TUESDAY, SEPTEMBER 3.

TAKEN FOR GRANTED
 An unusual number of things are being taken for granted in the controversy over the possible appointment of State Attorney Hugh M. Alcorn of Hartford County to be Assistant Attorney-General of the United States in charge of prohibition, succeeding Mabel Walker Willebrandt.

One of these things is the willingness of Mr. Alcorn to allow his future to be disposed of by the disputants. Perhaps he would accept the appointment—and then again perhaps he would not. Mr. Alcorn has had a very distinguished career. He has a tremendous lot of admirers in the Republican party in this state—and in the Democratic party as well. In due time it may fit in with his ambitions, as it certainly would fit in with his abilities, to become governor; later, perhaps to round out his life by membership in the United States Senate. Hardly anything is more certain than that, if he were to succeed Mrs. Willebrandt, he would have to abandon all such hopes as these, if he happens to entertain them.

Mr. Alcorn is of the highly mental type. It cannot have escaped him that identification with a hopeless and possibly unwise cause must necessarily be fatal to any subsequent outstanding political success. Assistant United States Attorney-General do not, traditionally, graduate to still higher and more desirable jobs—especially when their paths of duty lie across the slough of prohibition enforcement. Even the renowned Mabel's present status—that of a paid backbiter of prohibition—is not particularly glorious. No; it would be at all safe to assume, in default of any indication from Mr. Alcorn, either that he is after the job or that he would accept it.

Another thing taken for granted is that Senator Hiram Bingham is opposed to the Alcorn appointment. He cannot be quoted to any such effect. It is possible that somebody jumped at the conclusion because the senator is in general accord with J. Henry Roraback, and Mr. Roraback is quite well known to be not interested in promoting honors for the Hartford County state attorney.

Another thing taken for granted by the professional dry leaders is that they can get away with the claim, in case Mr. Alcorn is appointed and accepts, that they did it. If Dr. McBride, general superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League, did, as is asserted in his behalf, suggest Mr. Alcorn's name to the President in connection with the succession to Mrs. Willebrandt's job, it was certainly as just one of a flock of persons presumed to be available. The assertion that the impulse in the matter came from House Leader Tilson is as much more probable as it is different. Also it is somewhat improbable that Mr. Hoover's intimate friend, Senator Walcott, did not have anything to do with the Alcorn suggestion. The junior senator, so far as has been observable, takes orders from nobody in this state; he is sure to have been convinced of Alcorn's special fitness for this job—and his word to the President so that effect would carry weight.

One more thing that is taken for granted strikes us as being probably incompatible with the facts. For some obscure reason there is a general disposition to speak of Mr. Alcorn as if he were a fanatic dry. Whence came this impression it isn't easy to see. Perhaps because he is a zealous enforcer of law. But there are any number of zealots for law enforcement who disbelieve in federal prohibition, for one reason because it makes the enforcement of other laws so much more difficult. If Hugh M. Alcorn is anything he is a master technician, a legal scientist—he is not a visionary or a fanatic. If he were to become the successor to Mrs. Willebrandt he would be, beyond a doubt, infinitely that lady's superior because he is a lawyer of a higher grade than she, and animated in the discharge of his duty by a more rugged and impersonal code of ethics. But that he would approach the task in the spirit of the Anti-Saloon League crusaders we don't for a moment believe.

X-TER
 Extraterritoriality is a word describing a system whereby foreign nations enjoy unusual privileges, particularly in possessing jurisdiction over their nationals, on the soil of a country that has its own government and would naturally control the actions of outsiders as well as its own citizens or subjects if it were not for the granting of these special privileges. It is also a thundering word, and as the subject of extraterritoriality in China bids fair to figure largely in the news for the next few years—possibly at some time in such a way as to call for big black headlines, the headline writers of this country face a serious duty—the finding of some substitute for the brobdingnagian noun.

Ordinarily the writer of a single column heading on a big news story is limited to the equivalent of anywhere from a dozen to sixteen average letters, according to the size and "fatness" of the style of headline prescribed by his boss. Extraterritoriality contains nineteen letters by actual count, though to the headline writer there are only seventeen and a half—the three 't's counting only as one and a half type units. But at that, how in the world is a copy editor going to do anything with a word of seventeen and a half units when sixteen is almost sure to be his outside limit. He is denied the sloven subterfuge of going to two columns. If the story is only worth a single column head that's all it's worth—and no argument is wasted. Mr. Headliner must cast about him for something to take the place of the long winded polysyllable. Up to yet we haven't seen a good example. "Privilege" is too broad—it might mean a thousand things. "Rights" would be a wicked perversion of fact. There is, as a matter of fact, no short and snappy word that fits both the column and the idea.

Wherefore we must look for the development in the near future of a fabricated term. Some very good Republican newspapers sanction the employment of "Dems" for Democrats, and "G. O. P." has become well nigh universal as first aid to the head writer. So why not "X-ter"?

Something has got to be done pretty soon about this problem. It might as well be that as anything. At worst nobody would ever confuse it with a Negro Blues advertisement, as there is always a risk that they will when the not-particular newspapers prints.

CONGO CHURCH STEEPLE FALLS
 because you can't get Congregational and Church into the same headline.

BUYING PEACE
 The suggestion was made at the Institute of Politics at Williams-town, too late for extended consideration by that body, that the President be empowered to notify our war debtors that, in the event of the debtor nations agreeing on a radical reduction in armaments, the United States would write off her claims against them in proportion as they reduced their arms expenditures.

This is one of those propositions which, while as yet largely academic, constitute a challenge to the nimbleness of the brain receiving them because of their unexpectedness and their infinite facets. Granting that any snap judgment concerning it would be just as likely to be wrong as right, our first reaction to it is that, while it might be beneficial to the whole world including the United States, economically, there should be no impression that this country, by such a sacrificial step, would be purchasing a guarantee of world peace.

While it is unquestionably true that excessive armaments are a prolific cause of wars and that relatively unarmed nations would have a considerably better chance of getting along peaceably if there were no armies, no navies and no modern war devices anywhere in the world, it is surely just as true that terrible wars might very easily break out, under economic stress or in response to nationalistic passions, even if there had been no preparation at all for them. So long as there are sticks and stones in the world there are weapons—and some of the most frightful slaughters in all history have been made with the most primitive of arms.

Right now the whole world is on the anxious seat over the Sino-Russian situation. A very serious war impends in Asia. Yet measured by the military strength of a number of other countries, the preparedness of China is meagre and that of Russia probably far less than has been often represented.

It has never been nearly as settled a belief of ours as of many other persons that the United States will never and should never rebate or write off altogether the war debts. We are not quite sure that, under conceivable conditions, we should not favor such a step. But the point we would make is that no such lavish generosity should be engaged in if the best reason for it lay in the hope that it would insure an end of war. It would do no such thing.

"BROAD IS THE WAY"
 The famed Milford Pike, safest of highways in the imagination of those who conceived it, deadliest of all in actual fact, is a continual source of speculation among Connecticut newspapers, many of which are being slowly forced to the conclusion that the slogan, "Wider and Straighter Highways," would better be abandoned.

In the gospel according to St. Matthew, 7: 13-14, we read: "Broad is the way that leadeth to destruction . . . and narrow is the way that leadeth unto life."

They had no automobiles in those days, but they had human beings, and there wasn't very much difference between a man's manner of conducting himself toward his fellows and the problems of life, then, and his manner of conducting himself toward his fellow motorists and the problems of the road, now.

Where freedom became license there were spiritual disasters; where the freedom of the road became unrestrained there is physical wreckage.

If every road in the country were a one-way six feet wide with a stone wall at each side, or consisted of two such lanes, there would be no cutting out or cutting in. Traffic would move more slowly, to be sure, but perhaps it would move fast enough. And more people would live out their natural span.

Of course we're not going to have a road system like that. But quite possibly we may do well to pay some small heed to the admonition on the broad way.

IN NEW YORK
 New York, Sept. 3.—The sandwich man who plays the Uncle Josh role in the Times Square belt and draws laughs from the tired subway throngs is actually a product of the "haystack belt."

His make-up, which is of the ancient rube comedy vintage, includes the usual "big" whiskers and boots and the huge carpet bag.

It seems that he drifted into town from the Iowa farm belt, hoping to get on the stage—as who doesn't? But he never got beyond the agency offices, and up against it for a job had to play his comic role on the sidewalks while carrying on his back the advertisement of a mid-town restaurant.

"But I found out how to cash in on it this summer," he told me. "New Yorkers get a laugh out of the rube. And the countryside gets a real howl out of the city slicker. So this summer I went back to the farm belt and played the country fairs. I changed my costume to that of the city feller, with spats and cane and monocle, and stage-door Johnny stuff and got jobs all over the middle west. Just breezed back into town the other day, got morning communications, as seemed most wise and expedient.

Daily WASHINGTON LETTER

BY RODNEY DUTCHER.

Washington, Sept. 3.—The fact that the White House, as officially announced, "no longer receives letters addressed to the President which are given publicly prior to their receipt and acknowledgment," will not make any particular difference.

The news value of any open letters or protests addressed to Mr. Hoover will remain unchanged. That is, if they are of sufficient public interest they will be made just as much publicity when made public, regardless of the White House attitude. Thus, what is described as an official attempt to curb the use of the White House for publicity purposes is not likely to have that effect.

Any petition or other public message to the President will find its way into the newspapers if the signature and the subject matter of it are of sufficient general interest. Our presidents have always exercised the prerogative of answering or ignoring communications, as seemed most wise and expedient.

Nine-year-old Marshal Newton, the son of Walter H. Newton of Minneapolis, one of the Hoover secretaries, received on his birthday a large surprise package from Mrs. Hoover. The boy was in a hospital recovering from the amputation of a leg necessitated by an accident which recently stirred the capital to sympathy.

One of Marshal's presents was a board with pegs and holes and Mrs. Hoover explained that this was a puzzle which had kept Colonel Charles Augustus Lindbergh guessing nearly an entire afternoon. Undoubtedly Marshal will enjoy the puzzle, but the incident becomes one of more than common interest as a sidelight on somebody's idea of an afternoon at the White House. Lots of people would be interested to hear the conversation when the Hoovers and Lindberghs get together, but an afternoon trying to solve a puzzle was about the last thing anyone considered as the latching interest in White House entertainment.

Health and Diet Advice
 By DR. FRANK MCCOY
REDUCING THE BUST

The question of bust reduction is generally the most active during the summer season when the revealing bathing suit tells all, whether the telling is embarrassing or not. The very modern bathing suit, which consists of one piece with much of the underarm cut away and with the back as low as possible, tells even more than it has in years gone by.

The size of the breast varies according to the woman's weight, and her type and temperament. The breasts are composed of mammary glands, with the addition of fatty deposits. Where the glands are naturally large it is impossible to bring about much reduction in weight in these parts except to harden the surrounding tissues and remove the fatty deposits.

Large deposits of fat on the breasts or any other part of the body interfere with the circulation of blood, and are nothing more than so much accumulation of lard or tallow. As a rule, this excessive fat comes entirely from lack of exercise and a fattening diet. As with the reduction of other parts of the body, the muscles and tissues in these local parts, and then with a general reducing system of diet, a woman can get all the results possible without injury to the delicate mammary glands. Swimming! Perhaps the best exercises for bust reduction, and swimming in cold water is of added benefit because of the contracting, hardening effect of the cold water upon the tissues.

If ordinary housework is indulged in vigorously enough, the housewife can expect some results from sweeping, dusting, washing floors, or any work which requires which include the arm movements, Tennis is a valuable game, especially if one spends some time practicing strokes with both the right and left hand. Classical dancing which includes the arm movements, and the bending and twisting involved are also helpful. The whole chest can be strengthened through deep breathing exercises. These exercises also have a special effect upon increasing metabolism, and burning up fatty tissue.

The average person inhales and exhales over 25,000 times every twenty-four hours. When swimming or walking fast, breathing is, of course, increased to more than the regular rate of eighteen times a minute. More oxygen is taken into the body and, therefore, more is available for the oxidation of tissues. The fatty tissues are the first burned up.

Special breathing exercises can be used while taking the daily long walk so necessary in reducing. A good way is to inhale every four steps and exhale the next four steps, keeping this up over a three or four mile walk.

To summarize, for the reduction of fatty busts: exercise vigorously with any exercises using the chest muscles—take special deep breathing exercises, and use a carefully planned reducing diet.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.
 (Dizziness.)
 Question: C. J. asks: "Will you please tell me the cause of a staggering and dizzy feeling in my head in the mornings, and the remedy? Also the reason for a rash completely covering the body when a person gets excited? I was listed as 50 per cent anemic two years ago. Would this have anything to do with it? My weight is about 170 pounds."
 Answer: If you are still anemic, that could account for your dizziness in the morning, and also for the rash on the body. Have a blood count made in a laboratory, send me the report, and I will give you further advice. Be sure to give your full name and address.

BON AMI WINS Y. M. C. A. PENNANT

Trims Southington 16-6 In Deciding Contest; Brainard's Hit Tells.

Manager Carl Allen's Bon Ami baseball team assured itself of the Hartford County Y. M. C. A. League pennant Saturday afternoon when it journeyed to Southington and took the home team into camp 10 to 8 in an extra inning game.

Bissell And Holland Renew Fued Tonight

Much Speculation Over Outcome of Semi-Final Tennis Match; Greer vs. Jesanis Tomorrow.

The long-awaited meeting between Ty Holland and Sherwood Bissell in the town championship tennis tournament is scheduled for this evening.

Returning the ball until it is either netted or driven out of bounds. His game is much softer than that of Bissell, but last year he made Bissell error so often that finally "Cap" in desperation, started to play Ty's own game.

ROCKVILLE

Conway in Again

John Conway, 41, of High street, who was released from Tolland jail a week ago, was sentenced to 105 days at the same institution Saturday, when he was before Judge John E. Flak in the Rockville City Court on charges of intoxication, common drunkard and endangering the morals of children. He was ordered to pay the costs of the case amounting to $11.38. Conway was arrested Friday night by Policeman Richard Shea. The charge of endangering the morals of his children has been hanging over him for some time, resulting from the conditions at his home, which also involved his wife and a negro some weeks ago, which resulted in the latter two going to jail. Conway was in jail at the time of his wife's case. The children have since been placed in an institution.

Miss Hammond to Teach

Miss Lois Hammond, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Hammond of Union street will be supervisor of music in the public schools of New Hyde Park, L. I., this coming school year. She graduated recently from New York University.

To Resume Meetings

Hope Chapter No. 60, Order of Eastern Star, will resume its meeting in Masonic Hall in the Rosenberg block this evening. Plans for the fall and winter activities will be discussed and it is hoped there will be a large attendance of members. Following the meeting there will be a social hour and refreshments served by the committee of which Mrs. A. Kenneth Webster is chairman.

Pinchle Tournament

At the next regular meeting of Damon Lodge, Knights of Pythias, No. 17, a first prize of $5.00, to be held on September 11, in Castle Hall, names will be received for the pinchle tournament series, to be held on each of the following meetings, until five or more sittings have been held.

A member of the order has offered a first prize of a smoking stand that any Pythian will be proud of. There will also be a second and third prize which will go for the final score, and nightly prizes, which should encourage a large entry list. Anyone who desires to enter the tournament may do so by handing his name to any officer of the lodge, or names can be given in at the next meeting, September 11.

Friendly Class Social

The regular meeting and social of the Friendly Class will be held in the Union church social rooms tomorrow evening at 8 o'clock. It is expected there will be a discussion of the fall work. Mrs. Rose O'Brien is chairman of the committee and James R. Quinn will be in charge of the entertainment, which promises to be good. There will be refreshments and a social hour following the entertainment.

Tobin-Swides

Miss Anna Swides, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. Swider of 35 River street and Francis S. Tobin, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Tobin of Vernon avenue, were united in marriage on Monday morning at nine o'clock at St. Joseph's Polish Catholic church, with Rev. Sigismund Woronick officiating. The altar was decorated with palm and gladioli. As the bride party entered the church, Miss Kobak, the church organist, rendered Lohengrin's Wedding March. Leonard's Mass was sung by Miss Caroline Milnes. She also sang Meyer's song "Joy of my Heart." Mrs. Herbert Humford attended her sister as matron of honor and Raymond Finley, cousin of the groom, acted as best man. The bride looked prettily in a gown of white moire, peridot style and Belgium lace veil, which fell from a cap of tulle and orange blossoms. She carried a shower of bridal roses and lilies of the valley. The matron of honor wore a dress of pink georgette and picture hat to match. She carried pink roses. A reception and wedding breakfast followed at the home of the bride's parents, guests being present from Long Island, New York, Bristol, New Britain, North Hampton, Manchester and Rockville.

Mr. and Mrs. Tobin left for a wedding trip to Atlantic City late in the day, and upon their return will reside at 33 River street, where they will be at home to their many friends after September 15.

Walter McNamara, son of Mrs. Thomas McNamara, of School street and the late Matthew McNamara, died Saturday morning at 6:30, following an illness of two weeks of a complication of diseases. He was born in this city and attended St. Bernard's school and the Rockville High school. He had been employed recently at the American Mill and previous to that he worked at the Serber Grocery store on Cottage street. He was a member of St. Bernard's church and the Rockville Wheel club, being a favorite with the boys. He was active in athletics and was a member of local baseball teams and St. Bernard's Tennis club.

Besides his mother and stepfather, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Fay, he leaves a sister Esther.

The services were held on Monday morning from St. Bernard's church with a large number of relatives and friends present. The tributes were numerous and beautiful. Interment was in the family plot at St. Bernard's cemetery.

Last of Union Services

The last of the Union services of Methodist, Congregational and Baptist churches was held at the Baptist church on Sunday morning at 10:30. A Hartford preacher occupied the pulpit. The churches will resume their own services next Sunday morning.

Notes

There will be a meeting of the Hook and Ladder Company of the Rockville Fire Department this evening in the Prospect street rooms.

Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Cobb have returned to their home on Reel street, after a delightful vacation spent in Chebeque Island, Me.

Mr. and Mrs. John Bolger and daughters have returned from several weeks stay at Crystal Lake.

William Pfunder, local mail carrier, is enjoying his annual vacation, and with his family is visiting his parents in Syracuse, N. Y.

Miss Helen Dobosz of Stone street and Max Rothe of Union street will be married at the rectory of St. Joseph's church on Monday, September 9. She was given several showers the past week by St. Helen's society and friends.

Mrs. Karl Schuele of New York has been spending the past week as the guest of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Huebner of Elizabeth street.

At the next regular meeting of Damon Lodge, Knights of Pythias, No. 17, a first prize of $5.00, to be held on September 11, in Castle Hall, names will be received for the pinchle tournament series, to be held on each of the following meetings, until five or more sittings have been held.

A member of the order has offered a first prize of a smoking stand that any Pythian will be proud of. There will also be a second and third prize which will go for the final score, and nightly prizes, which should encourage a large entry list. Anyone who desires to enter the tournament may do so by handing his name to any officer of the lodge, or names can be given in at the next meeting, September 11.

Friendly Class Social

The regular meeting and social of the Friendly Class will be held in the Union church social rooms tomorrow evening at 8 o'clock. It is expected there will be a discussion of the fall work. Mrs. Rose O'Brien is chairman of the committee and James R. Quinn will be in charge of the entertainment, which promises to be good. There will be refreshments and a social hour following the entertainment.

Tobin-Swides

Miss Anna Swides, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. Swider of 35 River street and Francis S. Tobin, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Tobin of Vernon avenue, were united in marriage on Monday morning at nine o'clock at St. Joseph's Polish Catholic church, with Rev. Sigismund Woronick officiating. The altar was decorated with palm and gladioli. As the bride party entered the church, Miss Kobak, the church organist, rendered Lohengrin's Wedding March. Leonard's Mass was sung by Miss Caroline Milnes. She also sang Meyer's song "Joy of my Heart." Mrs. Herbert Humford attended her sister as matron of honor and Raymond Finley, cousin of the groom, acted as best man. The bride looked prettily in a gown of white moire, peridot style and Belgium lace veil, which fell from a cap of tulle and orange blossoms. She carried a shower of bridal roses and lilies of the valley. The matron of honor wore a dress of pink georgette and picture hat to match. She carried pink roses. A reception and wedding breakfast followed at the home of the bride's parents, guests being present from Long Island, New York, Bristol, New Britain, North Hampton, Manchester and Rockville.

Mr. and Mrs. Tobin left for a wedding trip to Atlantic City late in the day, and upon their return will reside at 33 River street, where they will be at home to their many friends after September 15.

Walter McNamara, son of Mrs. Thomas McNamara, of School street and the late Matthew McNamara, died Saturday morning at 6:30, following an illness of two weeks of a complication of diseases. He was born in this city and attended St. Bernard's school and the Rockville High school. He had been employed recently at the American Mill and previous to that he worked at the Serber Grocery store on Cottage street. He was a member of St. Bernard's church and the Rockville Wheel club, being a favorite with the boys. He was active in athletics and was a member of local baseball teams and St. Bernard's Tennis club.

Besides his mother and stepfather, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Fay, he leaves a sister Esther.

The services were held on Monday morning from St. Bernard's church with a large number of relatives and friends present. The tributes were numerous and beautiful. Interment was in the family plot at St. Bernard's cemetery.

Last of Union Services

The last of the Union services of Methodist, Congregational and Baptist churches was held at the Baptist church on Sunday morning at 10:30. A Hartford preacher occupied the pulpit. The churches will resume their own services next Sunday morning.

LETTER GOLF

RIVER BANKS make a queer place to play golf, but an interesting place to play better golf.

THE RULES.

- 1-The idea of Letter Golf is to change one word to another and do it in par, a given number of strokes. Thus to change COW to HEN, in three strokes, COW, HOW, HEW, HEN.
2-You change only one letter at a time.
3-You must have a complete word, of common usage, for each jump. Slang words and abbreviations don't count.
4-The order of letters cannot be changed.
Every radio owner will admit that at times static is a blessing.

SENSE and NONSENSE

It is said that broadcasting has added 500 words to the average radio fan's vocabulary; some of them are said to be printable.

"Bill's a mighty good listener." "He ought to be—he's got a radio and a wife."

A Chicago radio station thinks that audiences are less responsive than formerly. Once upon a time a program would bring hundreds of appreciative letters. Now only one person out of a thousand writes in.

"You applauded the music wildly."

"Yes," replied Mr. Rufneck. "I got tired of sitting still and listening. I wanted to make a little noise on my own account."

What we used to think at first blush when skirts were getting shorter doesn't matter now; we've quit blushing.

Muriel has been to the Zoo for the first time in her young life, and was giving her grandmother a long account of all she had seen.

"And which animal did you like best, dear?" asked the old lady. "Oh, the elephant," she replied. "It was thrilling to see him picking up peanuts with the end of his vacuum cleaner."

The reason you haven't got the other fellow's job is because you rattle around in the one you have.

Doctors say the heart is a painless organ, but the girl who's "steady" has begun to go with another girl knows better.

It may be true, as the eminent scientists asserts, that a kiss is nothing more or less than an electric shock, but we have just kissed our wife's maiden aunt, and we guess that our batteries must be about run down, not to mention hers.

Give a little girl a hand and she'll want an arm.

It's a perfect summer. One day you get tanned and the next day your overcoat hurts your shoulders.

As a man grows older he grows more tolerant; and we suppose wife's relatives can't help being wife's relatives.

Automobiles see to it that one neighbor cannot enjoy another neighbor's radio by staying at home on summer evenings.

"It used to be the height of my ambition to own an auto," said the worried-looking man.

"And what is the height of your ambition now?" asked his friend. "To sell it."

GOVERNMENT CREW SEEKS BEETLE HERE

Next Two Weeks to Be Devoted to Local Inspection By Four Young Men.

Inhabitants of Manchester and So. Manchester need not be alarmed if they see young men prowling about their yards during the next two weeks. The intruders are scouts in the employ of the United States Department of Agriculture and they are inspecting flowers and bushes for the Japanese and Asiatic beetles. The work of inspection consists of day and night scouting. During the day time the men will look over vegetables, grape vines, fruit trees, roses, philly, and hollyhocks around the homes in the city. The night scouting will be done by the foreman of the scout crew. He will look over the plants in the vicinity of street lights, lighted gas stations, and lighted store windows two nights each week.

The men composing the crew that is to scout are: Foreman D. P. Mochary, L. W. Ebner, H. Shanley, H. Dargon. These men in the course of their work have gained considerable knowledge about the Japanese beetle. However, they are not entomologists, and are not equipped to answer the many questions which people ask them about the plants and weeds in their gardens. If a person desires information concerning blights and pests in his garden, he may write to the Connecticut Agricultural Experiment Station, Huntington street, New Haven. By writing to this address, one will receive expert advice and not be delaying the men who within two weeks must scout the entire town.

The Japanese and Asiatic beetles are recent arrivals in America, probably brought into this country from the Orient on imported nursery stock about fifteen years ago. The Japanese beetle has spread from the center of infestation in southern New Jersey and around Philadelphia, to a considerable extent over the east. In Connecticut, they have been found along Long Island Sound from the New York state line to New Haven, as well as in Hartford, Willimantic, and New London. In appearance, the Japanese beetle is about the size and shape of a potato bug. There are resemblance to the Japanese beetle has a green head and thorax, brown wing covers, with five white tufts of hairs along its sides, and two beyond the wing covers. The work of prevention and control in Connecticut is being carried on by the United States Department of Agriculture in co-operation with the state of Connecticut. Further information may be obtained by applying to The Japanese Beetle Project, Pierpont building, Shelton, Connecticut.

Now that your vacation is over, and you've returned to town, give your skin and hair the necessary care they need after month's exposure to the sun. Your skin will take on a new, smooth, velvety texture after one or two of the special facials given at the Weldon Beauty Parlor. And the same is true of your hair. Their scalp treatments will help tired scalps, oily hair and dandruff.—Adv.

Manchester Mystery Herewith Explained

Read Here How You Can Get Something for Nothing and Purchase Articles Without Money—How the Duo Dollar Plan Works Out—Details of a Campaign—Novel Trading.

For the past ten days, mysterious little news articles have been appearing in The Herald which told of a new money substitute soon to be used in Manchester and this is to explain what it is all about.

Some days ago, a number of progressive local merchants held a meeting at the Chamber of Commerce rooms. After a long discussion it was decided to launch a new trading campaign. Here are the details of this novel scheme:

The name under which the campaign is to be waged is "Manchester Duo-Dollar Trading Plan." About 30 merchants are co-operating.

The general nature of the plan is to be the use of coupon money known as "Duo-Dollars." They will resemble money somewhat and be printed in denominations of 10, 25, 50 cents, $1.00, $5.00 and $10.00. Now here is how this works out:

Save the Coupons

When you go into a store from now on until the end of December, you should ask for a coupon for every cent you spend. Save these coupons for they mean the same as money. For instance if you buy a 25-cent article you will get a 25-cent coupon.

In each store of those in the plan, there will be posted a list of merchandise which that store offers. There will be hundreds of these. The retail prices of the articles will be plainly marked on them and the articles themselves will be prominently displayed in the individual stores where the offer is made.

Now at the end of each month a show will be staged at the State theater. During the show, the articles will be on the stage and an old-fashioned auction sale will be held.

Sealed Bids

But, hold, a bit of explanation first about the auction. As you look over the auction at the various stores you figure how much you will bid for each or any article there. You put that bid into an envelope and seal it and hand it in on the days the auctions are held, at the theater.

For examples: A pair of women's shoes is offered. You bid any amount for it. The coupon money cost you nothing, understand, and if at the time of the auction, you do not put your coupons in the envelope. Just your name and address, the name of the article, bid for and the amount of the bid. If you do not bid the highest you are nothing out for you have the coupons in your own possession.

Articles not bid for will be auctioned off by a capable auctioneer and it is certain that "a good time will be had by all at these theater parties," as the country newspapers were wont to say.

There is also a monthly cash prize of $25 offered to lodge members but that will be explained in a separate article found in this issue.

Here is the plan in a nutshell: Every time you make a cash purchase at any of the stores which are cooperating in this campaign, you get a coupon of the same value as your purchase. Look over the articles at the stores and decide on one you will bid on. Then save the coupons for the auction day. There will be so many articles to bid on that you will have a good chance to get it and remember all the time that they cost nothing.

That explains how you will be able to get something for nothing and how pieces of paper will have the same value at the auction sales as real money.

FOR "FLAT FEET"

Housewives, hospital nurses, shop clerks, and others menaced by "flat feet" should practice rising on the ball of the foot and sinking back on the heels slowly, several times a day, about a dozen times in succession.

PERSPIRATION MARKS

To remove perspiration marks from white silk, mix some bicarbonate of soda to a stiff paste with cold water. Spread thickly on the parts and leave for an hour or so before washing. This will remove scorch marks if they are not very bad.

Pearls and Onyx

TWISTED STRANDS of the popular seed pearls are ingeniously looped through two black onyx rings.

TO HEAT THE OVEN

Two minutes after lighting the burners of the gas stove, open the teaport door for a second or two to allow the moist air to escape and the oven will heat much quicker.

COLOR IN VEGETABLES

Vegetables retain their color and are crisp and tender when a teaspoonful of borax is added to the water in which they are boiled.

A STREET HAT

Cocoa-brown soleil incrustated with an intricately cut band of dull brown felt makes an interesting hat for street wear. It takes a medium brim.

Smart Mary Doran Makes Her Boasts Come True

Mary Doran

By DAN THOMAS
Hollywood, Calif.—About a year ago a red-headed, wise-cracking young stage actress blew into town from New York all set to conquer the movies. She didn't say that she wanted to be a success in pictures. She declared that she was going to be a big hit.

The wire ones of Hollywood laughed at Mary Doran then—and they laughed with her too. They liked her wise cracks and had a lot of fun cracking back at her. But they didn't take her seriously. Sure, she had a contract with Merto-Goldwyn-Mayer. But that didn't mean much. Hollywood will filled with dozens of girls with contracts, many of whom were destined to use their return tickets to Manhattan.

Confidence Not Misplaced
But Mary didn't use hers, nor was it wasted. She only bought a one way ticket when she came out here. That's how confident she was. And after 12 months in the celluloid village she hasn't lost any of her confidence. Nor has she lost any of her ability to wise-crack with everyone who happens along.

However, the wise ones are only laughing with Mary now. They already have learned the necessity for considering her seriously as an actress. In fact, the M-G-M executives place a high enough value upon her that they tore up her old contract and gave her a new one just a few weeks ago.

Mary is a strange character. It probably would be easier to describe her by comparing her to some other actress. But I don't know to whom she can be compared. Way down deep she takes this business of making pictures very seriously. But she won't admit it even to herself. She has surfaced herself with a veneer of gaiety. Everything is just one laugh after another—or so she would have people believe.

They Keep Her Busy
Right now Mary is so busy cavorting before the cameras and microphones that she hasn't time to do or think of much else. For months she has been working steadily making one picture after another without a day's rest. At present she is playing in "Their Own Desire" with Norma Shearer and as soon as she finishes that another role is waiting for her.

"I came out here to educate the movies and now they're educating me," declared the actress. "I'm not kidding you, I mean that seriously. A girl has to be 10 times as versatile in pictures as she does on the stage. On the stage you get a reputation for playing a certain type of role and you keep on playing it year after year.

"But out here things are different. You portray one type of character in one picture and are something entirely different in the next. Besides that a girl must be able to look pretty, act, speak, sing and dance. All of these requirements are made of very few girls on the stage. But they all are necessary to be successful in talking pictures.

"If I had known what I was walking into I might have stayed in New York and had a stage career which would have been far less strenuous."

PARIS FROCKS FOR CHILDREN

French Designers Favor Crepe de Chine, Kasha and Chiffon.

What the well dressed child will wear has come this year to be more a question of what the well dressed child will not wear. With the fad for fewer and scantier clothes prevalent among grown-ups it follows that this season children are wearing, for play at least, only the absolute essentials of a costume.

Looking over the country mode for youngsters, we are impressed with the fact that the sun-suit is the daytime uniform for smart young Americans. This, of course, as every one knows, consists of a pair of diminutive and abbreviated trunks held on by a strap or two.

Children dressed in this fashion become as brown as berries before half the summer is over and store up enough of the sun's rays to carry them successfully through a winter in the city. But we must get to the question of dresses and suits for the child who wears them, alluring though the youngsters look in their play suits, which come in every color of the rainbow and may be worn either for swimming or romping.

France always has been the fountain-head of inspiration for little girls' party clothes. The children's frocks that deft Frenchwomen fashion with their swift needles never have been equalled in daintiness. There is no place in the entire realm of clothes where handwork of the most delicate beauty is more effective than on the frilly little frocks in white and pastel shades which France sponsors for little people. They are ornamented with the finest of handwork—tucks, drawn work, delicate embroidery and laces.

Wide Choice of Fabrics

Although silk dresses are sold for children our allegiance always has been given to cotton and linen dresses. This year, with these materials supreme in style we have delightful fabrics from which to make children's clothes. Heavy cottons are for mornings, with a slip-on sweater for extra warmth; dimity, dotted swiss, lawn and handkerchief linen, either in plain colors or in small dainty prints, are ideal for party frocks or for afternoons. If you must have silk you cannot do better than to choose such fabrics as those shown on this page or those of rough weave, such as light weight pongees and shantung or the Liberty silks.

The correct mode for Miss six or seven to fifteen shows a charming blending of the French passion for elaboration of detail with the American craze for simplicity. Fesant frocks are ideal for children of this age, made either of cotton or linen. They may be adorned here and there with wool embroidery, or perhaps smocking in an elaborate pattern is their only trimming.

One of the ideas which the younger set has captured from their elders is the vogue for ensembles. Even in tiny children's clothes this is evident. For the girl of ten or slightly older there are ensembles of the type shown at the lower right of the sketch on this page.

The child of today has many types of hats. She may wear a play берет either with or without a gay pompon, or a huge hat of rough straw with a floppy brim and a ribbon tied in a bow with long ends. These are the hats which are

EVENING WRAPS

There's a preference for short length types of evening wraps in the new mode. Some coats, though, are long, pointed and flared. Some are flared just below the hips. Varying lengths are seen in capes.

TRAVEL COAT

Paris contributes a tweed travel coat with triple pockets and warmth without weight that spell comfort.

FOREHEAD IN VIEW

Imported millinery emphasizes the exposed forehead. Velvet is popular.

universally becoming and appealing on children of all types.

Dressing Brother and Sister
Another fashion gaining popularity is the vogue for dressing a small brother and sister alike. Sister have been dressed alike in year gone by, but the brother and sister style twinning is something a bit newer.

When I mentioned this fashion as being a delightful one I was met with the objection that it stifled individuality. Perhaps I should never advise it in a family where either one child or the other was not entirely pleased with the idea. All children are not, however, possessed with the desire for personal freedom and individuality which the modern psychologist inists upon investing them.

So if your small son and daughter are somewhat alike in type which is often the case; if they are good friends and enjoy one another, which also sometimes happens, you cannot do better than have some of their clothes in pairs. Perhaps a little green linen dress for daughter with a white frilled collar and cuffs, and a costume, very similar, with green linen shorts and a white tucked shirt; for the small son of the house. Green straw sail or hats may be worn by both and the effect will be delightful.

The New Fall Suits and Topcoats Are Here In A Profusion Of Styles and Fabrics

They represent the last word in snappy new clothes for men. They are the culmination of months of planning of those who designed the fabrics and styled the clothes.

COLLEGE STUDENTS LEADERS IN STYLE
Men's Clothes No Longer Rough and Tumble Affair, The Latest Wrinkles.

No longer is men's dressing a rough-and-tumble affair. A trend toward formality and sophistication in men's clothing is beginning to make itself felt now and will sweep the country. The new generation of business men too long out of college is responsible for it, and it is the most important style trend which has appeared in recent years.

It is most clearly exemplified in a particular jacket model which is broad at the shoulder, has a peak lapel, is slightly cinched at the waist, and is slender about the hips. There are three buttons rather closely spaced with the lapel rolling to the top button. The lapels are always rather broad to conform with the broad shoulders. They are not so extreme and the peak is almost parallel with the shoulder line of the coat. The peak is always high.

This coat is smarter with jetted pockets (those without flaps). The pockets are placed even with the bottom button. The breast pocket appears higher than usual. There is a rather pronounced cut-away but not a rounding one. This coat is best worn with only the middle button closed. The sleeves are roomy at the top and tapering at the wrists. The coat is slightly longer than has been worn recently.

The best waistcoat to be worn with this jacket is the six button double-breasted waistcoat. It is always very short and should not be worn by portly gentlemen. The buttons are not so widely spaced as those placed at the corners of the upper pockets, the bottom ones three or four inches apart and very near the bottom of the vest. There may be a peak at the top of the modified peak. There are no points at the bottom except for the bare suggestion of one directly in the middle. With the double-breasted vest it is not incorrect to wear the coat with no buttons closed.

A six button single-breasted vest may be worn, almost always with the bottom button open. The single-breasted vest should also be short and the opening at the top may come a little bit lower than has recently been popular.

High Waist Trousers
The trousers with this new formal looking outfit should be very long and high-waisted, always held up with suspenders. There must always be considerable fullness toward the top of these trousers most often accomplished by one or two pleats on each side.

This suit will not achieve immediate general popularity in some sections of the country, but there is no question whatever as to its correctness. Many models approximating the one described were offered, but the most discerning men in nearly every case.

Such men will not wear this suit with a distinctly sharp-patterned fabric. It is a rather formal suit and should not be made of an informal fabric. The most effective weaves will be plain worsteds, indistinct small checks, small herring bones and very irregular subdued stripes. Generally speaking, however, stripes will be unimportant.

The favorite colors for suits of this type for fall will be rather darker than usual. Gray will rank first, but the most satisfactory of the grays will be shot with green, lavender, blue or red. An addition of green and lavender to gray creates the two newest and smartest of the fall colors. The color created by the mingling of the certain light tones of gray and blue is "Wales" blue, a very good new color. Oxford gray will continue in importance as long as this new formal trend remains.

A fine smooth cloth is almost necessary to achieve a semi-formal effect and for this reason worsteds, unfinished worsteds, serges, finely woven wools and tightly woven twos and twos are best.

Shorter Top Coats
Fall top coats will be shorter, falling just below the knees, will have broad shoulders and will be slightly shaped. A few of the best of them will have slanting slit pockets and the others will have ordinary pockets with flaps—not patch pockets. The best of the new raglans will have broader, more pronounced shoulders and the lapels will be wider. They may have much clearer patterns than the suits described above but very few with stripes. Checks of all sorts will be good and a great variety of green and lavender in the background colors. Small checks of reddish brown and light tan will be very smart.

With the peak-labeled formal looking suit a curl brimmed hat is absolutely necessary. Most of them will have either a welt or raw edge instead of a silk finish. The bound brim is a little too formal for ordinary wear in the fall. On very informal occasions the curl brimmed with raw edges may be turned down in front.

SARATOGA SPRINGS IN SUMMER DRESS
Woman Writer Describes the Cotures She Noticed at Famous Resort.

BY BETSY SCHUYLER

Saratoga Springs, N. Y.—Just as flowers are loveliest just before they fade, so do the lovely summer gowns reach the zenith of their achievement, just before the summer wanes.

Organdies, gingham, pastel-colored crepes, and flattering straw picture hats have only a few more days in the sun. Then come the somber colors of fall, the deeper leaf tones, and the autumn interpretation of the mode.

Who knows but this may be the last summer of the short skirt and the comfortable waistline? Who knows how our silhouettes may be changed by next year? At the rate we are going anything might be possible. Or women might even yet stampede and rebel against the passing of the Age of Comfort.

A Florida Crown
A second visit to Saratoga revealed new sartorial delights. I quite adored the hat worn by Marion Wilson, a very neat fitting and very diminutive model, with a wreath of flowers of different colors, since they have a definitely different purpose. The best sport coats are cut very generously and have a little definition at the waist. They are loose fitting and are made of rough material. They often have a series of pleats in the back or at the shoulder in order to facilitate freedom of movement.

Black shoes in most cases should have a round toe with very little decoration. If brown shoes are worn, they should be dark brown or never a very light or lemon color. Brown shoes may have a modified brogue or a wing tip. Underwear is almost universally two-piece. It is most comfortable with an elastic band, and many brave men have gotten up their courage and are wearing colored trunks. A great many hundred percent he-men have tried rayon or silk undershirts and found them highly satisfactory that they will never return to cotton. Trunks should be cut very generously for comfort.

Fewer fancy socks are being worn and where socks have a pattern it is either small or subdued. Plain gray or black socks with clocks at the side are very correct. Black silk socks with white clocks may be worn at formal occasions. Many fastidious men prefer gray and cream colored silk socks for day wear.

Women Are Better Fitted To Judge Domestic Life

Los Angeles, Cal.—That women are better fitted than men to pass judgment on domestic relations cases is the contention of Judge Georgia Bullock, noted feminine jurist.

Five years on the municipal court bench here have brought to her the plaudits of fellow jurists. She was the first woman in the state to occupy a judicial position. Her work and theories are compatible with those of Judge Ben Lindsey, who has become famous through his efforts along the same lines at Denver.

Comparisons are odious, but I would say that women are more qualified to handle domestic tangles because their background always has been the home—just as the men are better fitted to handle criminal cases because their background has been that of the world," she explained.

Women Don't Change!
"They say we are a changing world today, but you can't change the virtue in womanhood which upholds and maintains the traditions of motherhood and the family. Woman's natural impulse is to protect the child and give him the home he so justly deserves.

"There seems to be a tendency today for the average court of this kind to say, 'The parents have failed, let the state place the child in an institution where the machinery is such that he must be trained in citizenship and a sense of moral obligation.'

"I believe this attitude to be wrong. A woman will never allow the state to take the place of natural affection, for no artificial system which lacks parental understanding can give a child what he needs. As a lawyer practicing 11 years, I have observed mother love in all its branches and being a mother myself I can appreciate a child's problems and needs.

"It is a good thing women are beginning to assume responsibilities in the outside world, because we are approaching an age of change in social conditions. The parents of today realize they have

Women Want Room

London—The increase in the number of women Parliament members argues well for the strengthening rights of women, but nevertheless the feminine members are raising a kick. The sitting room allotted to them is inadequate, they claim. Despite the increase in their numbers the same room which used to accommodate one member, Lady Astor, suffices for them.

astride of new scientific discoveries. Hears 40 Cases Daily
"In most any direction one may look he sees avenues of life leading into the court. The headlines of the present generation combined with its lack of conventions brings approximately 40 cases before me daily. We find ourselves confronted with a host of theories in search for a solution to the problem, but most of them are comparable to trying to construct a square from three straight lines and one crooked one. "In my work I have attempted to co-operate as closely as possible with the public health service in an attempt to undermine the forces of destruction which are surely endangering the health of our social order. No one seems to realize to what extent these forces are at work. I have tried to serve the individual, for if the human units retrograde, the state itself slips back."

Choice of Accessories is True Test of Smartness in Dress

By HENRI BENDEL

New York — In an era when feminine styles call for more dressy accessories, the choice of extras to go with a given costume is a true test of a woman's chic.

New Type of Jackets
In choosing jackets, the one with a feminine little collar, with a novel tie-belt or with some other soft touch is better than the straight, mannish cardigan. A new type of jacket is the slip-on cardigan, which opens like a man's shirt half-way down from the collar. Sometimes it is sleeveless.
Scarves and kerchiefs have an enviable place in woman's heart. New little jersey turbans and scarves in brilliant tones are excellent for monotone suits. Men's cotton or linen handkerchiefs, colorfully plaided and with hems rolled, are the newest, sports kerchiefs. They may have a hat, girdle the hips or tie about the neck.
Many New Necklaces

Pink Chiffon Fan

Costume jewelry uses wooden beads and some new necklaces are made of blown cotton, in bright colors. Carved crystal is evening's loveliest contribution, especially in smoky pastel shades. Belt buckles and bracelets come matching necklaces. Corals are having quite a vogue now, with bracelets, necklaces and evening bags featuring them.
One of the new necklaces of crystal is made of carved smoky green beads, with plain beads between. It has a matching bracelet and is lovely with white, green or one of the new blues or pinks.
A novel bracelet uses cabochon crystals in conjunction with rubies and emeralds to form a dainty, colorful wrist ornament, with the little ends jangling like tassels. Illustrative of the tendency towards smaller accessories is a little black suede coin purse from Paris which is lined with white kid.
The vogue for leafy designs is emphasized by an import from Chanel, a wool jersey scarf that is fashioned like a leaf, with the center veil and little veils running out from it in the form of colorful stripes. The hat is all over the jersey in beige and brown with a fleck of green to match the scarf.

Fans Popular
Fans for evening are increasingly popular. Feather fans are still good but the newest fans are of chiffon or tulle, in many layers, often with ornamental sticks. One that I have in mind is of shell pink, with the sticks carved bone in the pink tone and tulle cut in regular lengths to resemble lovely petals. It is a stunning accessory for a brocaded pink crepe, Elizabeth gown. Pink pearls complete the picture.

IRONING BOARD
With returning feminine styles, the old-fashioned sleeve board is an essential for good ironing. You can slip shoulders, founces, jabots, peplums and other intricate parts of a frock over these little boards with excellent results.

How The Duo Dollar Campaign Originated

It might be interesting to know how the Duo Dollar idea came into existence.
A trio consisting of Herbert Swanson, advertising manager of Watkins Brothers, Charles McCann, Hale Co. manager and Leon Thorpe, advertising manager of The Manchester Evening Herald, met in conference in the Chamber of Commerce rooms about ten days ago.
After figuring out the details of the scheme, the next thing was to find a name for it.
For hours they pored over ponderous tomes—dictionaries, thesauri and the like. Finally they thought of the word "double dollar." They reduced it to its Latin equivalent and the problem was solved.
Then Mr. Swanson who is a commercial artist of no mean ability, prepared sketches and this is how the above sketch was evolved.
Mr. Swanson also drew the sketch for the coupon money that will be used during this campaign.

NONCHALANCE
He had joined a golf club and on his first hole made it in one. At the second tee came another miracle. Another awkward swing and he made the second in one. Turning around, white and trembling, he said:
"Gosh! I thought I'd missed it that time."—Tit-Bits.

MET HIS MASTERS
VISITOR: Hear you've lost your parrot that used to swear so terribly.
HOST: Yes, died of shock.
VISITOR: Really, how did it happen?
HOST: He escaped from his cage and wandered on to the golf links.—Table Talk, Melbourne.

SOUNDS MIXED UP
HUBBY (reading paper): Just think, an earthquake has destroyed the entire town of Piszizskyskiy in Poland.
WIFE: Was it spelled the same way before the earthquake?—Tit-Bits.

Brown is a Favorite Color for Fall Footwear and Ensemble Vogue Continues.

It was a wise man who once remarked, "Show me the books that you read and I will tell you what you are." It is the wise woman of today who misquotes him to the tune of "Show me the details of your costume and I will tell you whether or not you are well dressed." For it is by the accessories to the costume, which really should not be called by a name which makes them seem unimportant, that a woman's chic or lack of it is apparent to all beholders.

The feminine world—the wise portion of it, this is to say—is using the most careful discrimination in selecting the little things that make so great a difference in the picture which they will create. We carry with us always a rating chart and it is important to see to it that our percentage is high.

Designers have been careful to instruct us in this branch of dress knowledge. The jewelry, the perfume, the hat, the belts and bags which should accompany a dress are shown us by the dressmakers themselves. They know that on these things—the proper cut and color of the shoe—the shade and texture of the stocking—depends the effect for which they were striving when they created the gown.

With this careful planning and grounding in the fine art of being perfectly groomed, there is no excuse for a woman these days to make the fatal error which mars the finest creation of the dressmaker's art. The purse which is the wrong color for the hat, the scarf which clashes with the color of the belt—of course these are details, but they make or break the sum total of the costume over which some designer has expended time and thought.

Sketched for this page are the newest fancies of Paris in accessories, which were chosen a definitely showing of the latest moment. The bag and shoe ensemble from Hellstern, which is shown in the upper left hand corner of the drawing, is in white tussor printed with red, green, yellow and black flowers, and trimmed with finishing bands of red kid. Such an ensemble would be utterly delightful with light summer frocks.

A Shantung Ensemble. Then there is the bag, belt and flower combination in natural colored shantung and blue leather, which is drawn at the lower right of the picture. Both belt and bag are ornamented with dull crystal buttons, and just for good measure there is a sports handkerchief of blue and natural shantung to complete the effect. Picture these with a shantung or tussor suit and shoes of the same tones! It is with accessories such as these before us that we understand why the ensemble gives style to dress, that we realize its vital importance.

Hellstern announces that three new shades of brown will be smart for fall footwear—chocolate, maroon and half-way between the two, dingo-maroon. He proves his point with the shoes of maroon kid with the trimming of serpent which are shown above. These are a definite indication of smart street wear for autumn.

Decarf Scavini offers us his version of the vogue for brown in his shoe of beige, light brown and darker brown kid, which he trims with threads of white leather. In the upper right hand corner of these shades, at the right of the sketch, shows the use of brown lizard combined with kidskin.

Jean Charles Worth, one of fashion's arbiters, is especially insistent on the importance of the little things. It is essential, he tells us, that accessories be chosen with care and worn with costumes with which they are in harmony.

AMMONIA GOES UP; KITCHEN TO MILL

Cleveland.—Ordinary household ammonia, for years an indispensable article in the housewife's kitchen cupboard, is rapidly becoming equally important to the leaders of the great steel industry.

When the first National Metal Congress convenes here early next month, one of the principal topics up for discussion will be the use of ammonia in the production of a new series of alloy steels.

This process, known as nitriding, gives to certain alloy steels a case hardening obtainable in no other way, and is considered one of the most important metallurgical developments in recent years.

Dr. Adolf Fry of the great Krupp laboratories in Germany, the father of the process, will be here to tell what he knows about it, and similar papers will be read by American technicians, among them Prof. J. P. Walstead of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

The nitriding process is applied to alloy steels containing varying amounts of carbon and small quantities of aluminum, chromium and molybdenum. Exposed to ammonia gas under certain conditions, these alloys take on an extreme degree of surface hardness, acquiring at the same time a marked resistance to atmospheric or water corrosion.

SEPTEMBER SANDWICHES

Cut the kernels from four ears of sweet corn and saute in two tablespoons of fat with a very small onion chopped fine. When a golden brown add one tablespoon each of butter and flour and simmer all together till thick. Butter thin slices of bread, trim neatly, and pour over these the corn and tomato mixture. Serve hot with small crisp lettuce leaves filled with coleslaw at one side of the sandwich.

To accompany a dress with a blue background, he recommends an antelope bag in dark blue mounted on a gold frame with a composition clasp of red and blue.

Accessories for the afternoon must be chosen with particular care. Black antelope bags are often carried, while tweed bags belong to the morning or to sports.

To carry with a printed chiffon frock which bears a white, green and red pattern on a black background, Worth shows an antelope bag in black with a highly polished wooden frame and squares of wood at the bottom.

To accompany a dress with a blue background, he recommends an antelope bag in dark blue mounted on a gold frame with a composition clasp of red and blue.

Fall Gloves

TAILORED BOWS and straps lend distinction to the new fall gloves. This model of beige kid shows diagonally placed dark brown straps held by a rose quartz button.

Three pieces—all mohair—$139

Although only two pieces are sketched to the left, this grouping comprises three... a full size, 3-cushion davenport, a comfortable club chair and a wing chair. Each piece is covered all over with rich taupe mohair in a new shade, with one side of the seat cushions in a choice of ratine tapestries or moquette velours.

Select your own group $129

Make up your own bedroom group from the four different pieces in this ensemble. There's a full size bed, a large dresser, a chest and a French vanity, from which you may choose any 3 pieces, using the bed as a nucleus. Made of walnut and gumwood with mahogany overlays. A smart portable mirror for the chest may also be had.

In the Old English manner $129

Furniture of old England... before the discovery of America... inspired the pieces for this dining room grouping. Mellow walnut and American gumwood have been used in fashioning them, with genuine maple overlays for decorations. A buffet, extension table, china cabinet, arm chair and 5 side chairs are included.

A Wedding Gown From Gay Paree

Jeanne Lanvin Designs a Most Unusual Bridal Dress With a New Short Veil.

Soft organ music with the whisper of violins, the crisp rustle of silken gowns and the subdued murmur of voices—and then dead quiet. Then out of the tense silence the first notes of the Lohengrin wedding march. "Here Comes the Bride," and whether she be garbed in the most modern or the most old-time bridal gown this is, after all, her moment and hers alone.

Of course there are bridesmaids and perhaps a page or a flower girl. These may head the procession and be decked in all the colors of the rainbow, but the eyes of the wedding guests are for the bride. And this is true whether the wedding numbers royalty among its guests or is quietly solemnized in the smallest of small country churches. Every bride, of course, has her dream of the perfect wedding gown. One wants to be married in the dress her mother wore. Perhaps another uses the material of her mother's wedding gown, cream colored with the years, but has the gown made in modern style. Still another wants something very, very new and very very different, although she may wear a lace veil which has graced the brides of her family for generations.

The choice of fabrics for the wedding gown is almost unlimited. Moire, taffeta, crepe satin and transparent velvet furnish many of the loveliest of dresses, while some of this summer's brides have chosen net or the finest of mousseline de soie for their day of days. One is not even limited as to color today for the wedding dress may be of the purest white, or a pale cream, or almost as deep as the rich shade of a well made cup of cafe au lait. Some brides are even wearing shell pink.

For fashionable weddings the gown is usually created on the bride, as it were, designed with her special tastes and personality in mind. Though the inspiration for many of the most striking gowns may have come from the same period in history, the dresses themselves are as different as their wearers. As one designer says, "Some of the girls must have figures created for them, they themselves being as flat as flat can be, and, of course, even in these days of strenuous exercise and equally strenuous dieting, there are others for whom we must use special care to dispense with too many curves."

Lanvin is the special fairy godmother and miracle worker for the brides of France. Her dress fashioned of crepe roman is as definitely of another day and age as it is possible for it to be. It is the type of gown in which Lanvin excels.

The veil offers the most striking note of all. It is very short, springing from the back of the snugly fitted hood, and is much more interesting than the endless yards of billowing tulle which we have seen for so many years.

SHOES OF MILADY ARE CHIC AFFAIRS

The Dressmaker Touch Has Reached the Feet—Lizard Skin Popular.

New York—Milady will have a chic understanding this fall. Shoes never were smarter or more varied in cut, color and materials. The "dressmaker" touch has reached the feet. Two materials, cleverly used in conjunction with each other, are much smarter than one. Dainty pipings, overlays and underlays are more the rule than the exception. The shoe that subtly incorporates the idea of a little trim or other decorative feature of autumn costumes is the favorite.

Blue steps to the front in fall shoes. But browns are expected to be the favorites. There are many elegant black pumps, with fine combination of suede and kid, calf or lizard that are sveltly correct with the stylish flat crepe daytime frocks. Purple shoes and green may astonish some folks. But they are on the market, nevertheless.

There is a trace of the Barcelona influence of the current Spanish exposition in the high heels many black evening slippers affect. All the fancy leathers are called in to shoe Milady this autumn. Lizard is perhaps the most popular one, with Barosa shark, ostrich, porcupine, snakeskin, alligator and others fashioning many a scalloped wing tip and fancy quarter, with perhaps a bit of a line running through the one or two strap fastenings.

Toes are a little blunter but they are still far from being round. For daytime wear, when women really walk, there is an unprecedented welcoming of the one, two and three eyelet oxfords. Most of these refrain from looking heavy, however, an achievement accomplished by the use of higher heels, two materials breaking up the vamp and some rather smart treatments of the fronts where the lacing goes.

The one strap sandal is the outstanding popular one, for daytime and evening. But there are many T-strap sandals and other delicately novel straps on evening things. Moire is the favorite for evening, dyed to match one's gown or left suntan or some other off-white. Gold and silver decorative pipings give these a romantic glamor suggestive of ballroom floors where soft music woo the dancer.

One pair of exquisite brocaded silver and white slippers has an elaborate silver trim in a leaf design, with the spike heels silver. For a very long mint green moire gown, a pair of matching green moire slippers has big checks in gold and silver on the counter and gold and silver leaves on the vamp. All of the edges have both silver and gold pipings, and the tiny instep straps fasten with a diminutive jeweled buckle. Elaborately slippers have pastel colored flowers beaded on their vamps and exquisite gold pipings.

A Chic Combination For smart daytime wear with a blue faille suit with circular bands edging the coat and making the cuffs and pointed fox trimming it, matching blue lizard ties with high heels are tremendously chic. Bottle green or purple ties in suede and matching calf are much more attractive and interesting than they sound. They use grosgrain ribbon in their tone for laces.

PLEASES THE FIREMEN New York—People with a passion for sending in false fire alarms should either refrain in the future or prepare for a short stay in a nice cozy jail. A recently adopted alarm introduced here will send in the alarm and at the same instant photograph the sender. In case of a false call the film can be developed and the sender found.

"SEVERE" TYPES GIVE WAY TO FEMINISTIC DESIGNS

As femininely charming and varied as the women who wear them are the little capes that adorn evening gowns. (Left to right) A powder blue chiffon frock with full skirt and dipping hemline has a cape collar that swings to the length of a bolero and introduces darker blue godets over the shoulders. A Henri Bendel gown of yellow printed chiffon has a long, detachable cape. Removable is the little evening cape on a wild-rose chiffon gown with shirring for its distinctive decoration.

Lodges And Societies To Compete For A Prize

Here is still another interesting angle to the Duo Dollar Plan which will soon be all the rage now in Manchester.

There are a great number of lodges and societies in Manchester. And this is of vital interest to them.

All the members of a society or lodge can pool their duo dollars at the end of each month. Then when the auctions are held at the State theater they can compete for a prize of $25 in cash. The lodge having the most in duo dollars wins the cash.

For a lodge that is trying to pick up some spare cash to help swell the treasury, this is a wonderful plan.

And, remember, it costs the members not one penny.

All you have to do is to get a coupon for every dollar you spend for the next four months and hand it to the treasurer of your society or lodge.

This phase of the campaign will undoubtedly prove most popular.

FUR IS FEATURED

Fur is a popular trimming. Fur jackets are being sponsored. Often white fur, either ermine or lamb, is coupled with black. The featured coat trimming is brown Persian lamb.

STYLE FUNDAMENTALS

There's no disputing that tweeds remain the choice for sports ensembles. Black suits are most important in formal wear.

WASHING HANDKERCHIEFS

Add one tablespoonful of peroxide of hydrogen to the water in which handkerchiefs are washed. This will keep them white and will also remove any fruit stains.

EYE VEILS

Some new hats insist on being accompanied by whimsical looking little veils that spill a few small bits of dots across one's eyes and nose and end at cheek depth.

NEW SHOES

The two and three eyelet tie is having a tremendous vogue in new shoes shown for fall. Many of them are in purple and green.

BATHING SUITS

It is most important that bathing suits fit well. One that is a bit loose will sag and pull and gather itself in unbecoming folds as soon as it is wet.

TWEEDS AND JERSEYS

Woolen dresses and ensembles in such fabrics as light and heavy-weight tweeds and striped jerseys are in the limelight in the new modes.

CLOTHES LINE

To keep new clothes lines from tangling, soak them, before using, in cold water and then bring to a boil and cook a few minutes. This also lengthens the life of the line.

GRILLED TOMATOES

A nice lunch can be made inexpensively from grilled fresh tomatoes served on toast with hot cheese sauce poured over at serving.

SUGGESTIONS FOR TROUSSEAU

Simplicity Marks Evening Dress and Going Away Frock by Chanel.

How different the trousseau of our day from that of our mother's. Twenty years ago the bride must have enough clothes to last her at least a year and because of the richness of the materials in her gowns and the countless yards of fabric which went into them she was often wearing parts of her trousseau for years and years. Underwear and stockings enough for four or five seasons were provided by the fond mother and father.

Today's bride buys her trousseau, large or small as the case may be, in accordance with the size of her income and with the requirements of one season only in mind. Who can tell, in these days of quick changes, what cut of underwear and of gown she will wish to be wearing a year or even six months hence?

For the short honeymoon so often the rush of modern life so often demands, the going-away wardrobe must be carefully chosen. One of the best ways to lose a husband is to burden him too suddenly with too much luggage. Time enough for countless bags and trunks and hat boxes when you are leaving, with the five children, on the trip around the world which marks your twentieth wedding anniversary. Friend husband will be used to anything by then and much more patient under trial and tribulation.

The honeymoon luggage problem becomes especially important if the trip is made by motor or plane. Given every inch of space must be utilized. And more honeymoons are made today at least partly by plane than would have seemed possible to the bride of even two years ago.

Chanel, whose clothes are so popular with American women, and whose specialty is the simplicity of the American sports costume, has carried her love for this type of dress into the designing of more formal frocks with striking success and designed the two costumes on this page with the special needs of the bride in mind. Their simplicity makes them suitable for many occasions and they are so cut that they may be packed and unpacked and packed again with the minimum of crushing and musing.

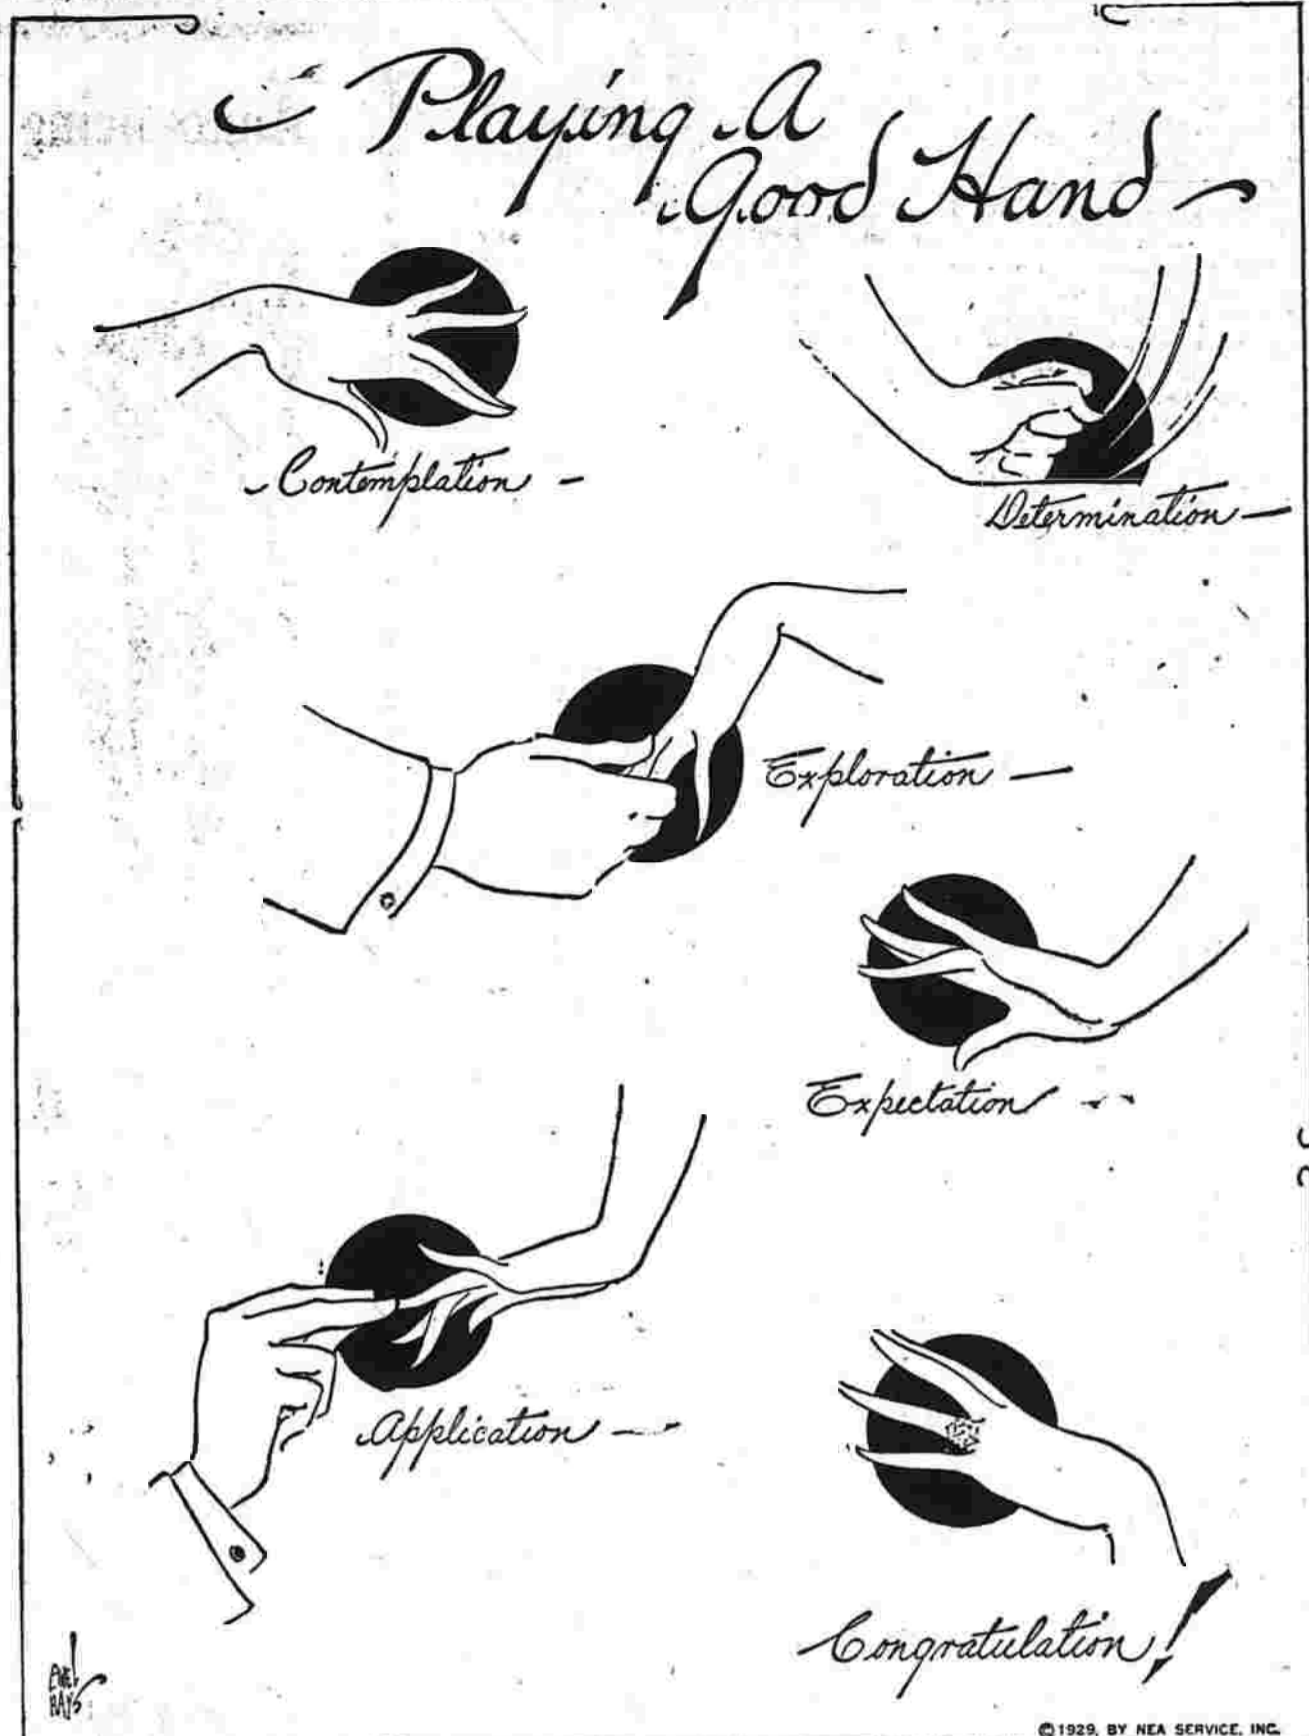

A suit would be ideal for the summer bride's going-away costume if she were seeking cooler climates for her honeymoon. It is of black tasha with the bottom of the skirt, the bottom of the coat and the collar and cuffs all cut in the suggestion of petal form to rob it of the too-talored look which this type of suit should never have. On the shoulder is a bunch of pink flowers which echoes the color of the shell-pink kasha blouse. The only trimming on the blouse is the bands of the material which are tied in knots in front. This type of suit is charming, worn either with or without the coat.

An evening dress of white satin which shows the intricacy of cut which many of the Paris dressmakers are lavishing on this type of material offers innumerable possibilities for elaboration through design. Like most evening dresses of its type this one is unrelieved by any touch of color save the buckle of brilliants at the waist. Slipper buckles, bracelets and earrings to match the buckle would be delightful with this gown. The floating panel hanging below the hemline on the right side is one of the new ideas in the form of applied bands and widens out again at the back of the neck to form a scarf which repeats the motion and the floating lines of the skirt drapery.

HOSPITALITY WITH COMFORT

Six o'clock, and a cool, smiling hostess greets the members of her family and the guest father has brought home to dinner. As they enter the dining-room that has been shaded during the day to keep out of the hot sun, the table, daintily set with fresh linen, sparkling glass, and silver, and adorned with a bowl of garden flowers, makes each one forget how hot the day has been.

A chilled fruit cocktail, not sweetened as for a dessert, but with a slight tang, whets their appetites, and they are ready to welcome the meal. Fried chicken garnished with toast points, peas fresh from the garden, fluffy baked potatoes, celery curls, olives, and currant jelly. Then a crisp, refreshing salad followed by a frozen dessert, and coffee poured by the hostess—and dinner is over. The guest, realizing that the hostess was also the cook, can no longer refrain from asking, "How do you do it?"

Perhaps you as readers have been wondering the same thing. Regardless of what the hostess may reply, the answer is to be found in the kitchen. For comfort here invariably insures easy hospitality.

Kitchens become hot and uncomfortable during the preparation of meals mainly from the heat given off by the fuel used, and from the steam created by cooking. If, then, we can find some means to overcome or lessen these evils, we have taken a long step in obtaining comfort.

Here the electric fan or ventilator can be of help. Properly placed, it creates a movement of air that is certain to result in a cooler kitchen. In a series of tests recently conducted by Good Housekeeping Institute, the value of an insulated oven for reducing the heat which escapes into the room was strikingly illustrated. When the regulators were set so as to maintain a temperature of 450 degrees F. in the oven, the average outside temperature of the oven walls was found to be 130 degrees F. for gas ranges of the insulated type, 240 degrees F. for gas ranges of the non-insulated type, and 114 degrees F. for electric ranges.

If you are equipping a summer home where oil is used as fuel, the purchase of an oil range with a built-in oven is well worth considering. The one illustrated here is made of porcelain enameled steel. It is provided with an oven indicator and has three top-stove burners. Such a range would be expected to outlast the older type of oil range which has only a japanned finish to protect the surface against corrosion. In addition to presenting a more attractive appearance, it is easier to clean. Surely the return in service and convenience made by such a range justifies its initial cost.

The amount of heat given off while cooking varies with the kind of fuel used. One of the chief advantages of a well-constructed electric range is that the heat given off is negligible. The ovens of such ranges are so heavily insulated that the heat may be comfortably placed on the door or sides of the oven, even though the temperature inside is as high as 500 degrees F. This heat does not escape into the room unless the oven door is opened. A

CORRECT ATTIRE WHEN TRAVELING

Passports to Perfection—Details Which Complete the Costume at Home and Abroad.

The days when a woman packed only her most becoming frock and a few pairs of shoes into a bag when she went off for a trip are gone forever. Now a trip in the offing is the perfect excuse for a new wardrobe. Hats for every occasion, dozens of pairs of stockings to insure having the perfect shade at all times, and almost as many pairs of shoes—thus one fills the wardrobe trunk.

The small details of dress are of great assistance to the traveler. They permit her to have many changes of costume, while taking up a little space in her trunk or suitcase.

Lucien Lelong has interesting ideas on the woman traveler, so we give them to you here:

"Travel occupies an ever greater part of the life of the smart world of the present day. Whether for the short or long, they occur at all seasons of the year. In the winter Egypt or the Midi is our goal. In the summer our steps are directed toward all those parts of the civilized world that we long to explore in turn, until no livable country is new to us.

Simple Travel Equipment
The smart woman has simplified her traveling equipment as she has simplified her costume. One of her reasons for insisting upon keeping to the mode of straight, simple frocks is that they may be packed so easily. Such astonishing numbers of them may be placed in one trunk! In bygone days a few gowns and their accompanying wrap filled and their modern woman finds room for dozens in the same space.

"Her sports costumes take little room though their material be somewhat heavier, because their absence of trimming makes them as easy to fold as a handkerchief.

"Nothing is more charming than to watch a traveler of the well dressed world install herself in her compartment in a great Continental express. She carries a silk case to cover the frock that she removes during the night. This case is the color of all her other accessories for the journey, whether her chosen shade be mauve, blue or some neutral tone, such as beige or grey. Some women include sheets and pillow cases in matching crepe de chine, but these may be dispensed with if one wishes to have as little luggage as possible.

"Two American suitcases have become the sleeping car baggage of all smart women, no matter what their nationality. Here, in small space, conveniently arranged, one may pack enough supplies for a two weeks' visit. If one remains longer, a trunk in the baggage car, as well. How convenient are these trunks, which do away with the necessity of packing and unpacking one's clothes!

"In her dressing bag the woman traveler will have placed all her bottles and boxes, her perfumes, lotions and creams. Many women prefer a small traveling case especially designed for a journey, in which small editions of all these appear. This enables her to avoid opening her suitcase en route.

BLACK FELT and black lace are combined in this lovely fall model which exposes the forehead and has the smart long back.

A Useful Leather Case
A soft leather case contains the pajamas, the mules, dressing gown and towels which accompany one in the compartment. An on the rack above is the hatbox, also in supple leather, which holds eight to ten hats.

"Equipped in this fashion our traveler is ready for any adventure in an era which provides for all adventures.

"Dressed in some color that recalls the color of the weather itself, carrying a coat of simple tweed or tweed lined with fur, according to the season, I know of no more attractive sight than a woman ready for a long voyage. Her handbag, ample for tickets and passports, matches her gloves and shoes in color. Round her neck is a scarf, often in a brilliant contrasting shade. At the end of her journey she arrives as fresh and smiling as when she started.

"Her bags and boxes conveniently disposed of in her compartment, surrounded by piles of magazines and illustrated papers, she prepares to enjoy the trip whether it be short or long.

"The tightly fitted toques which are so much worn at the moment are delightful for traveling, so that it is no longer necessary to take off one's hat in the train and expose one's coiffure to the dust of the journey in order to be comfortable. These little turbans of jersey or supple straw fit the head like a wig, allowing not one single strand of hair to be seen. They are very becoming and they protect the hair far better than the veils in which our mothers used to swathe themselves.

"A woman stepping out of the train after a long trip, having changed her gloves at the last moment, gives us the impression of having just left her boudoir, instead of having come 500 miles to meet us."

Jewels Add Luster to Beautiful Lupe Velez

Lupe Velez

BY MABEL DUKE

In this day of standardization when even feminine fashions demand that every woman be a copy of every other woman, the attainment of individuality is at times difficult. Since fashion decrees that street dresses shall be short and evening dresses long; that hair, whether long or short, shall be arranged close and sleek, and that hats be close-fitting and of standard shapes, one's only hope in achieving distinction lies in a skillful use of ornaments—the "extras" of the costume which form the keynote of individuality. "Jewelry, perfume, unusual shades of rouge and lipstick, distinctive eye make-up, the use of fans and handkerchiefs all add personality to one's appearance," states Lupe Velez, whose fiery temperament is complemented by her wise choice of accessories. "I think a woman should select her jewelry as carefully as she selects the color or style of her gown. Antique jewelry is charming on some women while others can wear heavy, modernistic bangles. But whatever her type, any woman can accent her costume with the right necklace, brooch or bracelet. "One woman I know always wears a cluster of real flowers at her waist or shoulder, no matter what her costume is, whether street sports or formal evening. Sometimes she wears roses, at other times nasturtiums, orchids, verbenas or one day when she wore a dark blue sports frock and at the shoulder was pinned three little red ornamental peppers with a green leaf. "Fans and gay handkerchiefs are charming accessories, particularly if handled gracefully. There is an art to carrying either and it may be mastered by a little practice. Never wad a handkerchief in the hand. Hold it only by one corner or in the middle, with the ends loose."

"Live Alone" Quarters Exhibit New Artistry

By ETHEL A. REEVE

The radical changes in the social status of the unattached woman is shown nowhere with such amazing clarity and accuracy as in the charming live-alone quarters thousands of women maintain today. In Mother's time an unmarried woman, living as a lamentable family appendage, helped with the work, cared for the children, and occupied the least desirable rooms in her relatives' home, and in no atmosphere as drab as the world gauged her spirit to be. Today every large city has hotels and apartment houses built just for the independent woman. They beg her to take one of their cheery, one-room, kitchenette and bath suites. Increasing numbers of successful business and professional women do feel the need of their own quiet retreat to which to retire with comfort and independence at the end of a hard day.

An Art of Luxury
These modern women attain a remarkable artistry in living. Their little dinners are cleverly conceived and executed to give a bliss guest a new thrill from their simple charm. The women are mentally alive, get the same satisfaction from work that men do, read the new books and are in touch with current affairs. There is no touch of the erstwhile furtive spinster. They have their respected niche in society. Handsomely dressed and perfectly groomed themselves, their rooms are of fitting backgrounds for their personalities. The very comfort, color and charm of their little apartments crystallize the triumph of woman's ability to carve her own life.

If life is to be carried on in small space successfully, very specific thought has to be put on every detail in furnishing. Shipshape is the ideal. That everything must have a place and be kept in it is a fundamental principle in this modern type of living.

The essentials, then, of a one-room, bath and kitchenette apartment may be summed up somewhat as follows: Two chests, one for clothes and one for linens; some form of day bed which need not sacrifice a whit of comfort to be equipped as a very good-looking couch or drop leaf table, suitable either for eating or cards, which, when not in use, takes up little room and does not become a temptation for odd books and ornaments four side chairs, at least two comfortable overstuffed ones which need not have either enormous arms or thick backs to be satisfactory; one medium-sized table for magazines, lamp and books in use.

The easy chairs and couch should have good lighting. A decorative hanging shelf above one of the chests for books or bibelots and a mirror over the other make a nice balance. Or one low chest and one highboy might be used with just as pleasing an effect and would stow away the same quantity of things. Some form of writing table or desk is among the essentials. Piano, radio or victrola are matters of individual taste.

Old Furniture Is Good
It is nice, wherever possible, to lay the foundations of a room in old furniture. This gives one a sense of roots and background. Old chests or chairs from the family are comforting. With the furniture established, the color scheme may be as sedate or as gay as desired.

One room I have in mind has cream walls, the hangings a gay bordered glazed chintz in blue and salmon combination, hung from blue painted poles. There is a blue rug and a day bed done in mahogany velvet, placed below a wall hanging of an antique Paisley shawl. The furniture is a combination of walnut and mahogany, some of it old and very friendly contours, though possibly not of the most desired and modish periods.

Careful arrangement of each piece of furniture is imperative to prevent chaos when the room is used. The essentials are as follows. Place the bed near a window, not some distance from the kitchenette. The eating table should be near the kitchenette and the conversation group well removed. Place the dressing chest convenient to the bath. The desk needs a spot where it has good light. A telephone within reach of the couch will save strain.

With all these practical matters arranged, the personality of the hostess is indicated by the colors, pictures and general atmosphere.

FIND LARGE METEOR

Kimberly, S. A.—There has been found in the Grootfontein district in Southwest Africa what is said to be the largest meteor ever to fall on the earth. It is thought to weigh in excess of 50 tons and has only one rival that matches it in size. It is thought to have fallen on the earth hundreds of years ago. It is composed of metallic iron.

BRAVO, SENOR

London—English and American feminine beauties owe a vote of thanks to Senor Federico Beltram-Masses, Spanish portrait painter, who championed them in an address here recently. "I am absolutely against the movement which would make English women refrain from exhibiting their legs," he says. "I think they should show their knees. The American girls can also show their knees with impunity, for they are descended from the English and inherit their beauty."

PUNISH PETTY CRIME

Baltimore, Md.—The stealing of a canary is pretty small, but to bribe a 13-year-old boy to do it is a larger crime. Frank Custer, 34, and father of eight children, was recently sentenced to three months by Judge T. J. S. Waxter after it had been found he had bribed the boy to steal the bird. He offered the youth a bicycle to steal for him.

DON'T NEED FIRE

San Diego, Tex.—Boy, it's hot when the sun cooks eggs! Raymond Taylor recently locked his hen house to keep some Buff Orpingtons out. The hens laid their eggs on the ground and the following day, when Mrs. Taylor opened one of them for her husband's meal, it was soft boiled. Two following ones were also soft boiled. And Taylor likes his eggs fried!

AID FOR THE FOOT

The skin of the foot can be kept soft and comfortable by frequent massage with olive oil. This will prevent painful rough heels and also eradicate soft corns which are apt to be the busy housewife's lot.

WHITENING CLOTHS

Lemon rinds saved in cold water and dropped into the boiler on washing day will help to whiten dishcloths and tea towels.

NEWEST STYLES IN FUR COATS

Feel Influence of Princess
Silhouette — Skirts Show
Greater Width.

By JULIA BLANSHARD

New York. —Collars and silhouettes are the telling factors in fur coats for winter.

There is wide diversity this year between fur coats for dressy wear, fur coats for sports and the glamorous fur wraps for evening.

Perhaps the outstanding innovation is the suggested princess silhouette. Few coats are rash enough to cut their expensive furs into exaggerated princess lines. But most of them pay a lot of respect to waistline and the flare in the skirt portion is the new thing. There is much greater width around the bottom than in former years. Women will be able to keep their fur coats across the knees when sitting down, this winter.

Collar treatments are extremely important, varied and flattering. High cushion collars, collars that tie like stocks or scarfs, cape collars, throw collars, long, tuxedo effects in contrasting furs, round youthful collars, flared, standing collars and high collar collars all are seen.

Cuffs in the Mode
Cuffs are correspondingly interesting, with many pointing back to the elbow, some flared circular ones, a few puff cuffs or exaggerated wide flares from the elbow.

Browns and blacks predominate, with lapin the outstanding sports coat, dyed practically any color. Swager coats come in muskrats, leopard, squirrel and novelty furs. Coats for daytime use Persian lamb, broadtail, caracul mink, beaver, muskrat, sable, seal and other staple furs. Evening still prefers ermine, though capes, dolmans and other luxurious wraps in mink lined with luscious color are new and stunning.

Greater length is shown in most of the coats. One may have a couple of furs on her coat or the collar and cuffs made of the same, with equal authenticity of style. Fine furs for afternoon, however, have a way of originating a collar and cuff treatment in their own fur that is exceedingly satisfactory to gaze upon.

The deep cape collar is an example of this. A dark, eastern mink coat has a cape collar of it-cells that swings almost to the waistline when the coat is open and reaches shoulder-blade height when Milady gets cold.

A beautiful adaptation of a Faquin coat is a black broadtail which has a cape collar of its own lustrous fur. This coat is cut with somewhat of fullness above the waistline, comes in decidedly at rather about one gives a svelt silhouette like fine fabric. It has swinging fullness in its skirt portion so that its front laps over to the side. The sleeves are stuffed with broadtail too so that the whole effect is of extremely fine tailoring of luxurious fur.

Novel in several ways is a black caracul with kolinsky collar and cuffs, a copy of Decoll Bear. It sponsors the long tunic silhouette with a circular flounce that is decidedly new and graceful.

The sleeves swing into fullness and end in puffs, with kolinsky making a pointed panel up the sides and back well above the elbow. The kolinsky collar rounds and fastens in a manner to frame the face becomingly and emphasize the long tunic effect of the front as well as the back.

Striking Youthful Note
Young and very feminine is the little swaggar coat of parchment lace lapin, worn with or without a belt of suede.

Its soft lines suggest the prevalent femininity in styles. The raglan sleeves are cut full and pleated into smart little cuffs that fasten with cuff-buttons of fur. The collar has notches in it so that its rounded portion can be buttoned right up tight around the neck, like a shirt collar, also fastened by those cute little fur buttons. There are pockets that the college or business girl always welcomes.

The raglan cut of this coat gives it welcome fullness through the body, so necessary to the freedom required by this type of sports coat. Belted, it can be housed slightly, to show off to advantage that slender waistline admired by all.

Fall Blouse

A LINGERIE BLOUSE worn with the transparent, velvet collar, which is favored for evening. The blouse is of a delicate, lace-trimmed fabric and is shown in an interesting detail of the collar, an interesting detail of the new mode.
