

PLAN TO CALL SPECIAL JURY IN DRY PROBE

Woman Killed by Raiders Who Found Gallon of Home Made Wine in Her Cellar.

Aurora, Ill., March 28.—Foundations were being laid today for a special Grand Jury investigation of the dry raid which Mrs. Joseph De King was shot to death, her husband clubbed unconscious and their 12-year-old son so terrified that he shot one of the intruding officers.

Attorneys Robert A. Milroy and A. J. Kelley, representing the De King family, and backed by many prominent Aurora citizens, are leading the fight to take the investigation out of the hands of State's Attorney George Carbery, who, the De King lawyers assert, has indicated a prejudiced attitude against their clients.

Carbery, a pronounced dry, elected on a pledge to "mop up Kane county" vowed he would resist the calling of a special Grand Jury. "If he would conduct his own investigation," he reassured his conviction that the raider who shot Mrs. De King in her home acted in self defense.

Defense Story

"Three deputy sheriffs forced their way into the De King home and found a jug of wine in the basement," attorneys for the family said in announcing their plans.

"De King drove the deputies out at the point of a gun, permitting one to stay and drink wine with him while they discussed the situation."

"The two deputies went to Geneva for reinforcements. They came back wearing bullet-proof vests and carrying machine guns, repeating shotguns and tear gas bombs."

Wife Is Shot

"Roy Smith, a deputy sheriff and motorcycle policeman, sneaked up behind De King, swung his gun over De King's head, and shot Mrs. De King, who was telephoning Attorney Milroy for help, and narrowly missed killing the boy, Gerald."

"Then while Mrs. De King was crawling on the floor and gasping for breath one of the other deputies threw a gas bomb in the room and Mrs. De King died immediately."

Lawyers agreed their first move will be a demand that Coroner Hermann J. Vierke resume the inquest. Next they will ask that he petition a Circuit Court judge for the special jury and prosecutor.

Carbery's Plans

"Prosecutor Carbery," they said, "is content to let the matter rest until April 23, when the regular county Grand Jury will be convened, thinking by that time public sentiment will have cooled. We don't know what may happen between now and April 23, but the

GRAF COMPLETES 5,000 MILE TRIP

Big German Zeppelin Flies to the Holy Land and Re- turns.

Friedrichshafen, March 28.—Completing his 5,000 mile air journey to the Holy Land, the Graf Zeppelin returned to her hangar here at 10:17. (4:17 a. m., E. S. T.), today.

The majestic "Queen of the Air" had been aloft 81 hours and 21 minutes without making a landing.

The sixty persons aboard the ship appeared to be perfectly fresh after their long journey. Among these were 28 passengers, three of them women.

The airship made remarkable speed during some parts of the journey at times reaching 112 miles an hour. On the return trip, however, while passing over Austria and Hungary, headwinds and gales retarded her speed.

The Zeppelin left her hangar shortly after midnight Sunday proceeding south to the Mediterranean and then skirted the southern coast of Europe reaching the Holy Land Tuesday evening.

Carried Mail

Four mail bags containing 17,000 letters were dropped over Jerusalem, several other batches of mail were dropped over Tel Aviv, Palestine. The natives of the Holy Land accorded the Zeppelin a tremendous ovation, most of them never having seen a Zeppelin before.

From Jerusalem, the Graf proceeded to Athens, averaging 100 miles an hour for the 1,100 mile journey. At Athens the airship circled the city while those below crowded every possible vantage point and cheered.

Heading westward she passed over Jugoslavia last night and reached Budapest at 10 o'clock. She continued towards Vienna passing over that city at about 2:50 o'clock this morning and then headed for her hangar in the face of heavy headwinds.

TANGLE GROWS OVER SINKING OF "I'M ALONE"

Three Governments Protest Action of Coast Guard Cutter—Stimson to Study Problem Tomorrow.

Washington, March 28.—Henry L. Stimson, when he assumes his duties as secretary of state tomorrow, will be confronted almost immediately with the task of attempting to defend the Treasury department's Coast Guard against onslaughts from three foreign governments, Great Britain, Canada and France.

At the same time, he will have to justify the application of the domestic laws of the United States and the anti-rum smuggling treaties. The King lawyers assert, has indicated a prejudiced attitude against their clients.

A Tangled Case

The action of two enlisted men of the Coast Guard, commanding the cutters Walcott and Dexter, in exercising the authority usually given only to a commissioned officer has seemingly thrown at least two government departments into a hopeless tangle as to whether the sinking was proper under the Tariff Act or under the Anglo-American anti-rum running treaty. The Treasury takes the former as its authority, and indications are the state takes the other.

MAY HOLD CAPONE FOR FAKE EXCUSE

Swears He Was Sick When In Fact He Was Very Healthy Man.

Chicago, March 28.—They finally "pinned something" on slippery Alphonse Capone, the big arms and ammunition man of Chicago and Miami.

Credit for the achievement goes to a woman, back-d by the power and resources of the United States government.

Alphonse, better known as "Scarface Al" consequently is at liberty today under $5,000 bond as the result of a citation for contempt of Federal Court.

Gets Subpoena

Some weeks ago, while Capone was relaxing at Miami Beach, he received a subpoena to appear before the Federal Grand Jury here.

The gang chieftain replied with an affidavit signed by Dr. Kenneth Phillips, which declared his health had failed. He was sick abed, with double pneumonia, pleurisy, spots before his eyes and lots of annoying symptoms. Chicago, he was sure, would be the death of him, so he would try to drop in some other time.

And he did drop in last week and courteously went before the Grand Jury and seemed genuinely sorry he didn't know anything to tell the gentlemen about bootlegging, and please hurry for he had to rush back to his royal palm grove.

Every one was so nice and polite to him.

Not a Sick Man

But Mrs. Willebrandt stepped in to the case. She was puzzled about Mr. Capone's health. On one hand, for instance, was his affidavit; on the other, newspaper pictures showing him doing cart wheels and aquaplaning.

Aquatic sports and double pneumonia do not harmonize.

Mrs. Willebrandt sent investigators to Miami and they reported that at the very time Capone was suffering most by affidavit he was fishing, swimming, swan diving, cabaretting and taking in the races.

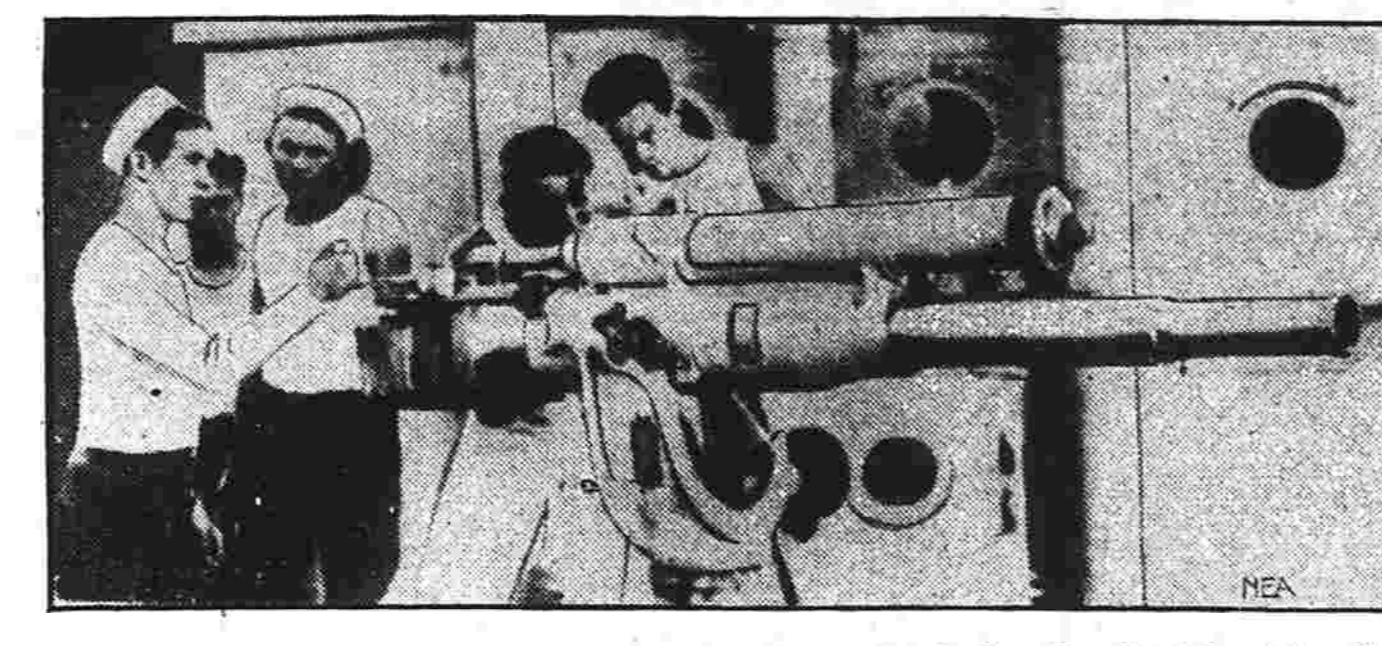

Yesterday Federal Judge Charles E. Woodward issued the citation for him to show cause why he should not be held in contempt of court and required him to put up bond of $5,000.

He adjudged guilty of contempt for filing a false affidavit, he may be sentenced to serve a year in the county jail and to pay a fine of $1,000.

ALIENATION SUIT

Bridgeport, March 28.—Rena M. Guild, of New York, wants $2,500 from Sadie Farnham, of Norwalk, for alienation of the affections of Walter A. Guild, of Norwalk, according to the writ in a suit filed in the Superior Court here today. The alienation is said to date from some time in 1928. Mrs. Guild once lived in Norwalk.

U. S. GUNNERS SINK BRITISH SHIP.

Here is the gun crew of the U. S. Coast Guard cutter Dexter that fired another "shot heard 'round the world"—the shot that sank the British schooner "I'm Alone," an admitted rum runner, in the Gulf of Mexico, and thereby brought about a highly complicated diplomatic tangle in Washington. Sir Esme Howard, British ambassador, has asked this government for a full report, as officers of the sunken vessel, while admitting it was laden with liquor, claim it was beyond the 12-mile limit and therefore not required to halt. One of the crew was drowned and others who jumped overboard were picked up by the Coast Guard cutter and brought to New Orleans in irons. This photo was taken on the cutter's arrival at that port.

Real Lenin In Tomb; Is Not A Wax Figure

Moscow, March 28.—"Lenin's body can be preserved indefinitely," Prof. Vorobiov, the eminent anatomist who embalmed the remains of the founder of Soviet Russia, told International News Service today. He did his work with such extraordinary skill that rumors bob up periodically that the short stocky figure in the tomb is merely a wax figure and not the mummy of the great Bolshevik chief.

Despite the differences in climate it is possible that the body of Lenin may remain in its state of reservation as long as some of the Egyptian mummies. But Egypt has the advantage of having an absolutely dry atmosphere.

Reporters Set Body

Foreign correspondents were invited to the tomb to set at rest the rumors that the body was merely a wax effigy. The triangular glass case covering the bier was opened. Those who dared to muster up the courage were allowed to touch the body. It was not wax. The lobe of one ear pressed upward flapped back into place when released. Prof. Vorobiov then pressed a dimple into one cheek with his finger. The dimple disappeared when the pressure was withdrawn.

Embalmed Twice

Prof. Vorobiov revealed that the body had been embalmed twice. Upon Lenin's death there was no thought of preserving the body for more than one month—just long enough so that several hundred thousand persons might pay homage at the bier. Then it was decided to preserve the body indefinitely. It was re-embalmed early in 1924 and has not been touched since that time for purposes other than examination. More than 3,000,000 persons have filed past the bier in the tomb on the Red Square in the past five years.

The body showed not the slightest trace of having been marred by the fanatic who recently hurled a brick through the glass bier. Nor were the oft-reported beads of perspiration visible on the forehead.

SENATE RECEIVES BIENNIAL BUDGET

Tables It for Printing; House Rejects Plan for Finger- printing Bureau.

Hartford, March 28.—The Senate received the state's biennial budget today and tabled it for calendar and printing. At the same time the House acted in various ways on a number of petitions for restoration of forfeited rights, refusing three and granting three. The House also rejected a plan to establish a state fingerprinting bureau under jurisdiction of the state police. New Haven was granted the right to take additional land in East Haven for an airport, and was permitted to issue bonds up to $500,000 for that purpose, under a bill tabled for calendar and printing.

Under suspension of rules the House passed a bill permitting New London to purchase land for a United Coast Guard academy site at a cost of $125,000, for which bonds will be issued. The federal government has already appropriated $1,750,000 to put the buildings on the site and the city plans to make the government a present of the land.

Favorable Reports

Among favorable reports received in the House and tabled for calendar and printing were:

Amending the general statutes to allow Windham county to pay a salary of $1,200 "to the commissioner."

Authorizing Bristol to issue city bonds up to $200,000 for a sewage disposal plant in its second taxing district.

Making the town of Canton one voting district.

Exempting municipal airports from taxation.

Establishing a Town Court in South Windsor.

Restoring forfeited rights to Thomas J. Killoury, of Willimantic; to John T. Filburn, of Norwich; and to Arthur Chester Brown, of Salem, former Representative in the House in 1927 who served a short term for perjury.

Giving additional powers to the bank commissioner to suppress sale of fraudulent securities.

Authorizing the Rockville-Willimantic Lighting Company to increase capital to $500,000.

Providing suspended sentences by courts for periods not exceeding six years.

Under suspension of rules the House voted to William A. Kivw, of Willimantic, the sum of $325

BILLIONAIRES WILL NOT AID OUR FARMERS

Invitations by Congress to Serve on Board Are Met With Excuses; May Mean New Farm Bill.

Washington, March 28.—Apparently taking a hint from President Hoover, "big business" today appeared to be passing the buck back to Congress on federal farm relief legislation.

The unusual action of the Senate agriculture committee in asking a number of the nation's wealthiest financiers, capitalists and industrialists to help draft a new farm bill met either with courteous excuses or a wall of silence. Among those invited were Henry Ford, John D. Rockefeller, Jr., J. P. Morgan, Andrew W. Mellon, Paul M. Warburg, Charles M. Schwab and Owen D. Young. Morgan and Young are abroad while Warburg asked to be excused.

Hopes Doomed

Hopes of the Senate committee for a "billionaire" advisory board in writing farm relief legislation apparently were doomed. Members of the committee had hoped that if the billionaires were unable to attend, they would send their own financial experts or economic advisers as substitutes. This hope, too, was beginning to fade.

One effect of the passive attitude of "big business" toward legislative relief for agriculture may be a resumption of the effort to enact the old McNary-Hawken bill into law, with its much-discussed, much condemned equalization fee feature. The American Farm Bureau Federation has gone on record at both ends of the Capitol as favoring this measure over all other forms of legislative relief. Indeed one spokesman for the federation urged its enactment at the coming special session of Congress.

New Farm Bill

The Senate and House agriculture committees meanwhile were staking a race in drafting a new farm bill. The Senate committee, while waiting for replies from the other captains of finance, had for the "advisory board" planned to end its hearing sometime next week. The House committee announced it would terminate its hearings by April 3. This would allow both committees about ten

COP IS INVOLVED IN GEM SMUGGLING

Well Known Maiden Lane Jeweler Pleads Guilty to Charge.

New York, March 28.—The United States government broke the first link in the alleged million dollar smuggling chain today when Morris Landau, well-known jeweler of Maiden Lane, pleaded guilty on charge of conspiracy to smuggle.

Sentence was deferred by Federal Judge Frank J. Coleman until after the trial of "Handsome Jack" McIntyre, former traffic patrolman whose post was outside one of the trans-Atlantic piers, McIntyre, the alleged "eyes" of the smuggling ring, faces a jury next Tuesday.

Frances Landau, daughter of the convicted jeweler, who is under indictment with her father on the same charge, was not in court today. The jeweler's son, Sidney, also is indicted. Sidney is in Europe, government officials say.

Steward as Witness

William Ballyn, former chief steward of the trans-Atlantic liner Berengaria and Bernard Shapiro, who have admitted their connection with the gem smuggling syndicate, according to federal authorities, will appear as witnesses for the government at McIntyre's trial.

The U. S. attorney's office does not believe that Landau was the brains of the ring. They believe that he was the agent for "higher ups."

At the time of Landau's arrest and the first revelation of the smuggling operation, it was stated by federal agents that a link between the smuggling operations and the late Arnold Rothstein had been uncovered.

Financed Smugglers

Rothstein's papers showed him to have financed a smuggling organization with countrywide ramifications, according to government officials. This ring not only handled diamonds but narcotics. It was claimed.

Evidence that the government is still seeking further members of the diamond smuggling gang is seen in the recent arrest of a veteran steward on another trans-Atlantic liner. After close questioning, he was released and all charges against him were dropped.

FEDERAL SHAKE-UP

Washington, March 28.—A national-wide survey and investigation of the work of federal district attorneys has been undertaken by the Department of Justice. It was announced today by Attorney General Mitchell.

The investigation was ordered by President Hoover with a view to determining, Mitchell said, the effectiveness of law enforcement in various districts, and to determine also whether changes of personnel are needed.

The reference to "changes of personnel" was taken to mean that the administration is not satisfied with conditions in some localities, and that there may be some shake-ups

REMORSE-STRICKEN, MRS. ADAMS DENIES SHE KILLED SPOUSE

LA GUARDIA SAYS HE CARRIED BOOZE

N. Y. Congressman, How- ever, Drank It Before Ship Reached Port.

New York, March 27.—Congressman F. H. La Guardia of New York made no bones today of the fact that he had liquor in his possession when he boarded the Panama liner Cristobal to return to his port with fourteen other members of a Congressional party, one of whom—Congressman William M. Morgan, of Ohio—is alleged to have landed with four bottles of liquor. Morgan, however, flatly denied the charge.

But Congressman La Guardia had no scruples about admitting that he started from Haiti with a pretty fair supply of booze. To be exact, one bottle of Scotch, a pint of rye and six bottles of beer. La Guardia drank the liquor en route, he explained, and besides he was not on government business at the time.

"I don't know anything about Congressman Morgan's case," said La Guardia, "but I do know that none of us were entitled to free entry."

He got on the boat at Port Au Prince, Haiti," said La Guardia. "I had the Scotch and beer and rye with me. I drank the Scotch and beer and ate it."

"We weren't on government business—each of us was on his own."

Still Had Rye

"When we reached New York I still had the rye with me. A customs inspector examined it and I showed him that I had a bottle of prescription liquor that I had taken with me. So he gave it back to me."

"Was there any drinking on the boat?" he was asked.

"Well, everybody is entitled to drink," he said on an ambiguous reply.

"Last August," he continued, "I came back from Europe on the Levathan. Everybody was drinking and I had none. I made up my mind then that I would never again be caught on an American ship with nothing to drink."

"When my wife and I boarded the boat I had what I thought I would require for the voyage."

As Private Citizens

Explaining that none of the Congressmen was on government business La Guardia said:

"If they had been they would have been entitled to mileage. I can't reconcile the claim that they were entitled to free entry with what I know to be a fact that we were all traveling for pleasure."

"When I heard that some of the other Congressmen had applied for free entry I wired the Treasury Department and requested the same privilege."

"I was refused and my baggage was examined. I don't know anything about the other but I do know they were not entitled to free entry."

When asked whether he had drunk the Scotch and beer on the five mile limit, La Guardia said:

"I'm not saying when or where I drank it. I drank it and enjoyed it, that's all."

At the barge office today a general "bush, hush" policy had been adopted in the case. No one was to say anything, no one knew anything though it was reported that a Tammany Congressman, an avowed Wet, is preparing to request an investigation by the Treasury Department.

Should the investigation be ordered, it was said four persons, including two customs guards, will be called to testify that they saw the bottles of liquor in Morgan's baggage.

"Oh, what a d—hypocrite," one of the guards is reported to have said when he saw the liquor.

BASEBALL POOL MAN INDICTED BY JURY

Charged With Perjury—His Partners Testify Against Him in Court.

New York, March 28.—James O'ito, one of the three alleged owners of the Albany baseball and stock market pool, known officially as the Capital City Business Men's Association, was today indicted for perjury by the Federal Grand Jury. O'ito, together with his partners, Walter J. Kane and Wm. J. Pringle, were recently brought from Atlanta penitentiary, where all three were serving sentences for conducting the pool, to testify before the Grand Jury. Pringle and Kane were returned to the prison after testifying and O'ito remained here for further examination.

It is alleged that he committed perjury in the course of the investigation conducted by U. S. Attorney Charles H. Tuttle and his assistant, Thomas T. Cooke, to find out who the "man higher up" in the pool is.

"Don't Believe What the Pa- pers Say" She Tells Her Mother-in-Law Who Visits Her Cell—Report Says Five Women Played Part in Life of Slain Man; Po- lice Seek Motive for Crime.

Hartford, March 28.—Mrs. Olive Adams, the "chloroform slayer," was rickety with remorse today.

Gone was the bravado she evidenced when she admitted to the police that she had murdered her husband, Harry Adams, young meteorologist. No longer was she saying "I'm glad he's gone," and her carefree smile had turned to an expression of fear.

"Oh, don't believe what the papers say—I'm not as bad as I'm painted," she cried in her cell, when her mother-in-law, Mrs. Nellie B. Adams paid her a visit; bringing the young woman prisoner's son, Ananda, 11 years old.

Begins to Hedge

Mrs. Adams began "hedging" on her alleged confession. "I didn't do it," she moaned petulantly. "The police made me say those things."

The motive for the slaying whether it was jealousy or a desire on the part of a young wife to get away from a husband she had tired of—was the question puzzling the authorities as they proceeded with their investigation of the strange case preparatory to bringing Mrs. Adams to trial.

Likes to Dance

In probing the Buddhist and occult atmosphere built up around the life of the slain man, the police learned that Adams was fully as much a dance hall buff as he was a ritualist. He was a regular frequenter of the perfumed atmosphere of the local dance hall studios and it was in these places that he met the numerous girls who played a part in his life.

His enthusiasm for dancing may have led indirectly to his death. The police say the terpsichorean urge became an obsession with him, taking up as much of his leisure time as did his worship of Confucius and the teachings of Mencius. They were told that dancing "intoxicated" Adams, that he loved to glide over ballroom floors with women other than his wife.

Five Girls Involved

At least five girls whom he met in dance halls played a part in his life, it was said. They include Miss Dorothy Collins, who admitted having visited the Adams home. The names of the other four have not been revealed. One of them is said to be in New York, another in Cleveland, and two more in Massachusetts.

In her own vivid story to the police, Mrs. Adams described how dancing played a dramatic part in Adams' last hours of life last Saturday night. Before going to bed she had some drinks—Adams half a dozen, she two—and then, at his suggestion, they danced.

And then they retired. To lull himself to sleep he put a dash of chloroform on his handkerchief which he placed over his face. She sat in bed looking at him. Finally, she reached for the chloroform bottle and sprinkled quite a portion of its contents on the cloth. She lay back, thinking. In the morning she became frightened, for he was cold.

REPARATIONS EXPERTS REST OVER HOLIDAYS

Take Definite Step to Fix Annual Amount Germany Will Have to Pay.

Paris, March 28.—A definite step towards fixing the annual sum of reparations that Germany must pay the allied powers was taken at today's plenary session of the international expert committee.

Each delegation attending the reparations conference named the amount it thought Germany should pay yearly.

Owen D. Young, chairman of the committee, then spoke at length suggesting a compromise regarding the best method to arrive at a definite sum. The various amounts suggested by the delegations will be taken into consideration.

The meeting today, which lasted an hour, was described as "the most important single session since the conference began."

The delegates adjourned until April 4, not only because of the intervening Easter holiday, but to give the experts time to study the compromise in detail.

J. R. Morgan, one of the American observers, departed for Venice.

H. S. GRADUATES DO
WELL AT COLLEGE

44 P. C. of Work Has Been of Honor Roll Grade Reports Superintendent Verplanck.

Forty-four per cent of the work done during the first semester by the 38 members of the 1928 graduating class of Manchester High school at college, has been of an honor roll grade, it was learned today from Superintendent F. A. Verplanck. This is concrete evidence that the local high school is doing college preparatory work most successfully. It tends to silence the report that students graduating from Manchester High must train elsewhere before they are fitted for college.

NOON STOCKS

New York, March 28.—The rise in the oil, copper, steel and specialty stocks which started near the close of Wednesday's session, continued in the early trading today, and prices of the market favorites were marked up 1 to 5 points as traders crowded the posts.

At 5:25 Pan-American was up 3 points for the day, and 7 points above yesterday's low. Standard Oil of N. J. advanced 2 points to 27 1/2, and Standard of California 5 1/2 to 80. Royal Dutch and Marland sold higher.

Radio jumped 6 points to 103 in the first half-hour in the lead of the popular favorites. International Tel. and Tel. added 13 points to yesterday's 18 1/2-point gain and sold at 27 1/2 as the floating supply of stock gradually disappeared.

Call money renewed at 15 per cent, the high rate reflecting the tightening of the money bags. The market slowed up and narrow price changes were recorded. The tape was about 10 minutes behind the market. Oil stocks held the record for activity, but the Coppers and Steels continued strong.

LATEST STOCKS

New York, March 28.—The rally in industrial stocks carried prices of the market favorites a few points higher today. The oil stocks held their new gains as leaders of the industry pledged themselves to hold a price of 100 for oil.

Those of the 38 who entered college by examinations are passing with a better mark than the class average. They take a total of 135 subjects and those in which they have been certified, with one exception, are being passed with good marks and are being carried on.

A list of the 38 graduates of the class of 1928 now at college was released for publication today. It follows:

It was revealed, through the check which is made of the work of high school graduates in college, that 12 per cent of the work done by the 38 graduates of last June during the first semester of work at college was in the A grade, 33 per cent of B grade, 33 per cent of C grade and only 12 per cent of D grade.

Traces of nervousness over the money market situation had all but disappeared in the early afternoon, as the call money rate showed no evidence of reaching a higher level. There will probably be no change in the discount rate of the New York Reserve Bank today and the Federal Reserve board report will show a shrinkage of from $150,000,000 to $140,000,000 in brokers' loans.

Buying of the "best stocks" on a large scale was reported in the commodities district. United States Steel, Bethlehem, Radio and other stocks which bore the brunt of the heavy selling on Monday and Tuesday.

Stock sales up to the noon period were at the rate of close to 6,000,000 shares for the full session. The railroad stocks, United States Steel and Bethlehem were a strong pair, Bethlehem pushed ahead to 104 1/2 and U. S. Steel advanced about 3 points to 132 1/2.

ABOUT TOWN

The Rod and Gun Club will hold a special shoot at the Bolton range at 1 o'clock tomorrow afternoon.

San Diego, Cal., March 28.—The United States destroyer Robert Smith, which has been standing by Mazatlan to protect the lives of Americans in the beleaguered Mexican seaport, today pulled anchor and steamed away for Tobarari Bay, 300 miles north in the Gulf of Lower California, according to radio advices received at naval headquarters here.

While no official reason for the shift was given, naval observers expressed the opinion that the destroyer had been ordered to watch the movement of rebel forces which were reported retreating from Mazatlan.

Bridgeport, March 28.—Martha D. de Voise Post, daughter of Gen. Charles L. Beecher, U. S. A., retired, was today granted a divorce from Truman Post, of New York and Westport, on the ground of cruelty after a hearing before Judge A. C. Baldwin in Superior Court. Her counsel was a witness for the cause.

Mrs. Post told of her husband becoming intoxicated and beating her, and she described an occasion when he locked her out of her home in Westport, forcing her to spend the night in the garden. Their marriage took place October 15, 1925.

Roosevelt Field, N. Y., March 28.—For every hour he remains aloft after passing his 24th hour, Martin Jensen, who is flying over Long Island today in an effort to break the endurance record, will receive $1,000.

At 1 o'clock, the aviator had been in the air for 31 hours, which means he has already netted himself $7,000. He stays up until 6 o'clock, he will have established a new record and added $5,000 more to his capital. The prize money was provided by the backers of Jensen's flight.

Hadley, secretary of Harvey Hutbell, Inc., died on September 10, 1928, he was supposed to have an estate totaling nearly $100,000, the bulk of which he would leave to Miss Anna F. Ryburn, his secretary and fiancée. Jacob D. Klein, executor of the Hadley estate, today reported to Probate Court that the Hadley estate is insolvent and asked the appointment of a committee to handle the claims of creditors.

Bridgeport, March 28.—"Despicably pitiless" says Coroner John J. Phelan, in a finding issued here today the act of "some unidentified person or persons" who acted in the affair of Ferdinand de Acunio, of Noroton, whose body was found in a lonely spot of Christy Hill road on March 8. The finding declares that all evidence indicates that De Acunio was struck by an auto and his body was carried across the road and placed in the spot where it was found. The coroner does not know whose car struck the man or who carried the body to its hiding place.

Hollywood, Cal., March 28.—Eric von Stroheim, widely known film director and actor, was stricken seriously ill with influenza at his home here today.

PROTECTING AMERICANS

San Diego, Cal., March 28.—The United States destroyer Robert Smith, which has been standing by Mazatlan to protect the lives of Americans in the beleaguered Mexican seaport, today pulled anchor and steamed away for Tobarari Bay, 300 miles north in the Gulf of Lower California, according to radio advices received at naval headquarters here.

While no official reason for the shift was given, naval observers expressed the opinion that the destroyer had been ordered to watch the movement of rebel forces which were reported retreating from Mazatlan.

Bridgeport, March 28.—Martha D. de Voise Post, daughter of Gen. Charles L. Beecher, U. S. A., retired, was today granted a divorce from Truman Post, of New York and Westport, on the ground of cruelty after a hearing before Judge A. C. Baldwin in Superior Court. Her counsel was a witness for the cause.

Mrs. Post told of her husband becoming intoxicated and beating her, and she described an occasion when he locked her out of her home in Westport, forcing her to spend the night in the garden. Their marriage took place October 15, 1925.

Roosevelt Field, N. Y., March 28.—For every hour he remains aloft after passing his 24th hour, Martin Jensen, who is flying over Long Island today in an effort to break the endurance record, will receive $1,000.

At 1 o'clock, the aviator had been in the air for 31 hours, which means he has already netted himself $7,000. He stays up until 6 o'clock, he will have established a new record and added $5,000 more to his capital. The prize money was provided by the backers of Jensen's flight.

SEEK BODY OF MAN
STRUCK BY ENGINE

New Haven, March 28.—Working throughout the night without success, the New Haven harbor police were making new arrangements today to locate in the mud of West river, near the New Haven railroad bridge, the body of a man thrown there early last evening when he was struck by the speeding Merchants Express, east-bound from New York. "We have every reason to believe the body is in the river," police reported today, "and we are making new arrangements to get it out."

The Merchants Express which makes the run from Grand Central here in 90 minutes, was running on time when it reached the West river meadows here. George Main, of New York, engineer, saw a man on the bridge ahead of him and threw off the electric power. The momentum of the heavy train was too great to permit quick stopping and the long string of cars slid up to the man before he could reach a safe place, and tossed his head over heels into the river.

The call loan rate moved down to 12 per cent in the early afternoon with the tide. But this morning no particular need over the holiday poured into Wall street. Loans made today hold over until Monday, since all security markets close on Friday and Saturday for the Easter holiday. After the first few days of next week, when the April interest and dividend payments have been completed, money should work still easier. Commodity markets were firm in the pre-holiday session.

Woodburn, Oregon, March 28.—Reports received here today from Monitor, Oregon, stated that Charles Stetter, living a short distance from that town, had blown up his house in a dynamite explosion, killing himself and two children and injuring his wife.

The bodies of the dead were badly mutilated by the force of the blast, messenger reports stated. The exact details of Stetter's injuries were not given.

Providence, R. I., March 28.—During a bitter quarrel over the love of a man, Mrs. Concetta Cardillo, 40, mother of two children, today shot and seriously wounded Mrs. Julia Minutelli, 32, mother of seven children.

Mrs. Minutelli claimed that the other woman had stolen the love of Mr. Minutelli, according to police. The victim was rushed to Rhode Island hospital, but it was stated that she would live. A charge of assault with a dangerous weapon was placed against Mrs. Cardillo.

matter by which instrument the act is to be defended, will insist on settlement of the controversy on a firm basis of international law.

Canada To Protest
This was made clear in Canadian circles today, when it became known that the Ottawa government had been contemplating for some months a strong protest to the United States against the right asserted by its government and upheld by three domestic court decisions, of hot pursuit from any point within one hour's steaming distance from shore.

Coupled with the seriousness of firing on and sinking a vessel flying a foreign flag on the high seas, the drowning of the Mangay, a Frenchman, brought France into the already seriously complicated situation.

France Interested
On the Mangay phase of the case then, the protest will be jointly by Canada and France: on the sinking of the "I'm Alone" the protest will be jointly by the Ottawa and London governments, Canada because of the vessel's registry, and the British government because of the involving of the whole question of freedom of the seas.

The report of the Canadian minister, Vincent Massey by the British Consul General Henry Rom, at New Orleans has not eased the situation and has neither added to nor taken from the story Captain John T. Randall, master of the "I'm Alone," told the customs authorities at New Orleans when he was brought ashore in leg irons under orders of the Dexter's warrant officer in command.

A BOSTON ANGLE
Boston, March 28.—An echo of the alleged activities of the British auxiliary schooner "I'm Alone" off Cape Cod was heard here today when Deputy U. S. marshals in Park Square arrested Oscar A. J. Johnson, missing chauffeur for John B. Magnus, garage proprietor and head of the I'm Alone Transportation Company.

The chauffeur was indicted along with David Rosen, of Boston, James Devine, of Bridgeport, and John W. Wagner, of Gloucester, on charges of conspiracy to smuggle liquor ashore at East Sandwich, on Cape Cod. A cargo of liquor was alleged to have been landed from the "I'm Alone" by the fast speedboat "Peg III" in July 1928. The indictments were handed down in June, 1928. Magnus had been arrested in connection with another alleged liquor conspiracy. He is serving a two year term in Plymouth jail.

Following his arrest, Johnson was taken to Federal building, arraigned before Federal Commissioner Jenny and held in $2,500 bail.

Rosen, Wagner and Devine were arrested shortly after the federal Grand Jury handed down the indictments. They have been out under bond awaiting the finding of Johnson and a trial.

OPPOSITION PREPARING FOR ELECTION FIGHT

Organize to Get Out Vote Saturday—Kick About Machine Set Up.

The general committee that has been organized from the different districts opposed to consolidation held a meeting last night. They completed their plans for the general organization to get out a vote in opposition to the charter revision.

This morning when the machine was put on exhibition there was a kick registered. The machine is so set up as to allow each voter to vote on each of the nine important changes, which really are the changes proposed in the present charter. The kick that was registered as to the location of the pointer "yes" and "No." As arranged the voter must pull down one of the pointers on the nine questions.

The pointer "Yes" is the first of the pointers over each question. A person opposed to the charter made the objection to the pointer "Yes" being first as those who were going to vote in opposition might think that by voting "Yes" they were showing that they wanted things to stay as they are and might mistake the "No" to mean that they did not want a change.

It was necessary to take off the back of the machine and show how it was registered on the machine before all were satisfied.

FIRE DEPARTMENTS KEPT BUSY YESTERDAY

Three Alarms Call Out Two South End Companies, Two Repeat Calls.

When the companies of the South Manchester fire department responded to five alarms in two hours, at the outset of the last week and before the rain came along and wet things down there was ten still alarms for the week, the firemen looked for a rest.

Such was not to be the case as on Wednesday there were three alarms, and two of the fires of yesterday came from the same location.

The first fire yesterday was just before noon when No. 4 was called to extinguish a fire in an awning on Samuel J. Houston's store on School street. At 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon No. 3 was called to Porter street to extinguish a grass fire in the same vicinity as they were called to last week. No. 3 was only back from this fire when at 5:45 yesterday afternoon they were again called, this time to the corner of Middle Turnpike, east and Park street, to a forest fire to which both No. 3 and the town forest fire warden were called last Thursday.

De King family wants justice done and they want it before the public forgets.

"It is ridiculous to delay the inquest because of Smith's condition (the deputy is in a hospital with a bullet wound inflicted by the boy after his mother was killed). He was shot through the right thigh. If necessary the coroner's jury can visit him at the hospital."

Carbary was impatient with these plans.

"I'm state's attorney," he said. "I'll investigate this matter in the regular way. I'll go before the Coroner's Jury and tell them the law about such a case. I'll tell them an officer has a right to defend himself when his life is in danger and I'll tell them he is the best judge of this danger. I'll tell the Grand Jury that, too."

Earlier Carbary had announced he was willing to have assistance in the investigation.

"If any citizen or group of citizens think I will not be fair," he said, "I will permit the attorney general or Clarence Darrow or any other reputable attorney to sit with me at the Grand Jury sessions."

"I was elected on a reform ticket. The people knew I was going to make dry raids. I've made 400 and I am going to make more. This will not stop enforcement of the dry law."

WHITE SLAVE RING

Hollywood, Cal., March 28.—In a spectacular raid on a fashionable Hollywood apartment house, police today arrested two women and three men in connection with an alleged "white slave" ring.

The raid resulted from clues uncovered in search for Mrs. Alice Ehrlich, missing 18-year-old bride. Mrs. Ehrlich was not found.

Two girls escaped from the apartment by a secret passageway as police battered in the doors, it was reported.

"Madame" Madeline Bourne, who conducted the apartment, was held incommunicado in the county jail.

Police believe that many movie-struck Hollywood girls may have been lured into a life of shame by the suspected ring.

DAILY RADIO PROGRAM

Thursday, March 28.

The question of college athletics versus scholarship, upon which educators have expended much energy and paper in recent years is at last to be submitted to the real experts—the students themselves. The under-graduates opinion on the issue will be revealed through WJZ at 7 o'clock Thursday night. Thomas Pomeroy is the captain of the Lafayette College debaters who will maintain that a college man can be an athlete and still derive maximum benefit from his academic courses. Winslow Leigh-Society, and his colleagues will uphold the traditional belief that when athletics and scholarship mix one inevitably suffers. Decision in this informal debate is left to the radio audience. Allan Jones, tenor, will be the guest artist of the Columbia hour to be radiated at 9:30. He will be supported by an orchestra and a trio. Mr. Jones has selected for his numbers "Jones of Rome and Herber's 'Sweetheart'." The male trio will sing "Down Among the Sugar Cane" and "Crazy Elbow" and the Piedons dance orchestra will contribute among other numbers "Danzon's," a Brazilian tango, and "My Inspiring Youth." An original transcription of the immortal "Liebestraum" will be sung by a male quartet over the WJZ chain at 9.

"G. E." PRESENTS FIRST ALL STEEL CABINET

Marks Greatest Improvement in Household Refrigerator Cabinets in 30 Years.

When the General Electric Company engineers completed their task of developing and perfecting the hermetically sealed General Electric Refrigerating unit, they did not stop there. They immediately set out to produce a refrigerator cabinet that would be a match for the "years ahead" unit. They have now designed and built the first all-steel refrigerator cabinet, the greatest improvement made during the past 30 years in the design and construction of household cabinets. According to Mr. Strickland, General Electric Refrigerator distributor, the General Electric manufacturing experts had an equally important and difficult task after the design of the cabinet had been perfected. They had to design and build the giant presses which were to cut the steel, bend it into shape and weld together the molded forms. They have made a large investment in special machinery but have achieved their purpose. That purpose was, by mass production, to build the best refrigerator ever produced and offer it to the small families of America at a price easily within their reach. Never before has a single refrigerator

HOW TO SHAMPOO

Many diseases of the scalp and hair are caused by a lack of cleanliness or lack of care in shampooing. Dust and dirt collect readily upon the hair and work down into the scalp, clogging up the pores. When the scalp is in this condition, it is very easy for infections to develop. The cure of almost any infection of the scalp and hair is more dependent upon cleanliness than the use of antiseptics or lotions.

Most people realize the necessity of keeping the body clean for health but they do not realize that it is just as important to keep the scalp free of impurities. Most people take a bath daily or at least twice a week, but few people wash their hair oftener than once or twice a month because they do not realize the importance of doing so, or they may believe that it dries out the hair or causes a cold.

It is true that when a shampoo is improperly used, the natural oil of the scalp may be removed and the scalp become dry, but this will never occur if the right method of shampooing is used. Whenever possible, distilled water or rain water should be used for washing the hair, as either of these dissolves the dirt more readily than ordinary water.

The hair should first be moistened with warm water and then thoroughly lathered with a good toilet soap or shampoo. The hair should be well worked and the scalp massaged gently, then all of the soap should be washed out. Repeat this process with the soap, then wash the hair out again and rinse well with clean water to which some lemon juice has been added. Next, dry the hair thoroughly, using a large Turkish towel and, if possible, the sunlight or the heat from a good electric heater, waving the hair in the fingers under the heat.

After the hair has been dried, rub a teaspoonful of coconut oil, olive oil or some other vegetable oil into the palms of the hands and thoroughly massage this into the scalp and hair roots. This will give the hair another coating of oil to replace that which has been washed out and in this way the lustre will be restored. The appearance of the hair will be improved for very much the same reason as the applying of a polish to your furniture or to your automobile. The entire scalp should be rubbed vigorously for several minutes and the excess of oil should be removed with another clean towel.

If you have any disease of the scalp, such as dandruff, this washing and oiling of the hair should be repeated every day or every other day for several weeks until the trouble has cleared up. Even if you have no disease of the scalp, it is a good plan to wash your hair in this manner once a week. If you do so with diseases of the scalp, and if you thoroughly massage the scalp in addition to using the right method of shampooing, you can improve the circulation and in this way avoid becoming bald.

Dr. McCoy will gladly answer personal questions on health and diet, addressed to him, care of The Herald. Enclose stamped, addressed, large envelope for reply.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Tuberculosis of Spine
 Question: R. J. writes: "The beginning of December I noticed a small lump on the spine of my little four-year-old boy, between the shoulders, and after an x-ray the doctors declared it tubercular. As I have much faith in you and your work, I am writing to ask if there is anything to be done in this case in the way of diet and treatments. And is there a possibility that the lump could be only a growth of some kind, as there is no tuberculosis in the family on either side."

Answer: There is some similarity between tuberculosis of the spine and arthritis of the spine, but, of course, your doctors should be able to make a better diagnosis than their personal examination than I can guess at through correspondence.

STEAMSHIP ON ROCKS; 300 PASSENGERS SAFE

Transylvania, Off Cherbourg, Goes on Ledge—Tugs Pulling Her Into Harbor.

Cherbourg, March 28.—The liner Transylvania, returning from a world cruise with 300 passengers on board, crashed upon a ledge of rocks 15 miles off Cherbourg at 4:50 o'clock this morning, but all the passengers were rescued by tenders.

The ship began settling by the bow with a sharp list. After five hours of desperate effort Captain Robert Eraking managed to get the liner clear of the reef. Meanwhile the passengers, aroused by the shock, fled from their cabins to the deck in their night clothing. They were assured that there was no danger. Tugs from Cherbourg landed all the passengers safely while tugs took the Transylvania in tow and sought to pull her into the roadstead. Late in the morning the tugs were making steady progress in getting the crippled liner into the harbor.

SOME PRESIDENT!

Herbert Hoover has been President of the United States only a little while but he has already given evidence that he is going to be a very interesting kind of a President. He has done four things that are indicative of a purpose to sweep clean, regardless of the dust. First he ordered a drastic reversal of the Treasury Department's policy toward publicity on tax refunds—which was a thumping piece of reform consummated all in a moment and without a word of preliminary discussion. Then he rather scornfully scrapped the institution of a Presidential yacht, said to be costing the government $300,000 a year. Next, as a mere incident of White House economy, he did away with the operation of the White House stables and the futile maintenance of a lot of horses that nobody ever used. Now he has read the riot act to the political job sellers of South Carolina, Georgia and Mississippi, serving notice that the Republican party in those states must erect a new and cleaner variety of political machines or else the federal patronage in those states will be disposed of without regard to the local politicians. Zowie!

For a President of three weeks standing we will say that Mr. Hoover has made a start which should prepare the mind of the country for unexpected things on a much bigger scale than any of these, a little later.

NIZE BABY, LONG

Nineteen charges, brought as basis for impeachment against Governor Huey P. Long of Louisiana, assert that he gets drunk, carries a gun and threatens people with it, ignores the laws, bullies legislators, coerces the judiciary, steals the public money, bribes officials, uses the military to supplant civil authority, turns the schools into political machines, berates officials and citizens who call on him on public business, flouts the Constitution, attempts to intimidate the press, lets convicts out of prison illegally and tried to hire a hard guy to kill a member of the Legislature.

Aside from the small matters he is probably quite a good governor.

THAT SHARK CONTROVERSY

An article in the Military Surgeon, accompanied by photographs, is cited by a contributor in the New York World as pretty well settling the question as to whether a shark will attack a human being. The article in question was written by an American officer in the Canal Zone. It tells of a native boy who was killed by a shark. One leg was taken off half way from knee to ankle, the other was almost completely severed and the body disemboweled, while there were lacerations on the breast and arms.

A shark hunt was inaugurated and several were caught. In the belly of one was found the missing foot. The photographs gave grim support to the story. An impressive feature of the case is the fact that the shark in whose stomach the boy's foot was found was only seven or eight feet long and of a species not usually considered dangerous.

Now it is probable that some skeptic may be found who will insist that the presence of the foot inside the shark is not conclusive evidence that that fish attacked the boy—that he might merely have picked up the member after it had been cut off by some other agency; but to most minds the evidence will be good enough.

Another fallacy, entertained even by persons who do not dispute that there is such a thing as a man-eating shark, is that while sharks may be dangerous to swimmers in the tropics there are none of formidable character as far north as the New England coast. There can be no certainty of any such thing, because of the very well established fact that tropical sharks not infrequently wander far from their habitat and sometimes appear in much higher latitudes than these. A few years ago two small specimens of the hammerhead, supposed never to come north of sub-tropical limits, were seen basking in shoal water in a Connecticut estuary.

For visitors to Connecticut to permit themselves to be frightened out of sea bathing through fear of sharks would be folly, because, for various reasons, including the comparative shallowness of Sound waters, the danger is usually very remote indeed. But the sane thing to do is to realize that any shark may be dangerous, and that when sharks are about—and they almost always make their presence known by the exhibition of the dorsal fin—bathers should not venture far from shore.

ONWARD AND UPWARD

We are not quite sure about the "Methodist Men's Committee of One Hundred of the United States"—whether it is as authoritative a body as the better known Methodist Board of Temperance, Prohibition and Public Morals or not; and so we have to confess that we are uncertain as to whether that committee speaks for a considerable part of Methodist opinion when it demands that President Hoover that foreign ambassadors in this country, who persist in importing alcoholic liquors for legation use, be handed their passports. But whether so or not, we can't see why the demand isn't a logical one. We fall to appreciate the complete justice of permitting foreign diplomats accredited to Washington to enjoy, as the committee points out, "a privilege that manifestly is denied to the President of the United States."

The argument on the other side, that these diplomats are accustomed to the polite use of wine and cannot be brought to see such a custom in the light of a crime, carries, it seems to us, not a great deal of weight; because there are a great many Americans who likewise have been accustomed to the polite use of alcoholic beverages and who cannot be made to see the custom in the light of a crime—yet they have to obey the law or pay the penalty if they are caught; their previous habits and moral views insure them no immunity from the operation of prohibition.

To be sure, it is the practice of foreign states—it is even our own practice—to regard the handing of passports to foreign ambassadors as a severance of diplomatic relations and a preliminary to a declaration of war; and either a severance of relations or a war with each of the nations that would be involved in this procedure would be extremely likely to cause us a great deal of loss and trouble. But what have loss and trouble to do with it? Can we compromise with our consciences just because we are likely to lose some billions and risk attack by the combined armies and navies of the world? The representatives of the majority of the American people have not only established prohibition but have endorsed it—emphatically, recently, in the adoption of the Jones law. It is, therefore, obviously the first duty of this government, above all other considerations, to dry up the United States. The United States cannot honestly be called dry if there is a drop of liquor in existence—and that includes, of course, legation alcohol.

Come the enmity of all insured nations, come cessation of trade, come war and desolation, we must march onward and upward toward the goal of the Methodist Men's Committee of One Hundred of the United States. We must be a single purpose—though all other purposes go to smash and ruin.

At-a-boy!

A, B, C ACCOUNTING

One of the unsatisfactory things about almost all of our state governments is the lack of any simplified system of accounting to the public for the expenditures of the public's money. It is as true of Connecticut as of other states.

We do not mean, by this, that it is impossible for the inquiring citizen to ascertain, if he has the time and energy and a sufficient understanding of accounts, to learn the cost of any particular governmental activity of the commonwealth over any specified time or with relation to any particular bit of performance. Nor is it difficult in many instances, nor is it at all certain that his inquiries would always be met with courtesy or adequate assistance rendered to him.

It might be imagined, for example, that when the Appropriations Committee of the Legislature was ready to submit its recommendations for the biennial period, the state government would at the same time be ready to submit to the people, through the press, a clean cut, concise and lucid summary of the proposed ways of employing the public money—one which would convey to the people of the state a clear picture of the financial situation. But to most people the figures that are given out do not convey much meaning.

The summary just issued, for instance, informs us that the budget includes $2,253,000 for the Highway Department, but that this does not include highway construction—and the citizen is left without any knowledge as to how much the department's expenditures are to be. One may guess, perhaps, by a comparison with the figures for 1927, being those presented by the most recent State Manual, when the Highway Department spent $12,830,615.94; accepting the philosophical conclusion that no less will be spent this year.

The people of Connecticut are stockholders in the commonwealth—all of them. By virtue of that quality they would seem to be entitled to considerably more and clearer information than they are in the habit of receiving concerning the disposition of the money they provide for the running of the business. And it ought to come to them in A, B, C form.

IN NEW YORK

New York, March 28.—Blood is an organized industry in New York.

Don't shudder! There is no intent to be gruesome. Nor is there to be any reference to gunmen or paid slayers. The "blood industry" in Manhattan is one of the most humane and altruistic of all the callings to be found in a great city.

In a word, the "blood industry" is organized to furnish blood if and when needed—and at moment's notice. It is a first aid to physicians whose patients need transfusion. It is set to function with the precision of a fire department. Let the alarm go out and within a few minutes relief is on its way.

All this is not as simple as it sounds. For there are grades of blood as there are grades of men. And there have to be experts constantly at work keeping a record of the blood donors. These donors must be carefully classified. There must be no mistake. When a doctor's order is phoned or wired, the right man must be dispatched. His blood must be the type of blood required by a patient.

And so the men are graded. There are a few in the No. 1 classification, though these are rare. Their prices are high because the "blood agents" have difficulty finding them and because of the particular quality of their fluid.

In a fantastic word, the status of a "blood agent" seems particularly fantastic.

One of Manhattan's best known agents is Robert Gardner, who has a small army of 300 men at his call. The search for recruits is constant. They are generally to be found among the brawny workers of the waterfront docks or the full-blooded European types of the East Side.

And the calls for help come generally from the wealthy—or at least prosperous. For the toiler may be poor in purse, but he is likely to be rich in blood; whereas the rich of purse may be most impoverished in the vital fluid.

And because this is as it is, many an ironic situation passes before the eyes of a "blood agent."

"Fie!" on! Fiction seems a silly contrivance of the imagination when paraded before the hundred and one true stories that have played a part in the "blood industry."

A favorite tale concerns one of New York's richest men who, following a serious operation, faced death from loss of blood. The surgeons sent out a call to the agent. In the course of a half an hour two men lay strapped arm to arm. Out of the veins of one, life was flowing into the veins of the other.

One was a leader of wealth and society. The other—believe it or not—had been a Bowery bum just one week before. He had been disgraced by the necessary tests and rated as a "No. 1 donor."

Well, he took his fee and drifted back to the depths. And the millionaire rallied, recovered and is alive today.

"By the way," he inquired of his doctors, "who was the man that gave me his blood?"

"Oh just some Bowery bum . . ."

The millionaire fell to musing. Somewhat of a philosopher, the iron of the situation struck him.

He requested that the man be found and brought to him—even as in the tales of the Arabian Nights. The blood donor had not so much as asked who the patient had been. He had his fee, and asked no more. Today that man is a caretaker on the millionaire's estate . . . endowed for life . . . and one of the millionaire's favorite charities is a Bowery donation.

WATKINS BROTHERS, Inc. 54 YEARS at SOUTH MANCHESTER

By RODNEY DUTCHER

Washington, March 28.—When rival sugar interests get to warring over the tariff it's a sweet fight. They're doing that now and the ramifications are as thick as pelias on a chrysanthemum.

The best sugar interests, supported by the Louisiana cane sugar interests, demand a higher tariff on Cuban sugar. The duty there now stands at 1.76 cents a pound and anything below 2 and 3 cents would satisfy the domestic producers.

American companies raising sugar in Cuba, whence comes 50 per cent of the sugar America eats, are working with the Cuban government against a boost and have even applied for a reduction.

Both rival groups would like to sock the Philippines by restricting duty-free imports of Philippine sugar to 800,000 or 500,000 tons a year. Congressman Timberlake of Colorado has introduced a bill to limit them to 500,000.

The Philippines say that in case of such a restriction they must have independence and, if they aren't restricted, naturally would be quite happy, along with the beet people, to see a higher duty slapped on sugar from Cuba.

The battle is being fought out both in the open and under cover.

Somehow, all the conflicting interests have come together under the roof of the National Press Club building, which is perhaps as good a place as any from which to fire publicity barrages.

The United States Sugar Association, a billion-dollar combination of 25 American and Cuban companies, has its main offices uptown, but has opened publicity headquarters in the Press building. The U. S. Beet Sugar Association has a sumptuous suite on the same floor. The Domestic Sugar Producers' Association has elaborately furnished offices on the floor below and the Philippine Press Bureau, now vitally interested in both sugar and independence, functions on the floor above.

The big tariff fight, of course, concerns Cuban sugar. The U. S. Sugar Association says the present duty rate is equivalent to 93 per cent ad valorem, far higher than that on any other common food item and an important factor in the annual national sugar bill of $550,000,000.

Cuba already receives a preferential rate. But being a theoretically sovereign state, she hasn't the advantage of free trade as have Hawaii, the Philippines and Porto Rico. Sugar means so much to Cuba herself, as well as to the American interests concerned, that her government has been making the most frantic efforts to prevent what might be a domestic debacle if the duty on it were raised.

She has offered to make tariff concessions on her imports from the United States in return for an increase of her present sugar tariff differential of 20 per cent to 40 per cent. The sugar tariff is the worst of her troubles, but she also worries about possible increases on tobacco, to say nothing of various minor agricultural exports.

It is reported that Senator Smoot and the Philippines on the Senate finance committee and champion of the beet sugar interests, recently sent word to Ambassador Ferrara of Cuba, warning him to make less noise. Soon afterward the ambassador left for Cuba.

President Hoover is said to favor the position of the American-Cuban interests, but with Smoot at the Philippines on the other side he may decide to favor a status quo. Politically, it might be dangerous to antagonize Cuba.

men to argue that tariff restrictions on their products are unthinkable. They are prepared to make the loudest squawk heard at the capital in modern times.

All puns aside, it's a sweet fight.

DAILY LENTEN THOUGHT

By WILLIAM E. GILROY, D. D.

Editor of The Congregationalist.

One does not think of George Bernard Shaw, the playwright, as being particularly a prophet of religion; yet Mr. Shaw, once, in the preface to a volume of plays, expressed one of the deepest truths concerning religion. Referring in volume II of "Plays, Pleasant and Unpleasant" to various attitudes and controversies in the religion of the day, Mr. Shaw said, "There is only one religion though there are a hundred versions of it."

The bigot who is convinced that he is right and that everybody else is wrong, can, of course, see in such a remark only something that is meaningless and untrue.

But the man who realizes the infinitude of God and the immensity of truth understands full well how small a part of the truth he sees, or how essential it is to see truth only from one standpoint and he learns very quickly in his own thought of his fellow men the fact that men may see the same thing from different angles and thus may hold much the same truth under different forms and symbols.

This conclusion is emphasized the more as a man comes by intimate contact with sincere and earnest men who belong to churches and groups very different from his own. When men of genuine goodness come into intimacy with one another the goodness that is in them becomes larger than their differences.

A man may not understand at all the opinions of another; in fact, he may think these opinions all wrong; but he can love the man who differs with him, and if this man, in turn, has a loving heart, love becomes larger than their disagreement.

It is when we interpret religion in terms of love that we see how deep a truth there is in Mr. Shaw's saying. It broadens our minds, and it gives the deepest emotion of our hearts a new meaning when we come to think of religious differences in that light. Moreover, our own version of the one religion is none the less vital because of our realization that the one religion has many versions.

SIX CARS DERAILED; NO ONE INJURED

North Charlestown, N. H., March 28.—Six cars of an eight-car accommodation train on the Boston & Maine railroad, were derailed here today and two cars went down an embankment. A score of passengers were shaken up but there were no serious injuries. The only passenger cars on the train were a coach, which carried a dozen passengers, and one Pullman sleeping car, which had less than a dozen passengers. The cause of the derailment was undetermined.

There is an interval of 4 1-2 seconds between each stroke of Big Ben.

Local Pastor Will Act—Details Completed.

Rev. Robert A. Colpitts, pastor of the South Methodist Episcopal church, has given his assurance to the general committee in charge of the Chamber of Commerce banquet that he will act as toastmaster on that occasion. Mr. Colpitts' acceptance of this duty is the cause of much satisfaction to the committee, and is an additional assurance of the success of this year's banquet. Mr. Colpitts expressed himself as especially glad to act on this occasion because of the fact that Dr. David D. Vaughan of Boston University, is to be the speaker. Mr. Colpitts has heard Dr. Vaughan on several occasions and is most enthusiastic about his appearance in Manchester.

This year's banquet promises to be on a distinctly higher plane than usual. Arrangements are being more carefully carried out and unusual care is being taken to insure continuous activity and smoothness of operation from the time the doors of the banquet hall are opened at 6:30 until the closing of the program at 11 p. m.

Mr. Colpitts has asked to be allowed to attend the Meeting on Monday afternoon in the Chamber rooms with the entertainment com-

Theaters

At the State.

A picture of powerful appeal, great magnitude, brilliant acting, flawless direction. That is a terse description of "The Trail of '98," the big Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer film epic with sound synchronization and a surrounding sound program, which opens at the State theater tomorrow for a two day engagement. Ralph Forbes, Dolores Del Rio, Harry Carey, Karl Dane, Tully Marshall, George Cooper, all stand out in the gigantic cast of fifty which was assembled to portray the characters in this great film story.

"The Trial of '98" is a red-blooded, vivid picturization of the famous Klondike gold rush. Breath-taking suspense, dramatic action and stupendous thrills have been crowded into this mighty epic of American history. In direct contrast to these highlights, the audience will also find a simple and sweet love story running through the entire theme.

Two selected Vitaphone vaudeville acts also share an important spot on tomorrow's bill at the State. The first brings back Lynn Cowan, the popular entertainer, in another of his community singing offerings. Local film fans will remember Cowan's last appearance here a few weeks ago, when he sang them a group of oldtime songs. This time he has a new batch of melodies that are sure to please everyone. Benny Rubin, as assassin of grief, is starred in the second Vitaphone act. This versatile comedian and master of ceremonies will have the audience in a state of irresponsible hilarity with his screaming antics and funny remarks. The current chapter of "The Collegians" and the State News Events will also be shown.

OFFICIALS SILENT ON BOOZE STORY

New York Reports Congressman Allowed to Carry Liquor Off Steamship.

Washington, March 28.—Official Washington was intensely interested today—but also discreetly silent—concerning stories published in New York that a junketing party of Congressmen, returning from Panama, where allowed "free entry" into the port, and that an Ohio member of the party had admitted possession of four bottles of liquor, which he was permitted to keep.

Rep. William M. Morgan (R) of Ohio, who was a member of the party, and who also is an ardent dry from the Anti-Saloon League belt of Ohio, declared today it could not have been him.

"You just say that I didn't have four quarts of liquor in my baggage," Morgan declared today. "The charge is absolutely without foundation."

"The examination at the customs office was somewhat cursory, but nothing like liquor was discovered in our possession. I don't understand how such a story got to be published as I never took a drink in my life."

Supported Jones Law
Morgan supported and voted for the drastic Jones law several weeks ago, under which transportation of liquor becomes punishable by a fine of $10,000 and five years in prison.

One point in the New York stories that interested officials and which may force an investigation was that relating to the customs people permitting some of the congressmen to go through without their baggage even being opened. "Free entry," it is called.

No Free Entry Law
Legally, there is no such thing as "free entry" into an American port for anyone, Congressman or otherwise. The law prescribes that the baggage of all incoming persons—and there are no exceptions—must be examined for dutiable articles.

The phrase "free entry" is often confused with "the courtesy of the port" which simply means that for persons of distinction or official standing the customs authorities may courteously expedite the examination of their baggage by the inspectors. But there is, legally, no free entry and no freedom of the port.

Whether there will be an investigation of the Panama Congressional junketing party, in view of the liquor charges, remains to be seen. Mrs. Mabel Walker Willebrandt, assistant attorney general and the militant Joan of Arc of the dry forces, had nothing to say. Others, including Treasury officials in charge of both customs and prohibition enforcement, were equally silent.

Even the Anti-Saloon League, whose officers condoned the Michigan "life-for-a-pint" law, and justified the killing of an Illinois mother by dry agents for possession of a gallon of home-made wine, had nothing to say.

There were 200 present including members of the church and the Grange. Mrs. B. J. Bell and Miss Ella Bell were present, also Mrs. J. H. Brewster and son, H. J. Brewer of Hillstown.

John Luck of Keeney street reports finding a gray squirrel dead in the road in front of his home a few weeks ago. The squirrel's throat had been badly bitten which would indicate that a weasel might have been the killer. Another gray squirrel was found dead by two men chopping wood. They felled a tree and the squirrel tumbled out of the nest. It was in poor condition, probably due to a shortage of food. The writer noticed a "gray" lying at the side of the road near Buckingham. It was partly devoured.

HOW TO FIGHT EXCESS FAT

There are hard ways, like starvation, but fewer and fewer employ them. There is a pleasant way, modern and scientific, which combats the cause. A vast number of people now use it. And the slender figures now seen everywhere are largely due to that.

That method is embodied in Marmola prescription tablets. People have used them for 20 years—millions of boxes of them. And everybody, in almost every circle, sees the change. New beauty, new health, new vitality.

Each box of Marmola contains the formula, also the scientific reasons for results. So users have no fear of harm. Learn the facts about Marmola, because of the good it has done. Ask your druggist—now—for a $1 box with the booklet. Then decide.

PARK BOARD BEGINS SPRING FURBISHINGS

Blocks Growing Path Across Center Park, Plans Grassing of Woodbridge St. Strip.

Men in the employ of the Park Board have started the spring cleaning and today are clearing last fall's leaves from around the shrubbery in the Center park.

Because so many persons have been taking a "short cut" across the park from the monument to the junction of Linden and Chestnut streets a distinct path is becoming worn in the turf. To remedy this this strip is being fenced off against travel until the grass has been given a start.

From the time the park was laid out until late last fall nothing had been done in the way of putting on new sod. This lack was then supplied and Horace Murphy, the park commissioner, wants to give the grass a fair chance before the pathway is worn completely through the turf.

One of the first improvements to be started this spring will be at the junction of Main and Woodbridge streets, north end. The strip of land along the railroad, lying east of Main street and continuing nearly to the beef box at Woodbridge street, is to be plowed up and leveled, heavy soil applied and grass seed planted. It is possible that a curbing may be set around the plot.

ABOUT TOWN

Rev. M. S. Stocking who will deliver a brief address at the union meeting tonight at 7:45 at Second Congregational church, will take for his subject, "Love's Triumph." It is hoped that a large number of north end people will attend this union communion service.

The Emblem club held a social yesterday afternoon at the Elks home in Rockville. Mrs. Lena Davis of Rockville won first prize in bridge. Mrs. Mary Coleman, second and Mrs. James W. Foley of this town, consolation. The committee served home made cake and coffee.

The official board of the North Methodist church will meet tonight at 8:50 o'clock with Rev. M. S. Stocking at the parsonage.

Why Give Up A Government Which We Know Is GOOD and PRACTICAL, For One Which We Know Nothing About?

Facts Are Facts. Therefore, We Must Retain Our Individual Voting Rights

Saturday we vote 'NO!' We will not be blinded by a smoke screen of words and promises and hidden meanings

The Charter Revision Committee took SIXTEEN MONTHS, since October, 1927, to frame up the amendments to our Town Charter. And we, the people, are given about three weeks to deliberate over them. But we will not be rushed and hurried into making a grievous mistake to regret it ever after. For facts are facts. And the facts are plain.

The facts of the proposed Charter are now clear to many of us. It is proposed that we consolidate all districts. It proposes an increase in our taxes. It proposes we give up our present right of individual vote on how we are to spend our own money. It proposes we give up our present right of individual vote on what our taxes are to be. It proposes we put our present form of government under the control of, and at the mercy of an APPOINTED few. No! Not an ELECTED few,—elected by the people—but an appointed few.

And these proposed amendments will affect EVERYONE OF US, as individuals; and it will affect EVERY ONE OF OUR DISTRICTS, as districts. It will take away our established equal rights. It will affect and put a heavier burden on our pocketbooks, as individuals, and as districts.

For instance: The present sewer system of one of our districts is under private ownership. If consolidation of sewer systems is voted in next Saturday, the people of that district must immediately assume the burden of paying hundreds of thousands of dollars for that system. This expense will not be borne by people of all districts—not at all—but by the people of that one district. A tremendous amount of money for these property owners to pay IMMEDIATELY. Why do it? Why assume such indebtedness? It is needless. It is unwise. Under our present, established form of good government, under our present arrangement the sewer system is no problem. Why go looking for trouble and extra expense. A simple way is open. Go to the polls on Saturday armed with FACTS and vote "NO."

During the Great War, a fine word came into popular use: The word is "Camouflage." It covers a multitude of sins. It means much. It hides things. It protects hidden meanings under the cover of what—words, promises, paint, whatever you will.

Are we going to let ourselves be hoodwinked? Are we going to allow the Charter Revision Amendments to go through under a camouflage of hurry and rush and no time for study? Facts are facts. We will not do it. All citizens of Manchester will go to the polls on Saturday, and will vote decisively, "NO", against the proposed amendments.

The Committee for Good Government

EVERYONE OF US MUST GO TO THE POLLS ON SATURDAY

Every man and every woman of Manchester MUST TURN OUT ON SATURDAY, and vote "NO" to the proposed amendments. We must vote "NO" if we want to retain our individual voting rights. We must vote "NO" if we don't want to pay higher taxes. We must vote "NO" if we don't want to be burdened with any part or portion of other people's just taxes or expenses. We must vote "NO" if we want to make impossible, the abuse of power and the possible future corruption of our town government.

HIS FIRST HOLDUP LEADS TO ARREST

Norwalk Man Planned Series of Crimes—Slugs Youth With Hammer.

Darfen, March 28.—Joseph Liberty, a former Norwalk resident, now living in Montclair, N. J., planned a career of crime in this region and came to grief after his first hold-up. He is being held here today without bail on a charge of robbery with intent to kill, while Joseph Mason, 17, a local gas station attendant, is under treatment in Greenwich hospital with a fractured skull received at the hands of Liberty, according to local police.

A check-up of Liberty's career led the police to announce after his arrest that he had registered at the Robert Smith hotel, Stamford, Tuesday night, and presumably made a careful study of various places before he ventured on the road early today. Within a short time of his hold-up, Liberty was captured at the hotel and nearly six hours later told the Darien police all about himself, including the local hold-up.

Warned by Anderson Liberty first came to the attention of Sergeant Amos Anderson just before one a. m., because he was driving too fast. Anderson halted the man and warned him. Liberty drove on, and ten minutes later stopped at a gasoline station owned by G. Le Roy Kemp, representative in the General Assembly.

Young Mason, the attendant, supplied Liberty with gas and oil and then stepped inside to supply him with an air valve which Liberty ordered. Liberty struck the boy over the head with a hammer from behind, looted the cash drawer of $20, all the money there, and fled.

Police Notified A Stamford police squad consisting of Sergeant Michael Keenan and Officers Edward Broderick and John McInerney went out seeking the car and found it at the Robert Smith hotel. Liberty had just entered the place when the police arrived and they covered him. Back in Darien, police found a hammer in Liberty's car. He later admitted it was the hammer used in hitting the boy at the gas station.

MAN DEAD IN HARTFORD LIVED HERE, IS BELIEF

James Morrissey, Former Dye House Worker, Thought to Be Heart Disease Victim.

A man named James Morrissey, found dead at 25 Girard Avenue, Hartford, where he was janitor of an apartment house, is believed to be the James Morrissey who for ten years was a resident of Manchester, was employed at Cheney Brothers' dye house and lived first at the Wyanoke hotel and afterward on Myrtle street. He left town last November and has since been living in Hartford.

Mr. Morrissey came to Manchester in 1918. He was a machinist by trade and before coming here had been in the machine shop business on his own account. It is understood. He never, however, worked as a machinist in Manchester. Last fall he was seriously out of health, suffering from heart trouble and insomnia and became well known to the police from his habit of walking the streets at night. In November he decided to return to Springfield, where he formerly lived—he was a native of Northampton—and re-engaged in business. He was driven to Springfield by two friends and there looked over a business proposition. He decided not to return to Manchester with his friends and did not come back here at all. Later he was known to have been living in Hartford.

Mr. Morrissey was a man of superior intelligence and wide general information. He was very well known throughout the south end.

HARLEM RACE RIOT. New York, March 28.—Rocks sailed through the air and cries of "lynch him" arose today in Harlem's "black belt" just after the arrest of a negro charged with trying to attack a white woman. Scores of whites and negroes crowded about Patrolman Fred Beers and his partner and a race riot appeared imminent when police reserves arrived and dispersed the crowd.

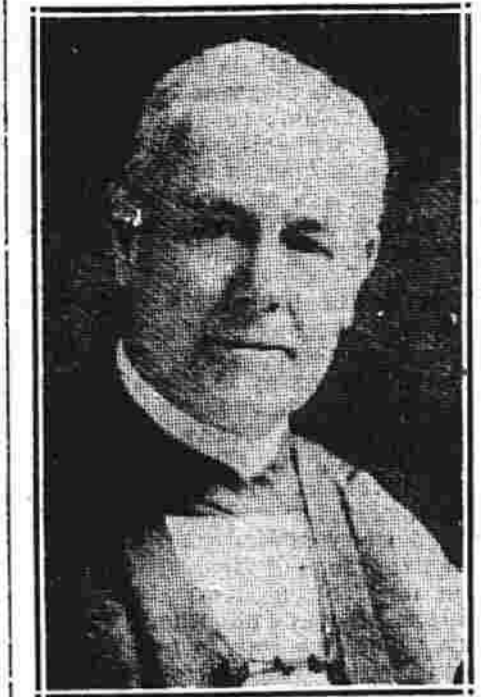

TOM HEENEY BETTER. New York, March 28.—Tom Heeneey, erstwhile challenger for the heavyweight championship, was reported making favorable progress today at St. Vincent's hospital, where he is being treated for anaemia and an infected leg sustained in his recent fight with Otto von Porat in Chicago.

Many of the newest buildings in London obtain their water supplies from artesian wells which go down upwards of 400 feet to the chalk bed below the city.

BIG CROWD HEARS BISHOP ACHESON

Episcopal Dignitary Talks at St. Mary's Episcopal Church.

Rt. Rev. E. C. Acheson, D. D., Bishop of Connecticut, spoke to a closely packed congregation that filled St. Mary's Episcopal church at the mid-week Lenten service, last night, taking for his text, Matthew 27:32. "And as they came out, they found a man of Cyrene, Simon by name; him they compelled to bear His cross."

Rt. Rev. E. C. Acheson, D. D.

"If you were in Jerusalem today you would find everyone in the city very much perturbed," said Rev. Acheson. "They are preparing to observe the anniversary of the Lord's Supper on Thursday, the Crucifixion on Friday, and the Resurrection on Sunday. You would find a great throng of people there. But 1929 years ago the throng was even greater. For then, Jerusalem was a capital and a city of great power."

Today Different. Today the Jews are scattered over the earth. In the time of Christ, the Jews were the greatest people of all. Greater than the Greeks or Romans. In those days every Jew made an effort to go to Jerusalem at least once a year. Many were satisfied if they could go there once in a lifetime. Every possible place in the city was taken and tents and booths were set up outside the city walls.

On Friday, those many years ago, there was even a greater throng for a famous criminal was to be executed on that day, along with two others. From Thursday night, when he had been captured, he had been dragged from court to court. Now he was to die. Nearing the city wall on the journey to Calvary, the man carrying the cross had fallen. A large crowd had collected. A reputable merchant, Simon of Cyrene who had come to the city to trade, was forced to carry the cross. He, a respected man, lowered to the degradation of carrying a cross for a criminal.

The sight of a man carrying a cross was a common thing in Jerusalem. Thirty years after Christ's death the Romans had crucified one million, three hundred thousand people.

What It Means. "Now I would like to ask," said the speaker, "what does it mean to you to take up your cross and follow Jesus Christ? Before he died he said to take up your cross and follow him. When a boy I thought that you could never get away with sinning, in the end. As I grew up, and saw all the sin being committed, I doubted. But, when I grew older I believed again as in my boyhood. I do not believe that any one is happy, underneath. No one can escape the judgment of conscience."

Is the cross something Jesus has put upon us? Can anyone carry it? It is our own cross, being carried. Jesus said, Take up your cross and follow Me. Christ carried his own cross for there was no other to carry it. He trod the winepress alone. He was lonely. Simon the Cyrene was the only one who had a chance to help Jesus carry his cross. And he was ashamed of it. Bearing the Cross. What then is the cross we are to carry? Difficulties, hardship and pain. Anything unsought, brought on by no fault of our own. In business you receive an unmerited rebuke for your superior. What will you do? Answer back or say nothing? And saying nothing will it be with a sneer or will it convey something of virtue; will it send home the fact to your superior that he has made a mistake? A boat is sailing for your homeland. You are going as a passenger. A loved one is in need of an operator. You have the necessary money. Would it do to show your disappointment? You must bear your cross. God sent it to make you better.

Suppose that you had a fine education and every advantage to make good. You were found to be sick with an incurable disease. What a chance to take up your cross and bear it, praising God for the opportunity.

The Son of God. Christ said to Peter that he was to die. Peter argued with him. Yet Christ took up his cross. After we have carried our cross a while it begins to look like the shape of Christ's cross, carried in the same spirit his image appears within us. A centurion saw Jesus die on Calvary. He saw the soldiers casting lots for Jesus's clothes, sneering at him saying, "Thou that destroyest the temple and buildest it in three days save thyself. If thou be the Son of God, come down from the cross."

The centurion heard Jesus answer, "Father forgive them for they know not what they do." Christ was bearing his cross on the cross. When Jesus cried, "Father it is finished," and died, the centurion turned and looked at the people and said, "Truly, this was the Son of God."

RICH GIRL POOR GIRL

By RUTH DEWEY GROVES

"Good morning," he said cheerily, and placed a nosegay of violets on her desk.

THIS HAS HAPPENED.

MILDRED LAWRENCE, stenographer in the Judson Hotel, has her fox fur snatched from her neck through a subway car window. Rushing back on the next train, she finds a crowd gathered on the platform and learns that the thief has been caught by STEPHEN ARMITAGE.

An officer takes them all to the station house, and after the routine details are disposed of, Stephen insists on taking Mildred home. She demurs but does not wish to seem ungrateful so finally asks him home to dinner, where he gains favor with the mother by praising her home cooking. Mildred's young sister, CONNIE, promptly decides for Stephen and hopes that her old-fashioned sister will mix enough pep with her usual quiet manner to hold the newcomer.

The evening is spoiled, however, when PAMELA JUDSON, daughter of Mildred's employer, phones and insists on her returning to the hotel to assist at a ball. Stephen tells Mildred that he had recently sold a car to Pamela. The latter recognizes him as he is leaving Mildred in the lobby and asks him to dance with her before the regular guests arrive. Pamela is snubbed when she returns and finds her dancing with Stephen. NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER III.

That night, arriving home late, Mildred found Connie reading a magazine in bed. This she threw aside in gleeful anticipation of hearing something interesting. She sat up, with her arms curled around her knees, looking oddly sophisticated. Connie was going through the black lingerie period, much to the disapproval of her mother. Usually Mildred had something to say about it, too, but just now she was not in a mood to notice the black violets. "I couldn't sleep," Connie confided in a whisper, "until I heard what happened."

Mildred tossed her hat onto a chair and her bag on the dresser. Connie pucker up her lips and hummed softly. Mildred always put her hat on a peg and her bag in a drawer. Connie scented trouble. "Just a flat tire after all?" she questioned sympathetically. Mildred looked at her then. "Go to sleep," she said crossly. "Aw, come on, Sis, tell me all about it. But I'm awfully disappointed. Honestly I am. I thought he was a real person. Someone you could like."

"I'm not looking for anyone to like." "Horse feathers! You're normal, aren't you?" "Your young ideas give me a pain," Mildred snapped, and disappeared into the clothes closet to get her night dress. Connie sighed and turned out the light by the bed. A few minutes later Mildred crept in beside her, moist from heavy ablutions and misty-eyed from unshed tears. Connie put a firm warm arm about her and pressed her face close to Mildred's, but she said nothing more.

"It's not that I care," Mildred told herself; "but suppose I did?" She meant suppose she cared for Stephen. She thought her feeling of being ill-used was caused by Pamela's high-handed treatment of her and her resentment of it. She had no idea that Stephen had made a deep impression upon her; that she minded having him grabbed up by Pamela.

"I'd quit in a minute if it weren't for Mom and Connie," she stormed silently. "It wasn't fair that the girl should have everything in the world and another should have to struggle along within sight but not within reach of all that the other had." "I'm sick of it," Mildred rebelled, but she knew she would go on tolerating Pamela's abuses for the sake of her position. The next morning she was unusually silent and hardly touched her breakfast. Mrs. Lawrence was too busy to notice. Somehow Connie's belongings invariably got her breakfast. Mrs. Lawrence got scattered all over the flat and she needed a searching party to help her off to school on time.

Mildred did not expect Stephen to show up at the hotel, at least not with any wick for her to do, but just before moon he surprised her by appearing at her desk.

He looked, precisely what Pamela had said. A thin, tall, girl could wish for. His dark hair and plain brown tie with striped shirt were only a small part of his perfection. "Good morning," he said cheerily, and placed a nosegay of violets on her desk.

Mildred was a trifle nonplussed but it did not show in her manner when she got up her notebook and prepared to take his dictation. "Don't bother about that," he said; "I'll dictate slowly. Take it right on the typewriter. Here's some Mett's letterheads."

True to his word he dictated slowly and gracefully on the girl more than on the work. They'd done just two letters when Mildred was required to go up to a suite on the tenth floor.

Stephen glanced at his watch. "Sorry, I can't wait until you come back," he said. "I've a luncheon date at one-thirty and I've got to run over to the office first."

When Mildred saw him again he was making his way with Pamela to the dining room. And Pamela was wearing orchids. Mildred put her hand to the violets she had pinned on her dress and the thought that flashed through her mind was not complimentary to herself.

As a matter of fact Pamela had bought the orchids herself. She wanted to look like a million dollars to Stephen.

Stephen's admiring glance assured her that she had not missed the mark, but for all his appreciation of her stunning appearance he tried to bring the conversation around to motor cars, the one he sold in particular.

But he got nowhere along that line. Pamela wanted to know all about him and before lunch was over she had lured him into promising to go with her that night to the Westchester Country Club, of which she remained a member despite the fact that several of the older women wanted her dropped from the club in Pamela's car. Stephen noticed that the fenders were well used up but otherwise it seemed to be in good condition. Still, he hoped to sell her a new one. It was his guess that Pamela would not drive any car for a year.

When they arrived at the club a dance was in progress and Pamela was not allowed more than a couple of dances with Stephen before he was forced to yield to others.

Stephen quitted off to a smoking room and found a small knot of men in interesting conversation with a racing driver who was just back from winning cups in South America.

South America and racing cars were two things Stephen liked to hear about. He hoped someday to be the South American representative for a good car, and racing drivers were his boyhood idols. He hadn't quite grown up in respect to her worshipping.

For at least five dances he forgot all about Pamela. Remembering, he started out to find her but fate, in the person of a pretty red-haired girl, waylaid him. She demanded a dance. Stephen recalled having met her in a group when he arrived.

He didn't want to be rude. But they hadn't danced long before he found himself looking into Pamela's darkening eyes. As she swept past him with a young man whose whispered words were falling on unheeding ears. "I'm in for it," Stephen thought. And so he was. At the end of the dance he sought out Pamela and found her furiously angry. "I know where you were," she declared hotly when he tried to tell her of the racing driver. "Everyone knows where anyone is when they're with that redheaded Angela Perkins!" "I give you my word. . . . " "Oh, save it. Anyway, I'm tired of this; let's get out of here."

took the seat beside her without a word.

Perhaps, had he attempted to defend himself, Pamela's anger would have dispelled itself in quarreling with him, but she did not know how to meet silence. Not Stephen's, at any rate. The silence of overworked servitors was a different matter.

She had a grudge of long standing against Angela Perkins—a grudge born of rivalry. She knew that Angela had attached Stephen for the purpose of annoying her and she honestly believed that Stephen had attempted to lie about it.

They drove in bitter silence for a mile or two; then suddenly she brought her car to a stop. She asked Stephen to get out and take a look at the rear wheels. She said she thought she had a flat.

"Nonsense," Stephen replied curtly. Pamela started to open the door on her side. It was only a bluff.

As he stepped out of the car and moved to the rear, Pamela put her hand to call back something that Stephen made out to be a suggestion that he walk back and drive home with Angela.

Stephen swore; then grinned. "Walked? Can you beat that?" Pamela was far down the road before he turned back toward the club. Heedless of danger, she drove on at high speed, forgetting that ahead of her lay a short stretch of road under repair.

Even when she saw the warning signal lights she did not slow in time to avoid tearing out the rutted road with a momentum that brought disaster.

It came with the ear-splitting noise of a cannon shot, a jagged blowout that flattened a rear tire in less than a second and sent the car lurching and careening madly from side to side.

Pamela tried desperately to right it, but she knew when it came to a stop finally, directly across the roadway, that luck had favored her. She slumped weakly back, shaken and white. But the next instant, glancing up the road in the direction she had come, her eyes met a sight that froze her to her seat with a new fear.

MAKING YOUR FAMILY SAY: "THANKS FOR THE SPINACH!"

By SISTER MARY

When marked for the benefits it contains in its leaves, spinach has without any doubt "high score." The high iron and vitamin content is valuable in the diet of both sick and well.

Now that so many vegetables are sold by the pound rather than quart and peck it may help some inexperienced housewives as well as those who have marketed for years by "dry measure" to know that one pound of good spinach will serve a family of three. With this in mind it's comparatively easy to compute the amount needed for one's individual family.

As mothers have learned the virtues of spinach the demand has grown. Nowadays it's very seldom that a shipping of spinach is decidedly weedy. However, weedy spinach means loss of weight as well as time in sorting out the weeds.

Spinach which is very sandy or dirty is extremely difficult to clean, for the grit seems to defy all washing and is sure to remain in the cooked dish.

If the leaves are light colored and of a yellowish tinge and tightly curled, plant insects are usually present and the spinach itself will not have a pleasant flavor when cooked. If this condition prevails, that particular lot of spinach should not be purchased. A few plants with a yellowed leaf do not mean an inferior quality and of course the same is true of plants often containing tender young baby leaves which are most desirable.

If the housewife will buy her spinach with care, cook and serve it with care and then devise an intriguing name for the dish, she will hear no grumbling from the assembled family at mealtime.

The WOMAN'S DAY

By ALLENE SUMNER

Now that the railroads serve salad knives with the hearts of lettuce, this long-whispered rumor that we can cut the iceberg with a knife and still be invited to masticate with our best families, must be really true, for when the swank of the dining succumb, it must be Emily Postish, indeed.

To be sure, some might argue that the particular railroad which is serving knives with its salads isn't so tony, but that's quite beside the point. It all means a writing on the walls and a coming of the day when salad will be attacked with a knife with all the nonchalant abandon of eating soup with a spoon.

Salad knives, comments an interpreter of the times, were brought about by the substitution of the tight head lettuce for the leaf just as the typewriter, for instance, made typewritten personal letters good form, and the telephone stationer the personal invitation made by word of mouth rather than pen. Most good form—all of it, in fact—is the product of changing times, new inventions.

Peppy Grandma An 81-year-old grandmother graduated from a Chicago night school the other day, and announced that she was about to embark upon a literary career. While the spectacle of ambitions and still-a-going old age is always appealing, it's too bad that the 81-year-old lady starts her writing handicapped by the feeling that a high school diploma is the open sesame to it. The same rich living which she had known before acquiring her diploma is her one and only equipment, and if she can't interpret that without the aid of a diploma, her success is doubtful.

The President's Bed President Hoover, having tried the bed which the U. S. Government provides in the White House for the weary bones of her presidents, ordered his own bed sent from his S street home. Which item has probably made many a lesser woman than the First Lady tick her bed indignantly. There is no President must be a pinky man to manage.

Why So "Foolish"? The President of the University of Missouri is all stirred up by a questionnaire sent out by the university's sociology department. This questionnaire seemed to be for the simple purpose of finding out what undergraduates thought about such things as infidelity, promiscuity, birth control, petting, and various sex questions. The President calls the questionnaire an outrage and will "take steps" with the State General Assembly.

Somehow his characterization of the sociological attempt as "fool business" sounds as if the shoe were on the other foot. After all, it is altogether illogical to assume that youth's opinions on traditional matters might have some value?

FLOWER MEDICINE. Have you dosed your plants for spring yet? Fern, palm, and other green plant should have a teaspoonful of castor oil in spring. It really is a good thing to give them the dose about once every three months. Pour it against the root and stir the earth around it.

When you go to market and shop for spinach, look for plants with plenty of good healthy leaves. This vegetable is an edible foliage so the condition of the leaves is important. Look for a healthy green of good, dark green color, leaves fresh and crisp, free from sand or dirt.

SPINACH SALAD Two cups cooked and chopped spinach, 1/2 teaspoon oil, 1-4 teaspoon paprika, 1 tablespoon lemon juice, 3 hard cooked eggs.

Combine spinach, salt, paprika and eggs. Add oil and lemon juice and mix thoroughly with a fork. Shape in small molds and serve on a bed of lettuce with the whites of eggs cut in shreds and sprinkled over the top.

Spinach is desirable and mean that the vegetable will be tender and a good bright green when cooked and dressed for the table.

Spinach is prone to imperfections even as all other life of the vegetable kingdom. The most common of these being weeds, plant insects, sandiness, yellow or wilted leaves and woodiness.

Nowadays it's very seldom that a shipping of spinach is decidedly weedy. However, weedy spinach means loss of weight as well as time in sorting out the weeds.

Spinach which is very sandy or dirty is extremely difficult to clean, for the grit seems to defy all washing and is sure to remain in the cooked dish.

If the leaves are light colored and of a yellowish tinge and tightly curled, plant insects are usually present and the spinach itself will not have a pleasant flavor when cooked. If this condition prevails, that particular lot of spinach should not be purchased.

A few plants with a yellowed leaf do not mean an inferior quality and of course the same is true of plants often containing tender young baby leaves which are most desirable.

If the housewife will buy her spinach with care, cook and serve it with care and then devise an intriguing name for the dish, she will hear no grumbling from the assembled family at mealtime.

Everybody, young, old and indifferent, she who would diet to gain in weight, she who would lose in weight, the boy or girl at the "training" table may eat spinach and be benefited.

BABY'S VISION DEVELOPS SLOWLY IN FIRST MONTH

BY OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

Are you the mother of a very small baby? Are you wondering how old he must be before he begins to be a real person, to know people, to reach for things, and to try to make that beautiful body of his obey that important but fearful-some thing we are pleased to call his mind?

One would have to be a walking encyclopedia to be able to answer the tenth of all the questions of anxious parents.

But here are some facts about his vision that may cover part of the ground, and may be of interest to others as well.

We often hear that young babies cannot see. This is not true. A child of two or three weeks old can see a stationary object very well, particularly if it is bright and between three and four weeks of age he can look from one object to another. At from four to five weeks he can follow an object with his eyes while it is being moved.

At eight weeks he can focus his eyes on things a little distance away, and at ten weeks he has almost complete control of his eyes. At this time he begins to know faces. His mother or other members of the family who are with him frequently will be recognized. There is little question, by the time he is twelve weeks old.

At 12 or 14 weeks he will look for something that has been taken away, and also to look in the direction of sounds. And at 16 weeks he will coordinate eye and muscle and reach for something he sees and wants.

After 16 weeks progress is very fast. At 16 to 19 weeks, reaching and grasping are developed. The movements at first are vague; both hands are moved together. There is no right nor left to him. At 20 to 22 weeks he holds objects in his hands to look at before putting them into his mouth.

By 24 weeks or 6 months of age vision and other senses are developed to such a degree that we may say it is at this time his Highness begins to enjoy life.

His psychology then becomes an interesting thing indeed.

Hints On How To Keep Well by World Famed Authority

SOME THINK IT DANGEROUS TO SLEEP IN MOONLIGHT.

By DR. MORRIS FISHEIN, Editor Journal of the American Medical Association and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine.

The idea that it is dangerous to sleep in the moonlight is another of the symbolical notions that afflict mankind.

The ancient Egyptians associated cats with the moon not only because the cat is more active after sunset, but from the easily visible dilation and contraction of the pupils of the eyes of the cat which resemble waxing and waning of the moon.

The very term "lunacy" comes from the word luna, relating to the moon. In the first place the moon's appearance and disappearance are periodic as are many of the functions of the human body.

It is common among superstitious people to believe that those who are eccentric or insane are at their worst when the moon is full.

Since the moon grows in size and then wanes, it was possible to assume the increase and decrease in the symptoms of mental disturbance with this waxing and waning. This relation of the moon to lunacy is utterly unscientific.

It is interesting to know that in some places waris are supposed to increase in number and size as the moon waxes and to decline as it wanes. An ancient writer said that he knew a woman whose beauty grew as the moon became fuller and disappeared as the moon waned.

In the mythology of the Egyptians, the moon was mistress of the brain, the sun lord of the forehead, and to various constellations were assigned the diseases which were supposed to govern.

All of this belief is without scientific substantiation. The causes of various forms of insanity vary from infections by germs of one type or another to hereditary influences and malformations of brain structure.

If you should happen to sleep in the moonlight because your windows are open and the moon comes pouring in, you need have no fear that this will disturb your mental health. It is far more important to have the fresh air while sleeping than to avoid the light of the moon.

TODAY IS THE ANNIVERSARY

A PRESIDENT CENSURED.

Ninety-five years ago today the dignified wall of the United States Senate chamber echoed unprecedented proceedings on the floor.

For the first time in the history of the country, a senator was so censured by the actions of the chief executive that a resolution of censure was introduced, argued long and bitterly and finally passed.

The president was Andrew Jackson, and in 1837, three years after his passage, a resolution was expunged by vote from the record.

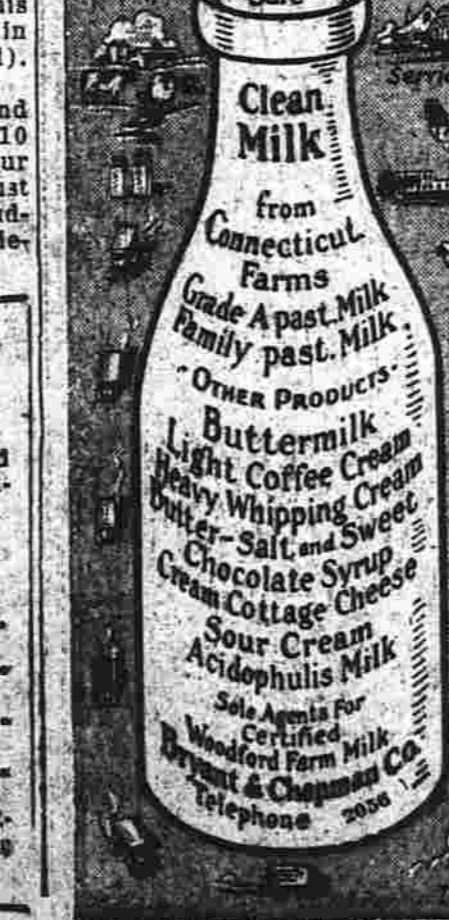

Incidents leading up to its passage were as colorful as have featured the administration of any president. Jackson was a bitter foe of the moneyed interests and believed that the United States bank system was detrimental to the common people.

He ordered government deposits removed from it. A course of action which his cabinet did not approve. The secretary of the treasury refused to carry out the order, so Jackson removed him and appointed Roger B. Taney. Taney's appointment was not ratified by the Senate, so Jackson made him chief justice of the United States.

This And That In Feminine Lore

Your smart appearance on Easter will be greatly enhanced by a careful coiffure, and I would advise you to make an appointment at once for a marcel at the Lily Beauty parlor in the House & Hale building, phone 1671. Ask Mrs. Robinson about her newly installed Text-o-Meter, the marvelous invention for pre-testing the hair prior to a Nestle Circuline wave.

These days when the tulips and the perennials are pushing up through their winter wrappings, make us want to get out in the garden and clear up the litter, but it is a little too early yet in this latitude and the earth is still so damp that it is not pleasant or wise to spend much time in the garden. Next week, probably on Monday, we will begin the series of 12 articles on planning and planting for spring.

The Easter bride this year can revel in the most feminine, be-trimmed clothes. Verily she may travel the lacy way to the altar for even the pumps have insets, rosettes and beels of lace. Many of the new laces are just as effective as the regal duchesse, rose point and Chantilly. The wedding handkerchief, hosiery and coronet have their trimmings of lace. The bridal gown itself often uses lace for flounces, sleeves and other decorations. The lace cap is one of the most popular veil arrangements.

Every bit of bridal lingerie has its own lace trim and lace rosettes decorate the garters, which introduce the "something blue" of the quartette of "something old, something new, something borrowed and something blue."

Mrs. Rowe Prepares an Electric Oven Dinner Mrs. Marion Rowe, home economist with the Manchester Electric company, gave her first local lecture on cooking an oven dinner on one of the latest models in the Universal line of electric ranges. The demonstration took place yesterday afternoon at the Manchester Community club. It was a Lenten menu with baked stuffed cod as the piece de resistance, baked potatoes, escalloped onions, tomatoes and cinnamon apples. The entire menu with the exception of the biscuits was perfectly cooked in 400 degrees and the moisture damper half open, which permits excess moisture to escape. With the automatic temperature control the current is off two-thirds of the time, yet the temperature never runs below the set control.

Automatic Time Clock While the dinner was cooking Leon Holmes of the Electric company explained the merits of an efficient range connected for the demonstration. In comparison with earlier, slow types of electric stoves, chief among which are its saving in roasts and other foods because of less shrinkage, its cleanliness and safety sealed and insulated oven, preventing the escape of heat. This makes it ideal for summer use. He called attention to the three different types of plates, two open and one closed, one for speedy work, the others for slow cooking and simmering. Mr. Holmes answered a number of questions put to him.

ANT PREVENTION. Adding a little ammonia to the water in which you wash your pantry shelves is an aid to keeping ants away.

Lewis Waterman's application for patent on his first fountain-pen was filed in 1833.

GET LOCAL ORCHESTRA FOR ROCKVILLE BALL

Elks and Emblem Club to Give Annual Charity Affair on Friday, April 5.

Mrs. George H. Williams, president of the Emblem club and chairman of the music committee for the big charity ball to be given jointly by Emblem members and the Elks, has engaged a local orchestra, Behrend's, to provide music. The ball is scheduled for Friday evening, April 5 at the town hall in Rockville. It will be entirely informal and every cent realized above the expenses will go directly for charity in Manchester, Rockville and Stafford. It is expected this and several other events during the year conducted jointly by both organizations, will obviate the necessity of collecting funds for charitable purposes at Christmas time.

Mrs. Fred DeHope and George H. Williams of this town who are members of the ticket committee report that returns already indicate a record attendance. One man alone having disposed of $55 worth.

Former Mayor John P. Cameron is general chairman of the coming charity ball. Dr. Thomas F. O'Loughlin, chairman of the decorating committee, has engaged the Bocket Decorating company of Rockville to carry out the plans of the committee.

Mrs. Thomas Dannaher of this town, who is a member of the committee on publicity, announces that 10 of Al Behrend's Melody Boys will give a concert from 8 to 9 o'clock on the evening of the ball. The grand march will form at 9 o'clock. The dance numbers will include the Paul Jones and several other square sets. Police Captain Stephen Tobin of Rockville has consented to act as prompter for the old-time dances.

A meeting of the general committee was held following the Emblem club's social yesterday to perfect plans for the ball.

LETTER GOLF

A CHINESE PUZZLE. You've heard of Chinese puzzles, and today's is one of them—CHOP SUEY. Par is five and one solution is on another page.

CHOP SUEY crossword puzzle grid with letters C, H, O, P and S, U, E, Y placed in specific cells.

THE RULES. 1-The idea of Letter Golf is to change one word to another and do it in par, a given number of strokes. Thus to change COW to HEN, in three strokes, COW, HOW, HEW, HEN. 2-You change only one letter at a time. 3-You must have a complete word, of common usage, for each jump. Slang words and abbreviations don't count. 4-The order of letters cannot be changed. One solution is printed on comic page.

THE TINYMITES

(READ THE STORY, THEN COLOR THE PICTURE) The Tynmites still stayed out of sight. Then Scouty said, "It isn't right for us to stand so idly by and see the coal men harmed. An awful fuss by them was made when they were picked up in that spade. They don't know what's to happen. It's no wonder they're alarmed." "Don't be too hasty," Coppy cried. "You'd best stay right here by my side until we see what that big man is planning to do next. He's laughing at the coal men now. He thinks it's all a joke somehow. The way he's acting, really has me very much perplexed." Then Clowny climbed in. "Look," said he. "Some little railroad tracks I see. They run right by the big bold man. I wonder what's round here, but hark, a whistle I can hear. A train is heading this way now. That's what the tracks are for." And he was right. It wasn't long until, with merry clang and bang, a railroad engine pulled in sight, and chugged down to a stop. "My, what a fine train," Clowny cried. "It's just the sort I'd like to ride, and if I weren't a bit afraid, right on the thing I'd hop. The man who grabbed the two coal men was slowly on his way again. He walked up to the engine. It had one coal car attached. The big man broke out in a grin, and promptly tossed the coal men in the little car, but they weren't hurt. In fact, not even scratched. "Oh, look! They're leaving," Scouty cried. "Yes, sir, they're going for a ride." And then he jumped out from the rock and loudly shouted, "Hey!" The two wee coal men waved good-bye, and then one shouted, with a sigh, "We're now bound for a coal yard which is many miles away." (The Tynmites meet a new friend in the next story.)

TO PREPARE RABBIT IN HESS'S WINDOW

Description of Dressing of Animal for Cooking to Be Given Tomorrow Night.

Tomorrow evening at 8 o'clock in the store of Ed Hess on Main street, members of the Manchester Rabbit club will dress off a rabbit and explain the process to anyone interested. Free chances on the rabbit will be given to those present.

A great deal of interest has been shown in the large displays of rabbits in store windows along Main street, at the Green and Depot

Square. Flemish Giants, New Zealand Reds and Whites, Belgian Hares and Chinchillas are among the many breeds being shown. The rabbits added the final touch to the Easter atmosphere along Manchester's main thoroughfare this week and the stores that have a display of them are scenes of large crowds who gather to watch the bunnies in their daily life.
