Special Committee Organizes to Study Cheney Schools Purchase Problem; Decides Procedure.

Manchester's special committee to consider the proposition of Cheney Brothers that the Ninth district or, perhaps, the town, purchase or rent the Cheney owned schools in the Ninth district met for organization last night.

Must Get Facts The work of the committee last night was to outline its line of procedure. It was consensus that nothing could be accomplished without information and so the clerk was instructed to gather together the facts relative to several different questions that were brought up for discussion as well as several others that had been heard "on the street."

One Plan It seemed to the committee that gathered last night that the work before them was to determine the exact values of the Cheney property and to determine just what parcels of this property in the Ninth district and the town of Manchester must needs buy.

jail" as the law describes it—paying at least a portion of the debt he contracted with society when he acquired a lease to the Teapot Dome naval oil reserv in a manner which the United States Supreme Court described as highly fraudulent.

Also, as before indicated, the exceedingly plain, though wholesome menu of the jail breakfast failed to compare at all favorably with what he has been accustomed to.

GERMANY ABLE TO PAY DEBTS, YOUNG AVOWS

But It Is Obstinate, Expert Declares; Schacht Hands Allies Reservations Which They Will Consider.

Paris, May 7.—Germany's conditions for acceptance of the Young plan as the basis of a solution of the reparations problem were handed to the allied and American experts today by Dr. Hjalmar Schacht, president of the Reichsbank and chief of the German delegation.

The German conditions, which were in written form, were taken under consideration by the other experts.

Buffalo Man Confesses Murder of Buffalo Paymaster In 1926.

Buffalo, N. Y., May 7.—Edward Larkman, alleged bandit who was saved from the electric chair by former Governor Alfred E. Smith ten minutes before the time set for his execution, was absolved today of any participation in the murder of Ward J. Pierce, of which crime he was sentenced to death.

As preparations were being made to carry out the death sentence, Gov. Smith intervened and commuted Larkman's sentence to life imprisonment.

Larkman is now in solitary confinement at Auburn prison. His attorneys have announced their intention of making application to Gov. Roosevelt to have the prisoner released.

PRISON FARE FOR SINCLAIR, MILLIONAIRE

embles of parts who now holds an important position in the jail. His job. The next step in this red-letter day of penal servitude was to be an interview by Major Peake with his distinguished prisoner. On the outcome of this conversation will depend Sinclair's exact status for the next ninety days. Peake will undertake to ascertain just what the oil magnate is best fitted for in the way of occupational activity and then assign him. If there is an opening in the office, Sinclair unquestionably will get it, for his record as a financier is impressive. If there is not, the 10,250th prisoner to be taken in during the current fiscal year may get a hospital assignment. A third condition might even result in his removal to the work farm at Occoquan, Va., although that is not likely.

Frankly, Major Peake is a little puzzled over where he should place Sinclair. One vacancy is about to occur in the clerical staff, but it should be filled by one with stenographic ability. Facetiously, it was suggested this morning the millionaire might be taken to Occoquan and instructed to drill an oil well.

The oil man "checked in" at his new quarters last night at 8:45 p. m., after having successfully placed all of the newspaper reporters and photographers between New York and Washington on the quiet since last Saturday. Up until the moment his big automobile swung into the jail yard last night, the press was without definite information of his movements since the start of the last week.

Cameramen Ready. It was an auspicious entrance, and befitting the prominence of the man. Nearly thirty photographers were strategically grouped outside the jail entrance when the big car swung in. This was a signal for the movie men to hastily light and cast out flares that illuminated the dull red front of the structure with a ghastly light. Smoke rolled over the driveway and the movie camera clicked steadily from the blanket of night behind the glare of the flares.

The "still" men were poised with speed flashes attached to their cameras. The car came to a stop and the chauffeur stepped out with a suit case in each hand. He opened the rear door and George T. Stanford, Sinclair's attorney, emerged. After him, Earl W. Sinclair, the oil magnate, stepped from the dark interior of the auto.

Then came the prisoner. The speed flashes roared on all sides in such a manner as to suggest a jail-break with all its attendant commotion. Harry Sinclair passed inside the jail, succumbed to the law at last.

His face was a garish green under the light of the movie flares. His shoulders were hunched and around his ears he had a look drawn close to his collar and his brown slouch had been pulled well over his eyes. He seemed in a daze.

The big iron door clanged shut behind the little group, and the bars reflected their shadows across the oil magnate's broad back as he marched past the captain of the guard and an assembled group of prison clerks and trustees. The quartet walked solemnly into Major Peake's office.

Is Introduced. Marshal Edgar Snyder, of the District of Columbia, was waiting there with the commitment papers signed earlier in the day by Justice Hitz, of the local Supreme Court.

Snyder rose and said: "Major Peake, I want to make you acquainted with Mr. Sinclair." The famous oil operator braced himself, extending his hand and smiled.

"I am glad to meet you Major," he said. "I want to assure you that you will have no troubles from me. I shall not ask for any special favors, and I do not look for any undue privileges."

"Thank you," replied Peake. Stanford and Earl Sinclair said a brief goodbye and departed without making any statement. A few minutes later, Harry Sinclair emerged from the office, accompanied by the captain of the guard, the prison clerk and a trusty who carried the two suit cases.

"Gentlemen of the press," intoned the captain of the guard profoundly, "Mr. Sinclair says he has nothing to say to you."

Goes to Dormitory. They walked out of the offices and into the rotunda upon which face the cells of the jail. Sinclair looking neither to right nor left and most obviously dejected. Upstairs they went to a cell block converted into a huge dormitory lined with a double row of iron cots upon which were mattresses and clean white spreads. Sixty other men occupy this dormitory, their offenses nearly running the gamut of crime.

Sinclair was subjected to the routine search. The clerk then prepared the car index that catalogues the oil man as prisoner No. 10,251. His name, age, residence, ability to read and write, vocation, et cetera.

That was all for the night. They left him behind the barred door to sleep until 5:30 this morning. Eighty-nine more days stretched ahead of him.

CUTS OFF RELATIVES. Darden, May 7.—Cutting off his only relatives, with $1 each, the will of the late John C. Huntington, marine artist, leaves his entire estate to Harry C. Schlichting, grocery clerk protegee, it was learned today.

The artist who died aboard his houseboat here last Friday, "discovered" Schlichting three years ago when the boy, then 21 years old, evinced a pronounced talent for painting.

May Day Flowers for Mrs. Hoover

The annual custom of bringing a basket of May flowers to the First Lady of the Land on Child Health Day was observed when these children called upon Mrs. Herbert Hoover at the White House in Washington. Mrs. Hoover is shown accepting the floral gift from her young admirers. The custom was inaugurated five years ago by the American Child Health Association and marks official observation of the day in the national capital.

ration or color strength. It may be used to fatigue the eye to the point of monotony after which the presentation of a hue will have enhanced effect.

Sunshine—A clear brilliant yellow. Mildly stimulating, suggesting a mood of lively interest and attention.

Candleflame—A pastel orange, useful in inducing rather mild mood reactions such as feelings of coziness, comfort, intimacy, well-being, peace and plenty without opulence.

Firelight—A soft yellow orange, suggestive of warmth, comfort, intimate home relationships, mild affection.

Afterglow—A soft rich orange color, exciting mood reactions in general connected with luxury, wealth, security and relatively strong affections. It is also indicative of repose, ambitions attained and accomplishment.

Peacelight—A delicate, fresh pink, adapted to the rendition of close-up where it is desired to do full justice to feminine beauty.

Rose Doree—A deep warm pink suggesting sensuousness and passion, amorous, romantic and exciting. It is also in keeping with the feeling of happiness, joy and excitement.

Verdant—A pure green, rather pastel in character. It is the hue of spring foliage and by subjective association typical of youth, freshness and innocence.

Aquagreen—A brilliant blue-green, pertaining to maturity, wisdom, dignity, repose and restfulness.

Turquoise—A clear, brilliant blue, tending to produce a mood of peace and tranquility.

Azure—A strong, sky-blue, suggestive of the serene and the reserved even approaching the austere or forbidding, and under certain conditions slightly gloomy.

Nocturne—Deep violet-blue, appropriate to depressive conditions, despair, failure, unattained ambitions, intrigue, the underworld.

Purple—A bluish-violet, imparting a feeling of distance, mystery, repose and languorous warmth.

Fleur-de-lis—A rich royal purple. It suggests reserve, dignity and austerity.

Amaranth—A purple with a greater red content than royal purple and appropriate to king and court in a benevolent and happy mood. It also may be well adapted to scenes approaching sensuality and abandon, such as Bacchanalian revels.

Caprice—A cool pink. It is mild and refreshing, exhilarating in an innocent fun-loving sense.

Interno—Fiery red tinged with magenta, indicative of riot, panic, anarchy, mobs, turmoil, strife, war, battle and unrestrained passion.

EXPECT 150 AT DINNER ON LIONS CHARTER NIGHT

Many notables in Manchester's civic life will be present at the banquet in connection with the charter presentation ceremonies of the local Lions Club at Masonic Temple at 8 o'clock tonight.

Among the speakers will be Rev. Harold A. Clemens, of the Hartford Lions, Arthur A. Knoffa, president of the Manchester Kiwanis Club, Harlow Willis, president of the Manchester Chamber of Commerce and District Governor William Hewlett, of Bridgeport, who will present the charter. Willard B. Rogers, district director, will act in the capacity of toastmaster. Group singing will be under the leadership of Albert Pearson, Beethoven Glee Club soloist, who will also sing several solos. A quartet from the Rockville Lions will also be on hand and entertainers from Hartford will appear in vaudeville acts. A Behrends orchestra will provide music.

Arrangements have been made for the 150 diners from Lions clubs throughout Connecticut, Rhode Island and Massachusetts.

EMERGENCY DOCTORS

Doctors Moran and Moriarty will be on duty for emergency calls tomorrow.

SWAPS UNIFORMS; TO RIDE, NOT WALK

Local Mail Carrier Will Sit on Motorcycle Saddle on Route Hereafter.

Thomas J. Donnelly, for nearly five years in the employ of the South Manchester Post Office, left yesterday for the State Police Training School at Ridgefield where he will take a six-week's course prior to becoming a state policeman.

A farewell party was given in Mr. Donnelly's honor by fellow-workers at the post office Saturday night and Postmaster Oliver F. Toop on behalf of the department, presented to Mr. Donnelly a leather traveling bag which included bill fold, key ring and other equipment.

In making the presentation, Mr. Toop paid a tribute to Mr. Donnelly's faithful and untiring service while connected with the post office. Donnelly entered the employ of the department in November, 1924, as an auxiliary carrier from which he was promoted to sub-carrier, a capacity which he held until resigning to become a state policeman.

Mr. Donnelly is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert J. Donnelly of 60 Cooper street.

ABOUT TOWN

Miss Antoinette Prete of 117 Birch street, was a visitor of her sister, Caroline, at Connecticut Agricultural College, recently.

The streams may be running far more than is liked by anglers, but Dr. Edward Schreiber and Otto Hills came to the pond on "out east" and had a basket of eight nice trout that they picked out of one of the streams this morning.

Miss Mary Sargeant, garment buyer for The J. W. Hale Company, is in New York today on a business trip. Miss Florence Johnson, millinery buyer, is also in New York on a business.

A setback and bridge will be held at the Highland Park Community Club tomorrow night under the auspices of the Girl Reserves.

Friends of Mr. and Mrs. James Forde, numbering 48, gave them a house warming at their new home at Porter and Pitkin streets, Saturday night.

The Manchester Fish and Game Club has voted to incorporate and a committee has been named to lease the Keeney Pond, west of Keeney street. This they propose to stock with trout and open it for fly fishing only. Stocking the pond will also serve to stock Folly Brook to some extent as the fish will swim up stream. Arrangements have been made to obtain fishing rights along this brook.

SIX KILLED IN CRASH

Sturgis, Wis., May 7.—Six persons were instantly killed today when a Pennsylvania passenger train struck and demolished a small touring car at an unprotected grade crossing here. The automobile was carried for more than 200 feet.

The dead are: Earl Ward, 40; his wife, Nellie; Mrs. Ham Lee, his mother-in-law and three of his children, Kreager, 6; Morris, 5 and Harriet, 3.

Ward is survived by three other younger children.

Anne in New York to Meet "Lindy"

Anne Morrow all but succeeded in evading reporters and cameramen when she arrived in New York from Cleveland to meet her future husband, Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, who had flown up from Washington. She is pictured here, book in hand, in the rear seat of an automobile after leaving her special car at an outlying station. Her destination was not revealed, but it was presumed she would join Colonel Lindbergh and proceed to the scene of their wedding.

BLOTTERS SHOW SIZE OF NEW MONEY BILLS

Bank Circulates Them Among School Children to Give Idea of Currency.

Five thousand "dollar bill" blotters have been distributed among Manchester school children by the Manchester Trust Company as a medium of introducing familiarity with the new sized currency into the homes.

The blotters are the exact size of the new currency which will be circulated the first of July. The bills will be in eleven denominations, each portraying the portrait of a former president of the United States with the exception of a $10,000 bill which will bear the picture of Salmon P. Chase, former secretary of the treasury.

The picture of George Washington, first President, will appear on the most numerous of the bills, the one dollar denomination. The others are as follows: $2, Jefferson; $5, Lincoln; $10, Hamilton; $20, Jackson; $50, Grant; $100, Franklin; $500, McKinley; $1,000, Cleveland and $5,000, Madison.

The new form of currency will be six and five-sixteenths inches in length and two and eleven-sixteenths inches in width. Distribution of the new currency will start from the Federal Reserve banks about the first of July, Russell B. Hathaway, of the Trust Company said.

COVENTRY

The date of the play, "Nora Mixes In," was erroneously given in yesterday's Herald as May 11 instead of May 17. On that evening a cast of the members of Sunset Rebekah lodge will repeat the three-act play under the above title at the Chapel hall in Coventry. Mrs. Henry Lowd, formerly of this town, now of Manchester, plays the part of Nora, and does it with her usual vim. The supporting players have had considerable experience in amateur dramatics.

WILD DOGS ATTACK SOUTHTON COWS

but was of the opinion they would return. At daylight this morning Mr. Grindle who was in the pasture and on the lookout for the dogs was rewarded for his vigilance and saw three dogs appear and renew their attack upon his herd of cows. With a shotgun Mr. Grindle attacked the dogs, and as a result of his advantageous position was able to kill all three of them.

All were male dogs and one of them was full grown, or a little more. All were ferocious and appeared to be wild. None of them had tags to indicate ownership. As they appeared they looked like wild dogs and the cows were stampeded. One of the cows is missing since yesterday and those which were attacked present a torn and battered appearance.

Mr. Grindle lodged a complaint with First Selectman Charles W. Camp. In the matter of settlement the town is handicapped as there is provision for payment of only fifty dollars by the town for damage done by dogs. The remainder of the damage costs must be paid by the state, at a session of the legislature.

While the present session of the state legislature is nearly at an end, there will be effort made to have the matter presented as a special matter to the committee on claims today in order that the payment by the state may not be deferred for two years until the legislature is again in session.

All of the developments of life and civilization have come through experience. Personal experience is a most expensive method of learning, because we must pay so much for our follies and our sorrows.

Millions of people have lived and made mistakes in their living habits and they have developed many diseases which you can prevent in your own case if you only profit by their costly experiences.

There are many people who are smart enough in business, or who are philosophers or inventors, who will readily admit that overeating is harmful, and yet they may go through their whole lives without once having tried to curb their appetites or cut down the amount of their food to a sensible quantity.

DEMOCRATIC MUDDLERS

Even the New York World, staunchly Democratic as it is, rebukes the Senators of its political faith for lining up along with insurgent Republicans in favor of the far export debenture measure.

Perhaps the World is as right in its assumption of a veto as it is in analyzing the motives of the Democratic Senators. Then again, perhaps not. We know of no law that would compel President Hoover to veto a farm bill because it carried a debenture plan to which he did not subscribe.

These Senate Democrats, then, are playing about the poorest kind of politics imaginable. They stand to lose and they do not stand to win.

It has taken a long time to do it, and the extent of the doing is, in more than one sense, ludicrously inadequate, but at last a single one out of the group of grinning, insolent sure-thing gamblers who played the game of oil with Uncle Sam, and played with stacked cards, is in jail.

There has been far more pomp and circumstance connected with the incarceration of Harry F. Sinclair than there should have been.

HITTING INTO IT

Newspaper editorial pages are almost always "put to bed" early in the day or night, and because their contents are prepared several hours before press time there occasionally arises an awkward situation in consequence—such, perhaps, as the appearance of a suddenly fulsome editorial tribute to someone who turns out, just in time to make the news pages, not to be dead at all—it is an awful thing, sometimes, to have spoken lovingly of the living.

But it isn't often that an editor gets caught in the gratuitous trap that the fates laid for the tripping typewriter of a leader writer on the Springfield Union. In yesterday morning's paper and in the course of an article on the numerous cyclonic storms in the South, he remarked that "Fortunately New England is comparatively immune from such disastrous twisters," while on the front page of the same issue was a thrilling tale of the arrival of one of these twisters in person in the town of Berlin, N. H.

Well, an editor, like a ball player, has to hit the ball when it is being pitched, even if he does hit into a double play once in a while.

CORRECTED FIGURES

For the sake of the record and to prevent a misconception from becoming firmly established it is permissible to print some facts concerning the not-so-recent victory of Wisconsin. That victory has been seriously discounted in many quarters through representations made by the Jrys that it was principally due to Milwaukee country and that the major part of the state was, after all, dry.

These facts, then, are interesting. The wet majority came within 65 votes of 164,000. Only 69,000 of this majority came from Milwaukee county; the state, not counting that county, going wet by $5,000. The wets carried nine out of the eleven congressional districts in the state. They carried 25 out of 33 state senate districts. The wets carried 71 out of 100 assembly districts. Even on a county basis the wets won, carrying 40 out of 71 of these geographical divisions, losing only the sparsely populated ones.

SAVING SPACE

Space saving is as much a part of the economics of life in a great city as the providing of food and clothing. Yet when an architect hits on the device of putting the organ of a New York church into a pit under the sidewalk and the street he opened up a new field in the economizing of room. The tone comes through a series of vents. Now if they would only put all the apartment house radios into a similar cell—and forget the vents—there would probably be fewer people jumping out of tenth story windows in the big town.

VINDICATION

Baffled in its desire for self-purification and despairing of gaining a place among communities where law and order are reasonably maintained, Chicago has hit upon an alternative way of establishing herself in an enviable place among the cities of this fair land.

She is going to have for herself an office building much taller than any in New York or elsewhere in the world. It is to be seventy-five stories high with a beacon tower 125 topping the topmost of them.

Rockville

Orlowki-Rogalus Before a flower decked altar at St. Joseph's church at 9 o'clock this morning, Miss Anna Celio Rogalus, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Rogalus of 6 Becker Place and William Orlowki, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. William Orlowki of 54 Village street were united in marriage by Rev. Sigismund Worlneck, pastor of the church, with a nuptial high mass. Leonard's Mass in B was sung by the choir. The bride wore a gown of tulle and white tulle with a long white train and a white tulle veil.

The groomman was Charles Orlowki, brother of the groom and the ushers were Frank Stupinski of Collinsville, cousin of the bride, Theodore Labat of Manchester, and Joseph Orlowki, cousin of the groom.

The Emblem Club will meet Wednesday afternoon at the Elks Home on Prospect street, when the supreme president and other supreme officers will be guests of honor.

MOTHERS now learn value of MAGNESIA

Because it is so helpful in keeping babies and children healthy and happy, every mother should know about Phillips' Milk of Magnesia. This harmless, almost tasteless preparation is most effective in relieving those symptoms by which children generally caused by souring food in the little digestive tract, such as sour-belching, frequent vomiting, feverishness, colic, As a mild laxative, it acts gently, but certainly, to open the little bowels in constipation, colds, children's diseases.

RICH GIRL & POOR GIRL

by RUTH DEWEY GROVES

THIS HAS HAPPENED

MILDRED LAWRENCE falls in love with STEPHEN ARMSTRONG, who is lured away from her by FAMELA HUDSON when she tells him that Mildred is trying to marry her brother, HAROLD, for his money. Harold fears HUCK CONNOR because he holds a check which he forged. Huck is infatuated with Fameila, who plays him to make Stephen jealous. When Fameila maneuvers Stephen into an engagement, Huck frames him for the theft of an auto and causes his arrest. Pamela breaks up their engagement, but Mildred goes to see him in jail and promises help.

Harold had once confessed his fear of Huck to Mildred and said that he was going to "get Armstrong" to keep him from marrying Pamela. With this as a clew, she determines to force Harold to aid Stephen and is shocked to hear of his death—apparently accidental. Then she tells Stephen her suspicion, but they have no proof and things seem hopeless.

In desperation, Mildred goes to Pamela and tells her the story. Pamela sends her to MR. JUDSON, who is impressed by what she says and takes her to headquarters where she repeats her suspicions about Huck. Mr. Judson puts up half for Stephen's bail and Pamela goes to see him and asks forgiveness. She also plans her wedding and picks out her ring.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XXXVII

A few seconds before the shot that was meant to kill Mildred was fired, an incoming train disgorged its passengers for that station and the first of the stream, hurrying toward the street, saw her pitch forward in a headlong fall down the stairs.

One of them, a young man, with a sprig of carnation in his buttonhole, came forward to catch her. He succeeded in breaking the fall but they both went down together. Others came to his assistance, but in attempting to get Mildred on her feet they saw that she was unconscious.

By this time a guard had appeared upon the scene. He took instant and efficient command of the situation. The passengers, all but a few of the more cautious, went on their way, not one of them suspecting that the girl had been shot with but half an ear. A pistol shot, muffled as in this case, would be unheard except by those who happened to be at close range.

And Mildred's wound, he thought, although his nerves were unsteady and his shoulders jerked spasmodically in a queer twitching motion, had still enough command of her judgment to choose an instant that would give her the advantage when he pulled the trigger.

His right hand was on his side to the building. To anyone approaching from the rear he was hidden from view by the piled-up boxes. He would scarcely be noticed by anyone coming toward him as he faced the subway entrance, which would prevent him from being in the direct line of vision of all but those coming up to the street.

That was the chance he had to take, but abating a young girl or a busy New York street could not be without its hazards. The thing was to get her on a spot. He'd been told to pick the first opportunity. As there was no one near at the instant Mildred paused to get out her change, he decided the time was ripe to obey orders.

A Party Frock of Flowery Beauty

As delicately beautiful as a summer night is the coloring of this new party frock. It is fashioned of off-white faille taffeta, with its full, irregularly hemmed skirt faced in the most delicate green. A long spray of soft flowers falls down one side of the skirt where lavender, blue, green, pink and yellow petals glim softly against the frock's beauty in the faint green. The slippers are of green, too. The scarf is one of those changeable chiffon ones, with all the exquisite coloring of the flower spray in it. The frock follows the moulded silhouette, allowing great fullness for dancing but simulating the slender long lines that are so charmingly dignified on the very young.

TALL CEDARS PLAN BIG MINSTREL SHOW

The most elaborate presentation ever offered in this community is said by those in the know to describe the minstrel show to be given by Nutmeg Tribe, No. 116, Tall Cedars of Lebanon in the Circle theater, Friday evening, May 17.

A chorus of 31 voices will sing the latest song hits assisted by end men, soloists and dancers. Featuring the show will be seven vaudeville acts, of the highest order and talent in New England and guaranteed to go over big with the audience. The entire cast of 56 people will appear in the grand finale, the gorgeous effect of which is expected to exceed anything yet presented.

One nice thing about close buyers is that they're usually good pay.

The WOMAN'S DAY

by ALLENE SUMNER

Anne, the chosen beloved of Colonel Charles Augustus Lindbergh, has "nothing to say," either, when approached by reporters. She says it, infection for infection, just as her Augustus does. Which augurs well for the union. One cannot but observe that the spouses who echo the man of the house seem to get along rather well. Fortunate indeed is the young lady who, in this independent, individualistic age, can honestly echo all words and habits of her man. Perhaps it's an acquired technique.

WHY THEY KEEP 'EM

Speaking of marriage some more, here's Sybil Stokes, a former show girl, suing one Frank Kistler, described as a Denver oil millionaire, for $250,000 in damages of promise suit. She claims that she gave up her stage job to marry him and was jilted for another woman.

FOR EUROPE

Speaking of books some more, "Miss Wanderlust" asks for a list on Europe to begin reading and take with her on her trip. For her and all you lucky readers who are about to shake off the old dust for the new, I recommend—

FOR GRADUATES

And speaking of books some more, here's one of special interest for the girl graduate of these coming commencement days. "An Outline of Careers for Women" by Doris E. Fleischmann. Forty-five leading women in the business and professional world tell the girl who's wondering what'll she prepare to do, all about advertising, agriculture, personnel, social teaching, library, engineering, radio, and "anything, anything." It's really a really good book on vocations.

Daily Health Service

Hints on How to Keep Well by World Famous Authority

NO ONE CAN CURE RHEUMATISM BY TYING WIRE ABOUT HIS WRIST.

By DR. MORRIS FISHBEN, Editor Journal of the American Medical Association and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine.

There are as many cures for rheumatism as there are people with notions concerning the disease. Rheumatic complaints in the elderly are chronic. Such people tend to have periods of getting better and getting worse. As was mentioned in a previous article in this series, old people not infrequently can predict a change in the weather by the fact that the rheumatic joints hurt more than they did before; therefore they devise such strange cures for rheumatism as carrying buckeyes in the back pocket, tying a string around the leg, or putting a piece of copper wire around the waist.

As to their efficacy in the control of rheumatism, one of the cures is about as good as another, or to tell the truth—no good at all. The rheumatic infection brings about inflammation of the tissues, which must be controlled from within the body. The physician prescribes remedies which decrease the pain and lessen the inflammation and give what aid can be given through external influences.

Particularly interesting is the development of quackery in relation to magic of this type. Everyone knows about the old-time electric belts that used to be used for the treatment of rheumatism. They have practically disappeared from the American scene.

YOUR CHILDREN

by Olive Roberts Barton
©1928 by NEA Service, Inc.

In the "Mikado" they sing a comical song about making the punishment at the crime. Something I believe, about boiling in oil. When the children misbehave aren't we likely to pay too much attention to the crime, and too little attention to the motive behind the act?

Consider the Motive. Sometimes we think a certain law is all wrong—that it is unjust to expect us to do or not to do a certain thing, because other people say so. Often we feel justified in stepping over the line and suiting ourselves. That justification we call motive. There are

FLAPPER FANNY SAYS

It's sometimes tough to get the reputation for being what you really are.

SENSE and NONSENSE

What's in a Name? I knew a man named Early And he was always late, And Joy was always surly, And Love was full of hate, And Brown he was the greenest Of all men I ever knew. And Good he was the meanest, And White was always blue, And Stout was lean and lanky, And Short was rather tall, And Merryman, the cranky, And sourest man of all. The sickest man was Weller, And the healthiest man was Payne. Why try to tell a feller By his title or his name? There's a little lesson in it, Which is why I tell the yarn; You can see it in a minute— It's as big as any barn— Name is not an indication That you'll get so very far, No, your final reputation All depends on what you are.

Greed. The world never dreads of "slamming" the greedy man. A Connecticut newspaper, in speaking of a deceased citizen, said: "We knew him as Old Ten Per cent, the more he had the less he spent; the more he got the less he lent; he's dead—we don't know where he went—but if his soul to heaven is sent, he'll own the harp and charge them rent."

On a seeking party it is always best to take several so that you are sure to find one in a humor, advises Cleve. But 'spose it turned out that all of 'em were in the humor. You'd be in a harem of a fix.

I understand that some of the new model cars displayed at the automobile show have rados on the dash, and if this is true, I look for a big slump in the automobile business, and I expect many people to return to the horse and buggy. As soon as they get a radio in every room of every hotel, I will sleep in a tent when I go anywhere, and as soon as they get a radio in every room of every hospital, I will not have any more operations and will get along with the few I have had already. I like the radio all right, but intemperance is not one of my weaknesses.

The feminine leg has become the standard sign in advertising for the circulation. "Stop! Look! Listen!" supplanting entirely the old index hand. The reader, thumbing through a magazine, sees a shapely pair of legs, and of course he stops and peruses the adjacent print, usually finding it concerns Timken bearings, asbestos fire stops, structural steel, high pressure piston rings, or Velvet smoking tobacco.

"Mother, I want to get married." "No, my dear, you are not wise enough." "When shall I be wise enough?" "When you get over the idea that you want to get married."

The principal difference between the old-fashioned girl and the modern sweetie is the upkeep.

There is always time enough for kindness.

LETTER GOLF

A MARKET BASKET may sound like a peculiar golf device, but it makes an interesting game. Far is four and one solution is on another page.

MARKET BASKET grid with letters M, A, R, K, E, T, B, A, S, K, E, T

THE RULES. 1—The idea of Letter Golf is to change one word to another and do it in part, a given number of strokes. Thus to change 'OW to HEN, in three strokes, COW, HOW, HEW, HEN. 2—You change only one letter at a time. 3—You must have a complete word of common usage for each jump. Slang words and abbreviations don't count. 4—The order of letters cannot be changed. One solution is printed on another page.

The Federal Radio Commission reports a vast accumulation of "fan" mail, which it wants to destroy. It probably includes a lot of "pan" mail, too.

Time might never have learned to fly had not some one made a note at the bank.

Writing for a living is one of the surest ways of starving to death.

THE TINYMIES

(READ THE STORY, THEN COLOR THE PICTURE) The Goofygoog laughed loud and long. Said he, "On shore's where you belong, and now that I have rescued you, you'd better build a blaze. Your clothes, it seems, are soaking wet. If you're not careful you will get a chilling cold, and it might last for days, and days, and days. "Too many tots let such things go, and then the first thing they know they're sick in bed. "Is better, far, to take care of your health. As long as you do as you should, you'll have your health and feel real good. I'd rather have fine feeling, lads, than all the world-wide wealths," said all the world-wide wealths. "He's Right," said Scouty. "we'll be sick if we don't build a fire real quick and dry the clothes that we have on. Let's all get busy now. Bring on some wood and pile it high. Then, when it's set to flicker I will make a spark with two big stones. A Boy Scout knows just how." Scouty said, "Well, lads, here goes," and lit the fire to dry their clothes. When they were dry, went Carry cried, "I have a dandy plan. We broke the hornet's nest, you see. 'Twould be as nice as it could be for us to build another one. I'm very sure we can." Nearby they found some bits of wood and built a nest as best they could. Then Coppy climbed a tree and put it in the tree. And then they heard a buzzing near, and Scouty said, "Well, look who's here!" The Tinties looked and promptly saw a great big bumble bee. "Now don't be scared," the bee cried out. "I am your friend, without a doubt. I saw you build that hornet's nest, and now, if you don't mind, I'll give you honey you can eat, and you will find it a treat. This comb of honey's what you get for being very kind."

PHONES Pinehurst "GOOD THINGS TO EAT"

HIGH COMPLEXIONED BUTTER.
 Perhaps you don't know it, but there are fashions in butter color. In some sections of the country they like it with plenty of make-up on so to speak. Hereabouts, practically everybody likes "blonde" butter—that is, butter with very little color to it.
 Now the other day there came into this territory a car of rolled butter that should have been shipped to another part of the country where they like it good and yellow. Pinehurst got hold of some of it, and so did Pinehurst's customers. It was perfect butter—but oh, so yellow! And so some of Pinehurst's customers kicked. Which was good and right on their part.
 So, out went the whole batch. Let them as likes it have it! We have a spang new lot, of the right color—and no more of the high make-up variety. At the same price, 45 cents.
 Meat Department proclaims the presence of a beautiful lot of the finest kind of Sirloin Steaks—some of them small. All the way from one and a quarter to two pounds.
 Also a special on Sausage Meat at 29 cents a pound.
 No delay, today, with four phones working. Call 2000. Deliveries all day.
