Honoring The Barrymore Tradition

New York .- The very remarkable clan of Barrymore, which has achieved considerable fame, applause and even tradition, is about the week beginning Sunday Feb. to have a more lasting memorial 17th:

In West 47th street, where breakfast: — 8 ounce glass of theaters now all but tumble over orange juice thirty minutes before cooked celery, cold sliced beets (no each other, workmen are tearing a breakfast of 2 coddled eggs and vinegar).

away the scaffolding from the Melba toast.

Dinner: bright and shining new facade of a new show-shop which will bear the name of Ethel Barrymore, The Messrs. Shubert, who have erected it in Miss Barrymore's honor and for her use, dedicate it simply "to the outstanding actress of the American stage." Here she will reveal her ripe talents in winfer repertoire-the first produclion to be Sierra's Spanish drama, "The Kingdom of God." The pageant of opening, receiving, acclaiming and formal dedication will be the outstanding theatrical event of the current season, with Manhattan's most important silk hats, evening gowns, critics and theatrical folk in attendance. So much for the simple facts!

There is no theatrical family produced by America with a more loyal stage tradition than the Barrymore's. In fact, last season there appeared on Broadway a particularly amusing play by Edna Ferber, "The Royal Family." It was, obviously, a satiric comedy of this clan. Loyalty to stage traditions played an eminently important part. The outstanding characters were slaves to their audiences. and theatrical illusions. It was the character presumed to be Ethel Barrymore who "floated" most of the rest of the clan. It was to her that they all came when they were hard up and it was in their menage that they all gathered to eat, vacation or impose.

This character was, of course, highly exaggerated. She was pictured as engaged to wed a wealthy South American who wanted to take her away from the stage, to give her ease and luxury. Yet, in a moment where the very stability of the romance was at issue, a stage call came and she rushed away to the theater, leaving her love staring vacantly into air.x

And there was the venerable grandmother who, when scarcely able to totter, still was preparing to take the road as a trouper and who sat in her arm chair endlessly adoring the painting of a celebrated sire who had made stage history. Finally there was a fictitious youthful member of the family, who vowed not to be enslaved, as were the others, and whose sweetheart sought to rescue her from the traditional ties. But, in the end-she, too, went.

They tell me that the Barry-mores did not take kindly to the allusions. And yet, in spite of all the kidding, it seemed to me a fine tribute, after all, to a stage tradition that is fast disappearing. Nor was the comedy entirely untrue. It may have shown madder scenes than one would find around a Barrymore family gathering-yet it asked you to believe that the theater is firmly implanted in their blood. Which is not so hard to be-

At any rate, the name of Barrymore will hang for many a year before a tasteful theater, of Spanish architecture-reminding one not only of Ethel, but of the great Maurice and of Georgina Drew, of John Drew, and of John and Lionel Barrymore and all the rest of a great theatrical clan.

The week on Broadway was marked only by the 146th-or was it the 143rd-play from the pen of Owen Davis. Davis seems to be the one playwright who can leave the indefatigable Willard Mack be-

Davis is a most adroit and skillful craffsman of the theater. His most trivial item is likely to be a better product than can be boasted by many a more high-hatted

This time he is back at mysterycomedy—the opus being "Tonight at 12," with a new producer to Broadway, Herman Shumlin, in charge. It is one of the few entertaining pieces in town. The other opening of the week was "The Squealer," which went to the old-fashioned melodrama for its thrills and may succeed in amusing jaded theater-goers.

The Institute is designed to bring together sociologists, Liologists, psychologists and economists, who will combine with their colleagues in such applied fields as law, medicine, and psychiatry to correlate knowledge of the mind and body and of individual and group conduct, and to study further the interrelations of the many factors influencing human actions.

The announcement states that Yale intends to make a study of human behavior in all of its aspects one of the University's major objectives. All of the departments of the natural and social sciences will co-operate so far as possible in this plan, with the Institute as the point of contact between them and as a center for their graduate and research work. Every man on the staff of the Institute will hold an appointment in a fundamental University department in order that the work of the Institute may be articulated with that of the University as a whole. This will make possible a co-ordination of related activities dealing with man's welfare, and a concentration of knowledge and technique such as has never before been attempted in the solution of

There is also available for this phase of the Institute's work the income from $1,000,000, smounting to $50,000 a year, granted by the Commonwealth Fund Art 1926 and continuing through 1931. This will be used as in the past for the work in mental hygiene. /

The income from $3,000,000, amounting to $150,000 a year, has been voted for ten years by the Laura Spelman / Rockefeller Memorial for research in the social sciences and for the continuance of research in child development and in psychology.

Conduct of the Institute will rest with the professors devoting their full time or the larger part of their time to its interests. The plan is to form an executive committee composed of the deans of the graduate, medical and law schools, one representative of the social sciences, and one representative of the natural Institute Building Plans are now being drawn for the Institute building which is to be located on land already acquired in the immediate vicinity of the Yale School of Medicine and the New Haven hospital. It will provide modern facilities for activities now inadequately housed and widely scattered, bringing these units into contiguity with each other, so that all may enjoy a constant exchange of ideas and facilities.

Although a startling innovation, the Institute of Human Relations is, according to President Angell, a logical development of the best tendencies in modern education and research. It is designed to permit progress which cannot well be made as long as sharp lines divide the various branches of science from one another in educational institutions. It is based on the belief that speaking precisely, the living human body and the human mind are not separate, but inter-dependent entities; and that, in like manner, the individual and the social group can be understood only in relation to each other.

Though unique in conception the Institute is thus held to be based on the soundest principles. It will foster no fads and hold no brief for theories except those which grow out of thorough scientific investigation. It is believed by those organizing the Institute of Human Rela-

Johnson Block.  THIS HAS HAPPENED

When RUTH LESTER, secretary, finds the dead body of her employer, "HANDSOME HARRY" BORDEN, sprawled on the floor beneath the window of his private office, she runs at once to the office of her fiance, JACK HAYWARD. His office is just across the narrow airshaft from Borden's.

Finding Jack out, Ruth seraches for his pistol, which he had purchased at the same time he bought an identical weapon for her to keep in her desk. His gun is gone!

Petrified with fear, she recalls Jack's incriminating behavior of the past Saturday and his angry threat against Borden.

When Jack returns, he accompanies Ruth to Borden's suite and while he phones for the police, Ruth hurries to close the airshaft window in the private office, fearing Jack shot Borden across the air haft. The window is already closed! Ruth tells DETECTIVE McMANN of Borden's two Saturday morning visitors; RITA DUBOIS, night club dancer, and MRS. BOR-DEN, his wife and mother of his two children, who called for her monthly alimony check. Mrs. Borden comes in during the questioning and McMann accuses her of the murder, but she denies it. Ruth tells McMann of the pistol in her desk but when he looks for it, it too, is gone! Tiny footprints of a pigeon in dried blood on the window ledge and on the floor near the body indicate the window was open when Borden was shot. We were going to a matinee. I looked at my watch, found that it was 10 minutes to two, and walked rapidly from the Chester to the Starbridge Building -a distance of only two blocks. him miss again and again. On two or three occasions, Kaplan appeared to have McGraw a bit groggy but each time the New Yorker managed to weather the storm with little apparent difficulty. Toward the end of the bout, the Meriden lad increased his lead by biffing his opponent almost at will. Many of the blows were solid, but on the whole they didn't seem to bother McGraw much if any. All of which leads to the belief that their isn't so much sting in Kap's punches after all. With one exception, the undercard was replete with action. In the semi-final Eddie Lord, 127 1-2. of Waterbury won on a decision from Rony DiPalma, 130, of New Haven in eight rounds. ## Locals Anxious to Get Back On Winning Road, New Player Signed for Bristol Game Next Tuesday.

Still smarting under the sting of defeats administered by New Britain and Bristol which largely eliminate Manchester from any possibility of annexing the state professional baseketball championship this season, the Rec Five will endeavor this evening to assume winning ways once more when they oppose the strong Canadians on the Rec court. The Rec Girls will appear in the preliminary.

Manchester basketball fans have not lost faith in the Rec Five merely because they lost to New Britain and Bristol. They realize that the other contenders for the state titls sport a personnel which almost entirely is made up of high salaried imported players while the Rec has been sporting a lineup that includoutfit may yet scale the barrier to state championship, recognition by

'June," the star of the Broadway musical comedy "Polly", always has kept her family name a secret on the stage. Now she is to have one of the best-known names in England, as she is to marry Lord Inverclyde, grandson of one of the founders of the Cunard line. Lord Inverclyde inherited $10,000,000 and the title from his father in 1919 and was divorced from his first wife, the former Olive Sainsbury, last November. "June" came to America from England to play in "Polly."

New Book Gives Changed Idea Of Prince Rudolf

By MILTON BRONNER.

London.—The great war and toppling of thrones have caused the opening of many secret archives.

Not only have the Not only has the international interplay about treaties and ailiances been revealed in all its nakedness, but a dazzling light has been thrown on some of the personalities who for so many 1870—Construction of the Northyears played so large a part in the old world stage.

battled for liberilism. The man to whom he poured out his soul was Moriz Szeps, chief editor of the Neue Wiener Tagblat. In 1882, the 24-yearold heir to the throne of the empire which was allied with Germany and against France, wrote

"We have enormously to thank France as the main-spring of all Hberal ideas and institutions on the continent. On the contrary what is Germany? Nothing but an enlarged Prussian soldiery, a poor military state. What good was 1870 to Germany? In addition to their regiment of little kings and princes, the Germans now have a kaiser. They must pay for a much larger army. Supported on the points of bayonets, they have a reich ruled by soldiers, police and bureaucrats."

Forsees Upheaval. He not only wrote democratically, but he acted so. When pro-moted to colonel in the empires's army, he chose for his regiment, not one of the crack organizations of the capital, but went to Prague as the chief officer of a Bohemian regiment, all of which officers, instead of being aristocrats, were men sprung up from middle class

From Prague, keeping his eyes open, he constantly wrote letters giving Szeps inside information for his paper. He also wrote informative articles which appeared to Szeps from Prague: "What's going on in Vienna I glean from the newspapers and private letters: money swindles, theft, corruption, bleeding of the state. As a quiet observer, I am us as to how long it will be before an old and touch structure like Austria will crack and fall to pieces in all its joints."

J. A. L. Hyde, New York man, paid $35,000 for some 100-year-old wall paper the other day. This! ought to be a tip to you on what your landlord is up to.

Chicago, Feb. 15 .- Gunplay broke out in Chicago again today when three bandits were shot and seriously wounded by a policeman. Patrolman William Katelhut standing coolly in the middle of a street, exchanged revolver fire with the bandits and brought each one down with five well-directed shots. They were rushed to a hospital.

The three dashed from a grocery and Katelhut ordered them to stop. They began firing at him and the policeman then drew his revolver and wounded them. The men had just robbed the grocery, the policeman learned later.

This wholesale execution, carried out with the precision of a Mexican firing squad, required only a few seconds. .The scene was the garage of the S. M. C. Cartage Co., 2122 N. Clark street, said by police to have been headquarters for boozerunning operations of the Moran

BIRTH RATE IN DROP AS WOMEN ENTER INDUSTRY

Fort Worth, Texas,-"The entrance of married women into industrial pursuits sounds the doom of the old patriarchial family system," is the view taken by Card D. Wells associate professor of Sociology at Texas Christian University. "In the larger cities it is becoming more and more difficult to maintain a decent standard of living and at the same time have a large family," he says. Consequently, the birthrate is declining among the more educated classes. In order to maintain the high standard our people have attained, something must be done."

Effect of Overwork. While admitting the many advantages of the closer partnership between man and wife, Prof. Wells pointed out several rather serious disadvantages of the new order, such as the alarming frequency with which the birth of feebleminded or otherwise sub-normal children is directly traceable to overwork and depression of the

"Dr. Max G. Schlapp, professor of neuropathology at the New York Post Graduate Medical School has done a great deal of research in this subject and his figures are. to say the least, disquieting," said

A more optimistic reaction to the situation is had from Paul Baker, assistant professor in the T. C. U sociology department, who does not fear the consequences of the industrial movement among women. "It is, of course, easy to see the dangers we face, but I feel sure that they can be adequately met. Women's organizations are working with authorities to perfect legislation looking to the protection of women workers and medical people are studying methods for promoting their health and well being," Baker stated. Declining Birthrate.

"The question of declining birthrate and the absence of mothers from their children during the day will be met. Training of children by teachers and caretakers qualified for the task, may result in a better citizenry than we obtain under our present system," Baker thinks. When asked what profession they would choose from a comprehensive list presented, girls of the sociology classes of the university showed a preponderant choice for a place as home-maker and house-"The census of 1920 showed that 1.920.281 women in the United States were engaged in paid employment. Of this number, 23 per cent were married women, so you see that the problem is with us and we will have to take steps to cope

THE BOOK OF KNOWLEDGE:

The Brave Apprentice

After the fighting between the British and French squadrons had been going on for some time, the little recruit apprentice boy asked a sailor how the British would know when the enemy had surrendered. The sailor told him that when the flag on the admiral's warship was hauled down it meant the enemy had given in. 29

By Percy L. Crosby

When people are tempted to wear high hats in winter, other people are tempted.

Don't let BIAS keep wou from being FAIR—today's puzzle shows how easily one's opinion's can be changed. Par is eight and one solution is on another page.

THE RULES.

1-The idea of letter golf is to thange one word to another and do It in par, a given number of strokes, toward a dead stop. Thus to change COW to HEN. In three strokes, COW, HOW, HEW,

2-You can change only one letter at a time. 3-You must have a complete word, of common usage, for each jump. Slang words and abbreviations don't count. 4-The order of letters cannot be :hanged. Everybody loves a good listener.

Victim of Twin Hills Accident Still in Hospital Retains Attorney William Harney.

Although still in the Memorial hospital suffering from a badly preparations for bringing a legal suit against The Connecticut company, it was learned today:

Leonard was injured two weeks ago Saturday afternoon at the point n Twin Hills where Love Lane joins Center street. He was drivng out of the roadway, one which seldom used, when struck by a Hartford-bound trolley car. Inci-dentally, since that accident which occurred at the same place where two Hartford girls were killed three years ago, motormen have been sounding their whistles and slowing down a bit before passing he intersection.

Leonard continues to improve slowly. He is conscious all of the ime now but talks very little. He s not yet entirely out of danger.
