess, who admitted driving Blymyer, Curry and his brother, Wilbert Hess, to Farmer Rehmyer's house, the defense brought out that Blymyer "did most of the talking."

"On the way there Blymyer did the talking," said the witness. "He said: 'I have to get this man (Rehmyer's) mind, I'll get him under my control. I'll get a lock of his hair and break the spell he has put over us.'"

Later, the witness added, Blymyer said: "I'm at fault for what happened." Rehmyer had been slain. Another witness, Frank Lehr, a clerk, testified that when Blymyer bought three pieces of rope in Schwartz's store Curry was with him, but had nothing to say. Blymyer bought the rope.

The rope was later used to strangle Rehmyer.

SKATING CONDITIONS AT "SPRINGS" RINK

The snow and rain of last night and today left the surface of the Center Springs skating rink in such condition that it could not be cleared and put in condition for skating today and tonight. There is a question whether it will be ready tomorrow afternoon. This will be the longest lay-off on the skating rink since it was opened this year.

POPULAR VOTE ON WAR

Washington, Jan. 10.—A constitutional amendment requiring a vote of the people before Congress can declare war was proposed today by Rep. Fish (R) of New York, as "a natural and logical step after the ratification of the Kellogg Multilateral pact to renounce war."

The popular referendum under the amendment, would be conducted in each state under laws governing the election of members of Congress.

LAS VEGAS HAS HOPE FOR BOOM IN BOULDER DAM

Las Vegas, Nevada.—Boulder Dam spells the magic words of fame, development and prosperity for the little city of Las Vegas, an oasis in the heart of the Nevada sage brush.

It paves the way to a new romance of the desert which promises to transform a railroad town of 550 inhabitants into a great industrial metropolis of the southwest where less than a quarter of a century ago lay forbidding, death-dealing, trackless wastelands.

The signing of the Boulder Dam bill by President Coolidge was the magic signal for the opening of the long awaited boom and is the cause of general rejoicing.

Great Water Source
Thirty miles southeast of the city, an hour's ride by automobile, is Boulder canyon. Here is where the turbulent waters of the mighty Colorado river will be impounded in the world's highest dam and harnessed, to the end that arid wastes shall be reclaimed, a great water source created, and power furnished to the industries of seven states, California, Nevada, Arizona, Wyoming, Utah, New Mexico and Colorado.

With the enactment of the dam bill days of old and new gold are being rehearsed once more but in a modern way.

"FLU" AND "GRIP"
 There seems to be considerable conflict of testimony as to whether Manchester is or is not undergoing an epidemic of the "flu." The conflict seems to be occasioned by divergence between the definitions of "flu" held by the various authorities—if there be any authority at all on the subject. If there is any such definition recognized by the medical profession as a whole we must confess to complete ignorance of it.

"Flu" is, of course, a mere layman's contraction of the word "influenza." As we understand it "grip" is another layman's term, originating with the first of the great series of influenza epidemics, which started in Russia in 1889 and spread round the world.

Technically, "flu" and "grip" are merely variations in terminology which apply to the same thing—influenza. If they have come to mean different things it is through the most casual mental differentiation of the terms by different persons, without any specific dividing line under general recognition.

One physician says there is "grip but no flu." Another says there is plenty of "flu" about. Obviously they are talking about different things—or different stages or manifestations of the same thing—but each in a language of his own.

For the sake of preventing confusion it would seem as if the medical associations ought to name these differing manifestations of influenza with names that will convey some real ideas to the public. Whether there is "flu" in epidemic form or whether it is all or mostly what some doctors call "grip" and others call a "flu," one thing is sure, there's a great deal of sickness and it's probably all influenza of one degree or another. And the part of wisdom for the public is to recognize the fact that infection is everywhere about and to take mighty good care of its health.

A SPECTACLE
 The enforcement of prohibition is beset by enough disagreeable not to say shameful accompaniments of which it is seemingly impossible to get rid. There would appear to be no good reason why avoidable disgrace should be added to the list.

The United States government exhibits a strange lack of even the most elementary pride when it goes to foreign steamship owners, hat in hand, and begs them to please stop bribing immigration inspectors with liquor.

That and nothing less is the true interpretation of the "conference" of the Department of Labor with representatives of shipping companies, for the admitted purpose of getting the latter to refrain from the usual reform of entertainment or U. S. inspectors who board steamers at Quarantine, New York bay, to examine passports of passengers.

There is only one possible reason for the feeding of booze to these men and that is to get them to perform their duties as promptly and with as little inconvenience as possible instead of making nuisances of themselves, causing needless delays and compelling the steamships to maintain their passengers aboard for extra hours at extra expense.

inspectors who hold up steamship captains for drinks in return for ordinary courtesy it has a monumental nerve to ask the steamship companies to help it out of its pickle. Never was there shabbier example of crybabism.

"WHOOPEE!"
 The editor of the Waterbury Republican does not like the word "whoop," recent if not absolutely newest term of description for a "good time" in the period of the Eighteenth amendment. He considers it a weakening descendant of the phrase to "whoop it up" and particularly does he object to the final syllable, the "ee." He says it suggests a decadent, facetious, soprano whoop, "Let all of us," he concludes, "who have not given way to the juvenile rah-rah spirit of the age refrain from using it."

We are not at all so sure about the effeminity of that double E. If the memory of the Republican's editor by any chance runs back to the old "hand-set" days, by jorging it a bit he perhaps can recall the devastation worked from time to time in every Connecticut composing room by the intruding of one Miles Bartlett, perigrinating typographer, habitat Nutmeg State plus Brooklyn Eagle, with his glad and penetrating "Whee!" that never failed to demoralize an appreciable part of the force and start one of those jag epidemics which, thirty years ago, were the despair of foremen, editors and proprietors alike.

Then, too, any old time bartender would tell the Republican's editor that any time two or three "Whee!" boys, linked together, came bursting in upon an otherwise peaceable pre-Volstead assemblage it was time to reach for a bung-starter and send Mickey the snawdusj man out after O'Brien the cop.

Perhaps a double E added to whoop may spell softness and lavender socks to the editor of the Republican, but to us it brings fast-fading reminiscence of quite other things, including emergency hospitals, patrol wagons and terrible, terrible proofs in the composing room.

TARIFF TROUBLES
 The most cogent argument ever presented against a protective tariff is that no human being, with all the intelligence and knowledge in the world and a thousand years in which to do the job called for by any possibility write a protective tariff law that wouldn't produce many and loud squawks from folks whose toes were stepped on.

There is no better example of the difficulties of tariff-making than is just now afforded by the case of caseln. Caseln is a powder made from skimmed milk. It is extensively used by makers of coated papers. The paper makers are pleading with the Ways and Means Committee to remove the tariff of two and a half cents a pound on caseln and place that commodity on the free list. There isn't enough American caseln for their purposes, they say, and it's so good anyhow. They protest that they are being handicapped in their business by having to pay the duty on what they describe as a raw material.

Fair enough, until you hear from the National Co-operative Milk Dealers association, which appears before the same committee and not only protests against having to compete, sans protection, with European caseln, but demands that the tariff rate be raised from two and a half to eight cents a pound. Ten billion pounds of skimmed milk were wasted last year, say the milk men—enough to produce 300,000,000 pounds of caseln—just because the cost of manufacturing the commodity is so much lower abroad than in this country that the American industry cannot compete. Give us adequate protection, keep out the foreign caseln, they say, and we can build a big industry here.

Which came first, the hen or the egg?

METROPOLISES
 Meriden folks are developing a slight pain over the growth of the "metropolitan district" craze which is afflicting so many communities in this part of the country. "Hartford, New Haven, Waterbury and even New Britain!" ejaculates the Journal of that city. "It doesn't mean a thing but it sounds big to say, as does New Britain, that it has a trading district 'estimated' at 125,000. It's really the thing to do in these days of bunk and blab." The Journal proposes that Meriden shake a leg and organize a "metropolitan district" including South Meriden, Tracy, Bagnall, Crow Hill and McGuire's swamp, as being about all the "house area" with in striking distance, not already pre-empted by New Britain's Hartford or New Haven.

 Our advice is different. Since it's all a game of bluff anyhow, the bigger the bluff the bigger the "metropolis." Let Meriden lay-claim not to what is left over, but to Hartford, New Haven, New Britain and Waterbury with all their components. Go to it, neighbor! Your case is as good as the other fellows'.

MISSING A POINT
 Millions of money are spent annually in the advertising of automobiles. From indications of the advertising appropriations of the manufacturers this selling season appear to be at least as great as ever before, probably greater. And part of the money thus spent is being devoted to publicity for cars in which laminated non-shatterable glass is employed either altogether or for windshields.

Yet so far as we have seen none of the advertising experts who have the spending of these millions of dollars have taken the trouble to obtain even generally approximate figures as to the relative number and extent of injuries sustained in automobile accidents through the agency of broken glass.

The casualties directly attributable to the breaking of glass in motor wrecks must constitute an enormous percentage of the whole number of injuries. Anybody can say that, but it does not carry anywhere near the conviction that would attach to a statement that "69 per cent of all automobile injuries come from shattered glass" or whatever such declaration would be warranted by the facts.

Some automobile concern with a non-shatterable glass feature to boost is overlooking a bet.

IN NEW YORK

New York, Jan. 10.—Manhattan has at last started a drive on what has become known as the "weep racket."
 The "weep racket," like its idiosyncratic relative—the testimonial racket—could flourish year after year only in a metropolitan center with a vast and assorted population to draw from.

Bluntly, it's an organized business of trading upon sympathies and friendships.
 In New York, as the world knows, there are thousands of celebrities and near celebrities in the world of the theater, sports and the arts. One of the major domos of the "weep racket" suddenly remembers that on such-and-such a day falls the birthday of a famous veteran actor or fight promoter or business chieftan.

Suddenly thousands of Manhattanites receive word that "it would be a mighty nice thing to surprise So-and-so" by giving him a fine dinner. It is signed by "the committee." Generally there appears a list of names, mentioning everyone from Mayor Walker to One-eyed Connelly. The notices are written in the half of New York's who's who appears to be on a committee that never existed and never will. It's all staged by the "weep racketeers," who follow up with tickets at anywhere from $10 to $20 per seat at the banquet boards. The racketeers negotiate with a hotel for a price of $4 up per person and make a nice profit of $6 and upward per plate. With a thousand persons often in attendance, the graft is good.

For many a season this sort of thing has gone on, and the "suckers" have done their sucking in private. Stars of Broadway have appeared at the tables of honor and have even donated their talents to make the evening merry. Famous men have agreed to appear as speakers. And, of course, the "racketeers" hid in the background, laughing up their sleeves and collecting their fat profits.

The same stunt has been worked any number of times in the name of charity. During the Christmas season a check-up was made and an event which brought in more than $10,000 "at the gate" actually gave the charity something like $750.

A few months ago, the wise ones who have been watching the operation of the "weep racket," started a little investigation during a dinner given to one of the oldest musical comedy clowns of the stage.
 Every frock-coated dignitary whose name had appeared on the list as "committeemen in charge" was approached, and not one could tell who was behind the banquet. Each had agreed to serve only because he thought the fellow wanted him to. Before the evening was over it was learned that not a single person there could explain how the "testimonial" started.
 Even the toastmaster was in ignorance of the inception. He explained that he had agreed to take the seat of honor out of friendship for the old comedian. And the comedian himself had no idea who had started the ball rolling. He considered it a huge joke and made witty remarks concerning this headless and tailless feast.
 Of course the "wise ones" know—it was the "weep racket" working again, playing on the sympathies of the notoriously sentimental New Yorkers.

Health and Diet Advice
 By DR. FRANK McCAY

NOW IS THE TIME
 Human beings are social creatures. An individual is only a cell in the great organism of society. Each of us is dependent upon the other. This fact has been recognized by intelligent people everywhere since the origin of the first government. It underlies every system of ethics. We cannot obtain a full measure of life's happiness until we realize that we benefit ourselves best when we help others with whom we associate ourselves.

The hermit who withdraws himself from society does not have the opportunity to do good. On the other hand, he does not have the opportunities to do good. Many years ago Confucius stated a negative law of ethics: "You should not do unto others as you would not have others do unto you." This law has been the foundation of every subsequent law for human betterment. This law afterwards even more beautifully expressed in the Golden Rule: "Do unto others as you would have others do unto you." If each of us obeyed this law to its fullest extent, we would need no others.

We must understand that in order to obtain the greatest value from life we cannot waste it on passing whims and appetites. We cannot be successful members of society or enjoy the society of others to the fullest extent unless we play our own part well in the great drama of life. He who is wasteful of his own powers or self-improvement, and is careless of those personal habits which destroy health and character, not only injures himself but injures society as well. It was once humorously stated that the time might come when we would place our criminals in hospitals to be cured and our sick people in jail for neglecting their duties. This will hardly be necessary, because a sick person certainly suffers enough. Nature has devised the punishment for the neglect of natural laws. The presence of sickness all day is an indication of how ignorant the great masses of humanity are concerning the simplest rules of health.

The consequences of destructive actions are not always immediately apparent. It is in our infancy and youth that the seeds of either disease or of success are sown, and in our later years the crop is harvested.
 It is important that one should select the best of friends and companions, for we are like the chameleon, an animal that takes on the color of its surroundings. The examples of others can be our inspiration, and none of us are too obscure or humble for our example, either for good or evil, to be reflected in our companions. It is our responsibility to always live up to the best in ourselves. Those who obey the laws of health and live in a clean, upright manner will induce others to do likewise.

Many people waste their opportunities day after day, hoping that in some far distant future they will be rewarded for the misery they are experiencing now. The important truth is—remember that now is the only time in which we will ever be happy, that is, the actual, ever-present now, with its problems and opportunities. The goal of happiness may indeed lie beyond the grave, but the better part of wisdom is for each one of us to take advantage of our present opportunities for self-improvement and helping our fellows so that we can wholesomely enjoy every moment of the ever-present now.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Lumbago
 Question: B. M. H. asks: "Will you please state the cause and cure of lumbago? I have been troubled with serious attacks off and on for years."
 Answer: Here are some of the causes: Rheumatism of lower spine; subluxation of lumbar vertebrae; uterine congestion; prostatic disorders; occupational strains; after-effects of injury; prolapsus of abdominal organs. The cure, of course, would depend upon which one of these causes was responsible.

Starches and Proteins
 Question: D. D. L. writes: "I notice you say no to mix starches and proteins. When should one eat potatoes? I notice you say not with meats. Would eggs do well with potatoes and bread? Should one eat bread with vegetables?"
 Answer: It is best to use potatoes as the main food at a meal, using some of the non-starchy vegetables in combination. Eggs should not be used with either potatoes or bread, but also with the non-starchy vegetables or with toast and stewed fruit. I often recommend for breakfast. It is best to use real wholewheat bread as the principal part of the meal, using three or four slices in combination also with cooked and non-starchy vegetables.

Loose Joints
 Question: H. J. L. writes: "Kindly tell me way the bones in my arms, also my ankles seem to go right out of their sockets when I walk or when I throw my arms out quickly. My arms and legs seem to get out of joint, which is very painful. It doesn't last very long, only often."
 Answer: Where the looseness of the joints is noticed all over the body it is a sign of mineral starvation. You need more foods containing the bone-building materials. These are found in the non-starchy vegetables and also in the whole grains.

Daily Washington Letter

BE ALLENE SUMNER.
 Washington, Jan. 10.—One of those silly but none the less true things is the alternate joy and alarm which Washington officialdom reads into Herbert Hoover's collar. The Herbert Hoover collar is as well known in Washington as the Calvin Coolidge taciturnity.

It's the same kind of collar which he has worn for nearly a quarter of a century. He discovered it in England. He's ordered them by the gross and carton ever since. It's a collar as is a collar—the sort that utterly obliterates the great open spaces 'twixt the chin and the collar top. Collar and chin meet. The collar acts somewhat in the manner of a check rein on a horse. Keeps the chin up.

Because of the unwavering constancy of that collar, the conservative relatives. Here, say they, is a man who will never yield by one jot nor tittle those established tenets of the party. Custom, tradition, the thing that has always been done, will prevail in the White House for the next four years.

Because of that collar, the progressives and liberals go about with sober mien. It may really mean nothing; they may be over symbolizing, they admit. Still—one style collar for 25 years, and that such a collar as no other man or horse ever wore!

Have you heard "Cheerio" on the radio? That little Pollyannaish geezer who, at the unholy hour of 8:30 a. m., reminds you how good it is to be alive and get up out of a nice warm bed and prance off to work in this great, big bustling happy world? Cheerio, you may be interested in knowing, whether you like him or whether you could slay him, is the creation of Herbert Hoover, next president of the United States.

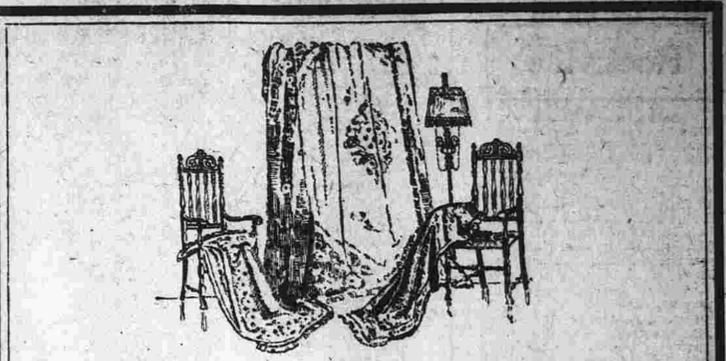

The story goes that when Mr. Hoover had his office in New York a business neighbor used to stick his head inside the door each morning and yell, "Cheerio, old thing." Hoover himself, story has it, had the "cheerio" habit as a souvenir of his "dear ole Lunnnon" life. When he became secretary of commerce with certain official radio duties he suggested that "Cheerio" be on the air. The real identity of Cheerio is not known. Some call him a pest; some a ray of sunshine; at any rate, he means well, and the president-elect thinks we should give this little boy a hand.

"Your Rug Buyer Certainly Has Good Taste"

I heard someone make that remark this week, and come to think of it, there isn't a bad pattern in our stock as I can remember.
 So I asked the boss about that, too. And he said "You know Herb buys the rugs, and he's as much artist as he is buyer—awfully particular, you know. No job lots for him. Each pattern must have his O. K. before it can be shipped. That's why there are no poor patterns in our rug stock. This applies to the rugs on sale, too."

Police Ball
The first annual ball of the Rockville Police department was held Tuesday evening with Town Hall filled to capacity. The hall was very tastefully decorated with bunting and streamers. A concert by Edward J. McEneaney, a recording orchestra of Springfield preceded the dancing, which lasted until 1 a. m. During the evening refreshments were served by the American Legion auxiliary in G. A. R. hall. Police Captain Stephen J. Tobin, chairman of the committee in charge, is to be congratulated.

Modern Lunch Room
One of the most modern and finely equipped dining places in Tolland county will be opened Friday for public inspection and George Bokis, manager of the new Central Lunch, cordially invites the public to look over the newly equipped quarters. Mahogany booths with accommodations for twenty-five or more will afford patrons privacy and comfort. There is a mahogany and marble counter which will accommodate twenty more diners. An effective lighting system has been installed, as well as all new kitchen equipment and fixtures. A special business man's luncheon will be served every day and a specially prepared dinner on Sundays. The restaurant is being conducted by a New York chef, Mr. Bokis as manager. The company has restaurants all over the country and will send an experienced New York chef here. The new Central Lunch will open for business on Saturday.

Tankerossan Installs
Marcus Williams, Deputy Great Sachem of Hartford and staff installed the following officers of Tankerossan Tribe, I. O. R. 3-Piece Jacquard Bed-Davenport Suite—Unequaled Value

Here is an excellently constructed suite. It will outlast any suite selling elsewhere at the same price. A cosy davenport, which at will turns into a comfortable bed—a club chair and wing chair. This is the only suite of its kind. $110

3-Piece Living Room Suite in Jacquard—A Wonder Value

This 3-piece Living Room (like illustration) although ridiculously low in price—can not be compared to other suites selling elsewhere at the same price—for the simple reason—that it was built to sell for $145—and is a good value at that price—at Garber Brothers you save $66. A worthwhile saving—don't you think so? $79

3-Piece Suite in Mohair

Here is a three-piece Living Room Suite in genuine Mohair. Hand-tied resilient coil springs on webbing. Reversible cushions in Mohair. Luxuriously comfortable and durable. Comprises a davenport, club chair and wing chair. An excellent $225 value. $137

4-Piece Bedroom in American Walnut Veneer—$225 Value

Absly constructed of American Walnut veneer in combination with quality gumwood—5-ply construction. Comprises a chiffrobe, dresser, full size vanity and full-size bow-end bed. A wonderful value. It $115 must be seen to be appreciated.

8-Piece Dining Room Suite in Huguenot Walnut Veneer

Another 8-piece walnut veneered suite at a price that is far below what the suite should really sell for. Consists of a buffet, oblong extension table, five side and one arm chair. $85

4-Piece Suite in Antique Walnut Veneer—A Marvelous Value

Just imagine! Only $98 for this suite, which is constructed of walnut veneer with quality gumwood. It is finished in antique walnut. Comprises a dresser, chest of drawers, French vanity and full size bow-end bed. $98

Odd Chiffrobes $24 50

There are only 5 chiffrobes to be had—each one is left over from expensive suites—ordinarily a piece of furniture of this character should sell for at least $60. If you have use for a good chiffrobe—do not overlook this offer.

8-Piece Dining Room Suite American Walnut Veneer $95

Here is an 8-piece Dining Room Suite at a give-away price. Comprises a buffet, oblong extension table, five side chairs and one arm chair. Walnut veneer on gumwood. Richly finished.

Odd Chests $17.50

GUARD AGAINST THE "FLU"

MILD EPIDEMIC HERE SHOULD BE WARNING

Influenza in Some Form Recurs Every Year But Those Suffering With Colds Should Take Every Precaution Against More Serious Type of Illness.

WHY COLDS OR INFLUENZA? By Dr. Frank B. McCoy Herald's Health Expert.

Why is it that most of the colds, influenza, and pneumonia occur during the months of December, January and February? Many people believe that these illnesses occur because of the cooler weather, but scientists are now coming to the belief that the body is less resistant to these diseases when it is deprived of the normal amount of sunshine present during the summer months. Upon careful observation it has been found that those who work out-of-doors at this time of year do not suffer as much from colds as those who work in-doors and coddle themselves with heavy clothing every time they step out-of-doors. Artisans, Alpine climbers, street corner men, newsboys, postmen and farmers are comparatively free from colds except during the periods when they stay in-doors a great deal. During the war the soldiers at the front who were exposed in the trenches, and the sailors on the subchasers who worked in all kinds of weather, had a high record against contracting colds as compared with those who stayed at home and worked in offices.

Its Causes

I have studied cases of the different respiratory diseases in thousands of patients, and it seems to me that there are only three fundamental causes, fatigue, overeating and a lack of sunshine. In many parts of the world only one-half to one-third of the amount of sunshine reaches the earth in winter as in summer, and in the cities the amount reaching the earth is even less than this because of the thick curtain of smoke overlying the industrial districts.

During the cold months people spend very little time out of doors, preferring to stay within heated rooms where the air is none too fresh. You have probably noticed that your first serious cold of winter developed immediately after the heating plant started its operations. Even during the winter months, it is possible to obtain sun-baths by exercising in the open in your bathing suit, or without clothes, if you have sufficient privacy. There are several institutions where tubercular children play and have school in the snow during the winter months. Some of these are located on the snowy, sunlit banks of the Alps in Switzerland and in the Adirondacks of the United States. In these institutions, the children, clad with only loin cloths, play in the sun and they do not catch cold. In fact, there have been many remarkable cures of tuberculosis and scurvy among these children. Of course, when they are inactive and not playing, their bodies are kept warm by protective garments and furs.

Remain Active

Let these facts be an inspiration to all of us. Most of our sickness results from physical and mental inertia, and we should take the proper precaution, not by leading an inactive existence in a stuffy hot room and eating rich foods, but by seeing that the active life and taking an authority's advice. One who understands, and really carries out these suggestions, not to the extreme of being a crank, but in moderation, should be no more troubled by sickness during the winter months than at any other time.

Influenza, also known as la grippe or epidemic catarrh, recurs almost every year at about this time in a mild epidemic form. There have been many epidemics in the past, but none as serious as in 1918. It is believed that some atmospheric change determines the severity of this disease, but the exact cause of its spread is unknown. There are many instances where isolated ships or colonies have contracted influenza without any known means of communication with epidemic areas.

This disease usually starts with a sudden attack of fever, chills, shivering, headache and pains throughout the muscles of the body, followed by an acute throat. The urine becomes highly colored, indicating that the body is excreting a great deal of poison through the kidneys. The bladder becomes irritated and sometimes inflamed.

Influenza may attack any organ of the body, but the three principal forms are: the respiratory, where the lungs and bronchial tubes are affected; the nervous, where the central nervous system is especially affected; and the digestive. People with good vitality, who are young and slightly overweight, seem to be especially susceptible to influenza, although it respects neither age nor sex.

Influenza is always preceded by two harmful conditions, auto-intoxication and enervation. Late hours, mental overwork and destructive habits of thought are the principal causes of the enervation, and the auto-intoxication may be produced by overeating, wrong food combinations or constipation.

BORROW ZOO PYTHON TO MAKE HARVARD MOVIE
Boston.—In order to give a motion picture they are making a more realistic touch, Harvard College authorities borrowed an eight foot python from the Bronx Zoo of New York City.

The python, reputed to be quite dangerous when in good condition, is to be used in a scene that shows Harvard scientists extracting snake venom to make anti-toxin. The only hitch in the plans is the fact that the python is one of the only members of the reptile family that is non-poisonous, but the authorities believe that the python will do very well for screen purposes and at the same time insure the safety of the act.

FLU SITUATION IS "ALARMING"

About 17,000 Deaths to Result from Present Epidemic, Is Belief.

Washington, Jan. 10.—Surgeon General Hugh S. Cumming of the U. S. Public Health department today said that he views the influenza situation as "alarming." He expects that deaths directly due to the "flu" will total nearly 17,000. That this present epidemic does not even compare with that of 1918 is shown by the fact that there were over 500,000 at that time.

Surgeon General Cumming also declared there was the possibility of a second and more severe wave of the epidemic later in the winter. He reassured the public against alarm, however, emphasizing the mildness of type of the disease now prevalent and the apparent absence of complications.

Will Spread Through East
"There is every indication, as I see it," Dr. Cumming said, "that the epidemic will spread through the Atlantic states, as it has gone through the West. This seems to be a typical influenza epidemic, and it is similar to the 1918 outbreak in the mildness of the first cases."

The surgeon general substantiated public health officers' estimate of a million and a quarter new cases in the United States during the week ended December 22. Noting reports of 53 cities to the census bureau, showing 710 deaths, compared with 475 deaths in 62 cities for the previous week, he said the mortality rate was meeting expectations of large advances in deaths as the number of cases increases.

"The death rate is now low in proportion to the number of cases," he added, "and consequently I see no reason for public alarm. However, any epidemic so widespread as this one is serious. There is every justification to think that this year's mortality will be greater than that of 1926."

The estimate of a million and a quarter cases was based on 249,526 cases actually reported today from all but seven states. This figure included estimates for Iowa and Kentucky.

HOLT'S CONFESSION OF A MURDER PLOT
 Member of Gang Tells How Wife Schemed to Kill Husband.
 Detroit, Mich., Jan. 10.—Following are the confessions, as given to police, of Mrs. Grace Wood's alleged plot to kill her husband, Ralph Wood, 33, millionaire real estate operator.
BY CECIL HOLT. (Who Revealed Plot.)
 "I've known the Woods about three months but never knew anything about their domestic troubles. I bought my home from the Wood office, I was hit by something and knocked out."
 (Wood informed police that Holt had been hit by an auto and that a report of the accident, made by the driver of the car which hit Holt is on record with the Wyandotte police.)
 "I revived later in the Wyandotte hospital a there was a big bunch of flowers by my bed. They had been sent to me by Mrs. Wood. While there, although I had never known her very much before, Mrs. Wood visited me three times. Twice I failed to recognize her due to my condition, but once I knew her. Later after I left the hospital December 11, she visited me several times."
 Mrs. Wood's Tale.
 "After I was discharged from the hospital, she told me when visiting my home that my injuries were caused by a blackjack and that her husband Ralph had either hit me himself or had me hit."
 "At that time she hinted that something should be done to take care of Ralph. A week before Christmas I met her in her office one night. She introduced me to Ambrose Haggerty and William Thompson and said, 'This guy is all right much before. Mrs. Wood visited me three times. Twice I failed to recognize her due to my condition, but once I knew her. Later after I left the hospital December 11, she visited me several times.'"
 "This thing preyed on my mind and I told my wife. She told me to go to the police. Instead I went and told Earl, bookkeeper for Wood and he told Wood and Sullivan."
 "Sullivan went to Roy Smith, Riverview police chief, and we framed it so the police would be there when these men came."
 Mrs. Wood's plan was that I was to drive Haggerty and Thompson to Wood's office. I was to go in and speak to him, come out and tell them if any one else was there. Wood was to be black-jacked and thrown into his own car.
 "We were then going to wreck the car and plant some dope on him. Wednesday of this week I met Haggerty and Mrs. Wood and had lunch with them in a restaur-

RISLEY MULCTED IN DEATH OF BECCIO
 Jury Gives Estate Verdict of $2,000 as Result of Auto-Cart Accident.
 A verdict for the estate of the late Frank Beccio, teamster of this town, to recover $2,000 damages from Gerald R. Risley, also of Manchester, formerly an investigator in State's Attorney Hugh M. Alcorn's office, was returned by a Superior Court jury after deliberating more than five hours. Mr. Risley was not insured and his home is under attachment. Edward W. Broder represented the Beccio estate, William S. Hyde defended Mr. Risley. Judge Edwin C. Dickinson presided.
 Mr. Beccio died on May 8, 1928 after Mr. Risley's automobile struck Beccio's dump cart on Center street, near Pine.
 The question was raised whether Mr. Beccio died from being thrown from his wagon because of the startling of his horses.
SENATE TURNS UP MORE FORGERIES
 Washington, Jan. 10.—A veritable Pandora's Box of surprise and sensation was revealed today when the special Senate committee which has been investigating forgery mills, dealing in international documents, made public still further evidence adduced during its secret investigation.
 Among the documents turned up by the committee was one purporting to show that Ivy Leo, press agent for John D. Rockefeller, Jr., had been on the payroll of the Soviet government of Russia. This document, in the form of a memorandum, was found with those which sought to show Senators Borah and Norris had accepted $100,000 from Russia, and which the committee denounced yesterday as forgeries.
 The testimony adduced by the Senatorial committee also disclosed that George Barr Baker, a close friend of President-elect Hoover, at one time was in possession of a set of real documents, taken from the American embassy in Mexico City, along with some forgeries. The committee was told that the State Department ultimately "forced" Baker to give up the documents.
 Baker, who resides in New York, accompanied President-elect Hoover on his recent good will tour of South America, and acted as press censor on the trip.

QUICK ON THE TRIGGER
 Morris Leasner was one of the many Manchester admirers of Tex Rickard. When he learned of Rickard's death he jumped to the conclusion that sometime, somewhere there would be a memorial erected to him. In order to be among the leaders in such a movement he sent two dollars in cash to a relative in New York with instructions to see that it was turned in as a gift to the memorial when a fund should be started.

FIREMEN'S SETBACK
 Hose and Ladder Company No. 2 of the South Manchester Fire Department still leads the setback tournament with a total of 2,558 points. Stevenson and Messer of No. 3 led the scoring at last night's sitting held at No. 4's home with a score of 192. The next sitting will be at No. 1's house.
 Here are the team totals for last night and for all nights to date:
 No. 1.....560 2347
 No. 2.....658 2568
 No. 3.....655 2444
 No. 4.....555 2327
STEVENS ON BOARD.
 Hartford, Conn., Jan. 10.—Norman E. Stevens, former mayor of Hartford, sat with the executive committee of the State Board of Finance and Control today at the invitation of Gov. Trumbull. Mr. Stevens is now one of the members of the full board and as such is supposed to attend a meeting once a month. The board transacted routine business while Mr. Stevens studied the methods used.

THE BOOK OF KNOWLEDGE: "Men of the South Pole"
 Sketches by Bessey; Synopsis by Draucher
 When Lieutenant Ninnis fell to his death in a crevasse, Mawson and Mertz were left in a desperate position, as sledge, food and implements had fallen with him. Six emaciated, foodless dogs remained, a tent but no tent poles, a little pemmican and almonds and raisins. An awful march of 315 miles faced them.

FLAPPER FANNY SAYS:

SENSE and NONSENSE

In a bridge game everybody has his own idea as to who is the dummy.

LETTER GOLF

A COIN BANK doesn't seem as if it would be a very big golf course and, of course, it isn't a whole course, but it contains an interesting par five hole. One solution is on another page:

Letter Golf grid with letters C, O, I, N and B, A, N, K.

THE RULES
1-The idea of Letter Golf is to change one word to another and do it in par, a given number of strokes. Thus to change COW to HEN, in three strokes, COW, HOW, HEW, HEN.

"Does your wife nag you as much as formerly?"
"Yes; but now she calls it psychoanalyzing."

TRUE T'ORM.
In Chicago there was once a fraternity house which was the home of a group of embryo lawyers. One night when a number of them were seated about the open fire, a "Weary Willie" sought entrance and was taken in. Food and warmth were given and he seemed willing to tell of his interesting travels. According to his stories, he had been everywhere and had seen everything. Finally one of the young lawyers put the question: "Is there any place you have not been?"

Get a Muzzle.
Bashful: "Do you mind if I kiss you?"

You Can't Tell Them Anything.
"Are We Telling Our Children Too Much?" inquires a headline in a current magazine. If you want to hear a merry ha-ha, ask the children.

It Doesn't Follow.
If a male goose we call a sander, a male moose must be a mander. If one who falls is a failure. Then one who qualis is a qualure.

Wasted Affection.
(Dedicated to Thomas "Weenie" Stowe.)
The hot dog has no tail or head, Nor has it any feet, But nonetheless, oh, be it said It's mighty good to eat.

A small boy, when asked by his Sunday school teacher what he knew about Joshua, answered: "Joshua was a man who told his son to stand still and he did."

Harry: "Your girl asked me out last night."
Larry: "Were you over at her home?"

Pity the girl who has brains. Man's vanity impels him to fall in love with an inferior.

A Manchester Bachelor: "I'm leaving town. This is Leap Year and I'm going some place where I don't know so many girls."

Parent: "That bathing suit is no costume for church, daughter."
"But the minister asked me to help increase the attendance."

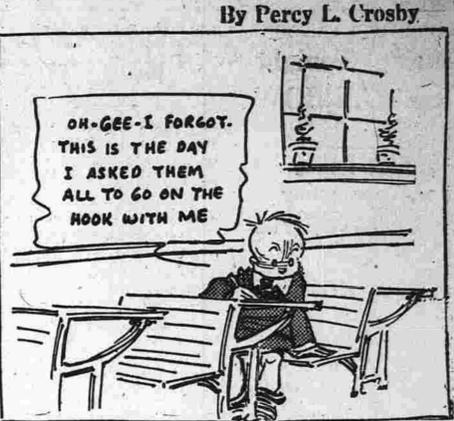

Illinois has the best bandits in the world, bar none.
