FLYERS BREAK RECORD; ENTER TWELFTH DAY
announcing, "we are ready to start another endurance flight."
The Robins has made 46 contacts with its supply ship, 22 of them for refueling. It required approximately 80 minutes to take aboard a total of 2,178 gallons of gasoline and 95 quarts of oil consumed so far.
Covered 15,000 Miles.
During the night the plane circled at an average speed of 60 miles an hour. Already it has covered more than 15,000 miles.
One note fluttering to the ground from the Robin read:
"How's everything below? We don't know how much longer this baby is going to run, but we are going to find out, that's sure. Tell anyone that comes up to take pictures, not to come too close. Almost hit one last night."
Jackson is only 23 years old but he is an air veteran, having to his credit a record of 417 consecutive barrel rolls in a monoplane, last year. O'Brien, 33, was a war veteran and has been a stunt and test pilot.
Thus far perfect weather has marked the flight, with moonlight each night. Nothing of consequence has occurred to mar it. A bit of fabric was torn yesterday when the plane was lowered by means of a line from the refueling plane, but the damage was mended at once with glue and new fabric. A rabbit-foot and a sheet of four leaf clovers dangle from the plane's cabin interior.

When the first fusillade of Chinese shots directed at the planes was heard, the messages reported, the Red troops were thrown into a fury, and discipline was almost demoralized.
Points to Destroyed Trade
The editor says that even if the Allies had not exacted an acre of land or a penny of reparations, Germany would nevertheless have had a hard time, its world trade having been destroyed. He is far from praising the treaty. He thinks it one of the most severe ever imposed upon a beaten foe, but he adds:
"This bad treaty of Versailles is, even so, a whit better than the peace treaties moralists would have dictated if the good old German had been as strictly on their side as their preachers proclaimed."
He then proceeds to quote from the German newspaper during the war to show the kind of peace they would have dictated to the Allies had the latter been ultimately defeated.
For instance: on August 20, 1915, he says, Dr. Helfferich of the Treasury Department, said that the

GERMANY'S TERMS IF SHE HAD WON!
Ludendorff Asserts They Would Have Been Worse Than Those of Versailles.
BY MILTON BRONNER
London, July 24.—"You German Nationalists and Monarchists, it does not become you to yammer about the peace treaty of Versailles and the burdens it inflicted upon Germany. You yourselves, when you thought you were winning, openly proclaimed that you would be far worse to the Allies than, after all, they have done to us."
That in a nut shell is the substance of an article that has just appeared in the German weekly, created the old junker and royalist class. The editor says the very people who, in Germany have the least right to speak, are filling the air with moans about mourning for Germany's situation and demands for thoughts of revenge.

BEGGARS MAKE MORE THAN MINT'S DIRECTOR
New York, July 24.—The average professional beggar in New York—and most of them are just that—makes more than the director of the United States Mint, but they have to work Sunday to do it.
John D. Godfrey, of the Brooklyn Bureau of Charities, said today beggars here average $20 daily. Uncle Sam's director of the Mint gets only $9,500 annually.

POLICE COURT
Angelo Angello of 50 Pine street was sent to jail today by Judge Raymond A. Johnson in the Manchester town court for intoxication and breach of the peace. He was arrested by Officer David Galligan on complaint of his wife, who said her husband came home intoxicated last night, didn't take kindly to his daughters' gentlemen friends and immediately started a row. Angello claimed he only had two drinks of wine and two drinks of beer. He admitted he told the fellows to beat it and this created a rumpus.
Loyde Miner of 101 Lafayette street, Hartford, was brought into court by a state policeman, charged with driving an automobile without a license. Mr. Miner carried a Connecticut registration and a Maine driver's license. He supposed he had the right to drive in Connecticut through a reciprocity agreement. This is a question that has been before the State's Attorney's office for some time and is one which Judge Johnson understood thoroughly. Because of this fact and the technicality of the case, judgment was suspended.

ABOUT TOWN
Although the annual meeting of the Ninth District adjourned until August 2 when the report of the committee on school purchase would be given and action taken further adjournment now seems necessary. The committee was named to consider this matter but not ready to report on August 2, as they have not completed their work. If there is a meeting held at all in the Ninth District it will be adjourned without action and without date, or until such time as the committee has had time to complete the work.
A son was born at the Manchester Memorial hospital this morning to Mr. and Mrs. William H. Hewitt of 37 Ridgewood street.

PAVING WAR IN COURT
Bridgeport, July 24.—The city's paving war has been put into the Superior Court. W. Gerald Linburgh, a tax payer, did it today by getting Judge John R. Booth, of Danbury, to issue an injunction restraining the mayor, the city clerk, and the city engineering department from awarding a pavement contract to Thomas Clancey, of Bridgeport. Judge Booth will hear the case next week.
The war started when the paving commission handed two contracts out, one to Levery and Hurley and one to Silliman and Godfrey. Mayor F. W. Behrens declared the Silliman and Godfrey contract illegal and quashed it. Then he arranged that Clancey should have it.

TO PREVENT REMOVAL OF JOHN'S BIRTHPLACE.
Binghamton, N. Y., July 24.—Attorneys of John D. Rockefeller were making every possible effort here to prevent the moving of his century-old birthplace to Coney Island.
On his nineteenth birthday the president ordered, Mrs. Sarah S. Dinnen ordered the house prepared for the trip over the highways to the state barge canal at Oneida Lake.
It is reported the Rockefeller trustees have filed opposition to the removal with all officials from whom permits must be obtained and it is probable an injunction will be sought if permission is granted over the protests.

SCHOOLS MAKE DUMMIES
New York, July 24.—The 25,000,000 public school pupils of the nation are being made dumb instead of intelligent and educated by the removal of "Schools." He pleads for "rescue of the children from pedagogues," the mothers that the country would seek annexation to Germany. Holland must be brought under Germany's influence. This would be brought about if Germany and Japan had a close alliance and jointly guaranteed the safety of Holland's East Indian colonies.
Wanted to Annex Land
Das Tage Buch further quotes the former Kaiser and others as indicating the "All-British" was ready to make himself Grand Duke of Courland, Esthonia, Riga and Lithuania. Poland was to be a kingdom under the joint tutelage of Germany and Austria. Russia was to deliver to Germany a considerable portion of her petroleum from Baku. Rumania was to be almost disarmed forever, her oil industry was to be in German hands and her territory was to be occupied by German and Austrian troops for many years.
And one of the proudest thoughts of all was that Germany would exile from their homes all the Frenchmen in the French territory she would take over. France was to agree to settle these Frenchmen in the territory the victors left her.

FEW SEE ARRIVAL OF EX-PRESIDENT
Col. Campbell Hodges, military aide to President Hoover; Col. E. W. Starling, assistant chief of the White House Secret Service detail, and two of the several hundred Washington newspaper men who once followed his every movement closely.
Followed by a porter carrying two light bags and hat box, this small party passed unobserved down the train shed and out through the presidential entrance. Here, for the first time, became manifest the fact that a percentage of note had arrived. The photographers hadn't forgotten Mr. Coolidge, for a battery of them completely blocked the entrance. Grinning, the former executive took charge of the picture taking just as he used to do. He told his reception committee where to stand, and he told the photographers when to "stop shooting."
Secretary Akerson and Col. Hodges made their adieus at the curb, and Mr. Coolidge stepped into the White House limousine accompanied only by Sanders and Starling. They swept down the avenue without creating a ripple of excitement, reaching the Willard hotel within ten minutes of arrival. At the hotel, Mr. Coolidge stopped to shake hands with Francis Robinson, chauffeur-extraordinary, who has driven every president who owned an automobile.
Greets Robinson
"It's good to see another familiar face," he told Robinson.
Frank High, hotel president, escorted Mr. Coolidge to the same third floor suite he occupied during the first hectic month of his presidential incumbency—the month that marked the period of mourning for Warren G. Harding.
Another old face awaited him at the hotel. It was that of Mack Vogel, who has been running an elevator there for thirty years now. Mack really was all affluter as the former president stepped into his car. He has been reminiscing now for two days in anticipation of the event, and he, too, was rewarded with greeting.
Sanders and Starling left their former chief soon after arrival, promising to pick him up after breakfast. Although former presidents do not rate a secret service operative, President Hoover remembered that Starling had been Mr. Coolidge's constant fishing companion and ordered that he be assigned as escort for the day.

jeopardized in the interest of economy when Boulder Dam, farm relief, Muscle Shoals and the silly Volstead law are costing the Federal Treasury billions of dollars.
Rep. McClintock (D) of Oklahoma, meanwhile suggested a program for converting battleships into aircraft carriers. He suggested an initial $2,000,000 fund for experiments—in the face of Hoover economy. Rep. James (R) of Michigan, chairman of the House military affairs committee, has proposed an increase in the 5-year aviation program and consequently viewed the Hoover proposal with alarm. Senator Reed (R) of Pennsylvania, chairman of the Senate military affairs committee, voiced the belief there would be few economies achieved.

THOUSANDS DIE OF STARVATION IN EAST AFRICA
London.—Thousands have died of starvation in the Belgian mandated territory of Ruanda, Central East Africa, where famine conditions have been prevalent since the end of 1927, according to details made public by Dr. F. E. Church, a British medical missionary, and telegraphed to London by the Daily Express.
For the past nine months Dr. Church has been erecting mission hospitals in Eastern Ruanda, in an attempt to alleviate the suffering of the stricken natives. His report makes poignant reading.
The famine has been caused by the consistent failure of the rainy seasons since the end of 1927, accentuated by insufficient cultivation of the ground by the natives.
Situation Desperate
Indifferent communications and portage facilities have made the situation more desperate, according to Dr. Church, as half a dozen government food distribution centers have been unable to deal adequately with the plight of the starving thousands.
The Belgian government is now augmenting the transport services with motor trucks, and is speeding up road improvements and spending hundreds of thousands of dollars on famine relief. According to Dr. Church, however, the damage has been done, and the relief work will come too late to save many thousands of lives.
The final blow to the starving district was administered in December last, when the Uganda government prohibited the export of foodstuffs to Ruanda. Thereafter thousands of natives, faced with the alternative of death, endeavored to migrate to Uganda across the fever-stricken and game-infested land which separates the two territories.
On Death Trail
Thousands never reached the end of the death trail, Dr. Church says, adding that the countryside is littered with corpses, while Ruanda has become a land of living skeletons.
The roads leading to Uganda are, he says, crowded with natives staggering along with failing strength, scarcely able to carry their scanty possessions. Women and children lie helpless by the roadside, and are even eaten by hyenas before they are dead.
Smallpox and dysentery have followed in the wake of the famine, and the natives are now in the throes of disease.
The Belgian government has sent agricultural instructors and supervisors to encourage the natives to cultivate their land better, and every effort is being made to overcome the transport difficulties.

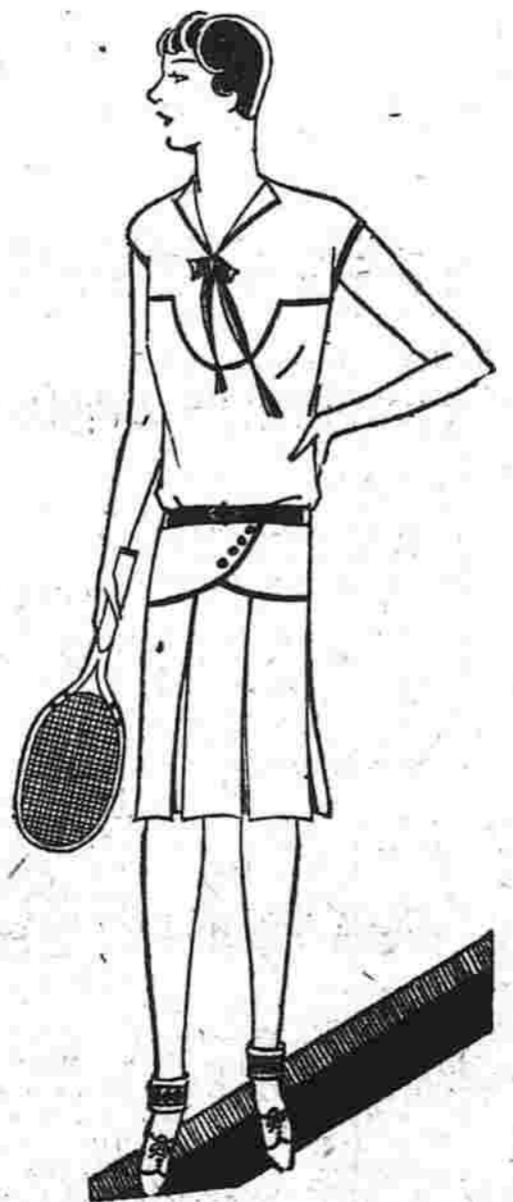

BUY RUSSIAN ART
Moscow, July 24.—Members of the group of Americans now visiting Soviet Russia to study conditions within the union, have bought $45,000 worth of paintings from Russian collections. It was learned today.
Mrs. Henry Pierce, of New York, purchased two canvases by Manet and a self-portrait of Madame Le Brun for $50,000.
Another member of the party bought a frieze for $12,000.
R. B. Scandrett, of New York, vice-president of the American Gas and Electric Company, bought several etchings by Durer.

elga minister who collaborated with Kellogg in the drudgery of the long negotiations; to Senators Borah (R) of Idaho, and Swanson (D) of Virginia, who piloted the treaty to ratification through a skeptical and semi-hostile Senate.
"I am glad of this opportunity," said Mr. Hoover, "to pay merited tribute to the two statesmen whose names the world has properly adopted in its designation of this treaty. To Aristide Briand, minister of foreign affairs of France, we owe to the inception of the treaty and to his seal is due a very large share of the success which attended the subsequent negotiations. To Frank B. Kellogg, then secretary of state, we owe its expansion to the proportions of a treaty open to the entire world and destined, as I most confidently have, shortly to include among its parties every country of the world."
"We honor here by the presence of President Coolidge under whose administration this great step in the world peace was initiated."
"Under his authority and with his courageous support, you, Mr. Kellogg, succeeded in this great service. And I wish to mark also the high appreciation in which we hold Senator Borah and Senator Swanson for their leadership during the confirmation in the Senate."

General Ludendorff
"Heaven weight of Germany's war expenses must fall upon them (the Allies). They must carry it through the decades, not Germany."
He says Count Roon, leader of the Conservative Party in the Prussian House of Lords, as late as June, 1923, laid down this pleasant program:
Germany's enormous war costs would be borne by America, England and France. Belgium would be annexed to Germany. The Flemish and French coasts including the port of Calais, would belong to Germany. The iron fields of Briey and Longwy would be taken from France. France would cede to Germany the powerful forts of Verdun, Belfort and Toul. England would surrender her war fleet to Germany and various coaling and fuel stations all over the world. Serbia and Montenegro would be divided between Bulgaria and Austria. German troops would occupy France and Belgium until all treaty obligations were fulfilled, cost of occupation being paid by the French and Belgians.
The editor says that on September 15, 1917, Hindenburg wrote to the Kaiser that he with him commanded all Germany's armies, sent to Berlin what he thought Germany should demand if she won. Hindenburg indicated he agreed with Ludendorff.
The latter urged the permanent annexation of iron and coal areas in French Lorraine and lands around the lower Rhine. Belgium was to be occupied so long and the industries of Belgium were to be so narrowly influenced by Germany that the country would seek annexation to Germany. Holland must be brought under Germany's influence. This would be brought about if Germany and Japan had a close alliance and jointly guaranteed the safety of Holland's East Indian colonies.

Das Tage Buch further quotes the former Kaiser and others as indicating the "All-British" was ready to make himself Grand Duke of Courland, Esthonia, Riga and Lithuania. ARREST 300 RUSSIANS
Harbin, July 24.—In retaliation for the recent arrest of 1,000 Chinese at Vladivostok, Chinese gendarmes today took into custody 300 additional Russian employees of the Chinese Eastern Railway on charges of inciting against China.
Forty-two Russians, including eight women, were also arrested at Pogranitchnaya and other places near the Manchurian border. All have been brought to Harbin and incarcerated in jail.
CHINA BLAMES REDS
London, July 24.—Sole blame for the crisis between China and Russia was placed upon the Soviets today by the council of the north-eastern provincial Chinese government, defending its action against Russian officials on the Chinese Eastern Railway, stating that China is still willing to respect the 1924 agreement regarding use of the railway by the two nations.
The statement charges that Russia has already instituted hostilities against China by seizure of Chinese boats and trains, and by dispatching airplanes into Manchurian territory.

FLOOD OF WAR STORIES ISSUED

Success of Few Has Induced Publishers to Buy All of Them in Sight.

By HORTENSE SAUNDERS.

We might just as well be prepared for an avalanche of war books because they are inevitable, particularly with the bright examples of "All Quiet on the Western Front," and "The Case of Sergeant Grisham" to lure on the literary aspirant.

Another volume, written by a German, that is getting away to a good start is "War" (Dodd, Mead & Co.) by Ludwig Renn, in which an eyewitness describes all that a soldier in the ranks saw and experienced, almost as if he had kept an hourly record of his sensations.

"Overshadowed," by Eugene Lohrke (Jonathan Cape and Harrison Smith) is anything but hard-boiled—it is the story of a sensitive soul and how it was disintegrated and shattered by a conflict to which it could not adjust.

The hero went to war because the Germans shelled Rheims. He started away with his mother's miniature, a lock of her hair bound in a gold fillet and a morocco-bound edition of Shelley. One is quite prepared for the spiritual downfall. Beautiful prose, but a story that never quite sets.

Though written in a slightly sophisticated style, and without any reverence for the old god of war, I think "War Bugs" (Doubleday-Doran) by Charles MacArthur, is rather welcome relief from such seriousness. At least, you feel that the Rainbow Division had a good time, and that the boys injected a little much-needed lightness and levity into the dismal lump of treks with liquor, rest and drinkiness, thumbs up, nose at our most cherished traditions of noble men and virtuous women—but is lively and cheery.

Quite an unpleasant in locale and as packed with brutality and horror as any war book is "Adventures of an Outlaw" (Jonathan Cape and Harrison Smith), being the memoirs of Ralph Rashleigh, a penal exile in Australia from 1825 to 1844, when England's rift-riff was sent out there to penal colonies.

Because of such a vogue for literary discoveries, and persons who drop from nowhere and proceed to write of their adventures in need of the "way" about the earth, with such a flair for fiction, one is apt to suspect any manuscript from a mysterious source.

This one comes from a librarian in New South Wales who got it from someone who inherited it from his wife's father. It is 150,000 words of stilted English written on blue fool's-cap paper, purports to be written by Giacomo di Rosenberg, who took the story as it was told to him by Ralph Rashleigh.

His adventures are a chronicle of half-breath escapes and fantastic cruelties, "floggings," hot Australian sun, and a hideous indelicacy of so-called civilized existence. It has more excitement than Robinson Crusoe, Captain Kidd, and Trader Horn combined.

Radcliffe Hall, who received much attention because her novel "The Well of Loneliness" was banned in England and threatened to be here, offers another book to the public which was published in England in 1924. "The Unlit Lamp" (Jonathan Cape and Harrison Smith), it will probably cause considerably less comment than her previous work, with its ambiguous problem, but it is a well written, honestly written book, with a character, Joan Ogden, who is living and vital as one as you will find in contemporary fiction.

Honore Willse Morrow, who has contributed two novels based on Lincoln's life, and who has usually used the American background for her stories, goes to the orient with her new novel, "Splendor of God" (Morrow), which is laid in Rangoon.

It is the story of a New England couple who go there as tourist missionaries. Adolphe and Judson is a rugged war by a blazing sword, and a delicate woman of great beauty. Her death plunges him into such despair that for a while his sigh wavers, and he is almost won over to the mysticism of the east.

NEWSPAPERS PUBLISH TOO MUCH OF CRIME

New York, July 24.—Police Commissioner Grover Whalen today gave all police chiefs and directors of public safety throughout the United States something to think about. Whalen says newspapers print too much crime news prior to arrests. He has called for a round table discussion of the situation with all publishers and editors of New York's newspaper to see what can be done about it.

BATTLE OVER ROADS

Washington, July 24.—A fight to gain control of the Buffalo, Rochester and Pittsburgh railroad, a strategic line in a number of proposed merger plans, got under way today when the Interstate Commerce Commission began hearings on the application of the Baltimore and Ohio to acquire this road through stock ownership.

Extent of the opposition to the Baltimore and Ohio's plan to acquire this road was indicated by the fact that the commission permitted the Washab, Pennsylvania, Pittsburgh and West Virginia, and Delaware and Hudson railroads, and the Buffalo and Rochester Chamber of Commerce, City of Rochester and the Rochester and Pittsburgh Coal Company to intervene.

L. H. Lores, as president of the Delaware and Hudson, submitted a motion to dismiss the application. It was admitted to the record but the commission said it was manifestly impossible to act upon it at this time.

Houston, Texas, July 24.—With their motor humming sweetly, Joe Glass and G. L. Loomis, in the "Billion Dollar City," entered upon their seventh day of their refueling endurance record attempt.

At 9:49:30 a. m., Eastern Daylight time today, the flyers had been aloft 174 hours.

Glass and Loomis dropped a note after yesterday's refueling which read: "After a good long sleep we both feel fine and confident of sticking it out a month if the motors last."

NOON STOCKS

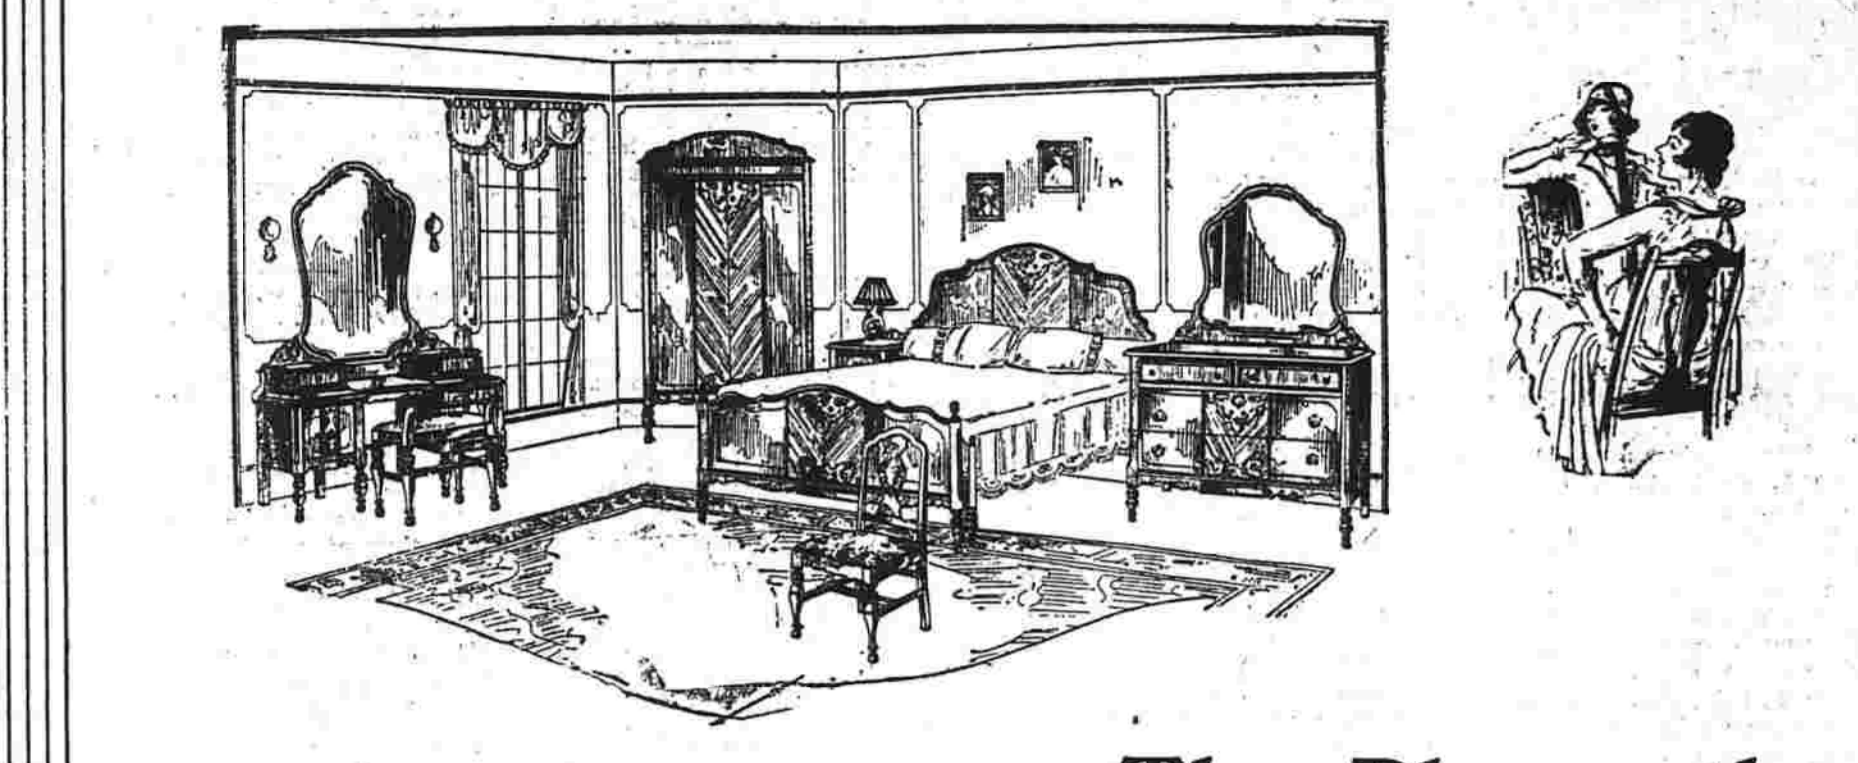

New York, July 24.—New gains of a point or two were recorded in the first two hours this morning in most of the motor and railroad stocks which forged ahead on good news about current operations and earnings at the close of Tuesday's market. General Motors reported first half-year earnings of $3.38 a share, which was not as bullish as some sections of Wall street had been looking for. Pierce Arrow made a good showing. Car loadings are on the up-grade.

General Motors, Chrysler, Hupp, Hudson, Nash and other active motors sold up about a point each on the average, making the best record in the market since the first of last year, when the latest shipping movement started. Higher prices were also paid for railroad stock and specialties, with aviation stocks again to the fore.

Wall street brokerage houses welcomed with open arms the sold-out bulls, who have been waiting for an opportunity to buy stocks at bargain prices. The boldest of these bulls are now in the market for the first time in a month, picking their favorites at close to the highest prices of the year.

United States Steel topped 210 for the first time, on a vigorous buying wave which carried the stock up 3 points in the first period. Bethlehem hung up a new high record for the year at 121 1/2.

MOTOR CRASH VICTIM IS TOO ILL TO APPEAR

Hearing of Clifford Friend in Wapping 4-Corner Accident Indefinitely Postponed.

Owing to the severity of injuries he suffered himself, Clifford S. Friend of 463 1/2 Main street, Glastonbury, was unable to appear in the South Windsor Town court for a hearing in an automobile accident case Monday night and his case has been indefinitely postponed. Friend was arrested by Constable C. Vinton Benjamin after the crash at Wapping Four Corners last Friday morning in which two Manchester young women were hurt.

The Manchester school teachers were riding in a car which figured in a collision with one operated by Friend. They, too, were injured and taken to the Memorial hospital. Miss Mary E. McAdams of Ridge street, suffered only minor injuries and has since been discharged. Miss Emma W. Borowski of Fern street was much less fortunate. While it has been definitely established that she has no fracture of the skull, hospital authorities said this morning that the X-ray negatives show a fracture of the pelvic bone.

Miss Borowski is resting much more comfortably today and is not regarded as in danger. Hospital officials also said today that there was no danger of any permanent disability as a result of the particular injury. However, it is not expected that she will be able to resume her duties at the Washington school when the fall term begins early in September.

POLO PLAYER KILLED AS PONIES COLLIDE

Harvard Student Dies from Injuries—Other Man in Sport Accident in Critical Condition.

Boston, July 24.—James P. Mandell, Harvard University Olympia Hunt Club polo player died at Norwood hospital today from intracranial injury received at Westwood Field on Monday afternoon when his pony was in a midfield collision with a pony ridden by George O. Clark, 2nd, Harvard and Dedham Country Club player.

Mandell did not regain consciousness after he was buried beneath the fallen ponies. A delicate operation was performed by three specialists late yesterday but Mandell slowly weakened. He was 23 years old.

His father, George S. Mandell, president of the Boston Evening Transcript Company, his mother, and his sister, Mrs. Nell W. Rice were at his bedside when the end came. Clark's condition, although showing some improvement, was very serious today.

SURPRISE SHOWER

Miss Esther Noren of Middlefield street, who is to be married to Ernest Johnson of Clinton street this fall, was honored with a surprise linen and spice shower last evening. The guests were 16 of her associates in Cheney Brothers main office and the party was held at the home of Miss Beatrice McDonald of Union street, Rockville. One of the fun-making stunts of the evening was a mock wedding. Miss Noren received a linen table cloth with 12 napkins, a linen luncheon set, linen buffet set and a set of spice containers filled with apples, sandwiches, cake, ice cream and punch was served by the hostess.

CORPORATIONS PAY MILLION MORE TAX

Six Groups of Taxpayers in State Increase Income in Course of Year.

Hartford, July 24.—Six groups of taxpayers in Connecticut will give the state almost one million dollars more this year than last when they pay their taxes between July 15 and September 1.

The taxes are divided thus: National banks tax $5,610.92; Trust companies 140,676.88; Insurance companies 1,593,766.00; Savings banks 605,763.87; Public utilities 3,962,593.83; Miscellaneous corporations 2,587,492.27.

The greatest increase in taxes is that of the miscellaneous corporations which pay $2,587,492 this year as against $2,261,771 last year, or an increase of $325,720. The franchise tax on stock insurance companies amounted to $1,293,828 last year while it came to $1,593,766 this year. The increase is $299,938.

NEW TRAVELERS STATION READY NEXT WEEK

In this composite picture of three views are shown the towers, extending skyward 200 feet, atop a 700-foot elevation that will be used for a directional antenna as part of the new 50-kilowatt transmission plant of The Travelers radio station, WTIC. The view in the oval shows the rear elevation of the new plant, set among thousands of trees, on what is known as Avon mountain, west of Hartford, Conn. The two towers can be seen for miles. The visibility during the day has been increased materially by a system of painting, while a special lighting arrangement at night will also make them of service to aviators. The towers are 40 feet apart, and about 500 feet north of the transmission building, in a general easterly and westerly direction. The timber shown around the towers will be cleared for a considerable distance. The new station will be put into use next Wednesday, July 31.

1,000 REBELS KILLED (?)

London, July 24.—No confirmation was available here today of reports that British military planes, co-operating with Persian government troops, have bombed a large band of rebels in South Persia.

The rebels' reports declare, resent the attempts of Riza Khan, Persia's ruler, to westernize the country. It is reported that 1,000 Persian troops have been killed in the fighting.

The War Office and the air ministry declare they have no word from the Near East to confirm or deny the reports.

ROMANCE OF EXPLORING TOLD IN NEW BOOK

Five hundred times as much money is being spent by Byrd to enter the Antarctic region as was spent by Columbus to discover America, according to Fitzhugh Green, explorer and author of a new booklet The Romance of Modern Exploration recently received at the South Manchester library.

This vast difference in no way represents the relative value of the two expeditions he points out, but it does show the changes which have taken place in the methods of exploration. "The modern explorer," he says, "is an expert and his results go to experts while the early seafarer was more of a rough-and-ready adventurer who took a long chance hoping for big gain—and didn't mind much if he lost."

Sketches of the hardships, sacrifices and victories at the poles, in Africa, and Asia, under the sea, and the thin air are a part of this fascinating booklet written by a man who has been behind the scenes of many of the great deeds of recent years. The adventures are continued in the several books suggested by Dr. Green which, he says, are so filled with human interest that the reader will be compelled to feel as if he were one of the explorer's party.

The romance of modern exploration is one of the Reading With a Purpose series. The reading course and the recommended books are available at the South Manchester library.

WEDNESDAY, JULY 24, 1929

steamed to her Brooklyn dock the war seemed to be far more definitely over—to have become so in the space of five days—than ever before. You can't well harbor animosities against people for whom you suddenly find yourself cheering.

Wise heads among the Germans have seen to it that the Bremen is referred to as an achievement of the German republic—an altogether new and peaceable Germany which has forgotten all about the imperialistic war aspirations of Kaiser and Junker, and which is interested only in friendly progress and pacific amity. And wise heads on this side of the water are ably seconding this promotion of the all-new-Germany idea.

Well and good. Very well and good indeed. And now let these New Germans, who find it so easy to gain smiles and cheers in America, carry home to Germany with them just this one thought—if they would have the war indeed become a thing of the dead past, if they would be freed in world opinion of its stigma, let them divorce themselves from the old Germany so far as to cease this everlasting insistence that the war absolve the old Germany from war guilt.

THE ONE GREAT THOUGHT

A very genuine and very passionate desire for world peace is animating the efforts of the United States and half a dozen other governments in their efforts to prevent the outbreak of war between Russia and China. Tremendously urgent representations are being made to both the parties to the dispute. Secretary of State Stimson has even gone so far as to point out to the Chinese minister the complete necessity of re-establishing the status quo ante by restoring the Chinese Eastern Railroad to its partly Russian control and so getting back to the very beginnings of the quarrel and clearing the ground for peaceful adjudication of the dispute—a measure which would not have been proposed were it not that avoidance of war is set up as the only thing to be thought of until it has been definitely avoided.

Such a proposal cannot and must not be interpreted as indicating the slightest American tendency to partisanship with Russia. It seems only that the prevention of war, at the moment, must take precedence over all other considerations—there will be time later for the righting of wrongs.

Nor is it at all certain that the Chinese cannot well afford now to acquiesce in this proposal. Their coup has served to center the attention of the civilized world on a situation which, if intolerable, cannot fall of relief if only the nations come to know enough about it. Having served that purpose it may well be the decision of the Nationalist government that far more has been accomplished than could be gained through the horrors of war, even if successful.

TOUGH PLUS

No matter how tough you are there's always a chance of meeting up with somebody tougher. The cauliflower ears and bridgeless noses of many hard eggs of the generation preceding the machine gun age testify to this. Also is such testimony supplied by the achievement of Dale Jackson and Forrest O'Brien, St. Louis endurance fliers, who have knocked into a cocked hat, within a fortnight of its making, the record of those two very "tough hombres" Mendell and Reinhardt and who, at this writing, were still up.

Persons of mechanical mind, in these affairs, are very liable to give almost all of their thoughts to the motors and the airplane fabric, marceling at the quality of the mechanism; but others find, in the stuff of which the fliers are made, a phenomenon considerably more interesting. The average healthy human being who would go half mad if compelled to spend ten days in restriction to his own home, not being permitted to go for an automobile ride, to the movies or even "down to the corner," is filled with awe at able-bodied men who submit for a greater time than that to imprisonment in the cramped and dimly-lit fuselage of a small airplane. "Tough" doesn't express it. The language needs an adjective to describe endurance record breakers in the air.

THE RADIO SHOOTER

Editors are applauding the act of a Texan named Keen, who incidentally happens to be a judge, in getting out his rifle and shooting destruction into a radio loud speaker cabaret next door to the judge's residence. At the same time almost all the applauders say, "Of course, he broke the law—but."

Seriously we don't believe it is altogether settled that Judge Keen exceeded his legal rights. This

NEW GERMANY

Such is the quality of the mass mind, in America as in any other country, that such episodes as the arrival of the North German Lloyd steamship Bremen at New York, with a fine new transatlantic record planned to her logbook, is capable of doing more to create genuinely friendly relations between the people of the United States and those of Germany than the most ritual of treaties or the most solemn acts of governmental bodies.

Hearty and enthusiastic was the welcome to the Bremen—so hearty and enthusiastic that scarcely anybody gave a thought to the last ship of that name to occupy the attention of Americans, the submarine whose reception at New London before our entry into the World War created something of a scandal and stirred up much bitter feeling.

Indeed, as the new Bremen noise nuisance may yet evolve, at the hands of a Supreme Court, application of the theory that every man's house is his castle and that he has an inalienable right to resist intrusion therein in the absence of any rightful warrant. The vibrations sent into your home by some neighbor's radio or cornet solo carry no warrant. They constitute deliberate trespass. You have, my should say, the same right to repel them that you would have to repel the intrusion of a burglar—by whatever violent means may be necessary. Some day we expect to see this legal principle definitely established.

VEXATIOUS

Singularly vexatious is the story of a Brooklyn, N. Y., woman who was robbed of rings valued at $2,000 and $205 in money while visiting the graves of her husband and four children in Woodlawn cemetery. The victim of the robbery is the now childless widow of a newspaperman and she told the police that the four rings, taken from her by a man who appeared at the grave and beat her before robbing her, constituted practically her entire fortune.

To be sure, the perpetrator of this crime is a strong candidate for the distinction of being the meanest thief; but it is difficult to have complete patience with people who insist on running such ghastly risks with their possessions. It simply goes without saying that a woman whose entirely worldly wealth is less than $2,500 has no business whatever to have almost all of it invested in a commodity that is likely to be grabbed away from her by the first thug with whom she comes in contact.

WASHINGTON LETTER

An Ambassadorship Is All Right, But Our Most Powerful Foreign Officers Are The High Commissioners—Unfortunately For Job-Seekers, These Posts Are Very Scarce.

By RODNEY DUTCHER

Washington, July 24.—Mere ambassadorships may be enough to satisfy such elderly millionaires as Charles G. Dawes and Dwight Morrow, but the really ambitious federal job-seeker will go hunting for a post as an American High Commissioner.

An ambassador parks himself in a foreign capital and usually becomes little more than a glorified messenger boy. But when an American High Commissioner goes anywhere he goes there to run the whole show. He has the rank of an ambassador and he ranks as the senior officer present at all times.

There is no more powerful American outside this country than an American High Commissioner. He is perhaps the nearest modern approach we have to the old Roman pro-consul.

These Jobs Are Scarce

Unfortunately, there are very few of these jobs to be had. There never were very many and the only High Commissioners now in force is that of Major General John A. Russell of the Marines, who has been our High Commissioner to Haiti since 1922. The chances are that General Russell will hold his job indefinitely, but there has been some agitation for his replacement by a civilian, so it may be a good tip to job-seekers to suggest that they sound out President Hoover.

One recalls only two other High Commissioners within the past two decades. Sumner Welles was made High Commissioner to the Dominican Republic several years ago and served two years, commuting between Santo Domingo and Washington until he had straightened out the country to the State Department's satisfaction.

The other was Rear Admiral Mark L. Bristol who, as High Commissioner to Turkey, was one of the most important figures in the Near East during the post-war period. Bristol co-ordinated our policies and looked after American interests in that section of the world and proved himself a diplomat of parts. He was on the commission which investigated the Greek occupation of Smyrna and was a delegate to the Lausanne Conference. Lately he has commanded the Asiatic fleet.

Runs the Whole Country

Russell is an excellent example of the power that can be lodged with a High Commissioner. He deals directly with the president—sometimes called "our puppet president"—of Haiti and the State Department. For eight years, under our treaty with Haiti, he has had away over that country's customs, finances, police system, public works, agriculture and public health.

All American treaty officials, directing these various branches of government, come under the general. Although an officer of the Marines he is not compelled to wear a uniform and doesn't. He has been on the job for eight years and was first appointed on the recommendation of a senatorial committee which went to the island about 1920.

What appeared to be a demonstration of Russell's power was given last year when Senator King and was first criticized American occupation of Haiti, was barred from visiting the country by President Borno. While it could not be shown that Russell had inspired the ban, few failed to concede that a word from him to Borno would promptly have averted this affront to an American senator.

With the benign though tact approval of Russell, free press and free speech in Haiti have been pretty generally suppressed and

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

(Neuritis.)

Question—Mrs. H. K. L. writes: "I have been bothered with neuritis for two years. Have been to several doctors, but have not had much relief. Am very nervous and anemic. What can I do to gain my health?"

Answer—"There are two principal causes of neuritis; one is a toxic condition of the blood, similar to rheumatism, and the other cause is from pinched nerves somewhere between the painful part and the spinal cord. An osteopath or chiropractor can usually remove this latter cause, and the toxic condition is cured by dieting, exercising, and living according to good hygienic rules.

Diplomat Now

(Milk.)

Question—Ann D. writes: "I read in your column that milk should not be taken with sandwiches. When should milk be used?"

Answer—Never use milk with sandwiches or with regular meals. Milk should be taken by itself, or combined with one kind of fruit, or with only non-starchy vegetables.

Borno has jammed through laws extending his titular dictatorship and effecting his domination of the Haitian courts, which we did not take over under the treaty. American Marines long ago dissolved the Haitian congress, so Russell hasn't a representative legislative body to contend with as has our governor general in the Philippines.

Sympathetic, But Firm

State Department officials say that Russell is very sympathetic toward the Haitians, who maintained peace and order, built roads, established agricultural schools, diversified crops, instituted sanitation and health measures, maintained up-to-date services on the debt and provided more money for government expenditures. The Marines had to kill 2,000 or 3,000 Haitians for their own good about ten years ago, so such killings have not since been found necessary.

There have been numerous complaints to the effect that American rule has inflicted misery on the mass of Haitians—complaints invariably denied, but enough to indicate that General Russell hadn't introduced a millennium. Nevertheless, he has fully demonstrated what a puissant person is an American High Commissioner. Under a treaty extension, the Haitian job is good until 1930.

THE MEMORY NOT ALWAYS RELIABLE.

There is a belief held by many people that something once learned is never forgotten, but remains as long as life lasts, stored in the recesses of the brain. However, there is no evidence that this is true. Our memory pictures are recorded in some way upon the protoplasm of the brain cells and because there are continual metabolic changes going on in these cells, the pictures are not fixed, but are subject to gradual alterations.

It is very easy to understand how a destructive disease affecting the memory cells will greatly disturb or destroy the stored memories. Forgetting is a normal process. Everyone has a poor memory. It is only when the normal limits of forgetfulness have been exceeded or when the imagination takes the place of memory that the physician becomes interested.

Many people recall lots of things that aren't true. One suffering from senile dementia recalls vividly the events of childhood and youth, although unable to recall the events of the previous week. Frequently, however, the memories of childhood and youth, which seem to be recalled with such startling vividness, have been so greatly touched by the imagination as to be quite untrue as to actual happening. An old man may imagine he was in such a war, met certain celebrities, or traveled through various countries, and he may give all the details and believe them, himself, when he actually was nowhere in the vicinity.

The mind misrepresents facts. Sometimes, they are exaggerated, diminished, or curiously twisted. Judges soon come to realize that witnesses frequently make false statements and false identifications, not because of desiring to falsify their statements, but because the witness' perception or memory is faulty.

Patients will often quite sincerely describe wholly fictitious diseases of childhood which never occurred, although they may seem quite true to the affected person. The mind is so susceptible to suggestions that it has been said that if one hears a story or story frequently enough, one will endeavor to believe it to be a fact. In endeavoring to recall elusive facts from out of the maze of memory, one instinctively fills in the missing links with the fabric of imagination.

One's memory may be good in most respects, but only weak in a special manner. For example, one may forget the memories associated with hearing or the memories connected with sight. In some diseases, the patient can only think of sad ideas. In others, the patient can only think of disease symptoms, and in others, there are troublesome obsessions. Epileptics sometimes live in a twilight conscious state for periods which they cannot afterwards consciously recall. Sometimes the first symptoms of serious mental diseases are indicated by extreme forgetfulness or twisted recollections.

It is difficult to judge whether forgetfulness is a blessing or a misfortune. It would not be good if our minds were cluttered up with endless varieties of unimportant details or made melancholy by stored up sad recollections. On the other hand, it would be well for us if we recall the useful facts of life and the pleasanter events.

GOING PLACES AND SEEING THINGS

Women Are More Plentiful Than Men at Agua Caliente Gambling Halls—Though Men Are the Big Plungers.

Agua Caliente, Mex.—The modern day gambling parade is headed by women, so I was told by a gambling palace dealer here who could have easily posed as the status of immobility. He had no editorial comments to make on his statement. With the same impersonality that marked his dealing, he was merely passing on an observation.

They have not learned to plunge as recklessly as those few men who drop ten thousand or more in an evening, but the total of their losses is considerably greater than that of the male total. To be sure, my friend the dealer felt that they were not often spending their own money. But the woman gambler, he went on, is generally a game loser.

"The type of woman who gambles on roulette, cards or dice is the type who gambles on life," he continued, philosophically. "You can spot her in a minute; that is, if you are interested in such matters. And she's harder to discourage than a man. A man will walk to the bar and take his drink and go to bed. Watch this Casino night after night and you'll find that a few women are the last to leave—I mean, of course, on an average. And when the games start in the around $10 a day, but most dealers average about $250 a week when tips are good. So you can see how we feel about it. If you keep your eyes open you'll see that dealers root for the big money boys when they are having a losing streak."

That night, by the way, I stood next to a clean cut young man who dropped $11,000. And if you care to have an embarrassing moment, let me inform you of an easy way: find yourself some evening with a pair of dice in your hand and a man on either side of you plunking down a cold thousand on the result of your toss.

Later someone told me that the "heavy loser" had been one Joe Toblitzky, a big theater and real estate man from Los Angeles. And someone else reminded me that not so many years ago, this same gent—who happened to be entertaining three airplanes loads of guests—had once known what it was to use a bundle of newspapers for a bed while struggling to the top. All of which might have amused a certain Horatio Alger!

But the high spot of my particular adventure here came when I found my dealing confidante sitting on the long veranda, looking impersonally toward the setting sun, his chalk-like face reddened by the reflection of flaming gladiolas in an oval bed.

For a moment he studied the facile fingers, which I had watched so dexterously fingering the cards. "Oh, yes, but they're all working—dealing, for instance."

From which you can write your own sermon.

Women Made Dry Law And They'll Change It, New Opponents Argue

BY HORTENSE SAUNDERS

New York.—Many years ago, a band of earnest women founded the Woman's Christian Temperance Union, wore white ribbons, passed out pledge cards to all who would sign on the dotted line—and today's eighteenth amendment is due in no small measure to their determined effort.

Today, another group of women, quite as earnest, with much more impressive names, trained in leadership and in public work, also are organizing what they call a sane temperance. But this latter group believes it can be brought about only through modification of the law which the first group tried so hard to have enacted.

Say Temperance Retarded In other words, they are pro-temperance and anti-prohibition. Their pledge reads: "Because I believe that national prohibition has incited crime and increased lawlessness, hypocrisy and corruption, because I believe that the cause of real temperance has been retarded and that summary laws have no place in the Federal Constitution, I promise to work for some change in the law which will bring about a sane solution of the problem, and therefore enroll as a member of the Women's Organization for National Prohibition Reform."

The W. O. N. P. R. is headed by Mrs. Charles Sabin, former New York state Republican committeewoman and the first woman to serve on the National Republican committee. She has been identified as one of the most astute women politicians of this country, and is a prominent social registerite.

Mrs. Sabin quit G. O. P. Post When Mrs. Sabin resigned from the Women's National Republican Club in March, after President Hoover's dry policy had been announced, she surprised everyone by relinquishing the political power her position gave her.

"I had no intention, at that time, of getting into any anti-prohibition organization," she said. "But I was here about why I was at odds with the party. Immediately after my resignation, I was besieged with letters from women in all parts of the country, saying that they too protested against prohibition, as we now have it."

"In a short time, I was in too deep to get out. Coming out against prohibition, I found I had spoken for thousands of other women to whom there was a large group ready to be organized, wanting to be organized. And the road before me was so plainly indicated, I could not turn back from it. Now it remains to organize, investigate and plan a campaign."

Prominent Women Back Move Mrs. Sabin gathered around her women who have been conspicuously before the public for years and have served in philanthropic, educational and welfare work. Among them are Anne Morgan, daughter of the famous financier, active for years in philanthropy and war work; Virginia Gildersleeve, dean of Barnard College; Dr. Josephine Baker, formerly of the Child Hygiene Bureau; Mrs. Sidney Borg, active in the Public Education Association, and the Federation of Jewish Philanthropies; Alice Foote MacDougall, millionaire restaurateur; Mrs. Helen Hartley Jenkins, builder of "model tenements"; and Mrs. Roger Bacon, prominent social worker.

These women of wealth and social position, who have been significantly successful, plan to organize women of the nation in anti-prohibition work. The movement now is but two and a half months old, but it is organized in 30 states.

By November, the whole country is expected to be lined up so that actual work can begin.

Plan Investigation "We are not broadcasting our plans," Mrs. Sabin said frankly. "We are going slow, and in as much silence as the country will allow, until we know our way around better."

"We will form committees in different localities which will find out whether there are more speak-easies in certain specified communities than there were licensed saloons in former days; and if so, how many."

U. S. WORKER IS IDEAL ONE SAYS FRENCH LEADER

Paris.—The American worker is the ideal one, according to Marcel Paul, French industrialist, who has recently returned from the other side with glowing words of praise for the working classes across the sea.

When observed in his office or shop," writes Monsieur Paul in the royalist organ, "L'Action Francaise" "the American worker gives the impression of vitality and extraordinary activity. He is gay, optimistic and confident for he knows that he is working for his employer and he knows also that he is working for himself."

"The labor-unions in the United States are moderate and conscious of the interests with which they are charged. They do not say, 'Get out of there so I can get there,' but 'if you wish to earn more, produce more or give better service, climb higher on the social and industrial ladder.'"

Mr. Paul found that envy was very rarely found among the American working classes, a quality which contributes largely to their success. In France, the national fault is that of jealousy of those who are on the top of the ladder.

His opinion is that no French industrialist should allow two or three years to pass without visiting the United States, the land of activity, good sense, optimism and discipline.

Whiskey instead of noggins comprised the courting gifts of M. Lejay to his sweetheart and drunken brawls instead of tender scenes absorbed the evenings of the lovers.

At the customary courting hour when young French beaux may be seen carrying their respects and bouquets of the floral variety to innamoratas, M. Lejay was ever to be seen with his bottled instead of boxed sweets and bitters, entering the home of the object of his affections.

The lady, however, was found slender audience. As the glass crashed he was surrounded by the police and hurried to the police station. When asked an explanation of his deed M. Delort said: "I pray you, put me in prison. It is for this only that I committed this crime. I die of hunger."

His plea was granted.

Who is the mother of the poor little match girl? This question is exciting much ill will and much going to law here in an effort to establish the exact identity of the unfortunate vendor of matches.

If figures never lie, how tired some girls must get.

SENSE and NONSENSE

A GAS STATION LAMENT.

I've had my gas pump on this same spot For seven years or so. And business never has been good Just now it's kind of slow!

And yet that kid across the way, Who started in last year, Is going to build a salesroom On this vacant lot, I hear!

Yes! When he started in I cut My price of gas a cent, And figured it would run him For he pays higher rent.

He sold his at the standard price He'd waste a lot of time By shining up the windshield Of each car. But not for mine!

When cars drive up into my place I sell them oil and gas. That's what they pay for, what they get; There's no dough shining glass!

While if the radiator's dry Or if the air is low, Why don't they ask for what they want?

Am I supposed to know? I guess that kid has all the luck. His business sure is sweet! But he must get it 'cause he's on The right side of the street.

A woman driver ran into an embankment and bent a fender. It worried her. So she went into a garage and asked the mechanic: "Can you fix this fender so my husband won't know it was bent?" The mechanic looked at the fender and then at her. "No, lady, I can't. But I tell you what I can do. I can fix it up so that in a few days you can ask your husband how he bent it!"

"How long did it take your wife to learn to drive?" "It will be ten years this summer."

The old-fashioned horny-handed son of toll now has a horny-handed son who got that way holding his Ford in the road.

Advice to pedestrians: Don't get too proud of your right-of-way. It's likely to be stolen.

No Foolin'. The main difference between my girl and a traffic cop is that the cop means it when he says "Stop."

Friend: What makes you think there is something wrong with your family? Man: Well, we got the car all paid for and they're not figuring on a new one yet.

Dorothy, the little daughter of a tire salesman, had seen triplets for the first time. "Oh, Mother," she cried, on returning home, "what do you guess I saw today?" "I can't imagine, dear. What?" "A lady that had twins—and a spare!"

"I call my car Parker." "Why?" "Because it's a Parker."

LETTER GOLF

A PUZZLE FOR THE PARK.

There are several SEATS on every BENCH and letter golf proves it! Par is eight and one solution is on another page.

Letter Golf puzzle grid with words BENCH and SEATS.

SEATS

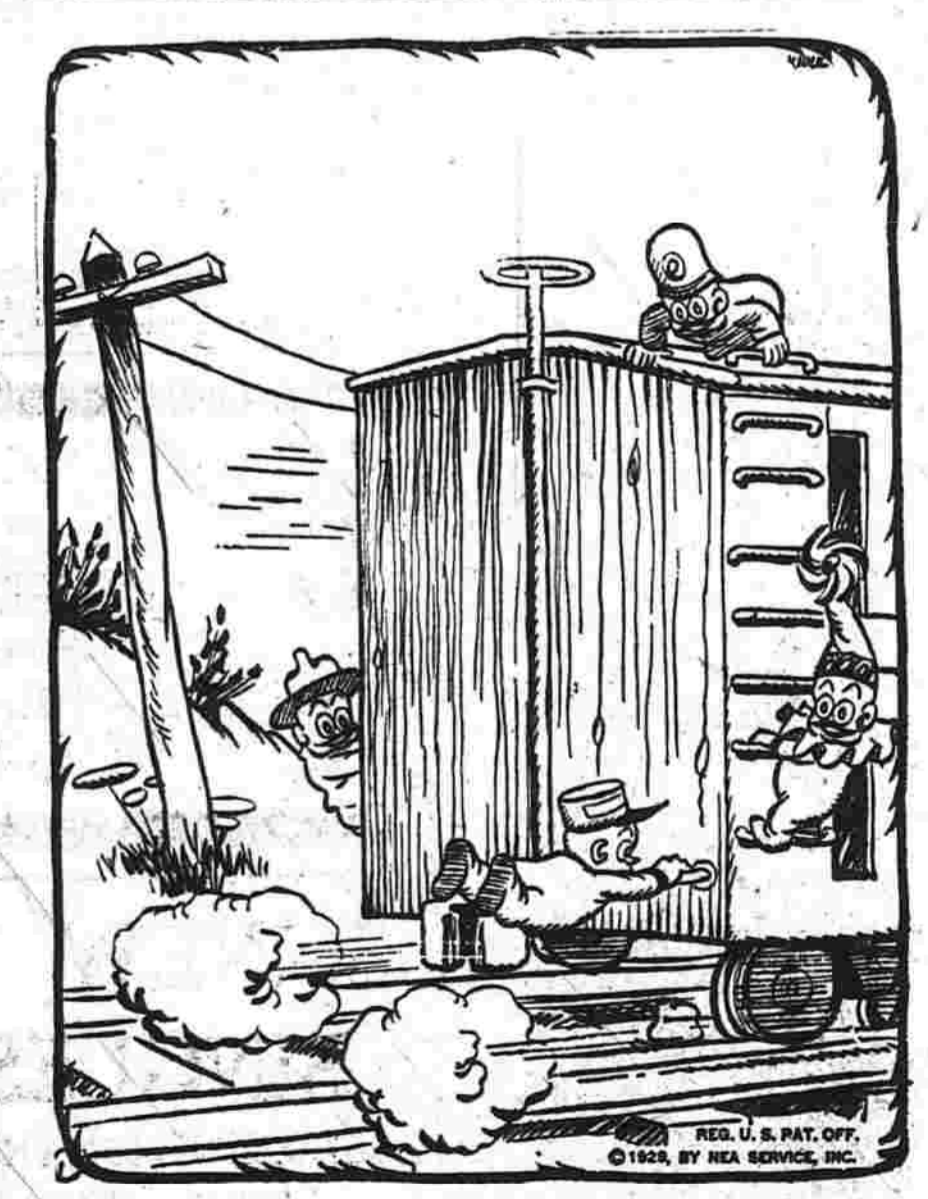

THE RULES

- 1-The idea of Letter Golf is to change one word to another and do it in par, a given number of strokes. Thus to change COW to HEN, in three strokes, COW, HOW, HEW, HEN. 2-You change only one letter at a time. 3-You must have a complete word, of common usage, for each jump. Slang words and abbreviations don't count. 4-The order of letters cannot be changed.

Husband (in car): "Great Heavens! The engine is terribly overheated."

Wife (calmly): "Then why don't you turn off the radiator?"

THE TINYMITES

(READ THE STORY, THEN COLOR THE PICTURE)

The Tintles ran up o'er a hill as Clowzy panted, "What a thrill we'd have if we could catch that train. I hope it comes nearby. Of course our run may be in vain, but worth it for what we may gain. I still can see the engine smoke go floating toward the sky. "Let's pick up speed. We're running slow. Come on, you Tinymites, let's go! I'm going to run away from you unless you travel fast." The other three then raced a bit, and Clowzy nearly had a fit. He thought that he was showing speed, but they all raced right by. "Ha, ha," the others laughed aloud. "Sometimes you seem a bit too proud. It's your turn now to catch us or we'll leave you far behind." Oh, no you won't," brave Clowzy cried. "If funny tricks like that are tried, I'll let you all run out of sight, and sneaks, I will not mind. But then the race came to a stop. They reached a bank and had to drop down on some little railroad tracks. They made it safe and sound. "I hope these are the tracks," said one, "where that big train is going to run. I still can hear it coming. Say, I wonder where it's bound." "Oh, what do we care where it goes?" wee Scouty answered. "Goodness knows that it will be a lot of fun to ride it anyway. The engineer can do the work and we'll just sit around and shirk. Why, when I think of such a ride I want to shout 'Hurray!'" Then round the bend the big train came. The smokestack puffed up smoke and flame. "Don't hop the front," cried Scouty. "Some place better we will find. They all stood back a little while. Then Clowzy, with a merry smile, said, "Hurry now! This is our chance. We'll all hop on behind." (What a surprise the Tintles get in the next story!)

E. J. WALL FORMS
AUTO SALES FIRM

Former Local Man Organizes Wall Chevrolet Co.; Takes Hartford Territory

Edward J. Wall, a former resident of Manchester, who for the past several years has been engaged in business in Providence as distributor of motor cars in Rhode Island, has disposed of his business there and is to return to his native state, Connecticut. He has formed a new company, Wall Chevrolet Company, to handle the sale of Chevrolet cars in Hartford and adjacent territory west of the city. Executives and heads of departments for the new organization will be brought on from Providence.

Mr. Wall has erected a new building on 491 Farmington avenue, which is one of the finest motor car sales and service structures in the city and ranks well with any similar buildings in New England. It represents a cost, including the investment in land and equipment, close to a quarter of a million dollars. While away from these parts, for some time, Mr. Wall has always retained an interest in affairs in this section. He has been a frequent visitor to Manchester where his two sisters reside on Main street. He has kept closely in touch with local doings through being a regular subscriber to the "Evening Herald."

Edward J. Wall

The new Wall Building will be opened for public inspection Monday evening, July 29. Entertainment will be furnished by Harry Reiser with the famous Clioquot Eskimos. They will be stationed on the roof of the building and will render a fine musical program. Many former Manchester friends of "Ed" Wall will, no doubt, find it convenient when in the city to call and see his new establishment. The new business will supply work for about fifty employees, mostly trained mechanics, and this number will be gradually increased as conditions warrant it.

How are YOUR locks? Can the burglars bother you? Play safe, see Braithwaite, 52 Pearl street.—Adv.

It is certain that nearly every Swedish family in town tuned in on WJZ last evening between 7 and 7:15, when Miss Gertrude Berggren of this town and New York sang as her feature number a group of typical old-time Swedish folk songs.

Joseph Rollason, who has conducted a cobbler shop for many years in a small building on Depot Square, is moving. He has taken one of the stores in the Fuller Block. The place he has occupied for many years was purchased some time ago by Irving P. Campbell, who intends to utilize it himself.

Calvin Crooks, son of Mr. and Mrs. Calvin Crooks of East Hartford, who is visiting his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Crooks of Apol place, was five years old today, and was tendered a birthday party in honor of the event. About 20 were present. The children enjoyed themselves out of doors and consumed the ice cream, cooling drinks and other good things provided by their hostess. Calvin Jr., received a number of toys and other gifts.
