

ALL MOURN AT BIER OF GEN. FOCH

Highest Honors to Be Paid Generalissimo of Allied Armies.

Paris, March 21.—The funeral of Marshal Ferdinand Foch, France's famous soldier, will be held on Tuesday, it was officially announced this afternoon by General Weygand, the late marshal's chief of staff.

Paris, March 21.—The highest honors the French republic can confer upon a passing warrior and national hero will mark the funeral of Marshal Ferdinand Foch, generalissimo of the allied armies at the end of the Great War, who died late yesterday.

Attired in the field uniform of a Marshal of France, the body lay at rest today while a steady stream of notables visited the Foch home to extend their condolences to the widow.

Marshal Joffre, the hero of the First Battle of the Marne, and Myron T. Herrick, United States Ambassador to France, called at noon. King Albert of Belgium, who served under Marshal Foch as commander of the Belgian Army, telegraphed that he would arrive this afternoon to express in person his sorrow over the passing of the noted soldier.

Pershing Present
Gen. John J. Pershing, commander of the American expeditionary force in France, and Marshal Petain, another famous French military strategist, arrived at the Foch home together. Beginning before daybreak a mighty crowd began to gather in the street before the Foch home. The men and women making up this multitude were orderly and filled with reverent respect, but they filled the thoroughfare from side to side making traffic impossible. As the throng continued to swell Police Prefect Chiappe went to the scene in person to direct the handling of the crowds.

100 Police Guardians
One hundred policemen were massed along the sidewalk in front of the house.

Gen. Weygand, chief of staff to Marshal Foch, a life-long friend of the late marshal and a comrade in arms, dressed in civilian clothes, sat in lonely vigil throughout the night.

MUCH OPPOSITION AGAINST PROTOCOL

President Will Have Difficulty in Getting Senate to O. K. World Court.

Washington, March 21.—President Hoover will face serious difficulty in securing Senate approval of the new World Court protocol, based on Elihu Root's terms of American adherence, it was apparent today.

Although League of Nations Democrats, led by Senators Walsh (D) of Montana, and Swanson (D) of Virginia, have endorsed the Root terms in substance, the old irreconcilable group threaten warfare against the new pact. In view of the fact that the Senate ratified the compact originally only after the Coolidge administration accepted five reservations—one of which the Root terms would annul—the irreconcilable opposition may block a second ratification.

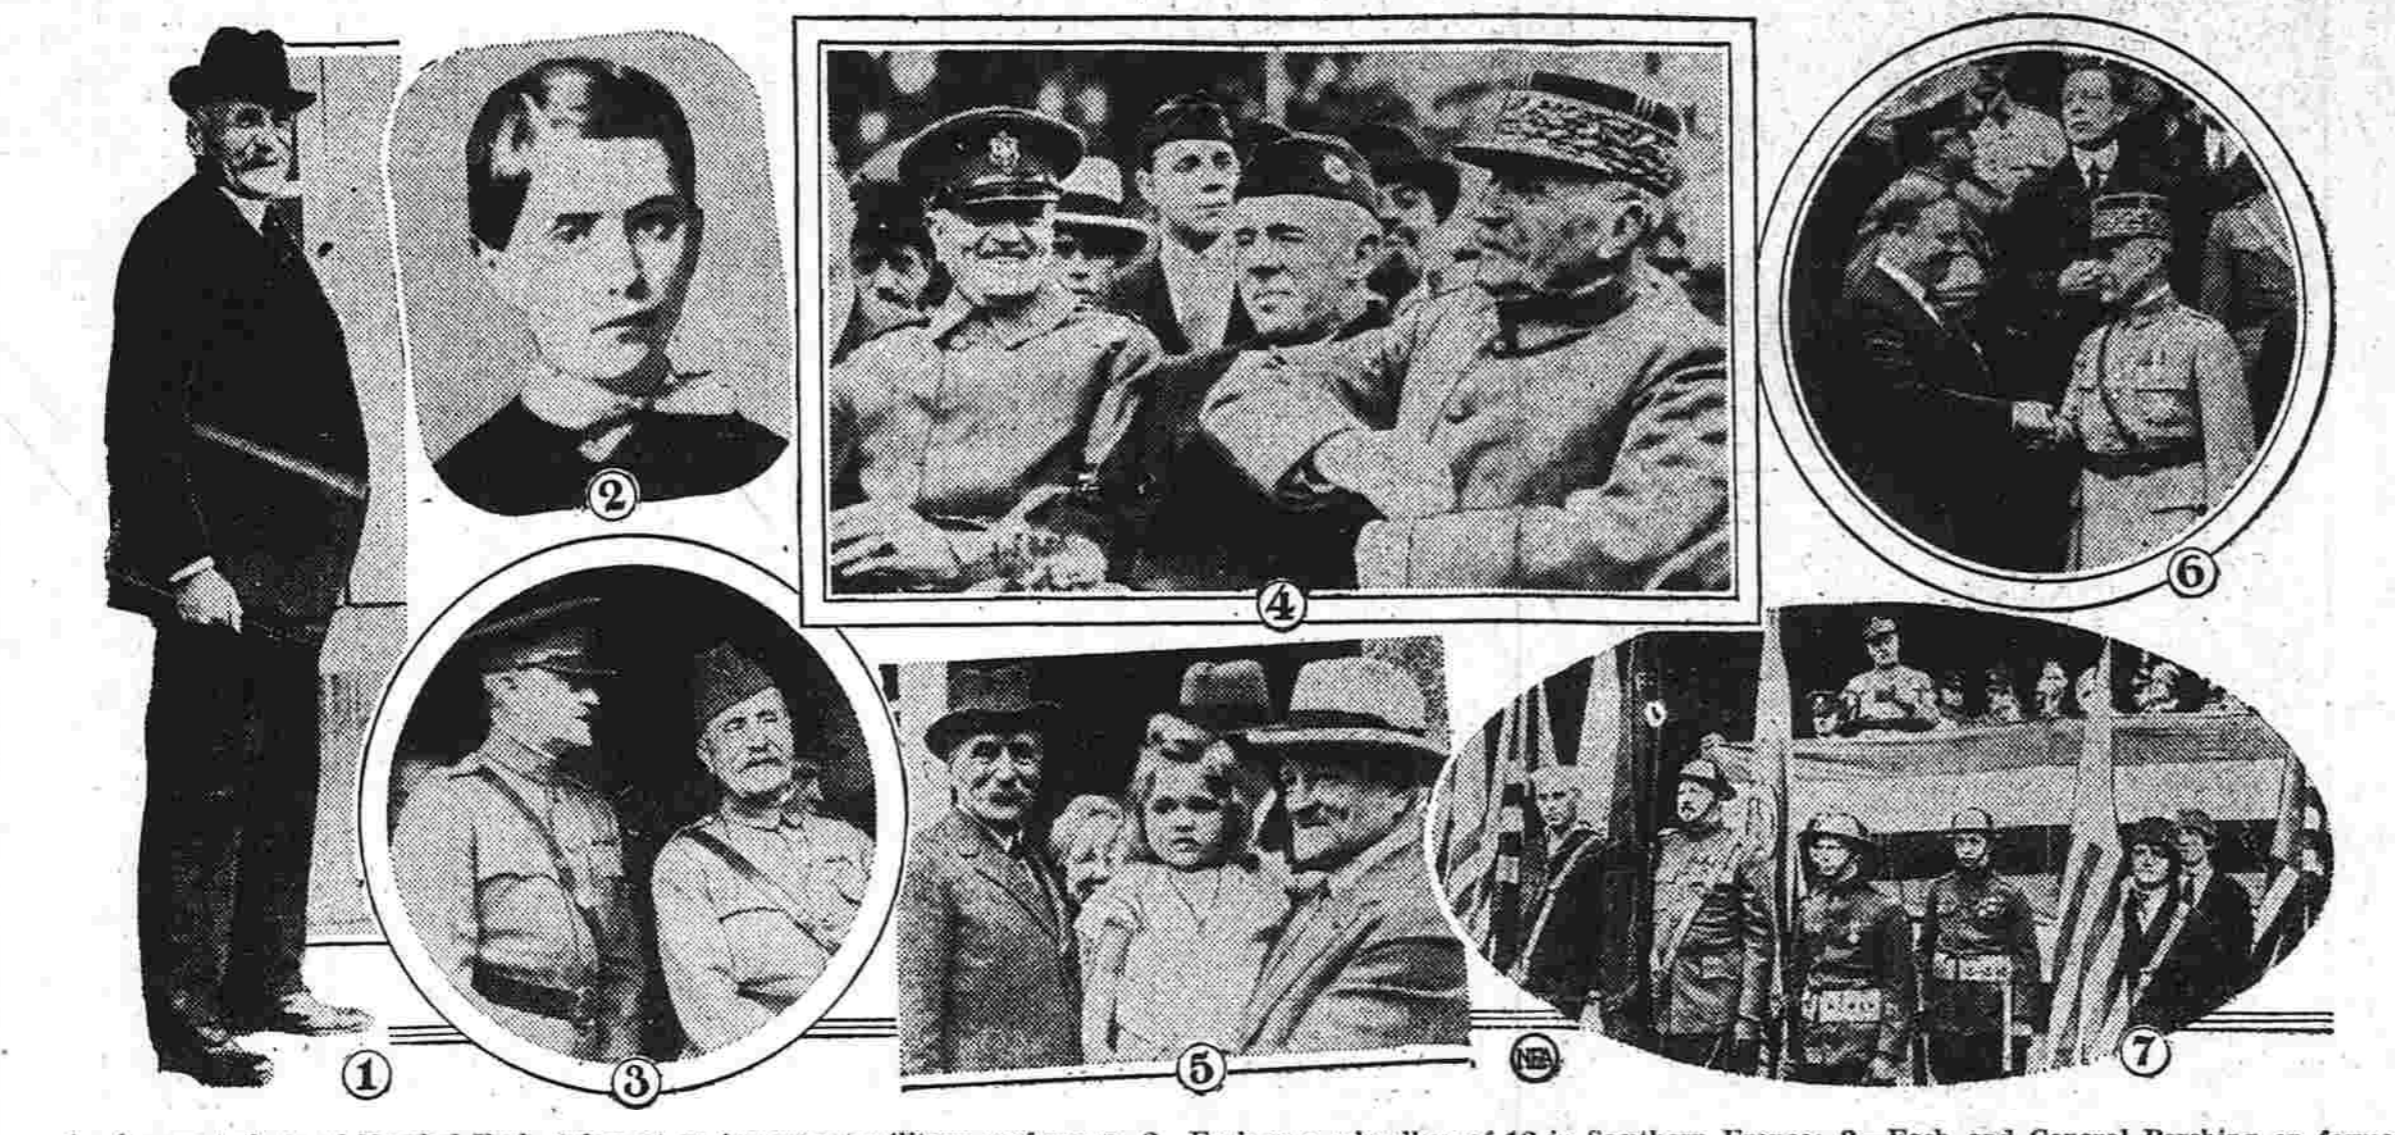

Borah's Declaration
On the heels of a declaration by Senator William E. Borah (R) of Idaho, that the World Court is an "attorney general's department of a political institution (the League of Nations)," Senator Hendrik Shipstead (F-L) of Minnesota, announced he would oppose the Root terms.

The Root terms would effect only the fifth American reservation, outlawing all advisory opinions by the court on questions affecting American interests. Root devised a new plan for arbitration of disputes over such questions, with America permitted to withdraw from the court in event her wishes were over-ruled.

Bone of Contentions
"It is the court's advisory jurisdiction which makes the trouble," said Borah. "If the court simply exercised judicial functions and arbitral functions, there would be no hesitancy about joining it and

PICTURESQUE CEREMONY AT NORWEGIAN WEDDING

Crown Prince Olaf of Norway Married to Princess Marthe, of Sweden; Nation Has Holiday.

Oslo, March 21.—In one of the most elaborate and picturesque ceremonies ever staged in this historic capital, Crown Prince Olaf, of Norway, heir to the throne of his father, was married in the Church of Our Saviour today, to Princess Marthe of Sweden.

Thousands of people, who had made the pilgrimage to Oslo from all parts of Scandinavia to witness the ceremony, thronged the streets outside, while in the beautiful church a distinguished assembly of guests watched the future Norwegian king plight his troth at the altar to the beautiful dark haired Swedish girl.

The wedding was followed by a state luncheon at the royal palace, which was presided over by King Haakon and the Queen and was attended by many royal visitors from all parts of Europe. The diplomatic corps, the Norwegian Cabinet, members of Parliament and many other distinguished guests. Covers were laid for 400 guests in all.

Troops Along Route
Thousands of troops, including the whole garrison of Oslo, guarded the route from the palace to the church. A squadron of cavalry in full dress uniform was stationed outside the church.

Crown Prince Olaf arrived at the church in an automobile with the Duke of York, son of King George of England. He immediately entered the church and took his place at the left side of the altar.

Princess Marthe was accompanied to the church by her father, who escorted her to the altar, followed by the bride's maids.

Bishop Lund preached a brief sermon then read the Norwegian Episcopal and Lutheran nuptial rituals.

Bishop's Blessing
The couple made their vows, then knelt to receive the bishop's blessing.

Upon leaving the church the Crown Prince and the wife passed under an archway of swords held aloft by young naval and military friends of Olaf.

The ceremony, which links the

Attorneys in Various Cities Declare Jones Act is Too Severe—Call it "A Force Bill."

New York, March 21.—The Jones Enforcement Act—which sends a man to prison for a possible five years for violating the prohibition law—goes on trial today.

Michel Feldendorf, charged with selling a glass of whiskey, is the first man to face a jury under the new law and will go down in alcoholic folklore as the lad who took a chance. A plea of guilty would have given him but a six months sentence, according to the promise of the court, while a conviction after a jury trial opened a defendant "to the limit."

Headed by Frederick R. Coudert, Jr., a "Personal Liberty Committee" composed of prominent lawyers, have rallied to the defense of Mike the Martyr. Coudert has been appointed by Federal Judge Coleman to represent the defendant as counsel.

"A Force Bill"
The "Personal Liberty Committee" termed the Jones bill a "force bill" and declared that "the preposterous penalties authorized by the bill are un-American and wholly incompatible with the spirit of our institution." Senator Jones, author of the bill, was quoted as saying on

FAINTING WOMAN SAW BOY DROWN

Invalid Just Out of Hospital, and Three Tots Helpless to Aid Gilbert Child.

How strange a set of circumstances kept the drowning of little Ernest Gilbert from becoming generally known yesterday was not disclosed until today. Seven-year-old Russell Graham, who afterward went home and in his terror and bewilderment said nothing about the tragedy, was not the only person who witnessed the drowning. Unluckily, though there were four other on-lookers, three of them were tiny children and the fourth a woman convalescent, only just out of the hospital after an operation and so weakened by recent illness that after a futile effort to render aid to the drowning child she collapsed and was only just able to drag herself away from the scene. The identity of this woman has been carefully covered up by friends who fear that adequate allowance might not be made by the public for her physical condition and that she might be blamed for not having set up an alarm. She is, however, said to be a Bostonian temporarily living in the vicinity of Howell was detained at the insane asylum for 15 days. During this period of observation, officials reached the conclusion that there was no need of holding the Manchester man any longer. Consequently, he was freed. It was shortly after this that Howell became mixed up in the Vernon Center fracas. Articles valued at $300 were stolen from automobiles parked about the hall in which the Grange meeting was being held.

Howell was taken to the hall in an automobile. It is alleged, ransacked the cars, taking blankets, coats and automobile parts, and then fled in the car he was driving. Up until today, police had searched in vain for him. Howell is about 25 years old and pretty well known about town.

Before Howell can be returned to this state, it will be necessary for either Rockville or Manchester police to go to Albany for extradition papers which will have to be signed by Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt. Upon his return here, Howell will be taken to Rockville where he will be arraigned for trial on charge of theft.

Former Attorney General Reveals Some More About His Relations With the Late President.

EDITOR'S NOTE.—This is the third and final article based on an exclusive interview with Harry M. Daugherty. In previous articles Daugherty defended his record as attorney general as well as the character of the late President Warren G. Harding under whom he served.

Sarasota, Fla., March 21.—Harry M. Daugherty, attorney-general in the Cabinet of the late President Warren G. Harding, pictured Mr. Harding as "a loyal friend and a great president" in an exclusive interview with International News Service at his winter home here today. He also reminisced on his long association with Mr. Harding and related several incidents revealing the vital part he played in Harding's career.

"Harding was like a younger brother to me," said Daugherty, as he recalled "the old days" when he and Mr. Harding, and both in politics in Ohio. "I enjoyed every minute of my association with him. He was the most charming man I ever knew. But I won't tell you what it was about."

Harding, Own Boss
Daugherty was asked to reveal the extent of his influence with the late president, and this was his reply: "They thought because I was close to President Harding and had helped him in his political rise that I was the last word. I was in some ways, but Mr. Harding was a man with a mind of his own. No one would be appointed against my protest, but Harding selected his own Cabinet."

FEDERALS EXECUTE GENERAL AGUIRRE

Rebel Chief Coolly Faces Firing Squad After He Is Captured.

Mexico City, March 21.—General Jesus M. Aguirre, leader of the revolutionary movement in Vera Cruz, coolly faced a firing squad at Almagres early today and died like the soldier he was.

Aguirre had been captured at Aguacatlan, in the southern part of Vera Cruz, late yesterday. The few troops who had remained loyal to him to the end put up a brief battle against his Federal pursuer. In the affray, Gen. Manuel Aleman, of the Federal army, was killed.

Under orders from President Porfirio Gil and War Secretary Calles, Gen. Miguel M. Acosta, Federal commander in the state of Vera Cruz, convened a summary court martial immediately after Aguirre's capture. The court martial found the rebel commander guilty of high treason.

Aguirre accepted his fate calmly stating that he was perfectly willing

MOTHER EARTH IS STILL GOOD FOR AGES YET

Scientists Predict That World is Destined for Billions of Years Before "Big Frost" Arrives.

Washington, March 21.—By all the geological and astronomical Equations, Old Mother Earth is yet destined for billions of years of existence before the cold descends, as the glaciers of the frigid zones, slowly creeping onward, freeze away the last vestiges of terrestrial life.

As viewed from the knowledge of the geological past—from the beginning of the disintegrating age when rain began to fall—the possibility is remote but that the same will do anything but meet "a natural death."

But there are possibilities—grotesquely remote, but yet existent—that before these billions of years cool the earth and still all living beings—there will come a sudden termination of life.

They were outlined today by Dr. William Bowie, eminent scientist, of the United States Coast and Geodetic Survey. Dr. Bowie said: "If the earth should move very far away from the sun or get sufficiently close, rain would cease, or would be modified greatly, and conditions might be so changed as to make life impossible. Our observations, however, show no indication of any material change in the yearly average distance between the sun and the earth."

"It would be difficult to visualize how anything within the earth could make it hotly or coldly. The earth is too old, too stable.

No Danger of Crash
"Nor does it appear that any disturbance caused by the passage near the earth of some other heavenly body could do more than distort a portion of the surface, or cause tremendous ocean tides.

"Of course, a condition such as that might destroy life but it would seem that when the disturbance passed the earth would still be the same old shape.

"Since we have had conditions almost similar for over a billion years there is no reason for supposing that conditions might arise on the earth in the next 1,000,000,000 or billion years that could destroy life, unless some wandering celestial body might pass close to us. Such an eventuality is so remote that it need be given no serious consideration."

the floor of the Senate in 1921 that "there is no such thing as personal liberty in a republic."

Committee's Statement "It is felt that if the Congress of the United States under the spur of dry organizations is prepared to imprison for five years any and all violators of a law which has created a legal offense which is not a moral wrong, lawyers who still believe in the bill of rights can well afford to offer some of their time and energy in a purely professional capacity as a protest against such savage fanaticism."

"It is unnecessary," he said, "to merely offer an idea and an ideal to other members of the legal profession throughout the country. We hope our action will serve as an alarm to the people of the country as to the menace to their personal liberty which the Jones law holds forth."

man of the convention and I was chairman of the committee on resolutions. I thought that inasmuch as Harding was going to be President that he should stand for two things—woman suffrage and prohibition. I saw they were coming. However, I never co-operated with the Anti-Saloon League.

An Attractive Man. "Harding was a very attractive man. I thought when the war was over the people wanted a man of peace—a kindly man. Harding was a man of peace. General Leonard Wood was military. Everybody thought Wood would be elected. Harding did too, I said no, he would not. I told Harding he would be elected."

"I liked Governor Frank O. Lowden of Illinois, also prominently mentioned for the presidency. His birthday and mine are on the same day."

"I watched this political battle closely and did what I could for Harding. I always stood in the background and let others lead off. I took what happened philosophically. If I got results that suited me I felt happy and repaid for my efforts."

Never Craved Power. Daugherty declared he never craved power and that he did not want to be named attorney-general of the United States. He wanted to continue as a lawyer, but he said, he permitted President Harding to prevail upon him to accept the post.

"It was in St. Augustine, Fla., that Harding put this attorney-generalship on me," Daugherty said. "I didn't want it."

Daugherty said that he and Harding made enemies in carrying out government policies. Daugherty said Harding took office when the country "was changing from war to peace, the battlefield to the harvest field" and that "reconstruct the government" was the cry.

WORLD MOURNS FOCH'S DEATH

right beside the body of his former chief. Asked about the funeral plans, Gen. Weygand told International News Service: "With the widow's consent we have suggested that the body be placed in state at Napoleon's Tomb in the Invalides on Sunday so that the public might view it. Undoubtedly the government would agree to this arrangement. The funeral will be held on Monday, Tuesday or Wednesday, according to the government's wish."

Although a national funeral was regarded as a certainty, it is understood that such an honor would be at variance with the wishes expressed by Marshal Foch in his will. The marshal is said to have asked that his body be buried at Plouegon, Brittany.

Two suggestions were made that the body rest in state over the week-end to give the public an opportunity to view it. One proposal was that it rest beneath the Arch of Triumph; the other that it lie in the Invalides.

The general impression was that the body would be taken to Napoleon's Tomb on Saturday. The marshal Foch received in death the highest honor that France can pay. Gen. Gouraud, military governor of Paris, went to the bier last night and planned upon the neck of Marshal Foch's military jacket the Grand Cordon of the Legion of Honor.

Gen. Weygand stated that the body would be placed in the grand salon of the marshal's residence to await removal from the house. The great coat of the marshal wore at the signing of the armistice was placed at the feet. The body was attired in the familiar horizon blue uniform.

Friends Visiting Body Throughout the morning friends of the family were permitted to file past, first visiting the red salon where the marshal's medals and trophies were displayed. A special force of police assigned to keep the crowds at a distance from the threshold had their hands full. They were formed to enable distinguished visitors to enter the residence, but the police had difficulty in maintaining them.

One of the earliest visitors was Monsignor Maglione, the Papal Nuncio to France. President Doumergue, of the French Republic, accompanied by Gen. Lussion, his military aide, arrived at 10:30 o'clock.

Shortly afterward, Marshal Foch's invalid brother, Germain, a Jesuit priest arrived after an overnight dash in a motor car from Montpellier. He was carried up the steps in the arms of two servants. A murmur of astonishment ran through the crowd at the uncanny resemblance of the two brothers. It might well have been the marshal himself who was being carried into the building.

A little later former Premier Georges Clemenceau, the director of France's political destinies during the dark days of the war, reached the house. He carried a cane and wore his inevitable gray gloves. He remained ten minutes and was visibly touched when he left. Gen. Weygand took his arm and aided him down the steps and to his motor car.

GERMANY'S VIEWPOINT Berlin, March 21.—Germany today viewed Marshal Foch's death as merely the death of her bitterest enemy. The Berliner Tageblatt summed up Democratic-Liberal thought by saying: "That Marshal Foch did during the war was his duty. But Germany hardly forgets that he continued, after peace, to make war against a disarmed people."

All the newspapers united in declaring that "bitter hatred of Germany was Marshal Foch's guiding motive." "Big German war leaders refused to comment. Gen. Ludendorff, upon being asked by International News Service for a statement of opinion, replied: "I am sorry that I must decline on principle to say anything."

The press recognizes Foch's energy, and is willing to admit that his appointment as generalissimo of the allied armies marked the fatal turning point of the war. However, the press states it is an open question whether Foch was really a military genius. Press Comment Lieut. Gen. Von Metzsch, writing in "Tag" says: "History will not place Foch on the same plane with Napoleon and Von Moltke" because, while Foch knew how to hammer the Germans with vastly superior forces, he never revealed any strategic genius, he never succeeded in breaking through the Germans or outflanking them, according to the German military writer. German newspapers stress that Marshal Foch never defeated the German army on the field of battle.

No ceremony in recent years has attracted so many members of ruling European families. Great Britain and the British royal family were represented here by the Duke and Duchess of York, who traveled from London especially for the occasion. Holland was represented by the Prince regent, Henry. Denmark was represented by King Christian and his Queen. Crown Prince Gustav and the Crown Princess represented Sweden.

The parents of the bride, Prince Karl and Princess Ingeborg, also were present.

LATEST STOCKS

New York, March 21.—The Motor stocks and a few of the Industrials performed to the best advantage for the bulls today, but Wall street was nervous over the money situation. The leading rates were high and the market as a whole made little or no progress; as in the last three days, the pushing down of prices of the speculative favorites attracted new buying, which prevented any wide decline in prices.

Not until the close of the market would Wall street have any reliable news on brokers' loan volume, bank rediscount rates, etc., and the usual Thursday caution was in evidence in the financial district. The Industrials were sold in the forenoon, Radio being dragged down in the process to 91 1/2, but the early afternoon rally brought the stock back to its previous close at 94.

General Motors, the old bull leader of most of the "campaigns" forced to the front under a heavy turnover, added solid to the year's highest price of 91 1/2, up 3 points for the day. The tip went out from the brokerage houses to "buy big motors" for 125 on the present move, and the stock was whirled around in blocks as high as 10,000 shares. Packard sold up 3 points at 141, Chrysler and Studebaker a point each.

American Can's new 2 1/2 point jump to 128 1/2 was the feature of the popular industrials. Buying of the stock was in good volume from the start, a powerful Wall street noon standing squarely behind market movements. United States Steel registered a strong comeback and sold above 188.

RAIDS IN WATERBURY Waterbury, March 21.—Edward Raffie, of New Haven, and Stanton L. Briggs, of Williamstown, prohibition agents, surprised Waterbury this afternoon by raiding the business places of Jerry Went, 766 East Main street, and John O'Brien, 163 East Main street, and collecting a store of liquor from each place. The men were ordered to appear before Commissioner E. J. Finn here tomorrow, to be booked as offenders against the Jones Act.

The raids were conducted without the assistance or knowledge of the local police. Whiskey, home brew, cider, and cider brandy were found in one or the other of the raided places, according to the agents.

DAUGHTERS OF SCOTIA SUPPER TOMORROW

Annual Entertainment and Dance Also to Be Held Tomorrow Night in Tinker Hall. Helen Davidson Lodge, Daughters of Scotia will give their annual supper, entertainment and dance in Tinker hall tomorrow evening. This is always a most enjoyable affair and is attended not only by the Scotch residents of Manchester but many others as well. A large delegation of the members of Ellen Douglas lodge, Clan Gordon of Hartford and Clan McLean of this town is expected.

The supper which will be served under the direction of Mrs. Elna Somerville and her associates will consist of cold meats, baked beans, salads, relishes, cranberry sauce, rolls, homemade cake, tea and coffee. The bids at a moderate price include the program and dance, or those who cannot be present at the supper will be admitted to the entertainment and dance, as the advertisement in this issue explains. Bill Waddell's Orchestra will play for dancing the Scotch reels and modern numbers.

An excellent impersonator of Harry Lauder's songs will come from Hartford; 9-year-old Gordon McBride of town will sing; Miss Bessie Young, Scotch soprano, will sing; Miss Miss Curry of the local lodge will give readings. Mrs. Somerville will give the address of welcome and Mrs. Elizabeth Cone, chief daughter will be mistress of ceremonies.

to suffer the consequences of his part in the revolt. Mazatlan Attacked President Portes Gil officially announced this morning that the rebels in Sinaloa under Gen. Ramon Iturbide attacked the west coast port of Mazatlan with a strong force at seven o'clock last night. Shortly after 6 o'clock last night, Gen. Iturbide, who is a former governor of the State of Sinaloa, sent word to Gen. Jaime Crillo, Federal commander at Mazatlan, asking for a conference and demanding surrender of the port.

Gen. Iturbide's offensive is being waged not only for the control of Mazatlan, which is the most important seaport on the western coast of Mexico but also for the possession of the Mexican Southern Pacific railway. The eventual rebel objective is Guadalupe, Jalisco. If they can capture Mazatlan, the rebels hope to move south and east and attempt to cut Gen. Calles' line of communications in central Mexico.

Has Fine Harbor Mazatlan has one of the finest harbors in the world. It is a city of rare beauty. The range of hills surrounding it makes assaults from the surrounding country difficult. In central Mexico the situation showed little change today with Federal forces operating north of Torreón still pursuing Gen. Gonzalo Escobar's rebel troops northward. The execution of Gen. Aguirre today makes the subjugation of the revolutionary movement in southeastern Mexico complete.

WAPPING

The Parent-Teachers' Association held their public whist at the Wapping school hall last Tuesday evening. There were nine tables of players present. Prizes were given and refreshments served.

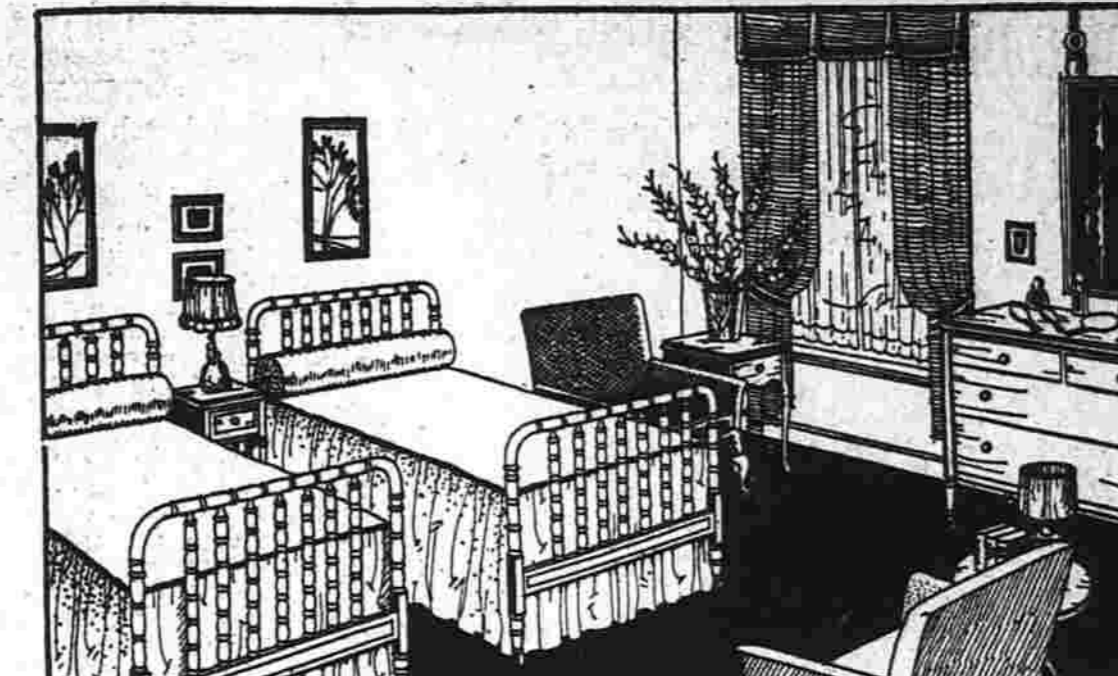

News has been received of the death of Mrs. Julia (Porter) Dewey, wife of George Dewey, which occurred at her home in Winsted. She leaves, besides her husband, seven children. Her funeral will be held at 2 o'clock next Saturday afternoon in Winsted. Mr. Dewey is a brother of Charles J. Dewey of this town and Mrs. Dewey formerly taught school in this place.

There was a large attendance at the public auction which was held at the Barnes Brothers' home on last Wednesday. The regular meeting of Wapping Grange, No. 30, will be held in the school hall next Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock. It being "Neighbors' Night," the program will be furnished by the members of the visiting Granges, which are East Hartford, Good Will Grange of Glastonbury and Enfield Granges. The following committee will have charge of the refreshments: Mrs. Ruth Dewey, Mrs. George A. Frink and Ivan West.

The next meeting of East Central Pomona Grange, No. 3, will be held with Andover Grange on Wednesday, April 17, in the Town Hall at Andover.

SCARED INTO MARRIAGE Bridgeport, March 21.—The suit of Elsie Krompinger Dowling, of Danbury, for annulment of her marriage to Edward Blake Dowling, an East Norwalk drug clerk, proceeding before Judge Carl Foster in Superior Court here today with Mrs. Dowling failing to identify Policeman Henry Webb, of Norwalk, whom Mrs. Dowling charges with frightening her into marrying Dowling. Blake R. Sutton, of Danbury, followed Mrs. Dowling on the stand to describe an automobile trip he took with the Dowlings and another person to Plymouth, N. H., in April, 1928.

CHORUS WILL SING AT C. OF C. DINNER

25 Members of Choral Club to Participate at Annual Banquet.

One of the most pleasing features of this year's Chamber of Commerce annual banquet will be the participation of the Manchester Men's Choral Club. It is expected that 25 members of the club will take part in the program of entertainment following the dinner service. Director Archibald Sessions has promised to play the accompaniments. The Choral club will give a half hour concert immediately after the completion of the dinner service. This program will consist of the lighter numbers of the club's extensive repertoire which are sure to please the banqueters and put them in good humor before the more serious part of the program.

Good Entertainment. An entertainer of unusual ability and versatility has been booked and under the direction of the entertainment committee his acts will be interspersed with several later appearances of the Choral Club ensembles and with the speaker of the evening. The entertainer comes to Manchester through the personal influence of William Halstead, manager of the local exchange of the Southern New England Telephone Company, who was himself for some years on the entertainment stage.

Many Responses. Although the first official announcement of April 21 as the date of the banquet was made last week, the responses have been immediate, numerous dinner and table reservations having already been received. It is evident that more organizations than ever before are making up their table parties and reserving tables well in advance. Members and guests are urged to not too long delay in making up their table parties.

LINDY'S WEDDING DATE

Mexico City, March 21.—It is to be a June wedding for Col. Charles A. Lindbergh and Miss Anne Spencer Morrow, daughter of the United States Ambassador to Mexico, Dwight W. Morrow. Announcement has just been made here that the nuptials will be celebrated in June, but it is not yet known whether they will take place in Mexico City or Englewood, N. J., where the Morrrows lived before coming to Mexico City. Col. Lindbergh is expected here at the end of the month when, it is believed, additional information will be given out.

ASSESSORS' CLERK IS SAVING MUCH TIME

Installs System to Make Work of Assessors Much Lighter in Future.

Nell Cheney, clerk of the board of assessors, is at work on a plan that will make much of the actual work of the assessors unnecessary. He is now taking from the land records all of the change in property ownership that has taken place since the last list was perfected, as of October 1. So far he has only gone through the warrantee deeds to March 1, a period covering five months but up to that time he has made records of 170 changes.

These transfers are noted on the filing card under the new owners' names and at the same time deducted from the lists of the owners as of last October 1.

From the report of the building inspector can be noted any new buildings or alterations or additions. All this information will appear on the card. In addition will be recorded transfers made by quit claim deeds and administrators' deeds. The lists of automobiles and their owners can also be made up and values can be figured ahead of time.

Careful check will also be made as to mortgages resting on real property as the law provides that no property shall be taxed on less than the amount of the mortgage on it.

AT LEAST TWO MODEL HOMES TO BE BUILT

Modernizing and Boost Manchester Movement to Be Carried on Diligently.

At a meeting of those interested in the Home Modernizing and Boost Manchester movement, as outlined in a report made at a meeting at the Country Club a few weeks ago the following committee was appointed to carry on the work in conjunction with the Manchester Herald, the Hartford Times cooperating: John Hyde, Harlow Willis, Elmore Watkins, Emil L. G. Hohenhalt, Leon A. Thorp, John I. Olson, William Knoffa.

ABOUT TOWN

The social of the Emblem club yesterday afternoon at the Elks home in Rockville was largely attended. Bridge and straight whist was played. Winners at the latter game were Mrs. Michael Roberts of Stafford Springs, past president of the club; Mrs. P. Connors and Mrs. A. Dexter, both of Rockville, were winners of the second prize and the consolation. In bridge Mrs. J. Johnston of Rockville won first prize, Mrs. William Crockett of Manchester, second and Mrs. M. Rutting, Rockville consolation. Sandwiches, cake and coffee were served by the committee which was headed by Mrs. John Flaherty. The public card party planned for next week will be postponed until April 17. Mrs. Mary Graziano will be chairman. Next Wednesday afternoon there will be a members' social.

NOON STOCKS

New York, March 21.—The Stock Market threw off its nervousness over money market conditions very early in the first period today and the bulls showed their skill in pushing upward a number of the speculative blue chips in the Motor, Copper and Specialty stocks.

An old favorite flashed across the board, General Motors, widely tipped as the "next leader" in the bull movement, burned the tape in a new advance to the year's highest price of 91 1/2, up 3 points in the first half-hour, in blocks of 1,000 to 15,000 shares. The resourceful bulls are passing up no opportunity to keep up the speculative interest of the vast throng of outside traders who have been "playing the market" with good success for a year or two and a smart move in a stock like General Motors does the trick for them.

Packard, Chrysler and Studebaker advanced about 2 points on the average and Mack Truck joined the procession in a 2-point move. The Coppers were given a whirl, with Anaconda up a couple of points and Kennecott up 1. Advance Rumely led the Specialties, and gained a new high at 94, up more than 40 points on the move. Continental Can gained 4.

Wall street was convinced that the New York bank will boost its re-discount rate either today or next Thursday. A show-down is due in the money situation and since all other methods of squeezing bank money out of the stock market have failed, the higher rate will be tried, according to the best Wall street view.

Prices were again forced down-

WARD IN THE SECOND HOUR BY A SELLING WAVE WHICH SPREAD ITSELF CHIEFLY OVER THE STOCKS WHICH LED YESTERDAY'S SPECTACULAR RISE.

The ten per cent call loan rate attracted money to Wall street and the renewal rate of the day was 9 per cent. Cotton sold up about 12 points in the early trading and grain prices were fractionally lower. Crude Rubber held at Wednesday's final price levels. Copper gained almost a cent a pound, with domestic Metal quoted at 23 cents and foreign shipments 23 1/8 cents a pound.

ASKS CHANGE OF VENUE

New York, March 21.—Justice John Ford today reserved decision on the presentation of counsel for James A. Stillman to change the venue of the Beauvais-Stillman $500,000 slander suit from New York to Westchester county. John E. Mack of Poughkeepsie, representing the banker, declared that Stillman's voting residence was in Pleasantville, N. Y. Benjamin Friedlander, counsel for Beauvais, Indian guide, opposed the petition.

KEITH'S BETTER HOME CLUB HOLDS BANQUET

Monthly Affair Held in Club Rooms on Third Floor of Local Furniture Store.

The Better Homes Club of the Keith Furniture Co., held its monthly meeting and banquet last night in the club rooms, on the third floor of the store. It proved to be a most enjoyable evening. The committee in charge prepared a splendid menu, consisting of roast pork, mashed potatoes, green peas, rolls and coffee, cake with ice cream.

At the end of the feast, Mrs. Helen Graham was presented with a nice leather bound traveling book as she is to leave soon for a trip abroad and was given a rousing send-off by the members of the club. She was also given a substantial check by the concern.

President Gill called the meeting to order immediately after the dinner. After the business session, whist and other games were enjoyed by all. Much credit is due to the committee in charge, consisting of G. LaCoss, Ed Kratt and Frank Chamberlain.

The laboratory of Pynoil Products, Inc., is located in St. Petersburg, Florida, a City famous for its climate and sunshine. The Northern office of the Corporation is maintained in Boston, with branch offices for distribution and advertising purposes in Hartford, Conn., New York City and Rochester, N. Y. The principal product of the Corporation is Pynoil, one of the world's best remedies for head colds, Flu prevention, rheumatism, skin eruptions and abrasions, cuts, burns, sunburn, insect bites and many other purposes. For a few years, Pynoil was sold only in the drug store connected with the laboratory, but as the fame of the many cures made by Pynoil spread, it was sold by other wholesale and retail drug concerns in the South.

Mr. Taylor, one of the Directors of Pynoil Products, Inc., said, "We know every stockholder whether he holds 5 shares, for which he paid $10, or 500 shares, for which he paid $1,000, will be a booster. The advertising value through the stockholders' co-operation is very great. We know we have one of the best and most necessary household remedies on the market and it is bound to become, with proper advertising, a popular remedy in the North as well as the South, and that will mean increased earnings for the Corporation and profits for the stockholders. The stock of the Corporation, making "Listerine" Products, has made huge profits for the stockholders. BOTH H. S. TEAMS
LOSE IN DEBATES

Affirmative Beaten Here by Middletown, Negative in Meriden.

Both of the triangular debating teams representing Manchester were defeated in the debates held last evening. The question for discussion "Resolved, that modern advertising methods are detrimental to the public," gave a great deal of difficulty to the teams inasmuch as the question was open to many varying interpretations.

In the debate at the local High school the affirmative case was opened by Jacob Rubinow who asserted that modern advertising was causing excessive economic wastes to the American public and that many of our leading national advertisers were practicing dishonest advertising methods. In reply, Miss Louise Bailey of the negative side, stated that modern advertising methods were enabling manufacturers to offer their products at lowered prices because of the great demand created by advertising.

Second Speaker
The second affirmative speaker, Miss Charlotte Rubinow, declared that through the stimulation of artificial wants, advertising was causing needless expenditures on the part of the public and that products were being bought merely because the advertisements carried home some psychological appeal to the people. The second speaker for the negative side, Anthony Pianeta claimed that advertising carried with it great educational features and that advertising was one of the chief contributing features to the high standard of civilization that the people of this country have been able to attain.

Joseph McCuskey the concluding affirmative speaker refuted the argument of the negative side that advertising was reducing the ultimate cost of manufactured products. He quoted authorities to prove that in the industry as a whole the tremendous operating costs incurred by advertising made such reduction in costs impossible. Miss Mabel Churchill was the concluding negative speaker and took as her topic the fact that advertising was responsible for the present prosperity of this country and that without advertising we would not have been able to secure our pre-eminence in industry.

Rebuttals
The rebuttals by both teams were very well given, but it seemed that both cases failed to meet the proposition and neither took the precaution to limit the questions with the result that much of the case of both sides was irrelevant to the debate.

The Manchester High negative team consisting of Eva Koehler, Carl Cubberly, Eleanor Dwyer, and Marion Jones, was defeated at Meriden.

After the debate at the local High school the members of both teams with several guests enjoyed a light luncheon served by the members of the cooking class. Brief comments on the debate were made by Senator Robert J. Smith, John A. Danaher, assistant United States District attorney, the judge of the debate, and J. Gifford, coach of the Middletown High school team.

Middletown Leads
Middletown by virtue of its victories over Manchester and Meriden, gains a second successive leg on the H. Wales Lines cup. A school in order to secure permanent possession of the cup must win the triangular debates any three times.

KILLED AS POLE FALLS

Greenwich, March 21.—Thomas Storm, 18, a Cos Cob resident, was killed at Port Chester, N. LUTHER LEAGUE PLANS PLAY FOR ITS MEETING

Departing from the usual type of program presented at the monthly meetings of the Luther League, the Mission Committee will give a short one-act play entitled, "Dust of the Road," at tomorrow night's meeting. The play tells of Peter Steele, entrusted with money by a friend, who is killed "over there". The money is to be given to the friend's son when he becomes of age. When the time approaches Steele decides to keep it himself. The developments are interesting.

Four characters take part in the play. "Peter Steele" is taken by Eric Modean; "Prudence Steele," his wife, by Viola Larson; "Uncle," by Herbert Brandt and "The Tramp" by Raymond Benson. Herman Johnson is the leader of the meeting this month. Refreshments will be served as usual.

FARMHOUSE BURNS

Willimantic, March 21.—Mr. and Mrs. Walter Lowell and their three children were driven from their home in Conantville, Mansfield, today when the place was destroyed by fire with a loss estimated at over six thousand dollars. A crying child roused Mr. Lowell who found the lower part of the house filled with smoke. There is no fire protection in the district.

FEBRUARY FINDS
WINTER BUILDING
SLUMP AT WORST

Figures Much Below January
Totals—Leading Cities Drop
In Rank, N. H. Road Survey Shows.

Building in Connecticut towns and cities during the month of February continued in its winter slump and the total value of the building permits issued during the month was exceptionally small, according to the monthly survey of the Committee on Industrial Development of the New Haven Railroad. Permits fell off both as compared with January figures and with those of February, 1928.

A decrease from January figures of nearly one million dollars in permit values took place among the 22 communities reported upon in the railroad survey, their combined total for the month being less than three and a half million dollars. Eight of those towns and cities, however, recorded gains over their January totals. These were Bristol, Derby, Middletown, Naugatuck, New Britain, Norwalk, Stamford and West Hartford. Eight communities also showed increases over their building permit totals of February, 1928, these being Bristol, Derby, Middletown, Naugatuck,

New Britain, Norwalk, Waterbury and West Hartford.

Decided changes in the ranking of individual cities according to their building activities occurred during the month, the customary leaders dropping far down on the list. New Britain entered first place for the month with permits valued at $677,451. West Hartford was second with a total of $422,695 and Stamford was third with $399,780. Hartford went from first to fourth place and New Haven fell to ninth ranking.

Comparative figures for February, 1929 and 1928, were reported by the railroad's committee as follows:

City	Feb. 1929	Feb. 1928
Bristol	$277,451	$87,460
Bridgeport	188,455	324,660
Danbury	20,740	55,900
Derby	29,000	20,790

JUDGE HYDE TO TELL OF CHARTER AT GREEN

To Outline Proposed Changes
In Town Government for Second District Residents.

Judge William S. Hyde will address a public meeting at the Manchester Green school next Monday evening during which he will explain the proposed changes under the town charter and consolidation. Mr. Hyde was induced to speak at the Green by the Second School District committee at the request of the Manchester Green Community club. The meeting will afford Manchester Green residents who were unable to attend the recent special town meeting at the High school, an opportunity to learn more about the situation and to ask any questions which may be puzzling them. These in charge of having Attorney Hyde speak urge all voters in the district to attend. However, the meeting is open to everyone in town.

In the world production of tartaric acid estimated in the aggregate, at approximately 20,000 metric tons, Germany's output is exceeded only by that of Italy.

Coughs...

Pertussin

PERTUSSIN is made by a special (Taschner) process to relieve coughs quickly by removing the immediate cause. This cause usually is accumulated mucus, dust, inflammation or irritation. PERTUSSIN, by helping nature to expel the phlegm, and by soothing the irritation, quiets the cough. It is entirely free from harmful drugs. That is why Doctors have prescribed it for a quarter of a century. At all drug stores.

A MESSAGE

Miss and Mr. Soon-to-Wed

AFTER the betrothal... the wedding... the honeymoon... the home.

People travel from north to south, from east to west... all around the world; they see beautiful things and live in elaborate hotels... only to return and find there is no sweeter place than their own home.

And when you come back from your honeymoon, you want to step in to the sweetest place on earth... your home. The place where friends will be entertained.

After all, your home is your castle... whether it is a two-room apartment or a twenty-room mansion. You want to be proud of your home; you want your friends to admire it. The all-important question is how to furnish it within the budget you have planned.

To select what you want; to select what is right and what will prove to be a source of lasting comfort may seem to be a problem to you. It is only a problem if you attempt it unaided. No one appreciates this more than Garber Brothers.

In the spirit of helpfulness, we invite you to consult us. We can help you in many ways. Do not hesitate to come in. The services of this entire organization are at your disposal without any obligation.

FOCH

The simple grandeur of Foch will live on and on, so long as there are still on earth men and women who remember the Great War. His was the personal glory inseparable from the winner of the greatest conflict in history. Yet his, too, was the unaffected modesty of the common soldier who shuffles and blushes when they pin on his breast a decoration for some stupendous feat of heroism.

Leadership of the millions of allied forces was to Foch as impersonal as the functioning of an automobile steering gear. He happened to be the right mechanism for the job. So he fitted into it and functioned according to the design. He would have laughed long and loud if anyone had intimated that he was deserving therein of credit for special merit.

A great soldier, a great citizen of the world, Foch was essentially and before all things a great Frenchman. Much of his genius was essentially racial. And, broad and kindly and charitable as he was, all of him was, at base, dedicated to France. He was saturated with that peculiar patriotism, that fundamental adherence to an unadorned nationalism, which has no exact parallel anywhere else—the spirit which at Verdun demonstrated its everlasting verity.

As an individual Ferdinand Foch commands the respectful attention of history. As a soldier he was a master intellect and courage personified. But as a Frenchman he rose to the heights of national justification.

DAYLIGHT SAVING

The New York Legislature has received a favorable committee report on a bill to abolish the present daylight saving law. The existing law makes the adoption of daylight saving time optional with communities. Under the terms of the bill the only legal time in New York state would be standard time. Thus we have the Empire state trailing Connecticut—but not quite to the extreme where it is a deacon to set a clock an hour ahead. New York has only gone so far as to withdraw its sanction from an artificial arrangement not by any means unanimously approved by the people of the state.

While appreciating the many advantages of the daylight saving arrangement for industrial communities and for people who seek as much outdoors as they can get in the summertime, we are more and more impressed, as the years go by, with the improbability of there ever being anything like concord on the subject. The country people do not like it and seem to take it as a personal grievance.

The Herald would not care to go on record as objecting to that measure of daylight saving observance which consists in calling six o'clock in the morning seven o'clock and calling eleven o'clock noon, so long as that is the desire of the people of the town. But it does seem to us that it would simplify matters greatly and put an end to a deal of complaining if we were to leave the clocks alone and, from the first of May to the first of October—or for such period as might be determined—were to open our factories, our stores, our offices and other business places an hour earlier in the morning and closed them an hour earlier in the evening, by the clock, than in the winter time; if we frankly started our nooning at 11 instead of 12 and otherwise advanced our entire day.

This would be achieving the same result precisely as is arrived at by adopting the daylight saving time—and anybody who objected to our fixing of our own working hours, be it legislator, outside agriculturalist or any other, could be politely asked what business it was of his what hour Manchester people started their day's work and ended it—and there could be no telling answer.

We should like to see the present kind of daylight saving if it could be universally adopted and were universally approved. But the mere setting of clocks isn't a thing that's worth continually squabbling about—not even when we can get precisely the same thing in another and inassailable way.

TAXES AND REVOLT

Armed revolution, in ninety-nine cases in a hundred, is the outcome, direct or indirect, of taxation. Taxes are the base of civilization. The ideal of freedom from all taxation is, to millions of people, equivalent to a dream of heaven—or would be if it were not that a lot of people hope to go to heaven and none, generally speaking, who hope to avoid taxation altogether. Yet here we have a population muttering bloody threats against their government and trying to work themselves up to the killing point—and not a soul among them ever has to pay a nickel of taxation.

The population is that of Monaco, principally on the French Mediterranean coast where gambling pays all the public charges, or would if its bonuses were employed as they are supposed to be.

Monaco is only eight square miles in area, has only about 15,000 permanent residents who live mostly in three towns, and has an income of $450,000 a year paid by the gambling concessionaires who operate the Casino at Monte Carlo. That sum is supposed to be ample for the support of the principality—including the prince—and to keep up all public utilities. But the Monacans declare that the present prince, Louis, uses up the nation's income on personal extravagances and lets the utilities slide, thus putting the state on the bum as a point of attraction to tourists. And without tourists the Monacans would have no way of getting a living. Wherefore they are talking about revolting, throwing the prince's army of several policemen into the Mediterranean and setting up a Republic.

So, you see, even without taxes there is such a thing possible as political discontent.

PROPHET OF DISASTER

Sir George Paish, who is recognized in Great Britain as an economist and financial authority of very high degree, having served as advisor to the Chancellor of the Exchequer and the British Treasury, is making prediction of a disastrous and world-wide financial crisis to occur no more remotely than this spring. "We are not trying to see a way out," he exclaims, "we are just dancing."

What rather weakens the force of Sir George's gloomy forecast is that he made a similar prediction a year and a half ago and it was not fulfilled.

It is extremely doubtful, as a matter of fact, that any financial crash that could possibly occur in the world or to the world, at this time, would have anywhere as near disastrous effects as some that have happened in the past. A financial panic is not, in itself, so fearful a thing to contemplate, except to people who possess paper fortunes. It is its consequences to trade and industry that count. If we should have one now, for instance, some thousands of inflated millionaires might have to go to the poor house or to work. But it is very much to be doubted whether, in the light of our more scientific understanding of real values nowadays, it would be permitted to paralyze business and industry as did the panics of 1873 and 1893.

We are inclined to believe that Sir George's fears are rather those of a financier than those of an economist. There is, after all, a very great difference between the two.

MISCARRIAGE OF JUSTICE

So long as the state of New York sticks to its Sullivan law it can poorly afford to criticize the Jones "Ave and ten" Federal statute or any other prohibition measure, no matter how topheavy with penalties.

To convict of a felony a taxi driver bearing an excellent reputation because he retained in his possession for an hour or two a pistol which he had knocked out of the hands of a thug who held him up, is about as fine a piece of tyranny as any state has ever been guilty of.

If he had been a gun toter he never would have been caught, and if he had been caught a crooked underworld lawyer would have seen to it that there was no conviction.

The Sullivan law and all similar firearms statutes are aimed straight at the heads of decent people.

CHARTER REVISION
Biennial Elections

Why should we as a Town change from annual to biennial elections? Is it solely to cut the expenses of election in half? No, though it is an advantage to the taxpayers. It is solely to bring the Town elections in the alternate years from the State and Federal elections, and so remove them from the influences that determine the national election? No, though there are certainly very great advantages to be gained thereby in the separation of the settling of the Town's affairs from those relating to state and national matters.

The great advantage to be gained from biennial over annual elections is that the average office holder will have longer experience in the execution of his trust and hence greater knowledge of the requirements and needs of the Town. There are decided advantages also in treating town affairs as a dignified and responsible undertaking that is not to be settled in the heat of great political and partisan campaigns. There are great advantages to be gained in giving our chief administrative board the Board of Selectmen, two years instead of one to work out important policies for which they may have been elected. One year is too short a period in which to accomplish major constructions or reconstructions.

Many who read this daily health column have been discouraged in their search for health because they have gone from one doctor to another without receiving permanent health. Many of the letters I receive from readers are filled with criticism of doctors. Many ask me to publish parts of these letters, but I do not have the space nor the inclination to do so, and my readers will continue to find this column filled with the best constructive advice I can give and with very little criticism of the methods or beliefs of other members of the healing art. Yes, I use the word "art" advisedly, for the treatment of disease cannot be called a science, as it is said that mathematics is the only exact science, although even now Einstein has almost convinced us that we have been wrong in that assumption.

Physicians are human and as such have more or less of that something which we call "finite knowledge." Among the allopaths, homeopaths, osteopaths, chiropractors and naturopaths there are probably as many dishonest men as in any of the other professions, trades or vocations; also just as many doctors who would make better plumbers, and also as many plumbers who would make better butchers.

The doctors of the different schools have essentially the same training in such subjects as physiology, anatomy, and the diagnosis of disease. They differ only as to their method of treatment. The wise doctor of any school knows that nature is the great physician, and that the best he can do is to teach the patient how to remove those things which are interfering with the healing power of nature. The allopath or homeopath may employ drugs for this purpose; the osteopath or chiropractor may attempt to assist nature by removing such interference in a mechanical way, and the naturopath principally through hydrotherapy and dietetics.

From my viewpoint, when the patient selects a physician he should do so with regard to the physician's skill, and his local reputation for results. Also another equally important point is that the physician, however greatly skilled in bringing about a temporary cure, should also have a definite philosophy about correct living so that the patient placing himself in this physician's hands will be further guided in his eating, exercising,

Thinking, etc., to insure a permanent and lasting cure. Patients should be and usually are grateful for any relief given them through the skill of their physician, but the masses are slowly but surely coming to a knowledge that their physician should be a teacher of right living to prevent illness. These are the doctors of today who have the long waiting lists.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS
Liver and Pancreas
 Question: V. E. T. asks: "Would a diseased pancreas cause disorder of the liver or a diseased liver cause a diseased pancreas? It seems that in my case both organs are affected, causing aching of the lower limbs, backache, can't lift heavy weights, a burning of the urine, very nervous, a sallow color, with sometimes boils and abscesses. A liver stimulant helps, but has to be taken regularly. The doctor says it will not do to train the liver that often."
 Answer: The liver and the pancreas do affect each other, but the use of a correct well balanced diet would doubtless adjust the trouble you have which apparently starts from overworking the liver through the use of too much food. Try cutting down your amount of food to a third, and for a time eliminate starches, sugars and fats.
Pepper and Horseradish
 Question: R. F. B. asks: "Is pepper harmful to the system? Is horseradish good vegetable to eat or is it harmful?"
 Answer: I do not advise the use of pepper. Horseradish may be used to a limit amount with a protein meal but should not be used with starches. It is a diuretic, it cuts down your amount of food to a third, and for a time eliminate starches, sugars and fats.

Daily WASHINGTON LETTER

By RODNEY DUTCHER.

Washington, March 21.—Senator J. Boonboom McWhorter says it is a mistake to suppose that a statesman's troubles all come while he is trying to be elected. As a matter of fact, says McWhorter, it is only after he is elected that they really begin.

The Senator is sorely concerned with problems of domestic relations which he says are far more serious than those of foreign relations and if he had his way there would be a Senate committee to handle one as well as the other. The trouble seems to be that the other members of the McWhorter family do not see why J. Boonboom, who was never by any means the brightest of them, should be on the government payroll while they are left off.

The situations is somewhat complicated by the fact that during the darkest days of the McWhorter election campaign the senator boasted within the family circle that if he were defeated he would be appointed to the cabinet and that everyone within the family circle would then have a job in his department.

All the McWhorters, young and old, fell on Uncle Boonboom's neck and went out to contribute to the campaign fund of his opponent. When the senator was shown to have been re-elected, thanks to the faithful election officials, they decided unanimously that those dollars must not have been spent in vain and that they should be careful in any event, but would contribute to the pain of separation in case Uncle Boonboom couldn't get them all into the same bureau or department.

Senator McWhorter is by no means the first statesman to be beset with such a problem. Most statesmen solve it by picking fights with their relatives well in advance and making them so mad that they won't say anything. But when Senator McWhorter tried manly, but Pilose is always perfectly honest and innocent in his attacks because whatever he gets he brings right straight home and doesn't try to hide it or anything. Unfortunately Pilose never remembers where he got it, so that the other McWhorters are never able to return anything.

There are other McWhorters demanding federal jobs besides those mentioned but all are unanimously supporting young Pilose.

TODAY IS THE ANNIVERSARY

THE CODE NAPOLEON

One of the three or four great legal codes in the world's history to bear the name of one man was promulgated in France 125 years ago today—the Code Napoleon.

Unlike the codified systems of law by which the names of Solon, Mahomet and one or two others in history are known, the Code Napoleon was the work of a corps of French legal minds and Napoleon himself really had little to do with it.

The Code was an orderly, compact statement of the laws of France. It has formed the basis of the Frenchman's civil rights ever since its promulgation, March 21, 1804. It was made necessary by the fact that after the French revolution the laws of the country were hopelessly confused. Ancient statutes of doubtful historic origin were mixed with new radical measures enacted in the hectic days of revolution.

This civil code was followed, in the next few years, by three others, similar in form and affecting commerce, criminal law, and the rules of civil and criminal process.

IN NEW YORK

New York, March 21.—To millions of people, Broadway is merely a street of play.

They find it a care-free dispenser of anodynes; an escape from the work-a-day realities; an anesthetic against care.

And so its meaningless catch-penny places take on a carnival significance. The "cathedrals of the moving picture" bring illusions of grandeur. One is ushered to a cinema seat with all the dignity and cold politeness of a caller at a Park avenue home. And its theaters project one variously into art, slapstick, laughter, tears or life problems.

This is the Broadway known to the average New York visitor, and to quite a number of New Yorkers, for that matter.

Unfortunately, this is but one side of Broadway. Unfortunately for the play spirit of the world there are many Broadways.

There is, for instance, the Broadway, of the wastrels; of the racketeers and the procurers of women; of the bootleggers and lecherous dandies—and this is a Broadway that is seen but seldom in its own spotlight.

The rest of New York sits up with startled eyes when, for one reason or another, this picture of its play street is flashed on the public screen. There are a few chroniclers of the big street who hint from time to time of shady goings on. Or there will be a paragraph in a morning newspaper relating how So-and-so was beaten up in such-and-such a resort, or how someone else was robbed of his roll of bills.

A Rothstein will be murdered and suddenly it will develop that vice and dope and racketeering had amazing ramifications. Names of prominent people will flash into print and soon there will appear to be a tangle of plot within plot, until a master unraveler alone can follow the involved trails. It jumps here and it jumps there; it widens and it narrows. It runs through life and death and bestiality and depravity; it takes gamblers and suckers and winners and losers.

I was minded of all this by the shooting the other day in Miami of "Fatty" Walsh, who had been bodyguard to the late Rothstein. In the midst of a card game a man stalked into the room, fired his shots and walked out. And when the shooting was all over, the police were closeted with a blond girl—still in her twenties . . . a girl who "belonged" to the racket.

And she told them of men and women of Broadway who watched the night club tables for young girls—fresh young girls, generally new to the city and new to its lures. She told them of youngsters of the chorus who were tricked by the woman, now dead, who had a convenient way of getting them into the country on "week-end parties"—and who lived to be tossed from one rich racketeer to another.

She told them of "suckers" lured into the heavy gambling games by pretty youngsters—of an incredible sordid world of men and women living behind gay and sparkling lights of Broadway.

It is the Broadway you hear whisper about . . . and more than once I have found myself incredulous as I stood watching the carnival hordes milling back and forth. Not one of these millions had a hand in the dirty dealing going on quietly, and with amazing organization, just behind some of the blinking lights.

Only when the night has grown late and you drop into a side street and wander into some flashy hide-away does the realization come that part of Broadway plays with a gun at its hip and a leer in its eye, with drugs in its vest pocket and sinister purposes in its heart.

GILBERT SWAN.

DAILY LENTEN THOUGHT

By WILLIAM E. GILROY, D. D.
 Editor of The Congregationalist.

There is a great deal of difference between mere impulses of good will and real actions that are uplifting and helpful. It is one thing to have very generous thoughts of our fellow men and kindly feelings, but quite another thing to stretch forth hands of cooperation and brotherly assistance.

There is a richly symbolic suggestion of this in the story of Peter and the beggar who sat at the beautiful Gate of the Temple. As Peter entered into the temple the beggar looked up asking for alms. When Peter said, "Silver and gold have I none," the beggar must have perceived a disappointment, despite Peter's sympathetic glance and interest.

When Peter said, "But such as I have give I thee," the beggar still may have doubted the ability to help him of one who had neither silver nor gold. But when Peter took the beggar by the right hand and lifted him up, the beggar must have experienced a new thrill and a new joy in the consciousness that strength had come to his limbs.

It is the power of the strong right arm that ultimately demonstrates the power of the loving and gracious heart. The strong right arm, alas, has been too often given to deeds of violence even in the name of civilization.

The great social task of the modern world is to consecrate the power of the strong right arm to the purposes of love and righteousness and truth.

PROBE OF PAUPERS KILLED BY HOUSE

Leader Johnson Says Next Legislature Will Take Up the Matter.

Hartford, March 21.—A small flurry occurred in the House today over a bill, already killed in the Senate, that proposed an investigation into the condition of the aged poor of the state. Oscar Dannenberg, of Bridgeport, opposed the unfavorable report of the committee on the bill and read into the records a long newspaper editorial on the subject. Judge Raymond A. Johnson, House leader, retorted by saying that he could find many editorials against the proposition. The bill was finally rejected without further comment after Judge Johnson said the subject had been under consideration and that the next Legislature would receive a bill covering the subject.

Under suspended rules the House passed approved claims against the state amounting to $12,700. Under the bill the Town of Ellington will receive $963.37 for care of paupers; Palmer Brothers, of New London, will be reimbursed an overpayment of $1,000 on their capital stock tax; the Travelers Insurance will get $10,256 for money on premiums on workmen's compensation for the state highway department and the Town of Woodstock will get $500 for care of paupers.

Favorable Reports
Favorable reports tabled by the House for calendar and printing today are:

Allowing leaves of absence with pay for state employees who are sick; providing disposition of assets of corporations which have been dissolved; providing that divorce actions shall not be heard until ninety days after the return day; allowing Windsor to assess for street pavements; incorporating the Mark Twain Library Memorial Commission of Hartford.

One unfavorable report was on a bill to amend the charter of Derby by allowing the mayor to act as ex-officio member of the police and finance boards.

From its calendar the House passed the following:

Incorporating the Merwin, Burwell & Farview Beach Association of Milford; creating a recreation board in Hamden; establishing a Hamden police relief fund; authorizing the Norwich city and town governments to create zoning districts; authorizing the Groton tax collector to collect in the borough, fire, school, and other districts; increasing the directors of Riverside Trust Co., Hartford, to 25; codifying fish and game laws concerning election of members of the fish and game commission; creating a Wallingford firemen's pension fund; putting a closed season on racoons from January 1 to October 20, with muskrats from March 16 to October 31; authorizing the Walcott Hill fire district of Wethersfield to regulate concerning snow and ice removal.

A Senate bill authorizing the Bridgeport Ladies Charitable Society to hold property up to $200,000 was also passed by the House. Judge Johnson, as House leader, announced that the House would hold a session tomorrow, there would be none a week from tomorrow, Fast Day, and a legal holiday.

THE SENATE.
Hartford, March 21.—The State Senate today sent to a committee on conference a bill providing a pension for Johanna Fahey and Margaret Burgess of Bridgeport. Disagreeing action resulted from the bill, the Senate having passed it and the House returning it to committee.

Under suspended rules the Senate allowed the claim of Charles H. Porter, of Windsor Locks for $195 for care of his father, a Civil War veteran.

The Senate received a favorable report on a bill establishing a small claims court in Greenwich. An unfavorable report was returned on a bill outlining procedure in damage claims arising from highway accidents.

Bills passed from the Senate calendar follow:
Allowing midwives to use extract of ergot; requiring Bridgeport property owners to file lists of taxable property before October 1; authorizing the Highway commissioner to erect temporary or permanent buildings on state owned land for high construction purposes; requiring selection of all towns to publish notices concerning changes in boundaries of properties in cases where such boundaries are uncertain.

The Senate finished its work today in time to adjourn before noon and swing into committee hearings.

LUTHERANS HAVE GOOD TIME AT REC CENTER

Church Members and Guests of Springfield League Try Out
Rec Facilities.

The first Church Night held at the School Street Recreation Center in some time turned out, last evening, to be a very successful affair. The many facilities at the Rec were given over to the members of the Swedish Lutheran church who had as their guests the Springfield Luther League.

Billiard tables and bowling alleys allotted to the members, were in use every minute of the evening, though no spectacular shots were made in pool and the pin-boys were not called on to exert themselves as the balls had a bad habit of rolling off the alleys into the gutter before striking a pin. However, all hands enjoyed themselves tremendously.

The formal games which were to have been played in the gym under the direction of Mr. Lloyd were cancelled as the visitors were much interested in looking over the building and trying their hand at the various sports offered. The basketball game played at 9 o'clock was won by Manchester, 24-19. Details appear on the sports page. A half hour swim for the boys capped the evening's entertainment.

Hot dogs, coffee and crullers were served shortly after ten o'clock to more than 100 visitors and local church members.

ABOUT TOWN

Hose Company No. 1, S. M. F. D., was called out twice today on still alarms. A grass fire just off Cooper Hill street was put out at 11:30 this morning. This afternoon a wood fire back of the Four Acres was the cause of the alarm.

Players from Hartford, Rockville and this town filled 45 tables at the card party held last evening at St. James' hall. It was planned to enter the series with last night's event, but demands for a continuance were so insistent that the ladies plan to run them again, beginning Wednesday evening, April 3, next week being Holy week. A total of 21 prizes were awarded the winners, at whist, setback and bridge. The committee of ladies under the chairmanship of Mrs. J. W. Farr served sandwiches, home made cake and coffee.

FOCH'S BOOK OUT

Paris, March 21.—Georges Goyau, a member of the French Academy, presented Mme. Foch with the first copy of the late Marshal Foch's book on Joan of Arc which was just off the press this morning.

SEEK STAMFORD MAN

Stamford, March 21.—Police today sent out a general alarm for Timothy Atterbury, of 108 Taylor street, after his wife was found unconscious with a large wound in her head. Mrs. Atterbury, according to hospital attendants, had been struck over the head by a blunt instrument, possibly a poker. Her husband disappeared before her condition was discovered.

BURN U. S. MISSIONS

Peking, March 21.—The American legation here today received a telegram reporting that several American missions had been burned and their missionaries in charge forced to flee during Communist uprisings in the southern part of the province of Kiangsi.

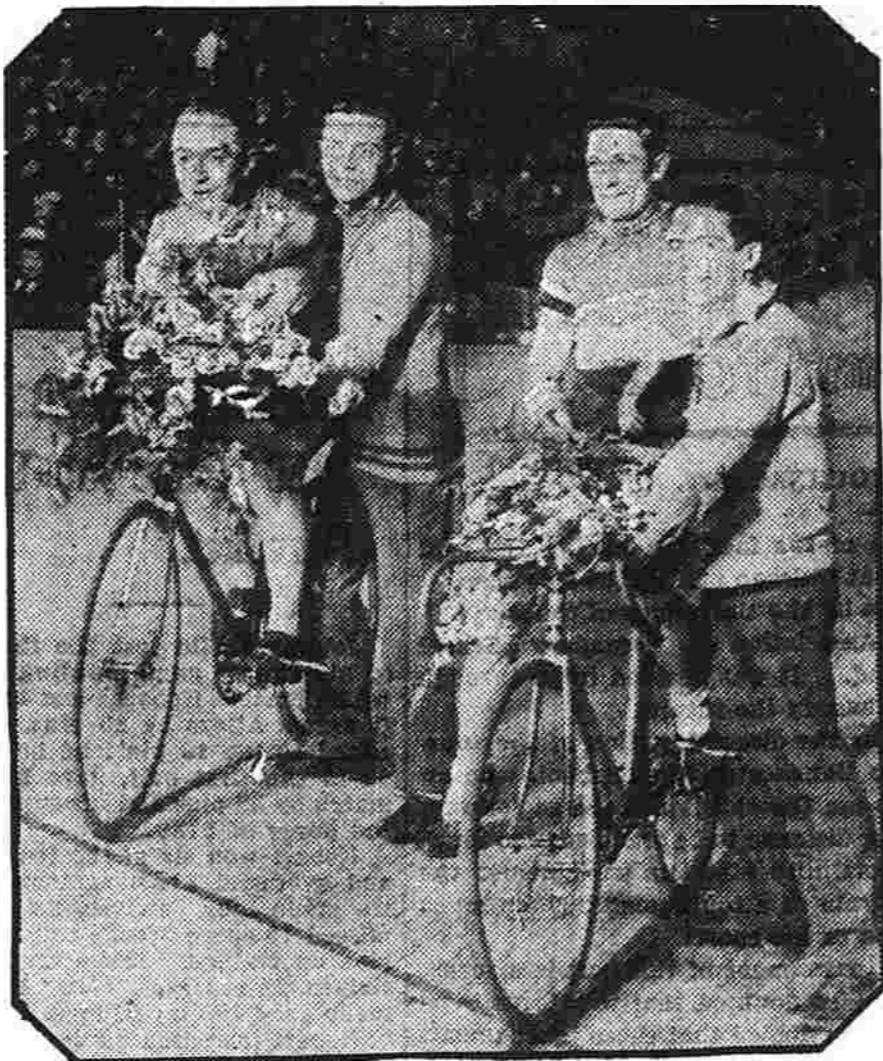

The legation requested the Chinese government to institute an immediate investigation.

SACRED WINE STOLEN

Hartford, March 21.—Rabbi Pinneas Sobolevsky reported to police here today the loss of fifty cases of wine, used for sacramental purposes, from the cellar of his home at 61 Mansfield street, apparently during the night. The wine was valued at $1,000.

They're New Pedal Champs

MUCH OPPOSITION AGAINST PROTOCOL

there would be no need for reservations.

"The United States, I take it, would not hesitate to become a member of a court or a permanent arbitral tribunal. But when it is asked to become a member of a body which is in fact the attorney general's department of a political institution, of which political institution is not a member, that presents a more serious question."

"I observe too that other governments are getting quite as much interested in this as the United States. This advisory jurisdiction will always be a source of disturbance and will ultimately, in my opinion, have to be abandoned if the court is to be what it ought to be—a great international judicial or arbitral tribunal."

Shipstead went much further. He declared the American people, seeking world peace, were lead to believe the League of Nations and World Court were merely political organizations, "which came out of the foreign offices of Europe during the war," he added, "so the Court lost its appeal."

What Does It Mean?

"The people cannot have a clear conception of Mr. Root's moves until they understand what this League and Court mean to American ideals," said Shipstead. "The diplomats know you can't have peace by putting the world in a strait-jacket. The people some day will realize it too."

"This League and Court are not new ideas. The phraseology was the same in the days of the Holy Alliance. It is merely another attempt to drag us up an alley, inch by inch, into the League of Nations and Europe's entangling alliances. They keep talking peace to us while all the world arms for war. We heard the same talk before 1914 when the great alliances were formed for peace, only to bathe the world in blood and ruin and hatred. The same crooks are still in power.

Hopes for Rejection.

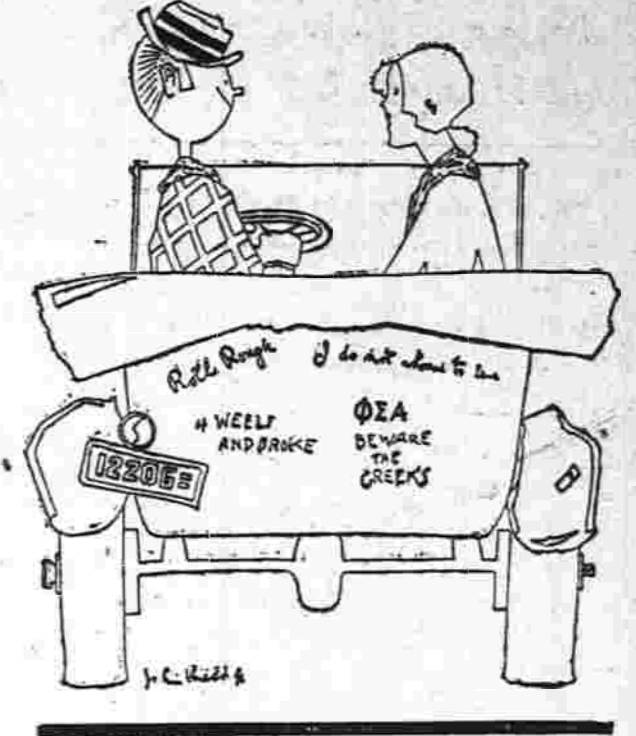

"I hope the Senate will reject these new terms. I hope the irrationals will fight them. Mr. Root proposes a trial marriage with the specific understanding that we may desert the wife if we have an argument. I don't believe in trial marriages either as a practical thing or as a question of morality."

The Root terms, Shipstead added, "change nothing."

"It is still the League's Court," Shipstead said. "Its law is still provided by the League. We still are asked to join a court, whose laws are written by a political organization of which we are not a member. We still will be subjected to efforts to drag our country into a super-international sovereignty that will gradually whittle away the independent sovereignty of the United States."

COMMANDER EIGHT CONVERTIBLE CABRIOLET, $1645. With six-cylinder motor, $1495. Six wire wheels and trunk rack standard equipment. COMMANDER EIGHT COUPE, $1495. COMMANDER SIX COUPE, $1350. Prices at the factory. Bumpers and spare tires extra.

THE fine and final touch of modern motoring—straight eight power—now lends its liquid fluency to Studebaker's famous Commander!

The new Commander, now available as either an eight or a six, worthily succeeds to the renown of its illustrious predecessor, which sped 25,000 miles in 22,968 minutes.

The Commander's potent appeal of tireless speed is admirably matched by youthful, vivid style. Lines are lower and longer because of Studebaker's costly double-drop frame. Even in repose, you sense The Commander's fleetness, and its power, and its brilliant deportment.

A cozy coupe or a racy roadster—quickly and at will.

Restful riding, such as motoring never knew until Studebaker introduced ball bearing spring shackles, is still further enhanced by hydraulic shock absorbers.

The sum of the new Commander's qualities, make it now, more than ever, "the greatest motor car ever built and sold at its low One-Price price."

Jarle Johnson Beaten By Bensch, 100 To 79

Best Played Match of Tournament Proves Treat to Audience; Not the Johnson of Old.

Jarle Johnson, former town champion, finalist in last year's town title tournament, and, in his prime, one of the best pocket billiard players Manchester has ever had, was eliminated in the first round of the Herald's 1929 tournament at the Rec last night by Jarle Bensch. The score was 100 runs to 79.

The match was easily the best played in the tournament this year and was replete with splendid playing by both men. There were very few easy shots missed. Johnson got away in the lead but Bensch passed him in the fourth rack and was never headed the rest of the way although pressed hard at times by ever-dangerous opponent.

With no intent to take any credit away from Bensch, it must be stated in all fairness to Johnson that he has not been playing but little pool since the tournament last year when he lost to Judd Gallup in the finals 300 to 290. Bensch, on the other hand, has been playing quite regularly, especially of late. Incidentally, it was Johnson who eliminated Bensch in the tournament last year and the score was 100 to 49.

Bensch displayed a brilliant all-around game and made high runs of 14 and 16. Johnson ran 12 once and nine twice. The latter also executed some spectacular masse combination shots which drew hearty applause from the good sized crowd which watched the match. Jimmy Reardon, who was keeping the statistics of the match, reports that Johnson made five scratches against three for Bensch. Bensch made two fouls and Johnson one. Johnson played 14 safe shots against 11 for Bensch.

The three fouls were committed in the closing racks when the strain of the battle was the heaviest. Both men proved themselves very dangerous with the balls spread in the least. This, in striking contrast to the previous matches where runs have been short and many easy shots missed. The crowd enjoyed the match immensely. They applauded both players and were convinced that Bensch was the better man last night and scored a deserved victory.

Here are the scores after each rack:

After years of furnishing the big leagues with such players as Joe Sewell, Del Pratt, Luke Sewell, Riggs Stephenson, and so on, the University of Alabama is falling off. The only player sent up recently was Grant Gillis, and he has drifted back to the Red Sox.

Branch Rickey seems to have overlooked a bet in not buying the University of Alabama as a farm.

Judging by the number of Haddock Strub has pushed over, he ought to take a match with Philadelphia Phil for $5 and expenses.

On the other hand, a return match between Strub and Sharkey is being advocated by some people. Proving you just can't give some folks enough punishment.

A couple of New York sport scribes pick the Phils to finish in seventh place this year. Must be figuring on a streak of good luck for Quarkertown.

The guys who pick the Phils to finish seventh must have a terrible opinion about one of the National League ball clubs.

A headline in the Chicago Post says "Two Yankees Shot By Rebels." Maybe Connie Mack put somebody up to it.

The score at the end of the first inning in the recent cricket game between England and Australia was 519 to 491. Baseball scorekeepers who have thought they had a tough spot can now raise their voices in gladsome shouts.

Jim Maloney seems to be coming back. It has been a most unusual spring.

The stories from the spring training camps tell of players who can't touch horns, play the piano and other musical instruments. O'Goofy just got back from Miamiburg and he says they aren't so bad at stud poker, either.

YANKS NOT HIS JONAH

DECLARES LEFTY GROVE

Fort Myers, Fla., March 21.—Lefty Grove, star pitcher of the Philadelphia Athletics who was able to consistently beat every club in the American League last year with the exception of the New York Yankees, told International News Service today that the Yankees are not a "Jonah" team for him—at least he doesn't think so.

"I regard the Yanks as just a ball club," he said, "and that's the way I'm going to pitch to them this year."

Grove was asked how many ball games he thought he would win this season.

"That's a funny question," he replied. "How do I know? I'll win as many as I can. I expect to have a good year."

Grove said his arm "feels great." He suffered an attack of the arm in January but had completely recovered.

VELVET NO. 1 WINS LEGAL CHAMPIONSHIP

Jennie Lucas Cops High Average Prize Again With 91.40; Complete List.

Velvet No. 1 was the winner of the C. B. Girls' bowling league with the remarkable showing of 69 wins in 56 games. The Ribbon and Weaving No. 1, close followers, tied for second but they each lost twice as many games as the Velveteers.

Jennie Lucas led the individual averages again with 91.40. Martha Hadden and Nan Taggart were close behind. This trio was all that kept an average of over 90. The league standing and averages follow:

JOLIET TEAM WINS.

Chicago, March 21.—Five men comprising the Hub Recreation team of Joliet, Ill., were the heroes of the American Bowling congress today. This team, unheard of and unsung, last night rose from obscurity to crash its way into first place with the handsome score of 3062. They turned in games of 1002, 984 and 1077, with each man averaging better than 200 per game.

First place in the doubles also changed hands when J. Leininger and G. Geiser of Chicago knocked over 1302 pins to top the former leaders by one point.

FRANCE'S TENNIS DAYS NUMBERED STATES BOROTRA

Destiny and American Resourcefulness Will Regain Davis Cup, He Predicts.

By DAVIS J. WALSH

New York, March 21.—Destiny and American resourcefulness will take the Davis Cup from France as inevitably as the stars must shine and the sun follow its orbit.

Jean Borotra, France's gay troubador of the courts who for eight years has played his tennis from the Rivera to Rio—in the shadow of New York's skyscrapers one month, by the side of Nanking's rice paddies the next—was conceding today what he believed to be a manly fact. The concession was made with typical Gallic resignation. It is fate; what would you? He seemed to say.

"Our few can beat your few now," said he, gravely. "That is fortunate. But it isn't permanent."

What was meant, he was eager to explain, was that it was only a question of time until the many good ones here, the man power of American tennis, must overcome France's few, La Coste and Cochet? Oui, M'sieur. Of a certainty, they are great. But they have reached their best and can get no better. He added that they will play top tennis perhaps for ten years.

"Does that mean that you expect to keep the Davis Cup for ten years?" he was asked.

"Mais, non. Of an absurdity! Of a great absurdity! His hands fluttered in pained negation.

"We have no great confidence that we will be able to keep it one more year," he said, and launched into a tribute to Bill Tilden, forthwith. William, it seems, is one of the gentlemen's many enthusiasms.

"No teams with a Bill Tilden is ever beaten in advance," he declared. He seemed shocked when informed that the American public was expecting less and less of Tilden as time went on. Tilden, he added, would play tennis this year reminiscent of Tilden of old.

"Why? He appeared surprised that anyone should question such a statement. Why not? was his reply. Tilden, he declared, needed only a day's rest between two Davis Cup singles matches to be almost unbeatable. Play him in doubles and he would impressively.

"You keep him," he added, simply.

Tilden, in his eyes at least, is America's insurance at the moment against elimination before the final round. Subsequently, it will be our overwhelming resources of player strength that will achieve this result. Borotra professed himself to be fairly staggered by the proficiency of the average player he faced in America.

"Any of your men, ranking from number ten to number fifty, may beat any of ours ranked from number five to number ten," he explained. "This means everything in a competition between two countries. You have so many stars, we so few. When La Coste and Cochet fail, our best man will be Boussus, because of his youth. The rest of the good ones in France are, unfortunately, not young. Regard, then, your young players."

"Van Ryn"—he whistled through his teeth by way of creating atmosphere for this cyclone in action—"there is a player. Mangin, Coen, Lott; they play masterfully now and they are yet to reach their best. There are many more here almost as good. Hennessy, I fear started to play—what you call it?—serious tennis too late for future development. But you can have no concern for the others."

He left no doubt that he considered Van Ryn and Boussus the coming players of this day and that by 1935, perhaps sooner, they will be the Tildens and the La Costes of Davis Cup play.

BUSY SPORT SEASON FOR YALE ATHLETES

New Haven, March 21.—A sports schedule calling for 108 events between April 4 and June 22 was announced by the Yale Athletic association here today, the schedule starting with the first baseball game of the varsity's southern trip played at Charlottesville, Va., with the University of Virginia, July 4 and ending with the Harvard Regatta at New London on June 21.

GAR WOOD FORCED OUT IN FIRST RACE

Miami, Fla., March 21.—Gar Wood, Veteran speed boat king, was forced out on the third lap of his first defending race against the British entry of Major H. O. D. Seagrave yesterday afternoon in the Biscayne Bay regatta when the Miss America VII broke a steering quadrant. Wood was leading a half lap when he was eliminated.

SEAGRAVE COMPLETED THE 12 MILE SPRINT IN THE TIME OF 11 MINUTES, 9.38 SECONDS.

His average speed was 64,537 miles per hour. They race again this afternoon.

FINAL CHICAGO TOURNAMENT.

Although few persons are aware of the fact, the coming National Interscholastic Basketball Tournament at Chicago will be the last one.

This was decided a few weeks ago by the University of Chicago officials at the request of the National Association of Secondary School Principals which was held in Cleveland. It was decided to go through with the present one but to abandon them in the future.

Several reasons were advanced for the discontinuation of the tournament. Clarence P. Quimby of the Manchester High School, who attended the Cleveland conference tells me the chief ones are as follows: Heavy cost of transportation; long distance to be traveled; too much time lost by the members of the teams, also students back home; the severity of the mental and physical strain of a tournament with so much honor at stake; also commercialization of the sport.

There is no question but that a tournament of this sort is a severe strain upon a team of boys, but it is also doubted that it injures them to any serious extent. Neither can it be denied that these tournaments severely handicap the progress of the classes in all schools affected. The students "talk, dream and eat" basketball.

No better proof of this is available than the case of Fitchburg, Mass., High, winners of the National Tourney back in 1925-26. Although the school team had a very successful season the following year, officials refused to allow the team to defend its title at Chicago where it had been invited. They pointed out that the markings of the students had fallen down woefully during the month surrounding the team's trip to Chicago. Yet, the tourney will be sadly missed.

Regarding the commercializing of the sport, it is known that the members of the Central Connecticut Interscholastic League officials at their recent meeting seriously discussed the advisability of adopting a rule whereby the coaches of all athletic teams be separated from the teams during contests. The suggestion was defeated only after a warm debate.

Those favoring placing the coaches in the bleachers declare this would give the players more initiative and make schoolboy sports less commercialized. It is understood that Manchester may experiment with the idea during the present year. It is being worked out advantageously in certain parts of New York state now. However, it will probably be some time before Connecticut adopts the plan.

Herald Bowling League Title Settled Tonight

Sons of Italy Must Win Two Points to Tie and Three to Win from Green; Bon Ami Opposes Them at Farr's.

TONIGHT'S PAIRINGS

At Farr's—
Bon Ami vs. Sons of Italy.
West Sides vs. Independents.
A' Murphy's vs. Green vs. Night Hawks.
Center Church vs. Charter Oaks.
Beethoven vs. Construction.

Tonight's the final session of the Herald Bowling League. It will decide the pennant. The winner will be either Manchester Green or the Sons of Italy. The chances are that the latter will pull through the winner by a margin of a single point. However, that's mere guesswork.

The Night Hawks who forfeited to the Sons of Italy are going to do the same to the Green tonight which will put the Green ahead of the Sons by two points. In order to win the Sons must bowl over the strong Bon Ami team three points. Two points would give a tie and make necessary a play-off.

Tickets for the annual banquet which will be held next Monday evening at the Sub-Alpine club will be distributed by the team captains tonight.

KEBART DEFEATS SASILA 38 PINS

Wins Final Leg by 20 Pins; $180 Purse at Stake; Near Riot.

Johnny Sasila lost the final leg of his twenty game bowling match with Charlie Kebart last night at Conran's Alleys by 20 pins, which, added to the 18 pin lead he secured in the first half, gave him the match by 38 pins and his supporters the purse of $180.

Kebart won six of the ten games and averaged 113.6 against 112.6. He made four strikes, 23 spares, missed 15 spare breaks and got 193 pins on fillings. Sasila made six strikes, 25 spares, "blew" 10 and made only 195 on fillings.

Kebart increased his lead at the start but the south ender reduced it to a few pins only to have Kebart spurt into a commanding lead again. He was leading by 53 pins when the last game started. Sasila made more marks but his fillings were much smaller than those made by Kebart. A large crowd watched the match and there was a big verbal argument afterward about the money which was bet on the match. At one time, it looked like fists might fly.

Meet Rec Five In Third Contest Of Their Series

LOCAL LUTHERS VICTORS, 24-19

Springfield's Luther League basketball team came and saw, but left the conquering to the local team who took advantage of it and soundly trimmed the visitors, 24-19 last night at the School Street Rec. The game, throughout, was very loosely played. "Mit" Nelson starred for the winners, caging five baskets and holding his man to one lone goal. A. Haglund, right guard of the visitors, who made eight baskets in the game at Springfield was held scoreless by S. Anderson. The score at half-time was 15-7. Manchester. George Stavitsky refereed.

Large Crowd Expected to Watch Game Which May Be Last of Season; Always Plenty of Excitement When Teams Clash.

The Rec Five will tackle the Hartford Dixies tomorrow evening at the School street Rec in the third and deciding game of their three-game series, each team having won one contest. This may be the last contest of the season for the local team.

Whenever the Rec and Dixies clash, the fans are sure of getting their money's worth. Tomorrow should be no exception to the rule. The two teams are bitter rivals and the feeling is tense between the players once play starts although they may appear friendly in civies. The Dixies will have Ted Torrant and Tommy Murphy at forward with Bill Hofferth at center and Heine Larson and "Fat" Hafner on guard duty. "Watty" Waterman will probably play and in case he does, Torrant may jump center with Waterman going to forward as he did in the last game here when the Dixies won out through a hair-raising finish 41 to 39.

Thoughts of that game alone should help draw a large crowd tomorrow night. No other game is on taps now that the High school has completed its season. The Rec will use its regular lineup. McCann and Holland will play forward posts, Norris, center with Stavitsky and Madden on at guards. Nichols and Gustafson will be on reserve duty.

Yale men decide which is best cigarette...

OLD GOLD CIGARETTES WIN FIRST IN TESTS AT YALE

In the recent cigarette test made at the University, OLD GOLDS were chosen by the students as the best. The cigarettes were masked by black labels so that the names of the brands were concealed. Each label was numbered. This was judged to be the most sporting way of testing the merits of the four leading brands. Some 208 Yale students were asked to smoke the four disguised brands without knowing their identity.

They were merely to choose, by number, the one that was most appealing to the taste.

The News supervised the test on January 18 at various fraternity houses and in the News office.

When the votes were recorded it was discovered that OLD GOLD (Cigarette No. 3) had won. Old Gold was given 63 first choices, which was 11 per cent ahead of Cigarette No. 2, 34 per cent ahead of Cigarette No. 1, and 53 per cent ahead of Cigarette No. 4.

Are hearts always trumps in the game of love? Aren't there times when the "Queen of Diamonds" takes the winning trick? When the girl with money--and the things that money will buy--has an unfair advantage over the girl whose party dress is last year's made over? Ruth Dewey Groves, one of America's most widely read serial story writers, has written a modern answer to this age-old problem in her latest serial, "Rich Girl—Poor Girl."

THE BLACK PIGEON

© 1929 By NEA Service, Inc. by ANNE AUSTIN

THIS HAS HAPPENED
On Monday morning BETH LESTER, secretary, finds the body of her employer, "HANDSOME HARRY" BORDEN, sprawled beneath the aircraft window of his private office.

McMANN, detective sergeant, questions the following suspects: MRS. BORDEN, Borden's estranged wife and mother of his two children; RITA DUBOIS, night club dancer, with whom Borden was infatuated; and JACK HAYWARD, Ruth's fiancé, whose office is across the narrow aircraft from Borden's. Jack's guilt seems emphasized by his admission that he returned to the seventh floor Saturday afternoon, and by the testimony of MICKY MORAN and OTTO PFUGGER, elevator boys. BILL COWAN, Jack's friend, unwillingly tells of having heard Jack threaten Borden's life Saturday morning.

McMann's partner, BENNY SMITH, Borden's office boy; ASHE, his manservant; MINNIE CASSIDY and LETTY MILLER, seventh floor scrubwomen; OLEO GILMAN, Borden's discarded mistress, and JAKE BALLY, his bodyguard. MARTHA MANNING is brought into the case by Ruth's clever detective work. She swears she last saw Borden on Friday night, but admits phoning him three times Saturday afternoon.

When McMann pointblank accuses her of the murder, she challenges him to bring forward any one who saw her in the building Saturday. While Ruth and Jack are out for lunch, Ruth determines to check up on Martha's story. The memory of Martha's nervous twisting hands stirs some deep-buried impression in Ruth's subconscious.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XLIV

"Yes—old subconscious working at last, darling!" Ruth answered, when the elevator had discharged them at the seventh floor. Her eyes were shining like blue diamonds, but even if he had wanted to confide in her sweetheart, the inevitable group of reporters clusters about Borden's door would have prevented her.

Throwing back Hayward a brilliant smile by way of farewell, she slipped into her office, or rather the office which had been hers until her employer had been murdered.

She found Detective Birdwell with his feet on Benny Smith's desk, his black derby tilted low over his perpetually weary eyes. At the girl's entrance, down came the feet and off came the derby, but the expression of his face denoted the detective's face deep in thought.

"Has anything happened?" Ruth asked as she hung up hat and coat, and fluffed her golden curls before the washstand mirror.

"Oh, nothing much," Birdwell drawled wearily. "Nothing except that Commissioner Weeks has been here handing out nice, hot little samples of hell. You'd think, to hear that guy talk, that nobody hadn't done nothing but twiddle their thumbs or play tidly-winks since you started your job 30 hours body yesterday morning. As for chief says to him—" and Birdwell jerked his head toward Borden's private office, where McMann was presumably hard at work—"he says, 'Give us time, commissioner. We ain't been on the job 30 hours yet,' he says, and the Big Noise comes back at him with this kinda proposition: 'If you can't make an arrest by five o'clock today, McMann, he says, 'I'll assign the case to Birdwell. Try it, Huh! I know Pryor! He'll clap every body in sight in jail, and then say 'Benjie meenie miney mo' to see which one did it.'"

"And what did Mr. McMann say to that?" Ruth asked, smiling cheerfully.

"Oh, this and that," Birdwell told her wearily, "but the gist of it was that he guessed your sweetie, Hayward, would have to be the goat. Thought I'd tip you off—"

Ruth replied, but the detective's obvious amazement her smile was not a whit less cheerful. "Is Commissioner Weeks still with Mr. McMann?"

"No, he's toddled on off to brighten up another dark corner," Birdwell grinned, "but Borden's lawyer—a la-de-da chappie, with a cane and spats and everything—dropped in a few minutes ago to lend a helping hand. McMann phoned him to bring in Handsome Harry's will. But if you want to see the chief I'll call him out for you."

"No, I've got a job to do that's going to keep me very busy indeed for the next few minutes," Ruth answered, as she sat down to her desk and took the cover from the typewriter that had stood idle since the abrupt termination of her career as private secretary to "Handsome Harry" Borden.

For a few minutes, however, her hands lay inert on the keys, and her brows were knit in a mighty frown of concentration. Then, with an exclamation of excited triumph, she quickly rolled a sheet of yellow paper into the machine and began to type with furious haste.

As page after page was filled with her flawless typing, Birdwell looked on with growing interest, when he was not engaged in answering telephone calls from police headquarters.

"What are you writing—a serial story?" he asked at last, unable to restrain his curiosity.

"I'm afraid it does sound a lot like fiction—of the old-fashioned, penny-dreadful kind," Ruth laughed without halting her flying fingers.

She had just drawn the last sheet from her typewriter with an excited, triumphant "There!" when the door between the two offices opened and the detective sergeant, followed closely by a dapper little man, who had evidently used a certain famous mayor as his sartorial guide, emerged, exchanging farewell courtesies with the girl.

"What! That guy's so polite he makes me want to kick him in the seat of his pearl-gray pants to see if he'd say, 'Thank you, my dear Mr. McMann! Thank you!' the detective sergeant growled when the lawyer had bowed and smiled himself out of his dead client's office.

"But I'm glad he came, anyway. Come on in, Miss Lester, and I'll tell you all about it."

Before obeying, Ruth Lester glanced up at the four typed sheets of what Birdwell had called a "serial story" and folded them into a small square which she tucked away safely in the pocket of the brown velvet frock she was wearing.

"A man's will is a pretty good index to his character," McMann began, after he and Ruth had seated themselves opposite each other at the dead man's desk. "And more times than not, when a rich man's bequeathed his will to the police's best bet in looking for a motive. I tried to get hold of Attorney Walters yesterday, of course, but he was out of town—didn't get back till noon today."

"A did you find a motive?" Ruth asked eagerly.

"Not unless you want to believe that Mrs. Borden got impatient," McMann said slowly. "Outside of a few thousands to his lawyer, who, it appears, expected more for keeping Borden out of jail on some of his fake stock schemes, everything goes to the wife and kids—"

"Nothing to Martha Manning's child?" Ruth interrupted.

"Not a red!" McMann answered. "I've just told you that a man's will is a good index to his character. He makes no provision for the child that Miss Manning claims is his. Maybe he had cause to question his paternity, but I doubt it. I'd stake my hope of promotion for solving this case on that woman's telling the truth—so far as the kid is concerned, at least."

"I agree with you," Ruth said soberly. "Did Mr. Borden leave a large estate?"

"About a million and a quarter, according to Walters, though the will says only $1,000,000. The usual thing, you know," McMann answered. "Of course I asked Walters if Mrs. Borden knew either the extent of her husband's wealth or the disposition made of it in his will and he answered 'no' to both questions. She must have been pretty sure, however, that whatever her husband had would come to her and her children, but since Borden was giving them $500 a month, I'm afraid I'll have to look elsewhere for a motive that will hold water."

"Mrs. Borden did not kill her husband," Ruth stated quietly.

"You seem pretty sure—oh, all right, Birdwell! What is it?" as his subordinate appeared in the doorway.

"Captain Foster on the wire, sir. Wants to talk with you."

While McMann was arguing and expostulating with his immediate superior, who had evidently just returned from his own luncheon, the Commissioner Weeks sat staring at the aircraft window, smiling strangely, her chin resting on her interlocked hands. McMann, glancing at her once or twice for approval of the way he was "standing up" to the police captain, saw to his amazement that she was not even listening!

Something did arouse her out of her smiling abstraction, however. It was the mournful, reproachful call of the black pigeon, which was strutting up and down the broad white ledge outside the aircraft window. With an exclamation of dismay at her own thoughtlessness, the girl jumped up and ran to the outer office, to get the envelope which she had filled with bread crumbs from her own luncheon. But the hungry black pigeon had to wait a minute longer, for Ruth stopped to type one line and tear it, a narrow ribbon, from the sheet of yellow paper. With her message, she hurried back into the private office, where McMann was just replacing the receiver, his face flushed with righteous indignation.

"Expect a man to solve a mystery like this in two shakes of a lamb's tail!" he grumbled to the girl, then abandoned his self-defense to ask curiously: "What are you doing there?"

"Just feeding the pigeons!" Ruth laughed at the chief's. "I neglected them shamefully. I hope the next tenant in this suite has a more humanitarian secretary."

"Say! That's a pretty sight!" McMann commented, as she strolled to the aircraft window, where the girl stood, laughing and cooing to the flock of pigeons, which fought greedily for the crumbs she was sprinkling upon the ledge.

"Oh, you greedy thing!" she cried, as the black pigeon boldly settled upon her hand and began to peck at the crumbs it held. "Now you've made me spill half of your dinner!" she added ruefully, as a shower of crumbs fell upon the polished strip of floor between rug and window. "Just for that, Mr. Nemesius, you're going to be punished by being made to work!" And one little hand closed firmly about the gleaming body of the black pigeon.

"What are you going to do now?" McMann asked indulgently, as swift fingers wrapped the narrow ribbon of paper about the tiny red leg of the pigeon, fastening it securely with the thread.

"Watch and see!" Ruth laughed. Then, still holding the pigeon against her breast, she called out in a clear, blithe soprano: "Yoo hoo, Jack!"

Almost instantly the young insurance broker's head and torso were framed in the opposite window.

"Got any crumbs, darling?" Ruth called gayly. "If you have, you may learn something to your advantage," and she released the black pigeon.

"Say! What does all this mean? ... And I thought you weren't listening!" the detective sputtered.

"Look here, Miss Lester! I've treated you almost like one of the force—let you in on everything, but I warn you—if you're tipping off Hayward that he's going to be arrested, so's he can beat it—"

Ruth's lovely face was sparkling with laughter as she answered: "I wasn't listening. And please don't scowl at me like that. As Oleo Gilman said, you'd be an awfully handsome man if you cultivated a jolly smile. ... Oh, look! Jack's caught the black pigeon!"

"I shouldn't think Hayward would ever want to see a pigeon again, after the trick one of them played on him—making those footprints in blood inside and outside this window," McMann reminded her. "If it hadn't been for those pigeon footprints, inside and outside a closed window, I doubt if a grand jury would have indicted him."

But again he was amazed to discover that the girl was not listening to him. She was smiling and nodding, with careless gaiety, to the young man across the aircraft window, who, after reading the brief message gave her a puzzled smile and nod in return, and then tore the ribbon of paper to bits. The pigeons fluttered after them greedily.

"What was that message?" McMann demanded sternly.

"Oh—Ruth laughed, as she turned away from the window—"just a novel way of making a date with my young man! Please don't scold, Mr. McMann! I promise you that Jack won't run away—that if, at five o'clock today, you still want to arrest me for the murder of Mr. Henry P. Borden, he'll be here and I shan't utter a word of protest!"

"You're pretty sure of yourself," McMann told her, eyeing her with frowning curiosity. "Holding out on me, aren't you?"

"Why, of course not, Mr. McMann!" Ruth disclaimed, with wide-eyed innocence. "You know far more than I do—and all that I do. But we were talking of Mr. Borden's will. It was rather disappointing, wasn't it? I thought he had more originality than that—"

McMann returned to the desk, sat down and selected a memo from his stack of notes. "I wouldn't say Harry Borden was lacking in originality," he said, with an odd smile. "There's one clause I haven't told you about—the strangest clause ever written into a last will and testament. ..."

YOUR CHILDREN

by Olive Roberts Barton
© 1928 by NEA Service, Inc.

Don't force children. It is bad for them. Not only is it bad for them to be forced in school but bad for them to be forced at home.

Someone has compared the growth and progress of a child to a flower: "You cannot force a bud by pinning it apart."

This is what it is to force a child faster than nature intended, his body and mind to develop.

Even if he may appear to be slow, perhaps under it all his mind is growing in a way of its own. We are not omniscient, either as parents or teachers; we cannot tell the exact condition of a child's mind at any time. Just because he is not progressing in the way we wish him to progress doesn't say that he is not gaining something by leaps and bounds, of which we are not aware.

If his lessons are too difficult for him, it must be evident in a few weeks to those who are interested in him. If he is trying normally to do all he can, and still keeps falling over and over, and it tells on his happiness and health, something is wrong. He is perhaps too far ahead of his grade in school, it may be his music. If he has no music in him and is nagged and forced into practicing something he cannot master, nor comprehend, what is to be gained?

He may not show any evidence of physical or mental strain. He won't if he is of the tough-fibre make. But on the other hand, it may make him nervous to a serious degree.

I knew a mother who insisted on her boy learning to play the violin. He couldn't. He practiced dutifully for two or three years, but made no headway. He was ashamed and unhappy. His mother nagged; his teacher, who should have known better, scolded. Any teacher should be able to tell when a child simply cannot do things, no matter how hard he tries.

One day the boy's nerves broke—the best way for it all to end. He had one grand, glorious, explosion of temper and stamped on the fiddle until it was flat. He was punished unmercifully but the family and the idea of lessons was dropped. But all the relatives rejoiced in his freedom.

Children may soldier and play off about things they are perfectly able to do, but the difference between this and the inability to master something beyond him should be apparent to his parents.

The personnel of the United States navy has been nearly doubled since 1914. The figures now show 113,000 men as against 67,000 in 1914.

The WOMAN'S DAY by ALLENE SUMNER

It was women in great droves who called for Isadora Duncan's life story, bookstores report. The same women are probably reading the two recently published biographies of the frank Isadora Duncan which pick up the thread of her story where her death left it.

Both these books, "The Unfolded Story," by Mary Desti, and "Isadora Duncan's Russian Days," by Irma Duncan and Allan MacDougal, prove that it's one thing for a lady to be frank as she likes about her own personal affairs, but quite another thing for her friends and relatives to dare be as frank for her.

Mothers, I imagine, instead of gasping at Isadora's amours, as they probably did in her autobiography, will gasp more at the revelations of unusual maternity in at least one of these volumes.

For instance, Mary Desti herself, recounts how, arriving in Paris one night for the first time in her life with her eighteen-month old baby, she decided late at night that she must go to the annual Opera Ball. She hired the maid, never seen before that night, to take care of her baby, returning at 4 a. m. She found the baby sick but, nevertheless, took him with her in a taxi-cab to inspect draughtily apartments. The day ended with Mary being discovered by the Mad Duncans. There was a gay scene with the sick baby placed on the piano while wild dance tunes were played and the whole tribe danced about the walling child. The next day, much to Mary's Desti's surprise, the beloved infant had pneumonia.

STIRRING INCIDENT. Super-natural women will gasp, too, at the incident with the children during the stay of Isadora

Hints On How To Keep Well by World Famed Authority

By DR. MORRIS FISHBEN
Editor Journal of the American Medical Association and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine.

As the first warm days begin to appear, incidentally among the chilling breezes of March, the old-fashioned mother begins to get ready the sulphur and molasses for the cure of spring fever.

The idea is that spring is a time for house cleaning and body cleaning. The drug stores begin to display bottles of spring tonics. There was a time when the book beer sign heralded the definite arrival of the happy season.

The work at its desk develops a sort of latitude and dreams of figures that are not in books. There is only one spring tonic that is real and that is the outdoors. The cure can be found in the trees and in the fields, along the bank of some stream and out in the sun.

This And That In Feminine Lore

Mrs. Sadie J. Robinson of the Lily Beauty Parlor who attended the Hairdressers' convention at the Waldorf-Astoria in New York last week, was so impressed with the new Nestle Text-o-Meter, that she has purchased one of these wonderful instruments to pre-test hair for permanent waving. Only highly trained operators such as you will find at the Lily parlor in the House and Hale block are qualified to give these pre-tested waves. Phone 1671 for further particulars.

When you want to eat late at night after the theater or entertainment, and there doesn't seem to be anything that appeals, try toast with marmalade and a cup of steaming hot tea.

Curls for Baby Now. The very newest idea, according to the experts who gave demonstrations at the National Hairdressers' convention, is curly locks for the baby who has straight hair. It has been discovered that the greatest offense against a child's hair is the use of soap and water from infancy with the almost constant combing, brushing and cutting. The new treatment is believed to enormously benefit the hair, making it more glossy and luxurious. In boys it is predicted that the treatment will effectively decrease the possibility of baldness in their manhood. Nature aided by science in accomplishing a profusion of curls from erstwhile straight hair.

Black and white is always a favorite color combination for dresses but for spring and summer there are other colors that can be just as effective, such as light and dark shades of green; red, white and black, or red, white and a bright blue. A new color combination is a blouse of pale yellow with a skirt of green.

FIG BLANC-MANGE. Two cups milk, 1/4 cup Irish Moss, 1/2 cup sugar, 1/2 teaspoon salt, 1/2 cup stewed chopped figs, 1 tablespoon lemon juice, 1/4 teaspoon vanilla.

Soak moss 15 minutes in cold water to cover. Drain, pick over and rinse. Add to milk scalded in double boiler and cook in double boiler for 30 minutes. Add salt and strain. Add sugar, lemon juice and vanilla and turn into individual molds. Chill for several hours. Unmold and serve with sugar and cream.

Just at this time of the year there seems to be a scarcity of fresh fruits. Apples have lost their flavor and grape fruit and oranges are on the wane, but the fruit eating habit must be kept up. Research workers tell us that dried prunes and figs, with citrus fruits in healthful properties, offering an excellent supply of iron and lime and easily digested sugar.

They must be washed very thoroughly and simmered at just below boiling until tender but not mushy. Raisins are much used for their iron content but are usually made up into breads, cakes and puddings. Dates and prunes are delicious chopped and added to any sandwich bread. Stewed dried apricots are fine for a breakfast fruit and are enticing when stuffed with cream cheese and nuts in a salad.

The sports ensemble, consisting of a skirt, sweater and coat, presented as a novelty a few years ago in an accepted style today, although perhaps the sweater is giving away more and more to the more dressy blouse. The objection to the sweater for summer use was the difficulty in laundering it frequently. The light weight wools and wash silks are taking its place.

A cake crumb pudding is easily made from a few pieces of stale cake and a little fruit. It isn't at all like one of those abominable left-over dishes. It is almost good enough to make a cake especially for the purpose.

For about a cup of cake crumbs allow two eggs, one-fourth cup sugar, pinch salt, two cups milk, half teaspoon vanilla and one banana (or any other kind of fruit or raisins, dates or currants). Pour the entire mixture into a baking dish and bake until set. Serve cold with or without cream, plain or whipped.

The little cans of fruit that can be bought for a dime—vegetables too for that matter, are very popular with women living alone or where there are just two. This week the fruits are selling at one of the chain stores at three cans for 25 cents. Different combinations are excellent for salads or jellies. I know of no more delicious, quickly made dessert than one of the prepared raspberry jellies with one of the small cans of loganberries added, and served with whipped cream. These are also to be found in the "buffet" fruits whereas formerly cans of loganberries were about 25 cents.

THE BOOK OF KNOWLEDGE: Famous Christians

Sketches by Chesley; Synopsis by Draucher

The Kiwanis Minstrel show which was to have been presented on April 18 has been postponed until some time during the middle of May because of the illness of William B. Halsted, who is in charge of the show. Helge Pearson, recently admitted as a member of the club, will act as musical director and will start the club rehearsing songs at once. End men already selected are, Elmer Thelens, Elmore Watkins, Charles Milkowski and Charles Huber.

Tickets will be on sale by members in a few days. Fred T. Blish attended the St. Petersburg Kiwanis club with G. E. Willis on March 12. The former has sent home a bag of pecans as an attendance prize for the next meeting.

Golf clubs in Great Britain have an annual membership of over 600,000.

TOWN ADVERTISEMENT

NOTICE OF THE TAX COLLECTOR

All persons liable by law to pay Town or personal taxes, in the Town of Manchester, are hereby notified that I will have a rate bill, for the list of 1928, of 15 3/4 mills on the dollar due and collectible on April 1, 1929. Personal Tax due April 1, 1929.

Said Tax payable at the Tax Collector's Office in the Municipal Building from

APRIL 1 TO MAY 1

Inclusive

Hours 9 a. m. to 4 p. m., except Tuesday, April 2, Tuesday, April 9, Tuesday, April 16, Tuesday, April 23, Tuesday, April 30 and Wednesday, May 1. Hours 9 a. m. to 3 p. m.

Interest will be added to all taxes remaining unpaid after May 1, 1929. Interest will start from April 1, 1929 and will be at the rate of 10 per cent to October 1, 1929 and at the rate of 12 per cent for balance of year. In default at the rate of 12 per cent after lien has been filed will be added.

GEORGE H. HOWE, Collector.

Henry, unable to bear the results of the disgrace, journeyed over the icy slope of Mount Cenis in the depth of winter.

Gregory had retired to Canossa, high up in the Apennines, whither he was followed by the penitent emperor.

By FRANK BECK

FOR THREE DAYS, the emperor, clad in the thin white robe of a penitent, shivered in the courtyard of Canossa, praying for the pope's pardon. The pope then forgave him, though in after time, Henry was to defy the pope again and gain the better of him.

FLAPPER FANNY SAYS:

The road to thinness is often just around the bend.

SENSE and NONSENSE

The talking movie we don't want to miss, says Bill is the play which will give us this memorable line: "That'll all there it—there it'll be any more."

TESTING 'EM OUT.

The boss called in his secretary. "Put up a sign outside the office," he said, "that no salesmen are allowed to enter."

Druggist—Yes, miss, you'll find most ladies like this lipstick. Young Girl—You couldn't—ah—tell me the kind that men like, could you?

The grass widow is one of nature's loveliest evergreens.

There's nothing like forestalling trouble. Here is some diplomacy in a nutshell, and it works two ways—on employer and wife alike.

Employer—"Ah, Brown, I've decided to raise your salary $2 a week."

Brown—"Will you give me that in writing, sir?"

Employer—"Isn't my word good enough for you?"

Brown—"Oh, yes sir. But I want evidence to show my wife. She's expecting me to get a $5 raise."

You can't keep the upper hand by dealing from the bottom.

Patient (showing bill)—"What's the extra $5 for?"

Dentist—"For squeezing the arms of my chair out of shape."

"Well, Tommy did you behave in school today?" asked Tommy's father of his young son, who had not been going to school very long.

"Behave?" exclaimed Tommy in a tone of amazement. "Of course I did! Why, the teacher said she never saw a pupil who behaved so."

Little Willie was sent to bring in the kittens. His mother heard a shrill "meowing" and called out: "Don't hurt the kittens, Willie."

"Oh, no," replied Willie. "I'm carrying them very carefully by the stems."

Visiting Minister: "Ah, my dear unfortunate friend, this world is full of trials."

Hard-boiled Harry: "It ain't the trials that worry me, sir, it's the verdicts."

Politicians are expert at passing laws, a writer declares. But that's nothing to what they can do with the butch.

"To him that hath shall be given"—the experience of losing.

Face the Music. FOUND—By wife returning from vacation, a lady's brooch in the back of husband's car. Owner may have same by paying off this notice, identifying property and admitting ownership.—Alpine (Tex.) paper.

Youngsters of today seldom die of a broken heart. More often it is a broken neck.

LETTER GOLF

Every TACK has a HEAD and today's letter golf puzzle proves that there is little difference between the whole tack and the head. Par is five and one solution is on another page.

Letter golf puzzle grid with letters T, A, C, K and H, E, A, D.

THE RULES

- 1—The idea of Letter Golf is to change one word to another and do it in par, a given number of strokes. Thus to change COW to HEN, in three strokes, COW, HOW, HEW, HEN.

"I've swallowed my collar button!" gasped the grocer. "Well," responded the wife, "you know where it is for once!"

She: "Will you be my companionate husband?"

He: "Well—if you'll let me have enough companions."

(READ THE STORY, THEN COLOR THE PICTURE) What fun the Tinymites all had. Of course the bunch were very glad that they had met the coal man, and had found a little car. As Scouty pushed, and Copy shoved the got a ride that they all loved. Then Copy said, "I'm getting tired. I can't push very far."

ABOUT TOWN

The March meeting of the Iroquois Girl Scouts was held Saturday afternoon at the home of Miss Elizabeth Norton. Eight were present, four from Troop 5 and four from Troop 7. Margaret Kornigibel was chosen as corporal of the Ortelias and Theima Jackson of the Oododas. Brownie Acorn Pack No. 1, held an enrollment ceremony and the following were admitted Audrey Gallagher, Dorothy Earl and Doris Christensen. Marcella Holoran was also recently enrolled. Pearl Martin of Troop 5 was named leader of the Brownies. Visitors present were Mrs. J. E. Elliott, Mrs. W. Hyde and Mrs. G. I. Hubbard.

The three-act play, "Leave it to Dad," by Eva Becker-Shippee, will be presented by a cast of eight young people in the vestry of Second Congregational church at 8 o'clock this evening. This play was given with success this season at the First Methodist church, Hartford, and tonight's performance will be for the benefit of the treasury of the Christian Endeavor society. Home-made candy will be on sale.

Mrs. J. W. Goslee of Madison street left today for South Orange, N. J., where she will spend the next two weeks with her daughter, Miss Ethel Goslee, dean of girls at the High school there.

The Friday evening whist and dance, which the ladies committee from the Community club at Manchester Green hold every two weeks, will take place at the Green school tomorrow night. Playing will begin at 8:20 and continue for two hours. Dancing will follow. Six prizes will be given and refreshments served. The committee will award a special prize to the couple running up the highest combined score. It behooves the husbands, therefore to see that their wives are present tomorrow evening, and married women who sometimes find it difficult to get their husbands out to the card parties, can offer the inducement that a prize will be given that they can both use.

A Japanese tea party will be given tomorrow evening at the Zion Lutheran church on Cooper street at 7:45, under the auspices of the Ladies society and the Young People's society. The team party will be in the basement and the young people will furnish piano and violin music. Preceding the social a lecture will be given in the auditorium of the church by Sumio Uesugi, Japanese missionary, illustrated with lantern slides.

The Justamere Bridge club will meet tomorrow afternoon with Mrs. W. M. Balch, who is now located at 64 North Elm street.

The finest piano needs tuning REGULARLY

THE piano you have in your home is more than a magnificent musical instrument—it is one of the many lovely marvels of our age.

Its great beauty of tone, its rich melody, its perfect harmony can only be safeguarded and retained by tuning at regular intervals.

If not tuned regularly it may be permanently injured and all who play and hear it are annoyed and embarrassed.

Why not ask us about having one of our experienced and expert piano tuners go carefully over your piano and give you an estimate on a regular tuning service.

Mrs. Herbert B. House of East Center street will attend the Centennial flower show at Mechanics Hall, Boston, tomorrow and spend the week-end with her daughter, Miss Emily House, and son Charles, both of whom are students in educational institutions there.

Miss Leota Colpitts arrived home last night from Cooperstown, N. Y., where she is a teacher in the Knox school. She will spend the Easter vacation of two weeks with her parents, Rev. Robert A. Colpitts and Mrs. Colpitts of Spruce street.

PHONES Pinehurst "GOOD THINGS TO EAT"

HEAR! HEAR! SHAD! FRESH SHAD!
 There's a thrill in that cry. For two hundred years it has stirred the pulses of Connecticut every spring. Long ago it was never heard until May— till the Connecticut and the Housatonic yielded up their "run" of the succulent fish. Now it comes this early because lightning transportation and perfect refrigeration makes it possible to bring us the sound, juicy shad of the Maryland rivers weeks before the shad have worked up the coast to New England.
 Tomorrow Pinehurst will offer the first shipment of these Fresh Maryland Shad (as different a creature from the frozen shad of Florida as you can imagine) to the shad lovers of Manchester. There will be both Bucks and Roe Fish.
 When the angels made shad The devil was mad For it seemed such a feast of delight, So, to ruin the scheme, He jumped in the stream And poked in the bones out of spite.
 When the strawberry red First illumined its bed The angels looked down and were glad, But the devil, 'tis said, Fairly pounded his head, For he'd used all the bones on the shad.
 But blessed are the bones in a shad! Because, if it were not for the bones, so superbly delicious is the shad, that it would probably be selling for two dollars a pound—if not by this time wholly extinct.
 Oh, shad! Fresh Shad! Phone your order right now to Pinehurst, two thousand.

Hit the Nail on the Head
 It's getting up courage to drive the first nail that's the hard part about building. You can trump up dozens of reasons for postponing the job—but did you ever know anybody to be sorry he built?
 Most building materials are low priced now. Not every thing is as cheap as lumber but by the time the other things have dropped probably lumber will rise. So all in all this is a good time for building. Hit the nail on the head!

This should be a wonderful Easter, judging by the number of Broadway shows that have been laying eggs for the occasion. Italy is ready for war, says Mussolini, though none is in sight just now. Waiting for the outside chance, you might say.
