

HOOVER CALLS CABINET FOR FIRST TIME

Session More of a Get Together Than Regular Meeting—Vice President To Sit as Member.

Washington, March 8.—Herbert Hoover, who twice a week for the last eight years sat down at the lower end of the Cabinet table in a chair labeled "Secretary of Commerce," moved up five seats to the head of the table this morning and called a Cabinet meeting of his own—the first of the new administration.

There were three old faces around the table—Secretary of the Treasury Mellon, Secretary of Labor Davis, and Secretary of State Kellogg, who is holding over until Henry Stimson arrives from the Philippines. The others were getting their initiation into the mysteries of running the government.

Vice President Present
At the opposite end of the table from President Hoover was Vice President Curtis, who will attend Cabinet meetings regularly. The idea of having the vice president present was conceived in the Harding administration, but abandoned by Mr. Coolidge. Curtis' long experience in the Senate, however, will make him of value to the Cabinet of legislative matters, and Mr. Hoover has revived the custom.

A Get Together
For the most part, President Hoover planned to make today's meeting more of a "get-together" than a regular Cabinet session. He intended to advise his new aides, from the wealth of his own experience, how they can best coordinate and cooperate. Already, he has seen them individually and instructed them about the larger projects pending before their respective departments.

From Attorney General Mitchell, he probably will ask an opinion as to whether the prohibition enforcement unit can be transferred from the Treasury Department to the Department of Justice by executive order, or whether legislation will be necessary.

Another matter that Mitchell must rule on for his chief is how mandatory are the provisions of the National Origins Act. This Act would base future immigration quotas on the national origins of the population of the country as they showed in the 1790 census. It provides that the President proclaim it in effect as of June 1, 1929, by proclamation not later than April 1.

Hoover Opposed
Mr. Hoover is opposed to the measure—which had the support of the American Legion and many patriotic societies—and he made a determined, though futile effort to get the Congress which just died to

LINK WALSH DEATH WITH ROTHSTEIN'S

New York Sleuths Think the Same Man Murdered Both Men.

New York, March 8.—New York detectives assigned to probe the murder of Thomas "Fatty" Walsh in Miami yesterday, today were tracking down evidence which they expected will incontrovertibly link the Florida killing with the slaying of Arnold Rothstein and Frankie Yale here and the recent "Chicago massacre."

Ed Wilson, big-time gambler of New York and Chicago, is being sought as the slayer of Walsh. The local police are awaiting a complete description of the wanted man. There are berillion measurements for 15 Ed Wilsons in the Rogues' Gallery here.

Police Commissioner Grover A. Whalen today reiterated his declaration that the Walsh murder would lead to early solution of the Rothstein killing and probably to the Yale slayings and Chicago massacre as well.

Sleuths in Miami
"We've got detectives in Miami and we know there are at least 90 racketeers, most of them former associates of Rothstein's, congregated there at the present time," he said. "The gang is beginning to tear itself apart. They're fighting among themselves and somebody is going to talk."

Irene Walsh, one of the four pretty unmarried sisters of Fatty Walsh denied today that she brot-

Asks State Senator What Kind of a Trap Weston Woman Was Caught In.

Hartford, March 8.—Senator Roy C. Wilcox, of Meriden, today received a telegram from Ajax Jones, of New Britain, reading: "Have been single forty-five years. What kind of a trap was the lady caught in?"

Mr. Jones had been reading the account of the fish and game committee's legislative hearing on a bill prohibiting use of steel traps for game in which the tale was told of a Weston woman who fell victim to a steel trap and was seriously affected.

5 FIREMEN KILLED IN BIG EXPLOSION

Ton of Dynamite Goes Off As Volunteers Fight Fire; Twenty-Six Injured.

Scribner, Neb., March 8.—Five volunteer firemen were killed when a ton of dynamite exploded today during a fire in the barn of County Supervisor Carl Hollander.

Twenty-six others were seriously injured. Two of these are expected to die.
The firemen, it is said, were unaware of the presence of the dynamite. It was stored in the barn for use in road construction work. Windows were shattered in virtually every store and residence in town. Scribner has a population of 1,100.
Only three of the dead have been identified.

SEC. MELLON TO STAY UNTIL JOB'S FINISHED

How Long He Remains in Cabinet Depends on Future Developments.

Washington, March 8.—Andrew W. Mellon who celebrates his 74th birthday this month, plans to remain in the Cabinet until he completes his program of treasury reform, which he began eight years ago.

One year, two years, even four, it doesn't matter, so far as Mellon is concerned. No agreement or understanding exists between President Hoover and his secretary of the treasury as to how long he will remain. International News Service learned this today on unimpeachable authority.

How long he remains depends upon future developments. Mellon himself does not know. He may even beat the eleven year record held by another Pennsylvanian, Albert Gallatin, secretary in the Jefferson and Madison Cabinets.

Mellon has his private business affairs organized to such a point that he gives them little attention, having his entire time to devote to the government.

The general belief prevails that Mellon will not serve out another four year term. He will be glad by the progress made in carrying out the $300,000,000 building program, improvement in the administration of the revenue laws, and further revision of the tax laws.

Mellon hopes to see another substantial reduction in income taxes before he quits the Treasury.

SIAMESE TWIN APPLIES FOR MARRIAGE LICENSE

Appears in Norwalk With Mexican—May Be a Publicity Stunt.

New York, March 8.—Mary and Margaret Gibbs, Siamese twins from Holyoke, Mass., are facing separation again, this time by matrimony.

It's Margaret again, or rather, yet, who feels Cupid's darts.

The couple, accompanied by a theatrical manager, their parents and a dark-haired young man appeared at the license bureau in Newark and solemnly made formal application for a marriage license today.

The dark-haired man, who signed himself as desiring to marry Margaret—united or not to her sister said he was Carlos D. Joseff, formerly of Mexico City and that he met Margaret in New Orleans recently. It was reported that he claimed to be the son of a former manager for an American motor company there.

There can't be any marriage, however, for at least three days, the time required to satisfy New Jersey law.

Many observers, recalling the fiasco last year when the twins remained in Park West hospital for some time, supposedly to be separated by an operation so that Margaret might be free to marry, doubted if there would be any wedding at all.

The twins, it is said, recently signed a new vaudeville contract.

How Torrents Swept Georgia Towns and Countryside

The vast scope of floods which swept Georgia cities and countryside is indicated by these striking pictures made while the inundation was the worst. Above is an aerial photo taken over Bibbs County, in the region where many lives were lost and property damage from heavy rains and overflowing streams has mounted into millions of dollars. At the right is shown a flooded street in Montezuma, Ga., where inhabitants were marooned by the floods fed by unceasing rains.

Wins Thrill Kissing Race By Fourteen Heart Beats

New York, March 8.—By four heartbeats, pretty Elsie Lauretson, of Delmar, Iowa, today won the crown of premier "thrill kisser" and thereby added glory to the race of brunettes.

It was one of those scientific experiments, the purpose being to determine if blonde or brunette girls are more emotionally susceptible to kisses.
For the cause of bigger and better kisses and the accurate spelling of names, four chorus girls of "pleasure bound" submitted themselves as scientific subjects.

There were two blondes and two brunettes. None had ever been married. None had been kissed before (in the past 24 hours).
Five stalwart lads got on line. They rubbed their hands together as they awaited the word. A soda clerk, a civil engineer, a salesman, a construction foreman and a dancing instructor—these were to contribute their kisses for the cause of science.

SENATE AND HOUSE TILT OVER SESSION

Program Outlined May Take All Summer to Carry Out, Report.

Washington, March 8.—A sharp disagreement between Senate and House leaders over the legislative program for the special session of the new Congress today marked the initial reaction to President Hoover's proclamation.

The date, set by the President for convening the session—April 15—met with universal favor, but opinion was sharply divided on the question of whether the program can be limited to farm relief, tariff reform and House reapportionment.

Some Senate leaders favored a "wide open" session, in the belief they would be unable to block other legislation, while House leaders demanded a session limited to the subjects enumerated in the Hoover proclamation.

Minor Squabble
A minor squabble also developed over the question of which branch should consider farm relief first.

House leaders, led by Rep. John Q. Tilson (R) of Conn., the Republican floor leader, felt the House should initiate farm relief, while waiting for the House ways and means committee to complete a new tariff schedule. Senate leaders declared the new agricultural bill should start in the upper branch of Congress.

The two groups of leaders were agreed on one thing—that Congress should adjourn its special session by July 1. The rank and file, however, had no such optimism—they predicted the session would last all summer if a farm relief and a tariff bill were to be enacted.

FIVE KILLED BY BLAST

Scribner, Neb., March 8.—Five men were killed and thirty injured in a dynamite explosion near here today.

The blast occurred during a fire in a barn just outside town. A ton of the explosive was stored in the structure.

SMOKE ODOR SAVES VERY SLEEPY PAIR

Hooch Bout Ends With McQuery's House Burned, He and Friend Jailed.

When Peter Happeny, who is a permanent lodger at the Cowles Hotel on Depot Square, visited with his friend Alex McQuery of 163 1-2 Woodland street he didn't dream he would leave the little story and a half shack of a house so quickly.

Some time after Happeny and McQuery had dozed off from the effects of hooch the house caught fire. McQuery awoke, first smelled the smoke, and looked out the window to see what was the cause. Happeny, aroused, quickly sensed that the place was on fire, pushed McQuery out of the way and dove head first out of the window onto the ground.

The blaze, which practically destroyed the McQuery home, called out the Manchester Fire department at 10:15 last night. The house, which has been moved to new foundations twice in its thirty-year history, was constructed of oak timbers that carefully held the fire and made it most difficult task to extinguish the flames. The firemen poured water on the building to float it, nearly, but the smoke persisted. Even after it appeared all the blaze had been washed out the place caught fire again and at 2:45 this morning the department had to again pour water on the remains of the house until they were doubly positive there were no more flames, or sparks alive.

Badly Overcome
It is the opinion of the firemen and the police that the fire started through some act of the two occupants, who were dead drunk as the result of their drinking bout. Possibly an overturned pipe, lamp or a carelessly dropped match was the direct cause. The house did not burn rapidly. This fact perhaps saved the lives of Happeny and McQuery. Both were quite badly cut from broken glass as they jumped through the window.

The ancient little house once stood at the corner of Main and Woodland streets, on the site of Mrs. May Sharp Birnie's large house. Then it was moved to 163 Woodland street and occupied by Mrs. Mary Fitzpatrick. When Mrs. Fitzpatrick decided to build a larger house she had the little house moved back to the rear of her home.

Hay Probable Cause
The renewal of the fire early this morning was probably due to the fact that there were three blind attics in the house. Hay had been stuffed into the narrow partitions to keep the cold out. It is thought

REBELS IN CONTROL OF ALL OF JUAREZ

DURANT RAPS OPPONENTS OF RACING BILL

State Senator of Guilford, Accuses His Foes of "Moral Cowardice and Political Hypocrisy."

Hartford, March 8.—An old age pension law for Connecticut was killed in the Lower House of the Legislature today. The bill provided a payment of $1.50 a day for persons seventy years old or more. The judiciary committee reported unfavorably on the bill and it was rejected without coming to a vote.

At the same time the Senate rejected the horse racing bill, a proposition to establish a racing commission and to permit betting on races. The bill's author, Senator Harry Durant, of Guilford, favored the matter in a speech without opposing the unfavorable report from the committee.

Senator Durant believed the attitude of the opponents toward the bill showed "moral cowardice and political hypocrisy." The state has "come a long way since the time when a voter had to be a member of the Congregational church, and the time when Quakers were hanged on Boston Common," "A Quaker," Mr. Durant said, "is now President of the United States."

Mr. Durant predicted the state would eventually, and in no distant day be more lenient toward such measures as his.

The House humane institutions committee reported favorably on the appropriation of the new state hospital proposed for Fairfield county, and the bill was referred to the appropriations committee for a final report.

THE SENATE
Hartford, Conn., March 8.—Unfavorable reports received and bills rejected by the Senate today follow:

Providing a change in the method of electing health commissioners, the election to be by the Board of Health and the board to be represented equally among the two major political parties; providing that non-support charges be listed as misdemeanors instead of felonies; providing that the state shall pay $9.50 a week to care for girls in the industrial school and $5 a week for the children of such girls; providing that names of people getting aid under the widows pension plan shall not be printed in any public report; providing state aid to appeal in non-support cases the judgment shall take effect from the date of conviction.

Favorable Reports
Favorable reports to the Senate were tabled for calendar appeal today as follows: Authorizing an increase to $5,000,000 in the

FERRYBOAT MAROONED ON GREAT ICE BANK

Seventy-Five Passengers Reported Aboard—Other Ships On Way to Rescue.

Naack, N. Y., March 8.—The ferryboat Naack, which plies between here and Tarrytown, is high and dry on an icebank just off the Tarrytown shore with 75 persons, many women and children aboard.

A terrific gale blew the ferry off its course during the 10 o'clock run this morning, and all efforts to effect a rescue of the passengers and crew of the ice-bound vessel have proved futile. The ferry is damaged in no way, it was announced, and the passengers face no physical danger.

At 1:30 p. m., the ferryboat Reading put off from the Tarrytown slip to go to the aid of its stranded sister ship. The Hudson river at this point is three miles across.

Several attempts to reach the helpless craft by men who put out in rowboats proved useless. The wind drove them back.

Street Fighting Follows Heavy Early Assault—American Troops Watch Battle from Across International Boundary—From Other Parts of Mexico Reports Indicate That Revolution is on Its Last Legs.

El Paso, March 8.—Rebel troops were in control of practically all of Juarez this afternoon.
Following a heavy early morning assault and violent street fighting the Federals were driven back until they held only a small part of Juarez at the Mexican end of the international bridge.

Gen. Mathias Ramos' federals were quickly driven from their first two lines of defence after the rebels under Gen. Caraveo attacked the attack was led by cavalry, followed up by infantry.
It is believed the whole city will be in the rebels possession before night.

Parleys Open
The only alternative for the Federals was to surrender or cross the international bridge into United States soil where they would be disarmed and held prisoner.

Fighting died down before noon when parleys were opened between the Federal and Rebel commanders. American troops watched the battle from the United States end of the Rio Grande bridge. None crossed except an American patrol. The combatants against directing their fire against El Paso.

OFFICIAL REPORT
Washington, March 8.—Small groups of Rebels reports say, have joined the Federal troops at Juarez while the battle amid the city continues. Intermittently, American Consul Nye messaged the State Department at 11 a. m., today. He declared no American casualties have been reported.

The message was filed at 8 a. m., and was decoded before 1 p. m., it read:
"Battle for Juarez continues intermittently. Federal holding out. Reported several small groups Rebels gone over to Federals. No casualties yet on American side of river. Rebels believed to number 800 with command of Albino Frias, former Chief Police of Juarez."

MEXICO CITY REPORT
Mexico City, March 8.—Simultaneously with the receipt of advices here that the battle for the possession of Juarez had broken out in that city, President Emilio Portes Gil issued an official statement forecasting a speedy end to the revolution in the northwestern states.

The President admitted that the military commanders in the states of Chihuahua and Durango had joined the rebels, and that in Sinaloa state former Governor Ramon Irturbe had taken up arms against the government.

He also admitted that General Jose Gonzalo Escobar, holly paroled from Monterey by the federal general, Almazan, had succeeded in reaching his base at Torreon, and is now planning to effect a fusion of his troops with the rebel armies of Chihuahua, Sonora, Sinaloa and Durango.

Thus, for the first time since the revolt broke out, the majority of the insurgent forces are within striking distance of amalgamating with one another under a single head.

President Portes Gil discounted the president military developments around Juarez, declaring the government would deal with the rebellion in this quarter in due time.

No Risk
"The rebellion has proved abortive in a most sensational way," the President's statement said.

"The military situation in Sonora offers no risk whatsoever to the government. The Rebels, in spite of the fact that they are the ones who control the largest military adherents, are advancing southward with great caution, which demonstrates that they are animated with little real enthusiasm."

"The government has been able, for that reason, to organize an ample military column which will oppose them and which will be formed of units far superior in strength to those of the Rebels."

"Military movements such as the ones planned by the people before mentioned can only triumph if executed by a coup, when they do attain an immediate triumph within the first 24 or 48 hours, reflection and severity impose themselves over passion. Each hour which passes strengthens the government and weakens the Rebels."

"These people, therefore, are condemned to defeat, and not slow defeat, but to immediate and overwhelming defeat."

In order to check threatened profiteering in necessities of life, the federal district government today announced a compulsory price list for foodstuffs. The general public was asked to denounce violations of this order.

PLAN CAMPAIGN
Mexico City, March 8.—War Minister Plutarco Calles and the other government military leaders today concentrated upon a campaign for the subjugation of the northwestern states of Mexico where the revolution movement still continues strong.

The government is in complete control in the east, federal troops now hold sway in every important city from this capital to the coast between the American border and the Isthmus of Tehuantepec.

Gen. Jose Gonzalo Escobar, the rebel leader who captured and then lost Monterey, is now believed to be at Torreon with a force of 800 men. It is expected he will be bottled up there by converging forces of pursuing federal troops with a total strength of 10,000.

Reports from the southeast state that Gen. Jesus M. Aguirre, who was forced out of Vera Cruz, is now fleeing towards the Isthmus of Tehuantepec with a force of 600 men.

Rebel Executed
Gen. Jesus Palomera Lopez, the man who boasted of having killed more than 500 persons with his own hands, died before a firing squad at sunset yesterday.

He was the first rebel to be executed in this revolution. He was captured in the state of Michoacan on charges of inciting rebellion.

While the government admits that the situation in the northwest remains serious, optimism reigns high. The government plans to release as many troops as possible from the eastern sector to augment the fragmentary federal forces opposing the strong rebel armies in Sonora.

It is also expected that the troops now pursuing Gen. Escobar will veer to the west if they succeed in forcing him to surrender.

The spokesman for President Portes Gil last night announced that four additional prominent generals were officially in rebellion. These are Gen. Antonio Villarreal, who is a presidential candidate; Gen. Marcial Caraveo, military commander of the state of Chihuahua; Gen. Francisco Urbalejo, military commander of the state of Durango, and Gen. Ramon Irturbe, former governor of the state of Sinaloa.

Villarreal lined up with the Rebels during their short stay in Monterey, according to the official spokesman. He is said to have accompanied Gen. Escobar to Torreon and taken over the administration of the garrison there. He was formerly minister of agriculture.

March 8 on Santa Ana
Nogales, Sonora, Mex., March 8.—Rebel troop movements southward here in progress today toward Santa Ana, 75 miles from here, and which were officially designated by Division General Fausto Topete as the new military headquarters for the revolution in Sonora.

Taking command of the battalion, Topete expects to leave for Santa Ana this afternoon from where he will direct operations. Topete declined to state his reasons for changing his base of operations, but said that by this evening he will have moved 2,500 troops to Santa Ana where he will mobilize the Insurrectionist army, having sent orders south that additional troops, enroute to Nogales, be stopped at Santa Ana.

The original garrison of 500 infantrymen will remain in Nogales under the command of Gen. Francisco Borques.

Troops began the move south shortly before midnight when 12 freight cars crammed with infantry, including cavalry and machine gun units, departed.

Garrison Mutinies
Gov. Topete admitted that soldiers garrisoned at Ortiz, and led by

SAUNDERS AND HOOEY FREED IN STILL CASE

Commissioner Finds Nothing to Connect Local Men With Big Bolton Liquor Plant.

Charles Saunders who owned, but had leased the farm in Bolton where a 1,000-gallon re-distilling plant was discovered after an explosion recently and who was arrested by Federal officers as a possible partner in the deal, was given a hearing before United States Commissioner Crocan of New London, in Hartford, and acquitted.

Mr. Saunders pleaded not guilty and such evidence as the enforcement agents had gathered to show some connections with the operation of the still was presented. At its conclusion the commissioner ruled that there was no connections of Saunders with the distillery had been established.

In the case of Frank Hooey, who accompanied Saunders to the farm the night after the still blew up and who was also arrested, the commissioner said he did not consider that there was anything that would warrant his even being presented, so the charge was erased from the docket.

ESCAPE FROM SUBMARINE IN 200 FEET OF WATER.

Key West, Fla., March 8.—The series of undersea experiments off the Florida coast were completed today after two members of the volunteer crew of the rejuvenated submarine S-4, once the tomb of 40 men, escaped from the craft while it was submerged 200 feet under the water.

The tests were made by Lieut. C. B. Mowen and Chief Torpedoman Edward Kallnowski by means of a newly-invented safety device, an inflated "lung." After the 200 feet test, Lieut. P. H. Dunbar, in charge of the operations, declared the apparatus was practical for any depth.

PRESS FIGHTS OVER AIR

Washington, March 8.—Renewing his charges before the Federal Radio Commission that the so-called American publishers' committee is not representative of the entire press of the country, John Francis Neylan, representing various Hearst organizations, protested again today that the proposed allocation of 40 short waves awarded the press was "inadequate and unjust."

Neylan endeavored to secure an agreement from Dwight P. Green, representing the Chicago Tribune and Louis M. Loeb, representing the New York Times, to join with the Hearst interests in giving the Associated Press equal rights in the allocation, although under its charter the Associated Press is unable to form a separate public utilities service, as required by the commission. Although refusing to enter such an agreement both Green and Loeb said their respective papers would interpose no objection if the commission could work out a plan giving the Associated Press equal service with other press associations without the public utilities feature.

hero. He was gallant in defeat. He smiled and proudly stated that "dollars" had beaten his "men".

By this he referred to the proxy poll which showed that, although beaten 2 to 1 in the matter of shares, he had been supported by two-thirds of the individual shareholders, showing that the men of wealth supported the Rockefeller, and that the "little fellows" voted for Stewart.

The chairmanship post was left vacant. Ed. G. Seibert, who was re-elected president, will take over Col. Stewart's duties as the company's chief executive officer.

Melvin A. Traylor, president of the First National Bank of Chicago and Dr. William M. Burton, former president of the Indiana & Erie corporation, were elected to the board of directors.

Two other new directors, promoted from the ranks of the company, were elected. They are Thomas S. Cook of the Pan American Petroleum & Transport Co. and Dr. Gentry Cash, manager of the Whiting refinery.

Col. Stewart called the meeting to order and retained the gavel until the result of the proxy count was officially reported. He several times ruled against some of his own followers who sought to save him by desperate appeal to legal technicalities.

The "only threat of trouble" for the victorious Rockefeller faction came from R. W. Kellough, a minority stockholder from Oklahoma, who challenged the whole batch of Rockefeller proxies on the ground that they were illegal because they tended to create a "monopoly," because they sought to deprive small stockholders of their rights to a voice in the company's affairs, and finally because many of them were "in violation of the laws of the State of Indiana."

Kellough intimated that in due time he would launch legal proceedings designed to strip Rockefeller interests from their position.

Inquiries as to what Col. Stewart is going to do, now that he is a "free agent," were received generally with careless indifference and the intimation that the colonel's "well fixed and not worrying."

According to one report, Stewart may apply for a pension, having been in the company's service for 22 years and, therefore, it was claimed, entitled to receive an annual pension equal to 70 per cent of his average salary.

SEE NEW MERGER

New York, March 8.—Formation of a gigantic oil concern, by a combination of the Sinclair and Stewart interests, rivaling the Standard Oil Company of Indiana from which the fighting colonel has just been ousted, was seen in Wall street today as the result of the turn of events in the affairs of the Rockefeller-controlled Indiana company.

Through joint operation of the Sinclair Pipe Line Co. and the Sinclair Crude Oil Purchasing Co., Harry F. Sinclair and Robert W. Stewart have been closely associated in the petroleum industry in recent years. Pooling of their interests and the probable inclusion of two or three more large independent oil concerns in a new $750,000,000 combination may be the next important move in the oil world, according to well informed financial circles.

Next to the Texas Corporation, the Sinclair Consolidated Corporation is the largest in the so-called independent oil field, with assets of close to $400,000,000. The Phillips Petroleum Co. mentioned in the merger rumors has $150,000,000 assets and the Skelly Oil Company close to $100,000,000. The amalgamated company will be rounded out with two or three strategically located producing, pipe line, refining and retail distributing companies.

At the office of the Sinclair Company comment was refused on the subject, but in other quarters it was said that important announcements dealing with the new line-up of the oil world might be made within a week or two.

Corinne Griffith Proves She's Really An Actress

Corinne Griffith . . . not just a clothes-horse any longer

By DAN THOMAS

Hollywood, Calif.—"Well, what do you want me to tell you that will revolutionize the picture industry?"

"That was my greeting from Corinne Griffith when I wandered over the set where she was making retakes for her latest film, "Prisoners."

"What can you tell me that will revolutionize the industry?" I asked.

"Nothing," she replied. So we launched into a general conversation, pertaining mostly to her change as an actress during the last year or so.

Corinne used to be known as one of the most beautiful and best dressed women in celluloid. Scores upon scores of the most fashionable gowns were bought for her fashion parade across the silver street. In the end, to use the actress' own words, she was just a beautifully draped clothes-horse—nothing more.

Tires of Fashion Show

As the years passed she tired of doing nothing but staging a fashion show throughout seven reels of celluloid film. Any woman would, despite the natural feminine tendency to love smart clothes.

Corinne was drawing down a tremendous salary as an actress. She yearned for a chance to prove that she really could act. But producers said "no, nobody else can wear clothes as you do and that's what the public wants you to do."

It happens that Miss Griffith was right. The public tired of seeing her as nothing but a fashion model. Her pictures started falling off at the box office. She rebelled.

"I knew that I was facing sure death at the box office if I continued playing the colorless clothes-horse," Miss Griffith declared. "Then, too, I was getting tired of doing nothing but trying to look attractive. I always act if given an opportunity and I wanted to prove it."

"I kept begging and pleading for a story that would permit me to really characterize a personality. Finally the executive consented, probably to show me I wasn't so good after all. I worked harder than I ever had before in my life and the picture was a success. So now I am being given stories that offer me an opportunity for acting."

Corinne's first variation from her usual fashion model type of film was "Saturday's Children" in which she portrayed a stenographer with ultra modern marriage ideas. Then came "Outcast," in which she was a woman of the streets.

In "The Divine Lady" she started out as a cook's daughter who later became a great lady through marriage.

"Prisoners," which she has just finished and which by the way is a talking film, finds the lovely Corinne a Vienna night club entertainer.

These are the films which literally have saved her from oblivion. She was headed that way and found her detour just in time.

LATEST STOCKS

New York, March 8.—Though upset at the start of the session by the unexpectedly large increase in brokers' loans, the Stock Market recovered its equilibrium in the early afternoon, and continued demand for the Copper, Steel and specialty stocks brought about a sharp recovery in prices.

Radio and Victor Talking Machine celebrated their approaching merger by a new run-up into higher price ground, Radio jumping 23 points to 439 and Victor up 5 points to 156. The "old crowd" in Radio, the pool that was responsible for its sensational rise from below 50 to 437 in 1928, bought the stock with both hands since yesterday noon, in the course of its 60 point jump from 30. The new W. I. stock moved up in the same period from 75 to 87.

Attached by the high call loan rates, money poured in from the outside, and the rate was expected to come down for week-end loans. Higher prices for the Steel, Copper, Oil, Utility and Specialty stocks were quoted in the third hour. There was little or no stock overhanging the market and the bulls had a comparatively easy task in boosting prices of their favorite issues.

The rails also resumed the advance which was interrupted by the break in the market. U. S. Steel sold today above 155, and new gains of 1 to 2 points were recorded in Bethlehem, Central Alloy, Crucible, Vanadium and Youngstown.

All of the oil stocks moved into higher territory, with Pan American, Skelly, Atlantic Refining, Maryland, Phillips, Shell, Union and Texas Corporation in the lead.

Packard led the Motors in a new 3 1-2 point move to 141 1-2. Chrysler moved up to 109 1-2, but the move in the motor car stocks lacked the "punch" that has often characterized them as market leaders. Slightly higher prices were also quoted for the mercantile stocks, with Montgomery Ward a favorite. Advance Rumley pushed along 4 points to 72 1-4, but the move in Radio shares monopolized the bulk of speculative interest in the late trading.

Call money ruled at ten per cent.

CHANGES IN NAVY

Washington, March 8.—Coincident with the change of administration, a number of changes were made today in the high commands of the Navy.

Admiral Wm. V. Pratt becomes commander-in-chief of the United States fleet, succeeding Henry A. Wiley, and Vice Admiral Louis N. Nulton becomes commander-in-chief of the battle fleet.

The new fleet commander, Admiral Pratt, is a native of Maine, and was one of the naval experts who accompanied President Wilson to Paris.

The contents of the McQuery home were destroyed with the exception of a trunk containing a bank book and some personal papers. McQuery isn't worrying about a place to sleep for the rest of the winter, however, since his address for the next thirty or forty days will be the Hartford County jail on Sevens street, Hartford. Hapenny and McQuery were both arrested for drunkenness and were before Judge Raymond A. Johnson in police court this morning. They were both sentenced to 30 days in jail with costs amounting to $14.07 which will keep them in the jail for 44 days.

CHARGED WITH ARSON

Winsted, March 8.—Myron Malanchuck, 18, of Barkhamsted, was arrested today by state police of Canaan barracks in Gilbert school where he is a pupil, and charged with arson in connection with the destruction of Charles LeGyt's general store and the post office at Barkhamsted on February 28. He is to have a hearing in that town this evening.

According to the police the boy is said to have admitted entering the store on the night of February 28th and of trying to burn papers in the stove. He said that a burning stick of wood rolled out accidentally and so set the store on fire.

Le Gyt told the state police that the store has been robbed seven times in eight years.

repeat it. He is now looking for a way to ignore it. It wasn't all governmental affairs that bothered the new President today, however. He has the makings of a nice row within a certain section of the Republican party on his hands—that section which functions in "the new south."

South Patronage
Col. Horace Mann, who operated during the recent campaign under the title of southern manager, made a futile effort several days ago to get the Republican national committee to turn a share of southern patronage over to him. The committee tabled a resolution which would have done it. Mann saw Mr. Hoover yesterday, but refused to talk as he left the White House. He hadn't been gone long before Dr. Hubert Work, chairman of the committee, put in an appearance. He, too, was talking.

Adding to these conferences, the President also saw Rep. J. Will Taylor, committee man for Tennessee, and a known opponent of Mann's, and Col. R. B. Creager, committee man for Texas, who holds views similar to Taylor's on the score of divorcing Mann from any patronage distribution in his territory.

Senator Brookhart (R) of Iowa, who has been investigating alleged sale of federal offices in the south, saw Mr. Hoover just before inauguration and went away with instructions to clean out any bad spots. His committee is still sifting evidence, and the President is understood to be awaiting the final report before moving to reform the Republican party south of the Mason-Dixon line.

TWO BROTHERS MEET AS BOTH FACE JUDGE

Happens, Frank and Peter, Don't Know of Each Other's Arrest for Drinking

Brother met brother at the session of the town court this morning. Peter Happenny, who was arrested in connection with the fire on Woodland street last night, met his brother, Frank, who was also before the court. Frank did not know anything about the fire or anything about his brother Peter being brought into jail last night. He had troubles of his own. Frank had been in Hartford yesterday afternoon. At 5:30 p. m. of Market and State streets. At 8:30 the Hartford car arrived in Manchester and on the floor of the car was Frank, dead drunk. The police station was notified and a couple of policemen carried Happenny into jail. In his pockets were found four pint bottles filled with red liquor and one empty bottle. Before Judge Raymond A. Johnson in police court this morning were arraigned Frank and Peter Happenny and Alex McQuerry, all charged with intoxication. The triumvirate suffered alike being sentenced each to 30 days in jail. They were assessed costs of $14.07 each and probably will work out the costs in jail giving them 44 days in the Hartford institution.

BIG REVERE FIRE.

Revere, Mass., March 8.—Nearly 300 men, women and children fled from their homes to the street in the bitter north wind today as fire of unknown origin swept the old Eagle Auditorium building, menacing a large area in thickly populated "Young's Hill" district. Fireman of this city, Lynn, Chelsea, Everett, Winthrop and Boston fought four hours before the $75,000 four-alarm fire was under control.

REPARATIONS PLANS

The plan was proposed by a sub-committee. At the next meeting of the experts on Monday the suggestion will be received further consideration.

POOR ENGLISH GETS BLAME IN TRAGEDY

Ignatz Charley Gave Police Wrong Idea and So Prevented Timely Arrests.

If Ignatz Charley had had a better command of the English language it is highly probable that he would not now be in a suicide's grave and that his bandolero, Rocco Farr, instead of being in Memorial hospital with a serious bullet wound in his neck, would be in his usual state of health. Inability to make himself understood by the police when he complained of an assault that had been committed on him on the afternoon of the day of the shooting can be easily charged with the chain of circumstances that resulted in the tragedy.

It will be remembered that Charley went to the police station late in the afternoon of Tuesday and asked for the arrest of Joe Arson—whose real name is Aliskavich—because, as he said, they had beaten him up. That somebody had beaten him was obvious, for his forehead was scratched and bloody and both of his eyes blackened. There were other marks on his face as well.

Gave Wrong Impression

The trouble with his complaint was that, despite close questioning, Charley gave the police to understand that the assault had taken place in Hartford. Instead of which it now appears that the one-sided fight occurred within the town of Manchester and that Charley had afterward walked from its scene to the police station, a distance of about three quarters of a mile. It was true that Charley and the two men who, he said, beat him had been in Hartford and were driving to Manchester, all three in the same car, when they quarreled. After the fight by the roadside the car, a 1927 Chevrolet, stood on the highway for an hour and a half.

The police say that if Charley had not mixed up his account of the trouble in such a way as to make it appear an affair out of their jurisdiction, they would have taken steps, of course, to have hunted up his assailants and have arrested them. In that event, the subsequent events would probably never have transpired. As it was, Charley went to his tailor shop on Center street in a black mood, feeling that he could get no redress for his wrongs, real or fancied, and nursing a long-festering personal revenge.

Further Aggravated

The call that evening from the two men who quarreled with him in his shop only aggravated his condition and when, a little later, Mr. Parr tried Charley's shop door, fearing to have a drunken man sleeping on the premises lest he should set the place on fire, it is now generally accepted that Charley fired on him in the belief that the latter was one of his two enemies, returned to further taunt and abuse him. So there seems to be good ground for the belief that Charley's imperfect knowledge of the language of the country where he had lived for many years was primarily responsible for the double shooting.

er was formerly Arnold Rothstein's bodyguard. She said she had served the gambler as an expert on financial matters.

Had Money

"Tom had plenty of money," Miss Walsh said. "He was worth hundreds of thousands and was interested in real estate in Miami." The mother of the murdered man, Mrs. Katherine Walsh, a woman well beyond 60, was prostrated at the news of his death. While the Walsh slaying was stirring New York detectives into action, District Attorney Charles Dodd, of Brooklyn, went to Chicago and after a conference with police there promptly attributed the Rothstein, Frankie Yale and Bugs Moran gang murders to the sinister hand of "Scar-face" Al Capone. Rothstein's Partner

Dodd declared he possesses information showing how Capone and Rothstein were partners in dope smuggling and gambling on the races, how they quarreled and how Capone quietly ordained that Rothstein be erased. "The price for bumping off an ordinary fellow is $10,000," Dodd said, "but of course, the trust pays more for getting rid of a big boy."

The killing of Walsh strangely parallels the termination of Rothstein's earthly career. The similarity of the two "jobs" is one of the reasons local sleuths believe the same group was responsible for both.

Inez Norton, blonde sweetheart of Rothstein and beneficiary under his will checked out of the Miami-Biltmore an hour before Walsh was murdered, police said here today. Detectives are seeking her in Jacksonville.

"Nigger Nate" Raymond and "Tough Willie" McCabe, Broadway racketeers, who were arrested and released after Rothstein's death, are in Miami, but police haven't been able to locate them.

REBELS IN CONTROL OF ALL OF JUAREZ

Gen Antonio Armanto, had mutilated against the revolutionary control, but declared that Armanto's followers had been reduced to 25 men who were now fleeing to the Chihuahua border.

Topete informed International News Service that he was not planning to start a cavalry offensive against the Lower California Federalists under Gen Gastalun who were holding San Luis, Sonora, the gateway to the land approach of the peninsula state.

Lieut. Edward Kohler, American aviator of San Diego, reported missing in southern Sonora, was interviewed at the home of Gen. Borquez. Kohler intimated that he may be assisting the revolutionary cause, but refused to make a positive statement. Kohler said: "For personal reasons, I cannot say at present whether or not I will support the revolutionary movement. I plan, however, to return to Hermosillo as soon as I can get a plane ready. All of the time I was 'lost' I was actually down in Hermosillo with my plane which I damaged in landing."

Kohler arrived last night aboard the first passenger train coming from the south since the outbreak of the revolt. He said everything in southern Sonora appeared normal. He was interviewed in the presence of Gen. Borquez, Gov. Topete and other Rebel army officials who were in conference at the Borquez home.

Early today Gov. Topete said he had received a long-distance phone call from El Paso, Texas, claiming the Rebel forces under Gen. Carrasco had captured Juarez, but declined to state who had called him. Topete also received a communique from Gen. Jose Gonzalo Escobar, military chief of the revolution, stating Gen. Juan Gualberto Amaya, governor of Durango, had thrown his support to the Rebels, had taken command of an insurrection of the railroad offices and public buildings in the city of Durango.

The communication also claimed the entire state of Sinaloa on the Gulf of Lower California was now under revolutionary control, after apparently an affair out of their jurisdiction, they would have taken steps, of course, to have hunted up his assailants and have arrested them. In that event, the subsequent events would probably never have transpired. As it was, Charley went to his tailor shop on Center street in a black mood, feeling that he could get no redress for his wrongs, real or fancied, and nursing a long-festering personal revenge.

Further Aggravated

The call that evening from the two men who quarreled with him in his shop only aggravated his condition and when, a little later, Mr. Parr tried Charley's shop door, fearing to have a drunken man sleeping on the premises lest he should set the place on fire, it is now generally accepted that Charley fired on him in the belief that the latter was one of his two enemies, returned to further taunt and abuse him. So there seems to be good ground for the belief that Charley's imperfect knowledge of the language of the country where he had lived for many years was primarily responsible for the double shooting.

VERA CRUZ OPEN.

Vera Cruz, Mex., March 8.—This port was open and in direct communication with Mexico City today for the first time since the beginning of the revolutionary movement. Federal troops are posted at all strategic points. Gen. Espiridon Gonzalez is in command. This city was turned over to Gen. Gonzales by loyal Agrarians who had opposed Gen. Jesus M. Aguirre and patrolled the city after he evacuated. Gen. Aguirre evacuated Wednesday night after all the foreign consuls in the city approached him and requested him to do so to prevent unnecessary bloodshed.

Between 400 and 600 troops followed him to the south. Many had deserted his command upon learning from messages dropped from government airplanes that they had been misled into thinking Aguirre had remained loyal.

The Mexican Navy remained loyal despite reports to the contrary. After feigning adhesion to the revolution, Commodore Hernandez put to sea with three cruisers and then radioed to the government that he was loyal and was enroute to Tampico with naval supplies.

FEDERALS IN CONTROL.

Mazatlan, Sinaloa, Mexico, March 8.—Federal troops again held sway in this city today. Two federal infantry regiments, commanded by Gen. Jaime Carrillo, made an unexpected landing from a ship in this port late yesterday and drove out the rebels who had held the city for three days. The rebel forces were caught napping and fled at the approach of the federal force. It is believed the rebels suffered numerous casualties but no estimate was available.

Daily Lenten Thought

By WILLIAM E. GILROY, D. D.

Editor of The Congregationalist.
 Sir A. T. Quiller-Couch, the eminent novelist, preaching in a London church during the late war, from the text "Read your hearts and not your garments," laid great stress upon the fact that the cardinal sin of today and the cardinal sin against which Jesus thus derided was the sin of self-deception.

It was during the dark days of the war when an appeal had gone out through the churches for men and women to show a greater spirit of sacrifice, but the sacrifices urged were related very largely to formal observance and to the trivial things of human conduct, which, as Mr. Quiller-Couch pointed out, had little place in his life and in the lives of many other people. He thought there ought to be a challenge to the deeper and more elemental sins.

Are we not apt, to lay so much stress upon minor sacrifices that we may neglect altogether the deeper sacrifice of the contrite heart and fall through the grace of God to have our lives purified at the very source? Some one has said that the denial of self is something far beyond self-denial.

It is still easier to rend one's garments than to rend one's heart, but it is the sacrifice of a broken spirit that God does not despise.

A NEW SPORT

Kabul, Afghanistan.—This land of tribal chieftains and the ready use of daggers, has been introduced to a new sport. It is elephant racing. The uncertain temper of the robed gentlemen lends an added thrill to the job of bookmakers who handle wagers on the lumbering runners and keep their eyes peeled for possible knife thrusts.

TODAY IS THE ANNIVERSARY

THE STAMP ACT

One hundred and sixty-four years ago today the British House of Lords passed the Stamp Act and made war with the American colonists only a matter of time. It gave the colonists their greatest slogan—

"Taxation without representation is tyranny." Practically every business transaction in the Colonies was taxed. More than 50 paragraphs of the bill affected various kinds of documents. These all began: "For every skin or piece of vellum or parchment, or sheet or piece of paper, on which shall be engrossed, written or printed, . . . a stamp duty of (amount)." "A license for retailing of spirituous liquors" cost three pounds. Packs of playing cards were taxed a shilling and "every pair of dice, ten shillings."

The act brought an era of patriotic self-denial to the Colonies. The wearing of mourning for deceased relatives was dispensed with, because the cloth was of British manufacture. Lamb was included on no patriot's menu, because the number of wool-producing sheep had to be increased.

The time soon came, however, when sterner opposition than this had to be made.

THAT'S OIL RIGHT

DOCTOR: Now, take this dark-colored bottle when you get up, and this oily mixture the last thing before you go to bed.

PATIENT (from New Jersey): Yeah, but—

DOCTOR: Is there anything you don't understand?

PATIENT: Yeah, what's the idea of takin' the oily medicine the latest?—Judge.

Many trees, shrubs and plants contain rubber and, if proper methods of extraction can be devised, may be grown as crops.

UTILIZE WASTE COAL

London.—In a lonely spot in South Wales, a carefully guarded experiment is under way in the conversion of waste coal, known as small coal or "duff". Rumors of the experiments are that the coal is being separated from the dirt and graded into sizes from small grains to "flour". The "flour" probably will be mixed with a heavy oil and used for heating.

WASHINGTON LETTER

By RODNEY DUTCHER.

Washington, March 8.—The Hon. John Garibaldi Sargent unquestionably has derived a deal of quiet satisfaction over the difficulty Mr. Hoover had in finding the right kind of a man to succeed him as attorney general.

Derned if it didn't put kind of a crimp in those critics that have been allowin' all along that finding a successor would be just about the easiest of all chores and that the old Department of Justice would get along in exactly the same way if he were to have no successor at all.

Yessir, it does kind of give a feller a thrill to resume his position as leading lawyer in Ludlow, Vermont, after seeing the new president having such a heck of a time filling his boots!

Sargent will be very happy to get back among his native Green Mountains. His yearning for them these last few years has been just as sincere as could be. His announced reaction to his job here is that it was a great experience—kind of broadens a feller—and that he enjoyed it. But he is now assuredly the most content of the retired cabinet members.

In recent times, at least, there has been no other cabinet member just like Sargent. He leaves friends here; not many admirers, it is true, but no enemies.

His main job, in his mind, was to do what his friend Calvin wanted him to do. Inasmuch as Calvin seldom had any instructions, he did here as the cabinet member who never appeared to know what it was all about and who, furthermore, didn't care. In that respect he left the Justice Department the same Sargent, now 68 years old. These Vermonters get set in their ways much younger than that. And it is somewhat to Sargent's credit that he never professed to know what it was all about when he didn't. His official conduct seemed to be keyed along the lines of a public address in which he once said:

"In 150 years we have all traveled far, very far; and if it is excusable to make use of the substance of a somewhat slangy phrase, we do not yet know just where we are going. I say we do not know where we are going and I say it again, because I wish you to take note of the assertion; ask yourselves if you can say to the contrary, and if you feel sure about it each tell yourself the answer!"

Few of his speeches were quite good enough to dissolve the suspicion that Sargent had written them himself. He was not averse to speechmaking, but he appeared to have a perfect horror of ever telling newspapermen anything. That was all right with the newspapermen, but the old gentleman also clamped down a mantle of secrecy over his entire department. Often he varied his customary simple answers of "I don't know" and "I can't discuss that" by saying "Colonel Donovan has charge of that," but he wouldn't let Donovan, who was regarded as the real attorney general, open his mouth. And thus the Justice Department worked in nearly absolute secrecy; it seemed as if Sargent regarded correspondents as more dangerous than the nation's criminals.

It is a rather quaint fact that Sargent apparently never knew much more than he told the press. When a Senate committee asked him about the so-called aluminum trust it appeared that he hadn't even heard of the inquiry until six or eight months after taking office, even though the company had been accused of anti-trust violations by both his predecessor and the Federal Trade Commission. He learned about it first when some newspapermen happened to ask him about it. The other time Sargent came into the limelight was when he admitted to senators that he had stopped proceedings against Indian Commissioner Burke at the request of Secretary of Interior Work. John Garibaldi was up in the Green Mountains and couldn't very well investigate, but he promptly telephoned to Washington the desired orders.

There is so much size to Sargent that he was called "Jumbo" at college. Strangely enough, he is as impressive in appearance as anyone in Washington. He was a successful lawyer in Vermont and a severe prosecutor of law violators while attorney general of that state. In Washington he has consistently turned down requests for pardons and paroles unless they were supported by his friend Calvin, as few were.

When he came here, after Calvin had appointed him in apparent pique following the Senate's refusal to confirm Charles Beecher Warren for the attorney general-ship, Sargent wore lemon colored shoes and other "strange apparel" and carried wrapped-up rubbers, his Bible and an umbrella under his arm. He goes back to Ludlow a comparatively snappy dresser.

But he said then that he felt "like a cat in a strange garret" and it seems likely that he never quite got over the feeling. But he acted according to his lights.

It was the custom among Romans to shave off the beard at the age of 21, and present it as an offering to the household gods. A beard was grown after that age only as a sign of mourning.

CHINA

We have been wondering if Manchester people would respond, generally, to the plea of the China Relief committee for a $5,000 contribution toward the fund that is being given by Americans to keep, if possible, some of a vast number of Chinese from starving to death. How vast the number is, probably nobody knows very precisely. But if you were to put it at ten million who have been hungry for a long time, most of whom stand a pretty good chance of dying of their hunger, it wouldn't, in all probability be so far wrong.

Fancy all the people of New York City, Connecticut and Massachusetts, spread out over two or three big provinces—substantially all of them very hungry and almost no food to be had. That would be something like what is going on in China.

China is a long way off, to be sure. But the Chinese are intelligent, very human men, women and children, even as we are. They are markedly individual. They love their homes as much as any people in the world. Their family life is one of the world's wonders. They are not to be thought of in mass but as separate entities, like your friends in the next street and the family over the way. And millions of them are going to die, miserably, just as we here in Manchester would all have to die if something happened to cut us off from all food supplies—unless the heart of the whole world opens and gives them food.

What has happened to bring this all about is a complex set of circumstances for which the victims are not at all to blame. Several hundred years of subjugation to a foreign rule which prevented any proper development of the country set the stage for it. The recent wars did the rest, together with some crop failures. It has not been the fault of the men and women and children who are starving and who, by countless thousands, have left or are leaving their beloved homes in the famine areas, seeking a mouthful of food and some chance for life, where they hardly know.

There is spare money enough in America to save most of these unfortunate, courageous and deserving people—it is too late to save many of them for they are already dead, and more will be dead before aid can reach them. But a great obligation—the obligation of simple humanity—rests upon the people of this rich and happy country to succor those of that impoverished and unhappy land who can still be saved.

No sum is too small to be of use in this greatest of all great relief tasks. Imagine what a dollar's worth of cheap food might mean to one of those starving Chinese families.

WRONG TRACK

Without professing any expertise whatever in the matter of steel traps it appears to the Herald that the kindly and well disposed persons who are trying to get an improvement in the trapping laws of this state may just possibly be barking up the wrong tree.

It is perfectly true that many outrageous results follow the setting of traps in Connecticut—particularly injury to dogs—but it is also true that most of the things complained of are already against the law. The worst feature of the situation is that even existing laws are very poorly enforced, and it is not clear how more drastic statutes would do much good if they, in turn, were to receive no more consideration from local authorities than those now in force.

The trouble with trapping laws, like fish and game laws in general, is that town grand jurors and justices of the peace will not, in a great many instances, proceed effectively against violators who are their friends and neighbors. Game wardens are in constant difficulty in their attempts to enforce the laws, for this reason. It is well known that the trapping laws are very generally ignored, and in most cases it is well enough known by whom. But grand jurors refuse to prosecute and justices refuse to convict, and the violators of the law laugh at the complainants.

If there is a substantial body of opinion opposed to the reckless and improper setting of steel traps, it is possible that it might make itself felt if it would get back of a movement to remove such offenses from the jurisdiction of the justice courts and provide some other tribunal for their trial.

THE ROOT PLAN

If Elihu Root, at four score years, has evolved a device whereby the World Court nations can reconcile the meat of the notorious American fifth administration with their self-respect and their expectation of the continued efficacy of the Court, he has proven himself, in spite of his years—or perhaps because of them—wiser than the whole United States Senate or anybody else that we can think of, since nobody at all, other than he, has been able to do that thing. Yet it looks very much indeed as if Mr. Root had invented a real way out of the difficulties imposed by the excessive self-interest of that reservation.

It was always unreasonable to expect that the other nations would consent to place in the hands of the United States a veto power which, if exercised as it is easy to imagine its being exercised, would prevent the World Court from giving an advisory opinion on any question whatever, because the United States could, if it saw fit, always "claim an interest" in any question likely to come before the Court from any part of the world.

Mr. Root's plan, as a matter of fact, deprives the United States of that complete veto power. It provides very skillfully instead, for the amicable withdrawal of this nation from adherence to the Court if its protest against an advisory opinion should be overruled. This lets the Court Nations out of any fear that the United States might block the whole machinery any time it saw fit, and at the same time it provides a method for relieving this country from obligation to subscribe to any advisory opinion which it is unwilling to have rendered.

The simplicity of the plan is, as is usual with such brilliant strokes, astonishing. Of course the wonder will be that nobody ever thought of it before. Just the same, nobody did until this octogenarian intellect produced it.

If there is any good reason why the Root formula cannot be adopted with satisfaction to all parties it is difficult to discover.

CORPORATIONS AND SOULS

This is the kind of thing that is meant by intelligent people when they say that "Corporations have no souls."

David Buick, in middle age, developed the Buick automobile, devoting to it a fortune of $100,000 that he had made in business, as well as the mechanical genius that, many years ago, made his car one of the leaders. Other men joined forces with him, contributing capital and business ability. Eventually Buick, unable to agree with his backers as to questions of policy, withdrew, taking some of the stock of the company as his share. He tried other things, oil, Florida realty, selling his Buick stock till he hadn't a share left. The enterprises failed. At seventy he was broke. He got a job as instructor in a trade school in Detroit. Ill, he couldn't hold it. They kept him sitting at a desk as an "information man" at a pittance. This week he died in a hospital, penniless.

The Buick plant is building 309,000 automobiles a year. But its corporate intelligence knows nothing about any David Buick. It knows nothing except how to make money and distribute it to stockholders, of whom Buick was not one when he died. It knows no such words as gratitude, friendship, sentiment. A corporation is a mechanism. Mechanisms, of course, have no souls. Perhaps they have no legal right to have.

HERE'S A WOMAN!

Five years ago Lieutenant Ervine R. Brown, of the United States Navy Supply Corps, stole a $124,000 Navy payroll and absconded. He confessed the theft to his wife, the mother of three children. She urged him to give himself up and return the money. After several months her entreaties prevailed. Brown had $84,000 left. He turned it over to the government and took a four-year sentence, which he served.

Her husband in jail, Mrs. Brown got a job and lived, with her children, within her earnings. Every nickel she could save she turned over to the government. She also gave up $2,000 in Liberty bonds and her diamond ring—all she had. When Brown got out of prison he joined his wife. Together they are employed in a chain restaurant in Brooklyn, paying back to the government all of their earnings not actually needed to live on.

They face a long, weary time of it. Perhaps they won't live long enough to make up the whole of the shortage.

There is room for division of opinion about Brown. But hardly room for more than one verdict concerning Mrs. Brown. What a woman! What a wife!

Health and Diet Advice

By DR. FRANK MCCOY

ORGANIC VS. INORGANIC SALTS

In my articles I frequently mention the need of organic salts. These salts are not the same as table salt. Organic salts are inorganic mineral salts which have been absorbed and "organized" by living plants. These salts are absolutely essential to life and are abundant in the fruits, milk and non-starchy parts of the green vegetables, etc.

Table salt is not essential to life. A small amount to make the food palatable does not seem to harm, and may stimulate digestion, but my experience with thousands of patients convinces me that an excessive amount of salt will retard or prevent the cure of many diseases.

Chemically, the elements are always the same whether they are found in earth, grass, plant or animal, but as they are found in the earth they are unable to sustain life. The limes which the plasterer uses, the potash used in lye, and the iron of the steel mill cannot be taken up by the body and converted into cell structure. This is likewise true of common table salt which imparts an agreeable flavor to improperly cooked food.

Only plants have the power to digest and utilize the elements of the soil. The animal can only use these elements after they have been so changed by plants or after they have been absorbed from the plant by some other animal. It seems that these elements go through some sort of change that is too delicate for the chemist to discover and for this reason many medical text books are misleading when they speak of inorganic salts.

It is true that these salts are inorganic chemically, but they are organic physiologically. The final test tube is not in the laboratory, but in the human body.

As inorganic salt is eaten with food it gets into the blood circulation and may really deprive the cells of other minerals which they need more. Large quantities of salt are also irritating and to combat this tendency an excessive amount of water is drunk. This is why so many people find they must drink liquids with their meals. The body is calling for extra liquid to wash out irritating salt or other unnecessary additions to the diet, such as condiments, pickles, spices, etc. When cattle are fed salt they will drink large quantities of water. This is a good thing for the dairy man when he wishes the cows to produce more milk. When salt is distributed around the ranges cattle, after licking the salt, will go great distances to find water where they otherwise would be so indifferent to thirst for such a long time that they might finally become sick from the lack of water.

Many observers have pointed to the fact that all animals like salt and cite this as a reason for its use but you must remember that animals will eat anything which has a good taste and cannot be depended upon for giving us our scientific lessons in dietetics.

I am sure that a small amount of salt is not injurious, but the average person has probably used too much and it is a good plan to try to gradually decrease your salt intake until you will find that you can get along almost entirely without it. Many vegetables, if properly cooked, have a delicious flavor that does not require extra seasoning. The large amount of salt often used in food actually sometimes takes away the more delicate flavors.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Dreaming
 Question: Mrs. L. F. writes: "I would like to know the causes for dreaming at night and what to do to stop it. I dream every night and all night and in the morning I feel as though I haven't had any rest. I don't eat before going to bed, and I don't have anything on my mind, as some have said are the causes of it."
 Answer: Dreaming is usually caused by indigestion and I believe it would be a good plan for you to follow out the fasting and dieting regime outlined in my article called "A Cleansing Diet" which will be mailed to you upon receipt of a large stamped self-addressed envelope.

IN NEW YORK

New York, March 8.—"Oh, Mr. Gallagher. . . . Oh, Mr. Shean."

The comic song hit of a few seasons back now trails off into a tragic discord.

Life has written a few extra choruses. And they are not funny. They do not even rhyme. They are discordant and unmetric. For several years the "Mr. Gallagher" of the funny lyrics has been slowly dying. He's in a sanitarium now, wheeled about in a chair, unable to walk because of a "stroke." Everything he had in the world has been sold or hocked to meet the doctor's bills. His home, valued at more than $80,000 went last. A prosperous night club proprietor and master of ceremonies bought it up. When Gallagher first purchased it, he was one of the highest salaried entertainers on Broadway. His income was about $100,000 a year when the Gallagher-Shean team was the vogue in the Follies.

Well, it's the not-so-new story of quick prosperity. Twenty years ago, or thereabouts, Ed Casey's booking office could have told you about a three-day vaudeville act. And Gallagher's partner, in vaudeville and life, became Helen Gallagher. Everything was "the berries" when the week's income was $75.

One day, not so many years ago, he "teamed up" with Al Shean, and Brian Foy wrote the song

"Mr. Gallagher and Mr. Shean." So far as Mr. Gallagher is concerned, he might have been far better off had it never been penned.

However, that's sheer conjecture. The fact is that, within a few months, the tune of "Gallagher and Shean" was going across the country and the team was "cleaning up."

But actors, successful or poor, are actors. On stage they may gag and quip and step and sing. Off stage, it's something else again. And Gallagher and Shean were no exception.

As their fames rose, their tempers fell. They began to quibble and quarrel and disagree. Along Broadway, the managers were fighting to set them under contract. Stories went about that the offers jumped to a quarter of a million a year.

Then, at the peak of their success, the partners parted. Alone, their box-office power decreased. Ed Gallagher's health showed signs of going under. He toppled on the verge of a nervous collapse. At which point, Helen Gallagher, his loyal wife in lean years, appeared with accusations that he had been spending much of his new-made fortune on a Follies girl. She divorced him and he married Anne Luther, a film actress. The attachment was short lived. Four years ago, broken in spirits and health, "Mr. Gallagher" collapsed. And has been an invalid since. Once he tried to come back. But it was no use.

Not so funny is it . . . this "Oh

Mr. Gallagher. Oh Mr. Shean," business? Broadway has hundreds of such. Thousands may envy you . . . think you're sitting on top of the earth . . . but Broadway can tell many a tale of things that are just around the corner—not so pleasant things, either.

So, as I started out to relate, "Mr. Gallagher" is slowly dying. From the sanitarium comes word that, day by day, the keen, alert mind gives way and the crippled body grows more feeble. The funny, twinkly-eyed man is a feeble ghost and the personality which projected across the footlights to millions of people is burned out.

Another clown has made you laugh for the last time!
 GILBERT SWAN.

ONE TOWN IN STATE HAD NO ACCIDENTS

Only one town in Connecticut was free from motor vehicle accidents in 1928, according to reports made to the State Motor Vehicle Department. This was Hartland.

In northern Hartford county, from which, with a population of a few more than 400, no automobile accident has been reported since 1924. Two other towns, Prospect and Warren, show one accident each last year, after being on the "honor roll" in 1927. Ashford, Scotland and Sherman, also towns with clear records in other years, were kept from the list of "no accident" towns because at least one accident occurred within their borders.

There were six towns from which only one accident each was reported and there were less than ten accidents in each of twenty-three towns.

One-half of the state's 27,530 accidents, occurred in seven towns, Hartford, Bridgeport, New Haven, Waterbury, Stamford, New Britain and Greenwich. The total for these towns was 12,757.

LOCAL AUTO SECOND IN ECONOMY RUN

Raymond Montie Averages 28.4 Miles to a Gallon of Gasoline—Drive Through Storm

Averaging 28.4 miles to the gallon, Raymond Montie, sales manager for George L. Betts Hudson-Exeter agency, with A. Leland Ziglitzki, Herald advertising man as passenger, drove a dealer's Essex Challenger four-door sedan over a 142 mile route through yesterday's snowstorm to win second prize money in the "Essex Economy Run."

Morris Leonard of Willimantic won first prize money with an average of 29.8 miles on a gallon. The "Economy Run" covered two separate routes, the East and West. Eleven cars were entered in the East drive, starting at McKinley Brothers Filling station at Church Corners, East Hartford at 9:05 a. m., running through Willimantic, New London and finishing at the starting point. Fourteen cars were entered in the West drive, through East Granby, Norfolk, Torrington, Henry Loomis of Windsor winning first prize money with an average of 26.9 miles per gallon. A state trooper accompanied the drivers over each route.

Taking the gasoline consumption of all the entries an average figure of 23 miles a gallon was attained. The Manchester entry had no trouble at all along the route except for snow freezing on the windshield, during the drive to Willimantic at which time the storm was at its height, the car running in perfect condition at all times. Supper was served at the Hotel Bond after the run, which ended at 4:30 o'clock. The run, held at the instigation of the Harrington-Hudson company of Hartford, state distributors of the Hudson-Exeter line, was, in every case, a decided success, adverse weather conditions increasing the value of the drive tremendously as it showed just what the car can accomplish, no matter what the conditions of the weather.

One of the simplest details of fire prevention lies in cleaning up the woodlot to reduce the fire hazard.

BEWARE OF DIETS WITHOUT BULK

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN Will Protect You

People are more careful than ever before about diet. They diet to clear complexions. They avoid certain foods to stay thin. They eat others to get fat. But many are running a serious danger because they are missing the "roughage" or "bulk" foods that every person must have to keep well.

As a result, constipation gets in its deadly work. Headaches, listlessness, circled eyes are only the first symptoms. In the end, constipation ruins health, wrecks beauty and may cause serious disease.

Don't neglect your daily roughage. That is nature's rule. Kellogg's ALL-BRAN will supply it. A healthful cereal to eat each day. To use in cooked dishes or to serve with milk or cream. To mix with other cereals.

ALL-BRAN is guaranteed to relieve constipation—to prevent it. Two tablespoonfuls daily—chronic cases, with every meal. It is 100% bran. Doctors recommend it. Your grocer sells it. Served by hotels, restaurants, dining cars. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

THIS HAS HAPPENED

"HANDSOME HARRY" BORDEN is shot between one and four Saturday afternoon. RUTH LESLER, secretary, finds his body Monday morning, sprawled beneath the airshaft window of his private office. McMANN, detective sergeant, questions the following suspects: RUTH, MRS. BORDEN, Borden's estranged wife and mother of his two children, who admits calling Saturday afternoon; RITA DUHOIS, night club dancer, who says she called on Borden Saturday to get the torn half of a $500 bill he promised her; JACK HAYWARD, Rita's fiance, whose office is across the narrow airshaft from Borden's. Hayward says he returned to the seventh floor Saturday to get his and Ruth's suitcase tickets left on his desk. Jack's guilt seems confirmed by the testimony of the elevator boys, MICKY MORAN and OTTO FLEUGER, and of BILL COWAN, Jack's friend, who says he heard Jack threaten Borden's life.

Detectives are sent out to bring in CLEO GILMAN, Borden's discarded mistress, and JAKE BAILEY, his bodyguard. McMANN questions BENNY SMITH, Borden's office boy; ASHE, his manservant; MINNIE CASSIDY, scrubwoman, who cleans the Borden suite, and LETTY MILLER, who cleans Jack's office.

McMann shows Ruth a flattened bullet found on a strip of cement seven flights below. He also points to a new-made scar in the brick wall beside Jack's window. This, he says, is the bullet which fired too late in self-defense at his murderer "who stood in Jack Hayward's window." POLICE COMMISSIONER WEEKS, anxious to make an arrest, instructs McMann to send for Jack and Rita.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XXXIII

"Now, young lady, if you mention the word 'murder' one more time before you've drunk every drop of this hot broth and eaten exactly one-half of this chicken, your future husband will anticipate his prerogatives and give you a sound spanking!" Jack Hayward addressed the golden-haired girl who had just forced down into the highest, most comfortable of her small apartment boated.

Ruth Lester's fatigue-shadowed blue eyes started, as if they were looking upon a divine miracle, at the tall young man who was busily setting her little gategate table with her own gaily patterned dishes and serving the food which he had ordered sent up from the nearest restaurant.

Suddenly, as she watched his untrammelled hands—hands which an hour ago she had expected to see shackled with steel bracelets—she began to sob, shudderingly, so that her whole small body was terribly shaken. Instantly Jack Hayward forsook his dinner preparations, dropped to his knees beside her, drew her head to his shoulder.

"Don't, sweet! You've been so splendid, so brave! I'm here with you now because of your faith and courage. Don't you think I know that if it hadn't been for you I'd be in jail tonight, instead of holding my own darling girl in my arms?" Jack pleaded.

"McMann believes you're guilty, and so does Commissioner Weeks!" Ruth sobbed. "They've just let you out, like a dog on a long leash, to see if you'll run to a buried bone, and—give yourself away."

Jack laughed and kissed her wet eyes. "Then the dog is grateful for the leash, darling, since it's long enough to reach to you, and he's going to begin worshipping a bone right now—a nice, juicy, drumstick!" And he sprang to his feet, to pull the big chair, with the tired girl in it, to the gategate table.

"Do you think Rita has been arrested?" Ruth asked reverently of the subject of the murder, when Jack had grudgingly agreed that she had eaten enough for one small person.

Jack dragged her chair to the little fireplace, gave an expert poke at the smoldering logs, and seated himself on a hassock at Ruth's feet, before he answered, gravely:

"I rather imagine she's been let run loose—on a leash, as you've been, and that the only other one she has of the leash will find her digging for her buried bone—if Rita isn't careful."

Ruth's eyes widened incredulously, but with shamed hope in them. "You think Rita is guilty, Jack?"

"The good-looking young man's hands closed tightly over hers. "Someone did it, darling. You mustn't be too horrified tomorrow if it develops that Rita Duhois is the one. One big reason why McMann did not arrest me was that he knew he did not have all of Rita's story. I'm sure he'd rather know what Rita did with the $500 she admits she got from Borden before he takes a chance on clapping me in jail."

Ruth flinched, but nodded in agreement. "She gave it to someone else, of course—someone who was in dire trouble—someone she will shield, even if she has to go to jail to protect him."

Jack laughed. "Him?"

"A man, of course," Ruth retorted. "The man she is in love with, whoever he may be. She loathed the very thought of going away with Mr. Borden—because she was in love with someone else. And, of course, if she'd simply needed the $500 to pay bills with, she'd have told readily enough what she did with it. Maybe the man saw her with Borden, suspected she was planning to go away with him, followed her to Borden's office, in a jealous rage—"

"window, took the rest of Borden's money and your pistol, then stroled over to my office and completed a pleasant afternoon's work by robbing my desk of my automatic," Jack interrupted again broadly. "Pretty thin, sweetheart."

"Well, what if it is?" Ruth cried. "Any theory that could fit all the facts would sound almost as absurd. I'm just groping in the dark, Jack! Someone did it! But who, how and why? It's like an awful puzzle of which you have all the pieces but to which you can't find the key."

"I know, dear," Jack assured her contritely. "It's beastly of me to joke about it. Suppose we try, just you and I—didn't intend to make a rhyme, sweet, so don't frown at me—to fit the pieces of the puzzle together. I know you've been trying all day, but McMann sort of cramped your style. You were trying so desperately to convince him that I didn't kill your unpleasant boss that you had little time to ponder it, did you?"

"That's agreed, isn't it?" he added, with sudden gravity, his eyes very steady, but so wistful that her heart contracted sharply with pity.

"Of course, darling!" Ruth protested, smiling at him through a mist of tears.

"I thought so!" Ruth was triumphant. "I'll have McMann ask her tomorrow if she didn't leave the door on latch, and if, as I am sure she will, she says she did, one big piece in the puzzle slips into place. Someone besides yourself had crossed to your office. I suppose no one besides you and Miss Barnes has a key?"

Jack shook his head, then grinned. "No. And McMann, being nobody's fool, considered the possibility of poor little Miss Barnes having murdered the man across the airshaft, possibly because she didn't like the way he wore his hair or the color of his necktie. But Miss Barnes immediately gave an ironical alibi. She'd gone to lunch, immediately after one o'clock, with Miss Parkes, a stenographer across the hall from my office, and the two girls had shopped after lunch, finishing up a Saturday afternoon orgy with a movie."

"He checked her alibi then and there and found it perfect. But to get back to your case against Cowan—poor, unsuspecting devil! Supposing that he did kill Borden, for motives we can only guess at; there still remains your pistol in Borden's office. Cowan could not have had time to go after it before Rita arrived, or he had had time, how could he have got in? We can be very sure that Borden's door was locked."

"And again, if Cowan did not—and why should he?—retrieve the gun with which Borden had tried to defend himself, bring toward his murderer in my office window, we come smack upon the foolish conclusion that Rita herself, after robbing the body, took the gun away with her, too. No, darling, I'm afraid it won't wash."

"No-o-o," Ruth agreed reluctantly. "But Jack, there are other bits of the puzzle which we haven't considered at all. The woman with the beautiful contralto voice and—why, Jack! What is the matter?"

"Let's not try to explain away the pieces that don't fit," Jack urged. "For the sake of argument, and probably for the sake of truth, let's admit these two fatal pieces into our puzzle, and shift the beam about until they fit. Let's say that Borden was talking with someone in my office at 10 minutes after two—"

"And for several minutes before 10 minutes after two," Ruth interrupted. "Rita says she called Mr. Borden at five minutes past two and his line was busy; that she called again at 10 minutes after two and it was still busy, and that at 11 or 12 minutes after two she talked with him."

"If, as McMann thinks, Borden was already dead when Rita arrived about five minutes later, he was killed immediately after she talked with him, by someone in your office, undoubtedly the person with whom he had been quarrelling over your telephone. But here is another piece that won't fit into the puzzle: why should Rita, even if she robbed the body, take the gun with which Borden had fired at his murderer?"

"No earthly reason that I can see," Jack agreed. "Equally, there seems to be no reason why Rita should do the real murder across the airshaft a good turn by closing the window, and since that real murderer was not I, he would have had no reason to close Borden's window by using the window-pole in my office. He'd not have cared a whoop about diverting suspicion from me, the lawful tenant of the office."

"Wait!" Ruth cried. "What if the real murderer—supposing that he was in your office, was a friend of yours, and did want to protect you from the consequences of his deed?"

"That's a thought!" Jack agreed soberly. "But—that brings us to—Cowan, doesn't it? Cowan is the only friend I have, so far as I know, who also knew Harry Borden."

"And he admits that he had left a blueprint in your office, which was his reason for telephoning you!" Ruth clapped her hands softly together. "Who can corroborate his story that he called you from the station at 10 minutes after two? Suppose it was Cowan! Suppose he himself talked with Borden over your telephone, quarreled with him over some woman, then—"

"Hold up!" Jack laughed. "Before you slip the noose about Cowan's neck, tell me first how he got into my office, how he knew I had a gun—"

"Wait!" Ruth interrupted, her brow wrinkled in thought. "I'm about to get something. Let me think. . . . Oh, yes! It was a fleeting thought that occurred to me this afternoon when your cleaning woman, Letty Miller, was telling her story to McMann. She says she was already in your office, had just entered with her cleaning things, when you returned. I think we have there the explanation of how the murderer gained access to your office."

"I don't quite see," Jack acknowledged, frowning.

"The cleaning woman nearly always leaves the outer door on latch, so that they won't have to bother with unlocking it each time they make a trip in and out of the office. Minnie does, I know, for Mr. Borden came back to his office one evening after we'd all left for the day and found the door unlocked, with Minnie emptying the wastebaskets into the sack in the hall. He bawled her out; told me about it the next morning. Probably Letty had left your door on latch, for convenience, and in leaving hurriedly after you returned, she did not click it on again. Did you try the door when you left, to see if it was locked?" She waited breathlessly for his answer.

Jack's thoughtful frown deepened. Then, slowly: "I can't remember going the door a thought. I was too out up over the loss of that big insurance commission, and its effect on our wedding plans, to think of whether the door was locked or not. And, of course, I expected Letty to return immediately to clean."

"I thought so!" Ruth was triumphant. "I'll have McMann ask her tomorrow if she didn't leave the door on latch, and if, as I am sure she will, she says she did, one big piece in the puzzle slips into place. Someone besides yourself had crossed to your office. I suppose no one besides you and Miss Barnes has a key?"

The WOMAN'S DAY

by ALLENE SCA INER

For the benefit of our frequent visiting authors from other lands who go home to write about the parasitic American wife who is talked on hand and foot and who tells not, neither does she spin, some recently garnered figures to the effect that 87 per cent of American housewives do their own work—and how—may be of interest.

It's the old story of insisting that what one sees in one's own little orbit is typical of the universe. A writer of any note naturally visits his own kind in this country. That means he is entertained in a more-than-middle-class home, a home with servants, and all that money can buy. Naturally, he sees a picture of the parasitic wife which he would not glimpse if entertained in the homes of these 87 per cent of all housewives who do their own work.

POOR PRODIGY!
An 18-year-old "boy intellectual," Wallace Rogers, son of Bruce Rogers, author and editor, killed himself the other day. His father believed that the futility of life had gripped the boy, and that he preferred death to life in "a mechanistic era."

Tales like this make humbler parents glad that they have not raised prodigies who, at 18, could have so exhausted all possibilities of hope and joy that they are convinced they are living in a patternless world without meaning.

SHE GOES IT!
Some divorce petitions are a bit unreasonable. But when Mrs. Grace Leigh, 18, of Chicago testified that she shined her husband's shoes, got breakfast, washed the dishes, cleaned the house, got to her factory job at 8 a. m., went home to market and cook the dinner and do the dishes and iron and mend and scrub, she got her divorce. Many husbands will not understand quite why. For it must be remembered that most husbands acquire their traditions of what to expect in a woman and wife from their own mothers, and all too many modern husbands of modern wives try to insist that their wage-earning wives carry on at the home stand, too, just as their mothers did in a day when housework was their be-all and end-all.

NEXT DOOR
The walls of my apartment are thin, and I hear some such newlywed argument every night. She, it seems, works all day and comes home to do housework while he, whom she occasionally titles "a big lazy bulk," sits in his chair and throws cigarette butts around for her to clean up. She remonstrates, and he says, "that a woman's interest should be in her home." He evidently wants a wage-earning wife who helps pay the rent, to do all the work his mother did who didn't help pay the rent.

"TOO INTIMATE"
One hundred and seventy-five hitherto unprinted poems of Emily Dickinson will soon be published. The poems were recently discovered by her niece. It is explained that they were withheld from publication when discovered by the poet's sister at the time of her death, because judged of "too intimate a nature" to reveal to the world.

It is obvious that the sister was not herself a creator with words. For the writer, soon learns that "intimate experiences" are really for self-expression through words, rather than words meeting the need of "experiences."

SHAMROCK DINNER
MENU FOR MARCH 17
By Barara Brooks, Kellogg Company, Battle Creek.

Have you ever been invited to a home for Sunday dinner and found a real surprise waiting for you? March 17th is just the day to surprise the family with a Saint Patrick's Day dinner. On this day the hostess can have the satisfaction of knowing that her dinner table will look especially effective and beautiful. The symbols of Saint Patrick's Day lend themselves to the table decorations in many different ways.

For this day, which we celebrate with the people of Ireland, make a centerpiece of a large shamrock cut from green paper or cardboard. Place a bowl of yellow narcissi upon the shamrock. Paddy's green haz will make appropriate nut cups. We say pipe into a shamrock and the stem put through slits of a card will show the guests their places at the table. Colored glassware in green and amber will complete the table decorations.

The menu for Saint Patrick's Day will also include in the green and yellow color scheme used in the table decorations. The salad may be stuffed with cream cheese and nuts and cut in slices for the salad. The menu for the Shamrock Dinner is as follows: bouillon, roast leg of lamb, green peas, cauliflower, carrots, potatoes, fresh spinach, shamrock rolls, Arabian ice cream, corn flake kisses, decaffeinated coffee.

Emerald Apple Rings.
6 apples.
1 cup sugar.
1 cup water.
Mint flavoring.
Green coloring.
Cook the sugar and water to a heavy syrup. Add the apples which have been pared, cored and sliced. Cook slowly until transparent. Do not let mixture boil rapidly or apples will be broken. Add a small amount of mint flavoring and green coloring while syrup is hot and allow apples to cool in the syrup. Serve very cold.

Arabian Ice Cream.
1-3 cup almond macaroon crumbs.
2 1/2 cups cream.
3 tablespoons honey.
Put stale macaroons through the food grinder to make 1-3 cup crumbs. Mix honey with crumbs and add cream slowly until thoroughly mixed. Put in can and freeze. The flavor and texture of the ice cream is improved if allowed to stand three or four hours. Yield: 1 quart.

Corn Flake Kisses.
3 egg whites.
1/2 cup granulated-sugar.
3 cups corn flakes.
1 cup shredded coconut.
1 teaspoon vanilla.
Beat egg whites stiffly. Fold in sugar carefully. Add corn flakes and coconut. Mix thoroughly. Drop by teaspoonfuls on a buttered baking sheet and brown in a very slow oven (225 degrees Fahrenheit). Yield: 20 macaroons.

Shamrock Rolls.
Place three small balls of yeast bread dough used for rolls in muffin rings. They will retain the clover leaf shape and are delicious with a little butter placed in the center of the hot roll just before serving.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.
Straightening Toes.
Question: Pat asks: "Will you tell me how I can straighten my feet? The great toe on each foot has grown toward the other toes until I have a very pronounced bunion on a non-flexible rod inside my shoe and bending large toes with rod, but wanted to ask your advice first. Would this do more harm than good?"
Answer: Most chiropodists will be able to fit you with a brace similar to the one you describe. You can wear these braces at night, and if you wear sensible shoes there is a chance for you to return your toes to their natural shape.

Shampoo.
Question: F. B. asks: "Would egg be a good shampoo?"
Answer: There is nothing harmful about the use of eggs as a material for shampoos and many people claim that such a shampoo keeps the hair in excellent condition.

YOUR CHILDREN

by Olive Roberts Barton

©1928 by NEA Service, Inc.

They say that nothing is wasted. Let us conduct a forum of a few short paragraphs and then take a vote.

We shall take the case of a boy who had fads.

He had a fad for dogs as a little boy. This was not unusual but the thing that was not so usual was his mother backing him in his notion that every stray dog should be brought home, fed, housed, bathed and given a new start in life. That is what she did.

Of course this was not the beginning of Dick's fad. He has gone through the ambitious stages of motorman, policeman, soldier, and aviator long before. He had his uniforms, guns, flying-machines, and what not.

Dick went to high school and fell madly in love with chemistry. One day he came in without eyebrows, eye-lashes and his hair missing as far back as his crown. He had manufactured gun-powder unbeknownst and blown himself up. Exit the explosive factory.

The next step in the seven ages was "writing." He read and wrote and wrote and read. He went to college and flunked out because he insisted on writing bad plays.

This was serious. The sympathy at home was strained a bit at this puncture.

He wanted to join the marines. A bit of complication here. But he did and saw the world and had a bit of fighting.

But had he lost his enthusiasm for life? He had not. His experience had been a hodge-podge, but every urge had been carried through to a finish.

He was a man now with a man's thoughts, a man's purpose, a man's estate. He must settle down. He did. He got a job in a publishing house and worked like a horse.

He was informed. He knew about everything. There was a fine balance of values in his mind that made him invaluable to his employers.

He is now a member of the firm and going up. A more splendid specimen of manhood one seldom sees. His friends adore him. His family worships him.

Was it all an accident? No. It was an all-wise mother.

Troop 2 wishes to challenge Troop 6, winners of the town swimming meet, to a contest. Troop 6, please take notice!

Tuesday night meet brings up the old, old kick. Get neutral judges from the Hartford Council and keep the events moving. It took over two hours to run the twelve events, for no reason at all. For an inter-troop contest, neutral judges must be had. Otherwise there is bound to be kicking, no matter how square the officials may be. Every troop put up a good fight and the best troop won. Congratulations!

Harmon Scholarship Awards
For outstanding achievement and service in their home communities, fifty-two Boy Scouts have been selected by the Executive Board of the Boy Scouts of America as recipients of the Harmon Scholarship Awards. Each Scout Scholarship Award, the Eagle Badge, the highest rank in Scouting.

The awards, $100 each, were established two years ago by the late Mr. William E. Harmon to give recognition to outstanding Boy Scouts of promise by giving them financial help in the acquiring of higher education. In making the awards possible Mr. Harmon stated that the Boy Scout Movement has done much to develop the latent possibilities of boys through the excellence of its program for youth. Fifty-two awards are made each year to Eagle Scouts who qualify. In addition, each of the boys receiving the award is eligible to obtain loans for college expenses through the Harmon Foundation Boy Scout Student Loan Fund, especially established for Boy Scouts and they may also obtain loans from the Harmon Foundation Student Loan, to help them through college.

Three at Large
Three of the fifty-two awards were made at large, the remainder were selected from the United States and one from the territorial possessions. Eligibility of the boys was based upon the following:
First, That he has actually put into practice in his daily life the ideals and principles of the Scout Oath and Law, the Motto "Be Prepared," and the "Daily Good Turn."
Second, That he has maintained an active service relationship to Scouting of at least one year.
Third, That he has made an effort to develop and demonstrate leadership ability.
Fourth, That he has given conspicuous and unselfish service of some constructive nature, denoting character, perseverance or self-sacrifice, the objective being to determine in each region, each year, the four Eagle Scouts who are deserving of this award.

The list of recipients of the award from New England, their ages, the name of the city in which they reside, and the name of the school in which they are at present enrolled follows:
Region 1: Donald F. Marshall, 20, Portland, Maine, University of Maine; Russell Arthur Turner, 19, Stratford, Conn., Penn. State College; Evan R. Collins, 17, Newton Center, Mass., Newton High; Herbert E. Meinert, 18, Lawrence, Mass., Lowell Textile Institute; Frank Harvey, 20, Attleboro, Mass., Attleboro High.
Region 2: William Wardell, 19, Brooklyn, N. Y., Brooklyn Tech. High; Samuel R. Solomon, 19, New York City, Syracuse University; Eugene Thornhill, 19, Ogdensburg, N. Y., St. Mary's Parochial; Carl Wilsey, 18, Ithaca, N. Y., Ithaca High.

Troop 1
The meeting was opened Monday night in the usual way, with the Scout sign and salute to the flag. Announcements were made by Scoutmaster Dean. The different teams then practiced for the town meet which was held Tuesday at the High School Auditorium. A game of "Lions" was then enjoyed and the troop dismissed with the Scout sign and oath.
There will be a banquet on the 22nd of March for all scouts in the troop and their fathers, given by the Troop Committee.

Troop 2
Troop 2 met last Monday at the St. James Schooling. Twenty-five scouts and recruits were present. The meeting opened by having the scouts line up and repeat the Scout Oath. A forty-five minute study period was then held. During this period, instructions were given in first aid and signaling. One boy passed his tenderfoot tests. During the past three weeks four boys have joined the troop ranks as tenderfeet.
The other forty-five minutes were devoted to preparing for the events for the contest, recently held. Excellent progress was shown in the running events and the knot tying. At nine o'clock, the scouts were dismissed after saying the Scout Oath in unison.

Notes
Troop 2 expects to have a scout ready for the Eagle Badge by the next Court of Honor. He has been connected with the troop for some years and is the most enthusiastic follower of scouting in the troop. "Art" is the present senior patrol leader. He has but one more test to pass for his Life Saving merit badge in order to have the necessary twenty-one.
A Challenge
Troop 2 would like to arrange a swimming meet with Troop 6. It is thought that the Record can be obtained some evening immediately after the cessation of work during the early part of the week. If the challenge is agreeable, please make arrangements with troop scoutmaster.

Troop 3
Troop 3 opened its meeting with 18 scouts and 11 recruits present. Games were played to warm up. Roger Cheney and Harvey Gould examined the records while the rest of the scouts held a discussion about the contest and troop advancement. Cheney then told about camp in order to arouse interest in it. Troop was dismissed at 9 o'clock.

Troop 4
After repeating the Scout Oath and Laws and collecting the dues a vote was taken as to whether the troop wanted to work or go to the contest at the High School. The vote was unanimous to attend the meet, and the troop received a good lesson on what it would have against it in next years meet.

Troop 9
Troop 9 did not hold its regular meeting last Tuesday evening, but went to the High School to witness the big inter-troop meet. Being there, they proceeded to open the eyes of the older troops by taking first place in pacing, third in the potato race, and were barely nosed out for third place in the obstacle race. Joseph "Red" Donahue of the Eagle Patrol was the sensation of the contest, winning pacing by coming within two inches of the required distance. The potato race team, composed of scout Davis, Henrick, Harrington, Brannick, McGeorge, Devorio, Wilson and McUrry ran a hard race to finish third. Altogether, for a troop that has been in existence only two months it was a successful meet. Troop 9 congratulates Troop 1 on its victory.

BABIES GAIN BY THIS SIMPLE METHOD

Doctors say, souring waste in baby's digestive tract is usually back of any failure to gain weight according to schedule. And the best proof, this is true, is the quick way, weak, fretful, puny babies improve when you cleanse their stomach and bowels, and put them in order after a few doses of purely vegetable, pleasant-tasting Fletcher's Castoria. This gentle, harmless preparation is the doctor's first thought to relieve those ills of babies and children, such as colds, gas, constipation, diarrhea, colic, etc. Just be sure you get genuine Castoria in the bottle that bears the Fletcher signature.

Riddle Of 5,000,000 New Women Voters Proves Terrific Puzzle For British Politicians

By MILTON BRONNER

London.—With a general election rapidly rising to a position of importance in the immediate future, one question is towering above even such vital issues as the coal-mining paralysis, unemployment and the high British income tax to harass and perplex British statesmen.

It is: how are the women going to vote?

That same question was troublesome enough to United States politicians in the recent presidential election. But over here it is so acute that it is becoming the major question of the day.

In the United States, despite the great increase in the number of women voters, the registration was still predominantly male. But in England the women, if they go to the polls, will actually be in the majority. In the coming election, for the first time in the history of any country, the women will have absolute power to determine the politics of the nation.

Some years ago, when the British Parliament granted women suffrage, it did so with a string tied to it; it gave the vote only to women over 30, and attached certain property and residential qualifications in addition. But last summer Parliament passed a new bill giving all women over 21 the vote, as in the case in the United States. This stroke added 5,425,000 new voters to the register.

Thus England approaches her general election with the knowledge that upwards of 5,000,000 young women can vote in it for the first time. How will they vote if they go in a bloc, or anything like it, they will decide the election.

The Labor Party leaders are doing much less worrying than the other politicians, believing that the vast majority of these new voters are working women who will vote the Labor ticket.

They figure that all women relatives of the great mass of unemployed men will vote Labor, and that the average middle-class housewife will do likewise because of a fear that the Conservative party's tariff program would raise the cost of living on food articles.

On the other hand, such shrewd Tory leaders as Winston Churchill count on frightening the women of the upper and middle classes into voting for Conservative candidates in order to "save the country." Already Churchill has devised a Tory slogan for the coming campaign—"Shall we entrust the government of the country to the men who managed the general strike?"

This may be effective. It is recalled that the general strike, which paralyzed England for 10 days, was defeated only because the upper and middle classes turned out and performed essential services so that the country was fed and transportation was kept going. Churchill aims to appeal to the women in these classes by playing on their fears of a repetition of such a strike.

In the last general election—that of 1924—the vote was as follows: Tories, 7,388,225; Labor, 5,425,539; Liberals, 3,925,143. Thus it is evident that the Tories did not have a clear majority of the total vote. But in the House of Commons the Tories got 413 seats, Labor 151 and the Liberals only 40. The Tories got in because the opposition was split. Obviously, if the new women voters all go one way there is a chance for a terrific overturn here.

Women candidates and speakers will also play a prominent part in the coming election. In the present Parliament there are eight women; in the next election more than 50 women will be candidates.

A movement is on foot to parole a young woman in Ohio who beat her husband to death after he refused to go to a party with her. She has been in prison for several months, which makes it appear her case has been sadly neglected.

NEW BUS APPLICATIONS

Hartford, March 8.—Opposition by the New York, New Haven, & Hartford railroad developed here today when two Connecticut citizens appeared before the Public Utilities Commission to ask for bus route franchises. The applicants were Michael Falcone, who wants to establish a $2.25 fare line between Norwich and Waterbury, and Cecil K. Walker, who wants to operate a line from New Canaan to South Norwalk.

The railroad's trolley subsidiary opposed both on the ground of competition with their lines, while the railroad's bus subsidiary opposed the Norwich-Waterbury line on the same ground.

Decision was reserved in each case.

EX-PRESIDENT BARES FEELINGS IN ARTICLE

First Magazine Story Tells of His Grief Over the Death of His Son.

New York, March 8.—Calvin Coolidge reveals the human Coolidge in the first installment of his account of his years in the White House, now appearing in Cosmopolitan magazine.

Prominent among his statements are: "I have often said that there was no cause for feeling disturbed at being misrepresented in the press. It would be only when they began to say things detrimental to me which were true that I should feel alarmed."

Incidentally, Mr. Coolidge discusses the death of his son, Calvin, as a tremendous price to pay for his occupation of the White House. "When he went, the power and glory of the presidency went with him," the article reads. "I do not know why such a price was exacted for occupying the White House."

CHILDS LOSES CONTROL

New York, March 8.—Childs, historical epicure symbol on the spotless panes of hundreds of cafe windows in the United States, probably will disappear at an early date it was made known today following the defeat of William Childs, founder of the restaurant chain, for control of his company. In his farewell speech to the William Barber "meat" faction who defeated him at a stockholders meeting, Childs requested that his name be stricken from the restaurants. "I regard them as I would children," he said. "It is hard to part from this great organization that I created."

Under the new criminal code of Czecho-Slovakia, provision will be made for painless death for persons suffering from incurable diseases.

NOON STOCKS

New York, March 8.—Industrial stocks sold off from 1 to 8 points at the beginning of trading today, as the result of the unexpectedly large increase in brokers' loans reported last night by the Reserve Board. Instead of shrinking as expected, brokers' loans increased $140,000,000, though this was partly the result of the new floatations of both stocks and bonds since Monday.

Radio's 3 1/2 point decline to 39 3/4 topped the list, but losses of 1 to 4 points were recorded in most of the market favorites, including U. S. Steel, N. Y. Central, General Electric, Anaconda Copper and Montgomery Ward. Selling orders were "bunched" at the start, but the volume of trading in the first half-hour was only 457,000 shares. The absence of "distress selling" was encouraging to the bulls, who speedily set about marking prices higher, and a good rally was in progress in the second hour.

Buying of Radio, old and new, was promptly resumed in quarters responsible for yesterday's 37-point rise. The old stock rushed up to 41 1/2, for a spurt of 17 1/2 points from the opening, the new stock meanwhile pivoting to 84 1/2. Western Union picked up the trend, and added 7 more points to yesterday's 7 1/2 point gain. The Coppers swung into line, with Anaconda and Kennecott leading the procession.

New alignments in the petroleum industry as the result of Col. Stewart's exit from Standard of Indiana was responsible for the demand for Pan American Petroleum and Sinclair Oil at slightly higher prices.

High call money rates are being dictated by the New York bankers according to Wall street gossip, and a lively fight between the big bulls in the stock market and those who contend for higher money rates is seen in the distance. Business and industrial conditions have so improved, and buying demand for stocks has so increased, that the fear of a sharp reaction in stocks is remote.

A new spurt in the oils near the noon period brought prices of Maryland, Atlantic Refining, Sinclair, Pan-American, Skelly, Texas Corporation and Shell Union from 1 to 3 points higher. The rally covered part of the early losses and most of the utility stocks sold higher. Call money 10 per cent.

FINAL "CHURCH NIGHT" PROGRAM PLANNED

Last Series at Second Congregational Church to Be Held March 14.

The last of the series of fellowship programs this season for people of Second Congregational parish, will take place at the church Thursday evening, March 14. These "church nights" have been held for the past three years and have proved to be most successful in promoting sociability and good fellowship among the attendants of the church.

Parishioners living on the streets south of Woodland street will be in charge of the supper and entertainment, under the general chairmanship of Mrs. George F. Dorst. Mrs. Dorst has appointed the following ladies to assist her in making the arrangements: Mrs. Scott Simon, Mrs. E. E. Sagar, Mrs. Charles Whitchee, Mrs. J. P. Ledger, Mrs. E. P. Walton, supper committee; Mrs. W. F. Stiles and Mrs. Leo Stiles, decorations; Mrs. Charles J. Strickland, entertainment; Mrs. G. W. Kuhney, Mrs. Milo Wells, Miss Edna Thrall and Miss Frances Strickland, ticket distribution.

Mrs. Strickland has already arranged for the speaker who will be Rev. George A. Tuttle, pastor of the Congregational church in Wetherfield and a brother of L. J. Tuttle, superintendent of Second Congregational church school; and for music which will be furnished by a boys' orchestra and a male quartet.

The supper will be served at 6:30. It will be a Lenten menu and consist of baked macaroni and cheese, potato and egg salad, cabbage and beet relish, rolls, homemade cake and coffee. Young girls from families in the section named will act as waitresses and boys and young men will serve coffee.

WHEN THIEVES FALL OUT

FIRST BURGLAR: Go on, push off, I'm working this floor.
SECOND DITTO: Rubbish! This is my story and I'll stick to it.—Answers.

Each of the huge steel doors of the Bank of England vaults weighs 12 tons.

Theaters

At the State

What is believed to be the finest and most unusual motion picture of the current season, opens at the State Theater, today for a special two day engagement. It is "Redskin," Paramount's latest Quality Sound production, starring Richard Dix, which is now playing on Broadway to record-breaking crowds.

"Redskin" is a most unusual photoplay due largely to the astounding fact that it is photographed almost entirely in beautiful technicolor—a process that is used in making the film appear more true-to-life through the clever art of coloring.

Together with this technicolor process and the splendid music and sound synchronization, "Redskin" is one picture that the average movie fan cannot afford to miss. It is, by far, the greatest vehicle that Richard Dix has ever given to the screen.

The story of "Redskin" has to do with a young Indian, schooled in the best of America's colleges, who returns to his home amidst a series of thrilling and exciting adventures, only to find that though he has been trained to live like the white man, he still has the blood of his ancestors flowing in his veins.

Dix gives an excellent characterization as the young Indian. He is ably supported by a cast of selected film favorites.

A sparkling surrounding program is also on today's bill at the State, which includes two Vitaphone vaudeville acts, and the second installment of "The Collegians."

Dick Rich and his Musical Monarchs, a jazz band, extraordinary, occupy the limelight on the Vitaphone bill. This group of merry musicians offer a snappy potpourri of the latest dance tunes.

Charles Rogers, famous stage comedian, is seen in the companion act, which is entitled, "The Teeman."

At the Circle

Another splendid double feature program is scheduled at the Circle theater for Saturday and Sunday of this week. As usual, Saturday's performance will run continuous from 2:15 until 10:30.

"Beyond London Lights," a thrilling pictorialization of the famous novelette, "Kitty Carstairs," by J. J. Bell, will be the first film feature.

All the throbs and pulse of a mighty metropolis, plus one of the most inspiring love stories ever to reach the screen, are to be found in this smashing melodramatic picture of London night life. The audience is carried from one breath-taking scene to another in a manner that is nothing short of sensational.

A superlative cast is responsible for the splendid characterizations in "Beyond London Lights." Lee Shimway, Adrienne Dore and Herbert Evans have the stellar roles. The associate feature presents Charles Ray, one of Manchester's old favorites, who returns to town for the first time in nearly two years, in "The Count of Ten," his latest starring vehicle.

Plenty of the oldtime Ray personality and Ray pep have been crammed into this rollicking drama of the prize ring.

The latest chapter of "Tarzan the Mighty" and a Krazy Kat cartoon will complete the program.

HARD BOILED

"Prohibition never meant anything to that bird."
"Why not?"
"He thinks whiskey is a soft drink."—Judge.

It was news, of course, when Lindy and Anne crashed, but it seems the big news broke the next day when Lindy took Anne for another ride, and ONE OF HIS ARMS WAS BANDAGED UP.

OPENING STOCKS.

New York, March 8.—Industrial stock prices dropped sharply at the opening of the market today, registering losses of 1 to 8 points. U. S. Steel sold off nearly 2 points at 182½. Radio was down ¾ at 388½; Chrysler Motor down 2½ at 105½; General Electric down 4½ at 241½; American can down 1½ at 116; New York Central down 2 at 130½; Anaconda down 2½ at 156; Studebaker down 1½ at 86½.

LANE PLAYS BASEBALL

Myles Lane, the former Dartmouth hockey player who has been playing professional hockey this winter, was offered a contract by the Newark Internationals recently.

WANTS TO PITCH SOME

Walter Johnson, manager of the Washington Braves, hopes to see service this summer as a pitcher in relief roles for his club.

IMPORT LESS GOLF BALLS

Americans imported only 2,643,132 golf balls during 1928, a marked decline from the 3,059,844 balls imported in 1927.

CRITZ CAPTAINS REDS

Hughy Critz, star second baseman, will captain the Cincinnati Reds this year.

TAKES ROLE IN PLAY ON 8 HOURS NOTICE

Miss Florence Schildge in Male Impersonation When Radding Takes Ill.

Miss Florence Schildge of Park street, senior high school student, is faced with the truly difficult task of learning a whole part in the three act comedy, "Pals First," in the short time of eight hours. The play is to be presented in Cheney hall tonight by the sock and Buskin Dramatic club for the benefit of the Senior Washington trip. Miss Schildge is to take the part of Harry Radding who is ill. The word that Radding will be unable to take part came this morning and Miss Schildge was immediately obtained for his part. While Radding's part as a detective in the play is not one of the leading roles, it is, nevertheless no easy task to memorize the lines on such a short notice. Upon her ability to give the proper cues, will depend, to a certain extent, the success of the presentation.

This will not be Miss Schildge's first impersonation of a male part. Recently she played a Russian Prince in a play at the high school. Her last minute substitution is not the only change in the original cast. Jacob Rubnow who was to have played one of the leading parts is also ill and Victor Swanson who was to take the part of his pal, has learned Rubnow's lines. James Wilson is to take Swanson's former part. They have had less than a week to learn their new parts. Wilson is president of the Sock and Buskin Club.

ABOUT TOWN

Mr. and Mrs. Harold R. Brennan of Tilton, N. H., were in Hartford yesterday and Mrs. Brennan, who was the former Miss Mabel Pollard, took the opportunity to telephone greetings to be extended to the many friends made while she was director of religious education at the South Methodist church here.

Monday will be "Boys' Day," an annual event with the Manchester Kiwanis club, with "Ted" Jones of Yale as speaker, and the prize by Elmer Thienes. The place of meeting will be the north end fire headquarters, Main at Hilliard street. Every Kiwanian is expected to invite his own son or borrow one. In the attendance contest Harlow Willis' "Coal Barons" are in the lead.

"Bond
Bread

saves time"

GEORGE ENGLAND, 252 Spruce St., Manchester, has been in the grocery business 16 years and succeeded his father, Harry England, in his present location 7 years ago. He serves a full line of groceries and meats to a steady patronage of good customers.

When Bond Bread first came out I put it on the counter alongside the other bread.

A few of my customers bought it the first time they saw it. They said that they liked what the Bond promised on the wrapper, and wanted to try a loaf with a guarantee of purity behind it.

From that day on, those customers have used Bond. Oh, yes, occasionally they may try another loaf, but they always come back to Bond.

Well, sir, my sales on Bond grew and grew until now it outsells any other bread I have in my store. The Bond Bread Salesman leaves me a fresh supply twice a day.

All I have to do is put it on the counter. My customers do the rest. And the time it saves me!!

SENSE and NONSENSE

Almost A New Story. On the verge of bankruptcy a distracted business man was amazed by his wife's announcement that she could help him out with $100,000 she had saved secretly.

In a small town you don't read the choicest news; you hear it.

Not For Me. I admire people who have the courage to live the way they please. I even admire those who have the courage to live within their incomes.

That's the Rub. This flying would, I'm sure be simply grand, if one was always sure 'bout how he'd land.

John: "What do you mean, dear, when you say I've been deceiving you for years?" Helen: "I've just found out that you get $2,000 allowance on your income tax returns for being married, and you only give a miserable $10 a week."

The sweet young thing turned to the polite young man who was showing her through the factory and said: "What is that big thing over there?" "That is a locomotive boiler."

When every family owns a radio doubtless the high powered salesman will begin advocating a radio for every room.

When you see a man all sleepy and worn out he may have a bad baby or a good radio.

Britannia no longer rules the waves. It is the Radio Commission in Washington.

LETTER GOLF

A NEW GOLF COURSE. Golf usually isn't played in a life boat, but it's a great place to play letter golf as today's puzzle proves.

Letter Golf puzzle grid with words LIFE and BOAT.

THE RULES.

- 1-The idea of Letter Golf is to change one word to another and do it in par, a given number of strokes. Thus to change COW to HEN, in three strokes, COW, HOW, HEW, HEN.

THE TINYMITES

(READ THE STORY, THEN COLOR THE PICTURE) The little peaches stopped their dance. Then Clowny said, "Now watch me prance. I'm pretty good at stepping, as you'll very shortly see. Why, I can two-step, waitz and hop, and jig a bit before I kick-ed his feet in air. And landed safe and sound, and square in front of all the peaches who thought it a clever thing."

(Clowny is lost in the next story.)
