

PRESIDENT SUMMONS SPECIAL COMMISSION

First Meeting Called for This Afternoon—Eleven Mem- bers to Study Breakdown of Laws.

Washington, May 28.—President Hoover formally launches today what he confidentially expects to be the high point of his early administration—the sweeping investigation into breakdown of law enforcement.

This afternoon, the executive will assemble around the Cabinet table the ten men and one woman in whose hands he has decided to entrust this herculean task. After an informal lunch at the White House, he will bring them together for this initial meeting, charge them, and lay down a rough agenda for their guidance.

Hoover's Plan

It is Mr. Hoover's plan that this law enforcement commission, headed by George W.ickersham, attorney general during the Taft administration, shall go into every phase of the present-day failure of a surprisingly large number of the population to observe the law. Further, he expects the little group to examine searching the chaotic structure of the federal law-enforcement machinery and determine upon the changes that will make it a surer, and swifter-moving force.

Popular interest, of course, will center around the prohibition phase of the inquiry. Despite the President's protestations that the flagging of the 18th Amendment and the Volstead Act is only a comparatively minor phase of the situation, the public at large is interested primarily in what the commission may find concerning the liquor laws.

Mr. Hoover indicated he wants ways and means found to tighten up enforcement and observance, but the Wets are hopeful the fact-finding body may arrive at the conclusion prohibition is too unpopular to be workable and the Drys are equally hopeful that "the noble experiment" will be given the brand of permanency.

Cites Statistics

Speaking before American newspaper editors last month, the President cited many statistics to show that the United States suffers ten to twenty times more from crimes of violence than does any other nation of the world in proportion to population. He specifically mentioned murder, larceny, burglary, embezzlement and forgery. He added that his own investigations had shown prohibition to enter into the commission of felonies by less than eight per cent. of the total capital crimes. Murder, he said, apparently can be committed with impunity in the large cities of the country.

Touching on the make-up of the judiciary and its associated enforcement machinery, Mr. Hoover called attention to slow and involved processes, undue privileges accorded criminals on trial and the

ANNA GOULD'S SON IS DEAD; SUICIDE

Prince de Sagan Succumbs to Self-Inflicted Wound; Romance Shattered.

Paris, May 28.—Howard, Prince de Sagan, nineteen-year-old son of the Duchess de Talleyrand, formerly Anna Gould, died early today from the effects of a self-inflicted bullet wound.

Prince de Sagan shot himself because of a thwarted romance his parents had opposed. His marriage to a young French girl he met while at school, maintaining he should remain single until he reached the age of 21.

The immediate cause of death was pleurisy, which set in after a successful operation for removal of the bullet from the youth's abdomen had been performed.

Although he was thought to be well on the road to recovery, young Prince de Sagan's condition took a sudden turn for the worse last night.

Parents At Bedside

His physician, Dr. De Martel, and members of his family were hastily summoned to his bedside in the American hospital, and were present when he breathed his last at 3 o'clock this morning.

There was not sufficient time to notify his young sweetheart before he died. The girl is the south of France, where de Sagan met her while attending school.

Both the Duke and Duchess, who is the daughter of Jay Gould, multi-millionaire American railway magnate, were emphatic in their statements that they did not disapprove of their son's choice of a future bride, but merely were determined that he should not marry until he had attained his majority.

BLAMES BOOM FOR COLLAPSE ON EXCHANGES

Financial Expert Says Bears Are Not to Blame; Tight- ening of Credit, One of Causes.

By W. S. COUSINS.

New York, May 28.—The Wall Street bear, that hibernating animal who has been sharpening his claws for another savage onslaught on the lambs of speculation, has been blamed for the crash in stock prices that has taken place since the middle of April.

The wrath of the gods has been called down upon the unscrupulous traders who have "sold America short" during the period of agonized uncertainty in the money markets.

Though the bears have been pounding the market unmercifully for the most unsatisfactory period of the last year or two that they are surely entitled to whatever credit or satisfaction they may derive from the rich plums they are now picking from the speculative trees.

Main Causes

There are three main causes for the sharp reaction in the Stock market, and I am listing them in the order of their importance.

1. The boom which preceded it.
2. Forced liquidation of stocks by frightened traders.
3. Tightening of credit.

Some of the Stock Market tacticians might object to the above, and say that the cart has been placed before the horse. The tightening of credit, they say, and the fatuous policy of the Federal Reserve Board, are chiefly responsible for the most unsatisfactory Stock Market that has been seen in this country since 1924. Nothing could be farther from the truth, for the Reserve Board's action is effective rather than cause, and would not have been necessary had not credit been sucked in from all quarters of the globe to finance the most gigantic speculation ever recorded in financial history.

Different Conditions

Conditions are not "as different today as they were in the past" and most of the old, established rules of conduct apply to the present. With a boom in the Stock Market, a bull market, in other words, bad stocks are usually carried upstair with good ones. When the day of reckoning comes stocks with no legitimate reason for spectacular advances are the hardest hit.

Manipulation of speculative stocks that are hardly worth their price in the sun has ever constituted one of the most flagrant forms of abuse of the facilities of the Stock Market. There has been plenty of plain and unadorned manipulation in the last year or two, a good deal of it known in every detail to the commission houses.

GERMANY PROPOSES DEBT COMPROMISE

Suggest Switch from Dawes Plan to the Young Plan on September 1.

Berlin, May 28.—The German delegates to the Paris reparations conference have proposed a compromise which they hope will save the conference, it was learned here this afternoon.

It is proposed to switch from the Dawes plan to the Young plan on September 1.

The allied plan, according to German officials, was designed to make Germany pay both the Dawes plan and Young plan annuities during the nine months from April 1 to December 31.

The compromise would split the difference, but would leave the Young plan effect from the beginning of the German proposal.

The German proposal is believed to be the basis of the sudden English demand for "back to the Young plan."

However, the French are insisting that Germany pay occupation costs until the end of the year separately from the reparations annuities.

BUT ONE OBJECTION TO NEW STREET LINE

John Hill Opposes Proposed Highway Bounds on Hart- ford Road; Other Business

The objection made by John Hill of Hartford road in the proposed re-establishment of lines on Hartford road, resulted in the holding up of that project for the present, at least, when it came before the Selectmen last night. All of the property owners living between West street and West Center street, where the proposed changes were asked for, were in favor of the map as prepared by Town Engineer J. Frank Bowen, with the exception of Mr. Hill.

But One Objection

A large number were represented at the hearing and although many took the occasion to look over the change that was proposed most of them were familiar with the amount of land that would be given up in the change and were it not for trees there would be no objection at all. It was the possibility of the removal of the trees in front of Mr. Hill's house that caused him to object and although his neighbors tried to prevail upon him to allow the change he would not do so, wishing the line changed and insisting that more property be taken from the north side of the road.

This resulted in a long drawn out discussion by the residents of Hartford road who were present. To order the change carried through would probably result in a law suit and when the matter was taken up in executive session the board decided to refer the matter to the town counsel for advice.

Gasoline stations permits came before the board for consideration, as did petitions for lights. Samuel Nelson, Jr., writing to the board, told of the lack of lights in his vicinity on Porter street and petitioned for a light. Robert Chambers called attention to the need of additional lights on Birch street. Haywood street was another place where lights were wanted and another came from residents of Lydell street north of the old site of the needle factory. The petitions were referred to the lighting committee with power.

COMMUNISTS KIDNAP AMERICAN MINISTER

Disguised as Chinese They At- tack Mission Buildings in China.

Shanghai, May 28.—A rioting band of 2,000 Communists has attacked the Reformed Church of America mission buildings at Lung-Yen-Chow, Province of Fukien, and kidnaped Dr. C. Holleman, one of the missionary staff, a dispatch from Amey stated today.

Holleman's wife and children as well as other members of the mission escaped by hiding until the bandits had pillaged the buildings and departed.

The group then walked eighty miles to Amoy, disguising their identities as the trans-Atlantic Chinese. Efforts are being made to apprehend Dr. Holleman's kidnappers.

28 SOLDIERS KILLED IN HOSPITAL FIGHT

Shanghai, May 28.—A bloody clash between rival soldiers in a convalescent hospital at Chingkiang was reported today.

Twenty-three were killed and ninety injured in the fighting, in which pistols and bayonets were used. Police surrounded the hospital and arrested 520 combatants. Eleven corpses were found in wells in the vicinity.

FUND IS NEARING HALF-WAY MARK

Hospital Drive Goes Over $14,000; Team Workers Unusually Enthusiastic.

HOSPITAL FUND

Amount Needed . . . $26,000.00
Today's Total . . . $14,110.00

The enthusiasm of the 73 team workers in the Memorial hospital drive for $26,000 taken as a criterion assures the ultimate success of the drive in progress here this week. Last evening all twelve team captains rallied their members at 5:30 and all worked in their respective districts until 9 o'clock. The workers are anxious to complete their district canvasses early so that they will have an opportunity later in the week to re-canvass and check up on those that may have been missed in the first canvass.

Big Increase

The big jump in today's receipts over those previously reported is due to the inclusion in the fund today of the entire proceeds received by mail during last week. Many team captains had not made returns on Monday and this also accounts to some extent for the big increase over yesterday's total.

Last Night's Speaker

Last night C. Elmore Watkins a hospital trustee spoke at the State theater in behalf of the campaign. He cited his experiences as president of the hospital board and told the audience there why the town should give heartily towards the drive. Tonight's speaker in the interests of the hospital will be Rev. R. A. Colpitts, of the South

HOP TOMORROW

Old Orchard Beach, Me., May 28.—"Go ahead, weather OK."

This was the encouraging weather report flashed from New York this afternoon by Dr. James D. Kimball, meteorologist to the trans-Atlantic fliers of the America-to-Rome Green Flash and the America-to-Paris Yellow Bird.

The American airman announced that they would take off about 8 a. m., tomorrow when the tide was low. Fifteen minutes later the giant French Yellow Bird will soar into the air.

The trans-Atlantic American airman Roger Q. Williams and Lewis A. Vancey ordered the final fittings of their plane, the last 400 gallons to be put aboard this evening.

BUSES VERY SOON DEPOSE TROLLEYS

"Almost at Once" Says Com- pany; Routes to Be Same as Present Cars.

Two developments resulted from the hearing before the Public Utilities Commission at Hartford yesterday on the abandonment of local trolley tracks. One is that the trackage from Depot Square and from Manchester Green to the center between Depot Square and the Charter Oak street terminal, every half hour and another between Depot Square and Manchester Green also at half hour intervals, the two runs being staggered fifteen minutes apart at Depot Square, as at present giving hourly service between the Square and Center, with transfers at the Center as under the existing arrangement.

Extra Buses for Rushes

Representatives of the trolley company made known at the hearing that it was planned to run one bus between Depot Square and the Charter Oak street terminal every half hour and another between Depot Square and Manchester Green also at half hour intervals, the two runs being staggered fifteen minutes apart at Depot Square, as at present giving hourly service between the Square and Center, with transfers at the Center as under the existing arrangement.

It is also planned to have reserve buses kept here for use during the rush hours. The details of the employment of these have not yet been determined on.

While there was a general understanding that the buses would be put on before the work of rebuilding the Main street roadway was started it was not stated just how long in advance the bus service would replace the trolleys. The words "almost immediately" were used, however, so "it won't be long now."

TWO PERSONS KILLED AS AUTOMOBILE SKIDS

Suffield, Conn., Folks in North- ampton, Mass., Accident; Car Hits Tree.

Northampton, Mass., May 28.—Two persons were killed, one of them a 7-months-old boy, and two others were slightly shaken up early today when their automobile skidded off the road, sideswiped a tree stump, and crashed into a tree in West Hadley.

Mrs. Etta Nevell, 57, and her grandson Howard E. Clifford, Jr., 7, all of Suffield, Conn., were injured seriously.

The injured were rushed to Cooley-Dickinson hospital here, where the grandmother and the grandson died shortly after arrival.

According to police the father of the dead boy was the driver of the auto. He was arrested charged with reckless driving. He appeared in District Court here, pleaded not guilty, and the case was postponed until June 6.

WILLEBRANDT RESIGNATION IS ACCEPTED

Assistant Attorney General in Charge of Prohibition to Quit Her Government Post at Once.

Washington, May 28.—Mrs. Mabel Walker Willebrandt's severance from the government is to be immediate.

President Hoover has accepted her resignation, it was announced at the White House today.

Mrs. Willebrandt will relinquish her duties as the assistant attorney general in charge of prohibition soon after she returns to Washington from her present southwest trip and will engage in private law practice.

In connection with the announcement that Mr. Hoover had accepted her resignation, it was authoritatively denied that there has been any friction between Mrs. Willebrandt and the White House, or between Mrs. Willebrandt and Attorney General Mitchell.

Her close friends are aware, however, that she was disappointed at not being appointed to Washington, which she has long aspired to.

Washington, May 28.—In the absence of any official announcement the belief prevailed at the Department of Justice today that Mrs. Mabel Walker Willebrandt will face the nation's prohibition picture this summer.

STATE TO PROBE PARKER-SMITH CO.

Judge Johnson to Prosecute Case of New Haven-Hart- ford Concern.

New Haven, Conn., May 28.—The state banking commissioner and the attorney-general of the state came here today and asked Judge Arthur P. Ellis for a receiver for Parker-Smith Co., Inc., of New Haven and Hartford, on the ground that the firm has committed fraud and mismanagement, misused funds held in trust, failed to foreclose mortgages long in default, paid their note holders, who had bought notes as investments, from funds in the company's possession however acquired, and loaned large sums of money to persons on whose property they held mortgages. The state officials also charged that the company has been doing business since 1923 without a license which was required of it as an investment company.

Hearing Tomorrow

Judge Ellis will hear the application for receivership tomorrow afternoon. Judge Raymond A. Johnson, of Manchester, assistant attorney general, has been named to prosecute the case for the state. Lester E. Shippey, bank commissioner and Benjamin W. Alling, attorney-general, came here in person and presented their facts to Judge Ellis.

The defendants in the case are John E. Parker, of Hamden; Clarence V. Smith, and Paul M. Smith, brothers of West Haven. The case, however, came here in person according to records of the company. A huge sum is involved in the affair though the amount has not been definitely determined. The concern, which was started seven years ago with practically no capital, will affect every town in the state.

The five cent cigar occupied an important case in the closing fight over the bill when the committee proposed a 40 cent a pound duty on Sumatra wrapper tobacco, which it previously had rejected. Growers

"Lone Eagle" and Miss Anne Morrow Motor Away Sev- eral Hours Before Their Marriage is Formally An- nounced—Rumors Place Couple Here, There and Everywhere—May Be Aboard a Yacht.

New York, May 28.—The mystery of the whereabouts of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh and his bride, the former Anne Morrow, deepened today as hour after hour passed and countless rumors to the effect that the couple was here, there and the other place, were placed in circulation.

Up to 9 o'clock this morning, 17 hours after the ceremony was performed, no trace of "Lindy" and his bride had been found but a report persisted that the couple was honeymooning on a yacht.

New York, May 28.—"We"—Lindy and Anne—were honeymooning today.

Where and in what manner no one knew, apparently, but themselves. They disappeared completely after their surprise marriage late yesterday and this morning, hours afterward, all efforts to locate the happy young couple had failed.

Was theirs to be an airplane honeymoon? A trip to Europe? Or simply a quiet spin to some secluded spot in the country? These were questions the press of the nation was seeking to learn.

"Lindy"—Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh and his bride, the former Miss Anne Spencer Morrow, were married at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon at the home of the bride's father, in Englewood, N. J. Only twenty guests were present and they were all, with one exception relatives of the Morrow family and the bridegroom. Col. Lindbergh's one relative present was his mother, Mrs. Evangeline L. Lindbergh.

Escapes Reporters

They eluded a cordon of reporters and photographers who had laid siege to the estate for weeks, and dropped from sight as completely as did the "Lone Eagle" that dawn two years ago when, as an unknown flyer, he soared into the mists overhanging the Atlantic in an epic non-stop flight from New York to Paris.

The wedding ceremony was held in the drawing room of the Morrow home, the house in which the bride was born 22 years ago. "Lindy" incidentally is 27. Only twenty guests were present and they were all, with one exception relatives of the Morrow family and the bridegroom. Col. Lindbergh's one relative present was his mother, Mrs. Evangeline L. Lindbergh.

Brief Ceremony

The ceremony was an abbreviated form of the Episcopal and Presbyterian ritual.

The word "obey" was not used. It was "love, honor and cherish," not "love, honor and obey." It was said, however, that Dr. Brown habitually omits the word "obey" from marriage ceremonies unless asked specifically to use it. Lindbergh is known to have requested that certain parts of the ritual be omitted but what they were could not be learned.

An ambassador Morrow gave the bride away as he did, he regarded his daughter with affection and his new son-in-law with pride. The tall, slim aviator towered above the shy, demure girl at his side.

The bride was dressed beautifully but with the utmost simplicity. She wore a gown of white chiffon that had been made by Miss Mary Smith, a seamstress of Englewood. A short net veil descended from her head.

The bride was dressed beautifully but with the utmost simplicity. She wore a gown of white chiffon that had been made by Miss Mary Smith, a seamstress of Englewood. A short net veil descended from her head.

Wears Business Suit

Lindbergh was dressed in a blue business suit and a dark, inconspicuous tie. He was calm and self-possessed throughout the ritual, responding to questions in a quiet, steady voice. Anne's demeanor was equally unperturbed.

The bridegroom placed the ring on the bride's finger without the slightest indication of fumbling. He glanced at her affectionately and somewhat seriously as he did so.

When the ceremony was completed a large wedding cake was cut, and each guest accepted a piece. There were no other refreshments.

The bride and groom accepted congratulations for five or ten minutes, then drifted to one side and talked for a few minutes. Anne then slipped away.

ney general in charge of prohibition, tax suits and federal prisons, had actually resigned continuous while both the White House and Attorney General Mitchell, her immediate superior, claimed it was "news to them." The only woman member of the sub-Cabinet submitted her resignation along with other office holders at the close of the last administration, but President Hoover has not accepted it. Not Pleased With Regime It is probable that Mrs. Willebrandt is not entirely pleased with the new regime. Her friends declared she did a lot for Mr. Hoover during the campaign, "taking the stump for him and the cause of dry law enforcement. She aspired to a Federal judgeship in California which did not come her way. And now, subordinates at the Department of Justice said, she has heard that someone other than herself was being mentioned to head the Prohibition Bureau after the activities have been transferred from the Treasury Department to the Department of Justice. Mrs. Willebrandt is expected to return to her legal work. She plans to open offices here, it was said, and specialize in aviation law. Today she is enroute to Waco, Texas, to receive an honorary college degree. She returns here about June 5. She may announce her resignation then.

changed to a dark blue traveling suit. She also donned a blue turban hat of felt and straw. When she returned, she and "Lindy" hurried to the latter's car and, alone, drove away. The room where the ceremony was held was not decorated for the occasion. There were only a few flowers about—bunches of larkspur and tulips and lilies of the valley, all taken from the garden of the estate. Guests, besides Mrs. Lindbergh and Ambassador and Mrs. Morrow, included the bride's two younger sisters, the Misses Constance and Elizabeth Morrow; General J. J. Morrow, a brother of the ambassador; Miss Alice Morrow, the bride's aunt, who arrived a few days ago from Constantinople; Mrs. Arthur Yates, a sister of Mrs. Morrow, and Miss Amy Aldrich, an intimate friend of the Morrow family. When Lindbergh and his bride drove out through the big gate of the estate after the ceremony, they found the usual group of reporters and photographers waiting—unaware, however, that the marriage had taken place. Lindbergh straight ahead but the young Mrs. Lindbergh flashed them a friendly, disarming smile. They had passed this group many times in days gone by and none of the reporters suspected that they were actually married.

CONFLICTING REPORTS

For the news that the reporters were waiting for was the date of the wedding. It had been reported that a definite announcement would be made soon, settling the question that had come up (time and again as to when and where the greatly publicized couple would wed. The consensus was that the marriage was to take place at the Morrow summer home in North Haven, Maine, about June 15.

"Lindy" and his wife drove down the road at a fast speed, turned a corner or two, head out along a main highway and soon disappeared from view. From that moment all trace of them was lost. It was said early today that officials at Roosevelt Field, L. I., had received telephone instructions yesterday noon from Lindbergh to get a fast Curtiss Falcon plane that he had been using ready for this morning. Although mechanics got busy with the plane this report was generally regarded as a scheme to throw reporters and photographers off the trail. It was recalled that shortly after the couple disappeared by automobile an airplane streaked over the Morrow estate. It was not inconceivable that "Lindy" and Anne were in that plane. The announcement of the marriage was not made until 8:45 p. m., when Ambassador Morrow's secretary telephoned a brief statement to press associations and newspapers in New York. The announcement merely stated: "Mr. and Mrs. Dwight W. Morrow announce the marriage of their daughter, Anne, to Charles A. Lindbergh at Englewood, New Jersey, May 27, 1929." There was "nothing to add" to the statement, the secretary said. And Ambassador Morrow said the same thing early this morning as he prepared to take a train from New York City for Washington where he will confer with President Hoover on the Mexican situation.

The marriage license was made out in the Morrow home by John A. Hanson of the Englewood Board of Health on last Saturday, the second anniversary of Lindbergh's landing in Paris on his historic flight. The Rev. Dr. Brown, who performed the ceremony, is an old friend of Ambassador Morrow. The Ambassador is a trustee of Union Theological Seminary where Dr. Brown is a professor. The latter's daughter, Helen, who died last year, attended Miss Chapin's school in New York with Miss Morrow and the two young women were warm friends.

The romance of Lindbergh and Miss Morrow began in Mexico City in December, 1927, when the world's premier flyer dropped down there in his plane, the Spirit of St. Louis, on his good-will tour of Central America, the Caribbean Littoral and the West Indies. NEWS A SURPRISE Mexico City, May 28.—News of the wedding of Col. Chas. A. Lindbergh to Miss Anne Morrow came as a complete surprise to members of the staff of the United States Embassy here, and the question was being raised today of whether the newlyweds might spend at least part of their honeymoon in Mexico. The Mexican public, as well as the foreign colonies in this city, have watched the romance of the fier and the daughter of America's ambassador to this country with a great deal of interest.

Hope is expressed that Col. and Mrs. Lindbergh may elect to visit Mexico, as it is recalled their meeting and courtship took place in this country. Many believe that the honeymooners will make a visit by plane to Mexico, and perhaps spend some time at Cuernavaca, near Mexico City, where Lindbergh did much of his courtship. The first indication former President Calles received of the marriage was when newspapermen advised his secretary. It had previously been reported that Calles might be present at the wedding.

ENGLEWOOD HAPPY Englewood, N. J., May 28.—The wedding of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh to Anne Morrow here took this suburban town completely by surprise. Today the event was the sole topic of conversation. That the wedding was to take place so suddenly—and in such a simple fashion, too, was a complete surprise to Englewood.

When details of the simple ceremony became public, Englewood folk smiled a gratified smile with the air of those completely vindicated. The simple wedding was in keeping with the simple life of these people who choose to live in rural New Jersey, across the Hudson from the hustle and bustle of New York.

shortly after the couple disappeared by automobile an airplane streaked over the Morrow estate. It was not inconceivable that "Lindy" and Anne were in that plane. The announcement of the marriage was not made until 8:45 p. m., when Ambassador Morrow's secretary telephoned a brief statement to press associations and newspapers in New York. The announcement merely stated: "Mr. and Mrs. Dwight W. Morrow announce the marriage of their daughter, Anne, to Charles A. Lindbergh at Englewood, New Jersey, May 27, 1929." There was "nothing to add" to the statement, the secretary said. And Ambassador Morrow said the same thing early this morning as he prepared to take a train from New York City for Washington where he will confer with President Hoover on the Mexican situation.

The marriage license was made out in the Morrow home by John A. Hanson of the Englewood Board of Health on last Saturday, the second anniversary of Lindbergh's landing in Paris on his historic flight. The Rev. Dr. Brown, who performed the ceremony, is an old friend of Ambassador Morrow. The Ambassador is a trustee of Union Theological Seminary where Dr. Brown is a professor. The latter's daughter, Helen, who died last year, attended Miss Chapin's school in New York with Miss Morrow and the two young women were warm friends.

The romance of Lindbergh and Miss Morrow began in Mexico City in December, 1927, when the world's premier flyer dropped down there in his plane, the Spirit of St. Louis, on his good-will tour of Central America, the Caribbean Littoral and the West Indies.

NEWS A SURPRISE Mexico City, May 28.—News of the wedding of Col. Chas. A. Lindbergh to Miss Anne Morrow came as a complete surprise to members of the staff of the United States Embassy here, and the question was being raised today of whether the newlyweds might spend at least part of their honeymoon in Mexico. The Mexican public, as well as the foreign colonies in this city, have watched the romance of the fier and the daughter of America's ambassador to this country with a great deal of interest.

ANDOVER

There were 24 at the Ladies Benevolent society's annual meeting Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Charles Wright. The following officers were re-elected: President, Mrs. Helen Gatchell; secretary, Mrs. George Nelson; treasurer, Mrs. Erskine Hyde; directors, Mrs. Ernest Percy, Mrs. Harry Milburn and Mrs. A. H. Benton. The speaker was Miss Ada Chadwick of the Chadwick Orphanage for colored girls at Atlanta, Ga. Refreshments were served by the hostess, Mrs. Wright. Charles Culver of Norwich was a caller on Mr. and Mrs. George Platt and Mrs. Anna Read Thursday. Mrs. Raymond Goodale, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Fredrich and daughter and Mr. Wright motored to the cemetery in West Ashford and decorated the graves of relatives Sunday. Mr. and Mrs. George Platt, Mrs. George Read, Mrs. Kittie Mittens and son Ellsworth, went to the Woodland cemetery in Ashford and decorated the graves of relatives Sunday. Mr. and Mrs. Ward Talbot and grandson and Mrs. Grace Talbot of Manchester motored to Essex Sunday and decorated the graves of Mr. Talbot's parents. Mrs. J. T. Murphy of Boston and Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Platt and son of Manchester were week-end guests of their parents Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Frink. Mr. and Mrs. Thornton Griswold of West Hartford spent the week-end with Mrs. Griswold's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Holden Brown. There was a large crowd at the Girls' League supper and entertainment Friday evening. The entertainment was very good and much enjoyed by the audience. Mr. and Mrs. Brunell, Oliver Roberts and Mr. and Mrs. William Smith all of Burnside were recent callers on Mr. and Mrs. George Platt. Rev. Russell O'Brien graduates from the Theological Seminary in Hartford Wednesday morning. He will spend the summer in town. Mr. O'Brien will live at the Congregational parsonage. Guests of Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Phelps at Dinner Sunday were Mr. Mix, also Mr. Carr and Mr. Campbell, Theological students at New Haven. At the ball game between Andover and Columbia Sunday Andover won 9-2. What might have been a serious accident occurred during the game when a ball went astray and hit a Rhode Island fan. The ball went through the glass windows. As it was an accident the boys clubbed together and paid for the damage.

REV. EUGENE MORIARTY HONORED BY KNIGHTS

Recently Ordained to Priesthood Local Boy is Presented With Purse at K. of C. Meeting.

Rev. Eugene Moriarty, recently ordained to the priesthood, and the guest of honor at a meeting of Campbell Council, No. 573, Knights of Columbus, held in the State theater building last night, was presented with a purse of gold, by Lecturer William J. Shea, as a token of the esteem and good fellowship of the council. Father Moriarty responded in a fitting manner, thanking the members and assuring them that the occasion was one long to be remembered by him and that he would always revere their friendship.

Father William P. Reidy, pastor of the St. James' Church and chaplain of the local council spoke briefly on the renewed and increased enthusiasm displayed by the members present and took this occasion to highly praise Father Moriarty, the first member of the council to enter the priesthood. During the meeting the first degree of knighthood was conferred on a class of candidates by the presiding officers. Past Grand Knights Thomas Dannaher, Edward F. Moriarty, Walter P. Gorman, James D. Burke, and Thomas Quish spoke a few words. At the close of the meeting, Father Moriarty bestowed his blessing on those present. A buffet lunch followed served by the Board of Stewards comprised of John Regetta, Robert McVeigh, and Leo J. Cleary. Impromptu entertainment came next, furnished by Thomas Quish at the piano and Benjamin Von Filski playing the violin. Warden Arthur Keating sang several solos and a duet featuring old time numbers was furnished by Charles Magnell and William P. Quish.

ABOUT TOWN

Junior choir girls gave a very pleasing entertainment at the North Methodist church last evening. The choristers were looking their best in red, white and blue crepe paper gowns. The songs and recitations were all of a patriotic nature and gave evidence of the training they had received from their director, Miss Beatrice Lydall. Miss Bernice Lydall played the piano accompaniments. A flag drill in which the 16 girls had a part was another attractive feature as well as the selections by the girls' trio, composed of Martha Kisman, Rosanna McGill and Olive Smith. Home-made candy was sold during the evening.

A bridge and whist will be held in the basement of St. Bridget's church at 8 o'clock tonight under the auspices of the Holy Name Society. There will be twelve prizes and refreshments will be served.

Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Parkis of Summit street are receiving congratulations today on the birth of a son.

Charles A. Sweet, north end taxi driver is back at his stand again. Mr. Sweet's automobile was out of commission for a few days being repaired and the report was circulated that he was retiring from the taxi business which proved to be untrue.

In order to do away with possible injuries to patrons of the stores in the State Theater building the broken tile walks leading into the stores are being replaced with a new concrete finish built flush with the sidewalks.

With the close of the May devotions which are held twice a week in St. James' church there will be a continuation of devotions in honor of the Sacred Heart held in the church on Friday and an evening earlier in the week during the month of June.

The next meeting of the Frohmann Lodge No. 24 O. D. H. S., will be held on Thursday evening, June 5, at eight o'clock in Tinker Hall. All members are requested to be present as the meeting is an important one.

MRS. TUNNEY'S CONDITION

Brioni, May 28.—Unless unforeseen complications develop, a second operation upon Mrs. Gene Tunney, wife of the retired heavyweight champion, will not be necessary, it was learned today.

Dr. A. W. Meyer, Berlin surgeon who performed the first operation on the Connecticut heiress on April 30, has sent that word to a colleague in Berlin.

ALL WAY BY BUS FROM CALIFORNIA

Richard Leiboldt Makes Long Trip Entirely by That Type of Transportation.

Richard Leiboldt, arrived in Manchester this morning from a trip to California, where he went to visit a sister, who lives there. "Dick" was not busy last winter and decided to take a trip and selected California as his winter quarters. With the opening of the warm weather he started his return journey. Instead of traveling by rail or by sea and the Panama Canal he decided to try something different and selected bus lines as his transportation. He found that there were connecting automobile bus lines all the way from Los Angeles to Hartford and Manchester, so he started out. He was much longer in making the trip home than he was in going to California, but it was well worth it, he tells friends. At Hartford he took a Silver Lane bus and arrived this morning having traveled the entire distance this way.

PARIS DIVORCE

Paris, May 28.—Mrs. Philander Lathrop Cable today filed suit in the Seine Court for divorce, alleging desertion. Mrs. Cable, whose maiden name was Marie Scott, gave her husband's present address as the United States Embassy in Berlin. The couple were married in Versailles on Nov. 18, 1894.

LOCAL GIRL IS ACTIVE AT ROCKFORD COLLEGE

Was One of Three Candidates for May Queen—On Staff of College Paper.

Mr. and Mrs. William E. Sturgeon of School street have just received a copy of the "Purple Parrot," the weekly publication of Rockford college. It contains a picture of their daughter, Miss Margaret Sturgeon, who was one of the three highest candidates for May Queen. The annual festival was held on May 18 this year in the form of a Greek pageant, and the identity of the girl chosen was not revealed until the day of her coronation. The qualifications were that the May queen must be a member of the senior class, having been a student at Rockford college for four years and unconditioned in her academic work—a girl who is kind, helpful, enthusiastic, unselfish, co-operative, dignified and graceful, and one who is able to adjust herself to every group of college mates. Miss Sturgeon has been very active in all college events. During the past year she has been vice-president of the college government association. She is also a member of the Dramatic and French clubs and the staff of the college paper; active in Y. W. C. A. and social service work.

The foreign trade of the United States in bare copper wire during 1928 amounted to $2,642,195.

WOMAN GETS 25 YEARS

Brattleboro, Vt., May 28.—Mrs. Laura Woodward Havery today was starting a prison term of 25 to 30 years, imposed after she had been adjudged guilty by a jury of assault with intent to kill her husband, Thomas Havery, one-armed painter, whom she married after a correspondence courtship. She protested her innocence and nearly sworned when sentence was passed in Windham County Court.

OFFERING OF KANE STOCK IS ANNOUNCED

Issue of 60,000 Shares Is Made Through Flint & Co. Inc., New York Brokers.

Flint & Co. Inc., New York, are offering 60,000 shares of the capital stock of the Kane Stores of New England, Inc., a corporation owning and operating a chain of retail furniture stores in New England cities.

The management of the present company is in the hands of the New England men who opened the Kane store in Woonsocket, R. I., in 1920. This first store was started with a capital of $38,000 and did a gross business of $128,000 the first year in operation.

Chain store principle with the result thereafter applied with the result that, as the profits of the company warranted, new stores were opened each year in strategic locations. Today, the Kane Stores of New England, Inc., operates eight stores in some of the largest New England cities. Its capitalization, in nine years, has increased to more than $1,700,000 with annual net sales running well over $1,000,000.

The total net sales for the period of 1926 to 1928 inclusive were $3,241,985.92, or a yearly average of net sales of $1,080,665.20. Report for the quarter ending March 31, 1929 shows net sales of $241,447.21 as compared with $218,412.49 for the same three-month period of 1928, or an increase of slightly over 10 per cent.

The total net profits for the calendar years 1926, 1927 and 1928, after provision for interest, depreciation and Federal taxes, and after giving effect to non-recurring items, were $354,643.36, or an average yearly net profit of $121,548.45. The company has shown a profit during every year of its existence, and for the past three years has paid stock and cash dividends.

The stores operated by the Kane Stores of New England are engaged in retail furniture business under the modern Budget Plan. The chain of Kane stores is being expanded as rapidly as is consistent with sound growth. Having developed the formula for successful operation, the additional stores is merely a problem of finding good locations at favorable terms of rental.

Competent managers are constantly being developed, trained and prepared for these stores within the Kane personnel. The stock of the Kane Stores of New England, Inc., has been listed on the Securities Market of the New York Produce Exchange. The present issue of 60,000 shares is being sold to provide capital for further development along constructive chain store principles, by opening additional stores in cities and towns in New England.

HOLIDAY PROGRAM AT CAPITOL PARK

Memorial Day pleasure seekers who desire to indulge in outdoor recreation after a winter of indoor amusements will find Capitol Park, Hartford's Wetherfield Avenue summer resort, an attractive spot to spend the holiday or any part of it. From ten a. m. until midnight, all of the park's numberless diversions, its fun and thrill rides will be in full operation under the new management.

The Capitol Park holiday program is one which should serve to bring forth record crowds. Free out-of-door dancing will be in order both afternoon and evening with Ed Gurley's Syncopators furnishing their customary popular brand of music. Throughout the day, there will be a continuous concert of the best, selected jazz and melody of the world's most famed artists on the new orthophonic music system.

As a special free attraction, Capitol Park offers both on its afternoon and evening program the Tip Top Trio, entertainers of high class caliber who recently completed a tour on one of the best known vaudeville circuits in the country.

The tennis courts at the East Side Playgrounds will be ready for use tomorrow afternoon. The West Side courts were completed and ready for use this afternoon.

QUOTATIONS

"It is evident that the prosperity of the United States, affording a rapidly growing market for materials and products of other parts of the world, has been a very important factor in filling the gap in demand caused by the demoralization of Europe's buying power."

"The Tacna-Arica dispute has come to an end, according to an announcement made by President Hoover. However, the historic question of the Pacific, which includes Bolivia, Chile, Peru, is far from settled, and it will not be, unless the land-locked condition in which Bolivia has endured national life since the War of 1879 is changed."

"Of the many plans suggested to remedy the unemployment situation, the greatest of them all was the restrictive immigration law. We do not want cheap labor to come here to compete with the American workman."

"I appreciate the assistance given the livestock industry by increasing the tariff on reindeer meat, venison and other game."

"Anyone who reads the New Testament with candor and intelligence sees that a great element of our religion has evaporated out of our wealth cannot compensate."

"The program for this week at Sandy Beach Ballroom at Crystal Lake is the most elaborate that has ever been arranged for this popular resort."

There's no Extra Charge for Hi-test TYDOL

What! A real high-test, anti-knock, super-power gasoline at no extra cost! At first, motorists could hardly believe the good news. Because the very words "high-test" and "anti-knock" just naturally suggested the extra charge.

But when the filling station man named the price of this new emerald-green Hi-test TYDOL (not a cent more than the price of ordinary gasolines) then the motor car owner realized that Tide Water had made one of the greatest contributions to the motoring public in recent years.

Instant starting. Double acceleration. Faster hill climbing. Silky, tireless power, under every stress and strain, and with the quiet of a cat on a velvet rug.

You can't hide a super-value very long from wide-awake motorists. Hi-test TYDOL has been a whirlwind of a success because one motorist has told another. And in its own quiet way, by its mile-upon-mile of superb and silent performance, Hi-test TYDOL has done a lot of powerful talking for itself.

NATIONAL NEWS

Largest Sea Scout Ship
The largest ship of the National Sea Scout Fleet, "The Miras Princess," 158-foot schooner of the Sea Scouts of Manhattan Council, New York City, N. Y., will be placed in service on June 15. She was inspected on May 12 by Howard F. Gillette, of Chicago, National Sea Scout Commodore, and other Sea Scout officials who were the guests of Commodore George P. Bonnell, donor of the vessel and Chairman of the Manhattan Sea Scout Committee. Commodore Bonnell was formerly Commodore of the Cruising Club of America. The vessel, which will act as the base ship for the Manhattan Sea Scout Fleet, will be anchored off the Bonnell Estate at Port Chester, New York.

Equipped with facilities for carrying a crew of 150 Sea Scouts and carrying in addition to eight 24-foot whale-boats equipped with oars and sails, several cutters which will be used for training Sea Scouts in the handling of small boats, the "Miras Princess" is the finest ship of its type in the Sea Scout Fleet, according to Thomas J. Keane, National Sea Scout Director. The ship was formerly a lumber schooner sailing out of Minas Basin, Nova Scotia, and is only nine years old. She has been refinished and equipped to meet every need of the Sea Scouts.

During the summer months this year, hundreds of Manhattan Sea Scouts will have an opportunity to live on the big vessel and to study seamanship. They will register for two week periods under competent leaders and will participate in regular sea activities.

The group of yachting notables who inspected the ship consisted of: National Sea Scout Commodore Howard F. Gillette, of Chicago; Regional Sea Scout Commodore F. H. Bosbyshell, of Los Angeles; Regional Commodore Paul Hammond, of New York; Percy L. Jackson, of New York, President of the Manhattan Council; Boy Scouts of America, Thomas J. Keane, National Sea Scout Director; Bruno G. Andrews, Deputy Regional Executive for Sea Scouting and Commodore Bonnell.

COMMUNITY GOOD TURN

When a factory in Middletown, New York, decided to abandon an athletic field which they had supported for the community for several years, the American Legion of that village, with the aid of the Scout Troop which they are sponsoring, decided to take over the field and keep it open as a community project. The Boy Scouts distributed handbills urging upon the citizens the need of keeping an athletic field open for the use of the community. The American Legion raised the money for the support of the field. A new camp site valued at $20,000 has been turned over to the Boy Scouts of Dayton, Ohio, by Frederick B. Patterson, of the National Cash Register Co., according to word received from Scout Executive Perle L. Whitehead. The new camp site will make it possible to Dayton to conduct the divisional plan of camping on a much larger scale than heretofore enjoyed. 177 acres of rugged camping land with plenty of ravine, ledges, woodland, streams, wild life and nature preserves is included in the gift. The camp will be known as Cricket Holler this summer.

A MATTER OF SIMPLE ARITHMETIC

You Ask "How Does An Annual Hospital Deficit Come About"?

JUST FOLLOW THROUGH THIS SIMPLE ANALYSIS AND YOU HAVE THE EXPLANATION OF THE PROBLEM THAT PRODUCES TWO-THIRDS OF THE DEFICIT!

Average Per Capita Cost Per Ward Bed Per Day	$5.08
Ward Charge Per Bed Per Day	$2.25
Deficit Per Ward Bed Per Day	$2.83
365 Days Per Year at $2.83 Per Day Per Ward Bed	$1,032.95
Total Deficit for 24 Ward Beds For This Year	$24,709.80

Replacement of Equipment and Miscellaneous Expense Constitute the Other One-Third of the Deficit.

EVERY hospital has to have a ward, and as a rule, the larger the hospital, the larger are the wards in comparison with the space allotted to private rooms. Only a nominal charge is made for ward patients in any hospital. In a great percentage of the cases, they cannot pay even this nominal charge, to say nothing of the numbers who are unable to pay anything at all. The wards present the major source of financial loss to any hospital but, with other hospitals, this is taken care of by income from endowment funds. Lacking such funds to any substantial extent, your hospital must depend on your generosity to make up the difference.

CANTIGNY.
 Eleven years ago today the first real American attack of the World War was launched against Cantigny, the "little French village on a hill."
 According to more recent histories of the war, it was an attack that could hardly fail. Officials—French and American—were most anxious for the Yanks to be successful in their first drive, chiefly because of the moral effect it would have upon the Allied troops. Every precaution, therefore, was taken to assure a victory. The village was not in itself important to the Allied cause. It was merely one of a number that had fallen under the German tidal wave of March and April, 1918.
 Allied preparations were made so far in advance that only the heroism of two unknown First Division privates prevented the Germans from expecting the attack and possibly repulsing it. The two were taken prisoner during a German raid 24 hours before the attack was scheduled to start and although they knew the American plans, they remained silent under the cross-examination of the German Intelligence.

CHANGE-OF-NAME SALE

EXACTLY 10% ABOVE COST

Two Weeks Beginning Wednesday, MAY 29

The Reason for This Sale
 Since taking over the MEN'S RELIABLE STORE I have bought fresh stocks and inaugurated a new policy and so, in order to avoid confusion in the minds of the public I have decided to change the name to HYMAN'S MEN'S STORE
 Signed: HYMAN COHN.

Prices Exactly 10% Above Cost
 Everyone knows that no store sells AT COST OR BELOW. Such a claim is a fake! Therefore I come out flat-footed and state that this sale is Bona Fide. The prices quoted are marked exactly 10% above cost to cover the expense of doing business and advertising. But you will find these prices lower than any other store in town for HIGH GRADE and WELL KNOWN BRANDS OF GOODS.

A Word About Merchandise
 I have no argument with the chain store, but I have a question to ask—"WHY BUY INFERIOR GOODS. SOME NOT MADE IN FACTORIES, WHEN YOU CAN BUY HIGH GRADE MERCHANDISE AT A LOWER COST RIGHT HERE?" Chain stores do not carry the best grade of men's wearing apparel at the lowest prices—BUT I DO!
 I am endeavoring to assure you of my honest selling policy and to offer you the opportunity of coming in and seeing for yourself during the week of this sale.

POP-GUN OPINION

One of the unfortunate results of overplaying a popular "hero" is that often there is lent to his words or opinions a weight utterly out of proportion to their real value. There is Henry Ford, a genius as a mechanic and as an industrial organizer, but very far indeed from being a genius, when he intrudes into those sociological fields in which he has no more experience or understanding than a little child.

And then there is Admiral Sims. Somebody is forever letting Admiral Sims speak at some function where he has especial opportunity to say the wrong thing. Sims isn't a Ford. He isn't a genius and so doesn't depart so far from the average in either direction. He never made a spectacle of himself like Ford did during the war with his "peace ship" and his plan to have a lot of old ladies and whiskerados go to Europe, pat all the head devils on the back and "get the boys out of the trenches by Christmas."

Well, Sims doesn't know. He doesn't know half as much about what's going on in the world as he pretends to. He's a naval man who happens to be strictly limited to being a naval man—which hasn't always been true of either naval men or soldiers. His reading of history is parrot. His deductions are from the utterly obvious. He is a nice old gentleman and looks well in a uniform and he got almost every coffee-cooler in his London office the Navy Cross and forgot all about getting it for any of those under him who were fighting German submarines and North Sea mines.

So it rather riles us—not to read reports of what Sims says, for he is always saying something cheaply pessimistic—but that there are so many people ready, without subjecting either the man or his utterances to any test of reason or fact, to take his prejudiced and constricted views as if they fell from the lips of an oracle. When you hear Black Jack Pershing say anything like that about no nation being fit to trust it will be safe to notice it. But you won't hear him say anything of the kind. Nor will you hear any such stuff from anybody else whose opinions are based on study and real thought.

LAW PSYCHOLOGY

There's always somebody to take the joy out of life. Here the New York City Committee of Twenty on Street and Outdoor Cleanliness gets up a perfectly corking plan to shock the park litterers, and Chief City Magistrate McAdoo comes along and crabs it.

One of the things that a large proportion of New York's population came to America to do was to throw papers and banana peels on the carefully swept lawns of public parks and private grounds. They wanted to live in a free country where the police would let them commit a varied assortment of such nuisances. And having gotten far as New York and finding Central Park one of the most delightfully litterable places imaginable, they proceeded to take full advantage. Anyone who has ever visited a New York public park along toward sundown of a Sunday afternoon must wonder at the diligence with which the liberty-lovers have been operating. Sometimes you can see a glimpse of the grass here and there, through the rubbish, sometimes you can't.

In order to put the fear of the law into the hearts of these folks and make them put their litter in the rubbish cans or carry it away with them, the committee hit on the idea of moving a police magistrate and his outfit into the old Arsenal Police Station within the park area, on Sundays, and trotting these offenders in there the instant they were caught defouling the greenswards, to be fined or otherwise treated.

It was the right idea. The presence of such a court in such a place would have done more than any amount of argument to let these folks know that the police intended, above all other minor things, to put an end to the outrageous abuse of the park's privileges. But McAdoo lacked imagination. He "couldn't see that there was any necessity for such a proceeding when the East Fifty-seventh street court was so handy."

Rubbish! A regular court wasn't what these folks needed. They don't give a rap about regular courts. But a court erected for the purpose of soaking park litterers, and nothing else, would be something like.

Justice McAdoo is evidently one of those learned persons who are short on psychological comprehension. He doesn't understand the workings of the group mind. He is the kind of lawyer who, had he been of Connecticut, might have reposed full confidence in the law making the speed limit whatever the driver himself happened to consider safe under the conditions.

MABEL NEAR EXIT

A rather perfunctory announcement that Mabel Walker Willebrandt is about to quit her post as assistant attorney-general of the United States in charge of prohibition, in the morning newspapers today, will appear to many persons as one of the most significant pieces of news that has come out of Washington in a long time.

Likely enough the announcement will be followed by the customary denial, but it comes nevertheless in a form which entitles it to credence and the retirement of Mrs. Willebrandt in the near future may be rather confidently looked for. On the whole it is a logical proceeding. Mrs. Willebrandt has had a long try at an impossible job. She has had the complete sympathy of all the ultra-drys in the country. She has gained from it a tremendous amount of distinction. And nobody in this country knows any better than this shrewd woman that there is no further glory to be gained from continuance in the position. The time is ripe for her to capitalize her official service. If she were to continue another three or four years in her present place it is quite possible that she might have to leave it, in the end, with less lustre surrounding her name than at present.

Nevertheless there will be a large amount of very lively speculation as to why Mrs. Willebrandt is electing to retire quite so early in the Hoover administration, after having been retained with considerable advertising of the fact. Whether Attorney-General Mitchell has found himself unable to approve of some of the methods of Mrs. Willebrandt, whether Mr. Hoover himself may have inquired into the system of pet stoolpigeons employed by her and found it not to his liking, or whatever the actuating impulse of the impending resignation may be, we shall probably learn in time.

VACCINATION

The unusual lightness of the rather numerous smallpox cases that have appeared in New London county recently has been seized on by the anti-vaccinationists as providing opportunity to emphasize the "exaggeration of smallpox danger" which they attribute to believers in the Jenner method of protection.

It seems to be true that these smallpox cases have been far from serious. But if this indicates that there is general immunity to the aggravated forms of the disease surely it is only fair to consider that fact in connection with the many years of vaccination and re-vaccination that present-day epidemics are following.

While we do not understand that vaccinationists make the claim that the process confers any degree of immunity upon the children of persons who have submitted to the precautionary treatment, it is unquestionably true that the virulence of this ailment is becoming less almost with each recurring outbreak, and this was not the case until vaccination was brought into the war against smallpox. Smallpox was, and very easily might again be, a terrible thing—frantically fatal, loathsome and disgusting. If it is in its present stage less fearful there is only one thing to which the improvement can logically be attributed, and that is the cumulative effect of generations of vaccination.

OUTWITTED

After many weeks of intolerable espionage of the Morrow family and Colonel Lindbergh, the swarm of newspaper reporters so mistakenly assigned by their news editors to the trailing of those private citizens have been so completely outwitted as to make them appear foolish. The announcement of the Lindbergh-Morrow marriage came, from precisely the source that it would have come from in any event, from the family of the bride and in the form of a voluntary announcement.

For many years and until very recently the ethics and methods of American newspapers have needed no apologist. But such performances as the pursuit of the Morrows indicate a serious letting down in manners on the part of newspaper editors and news agency managers in a surprising number of instances. About one more such display of ill-breeding and lack of appreciation of the decencies and the whole newspaper world will be on the defensive against a widespread and deserved popular disgust. It is sincerely to be hoped that there will be no more of this sort of thing.

IN NEW YORK

New York, May 28.—Just a few tales today about Bagdad-on-the-Subway.

In 43rd street, adjoining an area which leads into Pennsylvania Station, there is a little shop dealing in plants, seeds, shrubs and suchlike things.

It has a direct appeal to the commuter, who hearkens himself to his own front lawn and takes time out to buy a box of pansies or some bulbs.

The sidewalk in front of the shop is cluttered with small square boxes which are veritable incongruities in a block conglomerate with squawking radio shops and cheap lunch counters. Hurrying crowds stub their toes in the boxes and give dirty, over-the-shoulder glances at the innocent sprouting greenery. To the city dweller this glimpse of garden affairs just a hint of the lovely outdoors to be found somewhere or other, but not in Manhattan.

Each afternoon, when the sun has swung over the midtown skyline and the birds are in over the towers, a lanky man from the store bearing a longnosed sprinking can. For many minutes the lad lingers tenderly over each box and when he has finished watering his sidewalk garden, he leisurely puts on his shoes and goes back into the store.

He has had his minute with the out-of-doors! Once within the store, the boss makes him shed his overalls and return to snappy street clothes, lest some customer catch him in his barmy-drip apparel.

The other night, stopping to talk with the lad, I learned that these few minutes in his disguise are to him what going fishing in the creek is to the country boys. Born and bred on the East Side, this is his first contact with nature—a few sad-looking boxes stretched out on the sidewalk.

"But someday," he told me, "I'm going to save my money and have a farm." And somewhere, in the farmlands of the nation, lads in overalls and bare feet lie on fragrant grass or perch on fence-dreaming of a day when they will have money to come to the cities and see the gay sights.

With which, I rest my case! In Greenwich Village, where I reside, there is a strange fellow who, when days are damp and cold, brings kindling and large wood for the family fireplace. I knew he was a strange fellow the first time he made a delivery, because he gave me so much for my money. Lowly in at the wood, however, I noticed that it bore a striking resemblance to the lumber which had been piling up a few blocks away for the construction of a new subway. However, that was none of my business.

Unable to reach him by phone the other day, I went over to his place. "Oh, he's gone to jail again," they told me. And then I heard the story. Years ago he attacked himself with the art and intellectual groups which made up the Village. Time and again he tried creative work himself, only to fail. But he believed in giving struggling young artists a chance. At one time or another he has staked at least one or more of the nationally known ragabond poets. He used to steal clothes and resell them. At regular intervals he would go to jail. He doesn't mind this. In fact he calls his jail periods his "vacation." He takes with him manuscripts of young authors and many volumes of philosophy and poetry. And so it goes.

Now that a mechanical heart has been invented by a scientist in Canada, a couple of cartons ought to be ordered by the presidents of the American and National League.

By ROBBY DUTCHER.

Washington, May 28.—Most Americans appear to be opposed to killing bootleggers. Even when they try to escape and are shot down, there are few to cheer the policemen and prohibition agents who do the job.

Congressman Charles E. Brand of Alaska, is now convinced of that. It was Brand who, after voting dry all his life, arose in the House to assert that the killing of a fleeing prohibition law violator by an officer of the law was actually murder.

In saying that Brand was defying the powerful Bishop James Cannon of the Methodist Episcopal church, South, who had publicly bestowed his benediction on dry congressmen, who had applauded the killing of a supposed Washington bootlegger by a policeman and had referred to the applause as the "healthiest sign he had observed in a long time."

But Bishop Cannon has been left almost alone, with his little group of cheering congressmen, while nearly everyone else who has piled onto Brand's side.

Your correspondent found Brand, a small, mild-mannered former superior court judge, more or less surrounded with letters and newspaper editorials endorsing the stand he took on prohibition killings. He had received more personal congratulations from his fellow members than the ordinary congressman is likely to get here in ten years of service.

Judge Brand is also considerably astonished at the fact that not one word of criticism has reached his office. Naturally, he expected some. He was wondering what the folks down home would say when he returned to Athens recently, now that he had spoken so frankly. But two clergymen stopped him on the street there to congratulate him, numerous women assured him he was dead right and all his friends agreed.

Brand concludes that most people are willing to agree with him that reckless and ruthless killings are too much to pay for the kind of prohibition enforcement that they are getting now. He has not declared for any change in the existing laws, but he will if the killings continue.

"Not one person in a million is satisfied with prohibition enforcement," he says. "I don't know what President Hoover's commission report will have a profound effect on the situation. What we need is something which public sentiment will support. You can't blame the kind of enforcement we have now."

Brand would like to see some "acid test" of prohibition enforcement, but he sees no hope of Congress providing for a national referendum. The reason for that, although he did not bother to explain in the interview, is that the plain in dry organizations oppose such a referendum and most congressmen dare not defy them, though many wish they could get rid of prohibition as an issue.

The Georgia congressman did not get up to shed a few tears over a prohibition killing. He arose to state his conception of the law on killings of men fleeing from arrest. He cited a number of judicial decisions to prove his general contention that "it would be a grave mistake of law and a flagrant miscarriage of justice to justify or excuse an officer for killing a prohibition violator in order to effect his arrest except, of course, when done in self-defense."

Has Always Voted Dry. Besides being now a dry president, Brand has been concerned with the law all his life. No one has successfully contradicted his statement of the law as it applies to killing bootleggers to prevent their escape. He began the practice of law in 1887 and served in the Georgia state senate in the following decade. From 1896 to 1904, by election, he was solicitor general in Georgia's western judicial circuit. The governor appointed him a superior court judge in 1906 and he was elected to the same post in 1908, 1910 and 1914, holding it until he was elected to Congress in 1916.

In his first charge to a jury many years ago, Brand dwelt on the many evils of drunkenness and has never missed a chance to vote dry.

Health and Diet Advice

THE DANGERS OF CONSTIPATION

The intestines are not only for the purpose of carrying off the residue of indigestible food substances, but are also used as excretory organs or sewers into which the blood is constantly discharging waste products. Only about one-third to one-half of the colon's contents is really discarded food material, the rest being composed in a large part of these toxins excreted by the body.

Anyone who is suffering from constipation is about to absorb some of these poisonous substances. Constipation is prevalent that probably at least 95 per cent. of those who are reading this article are suffering from it to some extent. If there was no constipation it is likely that many other diseases would disappear from the face of the earth.

The immediate symptoms of absorbing toxins from the intestines are more noticeable in periods of nervous depression. There is no definite grade of symptoms such as there would be in mumps, or typhoid fever. Constipation undoubtedly predisposes the body to other diseases, but some of the distress which may be caused from

MODERNIZED 'HARTFORD' OPENS RIVER SERVICE

Big Passenger List on First Day of Revamped Steamer's Trip to New York.

Hartford, May 28.—At 5:00 p. m., yesterday the reconditioned and modernized steamer "Hartford" left the dock of the Hartford line for New York with 200 representatives of Connecticut manufacturers, shippers and newspapermen aboard, inaugurating the revamped passenger boat service between the Connecticut capital and New York. This initial trip was under the auspices of the Hartford Chamber of Commerce. At the same time the sister ship, "Middletown" sailed from Pier 40, North River, New York for Hartford.

For a number of years the Hartford line has been slipping and gradually losing both freight and passenger revenue, until company officials contemplated the discontinuance of service. There followed a long series of conferences and meetings between Connecticut manufacturers and shippers and officials of the boat line, resulting finally in a decision by the steamship men to rehabilitate the line by complete reconditioning and modernizing of the boats, together with a substantial reduction in freight rates, in return for promised support from the manufacturers and shippers who were loath to see the line discontinued entirely.

The steamers "Hartford" and "Middletown" were, in pursuance of this plan, sent to dry dock and completely renovated, so that they now represent everything modern in passenger service. The staterooms were remodeled and equipped with new, comfortable berths, including a type of Pullman folding berth which is something entirely new in steamboat construction, hot and cold running water in every room, and new deluxe furnishings.

Similarly, the dining rooms have been revamped, new linen and new silverware have been provided, and the dining room service will be on a par with other first-class steamship lines. In addition, an innovation has been adopted in the way of a lunch room serving first class food for those who prefer that type of service.

Electric refrigeration has been installed on the boats, and nothing has been overlooked which would add to the comfort and convenience of travel.

The docking facilities at New York have been changed to a more convenient location, the boats now docking at Pier 40, North river, adjacent to the steamship and rail terminals.

From a freight standpoint, the most important change in policy was an average reduction of 10 cents per hundred pounds in freight rates, to allow trucking of store door delivery from the rates previously attempted, and the publication of rates to include lighterage in New York harbor within lighterage limits. Arrangements were also made with the Hartford Despatch and Warehouse company for the handling of pick-up and delivery service in the Hartford territory, with John H. Rogers for similar service in and around Middletown, and with James A. Smith Trucking and Transfer company, with office adjoining Pier 40 North river, for similar service in New York.

In addition, two hours were added to the loading day, freight being received an hour earlier and an hour later than on the previous schedule. The following were included in the passenger list from Manchester: Mrs. Gertrude S. Boynton, Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Rogers and Thomas Ferguson, of The Herald.

HOLLISTER PUPILS TO GIVE PLAY TONIGHT

"The Man Higher Up" a comedy in three acts will be presented in the Hollister Street School at 8 o'clock tonight by the graduating class for the benefit of the Girls League. Between the acts the Girls' Glee Club and the Boys' Double Quartet will sing.

The following are in the cast: William Luettgens, Lloyd Wilson, Harriet Coburn, Betty Walworth, Herman Heck, Nancy Gill, Grace White, Eleanor Robertson, Burton Tuttle, Walter Wright, Frank Simon, Eleanor Huebner, Edward Stum.

Maybe all accidents are incidental, but very few of the old cars that survive to be traded in are insured.

SERVICE for the MOTORIST

SAFETY BIG FACTOR IN MODERN AUTO BUILDING

Modern traffic conditions both in cities and rural communities demand not only precaution on the part of the automobile driver but details of construction in the car itself that will promote safety of operation.

The most important part of an automobile with regard to safety is the braking system. It is imperative, therefore, that the brake system should be of the most modern design, sure and positive in operation.

Hydraulic internal expanding four-wheel brakes are used on all models of Chrysler cars," according to J. W. Frazer, General Sales Manager, "because they have been found to be the simplest in construction. Because they require less attention by the owner, they reduce the maintenance cost of the car as they eliminate numerous mechanical devices, including all cross rods, pull rods and cables. Inasmuch as they are absolutely positive in their equalization of pressure to all four wheels, they have proved to be the most satisfactory brakes we have been able to devise.

"In making the Chrysler a safe car to drive, however, we have not been content to confine our efforts to the braking system. Other features of safety are incorporated in various parts of the car with the result that the owner of a Chrysler may be certain that his car will operate easily and safely at all times.

Of equal importance to the braking system as a factor of safety is the steering mechanism. The car that is easy to handle and easy to steer in traffic, is the one that has the best opportunity of averting accidents. Chrysler cars are well known for their ease of operation and especially for the fact that they can be steered with practically no effort. The secret for this is the fact that each steering gear is designed especially for the model into which it is built.

"Rapid acceleration is also an important factor in the safe operation of an automobile. The car that can accelerate quickly often-times has an opportunity to avoid an accident where the car with the slower pick-up cannot get out of the way. Chrysler engineers have not overlooked this fact, for rapid getaway and quick acceleration have always been outstanding features of Chrysler performance.

"One does not generally consider the springs of his car as safety features but on the Chrysler the manner in which the springs are mounted on the chassis promotes safety to an unusual degree. On the Chrysler "75" and the Imperial the springs are mounted parallel to the wheels rather than the frame. Such a construction makes it possible for springs to be placed farther apart than would otherwise be possible and sideway at high speeds is considerably minimized.

"These safety features, among the many innovations in motor car design pioneered by Chrysler engineers, contribute largely to the pleasure of driving a Chrysler car."

Theaters

AT THE STATE

"Hot Stuff"—"Blue Skies"

Alice White, youngest of First National's screen stars makes her Vitaphone debut in "Hot Stuff," tomorrow's attraction at the State theater. Advance reports indicate that Miss White's voice is as good as her looks. After many talking tests, First National signed Alice to a long term contract under which she will make nothing but talking films.

In "Hot Stuff" the adorable Alice is seen and heard to the very best of her ability. She fits from scene to scene with agile manner of an expert entertainer, putting in lots of surefire pep and personality to make the audience appreciate her work.

"Hot Stuff" was adapted from the collegiate story by Robert S. Carr entitled, "Bluffers." It deals with two very devilish students, a college shik and a co-ed, who pretend to be a lot worse than they really are. Of course, eventually they discover each others secrets, but not until the audience is thoroughly entertained with plenty of hair-raising thrills and hearty laughter.

William Bakewell, Louise Fazenda, Doris Dawson and Buddy Messinger are seen in support of Miss White.

The companion feature for tomorrow is "Blue Skies," a William Fox special production starring Helen Twelvetrees.

A snappy variety of State Short Subjects will also be shown. Three shows daily at 2:15, 7:00 and 9:00.

St. Margaret's Circle, Daughters of Isabella, will begin its business meeting in K. of C. hall this evening at 7:30 to allow time for bridge and set-back. Each member will have the privilege of inviting a friend to the card party. Six prizes will be given and refreshments served. Miss Julia Hogan is chairman of the committee in charge.

The Chinese wall is 1250 miles long.

SONS OF ITALY PLAN MEMORIAL MASS

At 9 o'clock Thursday morning, Memorial Day, a special mass will be held in memory of the departed members of Giuseppe Mazzini Lodge No. 907, Sons of Italy in St. James' R. C. church with Rev. William P. Riedy as celebrant. Following the mass the members of the order will march in a body to the St. James' cemetery to decorate with flowers the graves of their fellow members who have died.

with a large number in attendance. Plans were discussed for the Annual State Picnic of the order which will be held at Savin Rock on Wednesday, June 19. A large number from the local council are planning to attend and any wishing to go, will please notify Mrs. Nellie Jackson before or on the next meeting night.

Plans were also made at the meeting for memorial services which will be held following the next meeting. It is expected a speaker will be secured. A committee has been appointed to make arrangements.

What was played following the meeting.

Panza-Zbyk.
A pretty wedding took place at St. Joseph's Church on Monday morning at 9 o'clock when Miss Helen B. Zbyk, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Zbyk of 137 West Main street was united in marriage to John F. Panza, son of Mr. and Mrs. M. Panza of 29 Beach street, Hartford. Rev. Sigmund Woronicki, pastor of the church officiated, the double ring service being used. The church was attractively decorated with ferns and cut flowers. The bride was given in marriage by her brother, Bruno Zbyk. As the bridal party marched to the altar, Miss Mary Kobak, the church organist, played Lohengrin's Wedding March. The bride looked very pretty in a gown of white satin and point lace. Her Spanish lace veil was caught up with a cap of orange blossoms. She carried a bouquet of roses and shower of sweet peas.

The bride was attended by four bridesmaids. Miss Helen Strudel wore a gown of flesh color georgette. Miss Stella Zbyk looked pretty in a gown of yellow georgette. Miss Stella Kanaka was attended in a dress of peach georgette and Miss Mildred Gesny wore a pretty gown of Nile green georgette. Each bridesmaid wore a bandeau bouquet of butterfly roses.

The best man was Bruno Zbyk, brother of the bride.

After the ceremony Miss Marion Miltz sang in a most pleasing manner "Joy of My Heart." Baitman's Mass was sung by the choir. Mrs. Rose Clechowski and Mrs. Valeria

Wendell's "Ave Maria," at the offertory.

Later in the morning a wedding breakfast was served to a large number of relatives and friends at Linck's Hall. The table and dining room decorations were streamers of yellow, old rose and pink. Music for the afternoon was furnished by the Kazarian Orchestra of Hartford.

Mr. and Mrs. Panza left late last evening for a wedding trip to New York City and upon their return will reside at 137 West Main street, where they will be at home to their many friends after June 2.

The bride's going away costume was of tan and hat to match.

The bride and groom presented their attendants with personal gifts.

Funeral of Charles Regan.
The funeral of Charles Regan was held from St. Bernard's church on Monday morning at 9 o'clock with Solemn Requiem Mass, with Rev. George T. Sinnott, pastor of the church as celebrant.

"The Dead March" from Saul was played by Miss Margaret McGuane, the church organist, as the body was being carried into the church and at the offertory Mrs. Anna Mae Pfunder rendered Schubert's Ave Maria. She sang "Sweet Jesus to Thee I Come" at the close of mass. As the body was being borne from the church the organist, Miss McGuane played "March Funebre Baptiste."

Burial took place in the family plot at St. Bernard's cemetery. There were many beautiful floral tributes, silent testimony to the memory of the deceased. The bearers were Mayor George Foster and Stephen Ryan of this city; Dr. P. G. Hayes, Robert Henry, Charles Henry and Buel Henry of Hartford.

Emblem Club Card Party.
The Emblem club will hold a public card party on Wednesday afternoon at the Elks club. Mrs. Edna Oates Rider is chairman.

Req Men's Meeting.
Tankercoast Tribe, I. O. O. R. M., will hold a regular meeting this evening in Red Men's hall. The third degree will be conferred on a class of candidates, after which refreshments will be served and a social hour enjoyed.

Notes.
Mrs. Dorothy Doman and Miss Rita Ravetau of Stafford Springs were the guests of Miss Bertha Hayes of Spring street on Sunday. Teddy Hayes of Lawrence, Mass., was the week-end guest of his mother, Mrs. Louise Hayes of Spring street.

Miss Josephine Smith of Hartford, spent the week-end with Miss Gladys Palmer of Union street.

The Ladies Aid society of the First African Baptist church will serve a barbecue dinner at the church on Davis avenue, Memorial day, from 12 m. to 3 p. m.

Fayette Lodge, A. F. and A. M. will confer the apprentice degree on a class of candidates this evening.

The Good Will club of St. John's church will hold a public strawberry shortcake supper Wednesday, June 5. The first table will be at 6 p. m.

HOMESTEAD PARK GETS ROAD IMPROVEMENT

Homestead Park residents are well pleased over the fact that reconstruction work is going forward on roads and sidewalks in that section of the town.

The town highway department is busy repairing the shoulders of Middle Turnpike West from Main street to the railroad. The recent numerous rains did considerable damage to this highway.

At the intersection of Congress and Irving streets, the heavy rains of last month caused a washout resulting in a deep hole which has been a constant menace not only to automobiles but to children who insist on playing in the streets. This is to be filled in shortly. Neither street has been accepted by the town.

Sidewalks are soon to be laid on Homestead street, the "Great White Way" of the little settlement. The curbs have already been laid. Residents of this section have waited many years for this forward movement.

HOSPITAL NOTES

Two patients were reported discharged from Memorial hospital today. Mrs. Emma Lehman, of 73 Bissell street and Doris Stevenson of 29 Bank street.

INDIAN TRIBES IN TRAGIC FIGHT AGAINST HUNGER

Sacramento, Cal.—Brought up by a heritage of glorious tribal traditions, but hopelessly afflicted by abject poverty and the ravages of disease, California's fast-dwelling Indian tribes today are making their last stand—a tragic fight against starvation.

Such is the real story of "The Vanishing American," stripped of all glories and romance, as it was based today before the state legislature by the California department of public health.

Reporting its findings after a survey that included a study of conditions among 85 of the 90 tribes still surviving, the health board admitted itself powerless to stem the tide of disease until something is done to strike at the underlying cause of their ill—hunger.

Conditions bad.

"It is impossible to improve the physical condition of the Indian greatly until his economic condition has been improved," the state board concluded. "Health conditions would improve automatically to a large degree if economic conditions were relieved."

The state board gave a vivid, personal picture of the remaining 90,000 Indians in the state, beaten by a paleface civilization which has crowded them from their hunting grounds and left them to fight to eke out a living from barren land.

"Out of the 87 families investigated," said the report, "22 have annual incomes ranging from $200 to $400; while 128 families have earnings of from $400 to $500 and only one hundred of these families have incomes of from $600 to $700."

"They have been crowded out until there is no longer good land left for them. The most important fact brought out by the survey is that Indians in California do not and can not earn enough money to live properly. They suffer from lack of food, are not properly housed. As a result, they are utterly unable to withstand attacks of disease."

Emphasizing the local situation, the health survey reported that of 3,184 children between the ages of 1 and 14 years in the families studied, 952, or 29.9 per cent, have died, and of the number, 872 failed to survive infancy, the board found.

Tribes located in Humboldt, De Norte, Siskiyou, Inyo, Mono, Riverside, San Diego, Imperial, San Bernardino and Santa Barbara counties—the last remnants of an Indian population of 700,000 boasted by California in the early days—were visited by state physicians and nurses in last year's survey, according to the state agency.

Tuberculosis Menace.
"Tuberculosis is a serious menace among them," the investigators found. "And exacts a heavy toll. Undoubtedly the tuberculosis death rate might be reduced considerably if there were opportunities for removing Indian children from contact with open cases of the disease in their families."

"Trachoma has left large numbers of blind persons among the aged and many of the children encountered are now suffering from the disease." Most of them are not receiving treatment.

Outbreaks of smallpox, measles, influenza and other diseases have swept away hundreds of the feeble population, according to the health officials with his isolation from medical care and his weakened condition, resulting from hunger, making him an easy victim of such diseases that under normal conditions could be beaten.

Public health nurses could do much to allay the ravages of disease among the red men, the state board concluded, but the fundamental problem that the state must cope with is malnutrition—starvation.

AIRPLANE RACE

Denver, May 22.—Five planes zoomed into the risings on the morning of the annual Gardner trophy race. The planes will fly 77 miles to St. Louis, the first two to elapse time to be awarded prizes of $750 and $850, respectively, and the right to compete in the Memorial Day air race from St. Louis to Indianapolis for an award of $5,000.

The first plane to hop off here was a Curtis Robin Challenger piloted by George Lambert, of St. Louis. He left at 8:10 a. m.

Others took the air at intervals of one minute as follows:

Floyd Clymer, Denver, Swallow biplane with a Hisco motor.

George H. Kelsey, Culver, Mo., Kan. Royal.

Stanley T. Stanton, Wichita, Kan., Coasa Challenger.

D. C. Warren, San Francisco, Calif., Travelair Hispano-Blim.

At the same time today more than a score of flyers in the Gardner Cup race were scheduled to take from St. Louis from four other cities—Buffalo, N. Y.; Jacksonville, Fla.; San Antonio, Texas; and Fargo, N. D.

THIS HAS HAPPENED
JOHN CURTIS MORGAN, lawyer, does not suspect that his rival, NANA CARROLL, who has been with him three years, is in love with him. Nan, honorable and square as a man, despises herself for this and determines to resign.

Morgan is deeply in love with his beautiful and selfish wife, IRIS. Elated over a big legal triumph in which the brilliant and clever Nan has rendered invaluable assistance, Morgan invites her and BERT CRAWFORD, a friend of the family, to his home for dinner that night.

Nan does not trust Crawford and is puzzled by his continued interest in her. She goes to the dinner and is treated with smug indifference by Crawford and by Iris, whom she thoroughly dislikes. After dinner, an officer appears with a warrant for the arrest of Crawford. The next morning Crawford's party stories about Crawford's part in a whirlwind stock-selling scheme intended to finance a packing plant. His friend and treasurer, ROY BLAND, has disappeared with half a million of the proposed company's funds.

Morgan, believing in the innocence of Crawford, stakes his professional integrity to defend him. Nan realizes that the unsuspecting lawyer needs her now more than ever and therefore she poses her resignation until the Crawford case is finished. Nan overhears by means of a listening device a conversation between Crawford and his switchboard operator, ALICE BELTON, which takes place in Morgan's private office. Crawford bribes the girl to forget he talked with the cashier of the bank, approving the check young Bland cashed just before his disappearance.

Nan is startled when she hears Alice's story about a "red-headed game." She is now convinced that the insinuation about Iris Morgan contained in a blackmail note addressed to Morgan which she intercepted to save him anguish is true.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER X

That Belton girl here yet? Morgan asked Nan, his deep voice dragging a little with fatigue. "Yes, she is, I may have to ask you to step a little later to make notes to her testimony, that is, if she's at liberty to talk to the defense attorney."

"Branard hasn't seen her yet. She's been out of town—her father's funeral in New York. Nan answered. "She'll testify for us all right."

"She did not tell him that she had already made notes on Alice Belton's story, but as soon as she had passed on into his private office she swiftly inserted three sheets of plain white paper with two of carbon into her machine and with almost incredible rapidity transcribed the shorthand notes she had made while listening in on that incriminating conversation between Bert Crawford and Alice Belton."

"The gods are with us, Nan," Morgan exclaimed. "Miss Belton is going to be one of our star witnesses. Now, tell me, tell your story from the beginning, so Miss Carroll can make notes on it. Jove, this is luck, Bert!"

"There was such genuine gladness, such boyish relief in his voice that Nan's heart swelled with pain for him and anger against his friend, whom she believed to be betraying him ruthlessly. As Alice Belton's coquettish, tinkling voice ran on and on, punctuated with little gasps and exclamations, Nan obediently took notes. Crawford had done his work well; to Morgan the story must have sounded utterly convincing.

"Splendid, Miss Belton!" the lawyer applauded her, when she had finished. "I say, Bert, maybe Miss Belton could give us some idea of what Gladys Payne has against you. Girls do talk among themselves, you know."

"Read this, Mr. Crawford, then tell me what you honestly believe I think of you."

ago, or when he was supposed to have left for Chicago." Alice began impressively. "I found Gladys crying her eyes out in the rest room. 'Oh, all right! I just thought I owed the kid a good feed after she'd taken the trouble to come up here and help us out! Good-night, Alice! You're a peach and I'll make it up to you when 12 good men and true have said 'Not guilty!' We'll throw a big party to celebrate, and you'll be guest of honor. . . Good-night, Jack! Guess you're right. I'm just not used to all this legal skrimishing."

"Well, for pete's sake!" Crawford expelled a gusty sigh. "Can you imagine a little wart like Gladys having the nerve and the imagination to 'frame me, like that? Of course he knew this Payne girl would spill the beans! Tried to make it look like I'd had him draw those checks, had taken the money, and then sent him to South America to get him out of the way! Well, I'll be—"

Morgan looked at him keenly. "You've stated the case for the prosecution with a remarkable clarity, Bert! I doubt if Branard could do it better when he sums up! And I'm afraid, with this Payne girl's story to back him up, that Branard is going to sound pretty plausible. No, keep your shirt on, Bert! I've warned you before that we have to look at this thing from the prosecution's standpoint oftener than from our own. We've got to anticipate every move in their game, and it will be fatal to minimize their strength. Now, Morgan, did she tell you anything more? A lot depends on what you can tell us, child."

Alice was quivering with excitement and triumph. "Gladys was terribly sore at Bert," she said. "I think she had the money to go traipsing off to look for Spanish treasure in the Andes mountains if Bert hadn't given it to him. She said Roy had been bugs on the subject ever since he'd been in South America three or four years ago, and that Bert encouraged him in it. She wanted to go with Roy, but he said Bert wouldn't stand for his taking a girl along, and that it was his life for a woman anyway, and that he'd write her nearly every day and come back as soon as he found the Spanish gold."

"Judas! Priest!" Bert Crawford ejaculated. "Why, good Lord, I always laughed at his crazy story when he'd helped him get good jobs like this one just to crowd that nonsense out of his cracked brain! Honestly, Jack, that bird ought to get out of this business on the grounds of insanity!"

"The telephone at Morgan's elbow rang. "I'll take it, Nan. Probably my wife. . . Hello! Yes, darling! Just leaving. . . Oh, I'm sorry! Of course we'll eat out then. . . Anything you say, honey. . . Yes, right now! Good-by, dear!"

The WOMAN'S DAY

ALLENE SUMNER

A more than pungent breath of old ten-twenty-three "meller-drammer" drunks in the day-by-day Linbergh-Morrow headlines. Hardly does one edition abridge that "Black-mallers Threaten Lindy and Bride-to-be," than the next one informs us that "Lindy Files to Anne's Sister's Aid," and we are told that even relatively inconspicuous little Constance Morrow, threatened by her famous brother-in-law to be, announced in his plane and hurried away to the Morrow's sylvan home in Maine.

NEED A TRAP DOOR.
Here Lindy and Annie and the rest of the famous family evade reporters and cameramen by taking to the air, et al. All we need now is a subterranean passage or so and some neat disguises in which the famous may emerge in their gowns and comings.

And here's wagering that just everybody is having the sweetest kind of time. Perhaps not Lindy herself, for he's had his dose of notoriety. But it's not at all unpleasant to the taste of those who aren't yet satiated by it. Here's wagering that Constance, at least, can hardly wait to get back to school to tell the other kids all the thrills.

"WHEN YOUR DADDY AND I"
And here's wagering that in a handful of years Mrs. Anne Lindbergh won't be too proud to tell the little Lindies of the wild days when their papa and mama had it so tough with all the world looking at them. One of the most basic human instincts is the urge to rise above the unknown mass, and if marriage to a world celebrity does it, nobody's going to question that. To be sure, we must pretend that it's hard to take.

"HER" FAMILY.
By the way, Lindy seems to be taking to the wants and wishes of his new in-law family with a most all young husbands learn how. He flies them hither and yon; he rescues Constance, and he's getting in dandy practice for the traditional wisecracks from his side of the family to the effect that "when a man marries, it's all his wife's people."

GENE SUEB.
Speaking of famous romances here's Gene Tunney confronted with a $500,000 romance. The King of Fogy of New York, who claims that hard-hitting Gene asked her to marry him in June, 1925, only to later wed another.

With a few famous and notorious men must learn how to handle this sort of thing, for it's as frequent as raspberries on raspberry bushes. Nothing like a name to attract all the fanatics and crooks in the world.

PEANUT NUT.
Bill Williams, who is pushing a peanut up Pike's Peak with his nose, and who is grabbing all his race ammunition, makes us halt and wonder if any woman has ever been so astute.

All the flag pole perchers and "Most Egg" or "Most Coffee" eat-drinkers seem to have been male. Yes, we've had our "first mother" channel swimmers and our girl aviator endurance records, but these puny puny peanut pusher going up a mountain, if you can remember any correspondingly goofy female exploit, please wire to once.

At that, there must be one in human annals somewhere, as insanity has ever seemed to have endured a monopoly by one sex only.

SCOUT HEROISM

When a small eight-year-old boy climbed a tree near the grade school building and came in contact with a live wire at Quincy, Illinois, recently, the lad was brought to the ground by Basil I. Williams, Assistant Scoutmaster and Principal of the school.

Reports of the accident say that the boy almost immediately saw the wire, but he hesitated to get away from the boy with a dry board, he took the boy in his arms and carried him to the ground. While the Assistant Scoutmaster despatched two boys, one for a doctor and one to the telephone the power company about the accident, he rendered first aid, and although the boy was badly burned and in a dangerous condition, the hospital authorities say that he will recover, and that he owed his life to the quick action of the Assistant Scoutmaster. There were 5,900 volts on the wires.

YOUR CHILDREN

by Olive Roberts Barton

"I know a secret." "What? A secret? Tell it to me, won't you. Mother wants to know." "No." "Oh, please do. You had a secret yesterday and now here's another. Can't I know any of them?" "I've a secret! I've a secret!" "But Betty didn't tell. That afternoon, however, she came back. 'I'll show you one secret, Mother. I've another new one now. Come along and I'll show you.' Her mother followed her out into the yard. Half way down the walk the little girl stopped and tugged at a loose brick. She got it up finally and picked up a little brass ring.

HER GREAT SECRET
"There!" "Well! Well! What's that for?" "It's my secret. Don't tell Lulu. Promise."

"Very well, I won't. What was your secret yesterday?" "The little girl puckered up her eyes. 'I forgot. One time I was playing with a rabbit. I guess that was my secret yesterday. I nibbled things. Did you see me nibble?'"

FRENCH UNDIES.
A snugly fitted combination with extremely slender slips and brief panties. It is a step-in. The brassiere opens at the left side. The panties with wide flared legs open at either side. It is just the undies you need for the slim silhouette frocks, for it is cleverly designed to follow the lines of the figure. HEALTH

LEARNING TO BE A DOCTOR.

By DR. MORRIS FISHBETH, Editor Journal of the American Medical Association and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine.

With the advancement of medical science, it has become increasingly difficult for a young man to become a physician. Fifty years ago the course in medicine in even the best medical colleges was about three years in length and consisted largely of lectures and some dissection and demonstration. The time occupied in schools was not so great and the student could spend much of his spare time in earning his living.

Most students came into medical colleges from the high school, but even high school education was not required for admission to many medical colleges. After Pasteur made his great medical discovery, namely, that germs are responsible for the spread of disease, after chemistry and physics and other fundamental sciences began to advance, medical education took a tremendous step forward. Because of the vast amount of knowledge necessary for the student—and by this is meant his fundamental knowledge and not extraordinary refinements—the medical curriculum began to increase in length.

The amount of time spent in the laboratories became greater and the amount of attention given by students to patients directly at the bedside was increased considerably. As a result of these factors, the cost of medical education has become much greater than it used to be. Today anyone who thinks of entering the medical profession must plan on an outlay of at least $1000 per year for from five to seven years. Approximately $7500 is the amount required by the student during his course. Some students get through on a lower average, while others exceed the amount quoted.

The costs vary with different colleges, but in general $7500 represents the minimum cost of medical education in a class A medical school. Many students earn a portion of this expenditure, but the vast majority are not able to carry on the medical course and to spend time earning money. The only chance to earn additional funds is during summer vacations.

A few students earn meals by waiting on table or washing dishes or taking care of furnaces; some earn a few dollars by driving taxicabs at night; some earn a portion

PHONES Pinehurst "GOOD THINGS TO EAT"

NO BUSINESS THURSDAY

Business is important but not so important that even the busiest of us should fail to devote one day in the year to doing special honor to the memory of the nation's soldier and sailor dead. On Thursday, Memorial Day, Pinehurst will do no business at all. The store will not be opened. It will neither receive orders nor deliver them.

But Pinehurst isn't going to take this day off for this special purpose without a lot of extra hustling by way of preparation. Tomorrow will be ONE BIG DAY at this food shop. Open till nine o'clock and DELIVERIES JUST AS FAST AS THEY CAN GO OUT ALL DAY LONG. We don't want a single customer to be inconvenienced, and we don't propose a single one shall be. Please remember we shall make every sort of special effort to take care of Thursday's business IN ADVANCE. Use the phone with that idea in mind!

Over the holiday Pinehurst suggests, as especially fine, CORNED BEEF. We have a splendid supply of choice cuts, a great many of them lean. Among them is the one you like best of all. For the holiday dinner at home or for outing lunches what can possibly be better than Cold Corn Beef of the Pinehurst kind?
