Eighteen years ago today the United States treasury invited bids for $50,000,000 worth of bonds to complete construction of the Panama Canal.

The total cost of this gigantic work was approximately $335,000,000, but $118,000,000 of this was written off to national defense, since it represented the cost of military features which would not have been necessary to make the canal merely commercially valuable to the nation.

The canal was opened for navigation Aug. 15, 1914. It is a little more than 50 land miles long; the minimum depth of the channel is 41 feet and in parts of Gatun lake is about 80 feet. A five-mile-wide strip of land flanking the canal was purchased by the United States from Panama for $10,000,000, plus an annual rental of $250,000.

Since the opening of the canal, tolls have totaled nearly $30,000,000. About three times as much cargo moves from the Pacific to the Atlantic as in the opposite direction. Sugar from Hawaii and oil from California account for this.

The results of the annual speaking and spelling contests were: First place in speaking went to Ruth Belcher of Pond Hill school; second place, Gladys McKinnery. The first recited "If" and the latter "Opportunity." In spelling a South Coventry young lady took the honor with Betty Blackburn coming in second place.

The children are selling tickets fast, so it bids fair to see the Grange hall crowded Friday evening to witness "Nora Mixing In."

Mrs. Henry Lord will be welcomed by all as she acts the part of "Nora." Proceeds will go toward prizes for the tent caterpillar contest.

Sturdiness and simplicity distinguish this suite, which, with its excellent proportions and restrained detail, creates a decided impression of dignity and richness. The finish is medium Colonial red mahogany which pleasingly emphasizes the beautiful grains. The unique four-poster bed, the ball feet, the detached mirror of the dresser, the quaint vanity dresser, the spacious chest—all lend a pleasing note of the eighteenth century. A suite of this type will endure in its good taste as long as furniture is used. The price is far below what this suite should really sell for.

COMPLICATIONS
It would not be surprising if complications arose from an experiment of a brand new kind which is being ventured on by the park authorities of New York City.

NEWS
A gnu having been added to the Bronx Zoo's collection, the funders are having a wonderful time. One New York newspaper writer winds up a series of verbal stunts by saying "the new gnu knew it."

OUT OF GOOD INTENT
The ghastly catastrophe of the little clinic in Cleveland, where a hundred lives were snuffed out by poison gas emanating from burning X-ray films, is a horror so stupendous and so unforeseen as to baffle comment.

that mankind can be brought to actual realization of such hazards. Whatever else may come out of this ghastly thing, it is not likely to be forgotten that the disaster was the outgrowth of a splendid purpose and of a desire for personal gain.

CRIMINAL REPORTERS
Every respectable and self-respecting newspaper worker will hope that the two reporters of the New York Daily News who were sentenced to three months' imprisonment for breaking into the dormitory room of Walter Huntington, victim of the Windsor tragedy, will not escape punishment through appeal.

We are aware that there is a widespread impression to the contrary, created by playwrights, fictionists and the movies, who make their reporter characters do all sorts of unjustifiable things in order to "get the story" and then receive encomiums and increases of salary at the newspaper office.

QUEEN IDEA
The State Police of the Ridgefield and Westport Barracks seems to have a curious notion. They are laboring under the impression that the automobile laws are intended to be enforced when violated, not merely when somebody is killed or somebody's automobile is demolished.

CATCHING UP
The South is catching up. The War of the Rebellion was fought because that section persisted in adhering to sociological and economic ideas that belonged to a period—a full century earlier. Now, in the matter of dealing with labor troubles, it proceeds after methods considered quite clever and up-to-date in the North along about 1875.

that certain definite responsibilities as well as certain definite rights and powers accrue to the employers of numbers of human beings. Surely the South is gaining in knowledge. But somewhat slowly; somewhat slowly!

WOW! WOW!
For several days we have been reading, with considerable sympathy, indignant protests by publishers and booksellers at the booksellers' convention in Boston, aimed at the book-of-the-month clubs.

THE BURDENS OF RICHES
We are able to maintain an unruffled calm in the presence of the fact that France has agreed to forego the $10 visa fee for American tourists passports; can understand this news being greeted by some persons with transports of delight, but it means nothing to us.

THE DIFFERENT KINDS OF ALCOHOL.

An article of which I recently wrote on wood alcohol blindness has brought many letters in reply. It seems that since prohibition in the United States there has been more interest taken in alcohol, and for some reason my readers want to know how to distinguish the different kinds between pure grain alcohol and wood alcohol which produces blindness and paralysis.

Daily WASHINGTON LETTER

Washington, May 16—The only lady in Washington who is driven around in a flivver by a liveried chauffeur is Mrs. Ava Long, the housekeeper of the White House. The flivver is new and shiny and, with the chauffeur in the driver's seat, stands out almost like a purple and yellow fire truck.

Mrs. Alice Longworth's refusal to show up at the recent dinner party thrown by the Eugene Meyers because of the precedence accorded to Mrs. Edward Everett Gann, sister and hostess of Vice President Curtis, was something of a revelation to those who know the famous Alice only by reputation.

IN NEW YORK

New York, May 15—The world. Performers, imported to the Chinese theater, which occupies one of the oldest and most tumble-down quarters in the lower Broadway belt, all the traditions of the playhouse—as known to the American—are violated by customs centuries old.

Each district in Manhattan provides its own particular theatrical favorites, for that matter, and is jealous of intrusion from the outside. Only within the past year have the up-towners discovered the pride of the East Side—Molly Picon—who never fails to attract vast crowds of neighborhood folk to her theater on Second Avenue. A diminutive comedienne, reminiscent of the hoyden tradition in musical show ingenues, Miss Picon performs her comic stunts in the best Yiddish of her East Side following. Still, her reputation has outgrown her theater and Broadway has made a number of unsuccessful bids for her. Recently it was hinted that the talking pictures might succeed in securing her for a limited engagement.

at least three years ago, and I recall seeing him in a revue out in a Harlem neighborhood playhouse about that time. The Bronx held the Schickels close to its heart and the senior Schickel was operating a successful little art theater before the films had ever heard of his little boy, Joe, who is quite an up-and-coming feature of the cinema today. Maurice Schwartz is another product of the Yiddish art theater movement figures to gain a general Manhattan following. GILBERT SWAN.

SCIENTISTS EVOLVE PLANT NOVELTIES

New York.—A group of scientists at the New York Botanical Garden in Bronx Park have contributed their share in giving the farmer, the manufacturer and the consumer a helping hand.

Here at the garden a new seedless grape has been successfully grown for commercial purposes; a new species of poplar tree, which grows very fast and is suitable for pulpwood, has been raised, and new beautiful day lilies and other flowering plants have been developed.

Research now under way includes the studying of pollen grains in relation to hay fever and similarities of the structure and effects of pollens of related plants. This work is in the hands of Dr. Roger F. Wodehouse.

Dr. A. B. Stout is in charge of various plant breeding and heredity investigations. He has plenty of material from which to work, as the laboratories and herbarium contain more than 1,000,000 specimens of American and foreign plants.

It was here that a graduate student perfected the process of making puffed wheat and rice, and it is here that the outcome of the study of the effect of radium on plants is being watched carefully.

"No amount of book learning," says Dr. Forman T. McLean, supervisor of public education at the garden, "can equal the experience of seeing and studying the living plants themselves, and learning about them through direct contact under trained guidance."

An idea of the research study taken here is shown in a list of nature's works the scientists study. Their observations include native trees, shrubs and vines and how they can be recognized by their leaves, besides ferns and mosses and their life histories.

In addition, they study the economic plants of other lands and their products. All these observations are carefully tabulated and the plants classified.

Howard Leonard, and David Porter, sons of Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Porter, went with the Marlborough Y. M. C. A. celebration held in Plainville Tuesday evening.

Mrs. J. Hannaway, Mr. and Mrs. Helen Hannaway and children, Roberts and Paul, were visitors at the home of Mrs. F. N. Jones on Sunday.

Trumbull Burnham and son, T. G. Burnham, of Willimantic, called on friends here recently. Mr. Burnham and son were former residents of this town.

The violet season, which is just beginning to wane, has been unusually rich here this spring. In many places on the lawns and by the roadsides the grass has been a riot of blue, and the blossoms have been unusually large and fine in color. Motorists have asked permission to gather bouquets, and children have gathered them in masses. A bouquet of them at St. Peter's church last Sunday was much admired. It was placed at the litany desk, and was almost a foot in diameter.

Truman C. Ives was taken out doors on Monday, where he stayed several hours, enjoying the warm sunshine and pleasant air. He is making good progress in his fight for health but has to remain in the frame in a recumbent position for some months longer, at least.

The Standby Club members have just held their annual spring meet at their club house near the Marlborough line.

Mr. and Mrs. Kirk Kyle and daughters, Mary and Ruth, of Plainville, also James Quinn of Manchester, and Aleck White of Gilead, were dinner guests at the home of Mrs. Helen White recently.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter F. Jones have moved from the place owned by Miss Daisy White on Jones street, and are now living with Mr. Jones' grandfather, Ben Jones.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Hawley White of New Haven have moved into the Allyn place on Burrroughs Hill.

Mrs. Harlan G. Hills of Hampton was a recent visitor at the home of Mrs. Helen White.

HARMONY HOUSE

can give your home many an idea for its decoration

WHOEVER plans a new home or seeks to bring new charm and comfort to their present one will find a wealth of practical suggestions in the clever rooms of Harmony House, on our fourth floor. Here you will see displayed lovely fabrics hung in ways to make windows more striking... harmonious new color effects and floor treatments... engaging furniture arrangements! Nor are these rooms by any means expensive.

The Hallway Extends a Cordial Welcome to the Guest

This hallway illustrates what wise selection and placing of furniture can do for the atmosphere and livableness of your own. The main piece is a William and Mary flat top highboy in burl walnut, with brasses copied from the original. Over the brown mahogany Pembroke table hangs a reproduction of an 18th century mirror in mahogany and gold leaf. The side table, right, is of Duncan Phyfe influence with his much loved lyre motif employed in its base; the two ladder back rush seat chairs are very fine copies of an old model. The Sheraton console table on the stair landing lends an authentic note to the room's oldtime air. A grandfather clock in dark red mahogany stands in one of the hall's corners, to echo its mellow tones thru the whole home. Light is furnished by two lovely pewter lamps, brightened with cut crystal prisms. The woodwork of old ivory and the soft sepia of the scenic paper makes a pleasing contrast for the wine, blue, rose and green tones of the rug.

A Capable Furnishing Service for You

The same skill and resources that decorated Harmony House can be yours... for YOUR home, to make it more satisfying in its comfort and charm. The services of our two able decorators are, of course, yours for the asking... there is no charge whatever.

MOST ACCIDENTS DUE TO 8 FAULTS

Traffic Experts Tell What Causes the Majority of Crashes These Days.

St. Louis—If a motorist becomes so entranced by the sight of a pretty girl on the sidewalk that he suddenly finds himself jammed headlong into another car or a lamppost, he has no right to drive an automobile, thinks L. D. Stephens, general manager of the Traffic Syndicate Bureau here and one of the foremost traffic authorities in America.

It is such diversion as this that induces what he terms "self-hypnotism"—a strange mental malady to which three per cent of the country's traffic accidents may be ascribed. The only remedy for this disease, Stephens believes, is withdrawal of the driver's license—provided there is a driver's license law in the state.

Stephens used to be a plumber here until one day he nearly lost his life at a railroad crossing. That interested him so in the effort to unravel traffic problems that he gave up plumbing and now travels about the country helping cities devise better systems of traffic.

Two Faults—Half Toll

As a result of his studies, he finds there are eight fundamental causes for traffic accidents, one of which is "self-hypnotism." The proposed remedies are:

1. Absentmindedness. This, in drivers of all classes, causes 24 per cent of all motor accidents.

Remedy—use of signals directly in line of vision.

2. Ignorance. This includes those who have no knowledge of traffic conditions, made up for the most part of children, and causes 23 per cent of all accidents. Remedy—education.
3. General obstructions, such as bad paving, narrow streets, ditches, bad corners. These cause 16 per cent of accidents. Remedy—correct engineering.
4. Reckless driving. Causes 14 per cent of the accidents. Remedy—heavy fines and penalties.
5. Physical handicaps, such as heart trouble, epilepsy, nervousness and similar failings. These bring 11 per cent of all traffic accidents. Remedy—refuse license.
6. Inexperience, including drivers with lack of driving sense and those with low mentality. Causes seven per cent of the accidents. Remedy—withdraw license until qualified.
7. Diseases of the eye, such as cataracts, glaucoma, etc. Causes two per cent of the accidents. Remedy—refuse license.

The cure for the greatest number of accidents, brought on by cause by the tendency to train the first three causes listed, Stephens points out, is education and proper traffic engineering. He sees a great falling off of the first three causes if the child for the traffic of the city streets while he is still in school.

The second and third causes also will not be so rampant, he believes, if the child is properly placed directly in the driver's line of vision and when better highways and streets are built.

Marked Highways Help

One of the most important endeavors in this direction is proper marking of highways. Moving or flashing electric signals on the side of the road, or properly placed lights in the center, are effective. Marking of pedestrian crossings and auto lanes, as well as spelling out signs on the road directly in front of the approaching driver, also help reduce the traffic toll.

Stephens is especially interested in the operation of the modern three-light traffic signals at intersections, which in his opinion will be a device of this sort patented by a butcher of Oklahoma City. The butcher was J. A. Grogt, from whom Stephens bought the patent and went into the traffic light business.

Grogt has made more money out of his device than he would out of his butcher trade, and Stephens isn't sorry he quit plumbing either.

How the Highway Inspector Can Help

By ISRAEL KLEIN, Science Editor, NEA Service.

Since most of us like to drive faster than what is considered the healthiest point for the motorist and in fact the car as a whole, we should not expect the economy and length of life from our cars that might be advertised for it or that other slower and more considerate drivers get out of it.

But there are other ways, too, in which we may drive a car speedily to its destruction. One of these, perhaps the most important, is our ways of driving in traffic.

In some of the larger cities of the country, traffic signals on the important boulevards are timed so that one can drive down its entire length at a normal speed without stopping once. The rate of speed varies from 15 miles an hour to 30.

If a motorist drives at the speed set by the signal system—and he can quickly tell what that is—he will have no occasion to shift gears and his steady rate will mean the minimum of gasoline usage as well as the least possible strain on the moving parts of the car. This is the most economical method of driving through traffic.

Yet there are some drivers who are impatient. They must speed up to get ahead of the steady driver in front. So they stop and start again, they slow up and speed up, they apply the brakes and shift gears—all of which is costly not only to the motorist but to the car itself.

A car driven in low gear uses up more gasoline than one driven in intermediate. And one driven in second uses more fuel than one driven in high. The reason is that the lower the gear, the faster the motor, and the faster the motor, the more fuel is used up by it.

It is therefore advisable, if a driver has to shift gears, to go through first and second gears quickly in order to get into high gear. First gear requires merely a push of the car, second gear is meant for its acceleration to the lowest point at which third gear can take it up. The sooner the driver gets into high the better it is for the motor and for the pocketbook.

There are drivers who speed up the motor to a faster rate than is necessary to shift gears. That means not only a waste of fuel but difficulty in getting the gears to mesh. A little experience should enable drivers to tell exactly what speed of the motor is necessary to bring the gears to mesh in first, second or high, without putting undue strain on the engine.

The best way to shift gears economically and most effectively is to press the right foot down on the throttle gradually as the left foot is released from the clutch pedal. Thus the motor is eased into con-

SEAMLESS STEEL CAR

George J. Mercer, chairman of the body division of the Society of Automotive Engineers, believes that the all-steel seamless automobile is coming. "Eventually it will be made without joints," he says, "and it will have less squeaks after use than when it is new."

ROBOT GAS VENDER

A mechanical gas pump, of the nickel-in-the-slot variety, is shortly to be placed on the market by one of the leading oil companies. The pump works like any other coin-vending machine.

CITY ELIMINATES MEXICO'S RED TAPE

Laredo, Texas, Chamber of Commerce Does Everything to Help Autoists.

Laredo, Texas.—This city, "The Gateway to Mexico," is getting ready for an extensive run of tourists across the border.

Through its chamber of commerce, Laredo has paved the way for motorists, enabling them to be freed from the waste of time required in securing passports and bonds.

Until June, 1928, it was necessary for a tourist to get three passport photographs and take out a regular passport from the Mexican consul. In addition, he was not allowed to tour through Mexico unless he had his car bonded.

Through the efforts of the Laredo Chamber of Commerce, however, this red tape has been eliminated. An agreement with the Mexican immigration and customs departments calls for the issuance to all tourists who are able to identify themselves, of a letter of identification, to the immigration and customs authorities, good for a limited time. On presentation of this letter to Mexican officials the tourist gets a permit to enter Mexico.

In addition to the official papers, the chamber of commerce furnishes the tourist with stickers, written in Spanish, notifying Mexican officials of his tourist status.

A log of the road from Laredo to Monterrey is also furnished tourists by the chamber of commerce.

The same system occupied on this side of the border for permitting Americans to enter Mexico is also used on the other side to enable Mexicans to enter and tour the United States.

control of the car and the dead weight behind is easier to get out of its state of inertia. Second should be applied the same way, while high gear doesn't require so much care in meshing.

There is a speed at which the motor uses up the minimum of fuel. This isn't the lowest possible speed at which it can be kept running—the idling speed. At idling speed the motor does not use all the gasoline injected into it and therefore chokes up if idled too long.

Therefore, while waiting for a signal to change, or for some other reason, it is best to run the motor slightly faster than idling, so that all the fuel sent into it will be burned. The idling rate can be speeded up mechanically so that all the fuel sent into it will be burned. The idling rate can be speeded up mechanically so that the driver needn't remember this every time he stops.

Out-of-town telephone calls are really as clear as calls to your next door neighbor. This makes it a real pleasure to keep in touch with out-of-town friends and members of the family too, who are away. So clearly is speech carried by the telephone nowadays that none of the sincerity or personality of the speaker is lost, regardless of distance!

That's why the out-of-town telephone call plays such an important part in the social life of the nation!

TWITCHING GIRL POOKS

By RUTH DEWEY GROVES

THIS HAS HAPPENED

MILDRED LAWRENCE falls in love with STEPHEN ARMITAGE, who is lured away by PAMELA TUBSON when she tells him MILROLD is trying to marry her brother, HAROLD, for money. Harold fears HUCK CONNOR, who is blackmailing him over a forged check. Huck is infatuated with Pamela, and when she announces her engagement to Stephen, frames him for the theft of an auto and causes his arrest. Pamela drops Stephen, but Mildred tries to get him out of jail.

Harold had once told her he feared Huck, who had threatened to get rid of Stephen to keep him from marrying Pamela. Mildred determines to force Harold to help her, and is shocked to hear of his present suicide. She tells Stephen her suspicions but they have no proof. Finally she goes to HUCK TUBSON, who takes her to headquarters to tell her story.

Mildred tells Stephen out and Pamela begs forgiveness. On the way from the jail to the hotel he narrowly escapes being shot by a hoodlum. He reports to Mr. Judson and is horrified to learn that Mildred had been wounded by a gangster shot. His concern over her causes Judson to doubt his love for Pamela and he forbids his daughter to marry her man. She reminds him that she has her money but he bought her two dresses. She mentions. Convinced that she loves Stephen, the father gives in.

Next day Pamela surprises Stephen by taking him to call on Mildred, where she announces that they are to be married right away and leave for an African honeymoon.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XLV

Everyone in the room except Connie was surprised at what Stephen said to Mildred.

"May I wish you happiness?" he asked in a low, strained voice.

Mildred looked up at him questioning. His troubled eyes, which she thought, seemed vainly trying to light an inward tumult.

"Why?" she said. "... and those eyes stopped. Could he have guessed? Did he know that every fibre of her being was reaching out to him on the impulse to keep him from going away with Pamela—forever? Was he sorry for her, wishing that he might some day find a happiness as great as his own?"

She drew herself up stiffly.

"I told him," Connie broke in and looked triumphantly at Pamela, "that you're engaged to Tommy Mitchell."

"Tommy Mitchell..." Mildred began but Connie stopped her from saying she never heard of him.

"Oh, I know I was a bit premature," the younger girl exclaimed hastily. "But you're going to be Tommy's wife, aren't you?"

Mildred relaxed suddenly and sank back in her chair.

Pamela spoke up accusingly.

"You've allowed me to tell you about Stephen and myself and you never spilled a word," Stephen either." She turned to her fiance and regarded him closely.

"Thank goodness he's too dumb to see through that trick," she thought, not at all taken in by Connie's fabrication.

Mrs. Lawrence was readjusted speechless.

Stephen did not stir until Mildred put up a hand and murmured, "Thank you."

Pamela glanced impatiently at her wristwatch before Stephen realized Mildred's cold little fist.

"Come along, Steve, darling," she called out impatiently, "we're going down to the steamship office, you know."

Mildred drew her hand away.

"Goodbye," she said through lips that she could not quite keep from trembling. "Bon voyage."

"It's too early for that," Stephen answered quickly.

Mildred looked over at Pamela.

"You must engage passage in advance," that determined young lady remarked with much firmness.

Mildred's going to Bermuda—Tommy said, "Connie put it."

"Connie!"

"The first gave Stephen a wrench and Mildred thought of the second with a pang.

They looked at each other helplessly, their hearts in their throats. At least Connie was disposing of Mildred as far as Stephen was concerned.

She went away with Pamela, fully believing that one Tommy Mitchell was the luckiest man in the world.

"Well, I'm glad that Mildred is going to be married. Doesn't she look happy?" Pamela exclaimed when they were downstairs. "You'll have to help me choose a wedding present for her."

Stephen was eloquently silent.

Connie in the Lawrence flat there was plenty of eloquence at the moment but it was most certainly not.

"Connie, what do you mean by telling such a story about her? You'll see what you get!" she said furiously. "You should have taken her when you had the chance while he was in jail and then dropped him down the nearest manhole. But no, you must be noble and bring them together again. Well, I've no sympathy for you. You must have known that Pamela would act like this!"

defensively. "Pamela doesn't know anything." Connie snorted. "She doesn't! Oh, how I'm laughing! That boob Stephen is the only one who doesn't know that you're nuts about him!"

"Please," Connie stormed on, "please let her keep right on hurting you—the Chinese brigand—just because she's the high and mighty Miss Judson and we're no bodies. And don't tell me I have an inferiority complex, either. It's you and not me who have when you won't shut up at that white-livered pussy cat..."

"Now Connie..."

"Don't now me," Connie raged on when her mother tried to quiet her. "Mildred told me all about it. She knows I think she's my fool. Trying to convince me she went to Mr. Judson just to get Stephen out of jail. What good does it do her, I'd like to know, to have him out? He ran straight back to his mama with the sugar plums!"

Suddenly Mildred put her face down on her knees and burst into uncontrollable weeping.

"See what you've done now," Mrs. Lawrence cried and rushed over to Mildred's side and hugged her and brushed her with her face buried in a pillow sobbing out her bruised young heart.

She believed she'd saved Mildred's pride and her achievement wasn't appreciated. Anyway, if that wasn't enough to cry over, she had to release the floodgates of sympathy for her sister that had been locked up in her heart since she first discovered Mildred's secret.

Her mother came to her presently and lifted her head from the wet pillow, holding it against her bosom while she gently stroked the damp curls back from the tear-stained face.

"There, there, baby," she soothed tenderly. "Mildred wants you, honey, just sit with her while it fits a bit of lunch."

She leaned over and pressed her lips to the smooth young cheek that lay uppermost. She was feeling each pang of her suffering twain, knowing the heartaches exactly as she knew them.

"Mother," Connie cried chokingly. "Why did it have to happen to Mildred? She isn't hard boiled like... like me. Can't you just imagine how gloriously happy she'd have been with Stephen?"

"Yes, dear, yes. But let's do all we can for her. Don't say any more about him."

"I won't," Connie promised.

Stephen was not mentioned again in that household for several days.

But in another quarter his name was the chief topic of conversation for a heated half hour.

The gunmen Huck had sent to do his killing were on the carpet for the second time. Huck couldn't seem to get enough of cursing them.

Finally the man with the injured wrist rebelled. "Aw, cut the spiel," he said sullenly. "You ain't crippled for life and you still got your dough."

Huck suddenly snapped his lips together and his black eyes snapped. He reached into an inside pocket and brought out a billfold. From it he extracted a thousand-dollar bill which he spread out on the table before him.

"That's for the man who gets Armitage," he said quietly.

The gunmen regarded it greedily.

Huck touched a bell. A big burly fellow in a spotted white apron answered his ring.

"Tell Duke I want to see him," Huck barked.

The waiter slipped out quietly and in a few minutes Duke Brogan appeared in the doorway.

Huck waved his hand toward a chair. Duke came in and sat down.

Huck picked up the bill from the table and handed it to him.

"You will pay this over to the man that bumps off Armitage," he said tersely.

Duke rolled the bill into a ball and tucked it into his vest pocket. Then he leaned forward and said to Huck: "Better add a century for Snifty."

Huck started. Then he looked at the other two men. "Wait outside," he said shortly.

They got up and went out.

"That little rat's been squawkin' over the bestin' you give him," Duke told Huck. "It was a fool thing to do, Connor."

"Damn him," Huck gritted.

"I told you to get the girl alone," Duke retorted. "A thing like that struts up too much public sentiment. 'It was a break for you that Snifty muffed it. But you don't want him-yapping.' Better get the boys outside to take him for a ride."

Huck nodded and dug out a hundred-dollar bill. "Call them in," he said and Duke went over to the door to summon the men.

Huck gave the hundred-dollar bill to the man who had driven the taxicab from which the shot was fired at Frean and told him what he wanted done.

"And don't lose any time," he added coldly.

The man nodded and went out.

"Wait," Huck said to the other two. "That bandaged arm will land you in str if any bull that knows you lumps it."

"Aw, I gotta get down to Daisy," the other answered. "I got my own plan to pass the time in. You don't see me here long enough. Daisy won't stand for it."

Huck disregarded Daisy. "Frean's got you tagged, you yep," he said fiercely.

"How'n I gonna knock off this guy Armitage?" the other came back.

"You'll have to wait. And you'll let Capper do the shooting."

"Hell, I can plug straighter with my left than Capper can with his right."

do you any good until you get the bandages off that arm. If Capper gets an earlier chance, it's his."

"That crook wouldn't split straight," the other grumbled.

The man left, grumbling audibly. Duke stayed on and Huck ordered whiskey and soda.

He noticed that Duke was uneasy. He seemed to be trying to lead up to something. After he had chewed his cigar to a rag Huck asked what he had on his mind.

"I'll tell you," Duke answered. "I've got some bad news for you."

Hints On How To Keep Well by World Famous Authority

BY DR. MORRIS FISHERHAIN, Editor Journal of the American Medical Association and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine.

Long before the establishment of the modern science of pharmacology with a knowledge of the specific actions of various drugs, old women picked herbs in the fields for the relief of human ailments and doctors developed combinations of remedies for the attack on disease.

In the middle ages the healers developed a prescription called "theriac." This was a shotgun remedy supposed to aid every possible disorder. Some of the theriacs had hundreds of ingredients, including the by-products of many animals, reptiles and human beings. Usually, these preparations were nauseating as to odor, impossible as to taste, and indeed not infrequently terrible in color.

The whole idea behind the use of medicine that was so foul was the belief that the heat of disease could not exist in the same human being with the medicine. One is reminded of the fact that the invasion of a residence by the little black and white striped animal so obnoxious to human beings is almost invariably followed promptly by the departure of all the human beings.

The next step in the concoction of strong medicines was to put in invariably had a kick—a kick that could be felt within a few minutes and which made the individual believe that something definite was being done for him. The taking of such medicines gave a feeling of warmth and of stimulation which, in the patient and helped considerably in controlling his disorder.

Nevertheless, these remedies were not specific in any sense of the word, since they had no color had not been found of specific virtue in the control of any disease. Modern scientific medicine therefore administers its drugs not infrequently in small tablets or in capsules or in pleasant tasting mixtures and in a form so simple reason that the remedy is given to produce a definite physical effect and not primarily for the mental effect.

A drug such as digitalis invariably brightens its beat; antipyrine, such as phenacetin and aspirin, lower the fever; the analgesics, like pyramidal and acetanilid, stop pain; the sedatives, like the bromides and barbiturates, induce sleep and encourage sleep; the anesthetics, like ether, chloroform and ethylene, make people unconscious. These scientifically established remedies, which do not depend on odor or taste or quality, have actual effects.

UNUSUAL BLOUSE

The egg-shell crepe blouse that tucks into a midnight blue suit has its batteau neck finished in a one-inch standing collar of the satin side of the crepe and four one-inch bands of the satin applied around the cuff puff of the sleeve.

KNEE FLOUNCES

Tiers and flounces are posed lower on skirts than they were. A leaf print in beige, navy blue and orange has its circular flounce from the knee. The flounce has severe princess lines, with flaring cuffs and collar.

CLOTH BUTTONS

Button molds, covered with goods are very good now. A pink beige tart crepe has houbie down of self-covered buttons up and down the front and back of its fitted waist and skirt yokes. The sleeves have double rows of the same.

BRIDESMAIDS' FROCKS

Pastel colored silk net, over flowered taffeta makes stunning bridesmaid frocks for a formal wedding. Hats of horsehair braid match the silk net.

SUMMER PURSES

Printed linens, silks and even glaghams now make inexpensive and attractive purses for summer. The smartest of them have modernistic mountings in wood.

The WOMAN'S DAY

by ALLEN B. SUGGS

Hear the pathetic tale of Madame X to endure food or sunlight or Berthelot Jaubert and her poor air.

Our civilization has been advanced as much by men and women of wealth who made that wealth their job as by scientists concentrating their lives to laboratories, test tubes in order that other human beings might live longer and more happily.

This legacy was the very last straw, for it seems that their woes began about a year ago when another tragically rich relative left them a fortune of some $10,000,000. Maybe it was a trap, but any way the sum total is a right smart sum.

So here they are, two harmless, simple women, burdened with a fortune of $22,000,000, and complaining that life can never again be the same.

They tell of the thousands of begging letters they receive, of the demands made upon their time by real estate men wanting to sell them winter and summer homes, of the people wanting to sell them yachts and champagne and jewels and automobiles.

Life has become an intolerable burden, they complain, almost cursing the relatives who left them the white elephants of the two fortunes.

DIDN'T LOOK ENOUGH.

London.—The American flapper is reforming. Sir Charles Higham, recently returned from a trip to the states, says: "The shingle is out of fashion and I saw no bare knees in New York. American girls do not flirt. The glad eye has disappeared. Every girl in New York seems to own a fur coat. Sir Charles had a good word for our liquor; a statement that: "The liquor is as good in New York, as in London and seems more plentiful."

AND HIS ONLY PAIR

SUNNY JIM: I see you've got your golf socks on today. WEAR'Y WILLIE: What do yer mean, golf socks? SUNNY JIM: Oh, just the 12-hole variety. — Table Talk, Melbourne.

THE BETTER HALF

Pastor: Is that whiskey? Bootlegger: Yes, but half of it belongs to my friend Jack. Pastor: Pour your half away. Bootlegger: I can't—my half is in the bottom of the bottle.—Lustige Blaetter, Berlin.

LIKE FATHER.

Father: Why were you kept in at school? Son: I didn't know where the Azores were. Father: In the future just remember where you put things.—Le Rire.

IT'S A WEAKNESS.

After all, the inability to stand money symbolizes constitutional fault as much as the physical inability to stand heat.

IT ISN'T UNUSUAL.

Now this reaction is quite in accordance with tradition. We have a popular belief that wealth means unhappiness. We love our plutocrats to the effect that the rich man is the man of many troubles, and that the simple cottager who goes to his humble cot at night, to his brown loaf and 'drink of cold water from the old oak bucket, is the man to be envied of all others.

We say that the man who must work for his daily bread does not know how fortunate he is till that necessity is snatched from him.

Now there is no little truth in all these bromides. But the real truth is that we have formulated these phrases largely as "booby prizes;" to console us for our own humble estates.

For that many a rich man is as happy as a poor man is as true as our formula that poverty, or at least comparative poverty, means peace and happiness.

There is no denial, either, that to be happy will wealth calls for as much manhood or womanhood as to be happy in poverty.

Therefore, my own reaction to the bleat and wails of Madame Berthelot Jaubert and her daughter Marie is not one of pity and respect for their philosophical choice of poverty rather than wealth, but a bit of disdain that they are not ready for their wealth, and have no resources within them which will enable them to use it wisely and happily.

The meeting opened at 11 a. m. with greetings by Mrs. Alice Pattison Merritt, Commissioner of the Hartford Council. During the morning sessions time was given for group discussions with leaders as follows: merit badge work, Mrs. Howard Carlson; field work, Mrs. Helen Perkins; older girls, Miss Nellie West; camping, Mrs. Oliver Sizer. In the afternoon Miss Edith Smet, a camp director, gave a very interesting address on how Massachusetts goes camping. The following officers of the conference were then elected: Mrs. Clifford D. Perkins, of Hartford, Chairman; Mrs. C. Nathaniel Worthen, of Bridgeport, vice-chairman; Miss Helen D. Perkins, of Hartford, secretary; Mrs. Everett B. Proudfan, of New Britain, treasurer. Short reports from many of the councils of the state were given. Four council members and two Girl Scout campers were present from Manchester.

New Manchester Ball Club Opens Season Tonight

McGrath's Charges Outfit Kelley's Outfit, 15 To 3

Locals Hold Lead Most of Way But Blow Up in Eighth; Fraser Lasts Only One Inning; Bristol Here Saturday.

East Hartford High school outfit Manchester three to one at West Side ball yesterday afternoon, but was rather fortunate to gain a two run victory by a 11 to 9 score.

Both teams played very poorly at the outset of the game but they steadied down a bit as the battle progressed.

In this frame two errors by Jimmy O'Leary, two fielder's choices, a base on balls, single and a triple saved the way for three runs and a victory for Coach Johnny McGrath's aggregation. Alex Plieka got the triple and two runs scored on the drive.

Unable to rally Manchester tried desperately to rally in the last two innings but Scott retired the six batters in order. "Honey" Kramer started on the mound for East Hartford but gave way to Scott in the fifth. Roy Fraser went to the mound for Manchester but it was soon evident that it wasn't his day and Smith replaced him. Hugh Moriarty pitched the last inning when Smith gave way to a pinch hitter.

East Hartford made eight of its hits in the first two innings to score five runs. Kramer's wildness scouted with errors and three hits enabled Manchester to get seven runs.

Some very poor baseball was contributed by players on both sides during the early innings. Two Manchester outfielders played balls on the first bound that they should have caught. One Smith allowed a run to score with an easy double killing at hand because he thought two were out.

East Hartford runner on third failed to hold his cork ready to score on a low foul ball that was caught.

Typical school game was just one of those typical school games in which one team conceals all its tricks in good ball and outbursts. These high school players sure make some of the most unexpected plays when they get going.

Scott and Pottinger started for East Hartford at the bat. The latter got two doubles and a triple. The Plieka brothers also were the only local player to get two bingles. Bristol High plays here Saturday afternoon.

Collett vs Wethered In Finals

CAPTAIN WRIGHT IS PLACED ON CLUB'S SUSPENDED LIST

By DAVID J. WALSH.

New York, May 15.—Being in a position where it wouldn't have less if it gave everything away, the Brooklyn Club has placed Captain Glenn Wright, its $50,000 luxury, on the suspended list "owing to lack of condition, caused by injuries received prior to the opening of the season."

He will be sent to his home in Harrisonville, Mo., for a month where he can enjoy peace and quiet and plenty of rest.

He has been getting these things in a big way at the Brooklyn ball yard but Mr. Robinson, the Brooklyn manager who arranged the stellar deal whereby the young man transferred himself here from Pittsburgh, has not been so fortunate. Mr. Robinson is seized with recurrent fits of violence every time the young man crosses his line of vision. So it has been deemed advisable to remove the source of irritation before Mr. Robinson reaches right up with his back teeth and bites his own forehead.

The removal of Wright, anyhow, was the last official prescription written by Dr. Cecil Ferguson, whose one-month contract as the great healer of the hall and the lame in Brooklyn expired today. They paid Dr. Ferguson no less than $5,000 for the month in which he contracted to fondle a most calamitous array of invalids and, for the most part, it may be said that his ministrations were successful. At one time and another, he has had as many as eight to ten patients in his care and, as he departs for other and more healthful spots, most of them are sound again.

His one failure, however, was more than noteworthy. It was disastrous. For, in reality, he was bired to play keeper to Wright's $50,000 arm and, unfortunately, there was nothing to keep. The patient died last fall and, in spite of all solicitation, it has stayed dead.

American and British Golf Stars Reach Finals With Two More Wins; Meet Tomorrow in 36-Hole Match for Title.

By F. A. WRAY.

St. Andrew's Fife, Scotland, May 15.—Glenna Collett, of Providence, R. I., America's greatest woman golfer, today reached the finals of the Women's British Open Golf Championship by winning her quarter-final and semi-final matches handily in her third attempt to capture the title which no American woman has ever won.

After eliminating Mrs. J. B. Watson of Scotland by three and two this morning, Miss Collett triumphed over Miss Doris Park another Scottish player, by four and three.

Glenna Collett

In a semi-final match this afternoon, The American champion won two up the turn only to lose the next two holes then in a superb rally she won the next four holes, ending the match.

Glenna-Joyce Finals

The long-awaited return match between Miss Collett and Miss Joyce Wethered, a three-time champion, will be held here tomorrow over the St. Andrews Links in the 36-hole finals. Playing in even more brilliant fashion than the American girl, Miss Wethered eliminated Miss Molly Gourlay, of England, by the top margin of one and five this morning and defeated another English star, Mrs. Edith Leitch Gedulla, sister of the famous Cecil Leitch, by five up and four to play in the semi-finals this afternoon.

In two previous attempts to win the title Miss Collett failed to reach the finals. Four years ago she was defeated by Miss Wethered at Troon in the third round and last year she was eliminated by an outsider. An eagle three and eight pars in her match with Miss Park today, however, was ample evidence that she is on her mettle for her supreme test tomorrow.

St. Andrew's Fife, Scotland, May 15.—Glenna Collett, sole remaining American player in the British Ladies' Open Golf Championship, triumphed in the quarter-finals of the tournament here today, when she eliminated Mrs. J. B. Watson, of Scotland, three and two. Glenna clinched victory in the first nine holes of play, being three up at the turn.

Miss Joyce Wethered, the great English player who is picked to meet Miss Collett in the finals tomorrow, defeated Miss Molly Gourlay, a strong British player by 7 and 5.

MCCLOSKEY AFTER NEW STATE RECORD

Local H. S. Track Captain to Shoot at Mile Mark Saturday at New Haven.

Manchester High will send about a dozen members of its track team to New Haven Saturday where they will compete in the first annual Connecticut Interscholastic track and field meet at Yale University. Over 200 athletes have already been entered.

Coach "Pete" Wigren says he is sending his men more for experience than anything else. His sole ambition is to win the C. G. I. L. title from Meriden at Wesleyan next month. The state meet will help the boys in better shape.

The main point of interest in the state meet so far as Manchester is concerned is how "Little Joe" McCloskey, captain of the local team, will fare in the mile run. McCloskey is one of the best milers ever to wear the colors of the red and white.

ONE FALSE MOVE
The last no-hit no-run game in the American League (at the time of writing) was delivered by Ted Lyons, of the White Sox, against the Red Sox on Aug. 1, 1928. Bill McGowan, the umpire called balls and strikes in that game. After the final out Lyons rushed down to McGowan and complimented him.
"Bill, you surely worked perfect today," Lyons said.
"That's all right, Ted," McGowan replied. "I could have called them on you today with one eye." And, as a gesture of illustration, he put his hand over one eye.
And to this day when McGowan comes on the field to work a game for the White Sox, the players all put one hand over their eye and shout—"That's all right, Ted."

Goose Never Rides Bill
McGowan, who is a very good umpire and a very popular one, gets his name of Slices from the players, but there is one player in the league who has never opened his mouth about one of Bill's decisions. And he is a player who says plenty to the other umpires. Goose Goslin is the fellow.
The Goose was discovered and promoted into the major leagues by McGowan who first saw him playing with an industrial team in Salem. McGowan asked him if he would care to play professional ball and how much he would want on a contract.
Goslin said he wanted to get into the professional game and that he would be willing to work for $100 a month.

Big Dough for Him
McGowan got him a job with the Columbia club for $275 a month and he went big from the start. Bill then went to Connie Meek and begged him to buy the hard-hitting young outfielder. He could have bought him for $600 but Connie wouldn't spend the money. He was a discovered and promoted into the major leagues by McGowan who first saw him playing with an industrial team in Salem. McGowan asked him if he would care to play professional ball and how much he would want on a contract.
Goslin said he wanted to get into the professional game and that he would be willing to work for $100 a month.

Shave Him Down Then
In one of the recent games between the New York Yankees and the Washington Senators, Babe Ruth hit a home run over the wall in the deepest corner of center field. The ball cleared the fence by at least twenty feet and hit the ground more than a half block from the park. The Babe said after the game he figured it to be the longest hit he ever had made.
When the ball cleared the fence, Joe Judge, the Washington first baseman, slammed his glove on the ground and said in all seriousness to the umpire at first base: "They ought to throw that fellow out of the league. He's too big for us."

INTENSIVE REHEARSALS FOR KIWANIAN'S SHOW

With rehearsals being held every noon except Saturday and Sunday, the third annual Kiwanis minstrel show, to be given in the State theater next Wednesday evening, is rapidly rounding into what promises to be the finest and most entertaining show yet presented by the Kiwanians in their effort to raise funds to provide vacations for Manchester's underprivileged children.
Heading the show as interlocutor is Clarence Quimby, principal of the High School, whose demonstrated ability in that capacity has made him the unanimous choice for the position since the inauguration of the minstrel.
The end parts have been assigned to Elmer Thienes, county director of the Y. M. C. A.; Charlie Milkowski, of Milkowski's; Charles Huber, of Cheney Brothers; Al Gregel, the plumber; Harlow Willis, of G. E. Willis and Son; Elmore Watkins, of Watkins Brothers, who was also an end man will be unable to take part because of the accident he suffered last week. Another man will be chosen in his place.
This year's show is to be replete with surprise acts, specialty dancing, staging and music of a high type. Nearly every member of the Kiwanis club is taking some part in the production.

These Manchester people co-operate heartily with the club in its yearly endeavor to prove in the packed houses which have greeted the past two minstrel shows. This year is expected not to prove an exception.

As usual the amount to be raised is $1,000. This about covers the season's expenses at the Hebron camp. All arrangements have been completed as to management of it and as soon as school lets out for the summer the Kiwanis club will send fifty children to the camp for a two weeks, never-to-be-forgotten vacation.

LAUGHS FROM THE DIAMOND
By Billy Evans

The fact that Tommy Connolly, dean of the American League umpires, has survived 36 years of umpiring will give you a real insight into his temperament. Firm, but diplomatic, the possessor of a keen sense of humor, he has made his arduous task far easier than most officials.
Connolly, on the ball field, has a serious look that really belies his real character. His severe mien would cause one to believe he was thoroughly disgusted with life. Yet, just the opposite prevails.
In a game I have my mind, Connolly and I were working in Boston. He lives, by the way, only a short distance away, at Natick, Mass., and

It is a well-established belief among umpires that it always is difficult to umpire in one's home town. Boston is regarded as Connolly's home town.

In this game, it seemed as if a majority of the plays were going against Boston. The Sox were taking a trimming much to the disgust of the fans. And, as it often happens at such moments, the fans turned to the umpire to get their money's worth at his expense.
"Don't you ever smile, Connolly!" cried one roofer. From the start of the game, he veiled that question and he kept repeating the same old line all through the game.
It seemed the more the fan asked of the question, the severer became Connolly's expression. Possibly Tommy was playing up to him. It caused considerable laughter at Tommy's expense, but before the finish it became decidedly monotonous.
To get to our dressing room, we had to pass close to the box occupied by Connolly's tormentor. When within 15 or 20 feet of it, the fan let out what he felt would be his final blast:

"Don't you ever smile, Connolly!"
Connolly, in his best voice and severest face, came back with:
"Did you ever see the villain in a show smile?"

FLAPPER FANNY SAYS:

A girl, by taking violin lessons, can be sure of at least one bow on the string.

SENSE and NONSENSE

Public Utility. Stranger—"What's your line?" Bootlegger—"I'm in the public utility game."

THE ANANIAS CLUB. "No," said the California grape grower, "I don't sell to anybody unless I know they intend to use the grapes for making jelly."

The Gambler. He was so crooked that when he tossed in his sleep he cheated himself!

One girl confesses that she is "partial to the boys." However, her young friends go further in saying she is impartial—any boy will do just so he doesn't run too fast when she gives chase to him.

"Did you get home all right last night, sir?" asked the street car conductor.

"Of course—why not?" came back the passenger.

"Well, when you got up to give your seat to that lady last night, you were the only two people in the car."

John—What do you mean, dear, when you say I've been deceiving you for years?

Helen—I've just found out that you get $2,000 allowance on your income tax return for being married, and you only give me a miserable $10 a week.

"Did you have a good time at the dance last night?"

"So they say; so they say."

"We had a sensational case of kidnapping at our house last night."

"Sure enough?"

"Yes, the baby slept all night."

Boys nowadays go to college and remain longer so their fathers can stick on their jobs and thus keep themselves from being horned out of the herd like most old bulls, according to one Hays "collegian" who thinks he has found the answer to a vexing question.

Daughter—Moth'r, the new aviator thinks I'm the nicest girl in town; shall I ask him to call?"

Mother—No, let him keep on thinking so.

Why is it that the slapstick comedian whose pants fall down gets a cyclonic laugh from the fat woman?

Don't forget the old adage about "All work and no play." A good constitution is worth more than a good bank account.

Understanding a truth is more convincing than overstating it.

There is only one ghost. He appears on the first of the month, and his name is Bill.

If you have a good name at the bank you're not likely to have a bad one elsewhere.

LETTER GOLF

FOR BRIDGE FANS Today's letter golf puzzle combines bridge and golf—a HEART is TRUMP. Par is six and one solution is another page.

Letter golf puzzle grid with words HEART and TRUMP.

THE RULES

- 1—The idea of Letter Golf is to change one word to another and do it in par, a given number of strokes. Thus to change COW to HEN, in three strokes, COW, HOW, HEW, HEN.

So far as her skirts are concerned woman can't afford to dress up much upper.

Be specific. When you say "colored girl," explain whether you mean handcolored.

MONES Pinehurst
 "GOOD THINGS TO EAT"

DON'T SWIM IN.
 The glittering display of FISH in Pinehurst refrigeration didn't exactly swim right up to the door, but it's to all effect as rain-fresh as though it had. It came in this forenoon, by express, straight from the fish wharves, right from the smacks and trawlers. Nobody could eat fish in better condition, not even the fishermen themselves, where they flop the critter out of the water and onto the galley stove with one motion, so to speak.
 MACKEREL is very low in price and very high in quality this week. You know there is a tremendous run of fine six-year-old fish this year, the best run and the best fish in a long time.
