

TWO KILLED WHEN FLAMES SWEEP LINER

Five Injured at Jersey City Pier When Fire Starts on President Johnson; Dam- age of $100,000.

Jersey City, N. J., Jan. 31.—Two members of the crew sacrificed their lives in a bold effort to check the spread of flames and five persons were injured when fire swept the hold of the Dollar liner President Johnson, round-the-world vessel, while the ship was tied up at its pier here today. Loss was estimated at $100,000 by Dollar line officials who said the ship's departure for Cuba scheduled for this afternoon probably would be delayed.

First reports to police had declared nine men were suffocated in the fire but a later check up placed the dead at two.

Several passengers who boarded the ship at Boston were among those to escape.

Firemen Injured

Four firemen have been removed to hospitals suffering from smoke inhalation and a fifth fireman was rescued from the icy river when he became dazed and leaped overboard.

The fire is believed to have started in the machinists room when an oil stove was upset. Members of the crew in the room fought for it a few minutes, then called for help.

The ship's bell rang out and members of the crew rushed to their posts. But they were unable to make any impression on the mass of smoldering oil, grease and waste. A call was sent in to the Jersey City fire department.

Difficult Task

Firemen had difficulty in reaching the scene of the fire. They were

TELEPHONE CALL DETHRONED KING

Inside Story of How Bandit Tricked Ruler, Is Now Re- vealed.

Paris, Jan. 31.—Amanullah, overthrown King of Afghanistan, owes his plight to being tricked into sentencing Bacha Sakao, "son of the water carrier," to death during a long distance telephone call which Sakao himself made.

Two French travelers brought back the story from Afghanistan. They described Bacha Sakao as the "Pancho Villa" of Khyber hills, a bandit of the utmost daring and resourcefulness, whose 3,000 men have been exacting taxes and harassing rural districts for a long time.

When Sakao's advancing forces arrived at Tcharikar, 75 miles from the capital, Amanullah dispatched Ras Badaly, a Cabinet minister, to meet the rebel and offer to buy him off with a colonelcy in the royal army.

Becomes Suspicious.

Sakao became suspicious of the King's proposal and called up Amanullah at Kabul.

"This is Ras Badaly speaking," he said. "My escort captured Sakao out on the outskirts of Tcharikar. What shall I do with him?"

"Shoot him on the spot," replied the King.

Bacha Sakao was then reported to have sworn he would annihilate Amanullah and his family or drive them out of Afghanistan.

"And, remember," said one of the travelers, "the telephone is one of the modern improvements which Amanullah introduced into his country."

ASK MILLION APPROPRIATION OF ASSEMBLY

Most of It for State Use; Bill to Enforce Volstead Act Also Introduced Today; Other Business.

Hartford, Conn., Jan. 31.—Bills asking that the State of Connecticut appropriate the sum of $1,061,000 were introduced into the Lower House of the State Legislature today. The requests ranged from $7,000 for the state agricultural college to $10,000 to buy clothes for the Foot Guard in Hartford.

To the Senate went a bill entitled "Enforcing the Volstead Act," or words to that effect, and providing first for the repeal of Section 3, Chapter 291, of the Public Acts of 1921.

Colonel George E. Hall, of New Haven, handed in two bills, each running to more than one hundred printed pages, and containing new codes of laws to govern public utilities and to govern business in general.

Many City Bills

Bills affecting the welfare of many cities were presented, and the city of Norwalk asked the right to issue $450,000 in bonds. Bills affecting the comfort and safety of users of state highways were in the group introduced today. One will order the highway commissioner to see that all poles and fences along the roads are painted white. Another orders flashing signals to be placed at all intersections along state highways. A third bill declares that on any day in which the state highway department is closed, the highway shall be used as an automobile dump unless the site is completely screened from the view of passers-by.

The state is asked to purchase Charter Oak park, historic public playground in Hartford county.

With but one exception, bills to enter new business, persons interested in putting in new laws on the statute books continued to deluge both bodies with their petitions. With speed the bills were acknowledged and referred to the committees for action. Both bodies adjourned early to devote their time to committee work, and will meet tomorrow for the first Friday session of the year.

Representative Mathies of Seymour introduced a bill that if adopted would keep traffic moving on state highways. He asked for a minimum of 35 miles an hour be fixed, to be observed except within the limits of cities and towns.

Representative Goldstein introduced a long bill that provides for pensioning for old age work.

The bill providing a commission

ANOTHER STEAMER HELPLESS AT SEA

Ferndale in Trouble Off Flor- ida—Ocean Going Tug on Way to Rescue.

Boston, Jan. 31.—By radio, on the wings of roaring gales over the Atlantic, today came reports of more distress to transoceanic shipping.

From the Coast Guard cutter Tampa, which with the cutter Mojave was towing the helpless British steamship Silver Maple to Bermuda, came the word that the steamer Ferndale was in trouble in the same vicinity and that an ocean going tug from Key West was enroute to take her in tow.

Battling high winds and heavy seas, the Tampa and Mojave were making only two knots with their heavy tow 350 miles from a haven in Bermuda. The Tampa was acting as the towing vessel while the Mojave was astern serving as rudder.

Although Coast Guardsmen were unable to board the Britisher it was believed she was undamaged except for the loss of her rudder.

Schooner Abandoned.

The Tampa also learned that the schooner Quaco Queen had been abandoned northwest of Bermuda waterlogged and that the crew had been rescued by the steamship Manatee.

Meanwhile, all hope for the British steamship Teesbridge, from Boston, Eng., for Philadelphia, was abandoned today. The American steamship Schenectady answered an SOS sent out on January 21, and a search of the position given by the British vessel off Cape Race, N. F., was made without success. It became known with the docking here of the Schenectady.

The Schenectady brought into port ten seamen belonging to the steamship Caspar recently wrecked by an explosion of the Danish coast.

Fliers Save White Women in Afghan Revolt

British aviators rescued twenty white women—a mong them an American bride—who were trapped in Kabul, Afghanistan, when the fierce Shinwaris revolted against King Amanullah. A group of refugees are pictured here being welcomed upon their safe arrival in Peshawar, India. The American woman was Mrs. Carol Isaacson, who was in Kabul on her honeymoon. She, incidentally, snapped this picture for NEA Service and the London Times.

RADIO COMMUNICATION WITH PLANES FACT NOW

Federal Official Tells Engi- neers What Has Been Ac- complished to Make Fly- ing Safe for Travelers.

New York, Jan. 31.—Radio communication with airplanes on the fly will play an important part in the future development of commercial air travel, Dr. J. H. Dellinger, chief of the radio section of the United States Bureau of Standards, declared in an address today before the American Institute of Electrical Engineers.

In fact, he said, the success of passenger air service is "virtually dependent" upon the use of radio. So, he was not devised to overcome the constantly increasing percentage of aviation accidents resulting from lack of weather.

Radio the Answer

"Radio seems to be the answer to those hazards," said Dr. Dellinger. "And there is reason to believe the number of accidents will become small when the present possibilities of radio are realized in practice."

He told the assembled engineers what is being done to make flying safer, bringing closer the day when the air traveler may count on schedules as regular as railway trains maintain—regardless of weather conditions.

The Fog Menace

"The radio beacon system which is being established on the airways of the United States is destroying the fog menace," said Dr. Dellinger. "When this system is fully established there is every reason to believe that the last great obstacle

TWO BIG CHURCHES AGREE ON MERGER

Methodists and Presbyteri- ans Decide to Unite at Pittsburgh Meeting.

SLEUTHS COMB STATE FOR JACKSON CLUES

Women's Latest Styles To Feature Flowers

New York, Jan. 31.—That mythical standard bearer of feminine styles—will be a veritable walking synthetic flower garden, if she mirrors the costumes worn by the models at the first international artificial flower show.

From noon to midnight—and even further—madame and mademoiselle should adorn her costumes with flowers to match. From From pyjama to nightie, or all around the clock, the flowers that bloom in the spring should blossom artificially. Flowers on hats, shoulders, waists. Flowers even worn as a corset on the knee.

Post War Styles.

"After the war, the mode for women became severe, drab and manish, but the last few seasons an encouraging reversion to softer, more colorful and more feminine clothes is noted," declared the style committee of the international flower trades today.

Flowers since the world began have been a favorite form of feminine adornment. It started with the old Greeks but at that time only the gods were permitted to use them. Today, every woman is privileged to pin a rose, an orchid, a gardenia, or any other costume flower.

A pretty model, walking as if she owned the costume herself, exhibited a striking black and white satin pyjama, worn with a red gardenia.

"Did you notice in such a creation? (It was under the impression

PRINCE OF WALES VISITS HOMES OF JOBLESS MINERS

Graphic Account of How He Acted on What He Saw; England Stirred by His Tour, Promises Relief.

Newcastle, England, Jan. 31.—Grieved and touched by the distress he has encountered in the homes of the jobless miners in the British coal fields, the Prince of Wales, who came north like a good Samaritan, will leave for London this evening after a three day tour of personal inspection.

Still suffering from the cold contracted by exposure on the first day of his visit to the mining districts, the Prince carried out the last day of his program by touring the Bishop-Aukland mining areas.

Durham and Northumberland through snow storms and over roads deep with mud, the Prince has visited many miners' cottages and talked with members of distressed families. In some instances, where misery was acute, the Prince ordered immediate relief, not waiting for the cases to pass through the official channels where there might be undue delay.

Secretary With Him

A secretary, who accompanied the heir to the throne, made lengthy notes, at the suggestion of the Prince, in many cases relief will be furnished by the London Relief Fund, of which the Prince is royal patron.

It has been no superficial and cursory examination. The Prince not only talked with unemployed miners and their wives, but looked over the pay sheets for some of the mines to learn exactly how much wages were paid and how

TROTZKY BANISHED, MAY PICK FRANCE

Former Red Leader May Later Live in Germany, Official Paper Reports.

Berlin, Jan. 31.—The German Communist newspaper "Red Flag," which announced Leon Trotsky's banishment from Soviet Russia, today attacked the former red official, saying:

"Trotsky gave a guest performance for the Communist Party during the Russian revolution. But it was proved he never became a real Bolshevik when away from barricades and the front, and had to face the fiery test of every day work."

German newspapers conjecture that Trotsky will first go to Turkey and then either to France or England or come to Germany.

Trotsky is supposed to have expressed preference for Germany, but if so, the German government has not been informed of it.

Leaves Turkestan

Trotsky has apparently left his place of exile in Turkestan, but whether he is on his way to Moscow or abroad is uncertain.

Trotsky, it is believed, has received a six months Turkish passport, which may be extended.

GO FOR A RIDE BUT STILL LIVE

Unusual Ending When Chicago Gangsters Decide to Shoot It Out.

Chicago, Jan. 31.—Four Chicago gunmen sat around a table here today. A dispute arose. One of the four leaped to his feet and began firing.

When the smoke cleared away, Steve Kuczynski, beer runner, gangster, and sworn enemy of the O'Donnell beer running gang, was slumped on the floor dead.

Edward Maciejewski, paroled convict, identified as the slayer, backed away from the body and faced the other two men, Joseph Bodner and John Freund, as Mrs. Rose Bodner appeared in the doorway.

"Come on, you two, you're gonna go for a ride," snarled Maciejewski.

They departed in an automobile. Bodner later picked up by a detective bureau squad, said he and Freund eluded the alleged killer who escaped.

AVIATRIX BREAKS SOLO FLIGHT MARK

Miss Eleanor Smith Stays Aloft 13 Hours, 16 Min- utes and 45 Seconds.

Mitchel Field, N. Y., Jan. 31.—Miss Eleanor Smith, pretty 17-year-old aviatrix, landed at the field at 3:33:55 o'clock this morning in her biplane after establishing a new solo endurance flight record for women. She had been aloft 13 hours, 16 minutes and 45 seconds, or one hour and six minutes longer than the mark set a few weeks ago by Miss Bobbie Trout at Los Angeles.

Although a sealed barograph was installed in the plane by National Aeronautical association officials, her mark probably will not be recognized officially. The association draws no distinction between endurance flights by men and women.

DRUGS AND BOOZE FEATURE BIG SUIT

Lawyers Say Mrs. McCar- thy Used Both—Millions Involved in Dispute.

Greenwich, Conn., Jan. 31.—Drugs and liquor played a prominent part today as an eighteen-year-old girl and her stepfather resumed their court battle for a $7,000,000 estate.

Counsel for Miss Margaret Huntington Gowen tried to show that her late mother, Mrs. Margaret Huntington McCarthy, was addicted to the use of both and that, therefore, she was not capable of making the will that left most of her fortune to her young husband Dr. James S. McCarthy.

But the physician, who received $5,000,000 of the estate, denied vigorously that his wife drank more than "a cocktail or two."

Mrs. Gowen is suing to set aside the will which left her $200,000. She wants a third, McCarthy was her mother's third husband.

McCarthy On Stand

When the trial was resumed in Judge Radford's probate court today, McCarthy was recalled to the stand by Harry J. Crawford, of counsel for Miss Gowen. Crawford immediately plunged into the liquor question, seeking to show that McCarthy also drank heavily.

He made McCarthy admit that he had married Beatrice Busser, an actress, and had been divorced by her in 1923 after only five months of married life. Crawford brought in the physician's first wife had charged him with drunkenness, saying he drank from one to two quarts of liquor a day.

McCarthy denied from the stand that he had met his second wife in "a boozing saloon" and that she had ever been treated for alcoholism. He said that she had suffered a nervous breakdown at one time, but that during the three years they lived together he had never seen her intoxicated.

GANGSTER SLAIN

Three Sanged Balls of Anthony Chiampa, 19- year-old boxer, were sought by po- lice today following the discovery of the bullet-riddled body of Chiampa in a barn in Revere.

Hunt was made for members of the gang, alleged to have robbed the H. P. Hood Milk company's plant in the north end of Chiampa was arrested and was out on bail. It was regarding the Hood affair that the dead pugilist had promised to testify, police said.

Religious Intolerance Discussed By Clergymen

New York, Jan. 31.—Elimina- tion of religious bigotry and intoler- ance was the underlying theme dis- cussed today at a religious seminar being held at Columbia University, and attended by more than 150 leading ministers, educators, jurists and professional and business men from all parts of the country.

The meeting is under the auspices of the national conference of Jews and Christians.

The Rev. J. Elliot Ross, Catholic chaplain of Columbia University, said there must be "frankness and fairness" in discussions of conflicts between the various religious groups.

FINE AUTO SHOW AT STATE ARMORY

Best Ever Held Here—62 Cars Are Displayed—All Are Beauties.

Attendees at the automobile exhibit conducted by the Manchester Automobile Dealers association in the State Armory are unanimous today in the opinion that this year's show is the best ever attempted here. A wide range of cars is shown, and the entire display is arranged in an attractive manner.

The show was officially opened last night by John H. Hyde, chairman of the Manchester Board of Selectmen. Mr. Hyde spoke at the gathering from the balcony, and stressed the point that the prosperity of the people of Manchester made for prosperity in the automobile business. He said that an automobile is the most desirable possession a new automobile every year. He congratulated the dealers of Manchester on their show, and wished them success in 1929.

Handsome Models

Sixty-two automobiles are in the exhibit. Each dealer has arranged his own display in the most attractive manner possible. In most instances it is a case of "painting the lily" in attempting to beautify the individual exhibits. It is nearly impossible to improve upon the beautiful and most modern automobile "jobs." The display will be judged and the two best will receive prizes. The first prize winner will get a new hat from George H. Williams and the second prize winner will get a box of cigars from the State Soda Shop.

Starting during the evening is furnished by Al Behrend's orchestra and by radio music. The show will continue through Saturday of this week. A percentage of the receipts will go into the company funds of Manchester's two military units.

$35,000,000 MERGER OF TEXTILE FIRMS

Will Make It Largest Concern of Its Kind in World, Say Officials.

New York, Jan. 31.—Announcement was confirmed today of plans for the formation of the largest textile organization in the world through the $35,000,000 merger of Frederick Vester & Achelis, Inc., and Henry Ittleson, president of the Commercial Investment Trust Company, who announced the combine, declared that the two firms will function as a single unit with the officers of both organizations being retained. The combined volume of sales of the two concerns last year was between $109,000,000 and $200,000,000. Their joint resources are estimated at about $35,000,000.

PRISONS OVERCROWDED.

Washington, Jan. 31.—Condemning the present overcrowded condition of the federal prisons and the care of federal prisoners in local institutions, the House special committee investigating committee today submitted a report urging immediate enlargement of the federal penal system.

Minority members failed to carry out their threat to file a separate report condemning Mrs. Mabel Walker Willebrandt, assistant attorney general for instituting a "spy system" in Atlanta federal prison.

PAYS TO ADVERTISE AS FIGURES SHOW

Cigarette Makers Sold 106 Billion of Them Just Because of Advs.

BY W. S. COUSINS. I. N. S. Financial Editor.

New York, Jan. 31.—It pays to advertise. The most consistent space in the last few years, the manufacturers of cigarettes, have demonstrated that fact to their complete satisfaction and are therefore planning an enormous increase in the volume with corresponding improvement in the quality of their advertising this year.

The American cigarette industry in 1928 turned out the huge total of 106 billion cigarettes for the home markets, an increase of 9 per cent over the previous year and a new high record for all time. It will be a surprise to many tobacco users to know that cigars retailing for less than five cents accounted for more than 51 per cent of the total output of the pleasant weed in that form.

The enormous increase in the consumption of cigarettes is directly traceable to the popularizing of the short-smoke over an ever widening field, including the general sex. Things have progressed to the point where the indorsement of a particular brand, is accounted a very valuable asset for the manufacturer, who proceeds immediately to tell the world about his new product.

The response from these indorsement advertisements has surpassed the best expectations of the manufacturers and their advertising advisers. Not only in the American, but in the foreign markets have these results been obtained, and in practically every civilized country the American tourist is made to feel at home through the announcement of the offering of American goods in the American way.

Use Newspaper. Manufacturers of motor cars in this country have repeatedly attributed the sensational increase in their business in the post-war period to their ability to spread effective and attractive advertising matter on the newspaper pages all over the civilized world.

Technically, the advertising profession has made giant strides in the last two decades, transforming some of the crude offerings of a few years ago to works of art that would grace any studio and rival high with the products of the masters in art, literature and painting.

Syracuse, N. Y., Jan. 31.—The index of national prosperity is the volume of newspaper advertising, William A. Thompson, director of the American Newspaper Publishers' association, told members of the New York State Publishers' association today in addressing a convention meeting of the body.

"The newspaper is the great educator of the nation because it has assumed a task with functions that are exclusively its own. We have often called it the universal medium because it is the vehicle of communication between the masses and all of their buying public."

SOVIET WHISKEY BILL IS GROWING STEADILY

Moscow, Jan. 31.—The liquor bill of the average Moscow laborer's family increased 250 per cent in the past three years, according to statistics revealed today. The expenditures for "cultural" development, like books, newspapers, movies and theaters increased only five per cent.

The enormous increase in vodka drinking, coupled with slow intellectual advancement, has driven the educational committees of the Communist Party organizations to scrutinize the entire system of educational propaganda, which, despite enormous effort and expense, is falling on brains clouded by alcohol.

Official Survey. An official survey of the budgets of 100 typical workers' families of average size and income showed that, while 2.60 rubles ($1.30) was spent on liquor per month in 1925, slightly more than six rubles (3) was squandered, each month last year. For education these families spent 2.53 rubles ($1.40) a month in 1925 and three rubles in 1928.

CHAMBER ISSUES TWO WARNINGS

'Who's Who' and 'Source Records' Catch Buyers of Books Here Off Guard.

The Chamber of Commerce wishes to invite the serious attention of Herald readers to two plans devised by astute book publishers to separate socially ambitious or sentimentally philanthropic people from their money.

Plan No. 1 is the publishing of an alleged social register or 'Who's Who' book. Preying on the well-known social ambitious or those desiring to be classed with the socially prominent, unscrupulous publishers invent some high-sounding titles and solicit registration there in at such much per.

There are recognized and authentic registers of this kind and there are many unauthorized and unrecognized works which have no standing whatever. People approached in this connection should be very careful that they are paying their money to one of the standard publishers rather than contributing to a list that will only make themselves ridiculous.

There is a legitimate use for an authentic list of people prominent in the social or business world, and with the publishers of such a work there can be no quarrel, but there are numberless other compilations issued simply for the profit of the publishers, without regard as to whether the person listed has any social or business prominence or not.

The Chamber of Commerce is obtaining an authentic list of standard publications which they will be glad to furnish to anyone who is approached for such registration.

Plan No. 2 which is also being overworked is the publishing of so-called "source records," "unpublished correspondence," "unpublished dispatches," etc. etc. A dozen or more of these works are now being sold ostensibly to raise funds for some charitable purpose. The price is always entirely out of proportion to the value of the work.

The chief objection to this plan is that such a very large proportion of the price paid by the subscriber goes to the publisher of the book and to the solicitor. Many cases of this kind are on record where 5 per cent or less of the purchase price remains for the charitable purpose after the overhead is taken care of.

If approached on either of these projects, Herald readers are urged to take their time for a full investigation. There is not the remotest danger of losing the opportunity of spending your money. If your investigation satisfies you as to its merit.

W. E. KEITH NAMED CHURCH DELEGATE

Will Represent Laymen at Annual Methodist Conference in April.

Following the midweek service last night, members of the South Methodist church met for the purpose of voting on lay representation at the forthcoming Southern New England conference, which is to be held at Brockton, Mass., on April 5.

William E. Keith acted as chairman and H. I. Lewis secretary of the meeting. Mr. Keith was elected as a delegate to this conference with Ezekiel Benson, alternate. At this conference two items of importance will be voted upon by the laymen in assembly and referred back to laymen's conferences all over the country to the general conference. Questions dealing with the matter of lay representation at this annual conference, and the advisability of formulating what is known as central conferences, will be acted upon. If passed it is expected they will largely elucidate the problems which arise in all churches with relation to their colored members, giving better satisfaction to the colored brethren and creating a stronger bond of interest in the church.

O'Connor declared that the White House today after a conference with President Coolidge. O'Connor denied, however, that he had discussed with the President the prospective sale of the ships.

Referring to the high bid of the W. Chapman Company of $16,000,000 for the entire fleet, O'Connor declared this amount was within $25,000 of the figure at which the ships are carried on the books of the Merchant Fleet Corporation.

DRY FUND BATTLE STARTS IN SENATE

Democratic - Southern Dry Coalition Would Force It On the Treasury.

Washington, Jan. 31.—Rejecting the final plea of Secretary of Treasury Mellon, a Democratic-Southern Dry coalition began a fight in the House today to force an unwanted $24,000,000 dry fund upon the treasury.

Administration leaders, backing Mellon's statement that the extra fund "is not necessary," were confident the House would turn down the Senate amendment and send the bill to conference.

The disputed $24,000,000 amendment of the first deficiency bill, along with another providing $250,000 for President-Elect Hoover's dry law investigation and the McKeellar amendment limiting Mellon's tax refund powers, were called up by Rep. Snell, (R) of New York, chairman of the rules committee.

A special rule sending the bill to conference was proposed but Rep. Clegg (D) of Georgia immediately countered with a motion to reconsider the bill with instructions which would open the amendments to new consideration on their merits. This was ruled out of order.

Three hours of debate were allowed, with the floor being finally voted late in the day.

While Republicans, Democrats, Wets and Drys all were split, most Wets appear to be drifting to the view of Mellon. The New York Tammany delegation, it was announced, would support him.

PILOT OF MAIL PLANE SAVED BY PARACHUTE

Lost in Snow Storm He Jumps 3,000 Feet—All of Mail Is Saved.

Davenport, Iowa, Jan. 31.—The wrecked plane of Jack Story, youthful Kansas City airmail pilot, who saved himself from death by a senseless 3,000 foot parachute leap when he foundered in a snow storm was found today about two miles from where Story came down.

Story, uninjured, went to Chicago by train. Three pouches containing 350 pounds of Kansas City mail, followed him on a Rock Island flyer.

Story, owing to the storm, missed the large beacon light atop a downtown office building that guides flyers through their air lane. Unable to find his way, he lit his flares, but these could not be seen, owing to snow and dense fog, it was said.

RACE AGAINST DEATH

Buffalo, N. Y., Jan. 31.—The airplane carrying Vaughn Pierce from Miami to the bedside of his dying father, Ralph W. Pierce, here, left the Curtiss Airport at Garden City, Long Island, on the last leg of its flight at 11:55 a. m. today, according to word received here.

The plane was forced down because of bad weather at Richmond, Va., yesterday and resumed its flight from that point this morning. The younger Pierce's mother and his sister flew with him to Miami to Palm Beach, but changed there to a fast train. Pierce should be at his father's bedside by nightfall.

The condition of the elder Pierce, who is president of the World Medical Dispensary Association, is reported unchanged.

LEASE FORD PLANT. Detroit, Jan. 31.—The Briggs Manufacturing Company has taken over a 5-year lease to half of the Ford Motor Company's Highland Park plant, according to an announcement by Ford officials today. Nine buildings of the plant will be occupied by the Briggs Company immediately, the announcement stated.

The Briggs Company will build all coupe and ffordor bodies for the Ford Motor Company for the present, at least, it was stated. The taylor and roadster bodies are built by the Ford company. The five-year lease carries with it an option for renewal of a second 5-year period, officials said.

SERIOUSLY INJURED IN TRAIN MISHAP

Will Be Public Affair—Dancing to Follow the Seating of Officers.

John Mather chapter, Order of DeMolay, will hold a public installation Monday night in the Masonic Temple. All of the various Masonic bodies have been invited to attend and the public in general will be given a cordial welcome. Dancing will follow the installation work.

Sergeant Benjamin Harrison, who, with his wife was on his way here from Rantoul, Illinois, where he is in the aviation service, to attend the funeral services for his mother, Mrs. Thomas Harrison of Woodbridge street, telegraphed his family here today that an accident had occurred to the train on which they were traveling and Mrs. Harrison had been seriously injured. He will be unable to come here for the funeral.

Mrs. Thomas Harrison died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Charles McCarthy of North Elm street on Monday and the funeral services had been postponed awaiting the arrival of Sergeant and Mrs. Harrison. The services will now be held tomorrow afternoon at 2:30 at the Harrison home, No. 102 Woodbridge street. Rev. Marvin S. Stocking of the North Methodist church will officiate.

READ THE AUTO LAWS, THEN SEEK LICENSE

Don't Attempt to Get Right to Drive Unless You Know Rules of Road.

If you want an automobile driver's license and haven't read the motor vehicle department rules and regulations don't make application. More applicants are turned down on this one count than on any other, according to the examiner who was in town today.

An inspector from the Hartford barracks spends each Thursday in Manchester for the examination of persons who wish to take out licenses. Only one appeared today and he was not granted a Connecticut license because he had not had the state laws concerning motor vehicles and he answered that he had not, but told about driving a car for over fifteen years. This did not qualify him. He was said $2 for the test as he did not even go out, but took with him a copy of the state laws on motor vehicles and rules of the road and will try later.

It is not uncommon, the state policeman said, to find this condition. In New Britain last week the inspector had eleven applications and each one had to be turned down. One of this one question, in Bristol yesterday, he said, there were ten rejections out of eleven applications and the same holds true throughout the state.

Commissioner Stockel is insisting upon this rule being enforced. He said that this has been secured since the enforcement of this question more careful driving has been noted.

SURPRISE PARTY

Mrs. James Harrison of Russell street, on the occasion of her birthday which occurred yesterday, was tendered a pleasant surprise at her home last evening by her associate workers in St. Mary's Ladies' Guild and their husbands. Mr. Harrison agreed to see that his wife would be at home. He accordingly invited her to go out for the evening, then went on an errand, not returning until just before the guests arrived. Mrs. Harrison was completely by surprise but soon recovered and everybody had a jolly time. Cards were played and a delicious lunch provided by the Guild members was enjoyed.

Samuel B. Gaylord, in behalf of the gathering and with one of his witty speeches, presented to Mrs. Harrison a dozen silver salad forks. She responded with a few words of deep appreciation to her friends for the handsome gift and the good fellowship which prompted it. Mrs. Harrison has efficiently discharged the duties of secretary of the Guild for a number of years and with Mr. Harrison has always taken an active interest in the affairs of St. Mary's Episcopal church.

Will Be Public Affair—Dancing to Follow the Seating of Officers.

LOCAL POLICEMAN HURT INSPECTING REAR AREAS

John Cavagnaro Wrenches Ankle When He Falls on Tour of Inspection Last Night.

Policeman John Cavagnaro, while trying rear doors along the business section last night fell, and was unable to remain on duty during the rest of the evening. It was at first thought that he had broken his ankle, but an X-ray taken this morning shows that no bones were broken. He has a badly wrenched ankle. He will be unable to return to duty for the next two weeks.

A bad condition exists in the rear of most of the business places along the business section of the south end, and in the north end. The police are called upon now to make trips not only along the front of the buildings, but also in the rear, trying the rear doors and the windows. There has been ice on the back steps and there has also been little regard in the way packages and garbage is thrown in the rear. It is dangerous work for any policeman to make the trips of investigation that they are now called upon to do.

New York, Jan. 31.—Violet Gentry, Minneola aviatrix, crashed today after taking off from Roosevelt Field in an attempt to establish a new flying record.

King Amanullah of Afghanistan couldn't make his people shave but he had rather a close one himself.

HOOVER WILL ASK FOR ASSISTANTS President-Elect Believes That President Cannot Handle Details All Alone.

Long Key, Fla., Jan. 31.—Herbert Hoover is planning a number of innovations in conducting the executive business of the government when he takes over the reins at the White House on the Fourth of March...

Tremendous Burden The burdens of the executive office are now tremendous, and each session of Congress sees them increased. More responsibility is steadily being reposed in the chief executive...

Too Much Work Moreover it is Hoover's idea of how to meet the perennial problem of "overworking the president." He has seen two presidents, Wilson and Harding, break down under the burden's difficult responsibility.

Extra Bureaus The number of such bureaus is steadily increasing. They operate independently and are under direct control of no regular department so that executive supervision at best is not very close.

ADVERTISE IN THE HERALD—IT PAYS

Washington Sees Mrs. Hoover As Charming White House Hostess

A big state or diplomatic dinner at the White House, such as this $1,000, because all White House state dining room, richly paneled with English Oak and decorated tapestries and game heads. The president sits in the large, high-backed chair behind the table at the left.

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the third and last of a series of stories by Allene Sumner, NEA Service writer, on the new duties that face Mrs. Herbert Hoover as the new first lady of the land.

By ALLENE SUMNER.

Washington, Jan.—Just how will Mrs. Herbert Hoover manage her First Lady's job as the hostess of the White House? How will she interpret its demands? What new customs will she substitute for the old?

These are the question over the Washington Haviland these days, for the mistress of the White House is the most discussed woman of the capital city as her husband's inauguration on March 4 nears.

Mrs. Hoover, general opinion has it, faces the hardest task of any preceding White House mistress.

Mrs. Coolidge has been "the First Lady perfect," say those of high and low rank, those in officialdom and those on the outer fringe.

Knows Duties Well.

Cross-section opinion has it that, technically, Mrs. Hoover will be a perfect White House hostess—that, as a cosmopolitan accustomed to the nuances of official etiquette and official hostessing, she knows the technique of her job very well.

"But"—verdict goes on—"will she captivate all classes as has Mrs. Coolidge?"

Many speculate that as a woman used to big executive jobs with whom efficiency has been a necessity because of her many irons in the fire, Mrs. Hoover will simplify and do away with many obsolete First Lady customs.

Congressmen, for instance, have found it about as easy through the Coolidge administration to present their constituents' views to the First Lady as to send the constituents themselves to the First Man.

A note of introduction from a congressman to Mrs. Coolidge's secretary generally means an invitation to meet Mrs. Coolidge at tea some afternoon that week. From 20 to 30 women are presented at these teas, each one being given a few moments of personal conversation with Mrs. Coolidge.

Their Friends Real Friends.

Mrs. Hoover's friends recall that she has never permitted her husbands' various official positions to foist meaningless impersonal social life upon her. The Hoover home in any of the four corners of the world has always been a hospitable one, but hospitable to real friends, the people the Hoovers wanted to see, and not the people they ought to see.

If you think of the job of being First Lady some such simple matter as wearing stunning gowns to the formal receptions, standing in a receiving line, and occasionally okaying a White House menu for a state dinner, consider some of the First Lady duties which Mrs. Coolidge has performed. She has bought the first Christmas seals, the first disabled war veteran puppy, the first stamp or seal for most any charitable event each year of her husband's administration.

She has opened flower shows, automobile shows, radio shows, model houses. She has placed almost as many cornerstones as the Prince of Wales.

Christens Ships and Planes.

She has christened ships and airplanes. She has received flowers and fruits and cheese and hales of wool and all native products from every state in the union, being photographed by the presser nearly every time.

She has handed out the first Thanksgiving and Christmas baskets for Washington charity organizations for each year of her First Ladyship.

She attends the opening performance of the circus, the opera, the football and baseball games, to say nothing of attending private charitable functions.

She plants trees, is official White House wedding and funeral attender at such affairs affecting any member of officialdom and must receive and be photographed with most any White House delegation which has some wily business ax to grind and insists on seeing the First Lady.

Mrs. Coolidge has been photographed with visiting garment makers, beauty shop associations, actors and actresses, best farm boys and girls, nation's oldest mother, etc.

Mrs. Hoover will do many things, but she will not do all these, say the capital commentators.

Like Mrs. Roosevelt.

General opinion has it that Mrs. Hoover will take her White House job much as did Mrs. Roosevelt.

She will do those things which must be done, and do many extra things which she believes worth doing, but she will leave undone many things which she does not believe necessary.

Mrs. Roosevelt, for instance, always carried a big bouquet of flowers at public receptions, making it impossible to shake hands with the 8,100 people who, for instance, attended one reception. She insisted that it was her husband who was in public life—not herself and he backed her in this opinion.

The photographers declare Mrs. Hoover is more nearly like Mrs. Harding than any predecessor—that she looks like her and knows what she wants when she wants it—and gets it—in the best Mrs. Harding manner.

(THE END.)

"DACHSHUND" BULL.

Richmond, Mo.—A bull owned by Sherman McNew, weighing 750 pounds and perfectly normal in every other way, has exceedingly short legs. The animal is only 32 inches high and neighbors have dubbed it the "Dachshund" bull.

A man in New York state voluntarily cut his own salary twice. Evidently not a married man.

POP GOES THE GAVEL

Cleveland.—Baillif Gus Hanna is still looking for the person or persons who succeeded in blasting the order of the court presided over by Judge George P. Baer. Gus likes his ceremony. But the other day when his gavel came down at the end of the "Hear ye! Hear ye!" there ensued an explosion which all but routed Gus' dignity. Someone had placed a toy pistol cap where it would do the most good under the baillif's lusty gavel swing.

BARB LIPSTICK.

Detroit.—Anyone whose lips bear the carmine hue of lipstick are barred from receiving communion in Grosse Pointe Park. Father Foley, assistant pastor of the church, has this to say: "This practice is irreverent and unbecoming and I will not countenance it."

Don't despair some day your social calendar is full, and you awake with a miserable cold. Be rid of it by noon! You can, if you know the secret: a simple compound that soon settles any cold, yes, even one that has reached deep in the throat or lungs.

Madge Bellamy explains the growing popularity of Old Golds in Hollywood

"The 'hero' in a movie may easily become the 'villain' if he coughs at the wrong time. A cough isn't nice at any time, but when it interrupts the taking of a movie scene, it's a calamity! Re-takes are costly!

"The high tension of movie work makes smoking a vital relaxation. But we relax with OLD GOLDS.

They're so smooth, as smooth as the polished manner of Adolphe Menjou, who himself is an OLD GOLD fan.

"While they're the most enjoyable of cigarettes, OLD GOLDS mean absolute 'fade-out' for throat-scratch and smoker's cough."

BIGGEST TRAFFIC JAM IN COMEDY AT STATE

The world's greatest and most comical traffic jam is featured in Hal Roache's latest M-G-M comedy co-starring those flaming youths of merriment, Stan Laurel and Oliver Hardy coming to the State Theatre Friday and Saturday.

The boys are sailors in this opus, and to aid in the enjoyment of their shore leave, they rent a fiver. Two girls are added for atmosphere, and then they proceed to tie up traffic in what is undoubtedly the most effective jam ever recorded on celluloid. If there is any method of wrecking an automobile unthought of by Director James Parrott and Leo McCarey, it was considered unspectacular.

The fun is fast and furious, with a denouement most unexpected and wildly hilarious. The two flappers are played by two of the most satisfactory young ladies in Hollywood, Ruby Blaine and Thelma Hill. All in all, "Two Tars" is for laughing purposes only, and the laughs are supplied with customary Hal Roache liberty.

Folks! You haven't seen a traffic jam until you attend the State theater Friday or Saturday.

N. Y. STATE EMPLOYERS GET INSURANCE DIVIDEND.

Albany.—A total of 23,000 employers of labor in New York State received dividends of more than $1,000,000 during 1928 from the state insurance fund in which they hold policies for workmen's compensation, according to a report by James A. Hamilton, retiring state industrial commissioner.

The policies held by these employers covered 300,000 employees.

CONQUERS TOUGH HANG ON COUGHS

In Double Quick Time

It takes more than ordinary sweet, syrupy cough mixtures to stop a stubborn cough that persists in hanging on.

For slight ordinary coughs almost any decent cough syrup will do, but if you have one of those tough ones that won't yield to common remedies and often keeps you awake at night then your one best bet is Bronchiline Emulsion.

Often one half bottle forces the most stubborn cough to yield and you are better almost before you know it.

There is no sugar, chloroform or dope in Bronchiline Emulsion; it's a wonderful medicine for people who are getting over a heavy cold or an attack of Flu.

A New York nurse just couldn't stop coughing even after consulting specialists yet one half bottle of Bronchiline Emulsion did stop it—completely.

Ask Magnoli Drug Co., South Manchester, or any good dealer for a bottle—often three or four doses will stop an ordinary cough.

STALE OLD SONG
 Such findings as that made by the Public Utilities Commission fixing responsibility for the fatal Thomaston-Torrington wreck on the New Haven road are unwise. It is always difficult for the public to be fair toward a railroad corporation, at best. There is historic reason for this and very often the traditional attitude of the people toward the transportation company is unjust, in consequence. And in view of the suspicious and cynical predisposition of the people it is perfectly apparent that, unless such prejudice is to continue and be magnified, every effort should be made in responsible quarters to avoid adding to its cause.
 Yet, in complete indifference to all this, the Public Utilities Commission brings in a finding not only manifestly the result of sheer guesswork but nicely calculated to stir resentment against both the railroad company and the Commission. It resorts to the stale and cruel device of blaming the dead engineer.

The utter unlikelihood of a man of 74, who had been running trains for a long lifetime and whose own life was at stake, driving his engine at an excessive speed over a piece of track with which he was entirely familiar and knew to be dangerous, is so obvious that the finding will not go down—not when the dead engineer is convicted by a process of elimination and nothing else. The Commission admits that it finds the engineer responsible because it can locate responsibility nowhere else. The track was all right, the cars were all right, the locomotive was all right—so, the Commission argues, the engineer must have been all wrong.

Yet the engine was wrecked so completely that nobody alive knows whether it was all right or not. No evidence is obtainable that it was, beyond the word of a couple of men who swore that the engine was all right when it left the yards in Bridgeport. Many things might have happened to that locomotive between Bridgeport and Torrington. The inspectors may have been mistaken—it may not have been all right when it started out.
 Of course nobody ever expects the Connecticut Public Utilities Commission to give any public service corporation anything but the best of it. The board has been doing that with absolute consistency ever since it was organized. Ordinarily nobody pays any attention to anything the Utilities Board says, anyhow. But when it strikes up the ancient tune "Blame the Dead Engineer" in such circumstances as those of the Castle Bridge disaster it is time for boos from the audience.

FIND THE MORAL
 If any man ever followed one calling for a longer period than Tom, otherwise "Pop" Cheek—Methuselah and other apocryphal gentlemen of his ilk barred—it is to be doubted if there is any valid account of it anywhere. For ninety-two years Tom Cheek got his living out of the race tracks. He became a stable boy in 1837, when he was twelve years old, and he lived by and with racehorses from that time until he died in a stable stall alongside one of his two remaining runners a couple of days ago, aged 104.
 Like any other patriot he is entitled to have counted in those comparatively insignificant years that he spent in his country's wars, one with Mexico the other the war between the states—though it is to be suspected that in the latter Tom backed the wrong horse as he was a Virginian by birth.
 Ninety-two years on one job, as to speak! It's quite a spell. But he never tired, first of riding, then of training and for a couple of generations of owning and entering and betting on his own horses.

 He was an unregenerate old cuss. He not only ran horses and wagered his money on them but he smoked like a house on fire and drank hard likker without stint. He looked like Santa Claus and had the best time of anybody in the world. He went broke in the afternoon, went to bed in the stall beside the horse that had failed to land his last bet, and died all in a minute.
 Somewhere in the life of Pop Cheek there is a lesson and a moral. But we'll be hanged if we can just locate it.

ENIGMA PRINCE
 An extremely interesting young man, this Edward Prince of Wales—one who gives very forcibly the impression of having something up his sleeve; perhaps something of the greatest import to Great Britain.
 How account for His Royal Highness spending an entire cold, stormy day, himself three-quarters ill with the grip, visiting home after home of the unemployed coal miners of northern England, of whom with their families there are half a million souls? How account for his standing bareheaded, knocking for admission to homes where death had come and where there was not money enough to pay for burying the dead? How account for this insistence on encountering at first hand the direst problems of his unfortunate future subjects— if he expects to be merely a dummy king and let such things drift?
 For our part we can't even guess what took Wales upon that distressing mission. We feel perfectly sure that he is not one to delude himself with the notion that his mere royal presence must compensate those starving sufferers for their misery; his distinguished ancestress Victoria might have made that mistake, but this young man never. We feel sure it was nothing even remotely like idle curiosity that took him into those cold and miserable homes.
 Somehow or other, if the prince's character has been read even a quarter a-right, something is to come out of that visit—else he never would have made it. If it were to be something wholly revolutionary it would not be greatly surprising.

BANKRUPTCIES
 Whether or not the House resolution providing for an inquiry into the bankruptcy courts situation in New York produces the immediate investigation demanded, the probability would seem to be that the question of bankruptcy administration is before the country for good—and at last. For years it has been perfectly well known throughout the entire business world of the United States that the national bankruptcy act had not only failed to remedy the evils incidental to the old days of state control but that under it there is far more fraud on the part of debtors, loss on the part of honest creditors and fat picking for politically favored lawyers than at any previous period in the history of the country or in any other country in the world.

 Revelation that from one-fourth to one-third of all the assets involved in bankruptcy cases—the whole amounting to hundreds of millions of dollars—are eaten up by administration and lawyers' fees ought to result in a combination of the bona-fide business interests of the entire country to force a drastic reform in the whole system.
 No fish factory declared a nuisance by a State Board of Health ever emitted such an odor as that which comes from the handling of America's bankruptcies.

PER U. S. MAIL
 It isn't particularly interesting that three Baltimore High school girls have been expelled for getting drunk. It isn't particularly interesting that they got drunk during the morning school hours though even the primest of the old time Old Soaks knew that the morning was no time at all to get drunk. It isn't particularly interesting that the daughter of a bootlegger, a student in the school, supplied the hooch. The really interesting thing is that the daughter had held out one bottle from a package of booze that her father gave her to mail for him.
 To use the United States mails as a medium for the delivery of bootleg rum is to rise to heights of effrontery indeed. We can't remember ever having heard of its being done before. Yet if this Baltimore hooch peddler could get away with it perhaps he is not the only one in the country who is doing the same thing. Uncle Sam as delivery boy for the bootleggers—the irony of it!

ATTA-BOY!
 One of the most naive performances on record is that of the New York "broker" who appealed to the police to help him get back $4,000 that he had given to a swindler who promised him a $100,000 share in $400,000 worth of gold bullion "stolen by Gerald Chapman" which was to be dug up from his hiding place and sold abroad after certain United States assay office stamps had been removed from the bars.
 If the police find the individual who victimized this chap they should give him a telephone-paper parade up Broadway and have Mayor Walker pin a large red rose on him. Criminals who go about victimizing people like this "broker" deserve the distinguished consideration of society, not prison.

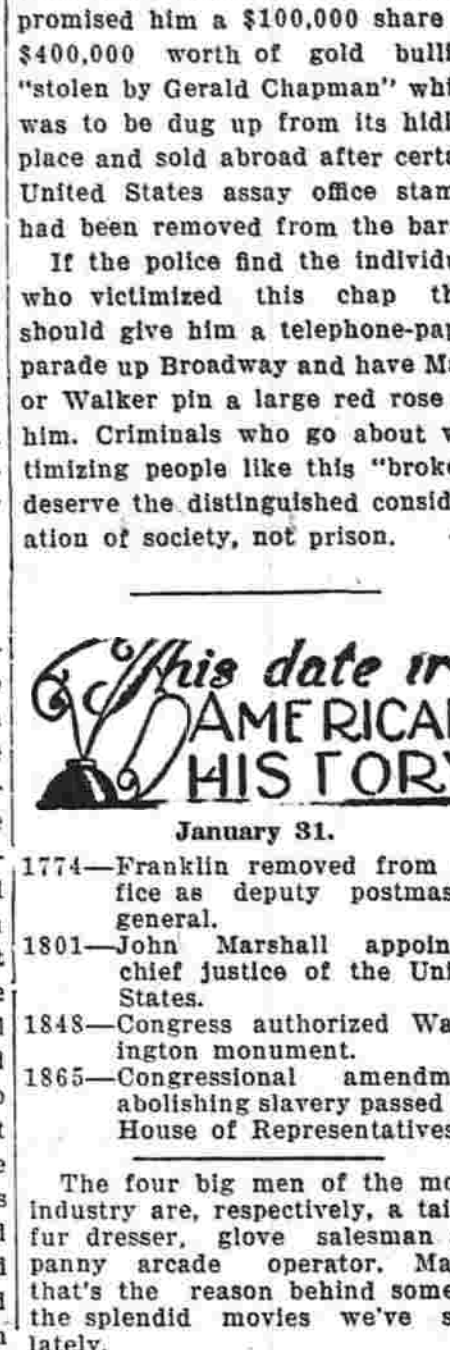

THIS DATE IN AMERICAN HISTORY
 January 31.
 1774—Franklin removed from office as deputy postmaster general.
 1801—John Marshall appointed chief justice of the United States.
 1848—Congress authorized Washington monument.
 1865—Congressional amendment abolishing slavery passed the House of Representatives.
 The four big men of the movie industry are, respectively, a tailor, fur dresser, glove salesman and panny arcade operator. Maybe that's the reason behind some of the splendid movies we've seen lately.

IN NEW YORK
 New York, Jan. 31.—Manhattan is the world's greatest hunting ground for matrimonially inclined bachelors.
 There are, according to hit-and-miss statistics, something like 1,000,000 "bachelor girls" in this narrow but populous island. And practically every one of these unmarried girls and women have learned the sound lesson of supporting themselves. They've had to.
 To be sure, they are said to be a bit particular, since they have had time and opportunity of observing rich men and poor men, beggar men and thieves in their pleasant and unpleasant aspects.
 No one seems to be sure of the answer. According to our best sentimental traditions, there are presumed to be thousands of lonely and tired working girls and women in Manhattan; tired enough even to be unceremonial about the Adonis-like appearance of a potential husband, so long as he provides a good roof and board. Of course, it may be the bachelors who are to blame, for statistics show the bachelor population to be as great, or even greater.
 This situation is more easily understood, for a man who has fought an economic battle with New York is not likely to step blindly into matrimony. He is well aware that two cannot live as cheaply as one, and he ponders well his problem—particularly if youth has slipped by—before letting romance get the better of his judgment.
 The new traffic "stagger" system, which has just come into vogue in an effort to solve—if possible—the theater traffic problem, has proved a gold mine to the small boys and men in the street "umbrella racket."
 In days ago, the silk hat, full dress, limousine trade drove directly up to the sheltering marquees of a theater and let the financially unfortunate ones light the elements on rainy nights. But that's all over. There is complete democracy now, for the new orders say that taxis and limousines cannot turn into the side streets and jam them with the theater-going traffic. They must ungorge their passengers on Broadway, Seventh avenue or Eighth avenue.
 Which means that the lovely ladies in full evening regalia must face the winter and spring storms even as you and I. Parasol vendors have thought up all sorts of schemes.
 One old fellow, who has been known to Broadway for many a year, has retained a crew of small boys, who open a limousine door and present an umbrella to the occupants. Then he paddles along beside them until the theater is reached, reclaiming the parasol—or selling it. The rental to the theater amounts to 25 cents and the same "bumbershoot" can be used an indefinite number of times. One parasol can bring in several dollars during the evening. The actual sale value of this temporary awning would be about a dollar—a price greatly above its worth.

Books
 The song of the soil and its people seems never to be ended. Year upon year, men and women of letters dig into the folklore of the world's people and bring forth works which for generations have been rooted in the very earth and blood of some race. Year upon year, new writers and old writers look broadly out upon the land and find it warm to the touch of their pens.
 And, somehow, the soil produces writers who survive and whose works survive. Even in our own land, where there is yet no tradition of the land, many of our most important writers have, in late years, gone to the farm belts for their material—writers such as Sherwood Anderson, who caught strange psychological phases; Elizabeth Madox Roberts, who caught its poetry; the Willa Cather of "My Antonia" and, just now, O. E. Rolvaag, who follows the course of the pioneers in the Minnesota region.
 There are upon our desk at this moment five models of the earth or of people who live from the earth. And at least three of these are more than passingly important. There is, for instance, "The Snake Pit" (Knopf), by Sigrid Undset, who won this year's Nobel prize. And there is the greatest of the Finnish classics, "Seven Brothers" (Coward-McCann), which Alexis

Kivi wrote and which Ernestine Evans discovered during a recent European trip. There is Rolvaag's sequel to "Giants in the Earth," which he has named, "Foster Victorious" and there is H. W. Freeman's study, "Joseph and His Brethren." And Sheila Kaye-Smith, whose "Johanna Godden" clings to the memory, with another tale of Sussex, "The Country Doctor," which Dutton selects as the "book of the month."
 "Seven Brothers" was launched into American literature with the fanfare attached to literary and other innovations. The publishers brought it forth at a most distinguished luncheon at the Ritz-Carlton in New York. The consul-general of Finland was there and told how it had been first printed some fifty years ago, scorned by the skeptical critics, only to become the most popular book of the land. It is a book to be found in almost every Finnish home, a truly legendary volume which, in a sense, contains the mythology of a people. The seven brothers are presented in a number of phases of life—they seek education and go forth from the land; they scatter and take on symbolic form, demonstrating the growth and development of a race. Because of its closeness to a people, it is dotted with a sort of Rabelaisian lushness of conversation. It is, like Caesar's wife—all things to all persons; at once a sermon and a window for adolescent peeping Toms to peer through.

NEW CRUISER BILL AVOIDED TODAY

But Only to Give Congress a Chance to Vote on Appropriations.

Washington, Jan. 31.—The Administration's new cruiser bill, assured temporarily in the Senate today to permit action on the much delayed independent offices appropriation bill.

The cruiser advocates were not alarmed however, as an agreement limiting debate after Monday will insure enactment of the bill early next week. A poll has shown the bill will be enacted on the final roll-call by an overwhelming vote.

The administration has urged prompt action on remaining appropriation bills in order to clean up the regular program of Congress. The agriculture department appropriation bill, carrying $145,729,000 was enacted late yesterday while the independent offices, the war department and District of Columbia bills are pending in the Senate. Two more have yet to be enacted by the House—the naval and the legislative appropriation bills, the latter providing the money for congress itself.

Work Soon Over.
Once these appropriation bills have been enacted, congress' work for the session will be concluded, except for minor matters.

The cruiser measure was given great impetus by Senator James A. Reed (D) of Missouri; making one of the closing speeches of his senatorial career. Reed lambasted pacifists and internationalists, declaring peace treaties would not protect American interests or American commerce and that a great modern navy was needed as a measure of urgent national defense.

The bill had the Senate divided into three camps. The largest and majority camp included those favoring the bill as written; a lesser group favored the bill with the time clause eliminated, while a handful opposed it as a waste of money.

REPORTERS BARRED

Indianapolis, Ind., Jan. 31.—Newspapermen were persona non grata at the home of Major Henry McConnell here today where his daughter Ruth was preparing to marry Kenneth B. Coulter, wealthy invalid of Rochester, N. Y.

The marriage ceremony according to all indications was to be held today. The license was issued here Tuesday evening.

The granting of the license here to Miss McConnell and to Coulter reopened the mystery of Miss McConnell's flight from Rochester to San Francisco and the airplane pursuit by Dr. D. C. Meeker, young Rochester medical student.

Coulter, according to reports received here is estimated to be worth as high as $7,000,000. He has been paralyzed since a football game accident nearly 20 years ago and moves about in a wheel chair.

OPENING STOCKS

New York, Jan. 31.—The public utility stocks were the leaders in the forward move of prices at the opening of the market today. Industrials were irregular, particularly the oils, with Standard of New York, New Jersey down 1-2 each. Utilities Power & Light, National Power & Light, Electric Light & Power sold fractionally higher. U. S. Steel was up 3-4 at 181 3-4; International Nickel down 1-8 at 65 1-4; Westinghouse down 1-2 at 160 1-2; Chrysler Motor down 5-8 at 113 1-4; St. Joe Lead up 7-8 at 86 7-8; American Smelting up 1 at 114 1-2.

NAMES OWN SENTENCE
Paris.—A judge in Valence recently asked a prisoner, on trial for murder, to put himself on the judge's bench and imagine the judge was the culprit. "What sentence would you inflict upon me if you were in my place as judge and I were in yours," the judge asked. "I have killed," the prisoner said. "I deserve to be killed. Kill me." He was sentenced to death.

A 10-year-old boy in Alton, Miss., wears size 25 shoes. We are going to say that he ought to make a wonderful cop, but have considerable doubt about whether he'd fit in the traffic department.

NOON STOCKS

New York, Jan. 31.—Outside of the public utility stocks, most of which carried yesterday's advances a point or so higher, the market was irregular and unsettled in the early trading today.

The railroad stocks made a much better response to the favorable December net earnings now being reported, and the so-called "merger rally" were given a vigorous upward swing.

Chicago Great Western Preferred continued to lead the upward move in the speculative rails, with a 5-point jump to 63 1-4. Stocks in the Nickel Plate group, including Chesapeake & Ohio, Erie, Buffalo, Rochester & Pittsburgh, and New York, Chicago & St. Louis sold up 1 to 6 points, following the announcement of the formation of the Allegheny corporation by the Van Sweringen brothers as a holding corporation for these stocks.

New York Central jumped 4 points to 200, the highest price on record for the stock in its present form. Missouri Pacific, Baltimore & Ohio, New Haven, Pennsylvania and other well known dividend payers sold up a point or two.

The motor stocks were unsettled by a selling wave which carried prices generally downward. Chrysler broke through to the year's lowest price of 112 3-4 and Packard lost a point.

Though the public utility stocks were turned over in big blocks this morning, price changes were extremely narrow and Wall street reported that the professionals who were "buying their heads off" in yesterday's market were now ready to take their profits. Sharp advances of 1 to 9 points in a group of stocks usually dull and quiet always excites the suspicion of traders.

ers in the big market, and no one is anxious to be "hung up" with stocks at top prices.

Studebaker was a feature in the second hour, with a brilliant advance to 96 1-2. Directors of the company met today at South Bend and will release an "important statement" later in the day, according to Wall street advices.

With call money at 7 per cent, and the money situation all serene, the bulls were preparing for another slap at the shorts in the active stocks. U. S. Steel started its recovery and sold up 2 points at 183. Commodity markets were steady, with cotton off 7 to 9 points and grain fractionally lower.

The MOVIE PEOPLE

By DAN THOMAS.

Hollywood, Cal. Jan. 31.—New York stage celebrities aren't the only ones who have been lured to Hollywood by talking movies. The "squawkies" also have Stewart Brady, 12-year-old Nevada youth, in their grasp. Young Brady, who has been acclaimed by critics as a phenomenal boy soprano, first came to Hollywood to sing at Grauman's Chinese theater. A Warner Brothers executive heard him and immediately signed him to appear in a Vitaphone number.

Stewart's father and mother, George and Margaret Brady, played as a team in vaudeville for a number of years. The youth's vocal talent developed very early. By the time he was 6 years old he was making public appearances in Reno, Nev. At the age of 8 Stewart was placed in the hands of Mrs. Catherine B. Swint, San Francisco music teacher.

His training since then has been in the hands of Mrs. Swint. And he now sings in five languages as well as playing the piano with unusual ability. One of these days young Brady's name will be known from coast to coast.

Even in Hollywood, where people get paid for making love, there never was a more mixed-up quadruple love tangle than the one revealed by Debe Daniels' engagement to Ben Lyon. Just a short time ago Debe was engaged to Jack Pickford and Ben was engaged to Marilyn Miller. Prior to that Marilyn was Mrs. Jack Pickford. It would be a good joke on Ben and Debe if Jack and Marilyn would become engaged all over again—wouldn't it?

With all this controversy about whether the public prefers silent or talking pictures Carl Laemmle, Jr. young boss of Universal, has decided to settle the question once and for all. Consequently both the silent and talking versions of "Broadway," which young Laemmle supervised, will open in New York simultaneously. As both versions will be shown in Broadway theaters, it is almost a cinch that one of them will have to close shortly after its opening through lack of patronage. Laemmle believes that the film which survives will definitely show the public preference.

Here's a hot one! Raymond Griffith, screen comedian who couldn't talk above a whisper if his life depended upon it, has just been signed by the Christie studio to appear in a series of all-talking comedies. Ray should get by okeh in his first film, "Post Mortems," since he will play the role of "Whispering Jimmy Smith."

According to the Paramount publicity office, muffs are very much in vogue again this season. It seems that Mary Brian was seen on Hollywood boulevard carrying one of the barrel-shaped fur pieces. Now what use would a girl have with a muff in Hollywood where the temperature seldom drops as low as 40 degrees? You'll have to think up a better one than that.

New biographies are aimed at the debunking of Buffalo Bill. Those old yarns about the plainsman probably were just a lot of bear stories.

Coughs...

quick action plus safety

The Special Teascher Process, by which PERTUSSIN is made, has created a quicker and safer cough remedy. It loosens the phlegm, soothes the irritation and quiets the cough by removing the immediate cause. Because it is free from Dope, it is harmless, even for little children. That is why Doctors have prescribed it for 25 years.

"HOME TOWNERS" AT THE STATE TOMORROW

Famous Cohen Play Is Now All-Talking Vitaphone Comedy.

"The Home Towners," a great screen revival of George M. Cohan's great stage success, is coming to the State theater tomorrow for a run of two days.

"The Home Towners" is the latest Warner Brothers' all-talking Vitaphone picture to win the hearts of the American theater-going public. It has been produced entirely in dialogue. There are no sub-titles, save those of the descriptive type. All the characters speak all of their parts.

The cast has many famous recruits from the speaking stage, including Richard Bennett, Doris Kenyon, Gladys Brockwell, Robert McWade, John Miljan, Stanley Taylor, Robert Edson and Vera Lewis. Bryan Foy directed.

"The Home Towners" is a genial, heart-warming, chuckling play—recounting the adventures of two middle-aged chums, the young lady to whom one is engaged, and her family. Robert McWade plays the role of P. H. Bancroft, the small-town pal who hears that his millionaire crony is engaged to marry a Big Town girl. Bancroft at once assumes that the young lady's family are seeking to hoodwink his wealthy friend, so he immediately sets out for the city in his endeavor to straighten out matters. Instead, he sets things entirely wrong, and it is only after some uproarious adventures that he finally clears up the case.

As Bancroft, Mr. McWade is seen in the original part he played in the stage version of Cohan's play. Robert Edson is supreme as the millionaire who misunderstands his pal's actions. Besides being presented with dialogue "The Home Towners" also has a splendid musical score which is played by Louis Silvers and the Vitaphone Symphony Orchestra.

Stan Laurel and Oliver Hardy, a pair of comedians who are fast becoming famous, are also seen on the same bill in "Two Tars," a screaming comedy extraordinary. The latest-up-to-the-minute news happenings are furnished in the current issue of MGM News Events.

A PLANE STRONG MAN.

Orchid

THIS HAS HAPPENED
ASHTORETH and HOLLIS HART are honeymooning in Paris. Ashtoreth is rarely beautiful, and Hollis is extraordinarily rich. He calls her "ORCHID" because she reminds him of that lovely flower.

But happiness seems, somehow, to have eluded them. Before their marriage Ashtoreth had been a stenographer in Hart's employ. She is years younger than he, and he idolizes her youth and beauty. In Paris she meets an old sweetheart, MONTY ENGLISH, who has gone to France to sell radios for his firm. Monty is young and handsome. But he is distressingly poor, and Ashtoreth couldn't see him at all.

He treats her rather coldly, but it is apparent that he is still in love with her. Hollis devotes himself to tennis and the collection of antiques. Both pursuits, however, Ashtoreth to tears. When he is not at the courts, or browsing about in old shops, he makes tender love to his little bride. And that also bores her. Annoys might be a better word. She has discovered that he has two front teeth that come out on little swivels, and that spells the end of romance.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XLV

They were going home again, sailing from Havre on the Victory. In a week they would be in Boston. Mogg was packing. Five wardrobe trunks. Four shoe boxes. And steamer trunks for the linens.

House hold furnishings were being crated. Brocades and credenzas, and an old refectory table that Hollis had picked up in Venice. And toilet things that were said to have been used by Marie Antoinette.

Hollis wrapped the toilet set himself, sending out for an armful of tissue. There was a tea set also, to which he gave his personal attention. The cups were diminutive china swans, with beautiful necks. And they rested on saucers of solid gold. They had belonged to the Empress Josephine. Hollis explained to Ashtoreth that Josephine's emblem was a swan and Napoleon's a bee. He had found a piece of crimson brocade embroidered with golden bees, and believed it to be a fragment from the Emperor's canopy bed at Versailles.

Hollis was greatly excited about his treasures. Almost effeminate, Ashtoreth thought. She hated to see him handling small things with the care a woman would have given them.

The concierge came to help, and brought two assistants with him. Then Hollis handed Ashtoreth's trunks to Mogg, and helped her slip them on the hangers. He handled great piles of frothy lingerie, and made order out of chaos.

Then he ordered more packing boxes, and began the packing of his dearest finds. The concierge and his helpers might pack books and pictures.

But tea sets and toilet sets, and the vases from Limoges; crystal jars that were Pompadour's, and the snuff box that was du Barry's—Hollis handled these with reverent hands.

Ashtoreth, standing in the doorway, watched him. "It's positively womanish," she thought, "the way he loves those things."

And she thought of the way Monty would act in a room that was cluttered with lingerie and tea sets and Marie Antoinette's toilet articles.

"Like a bull in a china shop," she reflected, and smiled to herself. "Well, that's the way a man ought to act."

"Bored?" asked Hollis, glancing up from his self-appointed work of swathing a cup in 10 sheets of tissue.

"Dreadfully," she told him. "I hate packing."

"But you've nothing to do," he protested. "Mogg will take care of everything."

"I know. But I'm hungry. I wanted to go to Jack's for our last luncheon. And now you're wrapping all that junk, and I've nobody to go with."

She blew a little kiss over Mogg's broad back.

"Would you mind a bit," she asked, "if I telephoned Monty, and asked him to take me?"

Hollis straightened from his task. "Why of course not," he said. "Run ahead. And tell Monty to be sure to look us up in Boston."

He smiled as she powdered her nose, and pulled a hat with a wide, dark brim over her eyes.

"When you're as old as I am," he predicted, "you'll be more interested in antiques; I suppose at your age, I'd rather have had luncheon at Jack's, than handle the empty tea cups from which an empress drank. Viewpoints change. Well, run along, my dear."

Ashtoreth took an orchid from the cluster on her dressing table. Hollis had them delivered each day. She planned it at her belt, and rummaged through her bureau drawer for a handkerchief that matched its lavender petals. Then she clasped a string of square-cut amethysts about her neck, and slipped off her pearl ring, to wear a finger stone that matched her necklace. Purple was Monty's favorite color.

Felix was helping pack, so she took a taxi, and stopped on the way to buy Monty a tie, for a little parting gift. While it was being wrapped, she noticed a gold cigarette case, and bought it as carelessly as she had chosen the tie.

A little later she reflected she had never bought her husband a present.

Oh, well, it's his money anyhow, she considered. So what's the sense? Monty would be pleased, because he hadn't the means to gratify every expensive whim. It was very different.

But Monty was not pleased. "A gold cigarette case!" he exclaimed. "Gee, that's awfully nice of you, Ash. But I can't take it, you know."

"Now, Monty, you're not going to pretend to be conventional!" "Oh, it's not that," he insisted. "But, gosh, Ash, I can't accept things that your husband pays for. What do you think I am?"

"What difference does it make to Holly?" she demanded. "He doesn't care how much money I spend."

Monty handled the case appreciatively. "Nothing doing," he pronounced. "I'll take the tie, and thanks very much, Missus Hart."

She shoved the thing across the table. "All right. Let it stay there then. Maybe the waiter would like it."

"Now, Ash," he remonstrated. "Be reasonable."

He raised his glass. "To our vast and varying fortunes!" he proposed. "You are vast. And mine are varying. Oh, the way, Ash, I'm going home. Had a cab for this morning. They want me to try to get reservations on the Victory. I've a friend working on the thing now for me. The passenger list is pretty big, and I'm not sure what luck I'm going to have."

"Why, Monty English!" she cried. "And you weren't going to say goodby, or telephone me, or anything?"

"Oh, yes, I was," he declared. "I was going to telephone your husband this afternoon."

"My husband?" "Yes, meant to ask you both to have dinner with me tonight at Tour d'Argent."

Ashtoreth laughed happily. "Well, it really doesn't make any difference whether you're telling the truth or not. Because—listen, Monty—we're calling tomorrow on the Victory ourselves! Won't you be gloriously there?"

She laughed excitedly. "That's the very best news I've heard for a long time."

The waiter came, and they ordered. Chicken in aspic, dark with truffles. Chateau Yquem, because it was a festive day. And orange ice for dessert, because Ashtoreth had begun to diet.

"Excuse me," Monty rose. "I've a telephone call to make."

He was back in a moment. "I reached my friend," he volunteered, "and he wasn't able to do a thing for me. There's another boat on Thursday. I'll have to wait for that."

Ashtoreth laid down her fork. "Monty English, you're a liar. You've canceled your reservation because you don't want to travel on the same liner with us!"

He grinned easily. "Nonsense, Ash. I told you my friend hadn't any luck. They've been full for a week."

He shrugged his shoulders. "Honest," he said. "You're simply avoiding me, Monty English. You know you are."

"All right then," he looked straight into her eyes. "I am."

"But why, Monty?" "You know why."

"Oh, you're so puritanical!" Ashtoreth attacked her chicken savagely. "Anybody'd think we weren't old friends, the way you talk."

He shrugged his shoulders. "Women detest friendship," he told her. "There's a French cynic—M. de Croisset who was reading some of his epigrams at school the other day. It says 'Women despise friendship. Temperature too low: it gives them a cold of the chest.'"

"Oh, Monty, you're impossible!" "All right. Let's not talk about it. Finish your chicken. Will you have some more wine?"

"She pushed her plate away petulantly. "No, you've ruined my appetite. And I thought we were going to have such a pleasant little goody luncheon!"

"Listen, Ashtoreth," Monty covered her hand with his. "You're not playing the game, little girl. You bargained with me for millions, and you're sick of the bargain. The stakes were high, and you won. Life hates a quitter, Ash. And you've got to stick by your bargain."

"I don't know what you're talking about," she exclaimed. "Maybe I didn't say it very well," he acknowledged. "I'm not much on speeches, but you do know what I mean, Ash."

"That you want me to leave you alone?" she flashed.

He blushed diffidently. "That's putting it rather crudely," he objected. "But since you ask me, that's about the size of it."

"And I thought," she moaned, "that you were my friend."

Monty looked at her sternly. "People who have been lovers can never be friends," he told her. "There's no such thing as friendship between a beautiful woman and a hungry man. I don't particularly want to be your friend, Ashtoreth. I'd rather be out of the picture altogether."

"Then you don't value friendship?" she demanded angrily.

"Oh, yes," he insisted. "It's a wonderful thing between men. I suppose it is also a wonderful thing between women. And I've no doubt there have been rare instances where there have been perfect friendship between men and women. Deep, abiding, loving friendships. But they're rare, Ashtoreth. . . . I don't say a man can't be friendly with a girl. Fond of her, and all that. . . . But, when it comes to one of these close, intimate af-

The child who cannot hear or speak lives of necessity a shut-in existence. Modern developments in the care of this group of our population provide for the teaching of lip reading, so that they may follow human speech, and for the teaching of good writing, so that they may easily communicate to other their own thoughts and wishes.

If such a child unfortunately happens to be mentally backward in addition to having the defects that have been mentioned, the problem is even more complicated.

Keeping Them at Home Formerly it was the custom invariably to attempt to provide for the care of such persons in institutions. It is now realized that a much greater hope of a happy life exists for them if they can be reared to adult age within the family, making all of the modern contacts of life instead of the artificial existence that develops in an institution.

Since it is desirable that everything be made out of such equipment as the child may have, the technique of modern psychology has been called in, particularly in Germany, in order to determine the inclinations and aptitudes of the child and to encourage his development along these lines.

Higher Education Preliminary tests showed that instruction in the field of higher education was just as important for such people as purely technical training in the uses of tools and machines. However, the latter methods will prevail for those who are mentally subnormal.

Apparently there are more than three million children in the United States who are hard of hearing to a greater or lesser degree. The subject is one of the most important confronting the combination of teacher, psychologist and social worker in the effort to give modern conditions for the care of this group of the defective.

The WOMAN'S DAY

by ALLENE SUMNER

Must one infer that when a woman secretary shakes her fist under her boss's nose and thunders at him to "be quiet," she has quite the upper hand of the boss and his job? That's the inference read into testimony given at the impeachment of Governor Henry S. Johnston of Oklahoma to the effect that his private secretary, Mrs. O. O. Hammonds, was really the power behind the throne, and that the fair state of Oklahoma had a governor in petticoats (or whatever the modern equivalent is).

WHAT OF IT? To which the answer is that the state's only concern is in the fruits of the job. If the state has been quite efficiently run, it's as much of a tribute to the governor to have an efficient secretary capable of doing it as to do it himself. No business man would be condemned for hiring so efficient a secretary that his office ran like clock work; neither would he be criticized for any assumption of power the secretary took. That would be adjudged a very personal matter.

To be sure, you might argue that being a governor is a matter of public concern, quite unlike that of a private office. But, still, the whole to-do seems out of proportion.

SHE WON! Chicago police were called to a certain address, a private dwelling, where it was reported, a man was beating his wife to death. They found the man confined under the table which was liberally strewn with broken crockery, frying pans, and other trophies of the chase. The woman triumphant was standing over him, a hot poker in her hand. She was taken to police court; her mate, to the hospital.

WHOLE SEX QUESTION. The story may sound foolishly insane, but one wonders if it doesn't embody much of this "woman question" agitation. We still prattle about "equality of the sexes," implying, of course, that the inequality is all on the woman's side. But when one sifts the matter down, it's surprising to note how many men are under the economic and social table with woman, triumphant, on top, brandishing the poker.

fair—they're dangerous, I tell you. "You're too beautiful, Ashtoreth. And I'm too desirous."

She blushed, and looked at her cheek. "Foolish! I'm not beautiful!" "All right, then. But I am desirous. I'm not old or hard-boiled enough to look at you, and be anything else."

They were quiet for a little while, playing with their glasses. "My God!" Monty broke the silence violently. "Why did you do it, Ash?"

(To Be Continued)

Hollis disappears and Ashtoreth turns wildly to Monty. In the next chapter.

YOUR CHILDREN

"I told you not to do that, you bad boy. Come right here this minute. Now you're all dirty."

"I couldn't help it, honest I couldn't. Mom. Rex's chain was twisted and he—"

"Shut up. Don't answer me back. I know what happened."

"Late again! Didn't I tell you to be home every day at four o'clock sharp? Now just for that you can do without your allowance."

"But, Mother, it wasn't my fault. At least I didn't know it was a lie."

"No impertinence now. When will you learn not to talk back. A rule's a rule. No allowance to a boy who can't keep his word."

"Dorothy-May Johnson, I'm simply amazed that you'd tell a lie. Mrs. Heath was here and explained all about it. I never thought a daughter of mine would tell a lie about such a little thing as a pair of skates."

"But I didn't, Mother, really. At least I didn't know it was a lie. I thought—"

"Now just be quiet, young lady. None of your back talk. I'm telling you; you're not telling me."

And Dorothy-May's mother went on and on, and on about the terrible lie that Dorothy-May hadn't told at all, but got the blame for, owing to a complicated situation and something she could not help.

When will some parents learn that an explanation is not impertinence and that it is due all children? Always give a child time to explain and weigh well his explanation.

Often when the case is blackest against him, he can show you that he was justified in his actions. At any rate, give him a hearing. There is no "black is black and white is white." Even the vilest criminal is entitled to a hearing.

This And That In Feminine Lore

"American college girls are not so seriously interested in their college work as English girls, who go for intellectual reasons. American college girls go to college apparently because the training helps them in their careers or because it is the thing to do socially." These are some of the comparisons stated by Nancy Samuel and Leonora Lockart, English debaters who have returned home after a three months' tour of American colleges. The girls are daughters of British aristocracy and represent the first English team that has ever visited America. They were picked by the National Union of Students of England and Wales to represent British university women. Of course they visited a limited number of colleges but they summarize American college life as "more casual, more social, less intellectual and far less serious an undertaking than it is in England."

Spanish Lima Beans. Soak the beans overnight in cold water and cook slowly for 2 hours or until soft. Fry diced bacon in the skillet; add sliced onion and cook until evenly browned; then add tomato puree and pour into a casserole. Add bay leaves, seasoning and flour, then the drained beans. Mix thoroughly and bake in a 400 degree or hot oven until the top is nicely browned and the beans are thoroughly heated. Sprinkle with chopped parsley or sautéed rings of green pepper.

Another recipe came in for the crisp Scotch oat cakes, but it so nearly resembled the one given Saturday there is no need for repeating it. Still, another Scotch housewife in talking about them, informs me that it is possible to buy the real thing imported direct from Scotland, also bannocks. She tells of their delight and surprise at the goodness of the oat cakes, and of visiting the firm in the old country about them. Much to their surprise they received four boxes, two of each kind, the bannocks and cakes. And yet says she, "they talk about the stinky Scotchman!" If there are any others interested in buying them rather than baking, I will be glad to tell them where they may be obtained, the fresh-baked cakes or the imported ones.

Scalloped Onions and Tomatoes. Six or eight medium-sized onions, 3 tablespoons butter, 2 cups solid canned tomatoes, 1 teaspoon sugar, ½ teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon pepper, ¼ cup grated cheese, 3 eggs, 4 tablespoons buttered crumbs. Peel and slice onions, melt butter in sauce pan and add sliced onions and cook five minutes. Add tomatoes, Costume Flowers. Yesterday at the Ritz Carlton Hotel in New York the first international artificial flower show was held under the auspices of the flower trades. Leading Paris milliners were represented by spring-trimmed hat models for flower wear. Spring flowers for costumes will turn modernistic like many other furnishings and wearables. However, the flowers will harmonize with the fashion trends in style and color. Black and white combinations are in favor, two shades of grey, pale mauves, new blues, lime, lemon yellow, burnt orange, soft greens, beige and tans. In the taller boutonnières two or three colors will be combined. There are small boutonnières of leather, berries and miniature fruit and small felt roses, and trawlers composed of pansies, morning glories and other blossoms and leaves. New creations are of lace in delicate pastel shades for evening wear. A novel idea is to wear the trailer or corsage in the back of the dancing dress, from shoulder to waist.

Green peppers are delicious stuffed with a combination of rice and sardines. Lemon juice and a mere suspicion of onion juice work into the fish give an intriguing flavor to the dish.

Fancy lace straws are used in conjunction with felt to make stunning new dressy spring hats. A green felt has its brim of lace sunburned straw and a bowknot of the straw worked into the hat's crown. This idea of adorning bows onto blouses or inserting them with fagoting or other handwork is new.

Raisin Pie. Two cups seeded raisins, ½ cup granulated sugar, 1 ¼ cups boiling water, 1 lemon, 2 tablespoons cornstarch, ¼ teaspoon salt. Cook raisins in boiling water for five minutes. Add grated rind of lemon and sugar, cornstarch and salt mixed and sifted. Cook, stirring constantly until thick. Remove from fire and stir in lemon juice. Let cool and bake between two crusts. Serve cold. One cup of chopped walnut meats can be added to the raisin mixture just before filling pie for baking.

THE BLACK PIGEON BY ANNE AUSTIN

THIS HAS HAPPENED RUTH LESTER finds that her blond beauty interferes with her opportunity for becoming an expert secretary and consequently dons yellow spectacles...

But men had not let her do it. They were like women who cry out to beautiful babies: "Oh, you precious, darling dumpling! I could eat you up..."

It was a motion picture finally, which pointed a way out of her difficulty. Out of work, she had gone forlornly into a movie theater in an effort to forget her rather absurd troubles...

On a Friday night in January, Jack and Ruth became engaged and Ruth comes to the office next morning with her "disguise" removed. In her office, Ruth greets BENNY SMITH, 17-year-old office boy...

It was a motion picture finally, which pointed a way out of her difficulty. Out of work, she had gone forlornly into a movie theater in an effort to forget her rather absurd troubles...

It was a motion picture finally, which pointed a way out of her difficulty. Out of work, she had gone forlornly into a movie theater in an effort to forget her rather absurd troubles...

Ruth Lester was grateful for the errands to bank and station which "Handsome Harry" Borden had given her to do, for they gave her an opportunity to review, in her undisturbed ecstasy, the miracle which had happened to her...

Sometimes it had been cruelly hard to keep her nose and her deliberately achieved homeliness, for Ruth found, to her surprise and disgust, that she missed the admiring glances of men and women who passed her in the street...

It was a motion picture finally, which pointed a way out of her difficulty. Out of work, she had gone forlornly into a movie theater in an effort to forget her rather absurd troubles...

She had been so proud of him as he of her. For Colby Lester had been one of the greatest criminal lawyers of his day—a criminal lawyer whose greatness lay in his keenness as a detective rather than in jury-awarding. Dan had known five years of his life he had talked over all his cases with his daughter...

It was uncanny how accurately Benny Smith had diagnosed the absurd situation which had made a disguise necessary. Perfectly blond and beautiful as she had been, she had brought her great happiness, she had thought, so long as her father had been alive to shield her...

It was a motion picture finally, which pointed a way out of her difficulty. Out of work, she had gone forlornly into a movie theater in an effort to forget her rather absurd troubles...

"Good work, infant! You've got the makings of a Grade A detective behind those yellow curls. But please God, you'll never have to earn your living in any such sordid fashion as this," he had told her once.

She had used what little money there was to take an eight months' secretarial course, and had come out of business college primed with all sorts of useful knowledge, her little fingers capable of astonishing speed in shorthand and typewriting...

THE RULES.

- 1—The idea of Letter Golf is to change one word to another and do it in par, a given number of strokes. Thus to change COW to HEN, in three strokes, COW, HOW, HEW, HEN.
 - 2—You change only one letter at a time.
 - 3—You must have a complete word, of common usage, for each jump. Slang words and abbreviations don't count.
 - 4—The order of letters cannot be changed.

Whatever the pledge may be.

Come cloudy skies or blue;
I raise my cap to any old chap,
Who does what he says he'll do.

For life is stern and life is brief,
And night shall come again;
Each dylan sun sees a page turned down,
We write there never again!

Come weal or woe, come friend or

Come many days or few;
I raise my cap to any old chap
Who does what he says he'll do.

Lodger: "But you said it would be like home here."
Landlady: "Well, I hope it is."
Lodger: "At home I never paid any rent."

Old Married Friend: "Now remember, dear, the outcome of your first quarrel establishes a precedent. Don't give in."
Young Wife: "I won't. But, do you know, I think some one must have given Jack the same advice."
"You cannot build a reputation on the things you are going to do."

The fellow with a push doesn't have to have a pull.

Wait! From the oven I'll whisk it!"
When her hubby replied, "Let 'em burn!"

Boy: "Yes, sir."
Hunter: "How long ago?"
Boy: "It'll be a year next Christmas."

Son: "Yes, papa, a pig is the child of a hog."

THE TINYMITES

(READ THE STORY, THEN COLOR THE PICTURE)

The Trouble Tots were very scared. How poorly they had really fared. They quivered with in the giant's hand, but he just laughed aloud. "I have you where I want you now," said he, with very wrinkled brow. "I'm going to let you know that funny pranks are not allowed."

"Your crazy tricks are promptly blocked. You were the ones who tightly locked the doors and windows of my home by nailing boards on tight. What would you do if I spanked today?" This scared the should say that you all will be Trouble Tots so much they all turned almost white.

"Oh, please don't hurt us," one cried out. "We realize, without a doubt, that we have all been bad, but after this we'll be real nice. Just turn us loose and we will go." The giant promptly said, "Oh, no! I would only give you all a chance to do the same trick twice."

The Tines, in the meantime, stood and heard the Tots say they'd be good. They rather liked their new found friends, so Scouty jumped and cried, "Oh, good friend giant, our real plea is that you turn those queer Tots free. They've promised they will all be good. Their promise shall be tried."

The giant thought a while, and then he said, "I'll set them free again, if that is what you Tines wish. But, watch them, I advise." With that he set them on the ground. The Trouble Tots then gathered 'round the Tynmites and thanked them, with a tinkle in their eyes.

"Come on, let's play," one Tot soon cried. "I know some games that can be tried. Each Tynmite stand up real straight. Then lean and drop your head. You'll laugh at what we Tots will do. We'll run and jump right over you." Wee Copsy was the first to lean. "This game's leap-frog," he said.

(The Tots give the Tines a ride in the next story.)

JACKSON IS MURDERED
10 YEARS AFTER MADDEN

Decade Almost to a Day Separates Deaths of Two Policemen; Other Coincidences.

The excitement that existed in Willimantic yesterday and again today over the murder of County Detective William E. Jackson recalls the same condition that existed in Manchester ten years ago this morning when it was learned that Captain William F. Madden had been murdered the night before by a gang of silk thieves and gunmen. It was on a Thursday night ten years ago that Bill Madden was murdered the date being January 30, 1919, while ten years after, on a Wednesday evening the Windham county detective was found murdered. As in the present case Robert T. Hurley, then captain of the state police and a personal friend of Captain Madden, at once joined with the local police in the investigation.

The autopsy that was performed on Officer Jackson was by Dr. Henry Costello of Hartford, and it was he who also performed the autopsy on Officer Madden, he having been a close friend of Madden's when he was a student at Trinity. As in the Jackson case only one bullet was found in Madden.

MEN PLAY HOST TO BOY SCOUTS

Center Church League Entertains Troop 3 at Regular Supper.

Departing from the straight and narrow path of dignity and sedateness the Men's League supper, last night, assumed the aspects of a big boy and small boy gathering. The older boys were playing host to the younger boys, Scouts of Troop 3.

After dining on "food fit for kings and such," James Barr and Ray Pillsbury led the group in a good old fashioned song fest, ranging from "Jingle Bells" to "My Bonnie Lies Over the Ocean." Herman Hill, then introduced Chief Executive Frederick C. Hill of the Hartford Boy Scout Council. Chief Hill gave a short history of the scout movement since its beginning in this country in 1910. He concluded his talk with a plea for the fathers to be pals to their sons as they grow up and to live a life that will serve as a guide for youths of today.

At this time Chief Hill presented Roger Cheney, Manchester's third Eagle Scout and a member of Troop 3, with an Eagle Scout ring, token of the appreciation of the Men's League for his services as a leader of the troop. While Scout Executive Hill got his motion picture projector ready David McComb, scoutmaster of Troop 3 was called on to say a few words. Others who spoke were Rev. Woodruff and Joseph Dean.

The motion pictures were shown depicting life at Camp Pioneer in Winsted and gave a very convincing idea of the splendid work being done at the camp. A sketch by members of the troop followed, showing a typical day at camp when the boys are on a hike. This sketch was the product of David McComb and Roger Cheney. A display of flowers, butterflies and numerous other specimens of nature life was exhibited by Harvey Gould.

An electrical display by John Reinartz, Manchester radio wizard, wherein he demonstrated a radio transmitting set by which alternating current was made to resemble direct current through a pinwheel device was the concluding demonstration of the evening. This invention is explained in detail elsewhere in the Herald.

The ladies of the Home Service department of the Federation served the supper of roast beef, mashed potatoes, carrots and peas, celery and olives, cranberry jelly, rolls, coffee and home made apple pie with ice cream.

LOCAL D. A. R. CHAPTER TO MEET ON SATURDAY

Orford Parish Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, will hold its monthly meeting Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock at Center Congregational church. Mrs. Frederick Latimer of Hartford, state chairman of D. A. R. Ellis Island work, will be the speaker. A letter just received from her stresses the need of yarns of all kinds for the immigrants detained there. At the coming meeting the members will bring their annual contributions for this object. Knitted articles that will travel are also acceptable as the men who are at the island are taught to make serviceable rugs of raveled yarn.
