Assured of Victory for Farm Relief, President is Gain- ing Ground Daily for Re- peal of Immigration Law.

Washington, June 7.—Assured of a victory in the farm relief battle, President Hoover today appeared to be gaining ground in the Senate on his recommendation for repeal of the national origins immigration law.

While the President frequently has declared he would not interfere with the legislative freedom of Congress, his emissaries have been waging vigorous campaigns on the Senate for elimination of the debenture plan from the farm bill and for repeal of the new immigration quotas, which go into effect July 1. The debenture fight has been won through the activity of administration leaders. They have met with extraordinary success, so much so that a forlorn hope has been turned into a doubtful contest in which either side may win. Advocates of the national origins plan, however, may defeat the President's wishes by filibustering.

Outcome in Doubt

At the outset of the immigration war, but a dozen Senators apparently favored repeal of the new quotas. With Nye and Allen conducting a systematic campaign for votes, recruits were swung into the President's forces until the outcome now is in doubt.

"We have 48 Senators pledged to vote for repeal of the national origins quotas," said Nye. "I can only believe what Senators tell me. I therefore believe we will win. The result though will be mighty close."

Forty-eight Senators would be a clear though single-vote majority of the Senate, if Nye's poll is correct. It would give the President a victory.

"Stand by President"

One of the amazing features of the immigration fight has been the opposition of administration leaders to the President's program. This opposition, however, has given Allen, who came into the Senate after serving as publicity director for Hoover's campaign, a chance to appear in the role of administration leader. The Kansas has been active in urging his colleagues to "stand by the President."

Should the national origins faction sense defeat ahead, its leaders undoubtedly will block a vote. A filibuster would result in a victory if it were continued either until Congress takes its summer recess or if Congress were held in session, until July 1. On that date, the new quotas take effect and a repeal could not be effective until a year later.

Belgium, Great Britain, Greece, Hungary, Italy, the Netherlands and Russia gain immigrants under the new quotas, while Austrian, Danish, German, Irish Free State, Norwegian and Swedish immigration is reduced.

The grand total of immigration would be reduced from 164,000 to 153,000.

MRS. ADAMS GETS ONE TO 10 YEARS

Pleads Guilty to Manslaughter—State Parole Board to Consider Case.

Hartford, Conn., June 7.—The State Board of Parole will now consider the case of Olive Storey Adams, young wife of the young weather bureau worker who was slain in his home here last March. Olive Storey Adams stood before Judge Christopher L. Avery just as the Superior Court's day was ending yesterday and pleaded guilty to manslaughter in connection with her husband's death. Then Judge Avery sentenced her to serve from one to ten years in prison and she returned to the county jail where she has been locked up since her arrest, two days after her husband died. And this morning the girl was taken down the river and forlornly entered as a prisoner in Wethersfield.

Hugh M. Aldern, state's attorney, whose suggested sentence Judge Avery followed, announced that the sentence, as imposed, gives the board of parole the opportunity of reviewing and acting upon the case of Mrs. Adams.

Hearing Unexpected

Only a handful of officials knew that Mrs. Adams was to be called to the bar yesterday afternoon. The state's attorney, and Joseph M. Freedman, her lawyer, knew it, of course, and the high sheriff of

WOMAN SLAIN WITH HAMMER POLICE THINK

Then Fire Is Set to Bedclothing—Case Reported as an Accident Until Doctor Makes Examination.

Methuen, Mass., June 7.—Victim of a murderer who used a hammer, Mrs. Carolina Breton, 35, was left to burn to death in the bedroom of her home here today, in the opinion of Medical Examiner Dr. Victor A. Reed.

Following a conference with town authorities this afternoon, District Attorney William G. Clark and State Detective Richard Griffin were called into the investigation.

First Thought Accident

The home of the woman was ordered padlocked and a police guard was thrown around it.

The death of Mrs. Breton at first was believed to be accidental. But a physician at Lawrence General hospital mortuary discovered several depressions on the skull, which, he reported to the medical examiner and later confirmed by the latter, was apparently due to a blow from a hammer or some blunt instrument.

Hurrying to the Burned Home

Dr. Reed examined bedclothing tossed from the window by firemen and found a bloodstained pillow case.

Police Notified

Then he went into conference with Chief of Police Harry M. Nimmo and Selectman Samuel Rushton. At the conclusion of the conference the state police and Essex county district attorney were called into the probe.

At first it was thought that a picture over the bed fell during the fire and caused the skull depressions but this theory was upset when Dr. Reed found that the picture was a small one and said it could not have caused the wounds.

George Breton, 49, the dead woman's husband, a textile operative employed nights in a Lawrence mill, told police he was awakened by smoke. He said he ran to his wife's room. He found it in flames, he said. He sounded the alarm. Firemen carried Mrs. Breton from the blazing room. She died enroute to Lawrence General hospital.

Ten-year-old Sadie Breton, daughter of the couple, was at school.

"HUMAN SPIDER" TO CLIMB HOTEL

Daredevil Johnny Woods, of New London to Perform Here Tomorrow.

A human spider—more daring, more tenacious when it comes to climbing, than any insect spider—one who has ascended 63 stories on the face of the Woolworth building in two hours and forty minutes, who has scaled buildings of all types and description from coast to coast, known as Daredevil Johnny Woods, of New London, Conn., will climb the Sheridan Hotel tomorrow afternoon at 3:25 o'clock and again at 7:45 o'clock.

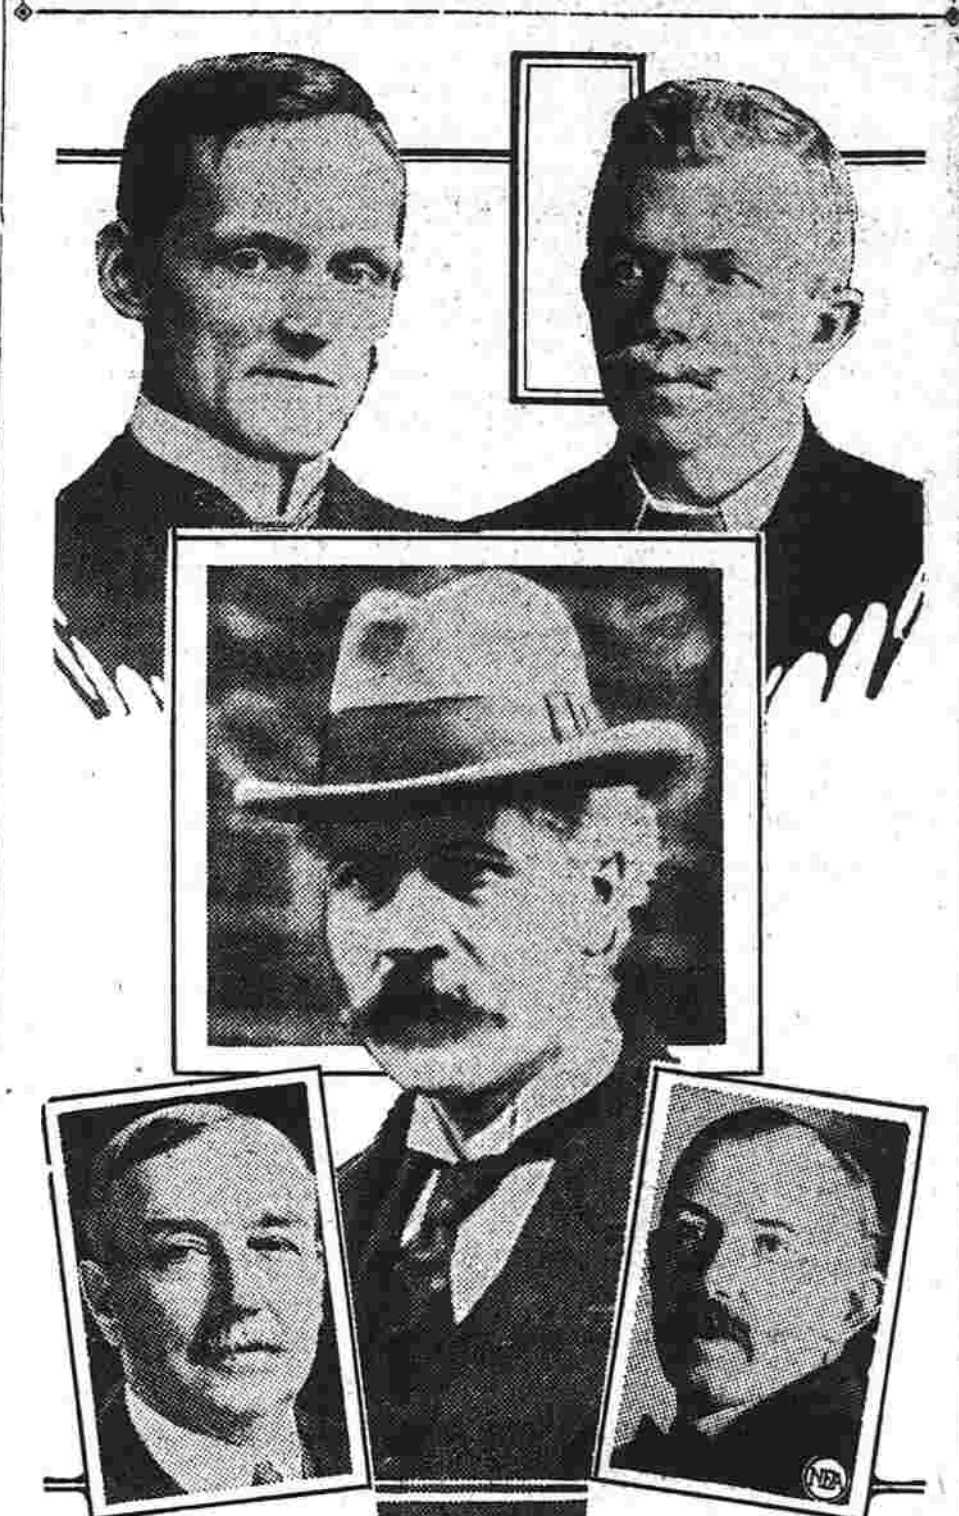

Besides this he will appear in a personal act at the matinee and evening performance at the State theater both today and tomorrow. Not only is Woods a human spider but he is an all-round dare-devil as well. In Winona, Minnesota last August he made a ninety-three foot leap from the high water-bridge and came within an inch of death when the strong air currents turned him over, causing Woods to strike the water on his back with a whack that resounded for blocks around and sent him to the hospital for a week.

Again at Daytona Beach three years ago he made a hundred foot dive, from a ladder, blindfolded, and at night, when one of the cables gave way, throwing Woods off his balance and striking the tank. He left the hospital thirteen weeks later. To this day he carries a long scar on his forehead as a reminder of his experience.

In his ascent of the Hotel Sheridan tomorrow night, Woods will wear a blindfold, making the feat much more difficult. However, he has never failed to accomplish his attempts, relying always on his splendid muscle development in fingers and forearm to carry him over the top.

Reaching the top of the building, Woods will test the strength of a Federal automobile tire tube furnished by the Cole Motor Sales, Whipnet and Willy-Knight agency, by hanging suspended over the street, grasping the tube.

LABOR PARTY'S "BIG FIVE"

They were expected to comprise part of Great Britain's new Labor cabinet. J. Ramsay MacDonald, center, Labor leader, accepted the premiership following the victory of his party in the general elections, and these other labor chiefs seemed to be slated for posts in his ministry: Philip Snowden, upper left; J. R. Clynes, upper right; Arthur Henderson, lower left; and J. H. Thomas, lower right.

EVERYTHING READY FOR DEBT ACCORD

Delegates Gather in Paris to Conclude Long Parley Over Reparations.

Paris, June 7.—The reparations accord, embracing the Young Plan, which contains the regulation for Germany's liquidation of her war debt, was signed at the Hotel George V, late this afternoon.

This agreement, which settles definitely the total amount of reparations that Germany must pay over 59 years, must be ratified by the Allied and German governments before it is officially effective.

Under the terms of the agreement the Young Plan will become effective in place of the Dawes Plan on September 1.

Paris, June 1.—Everything was in readiness here for signing the reparations accord settling definitely the amount that Germany must pay the victors of the World War.

The delegates were summoned to the Hotel George V to sign the reparations agreement shortly after 4 o'clock, thus concluding the long and intricate discussions that opened here almost four months ago.

The accord, however, must be ratified by the European allied and German governments before it is effective.

One Problem Unsolved

There is still a pending problem—the amount that Germany shall pay Belgium in reimbursement for depreciated marks left behind when the Germans evacuated Belgium—but that will be settled by direct negotiations between the German and Belgian governments.

Under the terms of the agreement, Germany will pay a sum which has a capital value of approximately $8,800,000,000 if Germany had the gold to make full payment at this time, which she has not. The total of the annuities for 59 years was estimated at about $27,000,000,000.

UNUSUAL PETITION

Hartford, June 7.—Thomas J. Spelly went to Judge Christopher L. Avery in Superior Court here today with a petition for an order compelling a court witness to be examined to determine if she is a "pathological liar."

Judge Avery denied the motion. "It is very unusual," he said. "The witness is generally tested on the stand as to her ability to tell the truth."

The case was that of Pietro Gimmartino, of East Hartford, charged with assault.

SOCIETY AGOG OVER ARREST OF NOBLEMAN

Hundreds of Social Register- ites Face Arrest as Result of Spectacular Raid in New York City.

New York, June 7.—The lowly-sounding "Five and Ten" Jones law—five years and $10,000 fine for violating the Volstead act—was scheduled to "crash" the social register in its first real coming out party.

Indictments under this drastic measure against the illustrious Count Maxence de Polignac and thirty-three others were being planned today by federal authorities in connection with the alleged million dollar society bootlegging ring whose slogan was said to be "better liquor for the best people."

In addition, hundreds of the select thirty of Park avenue and other exclusive districts face prosecution under the Jones law which is considered dreadfully unsocial in certain circles.

Many Society Names

Approximately 150 names of Social Registerites were in the hands of the dry phalanx who swooped down on the Fifth avenue headquarters, arrested Count Polignac in his sumptuous hotel suite and mopped up warehouses and sentry posts charged with being the ration dumps for the bootleg forces.

These society purchasers may be prosecuted, according to William J. Calhoun, who directed the forty raiding agents, on one or all of three charges—procuring the commission of a crime conspiring to violate the Volstead or Jones act and having knowledge of a crime committed against federal laws and failing to report it.

SPECTACULAR RAID

The raid on the fashionable source of supply here—one of the most thorough and spectacular sorties since the passage of the prohibition law—was seen as the farewell gesture of Mabel Walker Willebrandt, prohibition enforcement chief, whose resignation has been accepted by President Hoover.

The raid, which followed the prompt of Mrs. Willebrandt to "go after the higher ups," is but the forerunner of a series of similar planned dry expeditions into the trenches of a dozen cities, federal officials said today.

Count Polignac is a bona fide member of one of the first families of France. His ancestral village goes back to 1031 and he is listed

RECOGNIZE LINDY ON BOARD YACHT

Is Off Maine Coast—On Way to Morrow Home at North Haven.

York Harbor, Me., June 7.—Continuing their yachting honeymoon, Col. Charles A. Lindbergh and his bride shortly after 8 a. m., today left Cape Porpoise in their 38-foot motor cruiser Mouette and headed east.

The "Honeycomb Yacht" which had been definitely located here nearly two weeks after the secret wedding of Col. Lindbergh and the former Miss Anne Morrow, anchored for the night, approximately a quarter of a mile off Cape Porpoise, which is ten miles from York harbor between Kennebunkport and Biddeford Pool.

See Lindbergh
Lindbergh was seen from the Goat Island light hauling the anchor of the Mouette and natives of Cape Porpoise, who had put out in a small boat, saw Anne in the doorway of the cabin. The Mouette was headed toward the Morrow summer home at North Haven, 36 miles up the Maine coast. But the famous bridegroom had refused to reveal her destination, telling Hartley Philbrick, owner of the dock here that he was having a "dandy trip" and adding "we are going to cruise east from here."

During the night the Mouette swung idly at anchor in the inlet of Goat Island light, her swaying anchor light acting as a sentinel to guard against a possible collision.

The honeymooners were only a quarter of a mile offshore.

The Mouette docked late yesterday to take on gasoline.

The Lindberghs have been loafing along Long Island Sound and the New England coast, keeping $25,000, and R. W. Thompson, of New York, $20,000.

Mortimer D. Maynard, of Wethersfield, also filed a voluntary petition. He owes $22,307, and has assets valued at $12,871.

J. P. Morgan Poses For The Camera

New York, June 7.—J. Pierpont Morgan broke a pose of long standing today. He posed for a photograph.

True, he did it reluctantly, but he did it, nevertheless, aboard the Mauretania, on which he returned from the reparations conference.

He said no many times, until a photographer, who once was a salesman, pleaded "This means so much to us and so little to you."

Whereupon the financier scowled and finally gave in. When the ordeal was over he said:
"Don't you ever bother me again. This is the first and the last, understand?"

Morgan was accompanied by his son, H. S. Morgan, the latter's wife and three children.

LAWN FETE DRAWS A RECORD CROWD

Annual North End Carnival Continues Tonight and Tomorrow.

A crowd that filled the large enclosure at the Community Club to overflowing threw their cares aside and gayly spent the evening and their money in throwing baseballs at wooden milk bottles and rag cats, eating their fortunes cold, testing their strength on a device called the "High Striker," gorning hot dogs, and ice cream sandwiches and then as a climax standing awe-struck as "The Hellkivists" did their sensational diving act. It was the biggest crowd that has yet attended the annual fete.

This last was the feature of the evening. Perched on a tiny platform, towering a hundred feet above the ground, "The Hellkivists" stood for a moment, one at a time, on their hands at the edge of the platform. Then like an arrow, straight and true, swifter than the wind, they swept downward into the small tank from which water spurts like a geyser at the impact of their bodies. The dive was repeated once, only the second time was even more daring than the first. Pouring oil on the water and then setting it and their clothes afire the couple did the stunt again. The crowd stood silent for a moment, then burst into an ovation as "The Hellkivists" stepped from the tank.

Automobiles, exhibited for the first time at an affair of this kind, proved a great drawing card, hundreds inspecting the late models on display. Krab's Mammoth Phantom Orchestra provided some wonderful dance numbers and was a great hit. The sound was so magnified as to be heard in all corners of the grounds. Every amusement was well catered to and nearly everyone there seemed to have come with the idea of spending money.

The paid attendance it was said today was larger than ever before and with fine weather the Lawn Fete should prove a tremendous success tonight and Saturday. Featuring the fete tonight is the popular High School Band in a concert of the latest musical numbers. "The Hellkivists" will also appear tonight and tomorrow night.

TWO SENT TO PRISON

Hartford, June 7.—Judge Christopher L. Avery, of Superior Court, today imposed prison terms on two men who were convicted of statutory offenses. Gerhardt Lind, of New Britain, was sent to Wethersfield for one to two years, and William Fillmore, of Rocky Hill, was sent there for one to three years.

President Calls on Congress to Get Busy and Orders Prohibition Bureau to Tighten Up Everywhere; Special Committee to Work on Problem During the Summer.

Washington, June 7.—President Hoover went action in prohibition enforcement—real action.

Impatient because of existing conditions, and unwilling to wait two years while his civilian law enforcement commission leisurely studies the abstract question of what makes the American people so lawless, Mr. Hoover has called upon Congress to get busy, and ordered the prohibition bureau to tighten up everywhere.

As a result, Congress had before it today a request from the White House to appoint a select committee to work during the summer so that legislative wrenches may be applied to the enforcement machinery when Congress meets again in the fall, and the Treasury is engaged in another of its spectacular efforts to mop up the wringing wet Detroit sector.

Committee Starts Work

Meanwhile, the law observance committee headed by ex-Attorney General Wickersham continued its sessions in a downtown office building, examining committee members and other government officials behind closed doors. Secretary of the Treasury Mellon and Attorney General Mitchell spent most of yesterday giving their views to the commission.

All around the capital, it seemed, prohibition developments were erupting, or smoking preparatory thereto.

Hoover's Request

In his request to Congress to appoint a select committee to study legislative needs during the recess with a similar committee from the government departments, Mr. Hoover plainly indicated he considered existing conditions deplorable. He said he wanted to secure "the utmost expedition in the reorganization of enforcement activities, and referred to changes also greatly needed" to improve effectiveness of existing laws.

The principal change contemplated, although it was not mentioned specifically, is the transfer of prohibition enforcement from the Treasury to the Department of Justice. That involves, too, the transfer of some of the functioning of the auxiliary arms of enforcement, customs, Coast Guard, etc. It is an intricate business, and there will be considerable fireworks over it before it is ever done. Even the professional drys are split upon whether it is advisable.

The Treasury is throwing all its reserves into the Detroit sector, where liquor comes across from Canada in a never-ending stream. Boats and men are being withdrawn from other sections of the country for duty around Detroit, and the personnel has been shaken up in hopes of obtaining some results.

These moves are the direct result of White House pressure, for President Hoover is understood to have been recently nettled at newspaper stories telling how rum is run across the river openly in daylight and unloaded under the very eyes of customs agents.

Doran Optimistic

The White House may think things are in a pretty bad way, but so Dr. James M. Doran, chief of the Prohibition Bureau.

Dr. Doran was almost optimistic today. He characterized enforcement measures as "moving full speed ahead," and pointed to the arrest of 51,000 persons from July 1 to April 1—more than ever have been arrested before during a similar period.

"The preliminary findings of a survey of enforcement conditions in all states," said the doctor, "shows a surprisingly better situation of cooperation than was anticipated."

Governors Cooperating

"A majority of governors of states are cooperating with the federal forces. The exceptions are in those states that have no local enforcement laws."

They have been getting particularly good cooperation, he said, from the Connecticut constabulary, the Texas Rangers, the Pennsylvania state troopers, and the New Jersey state troopers.

Reinforcement made possible under the special appropriation in the closing days of the last Congress are going right ahead.

Two hundred new agents have been employed since February, and 170 more will be added as soon as qualified men can be obtained through the civil service.

At full war strength, the bureau will have 2,170 enforcement agents and inspectors. These, of course, are in addition to the thousands of customs agents, Coast Guardsmen, border patrols, etc., which combine to make up the far-flung army of enforcement.

in the Almanach de Gotha, the International Social Register.

He is a handsome man, not unlike the moving picture type of rount. He owns a small, well-groomed mustache, curly wave-trained hair and a likeable personality.

The count today was out on bail under $25,000 bond. He denied emphatically the charge against him. He said that he had never been in the liquor business in the United States but sold a great deal of champagne to Canada. He said that he was foreign representative of Pommeroy and Greno, of Rheims.

Count Polignac said that the only other time he was ever under arrest was when he was a prisoner in a German camp for three years during the war.

LOCAL GIRL COMPLETES NURSE TRAINING COURSE

Miss Maybelle E. Griffith to Graduate from Long Island College Hospital on Monday.

Miss Maybelle Elinor Griffith, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles R. Griffin, of 55 Pleasant street, will graduate as a nurse from Long Island College hospital, Brooklyn, N. Y., on Monday. Miss Griffith has been a student at the hospital training school for the past two years. She graduated from the Manchester High school in the class of 1925. The Long Island College Hospital training school course is an unusually rigid one and only accepts as students those who have high school diplomas.

A party of local people including Mr. and Mrs. Charles R. Griffin, Charles W. Griffith, Miss Florence M. Griffith and Miss Dorothy F. Mitchell will attend the commencement exercises in the Academy of Music, Brooklyn, on Monday and the ball in honor of the graduating class which will follow the exercises. Mr. and Mrs. Griffith went to New York this afternoon on the Hartford line steamer.

TURN OVER SEALS.
London, June 7.—The members of the former Baldwin Conservative Cabinet turned over their seals of office to King George at Windsor Castle, today.

CENTER CHURCH WOMEN ELECT THEIR OFFICERS

Center church Women's Federation held its first annual meeting at the church yesterday afternoon. Less than a year ago all women's organizations of the church were federated, and the reports yesterday represented the work of the indoor season just passed, or from October to May. During that time a number of activities, social and financial have been successfully conducted and the total sum earned was $1,800. Of that amount $1,000 was turned over to the church and various other objects.

The officers who served the federation during its first year were for the most part elected. They are Mrs. C. W. Holman, president; Mrs. J. A. Hood, first vice president; Miss Mary Hutchinson, second vice president and home service director; Mrs. James Irvine, third vice president and social director; Mrs. Lucius Foster was chosen auditor and chairman of the membership committee. Mrs. Emma Nettleton was re-elected secretary and Mrs. Gertrude Purnell, treasurer; Mrs. James Johnston, committee on parish work. Members at large of the executive board are Mrs. G. H. Wilcox, Mrs. Bert Knight and Mrs. James C. Robinson.

The Federation will have its annual picnic on June 13 instead of June 13 as announced on the program. The home service course will be in charge and it is proposed to hold it on the church lawn.

BARNARD PUPILS HEAR FAMOUS NATURALIST

Barnard school seventh and eighth grade pupils were privileged to hear a noted naturalist speak today. W. E. Dillon of Newark, N. J., who goes under the name of Chief Opie Dillock, gave two addresses, each an hour long, one in the morning and the other this afternoon. This was necessary in order that all of the pupils might hear him because of the limited space in the School Street Recreation Center auditorium.

Mr. Dillon, who has camped with the famous Ernest Thompson Seton, nationally known naturalist, Dillon Wallace, Labrador explorer and Anthony Pilla, Arctic explorer, brought with him numerous charts which he exhibited to the pupils. They included all sorts of questions which he answered at the command of the pupils together with any others which they might think concerning birds, trees, snakes and flowers.

MRS. ADAMS GETS ONE TO 10 YEARS

Hartford county. The black-clad little girl appeared suddenly, like a shadow passing across the bright June sunshine; the state's attorney spoke in a low, but penetrating voice, giving the state's side of the case and the defense's side too; Lawyer Freedman spoke, indicating his client was ready to take the punishment the state deemed fit; and then Judge Avery crisply and briefly declared the verdict. Mrs. Adams, calm and poised, looked steadily at the judge, bowed silently, and turned to the attendants who for nearly three months have been about her. And court was adjourned for the day.

Story of the Crime.
Adams died on March 24. Chloroform killed him. At first the information went forth that he had been in the habit of using the powerful drug to aid in getting to sleep, and that he had taken an overdose. Then, with suddenness appalling to his friends, news went forth that his little wife had been arrested and had confessed to chloroforming him. A pitiful tale of marriage in school days; the struggle of a part-educated young man of nervous temperament to support himself, his wife, and finally a baby on a small salary; the final discouragement in which the youth turned to liquor, to atheism, and then to other women for "escape" was told.

Mrs. Adams could stand things no longer, and calmly she put the chloroform over the young man's face as he slept, so she admitted. And she told of lying in bed with her husband as he died, and finally, when he breathed no longer, of sending for a doctor. The Grand Jury returned a true bill in time—first degree murder.

Mrs. Adams was asked by the state yesterday to plead to manslaughter.

FIND BODY IN SOUND

Old Saybrook, Conn., June 7.—A local undertaker has charge today of the body of a well-dressed man, apparently about 55, that was picked up last night by the captain of the Cornfield Point light ship and brought to port here. The man's suit, made in Boston, bore the name "D. Eastman." In a pocket was a ticket for the steamboat Lexington, of the Colonial Navigation Company. Dated June 2. Dr. Irwin Gramis, medical examiner, viewed the body and ordered it removed by an undertaker, and Coroner L. A. Smith, of Middletown, received his report today.

OBITUARY

FUNERALS

Cornelius Shaw.
The funeral of Cornelius Shaw of No. 2 Eldridge street was held this morning at St. James's R. C. church. Burial was in St. James's cemetery. Rev. W. P. Reidy was celebrant at this morning's mass. The bearers were Charles J. Magne, Robert R. Keeney, Paul D. Cleary, Thomas Benson, John Logan, and James Dearden.

As the close of the service Mr. Keating sang "Face to Face" and Organist Packard played Wilhelm Kern's funeral march.

RECOGNIZE LINDY ON BOARD YACHT

skipper is aboard the Mouette, according to Captain Jim Anderson, the keeper of Goat island light, who was the first person to sight the craft as it entered the inlet.

Apparently the flier's wealthy bride is doing the cooking, for Capt. Jim saw a fourth person aboard through his powerful glasses.

Col. Lindbergh, who was the only occupant of the Mouette visible as the craft neared the pier, was recognized instantly when the trim motorboat docked to take on gasoline.

Nothing To Say
The flying colonel politely refused to answer any questions.

"Sorry, gentlemen, nothing to say," was his sole reply to queries.

A party of newspapermen on shore put out to examine the Mouette under cover of darkness. They lifted the canvass of the craft's name plate. Underneath the canvass was inscribed "The Mouette."

Covering up the name of the boat is against maritime regulations, and the vessel could be fired on by the Coast Guard, the skipper would be liable to lose his license and the owner could be fined, but it is considered unlikely that the Coast Guard will take any such course.

"Lindy" heard the reporters messing around and came on deck, concealing with difficulty his anger at the intrusion.

"Gentlemen," he said with precise enunciation, "it is our desire to be left alone. Please do not disturb us again."

The newspapermen obligingly shoved off and returned to shore.

No provisions were taken aboard here. The flier's wealthy bride apparently is doing the cooking, for the Lone Eagle never was noted for his culinary skill and the skipper probably is kept busy with taking care of the Mouette.

ABOUT TOWN

The monthly business meeting of the Young People's Society of the Concordia Lutheran Church which was scheduled for this evening, has been postponed until next Friday evening, at 8 o'clock, on account of the annual entertainment of the Willing Worker's Society.

There are many children making applications for their birth certificates at the town clerk's office these days in order that they may go to work. Children under 16 years of age are allowed to work in the fields on tobacco and it is worth on these plantations that the application are now being made. The pay that is given to several of the boys engaged in this work goes as high as $15 a week and many are not over 14 years of age.

Mrs. Thomas Cole and daughter, Louise, of 10 Middle Turnpike, west, left today for New York where they will sail on the Cameronia for Ireland tomorrow. They were accompanied to New York by Mr. Cole and another daughter, Edna and also Miss Mildred Morrison.

Harry Benson, of 63 Oak street, is registered as a guest at the Hotel Shelton, New York City.

Frank Bailey, of East Glastonbury, holding a ticket numbered 6339 won the Kelvinator which was presented to the State theater last night. The Kelvinator was purchased from Alfred Grezel.

Mrs. Charles Whitchee and Mrs. E. E. Segar of Main street are attending the commencement exercises of Bridgewater Normal school, Bridgewater, Mass. They expect to return home Sunday. Mrs. Whitchee is a graduate of the school.

Fourteen directors of the Manchester Kiwanis club met at the County clubhouse today and transacted routine business. It was also decided to open the camp at Hebron for Hiddies July 29. It is expected to have the equipment better than in previous years. C. R. Burr, who heads the camp committee has agreed to have a force of men go out there one or two days before the opening to put everything in ship shape. It is the plan of the Kiwanians to hold their meeting at the Country club through the summer months, including September.

LOCAL GARDEN CLUB WINS IN CITY SHOW

Takes First Prize in Exhibit of Hartford Garden Club and Horticultural Society.

For the second time the Manchester Garden club has won honors for its exhibits as a club at spring shows in Hartford. At the show of the Hartford Garden club and Connecticut Horticultural society which opened yesterday afternoon at the Morgan Memorial, the local club's exhibit was awarded first prize in the class open to garden clubs. This entitles the club to the silver medal of the Connecticut Horticultural society.

The committee from the local garden club in charge of the exhibit is gratified that its efforts were thus repaid. Miss Mary Cheney and Mrs. William C. Cheney, joint chairmen, were ably assisted by Mrs. Clifford Cheney, Miss Helen Chapman, George Clark and Harold Belcher. The committee chose to arrange a garden nook beyond a grill gate. The background was provided by tall cedars. In the center a bird bath was placed surrounded by iris and pansies. Turf formed the edge here and at the sides of the exhibit, with border of low-growing heliotrope, pansies and iris. The effect was beautiful and greatly admired. Miss Mary and Miss Helen Chapman also

BREAKS PLANE RECORD.

Washington, June 7.—The world's altitude record for seaplanes came back to the United States today.

Calibration of the instruments in Lieutenant Apollo Soucek's plane by officials of the Bureau of Standards showed he reached a ceiling of 38,500 feet several days ago. The old record was 37,955.

CHURCH AND STATE EXCHANGE TREATIES

They bore the date of May 30, 1929.

The King's documents, presented by Mussolini, were equally elaborate, but were bound in a covering of blue velvet.

Following the formal exchange of ratifications, a protocol outlining settlement of the principal differences between the church and the government was drawn up, and in the presence of witnesses signed by Cardinal Gasparri and Premier Mussolini. This document was duly sealed with the Italian crest and that of the Holy See, and the ceremony, re-establishing the relations severed a generation ago, was completed.

CHECKS STILL COME IN FOR HOSPITAL'S DRIVE

Today's total in the Memorial hospital campaign for $36,000 reached $21,402.80, according to figures ascertained late this afternoon by Treasurer W. W. Harris. Although the drive is officially closed several contributions continue to come into headquarters by mail each day.

Word has been received by relatives here to the effect that Lloyd, nine years old son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Noble of Windsor, Ontario, has been discharged from the hospital there. Several weeks ago the boy fell from a freight train on which he was attempting to "hitch a ride" and both legs were cut off. For a time it was feared he would die.

DIAL PHONES PLACE TOWN IN CITY CLASS

Exchange Manager W. B. Halsted Tells Why S. N. E. T. Co., Has Installed Them

Exchange Manager William B. Halsted in outlining the policies of the Southern New England Telephone company in connection with the installation here of dial telephone equipment has prepared a most interesting review of the Manchester field. His first presentation of the subject was before the Chamber of Commerce, Kiwanis and Lions meeting Wednesday night. The address, in part, follows:

Before going into the question of dial service I will attempt to give you a few illustrations of the rapid growth of the telephone business in this community. Back in 1883, I find that Manchester had a total of 45 telephone subscribers and the total number of people using telephone service did not exceed this figure very much until 1901, when we find that Manchester boasted of 109 telephones. From that date on, the telephone development in this exchange has been rather rapid. In 1905 we had 386 telephones in use. In 1910 there were 527. In 1912 there were 1100. During the next eight years or up to 1920, we find a growth of 1,357 telephones giving us a total in 1920 of 2,457. In 1922 we passed the 3,000 mark and at the end of 1925 we had 4,686 telephones in use in this exchange. There has been a rapid growth in the first five months of this year making a present total of approximately 4,834.

"I find that telephone growth in any community is an adequate barometer of the growth and activity of the community itself.

Reason for Change
Growth of telephone service in a growing exchange like Manchester is continually necessary to add to existing telephone plant. Since these additions are made until the ultimate capacity of a switchboard is reached, it is evident that new equipment of some kind must be provided at that time for growth and to replace the existing switchboards that are wearing out.

The fact that new equipment must be installed makes it necessary to consider all of the advances in the telephone art in order to determine the most economical and modern type to install. Accordingly, studies are made both of Manual and Dial equipment in determining the type of replacing office for each exchange in the territory.

"As a result of these studies and with due consideration having been given to the cost of operating the various types of equipment, it is believed that in the Manchester Exchange dial equipment will prove more economical over a period of years and will provide a more satisfactory service than would be the case with new Manual equipment.

"Having been asked on numerous occasions just how much money it will cost to make this change to Dial Service you will probably be interested in the following figures.

New Building
"Our new building, with which you are more or less familiar, cost approximately $76,000. The dial equipment in the office will cost in excess of $300,000. The cost of changing every telephone in the exchange to a dial telephone will be about $91,000. The necessary additions and changes in our cable facilities will add another $25,000 and you can therefore readily see that in giving the Manchester Exchange dial service, our company is spending very close to one half million dollars.

"That dial service is the last word in telephone development is a well known fact and I personally get quite a kick out of the fact that my exchange is the third one in the state to get this improved telephone service. We have been preceded only by Hartford, including East Hartford and New London.

"There is practically no difference between dial service and good manual service.

"Mechanical equipment is a development of the present mechanical age and affords a guarantee of good service during periods when it is not always possible to maintain an adequate force of operators. In establishing operating force requirements, obviously it is impossible to anticipate unexpected peaks in the service during any normally light load period. If an emergency should arise at such a time, dial equipment can handle better the traffic peak that would result, because it is engineered to handle a busy hour load, its facilities being always available, whether it be two o'clock in the morning or two o'clock in the afternoon. On the other hand, the operating force is engineered to carry the traffic load at particular hours of the day, based on the normal telephone habit, and should some emergency arise during a normal light load period the service naturally would be slowed up some until additional operators could be placed at the switchboard.

Dials Faster
"Dial service is somewhat faster than manual service in that, because of the mechanical features, the ringing of other dial subscribers will be automatic. There is a further benefit to the subscriber with dial service who desires to place a series of local calls, in that the disconnect under the dial method is faster.

"With the proper use of the dial by the subscriber, dial service is just as accurate as manual service. It must be appreciated that as long as the human element enters into the complete operation of any form of service, errors will occur.

"Telephone operators will never be completely replaced by any form of dial service, it being an established policy of the company to care for its permanent employees in a change of this character by a program planned sufficiently in advance.

Present Force
"The present force consists of twenty-two employees. About half of this number or about twelve operators will be required to operate the manual switchboard in connection with the dial system office and for intercepting, information service and clerical work. The usual turnover results in eleven resignations a year in Manchester. Since a year ago last October, these operators have been and will continue to be replaced by temporary operators engaged in and about Manchester and by temporary operators transferred from other exchanges until the cut-over, at which time this group will be released or returned to their regular exchanges. In addition to this temporary force we are employing at present as temporary operators, married women with whom arrangements have been made to work until the cut-over in July at which time they will be released.

"Thus the operating personnel will be automatically reduced to the force required at the time of the cut-over and by this policy it will not be necessary to release any regular operators who wish to remain permanent employees.

"The dial area will include the town of Manchester and that part of the town of Vernon within the Manchester Exchange boundary. Since dialing equipment has definite transmission and signaling limitations, service furnished in the towns of Bolton, Coventry and that part of the town of South Windsor which is within the Manchester Exchange boundary will be continued on a manual basis.

"Rosedale" Exchange
"A name prefix is necessary to indicate manual subscribers' numbers in the directory which must be reached through the manual board. The name "Rosedale" was selected from a group of names after extensive traffic tests had proved that this name prefix was the most easily understood over the telephone.

"There are approximately 260 subscribers' stations in the Manchester Exchange area that are beyond the limits of dial system operation and they will continue to be operated manually after the cut-over.

"The fact that the calling of telephone numbers will be completed in most cases in an entirely different manner than at present, we are conducting an extensive educational program on the use of the dial telephone. For the past several days we have been conducting demonstrations in the public schools, taking all pupils above the fifth grade. These pupils are users of or potential users of telephone service. The instructions given them in these school room demonstrations will be of great value to them. There is a further advantage to these demonstrations particularly in regards to the foreign speaking families of the town. We find that by instructing the children that they will instruct their parents in the proper use of the dial telephone, much better than we could hope to do it ourselves.

Booklets of instructions will be mailed to subscribers about the first of July. We will also maintain demonstration locations in various parts of the town. Telephone representatives will be in attendance at these locations and will be only too glad to demonstrate the proper use of the dial telephone.

"Cut-Over" in July
The cut-over, as we call it, or the change from Manual to Dial service will take place early in July. About a week after the cut-over, when the new system is running smoothly, we are going to hold open house in our new building. The dates will be advertised in the newspapers and I hope that everyone of you will take the opportunity to inspect our new home."

There is one verse in the Bible the school boy knows to be true: "Much study is a weariness to the flesh."

TELEPHONE COMPANY'S NEW HOME HERE

This handsome new building on East Senter street now houses the Manchester exchange of the Southern New England Telephone Company. It will be open for public inspection after the dial system has been instituted here about the middle of July.

MOST MANCHESTER COPS KNOW TROLLEY PATTEN

Several of Police Department Were Former Employees on Trolley Lines and Know the Language.

When a policeman in Manchester makes a report which concerns a trolley car he is talking in a language that is understood by most of the police, though not fully understood by others. Chief of Police Samuel Gordon came to the police force from the trolley lines as did Captain Herman Schendel. Sergeant John Crockett is a former trolleyman as is Officer Arthur Seymour.

When Officer Seymour had occasion to report a slight accident last night he did it in the language of the trolley men. He tells the story of how a Chrysler sedan was standing on Center street just as a car from Hartford, or the "east bound" car, thinking there was room to pass, in making a turn south struck the automobile with the right front journal of the car, slightly scraping it. The automobile was owned by Samuel Lupin of Hartford. Time 7:30.

And neither Chief Gordon nor Captain Schendel had to ask "Where's the journal on a trolley?"

YOUNG PEOPLE'S UNION OUTING IN E. HAMPTON

The Young People's Union of Manchester which includes nine churches, will hold an outing at Lake Pocotopaug on June 15. The union has a representative from each of the nine churches in the officers and council. They are as follows: Officers—President, Ralph Collins, Wapping church; vice-president, Miss Frances Howe, Center Congregational; secretary and treasurer, Miss Ethel Brookings, South Methodist.

Council—Miss Carolyn Waterbury, North Methodist; Mrs. Mabel Bowers, Second Congregational; Paul Carlson, Swedish Congregational; Carl Matson, Swedish Lutheran; Sidney Harrison, St. Mary's Episcopal; Miss Miriam Welles, Talcottville church.

The union meetings are held twice a year. The two meetings which were held last year were well attended at the South Methodist and Center Congregational churches. The program was made up of an address, devotional service, special music, games and refreshments.

June 15 the meeting will be of a different character. It will take the form of an outing at Lake Pocotopaug, East Hampton. The delegation will meet at the Center Congregational church at 2 o'clock; each church supplying transportation for their own people. There will be games, refreshments and plenty of fun in or on the water. If stormy it will be postponed until June 22. All those planning to go please notify the representative of their church not later than Sunday, June 9.

In the spring of 1918, Allied hopes were at ebb tide. Ludendorff was outsmarting Foch. Two hundred thousand Germans had burst through French and British lines on the Chemin des Dames, one of the strongest positions on the Western Front. Then Cantigny fell to the Americans, fighting their first independent attack of the war. But the Germans were, meanwhile, drawing dangerously close to Paris.

Just 11 years ago today, that was the World War setting. Fate and military tactics—chosen American troops to bear the brunt of the Allied effort to throw the Germans back in their march on the French capital, and 11 years ago today they did.

The scene was Chateau Thierry and the fighting was as fierce as any during the entire war. And while it was being fought American troops got their first real taste of warfare.

The drive that ended successfully on June 1918, was followed up two weeks later by a general Allied offensive which drove the Germans back many miles farther.

"I have tried a long time and found no way of avoiding a whipping when I do not behave myself reasonably well."

"The door is wide open, not only to co-operative associations, but associations or corporations actually engaged in marketing agricultural commodities, owned or controlled by co-operative associations, or by individuals engaged as original producers of agricultural commodities."

"I have tried a long time and found no way of avoiding a whipping when I do not behave myself reasonably well."

"The supreme court is very much like Hamlet following the ghost of his father. The court follows that ghostly thing we call the will of Congress. It follows it as did the Prince of Denmark follow the ghost, with timidity and trembling, because it never knows how far the Congress is going or into what abyss of un-constitutionalism the ghost may lead it."

"Beauty contests, with their consequent naming of 'queens' and 'princesses,' lower the moral standard of communities, and tend to dangerous exaltation of feminine vanity as well as constituting a parody on very serious matters."

Mabel Walker Willebrandt resigned as assistant attorney general to survey the national and state laws of the air. It has been announced that Mabel quit of her own accord, which, of course, dispels any suspicion that she really was given the air.

Friday

Dinner—Mincied fish in cucumber jelly, cooked tomatoes, string beans, celery and toasted nut salad, apple-sauce.

Saturday
Breakfast—Dish of berries, with milk or cream (no sugar).
Lunch—Corn, cooked greens, salad of shredded lettuce.
Dinner—Salisbury steak, spinach, stuffed celery, Jello or Jell-well with cream.

Fig Ice Cream: Measure into a dish half the contents of an envelope of plain gelatine and add to it two or three tablespoonsful of cold water to soften. Cut fine the desired amount of cooked figs and mix with a half pint of cream. Into another bowl put a pint of whole milk into which has been thoroughly mixed about a third of a cupful of honey and add to the figs. Next add the gelatin which has been dissolved over hot water. Stir all together and pour into freezer and freeze until of the desired consistency. The amount makes about a quart, depending upon the quantity of figs used.

Other fruits may be used in place of the figs, such as raspberries, pineapple or strawberries, the amount of honey to be used varying with the acidity of the fruit.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

(Torticollis)
Question: B. D. "wonder if you have had any experience with chronic torticollis of long standing. If so, I would greatly appreciate any suggestions on diet or treatment."

Answer: The treatment I have found most satisfactory for this condition is the use of a short orange juice fast at intervals of about a month apart. Hot applications to the neck, or treatments with the deep therapy lamp or diathermy are also helpful. Osteopathic or Chiropractic treatments along with the fasting and dieting regime will also tend to hasten a cure.

(Asparagus and Orange Rind)
Question: "Can't asparagus does not seem to agree with me although I can eat the fresh. Do you know any reason why this should be? Also, please tell me if there is any food value to the white part of the rind of oranges."

Answer: I see no reason why canned asparagus should disagree with you. It may be due to an idiosyncrasy you have developed. The white part of the orange has no medicinal value but it is of assistance in producing bulk for the bowels.

(Stomach trouble)
Question: Miss M. D. writes, "In one of your articles you states that gastritis is caused from too much acid in the stomach. I seem to have all the symptoms you mention, and am starting a milk diet. Is this right?"

Answer: Of course, it is impossible for me to diagnose your case through the columns of this paper, but whether or not you have gastritis, or even stomach ulcers, the milk diet seems to be beneficial in almost any form of stomach derangements if you continue it for some time. You should then follow certain diet instructions which I will be glad to send you upon receipt of a large self-addressed stamped envelope.

FRIDAY, JUNE 7, 1929

that would appear to mean that the British diplomats in Washington are to have their choice of going dry or resorting to the usual Washington custom of patronizing the bootlegger, like ordinary Congressmen.

This, of course, is an entirely voluntary action on the part of Sir Esme, since the position of the State Department is that the diplomatic corps has a perfect and unquestionable right to import liquors for its own use; and it is very far indeed from being the intention of the other embassies to follow his lead. However, it is just as much his own private affair as if he had notified his staff members that hereafter instead of wearing black bow ties with their dinner jackets they would be expected to wear golf stockings tied four-in-hand about their necks.

We doubt, just the same, whether Sir Esme would have taken this attitude toward the sound imported liquors his assistants have been sipping if he wholly realized just what kind of stuff it is that the bootleggers sell and what the program of prices is. Still, the brand in Washington may be somewhat better than it is elsewhere; it must be, when you come to think of the number of dry Senators and Representatives who come from a section of the country where a fine taste for whiskey is an essential attribute of the southern gentleman.

her husband is hardly to be classed with those numerous instances where murderers, merely because they are women and young, escape with inappropriate punishment or else dodge conviction altogether.

The circumstances of this crime indicate that it was almost purely hysterical, committed with scarcely any realization of the enormity of the act or even any actual comprehension of the fact of death itself. Apparently of a rather childish mentality anyhow, the woman had suffered for years the slights and contempt of a mate of superior mentality and a coldly unsympathetic nature. She was distraught and half mad. She yielded to a momentary impulse not unlike that which makes a temperamental little girl throw her favorite doll on the floor—to weep over the wreckage afterward.

That such a crime should go unpunished is unthinkable. But that the circumstances of the case should not have been fully considered and all allowances made would also be unthinkable. State Attorney Alcorn bears the reputation of being somewhat hard and unsympathetic. In our belief his course in this case is evidence that he possesses a finely balanced sense of justice and of human relations.

WASHINGTON LETTER
 BY RODNEY DUTCHER

Washington, June 7.—The futurity of declaring the Democratic party a corpse after each presidential election and seeking to bury it has never been better demonstrated than it is being demonstrated in Washington right now.

Your correspondent has just sat in the new furniture over at the vasty expanse of headquarters of the party and very well furnished it is, so comfortable that if you sit down suddenly you'll bounce. It is recommended to all good Democrats who desire to revive their faith in the party's future that they come and see all this handsome walnut and tan leather—and sit down in the chairs and lounges.

More impressive than the furniture and the space, however, is Mr. Joubert (pronounced "Jewett") Shouse (pronounced "Sh-house"), the new chairman of the executive committee, whose job is to keep the party functioning and functioning cohesively between campaigns.

He's Hard at Work
 Most impressive about Mr. Shouse was the fact that your correspondent found him working, with two secretaries and his coat off, on Memorial Day, when nearly every other office in Washington was closed. The reason was that Mr. Shouse had work to do, but it was more or less surprising to find a politician, so far in advance of an election, plugging away on a holiday. Mr. Shouse does not appear to be an "easygoing executive." One may sympathize with Mr. Shouse because he has the Democratic party on his hands, but no one need sympathize with the Democrats because they have Mr. Shouse.

Mr. Shouse is not going to talk a great deal, will not issue many public statements and will not attempt to glorify Mr. Shouse, facts which discerning Democrats will appreciate. He will work in close contact with leaders in Congress, but will devote himself mainly to organization.

In common with most other Democrats, he has not observed anything in the first months of the Hoover administration designed to diminish Democratic hopes. He apparently considers it too early to join with others in the party who publicly assert that the Republican tariff bill will be a bad boomerang and that the Hoover prohibition enforcement program appears to be non-existent. There will be time enough, Shouse appears to suspect, to talk about those things. But he comes from Kansas City and knows the grain belt, so he asserts confidently that:

"The Republican party has largely if not wholly failed to meet the agricultural situation. The results of the Hoover measures speak for themselves, but the measures and means provided in the Hoover program are not what the farmers

THE JACOBAN CHARM
 in This "Palgrave" Suite is Unusual for a Price So Low

In this "Palgrave" group, the modernizing touch of Berkey & Gay designers has modified familiar Jacobean characteristics to produce the most popular of today's styles in dining room furniture. In a suite so moderately priced it is unusual to find such generous use of fine, selected woods—carved, matched, rubbed and highlighted by hand. The arm chair with high, upholstered back further emphasizes the remarkable value in this group. All legs are of American gumwood for strength, and strictly authentic in design. An exceptional opportunity to secure genuine Berkey & Gay style and quality at a low price!

Eight pieces... buffet extension table, five side chairs and an upholstered arm chair, as sketched.

DERBY SWEEPS
 Reaction in this country to the revelations of the extent on which the masses of people in Great Britain gamble on the great annual Derby—or, rather, the vast number of people who gamble on it to a small extent—will probably be, in the very great majority of cases, an attitude of pious disapproval. Yet perhaps there is more than one angle of approach to the question.

It is to be presumed that the great sweepstakes into which the common people of the British empire throw so many shillings are operated fairly and under responsible supervision. They are, in effect, merely lotteries in which horses take the place of abstract numbers. There is, of course, a considerable element of expense to be met in conducting them and, naturally, the players must contribute, in the mass, to the support of the sweepstakes operators. There must be more money paid into the pools than will be paid out again; that is obvious; and to this extent the public, as a whole, must get the worst of it. But that isn't swindling. It is merely meeting the inevitable increment, met with in pretty much all human transactions.

Hundreds of thousands, millions of persons, throughout the British realm, by buying tickets or parts of tickets on Derby day horses months in advance of the race itself, enable themselves to enjoy dreams—not expectations to be sure, for it is less than a normal man or woman who actually expects to be winner of a great lottery prize—but pleasant little visions of barely possible wealth, which otherwise it would be utterly impossible for them to entertain. It is a serious question, in our mind, whether this tiny ray of hope for the otherwise completely hopeless may not be worth all that it costs, perhaps a little more.

BOTH WRONG
 A nasty fight was that which had been going on in Congress until yesterday over reapportionment of the representation in the House of Representatives, and a futile one into the bargain. Efforts of Southern and Mid-western leaders to save for their respective states representation to which they were not justly entitled under the Constitution, by inserting in the reapportionment measure a provision that aliens shall not be counted, were being met by the proposal of Representative Tinkham of Massachusetts that Negroes who are not allowed to vote also be counted. Such a provision would have cut down the number of Congressional districts in the South even more than the proposal to omit aliens from the enumeration would have reduced the representation of several Northern and Eastern states.

The whole conflict was foolishly useless. The Constitution declares that "representation" shall be apportioned among the several states according to their respective numbers, which shall be determined by adding to the whole number of free persons * * * three-fifths of all other persons (meaning Negro slaves)." How on earth there could have been excluded from the enumeration either aliens or disfranchised Negroes, under that explicit provision, it is impossible to imagine. There was no rhyme or reason in the fracas. Its timely settlement without ruining the reapportionment is a fortunate outcome of a wholly gratuitous complication.

GOO-BY DEBENTURES
 The elimination of the debenture provision from the farm bill is due, of course, to the uncompromising attitude of President Hoover. The President has earned the gratitude of the country, for there was more mischief in that lure than has been generally recognized. It would have cost the people an immense amount of money—and hardly a cent of it would ever have found its way to the farmer who raised the stuff on which the subsidy was paid. The farm bill as it stands, without the debenture, is a liberal measure, for while it is the theory that the half billion dollar revolving fund is to merely be used for the stabilizing of crop prices, it is a reasonable guess that for the most part it will find its way into the veins of Agriculture's circulating system and stay there. Concerning the morality of this sort of relief there may, perhaps, be some debate. But it is pretty soft for the farmers.

We have probably heard the last of debentures for this session, anyhow. It is very doubtful that the provision will be tacked onto the tariff bill, because, as sure as shooting, if it were President Hoover would veto that measure, which he is believed not to hold in too high regard as it is.

IN NEW YORK
 New York, June 7.—Visitors, I note, are generally amazed to find that the Sabbath in Manhattan is even as the Sabbath elsewhere.

With the exception of such films as might be found in most modern Main streets, a few concerts and various vaudeville concoctions, the playhouses are slammed tight. One may go to Lincoln Center, the Zoo or the songfest. But the theater doors are as dark as in any blue law town and nightclubbery has ended about the hour of an early mass.

For years efforts have been made to evade the Sunday laws. The courts have been there to parse phrase vaudeville, or the music shows insofar as possible. The leading names of the revues are borrowed and the stars twinkle in their own sweet way.

But just now the spirit of rebellion stirs. Sometimes between the hottest day of the year and the winter snows there will be at least one test suit. The theater folk will argue that if the cinema houses can put on what approximates a theatrical production there is no good reason why, in the coming winter, the box offices of the legitimate houses cannot keep going.

At the present writing it is permissible to sing and dance as part of a movie house prologue, but not the show of the latest village sky-toucher, have little doubt that the Philistines will arrive faster than ever, by taxi and bus, to seek atmosphere by lantern light, and mayhap to hear M. Durant himself tell dark chapters of Spinoza's turgid life.

Leaving, they will doubtless be convinced that "Spinoza" is some new Italian dish.

GILBERT SWAN.

CHARM EXTRAORDINARY
 To Delight Discriminating Guests

There are out-of-the-ordinary people whose friendship we treasure in an out-of-the-ordinary degree. They are, we know, discriminating in their every taste. When they are our guests we want everything to evoke their approval, to remain in their recollection as a memory of unusual charm—our houses, our gardens, our pictures, our furniture . . . everything. The "Arno", a bedroom suite by Berkey & Gay, is calculated to make an exceptional impression on exceptional people, because of its exceptional charm. . . . Its design is utterly modern. Its black enamel finish is striped and paneled in Chinese vermilion to underline the beauty of its cleanly modern silhouette. Conventionalized flower designs beautify its broad surfaces. The mirrors are geometric and integral with the structure of the suite. . . . See it today. You will say that it is exceptional and charming, too.

PERITONITIS
 The peritoneum is a strong membrane with a smooth surface lining the abdominal walls and covering many of the internal organs, such as the stomach, spleen, liver, duodenum, small intestine, transverse colon, sigmoid flexure, rectum, uterus, etc. The peritoneum serves vice hold these organs in position by its folds, some of which are known as the mesentery and the omentum.

Usually inflammation of the peritoneum is secondary to an inflammation of some of the organs contained in contact with it, or it may become inflamed as the result of a perforating ulcer or external injury.

Primary peritonitis is much rare and is supposed to be caused by the germs or toxins from some other disease being carried by the blood and lymphatics to the peritoneum which becomes inflamed.

When the peritonitis is caused by simple inflammation of other organs, it is not usually dangerous and the primary disease should be treated. Peritonitis is often fatal, however, when it is caused by a perforating ulcer from the stomach, duodenum or appendix. The severe cases begin with an intense pain in the abdomen, accompanied by collapse, chilly feelings and rigor. The patient usually lies on the back with the thighs drawn up and the shoulders elevated to produce the greatest amount of relief. Breathing is usually very light because of the pain produced by moving the diaphragm. There are a few cases where the nervous system seems to be dulled by the toxins and the pain may also be absent. The abdomen becomes tense and swollen, the pulse very rapid and wiry, the temperature rising to 100 to 105 per minute. The temperature may rise rapidly to 104 or 105 degrees. Vomiting usually occurs early and violently. The urine may be highly colored and scanty. The face becomes pinched and the eyes sunken. The face usually assumes a brownish, livid or lead colored tone. These conditions usually indicate a fatal case unless the disease is quickly recognized and the right treatment used immediately. Every hour of delay greatly increases the risk of death which sometimes occurs with great suddenness.

Chronic peritonitis is not as serious as the acute stage and it shows only slight symptoms at the start. It is frequently caused by a local adhesion around the appendix, gall bladder, spleen or colon. An x-ray study under the fluoroscope is of great value in determining the position of these adhesions. Chronic

NEW LAWYERS
 Discussion as to whether employed men studying law on the side necessarily are less fitted by character, training and intellectual capacity to take examinations for admission to the Connecticut bar than are those who get their legal education in full-time law schools appears to us to be more or less academic. The action of the Bar Examining Committee in placing a ban on the students of various law schools which are in effect mere night schools might open up a rather wide field for discussion if considerations of ethics and democracy were the salient ones in this matter; but they are not.

The first and most important factor is the necessity of somehow or other decreasing the overwhelming number of fledgling lawyers annually thrusting themselves into a notoriously overcrowded profession. There are already more lawyers in the country than can possibly make an honest living. The result is, bluntly, that the cities of the east and the larger centers all over the country are cursed with the presence of great numbers who get their living in any way they can, far too often by showing crooks and cheats how to cheat and be crooked without going to prison.

The Connecticut Bar committee unquestionably has been a bit rough but the situation is one in which rough treatment is called for. If it should decide to be equally rough with certain candidates from the schools that it does recognize, on the ground of lack of any proper American background, it would involve no great loss to the state as a whole.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS
 (Starches)
 Question: J. L. E. asks: Generally speaking, what are the starches?
 Answer: The grains and those vegetable "tubers" which grow under the ground.

(Balls and Carbnules)
 Question: M. M. writes: "Sometime ago I had a large carbunole on my neck, and since then have had several balls. I would also like to know how to rid my face of whiteheads and large pores."
 Answer: You can overcome the tendency toward balls and carbunoles by following a correct fasting and diet regime, instructions for which I will be glad to send you. The enlarged pores and whiteheads can be overcome by washing the face very carefully morning and evening with hot water and some mild soap. After rinsing the face, apply ice or very cold water. Also avoid the use of too many fats in your diet.

(Nail Biting)
 Question: Mrs. J. H. asks: "Can you suggest some method of making my little boy stop biting his fingernails? He seems to be in good health except a little nervous."
 Answer: As far as stopping this unsanitary habit of biting the fingernails is concerned, the cure is quite simple. Dip the child's fingers several times daily in a solution of alum water. This will keep the alum on the fingers all day long, and after a few days the child will become disgusted with the puckery taste of alum which he gets every time he puts his little fingers into his mouth. This little cure always works.

GREZEL EXHIBITING A MODEL KITCHEN

The question of just how a modern kitchen should look is adequately answered by the window display in Al Grezel's store on Main street.

It is a typical up-to-date kitchen. In one corner is the latest model of an electric refrigerator, next to that is a fine Sterling gas range. At one end of the miniature room is the sink with dishes, ready to dry, at one side of it. Near the center of the floor is a breakfast set of two chairs and a table. The figure of a woman is shown advancing toward the stove with a dish in her hand.

The whole scene is appropriately set off with a realistic background of greenish tinted walls, with curtains over the window. Linoleum covers the floor.

SMALL SHOP FIRE MAKES BIG SHOW

South Enders Turn Out in Throng When Messier's Old Repair Plant Burns.

An alarm of fire from Box 53 at Spruce and Oak streets, together with an unusual illumination of the sky, created the impression at 3:10 o'clock this morning that there was a whole of a blaze going on in that part of the town. As a matter of fact, while the fire was a lively and showy one, the burning building was a small unused shop formerly occupied by Wilbur Messier, auto top repairer, who is now located just off Center street. It was badly damaged, as was an adjoining hen house.

Lively Business
No. 3 was the first company to respond and had a hose line laid in very quickly but experienced some delay in getting water. No. 2's pumper and the ladder truck of No. 4 were soon on the scene and while the sheets of flame springing from the frame building were beaten down with streams of water a chemical line from No. 4 truck prevented the burning of an adjoining shed which had just taken fire. John Reggati, who lives next east, used an extinguisher borrowed from No. 4 and saved his outbuildings. The open character of the fire created so brilliant a reflection in the sky that South End people in droves scrambled into their clothes and hurried to the scene, creating an unusual crowd for a 3 o'clock blaze.

The origin of the fire being somewhat mysterious, Chief Foy had the pretty well ruined building searched, after the fire was under control, on the hypothesis that some intruder, using the shop as a sleeping place, might have accidentally started the fire and become victim of it. There was nobody there, however, either alive or dead. It was finally decided that electric light wires started the blaze.

HOW BABY SPECIALISTS TREAT CONSTIPATION

Constipation in babies and children is the cause of colic, bloating, skin disorders, etc. It weakens them, just as it does grown folks; makes them cross, feverish and fretful. But don't use grown folks' medicine with them, baby specialists advise. Ninety per cent of them recommend just one preparation for constipation, colds and other ills of babies and children. They say Fletcher's Castoria. Millions of mothers have proved its merit during thirty years of use. Castoria is purely vegetable, harmless and pleasant-tasting. Genuine Castoria always bears the Fletcher signature. Avoid imitations.

HOP AGAIN DELAYED

Old Orchard, Me., June 7—The crews of the monoplanes Green Flash and Yellow Bird, prevented from starting their proposed trans-Atlantic flights for more than two weeks because of unfavorable weather, again were held idle today. Everything had been in readiness for a double hop-off this morning, but reported gales of hurricane force 1,200 miles off shore, accompanied by severe rain storms, resulted in postponement.

Climbs 5 miles with Hi-test TYDOL

The same gasoline that you can buy at any TYDOL Pump

Imagine driving your car, climbing a mountainous hill 5 miles long . . . all in high, with no second or first gear to slide back into, when the going gets tough.

That's the kind of power, driving power, lifting power, that it takes to send an airplane 5 miles high!

And Martin Jensen found it in Hi-test TYDOL, so much power that when he swooped to a landing he said, "I never believed that it was possible for the gas I use in my car to give such an amazing performance in an airplane!"

Starting in warm summer air, rising through wet and misty clouds, climbing to the bitter cold of high altitudes, would you expect a regular motor car gasoline to show a perfect record under such conditions, without even the help of the supercharger generally used on altitude flights?

But Hi-test TYDOL did! And any TYDOL pump sells exactly the same gasoline, an anti-knock, super-power, high-test gasoline at no extra cost. Fill your car today with this fuel so spectacular in all-round performance that it has but one ordinary quality—THE PRICE! . . . Tide Water Oil Sales Corporation, 3390 Main Street, Hartford Tel. On this flight, another perfect record was made by VEEDOL MOTOR OIL

"It has always been hard for me to excuse the weakness of suicide — the easiest way out of trouble."

THIS HAS HAPPENED
NAN CARROL, private secretary to JOHN CURTIS MORGAN, lawyer, discovers she is in love with Morgan. Being honorable, she decides she must resign, but postpones her resignation when she learns that Morgan is staking his professional honor to defend his friend, BERT CRAWFORD, indicted for embezzlement.

Nan believes Crawford is guilty and also suspects him of being the lover of IRIS MORGAN, beautiful wife of the lawyer. On the last day of the trial she finds convincing proof of his guilt and his intention to elope with Iris.

Believing there is but one course open to her, she hurries to the courtroom, but finds she is too late, as a "not guilty" verdict has been brought in. Crawford announces he is leaving town. When Iris Morgan departs a few days later on a supposed pleasure trip to New York, Nan believes Iris is deserting her husband and child.

While she and Morgan are working on Morgan's next case, the defense of LOIS DOWNS, a patient, a special delivery letter comes from Iris telling Morgan she does not love him and that she will not return. The letter omits mention of Crawford and begs Morgan not to search for her. Morgan is crushed. Nan, the friend to whom he turns in his trouble, reads the letter at his request. She wants to comfort him but words are futile. She lingers in the outside office waiting.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY
CHAPTER XVIII
JOHN CURTIS MORGAN raised an uncertain hand and brushed it across his eyes, as if to clear away the impenetrable black fog of despair in which he had moved since he had read his wife's curt announcement of her desertion.

"The Lois Downs case?" he repeated mechanically, as if the words rang no bell in his memory. His hands went to his eyes again. His long, thin fingers pressed hard upon his eyelids, but when his hand dropped Nan Carroll almost burst into tears of relief and joy to see the faint flicker of a smile across his gray-white face.

"You are a slave-driver, Nan. I'm not to be let off even—tonight, am I? You're right. Tomorrow will surely come," he added with a slight of infinite weariness.

Nan looked up at him through thick, dark, tearful eyes. She had a smile to answer. "My secret's out," she admitted, with an excellent imitation of her old impudence. "I'm Simon Legree in disguise—also Sherlock Holmes. You be Watson, like a nice, obedient dog, and try to pick flaws in my deductions. Pull up a chair. I'll be right back," she ordered briskly.

She whisked into Morgan's private office, snatched up his pipe, filled it with coarse-cut tobacco from the humidor which she always kept stocked for him, found a card of matches, and hurried out.

She found Morgan seated beside her desk, his mouth bitter with pain.

"You always say you think better when you smoke," she announced cheerfully. "That's Sherlock's prerogative, so we'll pretend that it's my head that's wreathed in smoke clouds, if you'll furnish the clouds." She thrust the pipe into his hand, then struck a match, so that he was forced to put the stem between his lips. She waited until the first puff of smoke and the first hint of relaxation on Morgan's tight, gray face rewarded her strategy.

"Well?" Morgan asked, another strained smile flickered across his face. "Who murdered Mrs. Andrew Ward my dear Holmes?"

"Nobody murdered Mrs. Andrew Ward, my dear Watson!"

"You're not trying to be funny, are you?" the lawyer demanded, with an anger that was not at all feigned. "And Nan was grateful even for your anger."

"Not any funnier than old Mrs. Ward was, when she committed suicide and made it look like murder—"

"Nan began to defend herself spiritedly.

"Suicide? Well, I'll be—"

Morgan, whose attention she had undoubtedly captured, ran his fingers slowly through his thick silver-fox peit. "Darned!" Nan finished for him cheerfully. Listen, Mr. Morgan—it's as clear as day, once you get used to the idea. Looking for the criminal Siamese twins—motive and opportunity—we were up against a stonewall all the time. The only person, apparently, who had both was Lois Downs. I don't blame Brainerd for being so cocksure of convicting her. There was literally no one else, except the mysterious female who made fingerprints on two bottles of poison in the medicine cabinet in the bathroom, and on the medicine cabinet itself.

"But we couldn't find a soul who had seen any woman other than Lois Downs herself enter Mrs. Ward's room after 11:00 o'clock that night. Therefore, who had an opportunity to slip old Mrs. Ward a strychnine and bromide cocktail and leave tell-tale fingerprints behind her except old Mrs. Ward herself—always excepting Lois Downs?" Nan demanded.

"In the bathroom?" Morgan scoffed. "Aren't you forgetting that the old dame was paralyzed?" To leave fingerprints on the medicine cabinet she would have had to walk at least 20 feet from her bed to the bathroom—"

"Which is exactly what she did!" Nan contended excitedly. "Brainerd had her doctor on the stand just before she died—and he recited off a swell medical line in answer to the question Brainerd asked him, as to what ailed the old shrew before she was poisoned. It was paralysis all right, in the doctor's opinion, but a sort of psychological paralysis, if you know what I mean. She couldn't walk because she didn't think she could. You can call Dr. Holtzmann back to the stand and make him admit that if she had tried hard enough and suddenly believed that she could walk, she could have walked, all right. And I'll bet you can make him admit that he'd told her so. Then when she wanted to walk, so that she could reach poison with which to commit suicide, she remembered what he said, and—walked! Are you with me?" she challenged, her brown eyes very bright.

"Limping along slightly in the rear," Morgan grinned faintly.

"Let me reconstruct the crime as I believe it happened," Nan urged. "And crime is right! That old fellow might be brought back to life, just so she could be hanged! She married a gay young fellow of 26 when she was 49. Two years later she knows that he's going to kick over the traces; he left her, you know, and she brought him back by playing paralyzed."

"She wanted him around, no matter how she held him, and she figured he'd stick if he thought she might die any time. Then after three years of pretending invalidism, she has the bad luck to draw a pretty nurse that Andrew Ward goes crazy about. He's pretty careful at first, of course, but one day the old lady sees him making love to the girl, and she has an awful row with him about it. He admits that he's in love with the girl, and the old woman won't believe him when he tells her that the girl can't see him at all. Mrs. Ward goes off her head—"

"Hold on!" Morgan commanded. "Isn't the old dame's motive for suicide pretty weak? Why not simply fire the nurse and—"

"And see her husband walk out of the house the same day?" Nan scoffed. "Don't you see? Mrs. Ward honestly thought that the nurse and Andrew were in love with each other, that no matter if she fired the nurse—Andy would simply walk until his paralyzed old wife kicked the bucket to marry Lois? Imagine how Mrs. Ward felt—old, just as much condemned to invalidism as if she were really paralyzed, because she would be proud to admit that she'd been shaming; jealous to the point of murdering Lois Downs. She didn't have a lot to live for, did she? Maybe I'll end up by being sorry for the old lady yet!"

"I think I can understand her motive for committing suicide," Morgan said slowly and with such significance that Nan's heart thudded with fear. Then he heard, as if obliquely giving her reassurance: "I suppose I questioned your theory because it has always been hard for me to excuse the weakness of suicide—the easiest way out of trouble."

Nan carefully kept exultation out of her voice. "Me, too," she agreed. "But there's nothing to show that Mrs. Ward was a nice old woman, and I believe she did commit suicide, with the deliberate intention of making it look as if Lois Downs had murdered her."

"Lois sleeps in the adjoining bedroom, with her door closed. The old lady has never kept her night nurse in the room with her. It's my opinion that Mrs. Ward spoke a good many chances to walk, but however that may be, her determination lent her energy."

"She gets up about one o'clock, long after Lois has gone to bed and probably to sleep, creeps into the bathroom, opens the medicine cabinet, leaving a nice set of fingerprints, thank heaven; hesitates between bichloride of mercury and the strychnine which is given her in very small doses as a heart stimulant; decides against the bichloride of mercury after touching the bottle; takes a big quantity of strychnine, also a bromide tablet that she could have to make her sleep, merely by asking the nurse for it, and then, taking a glass, fills it with water, creeps back to her bed, dissolves the bromide tablet in the water and drains it along with the strychnine, to make it look as if the nurse had given her the whole dose."

"And remembers just in time that the nurse's fingerprints probably are not on the clean glass left in the bathroom by the maid, and wipes it so that there will be no fingerprints at all on it." Morgan contributed, nodding slowly. "She probably figured also that that would be put one more black mark against the nurse—that it would look like a clumsy attempt on the nurse's part to destroy evidence. Well, my dear Holmes," he smiled almost naturally at Nan. "I'm going to risk making a fool of myself by asking the court in the morning for permission to exhumate the body and take the old lady's fingerprints. Your beautiful theory stands or falls on what we'll find out then."

"But you—do you think my hunch was a good one?" Nan insisted, as he rose and knocked the ashes from his pipe into her empty metal wastepaper basket.

"Nan," John Curtis Morgan said huskily, laying his hands on her shoulders. "You had two good hunches tonight, my dear. I—can't thank you. But I think you know what you've done for me tonight. . . . Good night, junior partner. See you in the morning."

She knew he meant those last words as a solemn promise to herself and as a challenge to his own courage.

"I'll be here," Nan answered steadily, but smiling through her teeth.

When he was gone, she gazed at herself: "So this is how I resign because I'm in love with a married man. But—he's not really married any more!"

Hints On How To Keep Well by World Famed Authority

YOUR BODY NEEDS ITS IRON—BUT IT DOESN'T NEED VERY MUCH.

By DR. MORRIS FISHBELN, Editor Journal of the American Medical Association and of Hygeia, the Health

Another of the writers who has considered the nature of man points out that the body of a woman of average size contains nine gallons of water as compared with 10 for a man; oxygen sufficient to fill 800 nine-gallon barrels; enough carbon to make 200 graphite pencils; enough phosphorus to make 8,000 small boxes of matches; enough hydrogen to blow up a balloon capable of raising the whole body to the top of the Woolworth building; enough iron to make five tags; enough salt to fill six ordinary salt cellars; and four or five pounds of ammonia, equal to four quarts of ammonia. The iron, as has been previously mentioned, is among the least of the ingredients. A few years ago when the "eat-more raisins" campaign spread across the country, the chief claim in the advertising was the argument that the raisins would provide iron. In the body the iron is an important ingredient of the red blood cells, associated with the carrying of oxygen by the blood from the lungs throughout the body. If a person loses red blood cells he gets pale and anemic.

There is, however, nothing to be gained in anemia by taking vast quantities of iron, since the body can accommodate only a certain small amount. The entire quantity of iron in the normal body of a full-grown person is about one-tenth of an ounce which makes one part to 25,000 by weight.

If the body is conducting its chemical affairs in an orderly manner only a trace of the iron is lost daily during the processes of digestion, excretion, sweating, and similar functions. It has been estimated that the total wastage and loss amounts to about one-fifth of a grain or about one seventy-fifth of a gram, which is about the amount of iron that could easily be shaken off a rusty nail.

Obviously there is ordinarily little reason to take extra quantities of iron into the body. The substance is found in considerable amounts in lean meat, in the yolk of egg, in spinach, in cabbage, in peas, beans, potatoes, milk and many fruits.

For many years the average American diet was white bread made without milk, meat, potatoes and coffee into which some skimmed milk might be poured. Such a diet was quite likely to be deficient in many important ingredients. The scientific students of nutrition have decided that most American diets must be watched as to the amount of iron in them.

However, one need not necessarily eat raisins or excessive amounts of any other food. There are so many factors concerned in a diet that all of them must be watched equally. In some people the amount of iron in the diet is not so plentiful and we welcome them both as a food and as a garnish.

Pineapple juice has a soothing effect on the membranes of the throat and often is used in throat troubles.

Its vitamin content is good, comparing favorably with oranges. Canning causes some loss of the C vitamin, so the fresh fruit should be used in season.

The rough skin of the pineapple is an excellent loosing place for dust and dirt. A thorough scrubbing with a brush and water is a wise precaution before paring off the rind.

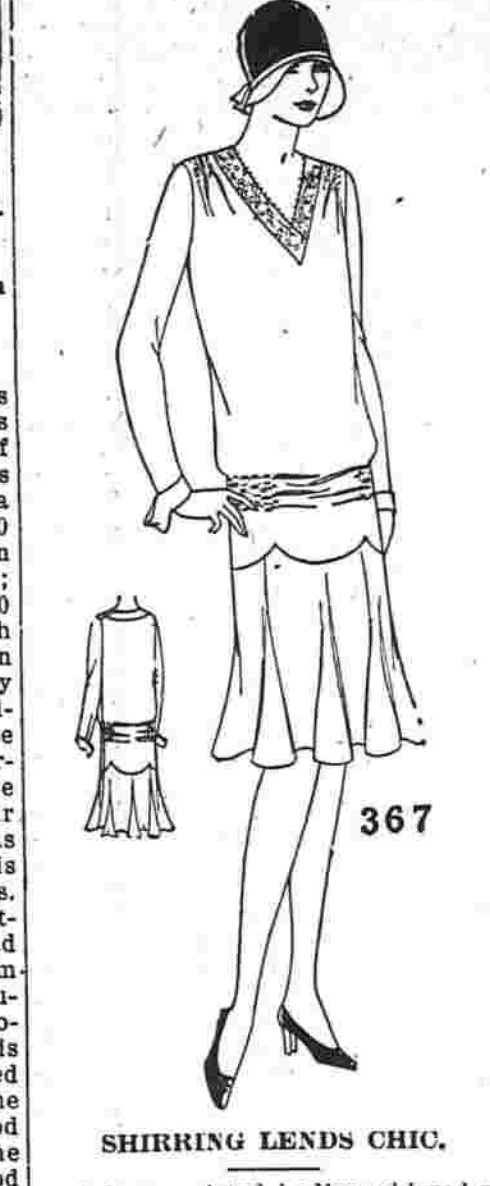

It's easier to pare the fruit if it's cut in inch slices first. The skin is then pared off and the eyes removed. These should be dug out with a sharp pointed knife. The skin and eyes often make the mouth sore, 2 cups whipping cream.

Pineapple mousse can be made in an electric refrigerator or in one of the crankless freezers.

Pineapple Mousse
One small pineapple, 1-2 cups sugar, 1 tablespoon granulated gelatin, 3 tablespoons cold water, few grains salt, 2 cups whipping cream.

Shred pineapple and cover with sugar. Let stand 30 minutes and heat to the boiling point. In the meantime soften gelatin in cold water for five minutes. Add to boiling pineapple and sugar and remove at once from the fire. Cool and let stand until mixture begins to thicken. Fold in cream whipped until firm with a few grains of salt. Turn into mold or trays and freeze. Frozen in shallow trays the mousse is attractive cut in squares and served on sponge cake or angel food cut the same size and shape.

YOUR CHILDREN

by Olive Roberts Barton
©1925 by NEA Service, Inc.

One of the interesting phenomena that occur during the fourth year, that is, after the third birthday, is the effort of the child to establish his relationship to things around him.

It is going to an enormous school to establish his relationship to things around him. It is simple enough. Take yourself for instance. You know about an airplane. You know the facts about it, what it looks like, how fast it will go, how far it can go without refueling. You may even know the principle of its engine, how it lifts itself off the ground and how it is sustained in an element that is lighter than itself.

But the minute you get into an airplane you establish a new set of impressions in your mind concerning it. It never can be an impersonal thing to you again. It means something to you and you to it, for there has been contact.

If you study flying and learn to operate an airplane yourself, not only are new impressions added, but the old ones are deepened.

And So With the Child

That is the way it is with a child.

It is one of the fundamental principals of psychology that we never learn anything new outright. Every new impression registered on our brains must be made through something we already know. This is called "apperception." Literally "to see through to."

Up to his third birthday a child is filling his brain with facts. He learns more every day about new things in this big world—animals, colors, sounds, flowers, trees, people, the sky, weather, traveling, houses, furniture, toys—

Then in his fourth year nature decides, just as your instructor of the airplane does, that the child knows enough to start taking hold himself—his first real lessons in living.

He Reasons Now

Literally, then, he steps into life and starts doing things on his own initiative. His reasoning starts to function and he begins to earnest to be a distinct and independent personality. He "establishes his relationship to life."

This establishment is a peculiar thing and it leads to all sorts of perplexing demonstrations on his part which, however, are only temporary. One of them is his struggle to distinguish between his "dream" world and real facts.

One day he may suddenly relate some wonderful thing he saw. Another time, he may tell us that he did something, or went some place, which he didn't at all—or anything like it.

Don't be aghast. He isn't going to wind up in a reformatory. He is just making one of the biggest struggles of his life, poor little chap, trying to untangle order things into which he has been thrust; trying to distinguish between the thing he sees today and what he saw last week. Did he see it on the next street, or was it at all, or was it just a picture in a book? Perhaps someone just told him about it!

He will sort out his ideas in time, but he must have time.

It is best to be patient, specialists tell us, and to emphasize fact, which is truth, without too much scolding.

The WOMAN'S DAY

Our national anthem has never been above criticism. Music students criticize bad metre matched to bad rhythm, and there has been considerable agitation for a long time for a national anthem "that people could really sing." But the Rev. George W. Hilton of St. Paul's Episcopal church, Huntington, Conn., has a different reason for proposing its banishment. He asked his congregation to eliminate the second verse at Memorial Day exercises. He objected to the "bombs bursting in air" as bad war propaganda.

Seriously, if we want no more war, the way to begin it to out everything bedecked with the gorgeous panoply of war that strikes kid's ears or eyes. The minister has the right idea.

RIGHT IDEA.

A few wage-earning wives are bringing their families up in the way they should go, and are no more expected to get dinner and wash dishes, too, than are their husbands. But not enough of them are putting this idea over. Too many women have six irons in the fire, and find nobody the least bit agitated about their keeping them there.

FOR MOTHERS.

Little 7-year-old Ruane Hows of Atlantic, Iowa, went out to pick violets for his mother on Mother's Day. He fell into a creek and was drowned.

It's seldom that a child gives his or her life for a parent. Parents do it every day—not accidentally, either, but often deliberately. The parental instinct is too fierce a thing. It needs leavening with selfishness. The offspring themselves would be better off.

WOMEN PUFFERS.

Women are not allowed to puff cigarettes on the billboards in Sioux Falls, N. D. The city council, meeting in solemn session, voted to oppose the erection of any cigarette billboards showing women smoking or looking as if they might be about to. Other towns are getting agitated about the cigarette makers' propaganda to women, too.

TOO LATE.

But it's a little late in the day. The cigarette people themselves never created the woman smoker. They lost millions of dollars by not exhorting her to smoke. It was the woman smoker who bombed the cigarette maker and demanded attention by telling him how many hundreds of thousands of dollars a year she was spending for smokes. The damage was done long before the billboards went up.

NO BEAUTY CONTESTS.

Beauty contests have been prohibited in Italy and prefects have been ordered to especially watch bathing beach resorts for any attempt to put on bathing beauty contests. The order says that beauty contests "result in grave inconvenience to public morality."

To which one opines that if the "public morality" is so fragile a thing, something more serious is needed to bolster it up than the abolition of beauty contests.

THEY'LL LET HER.

Mrs. Rose Simon, 17, has been married two years, has a baby, takes care of an apartment, cooks for five people, and attends college.

Which is just a mild sample of what the modern young woman is letting herself in for, only to learn that the more she will, the more she may. If Mrs. Simon took a wage-earning job in addition she'd probably discover that nobody objected very much, and

Peanut Pushing Perilous Pastime

This looks like a soft snap, pushing a peanut a mile a day for 22 days up Pike's Peak, but Bill Williams, who is doing just that, says it's the most perilous kind of a pastime. Barring the dangers of a sudden ambush of circus elephants or attacks from hungry baseball fans, Bill says it's the ladies who disturb his game most. Bill, fortified with gloves, knee pads, and with a prong on his nose with which he gently prods the goober on its lagging way, said he almost lost his peanut the other day when a bevy of sun-kissed California girls came to watch him at his stunt. He looked up and the fractious peanut started back downhill, to be recaptured only after a struggle. Bill, however, perseveres, and hopes to reach the top on scheduled time if he can keep the squirrels away.

The Nut Cracker CORBIN RED SOX PLAY HERE NEXT

Meet Massey's Manchester Club at Mt. Nebo Sunday Afternoon at 3:15.

Sir Thomas Lipton is coming again in 1930 to try to win that America yachting cup. Thirty years is a long time to spend even for a cup.

That reminds O'Goofy of the week-end he visited a dry town in Kansas (actually there was one once). He knows how Sir Thomas feels after 30 years trying to win a cup.

That certainly hasn't proved to be the cup that cheers Sir Thomas. It has cost Sir Thomas more than a million pounds sterling to compete for the trophy. Those yachts are almost as expensive as a horse.

Anyhow, Sir Thomas' Shamrocks have always been swell bets to place.

Some sports writers suggest that Glenn Wright might learn to throw left-handed and thus remain in baseball. Why doesn't he handle the ball like the rest of the Brooklyn players—with his feet?

Iowa's expulsion from the Big Ten was bound to come. The suspicion that the school was subsidizing athletes was aroused last year when the team began shocking everybody by winning games.

The Big Ten should follow the example it has set in this instance and expel the others who have subsidized athletes. That would finally give you the spectacle of a big nothing.

The situation would result in an oversupply of ice men, blacksmiths and farm labor, relieving Congress of the job of finding some succor for the stricken agriculturists.

EILEEN BENNETT NOT TO INVADE AMERICA

London, June 7.—Miss Eileen Bennett, famous English fennist "star" will not be seen on the American courts this year.

The omission of being left alone for a considerable time is the reason for her refusing to be included in the team that is visiting America in August, for the Wightman Cup matches.

The omission of such a famous player is regarded as a serious blow to England, and their chance of retaining the coveted "Wightman Cup" has greatly deteriorated.

In an interview her father declared:

"I would like her to go, but I do not want to lose her company for such a long period as four months. Furthermore, it would mean her mother going with her, and that would disturb the habits of our lives. Therefore, she cannot go."

Last year during the Wightman Cup tournament at Wimbledon, Miss Bennett beat Mrs. Mallory in the singles, and Mrs. Watson beat Miss Eileen Willis and Miss Penelope Anderson in the doubles match that gave England the Cup.

Last Night Fights

At New York—Al Singer, New York, scored technical knockout over Leo (Kid) Roy, Canadian featherweight champion, (1).

At Paterson, N. J.—Jack Renault, Canadian heavyweight, drew with Mike Sankovitch, of Passaic, N. J., (10).

QUITS COACHING TO PLAY.

Gano Bailey, baseball coach at Rice Institute this year, has returned to active play. He is a veteran Texas Leaguer and is playing with Houston now.

Soap Makers Even Score For Previous Walloping

Godek Allows But Three Hits; Losers Held Scoreless Until Last Inning; Varrick, Coleman Hit Hard.

Jack Godek was in rare form last night much to the chagrin of Mayor Sam Prentice's Colts from Manchester Green and as a result the Bon Ami was able to square accounts for a previous 10 to 2 pasting by wallopping the Green 11 to 3.

The game was played at Woodbridge Field at the Green.

Godek had plenty of the old zip on the ball last night and bore down all the way allowing the Green the stingy total of three hits, one in the first inning and two in the last. The soap makers nicked Eddie Boyce for seven, many of which at the most opportune moments. Eddie was wild as a March hare last night too.

There was no scoring the first three innings but the Bon Ami broke loose with a four-run shower in the fourth and a six run deluge in the seventh. Errors by Rob and Forget coupled with Kelly's pass and Coleman's single did the bulk of the damage in the fourth while five hits applied the finishing touches in the last.

Two pinch-hitters, Bobby Boyce and Joe Prentice, and Billy Forget scored the runs for the Green in its futile last inning stand. Ty Holland got a hit that helped bring them in. The fielding of Bill Brannard was a feature. He speared two line drives in the first inning, going right after the second which he speared one hand.

DID YOU KNOW THAT—
The Babe visited all the victims of the recent stampede in the Yankee Stadium. . . . And his trips to the hospitals probably will save der Colonel Chake Ruppert some law suits. . . . And Babe may tell him about it when the new contract is to be signed next winter. . . . Socks Seibold, the Boston pitcher, asked the boss for a raise. . . . And Judge Fuchs, the boss, said he was in contempt of court. . . . And told him to sit on the bench until he was willing to do his best for what he was getting. . . . And Seibold quit the team. . . . Carl Hubbell, the Jim pitcher who threw the no-hit game, may admit that it was a jinx to him. . . . Such as it has been to many other pitchers. . . . Willie Garner, the jock, rode three blistering hot favorites recently at Belmont park and the three lost. . . . And then he was set down and severely reprimanded by the stewards for doing rough riding on his fourth mount. . . . Bing Miller, of the A's, has asped Eddie Collins' stuff. . . . He chews a pack of gum before the game. . . . And then sticks the wad on the button of his cap. . . . And the Philadelphia players still call the Bing "Blackie Daw."

Slow-consuming OIL for today's fast-stepping motors

IN THIS day of marvelously improved driving control, automobiles travel safely with far greater speed than formerly. No ordinary motor oil can begin to withstand the demands of modern high-speed motors and fast-driven cars.

If you value that fine piece of mechanism under the hood of your car, don't gamble on the oil you put into it. From behind sixty years of lubrication experience, The Atlantic Refining Company sees the importance of that warning more clearly, perhaps, than you do.

By intensive research laboratory work on internal combustion engines of all types and makes... by innumerable road tests of the most racking sort... Atlantic lubrication specialists have developed in ATLANTIC Paraffine Base MOTOR OIL the precise qualities automobile operation requires today.

VACANCY AT NAVAL ACADEMY NEXT JUNE

U. S. Senator Walcott to Make Appointment for Entrance in 1930—To Hold Examinations.

United States Senator Frederic C. Walcott has been notified by the Navy Department that he will have an appointment of a midshipman to make to the Naval Academy in June, 1930, to succeed Ray E. Malpass of Milford, Connecticut, who graduates from the Academy at that time.

Senator Walcott has requested the United States Civil Service Commission to hold competitive examinations on Saturday, October 26, 1929, in the United States Post Office building at 9:00 a. m. in New Haven, Bridgeport, Hartford, Waterbury, Middletown, New London, Danbury and Stamford. Any young man desiring to take this examination should communicate with the Senator, so that he can add their names to the list of those who have already applied.

It would be advisable for all candidates, who anticipate taking this examination to be physically examined as the Navy Department is very strict in this requirement. All candidates are required to be citizens of the United States, and actual residents of Connecticut, and must be not less than 16 years of age nor more than 29 years of age on April 1 of the calendar year in which they enter the Naval Academy.

GETS FIFTEEN YEARS FOR POISONING GIRL

Salem, N. J., June 7.—Harry D. Bloemer, 19-year-old son of a rich farmer, today begins serving a 15-year prison sentence for causing the death of Alice Whitesell, a tragedy that parallels in almost every detail the murder in Boston in 1911 of Avis Linell by the Rev. Clarence D. T. Richardson. Bloemer was soon to marry another girl; so was Rev. Richardson.

Young Bloemer was sentenced by Judge Henry B. Ware after the youth had been convicted of giving the girl a quantity of strychnine when he learned that she was about to become a mother. Fifteen character witnesses testified vainly in the boy's behalf.

The boy, described as a high school shiek, testified that he had given Miss Whitesell the strychnine without intending to cause her death. He said he had hoped the poison would help the girl out of her trouble.

Rev. Richardson was electrocuted for the murder of the Linell girl in 1912, about a year after the slaying.

"THRU DIFFERENT EYES."

Cummins' Orchestra. "Through Different Eyes," William Fox's synchronized version of a baffling stage play that thrilled America for years, has at last been brought to the screen as a 100 per cent all-dialogue Movietone picture and opens a two-day engagement at the State beginning today.

Featured in the leading characterizations in this colorful and dynamic drama are Mary Duncan, Warner Baxter and Edmund Lowe.

with Earle Foxe, Florence Lake and Sylvia Sydney in support.

"Through Different Eyes" gets its title from the fact that it has to do with the solving of a mysterious murder. At the trial many persons are called upon to testify and it is their various stories that give the picture a most interesting plot.

Bernie Cummins and his Hotel Biltmore dance orchestra, a popular Broadway Jazz band, and Flo Lewis, well-known musical comedy star are featured in two separate Vitaphone vaudeville presentations. The current chapter of "The Mystery Rider" and the State News Events will complete the program.

The father, who came here with his son William, to aid in the search for the teacher who disappeared Monday night, was positive in his declaration that the body was that of his daughter.

The body reposed in a local undertaking establishment. Medical Examiner Victor A. Reed said that an autopsy would be performed later.

GIRL MURDERED

Detroit, Mich., June 7.—Gagged and bound and with her battered head wrapped in a towel, Patricia Fe Klair, pretty 22-year-old cigar counter clerk, was found dead early today on an iron crating in an alley beside the hotel where she worked. Police believe the girl was murdered as she left the hotel. Blood stains near the scene indicated that her dead body had been dragged some distance. Two men were seen moving away from the body by Arthur Rowland, a guest in the hotel. Police investigation revealed today Miss Fe Klair had been annoyed recently by the attentions of several guests of the hotel.

We may not know it, but we're being checked up all the time—the neighbors are busy when we least suspect it.

ONE TELEPHONE NUMBER IS OFF CHARLIE'S LIST

Mysterious Adv. Simply Means That You Can't Get Sweet's Cab by Calling So-and-So.

An advertisement in this newspaper beginning "Please Don't Call 2490 for C. A. Sweet" may be a bit mystifying to some folks, but not to those whose habitat is Depot Square. Mr. Sweet, veteran taxi man, has been reachable through several telephone numbers, one of which was the above, which station is in a Depot Square lunch room. When the recently established City Taxi Company sent one of its cabs over north to make its headquarters it established its communications through this very telephone station. It would be in error to say that Taximan Sweet welcomed this intrusion, but No. 2490 was on the cards he had always distributed and so he continued to drop in to the lunch room at intervals to see if anybody wanted him. He was there the other day and so was the driver of the City Taxi. The City taxi driver answered the call. It was for a taxi but he didn't confide any particulars to Brother Sweet—just went out and copped that job. Sweet trailed and found that the patron was one of his customers. He doesn't think much of that kind of competition, he says—hence the ad.

The class meeting tonight at the Nazarene church will be omitted because of the meeting at the Hartford Nazarene church which many will want to attend.

GANGSTER MURDERED

Toledo, Ohio, June 7.—While his eleven-year-old daughter looked on, Earl S. ("Ike") Bracker, 38, alleged Toledo liquor baron, was "put on the spot," and shot and killed today in the driveway to his fashionable residence by two men, who, police say, were rival gangsters.

ANNUAL TREK ABROAD BY MANCHESTER FOLKS

Summer Season Sends Groups of Local People Back to Native Lands for Visit.

This is the time of year when many Manchester people visit Ireland or other native lands. Already several have gone abroad. Three more set sail from New York City tomorrow. The majority go back to their native land to visit relatives and friends from whom, in many instances, they have been separated for a great many years. They long for one more glimpse of the "old sod" again.

Leaving tomorrow on the Cameronia will be Mr. and Mrs. Francis McCahey of Laurel place, and Miss Sarah Todd of Hartford road. The same number went a week ago. On next week Saturday Stephen D. Berardinelli will go to Italy on the S. S. Biancamano, on the Lloyd Sabauda line. The majority of the Manchester people who go abroad purchase their tickets through the Robert J. Smith agency. Mr. Smith said today that the number of local people going to Ireland this year is smaller than usual and hasn't totaled over a dozen.

WANTED IN CONNECTICUT

Boston, June 7.—Wanted in Connecticut, Frank J. Ferris, alias Joseph Kolodny, of Hartford, Conn., today was ordered returned to that state by Supreme Court Judge William C. Wait. Detective Sergeant John K. Sutherland was assigned to escort Ferris to Hartford. According to the warrant, Ferris was charged with obtaining a sum of money from Mrs. Mae Nolan, of Hartford, Conn. on November 27, 1925.

JUSTICE SENTENCED

Boston, June 7.—Joseph Hannon, former Associate Justice of the Waltham District Court, who had pleaded guilty to a charge of the larceny of $25,000 from an estate of which he was administrator, today was sentenced to two years in the House of Correction by Judge Percy Hall, in Suffolk county Superior Court.

PARIS IS SHOCKED AT COUNT'S ARREST

Member of Old French Family Charged With Being in Big Liquor Ring.

Paris, June 7.—A sensation was caused in aristocratic French circles today by news from New York that Count Maxence Thomas Marie Joseph Michael de Polignac, member of an old and honorable French family, had been arrested by United States Federal agents in connection with an alleged liquor ring.

"It is outrageous that my cousin's name should be linked with bootleggers," declared Marquis de Polignac in a statement to International News Service.

"My cousin was on a private visit to America, although he might have made some sales of champagne in Canada before going to New York.

News of the count's arrest came as a thunder clap and friends of this ancient and respected family used such expressions as "unbelievable," "impossible" and "dumbfounding," in discussing it.

Captain During War

The count, or comte, as the French designate the title, served as a captain in the World War.

An officer of the French Wine Growers' Syndicate, when told that the comte was being held in $25,000 bail, was first amazed then indignant.

"Just another example of how difficult America makes it for us to pay the war debt," he exclaimed.

"Here we have our cellars bursting with stored-up bottles of champagne—Mon Dieu! Why not let us help pay off our indebtedness with it?"

"But, no, champagne is just a national commodity that you in America do not need."

There is considerable want and poverty in the champagne grape growing region and experts claim American prohibition is partly responsible.

TABLETS FOR YALE MEN WHO DIED IN ALL WARS

New Haven, June 7.—Announcement was made here today that the corporation of Yale University has instructed Thomas Hastings, architect, to prepare sketches for two tablets to be placed in Memorial Hall, on either side the Civil War Memorial, to bear the names of Yale men who died in the Revolutionary War, War of 1812, Mexican War, Spanish-American War and Philippine Insurrection.

Yale men who fell in the wars are listed as follows:

Revolution, 25, including Nathan Hale and Brig-Gen. David Wooster; War of 1812, one, Captain John Bates Murdock; Mexican War, 2, Major Lyman Foot, M.D., and Major Frederick Davis Mills; and Spanish-American War and Philippine Insurrection, 16.

The tablets will complete the roster of Yale men who have died in all the wars of the country, being added to the memorials of the Civil War victims already in place.

SENSE and NONSENSE

WHAT THIS COUNTRY NEEDS. —More chicken houses and fewer road houses. —More cool heads and warm hearts. —More babies and fewer poodles. —Less lawmakers, less law breakers. —Fewer people who want their country to do something for them.

What's Wrong With This Picture? "Waiter, why is it that there is a trouser button in my soup?" "I do not know, sir. We employ only female help."

Fire When Ready. Chief Petty Officer: "The enemy are as thick as peas. What shall we do?" Officer of the Deck: "Shell them, you idiot; shell them!"

Of course it is agreed that only a few more years and airplanes for everybody will be as common as motor cars are now, and we often wonder if there will be as much uncertainty about the ownership of parachutes as there is about umbrellas.

The farmer's demand, in brief: "Manufacturers rob the consumer; we want a law that will enable us to do it too."

Housewife—Don't bring me any more of that horrid milk. It's positively blue! Milkman—It ain't my fault, lady. It's these long, dull evenings as makes the cows depressed.

Visitor: "And how old are you, Bobbie?" Bobbie: "I'm just at the awkward age."

Visitor: "Really? And what do you call the awkward age?" Bobbie (bitterly): "I'm too old to cry and too young to swear."

Most men find it the hardest thing in the world to come to an enemy and say: "Let's let bygones be bygones." But when he does it shows a big heart and a fine spirit.

A little girl, attending an Episcopal church for the first time, was amazed to see all kneel suddenly. She asked her mother what they were going to do. Her mother replied, "hush, they're going to say their prayers."

"What, with their clothes on?" New times call for new methods. What once got by may not now get buyers.

LETTER GOLF

LATE GOLF NEWS

Here's some LATE NEWS for letter golf fans. Par is five and one solution is on another page:

Grid for Letter Golf puzzle with letters L, A, T, E, N, E, W, S.

THE RULES

1—The idea of Letter Golf is to change one word to another and do it in par, a given number of strokes. Thus to change COW to HEN, in three strokes, COW, HOW, HEW, HEN.

2—You change only one letter at a time.

3—You must have a complete word of common usage, for each jump. Slang words and abbreviations don't count.

4—The order of letters cannot be changed. One solution is printed on another page.

If you're determined to be good-natured you must expect to be imposed upon.

THE TINYMIES

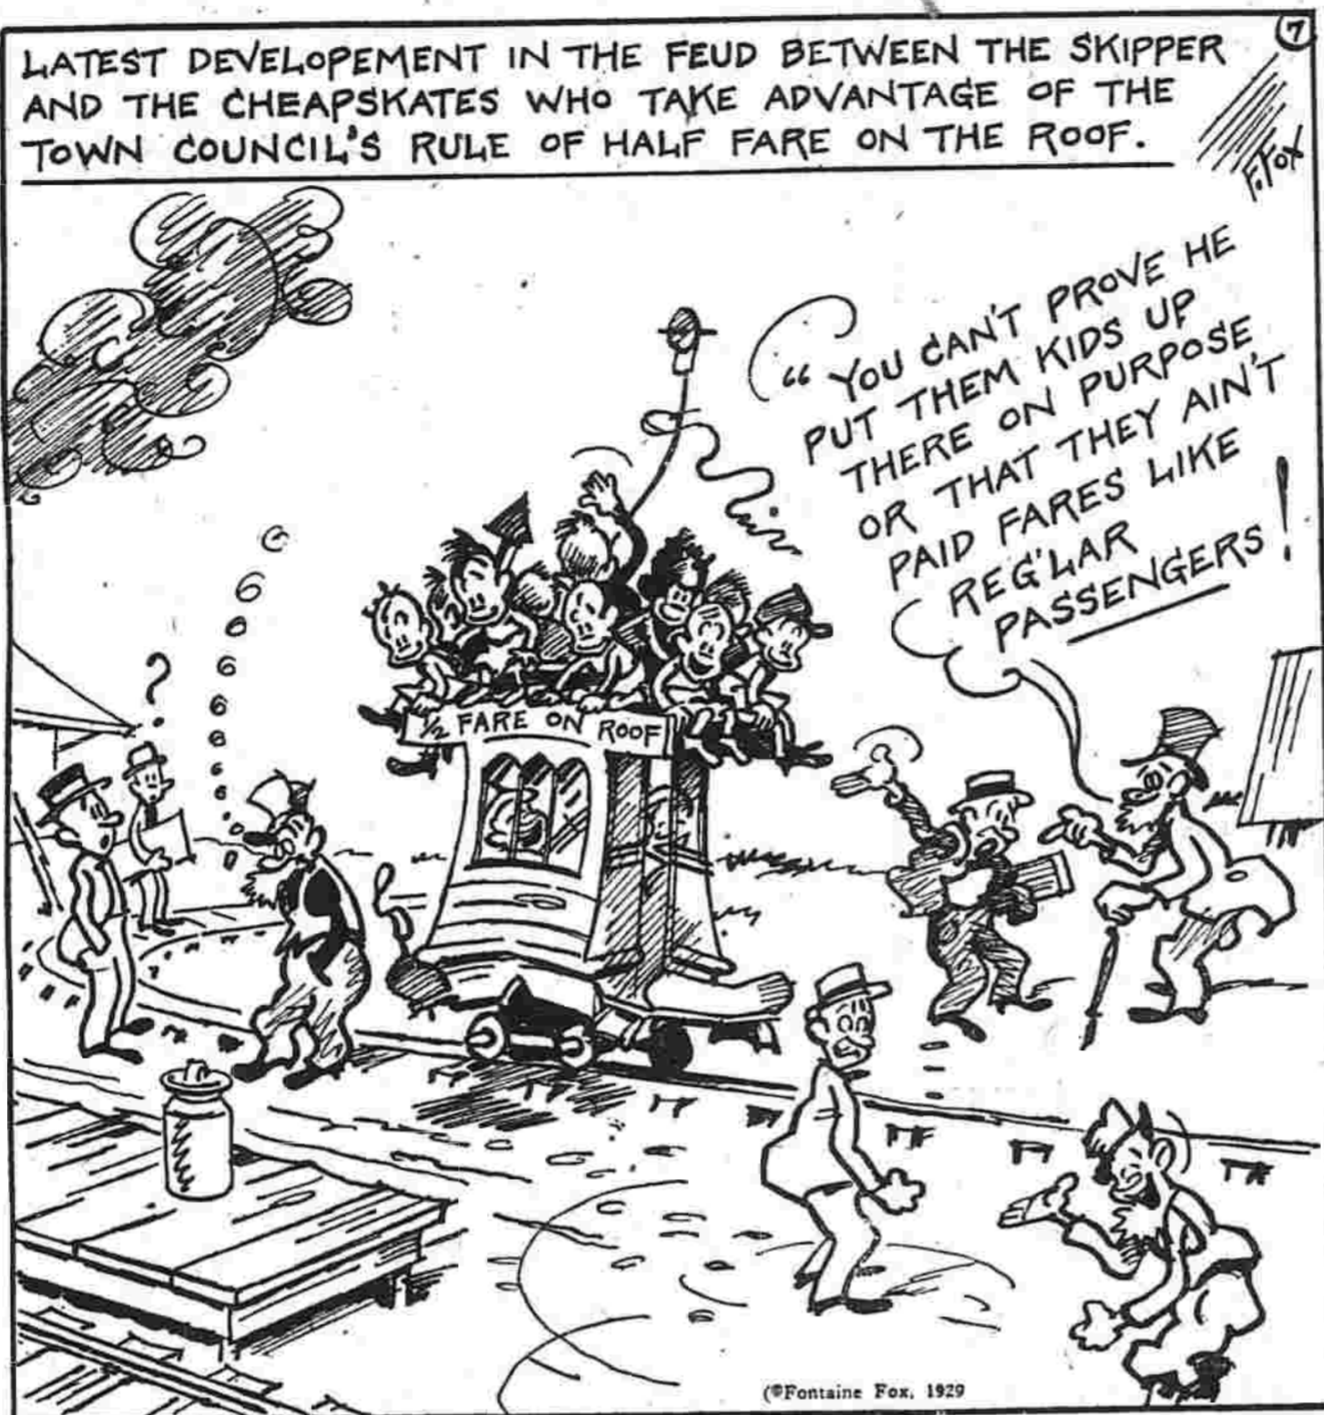

(READ THE STORY, THEN COLOR THE PICTURE) The scarecrow looked a sad, sad sight 'cause he was in an awful plight. He couldn't stand on his own feet and, as he sprawled around, he said, "Oh, what am I to do? I fear I cannot play with you. It isn't any fun at all, just loafing on the ground."
