Manchester High closed its 1929 interscholastic debating season yesterday afternoon with East Hartford as its opponent. The question was, "Resolved that the Federal and State governments should develop and operate the water-power projects of this country." Manchester had the negative side and East Hartford the affirmative. Joseph McCluskey, president of the local debating club, presided. Before the beginning of the debate a vote was taken asking for a consensus of opinion on the question. When the votes were counted it was found that 382 pupils favored the affirmative and 173 the negative.

The first speaker was George Cook of East Hartford High. His contention was that the modern power interests of today are forced to retain "Power Lobbies" to protect their interests, and these "lobbies" are a tremendous expense, the cost of which is borne by the public in the form of increased rates. The stock of most of the water-power contains a large amount of so-called "watered stock" on which the companies have to pay taxes, another needless expense that the consumer has to pay. Both of these expenses, he declared, would be eliminated by government operation. Furthermore, he claimed, a power trust known as the "Big Six" has secured a monopoly on a large percentage of the power projects, enabling them to charge higher rates, in spite of the existence of the Federal Power commission and the Federal Trade commission.

The first speaker for the negative was Miss Marion Janes, whose issue was that government ownership was not for the best interests of the public, and that under the present system the private owners were forced to charge rates that were reasonable as determined by the Federal Trade commission. She quoted President Hoover's statement that government ownership at this time was unnecessary and impractical. She cited past attempts of the government ownership of public utilities, to prove that government ownership was a failure.

The second affirmative speaker was Ralph Dixon. He proved by actual figures government-owned plants were producing power at lower costs per kilowatt than privately owned plants. This, he said, was due to the fact that the government-owned plants were operated for service and not for profit, in comparison with the privately owned plants whose sole aim was large profits for the owners. Furthermore, he stated, the government could operate with lower overhead because of the fact that its holdings were tax-exempt and it could borrow money at lower rates than the private owners would have to pay. These savings were passed on to the consumers and resulted in greatly lowered costs, the average cost per kilowatt from government plants being slightly in excess of one cent, while the average cost from privately-owned plants was over five cents per kilowatt. Because government ownership would mean the abolishing of several government public utility commissions the tax-payers would no longer have to bear the cost of the salaries of the members of this commission, another advantage for government ownership.

The negative case was continued by Austin Johnson who based his arguments on the fact that government ownership if put in universal operation, would mean the establishment of new bureaus, with the attendant possibilities for graft and political corruption. These bureaus would be a far greater expense than the commissions now in operation and would multiply many times the cost of the power securing absolute control of the power situation. "The function of a government," he declared, "is to govern and not to go into business, selling to its citizens." The most notable attempt of government ownership of a power development is Muscle Shoals which ex-President Coolidge declared was a failure. The speaker stated that this fact shows beyond a reasonable doubt the futility of attempting government ownership.

In the rebuttal Miss Janes spoke first. She refuted the argument of the affirmative that government ownership would lower taxes, declaring that because of the increase in government officials necessary the taxes would have a corresponding increase.

Robert Bjorkman spoke next for East Hartford. He denied that Muscle Shoals was a failure saying that at present it is serving the southeastern states of this country with electricity at a very low cost. He declared the existing commissions inadequate to carry out the tasks for which they were intended. He cited many examples to prove that the government-owned plants are today furnishing electricity at a lower cost than would be possible under private ownership.

The concluding speaker for the negative was Austin Johnson. He again referred to Muscle Shoals, saying that the word of ex-President Coolidge ought to set at rest all doubts concerning the success or failure of the project. Many advantageous sites are not being used today he declared because of the hesitation on the part of the government to develop them. Under private ownership these developments would now be producing electricity.

The final speaker was Ralph Dixon. He again emphasized the difference in cost between electricity produced by government-owned plants. This, he declared, was essentially the thing to be considered, and he noted especially the failure of the negative to produce any figures to the contrary. He declared, in closing, that if government ownership assured the developments now lying idle would be taken over and would produce electricity for useful purposes.

Both sides showed that they had spent much time in preparing the debate and both sides presented much useful information on both sides of the question. At the conclusion of the debate another vote was taken, this time resulting in 310 votes for the affirmative and 452 for the negative. This showed that approximately 75 people had changed their opinions during the course of the debate.

illness. As the lethal gas gets in its slow work, they are reporting at hospitals for treatment. Fire men and two policemen have applied at St. Silas hospital for treatment, while three others were reported elsewhere.

The fact that the latest victims have survived this length of time after inhaling the fumes furnishes hope that the after-effects will not prove fatal. Of those who escaped the building, only two to die later, all were stricken within 24 hours.

The last two victims of the blast were Mrs. W. L. Langdon, of Sharon, Pa., and Miss Laura Lambert, 21, of Cleveland, the latter a clinic employe. Both died in Clinic hospital last night.

IN ANY language—at any pump—"a gallon of gasoline" means the same—in volume only. But it is a most indefinite measure of what you actually get in this many-sided commodity.

You want power. How much are you getting? What kind? Is it mileage-making power that comes from complete, carbonless combustion at all pulls and speeds? Do you get maximum power without sacrificing easy starting and agile pick-up?

In short, do you get all the qualities good gasoline must have? Can you get them always in the same balanced proportions? You can, with certainty, in ATLANTIC GASOLINE.

In the words of thousands who have used it, new-type, extra-powered Atlantic Gasoline is the finest all-round motor fuel on the market.

It is made by an organization possessing a background of experience unsurpassed in years and extensiveness.

By a concern unlimited in facilities, tireless in research, constantly progressive.

That insures, not only the quality of its products, but the service that goes with them. . . .

Wherever you go, there's an Atlantic pump on the road you are traveling. And in it you'll find the biggest motor fuel value obtainable—in all-round performance, in uniform dependability, and in complete motor fuel satisfaction.

EYE WITNESS TELLS OF DEATH OF WIFE

Noted Chicago Surgeon Describes How She Passed Away Despite His Efforts.

Chicago, May 17.—"She—she was horribly burned. The gas attacks the tissues—she was bleeding at the mouth and nose and eyes. She couldn't speak—but oh! God help her! she was conscious!"

"She was conscious for two hours. For two hours I worked over her, there on the hospital lawn. And then, at the last—her raw, bleeding lips twisted themselves into a smile. And I felt her squeeze my hand, and— and so—she died."

That was the terrible story told today upon his return here with the body of his wife, Florence, by Dr. William G. Epstein, one of the best known surgeons in St. Bernard's hospital and a survivor of the Cleveland Clinic hospital disaster.

"My wife and I," he stated, "were on our vacation. We had left our two children, Mary Virginia, 8, and Billy, 6, at home with their nurse."

Visiting the Clinic

"We were on our way east, and stopped off in Cleveland on the spur of the moment. I wanted to visit the clinic there, and my wife decided to have her throat examined. She was not ill, but her throat had been troubling her, and she thought that this was a good opportunity to have it looked over."

"I left her in the hospital, where she was to be examined, and I went out and went over to another building about 200 feet away. I was in there when the explosion occurred. "It was a terrific blast. My first thought was for my wife. I ran like a madman to the hospital building. I could see the yellowish-black gas rolling out of the windows."

Wife in Hospital

"I didn't know what it was, then—and I didn't care. All I knew—all I could think of—was that Florence was in there."

"There were screams—terrible screams—coming from the building. All around me, people were running towards the place."

"The discipline in the hospital must have been wonderful. Indeed, now that I think of it, it was even more than that—it was stark heroism."

"Remember, I was in a building only 200 feet away—and I was running like mad. Yet by the time I reached the entrance to the hospital—by the time I had covered those 200 feet—the rescue work already had begun and nurses, doctors and internes who had escaped the gas were staggering out with the victims."

"I rushed past them into the building. Luckily, I had been there before several times and knew my way around. I knew where to find my wife."

MODERN AMAZON

Jacksonville, Fla.—Maude Taylor goes on record as being afraid of no man. John D. Owen, city sanitary inspector, went around to her house to post a sign thereon which classed it as unsanitary. Mrs. Taylor objected. So strenuously, in fact, that she threatened to crown him with a flower pot if he posted the sign. Both went to court, where the judge ordered the unsanitary condition corrected.

E. L. Doheny bought in at public auction the ranch property of his friend, former Secretary Fall. Mr. Doheny seems to have been the Fall guy in that transaction.

$70,000 SECURED
IN CHURCH DRIVE
Only Half of Center Church Parish Members Have Yet Been Canvassed.

The campaign for $200,000 for Center Church House reached the $70,000 mark today with the totaling of returns made by the twelve team captains last night. Considering the fact that not quite half of the parish members have yet been canvassed this seems a certain indication that the $200,000 objective will be reached.

Teams Close.
The twelve teams that are conducting the canvass are neck and neck in the race for high honors. The team captain by A. N. Potter has been leading most of the way but with the distribution of the general committee contributions last night all twelve entrants were so close together that the difference in their totals was not noticeable on the thermometers.

May Extend Drive.
Chairman William L. Parkis, of the finance committee, is confident that the total will be reached but it is just possible that the campaign will have to be extended over the week-end. The team workers are desirous of a little more time to cover respective territories and if all of them do not report by Saturday the complete total will not be ascertained until Monday.

MENUS
For Good Health

A Week's Supply Recommended By Dr. Frank B. McCoy

Dr. McCoy's menus suggested for the week beginning Sunday, May 19th:

Sunday
Breakfast—Eggs poached in milk, served on melba toast, stewed figs.
Lunch—Escalloped potatoes, asparagus, salad of head lettuce.
Dinner—Baked chicken, shredded wheat biscuit dressing, buttered beans, spinach, salad of raw celery, pineapple sponge.

Breakfast—Crisp waffle, with a little maple syrup, one coddled egg, "applesauce."
Lunch—Pint of buttermilk, 10 or 12 dates.
Dinner—Minced chicken in tomato jelly (chicken left from Sunday), fresh green peas, cooked greens, salad of grated carrots, cup custard.

Tuesday
Breakfast—Whole wheat muffins, with peanut butter, stewed prunes.
Lunch—Stewed tomatoes (left from last night), baked egg plant, salad of raw spinach.
Dinner—Vegetable soup, roast beef, string beans, mashed turnips, salad of grated raw carrots on lettuce, peach whip.

Wednesday
Breakfast—French omelet, melba toast, stewed raisins.
Lunch—Oranges as desired.
Dinner—Broiled fillet of sole, green peas, McCoy salad, (tomatoes, cucumbers and lettuce,) no dessert.

Thursday
Breakfast—Berries (canned, and strained of all sugary juice), glass of milk.
Lunch—Baked or boiled potato, cooked lettuce, ripe olives.
Dinner—Roast mutton, baked ground beefs and carrots, mild vegetable salad (green peas and string beans), ice cream.

Friday
Breakfast—Baked eggs, re-toasted Shredded Wheat Biscuit, pear sauce.
Lunch—Raw apples as desired, with handful of pecans.
Dinner—Baked fillet of fish, asparagus, salad of sliced tomatoes, plain Jello or Jell-Well, no cream.

Saturday
Breakfast—Cottage cheese, pineapple, re-toasted Tricuit.
Lunch—Spaghetti, bottled in plain water and seasoned only with butter, string beans, salad of raw celery.
Dinner—Roast pork, cooked spinach, steamed carrots, salad of shredded raw cabbage and parsley, apricot whip.

Applesauce: Quarter and core, but do not peel, the desired number of apples. Place in earthen or glass baking dish without any water, cover tightly, and bake on shelf of a slow oven until soft enough to whip into foamy mixture. Set aside to cool, and place in the icebox until ready to serve. This slow, even cooking brings out the natural fruit sugar, and apples prepared in this manner are much superior in flavor and food value to those which are hurriedly boiled on top of the stove, and to which sugar and water are added.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS
(Urine sometimes Not Clear)

Question: Isabel asks: "What would cause the urine to be clear and a straw color one day and the next day to be quite thick and milky? I feel all right. What vegetables are best for the kidneys, also what fruits?"
Answer: The change in the color of the urine depends upon the kind of food you use and the amount of liquid taken. Sometimes a large amount of phosphates appear in the urine because of nervousness. These do not come from any particular food, but make the urine look milky. There are no foods which can be considered "best" for the kidneys. The main thing is to stop injuring the kidneys through making them eliminate too many poisons created from inharmonious food combinations.

(Ptosis of the Stomach)
Questions: Mrs. R. H. asks:

"What is ptosis of the stomach, what causes same, and what can be done for such a condition?"
Answer: Ptosis of the stomach simply means prolapsus of the stomach. This is caused through a weakening of the abdominal muscles and a stretching of the ligaments attached to the stomach. A cure can be achieved through strengthening the abdominal muscles and increasing the functional tone of all the abdominal organs. (Radium and X-Ray Treatments.)

Question: H. J. G. writes: "I wish you would explain to me about radium treatments. Of what benefit are they? Also, what benefit is derived from an x-ray treatment, where you lie on a couch with your clothing on?"
Answer: Radium and x-ray treatments are given in an attempt to cure abnormal growths, such as tumors and cancer. Such treatments have not been highly successful and, in fact, results have been very disappointing. The x-ray treatment can be given through the clothing, but this is seldom done.

NUDE CULT HAS BIG FOLLOWING OF EUROPEANS

Vienna.—The cult of the nude has already more than a hundred thousand followers in Germany and Austria, declared Herr Hermann Schmidt, the President of the "League of Free Men and Women" at the League's recent meeting in Vienna. Herr Schmidt was a school-master in Leipzig before he became the prophet of the nude sun worshippers. He gave up his profession of educating children, because he felt that his true calling is to teach the grown-up doctrines of the Cult of the Nude, which is in reality the cult of the Truth, according to his teachings.

"Nudity is Truth, and Truth is the universal medicine needed by mankind," said the new prophet, "and we firmly believe that most of the troubles of the over-civilized human race are due to the hypocrisy of clothes."

1. The classical Greek culture with its ideal beauty was based on the unprejudiced love of the body, and the equilibrium of bodily and mental health. The very name of the Greek school was gymnasium, which is derived from gymnos, meaning naked.
2. The entire body has a right to the wholesome energy of the Sun. Clothes are unhealthy, and are the source of many diseases, especially of neurotic ones. And what is the use of taking exercise and swimming in a bathing suit. It is an impediment when it is dry and it helps to catch a cold when it is wet.
3. Unnatural bashfulness, timidity and hypocrisy are but consequences of man's turning away from Nature and Truth. Uprightness, courage and true morality can only be brought about by the cult of the nude.

4. The sense of the beauty can be developed only by exposing and viewing the natural beauty of the human body.
5. Know those with whom you intend to live. One should not buy a pig in a hole.
Many Gymnasts
The League of Free Men and Women has many "gymnasts" where its members bathe and exercise completely unclothed. In Vienna alone they have seven such places. Members are, however, obliged to modify their spartan habits, when they go about their daily tasks in this "overcivilized" society.
But President Schmidt hopes that he and his vice-apostles will soon convert mankind including the police to the true religion of the Nude.

World's Flying Record Broken with MOTOR CAR GASOLINE

MARTIN JENSEN . . . sets new mark for solo endurance flying with the same gasoline that you can buy at any TYDOL pump:

Hi-test TYDOL

Never before had a regular motor car gasoline been chosen by an aviator for a record flight. Record flights had always been made with special aviation gas. Expensive. Extra powerful. "You can't win," they said, "with motor car gas. It just isn't good enough." But Martin Jensen did win! . . . 35 hours, 33 minutes, 20 seconds in the air! And he set this new world's record with exactly the same gasoline that you can, and should, put in the gas tank of your own car today. No wonder the sales of Hi-Test TYDOL gasoline are mounting sky-high when aviators prove its quality in the clouds! No wonder motorists are turning from old-fashioned fuels when this regular gasoline can break world's records in airplanes! Try this astonishing new green gasoline in your car today. Get super-power, high-test, anti-knock quality at no extra cost. . . It will set startling records for economy and performance in your motor. And it will set them as quickly as it proved its quality in the hardest test ever given a motor car gasoline. . . This Water Oil Sales Corporation

JURORS UNAFRAID

The slowly but steadily growing tendency in this country to belittle the jury system is one which liberty-loving citizens will do well to watch. The system has been recognized for hundreds of years as a very bulwark of democracy, and there are very many who do not believe such a claim is exaggerated. It is, of course, notorious that in a great many cases, especially in recent years, utterly unsatisfactory results have accrued from the practices of juries. But it is seriously to be questioned whether such inferior jury service is the result of inherent defects in the system itself as much as it is of the attitude of a certain type of judge toward juries in general and in particular instances.

Trial by jury is a constitutional right in America. And it is a serious question whether this right is not completely nullified by the not infrequent practice of judges in taking cases away from juries or declaring their verdicts annulled because "in conflict with the evidence."

If juries are to be nothing but the megaphones of the judges the whole principle of jury trial is of course destroyed, for such trials are not trials by jury, as guaranteed by the Constitution, but trials by judges speaking through the mouths of juries held under the lash.

Self-respecting citizens, the peers of the judges, do, as frequently charged, avoid jury duty. And why not, when they are high-hatted by judges who completely mistake their proper functions and arrogate to themselves the powers of autocrats over the juries instead of technical advisors to these constitutional tribunals.

The jury problem would be far less of a problem in this country if the jury were to regain its rightful plane of responsibility and consciousness of responsibility. In this connection it is greatly to be commended the act of two jurors in Philadelphia. The jury had acquitted a defendant in a beer case. The judge, without the remotest thought that he was about to elicit a reply, thundered: "How did you ever arrive at that verdict in the face of the evidence?" Whereupon the foreman of the jury most unexpectedly arose and rebuked the judge, declaring that he had no notion of submitting to criticism. He said: "I and Juror No. 6 were the only two men on the panel who thought there should be a conviction. The other ten men were for acquittal and I thought that ten minds were better than two." The other juror, No. 6, also spoke his mind. He said he voted for acquittal because a bartender was not a chemist and was not expected to test every barrel of beer he had on tap.

We shall have better juries and better verdicts from them when we somehow or other, in our courses in civics, let school children know that a jury is not a mere creature of a court but twelve-thirteenths of the court. Then they will grow up understanding that the enforcement of law and the administration of justice is a citizens' duty and responsibility, not a responsibility and duty devolving on police and lawyers alone.

BIGGER AND WORSE

The "bigger and better" dirigible had received, if not a wallop at least a gentle push backward in the experience of the Graf Zeppelin, during her second attempt to fly to America. Tuned up, presumably after the closest of inspection and the most minute of adjustment in the traditional German manner, the great shell goes bloomy before she has fairly got started and has to turn around and ignominiously flop back to her starting place.

A long time ago, before the assembly was out of its primary stages, somebody evoked the notion that all you had to do to perfect that kind of a vessel was to build it big enough. So the Great Eastern was brought into being—a tremendous ship, several times bigger than anything that had ever floated on the surface of the sea. She was also several times the biggest failure.

Shipping men did not, however, make the error of concluding that, because the Great Eastern managed to keep afloat, the right thing to do was to build another and bigger Great Eastern. They went back and began to build smaller ships with better engines. They developed the propeller instead of the paddle wheel. They studied principles instead of size. They produced seaworthy and economical vessels and kept on improving them, increasing the tonnage only when they knew what they were doing, and why. Now we have ships much larger than the Great Eastern, but we didn't get there through building bigger and better mistakes.

There seems to us to be a direct analogy between the case of the Great Eastern and that of the vast lummoxy dirigibles on which so much money is being blindly expended. Sooner or later there is bound to be a reaction from them in favor of very much smaller, very much more relatively powerful and vastly safer lighter-than-air units.

If the first automobiles had been forty feet long, and then, when it was found that they could not negotiate curves and corners, the promoters had proceeded to correct the mistake by building them sixty feet long, it is doubtful if motor transportation would be where it is today.

It is, of course, notorious that in a great many cases, especially in recent years, utterly unsatisfactory results have accrued from the practices of juries. But it is seriously to be questioned whether such inferior jury service is the result of inherent defects in the system itself as much as it is of the attitude of a certain type of judge toward juries in general and in particular instances.

Trial by jury is a constitutional right in America. And it is a serious question whether this right is not completely nullified by the not infrequent practice of judges in taking cases away from juries or declaring their verdicts annulled because "in conflict with the evidence."

If juries are to be nothing but the megaphones of the judges the whole principle of jury trial is of course destroyed, for such trials are not trials by jury, as guaranteed by the Constitution, but trials by judges speaking through the mouths of juries held under the lash.

Self-respecting citizens, the peers of the judges, do, as frequently charged, avoid jury duty. And why not, when they are high-hatted by judges who completely mistake their proper functions and arrogate to themselves the powers of autocrats over the juries instead of technical advisors to these constitutional tribunals.

The jury problem would be far less of a problem in this country if the jury were to regain its rightful plane of responsibility and consciousness of responsibility. In this connection it is greatly to be commended the act of two jurors in Philadelphia. The jury had acquitted a defendant in a beer case. The judge, without the remotest thought that he was about to elicit a reply, thundered: "How did you ever arrive at that verdict in the face of the evidence?" Denunciation of President Hoover's action in increasing a few tariff rates under the flexibility provisions of the current law are, of course, flying freely through the columns of opposition newspapers. But it is surprising to see so well informed a journal as the New York World picking on the President for anticipating the increase on flaxseed which is made by the bill now before Congress. The increase proclaimed by Mr. Hoover is exactly the same as that provided by the measure. The World thinks Mr. Hoover's action is precipitate and gratuitous.

Let the World recall what happened when the glove interests obtained a very large increase in the tariff rates of foreign made products in their line. A very large manufacturer, after making sure that the rates applied for were to be incorporated in the then pending tariff bill, went to Germany, bought a tremendous supply of gloves, rushed them into the country ahead of the effective date of the new tariff, stored them and after the new higher rates had gone into effect, put them on the market at a great profit to himself but at the expense of the whole American glove industry, including his own employees.

We import $25,000,000 of flaxseed from the Argentine every year. It goes into linseed oil. Our own flaxseed industry is to receive an important degree of protection under the terms of the present bill. Prices will necessarily be somewhat higher. An excellent opportunity would be presented for someone to do what the glove maker did—rush through a huge supply of imported flaxseed and reap a quick and large profit by selling out later at a price which, though relatively high, could well be a shade under the market for the native product. Mr. Hoover's action spikes that possibility. That should be ample justification in itself.

Shipping men did not, however, make the error of concluding that, because the Great Eastern managed to keep afloat, the right thing to do was to build another and bigger Great Eastern. BY RODNEY DUTCHER

Washington, May 17.—Congress, acting in its wisdom in special session, is now worrying about tomatoes, grapefruit, lemons, apples, lettuce, asparagus, kohlrabi, turnips, avocados, olives, peppers, strawberries and other miscellaneous fruits and vegetables.

The special session was called to enact farm relief and to change the tariff, principally with a view to farm relief. Fruits and vegetables are mixed up in all of that. Inasmuch as nearly everyone eats fruits or vegetables or both, this ought to be a very interesting story, but don't be too sure!

Fruits and vegetables are grown in protection in Mr. Hoover's home state of California and elsewhere. The Hawley-Smoot tariff bill provides higher duties on imported cherries, grapefruit, peaches, beans, onions, mushrooms, almonds, tomatoes, pineapples, ripe olives, turkeys, rutabagas and other items but there are no changes in rates on various others, including lemons, potatoes, oranges, raisins, peaches and peas.

Tossed on the Floor. Thus were fruits and vegetables thrown out of the floor of the House. In the Senate the same thing had already been done by Senator Copeland of New York, who introduced an amendment to the farm relief bill which would exempt fruits and vegetables from the relief provisions. The three-billion dollar fruits and vegetable industry has become greatly excited over this resolution and because fruits and vegetables are raised in so many states Senators have been bombarded by telegrams concerning the resolution from nearly everywhere.

Both in the California legislature have protested, at the instance of the large California cooperatives. But the fruit and vegetable interests appear to be seriously divided over the question whether or not they want to share the benefits of the farm relief bill—divided, in fact, over the question whether their inclusion under the bill's provisions would do the farmer more harm or good.

Senator Pat Harrison of Mississippi has a half dozen telegrams from growers and growers' associations in his state, demanding full and equal privileges with other crops. The National Horticultural Council has lodged protest with various Senators at the proposed elimination, asserting that the fruit and vegetable industries are in a bad way.

Numerous growers of North Carolina have similarly wired Senator Simmons and Overman and the chairman of the Ohio Farm Bureau has wired Senator Fess urging defeat of the amendment. A dozen citrus-fruit organizations and chambers of commerce in Florida have protested to Senator Fletcher.

On the other hand the American Fruit Growers, Inc., has wired Senator Jones from Yakima, Wash., urging exclusion of perishables on the ground that their marketing is a highly organized and efficiently functioning industry which would be seriously disturbed if the farm bill were applied to it. Senator Glass of Virginia has been hearing from apple growers and peach growers, asking that their fruits be excluded from the bill. And the West Virginia Horticultural Association and several others are urging Senator Hatfield to vote for the amendment.

When these tender gestures are made, they are truly fabulous and generous beyond belief. And it is this sort of intrusion upon the general ruthlessness of the city that New Yorkers so proudly point to when claiming that, after all, New York is not so hard-hearted.

It seems that for some 10 or 12 years a very rich man had provided himself with a quiet little hideaway in the hotel, wherein he could rest and escape his many business contacts and problems. While the suite was used but infrequently, the man had become so attached to it and so sentimental about it, that he was loathe to have the hotel removed.

If, he argued, the hotel-perished, he would have to hunt down some new snug and quiet hiding place. And so, just as the wrecking crews were preparing to march on it, he went into conference with the hotel owners—as I get the story—and made a generous offer to back the place with fat capital if it remained in business. The wrecking deal, I am further advised, was then called off—and everything ended happily.

This man, by the way—so I am told—is none other than that eccentric Edgar B. Davis, oil millionaire, who for more than a year put up money for "The Ladder," which was the most colossal failure in Broadway theater history. Despite the fact that the show could not make money, or even keep its losses within small range, he kept pouring in his money because the play contained a religious idea in which he was interested.

In the office of Eddie Dowling, the song-and-dance man, playwright, music show producer and, more recently, talking picture star, there is a tiny bar at which, I am told, scores of Broadway successes were discussed and negotiated.

The batting average of this office is higher than any other spot in the bright lights belt. Before Eddie took it over, it was the property of Cohen and Harris and all the hit merchants sooner or later were introduced to the pantry-like bar. For this was in pre-prohibition days. Such plays as "The Miracle Man," "Broadway Jones" and "Little Johnny Jones" were born there.

On the last day before the Waldorf was turned over to the auctioneers, one of the nation's most notorious "check bookers" made his last effort to pass a bit of "rubber paper" on the historic inn.

Health and Diet Advice

By DR. FRANK McCUT

CONSTRUCTIVE THINKING AND TALKING

The one who is earnestly seeking health cannot afford to fall into the habit of destructive thinking. It is so easy to be sarcastic and critical about every person or topic under discussion, and this temptation must be resisted. If you are critical of others they will, in turn, think derogatively of you, but if you speak kindly of them, they will speak kindly of you. A crowd brings forth a crowd from others, but fortunately, a good-natured smile always creates a feeling of good-fellowship.

There is no one but who has some good qualities that could be developed with the proper encouragement. Find fault with no one, condemn no one, and antagonize no one. This may not come naturally at first, but it can soon be established as a good habit. It will prove an interesting and helpful game. You will be pleased to find your friends becoming more attached to you, while new acquaintances whom you meet will be unconsciously impressed with your cheerful comment. Make your slogan: "A kind thought and a kind word for everyone and everything."

Cheerfulness brings friends. Ella Wheeler Wilcox said, "Smile, and the world smiles with you; weep, and you weep alone." There is no way to waste nerve energy more rapidly than through the irritation that can come from a critical attitude toward others. If we appoint ourselves judges to condemn the actions of others, we must alter the consequences with servation and decreasing of our vital forces. Disease thrives in a pessimistic attitude, while health is the natural outgrowth of a life based on kindness and living in harmony with nature's laws. Every night before retiring, take a mental inventory and see what you have accomplished that day. That day try to improve a little and you will be welcomed everywhere, and be hourly cheered by your achievements in spreading sunshine. You will soon be delighted to discover that your vitality is increasing and you are not so tired at night, but have more strength after your daily work. Often, nervous indigestion, sleeplessness, restlessness, and despondency disappear when one cultivates the gentle art of being kind. It is a good plan to think of happiness as a mental necessity just as food is a physical necessity. If you do this, you will soon learn that being kind to others creates the most lasting happiness. In your conversation, it is a good plan to be sarcastic, nor wither at the expense of someone else, but try to say something which will leave a kindly thought wherever you see any kindly thought.

remembrances will grow from them and you will find life is much more interesting and pleasant and cultivate the habit of constructive thinking and talking. Questions and Answers (Facial Rejuvenation) Question: Madie asks: "Do you approve of facial rejuvenation without surgery, same consisting of violet ray and electric treatment and lotions? Would you consider this treatment permanent or would they have to be continued? The skin under the eyes is loose and lines are forming." Answer: There are many kinds of facial treatments which are beneficial in producing a better tone of the skin and muscles of the face. No treatment of this kind can have a permanent effect, but must be continued on and on through life. If it is ever necessary to start it.

PREDICTS STRIKE OF MOVIE ACTORS

Albert Warner Says Industry Will Be Paralyzed This Summer; Cause for Strike

New York, May 17 — Mid-summer may find the motion picture industry—America's fifth largest industry—paralyzed by a general strike of actors.

This prediction was made exclusively to International News Service today by Albert Warner, general manager of the Warner Brothers Co., one of the largest producing organizations in the motion picture field.

Reason of Strike. The strike, according to Warner, will be precipitated by the desire of the Actor's Equity association to compel the producers of motion pictures to employ only Equity actors and to enter into an agreement with the actors similar to the working treaty in force between stage producers and the men and women who enact their plays.

The Equity association, according to information in Warner's possession, plans to issue an ultimatum to the film producers, some time early in June. This ultimatum will constitute a demand that the producers meet equity requirements in the employment of actors and other matters pertaining to the production of motion pictures—something which the producers have steadfastly refused to do ever since the movies assumed a position of importance in the entertainment world.

WORKING AMONG THE INJURED

The scene in front of Cleveland Clinic hospital, where scores of dead and injured were brought out of the building after a disastrous explosion and fire, is pictured above. Firemen, police and volunteers tried to save the patients after an explosion in the X-ray room started a fire that sent suffocating gas fumes through the building and into the streets outside. The hospital was the famous clinic of Dr. George W. Crile, noted Cleveland physician, surgeon and gottle specialist.

CAIRD NOT A MEMBER OF WATKINS COMPANY

Court Rules That He Was Merely Working as Accountant for Bankrupt Firm.

New Haven, May 17 — Judge Warren B. Burrows, of the United States District Court, today filed with the clerk's office here an order that releases J. Hale Caird from adjudication as a bankrupt in connection with the affairs of the Roger W. Watkins Company. Judge Burrows' finding declares:

"It does not appear that the petitioner was a partner of the R. W. Watkins & Co., neither does it appear that he was a bankrupt individually. Further, and it was conceded by counsel for trustees, the petitioner had no property on which the trustees could realize for benefit of creditors."

The Watkins company was adjudicated bankrupt in May 1928. Caird, whose name was listed as a member of the firm, declared he was working as an expert accountant and as a salesman on a salary and commission basis, and had no knowledge of being listed as in the firm.

NAUSEATING GAS FILLED HOSPITAL

One of the Doctors Tells How He Fought His Way to the Open Air.

Cleveland, O., May 17—A dull, rumbling explosion, heavy dark clouds of irritating smoke, curling upward, then women's screams, the crash of heavy beams and death—this today was the grim picture of the Cleveland clinic catastrophe which Dr. Henry J. John, clinic diabetic specialist, carried with him.

"I was in my office," Dr. John told International News Service today. "Suddenly came a dull, rumbling report. Then, up from the floor near the radiator at my window, heavy, nauseating smoke and fumes began to pour out.

"I tried to make my way to the window but the stench of the bromide gas drove me back. As I ran for the door, women began to scream.

"I saw patients run for the windows, only to be driven back like I was, by the fumes pouring up from the openings in the floor near the radiator.

Office Near Door "Luckily for me, my office was not far from the outer door. I fought my way through the smoke. People were choking, screaming, fighting for their lives. Some who dashed through the fumes with me later collapsed and died.

"Once out of the building, it seemed to hard up like so much tinder. First and heavy brown fumes were everywhere."

"Trapped in the small rooms with only one window each, the patients saw their lone hope—the open windows—dashed from them because the fumes poured out of the cracks in the floor under the radiators, which were flush against the windows.

"Their only chance would have been to get to the windows—but the gas drove them back," the physician said.

Dr. John said that the celluloid films used in X-rays, which are believed to have caused the fire and blasts, were supposed to be chemically treated to make them inflammable.

After Dr. John made his way to safety another explosion rocked the building. Doctors and nurses, still clad in their white uniforms, made heroic efforts to rescue the invalid patients, some of whom were caught in the mad panic and crushed against the closed elevator doors.

THE WOMAN'S DAY

Colonel Charles Augustus Lindbergh sends his sweetest old-fashioned coronas of sweetheart roses when she's going to a party.

A GEMLESS BRIDE-TO-BE Elizabeth wore jewelry to the party, says the friend, but Anne didn't have a thing added to her little blue crepe dress with a velvet jacket but the old-fashioned coronas of sweetheart roses which Lindy had sent her.

YOUNG MEN LEARN But that's one of the things one takes for granted—that a young man, no matter what his background, rapidly learns to do the things expected of him by a lady in the case, and this particular lady in the case has moved in an orbit which takes coronas from her fiancée for the proper occasion rather for granted.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER LVII Some flitting out in Pittsburgh picked up Lefty Flint this morning.

Duke Brogan leaned forward and shot the words at Huck with the force of a bullet.

Huck nodded. It required no second thought for him to realize that Mr. Judson's beliefs and his lawyer would, on hearing Stephen's story, immediately seek to have Lefty Flint and J. B. apprehended.

Huck found relief in the belief that they hadn't. "Flind J. B. and get word to him to lay low," he told Duke.

"Right, but listen, Huck, I gotta warn you this place ain't too safe for you now."

"Let them prove it," he said shortly. "But too many people know this place. You'd better bet it up to Poberlin's. Sniffy's talk might leak out and make that girl as spotted as the snow on Judson they won't have to do much brain work to connect you with what's happened to her and Armitage."

He paused and poured himself a stiff drink taking it straight.

PSYCHIC BONDS BETWEEN TWINS EXIST ONLY IN SUPERSTITIOUS EDITORIAL BY DR. MORRIS FISHER

Some years ago, a writer named Miller made a study of identical twins who had been separated in childhood and reared apart. It has been a common belief that twins are not only look alike, but think alike and act alike.

They are what modern science recognizes as identical twins. Indeed, the markings on the palms of the hands are almost the same, as well as the finger prints.

SCIENCE TELLS OF FINDING OLD CERAMIC SECRET

Chicago.—Secrets of the ceramic industry, mourned as lost for more than 2,000 years, have been rediscovered and will be revealed to a modern public for the first time here during the week of February 5 when the first American Ceramic Exposition is held.

New-made wares, incorporating some of the secret methods used by the artisans of the ancient Egypt, Assyria, Rome and old China, will be shown at the exposition, which is to be under the auspices of the American Ceramic society. Examples of modern vases, revealing for the first time how modern workers have caught the secret of producing colors used by the old-time artisans, will be displayed.

"For more than 2,000 years the world has wondered how the marvelous blue and opaque Cornelian glass of Egypt was made and has tried in vain to reproduce it," D. F. Albery, a Chicago manufacturer of terra cotta and chairman of the committee in charge of the forthcoming exposition, declared in an interview. "And now we are to show the first examples of these modern duplications of famed old pieces of beautiful glassware."

"For more than a thousand years scientists have been trying in vain to duplicate the colors of the famous Peach-Blow Vase. Since before the dawn of Christianity western civilization has been endeavoring to again attain the everlasting colors of Chinese and Egyptian mosaics and enamels, which, undimmed, have defied the ravages of heat and cold, drought and rain, down through the ages."

"We are confident we have the secret at last. We have achieved acidproof enamels sought since the dawn of civilization. We have new opaque enamels and glasses, equal to any ever made by the ancients. We have colors to match the treasures dug from ancient tombs. It is fitting that the public should get its first view of these at the first great ceramic exposition ever held in the United States."

"When the ancient artisans who first held these secrets lived, they wove a cloud of mystery about their work. They desired their kings and queens to believe they labored in partnership with the gods. They worked their fires in isolated places, only on the darkest moonless nights. They dramatized their activities with weird rites, uncanny dances and incantations."

"These men went silently away, every now and then, on long and mysterious missions. They came back as silently, their camels and donkeys laden with strange ores and chemicals. They even brought peculiar sands for hundreds of miles. They buried certain trees to recover ashes saying that the ashes of no other tree would do."

"Their efforts were accompanied by unearthly rituals, and death was meted out to any caught attempting to spy on them. If one of their clan wandered away he would be followed to the end of the earth and ordered back. If he refused to come he would be found with a dagger in his heart."

"These facts, mixing mysticism and tragic death with art, indicate how and why these arts were lost when the holders of the secrets, due perhaps to war or pestilence, died out."

"These ancient colors and ancient opacities are now being duplicated in a limited way. American artisans have proved themselves more cunning than centuries of artisans in Europe in this. While working out the final touches, these American artisans are guarding their discovery as close as ever the ancients guarded theirs. "But they have agreed to show samples, for the first time, in Chicago in February. And the whole world of ceramics awaits expectantly. The veil of centuries is to be torn aside."

C. ELMORE WATKINS HOME FROM HOSPITAL

C. Elmore Watkins, treasurer of the firm of Watkins Brothers, returned to his home on South Main street yesterday afternoon from the Memorial hospital where he underwent a delicate major operation. The ligaments were torn completely away from the shoulder bone when he was thrown out of his car in an automobile accident at Wapping last week.

LOCAL WOMAN NAMED TO FINE POSITION

Miss Dorothea Clark to Be Supervisor of Nature Study in Springfield Schools.

Miss Dorothea Clark, daughter of Mrs. Frederick G. Clark of 729 North Main street, who has been a teacher for the past 12 years in Springfield schools, has just been appointed to the position of supervisor of nature study and garden work for the school year beginning in September. Miss Clark has been conducting the story telling hour for boys and girls under the auspices of the Museum of Natural History and has been very successful in this work.

Miss Clark is a younger sister of Miss Ivy Clark, long a teacher in New York City. Both were graduated from the Manchester High school and Westfield Normal school, and have taken summer courses. Miss Dorothea Clark is especially well qualified for her new post having spent two summers at Cornell University studying botany, ornithology, zoology and other nature courses. She spent one summer at the Alleghany School of Natural History. She has been a teacher of general science at the Chestnut street Junior High school in Springfield and for two years was assistant supervisor in charge of garden work. She plans this summer to attend the double summer session of 11 weeks at the University of Chicago, where she will take courses in supervision and in her special field of work.

USES 4 FISHLINES CATCHES 16 DAYS

Walter Richloff Gets Caught Hogging It at Globe Hollow by Warden Luettgens

Sixteen days hard work in Sycam street jail in Hartford for 16 fish, is the penalty Walter Richloff, 28, of 96 Charter Oak street must pay for fishing with four lines. The law allows a person to use only two.

Richloff was arrested at 6 o'clock yesterday afternoon at Globe Hollow reservoir by Deputy Warden Walter E. Luettgens and was convicted in Town Court this morning although pleading not guilty.

Deputy Judge Thomas Ferguson imposed a fine of $2 and costs which amounted to $12.02. Richloff refused to pay the money and was taken to jail on an added expense of $3.75, which makes a total of $15.77—the equivalent of 16 days work.

Richloff in his own behalf told the court that only two of the lines were his. One said he was that they were the property of a man with whom he boarded. He said the latter had gone home early and that two boys had been using the lines and that they, too, had just left.

The fact that the lines were all similar and that Richloff was alone when Warden Luettgens saw him first at 5 o'clock, impressed the court far more than Richloff's apparently false statements.

Some question was raised as to Richloff's correct identity. He said he was in the World War and could produce discharge papers. This led to the discovery that the man didn't enlist until 1920, two years after the war was over.

Richloff was taken out in Waterbury. Richloff had been fishing all afternoon when arrested and had made a good catch of perch and bullheads.

Richloff is said to have landed exactly 16 fish which will cost him a day in jail apiece.

EPWORTHERS TO PLAY FAMOUS COMEDY To Present "Nothing But the Truth" at Cheney Hall Tonight.

Can a man tell the truth, the absolute truth for twenty-four hours even with $1,000 at stake? This question will be answered in the three-act comedy being presented at Cheney hall at 8 o'clock tonight by the Epworth League of the South Methodist Church and entitled "Nothing But The Truth."

Those who saw the movie of the same name, starring Richard Dix, know the plot of the story and the many laughs caused by the hero who believes he can be a second George Washington. The play is said to contain even more laughs than the movie and should prove a hit with the large audience expected to attend.

The play is being held by the League in an effort to raise its pledge to the Building Fund of the church. Those taking part are all members of the Epworth League and are coached by Miss Lella Church of Rockville and Rev. James Greer, assistant pastor of the South Methodist Church.

The Child Study club met last evening at the home of Mrs. Herbert Allen on Washington street, with about 20 members present. C. P. Allen, president of the club opened the meeting and called on Miss Ethel M. Fish who gave an interesting report of the educational convention she attended last week in Boston and talked on the subject of training children through control of the emotions.

Games were played and refreshments served by a committee composed of Mrs. Nellie Marks, Mrs. Millard Park and Mrs. F. A. Sweet. The next meeting will be held June 19 with Miss Fish at Sunnyfield school.

Mrs. Russell Post, Mrs. Irving Campbell and Mrs. Frank Wilkie will be in charge of the social hour.

FLAPPER FANNY SAYS

The woman who says she is willing to go through anything for her husband, may have his bank account in mind.

SENSE and NONSENSE

"Why, where is the washing machine?" asked a friendly neighbor. "Oh, we turned it in as a first payment on a radio set," was the glib reply.

Radio grand opera is better. Your mind doesn't wander to the tenor's gold fillings.

An automobile expert believes that cars will soon be run by radio. Just add an attachment that will inflate a fat tire and we are sold.

The radio seems likely to come into as wide use as an accompaniment to conversation as the phonograph once was.

Don't take it for granted that you are doing the right thing in the right way. Search; investigate; question; find out the methods of others and compare them with your own.

The schoolgirl complexion is all right in its place, but it can cause an awful lot of trouble on father's coat.

Banana cloth is being used now. It should make a nice little thing to slip on when you're in a hurry.

The man who pays his debts promptly is wise enough not to owe much.

Every complaint is a priceless opportunity both to rectify defective methods and to make a firmer friend.

Little Brother: "What's et-quette?" Slightly Bigger Brother: "It's saying 'No, thank you,' when you want to say 'Yes!'"

Nobody can fight like a coward with all means of escape cut off.

Time brings changes. For instance: The Police Gazette in the barber shop has been supplanted by True Confessions.

"Coming events cast their shadows before." Not true in the case of accidents, which rarely give warning.

Plenty of people will urge you into a fight, but you'll have to get out on your own hook.

Out of your spare hours we have a chance to do what is pleasurable—and lucky is he whose pleasure is mentally, socially and spiritually profitable.

It is the caddy these days who carries a great deal of the white man's burden.

When a woman marries a man to get rid of him she usually succeeds.

The man who feels that he must make a choice of evils usually finds a large assortment.

It might save a lot of court expense if the law would frankly limit capital punishment to those worth less than $10,000.

If anxious to reform the people, try praising their good deeds rather than scolding them for their faults.

LETTER GOLF

A STYLE NOTE

Every husband knows that a FROCK represents a lot of COINS so it isn't surprising that the two aren't very far apart, even in letter golf. Far is only six and one solution is on another page.

Grid for Letter Golf with words FROCK and COINS.

THE RULES

1—The idea of Letter Golf is to change one word to another and do it in par, a given number of strokes. Thus to change COW to HEN, in three strokes, COW, HOW, HEW, HEN.

2—You change only one letter at a time.

3—You must have a complete word of common usage, for each jump. Slang words and abbreviations don't count.

4—The order of letters cannot be changed.

One solution is printed on comic page.

Altho there are many diseases prevalent in the country, by far the commonest is high blonde pressure.

Two can say "charge it" as cheaply as one.

STORY BY MAL COCHRAN—PICTURES BY BOCK

(READ THE STORY, THEN COLOR THE PICTURE)

The Gootygoose said, "My, you're kind, and I don't think I'll ever find a way to thank you for the things that you have done for me. I'm sorry that I ran away and took your bread. 'Twas just in play, I'm sure that, after this, I'll be as good as I can be." Then Clowzy said, "I know that you are sorry for bad things you do. It's just that you are fond of tricks. I used to be that way. But folks misunderstand your pranks and never think to give you thanks for being rather funny. They don't realize it's play. Now, go ahead and eat your meal. When you are through, I hope you'll feel much better. Food like to make a person feel better. I fear that if the others knew that I was out here feeding you, they'd think that I was easy, and was doing very well. They'd wake up with the morning breeze, so hurry with your eat-
