

MAKE RECORD IN DIAL PHONE CUTOVER HERE

Telephone System is Changed in 3 1-5 Seconds, Fast- est Known Time—Third In State So Equipped.

Manchester's telephone system was changed from the call to the dial method Saturday night in what is believed to be record time. But three and one fifth seconds elapsed between the cut-out of the old boards and the cut-in of the new machine system. The apparatus began to function immediately after the cut-over when Chairman of Selectmen John H. Hyde dialed 5754 and talked with Mrs. Hyde. The cut-over occurred at exactly 11:56 p. m. four minutes ahead of schedule.

Godoluck
The local plant employees were enabled to make record time in the change over through rare fortune. Miss Katherine T. Cannon, chief operator, was stationed in the old exchange quarters in the Odd Fellows building. She was instructed to watch the boards and ascertain at what time the least number of calls were on. At 11:56 the board was "black," not a call going through the central station. This is a rare occurrence in an exchange that has nearly 5,000 telephones.

With the board clear Miss Cannon passed the word through a special hook-up to Wire Chief Joseph O'Gorman who gave Chairman of Selectmen John Hyde the signal. Mr. Hyde spun the dial on a desk in front of him, a glowing red light flashed, a second of confused noises and Exchange Manager William B. Halsted called out "All right, Mr. Hyde." Then Mr. Hyde dialed his home number.

Big Crowd Present
The cut-over was made in the presence of about 200 persons, largely telephone executives and employees. Several town officials and newspapermen were also at the ceremonies. Emor A. Smith, district commercial superintendent of the Southern New England Telephone Company, addressed the gathering. He said that the company had gone to considerable expense to build the new home and install dial equipment. He said that he hoped the

BROADWAY DEATHS LIKE ROSENTHAL'S

Police Hard at Work on New Leads in Latest Slaying on City's White Way.

New York, July 15.—Police were hard at work today investigating news leads in two Broadway gang killings, with the sensational murder of William "Red" Cassidy and Simon Walker in the Hotsy-Totsy Night Club early Saturday occupying the major shares of their attention. This latest Broadway killing was as sensational as that of Herman Rosenthal years ago.

Cassidy and Walker, both members of a west side beat gang, headed by Owine Madden, old time gangster, were shot down by members of a rival gang whose territory they are said to have been encroaching. Peter Cassidy, a brother of William Cassidy, was wounded and is today in a serious condition in a local hospital.

The police promised to round up several alleged eye-witnesses to the murders today, including a beautiful blonde dancer, who is said to have accompanied William Cassidy to the club.

The Marlow Case.
The other case upon which the police are working is the murder of Frankie Marlow, racketeer and prize fight manager, whose bullet riddled body was found on a Long Island road after he had been "taken for a ride."

The outstanding development in the Marlow case was expected to be an attempt to "spring" Johnny Wilson, former middleweight champion and key witness, who is being held in $50,000 bail. Wilson is known to have been with Marlow a short time before he was slain.

Wilson's attorneys will appear before Judge Frank Adell in Queens county and ask for a reduction in the amount of his bail.

A number of detectives were assigned to Boston today in an effort to locate a former politician, who is now a bootlegger and hijacker and who disappeared on the "light Marlow" was killed.

Incidentally the police were hourly expecting reprisals in connection with the murder of Marlow and the Hotsy-Totsy killings.

An associate of the Cassidy's and friends that he was "hot," under worst parole that he is marked for death.

Two others are said to have been promised a "ride" as a result of their connection with the Marlow case.

100 Passenger Plane Is Called A Success

Friedrichshafen, Germany, July 15.—Thousands of thrilled spectators gathered on the shore of Lake Constance this afternoon to watch the first trial flights of the D. O. X.—the world's greatest passenger-carrying seaplane.

A preliminary test was made to see if the slight motor faults detected last week had been successfully corrected. The D. O. X. rose from 15 to 20 meters above surface and the mechanics reported that the 12 motors synchronized perfectly.

The giant plane then dropped back to the water and the officials for Forner Works announced that the first real trial flight would take place later in the afternoon.

The seaplane is designed for trans-Atlantic service and will carry more than 100 passengers.

Entire Negro Population Flees From Nebraska City

North Platte, Nebr., July 15.—A mob was released by the sheriff in order that he might join the flight of his race.

Some of the exiles said they would return to southern states where they lived before coming to Nebraska, and others said they would go to Chicago and Omaha.

The demonstration started when Edward Green, policeman, was shot to death by Louis Seelman, negro accused of wife beating, who later ended his own life.

SPECTACULAR FIRE EXCITES PHILLIE

Big Pier Destroyed by Series of Explosions; Damage is Estimated at Half Million.

Philadelphia, July 15.—Punctuated by deafening blasts of exploding chemicals, the most spectacular blaze ever seen on the waterfront here razed the Terminal Warehouse Company pier at Delaware avenue and Green street today. Neighboring structures were damaged by the blaze and explosions.

The explosions, caused by ammonium chloride, sulphur and other chemicals which had been stored on the pier, were heard for miles, and Philadelphia and Camden police were swamped by telephone calls from excited citizens.

Four alarms were sounded in rapid succession, but firemen could do little in controlling the flames as blast after blast rocked the 400-foot pier, keeping them at a distance.

Several firemen received minor injuries and others were suffering from inhaling the poisonous fumes of the exploding chemicals. Loss was estimated at between $250,000 and $400,000.

Repeated blasts endangered firemen who heroically braved danger to direct hose lines on the blazing pier and highly-inflammable chemicals.

Buildings Rocked.
Buildings across Delaware avenue were shaken to their foundations and virtually every window was shattered. Wreckage was hurled six blocks away to Second street, and smashed through a building on the southwest corner.

Firemen struggled with the flames for hours and concentrated their efforts to checking further spreading of the fire when it became apparent that the warehouse was doomed.

Director of Public Safety L. B. Schofield personally supervised the fight against the flames which endangered the entire waterfront for a time.

The detonations were felt in Frankford, South Philadelphia, Camden and the main line district.

Fire officials will make an investigation to determine whether or not the fire could have occurred from incendiary origin.

CLOUDBURST DROWNS SEVEN IN ONE FAMILY

Creek Overflows, Strikes Auto and Carries it 40 Yards Into Deep Water.

Union, Mo., July 15.—A wall of water, created by a cloudburst, sweeping from swollen little Pin oak creek, struck an automobile, carried it forty yards, and claimed the lives of seven members of a St. Louis family today.

Father of the family and sole survivor William Beckman and Coroner Thomas P. Shaffer placed nets over the mouth of the stream where it empties into the Meramec in an effort to recover four of the bodies.

The others were taken to a morgue.

The dead are Mrs. Marie Beckman; Irene, 3; Marie, 5; Virgil, 7; Bernice, 15 months; Lawrence Triggs, 15; and Mrs. Mary Triggs, grandmother of the children.

KING GEORGE UNDER KNIFE FOR 3RD TIME

Portion of Two Ribs Removed Today—Bulletin Says "the Condition of His Majesty Is Satisfactory."

London, July 15.—King George underwent a third operation of the chest today, portions of two ribs were removed.

The attending doctors announced that the operation was successful. It was made necessary by an abscess in the cavity of the right side of the chest.

The chest sinus had failed to drain properly so that physicians, after a consultation, decided to aid nature by enlarging the drainage channel.

Heart Excellent.
The operation was performed at Buckingham Palace where the king and queen are now living.

The monarch's general health is described as excellent.

The Prince of Wales was at the palace while the operation was under way. He departed at 11:35 o'clock with a cheerful look upon his face.

The operation was described as minor in character and the people were assured beforehand that there was no danger.

The abscess in the king's right side followed an attack of pleurisy last winter when His Majesty was in serious condition for weeks.

Seven doctors were at the palace during the morning while preparations were under way for the operation.

A reassuring bulletin was issued at 11:40 o'clock. The text follows: "The operation upon His Majesty has been performed. Portions of two ribs were removed, in order that the circumscribed abscess one and one half inches across should be directly drained and treated. The condition of His Majesty is satisfactory."

The bulletin was signed by Sir Stanley Hewett, Sir Hugh Rigby, Prof. Wilfred Trotter, Sir Francis Shipway and Lord Dawson of Penn.

According to the Central News, the operation was more serious than had been anticipated. It was performed by Sir Hugh Rigby and by Dr. Trotter.

SUN TANNED LEGS GETS MAN'S DIVORCE

Los Angeles, July 15.—Because Helen Stroul, firm actress, took such pride in her sun-tanned legs she was without a husband today.

The husband, in his divorce complaint, said his wife could not persist in showing his friends what the sun rays did to her legs. The court decided such actions caused Stroul to suffer mental anguish.

TEXTILE TARIFF CAUSE OF DISPUTE

Power of President Greatly Increased if Provisions of Bill is Made Law.

Washington, July 15.—Provisions of the Hawley tariff bill giving the President vastly more power under the flexible tariff, rose to the forefront in the tariff fight today as the Senate finance committee began hearings on the administrative sections of the House measure.

Coupled with this provision is the revolutionary proposal of the House bill to deny the right of review in the courts to importers by making the secretary of the Treasury the supreme arbiter of valuation disputes.

In the background were advocates of the tariff modification of the American or United States valuation systems for the present foreign value method of assessing tariff duties. Application of either system would vastly increase the tariffs, since most of them are applied on a percentage basis.

Senator Smoot (R) of Utah, chairman of the finance committee, prepared to push the hearing as rapidly as possible, so that the committee can begin the actual framing of rates. Hearings on specific rates ended Saturday.

Simmons to Oppose.
Notice has already been served by Senator Simmons of North Carolina, minority leader, that he will make a fight against the House provision giving the president the right to raise or lower tariff rates 50 per cent to "equalize competitive conditions." Under the present law, the President can act only when the tariff commission finds the actual difference in production costs abroad and at home justify a change.

The new provision, it is contended, would not only transfer much of the tariff-making power to the President, but would put virtually autocratic power in his hands.

While the provision is supported by most high tariff advocates, it is vigorously opposed by Joseph Grundy, president of the Pennsylvania Manufacturers' association, one of the most widely known high tariff advocates.

Trundy's Suggestion.
At the same time, Trundy is supporting proposals to substitute the American selling prices of a foreign article for the foreign value as a basis of tariff rates.

It is charged that foreign producers are able to evade the full effect of the American tariff under the present system. The action of France and some other countries in denying costs of production and other information to American agents also has contributed to the demands for the change.

Chairman Smoot indicated that he favors the American selling price as an alternative method of assessing tariff duties, as is now provided in the House bill.

Senator Goff (R) West Virginia, declared the threatened foreign warfare over increase tariff rates already had "disappeared in thin air." He said the business men of

KING ENTERTAINS AMERICAN FLYERS

Royal Honors Paid to Williams and Yancey by King of Italy at Summer Home.

Marino Piza, July 15.—Royal honors were paid today to Roger O. Williams and Lewis A. Yancey, the daring American aviators who flew from Old Orchard, Me., to Rome with one forced stop at Santander, Spain.

The Americans flew in an Italian seaplane to Marino Piza where a royal motor car met them and conveyed them to the King's summer villa at San Rossore.

King Interests
After their audience with the King, the aviators were entertained at luncheon by the royal family. The King was much interested in the flight and asked the aviators to give him a first-hand, personal account of their experiences.

The two aviators had previously been received by Pope Pius XI and by Premier Mussolini. Their visit to Rome will end on Wednesday morning.

PETITION TO REMOVE POMEROY TO ASYLUM

Boston, July 15.—The fight to remove Jesse Pomeroy from Charlestown state prison, his home for the past 53 years, was renewed today when his attorney, John F. Daly appeared before the Supreme Judicial court seeking a writ of mandamus compelling Dr. Warren A. Stearns, state commissioner of correction, to transfer Pomeroy to the Hospital for the Criminally Insane at Bridgewater.

Daly contended that the man who holds all records in this country for length of incarceration is a sadist, and consequently insane. Mr. Daly's action follows an unsuccessful attempt to obtain a complete review of the Pomeroy case through a petition to the governor and his council. Being notified by William Reed, executive secretary of the council, that only Dr. Stearns has the power to transfer a prisoner to the hospital at Bridgewater, Daly announced that he would seek the writ. He added that he might institute habeas corpus proceedings to have Pomeroy produced.

HARTFORD SUICIDE

Hartford, July 15.—Patrick Flynn, 50, an employee of the James L. Howard Co., Crown street, died after drinking cyanide of potassium. No reason could be assigned for his deed. Flynn leaves two sons and four daughters.

SECRET CONSISTORY

Vatican City, July 15.—A secret consistory was held at the Vatican today to nominate new Italian bishops and the Syrian patriarch, the Rev. Father Gabriel Tappuni. Pope Pius XI did not issue an allocation, reserving it for a later and more impressive occasion.

ONE POLISH FLYER KILLED; FRENCH AVIATORS RETURN

GALES FORCE COSTES BACK

Able to Travel Only Fifty Miles an Hour and Gas Supply Growing Low, French Flyers Turn Back and Land Near Paris.

Paris, July 15.—This city was plunged into grief today by the catastrophe which befell Major Idzikowski and Kubala, Polish entrants in the trans-Atlantic air race which started under such auspicious circumstances from Le Bourget Air Field near here at dawn Saturday.

Captain Dieudonne Costes and Maurice Bellonte, French aviators who took off a short time after their Polish rivals and who also failed in their attempt to span the ocean from east to west, were deeply affected by the tragedy. Both remained in virtual seclusion today, refusing any comment from their twenty-nine hour flight which took them almost to the Azores and back to France again.

Costes and Bellonte returned to Paris after landing at Villacoublay Aerodrome, just outside of Paris, but disheartened over their failure, but convinced that no mortal no plane could ride out the headwinds of a hurricane force which drove them back over their route after they had left a thousand miles of ocean behind them.

Want No Praise
"We have done nothing. We want no praise," said Costes when he returned to Paris. "Our thoughts are with that gallant fellow who lies in the Azores, victim of the same relentless wind which nearly drove us to a similar fate."

"It is a pity that guiding his plane against such terrific obstacles being a seemingly safe haven, that this accident should have occurred. Major Idzikowski was a great aviator and a fine gentleman. I find it difficult to believe that he should have been killed when he was so near Paris. Our thoughts are with that gallant fellow who lies in the Azores, victim of the same relentless wind which nearly drove us to a similar fate."

Traditional friendship of the United States for China, and its undisputed opposition to things Communist, appears not to have influenced Chinese experts in the State Department to give the Hoover administration advice favorable to the seizure of the Chinese Eastern Railroad.

On the contrary, comment among these officials is that China will have difficulty in persuading the world, most of which is opposed to Russia, that the seizure was justified.

Fear the Worst
The United States is waiting developments and is officially silent, and while professing to be optimistic over the peaceful outcome, officials privately fear the worst.

The greatest danger, according to the well-informed opinion here is from Japan, and if that nation uses the massing of Russian troops on the Manchurian border as an excuse to send her own troops there, ostensibly for the protection of the South Manchurian Railway, (Japanese owned) then the United States would probably feel called upon to protest.

The only basis for action by the Japanese which would be acceptable to the United States would be to go in as an avowed ally of China at the latter's behest, it was explained.

If War Comes
Feeling here is that if war between the Soviet and Nationalist China does occur as a result of the railway seizure coupled with the expulsion of Russians from Manchuria, the outcome of the disintegration of the new republic is a foregone conclusion, unless the war would draw in other nations which would welcome the opportunity to crush Sovietism in Russia once and for all.

Japan might take two courses, intervene for the protection of her interests without the formality of declaring herself China's ally, or she might declare war on Russia if China were attacked, it was pointed out.

In the former case, officials here believe, it would be for the purpose of getting a firm control over Manchuria where the Japanese aspirations have long intrigued the rest of the world.

From the American point of view, this would be tantamount to a repudiation of the Washington treaties of 1921 guaranteeing the administrative integrity of China, and would operate to the interest

Ocean Racers Crash

Major Ludwik Idzikowski, (right) navigator of the Polish plane Marshal Pilsudski, was killed when his ship crashed on a tiny island in the Azores on Saturday night. His companion, Major Casimir Kubala (left) was seriously injured. They were attempting a non-stop flight from Paris to New York.

KUBALA WAS BADLY HURT

Plane Race Across Ocean Ends in Tragedy—Gas Tank Explodes and Maj. Idzikowski is Burned to Death.

Horta, Azores, July 15.—A little mound of sun baked earth, a withered wreath resting against a flat topped rock and a Polish flag upon the isolated Island of Graciosa, at the tip of the Azores, stood today at the monument to Major Ludwik Idzikowski, Polish airman killed Saturday night while attempting a non-stop flight from Paris to New York.

Idzikowski's flying companion, Major Casimir Kubala, lies in serious condition in the hospital, suffering from injuries received when the fuel tank on the plane exploded.

There is a heap of wreckage on the rocky shore—the remains of the Anot biplane Marshal Pilsudski which had started off so lightly from LeBourget, Flying Field, near Paris, on Saturday morning at dawn in what was to have been a merry trans-Atlantic race with the French plane "Question Mark."

Story of the Crash
Late details from Graciosa this afternoon told the complete story of this latest air tragedy.

It was dusk Saturday evening when residents of Graciosa saw a white plane approaching from the sea.

There were two men in the plane. One of them leaned over the side and made motions with his arms evidently trying to find it there was a landing field any place in the vicinity.

The people of Graciosa stood staring skyward, thrilled by this strange and sudden visitor out of the skies.

The plane skimmed over cultivated ground near the village of Santa Cruz. The people on land did not know the airman were in danger, but an expert could have detected mechanical trouble in the disjointed pointing of the motor.

Finally the nose of the Marshal Pilsudski dipped and the plane dropped speedily to land. So rapid was its progress that the momentum carried it swiftly over a sharp declivity.

The plane turned over as it crashed and a human figure—the pilot—was hurled over the side of the cockpit. There was a flash of light and an explosion and the non-metal portions of the machine were soon consumed by fire.

Idzikowski, who was piloting the plane at the time, was strapped to his seat. Otherwise he might have been thrown clear of the burning plane and possibly escaped with injuries.

Killed Instantly
Customs guards rushed to the assistance of the men. They found Kubala unconscious. Under the debris they discovered a small metal container which had exploded. He had been killed almost instantly, it was believed.

Spectators who had been watching the downward swoop of the plane, rushed forward when they heard the explosion. Many of them were injured by flying fragments of the gasoline tank. None was seriously hurt, however.

Kubala's most serious wounds were in the head, but his body and limbs were badly bruised.

Kubala was unconscious. He was rushed to the nearest hospital. After an examination a doctor said his injuries were serious but he hoped for recovery.

Buried at Once
It was decided to bury Idzikowski at once at the spot where he was killed. So far as known, the Polish authorities will allow his body to remain there. It was a simple funeral service for a man whose name was flashed over the entire world by radio when he became companion hopped off for America at Le Bourget Field and whose career and features were familiar to newspaper readers far and near.

Only a little more than 24 hours after Europe and America were thrilled by the news that the Marshal Pilsudski and the French Question Mark had taken off at Le Bourget in the first trans-Atlantic air race in history, the population of the obscure little island of Graciosa were standing at an open grave listening to an aged priest intone the burial service. The last rites were conducted with military honors.

Coast Guard's Story.
A member of the Coast Guard, who arrived here from Graciosa, gave International News Service the following version:

"I witnessed the disaster of the plane just as darkness was falling. After it came in from the Atlantic the plane circled twice over the village of Santa Cruz before it do

U. S. ON SOVIETS' SIDE IF A WAR IS DECLARED

Strange Anomaly if Trouble Develops in the Far East; Greatest Fear is Over Japan's Action.

SOVIET TROOPS MOVING TODAY TOWARD BORDER

No Clash With Chinese Soldiers in Manchuria Thus Far—Russia Offers an Ultimatum.

Washington, July 15.—The strange anomaly of the American government lending moral support to Soviet Russia in the present Chinese crisis, appeared among the possibilities today.

Traditional friendship of the United States for China, and its undisputed opposition to things Communist, appears not to have influenced Chinese experts in the State Department to give the Hoover administration advice favorable to the seizure of the Chinese Eastern Railroad.

Earlier advice indicated that troops were being massed upon the Manchurian border.

There has been no clash so far and Peiping dispatching indicate that China will make a conciliatory reply to the Soviet ultimatum of Saturday night.

CHINA'S REPLY

London, July 15.—No news had been received here today concerning the nature of the reply the Chinese government will make to the ultimatum delivered by the Soviet government in connection with the trouble in Manchuria.

The ultimatum demands immediate release of the arrested men, and the calling of a conference by tomorrow to settle the dispute.

A message from Harbin states that 700 additional Russians have now been arrested by the Chinese authorities. If this report is true, it indicates the Chinese authorities are ignoring the Soviet ultimatum entirely.

Warlike action between China and Russia is not expected, according to the Kobe correspondent of the Manchester Guardian. Japan is prepared to preserve her own interests, but has no disposition to take advantage of the situation, the correspondent continues.

Dr. C. T. Wang, Chinese foreign minister, is due at Nanking from Peking today. He is expected to prepare a reply to the Soviets, and it is reported he will take a conciliatory attitude.

EXPECT NO TROUBLE

Moscow, July 15.—Soviet officials declared today they were hoping for a note from Nanking "which would relieve the Soviet government of the necessity of resorting to other means of insuring its legal rights" in the dispute with China.

Official circles refused to comment any further upon the Russo-Chinese situation or forecast developments following the Soviet 300 LOCAL PEOPLE SEE NIANTIC CAMP Deluge for 15 Minutes Drives Crowds to Tents; Items of Interest.

Camp Trumbull, Niantic, July 15.—About three hundred Manchester persons were among the estimated crowd of 2,500 men, women and children who came here to visit the soldiers and inspect the camp yesterday. They found the army tents a most welcome place of shelter when a heavy thunder storm drenched the spacious camp field for about fifteen minutes shortly after 3 o'clock in the afternoon.

The weather gods were kind enough, however, to at least postpone any further deluge with the result that the visitors were privileged to watch the impressive guard mounting ceremony a few minutes later. Company L of Bristol had this honor with First Lieutenant George Williams of Company M of Hartford as Officer of the Day and Second Lieutenant Robert Swanson of Company L as Commander of the Guard. This group relieved Company C of William of the duty of guarding the camp.

After today's field maneuvers, the entire regiment will get ready to leave camp tomorrow for Fred Stone's ranch where they will bivouac for two nights returning to camp Thursday noon. This will give them ample time for Governor's Day program, rehearsals and training. Friday will be the big day in camp, the occasion being the first garrison review ever held here. This will be in honor of Brigadier General George M. Cole who is soon to retire after 50 years of military service. A large crowd of people is expected here. Heretofore Friday has been a quiet day in camp but this year it will be the biggest ever scheduled.

Items of Interest. Earl Murphy, 13 year old son of Joseph Murphy, supply sergeant of Company G is having the time of his life here acting in the capacity of mascot for the unit. Incidentally Earl has a very good memory and provided the writer with the names of more guests than any other individual.

The Howitzer company also has a mascot. He is Willie Vince, 15 years old. Willie says he is having a great time down here but misses playing with the American Legion baseball team back home.

The Howitzer company placed fourth in the annual regimental swimming meet which was brought to a successful conclusion Saturday afternoon. This position in but one event. That was the 200 yard relay. Representing Manchester were Francis Bober, Iver Anderson, Jack Fiedler and Frank Vitullo. They swam in the order mentioned and it remained for the "anchor man" to overcome a ten-yard lead and splash his way to a well deserved triumph.

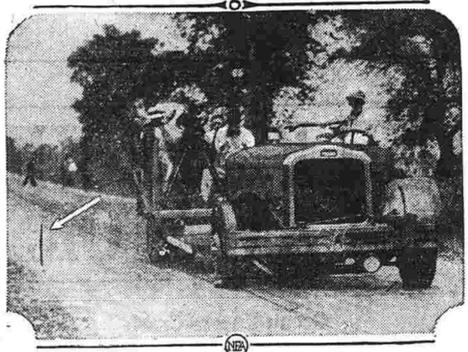

Captain Russell B. Hathaway acted as prosecutor at a mock court martial the other evening. While Captain Hathaway did a good job, he admits that he could stand a little of his father's ability. His biggest fault, it seems, comes in trying to conceal his expressions. Every time that the prisoner swallows "hook, line and sinker," Captain Hathaway cannot help but smile. And altogether too often the smile is transformed into an out and out laugh.

Captain Hathaway says that Dave McCann, former supply sergeant of the company, is exceptionally well talented for the service in a court martial of this kind but apparently they are aware of this faculty which he possesses. When it comes to a poker face, even Helen Willis is said to rank second to Dave.

A large number of the members of the two Manchester companies went home for the week-end, leaving camp Saturday noon and returning late last night or early this morning.

BIG FOREST FIRE. Beaumont, Cal., July 15.—Sweeping over 3,000 acres of land northeast of here, a brush fire today threatened to destroy the San Bernardino national forest. A force of more than 150 men marshalled by forest rangers combated the rapidly gaining blaze which had advanced almost to the forest's edge.

Blowout Proves Bus Safety

Engineers of the White Company, makers of motor trucks and busses in Cleveland, recently showed what a little effort, if the steering mechanism is properly built and the driver is reasonably alert. Loading down a chassis enough to simulate the weight of a fully loaded bus, they had a shotgun in front aimed to fire at the right front tire while the bus was speeding down the road. The chassis scarcely wobbled from its path. The clincher rim to which arrow points came off when the tire went flat.

HIT BY AUTO, SHE CLINGS TO BUMPER

Local Woman Saves Herself As Car Runs Her Down in Middle of Main Street.

Crossing Main street diagonally from the stone wall at Center Park to the front of the Sheridan Hotel, where an automobile was waiting to give her a ride, Mrs. Mary Griffin of 10 Knox street was struck by a Chevrolet coupe, proceeding up Main street, shortly after 1 o'clock today. Mrs. Griffin was treated by Dr. Edwin C. Higgins who said that she suffered an abrasion of the right hand and bruises on the right leg. The driver immediately jammed on his brakes, according to Robert McCleary and Mrs. Walter Sheridan, eye witnesses of the affair. Mrs. Griffin grasped hold of the bumper of the car and was carried nearly 10 feet before it came to a stop. She was taken to her home by Frances Wilson and Albert Dowd who were in the car for which she was headed, when struck.

The driver of the Chevrolet is unknown. Wilson and Dowd called on him to stop, which he did. They found out his registration and marker numbers and also that he came from Derby, Conn. When he asked where the police station was, presumably with the idea of making a report, he was told. He got in his car and drove off, and as the paper goes to press has not yet arrived at the station. Motorcycle Policeman Rudolph Wirtalla investigated the accident with assistant and intoxicated. He handed over to him. The owner of the car will be traced.

POLICE COURT

His wife Sadie was charged with intoxication. Neither of the Macks are strangers to the court. Both were arrested by Patrolman R. H. Wirtalla. Mack was found guilty on both counts and was fined $15 and costs on each, which was paid. He did not want to go to jail and put up a strong plea that he had work to go to and was therefore allowed to go on payment of his fines. Mrs. Mack was held at the police station today at the request of medical authorities. She will be given a hearing in court tomorrow.

Melvin G. Shelton of Middletown paid a fine of $10 for driving an automobile without a license, and $5 and costs for driving with improper lights. He was arrested on Middle Turnpike last night by Sergeant John Crockett.

Edwards, to whom she admitted killing Wilmer T. Kitzelman, her 51-year-old common law husband. PRESIDENT FORMS NEW FARM BOARD

Formally Turns Over Agricultural Problem to Members of New Organization

Washington, July 15.—President Hoover today formally turned the agricultural problem over to the newly constituted Federal Farm Board and called upon its members to establish for the farm "an equal opportunity in our economic system with other industries."

Before a battery of sound and motion picture cameras which recorded the event visually and audibly for the country at large, the executive called the initial meeting of the relief agency to order. "I am deeply impressed with the responsibilities which lie before you," Mr. Hoover declared. "Your fundamental purpose must be to determine the facts and to find solutions to a multitude of agricultural problems, among them to more nearly adjust production to need; to create permanent business institutions for marketing which, owned and controlled by the farmer, shall be so wisely devised and soundly founded and well managed, thereby by effecting economies and giving such stability will grow in strength over the years to come. Through their efforts we may establish to the farmer an equal opportunity in our economic system with other industries."

Will Take Time. "I know there is not a thinking farmer who does not realize that all this cannot be accomplished by a magic wand or an overnight action. Real institutions are not built that way. If we are to succeed it will be by strengthening the foundations and the initiative which we already have in farm organizations, and building steadily upon them with the constant thought that we are building not for the present only but for next year and the next decade. "In selecting this board I have sought for suggestions from the many sources of farmers cooperatives and other organizations and yours were the names most universally commended; you are thus in a sense the representatives of organized agriculture itself."

FUNDS FOR FLYERS IN DEFUNCT BANK

Swedish Citizens Had Deposited $8,900 to Be Given to Aviators on Arrival.

New York, July 15.—Included in millions of dollars of depositors' money which was lost when Clarke Brothers private bank closed its doors here several weeks ago was $8,900 which was to have been presented to the Swedish crew of the trans-Atlantic plane, Sverige, upon their arrival in New York, it was revealed today.

The money represented a fund made up of contributions of various sizes from local citizens of Swedish descent. The Sverige is now at Greenland awaiting repairs before continuing its hop to New York. Meanwhile the government's search for hidden assets of Clarke Brothers bank centered today on partners—James Rae Clarke, Hudson Clarke, Jr., Phillips L. Clarke and John F. Uker—as well as a mysterious blonde sweetheart of one of the firm's members were scheduled to appear as witnesses before the Federal Grand Jury. Federal Attorney Charles H. Tuttle claims the partners transferred more than $1,000,000 to their wives shortly before the bank crashed.

Gladys Glad—To Keep on Dancing

Captain Edward Farrell and his seven men of the Benjamin Wallace were drifting helpless in two dories for six hours in a dense fog when the schooner went without food and water and distress signals flew from improvised masts on the dories.

O. K.'s MERGE PLANS

Albany, July 15.—Attorney-General Hamilton Ward today indicated to Governor Roosevelt that he has found no evidence of a monopoly or violation of the general business in the contemplated half billion dollar merger of upstate power companies, in which J. P. Morgan and Company play a major role. Voluminous quotations from court opinions and public service commission records are given by the attorney general, all favorable to corporation mergers.

TO REVIEW SOLDIERS. Washington, July 15.—President and Mrs. Hoover planned to pay here by motor shortly today for Baltimore, where they will review the parade of the annual convention of the Rainbow Division of the A. E. F. Luncheon at the Maryland Club as guests of the Rainbow officials will precede the parade. The President will make no speeches. The party will return to Washington late this afternoon. A man has started a campaign to beautify Chicago with flowers. There should be plenty of opportunities to buy them cheap after gangster's funerals.

POLISH FLYER KILLED; FRENCHMEN TURN BACK

scended sharply into some cultivated fields near by. After striking the earth the machine fell for some yards, then crashed into a small ravine. Idzikowski was killed instantly. Kubala was thrown 20 feet clear of the plane.

The airman were forced to turn back by headwinds of hurricane force. Their motor developed trouble while they were fighting the winds. Diendonnes Costes and Maurice Bellonte, the French flyers who just after the Poles, returned safely to Villacoublay, near Paris, when bad weather compelled them to give up the trans-Atlantic attempt.

AWAIT DETAILS. Horta, Azores, July 15.—Full details of the tragic crash which killed Idzikowski, premier Polish flyer, and seriously injured Major Kasimir Kubala, his companion on an attempted trans-Atlantic flight, were being awaited today from the smallest islands in the Azores where the Marshal Pilsudski, crashed while attempting a forced landing due to motor trouble.

His erstwhile companion is in a serious condition at a local hospital. The gravity of his state made it impossible for the full story of the disaster yet to be told. Major Idzikowski's remains, removed from the battered wreckage of the plane which had proved his death trap, were buried with simple honors in Graciosa one of the smallest islands in the Azores group. Mangled and torn by the impact of the crash and the explosion of gasoline which immediately followed, it the famous airman's body was placed in a casket less than four hours after the accident had occurred, and lowered into its grave.

Only the comparatively few residents of the island witnessed the interment, performed with the simplest rites. One day the advent of a flyer as speeding over the ocean expanses on a flight aimed not merely at fame and glory, but at the wedding of relations between two nations, and the next his battered remains lay beneath the soil of a remote island whose name was virtually unknown to the rest of the world.

Had Motor Trouble. From the story pieced together by eye-witnesses of the crash and the wireless messages received from the Marshal Pilsudski for some time preceding the accident, it appears Idzikowski and Kubala encountered trouble some twelve or fourteen hours after they hopped from Le Bourget flying field near Paris, as contestants in the first trans-Atlantic air race in history.

They preceded by some forty minutes Captain Diendonnes Costes and Maurice Bellonte, two French flyers. Both crews hoped to reach New York, and thus accomplish the first successful east to west crossing of the ocean from starting point to pre-determined goal. But both met the terrific headwinds which have described and destruction to so many trans-Atlantic aspirants. Costes and Bellonte turned back and avoided disaster. Idzikowski and Kubala kept on, fighting desperately, hoping against hope to reach their goal, when in the vicinity of the Azores, they came to the realization their only hope lay in a safe landing on the firm ground.

Sinister messages spattered from the wreckage, of the necessity of landing, and the football field here, the only thing approaching a landing ground was prepared for their arrival.

There was little fear that they would fail to reach their goal in spite of their trouble, but suddenly the wireless messages ceased. Still no apprehension was felt among the gay crowds who had gathered to watch what was to have been the first of a new era in aviation on this rocky island, when like a bolt out from the blue came word that the Marshal Pilsudski had crashed in landing at Graciosa and that Idzikowski had met his death.

On one occasion, Kubala, who in the tragedy, it appears the flyers headed over the Graciosa a Rock Island ill-suited for airplane landings, as a last resort. Several times the great gray plane circled over the island, while inhabitants signaled out to the one place where a safe descent might be made—a field 150 yards in length. The plane, descending fast, headed toward the field which had been indicated, but as its wheels touched the earth it dived and rolled headlong. Witness saw the body of one man hurled clear, and a moment later there came a terrific explosion, killing Idzikowski with merciful speed as he sat strapped in the pilot's seat. The plane was demolished.

This was Major Idzikowski's second attempt to fly the ocean. In August of last year, he and Kubala took off from Le Bourget in a similar plane, but after nearly reaching the Azores, the airman put about and returned, landing on the ocean sixty miles off the Portuguese coast, where they were rescued by a German merchant ship.

On one occasion, Kubala was injured, and was confined to a hospital for several days. The extent of his injuries this time has not yet been ascertained, but the action of hospital authorities, in forbidding him to see interviewers, indicates his condition is grave. It is thought possible here that when Kubala is sufficiently recovered, he will be taken back to Europe aboard the Polish training ship Iskra, which was anchored in Horta at the time of the crash. The Iskra proceeded to Graciosa as soon as word was received of the disaster.

patrons of the local exchange would appreciate the change and enjoy the new system. Chairman Hyde answered in behalf of the townspeople and congratulated the company on its fine plan. He said that the people of Manchester realized what the telephone company was giving the town in the way of service. He was pleased, he said, to have a part in the ceremonies of inauguration of the new dial system. The dial which Mr. Hyde used, appropriately mounted and engraved was presented to him.

Inspect Plant. Following the cut-over of the system the guests were taken on inspection trips through the new building and later were given a lunch in the basement. All who visited the building for the first time were greatly impressed with the company's idea of direct service to its patrons. Everything has been planned to give the operator every chance to aid the patron. Dialing, of course, eliminates the human element to some extent, but operators are at hand to watch the machines work and aid any having trouble in putting through calls.

Immediately after midnight flooded the new machines were studded with calls, evidently made by the curious. Plant maintenance men were on hand to correct any defects but everything worked smoothly. Little or no trouble has been experienced, since the cut-over and Manchester people are rapidly acquainting themselves with the system.

"UNTIN' BOWLER" SINKS IN ICY BAY; CREW SAFE

Chicago-Berlin Plane Swept Out to Sea in Gale; Its Crew to Return to States.

Chicago, July 15.—Their Chicago to Berlin pathfinding plane, "Untin' Bowler," swept to sea in a gale and sunk among ice floes in Hudson Bay Strait, Pilots Parker D. Cramer and Robert H. Gast, and Robert Wood, historian of the flight, today were preparing to start for Chicago on the first steamship calling at Port Burwell, they reported in radio messages received here.

They probably will not reach Chicago until late in August. The ship was forced down by fog near Port Burwell last week. Ice closed around it. For days the crew strove to save it, but during a storm the ice gate the amphibian was carried out to sea and ground to pieces by ice floes.

The mayor expects that two Democrats and two Republicans will sign the document. Stevenson was dismissed because of his participation in a police raid on a local hotel where E. W. Broder, prominent lawyer, ill in bed, was receiving a call from a local society matron.

this world buy where they can to the best advantage. Rep. Mansfield (D) Texas, criticized the proposed 20 per cent duty on boots and shoes. He said the shoe industry has no foreign competition because of the importation of children's and women's shoes. He charged the real purpose of the shoe tariff is to raise the price of shoes and curb any possibility of competition by a high tariff wall.

WOULD REMOVE WALKER

Albany, N. Y., July 15.—William H. Allen, director of the Institute for Public Service, New York City, wants Mayor Walker removed immediately from office for alleged inefficiency and misconduct in office. A lengthy list of reasons for such action was received by Governor Roosevelt from Mr. Allen who says prompt action should be taken because Mayor Walker probably will be a candidate for re-election.

"Had every other major activity been grossly inefficient," said Allen, "Mayor Walker's mismanagement of the Department of Taxes and Assessments alone would call for his removal by the governor."

Those people out there are impossible! No culture, no polish, no manners, no anything that makes life worth living! All noise and so-called hustle and impossible demands!"

When you are in the know it always hands you a big laugh. In nine cases out of ten the man or woman who is emitting this line of bunk and soft soap is somebody who once stung the Hollywood masters for a big contract and then did not prove a drawing card in the movie houses, so that the movie kings failed to beg him to renew his contract at increased rates, or the same old rates, or lower rates, or any old rates at all.

Whereupon the actor hustled back to that dear Europe whence he originally came and immediately began giving out interviews telling how no money in the world would ever induce him to work in that horrid America again.

The cold truth—as some of the movie companies here in England realize—is that when an English actor or actress makes good in the movies in America, he or she stays there. The European companies can't afford to pay them big enough salaries to induce them to come back on this side for anything but a holiday jaunt.

The successful ones know that not only are the big salaries to be had on our side of the herring pond, but the big publicity, and the chance to appear in pictures on which money is simply lavished.

The Americans think in dollars where the English producers cogitate in pennies. There are now showing in London three talkies which probably cost more than all the English movies produced in this country combined in a year's time. And London hasn't seen and heard anything yet. Some of the biggest talkie successes of Broadway have not even been announced to appear in London up to date.

Stores along Main street will be closed under the agreement of the Merchants Division of the Chamber of Commerce. Plans for the combined outing of all stores fell through and only a few will hold individual outings. Several of the larger stores have already held theirs. Watkins Brothers will make its annual pilgrimage to East Hampton and E. J. Holl will be host to his force at his cottage at Bolton lake.

SUMMER MUSICALS AT ST. JAMES CHURCH

Yesterday's special summer musicale at the 10:30 o'clock mass in St. James's church, was the first of several that will be organized. Yesterday's program consisted of selections from Stearnes' "Vespers," Arlyne C. Morlarty, Claire Brennan and James Breen were the soloists. Organist Charles Packard is planning several more programs of the same type. Anthems and selections from sacred oratorios will be sung by the senior choir. At the 8:30 masses the junior choir of fifty voices will continue its programs of light anthems.

LOCAL VIOLINIST BACK AFTER CONCERT SEASON

Leonard Eccellente, local violinist, has returned home after having played a special engagement with the New York Opera Company at the Gallo theater and in St. Right Park in New York City, and in the Jersey theater in Newark, New Jersey. Mr. Eccellente played under the direction of Carlo Peroni, noted conductor, who has been connected with the San Carlo Opera Company for many years. During the coming fall and winter months, Mr. Eccellente has announced his intention of sponsoring a series of chamber music concerts locally. A trio consisting of violin, piano and cello under Mr. Eccellente's direction will be organized. This will be the first ambitious attempt to introduce chamber music concerts to Manchester.

SCHAUB RETAINS HIS "SHOE" TITLE Jimmy Schaub retained his title as the champion horseshoe plover of Hosiery Company No. 3 last evening when he successfully defended his laurels against Barrett. The champion got away to a bad start. He could not get his usual control and as a result Barrett topped the first game but only after a desperate defense. This game ended 21-19. But the second game was different. Jim hit his stride right off the reel and Barrett was snowed under 21-3. Both were tired as they toed the scratch for the third game. Barrett forced the issue but the uncanny control of the champion came back and after the players were all even, Barrett cracked and the champ romped home as he pleased, 21-3. Pete Happenny's cheering section did not bother Schaub who merely grinned and offered Pete a lesson after he had finished with Barrett. The champion now has the second leg on Fire Department cup. With television in full force, it is expected that one corner of the night club will have to be fixed up to look like a director's meeting. To be strictly ethical we judge that one should smoke at least 51 per cent of the brand of cigarettes which he endorses.

DIAL TELEPHONY

There are a great many conservatively disposed persons who just naturally resent any enforced change in the routine of life to which they have become habituated. The dial telephone brings such a change. The habit of receiving the unquestioning service of a central operator, when putting in a telephone call, is of long standing to nearly everybody—it is a life-long one to the majority. To be required now to do the job himself stirs the insurrectionary spirit in many an otherwise amiable and complaisant individual. But we can think of hardly anything over which there is any less use in kicking. Or, really, any less reason for the kicks.

You may like the dial phone or you may not—it is here and it is here to stay. It is here because it had become a necessity. Continued extension of the telephone service demanded one of two things—an ever growing increase in the operative forces of telephone exchanges, so great that presently we should have had an altogether undue proportion of the workers of any city giving up their time to the business of verbal communication, or else the resort to automatic connection which has now been brought about. It was inevitable that the telephone companies would establish the latter.

Perhaps the youngest of us, half or three-quarters of a century hence, may tell the grandchildren about the "good old days" when it was only necessary to pick up a telephone transmitter and have a "central" operator do all the work for us, but we doubt whether the younger generation of that day will be greatly impressed. Anyhow, oral orders for telephone connections are rapidly taking their place with fireplace ovens, the dodo and the carriage horse—something that had its time and its place, but passed.

Wherefore, whether you fancy the dial phone or not you'd better like it and save wear and tear on your nerves and temper.

RECKLESS CALL

For a cautious man Calvin Coolidge is guilty of one kind of recklessness that is surprising—unless an apparently genuine photograph labels him. We have just seen a picture of the former president standing up in a skiff boat, fishing. That is not, in itself, a particularly precarious proceeding, but there are two other factors in the situation. First, there is another occupant in the boat, evidently a companion angler. That is more or less important. It is one thing to stand up in a skiff boat when you are alone; it is another to stand up in a skiff boat when there is another person behind you, who by a very slight if sudden movement could easily joggle the boat enough to throw you off your balance. Unless you are prepared to swim for it, it is always had dope to stand up in a little boat in which there are other persons.

And now we come to the highly important point in all this. Perhaps Mr. Coolidge can swim. We don't know. We wouldn't be surprised to learn that he could—and we'd certainly not be surprised to learn that he couldn't. But we do know one thing—that neither he nor anybody else could swim one stroke in a pair of high rubber boots, for the most successful anchor ever attached to a human being is a pair of long rubber boots which, the instant you get overboard, fill with water and drown you with amazing promptitude. And Mr. Coolidge, standing up and fishing from a skiff boat, is wearing, in the picture, just the right kind of loose topped rubber boots to carry him to the bottom of the lake like a lump of lead. Let this picture be shown to every critic of the former President who declares that he never takes a chance. We'll say he's taking a whole lot of chances—chances we wouldn't take on a bet and that many a hardboiled old waterman wouldn't take.

HOOVER TREND

President Hoover's new Farm Board, which was scheduled to hold its first meeting today though still one member short of its full strength, will undoubtedly be able to function with far greater effectiveness than might otherwise have been the case, as a result of that very "vague" which its critics insisted marked the farm relief bill.

As it stands, the law gives the Farm Board a very great amount of latitude. No other administrative body, save the war and navy departments in time of conflict, ever enjoyed so free a hand in the employment of so much money—nor did any ever have its responsibilities so squarely put up to it.

As we see it, this board and its potentialities provide a first class example of the Hoover idea of government—which, unless we are mistaken, draws the sharpest distinction that has been made in many years between the proper functions of the legislative branch and those of the executive branch of the governmental machinery. For many years Congress has neglected major matters of purely legislative quality to quarrel over questions which are administrative in character. The Farm Relief bill and the broad powers and equally heavy responsibilities placed with the Farm Board reflect in a very interesting way the influence of Mr. Hoover's distinctive views in this relation. Before his period of service is ended we may look for other and perhaps more important manifestations of the same influence in the same direction.

THE CITIZEN'S JOB

The Danbury News is somewhat skeptical as to the conference of Governors at New London being able to accomplish much in the way of solving crime problems and points out that already everybody knows why there is so much crime and that nobody will do anything particular about the laxity of courts, the doctavailing of criminal and police activities, the freeing of criminals on technicalities, etc., until "John Citizen and his wife" stop fooling away their time over radios and the like and themselves do something about it.

Agreed. Criminalism and bad government go hand in hand. Bad government and the apathy of the citizen are twins. That nothing will be done to diminish crime until the citizens do it is just as sure as shooting. Now if the Danbury News or somebody else will tell John Citizen and his wife what is this thing that he ought to do, specifically, maybe a start can be made. We've done more or less of that kind of lecturing ourselves, for years, and yet every once in a while we seem to have mislaid our mental blueprint for a John Citizen campaign and if asked, all of a sudden, exactly what steps the citizens can actually take in order to get more honest and "meant" government and law enforcement, we'd be apt, we fear, to do some stuttering.

IMPERIAL SOVIETISM

Apparently the row between the Chinese Nationalist government and the Russian Soviet Union simmers down to an attempt on the part of the Chinese to grab back from Bolsheviki Russia that control in Manchuria which the old imperial Russian government, through "peaceful infiltration" and the conniving of that one-time bandit and subsequent "war lord" Chang Tsoo-lin, grabbed away from China early in the century.

Aside from the possibilities and probabilities, whether as to the chance of armed conflict between China and Russia or as to the outcome of such a struggle, there is one extremely interesting aspect of this controversy. In its propaganda, in its expressed contempt for the civilization of the rest of the world, the Russian Bolsheviki is forever attacking the "imperialism" of the "capitalistic" states. And yet, in its assumption of any rights at all in Manchuria the Soviet Union is doing nothing in the world but supporting the most outrageous imperialism of the czarist regime.

CHRONICS

An interesting report by the New York City Department of Corrections brings out the striking fact that almost exactly 40 per cent of the 21,000 persons received by that department during the last year were "repeaters" who had previously served anywhere from one to 65 terms in institutions under that department's charge.

These are relatively petty offenders, but a great many of the repeaters are chronic criminals nevertheless. Their encounters with the City Department of Correction may be merely interludes between encounters with the corrective department of the state, or they may be preliminary experiences to self-promotion into the world of felonies. They give evidence, however, that very nearly a half of the persons who break the laws sufficiently to get arrested and convicted are "bad eggs" and that at least that proportion of the sympathy extended to police court characters is wasted on undeserving objects.

WASHINGTON LETTER

By RODNEY DUTCHER

Washington, July 15—The problem of what to do with our ex-presidents may remain baffling and poignant, but the ex-secretaries of presidents are never in any doubt concerning their futures after they leave the White House.

Comfortable law offices and fat fees await them in Washington, where hundreds of lawyers get along wonderfully well without ever practicing any law at all. Only a distinct minority of the thousands of occupants of "law offices" here ever bother with court cases. Many of the others are commonly regarded as lobbyists or "fixers," who exert their talents and personal influence on Congress and the government departments on behalf of prosperous clients.

The several presidential ex-secretaries now doing business here have all practiced law in their time and are not unwilling to go into the courts, but they have joined the large, happy family of ex-cabinet members, ex-secretaries of state and other ex-government officials whose prosperity here has been largely dependent on a widespread belief that they are specially qualified to wrangle things out of the government.

Not Really Unethical

Very rarely is it specifically charged that one of these gentlemen used his official contacts improperly. It is probably quite natural that they should go into business where they are best known and where their most favorable opportunities appear to lie—that's not unethical. In doing so, doubtless no unworthy thought ever enters their heads.

But it is only natural that they are promptly sought out when outside interests go after legislative or administrative favors. In the absence of knowledge of law is essential for such business. These boys know the ropes. They know the people to see. And in the cases of ex-members of Congress they have the precious privilege of the floor.

Of course there is no sense in going out and calling people lobbyists unless everyone is agreed as to just what a lobbyist is. The dictionary says a lobbyist is one who solicits legislators for or against a bill.

It is hard to draw a line between lobbyists and "fixers," who seek to influence official decisions, in tax cases. Many do both.

If a lobbyist is one who seeks tariff favors for special interests, then at least two presidential ex-secretaries qualify. C. Bascom Slomp, former secretary to President Coolidge, has been representing firms interested in metal schedules. Slomp and his law partner have frequently been concerned in big money cases here in which the government had some sort of an interest, including alien property matters, the fight against the inheritance tax and Muscle Shoals. Very recently a Capt. Barlow, after satisfactory experience with the State Department in his attempts to collect some hundreds of thousands of dollars of which the Cubans are supposed to have robbed him, employed Slomp and Everett Sanders, another Coolidge secretary.

Seekers Tariff Boosts Sanders entered the Washington office of the law firm of Secretary of War Jim Good, which specializes in income tax cases and has represented the Alabama Power Co. Lately Sanders has represented the plate glass interests which want a tariff increase.

Ted Clark, Coolidge's erstwhile private secretary, has installed himself in one of the big new office buildings and is now said to represent the Liggett drug interests.

Joseph P. Tumulty, Woodrow Wilson's famous secretary, has had a law office here for eight years. He has practiced in contact with government departments and attended the hearings on the Walsh public utilities resolution. The name "Tumulty" was mentioned in one of the telegrams of the head of the power lobby here, but Tumulty has never been accused of lobbying.

George B. Cortelyou, former secretary to President Roosevelt, has been openly attacked as a lobbyist, though it was as president of the Consolidated Gas Company of New York that he came down here last year to join in the "power trust" fight against the Walsh resolution.

Jardine is On the Job Among recent spokesmen for corporations interested in the tariff bill was ex-Secretary of Agriculture William M. Jardine, who also represents some powerful radio interests here now. Jardine told the Senate Finance Committee last week that the best sugar industry needed a sugar tariff boost. Others who have been engaged lately in the sugar fight are Gen. Enoch H. Crowder, former ambassador to Cuba, and Major Gen. Frank Mc. Intyre, former Chief of the Bureau of Insular Affairs.

GOING PLACES AND SEEING THINGS

Hollywood, July 15—All Hollywood, and most of Los Angeles, is one continuous and elaborate stage set.

The influence of the cinema, if not the stage, has a strangle hold on the country side. Oil stations seek to look like a second act set of a musical show and cafeterias seek to look like romantic old Spanish missions.

This is a gorgeous land of make-believe in which most of the residents play a part. The sense of the fantastic and the unreal becomes an actuality. Every corner is decorated with a revelation in the art of stucco. A vague artificiality hangs in the air. It is the never-never-land, out of Peter Pan, and is the ideal vacation land for that reason.

The cinema has thrown its shadow over the realities of life, and the veriest school girl seeks to live up to the appearance of a cinema star. Hence there is a certain buoyancy which defies analysis. Complexions browned by the sun, children who seem like young Indians, school girls with long-curled bobs, who dress like popular movie stars; sport skirts and white trousers... a gay, flirtatious intimacy in the crowds.

For instance—there is a place in Hollywood where, upon Wednesdays and Saturdays, the who's who of the motion picture industry, take their lunch. It is called the Montmartre, although it resembles the colorful French district as much as coffee resembles malted milk.

On these days, "the stars" become the exhibitionists that most of them are. They glitter and dress in their wildest clothes and the boys put on their most shiekful raiment. Thus clothed they strut before the crowds of tourists and natives who try to find seats at the well paid for seeing favors for one corporation or another. Senator David I. Walsh of Massachusetts has proposed a Senate investigation of lavish corporation expenditures in the tariff fight and the large retainers alleged to have been paid to important Republicans for use of their influence. Several bills have been introduced in Congress requiring registration of lobbyists and one of these probably will be pushed at the next regular session.

Health and Diet Advice

By DR. FRANK MCCOY

THE BEST TIME FOR FASTS Bountiful summertime brings us a profusion of the most healthful and tasty foods. This is the time when nature produces the greatest quantity of the cleansing fresh juicy fruits and the succulent vegetables. Now is the time when people who have ill health should make up their minds to become well.

Many people object to the wintertime for fasting and dieting because they complain of feeling chilly, but this excuse does not exist during warm weather. When surrounded by warmth, the body is more capable of eliminating catarrhal troubles and rheumatic toxins. The profusion of bulky vegetable. Generally, so I am told, about 500 "yokels" gather outside to watch. The stars preen their feathers and behave in a manner becoming a performer, while the spectators fight for seats. The price of a ham sandwich soars to New York night club status, and mere visitors from Iowa, Nebraska and way points pay the bill without question—quite content with this stellar profligacy.

Scores of male stars and near-stars arrive unaccompanied, quite certain that there will be any number of lone girls willing to flirt. And they are not wrong. What is surprising is that, with their supposed fabulous salaries, the girls pay their own checks and seem quite willing to do it. I wish I could get away with that in New York.

Speaking of which, I am amazed at the attitude of mind here, which causes any number of beautiful girls and women to take on the support of a similar number of families and men. Scores of pretty wives are supporting their husbands and scores of beautiful daughters are supporting mothers and fathers. This, it would seem, is a place wherein the woman pays and pays and pays.

A few days after I arrived here, I met one of the loveliest blond youngsters that my old eyes have ever beheld. She had been brought here as a golden locked child and a typical "stage mother" had thrust her into the cinema spotlight, quite certain that she would become a future Mary Pickford. Years went by in which the child attempted everything from toe dancing to chorus work. She now does "bits" in the pictures.

"And," she told me, "I now support the whole family. There are thousands of girls like me here. Girls who have had good looks and a family. The family thrusts them into the pictures and then settle back to live on their income—if any. Which, if I seem a bit bitter, is the fact. Hollywood and Los Angeles are full of lovely youngsters supporting someone or other, and cranking the rather difficult gates in hope of a problematic stardom. GILBERT SWAN.

quent showers or swims. You need practically none of the heating foods.

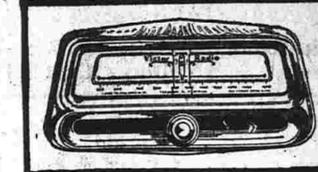

Those who are trying to reduce will find that they can live on nothing but fruits and vegetables until they have reduced to normal. Nature tempts us to make this a season of rejuvenation. Why not resolve to profit by the healthful aid of the summertime.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

(Gout)

Question—T. G. H. asks: "How is it so many of my friends have gout? I thought it was caused by drinking alcohol beverages, but since prohibitions that cause should be almost entirely removed."

Answer—If you take prohibition statistics seriously, you would also enjoy reading "Jack-The-Giant-Killer." Gout is one form of rheumatism and is caused by their rheumatic toxemia which comes from over-eating, over-drinking, using wrong kinds of food, and in improper combinations.

CHAIRMAN'S REPORT ON 9th's SCHOOLS STATUS

Proportionate Cost of Education No Greater Than in the Other Districts, Says Howell Cheney in Annual Meeting.

The following resume of the statement of the Ninth District schools was read by Chairman Howell Cheney of the District School Committee at the annual meeting of the district on Friday last week. In Mr. Cheney vigorously defends the further development of supervisory activities and shows that the Ninth District schools cost more, proportionately, than those of the other districts to be mistaken. He insists that, while it is unavoidable that school costs must be fixed with relation to community means, it is equally important that they should be studied with relation to the character of the education provided.

Mr. Cheney's report follows: Manchester's Problems. "Manchester's school problems, from the point of view of the taxpayer, are similar to those of every Connecticut community. They concern themselves primarily with the economies of school management. How much do our schools cost? What are our levels of teachers' salaries, as compared with other communities? What are we paying for textbooks and supplies? What is the cost of janitor service, of heat, light and fuel? What are we expending for the protection and upbuilding of the physical life and health of our children? These questions are as old as they are common to every town in Connecticut.

"Unfortunately, as questions of income and expense, they are apt to be settled only with relations to the standards and conditions of our assets and liabilities. It is certainly proper and altogether necessary that our ability to pay should be a measure of the standard of school expenditure. But unfortunately, the things we are purchasing, education, is not so subject to standardization that unit values can be established in many cases. Even the unit values that we have, such as cost per pupil in average attendance, or cost per pupil per grade attained, do not assure that a year spent or a grade attained have the same value to any two children, or even to the same children in two different years. If this is true, and it can hardly be doubted, is there no alternative public policy to that of fixing school expenditures as a mere matter of dollars and cents, which must be reduced to a question of the parity between towns having the same ratio of children to resources?"

To Clear the Way. "Perhaps the most helpful approach to securing an intelligent and sympathetic study of the value of what we are doing is to study these questions in unit costs, and to examine them in the light of the values received. "During the past two years every item of school expense has been under careful scrutiny and criticism by the public generally and by the Joint Board for the apportionment of school expenses in particular; especially a detailed comparison has been made between the expenses of the Ninth School District and those of the other school districts of the town. It has been found that not only was the total cost per pupil in average attendance lower as a whole in the Ninth, but that the major classification of expense, except those of supervision and special teachers, was lower in the Ninth than in the other districts.

Textbooks, Supplies. "Last year the cost of textbooks and school supplies which should depend almost entirely upon the number of children to be provided for, was found to be 12 1/2 per cent higher in the outside districts, and it was agreed that the Ninth District level should be accepted by the other districts.

"This year a common classification of accounts has shown that the outside districts were spending more for (1) janitor service, (2) fuel and light; and (3) hygiene, than was the case in the Ninth, and the reasons for this are now under study. The fact that the outside schools are in smaller units and in less well constructed buildings may account for the excess of fuel, but not for the amount of excess janitor service, nor for the expenses of hygiene.

"The average expense per child for room teachers is 19 per cent lower in the Ninth and in the cost of supervision and special teachers the Ninth District schools are costing more per pupil than the other districts of the Town, and properly their own children and of immeasurable assistance to the teachers. They could thus best assist in approving the quality of the homework laid out for the pupils and could thereby gain sympathetic ideas of what the school is endeavoring to accomplish in each individual case. These visits on the part of parents would be more effective if they could be prolonged for a brief period after school let out for a conference with the teacher and the principal of the building as to any questions of subject matter, or discipline which have concerned them about the school work of their children. Finally, if such visitors could communicate their observations, either orally or in writing, to superintendents of schools, it would be heartily welcomed by him.

The Pupil's Attitude. "Perhaps one of the most obvious tests of the value of a school is the children's attitude towards it. Are they making definite progress? Are they interested and gaining a mastery over their work? Do they co-operatively accept of the disciplines of the school and do they show themselves to be properly amenable to discipline as a matter of a normal habit? If the answer is 'yes' in each of these cases the community undoubtedly is served with effective schools. If otherwise, the causes and reasons should be cordially and sympathetically studied by both parents and teachers working together. All of the responsibility of the administration of the school would most earnestly appreciate an appraisal of the work of the school on the above basis. The fact that an unusually high percentage of children are promoted and an unusually low number fall in promotion would seem to indicate that as a whole our children are progressing, unless it should be shown that our standards are low.

Measuring Standards. "How may we ascertain whether our standards of accomplishment are as high as they may reasonably be, because the Ninth District will not be satisfied to have simply average schools. They want the best schools available for the money invested in them, especially as we have been shown not to have invested more than the average community in our educational work, as our resources are considerably higher than the average. We suggest an effort to measure this along the following lines: "1. What has been the holding power of our schools in comparison with those of the state; that is, their rate of survival by grades from the kindergarten to graduation from high school? If parents and pupils are more anxious to obtain higher grades of education, there is at least a primary presumption that the work is of good quality.

"2. What has been the average ratio of children registered to children in average attendance in comparison with the rest of the state? If we have a high ratio of average attendance, we have at least a minor measure of the effectiveness of school administration; especially if it were possible to obtain a comparison between the days lost on account of sickness, we might have an indication of the maintenance of health standards in our schools, as well as in the community at large.

"3. What has been the ratio of the children graduating from grammar school and entering high school, and similarly of those graduating from high school and entering college; and, what has been the success measured in college reports of the graduates of our high school in colleges? "4. There exist now standardized tests of accomplishment approved by the leading schools of education like Columbia, Yale and Harvard. These could be applied to the pupils from 14 to 16 years of age at the time of their leaving school and results compared with other measured school systems in Connecticut.

"These tests are now available in English, arithmetic, spelling, writing, United States history and, to a less authentic degree, in elementary science, physical training, drawing, music, cooking and sewing. To do this it would be necessary to classify the children by psychological tests into three grades of ability. Such tests are now considered as legitimate and scientific measures of comparison between various school systems. They of course do not touch the question as to the value of the thing itself tested; that is, of how much value is arithmetic, or United States history to the pupil. This has to be assumed.

"5. A study of those who had failed of promotion should indicate the causes, and the sources of responsibility.

Indirect Tests. "In addition to the above tests, there are certain indirect tests which would not establish definite measures but which would be an indication of the services that our schools were rendering, such as the following:

"1. What is the death rate in this community in comparison with that in other communities? "2. What is the crime rate? "3. What is the expenditure per 1,000 of population for poor relief? "4. What is the divorce rate? "5. What is the average earning power of the graduates of our grammar and high schools after they have been out of school 4, 8, 12, 16 or 20 years in comparison with schools of other communities, if such comparisons could be obtained? "6. What do the employers of the town think of the graduates of our schools as compared with those of other systems?"

Professional Survey. "Many large communities, under the pressure of increased taxation, have had professional surveys made of their school systems. If these are undertaken in a spirit of constructive co-operation with the school officers and teachers and if they honestly endeavor to improve the school system, they are valuable helps in the appraisal of the accomplishments in various localities. We have read many of these surveys and have as yet to see one that has not recommended a higher scale of expenditure rather than a lower. There appears to be no corps of educational experts who believe in a lower standard of expenditure; but they may accomplish the same thing by securing a more effective expenditure of the same amount of money.

Committee's Opinion. "Your committee naturally believes that your schools are economically and effectively administered. It is gratifying to record that very definite progress has been made in the line of economies during the last two years largely to the closing of the Open Air School, the elimination in some of the pre-vocational work and through an improvement in the operation of the heating plant and janitor service. These economies can not only be maintained but perhaps pushed a little farther; but educational progress through the whole of the United States is advancing very definitely along the line of a higher degree of individual treatment of pupils. This means a greater diversification of courses, a higher specialization of material and an individualizing of the work in all of the grades above the sixth. This would undoubtedly cost more money and should only be taken in the proportion that it can be shown to produce better results. This is the goal of accomplishment that we have set for ourselves.

Faith in Superintendent. "Not only do we have confidence in the fidelity, energy and intelligence with which your superintendent and his staff of teachers are handling your schools, but we have witnessed definite improvements in the last two years in the quality of the work accomplished. "More definite progress has been made in reaching individual cases and in the removal of individual difficulties, which will help individuals to find themselves in future years. We should, however, lay upon our faculties a word of caution:

"Sometimes the effort to provide advanced courses results in the carrying of individuals into work they are unfitted for and unable to do. The obligation rests upon the town to provide a free public education up to the age of 18 of a grade which the pupils are capable of undertaking. There is no obligation and no duty upon the town to provide types of education which pupils are incapable of benefiting from."

The Grand Circuit horses are coming to Hartford next month for the first meeting at Charter Oak Park in quite some time. And it is reported that the Hartford Grand Circuit club has put the mile track in the best shape it has been in years. Many horsemen declare that the track is one of the best in the country right now. That speaks well for the gentlemen in Hartford who are promoting the Grand Circuit in the Capitol City. $40,000 in purses will be hung up for the four-day meet and that ought to bring the topnotchers here if nothing else.

LEGION CARNIVAL OPENS TONIGHT

Parade at 7:30—Rides Equipment Is Erected This Morning.

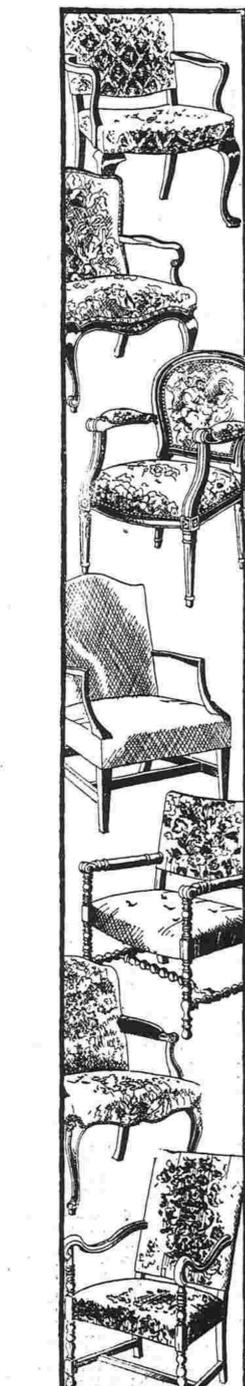

A street parade will open the Dillworth-Cornell Post No. 202 American Legion Carnival this evening at 7:30. Drum and Bugle Corps from Terryville and New Britain, and an escort of local band members will take part. The parade will form at Park and Main streets, proceeding to the carnival grounds, corner Center and McKee streets. The apparatus for the different rides arrived early Sunday morning but was not erected yesterday, owing to threatening weather. The manager decided to give his men a day off, and get an early start on that work this morning. The personnel of the vaudeville act arrived from New York yesterday, and is stopping at the Hotel Sheridan. Six local dealers will have displays on the grounds: Schaller's Garage, Kemp Bros., Cole Motor Sales, Crawford Auto Supply, Chevrolet Motor Car Co., and the Silent Glow Oil Burner Co. Plans had been made to put on exhibition, the freak two headed calf owned by T. B. Trombley of Broad Brook but the animal was sold to a New York man yesterday for the reported price of $1,000.

ECONOMY UNDERS SELLS GREEN AND WINS FROM LOCALS 12-6

Sipples, Shortell, Alexander and Putnam carried too heavy guns for the Green to silence yesterday afternoon and as a consequence the Economy Grocers, undersold, delivered and maintained a large lead over the Green team winning 12 to 6. The game was played at the West Side playgrounds and quite a crowd watched the teams put on a heavy hitting swatfest.

It would seem that the Grocers have gone out into the baseball wilderness and hand picked a lot of real first class ball players, welded them together and formed one of the best semi-pro teams in this neck of the woods. It was altogether to the credit of the Green to make a good showing as they did yesterday. Lefty McVeigh pitched a good game for the losers and showed plenty of stuff.

The fans were for the Green from the start. It was evident that the Grocers were going to give the locals a trimming right in the first frame, but the defeatist strategy and some real snappy fielding held the opposition to two runs. But the heavier hitting ability of the Grocers soon placed them well out in front but the Green, never discouraged, fought every inch of the way for victory and made it a real game in spite of the score.

The locals will practice at Woodbridge Field Tuesday evening. The box scores:

HUDSONS TO PLAY PIRATES TONIGHT

Senior Baseball League to Mingle at West Side Playgrounds.

Carlson's Playground Baseball League, Senior Side, will get underway this evening at the West Side playgrounds and it seems that there is going to be lots of baseball even if the Twilight League does not function. While these games are lacking in the sparkling play of a well balanced aggregation the fight and will to win make the contests enjoyable nevertheless.

An automobile expert believes that cars will soon be run by just add an attachment that will inflate a tire and we are sold.

JUST A JINX.

There is a box in the Cleveland ball park numbered 301-A. . . . And is the personal box of Water McNichols, secretary of the club. . . . And it is supposed to be a jinx box. . . . Bills Evans, business manager of the club, wouldn't sit in it on a bet. McNichols will use one of the chairs only when the team is ahead. . . . And if things begin to look bad he ducks out. . . . A newspaperman with a femme was sitting in the box recently and the Indians were taking a thumping. McNichols came down and ordered them out of the box. . . . And as soon as they left the Indians got seven successive hits. . . . And won the ball game.

BON AMI CLEANS UP SOUTHTON HANDILY 7 TO 0

The Southton baseball team came to Manchester Saturday afternoon and were all washed up by the Soap Makers at Hickey's Grove. The final score was 7 to 0 and came with a sickening thud in the sixth and seventh frames after both teams had battled hard and fast all the way. Godek led the visitors down with seven bingles, four coming after the seventh inning. His support was excellent and several timely plays aided the opposition to wonder where Manchester got such a snappy baseball team.

For six innings it was a pretty game to watch. Neither team was able to do much with the pitchers, but the Bon Ami gang got started in the sixth with a single by Pitt and a double by George Kelly. The real parade started next frame when six runs trickled across the plate allowing Godek to ease up and canter home a winner going away. The box score:

LEGION TEAM UNABLE TO STOP HARTFORD SQUAD LOSING 13-10

Fraser Forced to Retire Early in Game—Winners Hit Timely and Manage to Nose Out Manchester.

The local representatives in the American Legion Junior baseball competition suffered their first defeat Saturday afternoon at the West Side playgrounds at the hands of the Cardinal Juniors. Hartford's entry and state champions in 1928. The final score was 13-10, but what pleased the largest crowd of the season was the way the boys

MANY OLD STARS MAY PASS ALONG BASEBALL'S WAY

Former Diamond Stars Verging on Discard to Minors or Oblivion.

By DAVIS J. WALSH.

New York, July 15.—Two years ago, Walter Johnson pocketed the glove that had been his through a generation of greatness and, with gallant head held high, he walked into the shadows, never to be seen again as an active member of a baseball club.

Only a memory, it would say that the next ranking star to whom oblivion beckons is Grover Cleveland Alexander.

Old Eppa Rixey, the Virginia colonel who came up to the Phillies only a year or so after Alexander in the Pat Moran era, is another whose days on the big time seem to be numbered.

It may be, however, that Quinn has sacrificed himself on the altar of team success. He pitched fourteen great innings against the Yankees in the memorable series of late June, almost every inning of them a pinch that hammered at his emotions and gripped his heart.

Finally, beaten at last, Quinn staggered from the diamond at the end of that heart-breaker, so weak that teammates had to half-carry him to the dressing room.

Urban Faber, another ancient salivary gland, is not long away from dismissal, either. Nor is Sam Jones, who hurt his arm pitching against the Yankees some time ago and hasn't been with the Washington club since.

TOOLEY, THE TANKER

Cyril Tooley, who won the British amateur golf championship this year and will compete in the American amateur in September at Pebble Beach, Calif., ran a tank in the British forces in 1917.

Engineer Head

Edward P. Warner, former assistant secretary of the new aeronautics, is the new president of the Society of Automotive Engineers. Warner's election places at the head of one of America's largest engineering societies the first aeronautics expert to hold the office.

LITTLE INTEREST BEING SHOWN IN THURSDAY'S BOUT

Walsh says Everybody Will Make Money Except Charity—Boxing in a Slump Now.

New York, July 15.—A lot of the boys have been working their minds to the bone in an effort to call the winner of the Loughran-Braddock fight for the light heavyweight championship on Thursday night, the match being fraught with some uncertainty.

For one thing, the proposition is $50,000 on the cuff to Loughran for his end of the purse. It probably is cutting Braddock in for 12 1/2 per cent of the net, and it is splitting dollar for dollar with the Madison Square Garden Corporation.

It was made months ago, in a moment of hysteria when the Garden Corporation thought John Dempsey was going to do something big for Umberto Fugazy, instead of to him.

The fight went into cold storage, for some reason or none at all, and when it was brought out, it was still cold. Braddock had made a losing fight with Leo Lomaxi, Loughran had been out of New York rings for upward of a year and altogether it looked as though comparatively few women and children would be trampled underfoot in the rush to the box office.

So another triumph for big business was scored, and while the daughters of Jacob won't buy fiddle de foie gras for breakfast the morning after the encounter they at least can go for double portion of oat meal. It is claimed that everybody will make some money out of the fight.

RADIO, PLANE IN ALASKA TRADE BRINGING BOOM

Washington.—Alaska is adapting its commercial life to two of the greatest of modern inventions—the airplane and the radio—more rapidly than any other section of Uncle Sam's vast domains.

Trappers have learned that frequently they can save a month getting their furs to Seattle by using the airplane to take them out of the interior, according to Major Malcolm Elliott, president of the Alaska road commission.

Commercial aircraft firms operating lines for carrying of passengers and light freight are providing satisfactory service and making money, he added.

Alaskan officials also are pushing a good roads program inaugurated with appropriations from Congress on the ground that they are necessary in the movement of freight too heavy to be handled by airplane, as well as to provide avenues for pleasure cars of the 60,000 residents.

These Kansas City Society Women Crave Sun-Tan

Sun-tan—that's the thing these days. And society women the country over are getting it one way or another, either through outdoor sports, or as these Kansas City society women are doing. Here's a group atop the roof of the Kansas City Athletic Club taking sun-tan exercises to open the pores of the skin before they lie and sit on mats for hours in the rays of a scorching sun. Dr. Joseph A. Reilly, athletic director, is pictured in the center.

FANS LIKE HACK WILSON'S PUNCH

Cubs' Player Mauls Red Bench Warmer in Free-for-All.

By WM. M. BRAUCHER

A couple of weeks ago Boss Joe McCarthy of the Cubs demoted Rogers Hornsby from fourth place in the batting order and installed Lewis Robert "Hack" Wilson to the cleanup role.

It begins to become fairly evident that Hack is going to be a cleanup man in every sense of the word. Also, it begins to look as if baseball were going to be put back on the yest-me-and-I'll-bust-you basis of the old glorious and gory days.

McCarthy must have seen plainly that Hack had gone into the cleanup business in a large way when the human freeping walked over to the Red's bench in Cubs' park and placed a silencing paw upon the person of Ray Kolp. Ray had been crating about Hack in this way and that.

That night, as both clubs were leaving Chicago, Kolp went to his berth 20 minutes before train time, but Pete Donohue lingered on the platform to say a few words to Mr. Wilson and got knocked stiff. Twice at bat in the cleanup role, Hack is batting 1.000.

Manager Jack Hendricks of the Reds was not slow to take a cue from Hack's leads, and deposes and says that when the Cubs come to Cincy August 5 for a double-header there may be quite a little confusion and alarm.

Maybe baseball needs a couple of invitational free-for-alls, like they used to have in other days in St. Louis, Cincy and New York. Whenever New York came to Cincinnati, excursion trains from many miles would haul the angry customers to Redland. Part of these would be McGraw partisans; the others, Reds. Finally the railroads cut out this monkey business, because Weldman's ruined most of the coaches when the fans would start debating McGraw's merits and demerits on the way home.

And just about this time last year Mayor Prentice and a few more leading citizens were in New York and fell victims to a common malady with folks from the rural sections.

And we often wonder if Hizzoner met Kearns in New York at that time. The real reason for this is apparent when one has the privilege (?) of getting the genial Sam into conversation regarding his chances for the mythical town title. Kearns is a blushing violet beside Samuel when the Mayor gets talking about his team. Well there is a lot in having confidence in one's team, but then again we all know what happened to Kearns. He is off the sports map now.

THIS HAS HAPPENED

MOLLY BURNHAM inherits $10,000 from an elderly aunt the day she is graduated from college, and the girls immediately tell her how she ought to spend it. But Molly is very much in love with JACK WELLS, draftsman in an architect's office. A handsome boy and lovable, but very poor.

The day she learns of her good fortune she borrows money from a rich classmate and gives a memorable party. Afterwards she spends the night with her dearest friend, RITA MELNOTTE. And Rita, after they have gone to bed, tells her a number of things. Rita has been secretly married to BOB NEWTON, a struggling young lawyer—one of those companionate marriages. She confesses that their experiment is a heart-breaking failure. And she warns Molly to be careful.

Next day Molly meets Jack, and tells him she has decided to look for work. Molly can really write very well. She means to look for a position on a newspaper, and have a career of her own.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER V

"Better wear dark clothes," counseled Rita. "It doesn't do to look like a frivolous young thing when you're job-hunting."

So Molly put on a blue crepe de chine ensemble and a little dark hat. And Rita wore a black dress, with a hat of lipstick red. It didn't make any difference what Rita wore. She always looked conspicuous. She never made up, but her mouth was red as blood. And her skin was the natural olive that half the girls in college strove to acquire with a new kind of face powder.

When she was with Rita, Molly seemed very young and sweet and fragile. She thought herself that she looked contrived, and attempted sophistication with plenty of rouge and lipstick.

"Wipe it off," commanded Rita. "You look like a nice child masquerading as a chorus girl. It's a good idea to look intelligent when you're trying to sell yourself for a salary."

So Molly obediently toned down her mouth, and rubbed her cheeks with her handkerchief.

On the train they outlined their plans. Rita was going to look for work in a department store. "I'd like to sell," she said, "and I think I'd be pretty good at it. In the sports shop of a big store, perhaps. I've a natural flair for clothes, and I like to see girls wear the right thing."

"You know I'm going to law school this winter, didn't you? I can go nights. And in three years I'll be practicing law with Bob. I'd like to specialize on legal work for women. I should think women would rather have their problems solved by a woman than by a man."

"Oh, no," Molly interrupted. "I don't think so, Rita. Women go to lawyers for sympathy pretty much. There's no kick in getting consolation from another woman. They'd rather enlist the commiseration of a big strong man."

Rita turned to her newspaper. But Molly was too excited to read. Her own folded paper lay across her knees. She felt they were going to be together, and began to compose little speeches. "How do you do. My name is Molly Burnham. I'm looking for a position. . . . No, I haven't had very much experience. . . . (She felt they would ask her that) That is, not metropolitan experience. I was Editor-in-chief of our college paper. And I had a verse published in POETRY." She felt in her purse. Yes, the clipping was there. Probably some editor would like to see it.

Molly was going to look for work in a newspaper office. She was a bit vague about the best way of offering her services. It sounded awfully conceited to say she would like to write editorials. Because everybody who wrote editorials, she supposed, was old, and had a beard. It would be loads of fun to write about the theaters. But probably you didn't get to be a fanatic critic right away. One thing she wouldn't do—and that was society. She didn't particularly care for women's clubs either. But started it would be just as well to do almost anything. Just get started. Maybe she'd better turn down women's clubs after all.

Rita laid down her paper. "Where are you going first?" she asked.

Molly opened her bag and produced a sheet of purple stationery. "I've copied the newspaper addresses from the telephone book," she said. "You know the family's going to have an absolute fit when they know I have a position. And I think it would appear them if I got on an intellectual paper. So I mean to try the dignified ones first. Maybe they won't take me though, so I've copied every address in the directory. Where are you going?"

Rita mentioned a store well known for its sport shop. "And, after that," she said, "I'll make the rounds. You're so sure of yourself. Molly it's funny. That's because you've never looked for a job before. I've worked every vocation since I've been in college. Well, I know what it is to plug around from one place to another. I've done it when I was hungry, and the soles of my shoes were thin as paper. I remember one Christmas. . . . Oh, well. . . . But I'm not sure of myself. I'm glad to death," protested Molly. And she began again, silently, to practice her little introductory speeches.

When Rita interrupted again. "What are you using these days for money, dear?"

"Oh, I borrowed a hundred for

"Tomorrow morning, then," he instructed. "Eight-thirty."

the party," explained Molly, "and I've some left. I haven't any idea how long it takes to settle an estate, or how long it will be before I get my $10,000. I'll have to be careful until I hear something definite from Dad. By the way, I wired the family that I was going to stay east for a while, and I'd write after I was established. Would you like to take a room with me?"

Rita shrugged. "I guess you forget that I'm a married woman."

"But I thought Bob didn't want to announce your marriage."

"He doesn't. But he wants me to live with him just the same."

"Oh," Molly was silent for a few minutes. "You know, Rita, I think that's sort of horrid."

Rita's red mouth twisted wryly, and she did not answer.

"Suppose we meet for tea," she suggested. "I suppose you're having dinner with Jack?"

They parted at the station. And at ten o'clock Molly began the conquest of Newspaper Row.

At two she was unutterably weary. She remembered that she had had no lunch, and stopped at a restaurant for a cup of coffee. When she had finished it, she placed her sheet of purple stationery on the counter, and checked off the offices she had visited. Seven. Seven times in four hours she had been told courteously, but firmly, that she was not wanted.

There were various reasons. They usually suggested that she come back when she had had a little experience.

"But where am I going to get experience?" she had asked, a trifle wildly.

That was at the seventh place. And the editor had shrugged, and smiled kindly, and said he was really very sorry. Most of them said they weren't taking on any one. . . . Just now. . . . Later, perhaps.

"There more places," she reflected. "And then it will be all over." She wondered what girls did when they didn't have any money, or any home.

At the eighth place an office boy told her the city editor was at lunch.

"And if you're looking for a job," he volunteered, "it won't do you any good to wait, because he's turned down about 50 college girls already."

"What made you think I'm a college girl?" she asked.

The boy grinned. "Oh, you college girls don't do nothing but look for jobs in June," he told her. "There's been a regular procession of girls, ever since the schools closed."

She sighed, and took the elevator to the street floor. The last place was across the street. It sounded exactly like the men in the other eight offices. And the place smelled like all the other places.

No one paid any attention to her. She approached a man with a green shield over his eyes and a cigar in his mouth.

"Will you tell me, please, where I can find the city editor," he asked.

"I'm the city editor," he told her. And that rather took her breath away.

"I'm looking for a job," she said simply. "I haven't had any experience. But I know I can write."

"No experience at all?"

"No," she said.

"What do you want to do?"

"Anything."

"Got plenty of nerve?"

"Oh—yes."

"Do you know what an Inquiring Reporter is?"

"Yes. I've read the column in your paper. It's somebody who goes around asking questions, and then writes what people tell him."

"Well," the man grinned amiably. "It's a little more than that. People are so dumb, you know. The Inquiring Reporter sort of puts things in their mouths. Whimsical, witty things—if he's clever. Makes 'em think they said 'em, you know. Wouldn't ever do to misquote anybody. You get it?"

Molly swallowed. It might be simple enough, but it sounded queer.

"Oh, yes," she declared. "I understand."

"Well, our Inquiring Reporter is drawn for jury duty," he told her. "If you think you can do his job, I'll give you a try at it. Maybe you can hit an original slant on the thing. When do you want to go to work?"

Molly's heart bounded joyfully, and her mouth was so dry she could scarcely swallow. She hoped her voice wouldn't tremble.

"Any time," she said.

"Tomorrow morning, then," he instructed. "Eight-thirty. Bring in some sample questions when you come. I'll send you out with a typewriter. Eighteen dollars a week to start, and more if you're worth it."

Eighteen dollars a week. Well it was a beginning anyhow. Just when she was getting so awfully discouraged, too. Her very last chance, in fact. It was wonderful, really.

She wondered if Rita had been as fortunate. But Rita, over their sundae 20 minutes later, was desolate.

"The only offer I had," she declared, "was a chance to model in a shop on Boylston street. I want to use my brain."

Molly was meeting Jack at half-past five.

"I'll have to admit," she reasoned, "that there's nothing dumb about getting a position the very first day you look for one."

And when she met him, she clasped his arm happily. "Guess what?" she commanded.

"You're going home?" he hazarded hopefully.

"I should say not," she chided. "You'd never guess. I'll have to tell you. I've a position. Jack! A perfectly wonderful position on a perfectly wonderful newspaper."

"Is that so?" he was maddeningly noncommittal.

"Aren't you glad?"

"Why should I be glad?"

"He'll have to love me as he saw the article in the paper. All right, sweetheart, I didn't mean to be hateful. If you're glad, I'm glad. I'd some news of my own, and you sort of took the wind out of my sails, that's all."

"What's your news?" She was frigidly polite.

TODAY IS THE ANNIVERSARY

THE WAR OF 1812.

On July 15, 1813, the Massachusetts legislature voted against the continuance of the War of 1812.

This act, on the part of one of the strongest and most powerful states in the newly organized Union, found sympathy with other states and indirectly played a part in the historic Hartford convention.

Although the federalists were in control at the time, the war was very unpopular in New England, especially since the Embargo Acts proved injurious to their commerce.

The Hartford convention, however, adjourned sine die after the conclusion of the war. Delegates, including 12 from Massachusetts, were still in secret session when peace was declared. It was first believed, because the sessions were secret, that Massachusetts and other states planned secession from the Union, but this was denied.

BESTS LAST YEAR.

May's motor vehicle output totaled 624,000 units. This is 36 per cent above the production for the same period last year, although it is 6 per cent under the production of April, 1929.

The WOMAN'S DAY

By ALLENE SCANNER

The great American home has been getting nobody less than Henry Ford all hot and bothered for some time.

It is archaic, he says. Nothing has been so tardy in feeling the touch of this modern twentieth century as the home.

It is wasteful, inefficient, cumbersome. It wears out women.

Take this matter of meat getting alone. The great industrialist says, "Speaking of cooking—you remember what I said about the factory removing task-labor from the home? Well, there is there more drudgery than in cooking and dish washing?"

"The homes of the future will have no cooking inside. Individual cook-houses and kitchens will disappear. There will be community culinary centers where every variety of food desired will be scientifically cooked and delivered to homes, much more cheaply done than individual cooking can do it and generally much better done."

NOW HENRY!
Now to cross rapiers a little with Henry who knows his industry but does not know his women.

If houses and the processes of housekeeping have clung to the inefficient and old-fashioned longer and more tenaciously than any other workers in the vineyard and any other industry, it's because women have been ready for nothing else.

It is all very well to prattle about "the modern woman" with her clubs and her work outside the home and her civic causes, and all things so much more interesting to her, more suited to her talents, than work inside the home.

But it's the old story of the articulate foisting their own opinions and desires upon the inarticulate.

The woman who can write probably despises housework, so she puts forward the idea that all women despise housework.

But for every one of her there are a hundred souls perfectly fitted to the one job of housework, and utterly miserable at the thought of having the only job they know snatched away from them.

MORE MISERY
Community kitchens have been

Are mothers leaning over backward in their anxiety to prevent children from becoming conceited? It has been our custom for some time now to tell them that they look "so nice and clean!" never mentioning their lovely hair, exquisite complexions, or wonderful eyes, for fear they get to be vain.

I wonder how many little boys and girls never hear a compliment about themselves beyond the fact that they're "nice and clean," or something equally wholesome but without satisfaction to their kept little ears. So many I'm afraid. Because I've seen and I know.

Children Fear Homelessness.
There is a most unhappy complex waiting around the corner that I call for want of a better name the "ugly complex" for the child who becomes convinced that he can never look anything but "nice and clean." I've seen little girls sob their hearts out because they just knew they were homely.

I don't know why we seem to think it is so important to keep this terrible black cat from jumping out of the bag and parading the hideous truth. Unless we're foolish to the other extreme and make the matter of their looks an obsession, I don't believe there is very much dynamite in telling a child occasionally that he's one very good-looking chap, and that we're proud, of having him in the family.

Of course if a child is plain he, or she, needs to be told it more than ever. That goes without saying. But a big lot of the other ones suffer too. All children are lovely. Youth is always beautiful.

But I am not selecting any particular type of child for discussion. The thing is—tell the children they are good looking often enough to convince them that the contrary is not the case.

The "Clothes Complex."
Clothes have something to do with the "nice and clean" custom, probably. We're afraid to tell them they look pretty just so they will not get the idea that clothes count for too much.

A clothes obsession is a bad thing. Once a child is convinced that he can't look nice (perhaps I'd better say "she") without a lot of fine clothes, I'm afraid we've paved the way for trouble. If the time comes when a girl can't have them, she is too likely to develop an inferiority complex about her appearance, having formed the unbreakable habit of thinking fine clothes an absolute requisite to beauty.

Of course we do well to avoid that. We shouldn't make it a habit of telling children they are pretty only when they are dressed up. All children should be dressed plainly as far as that goes.

But certainly we can add a little sugar to this wholesome "nice and clean" diet once in awhile.

SUMMERY PRINT.
There isn't any better fabric to choose for summery wear than cotton voile in attractive print, as shown in Style No. 590. It achieves effective contrast through plain voile in harmonizing tone. The annual arrangement of tiers creates an exceptionally slender line at back. Note the dipping length of double back tiers, and treatment of triple tiers at front. The neckline is becoming rolled into revers with bow tie. It is designed in sizes 16, 18, 20 years, 36, 38, 40 and 42 inches bust. Voile in gingham check is very jaunty. Printed lawn, sheer, plain and printed linen, printed rajah silk, crepe de chine, georgette crepe, flowered and plain chiffon, and organdie are suitable for this charming model. "It is no service to the farm family to keep it on the land, at the cost of a declining standard of living. Nor is it a service to the state. Hints On How To Keep Well by World Famous Authority

BE SURE OF PHYSICAL CONDITION BEFORE YOU TAKE UP TENNIS

EDITOR'S NOTE—This is the last of a series of articles in which tennis is considered as a hot weather recreation from the viewpoint of a physician.

BY DR. MORRIS FISHBURN
Editor Journal of the American Medical Association and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine

One of the chief difficulties of which tennis players complain is trouble with the knees and the feet.

Like basketball, tennis is not infrequently associated with a condition known as internal derangement of the knee joint, in which one of the cartilages between the long bones of the thigh and of the leg is broken and when the joint is moved these tissues are pinched and swell. The knee then becomes locked in a half-flexed position and until the swelling goes down it is impossible to move the joint satisfactorily.

The condition tends to recur when a sudden turn is made with the foot fixed and in many instances tennis players have been completely incapacitated for the game by the repetition of this accident.

The surgeons have developed an operation which involves removal of the cartilages or at least of the broken portions, whereby the condition is promptly cured.

The demand on the feet in tennis is as great as in any form of athletics. The tennis player has to be on his toes. Flat feet and broken arches are impossible for a player in this game. If the shoes are improperly developed for the tennis player they tend to break down the arch and to form callouses and corns which produce pain and make the playing of the game impossible.

Improperly fitted clothing may produce irritations of the skin which result seriously in anyone. Therefore, this sport which places such demands upon the human body must be begun with proper equipment, proper training and a proper study as to the physical condition before one can even hope to reach the heights of championship tennis.

BEFORE THEY BECAME STARS

Gloria Swanson was a Waitress; Clara Bow, a Doctor's Assistant at $12 a Week, and Dorothy Sebastian a Runaway.

By DAN THOMAS.

Hollywood, Calif.—One of the favorite expressions around make-believe hamlet always has been "I knew him when." Every time a person makes good and is elevated to a high position, there always are scores who make that boast.

We have decided to let you in on the early careers of some of the notables who around the film colony.

$12 a Week.

Clara Bow worked in a doctor's office in New York for the magnificent sum of $12 a week and spent four hours a day traveling from her home in Brooklyn to the office and back again.

William LeBaron, production chief at the RKO studios, was a newspaper and magazine writer and later became managing editor of Oppler's Weekly. At that time he had no thoughts of entering the picture business. He wanted to continue his career as an editor and author.

Hal Skelly, noted stage and screen comedian, was traveling with a medicine show through the southern states some years ago. In those days the actors also had to help make the medicine which was sold at each performance.

Wallace Beery spent several seasons with Ringling Brothers circus as an elephant trainer and actor.

Gloria, Waitress.

While still quite a young girl Gloria Swanson, who incidentally was Wally Beery's first wife, worked in a glove factory in Chicago. She also worked as a waitress in that city.

Efch von Stroheim was a railroad section hand in Germany before coming to this country.

Myles Conolly, a supervisor at RKO, got a Boston newspaper after he was mustered out of the navy at the close of the war because he thought such a position wouldn't require much work. He soon found out differently, however, so he gave it up to join the movies where a comparatively easy life was assured.

Dorothy Sebastian ran away from her home in Birmingham, Ala., to become a dancer in George White's "Scandals" in New York about five years ago.

Clarence Brown spent a number of years as an automobile engineer and salesman before he ever had any idea that there was a future for him in the cinema racket.

Johnny Mack Brown is almost as well remembered by some for his exploits on the gridiron as for his work before the movie cameras. He was a halfback on the University of Alabama eleven for three years and is one of the few sport notables ever to make the grade in celluloid.

MURDER DWELLS AT BACK DOOR OF CHICAGO'S ELITE

Chicago—The most cosmopolitan district of any city in the world, it is believed, is on the north side of Chicago in a territory a mile and a half in length and scarcely a mile wide.

Therein, along the so-called Gold Coast, dwell Chicago's richest and foremost society leaders at their back door. It is the artists of the city and the would-be bohemians; adjoining them the "floating" population of North Clark street, and just to the West the "Little Hell" of Chicago with its notorious "death corner" where so many have been killed in blood-fueled feuds.

From rags to riches; from pomp and power to murder and crime and gangland, all within a mile range. This, in short, is the description of Chicago's near north side given by Dr. Harvey Z. Zorbaugh in a sociological study issued by the University of Chicago. Dr. Zorbaugh is now on the faculty of New York University.

Old Society's Gone. Society persons themselves helped to contribute to the book. The old order of things, society of the eighties, with dowager queens reigning, is passing and leadership today among the elite has been assumed by progressive rich young folk who can keep pace with modern times. Social life is described as a "constant game of wits and riches, with the goal of prestige, position and influence."

In this district is the spacious home of Mrs. Edith Rockefeller McCormick, the massive Drake Hotel, the Chicago Historical Society building and others. A scant few blocks away is the gloomy Chicago River with its factories, docks and evil smelling dark pilings.

Nearby are scores of little bohemian cafes, filled with the "hobohemians" of Chicago, the failed artists and writers. One street is dotted with speakies hidden away in rickety buildings built long before the old World's Fair in the past century. Truck drivers, railroad workers, and mendicants brush shoulders with society persons strolling on Lake Shore Drive, only a few feet away.

Scores killed. Then, "death corner," the Italian's tumbled, Gaunt tenements housing ill fed children, shabby men and women, lacking in air. It speeds, if it is sluggish, if it loses power on long runs, at high speed, on hills or on a hard pull, the spark plugs should be examined. Any of these conditions may be due to dirty plugs.

All that is needed to correct such faults is to clean the plugs or, if the car has gone some 10,000 miles with the same "park plugs," to replace them with new ones. This mileage is about the limit at which engineers put the life of spark plugs. After that they cannot be expected to operate efficiently.

To clean spark plugs, fill the lower part of the plug with alcohol, metal polish or equal parts of ammonia and water, and let stand for a few minutes. Rub the carbon from the insulator with a cloth-covered stiff wire or wooden peg. Then wipe the plug dry. Clean the points with emery cloth and adjust the points.

Adjustment of the spark plug gap is important. The gap for use in average motors should be not wider than .025 inch. For high compression motors it should be .020 inch. At the same time the distributor contact points should be adjusted. These should be between .015 and .020 inch in width of gap.

The reason for the shorter gap in spark plug and distributor in high compression, high speed motors is that less time is afforded the ignition coil to build up the voltage necessary for the proper spark.

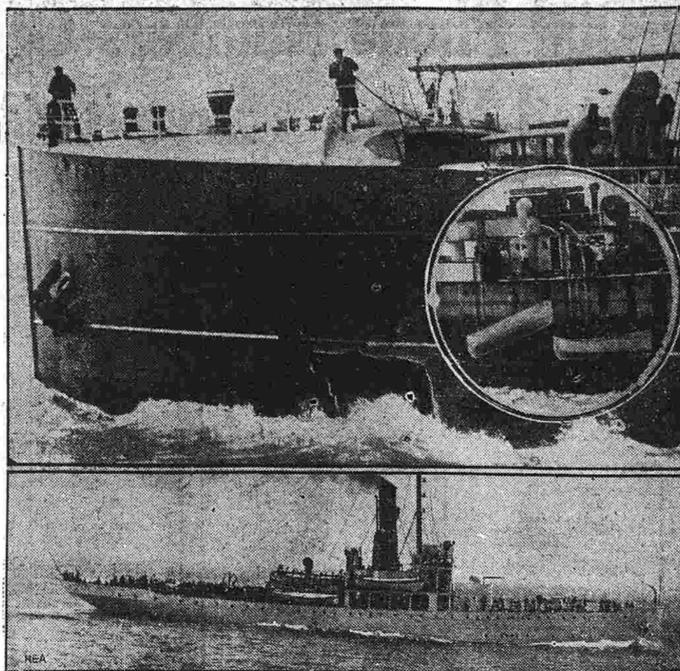

Even when the motor is not of the high compression type, if it is operated at high speeds, it requires a different type of spark plug from that used for average driving. And even with the proper spark plug, the distributor may cause trouble. If the gaps between the distributor contact points are too wide, trouble may be experienced at high speed, while satisfactory operation may be had, at low speed. And if the gap is too small, the trouble may be reversed.

No small gap in the distributor may cause almost constant contact from one point to another. There will not be a clean, sharp break as required for proper operation, and the coil will not be able to build up a high enough voltage to deliver to the plugs.

The ignition system therefore should be checked up every 1,000 miles, with special view toward keeping the breaker contacts clean, square, and at the proper gap, cleaning the spark plugs and checking up the gaps between the electrodes.

That Extra "X". Edd Roush spells his name that way, but Jimmy Fox added the superfluous "X" to his name when he reached the majors.

AFTER STEAMER AND CUTTER MET IN FOG

Here's what happened when the coastal liner Prince George, bound from Nova Scotia to Boston with 267 passengers, collided with the Coast Guard patrol boat Agassiz in a black fog about 50 miles from Gloucester, Mass. The NEA and Herald photo at the top shows the gaping hole torn in the bow of the steamer by the tiny speedster, and in the inset you see the lifeboats of the Prince George which were lowered to transfer passengers to the less damaged Agassiz. It then, however, was dangerously overloaded. The Coast Guard cutter Mohave, racing to its aid, reached the Agassiz and took on the passengers to land them at Boston. The cutter, which figured in a sensational rescue last winter, is pictured below with its afterdeck crowded with passengers and crew of the Prince George. None was injured and both ships safely reached port.

How's She Hittin'?

By ISRAEL KLEIN, Science Editor, NEA Service

The high compression and fast-speeding engine in use today has raised the importance of the spark plug in the proper operation of the motor. Considerably greater demand is made upon it and a greater variety of plugs has been found necessary to furnish the best performance under varying conditions.

To operate the motor efficiently, therefore, the motorist should become acquainted with proper spark plug operation and adjustment.

A large percentage of engine trouble may be traced to the spark plugs and eliminated by knowing what to do under the circumstances. If the motor is hard to start, if it misses at low idling speeds, if it is sluggish, if it loses power on long runs, at high speed, on hills or on a hard pull, the spark plugs should be examined. Any of these conditions may be due to dirty plugs.

All that is needed to correct such faults is to clean the plugs or, if the car has gone some 10,000 miles with the same "park plugs," to replace them with new ones. This mileage is about the limit at which engineers put the life of spark plugs. After that they cannot be expected to operate efficiently.

Britain's Flying Duchess, 64, Soon To Attempt A Record Hop To India

The 64-year-old flying Duchess of Bedford, right, and Captain C. D. Barnard are planning a speed flight from England to India in an attempt to break the present record of 50 hours. The Duchess' monoplane, pictured below, is a 450-horsepower Fokker-Jupiter.

By MILTON BRONNER.

London.—Germany gave to the world the Flying Dutchman—but he was only a legend—while England has given to the world the Flying Duchess, the very active, very daring Duchess of Bedford, who, despite her 64 years, is going to try to break the record for a non-stop flight to India.

This flying business is only one of the many activities of this noblewoman whose love match with her titled husband is one of the conspicuous successes of British society.

Both are keenly interested in natural history. The Duke for many years has been President of the London Zoological society and he and his duchess have at their enormous place at Woburn Abbey one of the largest private zoos in the world. Both are keen sports and ardent fishermen. During the war the Duchess founded her own hospital near Woburn Abbey. She still maintains it and often works there herself, being an expert radiologist.

"Air-Minded" at 62. In 1927, at the age of 62, when most women are content to stay home quietly or to take slow motor drives, she suddenly became interested in aviation and enlisted the services of a young aviator, Captain C. D. Barnard, who had a distinguished record in the World War. She bought a small Fokker machine and was soon flying all over England, often taking the controls herself. At that stage she thought nothing of flying over to see the Grand National of the boat races.

Two years ago she started from the big lawn in front of Woburn Abbey and flew over Paris, Burgos, Madrid, Seville and over the Mediterranean to Tangier in Morocco and back. The 3,800 miles, including visits and stops at various points, were done in eight days. She bought a giant blue and gold Fokker-Jupiter monoplane last year. With Barnard and another airman, she set forth in an effort to fly to India and back in eight days. The flight was a great success until they were forced down near Bushire, among the wild tribes of that desolate and remote part of Persia.

Bad Luck Was Theirs. Their flight could not be resumed for more than a month, owing to the time it took to get necessary parts for the machine. When they finally landed in India it was found the machine could not fly back without a new propeller. The Duchess therefore returned to England by steamer.

A few months ago some young officers in the Royal Air Force flew from England to India in 50 hours. When the Duchess makes the trip in her monoplane, which has been christened the Princess Xenia, the endeavor will be to set a new world record of 48 hours.

"Flying is the most distinguished method of locomotion of our age," declared the Duchess. "As a pleasure it beats bridge, dancing and motoring combined. Thrilled? No I am not particularly thrilled. I am used to flying."

Nearly 700,000 spiders, it has been estimated, would be required to produce a pound of web. A single spider has been known to spin a thread 34,800 yard long.

Among the great pieces of fiction found in almost every language is the one about having a little extra work to do at the office.

BRITISH HEIR'S MARRIAGE PLANS WORRY SOCIETY

London.—Court circles are agog in considerable speculation regarding the matrimonial intentions of Edward Prince of Wales.

The Prince, it is stated, has often told his friends that he will marry when he is thirty-five. He attains that age in June of this year.

It is pointed out also that Marlborough House, the London home of the late Queen Alexandra, is now ready for occupation by the Prince following extensive redecoration, and that the "Consort's Suite" has been refitted and redecorated.

The Prince intends to remain a bachelor, it is asked why should he move from his comfortable bachelor quarters in York House, St. James' Palace, to the barn-like Marlborough House? Similarly, why should such an essentially feminine set of rooms as the "Consort's Suite" be put in order?

Accepting it as granted that the Prince will march to the altar sometime this year, the Court gossipers are attempting to forecast who will be the honored bride.

This is by no means an easy task, since with the passing of the years the list of prominent and illustrious young women from whom the Prince could choose a bride has been steadily reduced.

Under the terms of the Royal Marriage Act, the heir to the throne is supposed to marry a direct descendant of the blood royal. The Act has been rendered flexible through the ages, however, and at present there is nothing to prevent the Prince from marrying whomever he chooses.

Ever since he attained his majority, the Prince has been linked by rumor and report of literally scores of young women. Among them have been a number of royal princesses, including members of the ruling houses of Italy, Spain, Belgium, Denmark and Sweden.

One by one, however, these rumors have been dispelled, either by the marriage of the lady concerned or by the passage of time, until today there is hardly an eligible princess left.

Similarly, of the Englishwomen who have been looked upon as future queens because of their royal lineage, only one remains on the so-called "eligible" list. She is Lady May Cambridge, daughter of the Earl and Countess of Athlone, the Earl of Athlone is at present Governor-General of South Africa.

Undoubtedly this would be a good match in the eyes of the English nation. Lady May is 22, a thoroughly modern girl, and a favorite niece of the Prince's mother, Queen Mary.

In recent years the name of the Prince has been linked with three other English girls, in addition to Lady May, as follows: Lady Rachel Cavendish, fourth daughter of the extremely wealthy Duke of Devonshire; Lady Mary Thynne, youngest daughter of the Marquis of Bath; and Lady Ann Wellesley, a society girl of 18 noted for her "old-fashioned" ways.

Each of these reports have been denied by the Prince's entourage, however, and today only those in the confidence of the heir to the throne have the least idea upon whom his choice will rest.

EPWORTH LEAGUERS OUTING AT APPLECROFT

Seventy-Five People from Leagues in This District Enjoy Games, Feasting and Singing.

Seventy-five young people, representing the Burnside, East Hartford, Rockville, Portland and Manchester Epworth Leagues, took part in an afternoon of sports, feasting and singing at "Applecroft," the home of Mr. and Mrs. Louis St. Clair Burr on West Center street.

Following the many games, baseball, volley ball and horseshoe pitching, all of which had worked up a good perspiration, a cooling swim was indulged in at Cass's pond.

Completely cooled the crowd invaded the refreshment stand and gobbled up hot dogs, pickles, doughnuts, watermelon and punch. A period of rest was included in the program. As twilight descended a treasure hunt was held, the winner being Miss Gladys Pemberton of East Hartford.

A "sing" around the campfire brought the affair to a close.

NEWEST WRINKLES—AVOID NEW WRINKLES

By MABEL DUKE

Probably woman's greatest bugaboo is wrinkles! Those hated fine lines that appear so insidiously and soon become furrows are often unnecessary. It is often carelessness rather than age that brings them on in the opinion of Esther Ralston. Sometimes they appear on the faces of quite young people. No woman under 40 should tolerate these beauty-marring lines that can be easily prevented. Because evening is easier than curing, even school girls should give a thought to their future beauty and attempt to prevent the first fine lines.

Esther Ralston

"Squinting and frowning are the greatest causes for wrinkles, bringing them on the forehead and around the eyes," Miss Ralston said. "Also, because a squint is usually accompanied by a tenseness of the muscles around the mouth, lines may soon appear there, too."

"Frowning is a habit that should be broken at once. Worry often brings frowns but when you become fretful just think of the crow's feet that are waiting for just such opportunities as these to make them welcome!"

It May Be Eyestrain. To remedy squinting, first consult an oculist to find if it is caused by eyestrain. If not, prevent that malady by wearing glasses, delicately smoked, when driving, working in the brilliant sunshine or at the seashore. Never read while riding or lying down.

When fine lines begin to trace themselves across the youth of your skin, massage night and morning with a good muscle oil to keep them from becoming deep furrows and perhaps eliminate them entirely. After applying the oil, tap the face gently with the finger tips for five minutes. Crook the fingers as though you were playing the piano; instead of the piano, however, play easily upon the muscles of the face.

NEW YORK BOYS SET RECORD IN READING PAPERS

Albany, N. Y.—Newspaper publishers throughout the country need not worry about their future circulations if New York State boys between 14 and 17 years of age can be taken as a criterion.

A survey just completed by the industrial bureau of the state education department shows that 94 per cent of the 65,000 boys who are attending continuation school in the state are newspaper readers of the first calibre.

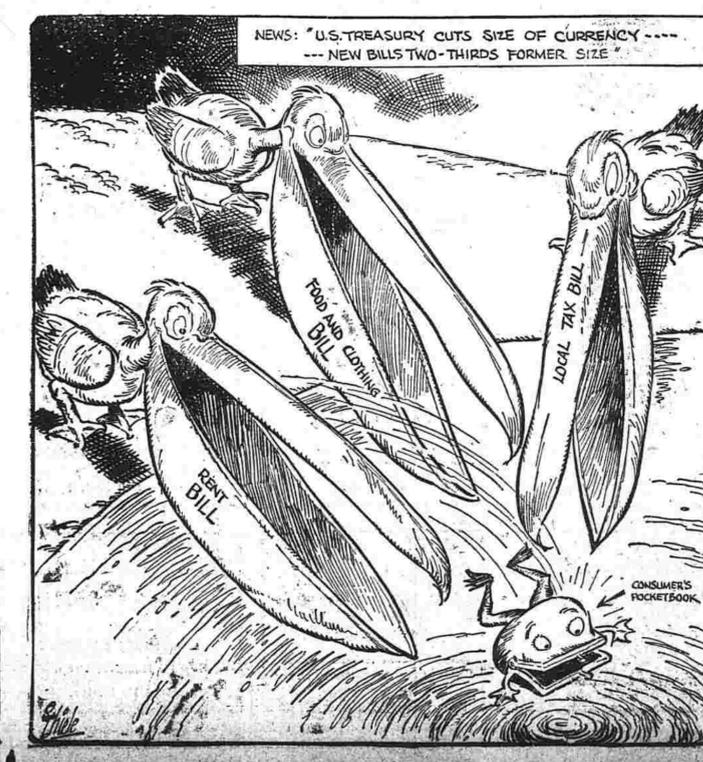

Boys who attend continuation school are mostly those who have been forced to work to support a widowed mother.

Papers Preferred. "The popularity of the newspaper," said a statement issued by the industrial bureau following its survey, "easily distanced other kinds of reading matter. Fiction, in the form of 'story books' ranks second to newspaper readings, although a long way below it."

"More than half the boys confessed a fondness for the modern story book and almost as large a proportion for the story magazine.

The latter quotation is not taken from one of the poems indited to Chevalier Lindbergh; nor does the one above refer to a 1927 model nor even to a used car of more ancient vintage. Both were written by John Keats more than a hundred years ago.

FLAPPER FANNY SAYS

A pedestrian travels the highway at his own risk, even if the road isn't under repair.

There seems to be a traffic light on the letter golf course. At least we have to STOP and WAIT today. Par is five and one solution is on another page.

Letter Golf puzzle grid with the words 'STOP' and 'WAIT' filled in.

THE RULES
1-The idea of Letter Golf is to change one word to another and do it in par, a given number of strokes. Thus to change COW to HEN in three strokes, COW, HOW, HEW, HEN.

Nice Old Lady: "Now where did you get those nice big cheeks?" Little Tommy: "Papa's a glass blower."

SENSE and NONSENSE

A Long Look Ahead. "By this the sun is setting; we may chance Meet some of our near dwellers with my card."

That kept my spirit in a burst—that I Am sailing with thee through the dizzy sky.

"But, my dear," protested the husband, "the air is full of static and it would be utterly impossible to tune in that station without interference from another."

In days gone by The maids were shy And went with downcast eye: Now maids were bold And wear 'em rolled— And men cast down their eyes, we're told!

At six o'clock she laid out his dress suit, shirt and studs. He did not appear. At eleven o'clock she laid out his pajamas. He did not turn up. At three o'clock he came home. And then she laid him out.

"Young Men," said the boss pompously and pointedly, "what we need in this business is brains—brains—brains!"

THE TINYMITES

(READ THE STORY, THEN COLOR THE PICTURE)

The Tinies eyed the big black cloud, and Scouty shouted, "We are proud to know you and we thank you 'cause you saved us from the sun. Oh my, but we were all in wrong until you gally came along. We hardly think you realize the road that you have done."
