

OLD FASHIONED BOOSTING NOT EFFECTIVE NOW

Concrete Practicality is Key- note in New England Says Official to Boston's Busi- ness Leaders Today.

Boston, Feb. 4.—Time "boosting" methods—mere indiscriminate and extravagant laudation of a community without the essential merit of definiteness—are being abandoned in Chamber of Commerce work, William F. Whiting, secretary of commerce, told business leaders of Boston today at a Chamber of Commerce meeting.

"Concrete practicality is the keynote now," said Secretary Whiting, who declared that a "civic patriotism that stops at the city limits would be shortsighted indeed."

"The activity of organizations like the Boston Chamber of Commerce is the local manifestation of a tendency which in reality is broadly national and which forms one of the most admirable features in American business life today," said the secretary. "The co-operative spirit, and the willingness of business men to work harmoniously for their common interests and for the welfare of their community—without controversy and selfishness—have unquestionably done much to stimulate material and social progress throughout the United States."

Efficiency of New England factory workers, abundance of capital, and ability of business men were declared by Secretary Whiting to be encouraging factors with respect to New England's future as a manufacturing section.

Southern New England "Southern New England," he said, "is the most densely populated and most highly industrialized section of the United States. With only about two per cent of the land area of the country—and a much smaller proportion still if thinly settled northern areas of New England are omitted—and with about six and a half per cent of the total population of the country, this section produces substantially ten per cent of the nation's total value of manufactured goods. The dominant position is by no means confined to textiles, as some may suppose."

"New England produces from three-tenths to seven-tenths, or even more of the entire national manufactures of such commodities as shoes, cotton and woolen goods, fur felt hats, emery wheels, hard ware manufacturers, typewriters, motorcycles and bicycles, jewelry, plated ware, optical goods, textile machinery, firearms, and clocks. It stands very high also in the manufacture of silk goods, paper, electrical apparatus, metal working machinery, leather, rubber tires

BIG CRUISER BILL SURE TO BE PASSED

Senate Prepared to Enact Measure by Overwhelming Vote; Only One Issue.

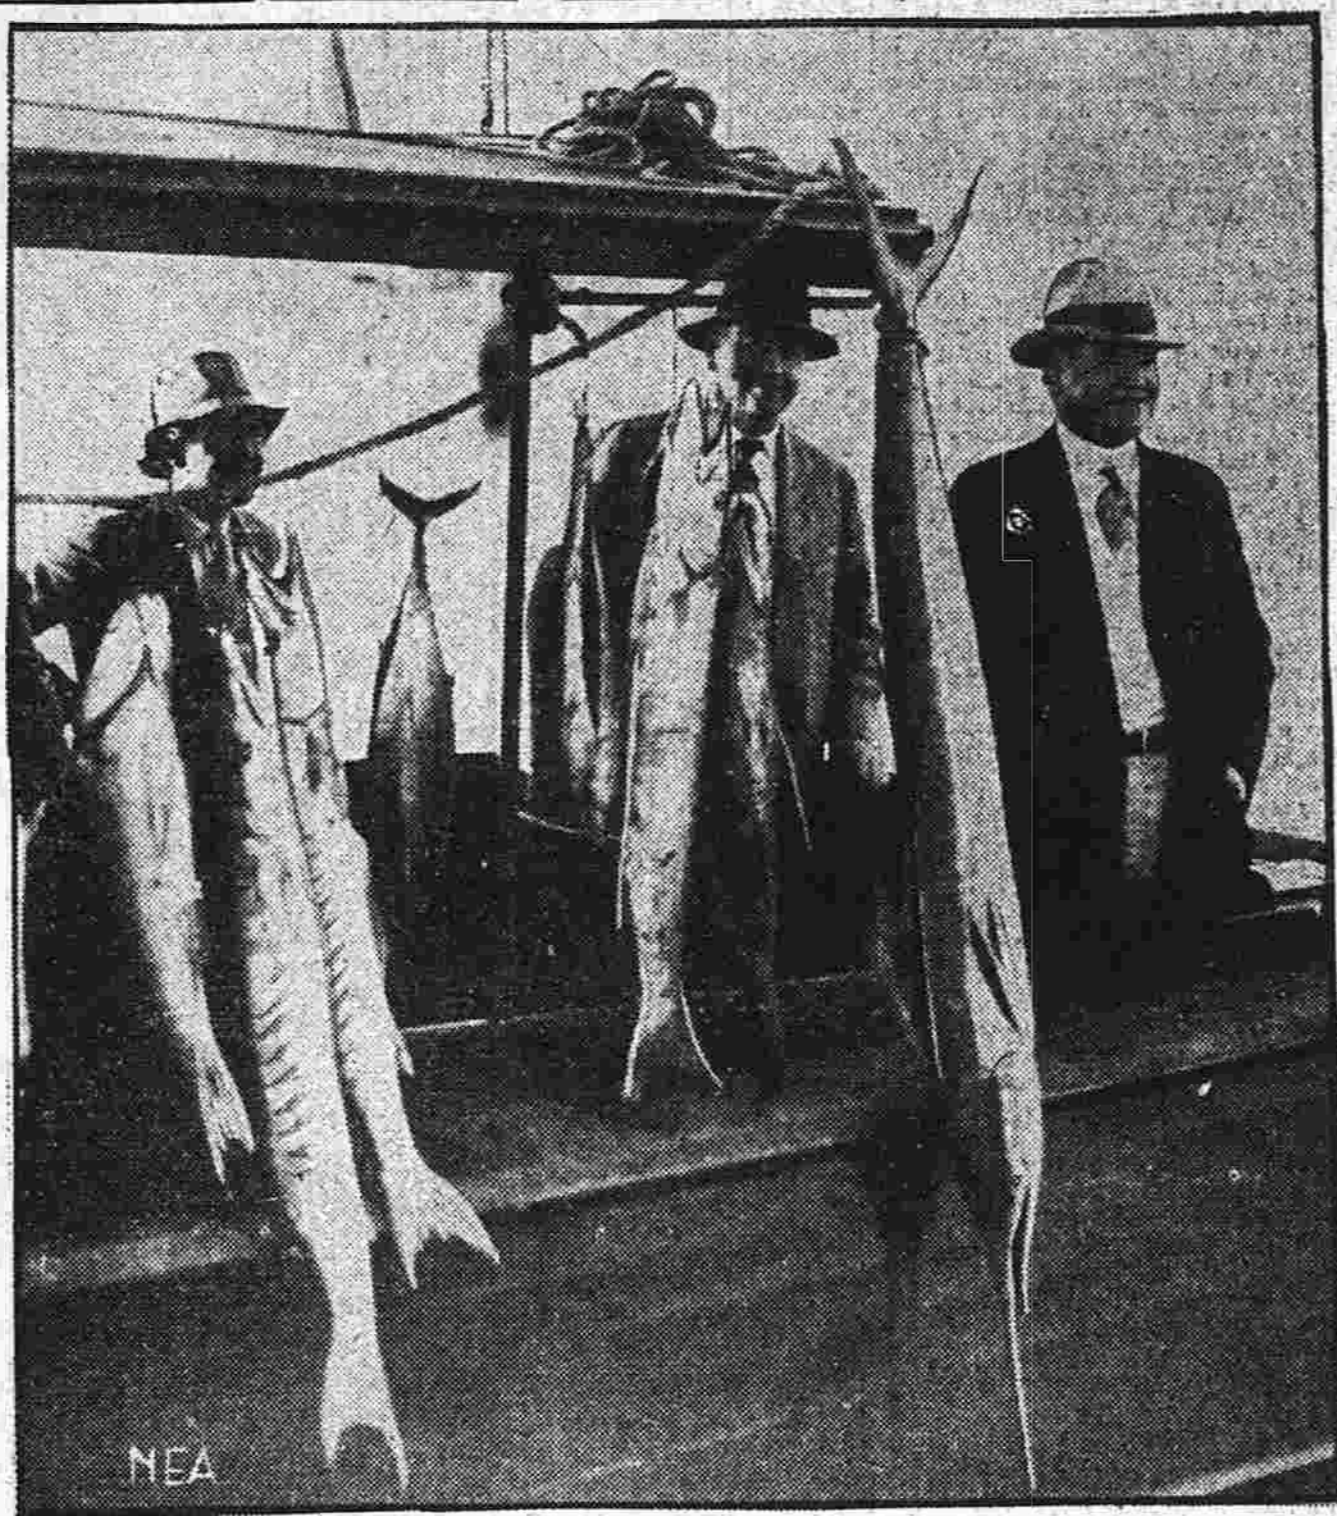

Washington, Feb. 4.—The first real drive since the World War toward building an American navy "second to none in the world" was on the verge of success today with the Senate prepared to enact the administration's new cruiser bill by an overwhelming vote.

While the United States will still remain twenty per cent weaker than Great Britain, its greatest naval rival, in first line battleships, the bill will eliminate some of the British superiority in the second line of defense. It will add fifteen fast modern cruisers to the American navy, supplanting old worn-out obsolete ships, and a giant aircraft carrier. The construction of all sixteen vessels will be started within three years.

Effect of the Bill.
The effect of the bill's enactment has been prophesied variously by proponents and opponents, the "Big Navy" men declared the building of sixteen new warships would bring respect for the American flag on all the seven seas, would insure the security of American commerce in another war and would lead to continued peace, as an adequate American Navy is a security against war. The opposition declared it would provoke war by arming all other nations to engage in a naval armament race, which would only result in hostilities sooner or later, and would lead to a waste of taxpayers' money all

President-elect Lands His Sailfish

He landed it! Prize catch of tropical waters, the valiant sailfish was President-elect Hoover's reward after a half-hour struggle with rod and reel off Long Key Fishing Camp, Fla. Mr. Hoover is shown beside the greyhound of the seas which fell a victim to his prowess. It was seven feet, six inches long and weighed 45 pounds. Other members of the fishing party were Jeremiah Mbank of New York, left, and Justice Harlan Stone, center. The entire day's catch is seen in the foreground.

SEN. SMOOT ASKS HOOVER TO CALL EXTRA SESSION

Explains That This Would Enable Congress to Pass the Farm and Tariff Bills Before the Hot Weather.

Miami Beach, Fla., Feb. 4.—President-Elect Hoover was urged to convene the extra session of Congress on April 1 by Senator Reed Smoot, chairman of the Senate finance committee today.

The Utah Senator said this would enable both Senate and House to pass the farm and tariff bills and adjourn before the hot weather set in. April 15 had been set as the tentative date previously for convening.

Smoot said he favored appropriating whatever amount of money appeared necessary for adequate farm relief but would oppose any measure which would involve price-fixing. He asserted that if $300,000,000 was inadequate, he would vote to appropriate as high as $500,000,000.

Smoot Arrives.
Smoot arrived here this morning for a series of conferences with the President-Elect on federal finances and tariff. He explained that a session started April 1 was necessary to Congress was to get

BIG "DRY" BUDGET STUMBLING BLOCK

Lower House of Congress May Be Forced to Hold Night Sessions.

Washington, Feb. 4.—The 70th Congress will go out of existence a month from today, and the record of its "lame duck" session largely will be made in the closing weeks.

The present session has completed passage of the Boulder Canyon Dam bill and the Senate has ratified the Kellogg multilateral treaty, but beyond these measures little legislation has reached the desk of President Coolidge for approval or rejection.

With the cruiser controversy nearing its end in the Senate, that body faces a grist which promises to cause night sessions before the adjournment gavel is brought down, but leaders of the House regard their work as virtually finished.

"RECEPTION TO AL" TURNS OUT SURPRISE

Natick, Mass., Feb. 4.—The whole town was talking about it today.

The engraved invitations read "A reception to Alfred Emanuel Smith."

Hundreds came to the home of William McCarthy, "Alfred Emanuel" turned out to be the 25-day-old baby of Mr. and Mrs. James A. Smith, neighbors of the McCarthy's.

A pamphlet entitled "The Life and Letters of Al" told of the baby's "goe goos" and the "ahs." Proceeds of the sale of the pamphlet went to start a bank account for little "Al."

SCARES PASSENGERS BY SUICIDE REPORT

Officer Tells Them Captain Tried to Kill Self When He Falls Overboard.

New York, Feb. 4.—Charges that when the Dollar Liner, President Adams, ran aground near the Bahamas several weeks ago, accidentally hurling Captain W. G. Morris into the sea, a U. S. Naval officer aboard the ship frightened passengers by telling them that the master had committed suicide was made today by Captain Fred Kariger.

Kariger, salvage expert of the Panama Canal Zone, arrived on the Grace liner Santa Maria.

Captain Kariger, who gave the first detailed account of the grounding of the Adams, said that Captain Morris of the Dollar Liner left word that when the vessel neared Toro, where it went aground, he was to be awakened from a brief nap which he planned to take in his cabin.

Order Forgotten.
The order apparently was forgotten, Kariger said, and Captain Morris did not reach the bridge until a few moments before the ship struck the reef. The shock threw Captain Morris overboard, Kariger added, and before he could be hauled on deck again, a lieutenant commander, whose name he refused to divulge, had spread the report of the captain's suicide.

The Adams went aground at 3:30 p. m., and was afloat again at 8:45 p. m., Kariger declared.

RICH, OLD INDIAN, DOESN'T KNOW WIFE

Senate Gets Little Informa- tion from Redskin Who Gave Away Millions.

Washington, Feb. 4.—"I don't know."

This was the monotonous song droned out today by Jackson Barnett, aged millionaire Creek Indian before the Senate Indian affairs committee.

Barnett, who is mentally incompetent, has been the center of a growing circle of investigations since his marriage to Anna Laura Lowe, three years after his marriage he thumb-wrecked away two million dollars to his wife and the Baptist Mission Society. This brought national attention to his case, and battles over his money began, which have since kept most of it tied up in courts.

The committee at the instance of Senator Wheeler (D) of Montana, brought Barnett and his wife from their Los Angeles home to determine whether his marriage should have been annulled. Wheeler in previous hearings "criticized" the Indian Bureau for allowing his marriage to stand. He held that Barnett did not know what he was doing either when he married or gave away his money.

The examination.

He questioned the Indian today to find out how much he knew about his marriage. Testimony was to the effect he knew very little—except that his wife took the

Lindy Observes Birthday By Starting On Long Hop

New York, Feb. 4.—Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh is 27 years old today.

America's beloved "Lone Eagle" celebrated his birthday in his characteristically purposeful way—by inaugurating a Florida-to-Panama air mail service. He was scheduled to hop off from Miami this morning for Christobal, Canal Zone, where he is due Wednesday afternoon.

Who of this generation will ever forget that historic achievement? What reporter, whose privilege it was to witness the scene, will ever cease to recall that memorable morning at Roosevelt Field—May 20, 1927—when this slim, blonde, bronze-faced youth jumped into the cockpit of his plane "The Spirit of St. Louis," and with a smile said casually:

"Well, we're off."

And the surge of pride and ad-

BAD CROSSING AGAIN SCENE OF ACCIDENT

Trolley Hits Auto at Love Lane—Burnside Young Man May Die—In Hospi- tal Here.

John D. Leonard, 21 years old, of Forbes street, Burnside, is in a critical condition at the Manchester Memorial hospital following a trolley-automobile crash at Love Lane in the Twin Hills section at 3:31 Saturday afternoon. Leonard was driving his father's Franklin sedan and was coming out of Love Lane on to Center street when hit by a west-bound trolley in charge of Motorman Clayton Kibbe, of East Hartford. Leonard has a fractured skull. The automobile was wrecked.

Crosses Tracks
Leonard was alone in the car. He was driving through from Olcott street intending to turn west on Center street back towards Burnside. He had almost crossed the trolley tracks when the car came down the hill and struck the automobile in the right rear section. The machine was thrown across the concrete road and Leonard was tossed clear of the automobile on to the concrete. It is believed that the fractured skull resulted from the fall to the road.

Amulance Called
An east bound trolley came up the hill to the scene just after the crash. Morris Elman, local real estate dealer, was the first to arrive in an automobile and he dashed on to Manchester to get medical assistance. Elman stopped and notified Holloran Brothers who sent their ambulance to the accident immediately. Then Elman notified the police headquarters here. Patrolman Martin was dispatched.

In Critical Condition
In the meantime Leonard was placed on the front platform of the east-bound trolley and the car proceeded towards Manchester. When the Holloran ambulance met the ### "Battle of the Oil Proxies" Figures Largely in Green- wich Will Suit.

Greenwich, Conn., Feb. 4.—A new and intriguing factor—oil proxies—was injected into the bitter legal battle over the $7,000,000 fortune left by Mrs. Margaret Huntington Gowen McCarthy, Standard Oil heiress.

Attorneys for the young and suddenly wealthy James S. McCarthy, who was left the bulk of his middle-aged wife's estate, charged that the attempt to set aside the will is a skirmish in the financial war John D. Rockefeller, Jr., is waging to oust Col. Robert W. Stewart from control of the Standard Oil Company of Indiana.

Attorney William L. Tierney, a former judge, was quoted as saying that the Cleveland interests who are protesting the will "want the proxies of the estate's holdings in Standard Oil of Indiana voted for London, Feb. 4.—Bombay is the throes of the worst kidnaping scare in its history and as a result serious clashes, are occurring hourly between laborers and Mohammedan Pathan tribesmen, according to an Exchange Telegraph dispatch received here today.

The laborers suspect the Pathans of having attempted to kidnap scores of children for sacrifices in connection with the construction of new public works at Baroda. Aroused by these suspicions,

EIGHT CABINET POSTS STILL TO BE FILLED

But Hoover Keeps Silent on This Subject; Four Weeks from Today President- Elect Takes Office.

Washington, Feb. 4.—Four weeks from today Herbert Hoover and Calvin Coolidge take the long ride together down Pennsylvania avenue, fellow actors in the great quadrennial drama of a change of government.

Mr. Hoover is still occupied, and intensely so, with the selection of his Cabinet. It is not yet completed, some commitments have been made, but there is good reason to believe that a majority of the ten men who will constitute his official advisers are yet to be tapped on the shoulder with the final words "you're in."

A summary of the Cabinet situation today, four weeks from the day the new appointees assume their responsibilities, reveals how closely the President-Elect has kept his own counsel, despite the maneuvers and the stratagems of the politicians himself, according to the most authoritative information. Mr. Hoover does not believe that Jardine ever had a fair chance to adequately demonstrate his agricultural policies, confronted as he was by two hostile and McNary-Haugen Congresses.

Moreover, he was permitted to let Mr. Hoover have the authority to go into the Coolidge Cabinet.

Others Unknown.
Outside of these two posts, both hold-overs from the Coolidge administration, Mr. Hoover's commitments, if any, are unknown. He has established an iron-clad rule that his selections must be known only to himself, and the man in question until he himself sends the list to the Senate on March 4. Thus far his confidences have been very well kept.

As for the eight other Cabinet positions, there is good reason to believe that the candidates line up about like this:

Secretary of State—Henry L.

VETERAN, 96, IS DEAD; WIFE 91, IS DYING

Known as Oldest Civil War Couple in State—Man Is a Victim of Influenza.

East Hampton, Conn., Feb. 4.—Jesse J. Hoadley, Civil War veteran prominent in this district, died of influenza today, and his wife is so seriously ill that she is not expected to live. He was 96, she is 91. They were married March 23, 1859, and had planned to observe their seventieth wedding anniversary next month.

Mr. Hoadley had for years been known as a "Jack-of-all-Trades" working in Westchester, Hebron and Marlborough. He and his wife were known as the oldest Civil War couple in the state.

Mr. Hoadley served in Company K, 14th Connecticut Volunteers, from 1862 to 1865, and was wounded once in battle.

HOTEL OWNER MUDDLE SOON TO BE SETTLED

Waranoke Inn's Rightful Proprietor to Be Decided Upon February 19—Big Mixup in Records.

By an order issued by Judge Wolfe of Hartford County Superior Court February 18, is set as redemption day for the person who really owns the Waranoke Inn, which is a question that has been the cause of considerable speculation among those interested as tenants, mortgage holders and others.

Page after page has been given up in the records of the town of Manchester in which sales have been made, mortgages given, quit claims presented and recorded and there was also a court action appointing a receiver of rents and also a trustee of the place. But after February 18, somebody is going to come forward and say he is the rightful owner.

WIFE 91, IS DYING

Here's How!
When the property was sold by Elman and Paderosky to Anthony Richter he immediately incorporated and then transferred the property to the corporation. It appeared in the record at that time as though there was some $50,000 in mortgages on the place, $33,000 being a first mortgage and the other $17,000 a second mortgage. On top of this there was given a third mortgage of some $30,000 and also an equity in some property in Hartford. The mortgages called for the payment of the interest as it came due. These payments were to be made by Richter, but in the meantime there was another instrument filed in which it was made known that Elman and Paderosky had sold their interest in the third mortgage to Samuel Swartz. Soon after another instrument made known that Samuel Swartz had been called upon to pay the interest on the second mortgage and that he, property was being neglected. He asked for a collector of rents and also asked that Richter, who had been collecting the rents be asked to vacate.

The superior court granted this request and one night Richter moved

SAYS ALLEGED SPY WAS SHOT UNJUSTLY

German General Asserts Mata Hari Killed by French Was Not Employed by Germany.

Berlin, Feb. 4.—Major General Gempff, formerly head of the intelligence department of the German army ministry, asserted today in a statement published by the Koelnische Zeitung that Mata Hari, whose case paralleled that of Edith Cavell, on the allied side, was innocent of the espionage charge against her when she was executed in France. He declared she had never done anything for the German information service.

Mata Hari, who was a noted dancer, was found guilty of espionage by a French court martial in wartime and was executed by a squad of French soldiers. She was charged with furnishing the Germans with military information through underground channels via Switzerland.

Deputy Sheriff Suspected in Jackson Murder Makes Brief Appearance in Court and Then Goes Back to Cell—Makes No Plea Nor Was Any Charge Made Against Him—To Appear Again in Court on Thurs- day.

Willimantic, Conn., Feb. 4.—Tronor A. Rice, deputy Sheriff for Windham county, appeared in Police Court for a moment today, and was ordered kept in custody until Thursday, February 14, when he will appear again in the court. Rice, whose name appears on the police blotter here as being charged with murder, faced Judge Frank H. Foss with William A. King, former attorney-general, at his side, and listened intently as Lawyer King urged the judge to put any hearing of charges against Rice over for ten days.

The former attorney-general announced he had just been retained as one of Rice's attorneys, that he had not prepared his client's case and that he felt certain the state was not yet ready to proceed against Rice. Rice was not put to plea nor was any charge made against him. Immediately after the judge had set February 14 as the date for the hearing Rice turned and was escorted from the room by police officers.

MURDER CHARGE

Twelve hours previously police had announced the formal arrest of Rice for the murder of County Detective William A. Jackson.

Associated with Attorney King in the case is Samuel B. Harvey, who was special state's attorney when the ice box bandits were tried here for murder during the early fall.

Messrs. King and Harvey also are counsel for Thomas Mazzola, recently indicted by a grand jury here for the murder of his mother-in-law Mrs. Rosaria Lorella.

Attorney King announced following the court session that his client had not admitted the slaying of Jackson, declaring Rice has made no confession of any sort.

Rice was taken to the county jail at Brooklyn this afternoon to be held until the court hearing, next week.

Henry S. Gauthier, prosecutor of the local police court, this afternoon announced that the question will arise on February 14th as to whether probable cause has been found and therefore it is likely that some of the state's evidence will be uncovered.

RICE CONFESSES.
Willimantic, Conn., Feb. 4.—Deputy Sheriff Tronor A. Rice, 37, broke down and confessed, detectives said, after new evidence had led to his arrest last evening.

Jackson, a Spanish-American war veteran, a Republican leader in county politics and a sleuth who gained fame in the Gera, a milk man case, was shot and killed as he sat in his home here last Tuesday evening. Detectives said they arrested Rice after tracing footprints from the Jackson house through the woods to Rice's home, a mile and a quarter away. A mystery witness also told the sleuths he saw a man resembling Rice outside Jackson's house at about the time the crime was committed.

Separated from Wife.
Rice is the father of three children and is separated from his wife, who is suing him for divorce on the grounds of cruelty. Although he owns his own home, he had boarded with the Jacksons from last summer up until a week ago Saturday. On that day, detectives learned, Jackson ordered him out of the house because of Rice's attention to 24-year-old daughter, Juanita.

After the murder Rice had acted as "protector" to Jackson's widow and daughter in keeping newspapermen, photographers and curiosity-seekers away from the Jackson house. He also was a pallbearer at his former friend's funeral Saturday.

and various other products. Owing to the relative depression in the textile industries during recent years, the increase of New England manufactures considered as a whole has been somewhat less marked than in the entire country.

Big Export Trade

The tremendous export trade of the New England states, ten leading ports of the region from Portland, Me., to Greenwich, Conn., handling more than thirty-one million tons (two and one-third billion dollars worth) of ocean-borne trade, foreign and domestic, during the last year for which the data are available, and development of railroad and motor truck transportation were touched upon.

"According to the available statistics," he said, "New England exports in 1927 of no less than 81 per cent of the cutlery sent to other countries, and 76 per cent of all the rubber footwear. Its proportion of our total exports for a number of important manufactures exceeded 40 per cent of the nation's total foreign shipments, and almost an equally high proportion for another large group. Although the direct records of exports originating in New England go back only a few years, there is strong indication that in many important commodities New England exports are steadily, and in some cases rapidly, increasing."

Canal Will Help

"Development of the great economic and engineering project of the St. Lawrence canal will assist this region materially." "There should be no doubts or misgivings with respect to economic New England," he concluded. "The heartening factors are many—the favorable forces are strong. And foremost among these is the splendid cooperation constantly manifested here and finding expression through such channels as our New England Council, our Boston Chamber of Commerce and all the other organizations whose effective activities are devoted to the common good."

"Tremendously helpful, also, is the 'regional consciousness' that has been in the process of formation here. All of those who are concerned with the welfare of New England have observed with gratification the readiness of the industries of this section to 'take a fresh view of things' and to reshape their course of conduct in accordance with the new conditions."

Specialized Articles demand among our people for highly specialized articles—for commodities wherein production skill looms large. There can be no question that New England is peculiarly equipped to proceed advantageously along these lines, and we all look, very confidently, for many more typical New England achievements in this field.

"We may rest secure in the knowledge that the vision, skill and courage which in the past made possible such commercial triumphs as the clipper ships, the far eastern trade, the whaling industry, and later, the building up of the countless factories that dot the New England landscape today, are still dominant in the people of the New England. These laudable attributes enable them to conquer transient difficulties and to forge, resolutely and wisely the fabric of the future."

LEAPS TO DEATH.

New York, Feb. 4.—Miss Leah Glasser was in a state of collapse today, worn out by her losing fight to prevent her 27-year-old sister Esther, a Hunter college student, from jumping out of a room on the fifteenth floor of the Medical Arts sanitarium early yesterday. Suffering from a recurrence of nervous trouble due to overstudy, Esther dashed toward the window. She shook off her sister after a desperate struggle and hurtled to her death on the pavement below. The girl attempted suicide by drinking turpentine recently at a sanitarium in Stamford, Conn., police said.

over the world by inspiring needless building of warships. Peace Proposed. One peace proposal, however, may be attached to the bill, the Borah proposal, instructing the President to summon an international conference to negotiate a world treaty, guaranteeing the rights of neutrals on the high seas in time of war. Senator Borah (R) of Idaho who sponsored it, pointed out how both England and Germany grossly violated the rights of neutrals on the seas in the World War. He asserted such a treaty, if obeyed, would eliminate the need for a large American navy.

The only issue on which opponents of the bill will be able to make a presentable showing involves the time clause. President Coolidge has announced his opposition to any time limit on the building program but House leaders inserted the three-year limit in the bill and senate leaders declared they would retain it. Under its provisions, work will be started on the cruiser program by a two-year period, and the final five in 1931. The aircraft carrier will be started before June 30, 1930.

An International News Service poll indicated at least sixty votes in favor of the time clause. This would insure its adoption by a two to one vote. Some administration leaders, however, predicted a closer vote. On final passage of the bill the vote will be overwhelming. The same poll showed seventy senators in favor of the bill and less than twenty opposed, with the others non-committal or absent. A number of Senators, opposed to the time clause, announced they would vote for the bill even if it were retained.

NORTH ENDERS DISCUSS CONSOLIDATION TONIGHT

There is to be an important meeting of the Eighth School and Utilities district directors held in the fire headquarters of the Eighth School and Utilities district this evening when the question of consolidation will be discussed. It is expected that some action in opposition to consolidation will be taken. All those interested in the question are welcome to attend.

TODAY IN CONGRESS

Washington, Feb. 4.—The day in Congress: Senate—Prepared to vote on administration of the new cruiser bill. Perry T. Hale Tells Kiwanians Connecticut Is Doing Good Work for Sightless.

Perry T. Hale of Portland, who is totally blind, interested the Kiwanians club this noon for a full half hour on the subject of what the state of Connecticut and other states are doing for the blind. There are 1,600 in this state and 90,000 blind people in the country. Mr. Hale thought Connecticut was doing a good work. He has been totally blind for 15 years. He told the Kiwanians he was getting a lot out of life just the same. He said his blindness was a secondary condition. He says he keeps busy and does not think about it any more than he can help. As a rule blind people think too much about their affliction. Mr. Hale is a strong robust man weighing about 250 pounds.

BUCKLEY NOMINATED FOR U. S. ATTORNEY

Washington, Feb. 4.—President Coolidge today sent to the Senate the nomination of John Buckley for United States District Attorney, District of Connecticut.

WANT TARIFF RAISED

Washington, Feb. 4.—Representatives of the growers of the south and the flax growers of the northwest both presented proposals for tariff increase in the House ways and means committee hearings today. Jute and its manufactured product, now free or bearing little duty, would have sharply increased duties under proposals of Senator Ransdell (D) of Louisiana.

TO ANNOUNCE SALE

Washington, Feb. 4.—Announcement of the sale of the United States lines and the American merchant lines to the P. W. Chapman Company probably will be announced by Wednesday, it was learned here today. The Chapman company, backed by a syndicate of New York and Chicago bankers, has bid $16,082,000 for the lines, and the Shipping Board now operating the lines, considers the bid about the best obtainable.

GANGSTERS KILL MOTHER OF SEVEN BY MISTAKE

Were After Her Husband in Laundry Feud—Slayers Escape Before Police Arrive.

New York, Feb. 4.—Gangland's killers went out on a job early today and murdered the mother of seven children—by mistake. Mrs. Sadies Petrillo, 36, was shot down in her home by two hired thugs who were after her husband, Adolph. He and the children, ranging in ages from four to seventeen, witnessed the slaying. The murder, police learned, was the result of a feud among drivers of laundry wagons. Petrillo told detectives that several of his customers had moved to the east side and had insisted that he collect their laundry just the same. He had been warned by other drivers, he said, and a few weeks ago fought with a thug who invaded his home.

LATEST STOCKS

New York, Feb. 4.—Though assured of easier money market conditions by the bankers on both sides of the water, the Stock Market was an irregular and jumbled affair today. The pools in a few of the popular industrials carried all before them in their vigorous "campaigns" in market prices higher, while in other sections of the market prices were dropping to the year's low levels as the result of profit-taking and professional "unloading."

LAUDS THIS STATE FOR AID TO BLIND

Perry T. Hale Tells Kiwanians Connecticut Is Doing Good Work for Sightless.

Perry T. Hale of Portland, who is totally blind, interested the Kiwanians club this noon for a full half hour on the subject of what the state of Connecticut and other states are doing for the blind. There are 1,600 in this state and 90,000 blind people in the country. Mr. Hale thought Connecticut was doing a good work. He has been totally blind for 15 years. He told the Kiwanians he was getting a lot out of life just the same. He said his blindness was a secondary condition. He says he keeps busy and does not think about it any more than he can help. As a rule blind people think too much about their affliction. Mr. Hale is a strong robust man weighing about 250 pounds.

TRYING TO RESTORE CHESTNUT TO STATE

New Haven, Conn., Feb. 4.—The state is making efforts to restore the chestnut trees to Connecticut. More than 2,500 chestnut seedlings have been set out in four communities to see whether they would survive the blight, according to William L. State, director of the state experiment station here, who finds "so far considerably more than half the seedlings have died from unfavorable environment but none from blight."

Sister Silently Mourns Brother Killed By Auto

"Tippy" and "Belle Dinah" were rather "Belle Dinah" and "Tippy," ladies before gentlemen, if you please—"Belle" is a lady, sat on the porch of Archie Hayes' home on Birch street yesterday afternoon gazing happily at the stable directly across the way.

Happily, for "Tippy" was eagerly watching the building for a sight of Mr. Hayes. "Tippy" had not seen him since six o'clock that morning when he had left the stable on his daily trip to the house to escort Mr. Hayes to his work. On his trips, which he made every morning punctually at six o'clock, he was accompanied by his sister, "Belle Dinah."

Every night no matter what the hour was, Mr. Hayes was sure of a welcome from "Tippy" and "Belle" as he drove up to the stable.

Tip the Favorite

"Tip" as Mr. Hayes called him, was the favorite, bright and intelligent... a man's dog! None but Mr. Hayes could talk with "Tip." No one else could pet and play with him. A real one's dog.

Was it any wonder that he waited, joyous and alert, for a sight of his master?

Suddenly, thinking he saw Mr. Hayes, he left the step, with a glad cry, bounded across the road, directly in front of the slow moving auto driven by William Taylor, of 46 Cottage street.

Whether the front or the back wheels passed over "Tippy" no one knows. Sufficient to say he was hit, mortally.

Dies on Path

Slowly, or, so slowly, he pulled himself erect, trying with all his remaining strength to reach his friend and master. For almost a hundred yards he dragged his broken and bleeding body and then with one last effort... he died.

On the path over which, so many times, he had escorted Mr. Hayes to his work.

Today "Tippy" is but a memory. At six o'clock "Belle Dinah" came alone to escort Mr. Hayes. As she passed over the spot where her brother passed away, a sniff, followed by a piercing howl escaped her.

That was all. No other sign of grief except an indescribable sadness in her eyes as she wanders, dazed and alone, about the stable.

TELLS D. A. R. MEMBERS REVERSE THE PROCEDURE OF ELLIS ISLAND WORK AND SAVE THE SNAKE!

Mrs. Frederick Latimer of Hartford Speaks at Saturday Afternoon Meeting.

Quford Parish Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, held its February meeting Saturday afternoon at Center Congregational church. Mrs. Frederick Latimer, state chairman of Ellis Island work was the speaker.

Mrs. Latimer has spoken before the chapter on the same subject on two previous occasions but always finds something new and interesting to relate regarding the people on other islands who are detained here.

For years the national and state organizations of the D. A. R. have been doing uplift work for the immigrant men, women and children, and have solicited contributions yearly from the individual members so that the hours of detention may be made a little less tedious by work that interests as well as educates.

Mrs. Frank F. Spencer will see to shipping the box of materials and if there are any from the chapter who have not yet donated, they are requested to do so this week.

Delegates were elected Saturday to attend the thirty-eighth continental congress in Washington, D. C. from April 15 to 20, as follows: Mrs. Lucius Foster, regent; Mrs. Thomas J. Lewis, vice regent; Mrs. Alice Dexter, past regent. Alternates: Mrs. Thomas J. Lewis, Mrs. Frank Wolcott, Miss Ida Holbrook, Mrs. Henry A. Cook, Mrs. William B. Lull, Mrs. Charles Sumner, Mrs. A. A. Wassil, Mrs. Louis Grant, Mrs. Gertrude Parnell and Miss Mary Benton.

Delegates were chosen also to the thirty-sixth annual state convention at Windsor, March 19 and 20, with Alice Wolcott Ellsworth chapter as hostess. They are Mrs. Lucius Foster, regent; Mrs. Charles Sumner, Mrs. Donald Grant, Mrs. Gertrude Parnell, Alternates: Mrs. Thomas J. Lewis, vice regent; Miss Ellen Langdon, Miss Emma Futchinson.

Announcement was made of the entertainment which will be given by the Chapter on the evening of Washington's birthday at Center Congregational church. It is the custom for the members to entertain their friends on this holiday, and each one will be privileged to invite two guests. Details will be given later in regard to the program.

The closing of the meeting Saturday, the hostesses, Mrs. Louis Grant, Mrs. LeVerne Holmes and Mrs. Howard Keith served dainty refreshments.

NOT MAN WHO GAVE LIQUOR INFORMATION William McDuff Doesn't Want 'McCliduff' Confused With Him in Court Evidence.

Schenectady, N. Y., Feb. 4.—Wireless development had advanced a step farther along the roadway of progress today following the completion of two notable broadcast experiments.

The first of the experiments was the transmission of pictures and writing in facsimile by beam wireless from Rocky Point, L. I., to the Somerton receiving station at Somerset, England. According to dispatches from Somerset everything sent was received clearly and without delay. The broadcast included a picture of the Woolworth building in New York.

The other experiment was the broadcast of the voice and features of David Wark Griffith, film director, from the Griffith Electric Company here.

Griffith's voice was heard and his face seen clearly throughout the fifteen minutes in which he appeared before the microphone by professional and amateur receivers in various parts of the country.

William McDuff, of 42 Lilee street, asked The Herald today to state in his behalf that he is not the man who gave information that intoxicating liquors could be purchased from John J. Kennedy, convicted of selling in court here Saturday.

The principal witness against Kennedy, Robert J. Callahan, said that a man named "McCliduff" gave him the information. Mr. McDuff, however, doesn't want the name confused with his, because, he said today, he didn't give out any such information.

MCCARTHY'S STOCK AIDS ROCKEFELLER

The Stewart fight—just as they have been voted for years.

To Aid Rockefeller

It is said that Tierney, one of the executors of the will in contest, will take the stand when the case is resumed Wednesday in Probate Court and testify that the settlement was arranged by Mrs. McCarthy six days before her death, January 31.

The will, her fifth, left $50,000 to her young doctor-husband, an alumnus of Yale, and cut off her first-born daughter, Margaret Gowen, with $200,000.

Lawyers for Miss Gowen and trustees of Western Reserve University, parties trying to break the will, alleged Mrs. McCarthy signed it 48 hours before pneumonia ended her life.

Tierney's Statement

Tierney is said to be prepared to testify that Mrs. McCarthy walked into his office on January 5, before the fatal illness sent her to her death bed, and arranged for her fifth and final will in a business-like manner. He will also declare, it was stated, that the reason for the fifth will was that Mrs. McCarthy had inherited only last December a block of 1,000,000 Indiana oil stock through the demise of her mother. This block of stock, it is claimed, was transferred from Cleveland to New York only last January 3.

Mrs. McCarthy's mother sided with Col. Stewart, it was said, and Dr. McCarthy, who has become a millionaire as a result of the will, is pictured as in sympathy with the Rockefeller in the big oil fight that is to culminate in a "show down" of the proxies at a meeting of stockholders in Whiting, Ind., on March 7.

RICH, OLD INDIAN, DOESN'T KNOW WIFE

Initiative in the marriage matter. "How old are you?" the Senator asked.

"I don't know," Barnett answered.

"Where do you live?"

"California."

"What part of California?"

"I don't know."

"When did you live before you moved to California?"

"Muskegoe."

"Where is that—what state is that in?"

"South of here. I don't know."

"Don't know."

"Who are these people?" Wheeler asked, pointing to Mrs. Barnett and her daughter, Laura Lowe.

"I don't know."

"What have you been doing since you got to Washington from Los Angeles, Sunday?"

"I went to the Zoo to see the animals."

And so on down the line of questions, until Wheeler asked the Indian if he ever asked his wife to marry him.

"No," he said distinctly.

"Was it leap year?" asked the Montanian.

Barnett didn't answer that one.

SMOOT ASKS HOOVER TO CALL EXTRA SESSION

Its important business through the hot weather set in. To open on April 15, Smoot predicted, would be certain to run the session well into July and force an adjournment because of the heat.

Mr. Hoover told Glenn Skipper, Florida national committeeman, that he will make a two day trip of the region around Lake Okechobee to survey the needs for flood control in the Everglades, starting about the 14th or 15th of this month.

Motor Tour

The tour of the Everglades will be made by motor. Skipper estimated the entire trip would encompass about 450 miles. As yet, he had not worked out an itinerary, and could not say where the Hoover party would spend the one night on the road.

Skipper is anxious that Mr. Hoover see the area where more than 2,000 perished when the last Florida storm literally blew all of the surrounding landscape. An outlet for the lake, arranged by practical engineers, is absolutely essential, he said.

Senator Smoot also talked at length with the President-Elect. He forecast quite a general boost in the schedules. Likewise, he forecast much playing of politics. The Democrats, he expects to "log-roll" and attempt to make a big showing in opposing the revision, but he feels confident the Republican majority can hold matters in line and give the country an adequate tariff based on business needs. E. B. Hatrick, general manager of the International News Reel, and Mrs. Hatrick, who are vacationing in Florida, were among others who dropped in and paid their respects today.

Sam Koenig, chairman of the Republican city committee of New York, was another caller. He said he merely dropped in to pay his respects.

SCHOOL SAVINGS

Four schools attained a hundred percent in school savings for the year ending January 29. It was warned today at the Savings Bank of Manchester. The summary follows:

School	Atten. Dep. P.C.
1 Manchester Green	243 100
1 South	74 100
1 Keeney street	58 100
1 Oakland	19 100

GEN. BOOTH HOME

London, Feb. 4.—General Bramwell Booth was back at his home at Hadley Wood, at the outskirts of this city, today after an unexpected trip from his seaside cottage in Southwold.

The 72-year-old Salvation Army leader, whose infirmity still prevents the Army's High Council from deposing him or selecting a successor, made the trip in a deck chair placed in his motor car.

He appeared to be much improved and in excellent spirits, although he looked thin.

BAD ACTORS WON'T FIND SPEAKERS AS EASY AS JOHNSON

Walter Johnson might have had greater success at Newark last season if he had been sterner with the bad actors. But that's something "Tris" Speaker won't be bothered with.

Rube Lutzke, who played third base for Newark under Johnson and also played for Speaker at Cleveland, is responsible for that statement. He surely should know.

"Some of the boys took advantage of Johnson last year and laid down on the job," Lutzke says. "Most of these bad actors are gone. Johnson is a prince of a fellow, but was too lenient at times. But Speaker is a different fellow. They won't get away with that stuff on 'Tris; they either will toe the mark or else 'Tris will know what's wrong."

Lutzke, who holds high regard for Owner Paul Block, says he wouldn't mind playing with Newark this year as he expects them to win the pennant easily.

OPENING STOCKS

New York, Feb. 4.—The railroad stocks led the front as the leaders of the upward movement at the opening of the market today. Chicago & Alton Common jumped up 3 1/2. Western Maryland advanced 3 1/2 to 57 1/2. Smaller gains were recorded in Great Northern Preferred, Baltimore & Ohio, New York Central and Frisco. Radio jumped 7 points to 400. Bethlehem Steel was up 1 1/2 at 83 1/2. Victor up 1/2 at 154 1/2. Chrysler was the weak spot, with a new loss of 1 1/2 at 103 1/2.

GOT HIS MAN

Chicago — Police Sergeant Ed Waller recently got his man by diving into a coal chute. Joseph Madden, the culprit, had driven a truck to an abandoned hotel and when he entered the building, suspicious neighbors called police. Sergeant Waller responded. Unable to get into the hotel another way he was forced to use a coal chute. He battered his nose and tore his uniform, but got Madden who, it was found, had been removing the pipe from the hotel and selling it.

WORLD'S LARGEST RUG

London.—What is claimed to be the largest carpet in the world has been laid in the tea lounge of the New Empire Theater here. The rug was woven in Czechoslovakia, there being no loom in this country big enough to handle it. The carpet cost $35 a square yard.

GOOD OLD DAYS?

London.—Maybe two can live cheaper than one, after all. Mr. and Mrs. Tom Lovelock of Lyneham, in celebrating their golden wedding anniversary, revealed that they were married when Lovelock was making but $2.50 a week and that shortly after his salary was reduced to $2.25.

REDS ARRESTED.

Bucharest, Feb. 4.—Two hundred rabid Communists were under arrest here today following a violent demonstration against the Rumanian royal family. During a meeting last evening, pictures of King Ferdinand, Queen Marie and their late King Ferdinand were being trodden underfoot when the police appeared upon the scene and made the arrests.

INSURANCE AGENTS HOLD GET-TOGETHER

Gather at Home of Frank Valluzzi—Is Presented With Fountain Pen and Pencil.

Frank S. Valluzzi, assistant superintendent of the South Manchester office, gave a roast beef dinner at his home 66 Oxford street, Saturday night. The dinner was served at 6:30 and later there were several speeches made by the leaders of the office.

A record showing the production to be made for 1929 was presented to the assistant superintendent, signed by the following agents: Arthur Wheeler, Rockville; Ernest Linders, Manchester; Howard Dowd, Manchester; Floyd Hallup, Willimantic; Howard Singer, Thompsonville; Charles Gutman, Thompsonville; John Ferguson, Thompsonville, and Hiram Loverin, Rockville.

The evening was spent with plans solos by Joseph Farr, 521 Main street, and Joseph Durkin, song leader. Also there were several saxophone solos by the assistant superintendent. The evening was enjoyed by all.

Mr. Valluzzi, in behalf of his good work with his staff, was presented with a Conklin fountain pen and pencil, which proved a great surprise to him. He in return thanked the workers for their appreciation.

DANCING TO FOLLOW DeMOLAY CEREMONY

Officers to Be Publicly Installed Tonight in Temple—Social Time Follows.

John Mather chapter, Order of DeMolay, will hold a public installation of its newly elected officers tonight in the Masonic Temple. Dancing will follow the installation and this unique feature will no doubt draw a large crowd.

The installation ceremony is very impressive and well worth witnessing. Ward Kerr will be installed as Master Councillor, Sherwood House as Senior Councillor and Carlton Walthers as Junior Councillor. Those who will assist in the installation are James Logan of Hartford, George Nelson, Norman Gibson and James O. McCaw, Jr.

ABOUT TOWN

Miss Lillian G. Grant of Cambridge street, well known local electionist, will be one of the entertainers at the social following the business meeting of the Buckland Parent-Teacher association tonight. A short musical program will be given and refreshments served by the committee for February which includes Mrs. Sarah Robinson, chairman; Mrs. Beatrice Clark, Mrs. John Clegg, Miss Nellie Smith and William P. Fickles. A large turnout of the members is hoped for.

The Women of Moosehead Legion will sponsor a whist tomorrow evening for the benefit of the treasury at the home of Mrs. William Scott of McCabe street. Six prizes will be offered and refreshments served. The card party is open to any who would like to attend.

Rev. Robert A. Colpitts of the South Methodist church will be one of the speakers at the meeting of the District World Service Council tomorrow in Baltic.

All members of the Girls' Friendly society of St. Mary's church are urged to attend the meeting in the Parish House at 7:30 this evening. Returns of tickets on the turkey supper February 12 are asked to be in tonight. Miss Viola Greenaway is in charge of decorations for the supper, an error in the recent committee assignments having been made in the last report.

STUMBLING BLOCK

bill continues to be a stumbling block for administration leaders, with the ultimate outcome in doubt. Fear is expressed that the present deadlock between the two Houses may result in defeat of the deficiency bill, which contains in addition to the dry fund amendment, $15,000,000 for tax refunds and money urgently needed by many governmental departments.

Radic legislation promises to assume a place of importance. With the terms of the present commissioners expiring February 23 and his legislative authority expiring on March 16, backers of the White resolution to extend its life another year were planning a drive for action.

BIG "DRY" BUDGET

No Sign of Spread

While the short session apparently will end with comparatively little major legislation enacted, leaders of both bodies are making no special effort to speed up action. They hold the view that necessary legislation is being considered, and that the fewer laws enacted the better.

Discussion of farm relief and tariff legislation, both of which will be considered in a special session, already is assuming a prominent place in debates in the House.

THE GRAND LIST

That Manchester faces the duty of revising its system of finance is brought home with sudden and striking force by the developments in connection with the grand list. Tax affairs in this town have taken a turn which calls for wise and early action. Nothing can be more obvious than that we have been switched onto the wrong track and that the rails on which we are rolling lead downhill and into the ditch. Not an instant too soon can we apply the brakes, back up and take the route of sound finance.

Any town which in the course of a year experiences an accretion of close to a million dollars in new residential construction alone; which has suffered no destruction of property worthy of mention by fire or other catastrophe; in which the industries have gained rather than lost in prosperity, and which then finds itself with a total of taxable assets showing less than twenty thousand dollars increase over the previous year—such a town is, with perfect clearness and certainty, suffering from maladministration of its taxing authority and has the choice of giving itself a new deal or going broke.

When assessors, following mathematical formulae, scratch their heads in unconvinced bewilderment at the shattering results in "depreciation" ordered by those formulae and yet know no way of correcting what is manifestly glaring error, then something is immensely wrong either with the assessors or the mathematics.

As a matter of fact, what dollar's worth of taxable property in Manchester—save perhaps, an outwearing automobile—is worth a split hair less today than it was a year ago? None.

None, because over against any rule-of-thumb formula of cost-organization, of charge-offs for obsolescence, of dreary book-keepers' fiction of that sort, stands the living fact of community growth, of national growth, of increasing industrial development and opportunity. Intangible perhaps, not weighed and measured and portioned out by Mr. Linder's system of charges and allowances, but a vital element in the situation none the less.

Take these hundred or so of dwellings erected in this year. What have they contributed to Manchester. Nearly a million in taxable values, to be sure. But what else? They have contributed population. Most of them mean, directly or indirectly, new families in town. And what is it that creates all urban values? Population, of course—for if Manchester's population were to disappear would all the property in the town's limits bear a plugged nickel of value for purpose of sale, rental or taxation? Certainly not. So that in proportion as these new homes have added to the population, and in proportion as they have assumed their share of the burden of fixed charges upon the community, they have added to the value of every stick and yard of other property already here.

Here is a town, then, that is beyond any cavil on the upward trend in values, where the increment in reality is making some of our citizens rich and adding substantially to the estates of thousands—and of a sudden it is confronted in the exercise of its taxing power by this death's head ogre of "depreciation."

It is jumping the tax rate. It will jump it again and again. Until the levies reach the point where Manchester will join that sad coterie of American towns that have been "taxed out"—their growth and development halted, their business future ruined, all their bright prospects shattered by privilege assessments and a crushing millage.

Whether it is a fundamental wrongness in the Linder system we do not know. Whether it is incompetency in the application of that system, we do not know. But we do know that the disclosures of the grand list are shocking and that in them lies grave portent of danger to Manchester.

OUR SENIOR SENATOR

We have always ardently supported Hiram Bingham, of Salem, Conn., and Washington, D. C., and we sincerely applauded when he was given the opportunity to represent this state in the United States Senate. We have never lost an opportunity to praise Mr. Bingham's stand on great questions, and we have seldom passed up a chance to hear him speak on one of his visits with his constituents. Therefore, it was with genuine fervor that we read, and re-read several times, a recent editorial in the New York Daily News, a tabloid newspaper.

The editorial follows:

"Bingham (Rep., Conn.)"

"When you want to know something about a given cause, take a look at the type of man that supports it and at the type that opposes it.

"The cruiser bill's most active opponents in the United States Senate are Borah of Idaho and Brookhart of Iowa. Borah is the idealistic apostle of the round table and the legal document which ought to be binding, but somehow is not when nations decide to fight. Brookhart is Borah minus the vast legal knowledge and plus the noblest paunch and pair of jowls to be seen on the floor of the Senate chamber.

"Most of the cruiser bill's backers are well known—Reed of Missouri, Swanson, Moses, Oddie. The man whom you would most confidently expect to find supporting the bill is a less press agented and publicized senator. He is Hiram W. Bingham (Rep., Conn.)

"Bingham has been four years in Washington. He was elected to fill out the term of Frank Brandegee, who committed suicide in 1924. Regularly re-elected in 1926, Bingham has four more years to go at least.

"He is possibly 6 feet 3 inches tall and about 55 years old. His face is tropic-tanned, young. Aggressive, he has no pompous senatorial manner; he does not boom or har-rumph when he talks; he looks you in the eye as if he felt that a private citizen was almost if not quite the equal of a senator; he sports no bay window.

"The man has had a career—well, write your own comment. Here is a part of it:

"Born in Honolulu, of Congregationalist missionary parents. Came with father to United States at the age of 16. Worked his way through Andover and Yale. Taught Latin-American history and related subjects at Harvard, Princeton, Yale. Did not acquire the professional squint. Led five exploring expeditions into South America—Venezuela, Colombia, Peru.

"Learned to fly at age of 41. Organized ground schools for the war department after the United States entered the war. Went to France to direct largest American flying school.

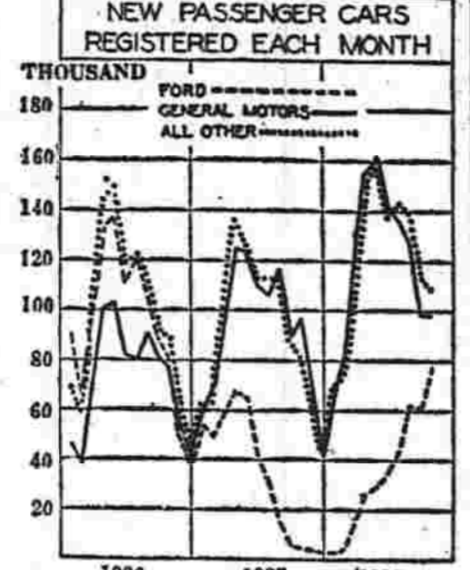

"Entered politics on return from France after the war. Lieutenant governor of Connecticut, governor, senator. As senator he helped to frame and was chiefly responsible for passage of the air commerce act, which put commercial aviation in the United States under the supervision of Hoover's department of commerce.

"Supports the cruiser bill because 'I happen to have been outside this country, and have no patience with these people who think that when an American leaves the United States he is strictly on his own. I believe we should protect our nationals reasonably wherever they are, and that we should have the ships and the men to do it.'

"He is not particularly popular in Washington, possibly because Washington is easy-going and Bingham is forthright and energetic. And in his time he has been taken in some howling inconsistencies. But when you talk with him you feel that here is a man who knows what it is all about, in the United States and elsewhere."

CLIMBING UPWARD

Look at this diagram and you have a picture of the automobile industry at a glance. It is a picture of passenger car registration for the last three years prepared by the statistical department of the Cleveland Trust Company and printed in a recent business bulletin of this firm.

Ford and General Motors production are separated from the others and compared individually with the rest of the industry. The result is enlightening.

Perhaps the most interesting feature of this diagram is the revelation how first Ford and General Motors practically controlled the trend of automotive registration.

In 1926, as Ford went so went the industry. Since then, as General Motors went so went the industry.

Now the upward direction of the Ford registration curve points to a great change in 1929. What will happen between Ford and General Motors is only conjecture based on hope or fear, dependent on one's viewpoint.

But the positive sign is a quicker climb to a higher registration peak in 1929 than has ever been reached before.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

White Marks On The Fingernails
 Question: W. M. M. asks: "Will you please tell me what causes white marks on the fingernails and how they could be prevented?"
 Answer: These white marks are minute bubbles in or immediately under the nail. This is usually caused by a slight injury at the nail root by a lack of the proper elements in the diet or by some nervous disorder. They can usually be prevented by building up the general health and avoiding probing the cuticle too deeply.

Some Questions about Nephritis
 Question: A Reader asks: "Should a woman over sixty who has albumin in her urine? Should she use cream of tartar in the drinking water and is sugar harmful in this complaint?"
 Answer: The albumin found in eggs, while similar to the albumin found in the urine, is not the same and has no special bearing upon nephritis—the usual cause of albumin in the urine. I do not advise cream of tartar in the drinking water, nor sugar, for this condition. Digitalis is a poison and a tea made from it could not be beneficial in nephritis. The best thing for you to do would be to send me your name and address so I can send you my article on the subject, with complete instructions.

Red Nose
 Question: Interested Reader writes: "An article on the causes and cure for a red nose will be greatly appreciated by a great many."
 Answer: An overly-red nose is always caused from some kind of digestive disorder, principally from putrefaction in the colon.

THE DIETETIC CRISIS
 The majority of people do not make any decided dietetic change unless they are desirous of overcoming some diseased condition of the body, and while the results and recoveries from a change of diet are often spectacular, it must be remembered that most sick people are laden down with disease toxins and that these toxins must be eliminated before the elements of the food can be properly assimilated and incorporated into the body.

Sometimes these poisons have accumulated in such quantity that a change toward a more wholesome diet produces what has been termed a dietetic crisis. As the blood becomes more alkaline, it dissolves many of the virulent toxins which have been deposited for years in the tissues of the body. As these toxins circulate in the blood before being eliminated, they may cause various aches, pains and headaches until the eliminative organs such as the kidneys, intestines, lungs, liver and skin have removed them from the blood stream. These disagreeable symptoms are really favorable indications and will disappear as soon as the poisons are eliminated. Breaking a fast in the middle of one of these periods throws the toxins back into the tissues and interferes with the cure. Likewise, certain drugs which are widely used will suppress the elimination of these disease toxins and by stopping the crisis, prevent the body from getting rid of a sort of bodily housecleaning, and often as much improvement occurs during a two or three weeks' crisis as might ordinarily require weeks or months.

If the poisonous materials which are being discharged through the various membranes of the body are especially virulent or in unusually large quantities, a local irritation of the eliminative organ may result. For this reason a crisis is sometimes accompanied by skin eruptions, showing elimination through the skin; or by a sort of cold, indicating elimination through the mucous membranes; or by a diarrhea, indicating elimination through the bowels; or by a burning, profuse urination, indicating elimination through the kidneys.

These symptoms do not occur except in a small number of cases, and they are not so apt to occur if no food is used except some acid fruits, such as lemons, oranges, grapefruit, etc., which are thoroughly cleaned daily with enemas, but I want you to be acquainted with the symptoms of a dietetic crisis so that you will know what is happening if it should occur. Remember that the best policy is to continue on the fruit diet, drink plenty of water, use enemas, and increase the skin elimination until the crisis has passed. If you do this you will feel much better than before the crisis occurred, but if you stop the crisis by eating rich food or by using a suppressive drug, you will probably feel worse.

IN NEW YORK
 New York, Feb. 4—You can see him any noon hour in one of those little "ring-the-bell-and-ask-for-Joe" bars in the mid-Forties. His type is that of the "Southam colonel, sah," of the James Lane Allen tales. He still wears one of those twisted white stocks, fastened at the front with a horseshoe tie pin. He arrives with perfect first-act dignity, passes a good morning to the bartender, who immediately begins to arrange a large glass of "rickey." Then, with the gesture of one granting a favor he makes his way to the free lunch counter, condescends to accept a small plate of stew and a few crackers and seat himself magnificently in a booth. There you can see him sitting for an hour or more, looking indifferently and patronizingly upon the strangely conglomerate crew that drifts in.

He never drifts out of "role"; he never departs from "character"—as they would say on Broadway. He is a true trouper of the old school; he never grows old in his trade, pompously gesturing to the very end.

There are, indeed, few of them left, even on Broadway.

"It's the sort of show," says a recent reviewer in Variety, "that should be played before a net."
 But you won't get the gag unless you belong to a generation that tossed things at the actors when they get too bad.

O. Henry gave to Manhattan's back hall bedrooms a romantic and also drab place in American fiction. And so they have remained to this day. They are inhabited by the spectral odors of many transient guests; they have been the settings for heartbreak and joy, for wishful yearnings and cheap illecebrosities, for young love and old bestiality.

From the windows of the back hall bedrooms hang the symbols of thrift—silk stockings, recently rinsed in the washbowl; or a shirtwaist, trusted to the sooty propinquity of a nearby factory.

The rooms reek of people who have come and gone. The orders of many cheap dinners, prepared on tiny, one-burner gas plates, cling to the walls. The wallpaper is ancient and faded and droned in the old odors. A sense of depression clings—as it did, to that mignonette-scented room of the O. Henry tale.

And things do happen there—mean things and tragic things. Today's suicide makes way for tomorrow's transient guest.

Today the lovely new arrival looks lonesomely off across the neighboring rooftops, with a predatory cat as the lone bit of observable life; tomorrow she is whisked away in a taxicab to disappear somewhere in the city; next week the stout man falls limply to the floor with a stroke, and next year another new arrival finds only depression in her introduction to the city.

Thus it goes!

Commuters to New York engage in an endless card game, which begins at the out-of-town station and ends five seconds before arrival. Year upon year these games go on, until casual seatmates grow into cronies. Recently one of these big bridge and rummy men made a lot of money on Wall Street and decided to retire. But he found that he had left so active a life that he missed his daily contacts. He tried to fight off the desire for his morning card game and his other minor social encounters.

Now he appears, as before, for his train bridge game and when Grand Central is reached he turns about and goes lonesomely home.

RASCH CASE GOES OVER TO SATURDAY

Oakland Woman's Trial for Liquor Selling Is Again Postponed by Court.

The case of Mrs. Elizabeth J. Rasch of Hartford, proprietor of Pine Hill Inn, called Manchester's only "night club" at Oakland, charged with a liquor violation, has been continued until Saturday morning. It was originally scheduled to go to trial in Manchester police court this morning but court officials decided to adjourn it until Saturday at which time two other liquor violators are booked for trial.

The Rasch case had another episode early yesterday morning when Mrs. Margaret Leach, younger sister of Mrs. Rasch, called Police Headquarters and said that her sister had been drinking and had been beating her. Policeman Arthur Seymour called Taxicab Driver James W. Foley who went to the place and took Mrs. Leach to the home of her mother, Mrs. Mary Davis, in East Hartford. Mrs. Leach said she did not want her sister arrested but simply wanted to get away from the place. Her wishes were complied with in full Saturday at which time two other liquor violators are booked for trial.

Tony Prichodka of 60 North street was fined $200 and costs in 20 days jail sentence when convicted by Judge Raymond A. Johnson in Police Court late Saturday morning on a charge of keeping liquor with intent to sell. He took an appeal and bond was fixed at $500. This was a liquor violation in which the state obtained conviction solely through the efforts of Robert J. Callahan of Hartford who claimed to have bought liquor in places operated by nine Manchester persons during the early part of January.

Including the other five cases reported in Saturday's Herald, the court imposed fines totaling exactly $1,000 plus costs and 120 days in jail sentences. Clifford Wilson, the young man with the "silver tongue" as he has come to be known, was found guilty of non-support and given a suspended jail sentence of six months and placed under the care of the probation officer. An additional charge of obtaining goods under false pretenses was suspended. Attorney W. J. Shea maintaining that the property in question, an automobile, had not changed hands, the negotiating simply being future promise on the part of Wilson.

WAPPING

S. Frank Newberry, formerly of South Windsor, died in Los Angeles, Calif., on Tuesday, January 22. He was 63 years old. Mr. Newberry was born in South Windsor, but had lived forty years in the west, most of the time in California. He went to the Klondike at the time of the gold rush in 1897. He had been a student all his life of metaphysical, sociological subjects, and had written on those subjects. He leaves three brothers, Leslie W. Newberry, John M. Newberry and Dwight E. Newberry, and one sister Miss Florence E. Newberry, all of South Windsor. The funeral was held at the home of Leslie W. Newberry last Wednesday afternoon.

Lou Burton and Miss Ruth Herrington, were married at the East Hartford parsonage Wednesday evening, Jan. 30. Rev. Truman H. Woodward performed the ceremony. A reception followed at the home of the bride, in Burnside.

Mrs. Robert Skinner has recently been quite ill at her home in Pleasant Valley, with quinsy.

The Blue Triangle girls basketball team gained a victory over the P. & F. Corbin girls, in a game played at New Britain last Wednesday evening. The score was 14 to 8.

Mrs. Joseph Agost has been quite sick at her home for the past two weeks, and her daughter Mrs. Annie Kupchunas is ill at her home with an attack of the grip.

The annual election of officers of the Blue Triangle Club was held at the home of Mrs. Truman H. Woodward, in East Hartford, last Thursday evening. The following were elected for the ensuing year: President, Miss Eleanor Stoughton; secretary, Miss Miriam Welles and treasurer, Mrs. Ella Burham. The meeting was turned into a surprise party on Mrs. Woodward. Refreshments consisting of salad, rolls, cake and ice cream, were served. During the social time, Mrs. Woodward was presented with a gold piece from the girls as a token of their appreciation for the work which she has done for the club.

Saturday night the Blue Triangle girls basketball team will go to Tolland where they will play the Tolland girls team.

FACTS ABOUT CONNECTICUT

Compiled by the CONNECTICUT CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

(227) Making the Laws.

The members of the General Assembly, chosen at the general state election on the Tuesday after the first Monday in November in even-numbered years, serve for two years. The General Assembly meets in regular session at the Capitol in Hartford on the Wednesday after the first Monday of January following election. It must adjourn sine die not later than the first Wednesday after the first Monday in June following its organization. The General Assembly may be convened in extra session at any time or place by the Governor.

Members of the Legislature receive a salary of $300 for their services. They travel to and from their homes at state expense. Although the Constitution specifies who are eligible to membership in the General Assembly, each house judges of the election and qualification of its own members and prescribes its own rules of procedure in transacting business.

In the procedure of lawmaking a law may originate in the form of a bill in either house. Regularly, this bill must be referred to the proper committee, return therefrom and, if approved by the committee, be printed for the use of the members of the General Assembly. It must be read in each house on three different days.

A bill that has passed one house may be amended or changed in the other, but it must then be returned to the house in which it originated for its concurrence. When passed by both houses, the bill is sent to the Governor, who signifies his approval by affixing his signature. The bill then becomes a law, a part of the statutes of the state. The Governor has the privilege of vetoing the bill by refusing to affix his signature.

Two Coasting Accidents.

Two serious coasting accidents occurred Sunday afternoon which should sound a future warning to coasters. John Vanishewsky, seven year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Gregory Vanishewsky of Pillsbury Hill, collided with a ford driven by Herman Luetjen. The child was coasting down Pillsbury Hill crossing the highway. He was taken to the Manchester Memorial hospital where it was found he had concussion of the brain, he is now in a critical condition.

The second mishap occurred at 4:30 o'clock to Kerwin Lisk, 12 year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Lisk of Union street, who was coasting in Grant's lot on Union street. It is thought that young Lisk, who was wearing colored glasses, was unable to see where he was going and ran headlong into one of the large trees in the lot. An artery in his head was severed. He was taken to his home and attended by Dr. Pillsbury. It was necessary to take seven stitches to close the wound.

COASTING VICTIM'S CONDITION BETTER

Rockville Boy in Hospital Here—Has Concussion of the Brain After Crash.

Struck by an automobile while coasting near his home in Rockville yesterday afternoon John Yanishewsky, seven years old son of Mr. and Mrs. Gregory Yanishewsky of Pillsbury Hill, was badly injured and taken to the Memorial hospital here. At first it was reported the child was critically injured but it was stated at the hospital this morning that such was not the case. No X-ray pictures had been taken at this time. The child has a bad concussion of the brain in addition to other injuries.

The automobile was driven by Herman Luetjen, 25, of 95 Grand street, Rockville. Because of an embankment, the coaster and autoist could not see one another approaching.

Beware of COLDS NOW!

whether you've had the FLU... or not

This is the time of year when serious cold troubles, such as deep chest colds, bronchitis, and pneumonia are always at their worst.

Just now, with so many people in the weakened condition that follows a flu attack, it is more important than ever to heed every cold as a danger signal and check it promptly before complications can set in.

Quick Direct Treatment

At the first sign of a cold, melt some Vicks in a bowl of hot water and inhale its healing vapors. Also place some up each nostril and snuff well back. This quickly opens the air passages.

At bedtime, rub Vicks vigorously over throat and chest and cover with a warm flannel. Most colds yield overnight to Vicks two-fold action:

Acts 2 Ways at Once

(1) Its medicated vapors, released by the warmth of the body, are inhaled direct to the inflamed air passages, loosening the phlegm and easing the difficult breathing.

(2) At the same time, Vicks acts through the skin like a poultice, "drawing out" tightness and soreness, and thus helping the vapors to break up the congestion.

Mothers especially appreciate this simple external treatment because it cannot upset children's delicate stomachs, as too much "dosing" is so apt to do.

The Maytag tub was originated and designed by the Maytag Company and a $900,000 aluminum foundry, the finest in America, was built to produce it economically.

It keeps the water hot for an entire washing, and is shaped to guide the gyrofoamed water into many cross currents. The sediment trap collects the loosened dirt and keeps the water clean. The gyrotator is counter-sunk into the tub so that it will not tangle the clothes nor injure buttons.

High School Five Defeated Twice Over Week End REC MUST STEP TO WIN TOMORROW NIGHT

New Britain Powerful Despite Bristol's Victory on Saturday

Hardware City Trimmed Meriden Which Conquered Bristol Which Beat and Lost to New Britain Proving It's Anbody's Title Yet.

BY TOM STOWE.

The Rec Five's path in its attempt to wrestle the state championship from such opposition as Meriden, Bristol and New Britain is certainly not strewn with roses. Admittedly, the Manchester team is a powerful one, but after watching the Bristol-New Britain game Saturday night, I have come to the conclusion that Manager Ben Clune has cut out a man's sized job for his team this month.

Bristol looked like a team that couldn't be beaten as it mopped the floor with New Britain to take a lead in their series. Yet Meriden boasts of two straight victories over Bristol. Then for the express purpose of getting everybody all bawled up in effort to solve the "who's who" in Connecticut basketball, the fact is revived that New Britain has broken even in a series with Meriden and fared similarly in one with Bristol earlier in the season.

One thing seems certain. The Rec Five will not have clear sailing in its home arena games with these three powerful clubs. However, in case it does, the Manchester team will deserve a world of credit. These facts are offered as a warning to Manchester basketball fans that the Rec Five is going to be confronted with its next few games. New Britain comes here tomorrow night and expectations are that the Rec gym will house a capacity crowd. Arrangements are being made to have the doors open earlier than usual and to have ushers in charge of seating the crowd.

The mere fact that New Britain was badly outclassed by Bristol Saturday night on its own floor doesn't mean that the Rec Five will have any easy picking tomorrow night. It must be borne in mind that New Britain has met some of the leading basketball teams in the east and has furnished high grade opposition in every instance, winning several games from such teams. Of late, New Britain has been in a losing streak which reached six Saturday night. But look how strong the team is at present. It's not my boss. He can jump off the dock. I'm going to fly to West Palm Beach and fly into Miami the day of the fight. I'm going to have the stick myself. Tunney always had someone pilot fight about as well as he liked to fly a plane himself.

Commissions Are Heartless
Willie, for the first time, also gave the leggie reason for the terrible fight he made against Paul Berlenbach in New York. His wife was sick.
"All I could see in the ring that night was my wife's face all flushed up and burning with fever. I wanted the fight postponed. But the commission wouldn't allow it," he said.
Willie is going to knock out the Sharkey fella. He promises it.
"What will I do to this Sharkey man?" he asked. "I'm going to knock him out, of course."
"Yes, sir, I kinda think I'm going to be the next heavyweight champion. I'm not swell-headed about it. But I just don't naturally see anybody in sight I don't feel I can lick."

Willie Stribling

There have been a number of star baseball players who were good at basketball. Lucky Harris was a great basketball player, but the Washington owners made him quit. Carl Husta, star of the Cleveland professional basketball team, was signed by the Philadelphia Athletics, but Connie Mack said he couldn't continue playing basketball.

There have been a number of professional hockey stars with the New York Americans, was a fine outlander in the International League several years ago. He found that he couldn't spend 13 months of the year at two such strenuous sports, so he made baseball secondary to hockey.

BATTLE WITH KAYO TOUGHENED LITH.

Miami Beach, Fla., Feb. 4.—Jack Sharkey confirmed today the general impression that K. O. Christner had given him quite a battle in their recent tete-a-tete in Madison Square Garden. His bout with Bill Stribling was not little more than three weeks away, but Sharkey feels that the Christner engagement was enough exercise, that he will not have to start strenuous work for another week yet.

The sailor will devote a week to golf before settling down to the grind of getting ready for Stribling. Stribling, on the other hand, who may weigh in as much as ten pounds lighter than his Boston opponent, must keep in shape without losing too much weight. With this in mind he will start his first real workout under the star shot tropical night skies rather than the warmish sun of midday. He will begin to ready up for the fight with a session of road work tonight.

The athletes spent their Sunday in contrasting manner. Sharkey attended the dedication of St. Patrick's Catholic church in Miami Beach and followed that with a quiet afternoon. Stribling journeyed to Coral Gables, with Jack Dempsey, where Stribling took part in a swimming pool stunt. He played fisherman while a lifeguard at the end of Stribling's line played fish. Dempsey was at the fight offices early today, trying to figure out how to make a certain number of front row ringside seats take care of a certain larger crowd.

MUCH ARGUMENT WHETHER DER MAX IS THERE OR NOT

Some Say He Is Sure to Be Next Champion While Others Think Otherwise.

BY DAVIS J. WALSH.

New York, Feb. 4.—Self-preservation being a policy that quite a few of our alert minds are beginning to "lay off" some of the extravagant finger bets they have made on Max Schmeling becoming the heavy-weight champion of the world, are looking for John Johny Risko hadn't quite discovered the location of his corner in the ninth round the other night, aided slightly by a sheriff's posse, when most of our alert minds uttered a gibbering shriek, leaped high in the air—and forgot to come down.

Without further ado, they then there pronounced Herr Schmeling the champion in everything except name. Now, in the clear, cold light of another day, they seem to feel that they may have been a bit hasty, I would venture, offhand, in case Herr Schmeling up and dives on his palate the next time out as he did with Larry Gaines and Gypsy Daniels.

A Tunney Rumor
On the other hand one observer remains so impressed with Schmeling that he predicts Tunney will retire from retirement to save the situation, which I am sure will come as interesting news to Tunney.

Complaining that Schmeling doesn't weave so that he may hit, as Joe Dempsey, one critic says today: "Schmeling will have to hook up his hitting more intimately with his weaving. Plain weaving won't get a man anywhere unless he is in the knit good business."

I might add that I consider this a very wise crack and a very unwise observation. However, let us pass onward to the next exhibit, which features a complaint about what was alleged to have been his inability to "push an advantage," and to a third, which frankly stated that, in the opinion of this particular writer, Schmeling "looked like a terrible bum for six heats." There was considerably more of this heard from other quarters but it need not bear repetition. For one thing, some of the latter is more or less justified, which the criticism of Schmeling in relation to Dempsey is not.

No Resemblance
The man was wasting his time who tries to find any great resemblance in the fighting styles of this pair. There is virtually none. Schmeling weaves; so do a dozen others, without recalling the slightest illusion of Dempsey. As a matter of fact, our John and the German are essentially different types of weavers. Max really is nothing but a head bunter who uses the artifice to draw a lead, which he then uses to counter.

The gesture also serves to afford a moving target for any man who fancies a straight left. Lead a left hook at him and he covers. Schmeling is not a forcing fighter. He is a defensive fighter with a punch and, as such, the weave has served to make him good.

The critic who saw him as a bum for six rounds had plenty of good reasons. As far as my smoked glasses were concerned, the critic did seem to hit the nail on the noggin with fair accuracy when he thought he observed signs that Schmeling wasn't altogether indifferent about punches received in and upon the nuchaline level. The young man, in my opinion, might take an awful althogether down there from some of our real body builders.

The Nut Cracker

Hockey officials are trying to arrange a system whereby there will be more scores made. Why don't they add a couple of points for broken necks?

Here's a scoring schedule the hockey people might use:
Broken shoulder . . . . .4
Broken arm . . . . .4
Dislocated hip . . . . .4
Black eye . . . . .4
Broken neck . . . . .5
But perhaps the scorekeepers would object. There's such a thing as giving a man too much work.

A headline says: "Successful Distemper Treatment Must be Confined to Experts." We'd say, especially the fight experts.

Business has impeded Jack Dempsey's daily training period. And a basketball game with Stribling match, business may speed 'em up.

Stribling said Dempsey was not his boss and that he would ride in an airplane if he wanted to. Just to prove that he meant what he said, Strib arrived in Miami by train.

A Texas heavyweight makes his debut under the moniker, "Wildcat Mountain." O'Goofy, who doesn't know whether the idea is that he can't be caught or that he can't be moved.

Speaking of names, we are reminded to ask what became of the "K-Ray," "Death Ray," or something equally powerful.
Ray Miller hasn't taken on any fancy monikers yet about one—but the boys he's met lately are inclined to caption him "X-Ray," "Death Ray," or something equally powerful.
Sharkey and Stribling are being scooped up by the disatchers, for their bout in Florida. Horses are groomed, too. Also, horses fun and play and sport. etc. People call it horseyplay.
"The Pedagogy of Football" is the subject of one of Knut Rockne's winter addresses. Rockne thinks a good word like that helps to dignify the game. Perhaps that's also what the rules committee has in mind in trying to abolish the fumble.
IT SEEMS TO O'GOOFY THAT THE MODERN MILLION-DOLLAR GATES FOOTBALL HAS BEEN GETTING DIGNIFY IT QUITE ENOUGH WITHOUT ROCKNE'S EFFORT.
When Marquette beat Michigan at ice hockey the other night, the Marquette captain had four stitches taken in one of his eyes, one player sustained a broken rib, another sprained his knee, still another mangled his leg and another had four teeth knocked out.
That makes it look as if hockey is the game that needs dignifying.

It finally has happened. Lowry McCallin, star forward of the University of California's championship basketball team, has added evening courses to his studies and now he can't play basketball.
Chick Gandil has become a plumber, they say. Maybe he's trying to forget.

THIS HAS HAPPENED
RUTH LESTER, private secretary, has a heavy head heavy spectacles and ill-fitting clothes, hoping thus to work unnoticed for "HANDSOME HARRY" BORDEN. She would resign but for a romance which springs up between her and JACK HAYWARD, whose office is just across the narrow airshaft from Borden's.

They become engaged and Ruth comes to the office this Saturday morning with her disfigurement removed. When Borden comes, Ruth is summoned with the mail and gives him an orchid-tinted envelope which he impatiently thrusts into his pocket. She tells him of a call from "the woman with the contralto voice" whom she has previously refused to talk to.

Ruth gets $500 from the bank and two tickets with drawing-room for a winter resort for Borden. She suspects the second ticket is for RITA DUBOIS, the dancer, who calls at the office just after her return from the bank. MRS. BORDEN, Borden's estranged wife and mother of his two children, calls for her monthly alimony. Hearing Ruth's laugh she swoons into Ruth's chair, catching sight as she does so of a pistol in the lower desk drawer. Mrs. Borden promises to return about 1:30 Borden waves a torn bank note at Rita as she leaves, reminding her of her husband.

Ruth is called in for dictation. When Borden playfully tries to remove her spectacles she screams, attracting Jack in the opposite office. He angrily tries to jump to her assistance across the airshaft but is restrained by some man. Ruth wishes she had not screamed. She wanted only joy to enter into this particular day. At 1:30 she goes to meet Jack in the lobby.

CHAPTER V.
"Lord, darling!" I thought you were never coming. Just one more minute and I'd have been alone. Jack Hayward greeted the beautiful girl who ran out of Borden's office to join him at the elevator. "Did that beast—?"

"Sh!" Ruth warned. "Look! Here come Miss and Mrs. Borden. Put your brooms and scrubbers, poor things! I wonder if they'll recognize me?" . . . Hello, Minnie! Letty! Aren't you going to speak to me?"

The two calico-clad, gray-haired, stoop-shouldered, old women who had been gossiping together as they plodded down the hall, stopped and stared, then grinned humbly, apologetically.

"The really don't know me!" Ruth laughed, hugging Jack's arm delightedly.

The older of the two women nudged her companion with her broom handle. "It's Miss Lester, Letty. Now, don't be all over me. You've took your specs off, ain't you, dearie? My, what a change! Letty, maybe if us girls'ud take off our specs we'd catch us a beau, too, eh?" and Minnie cackled shrill mirth at the idea.

Letty Miller shook her gray head slowly, a resigned smile rippling across her pale, lined face. "Reckon our day is over, Minnie. 'Duck it our nice to see a young couple sweethearting, one as handsome as the other."

"Just for that, Letty!" Jack laughed, drew a dollar bill out of his pocket, and tucked it into the torn, sagging pocket of the calico dress.

"What has happened?" His lips went white and cold. "Borden?"

That beast! I'll kill him for this! It was afraid—let me go, Ruth!

"Jack, please, darling, please!" Ruth begged, pulling at his arms frantically. "Come on into the elevator. It wasn't Mr. Borden! I swear it wasn't! I struck my face against the door! You've got to believe me! Jack!"

Her voice changed suddenly, became ominously quiet and steady, as the young man flung off her clinging hands. "If you don't come with me now, if you won't believe me when I say it wasn't Mr. Borden, then I'm not going to have you see this morning. I'll take back the promise I gave you last night. I mean it!"

Jack Hayward came to his senses. He shook his head as if to clear from his eyes the red mists of anger. "You—mean that, Ruth?" She nodded, her blue eyes imploring him through tears. "All right! But on one condition—that you give Borden notice on Monday morning. I'm not going to have you in that devil's office another day!"

Ruth would have promised anything to get him to go quietly with her. The elevator boy regarded the silent, flushed girl as she shot the car down to the main floor.

"Where shall we eat?" Jack asked in a strained, unnatural voice when they had reached the sidewalk.

Ruth swallowed hard at the lump in her throat. "Anywhere, dear. The—The Chester Hotel? It's closest—." What did it matter now? Jack thought she had led him to her, believed Borden had kissed her so violently that her lip had been bruised. Her "perfect day" was spoiled. . . . She shivered, could not stop shivering, even as she followed her fiancé into the big, warm dining-room of the Chester Hotel.

"No, thanks," she quavered, as he reached for her coat. "I'll keep it on. I'm cold. Oh—I'm so sorry!" She stood miserably beside the table while Jack and the waiter looked at each other with startled, contented glances.

"You'd better have some very hot coffee," Jack decided suddenly, as Ruth, wrapped though she was in her thick fur coat, shivered again, uncontrollably.

A Wave of Homicides Hits Stage

ONE MAN MURDERED THREE TIMES IN A BROADWAY PLAY.

By GILBERT SWAN
New York, Feb. 4.—The playful lily-sport of murder, indulged in by playwrights to insure their audiences the nicest sort of time, has resulted in a season's casualty list too long for record.

Grown a bit accustomed to the sight of gore and the rattle of stage musketry, we had reckoned without Lester Lornagan and a new producer by name of Bernard Steele. It is Lester Lornagan who sets a new record. Believe it or not, but he is murdered three times—count 'em, three—in one and the same play. In each act he is slain. In each act he falls imply to the stage in the latest of the mystery operas, "House Un- guarded."

This triple extinction is made necessary by the fact that two reporters, working on the story of the mystery, are allowed to present their notions of what happened in the first two acts, whereas the third act reveals what actually did occur.

And then there was another mystery play, "Zeppelin," when the curtain went up there was a cast of 19 persons aboard the big air liner. But by the time she was moored in America, not more than seven or eight remained alive. Those who had been tossed overboard had been bumped off in one way or another.

Up above the world so high, it's not only possible to get away with murder, it is possible, seemingly, to carry on something closely resembling extermination. Oh yes, what was all the shooting about? Well, it seems that there was a scientist on board with a new preparation which is said to cure youth with leprosy. The scientist, it appears, has conceived a leprosy gas which, if used in warfare, could send an entire enemy nation in pursuit of cholera or oil.

Received with glaringly contradictory opinions, what seemed to me a most shrewd and penetrating analysis called "Gypsy," sneaked in between murders with Maxwell Anderson as its author.

Our visiting British critic, St. John Ervine, found that it left a bad taste in his mouth and considered the lines something less than brilliant, whereas Burns Mantle, seemed to like it quite as well as I did.

To be sure it has not a pleasant story to tell—Ellen, played by the very attractive Claiborne Foster, is a gypsy whose love is concerned. Here is the open road of conquest, and she takes it. She takes it selfishly, heedlessly and ever tragically. She leaves an adoring husband for an attractive author, and, sensing that one day she will walk out on him and go the unhappy gypsy way of her mother, she turns on the gas.

$75,000 MONUMENT TO MARK GRAVE OF WORLD WAR HERO

Evansville, Ind.—The grave of James Bethel Gresham, the first soldier of America killed in the World War, which for a time was neglected in a local cemetery, will be marked by a $75,000 monument, if plans proposed by veterans' organizations of Evansville are carried out.

A bill to appropriate funds necessary was to be introduced at the present session of the state legislature. The memorial according to specifications will consist of a base 60 feet in diameter, surrounded by a stone railing. Inside the railing will be a shaft 29 feet high and a marble, crypt in which Gresham's body will be placed.

Surrounding the shrine will be a rotunda with 24 walls, each with a different circular drive from all four directions.
On the shaft will be the following inscription:
James Bethel Gresham. He gave his all for freedom, as we knew it, should not fall. Content when called upon to yield his life on Flanders' scarlet poppled field. Full sacrifice made for Liberty, school dead, achieving immortality.

School children of Indiana on January 15 were afforded an opportunity to contribute from 1 to 10 cents to pay for the surrounding landscaping.
In addition, the Veterans of Foreign Wars will place a modest stone at the grave.

DAILY RADIO PROGRAM

Monday, February 4.
Real folk of Thompson Corners are alarmed and excited over reports of burglaries in neighboring communities. Miss Thompson, many of the community and proprietor of the local store has finally yielded to arguments and has ordered a burglar alarm for the WJZ chain. The burglar and the alarm will be the chief entertainers of the hour. At the same time WOR and the Columbia stations will present an informal concert in which will be featured Eleanor Palmer, soprano, in her role as the original Princess. Miss Palmer attained wide popularity and she will revive some of her numbers from this opera for the benefit of her radio audience. Still another highlight for the same time is the family party of the WJAF chain. This week Frank Crumit, baritone, and Julia Sanderson, soprano, will be featured. The soloists will be supported by an orchestra under the direction of Frank Clark in a program characterized as a vaudeville revue. An old comedy, "The Comedy of Errors," will be played by Hank Simpson and those who have been heard at 10 o'clock. Henry Clinton, little Maybelle, DeVitt Schuyler and the other famous members of the comedy troupe will give a vivid portrayal of the rural characters of the play. Willy Wilder, the comical hero, is a character which will keep the audience in a merry mood throughout the evening.

CHAPTER XLVIII

Ashforth sat on the couch. She was very quiet, and she did not cry. Her heart, she thought, was broken. She even told herself that something within her had died.

After a few minutes, she took Monty's letter from behind Hollis' picture on her dressing table, and read it again, slowly.

It was dated four A. M. and began:

"Dear Ash—
This is to say goodbye. I never felt so sorry for anyone in my life as I did for your husband, after the little scene you treated me to. The way he kept saying 'Orchid,' 'Orchid'—it would have wrung tears from a stone, or almost anything.

"He calls you that, because it means something sweet to him. The orchid is a beautiful flower. And expensive. Well, maybe there's some resemblance there.

"But, outside of that, do you know what an orchid is? Well, it's a parasite. And a parasite is a thing that grafts itself on to something that is capable of taking care of it.

"A parasite is a plant of an animal living on some other living organism, at whose expense it gets its food, shelter and the like. It attaches itself firmly, and it won't let go.

"Some parasites suck all the life out of the thing to which they cling, so that eventually they kill it.

"Orchids graft on trees, and stumps, and old roots. They are exquisite things, but they don't care what they live off.

"They are so mean, they won't even give the bees any honey. But they are very beautiful.

"There are girls just like orchids. They think that beauty is excuse enough for being. Maybe it is. But a lot of people despise human parasites, even the beautiful ones.

"Your husband thinks you are like an orchid. Well you are. But he doesn't know how.

"You turned me down, because you're a sort of a lone little parasite, and you were looking for something better to get attached to. Well, you found it. You got better than you deserve, but you haven't sense enough to know it.

"The letter ended abruptly. "Your true friend, who's got nerve enough to tell you the truth. Monty."

She dried her eyes, and wondered what the end would be.

At midnight Ashforth went to bed, having temporarily abandoned her hopes of an immediate reconciliation.

"I'll be very sweet and penitent in the morning," she decided. "Good night's sleep. Everything will be all right I know."

"I've lost my halo," she grieved, "and my adorable untouchedness. And, on top of it all, practically admitted that I never really loved him! Oh dear, Oh dear."

She rang for Mrs. Saunders, and asked for a sleeping potion from the doctor. Then she took a very hot bath, and composed herself for sleep.

If only she could stop thinking of Monty! Did he really despise her as he said?

"There's a lot of truth in what he wrote," she reflected drowsily. "But truth is such a hateful thing!"

She thought if she had told Hollis a small lie, protesting love, everything would have been much nicer. She wouldn't, for instance, be alone at the moment, with a dreadful pain in her head, and her eyes smarting so fearfully. Hollis wouldn't be roaming the deck all by himself, catching his death of cold. Or drinking himself crazy in the bar.

After all, perhaps she did love him. Not glamorously, like the Lovies and novels. Probably there wasn't very much of that sort of love in real life anyhow.

She remembered vaguely something she had read—something to the effect that in her first passion a woman loves her lover; but in all others, all she loves is love. Well, there wasn't anything wrong about that. Only now, of course, she didn't even love love. That she supposed, was because of those wretched front teeth, on their silly little swivels. It was absurd of course. But women were like that.

"Sometimes," she murmured sleepily, "I get the silliest notions. She pounded her pillow with her fists. If only she could stop thinking! "Oh God, please let me go to sleep! I haven't slept a wink for three nights."

She wished she could dismiss thoughts of Monty. That thing about a woman, in her first passion, loving her lover... Monty had been her first passion. She was only about 18 then. Well, if the poet was right (Byron, or whoever it was who wrote that) then having exhausted her first passion for a lover, she couldn't ever again love anything but love. It wasn't her fault if she didn't love Hollis... Oh, dear, it was all so muddled. ...And there was poor Holly, chasing himself around the deck. And Monty probably drinking himself to death in Paris. And here she was, sitting with an awful headache and a body aching. Two large tears squeezed by her closed eyelids, and rolled slowly down her cheeks.... Eventually she fell asleep.

She woke at 10, with a splitting headache. She had forgotten to open the port holes, and Mrs. Saunders, obeying orders, had not returned. The cabin was close with the odor of perfumes and powders. She wondered if Hollis was in his room. She must have slept soundly, for she had not heard him coming going. There were voices in the hallway. Several voices, and a woman's among them. High pitched and hysterical.

She rose and slipped on the green negligee that she had tossed the night before over the foot of her bed, ringing at the same time for Mrs. Saunders. She waited several minutes, and when Saunders did not come, she became alarmed.

She knocked on Hollis' door, but received no answer, though she could hear voices quite distinctly. She turned the knob, and discovered that the bolt on Hollis' side was drawn. She wondered if he had purposely locked her out.

There was something wrong. She shook the door violently.

Almost immediately, it was opened, and she saw a little group standing about her husband's bed. Mrs. Saunders was there, and a man whom she recognized immediately to be the ship's doctor. There were several other people of whom she received no particular impression. Mrs. Saunders stooped quickly, and drew up the sheet, covering Hollis' face.

Ashforth was trembling so that she could scarcely walk. In that dreadful moment, as she propelled her shaking legs toward the bed, she had a strange feeling that it was not she—but some other woman—who was about to look upon the dead man. For she knew, instantly, that her husband was dead.

"Veronal," somebody was saying. "An overdose."

The words came to her as from a great distance, and she stared in her ears. She remembered reading recently about the death of an author, who had died in a hotel in New York from an overdose of veronal. Ashforth wondered how she happened to think of that.

There had been an inquest, and an autopsy. And the doctor said that the author had been troubled with sleeplessness, and so had taken veronal. It was strange how she was remembering all the details.

The doctor was talking to her, but she did not know what he was saying. She was wondering if there would be an autopsy, and if they would cut Hollis' body. She felt that she could not bear it.

She put her hands on the sheet, and turned it down from his face. He looked very quiet, and not unhappy. She wondered if he was glad that he had died. One corner of his mouth was quirked up a little, as though he was smiling a very small smile. She wondered if he was smiling at life... or at death. Or at her, perhaps. Or Monty, who knew she was a parasite.

The doctor was still talking. "You mustn't touch the body, Mrs. Hart."

She bent and kissed the dead man on the lips. And, for the first time in many weeks, she forgot about those two teeth on the swivels that had killed romance.

"Oh, Holly!" she breathed. "Holly... Holly... You'll never call me Orchid any more... Not... ever... any more."

Suddenly she felt overpoweringly sorry for herself, and rushed from the room, crying loudly a little later she fainted, and was unconscious for a very long time. When she opened her eyes, Mrs. Saunders was standing over her.

"You're crying," she whispered. "Why, Mrs. Saunders?"

"Oh, for Holly, my Holly. Holly's dead, isn't he?"

The stewardess wiped her eyes. "You pore little lamb," she said. "You pore little lamb. But it's not for Mr. Hart you're crying. It's for yourself. You'll be that lonely, you poor thing. Your husband—God have mercy on his soul—has no call for tears. He's where there's no weeping nor sorrow."

Ashforth's voice was very weak. "Do you say your prayers, Mrs. Saunders?"

"I do that, God love you."

Ashforth slipped from the bed to her knees.

"Oh, Holly," she prayed aloud. "If you can hear me where you are, you'll know that I'm not a bad girl. And you'll know I love you, Holly. Not the way you wanted me to... But I couldn't help that, dear. I'm selfish, and vain, and horrid. But, oh, Holly... Holly, dear... God have mercy on you both," said Mrs. Saunders, and lifted her up, and put her in bed.

In a little while the doctor came, and gave her a sedative, and told her that Hollis had died in his sleep, and had not suffered.

After that she slept herself. An incredible, dreamless sleep, that lasted all through the night. The sun was shining again when she awoke. Presently Mrs. Saunders came, with several envelopes in her hand.

"Cables," she said. "The wireless reports of Mr. Hart's death reached Paris and the States last night."

Ashforth took them listlessly. They were from friends of her husband's. And, though the names were entirely unfamiliar, the messages made her cry.

"Everybody loved him," she thought miserably, "but me. And I was the only one whose love he wanted."

Maisie had sent a radio. And there was one signed "Aunt Meg." Even Sadie had sent her sympathy. ... "LOVE AND KISSES FROM YOUR FRIEND SADIE."

It happened that Monty's was at the bottom of the pile.

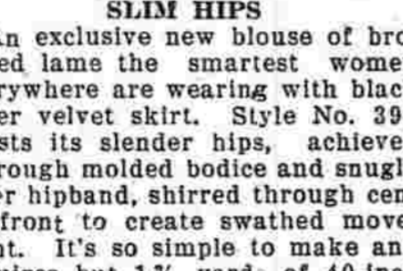

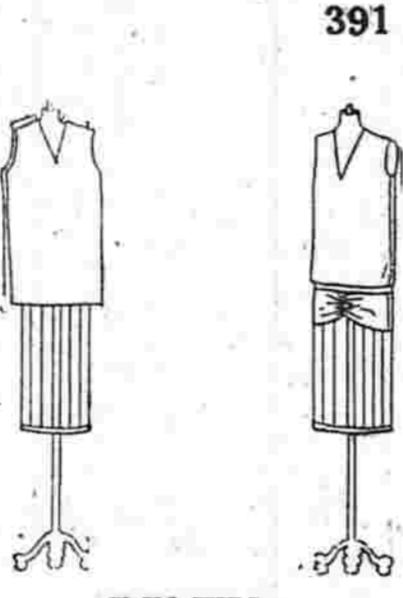

POOR LITTLE BEAUTIFUL ORCHID. HOLLIS LOVED YOU ENOUGH TO DIE BUT I LOVE YOU ENOUGH TO LIVE FOREVER. I AM COMING TO SAVE YOU MY BEAUTIFUL ORCHID.

She read the message several times. And then, dismissing Mrs. Saunders, she wrote a letter.

"Monty," she told herself, "is the only person on earth who understands me..." And then she remembered two others—not on earth... Her father, who had written her a strange letter. And Hollis, who had died with a smile on his lips.

She tore Monty's letter into small pieces. And, kissing his wireless slipped it beneath her pillow.

Hints On How To Keep Well by World Famed Authority

By DR. MORRIS FISHBEIN

In the current issue of Hygeia, Dr. A. Levinson has pointed out some of the important factors to be considered by people who wish to adopt a child.

In most instances people pick out a child because it is dark or fair, fat or lean, because its hair is curly or straight, blond or brunette. However, the wise couple will realize from the first that the health of the child is much more important than the tilt or turn-up of its nose.

Experienced parents realize that an extremely cute baby may be just the opposite when it reaches eight years of age. The fat babies get thin and the thin ones get fat; the curly-headed blond six months of age may a straight-haired raven at the age of 15.

The child with a positive Wasserman test has a condition which demands a great deal of attention before it is suitable for adoption.

The child who has come from a family with tuberculosis may pass through a long period of invalidism before it is healthful.

Mental deficiency can be recognized after three or four months of age, but some mental taints do not appear until later in life. For this reason it is highly important to have some conception of the amount of mental defect in the ancestry of the child that is being considered for adoption.

Some hereditary defects can be controlled to a certain extent through environment, but it is far safer to be sure of the heredity of the child and not to take chances.

Most people who want to adopt a baby want an extremely young one so that it will not know that the parents are not its own. It is undesirable, however, to adopt a baby during the first few days of its life. At least several months should be given to observation of its physical and mental state before it is taken by the family for rearing.

RELAXATION OF MUSCLES BRINGS GRACE OF FORM

The feline stretch....

BY LOUISE GIFFORD

Are we superior to animals? The astonishing civilization which differentiates us so sharply from the animals has improved primitive man mentally, but it is destroying him physically.

Why should an animal keep its youthful elasticity even through old age, while we grow stiff and weary when we should be in our prime?

The process of ruining our physical machines began in early childhood. Little girls were told to "Keep still!" "Stop wriggling." "Act like a little lady!" Nowadays girls can climb trees and jump fences, if they are blessed with a yard to play in. But childhood for the older generation that can no longer touch its toes when standing was one long lesson in suppressing natural bodily instincts.

Watch a cat wake up from a comfortable nap in the sun. He may be a Methuselah of cats, but he is no too old to yawn, stretch and wiggle himself awake. Watch a young child. He stretches and yawns just like a cat. But in our energetic, tense adult lives, we constantly suppress the luxury of long, relaxing stretches and so we lose our chance to keep young and sleek with the tigers.

Modern woman envies the feline grace of the tiger. She, too, wants to be sleek, slim and youthful. If she can learn to stretch, squirm, tossen up her whole body she can keep or regain that youthful elasticity that keeps the body alert, young and full of verve.

She can prevent her body from growing heavy, flabby, lead.

"Oh, but I hate to exercise," the modern woman may say. She should, if she does not feel and while doing it, and afterwards. You must enjoy exercising your body or it will do you no real good.

The simple exercises described in the forthcoming articles are all designed to coax your body into the ease, elasticity and joyousness of childhood. With them you will begin your day waking with luxurious yawns! Stretch every muscle before arising. Then get up lazily, like a cat, and your day will begin with lilt in your soul.

All these exercises should be practised without strain or hurry and never to the point of fatigue.

The WOMAN'S DAY

By ALLENE SUGNER

"Put on my tomb, 'He has lived and accomplished nothing.'"

This remark was found in the will of one Max Litt of Trenton, N. J., who died a few weeks ago. His neighbors and relatives were surprised, as Litt, supposedly at the head of a successful millinery business, gave frequent interviews on how to achieve success, and was considered a prominent business leader of the community.

His wife explained the rather bitter epitaph request as a ranking on the part of the deceased that the business and its plan of management were all hers. She explained that her husband merely signed the checks, "because it looked better."

HER FAILURE

Reading between the lines, one gathers that the real failure was the widow who did not care enough nor was not tactful enough to make her husband an integral part of her business; after all, a wife's money launches many a man, who is able to save his self-respect despite. Perhaps it depends on the man, too. But it depends more on the attitude of the wife. The very fact that she would "tell on him" after his death proves her fault in this case.

"COZIER PLACE"

James Lucy, the Northampton shoemaker to whom President Coolidge has declared that he owed much, went visiting at the White House lately. When he returned to his last and was asked about his visit he remarked, among other things, that the White House was beautiful but not exactly home-like, and he imagined Mrs. Coolidge would be glad to get back to a cozier place.

A rather popular opinion of humble people is that people called to higher places must be ill at ease and pining for the simpler jobs they once knew. This is a form of self-defense; it helps bolster up a personal sense of having less than some men with the sureness that even if we had more we wouldn't be so happy anyway.

French Furniture Is Not For Homes Of Today

A room of the French Renaissance.

This is one of a series of articles written for The Herald and NEA Service by William H. Wilson, vice-president of the American Furniture Mart, and an acknowledged authority on interior decoration and period furniture.

By WILLIAM H. WILSON.

Written for NEA SERVICE.

Refinement marked the French Renaissance. From Francis I to Louis XV, 1515 to 1715, we see the social graces increasing in importance, and therefore the evolution from the dignified, stiff furniture of Italy to the lighter, more feminine, delicate and beautiful furniture of France, which characterized the period leading to the reign of Louis XIV.

We can trace the Italian influence through chests, tables and cabinets which became lighter in material and construction, under Francis I. Tapestry became a fine art, and so did wood carving. There was evolution from cabinets to sideboards, sideboards to writing desks, and new articles of furniture appeared, which had not been used earlier.

Craftsmen migrated to France, and began to spin, to work in stone and metal, and to set the stage for Louis XIV's startling period.

The furniture of the French Renaissance is interesting mainly for what it shows—refinement from the heavy to the light, from the cumbersome to the graceful. The pieces themselves were too gaudy, too over-ornate, too unbearably overloaded with "do-dads," and dust-catchers.

The period is a transitional one, and as such should be studied. The American home offers little place for the French furniture of this period. The same may be said for Louis XIV's significant period.

While the period is distinctly feminine, and the lavish Louis spent fortunes in backgrounds for court favorites, the period may be adapted only in a few American homes.

YOUR CHILDREN

by Olive Roberts Barton
©1928 by NEA Service, Inc.

The basis of all good discipline is reasonableness. All law should be reasonable law and easy to obey.

But let me not say that the child is to be the judge of what is reasonable and what is not. Not by any means. It rests with the parent to decide about that.

For instance, suppose a mother says to a little boy, "You must not run out in the street. An automobile may run over you and kill you."

The boy may think the law unreasonable while the mother knows it is a proper and correct and easily obeyed law.

Now then suppose the little boy, deciding that the law is unreasonable, decides that he is justified in breaking it.

So when he sees his friend across the street over he goes.

A Time for Discipline

Here is where the discipline come in. He has broken a law that his mother knows to be reasonable. She has never threatened him. She has simply told him that he must obey and explained the reason why.

When he disobeys she tells him again: "Billy, you must not run across the street again. You understand, Bill. If you must not. Automobiles running even very slowly cannot stop in time to save little boys. You know how badly Harry Smith was hurt. You wouldn't want to walk on crutches all your life like he does, would you? Or perhaps be killed altogether? Now you have disobeyed me and so you'll remember and not do it again I'll put your scooter away for two days. After that if you think you can promise to obey me, I'll let you have it."

The next day, however, Billy, still thinking the law unreasonable, or rather not thinking about it at all, dived across the street again. A car just missed him.

Now then what? Billy's mother did just what I should have done: she gave Billy a good spanking on his spanking place. Little children must learn that there is backbone in the authority that governs them. They must learn that a command is a command.

It is not always necessary to explain to children exactly why they should obey you. They must learn to obey, that's all, and without question.

THANK YOU! The "get acquainted" sale was a great success. More women bought my $4 shoes at $3 than I dared hope for. So many that a number of good lines are broken in sizes. Many broken lots of perfectly lovely shoes.

STATE'S TEACHERS KEEP UP STUDIES

One-Third of Entire Force Is Taking the Course at Yale School.

New Haven, Conn., Feb. 4.—More than three thousand public school teachers in Connecticut have taken or are now taking professional courses in education offered by the Department of Education of Yale University. This number is approximately one-third of the entire teaching force of the state. It is not merely the rank and file of the classroom teachers who thus seek professional advancement, but those occupying the more responsible positions, principals, supervisors and superintendents, are represented, in proportion to their numbers, even more strongly in the courses offered by the Department. Almost one-half of all the superintendents in the state, more than one-half of all the state supervising agents, and almost two-thirds of all the principals in New Haven have taken courses offered by the Department. Many of these educational leaders take courses almost every year.

Most of the courses offered are designed primarily to assist the leaders, or would-be leaders, in the profession to deal more successfully with the fundamental problems, such as school organization, courses of study, supervision, planning of the school plant and educational finances in all their bearings.

600 Enrolled

At the present time over six hundred Connecticut teachers, principals and superintendents are enrolled as students in the Yale Department of Education. They come from more than a third of all the towns and cities of the state. Nearly one-fourth of them, a total of 143, are residents of New Haven and on the staff of the New Haven schools; but there are proportionately even larger numbers from several smaller towns. Meriden contributes sixty-one, or more than one-fourth the number of its entire teaching staff; Plainfield thirty, about five-sixths the number of its staff; Derby forty-five, nine-tenths the number of its staff; and Putnam thirty-three, or practically its whole staff. Ten or more each come from such widely scattered places as Ansonia, Bloomfield, Bridgeport, Bristol, Hamden, Hartford, Milford, Stratford, Waterbury and West Haven.

Nearly half the entire Connecticut teacher enrollment are attending courses offered in New Haven. From forty cities and towns, these practicing students come every week, some of them two and three times a week. They come not only from such nearby places as Hamden, East Haven, West Haven, Branford, Milford and Cheshire; but they come also from such distant places as Danbury, Stamford, Norwalk, New London, Stonington and Suffield.

"The distances," says Professor Frank E. Spaulding, chairman of the Department of Education, "which many students travel to take work in the Department here in New Haven are surprising and may be taken as one indication of the earnestness of these students who are carrying on professional studies in addition to the work demanded by the positions which they hold in the public schools. I have had in my own classes students coming more than 50 miles once and even twice a week. In one course, meeting once a week, the average round trip distance traveled weekly by three members holding public school positions was over fifty miles each; in another course meeting twice a week, the weekly average for such members was ninety-five miles each."

Department's Aim

But the Department tries, so far as its force of instructors makes it practicable, to bring its work to as many as possible. To this end courses are offered at several centers outside New Haven. Just now ten such courses, enrolling nearly three hundred fifty teacher-students, are being given in Bridgeport, Bristol, Derby, Hartford (two courses), Meriden, Plainfield, Putnam, Stratford and Waterbury. In recent years, courses have been given in nearly a score of other places, such as Ansonia, Branford, Danbury, Danielson, East Hartford, West Hartford, Fairfield, Milford, Norwalk, Seymour, Southington, New Britain, Groton, Shelton, Wallingford and Winsted.

"Such constant professional study," says Professor Spaulding, "as engages the ambitious teachers and leaders in the public schools of Connecticut, is typical of what is going on throughout the country. American teachers are rapidly advancing their professional qualifications. The standards required for entering the profession are being constantly advanced; the demands for thorough, adequate professional training of the leaders, the principals, supervisors and superintendents, are every year becoming more extensive and insistent. The time will soon come everywhere—it is practically here already—in such states as Connecticut—when it will be impossible for one to get a responsible position as principal, supervisor or superintendent, without advanced professional study."

An increasing number of positions of educational leadership in Connecticut are being filled by men and women who have taken advanced degrees in education at Yale. Among such may be mentioned the following:

Ph.D. 1927), Principal Troup Junior High school, New Haven.
Brownell Gage (Ph.D. 1924), Principal of Sunfield school, which serves both as a boarding school for boys and a town high school.
Norma E. Cutts (M.A. 1922), Supervisor of the Department for Exceptional Children, New Haven public schools.
Horace G. Westcott, (M.A. 1923), Superintendent of Schools, Branford, Connecticut.
Alfred D. Simpson, (M.A. 1923), just resigned from the state directorship of Teacher Preparation to become Director of Finances in New York State Department of Education.
Allan W. Mansfield, (M.A. 1925), Principal of Meriden High school, following Paul S. Miller (Yale M.A. 1923) who is now professor of secondary education in New York University.
Elton E. Knight, (M.A. 1927), Principal of Abraham Lincoln school, New Haven.
Joseph E. Poole, (M.A. 1927), Superintendent of Schools, Madison, Connecticut.
Wilson Greer, (M.A. 1928), Superintendent of Schools, Wethersfield, Connecticut.
John J. McFarland, (M.A. 1928), Vocational Advisor at the Warren Harding High school, Bridgeport, Connecticut.

The direct service of the Yale Department of Education to the schools of the state is by no means limited to the offering of courses to those engaged in the schools; nor is service entirely one-sided. Practical and intimate co-operation characterized the work of the Yale Department, the State Department of Education, and a large number of schools and school systems. Superintendents and principals are constantly bringing into the Yale Department of Education numerous important problems of the greatest variety and seeking aid in their solution. On the other hand, the Department is constantly doing research work in the schools. They are the Department's principal laboratory.

A Few Examples

A few examples of these co-operative undertakings that are now in process are of interest. State Commissioner Meredith is giving, as he has done annually for the last eight years, a short series of lectures to all interested students of the Department, bringing before them most effectively the current live problems of education which engage the attention of the Legislature, the State Board of Education, and the Board's professional staff.

The problem of working out a unified and improved curriculum for the kindergarten and lower primary grades, to embody the results and implications of the latest social and psychological researches in this field, has been the object of several years of cooperative effort of members of the Yale faculty in education and of teachers and principals of three New Haven elementary schools, the Henry Barnard, Abraham Lincoln and Strong.

Intensive Studies

Intensive studies in the field of visual instruction involving the use of all kinds of visual aids, but especially of moving pictures, have been carried on for several years, especially in the Troup Junior High School of New Haven. Other schools are also taking part, among them the Meriden High School and the New Haven High School. These studies involve the constant cooperation of members of the schools' staffs and of members of the Yale Department of Education.

Just now several members of the department are cooperating in a survey of the West Middle District of the Hartford school system, for the purpose of planning with the Hartford school authorities any practicable improvements in their schools. This project was undertaken at the request of the school committee, acting on instructions voted at a district meeting.

Sometimes the problem enlisting the cooperation of members of the faculty of the Yale Department and educational leaders of the state has to do with the preparation of a course of study; again with the construction of a teachers' salary schedule; or it may be the planning of a school building, or of a building program for a city. Whatever it is, the Yale Department of Education is always ready to respond to the fullest possible extent. That this cooperative service is increasingly appreciated is evidenced by the growing demands coming from school officials throughout the state.

CHANNEL TUNNEL IS HASTENED BY KELLOGG'S PACT

London.—The Kellogg Pact may make the Channel Tunnel between Britain and France a practical proposition.

For years past this project has been defeated by military and naval authorities on the ground that an enemy, presumably France, might suddenly seize such a Channel and use it to conquer the British nation.

In an inquiry twenty years ago, Field Marshal Lord Wolseley described how an enemy force might be landed in the lead of night without leaving the defending forces at Dover the few seconds necessary to put into operation the devices for flooding, gassing or blowing up the tunnel.

In Time of Peace

He said however: "The whole plan is based on the assumption of its being carried out in a time of profound peace."

In 1924, when Ramsay MacDonald was Prime Minister, the scheme was backed by 400 members of Parliament. MacDonald referred the scheme to the Committee of Imperial Defense, reinforced by all the Prime Ministers then living. This rather unwieldy body consulted the military experts who again reported against the idea, but did not state the nature of their objections.

Now, however, Members of Parliament are arguing that with the Kellogg Pact and the Locarno Treaty, there should be an end to these international suspicions and are again urging the advantages of such a tunnel.

Good for Trade

Not only would it be good for trade, they say, but it would bring to Britain many thousands of American and Continental visitors who are kept away at the present time because of the prospect of the rough sea voyage between the two countries.

The matter is to be taken up strongly as soon as Parliament re-assembles and there is very good prospect of the scheme receiving official sanction on this occasion.

WELL, HE LOVED HER

Bayonne, N. J.—Three times Frank Grant, 28, called police headquarters and demanded to be arrested. Three times he was refused. The fourth time he called the lieutenant sent an officer to Grant's home to see what it was all about. Grant refused to give the officer any reason for wanting the seclusion of a jail. He was jailed, however, and it finally came out that he had quarreled with his wife and because he considered himself "a brute" had decided on jail as fit punishment.

FOOLED BY TOY

New York.—Until Detective Thomas Burns killed a young, unidentified robber here recently, the fellow had been terrorizing the community by a series of daring holdups. His specialty was a string of candy stores. Investigations conducted after his death proved that the robber had used a toy pistol on each of his "jobs."

LET'S GO SWIMMIN'

Coblenz.—A story has come to light here that happened in the days when the American Army of Occupation occupied the castle of Ehrenbreitstein on the banks of the Rhine. One of the boys dove into the river. He came up with a bottle of champagne, and reported that numerous others were there. Soon the river was full of divers. The bottles had been lowered into the river by a saloon keeper who was under investigation for irregularities.

LETTER GOLF

THIS PROVES IT.

If a thing is TRUE, it's a FACT. But the fact is, it takes seven steps to prove it in letter golf. At least, that's par, and one solution is on another page.

T	R	U	E
F	A	C	T

THE RULES.

- 1—The idea of Letter Golf is to change one word to another and do it in par, a given number of strokes. Thus to change COW to HEN in three strokes, COW, HOW, HEW, HEN.
- 2—You change only one letter at a time.
- 3—You must have a complete word, of common usage, for each jump. Slang words and abbreviations don't count.
- 4—The order of letters cannot be changed.

"Mandy, whassit light shinin' in your eyes?"
"That's ma stop light, Rastus."

THE TINYMITES

(READ THE STORY, THEN COLOR THE PICTURE)

The whole bunch tumbled down the hill, and Scouty cried, "Wow, what a spill. How are we ever going to stop? This hill is pretty steep, I've turned a somersault or two, and now I don't know what to do. I guess we'll just keep rolling. It will do no good to weep."
"Grab hold of something," Clowdy cried. "A bush whisked by right by my side. I wish I'd grabbed it good and tight. I'd then be safe and sound." However, nothing else came near. Said Coppy, "We won't stop until we reach the level ground."
And then a Trouble Tot chirped out, "Say, just what is this all about? I don't care much for tumbling, and my limbs are getting sore. Won't someone call this to a halt? I'll bet this is your Tinies' fault." Just then they knew a stream was near. They heard the water roar.
"Hurry!" cried Carpy, "I can see that we will very shortly be all through with hillside falling. There's the bottom of the hill." And he was right. Their tumbling ceased when they reached the level place. The Tinies and the Trouble Tots sat panting, very still.
"Oh, my, I'm glad to rest," said one. "That really wasn't any fun. I'll bet we fell a mile or so. At least it seemed that far. But all of that is over now. And we've survived the rock somehow. This place we're resting in is strange. I wonder where we are."
Before a soul could say a word, a very funny sound was heard. It frightened everybody as it echoed through the air. Then Clowdy shouted, "Mercy me, we'd all best hide behind a tree. A big black thing is coming, and it looks just like a bear."
(The bunch catch the bear in the next story.)

SENSE and NONSENSE

Incentive.
"Cold an hunger, said Uncle Eben, "was put in de world to remind people dat they's expected to do sumpin' in dis life besides sit around an' argue."
A negro soldier in the American Army was on sentinel duty for the first time in his life. A dark form approached.
"Halt!" he cried, in a threatening voice, "who are you?"
"The officer of the day."
"Advance!"
The officer advanced, but before he had proceeded a half dozen steps the sentry again cried, "Halt!"
"This is the second time you have halted me," said the officer. "What are you going to do next?"
"Never mind what Ah's going to do next. Mah orders are to call 'Halt' three times, den shoot!"

"Mirandy, for de lan'es sake, don't let dem chickens outer dis yere yard. Shut dat gate."
"What fur, Alek? Dey'll come home, won't dey?"
"Deed dey won't. Dey'll GO HOME."

A modern boy is one who knows what she wants when she wants it.

There may be nothing new under the sun, but some mighty strange things happen under the moon.

Hospitals seem to be the country's most prosperous commercial institutions.
A negro woman asked the lady for whom she cooked to explain to her the meaning of companionate marriage. The lady explained to her Judge Lindsay's new theory, telling her that it meant that the husband or wife could dissolve the marriage relation at any time without going to the trouble of getting a divorce in the prescribed way, and at once could enter into the marriage relation with another. The old negro woman comprehended fully the meaning of the new marriage, and exclaimed, "Fore de Lord, white folks are gittin' more like niggers ever' day!"

A negro was brought into court charged with deserting his wife. The judge gave him a roasting for running away from home and refusing to keep his marriage vows to love, protect and care for his wife. Judge, said the negro, "you ain't got me right in dis case. You don't know my wife. I ain't no deserter, I'se a refugee."

A negro truck driver telephoned the grocery firm for which he worked:
"Ah can't come to wuk dis mawning; one ob de chillins' got small pox an' us is all quarantined in."
"That's too bad, Mose," replied his boss. "Are you careful to prevent it from spreading among the rest of your family?"
"Ah sho am, was the emphatic response. "Us is all drinkin' outen one ob dem sanitary cups."

TOT FALLS FROM WAGON FRACTURES HER ANKLE

Wheel Passes Over Leg; Mother Claims Driver Refused to Stop.

Ruth Muldoon, six-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Muldoon of 148 Bissell street, is in the Memorial hospital with a possible fracture of her left ankle as a result of being run over by a milk wagon, owned by Wayland K. Straughan and driven by Wallace Tracy of Spruce street.

According to the child's mother, Ruth had been playing about the house and when she saw the milk wagon stop, ran and climbed aboard. Mrs. Muldoon says that when Tracy came back to the wagon, despite a warning from a woman who saw the child, he jerked the reins, starting up the horse and causing Ruth to fall to the ground. Then a wheel passed over her ankle. Mrs. Muldoon says that Tracy did not stop and when overtaken, still offered no assistance to the injured child. Tracy maintains he did not see the child on the wagon and heard no warning. Policeman John McGinn investigated but made no arrest.

BELL RINGERS COMING HERE AGAIN, FEB. 16

Temple Carillon Players to Show Their Skill in High School Assembly Hall.

The Temple Carillon Players, formerly known as the Scandinavian Bell Ringers, will make their fourth appearance in Manchester, February 16, at High School Hall under the auspices of the Swedish Lutheran church.

There are five skilled players manipulating 200 specially constructed bells, ranging in weight from a few ounces to eighteen pounds. Three different tunes are played on each of the three sets of bells. Sound is produced by grasping leather thongs attached to the bells, and with delicate skill jerking them in rapid succession, they send forth sweet music in perfect harmony, as no other bell ringers have ever done.

The Temple Carillon Players are from Europe and came to America to reveal the extent of their accomplishment, the boundless range of bell music, the perfect musical consonance attainable, the rhythmic expression and charming resonance. Their set of bells is the largest set of handbells in use today. They are all special bells made from the specifications of the players which are the results of long experience. In order to have these bells made the Bill Ringers were compelled to go to England, and employ the only firm which today can make perfect bells of any design, an ancient firm which made the great bells of three English cathedrals centuries back. It is because these bells are formed according to the results of expert knowledge gained by persistent and unvarying experimenting that they give off tones and effects of sounds that no other handbells have or even can produce.

HALE'S FOLLIES

Always Truthful—Even in Concessing Our Mistakes!

Even store buyers are human and like all other humans, they make plenty of mistakes. We came across many of these mistakes when taking inventory last week. These errors are costly but we are willing to "pay the piper." We shall not fool you on anything. Here's a truthful confession of our buyers' mistakes. If you want any of this merchandise, you can buy it for practically nothing.

ON SALE TUESDAY WHILE LOTS LAST.
