

COME ON DOWN, BOYS! IS CRY TO ETERNAL FLIERS

Sponsor of Robin's Flight Sends Up Word Advising Pilots to Quit—Anxious for Their Safety.

Lambert Field, St. Louis, July 30.—Forest O'Brien and Dale Jackson, in answer to an early message sent by Major William B. Robertson that they use their discretion with regard to landing their endurance plane, St. Louis Robin, answered that they saw no reason to come down and they intended "to shoot for the 500 hour mark."

The fliers at this time had not had an opportunity to answer a later message of the major's which "requested" them to come down.

Lambert Field, St. Louis, July 30.—"You may fire when you see fit, boys," was the tone of a note sent this morning to the pilots of the endurance plane St. Louis Robin as its sturdy motor popped into its eighteenth consecutive day in the air and 49th hour of association with the clouds.

The latter command, which also advised the use of individual discretion, was given by Major William B. Robertson, president of the company sponsoring the present endurance flight to his employees, Dale ("Red") Jackson and Forest O'Brien, the main actors in the present American air epic.

After Conference
The note from Major Robertson was the result of a conference of officials of the airplane company conducting the endurance flight, and included Arthur Nutt, designer of the everlasting air-cooled Challenger motor. It was prompted according to Major Robertson by numerous messages received at night headquarters begging him to call down the pilots and avoid possibility of mishap or chance of forfeiting the splendid record through technicality, after the boys had passed their fourth day.

Some Engine Trouble
A note dropped by the fliers yesterday telling of a leaking gas-ket and two misbehaving cylinders, together with the depressing news of the death of the two Minneapolis endurance fliers and the local tragedy which claimed the life of the popular son of the founder of Lambert Field, George Lee Lambert, also are thought to have been contributing factors to prompt the major's note.

The fliers at this time had bested the Angeleno record by more than 162 hours.

They were also earning better than $120 for every hour spent in the air. The greedy motor now has been fed 3,490 gallons of gasoline.

The Robin, in the air seventeen days and one hour, passed its 49th hour of sustained flight at 10:17 a. m., E. D. T.

NOT SEEKING DIVORCE, SAYS GLORIA SWANSON

Going to Paris to See a "Perfectly Good Husband"; No More "Silents" for Her.

New York, July 30.—"No, I am not going to Paris to get a divorce. I am going abroad to see a perfectly good husband."

Gloria Swanson today swept into New York from Hollywood like a summer breeze and went on record as still being the fond wife of the Marquis Henry De La Falaise.

"I am going to do a little shopping as well, of course," she added.

"My husband will come back to America but it is not yet decided whether he will go on through to the coast. He is now in Paris, in connection with some motion picture work. It is his work and some technicality in passports which keeps him part of the time in Paris—certainly it is no trouble between us."

"I do not think I will ever make another silent picture," she said. The film star was accompanied by Virginia Bowker and by her singing teacher, Mark Markoff.

R-100 READY SOON

London, July 30.—Air officials expect the British dirigible R-100, the world's biggest passenger-carrying dirigible, to be ready for its transatlantic flight by the middle of September. It was learned today there will be lifting tests and trial flights after the airship is filled with hydrogen gas.

REDS RAZE A FAMOUS CHAPEL AT MOSCOW.

Moscow, July 30.—The famous sacred Iberian chapel, built in 1639, containing an icon of the Virgin Mary brought from Mount Athos, was suddenly torn down today without any previous warning. The wreckers started work at the Iberian gateway on Red Square, at which the chapel was a part. The destruction of this historic chapel caused consternation among the devout.

G. O. P. SENATORS SLASHING HIGH TARIFF RATES

Following Hoover Wishes in Making Hundreds of Cuts In Schedules of House's Stiff Hawley Bill.

Washington, July 31.—The much-debated Hawley tariff bill, which passed the House with the highest duties in history, is being materially slashed by Republican members of the Senate Finance Committee, it was learned today.

The Senate's Republican financial chiefs, apparently working in close harmony with the White House, have reduced scores of increases authorized by the House and their toll of slashes will include hundreds of items before the bill reaches the Senate.

This reduction of the House's idea of a "real protective tariff" will be due in no small measure to the influence of President Hoover, who has gone on record as favoring only such tariff increases as are considered absolutely necessary to protect American industry and labor against cheap foreign competition.

Household Necessities

The House increases in duties on sugar, leather and hides and other household necessities probably will strike the Senate axe, along with many less popular products.

Another interesting battle will be fought over the House rates of 15 per cent ad valorem on hides, 12 1/2 per cent on sole leather and 20 per cent on leather boots and shoes. Independent tanners have charged these rates would drive them out of business and set up the big packing interests as a "leather trust" in this country, since the packers control all domestic hides and the independents must import a majority of their hides.

Leather Chief Protests

David G. Long, president of the United States Leather Company, already filed protest with the committee against the House rates. He announced that from 35 to 40 per cent of the hides used in America were imported and that any increase in the duties would merely increase the cost of boots and shoes. He said the farmer would receive none of the benefits of the tariff but that any increase would go merely into the pockets of the packers.

"The independent tanners must import most of their hides as the packers control the home supply," Long said. "Any increase in the duties will work a hardship on the independent tanner and the public will have to pay more for their shoes."

No Exorbitant Rates

The plea of these independents was being studied by the Republican financial chiefs and there appeared a strong likelihood that these rates will be reduced in the Senate. One member of the committee said his colleagues were seriously trying to write a "fair bill" and that all exorbitant rates, approved by the House, would be reduced before the bill is reported to the Senate.

The Republican committee members were making slow headway with their schedules. The belief prevailed that, with new hearings to be held on the sugar schedule, the bill would not be completed until late in August.

CHARGES OF TERRORISM MADE AT GASTONIA

Defense Counsel Allege Intimidation as They Argue for Change of Venue.

Gastonia, N. C., July 30.—An amusing picture of a campaign of wholesale terrorism against Fred Beale, Communist labor organizer, and his fifteen aides was painted by the defense today in the "red" trial for the assassination of Police Chief O. F. Aderholt.

Episodes of coercion and intimidation against the defendants and their defense attorneys and the defense witnesses were given in an attempt to show that to proceed with the trial here will be extremely dangerous.

This sentiment was bared in score after score of affidavits from Gastonia country by the defense during the argument on its motion for a change of venue.

TREASURY BALANCE

Washington, July 30.—Treasury balance July 27: $152,404,998.

"NEW SACCO-VANZETTI CASE" OPENS IN STRIKE TORN GASTONIA.

Here are six of the seven defense counsel in the murder trial of 16 North Carolina textile workers and labor agitators charged with killing Chief of Police O. F. Aderholt of Gastonia. The state has ten attorneys to fight its case. Members of defense counsel, retained by the International Labor Defense are shown above, seated. They are, left to right, Leon Rosenbaum, Forrest Bailey, John R. Neal, Tom Jimison, Frank Flowers and Carl Brecher. Johnson D. McCall, added to the list just before the trial, is not in the picture.

TRANSFER RIOTERS TO OTHER PRISONS

Ringleaders of Auburn Outbreak Moved; Fugitive Four Are Still at Large.

Auburn, N. Y., July 30.—More than 100 freedom-crazed convicts, including ringleaders in the revolution which turned the prison yard into a battle-field, were slipped out of Auburn prison under cover of darkness early today.

Heavily guarded, they were started on the road to Sing Sing, Clinton prison at Dannemora and Great Meadow prison at Comstock. Fear that the party which has gripped the congested prison might flare into another outbreak led those in charge to make the transfer.

Trace Two Fugitives

Meantime search for two of the four convicts who escaped during the riot centered at Oneonta, N. Y., where two men believed to have been fugitives held up Mrs. John Hungerford, wife of a farmer, and demanded food last night. One was in prison clothes and the other in civilian clothes, she told troopers. She identified them from photographs produced by the troopers.

The fugitives escaped before Mrs. Hungerford could summon help.

No authentic clue had been unearthed as to the whereabouts of the other two fugitives, who are thought to be the ones who escaped in a commandeered automobile.

Blames Baumes Law

Governor Roosevelt, after an inspection of Clinton prison at Dannemora, declared the severity of the Baumes laws were responsible for the uprisings there and at Auburn. The Baumes law fixes the penalty for fourth conviction of felony at life imprisonment.

He ordered a sweeping investigation be made by Dr. Raymond F. C. Kieb, commissioner of correction who had previously attributed the outbreaks to the prisoners' unrest over the Baumes law stringency which takes away their hope of release. The governor was cheered by the convicts during his hour stay in the prison.

Since Sunday at 1 p. m. the 1768 convicts of Auburn have been without even bread and water. Today about 200 of them, who pleaded that they were "through" were taken out, led to a quiet corner of the quadrangle inside the walls, always under muzzle of machine guns on the walls and given water.

Then, when that first parching thirst had been assuaged they were given bread, and finally more water before being herded back into the east cell block, the one remaining block that is considered strong enough to house the men who only forty-eight hours ago were demoralized rioters.

Four times during the early part of the day, attempts were made to explain to the men caged in that east cell block that they would be fed, and given water, if they became quiet.

Each time, as a messenger from the office of Warden Edgar S. Jennings approached the cell block there were jeers, cat-calls and a howling chorus of the vilest of epithets.

It became impossible to make the message clear, even to those who might be ready to listen.

A fifth trip, just before noon, finally brought a semblance of order. "If you quiet down you will get fed," the state trooper who carried the message managed to shout.

Another outbreak started and the trooper was about to turn away when hands began to beckon from the windows.

Some of those inside managed to bring about a semblance of quiet and the offer was repeated again. It is expected that food and water will be distributed today.

Trinity Rector Raps Church In Politics

Head of Famous New York Parish Scores Propaganda for Prohibition and Pacifism as Injuring Religion.

New York, July 30.—Speaking straight and clearly from the head of that street from which utterances echo through the nation, Rev. Dr. Caleb R. Steston, rector of "Old Trinity," mother church of Wall street, believes "Political activities of churches which has become so strikingly a feature of our national life since the passing of the Eighteenth amendment are definitely hurting the cause of religion."

The criticism, with others, is contained in Dr. Steston's preface to Trinity's year book, issued today. Condemning use of the church as a center of Propaganda for either pacifism or prohibition, the rector of one of America's oldest and most famous churches says: "There seems to be a desire to make the clergyman the directing head of a corporation giving his attention to general subjects such as world peace, law enforcement, prohibition, disarmament, etc., while committees care for the individuals who may come to church."

"But this is certainly not the way to strengthen the church. It is not the way to win people to the church. The increasing political activity of some churches has caused many people grave anxiety and many have given up their church membership because of it. They felt they were neglecting the care of souls in order to further some political measure."

"There is a growing resentment of many loyal to religion to this attempted dictation on the part of church agencies on the conduct of government as well as legal enactments within a reasonable distance of the new factories and will probably be selected by a large number of employees, there is a decided lack in housing facilities. It is quite possible that available homes in Manchester are overlooked by prospective residents simply because no one knows the complete list of vacant houses and tenements."

Will List Them

In order to facilitate the work real estate men and property owners face in either trying to find homes for newcomers or rent vacant houses The Herald proposes to list and catalogue all available homes, with a description so that they may be easily referred to in event of inquiries.

Many Placed

Edward J. Holl who is developing several home sites here has already placed six employees of the Pratt and Whitney Company in Manchester. Mr. Smith has placed three families and has other prospects for whom he is trying to find suitable locations. The Manchester Construction Company through Arthur A. Knoke, its real estate agent, has several prospects in view and are extending a building service to all newcomers who desire to own their homes.

Send in Description

In order to aid the Manchester Promotion Bureau which is being conducted through The Herald, it is requested that all property owners in Manchester who have houses or tenements to rent send a description of the location of the houses or tenements and a description of the type of house or tenement. These will be kept on file and turned over to prospective residents as they are brought to the attention of The Herald.

LANCASHIRE MILLS 90 PER CENT IDLE

Less Than 200 Out of 1800 Operating, Only One at Reduction of Wages.

Manchester, Eng., July 30.—Little hope of immediate relief for the Lancashire cotton workers' walk-out was held out today as attempts to bring about arbitration between employers and laborers led to recurring failures.

The walk-out, unquestionably the worst in Britain since the disastrous general strike in 1926, has paralyzed the entire Lancashire cotton industry. Ninety per cent of the mills in the district, comprising a total of about 1,800, are idle, and 500,000 workers rendered idle because of their refusal to accept a wage cut of twelve and one-half per cent.

Cut Taken in One Mill
Less than two hundred mills in all the far-flung Lancashire district were operating today. A few of them maintained operation by the use of their own power, but at only one mill did the workers brave the edict of their unions by accepting work at the new reduced wage scale.

Hopes of successful intervention by the British Ministry of Labor were dashed by an official statement from Miss Margaret Bonfield, minister of labor, in which she held out no prospect of immediate amelioration of conditions.

Foreigners Warned
Greatest precautions are being taken against a possible communist uprising. Foreign concessions have prohibited garages to rent trucks to demonstrators, and have issued orders warning foreign residents of China to remain indoors Wednesday, Thursday and Friday. Chinese authorities have placed a ban on mass meetings and have

LACK OF RENTS IN TOWN BALKS HOME SEEKERS

Many Families Prospective Residents Here Unable to Find Suitable Sites—Herald Seeks Rent List.

Real estate agents in Manchester report an active interest on the part of employees of the Pratt and Whitney Aircraft Company in locating in Manchester, at least a dozen prospects having been shown homes here, most of whom have decided to live in Manchester while working at the new plant now under way in East Hartford. Manchester is bound to benefit substantially by the erection of the Pratt and Whitney plant, and also by the establishment of the proposed Chance Vought airplane factory, in the opinion of leading real estate men here.

Lack of Rents
However, lack of a definite building promotion agency here is likely to keep many more prospective residents away from this town. Although Manchester affords one of the best home locations within a reasonable distance of the new factories and will probably be selected by a large number of employees, there is a decided lack in housing facilities. It is quite possible that available homes in Manchester are overlooked by prospective residents simply because no one knows the complete list of vacant houses and tenements.

SMOKE JURY PICKING STILL DELAYS TRIAL

Taking of Testimony Not Expected to Begin Before Tomorrow at Earliest.

Columbus, O., July 30.—The battle for the Snook jury—as long winded as a congressional filibuster—entered its fifth day today.

Eleven jurors, ten men and a woman, were seated in the jury box, tentatively accepted by the trial of Dr. James H. Snook, confessed slayer of Miss Theora Hix, Ohio State University co-ed, was resumed this morning.

So far eighty-five talesmen have been questioned. The defense still has six peremptory challenges to exercise, the state two. In addition two additional peremptory challenges will be allowed each side in the selection of the thirteenth, or emergency, juror.

At the small's pace with which the trial of the ex-college professor is proceeding, taking of testimony will not begin before tomorrow at the earliest.

The chief cause for delay in picking the jury is due to "fixed opinions." Four out of every five, seem to have formed a positive opinion regarding the guilt or innocence of Snook. The state of Ohio is summoned to disqualify 22 men for jury service.

22 DIE IN TOWN-RURAL BATTLE OF MEXICANS

Mexico City, July 30.—Twenty-two persons were killed and 40 wounded in a violent battle between Agrarians and residents of the towns of Sierra de Agua and Acuitlancingo, such a dispatch from Orizaba, State of Vera Cruz, this afternoon.

PENCIL BRINGS ELECTRIC JUMP AND MAN'S DEATH

Norwell, Mass., July 30.—With a pencil in one hand and a flashlight in the other, Alexander Robertson, 44 of Quincy, an insurance inspector, was looking at a transformer at the Hingham Water company's pumping station while his wife and two children waited for him outside. Twenty-two hundred volts of electricity jumped to the pencil and killed him instantly.

HE PREFERS JAIL TO KEEPING WIFE

Young Husband Vehement In Decision; Two Other Marital Rows in Court.

"I will go to jail before I pay my wife a cent" was the statement Leo Rowe of Bissell street made to his attorney, Reuben Taylor, after the town court session this morning. And he used exceptionally vile adjectives in making the statement. The attorney was attempting to reason with the man in regard to the sentence of the court. Rowe was up for non-support. The case was tried last Thursday morning and Judge Raymond A. Johnson at that time withheld sentence so that he might clear up some of the questions in his mind, and at the same time allow for further investigation.

Jail Sentence

When the case was re-opened this morning Judge Johnson stated that investigation had been made and that he was satisfied that the separation was justified. He, therefore, sentenced him to jail for 30 days, and then suspended execution of the jail sentence on condition that he pay his wife $8 a week towards her support. This Rowe refused to consider and he was sent to jail. Cost in the case amounted to $20.22, so that if he does not care to pay up he will be kept in jail at least 20 days longer.

Complainant Absent

Married life and its attending difficulties brought two other couples into court this morning. Joseph Johnson and his wife, Kate Johnson, it was claimed, made disturbance at their home on Gardner street yesterday, and complaint was made to the police by some of the neighbors. Policeman John McGinn went out there and placed the couple under arrest, charging them with breach of the peace. In court this morning they were represented by Attorney William S. Hyde. The complaining witness failed to appear in court, using as an excuse that she was under a doctor's care. Judge Johnson therefore suspended judgment in both cases.

Tried to Choke Her

James Clifford of Wells street was arrested for an alleged assault on his wife. Mrs. Clifford appeared in court this morning and was in an excited state and claimed that her husband had attempted to choke her. Clifford arrived a little later and both tried to tell their troubles to Captain Herman Schenck for all the same. The Probation Officer Elliott was aware of the marital troubles of the couple and stated to the court that he would like the privilege of attempting to straighten out the matter. The court promptly continued the case for a month so that the probation office could discuss the trouble with the parties concerned.

THIS LOCHINVAR RIDES A ROLLS-ROYCE STEED

His Good Broadsword's a Gun But He Beats it Without His Darrien Fair Ellen.

Darien, July 30.—Local police were called into the exclusive Darien section today and as a result are seeking Lena Bannello, wealthy importer of New York and South America, to force him to answer charges of attempted assault, breach of the peace, and carrying concealed weapons.

The complainant, who asked urgent police aid early today, is Percival Jones, of New York and Darien. According to police Bannello, a friend and often a guest of the Jones family, came out in the Rolls-Royce and demanded that the Jones' eighteen-year-old daughter, Bannello wanted her to go to South America with him. The Jones family objected. Then Bannello, standing outside the house, expressed his opinion of the family.

Jones went out with an unloaded revolver. Bannello produced a gun of his own, struck Jones with it and took Jones' own gun away. By the time police arrived Bannello was spinning out of town in his Rolls-Royce.

FORD, 66 TODAY, HAS NO TIME FOR WHOOPEE

But He May Go to Edison's Selection of a Science-Heir at South Orange This Week.

Detroit, July 30.—Henry Ford had little time to observe his 66th birthday today. Mr. Ford was at his Dearborn laboratories early this morning and apparently expected to spend the day at work.

Ford looks 19 years younger than his age and asserts that he is "working harder than ever before." He may start for East Orange, N. J., late today to visit Thomas A. Edison and be present for the selection from 45 high school students of one who will be trained in the hope that he may carry on Edison's work.

EDISONETS FOREGATHER

South Orange, N. J., July 30.—Twenty-one of the forty-eight youthful contestants for the patronage of Thomas A. Edison are expected to arrive here today to be joined by the other contestants tomorrow for the round of activities that will precede their examination by the genius inventor.

The local Kiwanis will entertain them at luncheon and they will then go to New York to greet Babe Ruth at the Yankee Stadium. Tonight they will be guests of the Edison company officials at dinner.

Edison will address them at exercises in the laboratory courtyard tomorrow. Members of the advisory committee, consisting of Dr. Samuel W. Stratton, president of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, Henry Ford, George Eastman and Col. Charles Lindbergh are expected to be present. The exercises will be broadcast on a coast-to-coast hook-up at 11:45 a. m.

KING GEORGE'S HEALTH IS STILL IMPROVING

London, July 30.—An encouraging bulletin regarding the condition of King George, who recently underwent an operation to facilitate healing of an abscess in his chest, was issued from Buckingham palace today.

"His Majesty the King has improved during the past week," the bulletin read. "The abscess cavity remains free from purulent discharges. The healing process has now begun, but it must be gradual."

PLAN TO GET EARLY TEST OF A HEALING ACT

Leaders Propose Passage of Omnibus Validating Bill and Immediate Opinion on It by Supreme Court.

Hartford, July 30.—Digging into the annals of the state of Connecticut, officials who guide the General Assembly this year found in the records of the Civil War sessions precedent for handling the situation that was brought about by the Supreme Court of Errors when it decided the McCook case last Thursday. The precedent is likely to be used when the 1929 assembly gathers in extraordinary session next Tuesday.

In the year 1862 the assembly passed a law permitting absentees voting by the soldiers who were on active service in the war between the states. Immediately after its passage the assembly instructed Governor Buckingham, to call the Supreme Court into session at New Haven, study the bill and report back to the assembly so that he might tell the results to the assembly in not over one week. The assembly wanted to know if its action was constitutional.

To Pass Omnibus Bill

With this precedent in view the leaders of the 1929 assembly plan to meet and pass an omnibus bill making legal all the 1498 bills that governors from Simeon E. Baldwin's day down failed to sign within legal time limit set by the constitution. Once the bill is passed the assembly will adjourn until September 1. The governor so that he might tell the results to the assembly in not over one week. The assembly wanted to know if its action was constitutional.

Expect Cloud of Suits

Meanwhile the state is preparing to defend all sorts of legal actions because of the McCook case phases. If all the proposed suits are brought, for one thing and another, the state's entire bar will be kept busy for months, according to those who have studied things. The situation in general is without precedent in the nation, it is said, and may not be altogether straightened out for months or even years to come.

STOCKS RECOVER POINT OR TWO IN EARLY HOURS

Bulls Have an Inning Despite 10 Per Cent Rate and Money Market Rumors.

New York, July 30—Bulls in the stock market hit back at the bears in the first hour of trading today. As the result of which recoveries of a point or two were scored in steel, utility, copper and other speculative favorites.

Radio was a leader in the bull camp, advancing on good buying to above 86, for a gain of 2 points. U. S. steel jumped 2 points to 207, on prospects of an extra dividend to be ordered at the directors' meeting today.

Cutting down of the volume of trading to 245,000 shares in the first half-hour was taken as evidence that outside traders and the public generally were still on the sidelines, leaving the market in the hands of professionals.

Rail stocks started the day lower, but rallied in good form, under the lead of New York Central and Allegheny Corp.

Boston, July 30—Following two operations for tumor, the condition of Professor Dallas L. Sharp, of Boston University, noted educator and author, was reported critical at Peter Bent Brigham hospital today.

TRUCK RUNS AMUCK ON STAMFORD ROAD

Hits Air Compressor, Throws Pavement Worker Into Kettle of Melted Tar.

Stamford, July 30.—Four men were injured, two critically, when a truck went out of control on Richmond Hill avenue here today, and brought up against an air compressor around which were gathered men engaged in paving the street.

The seriously injured are Marvin Powell, colored, and Americo Camerotto, both of Stamford.

Joseph Robinson, of Camden, N. J., driver of the truck, was promptly locked up on a charge of reckless driving. Robinson and Andrew Romanowski, helper, were bound for Providence with 400 crates of tomatoes. When the car went out of control, Romanowski jumped.

Racing at 40 miles an hour, the car struck a street pole and bounded into the air compressor. Camerotto and Powell were working at a tar kettle. Camerotto was knocked into the kettle and was badly burned. Amputation of one foot was in prospect. He was internally injured beside. Powell also was internally injured.

Before police had finished their work in the case, the Webb Asphalt Co., brought legal action against the owners of the truck, attaching the truck which was not badly damaged.

RUSSIA DENIES ANY PARLEY WITH CHINESE

Twice Today Issues Statement That No Negotiations of Any Sort Have Been Opened

Moscow, July 30.—The Soviet government today officially denied that any negotiations looking toward settlement of the Sino-Russian dispute had begun and again today issued a second denial of either "direct or indirect" negotiations having opened.

WHITES ATTACK REDS IN LONDON, JULY 30.—A party of White Russians has attacked Soviet border troops at Pulteney, Rancuchany, forcing the latter to retire. It is reported in a Central News dispatch from Shanghai today.

Chinese and Russian troops have been withdrawn from Manchouli, leaving a neutral zone twenty miles wide between the two forces.

MISSING PICNICKERS MAKE WAY TO SAFETY

Portland, Me., July 30.—In a patched up open row boat a party of eight young men and women arrived here safely today, having been marooned on Basket Island in Casco Bay since Sunday morning.

They had been rescued for their safety and parties of coast guardsmen and volunteers had searched for the missing picnickers.

A series of mishaps, climaxed by the sinking of their craft had kept the eight marooned.

Captain Charles Willard, of Portland, picked them up in his motor launch and towed their open boat to dock.

The four young men of the party, suffering from heat and lack of drinking water, were patently rowing up the harbor when located.

A. C. SMITH NEW MAJOR IN 242 COAST ARTILLERY

Hartford, July 30.—Formal orders covering the retirement of Colonel D. Gordon Hunter, of Hartford, as commander of the 169th Infantry Regiment, and the appointment of Lt. Col. Orville A. Smith, of New Haven, to succeed him in command, were issued by the adjutant-general's office here today.

At the same time the office announced the promotion of Capt. Alvin C. Smith, Battery E, 242nd Coast Artillery, to be Major Commanding headquarters battalion of the same regiment, succeeding Major Hurley, promoted.

Filmland People Aren't Very Good Movie Fans

June Collyer

By DAN THOMAS.

Hollywood, Calif.—Nobody in our film village ever sees a motion picture as it is seen through the eyes of the general public.

Strange as that statement may be, it is the belief of June Collyer, who gained after two years of observation as a member of the movie colony.

"Everybody out here is interested in one particular phase of film production," June declares. "Whenever we go in to see a picture the actors see only their own work, cameramen notice only the photography, sound technicians are interested only in the sound, electricians are interested primarily in the lighting effects, directors notice only the acting, producers look at it in terms of dollars and writers care only for story developments."

"I don't believe anyone out here ever looks at a picture in a general manner as the public does. Perhaps it would be better for us if we would view films in a broader way but I guess it is just human nature for us to be interested in the work which we ourselves are doing."

"The thing which first brought this to my attention was when I heard a cameraman remark about the good photography one day after we had been looking at our rushes in the projection room. The sound expert to whom the cameraman was speaking replied, 'Yes, it sounded great.'"

The beautiful Miss Collyer—and she is beautiful—claims to be the luckiest girl in make-believe hamlet. Just when the talkies were beginning to kill silent films and June was wondering what would happen to her, Paramount borrowed her from the Fox studios, where she is under contract, for one of the two female leads opposite Buddy Rogers in "Magnolia." Her acting and voice were so good in that film that Paramount immediately borrowed her for an important role opposite Rogers in "Illusion."

"Those are the kind of breaks I have been getting ever since I started in pictures," June said. "Every time I begin to wonder what is going to happen to me, I get a lucky break and the sun shines again."

The success which has greeted the young actress in the talkies might easily be attributed to her ancestral blood. Her grandfather, Dan Collyer, was a big figure on the legitimate stage for 54 years and June seems to have inherited his talent. Even as a youngster she showed remarkable possibilities in amateur theatricals. But this to my attention was when she never acted professionally until she entered pictures three years ago.

CONFEDERATE LEADERS' PICTURES FOR "POINT"

Washington, July 30.—Large portraits of two famous Confederate military leaders, Robert E. Lee and P. T. G. Beauregard, will be hung in the mess hall of the West Point Military Academy with the approval of Secretary of War Wood. Both Lee and Beauregard were graduates of West Point and later superintendents of the academy.

VIOLA GENTRY IS ON ROAD TO RECOVERY

Mineola, N. Y., July 30.—Viola Gentry, is off the danger list at Nassau County Hospital, where she is recovering from injuries incurred a month ago when her airplane crashed. The plucky aviatrix maintains a cheerful frame of mind, and is confident that she'll soon be out of the hospital.

BROADWAY CHIPS $100 FOR STARVING YOUTH

New York, July 30.—Ernest Barber, 22-year-old University of Virginia student, is looking for a job in New York with $100 in his pockets and a good breakfast under his belt—yesterday he was starving. When the youth collapsed on Broadway and an ambulance surgeon told the crowd Ernest had been without food three days, the New Yorker took up a collection which totalled a century.

GIRL SWIMS DELAWARE, PHILLY TO WILMINGTON

Wilmington, Del., July 30.—Sadie Schwartz, 19-year-old student at Temple University, Philadelphia, arrived here at 12:10 this afternoon, completing the swim down the Delaware from Philadelphia. Miss Schwartz is the first person, man or woman, to accomplish the task. Miss Schwartz left Philadelphia at 10:20 last night completing the distance in 13 hours and 50 minutes.

THREE WOMEN AMONG GRAF ZEPPELIN'S PARTY

Most of the Passengers on Ocean Voyage of Dirigible Starting Tomorrow Are Americans.

Freidrichshafen, Germany, July 30.—Preparations were virtually completed at the Zeppelin airport here today for the start of the giant dirigible Graf Zeppelin for America.

Present plans call for the start to take place soon after dawn Thursday.

Dr. Hugo Eckener, commander, who usually guides his airship according to the dictates of the weather and his motors, made an exception to his general rule and postponed the starting time. The urgent pleas of Mrs. Pary Pierce, wife of a New York stock broker, who was aboard the Zeppelin on its last attempt to reach America, and Mrs. George Crouse, of Syracuse, N. Y., to wait for them brought a quick response from the dirigible's commander.

Mrs. Pierce is rushing to Germany from the interior of Russia by plane, and is expected here some time tomorrow. Mrs. Crouse, with her husband arrives aboard the Mauretania at Cherbourg today.

One other woman, also an American, will make the trans-Atlantic crossing, according to present plans. She is Rene Froisart, wife of the Russian pianist Gourevitch, also a passenger. She has lived in Hollywood for six years, and is an American citizen.

Workmen proceeded throughout the day with the task of refueling the giant airship with gasoline and Blau Gas, and a new gyrocompass has been installed to take the place of the magnetic compass.

The passenger list of the Zeppelin on this trip is composed mainly of Americans.

FIND 'MORROW' SCION BOSSING SPEAKEASY

New York Dry Raid Uncovers Dressed Up Person Who Gives a Celebrated Name.

New York, July 30.—Galloping among the bright light district, the "four horsemen" of Inspector McCormick's tendarloia outfit today uncovered two alleged speakeasies and found in them, along with rare wines and liquors valued at $3,000, the self-styled son of a millionaire.

The big caches were found at No. 12 and 16 West Fifty-fifth street, almost across from the Fifth Avenue Presbyterian church.

At the first address was a 27 year old man, smartly dressed in the true collegian mode, who said he was Joseph Morrow of 270 Riverside Drive, and the son of a millionaire family. He averred that he was merely "minding" the place for a friend.

Thomas Burns, 50, arrested at the second address, also declared that he was not the proprietor but was merely "waiting for a friend."

Both prisoners insisted that a mistake had been made as the places were private homes and the stock of liquors was meant for private consumption.

JUDGE GRANTS TIME TO 5 ACCUSED WETS

Hartford, July 30.—Federal Judge Warren B. Burrows today permitted a group of Hartford and New Haven people a few weeks of grace before he acts on the request of the United States District Court for the Brooklyn, N. Y. district, for their return there to stand trial on charges of conspiracy to violate the Prohibition Act.

The defendants are Benjamin Ragatsky and Louis W. Gross, of Hartford, and Mollie Morris, and Nathan Feldman, of New Haven.

The case was continued until October when the defendants appeared before Judge Burrows, who ordered each to give bond for $5,000. Mollie Feldman was permitted to furnish bond without making personal appearance because of her extreme age.

EXONERATES DRIVER OF WRECKED RESCUE CAR

Bridgeport, July 30.—Coroner John J. Phalen today exonerated Edwin H. Mead, Jr., of New Canaan from blame for the death of his father in an automobile accident near Danbury on July 15. The Meads were at Lewjeboro, N. Y., when the elder man's nephew, Roy Seleck, was hit by a hit-and-run driver. The two Meads placed him in an ambulance and raced to Danbury hospital. The truck struck a pole and the Elder Mead was killed.

DROUGHT UNBROKEN THROUGH COUNTRY

Heat Increases as Nation Feels Little Rain Except Light Showers.

New York, July 30.—The country today remained in the grip of the drought with little hope for any appreciable amount of rainfall held out by weather authorities.

"There have been scattered rain-falls throughout the nation but they have had little effect on the situation," today said Dr. J. H. Kimball, weather bureau meteorologist.

Temporary relief was felt by a light rain which fell from the Virginia coast northward. Throughout the cotton section further scattered rainfall was reported.

Light rain also fell in the southwest, in the El Paso region and in Arizona and New Mexico.

The most severe effect of the drought is being felt in the Northwest and the upper Missouri Valley, according to Mr. Kimball.

Temperatures in the plains states, including Kansas, Nebraska, north and south Dakota, Minnesota, Iowa, were reaching above 90 degrees.

In New York City, the temperature dropped to 80 degrees compared with 87 yesterday.

Truck farmers who supply the greater part of the city's fresh food have been watching their fields burn up under the blinding sun.

Lack of rain has already cost the farmers of New Jersey and Long Island millions of dollars.

The eastern part of New Jersey has been the greatest sufferer. Residents have been warned not to waste water.

FOREIGNERS FIGHTING FOR SHARE IN TALKIES

Producers Abroad Work feverishly to Catch Up With Americans Lead in New Films.

Washington, July 30.—The whole world has gone "talkie crazy" with the result that a half dozen nations are agog with plans to combat the tremendous hold of Hollywood productions on the movie patrons in every land.

Handicapped by the fact that American producers pioneered the field of sound pictures, America's foreign competitors nevertheless are working in feverish haste to capture what they regard as their golden opportunity to win their place in the theatrical sun.

Thus far the American productions are still dominant, and officials of the Motion Picture Division of the Department of Commerce are confident that they will continue to be, although the sound picture has revolutionized the export movie business even more than it has affected theaters in the United States.

The fact that American motion picture export for the first six months of 1929 exceeded those of a similar period in 1928 is regarded as a good omen by foreign trade officials. Exports in the six months period of 1929 amounted to $3,331,022 as compared to $2,218,566 last year.

Sovkino, the leading Soviet Russian production unit, has ordered 50 sound-film sets from the Government Electric Trust, and also production of the first Soviet Russian sound film is under way in Petrograd.

HOT SPELL CONTINUES; NO RELIEF IN SIGHT

Not a Drop of Rain Falling in Entire United States; Town's Water Supplies Good

The warm weather spell continued in Manchester today with still no promise or indication of rain. A slight breeze was blowing but it did little good.

The weather observations for the United States taken at 8 o'clock this morning showed no sign of rain in any of the 24 selected points throughout the country. It was either clear or cloudy in all points.

LOCAL CHORUS SINGS ON VICTOR RECORDS

Beethoven Glee Club Sings With Associated Clubs. Songs Now Published in Record Form.

Of interest to many local people, particularly members of the Beethoven Glee Club, is the release of Victor Record No. 22030, this week.

The local glee club, took part in the contest and also in the concert, and were combined with the other clubs to form the Associated Glee Clubs, which made the above record for the Victor Talking Machine Co.

The A side of the record is "On the Road to Mandalay" by Kipling and Speaks, while the B side is the popular number "Morning" also by Speaks.

The combined Glee Clubs number 4000 voices, and the recordings of the above songs are particularly fine.

A very large sale of this record is anticipated in town owing to the fact that the local Beethoven Glee Club, under the direction of Helge Pearson, took part in the recording of this new Victor Record.

MANCHESTER PEOPLE AT WALL'S OPENING

Local Man's Chevrolet Agency Publicly Inspected Last Night—Is Beautiful Building.

Manchester had a large representation at the public inspection last evening of the fine new building erected on Farmington avenue, Hartford by the Wall Chevrolet Company.

The location is ideal for the purpose, directly opposite the Colonial theater or between Sisson and Girard avenues.

The structure stands well back from the street and new lawns add to its attractive appearance.

The floor was brilliantly lighted for the opening, including the roof where were stationed the famous Cliequot Eskimos under the direction of Harry Reser.

Mr. and Mrs. G. Walter Smith and family spent the day at Lord's Point, last week.

Mrs. Clara B. Snow, whose appointment as postmistress of Wapping, was officially announced at Washington, Thursday, Mrs. Snow succeeded Walter S. Billings who has resigned.

Mrs. Oliver A. Jones of South Windsor, is spending the summer at Eastport, Maine.

Mr. and Mrs. James Bancroft and daughter Frances spent the week-end with friends in Boston, Mass.

Ellsworth Newberry and friends spent the week-end in Munsonville, N. H. with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Dwight Newberry.

There were thirty-two from Wapping who attended the East Central Pomona Grange, No. 3, Field Day Picnic last Saturday, which was held at Bolton Center on the Green.

The contestants were from each Grange, and prizes were offered. The first prize was won by Wapping Grange and was a silk American flag for their Grange hall.

The second was taken by Bolton Grange and was a basket for Pomona's table, and the third was taken by East Windsor Grange and was a basket for Flora's table.

JERRY FALVEY AT RAU'S

With the ushering in of the month of August the summer resort season usually reaches its utmost heights. The popularity of Rau's new dance pavilion seems to be continually increasing.

After receiving a great number of requests Mr. Rau has secured Jerry Falvey and his orchestra of Holyoke, Mass., to furnish the music tomorrow evening, July 31st.

This orchestra made such a distinct hit and created such a favorable impression on their initial appearance a few weeks ago, that a return engagement is sure to win new friends for this wonderful dance unit.

There is no doubt that each and every orchestra has a certain individual way of rendering music which makes their efforts stand out alone above all others.

The love of a dog for his master often is no greater than that of a master for his dog. And such is the case of Lewis Lloyd, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Lloyd of Hilliard street whose dog was seriously injured last night when struck by an automobile driven by William Fetterton of 34 William street.

The accident frightened the boys so much that they started to scream. This attracted the attention of neighbors who rushed to the scene. The boys were not injured, but the dog was and Dr. Fred F. Bushnell, local veterinarian, considers the dog in a serious condition.

The dog's rear legs are paralyzed and the animal may die. In the meantime the little Lloyd boy has been so nervous that he has been unable to sleep and spends most of his time laying beside the dog.

On Saturday evening of this week an all star attraction is offered to the dance public in the second appearance of Norman L. Cloutier and his well known Travelers Club orchestra.

Cloutier is a well known and influential leader in Hartford music circles, and is one of the largest drawing cards in that city.

The mere preliminary announcement that he is coming back again for a return engagement is sure to win quick favor with local dancers.

TRANSFER RIOTERS TO OTHER PRISONS

Removed in Hartford. Hartford, July 30.—If Auburn's escaped convicts were in Hartford today, they had upward of two hours to get across the border-line into Massachusetts and into more remote places.

A Hartford woman reported that she was almost run down on upper Main street by a car carrying four men. The car bore the number NY 4-S-6446. It was tan with black running gear.

The Hartford police sent out word about 10:30, notifying Springfield and Worcester, among other places.

PROVINCETOWN PLAYER IN FROLIC DRINKS POISON

Provincetown, Mass., July 30.—The tragic death of Earl Stanley, 28, leading man with the Wharf Players, local stock company, who accidentally drank from a bottle of poison, today cast a pall of gloom over the summer art colony here.

The ladies are not the only ones who appear scantily clad. How about a bald-headed man in a rumbly seat?

PLAN TO LEAVE TOWN CAUSE OF MURDER

Winsted, July 30.—From the hospital at Great Barrington, Mass., this morning, came information that Mrs. Rosie Zucco, young widow shot at East Canaan yesterday by John Maugua, who later killed himself, was still alive but in critical condition.

Indications now are that Maugua, yesterday supposed to have been crazed by love, in reality became incensed because of a plan to move the Zucco house to Lakeville and so did the shooting.

"PRISON REFORM"

In the course of the more than twenty-nine years of the present century there has been a far stride in the line of "prison reform." No longer is there such a thing as the lock-step. In very few American prisons is the traditional striped suit of the convict ever seen. The closely shaven head has disappeared. We have gone a long way on the road of belief that the criminal is a human being with a soul to be saved and a future to be made clean. We have, almost unanimously, adopted the theory that he is a sick man and that his incarceration is a sort of hospitalization necessary to his cure. Humanitarianism has replaced bitter, brutal repression. A penal institution of today is no more like the penal institution of half a century ago than day is like night or milk like ink. This despite the fact that prisons still have cells and locks and bars and that the inmates are not supposed to come and go as they please like summer boarders at a hotel.

And where has this prison reform, so far as it has proceeded, gotten us? Never in American history have there been, before, prison outbreaks to compare with those at Dannemora and at Auburn. In each instance there was a mere handful of prisoners who acted like human beings—all the rest behaved like mad creatures, eager to kill and destroy, animated by the primitive, animal-like impulses that have distinguished the twist-brained felon from time immemorial.

Perhaps the failure of our prison system, so shockingly demonstrated, may lie in the fact that we haven't gone far enough in our tenderness and our sympathy for the erring. Perhaps our prisons should be still more comfortable and interesting, perhaps new charms should be added to existence there in order to mellow the bitterness and soften the hearts of the law-breakers. It may be that the cure for such bedlam scenes as those at Clinton and Auburn lies in a further extension of prison reform. We do not know. But so far as any cleansing of souls goes, just on the surface of things the advantage would appear to lie less with the scented breezes of kindly consideration than with the searing winds of adversity.

At all events, the rioters in these two New York prisons have done more, in all probability, to prevent further extension of soft treatment of convicts than all the arguments of a half a nation of dissenters could have done in a lifetime.

ABOUT SWINDLING

"We must not be swindled again," indignantly declares the Army and Navy Journal, as it demands that more light be thrown on the "secret negotiations" going on in London for the furtherance of President Hoover's and Premier MacDonald's policies of military costs reduction.

It is to be wondered a little just whom the Army and Navy Journal means by "we." If by any extraordinary chance that very highly specialized Journal means the people of the United States, it is to be pointed out that it is, perhaps unconsciously, in full accord with Mr. Hoover's purposes. The President appears to quite fully realize that the American people have been swindled about long enough in the purchase of ships at two or three scores of millions of dollars apiece without a scrap of evidence that they would be, in the event of war, worth a dime each as a means of national defense.

There are two separate lines of approach to this matter of navy reduction, both of which come out at the same place but by very different routes. One of them is along the theory that great armies and great navies are a standing menace to peace. The other is that great navies which adhere to the military principles of the time of Trafalgar, in complete scorn of the facts of submarine and air perils, are enormously expensive jokes.

It is to be suspected that Mr. Hoover's mind is capable of following both these lines to their logical conclusion—which is that it is about time to quit swindling the people of the country for the behoof and benefit of a group of admirals and armor plate manufacturers who refuse to recognize the facts of 1929.

IF

Anyone who can guess whether the Mme. Tschalkowsky who says she is Grand Duchess Anastasia, only surviving child of Czar Nicholas II, is indeed a Romanoff, or only a ground and lofty fakir, must be endowed with a discrimination far beyond the average. Any number of witnesses are ready to prove, at any time, that she is indeed the daughter of a Czar. Any number are ready to prove that she is no such thing, but instead a simple fraud and adventures. One outsider's opinion is as good as another's and, on the average, they will split.

However, Mme. Tschalkowsky has at last taken the steps which shrewd observers of such things fancied, when she first came into the spotlight, that she might take. She has set on foot legal proceedings to gather into her possession whatever of the Romanoff fortune may be found to be gettable. It is said that a hundred million dollars worth of that fortune is scattered about in a number of countries—not a little of it in America. What we are interested in is the consequences of a possible victory for the putative grand duchess. There are a great many very highly placed social leaders who have taken the anti side with relation to Mme. Tschalkowsky's pretensions—they didn't believe her story, wouldn't receive her, flouted and pooh-poohed the whole business. We can't help wondering how they are going to feel about it all if the lady does actually prove, to the satisfaction of the American courts, that she is the Czar's daughter—and if she comes out of it with a hundred million scads.

Hollywood.—Every film lot of any consequence has its "studio bungalow." Not infrequently, there are several.

This, if you please, is the mark of the star. In the theater, for many years, a linseed star decorated the doorway of the bright and particular personage whose name was to be found in bright lights over the marquee.

Out here in the Hollywoods, those who feel a slight affinity with the more important planets build themselves bungalows for dressing rooms—and for those particular rest periods between periods. Those which have become sufficiently famous bungalows are pointed out by the bright young men from the studios who show you around. Ronald Colman and Marion Davies, I believe, have the particular show spots of the film lots at the present writing. But, I am told, there is a certain rivalry!

The high spot of high spots, however, is the cottage of Cecil De Mille, who is a showman down to his kitchenette. On the MGM lot, the Cecil De Mille cottage is something which even a traveling scribe from Manhattan may not enter without some slight tempery and effort. De Mille, whose bath tubs and bedrooms once added to the gaudy of nations, is guarded by what appear, at first glance, to be frail females. But just try to crash his door! Not even the bloody Amazons could have held quite so much frigidaire in their tones.

One is told guardedly that Mr. De Mille is more than merely a busy man; he is a producer in his own right—an official of the Motion Picture Something-or-Other, a director and a this-and-that. After such hocus-pocus as might be necessary to crash the gate of J. P. Morgan's; after such misrepresentations of my standing in society as the friendly guide could conjure up. I have been allowed to gaze upon M. De Mille's secret set of collected pistols; I have seen the sword of the Samurai; his cabinet of carved doo-dads, including the largest bit of carved jade in the world, or whatever it is; his rugs, curtains, drapes—yes, and even his slightly bald head.

And, seemingly, hundreds of performers are more than passingly interested in necromancy, superstition and rognostication in general. All about the lots one sees signs of the seers. There are palmists and crystal gazers and trance mediums and such. I am told that these do a truly amazing business among the players. It's not infrequently a short life and a merry one, where contracts are concerned, and even the mightiest are known to consult other stars.

A few, I am further informed, pay annual fees to certain astrological gazers—as one would pay a lawyer—to keep them informed on any planetary changes which may take place. They demand to be told of the bad days and the good days so that they may be forewarned, and hence forearmed.

The streets of Hollywood are full of odd and quite typical landmarks. Thus, in front of the most garish of the vast theaters, players have inscribed names and greetings in the cement before it had a chance to dry. There are good luck notices and hello notices and a dozen signatures crudely set down in the vast courtyard which must be entered to reach the doorway.

Upon a sunny day, one is likely to encounter the sun-tanned, lithe-strutted disciple of some outdoor cult or other, who dresses as nearly like Peter the Hermit as the authorities will allow. His suit is of some gunny sack material and his sandals, if factory made, are a fair imitation of those worn in another era.

YELLOWISM

We don't suppose that Dr. S. E. Nicholson, associate superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League of New York, considers himself as occupying the same plane as the editor of a yellow tabloid, but he seems to share with such a person the qualities that make a tabloid editor yellow.

Dr. Nicholson, in an address on Long Island the other day, stated it as a fact that foreign capital was being used to support anti-prohibition societies in this country. He hadn't, on questioning, a shred of proof of the assertion. Somebody told him.

When a newspaper prints a statement derogatory to an individual organization, and when it can present no better excuse for accepting it as true than somebody told the editor so, it is extremely liable to be sued for libel—and lose the suit. When an editor prints news on that sort of basis he is yellow.

We do not say that Dr. Nicholson is a yellow reformer but we do admit that if we performed in print as he performs on the platform this would be a yellow newspaper and unworthy of credence.

NOT NEEDED

There seems to be little patience in any quarter with the suggestion that an amendment be made to the Constitution of Connecticut that would, in some way or another, legalize the practice of long delayed signing of legislative bills by the governor. Constitution tinkering is a thing always to be avoided save in the face of unquestionable necessity. No such necessity would appear to exist. There is no reason why the charter of this state should be twisted out of recognition in order to support a practice in itself fundamentally unsound.

The three-day limit for the life of measures passed by the General Assembly, after adjournment, is a perfectly reasonable and wise provision. The answer to the problem is for the Legislature to do its business with knowledge of that provision in view. That it will be unable to get its bills legally passed if it persists in postponing action until the eleventh hour is the lookout of the Assembly, not of the Constitution.

SUPREME COURT ADVICE

Without any present command of the historic facts relating to the subject it is impossible to form a worthwhile opinion as to the probable attitude of the Connecticut Supreme Court of Errors toward the proposed request for an advisory opinion as to the proper course for the Legislature to take in validating the McCookized laws—whether they must be re-enacted separately or might be healed en bloc. But the emergency is great, so perhaps the court will at least entertain the inquiry.

Such, of course, is not the ordinary practice of courts which are purely appellate in their character. They decline, as a rule, to advise actions in advance and insist on confining their opinions to the validity of completed facts. However, we know of no constitutional obstacle to prevent the Supreme Court from rendering the desired opinion if it sees fit. The court may, or it may not find sufficient reason in logic for doing so; but it would create no surprise, and it might save a world of further complications, if the ultimate legal authority of the state were to consent to direct the course of the Legislature in the impending solution of a badly tangled situation.

HEATED CHINESE OPINION

By RODNEY DUTCHER.

Washington, July 30.—The Coast Guard continues to complain that the roving spotlight of publicity always favors its activities against rum-runners instead of its ancient and honorable work of lifesaving and other maritime aid.

This does not square exactly with a common opinion in Washington that the Coast Guard boys are about the best little press-agents in town.

But even if the Guard's longstanding complaint be true, it is perfectly natural. No one need be surprised if newspapers give much space to incidents where the Coast Guardsmen shoot up yachting parties or kill more or less innocent citizens. It is invariably a matter of interest when an organization formed for rescue and life-saving has to shoot at people. Just think what a lot of publicity the Red Cross would get if it started drowning disaster refugees instead of saving them!

The Coast Guard can't be blamed for its shootings as an organization. Its officers admit they don't like the added prohibition part of their jobs. But they can't help themselves and whenever there's a policy of shooting some shots are likely to land in the wrong place.

All of which should deter no one from chronicling what reports reach the Coast Guard headquarters here in a single week showed that the guardsmen had rescued 420 persons. This 420 is a record likely to stand for a long time. It represents more persons than the Coast Guard is likely to shoot if it continues to help enforce prohibition for the next hundred years.

The record was helped by bad storms along the Pacific Coast, in which several vessels with from 20 to 40 persons aboard required the services of the Coast Guard, including the schooner Laura and the schooner Harwood.

In the same period, the record shows, the Coast Guard rendered other major assistance to 313 percent and miscellaneous assistance to 240 others.

Major assistance involved the saving of life or property. Cases of miscellaneous assistance performed throughout the year include warning vessels standing in danger, various services to shipping and boating, furnishing fuel, food and water to distressed vessels, succoring the shipwrecked, medical and surgical aid, assistance at neighborhood fires and fires in buildings or wharves along the shore line, lighting forest fires, assistance at floods, dragging waters for bodies, burial of bodies cast up by the sea, sheltering wayfarers overtaken by storm or misfortune, restoring lost children to parents, co-operating in maintaining local order, recovering lost and stolen property, protecting wrecked property, acting as emergency pilots, transporting the mails, pulling automobiles out of deep sand and ever so many other things.

The iceberg patrol, consisting of the Coast Guard cutters Tampa and Modoc, is still out in the Atlantic, guarding the passenger liners from bergs. They went into the berg area in the last part of March.

Continued presence of icebergs close to the steamship lanes is considered a phenomenon. During the last two years the dangerous area has been free of floating ice by the last of June. The explanation of the persistence of the bergs this year is that the Labrador current, which carries them, has not been forced back as usual by the Gulf Stream. The Coast Guard does not attempt to explain the Gulf Stream's failure.

DREAMS AND NIGHTMARES

Dreams are familiar to everyone. Science claims that during sleep a portion of the brain or nervous system may remain awake when other parts are asleep. Dreams are produced by a wakefulness of the higher intellectual centers, producing mental pictures or dreams by utilizing the memory and imagination. The conscious portion of the mind is asleep. That the mind is not completely asleep can be illustrated by the fact that when one sleeps during a continuous humming noise, one awakes upon the sound stopping. Many people, too, have the power of awaking after a predetermined time, and we all know that an unusual noise may cause one to awake.

Dreams are often guided by external sensations of hearing, touch or digestive disorders, but the sensory nerves are partly asleep and the sensations are misinterpreted. For example, a full heavy meal may give the sensation of falling or sinking and being unable to walk rapidly. In many people dreams also occur as an attempt to escape from reality. People may accomplish in their minds things during sleep which they would like to do when awake but do not because of mental inhibitions. The impressions of a dream may be so slight as not to be remembered, or so strong as to awaken the sleeper with a feeling that he has actually lived his dream. Mental unrests and anxieties undoubtedly contribute to the formation of dreams. The so-called symbolic property of dreams to foretell events of the future is now regarded as purely superstition.

THIS HAS HAPPENED.

MOLLY BURNHAM, sob sister on Boston newspaper, has been shot by a dope fiend known as Dopey Dan. Molly was covering the MANDINELLO trial—the trial of a notorious gunman charged with the murder of a night watchman.

She believed the defendant guilty, and her stories were admittedly biased. As a result of one of her articles falling in the hands of a jurymen, the judge called a mistrial. Matinee, this Dopey Dan—his drug-crazed brain fired with the exploits of Chicago's racketeers—determines to kill Molly.

His bullets wound her in the shoulder, and she is taken to the Relief station, where her name is on the dangerous list. Dan eats an orange smeared with poison, and shoots himself, for good measure.

In the hospital, waiting for good news, are Molly's friends, and her sweetheart, JACK WELLS. Also RED FLYNN, a police court reporter, with whom she is writing a crime play.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER XVIII.

Molly smiled wanly. "Hello, sweetheart," she whispered. "Guess my little dinner party's off."

Her shoulder was bandaged, and one arm was in a sling. Even her head was swathed.

"It's nothing, really," she assured Jack. "Just a lot of fancy scenery. The nurse says there are a dozen photographers out there, waiting to take my picture. I guess they bribed the doctors to make me picturesque."

"I cut it when I fell," she explained. "They took a few stitches and tied it up for general effectiveness. I'm all right."

"You said it!" he pronounced huskily. "You're the all rightest game kid that ever lived. You sent for me, didn't you, Molly?"

"Yes. The nurse said you were out there with a girl and a lot of men. She heard you talking to the doctor. Is Rita there, too? And Bob and Zip?"

He nodded. "There's a regular convention. All the reporters in the city, I guess."

"Dear Daughter" she wrote. "Hardly had our anxiety over your condition abated, when another shock was forced upon us. Today's paper announces that you are planning to write a crime play, in which you will include lurid highmarks of your own career."

My dear child, that would be more than your father and I could bear. Write, I beg of you, and set our fears at rest. The papers have carried such dreadful stories. It is hard to know what to believe. Mr. Wells has been so kind. He has kept us constantly informed of your condition. You have written of him in such a way that your father and I had come to regard him as a struggling young man, with a meager income. His telegrams and long distance telephone calls indicate, however, considerable affluence. I hope, my dear, if Mr. Wells is the fine young man he seems to be, you will not let this ridiculous career of yours stand in the way of a happy marriage."

Molly wired her distracted parents flippantly, inviting them to the premiere of her play, and assuring them that it would make their hair stand on end. Then she sent for Jack.

"She here," she accused him, "how come you're telephoning my family? Don't you know transcontinental conversations are a little luxury reserved for millionaires?"

"It didn't cost much," he affirmed. "The poor things were worried stiff."

"And you've been wiring them," she continued sternly.

"That's nothing. Gee whiz, Molly. Jack, you're incorrigible. My voice now was very gentle. I love you fearfully."

He sat on the side of the bed, and crushed her hands in his.

"And I haven't a cent," he cried bitterly.

"I love you," she whispered.

"That's your tough luck," he retorted with bitter humor. "Listen, Molly, I've been thinking things over. I want to free you from our engagement."

"Jack!"

"I do," he insisted stubbornly.

"Let's talk it over sensibly."

"Don't you love me any more?"

"Love you!" he groaned.

"The smile fled from her lips. "What's wrong, dear?"

"Nothing. Not a darn thing. Except I've got to be fair to you. Don't you see, Molly? Don't make it any harder, dear."

He had walked to the window now, and was tugging on the curtain cord. His face was as white as her bandages.

"You've a career ahead of you," he told her doggedly. "You want to write—and God knows you can write, Molly? Why, honey-girl, you can write all around lots of these women that get their stuff published all over the place! Women with big names, I mean. You're better than any of them."

"I wish to heaven," he broke off suddenly, "that you'd get this crime bug out of your head. You can write such darn pretty things. Love stories, I mean. Sweet, romantic stuff. Gee, you can't tell me that doesn't sell, Molly."

"Big names can sell anything," she told him patiently. "But anybody can sell crime that can write it pretty well."

"Well, anyhow," he attacked the subject again determinedly. "The point is, you want to write, and here's your big chance. I was

It came in the form of a letter from Mrs. Burnham.

"You've a career ahead of you," he told her doggedly. "You want to write—and God knows you can write, Molly? Why, honey-girl, you can write all around lots of these women that get their stuff published all over the place! Women with big names, I mean. You're better than any of them."

"I wish to heaven," he broke off suddenly, "that you'd get this crime bug out of your head. You can write such darn pretty things. Love stories, I mean. Sweet, romantic stuff. Gee, you can't tell me that doesn't sell, Molly."

"Big names can sell anything," she told him patiently. "But anybody can sell crime that can write it pretty well."

"Well, anyhow," he attacked the subject again determinedly. "The point is, you want to write, and here's your big chance. I was

by World Famed Authority Hints on How To Keep Well

MANY ERRORS IN READING DUE TO PSYCHOLOGY, NOT POOR EYES.

By DR. MORRIS FISHBEIN, Editor Journal of the American Medical Association and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine.

People sometimes make peculiar errors in reading. In fact, the confusion of a letter or two in a word sometimes has far-reaching results hardly to be estimated by the printer who makes a typographical error or by the proof reader who overlooks it, or by the newspaper reader who confuses the material after it is correctly set.

Realizing the importance of errors in reading, the British Medical Research Council has made a series of studies on the physiology of vision and on the psychology of reading. The committee found, for instance, that much depends on the ability of the person who reads to comprehend the material that he is reading.

When the meaning of the material read is fully comprehended, errors in reading are negligible; when the meaning is not understood, when there is not a continuous context, the person who reads is likely to introduce into his reading substitute words which merely make confusion or nonsense.

This is, of course, of the greatest importance to those who read material on scientific subjects or on health. It is quite frequently necessary to use a scientific word of which the meaning may not be generally clear. Most writers on health for the public attempt to include definitions or substitute words which will aid understanding. It is, of course, advisable when understanding is not had to look up the word in the dictionary and to make certain of its meaning.

In a long experience of conversations with the public on health subjects, the answering of letters from the public requesting health advice and the discussion of scientific matters before public audiences, I have heard innumerable peculiar uses of scientific words by people who revealed through such use the fact that they did not clearly comprehend the nature of the terms. Sometimes the results were ludicrous; in other instances, even serious.

Printers occasionally make typographical errors confusing such words a bridge and bride, month and mouth, person and prison, with exceedingly peculiar results.

One of the experiments indicated the importance of varying the uses of words in long articles. It was found that when a certain word is used over and over again in any article this word attains a "prepotency" so that the other words of a similar character are frequently used later in the article. Obviously this would result again and again in ambiguous meaning.

Such detailed studies of human physiology and psychology do mean to indicate the intricate character of the human mind and body and the importance of constant research to aid the activities of man in his daily life.

"You want to break our engagement, Jack?" she asked quietly.

"Yes," he insisted stubbornly, "I do. It's for your own good, Molly. It's because I love you so much. I'm going away. Somewhere far that I can't pester you any more. I'm going to leave you free, sweetheart, to have a career."

"If that's the price, Jack, I'll give up the career."

"No," he said. "You can't. It's there—that talent—right inside you. You can't cut it out any more than you can amputate your heart."

"Well, yes, I can."

"Well, I won't let you. It would come between us after a while. You know what Longfellow had to say—'Of all words of tongue or pen, the saddest are these—it might have been.' I guess it's the truth. You'd always be thinking of what might have been, if you hadn't married me."

"But we could get married," she cried. "You could be an architect, and I could write." She tried to laugh. "And we could have a lot of little authors who'd illustrate their own stories. You know—they'd take after us both."

"And you drawing down maybe a thousand a week," he cut in, "and me $50. Do you think I could stand that?"

"If I loved you—yes," he laughed harshly. "That's not the question. If you kept on loving me, you mean. And you couldn't do it, Molly. No woman could. A woman hasn't any respect for a man that can't take care of her. . . ."

Miss McGowan came knocking, thermometer in hand.

"Now what have you been saying to excite my patient, Mr. Wells?" she demanded.

She sent him away, and followed him into the hall to whisper: "Her temperature's 102!"

THESE WOMEN!

YOUR CHILDREN

by Olive Roberts Barton ©1928 by NEA Service, Inc.

Summer is one of the best times to give children concrete lessons in citizenship.

For patriotism consists of more than saluting flags and shooting off fireworks. It means more than training camps and the dedication of monuments. It has its foundation in far more personal things—real patriotism is founded on the golden rule. Civic and civil mean about the same thing—and pertain, as their names imply, to the rights of other people.

Children won't get the broad view of real patriotism, the rights of other people as a whole, unless they first get a conception of the rights of the individual. Property rights come in this category.

We'll not go so far back as the pencil in school—we'll take it for granted that we've taught the children citizenship to that extent. They know they must not touch things that belong to other children.

But have we taught them that the neighbor's lawn, for that matter, must be as free from violation as the school pencil?

From the number of grown-ups we see taking short cuts across corner lots, and the still greater number who turn corners one step too soon, dragging lazy feet over the ugly bare wedges that break property owners, it looks as though that part of their training as children had been neglected—decidedly so.

And how about the grocery boy, the ice man, the milk man, and all the others who take short cuts from house to house, leaving their trails behind them?

Early Training Best There is something about early training that sticks. If children are not taught to be careful of other people's property there's small chance of their learning later. There are some inhibitions that are good—and this is one of them—absolute respect for the laws and shrubbery and flowers of other people. It should become an inhibition as fixed as that "Our French women—they often let the heart rule the head. But your American women—the head rules always." —Georges Lechartier, editor Le Journal des Debats.

"I am personally dry in a country overwhelmingly wet. Our people drink too much for their own good." —Mussolini.

"We need a careful, nation-wide study of jobs in the modern world to determine what positions the older man is capable of filling as well, or better, than the younger man." —Stuart Chase. (Harper's Magazine.)

NEW BABY DISTURBS TIRED OFFICE WORKER

"When my oldest boy was just a few weeks old he was badly constipated from my milk," says a Nebraska mother. "He kept us awake so much, my husband almost slept over his desk at the office. Then my doctor got us to give Baby some Castoria and the next day he was much better. His stomach and bowels began acting perfectly and he gave us no more trouble." Avoid imitations of Castoria. The Fletcher signature marks the genuine, purely-vegetable, harmless Castoria, doctors everywhere advise for those ill of babies and children, such as colic, constipation, colds, biliousness, etc.

The WOMAN'S DAY

by ALLEN SCHUBNER

The city of Toledo, O., is caring through one of its child welfare agencies for a small baby whose parents refuse to care for it. The mother insisted on leaving the child in the hospital where it was born, seeing it not more than once.

Her explanation was that, nearing middle age, she was entitled to respite from child caring; that she had raised several children; that she and her husband had planned a peaceful old age, and that she refused one more to dedicate a score of years to the care of a child.

WELL, WELL There is a doughnut for thought of various kinds in the incident. Our first reaction is surprise at "the abnormality" of parents, a mother, especially, who could thus abandon her own child.

Perhaps, however, the little tale is really a tribute to the "normality" of life. Nature designs men and women for parenthood in their early years. A child born in the 40's is more unnatural than natural. Perhaps the reaction of the Toledo mother is equally natural.

On the other hand, since nature's main job is to get the child cared for in their individual case, natural or unnatural, this reaction does seem queer.

EASY Another little angle of the story is a wonder that parents, for a mere whim of like or dislike, can be relieved of the responsibilities of parenthood. In other cities and states are as willing to relieve all unwilling parents of their job, we will probably find plenty who deviate from the so-called "normal" to put quite a burden upon the taxpayers.

PAPA DID IT? Speaking of parenthood, here's a father, James Morgan Holt, 32, of Dayton, O., held for investigation by police for the shooting of his eight-year-old son, Leroy Robert. The boy's mother was upstairs when she heard the shot and went down to find her son dead and her husband standing by with a gun in his hand.

He said he was showing his pistol to the boy's mother when she came in. His story is probably true. But a mother would never have been held on the same evidence. Even police would just have assumed that a mother couldn't have really killed her son, and let it go at that.

AGAINST stealing other people's money. It is a sort of honesty. Some day, if we don't make it a part of our curriculum to cooperate with people who are attempting to beautify their streets, we are going to see the street wall become popular as sure as the sun rises. And when the street wall becomes popular we can watch out—they won't all be beautiful! If the shut-in, walled-in, gated street becomes a fixture, we'll have only ourselves to thank.

Last spring the lady on the corner had her lawn mowed over. The grass was up but the ground was still soft underneath.

The children rode their bicycles down the sidewalk to the corner, then turned. They couldn't turn on the walks so some jumped off but others just rode over the lawn. Bicycle tracks all over it—ruined! One boy's mother passed as he was, circling to go back. "Oh, John, you mustn't spoil Mrs. Brown's lawn," she remarked listlessly, and went on down the street. She might as well have said it was a nice day. He didn't even hear her. Yet the chances are that John led the exercises at the flag raising.

If it puzzles us how to make the children into good citizens, it might be a help to dust off the old sampler and hang it over the door. "Do unto others as ye would that they should do unto you."

More than nine billion cigarettes are smoked each month by American people. Cigaret production in the United States during the first quarter of 1929 was 25,912,000,000.

ADOZEN different things may cause a headache, but there's just one thing you need ever do to get relief. Bayer Aspirin is an absolute antidote for such pain. Keep it at the office. Have it handy in the home. Those subject to frequent or sudden headaches should carry Bayer Aspirin in the pocket-tin. Until you have used it for headaches, colds, neuralgia, etc., you have no idea how Bayer Aspirin can help. It means quick, complete relief to millions of men and women who use it every year. And it does not depress the heart.

Sweet, former rivals in the taxi business but friends since the invasion of the town by another similar business concern, went to Hartford today and obtained permits to continue their business. The Public Utilities Commission having granted the request of the Manchester men to operate taxi here.

FIFTH'S NEW OFFICERS GET BOOKS IN SHAPE

Special Meeting Due Soon to Take Action on Appropriations and Possibly Tax Rate

The books of the Fifth School District, showing the outstanding bills against the district, the amount in the treasurer's hands and such other information as is required by law, have been turned over to Irving Wickham, the newly elected clerk and treasurer of the district. He is at present checking over the figures and putting the report in a presentable form.

In the meantime the members of the district committee are getting things in shape. The note which the district has against it in the amount of $2,506 was discounted, but this did not pay all of the bills, some of the district officers recalled, and as a result the meeting in July did not vote to appropriate any money to carry on the work of the district. They did lay a tax, but there is a question because of the manner in which it was laid whether the tax can be collected or not. The district clerk and other officers are trying to check up all the details and they are soon to have a meeting of all the officers of the district after which an appropriation will be made sufficient to pay what the committee considers necessary bills.

The object in not making the appropriation of $4,000 at the annual meeting, as was asked for in the call, was to wait until the old officers had gone out of office on July 15. This would prevent them borrowing the money and spending it on a bill that some voters did not think should be paid. The new district committee when they call their first meeting will include in the call the power to have the treasurer borrow in the name of the district such sum or sums as will be necessary to pay the current expenses. Among these will be the $2,500 note which was borrowed on a limited time from the Home Bank and such other money as will be needed to carry on the running expenses of the district.

Chairman E. H. Keeney of the committee has received a letter from Superintendent of School A. F. Howes informing Mr. Keeney that one of the black boards in the school is badly in need of repairs and asks that this be done at once that it may be ready for the opening of the school in September.

KID SHOW, ATHLETIC EVENTS TOMORROW

Annual Manchester - Rockville Night Also on Program at the West Side.

Tomorrow promises to be one of the busiest days of the summer season at the West Side playgrounds. In the afternoon will come the annual vehicle show while at night there will be a band concert and program of athletic events featuring a clash between Manchester and its traditional rival, Rockville.

There will be four prizes for the afternoon affair, as follows: Best decorated doll carriage, best decorated bicycle, best dressed doll and oldest bicycle. In connection with the latter prize, Director Lewis Lloyd of the Recreation Center which is sponsoring the affair, wants it definitely understood that all bicycles entered in the competition must be serviceable. If a boy can't ride his bicycle, it will be considered ineligible.

Considerable interest is aroused annually over the vehicle show. Since the date was announced a few weeks ago, boys and girls have been faithfully at work preparing their bicycle dolls and carriages for the event. Some surprises are in store for those who attend. The vehicle show, like the pet show, is one of the series of interesting programs which fills the summer schedule of Recreation Center activities.

The largest crowd will naturally be on hand during the evening to watch the athletic events and listen to the concert which will be given by the Rockville band. Light refreshments will be on sale both during the afternoon and evening. The baseball game will feature a clash between Manchester Green and an all-star Rockville combination. There will also be tennis and horse-shoe games between representative teams. The details of which will be given on the sports page of tomorrow's issue.

The band concert will begin at 8 o'clock which is about the time the baseball game will be over. It will last for two hours. These Rockville-Manchester nights have attracted good sized crowds in the past three years they have been held and provide old-timers with a chance to talk about baseball in the days when it was baseball.

As a special added attraction, James "Dodger" Dowd, former playground director here, will come home from the Berkshire Industrial Farm at Canaan, N. Y., to bring Edward Willey, 15-year-old Syracuse boy, who made such a hit at the baseball game yesterday by playing a harmonica and clappers. The crowd was much more interested in Willey's program than the baseball game and applauded him so vigorously every time he was forced to give an encore. It is a foregone conclusion that he will be a hit tomorrow evening. Dowd will also swing the light Indian clubs "between acts."

LITTLE GOCHEE BOY SLIGHTLY IMPROVED

Condition of Youngster Who Fell from Trestle on Hilliard St., Remains Grave Today.

Little Peter Gochee, three year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Gochee of 9 Hilliard street was holding his own today in his battle against death at the Memorial hospital where he was taken night before last after falling off the railroad bridge on Hilliard street.

X-ray negatives reveal that the boy has a fracture of the skull. His tender age makes his condition all the more grave. However, hospital officials have hopes that he will recover but have placed his name on the danger list. This morning's bulletin said that he had shown a little improvement.

The boy has regained consciousness and responds when spoken to, although not very readily. The accident occurred Sunday night. The boy walked out on the trestle and fell off, landing in the roadway 15 feet below where he was picked up unconscious by playmates and soon afterward taken to the hospital.
