by William F. Ellis. For Every Age, Creed and Nationality.

ON HOT PLAINS OF BABYLONIA CAPTIVE PREACHER HEARD CALL

The International Sunday School Lesson for July 7 is "The Story of Ezekiel"—Ezekiel, 2:1-7; 3:4-11; 17-21; 24:18-18.

Two of Kipling's lesser known volumes, resigned especially for children, "Puck of Pook's Hill" and "Rewards and Fairies," are among his best work. Their theme is the continuity of history in Old England, as shown by a succession of chapters, by the way, that we find the famous poem, "If," which is written as a description of George Washington, and as the interpretation of his character, and as the interpretation of a collection of stories, which is the linking of personalities and places across the ages, is a rather fascinating one, and it may be worked out in many fields. Our new series of Lessons on Ezekiel affords a case in point.

Links with Ezekiel reach backward and forward. He was probably a pupil of Jeremiah, but was himself carried into captivity before the fall of Jerusalem. His work was done while he lived with his fellow exiles down on the hot plains of Babylonia, surrounded by triumphant idolatry. Conditions could hardly have been more difficult.

Yet herein again his lot linked with the past, for this was the homeland of Abraham. Amidst similar conditions, the Father of the Faithful, too, had heard the voice of Jehovah, the true God. That religion is not a matter of environment is a lesson to be driven home to every young person. Hardy souls thrive in hard circumstances; an easy lot is likely to produce a flabby spirit. Heroic qualities are developed by adversity; many of the greatest saints have grown amidst persecution. Ezekiel became a famous prophet in surroundings that debilitated most of his coreligionists. Only such as Daniel, whose lot was akin to Ezekiel's, in the

"Summertime at Home"

When summertime rolls round don't you always feel there's something lacking in your home? It seems so dull and dreary... what a contrast to the cheerful atmosphere outside. In this first of a series we're going to tell you how the addition of just a few new pieces of furniture can change that entire feeling to one of joy and contentment, adding a wealth of pleasure to "Summertime at Home."

Colonial Furniture is Splendid Summer Company

ANYONE who has ever been on friendly terms with Colonial furniture will recommend it as splendid summer company. It has a lightness of design that is pleasing to many the year round, and pleasing to all during the warm months. And it most assuredly has comfort! Think seriously, then, of Colonial furniture to brighten up your home for the summer months and, too, you will do well to inspect our large collection, and especially, the very moderately priced pieces listed here.

LIFE FROM ABOVE

BY GEORGE HENRY DOLE

International Sunday School Lesson Text, July 7.

As I live, saith the Lord God, I have no pleasure in the death of the wicked; but that the wicked turn from his way and live.—Ezek. 33:11.

With rare certainty and clear-glimpse in history, a clear view is given to a man, and he finds later that that clear view has determined movements of enormous consequences... then I hold that that clear view, which I think I had at the Marne, on the Year, and on the 26th of March, 1918, comes from a providential force in the hands of which one is an instrument that the victorious decision descends from on high, from a will that is superior and Divine.

No philosopher could state the truth more clearly than hereina expressed. The will to conquer and the moral force sweep all before them, but the will and the moral force must be from the power and will of the Lord. The life, in which is the will to victory, must come from the Divine. Thus may come constant victory in lesser things. It comes from the Lord into the mind as the will of man opens to receive it. In our trials and temptations life will come into us giving light and victory, if we are steadfast in faith during the dark hours. The moral force from above is life from the Divine. It can show the way, and has power to sweep away all that would destroy our peace.

big city dweller to know anything about; yet contributors of the New York World are becoming partisan on the question of whether the whippoorwill is a nice bird and how and when he tunes up and tunes out.

One defender of the whippoorwill declares that the bird's notes are soothing and beautiful, also that it is slander to accuse him of screeching all night, as some other contributor has done, because the whippoorwill "always quits early in the night." Still another letter writer jeers and declares that this commentator is all wet—that the whippoorwill makes a horrid noise and invariably keeps it up till daybreak.

Which goes to show how stiff-necked may be opinion based on partial fact. We whose lives have not been spent in too great part in a brick and asphalt environment know very well that whether the whippoorwill's call be alluring and romantic or raucous and nerve-tearing depends almost entirely on how far away the bird is. If perchance you seek slumber in a farmhouse across the road from which is a little burying ground with so much as one flat stone in it, the chances are that a "whip" will take up his perch on that stone as the deeper shadows fall and w hale away without stopping for breath, hours on end, producing a mixture of insomnia and profanity that will fairly poison the atmosphere of your room. But if the graveyard is half a mile away—or better still, a mile—the "whip's" notes become liquid and sleep inducing—a pleasing obligation to the insect chorus of the night.

As for the hours of his endurance, they vary greatly. Sometimes the "whip" will shout only for an hour or so. Sometimes he will keep up his machine-like repetitions through all the watches of the night. Sometimes he will not tune in at all till almost daybreak—though it must be admitted that this is not his usual practice. On the whole, however, the merits or demerits of the whippoorwill depend almost altogether on the relative position of performer and audience.

For ourselves, we have on tap a whole barrel of sentiment for the "whip" who sings to us from the distance of a mile—and a shotgun full of number six for the one who whoops under our window.

A FURTHER REASON

The malicious bomb attack on the home of Prosecuting Attorney Charles R. Hathaway is exactly in line with circumstances which had more to do than anything else with the banning of explosive fireworks in most of the great cities in this country.

It was found that the explosive Fourth of July celebration was a delight to the soul of criminals of the more sinister kind—gunmen with paid killing to attend to, safe blowers, rival gangsters with a war to stage. It enabled such people to do any amount of shooting and blasting without attracting even casual attention. So many major crimes were committed under cover of the explosion of firecrackers and blank cartridges that the police became the strongest allies of those who sought for a quieter Fourth solely because they objected to the noise.

Here in Manchester we have not, heretofore, had any such serious reason for putting a ban on Fourth of July detonations; the racket has been objected to, but on less grave grounds. Now, however, the possibilities of the future become impressive. This town is growing. It is becoming more intimately in contact with the average bad as well as the average good of the outside world. It will be strange indeed if we continue much longer to enjoy our past and even present freedom from anything like a criminal class. Eventually, no doubt, the same reasons that have animated the police of the big cities in getting Fourth of July explosions prohibited will begin to operate to some extent here. We would do much better to proceed right now to put an end to this needless and injurious custom of promiscuous shooting than to delay such action any longer. It is in the interest of the everlasting war against crime just as much as it is in the interest of sanity and the comfort of the public that the powderless Fourth be instituted here.

MEANEST RACKETEERS

Ordinarily, bootlegging and kindred law violations do not strike the average citizen as among the extremely contemptible crimes. Cheeky they may be, and sometimes desperate—far from admirable proceedings, but still and all not to be compared to looting, poor boxes, robbing graves or poisoning the neighbor's pets. However, the racketeers who stole the eight thousand cases of whiskey from a government warehouse in Chicago and substituted water and impure spirits for it are not contenders for the title of Meanest Criminal. For this was medicinal whiskey, the entire valid supply for the filling of physician's prescriptions of a large part of the Middle West.

It is an unlovely thing to sell synthetic hooch even to an open-eyed buyer. It is worse to sell it to the bibber under the pretence that it is "pre-war stuff." But such transactions are merely amiable follies compared with the deliberate destruction of the always scanty supply of bona fide prescription liquor on the purity of which may depend innocent lives.

It does not appear, from the closely guarded news concerning the Chicago theft, whether that crime was discovered promptly or whether for some time druggists have been supplied with the lacerated stuff and in turn have innocently supplied it to the sick.

Whoever stole the liquor manifestly intended that the ultimate consumer should get the abominations they substituted for it. Nothing in the Jones law is half severe enough for these wretched rascals.

Health and Diet Advice

By DR. FRANK MCCOY

EAT BREAKFAST

There are many disciples of the no-breakfast plans as advocated by Dr. Dewey over a quarter of a century ago. This plan has proven a good one for many people, chiefly those whose evening meal has not been selected with the greatest care.

One who is not hungry in the morning is always bilious and toxic from indiscretions in eating at other times the day before. If there is any time in the day when one should be naturally hungry, it is after the 12-hour fast from the evening meal to breakfast time.

After a refreshing sleep the body is possessed of more energy than at other times, and even a meal of inharmonious conglomeration can be digested with greater ease than if eaten during the working day, or at the end of an exhausting day, or of hard mental or physical work. If one is careful to select his breakfast with consideration of proper food values and combinations, this meal can be made the most valuable one of the day, as much so to be gained by starting each day prudently.

Upon rising it is a good plan to take a few calisthenic exercises before an open window. These exercises should be used mostly to stretch the muscles and ligaments, and stretching exercises are preferable to the ones requiring great muscular exertion. Not over ten minutes should be devoted to these stretching and bending exercises, and a cold shower bath afterwards will send the blood bounding to the inside of the body and back again to make the skin glow with new life.

Washington, July 6—Anyone who keeps an eye on the news out of Washington must be realizing that we are living in an age of propaganda and that there is worse and more of it from week to week.

President Herbert Hoover, however, seems to be one who doesn't altogether approve of it—at least as far as the federal government is concerned.

Within the last few days he has knocked out two very extensive propaganda plans. One of them he killed completely upon the other he simply frowned sternly, but a presidential frown can be a withering blight, and this second plan is weak and pallid right now.

The government, of course, has been propagandizing for some time in one way or another, with the War and Navy Departments laying down the heaviest bargains; but the recent announcement that the Prohibition Bureau was going to spread propaganda in favor of prohibition in the public schools goes beyond them all.

A Widespread Program

Mr. Hoover lost very little time in coming down on this scheme with both hands. He put the claims on it so effectively that even the pamphlets that were drawn up to aid in the good work are not to see the light of day. But, even though dead, the plan is worth examining, just as an instance of the extent of the propaganda machinery that could, under certain conditions, be put to work by Uncle Sam.

The Prohibition Bureau's educational campaign in the schools was by no means to have been limited to preaching the virtue of law observance and law enforcement. The bureau went so far as to outline methods by which to inject the propaganda into classes in arithmetic, English, history, drawing, and all of this propaganda was designed to prove that prohibition was correct in theory and successful in operation.

Good or bad, this was certainly a drastic step for the government. Nothing like it had ever been proposed before. The navy and war departments have persistently tried to convince the public what fine things armies, navies, and armies are, but attempting to prove to school children the wisdom of one specific law is, for the federal government, something new.

Had No Authority

There is, of course, no federal law under which the federal government could have made courses in prohibition compulsory. School children in most places are taught the desirability of law observance, and some states provide for teaching them the evils of alcohol; but no state law to date has provided

Question—Mrs. X. Y. Z. writes: "I am very fond of lemons, eaten with salt. Is this harmful?"

Answer—the use of lemons with salt stimulates more hydrochloric acid in the stomach, and this, in real wholewheat flour and mix with milk and a small amount of baking powder. WHAT CHRYSLER HAS DONE

It is hard to recall the day when there were no Chrysler cars; difficult to remember a time when the flashing Chrysler wings had not yet appeared on the world's highways. And yet, that was not so long ago—only five years, in fact.

Where it has taken the average automobile ten to twenty-five years of gradual, plodding growth to achieve public acclaim, Chrysler has risen swiftly to a foremost and topmost place in the industry in less than five short years!

What Chrysler has done is without parallel. Overnight, a name became a symbol of speed, quality, beauty and safety. At Christmas, 1923, the Chrysler emblem meant nothing in the public mind. By Easter, 1924, it had come to stand for leadership—a claim undecanted to this day.

Fads come and go. Some motor cars have their brief hour of popularity and then are forgotten. Chrysler's unprecedented leap into a position in the van of the industry was neither forced nor accidental. That place was won by inherent worth and undeniable value. Today, Chrysler is firmly entrenched at the top, offering the finest performance in its history. A ride is a revelation.

Better Homes Makes Manchester A Beautiful Community

12 COTTAGES BUILT AT PINE LAKE SHORES

The developers of Pine Lake Shores at Eagleville, South Coventry, Conn., report a miniature building boom on this new summer colony which is proving very popular in view of the fact that it is so easily reached from the many cities and towns over good state roads. There are twelve cottages completed and occupied with many others in course of construction. The roads around Pine Lake have been treated against the raising of dust which keeps everything orderly and clean. Last week nearly every lot that was staked was sold. This week a unique plan will be offered to the public in which lots will be sold according to the number of trees on them. The public will be asked to count the pine trees on the lots and this will determine the price of the lots at two dollars per tree.

Every form of water and land sport is being enjoyed and the visitors marvel at the twenty-two thousand pine trees on this beautiful property. Plans are being completed for the clubhouse, also a tea-room which will soon be opened.

VOLUNTEER JURY PASSES ON CAPITAL'S DESIGN

Outstanding among the activities of the Washington Chapter of the American Institute of Architects during the last year, in addition to its consideration of professional matters, was the offering of free architectural service on new building projects through the Architects' Advisory Council.

Each week three members of the chapter sit as a volunteer jury on new plans filed with the building inspector and make suggestions where deemed necessary to improve the exterior designs of buildings. In cases where plans are found satisfactory as filed, the representatives of the council approved the designs.

A Unique Gabled English Cottage

R. C. Hunter & Bro., Architects, New York

Editor's Note:—A "Portfolio of 101 Small Homes" by R. C. Hunter & Bro., Architects is offered to readers for $2.50. Send check or money order to the Building Editor.

An economical and livable—thoroughly American-plan happily combined with an English cottage type exterior; here we have portrayed a modern American home of character and charm.

A study of the plan layout shows a direct and logical arrangement with no lost space. Hallways have, with the exception of a small space on the second floor; been put to work in the rooms.

Entering a small vestibule the stairway leads directly to the second floor, an opening on one side leads to the living room and on the opposite side to the sun porch.

The kitchen and service are very compactly arranged.

On the second floor are three nice bed rooms, each a corner room with cross ventilation, a bath and plenty of closets.

The laundry, heater space and such are provided in the cellar.

The house is of frame construction with stucco finish.

This house measures 31 feet 8 inches across the front, so a 46 foot or larger lot should be used to allow for a driveway and proper clear space.

Complete working plans and specifications of this house may be obtained for a nominal sum from the Building Editor. Refer to H-A-102.

Cost about $9,000.

SUGGESTS CO-OPERATION IN NATIVE ARCHITECTURE TRAINING IN ARTS NEEDED BY PUBLIC

"In a country as large as ours, in which highly trained architects are practicing far and wide, there should be created a condition under which the artists and craftsmen of a given locality should be cooperating in the fine things definitely characteristic of that locality," said J. Monroe Hewlitt, of New York, at a recent meeting in Chicago of architects, painters, sculptors, craftsmen and designers, called by the Chicago chapter of the American Institute of Architects.

"The fact that this is not so indicates a certain intellectual laziness on the part of the architectural profession and a lack of enthusiasm in the refinements of craftsmanship. It is so much easier and safer to direct one's clients to craftsmen who have already established a reputation and a vogue in New York, Philadelphia, Boston,

We must not only train our artists in mutual understanding, but we also have an obligation to train the public, declared Victor Meeks, director of the American Federation of Arts.

"If we can train the leaders," said Mr. Meeks, "we can go a great way toward building up a true appreciation of art in important quarters, on the one hand, and on the other, out of this may develop a smaller group of clients, dilettanti, connoisseurs, purchasers and patrons offering encouragement and stimulus of the most effective and continuing nature.

Chicago, or San Francisco, than to search out and encourage local men who, in less important operations, have demonstrated the mental quality and technical proficiency that we desire to bring into our work."

Landscaping Necessary To Complete Home Modernizing

SHRUBBERY AND LAWN SETS OFF THE HOUSE

Often the beauty of a home is enhanced to a marked extent by proper landscaping. The house, attractive enough with its modern lines, takes on a new appeal when vines, flowers and shrubbery are planted and trained.

Modernization includes landscaping and emphasis should be placed on this statement. The home is up to date only when lawns have been planted and shrubbery set out. Otherwise the residence is raw and unfinished.

The mere fact that a house is surrounded by an attractive lawn often leads the average person to believe that the home-owner has taken complete steps to make his property modern. The lawn is really the first step in the plan.

Landscaping Improves Property.

The illustration on this page shows interesting before and after views. The lawn in the lower picture is most attractive. The grass is well cared for, being trimmed and neat.

Yet what a difference resulted when shrubbery was set out and allowed to grow. Three years had elapsed when the top illustration was taken.

During that interval shrubbery had been set along the edge of the lawn bordering the public sidewalk. Another strip of shrubbery was planted near the foundations of the building and a tree set out in the front lawn in a spot calculated to give shade a few years hence.

The exterior of the house remains unchanged with the exception of adding the gay awnings which protect the windows on the south and west elevations yet the difference in appearance is remarkable. One view is bare and incomplete; the other inviting. No matter how effective the lines of the house or how attractive the interior, a hospitable, homey effect is secured by the use of shrubbery and flowers.

Architects Realize Importance of Landscaping.

Many architects when planning the design of a home insist on landscaping the grounds at the same time. They know that the effectiveness of the exterior depends largely on the surroundings and that full justice to the original idea can only be secured when the lawns are properly handled.

The home garden is usually divided into lawn, flowers and vegetable gardens, and service yard.

The flower garden should be laid out so that it will be enjoyed from the windows of the house. The vegetable garden should be located at the back of the lot as it is strictly a utilitarian project. Often the two are divided by hedges or a lattice fence, over which vines can grow.

Lawns Essential to Home.

Well cared for lawns are essential if the house be properly set off. The lawns should be as spacious as possible and should not be cut up by shrubbery or flower beds, as these limit the sweep of the lawn.

Flowers and shrubbery are usually placed along the edge of the lawn or massed near the house. Often a low privet hedge grows next to the sidewalk, at the corners masses of flowers being placed to break the positive direction of the line.

Get Advice on Landscaping.

The yard should be landscaped according to a definite plan. This should be worked out before the lawns and shrubbery are set out, but often when modernizing it is necessary to take the lawn as it stands and make the needed improvements.

The home owner who is not experienced with flowers or shrubbery needs the advice of competent landscape artists. The landscaping of a plot of ground is an important factor in the final appearance of the home and it is always wise to seek the services of men who know and who can visualize the final result.

Here are two views of the same house before and after the owner landscaped the lot. While the house had modern lines, the modernizing of its surroundings more than doubled its attractiveness.

PANELLED WALLS RICH IN DECORATIVE APPEAL

Just at the present time there seems to be a revival in the use of panelled walls when finishing the interior of the house.

Panelled walls have long been held to be suitable only for the residence of the man of wealth. The price of panels was the determining factor in the days gone by. Since the cost of paneling was high, their use was evidence of wealth.

Today improved methods have lowered costs. The newer kinds of achieving the paneled effect have placed such walls within the reach of all.

Whereas the walls of the residence of gone-by days were finished in painted and stained woods, today wall board and plaster board may be used. The French paneling with its one or more tones may be applied over plaster or canvas, wall paper also may be applied in panels with plain colors between, and moulding. A similar effect may be produced with paint, with stenciled or stippled panels.

The French panel is simply a painted background with mouldings applied in pleasing rectangles.

One of the features of French paneling is its appropriateness to practically any interior, no matter what the style or size of the house. If a smooth plaster wall is not available, decorators' canvas may be applied first as a background for the moulding.

The range of color effects is unlimited. The panels may harmonize with the borders or they may contrast with them. Either or both may be plain or patterned. Wall paper may be used instead of paint.

Size and Spacing of Panels Important.

The size and spacing of the panels largely determines the effect that results. Each room differs from another. Each wall usually differs again from another wall. The eye of an artist is required to lay out the panels so that the proportions are satisfactory to the eye.

Flying Ants Endanger Woodwork Of The House

The foundation of a building, when made of wood, should always rest on brick or concrete and never on the ground. There are over 40 species of termites in the United States and these winged ants often destroy the wooden framework and doors of buildings if they are allowed to enter.

Termites, like the white ants of Africa, live on cellulose found in wood, living or dead vegetation, paper, cloth, etc. They burrow in the ground. When food is found as in buildings they tunnel up through it, often reaching as high as the sixth floor.

Since they are tunnelling insects, their presence is often hidden until they have greatly damaged the building. The only permanent cure is to entirely replace the damaged woodwork and establish preventive means by "insulating" the woodwork from contact with the ground.

It can be accomplished by the use of stone or concrete foundations and with the lower flooring and foundations impregnated with coal tar creosote.

Termites need moisture to survive. Insulating the woodwork causes them to die out. Complete insulation of all untreated woodwork from the ground is the only effective method of preventing the ravages of termites in buildings in the United States.

ere effort to create an architecture based upon intelligent planning, the art of building and the appropriate use of materials which compose its structure. This is the basis for a sincere and truthful architecture."

TERMS BUDGET LACK COSTLY TO ARCHITECTS

Architects in the United States are receiving fees of not less than $30,000,000 a year, it is estimated by Edwin Bergstrom, of Los Angeles, treasurer of the American Institution of Architects.

"I have not the slightest doubt," Mr. Bergstrom declares, "that more than 10 per cent of this sum is wasted annually by the architect in his own offices through neglect and failure to apply sound business methods."

MODERN ARCHITECTURE TESTS ENVIRONMENT

The recognition of the limitations established by tradition and environment, which was so clearly indicated in the architecture of the early days of the Republic, was gradually ignored with the growth of our political freedom until our American architecture recorded nothing more than a period of unprecedented material growth going hand in hand with artistic illiteracy, according to Milton B. Medary, member of the National Park and Planning Commission.

"The outward form of a historic architecture lingered for a while, but generally misapplied and without relation to appropriate planning or an intelligent solution of a problem," says Mr. Medary. "By the time this had led to such obvious absurdities as the use of the cellar of a Greek temple for a school room, historic forms were discredited and abandoned altogether.

"This has been followed by a sin-

JOHNS-MANVILLE HAS AGENCY IN HARTFORD

For years Johns-Manville insulating materials have been of service to industry; now they are also bringing comfort to the home owner through their new product for home insulation. Johns-Manville have just appointed the Home Insulation Co. of Hartford, Inc., offices 20 Elm street, as their representatives.

The house which can be seen is designed to be attractive and to offer shelter from snow and rain but is easily lacking in its main reason for existence, namely, comfort. Building materials such as plaster, brick, weatherboarding, composition paper, concrete or stucco offer but little resistance to the filtration of air. Consequently outside weather conditions rather than the will or the desire of the occupants, govern the temperature and air currents in the various rooms. This shortcoming, when not corrected, is detrimental to the health and mental disposition of the occupants and also compels the owner to spend about 40 per cent more for fuel than necessary.

The economical use of available heat is entirely a matter of reducing the heat leakage through walls and roof to a minimum. This fact has been long appreciated by heating engineers and by many architects and builders, but the general public, which is most concerned, is just commencing to realize the value of insulation in preventing the escape of indoor heat in winter and the entry of outdoor heat in summer.

In the past six years science has developed another house, one which when completed cannot be seen because it is built within the walls and ceilings of the visible house. This second house is built of special material known as insulation. Combined, the two houses make a home which is truly all that the name home implies.

Not only must new houses be insulated to insure economy and efficiency in the use of fuel—but the insulation of existing houses is equally important as a means of reducing the cost of living and promoting more healthful and comfortable living conditions.

"Home Insulation" not only is most efficient for insulating buildings under construction, but can ceilings of buildings already occupied. It is now possible for the owner of an old building to have it treated at small cost, with the finest of modern insulation, averaging four inches in thickness. The entire work is usually completed in 12 hours.

The average house is constructed like a freless cooker or a refrigerator, except the Thick Comfort-Bringing Wall of Insulation is Left Out. There is an outer shell and an inner shell with a space of at least 4 inches between. The "Home Insulation" system provides this missing necessity by filling the air space solidly between the plaster and weatherboarding from foundation to roof with the most efficient and perfect insulation on the market today.

Of course "Home Insulation" is also placed over the top of the house, usually on the lath and plaster between the attic joists. After "Home Insulation" has been installed by an efficient crew, the owner realizes that his house has been amazingly and economically changed into a home. He has had the invisible house built around him. This new house is free from drafts which so quickly bring sickness and result in doctor bills. It will not allow a fire to spread as the flues in the side walls no longer exist. It is restfully quiet in the face of the rattle and clatter of outside traffic. It is comfortably heated with an unbelievably small amount of fuel.

John Lotz, Jr., is president of the Home Insulation Co. of Hartford, Inc., W. R. Tinker, Jr., of South Manchester, is manager and secretary of the company, and has long been recognized as one of the leading industrial insulating leaders of New England and he is highly pleased now to be able to offer to the public an insulation for the home.

It doesn't demand too much of workmanship — nor consequently

SIX-ROOM HOUSE DEFTLY COMBINES THE OLD AND NEW IN ARCHITECTURE

By CORA W. WILSON For NEA Service
Practically and genuine artistry join to make this small Colonial house ideal for the average family.

of the pocketbook. It has a definite atmosphere of the past, yet is thoroughly modern in the conveniences it provides.

The house is lumber built. The color scheme is unusual—an exterior of white-painted cedar shingles, robin's-egg-blue wooden shutters, white paneled front door, red-brick coping around the door and bay window, and a red-brick chimney.

There are six large, well-connected rooms. Closets are numerous.

An entrance platform of red brick leads into a charming living room, and almost directly opposite the doorway is an old Colonial fireplace. A bay window may look out on a garden of old-fashioned flowers. In the same room there are two other windows, making for a triple view of the outdoors. On the right is a white-painted Colonial stairway with mahogany rail and treads.

Leading out of the living room, off a small hall going toward the kitchen, are a large coat closet and a lavatory. The modern kitchen has a large closet and a small dining alcove.

The dining room is connected with both the living room and of course the kitchen. The stairs to the basement—a continuation of the stairs to the second floor—are convenient to all the main rooms.

For additional information and cost estimate write to Mrs. Cora W. Wilson, 420 Madison avenue, New York City, and be sure to enclose the clipping from this newspaper.

PAINT UP

A building may be perfect as to architecture and beautiful as to lines, but if it needs a coat of paint and if this important work has been long neglected, the physical beauty of the architecture disappears. Paint brings out the charm of any house, aside from the factor of preserving wood.

For IMMEDIATE Delivery

When a merchant is called upon to supply some commodity which he does not have in stock he can usually satisfy his customer by telling him that he will have it in a few hours or in a few days at most.

The light and power company cannot do this.

It must always have a large reserve of kilowatts for immediate delivery to the new customer or to fill the increased order of the old customer. It cannot say: "We are just out of kilowatts, but we will have a new supply tomorrow, or next week, or next month."

It makes no difference whether the customer be a new manufacturing establishment, ordering kilowatts in quantity, or a householder, installing additional lights—the company must make IMMEDIATE DELIVERY. . . .

This means a large capital investment in reserve equipment.

To Home Owners of Manchester We Offer A NEW Economical way to insulate OLD Homes

HERE'S some real news! You can insulate your present home just as it stands, without any costly alterations, bother or mess. What's more, you can insulate as houses have never been insulated before!

It is now possible for you, Mr. Owner of an uninsulated house, be it frame, brick-veneer or stucco, to enjoy all the comfort, winter and summer, that is afforded by the most modern, thoroughly insulated new house—and at a cost so low that it will surprise you.

You Can Put an Overcoat 4 Inches Thick Around Your House!

The most interesting fact about this new Home Insulation, developed by Johns-Manville, Insulation Authorities, is that it really keeps more heat in the house in winter and more out in the summer-time than any other method, because it makes a much thicker covering—4 inches—than is possible with other materials. 4 inches of this highly efficient insulating material must be more effective than a mere half inch or inch of ordinary sheet insulation.

For understand that this is not a sheet insulation. It is new—insulation made from molten rock that is blown into small wool-like fibres which entrap innumerable tiny air cells.

This Light, Fleecy Material is Easily Applied

Subjected to scientific manufacturing process, solid rock becomes soft and

This insulating material is pumped into all air spaces in walls easily and quickly, so as to create a solid wall of insulation between you and the weather.

pliable—wool-like and fleecy in appearance—light in weight—yet still rock! Fireproof, rot-proof, vermin-proof! Its workability makes possible the ingenious method of application Johns-Manville has developed—a method startling in its simplicity.

Look at the illustration. You can see at a glance exactly what happens and how easy it all is. Our truck will pull up to your house some morning and through a hose this fleecy material will be pumped into all the drafty openings between outer wall and plaster, at the proper pressure to provide exactly the correct insulation. Within 48 hours it will all be done so cleverly that we positively guarantee not to damage your house inside or out in any manner whatsoever.

If you want to know the dollars and cents facts about Johns-Manville Home Insulation, how cheaply you can apply it and how you can apply next winter's fuel savings to its cost, write or phone us. We can show you how to save money and at the same time get more comfort out of your home.

Stop in and see our window display showing application of home insulation.

COLUMBIA

Tradition is that Fourth of July must be fair and warm, but early in the morning it seemed like fall, with the thermometer down to 48.

The speakers in the morning were three. Following a band concert by the Willington band and songs by the school children, Rabbi Samuel Peck of Springfield gave a fine patriotic address.

During the noon hour a caterer was on the grounds to furnish lunch. The exhibit of old tools and household articles proved very interesting.

Shortly after lunch the crowds began pouring into the field in which the pageant was to take place. This field is situated back of the Center schoolhouse.

Cat and Dog Hospital An Interesting Place

Few In Manchester Know of Institution Here—Has 20 Patients at Present; How They Are Treated Explained—Dr. Bushnell Talks of His Work.

One looks long enough and observes closely one can find many interesting places in Manchester. Few know that there is a cat and dog hospital in our fair little town and a visit to this institution this week proved most interesting.

Out where the Green begins, this place was found. It is in the rear of the residence of Dr. Fred F. Bushnell, at 494 East Center street. It is in fact a portion of the garage of the veterinary.

It was feeding time when the visitor arrived. A second before the silence around the hospital was noticeable but as the food was being distributed, the dogs began to bark and the cats to meow as they sensed that they were to be fed.

Various Foods.
The food is worthy of a study in itself. Each of the animals is on some sort of a diet. Those awaiting operations are not fed, just as in other hospitals. Charts over their pens tell what food they are to be served. Cats just love raw fish and that figures in their food. Concentrated foods are given the dogs.

There are about 20 animals in the hospital at the present time. They are there for various reasons. One aged dog was kept there over the Fourth because he was suffering from a case of nerves and the noise of firecrackers had scared him in former years that his owners decided to keep him away from the din this year. Other dogs and cats are kept there because their owners are away on vacations. Vacationists touring through this section of New England leave their pets here until they return this way. Some have traveled thousands of miles across the continent and are resting up from their long trip. All the ailments that beset humans beset these household pets and it is almost like going through a regular hospital when inspecting this institution.

CAT AND DOG HOSPITAL IS TWO STORIES HIGH

It was an Alpine-like climb to reach the upper story of the hospital. Here are many interesting cases, each in its separate pen. The patients act much the same as humans. Some refuse the food. Others eat hungrily. They are the convalescents. To the rear and on the same level as the upper story, is an outdoor yard where those animals soon to be released, bask in the sun or rest amid the shade of trees.

Downstairs next the garage proper is the visitors room. Here the dogs or cats are received and have their illnesses diagnosed. They are then placed in observation pens where the symptoms are studied by Dr. Bushnell who then prescribes treatment.

The Operating Room

Behind this office is the operating room and one rubs his eyes in amazement. Here is an operating table different from other hospitals. There are places where the animal is strapped in various positions. Otherwise there is a great similarity. There is the powerful electric light over the table, the instruments, a case of drugs of all sorts. Text books on various diseases. A box where cats and dogs are placed in when they are put under the ether. The white costume doctors use, hanging on the wall. There is a sterilizing outfit, nearby where the instruments are sterilized.

Visitors Arrive

While the interview was being held, visitors came in and out to spend a few minutes with their pets. You could hear the men and women talking to the cats and dogs in the low murmur one hears in hospital wards and the cats and dogs seemed to be answering.

Except during the feeding hours, the hospital is unusually quiet and its existence. When a cat or dog is sick it is quiet as a rule.

BORN IN WINSTED SO KNOWS STONE

While waiting to operate on a cat, Dr. Bushnell agreed to tell a little about himself. He was born in Winsted, this state, and of course, when this answer was received he was asked if he knew Lou Stone the imaginative reporter who put Winsted on the map with his weird nature fake stories.

"Certainly. Everybody knows Lou. He is the most important personage in the town."

A Glimpse Into the Operating Room When Tabby Goes Under the Ether.

Women talk about their operations—always. Men—seldom. Cats—never.

So to give Tabby a fair shake her operation is here-with described.

Given no food for 24 hours before. Tabby did not like it at all. In this she was no different than humans. When her hour arrived she trembled as footsteps were heard along the corridor leading to her pallet. She was gently lifted out and taken into the operating room.

She was placed in a white chest with glass on one side and cotton soaked with ether was placed beside her. The cover was closed. Through the glass her every motion was discernable.

For a few seconds she looked toward the top of the box. No escape there. Then glares with wide open eyes through the glass. The ether is now taking effect. She fights it. It is but a feeble attempt. She lies down, stretches out and in a second she has been overcome by the fumes.

The cover is lifted. Tabby is placed on the operating table. The surgeon, white clad, picks up his instruments, one after another, and performs a delicate operation, swiftly, skillfully.

Tabby is placed back on her pallet. In a few moments she moans softly as she tosses her head from side to side. She is coming out of the ether.

Tabby knows just as much about what happened to her while under the anaesthetic as the woman who is always talking about her operation. But Tabby is wise. She keeps her ignorance of the details to herself.

Pets, His Patients

he traveled thousands of miles in the farm lands. He later took in Michigan, Ohio, New York, Pennsylvania and New Jersey.

"How did the farmers take to your suggestions?"

"They didn't take to them for a long time. They thought I was an interloper. What business had I to look over their cattle and inspect their barns? Some of their arguments were original, to say the least. Here is one of them:

Farmer's Argument
You say that consumption comes from milk. Why is it that we never have consumption on the farms. The reason the city children get tuberculosis is because they live in ill-ventilated tenements. There are no germs in milk. Wh' all this washing of hands and milk cans? Milk has been nature's cleanest food since time began. It never can make anybody sick.

"But after a while," continued the doctor, "we brought them facts and figures. We showed them unclean milk under a microscope. They saw the germs, millions of them, floating in the milk. They were shown tuberculosis cows. It was a long and weary job but you never hear any of those arguments nowadays. Our campaign had bore fruit. States later took up the work and now it is merely routine."

Dr. Bushnell remained ten years with the Borden Co., and then decided to come east.

HOW DR. BUSHNELL CAME TO MANCHESTER

Now comes a rather interesting part in the veterinarian's narrative. He was asked how he happened to come to Manchester.

"I can hardly explain that. It has always seemed more or less a mystery to me. I had decided to do a little farming so settled out in Coventry."

"Six years ago, like a bolt from the blue sky, came a message from Dr. D. C. Y. Moore, to visit him. How he knew I was out there in the wilds I never knew and never asked. At any rate he said that he was head of the Health Department in Manchester and needed a man of my experience to take up health work here. I decided at once to accept and here I am yet."

"The rest of the story you know. I look after the meat and milk supplies here and do the various jobs included in a sanitary inspector's duties. Manchester is one of the cleanest little towns in the country if I do say it myself and the people here should be proud of it. Attention is given to details here that the larger cities could not find time to do. I am just as proud of my record while in Manchester as anyone can be. The people are splendid. They co-operate with the health board. A suggestion is only needed to improve things. Manchester is an ideal town for a health officer to work in."

It was time now for the operation. The details of which are given in connection with the story on this page today.

While the doctor worked it was noticed that he is a stockily built man, a trifle below the medium height. He is an unusually silent man and when talking uses no gestures. His face is tanned. He wears glasses. His talk is slow drawl. He wears a dark suit, bow tie. Colored shirt. His hands are worthy of a sentence.

RIVAL WIVES

by Anne Austin, Author of 'The Black Pigeon'

IRIS MORGAN, wife of JOHN CURTIS MORGAN, successful lawyer, slopes with BERT CRAWFORD...

couldn't relent a mite, I suppose, Nan? 'No!' Nan looked very much the firm young mother...

and launched one of the nastiest rows I've ever had to listen in on. It all came out, of course...

THIS HAS HAPPENED

NAN CARROLL, Morgan's secretary, is in love with him. To save him from utter despair...

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XLII

'Look what I found, wandering the streets disconsolately and looking as if he'd lost his best friend...

'Willis Todd!' she cried joyously, incredulously, as the embarrassed young man...

'And now,' Willis laughed, 'your husband heaps coals of fire on your head by treating me as a family friend.'

As soon as he had said it, Willis Todd realized that he had committed a faux pas...

'Yes, Nan, my defeated rival here was wandering along Washington Street, looking as disconsolate as if he'd just found out there wasn't any Santa Claus!

'Here's Estelle, John,' Nan interrupted, 'bursting with news about Christmas dinner. Just five minutes, Estelle, please. John, will you take Willis upstairs to wash his hands?'

'I'm glad he didn't; I'd have had a fearful cook on my hands if he'd delayed the dinner,' Nan laughed.

She waited until her husband and guest had disappeared up the stairs, then followed them fleetly, stopping at her own door...

'I looked in on Curtis,' Morgan told Nan, as they proceeded to the dining room, which Estelle had decorated as lavishly as if she had been expecting a big party...

'But—Iris?' Nan frowned. 'I was so sure she'd been with him after she left John—'

CHAPTER XLII

But there was an unworthy consolation, the evidences of his pain and in the occasional puzzled glances from her husband's eyes...

'I like that!' Nan protested. 'I suppose you've forgotten what you said last Christmas—that it was the happiest Christmas you had spent since you were a child.'

'I remember,' Willis Todd agreed, his mouth and eyes tightening with pain.

'Reminds me of last Christmas, when that Crawford man sat there and made eyes at the creature who was Mrs. Morgan then.'

That was an exaggeration, but certainly John Curtis Morgan did look like a happy man, between his odd bursts of forced volubility...

'Good Lord!' the young man ejaculated. 'You poor kid! No wonder. Can you tell me what happened? Did she come here?'

'Then you'll need a weapon, too,' Willis Todd said grimly. 'And I've got a dandy I can place in your hand—'

'No, I'm not talking through my hat,' he assured her. 'I've got facts and proofs which you're welcome to. I was in New York in the November opening of my firm...

'Of course you'd be two leaps ahead of me, Willis growled. 'All I need the first person my eyes lit on when we took our table was Bert Crawford.'

'But—Iris?' Nan frowned. 'I was so sure she'd been with him after she left John—'

'Oh, she had, all right! No doubt about that, if you can wait till I tell my story. It was about half past one, when the cabaret was in full swing, that Iris appeared suddenly at Crawford's table...

Charley Dawes took lunch the other day at Yon Olde Cheshire Cheese, famous London tavern...

The WOMAN'S DAY by ALLENE SUMNER

Are women 'monsters of cruelty?' Arnold Bennett says so. He says in toto—'Even the finest and most agreeable woman, such as those with whom I have been careful to surround myself in my domestic existence, are monsters of cruelty.'

While a great wave of protest will arise from most of our sex, I have often marveled at the cruelty of women—especially mothers. Nothing so seems to make a woman oblivious of the rights and needs of everyone else in the world as to have children of her own.

'Just as good' Suddenly one woman scouted up like an avenging spirit, swept a half dozen children away from the broad, thrust forward her own brood, and turned to glare at the mothers of those swept aside.

'They weren't giving my kids their turn,' she said. 'And my kids are just as thirsty and just as good as yours.'

While the incident may seem far-fetched and we may argue that this crude bit of supermaternity is not at all typical, one sees again and again a corresponding tenderness towards all other humanity. But, on the whole, I fear that Bennett is right.

PROUD PARENTS The parents of Arthur Schreiber of Maine, the stayaway in the "Yellow Bird," who, though he almost defeated the flight, was acclaimed with both praise for courage and criticism for selfishness...

FAMILY QUARREL Speaking of parents, here are Mr. and Mrs. Max Oser, the former Mathilde McCormick, visiting her mother, Mrs. Edith Rockefeller McCormick, for the first time since her marriage and her estrangement from her mother.

The estrangement lasted six or seven years, and was not broken even by the advent of Peter and does. Mother and daughter do not usually last that long. And when they do it is generally the daughter who is stronger at "holding out" than the mother.

Quarrelling with one's offspring generally only takes place when the parent feels that the offspring is in danger of harming himself or herself.

GAY SPORTS MODE. The white shantung dress has gained widespread popularity for sports and general daytime occasions...

Emotional balance. I do wish we could find terms that would be less technical. But that word "emotion" like "complex" and "impulse," has come to stay, so we will have to make the best of it.

Leveling the Emotions. It is the duty of parents then, we suggest, to try to strike a happy medium and act as a steadiest to the emotional sea-saw.

Most Children That Way. All children have their moments of discouragement and unhappiness without any apparent cause. Sometimes it is nerve gas or reaction after fatigue, intense excitement, or strain. Usually it is obscure. No matter. Try to get him to snap out of it, not by words, but by setting him something interesting to do that will keep him quietly occupied mentally.

By DR. MORRIS FISHBEN. Editor Journal of the American Medical Association and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine.

When one becomes overheated for any reason—whatever, moisture appears on the surface of the body and the evaporation of this moisture tends to lower the temperature of the surface.

For many years it has been thought that one of the chief purposes of perspiration was to rid the body of poisonous material. Among many oriental people sweat baths are regularly employed as a means of keeping the body in a good physical condition.

In order to determine exactly what the condition of perspiration may be, investigators in the Presbyterian Hospital in Philadelphia have made a collection of perspiration from people with various diseases and have analyzed it chemically.

When the perspiration first appears, it is slightly more acid in its reaction than when it ceases to appear later. This probably due to the attempts of the body to maintain its normal action under various circumstances. Thereafter the perspiration contains more alkaline material, as can be determined by measuring the reaction of perspiration protected from the air.

Because heat treatment is frequently used in such diseases as inflammations of the joints and in rheumatic disorders, special efforts were made to find out whether the perspiration contains any different substances under these conditions. It was found, however, that the perspiration does not change during attacks of arthritis or rheumatism.

In the case of Bright's disease or disturbance of the kidneys, however, it was found that the perspiration does contain more nitrogenous products than under normal conditions. This, of course, explains the value of sweat baths in uremia or in cases in which the kidneys are disabled by infection or inflammation.

Perspiration consists largely of fluid with some fat and fatty acids and some protein materials, as well as a small amount of mineral salts. The human body is a marvelous mechanism, tending toward self-regulation, and the studies that have been made of perspiration indicate another method by which it maintains its physican equilibrium.

This And That In Feminine Lore

Having the first permanent set like having one's hair bobbed for the first time. It usually takes much consideration before decision, and then comes regret that it wasn't attended to long before, both are so satisfactory and time saving in warm weather. Local headquarters for all hair and beauty work—the Lily Beauty parlor upstairs in the House & Hale building.

Lemon cubes frozen in the automatic refrigerator are delicious with iced tea. Any wanted flavor can be frozen in this way to provide coolness and flavor. Do not try to make the cubes too sweet. A heavy syrup will not freeze satisfactorily.

A green perfume bottle decorated with flowers in varying shades of pink and peach provided the color basis for re-decorating a bathroom. The walls above the tiling were painted cream, while directly above the tiling was a border of roses painted in a peachy pink with green leaves. The shower sheet was green and a mottled green waterproof drape fell from the dressing table. This latter was a clever ruse to conceal the soiled clothes hamper.

In reply to the inquiry about toast Melba to which Dr. Frank McCoy frequently refers, I cannot put my finger on his recipe, but another authority gives this method. Cut rather stale bread very thin and set in a slow oven. Let it toast in this way until it is browned and curled. Toast melba is nice to serve with salads.

How often these days when making currant jelly or some other kind of housewife will wonder if it is going to "jell," and what a satisfaction it is to find that it does. There always has been the element of anxiety on this score in the mind of all such products have been using liquid pectin for years and thus eliminating guesswork. For the homemaker, however, it is only a few years old and comparatively few make use of the substance. There is rather a romantic story connected with it.

There are no better makers of jams and marmalades in all the world than the Scotch and British. Robert Douglas and his brother Charles grew up in the old country in the shadow of a famous jam factory where the air was laden with the fragrance of the boiling fruit juices. As a little boy he had help his mother make jams and jellies in the home kitchen, and later worked in the factory himself where he learned something of the mysteries of what makes jelly "set." Later in this country he and his brother learned the secret of extracting pectin—that peculiar substance that has been in fruit since the time of Adam and it was not long before the characteristic little brown bottle made its appearance on the store shelves.

May I caution you again about sending currency in envelopes inclosed wrapped up? A day or two ago a Buckland housewife sent for a pattern. The little slip of paper wrapped around the money showed the imprint of the dime and nickel but both had worked out of the corners. Today a Bissell street reader of the home page ordered a pattern and fashion magazine, enclosing a quarter of a dollar. The envelope was open more than an inch and evidently the coin had worked through and was lost.

Vegetable Gelatine Salad. Raw vegetable gelatine salad is as healthful as it is tempting to the eye. It requires: 1 package lemon gelatine 1 pt. boiling water 2 tsp. vinegar 1/2 tsp. salt Dash of cayenne 3/4 c. raw carrots, finely chopped 1 c. raw cabbage, finely chopped 4 tsp. green pepper, finely chopped.

Dissolve gelatine in boiling water, adding vinegar, salt and cayenne. Chill. When slightly thickened, fold in vegetables, mixing lightly. Place in individual molds in electric refrigerator. Place on a crisp lettuce and serve with mayonnaise.

Schmeling Anxious To Battle Dempsey

German Would Rather Meet Him Than Anyone Else on Earth, He Says—Has Challenged Him.

BY DAVIS J. WALSH.

THE ROB GETTING SERIOUS

Atlantic City, N. J., July 6.—"I hope Mr. Dempsey does not change his mind. I hear that he sometimes does."

Max Schmeling, the German heavyweight feller, was very busy doing nothing down here today and stopped right in the middle of everything to make this significant remark in connection with Jack Dempsey's published challenge to heavyweights in general and to himself in particular.

Wants to Meet Jack. In brief, the German says he hopes that Dempsey's threat to return to the ring turns out to be a definite promise.

"I informed Mr. Dempsey once that I was ready to meet him anywhere and at any time," Schmeling explained "that was my challenge to him and it was accepted and signed for I made it in writing and signed my name to it. If it is he now who is challenging me, that is good, is it not so? For then we should get together. I will make no difficulty about the time or the place or the conditions, just as I am prepared to meet Sharkey any place where our fight can be conducted.

Accepts All Challenges. "But Mr. Dempsey should waste no further time with challenges. I am happy to accept all of them."

"He called me when I was home in Germany, saying that I had been signed to fight for him," Schmeling added. "In my reply, I told him that he should be the last man to ask any fighter to obey the contract of a manager with whom he did not wish to be associated. This evidently struck home, as I wished it to do. In the same message, I told him I was ready to fight him anywhere and at any time and for anybody."

"Mr. Dempsey may change his mind but I have not changed mine and will not do so. He is the one man in the world I prefer as an opponent."

FOXY PHANN

THE REASON SOME PEOPLE HAVE A TRYING TIME IS THEY DON'T TRY HARD ENOUGH

from O. B. Keeler, Atlanta sport columnist and the righthand man of the golf king, is quitting the game in a serious way soon.

Robert doesn't make any money out of golf in a direct way and he has a family and an infant law business and trophies don't pay when they are engraved.

But Wants Coupla More Jones, according to Keeler, has two ambitions. He wants to win the American open and amateur championships in the same season and he wants to win the British amateur championship.

He has a great chance to win the two major American championships this year. Already he has won the open championship with a phenomenal margin of superiority and no one is going to pick an amateur to beat him if he goes to California in September.

It is very likely that he will play in the amateur championship if he has the ambition to equal the record of Chick Evans and win the two major titles.

Only the Rich Can Go Jones will be an overwhelming favorite to win the amateur if he does go to California. Not only because of his victory in the open, but for the reason that the competition may not be hot.

With the exception of George Von Elm there is hardly an amateur in the country who can be raised close to him. Von Elm, no doubt, will enter the tournament. That's his home territory. And there will be a lot of western golfers.

But from the conversation heard during the open championship there will be few eastern amateurs in the tournament. They figure they can't afford it.

In addition to a bulky transportation bill the easterners figure it would take them away from their business for a month and even if golf has its profitable sidelines there are not many amateurs who can duck business for a month.

Well, What Of It? Looks like the Cubs and the Athletics in October if there is anything in the table that the leaders in early July are the winners.

The Cubs have a hard road ahead of them, but it does look now as if the Athletics can't be stopped.

They're leading the league in hitting and have the three leading pitchers. And what more could be needed?

The Nut Cracker

Funny thing how nobody seems to be worried any more whether Paulino files or not.

Most of the experts were wrong about Paulino who seems to be pretty well washed up. Some of the betting customers also were reported cleaned.

The experts will have a chance to redeem themselves on the Mandell Canzoneri fight Aug. 2. They can pick the wop.

The girls go without stockings now, but that's no saving. They spend their stocking money for furs.

Minneapolis scored 42 runs in three straight games at Milwaukee recently. That's almost good enough for the majors.

Critics have been praising the offense of the Macks this year, but they haven't been nearly as offensive in the White Sox of 1919.

Please correct the flaw in this paragraph: Germans, Spaniards, Swedes, Australians, Filipinos and Britishers—great boxers and battlers—have invaded America recently in large numbers, lured by the love of a good fight.

IF LOCAL FISHING WERE ONLY SIMILAR

Now and then you hear of a fisherman being shot by a dry agent, but the folks around International Falls, Minn., can't be bothered about that. This town, within sound of Rainy River Rapids are more concerned with mosquitoes than boozie agents.

Last year three men tied for the big fish honors, George Brown and Dr. C. A. Johnson of Chicago, and J. W. Barnes of Indianapolis each catching a 46-pound muskie.

Veterans of rod and reel from Indiana, Michigan, Wisconsin, Minnesota, the Adirondacks and even the Rockies are among those at the Falls this year to match skill with the natives in bringing in the big ones.

PHILLIES DEFEAT THEIR OLD RIVALS

National League champions were smacked by the Phillies yesterday and in being smacked ran their string of defeats to ten. This leaves them just three games north of the soaring Robins in fourth place.

Today's feature engagement in the National finds New York's playing host to their most bothersome enemy, Brooklyn. The two clubs play a single game and then turn to staving off a wholesale invasion of the west.

Philadelphia opens in Chicago and will probably get a laugh or two as the scoreboard records the progress of the little throat-cutting matinee in St. Louis.

MISS PAULINE GILMORE

Miss Pauline Gilmore and Matthew Mackin were married at St. Joseph's church in Willimantic, Monday. A wedding breakfast was served to about one hundred guests at the local hall.

Miss Mildred Stone of Hartford, spent Wednesday night with her sister, Mrs. C. R. Perry, here. Mrs. Carrie Parker of Providence, has opened her bungalow for the summer. She entertained several guests over the Fourth.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Brown and their children and grandchildren of South Manchester, accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Lyman of this place, picniced at "Pinehurst" last Sunday. Mr. and Mrs. Brown formerly lived here.

Miss Edith Ellis entertained Miss Irene Wilson of Poquonock over the week-end. Mrs. William Porter and children spent the Fourth with her parents in Brattleboro, Vt. The children will remain for a few weeks.

Several local families attended the celebration of the 125th Anniversary of the incorporation of Columbia on the Fourth. There was about the usual amount of fireworks and bell ringing over the Fourth. At Roy Hooker's, a roman candle ball fell onto a hay-stack which immediately started a blaze. The neighbors responded to the telephone fire alarm and kept the fire from spreading to the nearby buildings.

The regular meeting of the Grange was held at the hall, Tuesday evening. Mrs. Asa W. Ellis gave a very interesting talk on the trip that she and Mr. Ellis recently took to Niagara Falls. A report was given on the tent caterpillar contest. The Grange gave $15.00 to school children who gathered them, according to the number gathered. Daylight saving time was discussed and the decision being that standard time was better for the farmer.

9TH DISTRICT ANNUAL MEETING ON FRIDAY

Two Committee Elections This Year—One Term Expires, One Member Resigns.

The call for the annual meeting of the Ninth District, Inc., of Manchester has been issued and the meeting is to be held Friday evening July 12 in High school hall, at 8 o'clock, daylight saving time. The meeting is called to hear the reports of the school committee, treasurer, auditors and of the recreation committee.

One member of the school board is to be elected, but there is also a vacancy on the board that is to be filled. In addition to these the meeting will elect a clerk, treasurer, two auditors and a member of the Recreation committee. An appropriation to meet the expenses of the district will be asked for as well as to meet the district's obligation that may mature during the year, also for the expense of recreation and the library and to see if the district will vote a tax for such purposes and to authorize the district to borrow at such times such funds as will be required to meet the obligations of the district, as they become due.

The term of Miss Mary Cheney as a member of the committee is expiring and the vacancy has been caused by the resignation of R. LaMotte Russell, who is no longer a resident of the Ninth District, but has moved to the Fourth.

VIOLENT STORMS SWEEP GERMANY AND BALKANS

Death Toll Between 20 and 30—Heavy Damage Done to Central European Crops.

Berlin, July 6.—A violent tornado which swept across Germany from the North sea southeastward into the Balkans left a trail of dead estimated today at from 20 to 30. Scores were injured.

Some districts were isolated making it impossible to get an immediate official check upon the number of fatalities.

Heavy damage was done to crops in southern Germany, Austria, Czechoslovakia, Yugoslavia and western Rumania.

Shipping was interrupted on the Danube by the terrific winds. Cities and towns throughout Central Europe were damaged by wind and hail.

Telephone and telegraph wires were blown down or cut by hailstones, not only isolating communities, but hampering rail traffic.

FIREWORKS VIOLATORS BEFORE COURT TODAY

Two Got Off When They Plead Ignorance of the Law; Others Treated Lightly.

There is an old saying that ignorance of the law is no excuse but it got two young men off with suspended judgment upon payment of costs in Manchester town court this morning.

Fred Minicucci, 19, and Charles Morgan, 19, were arrested a few minutes after 12 o'clock Wednesday night by Officer Michael Fitzgerald on a charge of discharging fireworks. In court today the young men said they understood it was legal to do so after 12 o'clock.

While Judge Raymond A. Johnson made it plain that the statutes prohibit discharging fireworks on the Fourth, he said he did not doubt but that the general opinion was to the effect that it was legal immediately after midnight. In the case of Robert Bateson of Teachers Hall, who discharged a .32 caliber revolver at 11:20, a fine of $2 and costs was imposed.

Raymond Donahue was found not guilty on the same charge when Patrolman Joseph Prentice made the arrest failed to appear in court. No other cases came before the court.

"NOAH'S ARK" NOW PLAYING AT STATE

Also Mal Hallet's Orchestra and Other Attractions.

"The greatest 'talkie' yet!" That was the opinion of those who saw "Noah's Ark," the mighty Warner Brothers Vitaphone talking film, which opened at the State theater last evening. And it is no wonder for this spectacular screen masterpiece was three years in the making at a cost of over a million dollars.

"Noah's Ark," which features Dolores Costello and George O'Brien, will have its concluding performances at today's continuous show. It is the one picture that Manchester fans cannot afford to miss.

Hallet's Orchestra The State is also presenting another well-known "name" attraction in the person of Mal Hallet, the young jazz impresario, and his Columbia Recording Orchestra. These twelve entertaining musicians are to be seen and heard in a Vitaphone vaudeville act that is fairly bubbling over with melody, mirth and song.

Fred Ardith, that funny comedian, also offers some more of his rapid-fire humor in "The Country Store," another Vitaphone presentation. Shorter subjects are also on the same program.

ALL-TALKING FILM COMING TO STATE

"Idle Rich" With Conrad Nagel Opens Sunday; "Cabaret" on Same Bill.

"The Idle Rich," William de Mille's all-talking picture for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, which comes to the State theater for three days beginning tomorrow evening, was made within a smaller area of space than any other picture ever produced.

The entire action in the novel comedy, which is based on the famous stage hit, "White Collars," is laid inside a middle-class New York flat, a parlor, living room, bedroom, bath and kitchen suite. Not a single shot is in the picture that was taken outside the sound studios.

William de Mille, in directing the picture, utilized the unique setting for the recording of novel sounds, such as slamming doors, coffee boiling over, rattle of dish washing and other sounds so familiar to the domestic ear.

"The Idle Rich" boasts of an unusually fine cast of trained stage players, whose voices are audible at all times. Conrad Nagel and beautiful Leila Hyams have the principal roles, with Bessie Love, Elythe Chapman, Paul Kruger and James Neill in support.

The story, that of an average American family in a typical middle-class flat in a large city, is
