

SENATE PROBE ON SHEARER POSTPONED

Sub-Committee of Three or Five Senators to Take Up Work Early Next Week; Hold Secret Session.

Washington, Sept. 12.—The Senate's investigation into the propaganda activities of Wm. B. Shearer against naval reduction, and his employment by three American shipbuilding concerns to represent them at the ill-starred Geneva conference, will get under way early next week and will be conducted by a sub-committee of three or five Senators.

This was decided today when the Senate naval committee met and authorized Senator Hale (R) of Maine, the chairman, to appoint either three or five members of the committee to conduct the probe and to map out plans for public hearings.

While the committee was laying plans for the inquiry, there was submitted to President Hoover lengthy reports on Shearer's record and his multifarious activities from three separate governmental departments—Justice, State and Navy. The latter report came from the Naval Intelligence Corps.

The State Department's report was said to have concerned itself with Shearer's foreign activities, which have brought him into disfavor with a number of foreign governments, including the British and Belgian.

The reports presumably will be submitted to the committee for its consideration.

Scope of Inquiry.
The exact scope of the Senate's inquiry apparently was not cleared at today's session.

The authorizing resolution, as prepared by Senator Borah (R) of Idaho, who is the real instigator of the probe, directs that the investigation shall concern only Shearer's employment by the ship building companies, and his activities at the Geneva conference, where a naval agreement failed because of British-American differences.

Secretary of State Stimson said today he would be "very disappointed," however, if the probe did not go

VETERANS TO PICK HEADS TOMORROW

Business Discussions Held Today at Annual Meeting of Civil War Veterans.

Portland, Me., Sept. 12.—Business conferences, and the election of a commander-in-chief which had been postponed until tomorrow, occupied the attention today of the 3,000 veterans from all parts of the country attending the 63rd National encampment of the Grand Army of the Republic here.

Sessions for business discussion were scheduled for this afternoon, but due to the excitement caused by the big parade staged by the aged war veterans in "Union blue" postponement was decided upon.

One of the big problems up for decision today was the proposal to hold joint encampment with the United Confederate veterans, a proposal which was made by members of the Maryland Department and which found favor among Confederate troops.

Meanwhile, the Civil War veterans, all of them over 80 years of age, were tired but happy today following their annual parade through the streets yesterday from Longfellow Square to City Hall.

Of the 25,000-strong force that marched here 40 years ago in the prime of life, but 1,000 marched yesterday with lagging steps to the slow cadence of fife and drums. Although many of them carried canes, while others leaned on Boy Scouts for assistance, all displayed the same spirit that sent them off in '61. About 500 men went over the line of march in automobiles.

It was estimated that more than 75,000 persons witnessed the spectacle.

Rear Admirals Named in Naval Arms Propaganda Row

Four rear admirals in the United States navy, pictured above, besought William B. Shearer to spread propaganda against reduction in naval armament—that is the charge Shearer makes in discussing his suit of $25,000 filed against large shipbuilding interests in this country for alleged services as a paid propagandist at Geneva against world-wide disarmament. The admirals, left to right, are Samuel S. Robison, superintendent at Annapolis; William V. Pratt, commander of the United States battle fleet; Charles P. Plunkett, retired, and Henry A. Wiley, commander of the United States fleet.

"BRITISH-U. S. ACCORD FAR OFF",—WASHINGTON

Agreement on Naval Cut Seems to Be Impossible Just Now—British Optimism on the Decrease.

Washington, Sept. 12.—In an effort to break the impasse that has been reached in the negotiations for an Anglo-American naval agreement—the seriousness of which can no longer be doubted—administration officials were formulating a new proposal on the cruiser question today, evolved out of an almost continuous series of White House conferences.

It is expected to go forward in a few days and upon the manner of its reception by the British may hinge the success or failure of the present negotiations.

Despite the optimistic generalities voiced both in Washington and in London, it can be stated authoritatively that no cruiser agreement is yet in sight. Both sides have made concessions—material concessions—but there are still vital differences to reconcile.

Less Optimism.
The capital noted with interest today a marked diminution of MacDonald's optimism, as contained in his public utterances. Addressing the League of Nations early this month, the British premier said he would "be greatly surprised if an agreement were not reached in a week."

The latest British proposal, which has been under study here for a week, would allow a British cruiser tonnage of some 350,000 tons contingent upon the United States agreeing to limit its tonnage to that of the British in vessels of the 10,000-ton 8 inch type. The Navy General Board considers totally unsuitable to American needs, because of the long hauls between bases.

Present Situation.
There the situation rests. Acceptance of the British proposal from any viewpoint would leave the American Navy still some 50,000 tons of cruisers short of parity with the British Navy, which would be offset only by the fact that the American Navy would possess a very slight superiority over the British in vessels of the 10,000-ton 8 inch type. The Navy General Board has advised against it.

Moreover, President Hoover has to conduct the negotiations with one eye on the Senate. It will require a two-thirds vote of the Senate to ratify any agreement, and no one in Washington believes the Senate would approve any compact that does not provide parity acceptable to the general board.

All of President Hoover's advisers do not see eye to eye on the value of the British proposals and the nature of the American reply.

It was reported on good authority today that there have been some tart exchanges between Secretary of the Navy Adams and Under Secretary of State Joseph P. Cotton in the conferences this week, with Adams strongly backing up the views of his admirals.

Another Conference.
London, Sept. 12.—Premier Ramsay MacDonald and United States Ambassador Charles Gathes Dawes will meet tonight for another conference regarding an Anglo-American agreement for naval limitation, the Navy Adams and Under Secretary of State Joseph P. Cotton in the conferences this week, with Adams strongly backing up the views of his admirals.

The negotiations are fast approaching their climax.

Report No New Clashes Along Manchurian Front

Shanghai, Sept. 12.—A condition of virtual inactivity prevailed along the Manchurian front today, as Soviet and Chinese forces continued to patrol the border with no new clashes reported.

There has been no new outbreaks since the bloody outbreak which lasted over the week-end, and apparently resulted in decisive victory for the Soviet forces.

New reports from Chinese generals in the affected area state that the town of Pogranichnyia, one of the key points along the border, was reduced virtually to ashes by the severe fighting which followed the initial Soviet attack.

The town, according to reports, is almost deserted. All military and government officials have been removed, and the populace is being evacuated for fear of renewed attacks.

An official government announcement states that the Chinese forces are now being assembled at Mulin, forty miles from Pogranichnyia, and the next city of any importance along that section of the border. Reinforcements are being sent to the spot in the hope of warding off future attacks.

NAME ROGERS DIRECTOR OF N. E. COUNCIL

Local Man Becomes Executive in Group Promoting New England; Appointed to Recreation Committee.

Boston, Mass., Sept. 12.—At a special meeting of the executive committee of the New England Council held here this morning Willard B. Rogers of South Manchester, Conn., was named to the Council's Board of Directors for Connecticut.

Mr. Rogers succeeds the late Almond Judd, of New Britain, who had served since the organization of the Council.

Mr. Rogers, when informed of his election to the New England Council's board of directors told The Herald today that he had been asked to accept the nomination at the recent conference in Hanover, N. H. He has been active in the Council's work for many years, he said.

The other directors now include, in addition to W. B. Rogers, Henry Trumbull, of Plainville, brother of Gov. John H. Trumbull, chairman; E. G. Buckland, general manager of the N. Y., N. H. & H. R. R.; Stanley H. Bullard, president of the Connecticut Manufacturers' association; Harry C. Knight, general manager of the Southern New England Telephone company; F. D. Layton, president of the National Fire Insurance company; Wilson H. Lee, head of the W. H. Lee company, of New Haven and Elijah Rogers, of Southington, prominent agriculturist and former state senator.

Mr. Rogers will serve on the Recreation committee of the Council he has been informed from headquarters in Boston. This committee has had much to do with the promotion of New England's recreation and has instituted a huge advertising campaign acquainting the people of the country with the advantages of New England as a vacation ground.

Who's Who? Says.
Coinciding with this election to the New England Council directorship the new issue of "Who's Who in America" carries the name of Willard B. Rogers. "Who's Who" is this to say about the local man: "Rogers, Willard Benjamin—insurance, advertising, born Manchester, Connecticut, October 28, 1888—son of Alexander and Sarah (Sinnamond) Rogers—educated high school South Manchester—married Ruth McCue, Hartford, on March 15, 1911—son, Kermit—National president, Fraternal Benefit League, New Haven, Conn., 1919-24; national representative, American Insurance Union, Columbus, Ohio, 1924-26; general manager, later also secretary and assistant treasurer Fuller Battery company, since 1924 general manager Rogers Land company since 1926; advertising director Hoyal company since 1927; owner Rogers Insurance Agency, Manchester; member, House of Representatives 1917-21; selectman Manchester, 1914-24; police commissioner, Manchester, since 1924; director state America; Connecticut Chamber of Commerce; Hartford Chamber of Commerce; Masons; Clubs: Manchester City, Lions (dir) Hartford Advertising, (dir) Hartford

SENATE SETTLES DOWN TO BATTLE ON TARIFF

Think 220 Are Lost In Maritime Tragedy

Stockholm, Sept. 12.—Two hundred and twenty persons, officers and members of the crews of two Russian destroyers, are believed to have been drowned when the two vessels foundered in the Gulf of Finland last week during the tempestuous weather which lashed that body of water for several days.

The two warships have not been heard from since. They are believed to have gone down with all hands on board.

MUSSOLINI TO GIVE UP HALF DOZEN POSTS

Keeps Post of Home Office and Premiership; Formerly Held Eight Jobs in the Italian Cabinet.

Rome, Sept. 12.—Premier Benito Mussolini today lessened the terrific burden of public office that has been resting upon his shoulders by giving up six ministerial portfolios.

Official announcement was made that Mussolini has resigned all his ministerial portfolios except those of home office. He remains head of the government, as premier.

The ministerial portfolios relinquished by Mussolini were those of Foreign Affairs, Colonies, War, Navy, Aviation and Corporations. However, they are not vacant as the following under secretaries have been appointed to fill them:

Brandi, Foreign Affairs; Debono, Colonies; Gozzere, War; Siriani, Navy; Balbo, Aviation, and Bottai, Corporations. Each of the former under secretaries thus becomes a minister of a department.

All other ministers retain their portfolios except two.

Minister of education has been replaced by Signor Balbo, and minister of economy has been succeeded by Signor Acerbo.

Mussolini added to his state duties continuously after the Fascist Party came into power in October, 1922. He assumed one ministerial post after another until he held eight, including the premiership. Despite the terrific strain he kept the whole business of the state, including vast ramifications into finance, industry, commerce and public works, as his finger ends.

Notwithstanding his multifarious duties, which were increased by the delicate negotiations with the Vatican for settlement of the Roman question, he always found time to receive his foreign and Italian visitors, especially Americans, who called at Chigi palace to pay their respects.

The present is the first let up in the wonderful driving force of this "Modern Napoleon" as he is characterized by many of his admirers in the Fascist organization. Many regard it as an answer to the oft-asked question: "After Mussolini, what?"

NEW STATE RULING

Hartford, Sept. 12.—A further restriction is placed about electric doctors in Connecticut by a decision handed down here today by Ernest L. Averill, of Branford, acting attorney-general, who informed Mr. Stanley H. Osborn, state health commissioner, that the homeopathic medical examining board has no right to grant a certificate to an eclectic school graduate who has been granted a homeopathic certificate by another state.

The opinion says that the statute covering physicians' certificates apparently was not intended to grant full reciprocity between states but was merely to provide a plan by which in certain cases certificates could be accepted in lieu of formal examinations.

Connecticut has no eclectic examining board. The name of the physician involved is not made public in the opinion but the state is named as Florida.

WORLD'S MEANEST THIEF

Portland, Me., Sept. 12.—Another act of one of the "world's meanest thieves" was recorded here this afternoon when J. S. Girard, 86-year-old Civil War veteran, of Baltimore, Md., attending the National G. A. R. Encampment here, reported to police that he had been robbed of $65, every cent of his money.

There was a tear in his eye as he told of how he had been robbed of his money, which was in an old purse which he valued as a treasure, immediately after being robbed by two men in a Congress street store.

Postpones Action on Vore Case to Face Three Months Battle on Rates; Republicans Are Confident They Have a Majority on All the Major Issues

Washington, Sept. 12.—After clearing its legislative channels for continuous consideration of the tariff, the Senate settled down today to a three-months battle over the administrative features and rates of the new bill.

Senator F. M. Simmons (D) of N. C., the minority tariff leader, planned to deliver a Democratic "keynote" speech on the tariff this afternoon, explaining the opposition of the bill. Veteran of many a tariff war, Simmons will outline the battle plans of the Democratic-innocent coalition, which seeks to eliminate Republican administrative provisions and slash Republican protective rates.

Has Right of Way.
The tariff bill now has the right of way in the Senate over all other legislative activities. The coalition's effort to inject the Vore case into the special session, went down to defeat when the Senate voted, 41 to 34, to postpone action on the question of seating Senator-Elect Vore (R) of Pa., until after the tariff bill is passed. This may give the Vore case up for a conclusion in late October but, at all events, it will be acted on after December third, at the next regular session.

Republicans Pleased.
The vote, which had no bearing whatever on the seating of Vore, indicated the administration can command a majority in the Senate on tariff matters, even though a handful of insurgents oppose it. While nine Republicans, all insurgents, voted with the Democrats, the Republican organization won by gaining five Democratic votes. The result certainly pleased Republican leaders.

"It was a very decided victory," said Senator Watson (R) of Ind., majority leader. "It means that the Senate voted to keep the tariff under consideration. That was very hopeful. I believe now, we will be able to pass the tariff at the special session."

"If we had taken up the Vore case, it would have been debated for a month. That has been the rule in other contests over Senatorial seats. With so much time lost, it would have been impossible to enact the bill at this session."

Coalition leaders, however, asserted the vote was no indication of how the Senate would treat the Republican rates in the bill. They pointed out that twenty Senators were absent, including nine Democrats, a Farmer-Laborite and three insurgents. If all had been present and voting, the vote would have been much closer.

They assert that a better indication of strength will be found on the first vote to change the administrative features of the bill.

The administrative provisions incidentally will be considered first and the rates afterwards. The first important feature reached under this program will be the flexible tariff provision, giving the President power to raise or lower rates to meet "changing conditions of competition." The new provision, rather widening the President's present powers, will be opposed by the coalition. If it is stricken from the bill, the coalition will have struck a heavy blow at the administration.

The Vore case meantime will slip back on the legislative shelf it has occupied during most of the last three years. It probably will be disposed of this year and Vore probably will be able to appear in his own defense. His physician announced the Philadelphia was rapidly recovering from a stroke of paralysis and would be able to appear here in December. His fate is a foregone conclusion he will be denied his seat, whenever the vote is taken.

GRAVEL SHIP OVERDUE

Chicago, Sept. 12.—Anxiety over the fate of the gravel ship Andaste, with her crew of 26 men, Chicago bound from Grand Haven, Mich., was heightened today after the boat had been missing for 48 hours.

The ship sailed Monday night at 9:30 and was due here Tuesday morning. It has not been heard from since its departure from Grand Haven. The craft carried 3,000 tons of gravel.

A violent storm was encountered by the ship early Tuesday, according to meteorological records, and it is thought that she may have been forced to turn with the wind and drive far northward. The missing ship has no wireless and could send no message of its distress.

MRS. VITALI DIES

Waterbury, Sept. 12.—A six weeks fight for life ended today when Mrs. Philomena Vitali, 25, died at St. Mary's hospital from a bullet in her spine. Her husband, Vareso, shot her on July 25, and then shot her mother Mrs. Mary Mannello. Mrs. Mannello recovered. The man is in the State Hospital at Middletown.

"U. S. OF SO. AMERICA"

Geneva, Sept. 12.—An "economic United States of South America" is now suggested, along the same lines as French Premier Briand's proposed economic confederation of European states, it was learned this afternoon.

RAILROAD MERGERS UP BEFORE BOARD

Interstate Commerce Commission Takes Up Work After Summer Vacation.

Washington, Sept. 12.—Railroad consolidation, particularly among eastern roads, was taken up again today by the Interstate Commerce Commission and is expected to engage the attention of the commission during the next few months.

The commission, following its August recess, has resumed its deliberation and is reported to be giving much consideration to the tentative consolidation plan prepared by Commissioner Porter.

Among the pending plans are those of the Chesapeake and Ohio, Baltimore & Ohio, and the Wabash, asking for authority to link up many eastern roads into comprehensive systems.

Another merger. A merger plan involving the linking up of the Great Northern and Northern Pacific, has been pending before the commission's attitude toward the proposal.

The Baltimore & Ohio has also applied for authority to acquire control of the Buffalo, Rochester & Pittsburgh and the Buffalo & Susquehanna, and these applications have served to complicate the merger situation.

The Pittsburgh & West Virginia, controlled by the Tappin brothers of Cleveland, are trying to get the Wheeling & Lake Erie, as are the Van Swearingen-owned Nickel Plate, and the Wabash.

Control of the Western Maryland also is being eagerly sought by a number of important eastern roads. The Baltimore & Ohio, which owns control of the Western Maryland, has been cited by the commission under the Clayton Anti-Trust Act for "illegally" holding this control.

The Baltimore & Ohio has proposed trusting the stock until the commission can decide the Western Maryland's proper allocation.

While the commission's ideas on the subject of consolidation are still undisclosed, the best opinion seems to be that the status of the Pennsylvania and the New York Central presents insurmountable obstacles to more than four-major systems in the east.

L. H. Loree, president of the Lehigh Valley, is sponsoring a fifth trunk line system, but apparently is making little headway with the merger map.

OLD BIBLE IS FOUND IN DISMANTLED HOUSE

Building Now Being Torn Down Once Housed This Town's First Bank

The finding yesterday afternoon by Edward Copeland of a bible that had slipped down between the walls of the old house that is being torn down on Depot Square, dated 1818, has caused some speculation as to the age of the house.

In its investigation of the post-office, then located in Oakland, was later moved as "Union Village" had started to grow.

LINDYS NEXT HOP

New York, Sept. 12.—The new "We" of the Lindbergh family—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, Anne and the ship that carries them both—are to start on a new 7,000-mile air-cruise on September 20.

The flying colonel and his bride will reverse the famous circle route he blazed alone through the South American, Central American and West Indian air lines a year ago, returning to America, the starting point on October 4.

Whirling propellers of the Lindbergh ship will cut air in sixteen days on the way to the landing on September 20 and the landing fourteen days later.

NORTH END STORES PLAN TO ORGANIZE

Business Men's Association to Stimulate Greater Interest in Section.

A north end business men's association may soon be organized if prominent merchants on the Square succeed in their present efforts.

In surveying the north end for prospective membership it has been found that there are 63 businesses, large and small in the north end area.

One of the plans already suggested is a series of band concerts, block dances and out door entertainments that would tend to not only keep north end residents in the north end but would also attract people from other sections of the town.

The new road from the south end to Depot Square will be completed soon and that will be an added incentive for local people to visit the north end.

LATEST STOCKS

New York, Sept. 12.—After reaching the highest level of prices on the present move, industrial stocks and specialties were swept down violently in the early afternoon by a flood of profit-taking and speculative selling, which for many of the high-priced favorites wiped out all of the advances made since Monday.

The Oils started the day like a race horse, with Socony in the lead, forging ahead to the year's highest price of 48 1-4.

U. S. Steel started the day more than 2 points higher, at 242 3-4. But the deluge of selling which poured into the market in the third period forced this old bellweather back to 236.

Professionals on both sides of the market made frantic efforts to stir up public interest in the stocks in which special market moves were being made.

Buying for British and American investment trusts was held responsible today for the strength and activity of Columbia Gas & Electric and Consolidated Gas of New York.

Another selling wave in the fourth hour put an end to the rally which was developing about that time.

SENATE PROBE ON SHEARER POSTPONED

Washington, Sept. 12.—Proclaiming a new economic issue between the Republican and Democratic parties, Senator F. M. Simmons, (D) of North Carolina, veteran minority tariff leader, today delivered a "keynote" speech in the Senate explaining Democratic opposition to the new tariff bill.

Simmons charged the Republican party with changing its stand from support of a "protective tariff" to defense of a "prohibitive tariff."

The Democratic party, he added, had progressed from a "tariff for revenue only" policy, to support of a "protective tariff."

The new issue between the two parties, he said, lay between a Democratic "protective" tariff and a Republican embargo against foreign imports.

Lengthy Speech. In a 14,000 word speech, Simmons declared the Democratic party wished to protect all industry alike from cheap and unfair-foreign competition.

He charged the Republican party, however, with advocating a protective tariff in his platform but with seeking to place upon the statute books a prohibitive tariff, calculated to bar from American shores the goods of the world.

The new Republican tariff bill, Simmons asserted, would increase the cost of living, double tariff taxes, protect and destroy America's foreign trade.

Simmons denounced the new agricultural schedule, carrying the highest protective rates ever placed on farm products, as "useless" and "misleading."

He charged the high rates would render no aid to American agriculture but that farmers meanwhile would be heavily taxed by the higher duties on industrial products.

CALLS UP 'CENTRAL', SAYS SHE IS DYING

Mrs. Margaret Griffin Reports Own Gas Poisoning; in Hysterical State.

Mrs. Margaret M. Griffin, 51, of 153 Hilliard street, was taken to Memorial hospital yesterday afternoon in a somewhat hysterical condition after calling up the Manchester telephone exchange and telling the operator that she was "dying from gas." Neighbors found Mrs. Griffin prostrated but after she had been taken to the hospital Dr. D. C. Y. Moore said he could discover no indications of gas poisoning. The neighbors who went to her rescue had found the gas turned on in the kitchen range but the windows were open.

At the hospital today it was said Mrs. Griffin's condition was not serious. She is very active in several fraternal organizations, including the Women of Mooseheart Legion, American Insurance Union, Royal Neighbors and Women's Benefit Association.

NOON STOCKS

New York, Sept. 12.—Industrial stocks rose buoyantly in the early trading today, under the lead of oils, steels and high-priced specialties.

Wall street worked up considerable enthusiasm over the fact that the Bank of England had made no change in the discount rate of 5 1/2 per cent; also that gold had been engaged in London for shipment to New York. The call loan rate was 8 per cent.

Standard of New York replaced New Jersey as the leader of the move in the oils, moving up in heavy trading to the year's highest price above 48. Royal Dutch and Texas Corporation pushed ahead to the year's highest prices, mid-continental, Sinclair and Simms sold fractionally higher.

A shout went up from bulls as Radio Corporation shot upward to 114 3/4, eclipsing its former high price of $114 recorded in the first part of the year. In the meantime this sensation of the 1928 bull market had declined to 76 in a move which cut the ground from under the feet of security values and threatened to engulf the market as a whole in a terrific crash. This reaction occurred in the last part of May, since which time stocks have been steadily rising, Radio having advanced close to 40 points, or more than 50 per cent.

American and Foreign Power, American Waterworks and the "Wonder" stocks of the American Utility group, jumped ahead brilliantly in continuation of their remarkable upward move. American Water Works reported today net earnings of $3.64 a share for the year ended July 31, on which basis the stock is selling at fifty times its annual net earnings.

Pools in City, Simmons and other speculative favorites rushed their stocks to the year's highest prices. United Corporation was well bought about a point higher. Standard brands, Allegheny and other new favorites could make little progress against the flood of profit-taking and speculative selling which poured into the market in the second hour. Rails also sold off in this period.

Money was reported in good supply, with a little prospect of any increase in the call rate. A decrease in brokers' loans was looked for, as the result of last Thursday's drop in prices.

ENRIGHT A CANDIDATE

New York, Sept. 12.—Richard E. Enright, former New York police commissioner, today emerged as the latest candidate for mayor of this city.

He has accepted the nomination at the hands of the Square Deal Party, newest unit on the local political horizon.

In a statement of acceptance, Enright attacked "excessive and inequitable taxation, inadequate and disgraceful passenger transportation, demolition of vehicular and pedestrian conditions, low moral conditions and padded city payrolls."

NOT SATISFIED WITH 355 MILES PER HOUR

Calshot, Eng., Sept. 12.—Squadron Leader A. H. Orlebar, piloting a supermarine, Rolls Royce seaplane hopped off this afternoon in an attempt to lower his own speed record of 355.8 miles an hour. Orlebar made his record Tuesday over Southampton water. Before hopping off this afternoon he said he expected to make six laps over the course.

NEW BLIMP IN AIR

Cleveland, O., Sept. 12.—The ZMC-2, the new navy all-metal dirigible, was believed flying eastward today on the first leg of its 560-mile trip from Detroit to Lakehurst, N. J. It was sighted over Canton, Ohio.

The airship's pilot planned to take over the air mail route from here and follow it to New Jersey, where the craft is to be berthed in the Navy hangar at Lakehurst beside the giant Los Angeles.

POLICE IN SCANDAL

Los Angeles, Sept. 12.—Six Los Angeles police officers were indicted today as the result of a Grand Jury action following sensational charges of Harry McDonald, who admitted he was a former bootlegger. McDonald charged that police extortion left him penniless after doing a $2,000,000 liquor business over a period of five years.

Science moves slowly. Laundries haven't yet devised a way to make a soft collar-saw your neck.

ROCKVILLE MAN, AGE 75, DISAPPEARS FROM HOME

Richard Weber Fails to Return After Going to Store; Dog With Him, But It Comes Back.

A posse of twenty-five men are scouring Rockville and vicinity in search of Richard Weber, age 75, of Hammond street, that city, who left his home accompanied by his dog at 9:30 o'clock yesterday morning bound for the glazier's store on High street and has not been seen or heard from since.

When at 10:30 o'clock, an hour later, the dog returned alone Weber's family notified the police who instituted a hunt for the missing man which as yet has proved unavailing. At noon today the State Police were called and immediately began an investigation. Weber has been in bad health for some length of time.

HEBRON

About forty were present at the Republican caucus held Monday afternoon at the Town Hall, and the following town officers were nominated: Assessor, Robert E. Foote; board of relief, Edmund H. Horton, Mark W. H. Hills; selectmen, Clarkson F. Bailey, first, Winthrop S. Porter, second; town clerk, town treasurer and agent of town deposit fund, Mrs. Merton W. Hills; auditor, Richard Hubbard; tax collector, Edward A. Smith; constables, J. Banks Jones, Carl Links, E. Buell Parter; town school committee, Edward A. Smith, Clifford Perry. The last named was nominated in place of Mrs. Elton W. Buell who declined the nomination. Mrs. Buell has served during the past year as secretary of the town school committee. She will give up this office at the expiration of her term.

The auditors, Frank R. Post and Clarence E. Porter, are at work on the town accounts at the town clerk's office. Mrs. A. L. Stebbins of Colchester is acting as substitute for Miss Tilly Friedrich at the Jaggar school. Miss Friedrich has been obliged to give up her position as teacher on account of ill health. An auction of live stock will take place at the Maurice Keefe farm on Monday, Sept. 16, from 1 p. m. on.

The young pine tree which was set out by the road side at Hebron Center by the state landscape bureau has succumbed to the dry weather. The intention was that it would serve as a community Christmas tree.

Arthur Adams and son of New Haven were visitors here for a short time on Tuesday. Mr. Adams was a former resident of this place. Mrs. T. Martin is having an addition placed at the rear of her house.

Friends here have recently received cards from Dr. and Mrs. C. J. Douglas at Salisbury, England. Dr. and Mrs. Douglas were entertained cordially by the rector and mayor of Dorchester, England, which they visited. Their hosts professed much interest in the proposed Massachusetts tercentenary next year.

The following officers were nominated for town offices at the Democratic caucus held at the town hall Tuesday evening, Sept. 10, Carlton B. Jones, chairman; Assessor, Maurice Keefe; board of relief, Ames W. Sisson; selectmen, Clarkson F. Bailey, first, Claude W. Jones, second; town clerk, town treasurer and agent of the town deposit fund, Mrs. Anne C. Gilbert; auditor, Clarence E. Porter; grand jurors, Alec White, Carlton B. Jones, Ben Jones; tax collector, Edward A. Smith; constables, Carlton A. Jones, Walter Jones, William S. Griffin. It was voted to empower the chairman to appoint a nominee for member of the town school committee. In the above nominations, those of first selectmen and tax collector were endorsements of the Republican nominees.

Miss Eleanor Coates, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Coates, is taking academic work at Atlantic Union College, South Lancaster. Miss Hazel Broome is taking her second year at the college. Miss Estelle Broome has a teaching position at South Lancaster and the party was taken to its destination by Donald Coates, Mrs. Paul Coates and Leroy Beninger.

School in Hopevale opened a week later than usual this fall, as the teacher, Miss Ruth Allen, of Rehoboth, Mass., was unable to open the school sooner. Miss Allen was employed at the school last year.

A picnic party at the home of Mr. Ottosen, Mansfield Center, was attended by several members of the Seventh Day Advent faith in Hopevale. Recent visitors at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ames W. Sisson were Newton B. Smith and Miss Louise Dayton, of New London, also Miss Jessie Weir and Roy Walker of Marlborough.

PAINTERS INJURED

Willimantic, Sept. 12.—Two men were critically injured and a third escaped almost miraculously when a swinging scaffold fell from the third floor of the State Normal dormitory here today. Smile Houle, 36, and Robert Beckwith, 43, were flung 35 feet to the ground. Beckwith landed in a pair of pants. Fred Du Maine, the third man on the scaffold, grasped the supporting ropes and slid safely to the ground after the staging had fallen.

Houle and Beckwith sustained internal injuries. Beckwith appeared to be more seriously hurt than his companion. Houle sustained a broken thigh bone. The men were painters working on the school building for a local contractor.

"BARBER GONE ON VACATION"

I AM GONE IN VACATION I BE BACK SEPTEMBER 21

The above cardboard sign in the door of a Birch street barber shop to announce the reason for the shop being closed temporarily, has been attracting quite a bit of interest because of its unusual wording and odd punctuation.

fore a Federal Grand Jury in New York in connection with the case. It is understood here that the three have agreed to go back with postal inspectors.

Newcastle, Wyo., Sept. 12.—While awaiting the arrival of a Federal warrant for his arrest today, Charles Delos Waggoner, 64, Telluride, Colo., banker, complacently told the details of his amazing $500,000 swindle of six New York banks to save the name of his home town and the life savings of his friends.

"I am glad it's all over because I have become weary of dodging the law," he quietly explained in his cell. "Last night I got my first real sleep in ten days."

Waggoner, in discussing the sensational swindle, took full responsibility for the plot which persuaded six of New York's largest banks to advance him $500,000 on fake telegraphic orders.

Saw Crash Coming. For many years president of one of the strongest small banks in his state, Waggoner found a few months ago that a crash was inevitable in Telluride due to the slump in the mining industry in his community.

"I watched the resources of my institution slump more than half a million dollars. I became frantic and realized that only desperate measures would save the bank's depositors. I sent several telegrams from Denver, getting credit at six banks in New York City for $500,000.

"Then I went personally to New York and presented the drafts which transferred the money from the Chase National bank to the credit of the Bank of Telluride. I had been doing business with these places for years and was well known there."

YOUNG CUDAHY DEAD

Chicago, Sept. 12.—John R. Cudahy, son of the late John Cudahy, millionaire packer, was to be buried here today following his death in Dwight, Ill., at the home of Andrew Mickelson, a barber, where he had been taken last week by two men who remained with him until death. Mickelson's home is known as a boarding house for patients of the Keeley Institute, where patients are cured of habitual intoxication.

Although Cudahy died Monday, his death was not burial certificate. Dr. Lee Kiel, who was summoned shortly before Cudahy became critically ill, said the cause of death was myocarditis. The body was brought to Chicago.

Funeral arrangements were made by E. A. Cudahy, Jr., of Lake Forest. When Cudahy's father died in 1915 his will created a trust fund of $1,500,000 for his son.

KILLED IN FIST FIGHT

New York, Sept. 12.—A fist fight between two 17-year-old boys over the respective merits of their pigeon broods has today resulted in the death of one and arrest of the other.

A homicide charge. The dead boy was Frank Songen, his former pal and friendly breeding rival for two years, is being held, charged with fracturing Leonard's neck.

SMALLPOX IN PANAMA.

Colon, Panama Canal Zone, Sept. 12.—A smallpox epidemic has broken out here. Eighty-three cases of smallpox are being treated today in a hospital at Ancon. Compulsory vaccination has been ordered for all residents of Panama and the Canal Zone.

GRAF ON FLIGHT

Friedrichshafen, Sept. 12.—With her motors badly cooled after her epochal round-the-world flight, the German dirigible Graf Zeppelin was under way again today on a flight over Germany.

The Graf left her hangar at 11:19 p. m. yesterday (8:19 p. m., New York Daylight Saving time). Under the command of Captain Ernst Lehmann, who piloted the Zeppelin on her last trans-Atlantic flight, the huge craft headed for the Rhine.

The flight was to last 18 hours, and take the Graf over the principal industrial cities of Germany. A number of passengers were aboard.

Among the passengers was one American, United States Consul Maynard, of Stuttgart.

The Zeppelin was reported over Dusseldorf at 7 a. m.

JUST RAISING HIS HAND ONCE MADE HIM VOTER

Officials At Poles Had Hard Time Convincing One Local Man He Had to Be Made First.

Officials at the Primaries here Tuesday were given a task which nearly taxed their ability when one man insisted that he had a right to vote, but could neither pronounce nor write his name so that the checkers could understand it. He insisted that he was a citizen and a property owner.

Finally he made it known that he had purchased property through a well-known real estate dealer who happened to be at the polls at the particular moment. The real estate dealer identified the man and told the officials his right name. It was found that the would-be voter, while a citizen, had never been made a voter of the town.

He insisted that he had voted here however and when pressed for an answer replied that he had voted in the Eighth district and had put up his hand when told to.

MORE AUGUST BABIES THIS YEAR THAN IN 1928

Births showed a gain during the month of August, numbering twenty-four as against nineteen for the same month last year, while marriages and deaths for the month fell below par, totalling fourteen and eleven respectively, according to the records filed at the Manchester town clerk's office.

That June is tottering on her throne as the month when fond "I do's" and "Until death do us part's" are oftentimes whispered is shown by the fact that seven marriages were recorded on the first Saturday in September with five or six sanctioned during the week.

The unusual number of September marriages will make up for the August deficit and keep 1929 well in the running for a new record of marriages for the year.

STRIKE STILL ON

New Orleans, La., Sept. 12.—The New Orleans street car strike was still on today, despite an agreement reached in New York between A. B. Paterson, vice-president of the New Orleans Public Service, Inc., and William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor.

Although the Paterson-Green compromise has the approval of W. D. Mahon, president of the International Carmen's Union, all-day balloting resulted in the local trolley workers rejecting it by a vote of 1,009 to 87.

Failure of the agreement to obtain support of the carmen was said to be due to the company's refusal to be specific as to when the strikers would be taken back to work.

The walkout has crippled street car service here since July 2. It led to rioting in the city and disorders such as attacks on non-union operated cars.

FADLOCKS SPEAKEASIES. New York, Sept. 12.—Leaving an air trail behind him, Federal Judge Paul McCormick of Los Angeles, today had padlocked nine more Broadway speakeasies, making a total of 21 since he arrived here to sit as visiting judge.

Conan Doyle—Without a Single Clue!

When fire swept the beautiful country home of Sir Arthur Conan Doyle near Southampton, England, the famed author-spiritualist and member of his family dared the flames to salvage some of their household effects. Sir Arthur is pictured above, after the fire, surveying the few pieces of his valuable furniture which escaped destruction.

ARRANGING FUNERAL OF FAMOUS LAWYER

Zurich, Switzerland, Sept. 12.—Preparations were begun today to ship the body of Louis Marshall, noted New York lawyer and Jewish leader, to the United States for burial. Marshall died following an unsuccessful operation for an abscessed pancreas. Although overcome by grief, Marshall's eldest son, James, was able to make it known to newspaper representatives here that the body of his father would be taken back to the United States for interment. He is being aided in supervising the funeral arrangements by Mrs. Abram Rosenberg, the elder Marshall's sister; Dr. Judah Leon Magnes, chancellor of the Hebrew University in Palestine, and Dr. Hyman G. Eulow, rabbi of Temple Emanuel, New York. All were at the bedside when Marshall died yesterday afternoon. Message of condolence, including scores of cablegrams from the United States, poured in upon Marshall's survivors today. President Hoover was among the first to cable his sorrow at the aged lawyer's death. Telegrams from notable personalities of virtually all European countries flooded in throughout last evening and today. It is not yet known just when Marshall's body will arrive in New York, and little has been made known of the funeral arrangements. Interment will be in New York City following services which may be presided over by Dr. Magnes, Marshall's brother-in-law.

LINDYS IN MAINE

North Haven, Maine, Sept. 12.—Colonel and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh were at the summer home here today of Dwight W. Morrow, Ambassador to Mexico, father of Mrs. Lindbergh, for a short rest. It was their first visit here since last spring shortly before their marriage. The arrival was made here at dusk last night in a red sport Aeromarine-Klemm monoplane, following a hop from Roosevelt Field, N. Y. The landing on the island here was made on the specially constructed landing field adjoining the Morrow home. An auto is a necessity when the neighbors have one.

THIEF GETS 18 YEARS

Boston, Sept. 12.—George L. Brooks of Bradley Beach, N. J., having confessed to a series of thefts in Winchester, Arlington, Medford and Somerville, today began a sentence of from 18 to 30 years at Charlestown state prison, while his sweetheart, Mrs. Blanche A. Cote, of Worcester, began an indefinite term at the Women's Reformatory at Sherborn. Sentences were imposed by Judge Frederick W. Fosdick in Middlesex Superior Criminal Court, Cambridge, late yesterday after Brooks had calmly absolved the woman of all blame in connection with the series of breaks. Both Brooks and Mrs. Cote, who is 35 years of age and the mother of a ten year old boy, pleaded guilty to the various indictments against them. Mrs. Cote was sentenced to an indefinite term on one of the indictments against her while the others were placed on file.

Security Dealers Unusual Opportunity

A MOST unusual opportunity is now open for a responsible organization or high caliber man to secure sales representation of a successful, long established New York financial house, now sponsoring a most attractive investment issue, combining high yield and profit possibilities. If you are the party we are looking for, you can have a sales contract that should yield a splendid income applying local investors with a preferred stock of a company which earned its preferred dividend requirements more than 6 times over for the year of 1928, and gives a yield of 8%. The estimated income for the year 1929 is about 8 times the dividend requirements of the Preferred Stock which in addition to its liberal yield offers profit possibilities through Stock Purchase Warrants attached to stock. The company has no bonds or other funded indebtedness—the Preferred Stock being first obligation. The business is long-established, managed by men of highest standing, endorsed by conservative bankers, capitalists and business leaders—one of the great essential industries with a wonderful future before it, and a record of past performance that has seldom been equaled. The issue is an easily salable, large one, meaning a long time selling arrangement for those who become associated with us now. We give you the fullest cooperation, supply all literature, plenty of publicity ideas, special sales aids, etc. We have, of course, an abundance of references as to ourselves and the very extraordinary issue we are sponsoring. PLAN TEXTILE PROBE

Washington, Sept. 12.—Early action on proposals to investigate conditions in the strike-torn textile districts of North Carolina will be sought in the Senate by Senator La Follette (R) of Wisconsin, it was learned today. Two reports of the resolution of Senator Wheeler (D) of Montana, providing for a Congressional inquiry into labor and working conditions in North Carolina are pending before the Senate. The majority report would turn the inquiry over to the Federal Trade Commission. The minority report, drawn by La Follette and Wheeler after one-week's delay in committee, would send members of Congress out to do the work. La Follette said he would attempt to get action by the Senate after new appeals had come from Car-

WELL, HOW ABOUT IT?

As it appears almost certain that the Philadelphia Athletics and the Chicago Cubs will furnish the amusement in the world series, the master minds of baseball are debating what all those heavy-hitting right-hand batters on the Chicago club will do to those star Philadelphia southpaws, Messrs. Lefty Grove and Rube Walberg. They'll do nothing to them, say the Philadelphia sport writers, and to illustrate the point we'll borrow a few words from Bill Dooly, of the Philadelphia Record. Mr. Dooly is now talking: "The Chicago Cubs' unholy reputation for flattening left-hand pitchers doesn't worry the Athletics. Mose Grove and Rube Walberg are not in danger of having their Steatons knocked off if 'German-town Joe' McCarthy's Bruisers get into the world series. "Your Mackmen give a loud horse laugh when they hear the right-hand hitting eight right-handers of the Southpaws this year, and that it is too bad that two of Connie Mack's best pitchers happen to be of the kind the Cubs love to touch. "Having laughed like a horse, the Mackmen wipe away the tears and ask will somebody name the great southpaws the Cubs have been taking for a ride this year. The catch in that question is that nobody can name a great southpaw in the National League. "Then how in the place-where-the-Charon-flows can anyone predict that Grove and Walberg will be bumped? The Mack's query impatiently. "Are they comparing Rube and Mose with these bums in the National League?" "It appears even so. Experts are like that. They will describe the woe that has befallen such letties as Clarence Mitchell and Eppa Rixey, the two mummals pieces; Percy Jones, Jake May, Jess Petty and others and then in the next breath spring the names of Grove and Walberg. "The only thing those National League southpaws have in common with the two Mack stars is that they throw the horseshield with the same arm. "Aside from that, Rixey, Jones, Petty and the rest of them are as close to being second Lefty Groves as Mr. Mitten is to being a public benefactor—and if that isn't the widest grin in the world I'm crazy. "I even makes Connie Mack grin," Mr. Dooly goes on, "when he hears Grove and Walberg promised with a licking in the world series on the strength of what the Cubs have done to the kind of pitcher that is safe from port-sliding. That shows it must be funny." "I don't believe," Mack says, "that the National League could have had much experience this year against the kind of pitching that Grove and Walberg have been showing. "There is no question that they are the best left-handers in baseball today. Nobody can hold a candle to them. "I'm not saying that they can't be beaten and beaten good, but I'm willing to say that no team

DIRIGIBLE AT NEWPORT

Newport, R. I., Sept. 12.—The United States Navy dirigible, Los Angeles, queen of the country's aircraft, arrived here today from the hangar at Lakewood, N. J., and was safely moored to the naval tender Patoka. The Los Angeles will remain here indefinitely for maneuvers.

Airmail Increase Is 500 Per Cent in Two Years

BY ALLARD SMITH Vice President, The Union Trust Co., Cleveland, O. PROBABLY no American industry is experiencing a more rapid growth than that of aviation. Certainly none has so completely captured popular imagination. Aviation received a profound stimulus late last year when airmail post-ages rates were reduced. This resulted in an enormous expansion in the volume of airmail. During 1927, a total of 1,270,299 pounds of mail was transported by air. This had grown to 4,061,481 pounds in 1928, and the volume this year is running at the annual rate of more than 6,000,000 pounds. The revenues of airmail contractors have had a handsome enhancement. The large gain in airmail has had two important results. First, it has demonstrated that aviation has a definite commercial future. Second, it has greatly increased the demand for planes and the need for pilots. Aircraft factories this year have been in full-gidded operation. The domestic output of planes in 1925 was 789. This had grown to 4346 in 1928, and in 1929 it is estimated that 8000 airplanes will be built. One of the leading problems confronting aviation today is the lack of a sufficient number of experienced pilots. Another is the need for airport terminals designed for the comfort and convenience of passengers.

MUST DRY UP N. J.

Newark, N. J., Sept. 12.—Federal prohibition forces and Drys were cheered, and folks otherwise inclined were indignant today over the declaration here last night by F. Scott McBride, national superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League, in a speech, that if newly appointed Administrator William J. Cahoun doesn't dry up Jersey he won't last long. "Washington means business in Jersey," McBride stated. "There will be a new administrator if the present one doesn't improve conditions. The local police must help. Weakness in dry enforcement is always in the local government."

LIVE COMMITTEE ON ROAD PROJECT

Will Attempt to Improve Highway to Glastonbury; Blish Chairman.

It was learned today that Fred Blish, Sr., has accepted the chairmanship of the committee of three that President William Rubinow of the Merchants Division of the Chamber of Commerce, was authorized to appoint to investigate the possibilities of improving the Glastonbury road entering Manchester at the termination of South Main street.

Senator Robert J. Smith and Selectman Wells A. Strickland make up the other two members of the committee. This lineup certainly assures one of some action if it is possible to get it for all three energy to the men who have the interests of the town at heart. Both Mr. Strickland and Mr. Smith have had considerable experience with such matters and Mr. Strickland is well known and influential in Glastonbury.

The problem which they are going to tackle is that of getting the 5 mile stretch of connecting road between East Glastonbury and South Main street put into such shape that it will be good enough to induce Glastonbury residents to trade in Manchester and not go elsewhere. In addition to that it will be of great value to have this road in fair shape because of its importance as a connecting link between the New London turnpike and traffic from north and east of Manchester.

The present 5 miles of road that needs improvement is a dirt road with a good base. Due to the extremely dry summer all the surface material has been thrown off the road but it is believed that with a good scraping and a coat of good asphalt base road oil it could be put in quite good condition.

The committee from Manchester will endeavor to cooperate with the Glastonbury town officials and get this work done if possible. Of course in view of the fact that this entire stretch of road in question lies in the town of Glastonbury it will be that town that will have to do the actual work.

It has been stated by several business men in Manchester that they would be willing to donate towards a fund to help out on the expense of the work if necessary.

200 OF STATE TO BE ATWATER KENT GUESTS

Representatives of three Manchester business houses, the J. W. Hale Co., Watkins Bros. and Kemp's, Inc., are expected to be among 200 Connecticut dealers who are to leave New Haven at midnight tonight on a special train bound for the recently enlarged factory of the Atwater Kent Manufacturing Company at Philadelphia. The party will breakfast in Philadelphia at a hotel, inspect the new factory during the forenoon, lunch in the city and then proceed to Atlantic City, where there is to be a banquet tomorrow night followed by a special theatrical performance. The special train is due to reach New Haven again at 7 o'clock Saturday morning. The radio distributors will be the guests of the Atwater Kent Company for the entire period.

WAPPING

Miss Sylvia Hayes, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Hayes of Pleasant Valley, was very pleasantly surprised last Saturday evening, when about eighteen of her young friends called on her to help her to celebrate her birthday.

Harry P. Flies, Jr., has been spending a few days with his sister, Mrs. D. W. Donahue of New York.

Mrs. Frank C. Stoddard left last Monday, to spend a week with Mr. and Mrs. Minor Stoddard at their cottage at Clinton Beach.

Mrs. George Rattray of Mineola, Long Island, came last Sunday evening to spend a few days with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. George C. West of Foster street.

Mr. and Mrs. Everett A. Buckland and son Clynton E. Buckland, and daughter, Miss Irene Buckland, motored to New Hampshire last Sunday and spent the day.

Mrs. Ann Wheeler of South Windsor, is spending a week in Bloomfield, N. J., with her son, J. K. Wheeler and family.

Mrs. George O. Case has returned to her home after caring for Mrs. Skinner at East Windsor Hill for a while.

Rev. William English, supplied the pulpit of the First Congregational church at South Windsor last Sunday morning. The Sunday School presented Mrs. William Malcolm a purse of thirty-five dollars in gold in recognition of her valuable services in the Sunday school just before she left for Winchester, Mass.

George C. West is not improving as fast as his many friends hoped for. He is still under the doctor's care.

Mr. and Mrs. Ivan West and son Richard, and Ralph Pulford, spent the day last Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Sweeney of Hartford.

STRIKERS FIGHT.

New York, Sept. 12.—Nine men were arrested today following a battle between members of the Right and Left wings of the Needle Workers Union who got together in front of 235 West 26th street. Knives, sawed-off billiard cues and other improvised weapons were used in the battle.

When sugar was first introduced into Europe its only purpose was to make the taste of medicine more pleasant.

JOHN AND FLORENCE WILL TRY "COOLIDGE ECONOMY"

They'll go to housekeeping just like anybody else, will Mr. and Mrs. John Coolidge, after their marriage September 23. Here you see the latest posed photo of the engaged couple, taken at the Plainville, Conn., home of Florence's father, Governor John H. Trumbull. They have decided not to have any servants in their Westville Apartment, in the building pictured below, and the bride herself will do all the dusting and cooking in their $78-a-month "four and a half" rooms. The arrow indicates the entrance to their apartment, which is on the first floor overlooking the court.

PROHIBITION PARTY.

On Sept. 12, 1889, the National Prohibition party was organized at a convention in Chicago.

The new party was the result of the failure of advocates of temperance to force a prohibition plank upon either of the great national parties.

In the state elections of the next three years candidates were nominated by the party, but received relatively few votes.

The national convention met in Columbus, O., Feb. 22, 1872, and nominated James Black of Pennsylvania and John Russell of Michigan as the prohibition candidates for president and vice president, respectively.

The convention adopted a platform which, besides advocating prohibition, declared for woman suffrage, a direct popular vote for president and vice president, a sound currency, the encouragement of immigration and a reduction of transportation rates.

In the ensuing election, the party's candidates received only 5,067 votes.

The organ of the Prohibition party, the Voice, was established Sept. 25, 1884, and published in Chicago.

SAILOR IS LIBERATED

San Lucar de Barrameda, Spain, Sept. 12.—Francesco Franceschi, Porto Rican, who crossed the Atlantic from New York in a small yacht, and was arrested here in connection with the death of his "crew," Angel Carbo or Calvo, a sailor, may be liberated soon, it was learned this afternoon.

According to reports the official inquiry is expected to sustain Franceschi's contention that he killed the sailor in self-defense.

Dr. Roberto Lopez, of New York, arrived upon the yacht, having stowed himself away before it left New York. Franceschi did not know Lopez was on board until the yacht was at sea.

The police accused Franceschi of shooting the sailor and throwing his body in the sea.

TO TRY PUGLIS

Los Angeles, Sept. 12.—Mickey Walker, middleweight champion, will be tried here on October 7 on a charge of possessing liquor.

After a series of escapades, Walker found his name on the police blotter Monday and was fined $20 for drunkenness. He pleaded not guilty to the charge of possessing liquor and asked for a jury trial.

Hyde Park Corner is London's busiest spot. Something like 65,000 vehicles pass it in the twelve working hours of every day.

PREMIER'S OPINION

London, Sept. 12.—Prime Minister J. Ramsey MacDonald is confident that success will eventually cap the efforts of Great Britain and the United States to reach an agreement on disarmament.

Addressing a Labor Party meeting at Durham, the premier declared that the volume of world public opinion supporting the principal Anglo-American negotiations was "so strong" that he did not believe the negotiations could possibly fail.

NAVY PROPAGANDA

In the light of the Shearer revelations and of President Hoover's slashing surprise offensive against secret interference with the nation's disarmament efforts, the big navy newspapers are having a rather hard time of it. They are honestly shocked to discover that employees of shipbuilding profiteers have been belying the disarmament conferences and they can find no fault with the President's grim determination to dig out the whole truth concerning big navy propaganda. And yet they have so vigorously boosted for the same things that Mr. Shearer has been boosting for—at a price—that it is difficult to damn Shearer and the bribing profiteers and at the same time save their own faces.

The New York Herald Tribune, which has been a conspicuous shout for a big navy, in this extremely resorts to the rather tawdry trick of demanding equal condemnation for what it calls the "no-navy" propagandists.

The Herald Tribune of course knows perfectly well that, in any such sense as that applying to Shearer and his operations, there is no such thing as no-navy propaganda. Direct statement of candid opinion is not propaganda in any offensive meaning of the term. It is a very different thing from advocating a measure or a policy for secret reasons having nothing to do with the apparent purposes of the advocacy.

If there were opponents of a huge navy whose opposition was based on a secret desire to cripple this nation so that some other nation might destroy it, or if there were those who sought to have the navy's ships scrapped so that they or their masters might make fortunes out of the junk, then there would be something comparable in their actions and those of Shearer and this kind. There is, of course, no such element in the situation.

As a matter of fact those newspapers which have been swallowing the bogus big-navy arguments of the profiteers and their Shearer and their literary admirals, and have lent their columns gratis to the sly, underhand game of disarmament sabotage, have been terribly let in. They might as well admit it as to attempt to befuddle their readers by talking about a "no-navy" propaganda which has no existence.

WHAT AILS THE COPS?

Police Chief August Vollmer of Berkeley, Cal., a recognized authority on police affairs even though not a big-town cop, is commissioned, as we understand it, to make a report to Mr. Hoover's Crimes commission on the subject, What's the matter with American police forces?

We don't pose as an authority on police matters at all, but we can tell Chief Vollmer or anybody else one thing that is the matter with police forces, right off the bat. By far too many policemen have been taken from the business of preventing crime and catching criminals and put to the business of directing traffic. Not too many for the good of traffic control, of course, but for the good of general law enforcement.

There are plenty of American cities that have increased their police department personnel faster than their populations have grown and which yet have fewer policemen doing real police duty than they had twenty years ago, in proportion to the population. Another thing that is the matter with the police forces is that police on foot are expected to cope with criminals who live, move and have their being in automobiles. Every prook has a car. Only a few cops have either automobiles or motorcycles. Another thing that is the matter with police forces is that their members in a great many cases are kept busy spotting and raiding little jakey-shop speakases, while the stickup men and the loft burglars see a cop so infrequently that they almost forget what a police uniform looks like.

There are a lot of other things in this connection that Chief Vollmer knows a whole lot more about than we do. But these three things everybody knows, and nobody does anything about them.

STALKING WOODCHUCKS

The woodchuck has come in for a lot of publicity lately, since it was discovered that former President Calvin Coolidge is given to the pursuit of that kind of game, and since defenders of the chuck have arisen who assert that he isn't as destructive as he might be and is entitled to his span of life like any other wild creature. Editors who were brought up in the country are reminding on the delights of woodchuck hunting in boyhood days. One of these is the editor of the Thornia Sentinel, who recalls the thrill of "creeping up to windward" in the hopes of getting within effective range, etc.

Our own experience with woodchucks is extremely limited. We can't even remember the rest of the verse which starts:

How much wood could a woodchuck chuck
If a woodchuck could chuck wood?

But we do know that if we were out with a gun, all ribbed up to separate a woodchuck from his breath, we wouldn't try to get within gunshot by creeping up to windward. Possibly the woodchuck may be a complete inversion of the traits of other animals, wild and tame, but if he is and can smell you or hear you less well when you are up-wind from him than when you are down to leeward, then we never heard of that amazing peculiarity.

We know only one other thing about woodchucks—which is that the only time we ever seriously tried to raise green corn a woodchuck ate ten times as much of it as we did, even if he is a cute and harmless little fatty.

PLAIN FOLKS' SIDE

While some newspapers of less authoritativeness have been sneering at the voters of Maine for "ignominiously" handicapping the development of their own state by refusing to sanction the exportation of power, it is somewhat satisfactory to sympathizers with the Maine anti to note that even the New York Times, always friendly to large business and always bitter against demagoguery, congratulating the Pine Tree State on the wisdom of its decision.

This is the most striking from the fact that in Maine the very class of which the Times is the outstanding organ in this country—the banking, large industrial, leisured and professional elements—was almost unanimously favorable to what the farmers called the insullization of the state, and substantially all the opposition to the proposal came from the very plain people of the state.

When we find the Times on the side of the latter kind of folks and in opposition to almost the entire "business" group, it is pretty convincing that the plain folks were everlastingly and obviously in the right.

REAL CIRCUSING

Mr. Ringling is now the greatest circus man in the world, owner of the five biggest shows in America. But to the greyhead who remembers the sawdust glories of the eighties and early nineties he will never be anything but a piker till he puts into the ring one real bareback rider.

A sad and sorry sight are the tinnerous souls who stand momentarily with bent knees on a great truck horse with a back like a hippo, in this inglorious day. Gone are the Madame Dockerills, the Meers Sisters, the Fishes, and the Duttons, who could ride—and we don't mean a little. But it ought to be within the capability of a Ringling to resurrect the art of barebacking as it thrilled the soul and delighted the eye of the circus-goer of forty years ago. Until that is done the vastly combining John may kid the youngsters into thinking of him as a circus king, but to the old-timers he will be a not-mus-nit.

OUT OF ITS FIELD

So many religious organizations in this country have done damage to their spiritual influence in recent years, by permitting themselves to become involved in political controversies that it would seem somewhat regrettable that the Connecticut Christian Endeavor Union has elected to sling itself into the discussion over the possible appointment of Hugh M. Alcorn to be Assistant Attorney-General of the United States.

Mr. Hoover does not need to be told that Mr. Alcorn is an exceptionally suitable man for the appointment. He does not need to be instructed by any group which, with all due respect to its excellent intentions, probably doesn't know a quarter as much about Mr. Alcorn as the President does.

We feel at liberty to question the judgment of the Christian Endeavor Union in this matter because we are just as enthusiastic about Mr. Alcorn as that body or any of its members. And because it has been our observation that when religious bodies begin to engage in political activities they sooner or later pay the high price of internal dissension and loss of sight of their original objectives.

IN NEW YORK

New York, Sept. 12—He had occupied palatial cabins aboard the Atlantic liners of yesterday. He had sat around the game tables with princes and pikers. He had been the swiftest of the oldtime international card sharps.

Yet, when it came time for Frankie Dwyer to die, his bed was a very ordinary one, such as may be found in any of the lower priced Broadway belt rooming houses and hotels. With all his high stakes, Frankie's end was the end of most men who trifle with Chance.

Time had long since marked his cards for him. After fifty, a man's fingers and eyes lose their cunning. Frankie, toward the last, had to leave the seas. His eyes were beginning to fool him and his hands were not so nimble. The "other fellow" was beginning to get a break once in a while. And that's no game for a sure-thing transatlantic gambler.

Of course, the day of Frankie's lik passed some years ago. Time was when Frankie and many another like him was watched in every European capital. And the police of Manhattan clapped eyes on him whenever a liner dropped anchor in New York harbor. If and when word came of some particularly lucrative swindle, the coppers would nose around to find out what this sleek and stocky little fellow had been up to. They nabbed him many a time, but they never convicted him. Frankie was pretty slick—or his reputation was worse than his deeds.

Still, with all his experience in men and manners, Frankie died a lonely man. When they checked up at his hotel they found that only rarely did he have a visitor. The man who had debonairly and with rare social manipulation wheedled scores of "suckers" around the card tables of the luxurious liners, in his declining years wandered like a feeble wraith about a hotel lobby through which drifted, day in and day out, the constant stream of Manhattan's transients.

In Frankie's prime, the sea-going confidence man was one of the most colorful figures in that particular strata of neither world that lived by its wits. A few spectacular figures, like Frankie, became known in every foreign capital and their appearance upon a ship was a signal for precaution. They belonged to the semi-fictional clan which E. Phillips Oppenheim made so popular.

As for Frankie himself—he was of the stoutish, ingratiating, half-fellow type who could mingle with the distinguished and undistinguished aboard the liners. He could talk about a little game with a dexterity and skill which would have made him invaluable in any legitimate occupation.

But when it was all over—when time began to stack the deck, he was alone, as so many have been.

Age has found most of the

Daily WASHINGTON LETTER

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the first of three articles by Rodney Dutcher, Washington correspondent for The Herald and NEA Service, discussing prohibition and the propaganda for and against it.

By RODNEY DUTCHER

Washington, Sept. 12—The effectiveness and extent of organized dry propaganda or education in schools, colleges, newspapers and churches, and as used in last year's presidential campaign, is outlined in the recently published Anti-Saloon League Year Book for 1929. Whether you call it propaganda or education, here is one of the main explanations of dry superiority. Lately the wets have been trying, through careful research and dignified factual citations, to offset some of it. But it is doubtful whether they can ever find such large and ready-made markets for their propaganda as the dries have in the churches and the schools.

Last year the Anti-Saloon League publishing house printed 5,991,650 pamphlets and leaflets, 3,730,087 copies of the American Issue—the pledged dry publication—536,355 copies of other prohibition periodicals, 1,540,885 letterheads and envelopes, 44,250 books and 1,615,998 charts, posters, window cards and miscellaneous items.

It Was a Big Year
The Year Book figures show that all this was the equivalent of 206,392,000 book pages. Of course, it was a campaign year and the Democratic Party was officially the "candidate of the liquor interests." So the printers were extraordinarily busy.

But the League was only one of the propaganda founts. The W. C. T. U. sent out 50,000,000 pages from national headquarters, in addition to 50,000 song books, 750,000 bloters, 23,000 playlets, 32,000 leaflets, 395,000 pamphlets, 250,000 books, 250,000 medals, contest readers. The National Women's Democratic Law Enforcement League issued more than 100,000 copies of an anti-Smith periodical during the campaign. The Methodist Board of Temperance, Prohibition and Public Morals flooded the country with millions of leaflets giving "the truth about the liquor traffic and its candidate."

The League also issued seven million copies of Presbyterian periodical literature in 1928 and through various other religious publications. In ten months, the League reports, it issued 136 press statements and a "very conservative estimate shows that at least 14,638,000,000

"rocket" manipulators of Manhattan "lone wolves" at the end. Their world has been a world of which they played themselves against the crowd. They won, but they lost. And they say of Frankie that he died with little money in his pockets because he gave so lavishly to all and sundry. It's a peculiar and sentimental twist about such fellows—charity and fellows down on their luck generally find them tremendously liberal.

METAL WORKERS STRIKE

Carteret, N. J., Sept. 12—Demands for payment of overtime and holiday work were made at a mass meeting of the 2,000 striking metal employees of the United States Metal Refining Company here today. The meeting, which was secret, was for the purpose of announcing to the strikers that any outsiders who promised to end the strike or who in any other way took a part in it, would be excluded. Two provocateurs were forced to leave by the strikers.

finches of newspaper space—much of it on the front page—was obtained by these statements. Ammunition for prohibition workers was sent out in vast quantities and the research department of the World League Against Alcoholism has catalogued more than 10,000 publications on alcohol and alcoholism, prepared "an enormous number" of statistical tables and has obtained contracts for more than 1200 showings of its own motion picture based on Professor Irving Fisher's book, "Prohibition at Its Worst." There are several prohibition moves available.

The scope of the League's propaganda work as described in this short space. Great wads of information are on tap for anyone interested in prohibition who applies. Thousands of "temperance" meetings are held, and no one contemplating one need lack for suggested programs, canned speeches and speakers.

Speakers and workers of the Intercollegiate Prohibition Association visited 412 universities and colleges last year for discussion programs, forums and conferences. Addresses were given in 165 college chapels and 378 regular class sessions and case workers made, it is estimated, personal contacts with some 110,000 students.

"Considerable attention has been given," says the Year Book, "in the effort to get the situation properly laid before the publishers of text-books for the public schools, so that proper material for adequate and scientifically accurate treatment of the problem of alcoholism shall be included in the new text-books which are being issued."

Special monthly lessons are published to aid school teachers in giving instruction as to the nature and varied literature is prepared for school use.

Held 25,000 Mass Meetings
The W. C. T. U., which reports 25,000 mass meetings and 99,000 health lectures during 1928, furnished 8,000,000 pages of literature for pupils and teachers and reports school Temperance Day programs and essay and poster contests in which 335,000 young people participated.

League superintendents in 43 states report that they are aided by a scientific temperance instruction law for public schools, only one of which need any improvement. The states without any are Arizona, Delaware, Nevada, New Mexico and Wyoming. Thirteen states provide for an annual school "Temperance Day" Florida, Georgia, Kentucky, Maine, Missouri, Nevada, North Carolina, North Dakota, Ohio, Pennsylvania, South Dakota, Tennessee and Washington.

Health and Diet Advice

By DR. FRANK MCCOY

PUS AND PYORRHEA.

It has been estimated that one with a bad case of pyorrhea may lose as much as a gallon of blood per year by leaking out from the gums, and as much as three and a half quarts of pus may be produced during the same time. As this disease progresses, the periodontal membrane which supports the teeth, a tent steadied by its ropes, wastes away, and allows the tooth to tip from its proper position. The bony processes of the jaw surrounding the teeth may also waste away until practically no support is left for the tooth, and it will wobble with a slight pressure. This disease by causing the gums to recede has a tendency to make the teeth appear very long.

The first stage of pyorrhea is an inflammation of the gums usually caused by a tartar accumulation at the base of the teeth. In the second stage the bony processes begin to disintegrate and the blood does not circulate properly to the tooth because of congestion. Pus pockets also form. As the disease becomes more progressed, the pus pockets grow larger, and the bony processes wear down so that the entire jaw may become almost a continued pus pocket. This produces a severe poisoning of the body, accompanied by a tired, sleepy feeling and a predisposition to rheumatism and heart trouble.

Even dentists are somewhat divided as to the real causes of pyorrhea, but it is generally admitted that at least two conditions must be present. First, a local irritation of the gums, and, secondly, a general weakening of the body's resistance, or acidosis.

A cure depends upon scaling the teeth to remove the tartar; filling crevices in the teeth; correcting the occlusion so that the teeth come together properly; using a diet which requires much chewing; and in the correction of the general diet so that the acidosis is overcome. It is also helpful to use pressure of the gums between the thumb and fingers, working the gums downward toward the teeth. Rough toothbrushes should be avoided and soft ones substituted where there is a tendency to pyorrhea, and the teeth should be kept thoroughly clean by brushing after each meal and frequently rinsing the mouth.

It has been found that the local ultra-violet ray applied to the gums is beneficial and may actually cause the bony processes to re-form to some extent, even after they have been destroyed by pyorrhea. These rays produce a greater activity in the tissues of the gums and cause a deposit of calcium phosphate.

A good agent to use on the toothbrush is a mixture of salt and lemon juice. This has a tendency to cut away mucous deposits and has a hardening effect on the gums.

You must depend upon your dentist for the local treatments, however, and be sure to avoid the bad mixtures of food which lead to acidosis.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

(Checking Perspiration.)
Question: J. M. writes: Kindly advise me if there is any harm in using non-perspirants for checking perspiration under the arms.

Answer:—Your system is bound to be harmed by anything which will check elimination of poisons from the body. Stopping the elimination through the pores will hurt you in much the same way as if the flow of urine were partially stopped or in the same way as if you did something to make your bowels more sluggish. It is all right for you to use some deodorant or just plain talcum powder which will keep the sweat from soiling your clothing.

FLANE MADE LANDING ON TOP OF BIG TREE. Massapequa, N. Y., Sept. 12.—A crew of the Long Island Lighting Co., with blocks, pulleys and other apparatus, gathered in the front yard of the home of Mrs. Mary Johnson today prepared to raise an airplane from the branches of a 75-foot oak tree.

Pilot Warren Engel made a perfect landing in the topmost branches yesterday but Mrs. Johnson refused to permit the tree to be cut down to remove the plane.

U. S. SENATE TO PROBE NEW MEXICO'S TRAGEDY. Albuquerque, N. M., Sept. 12.—Possibility of a Senate committee inquiry into the crash of the airliner "City of San Francisco" became assured today following the declaration of United States Senator G. Bratton of New Mexico that he would introduce a resolution for the investigation.

Announcement of his intention was made yesterday following a eulogy at the funeral of A. B. McCaffey, one of the eight victims of the mountain side catastrophe. The public, according to Bratton, is entitled to know by an official inquiry the full reason of why the disaster occurred.

"I feel it to be my responsibility to move to get a Senate committee inquiry into this disaster," the Senator said. "It occurred in my state. In Albuquerque it came into closer contact with the tragedy than any other Senator."

"While the search for the missing ship was on, business was almost completely suspended in this city. Our people were almost frantic from the strain. One of my close personal friends was one of the eight victims. My state is deeply interested in the continued progress of aviation."

"The purpose of the investigation, according to the Senator, will not be solely to determine whether mistakes have been made or the existence of culpability on the part of anyone, but rather to determine what were the contributing causes and how similar disasters in the future may be avoided."

The schools are getting back into full swing again. Now the young people will have to begin worrying all over again over how much they can't wear.

Theaters

AT THE STATE. "Dark Streets." Rudy Valle.

Another new First National Vitaphone talking picture is scheduled for presentation at the State theater tomorrow and Saturday. It is "Dark Streets," the gripping and thrilling drama of the underworld of a big city, featuring Jack Mulhall and Lila Lee.

This thrilling picture has a most unusual highlight in that has never before been seen in talking pictures. It presents Mulhall, the favorite of millions of movie fans, in a dual role—first as the notorious gangster and then as the brave police officer of New York's finest.

"Dark Streets" features many tense moments of dramatic dialogue sequences. Without doubt, the vehicle is one of the most entertaining of its type yet offered in this vicinity.

Others in the cast besides Mulhall and Lila Lee are Aggie Herring, Pat Harmon, Maurice Calvert and E. H. Calvert. Frank Lloyd directed.

Appearing on the same program for tomorrow is Rudy Valle, the popular Broadway jazz maestro, and his Connecticut Yankees orchestra in a Vitaphone vaudeville presentation.

The current chapter of "The Diamond Master" and the latest issue of State News Events will also be shown.

Beginning Sunday the State will present Alice White in "Broadway Babies."

AT THE STATE. "Pleasure Crazy." "Revenge."

Tonight marks the final opportunity of Manchester theater-goers to see the mammoth double feature program now showing at the State theater. This highly entertaining and unusual bill has met with the fond approval of hundreds of fans who witnessed the premier at the State last evening.

The features are the Fox Movietone all-talking picture, "Pleasure Crazy," co-starring Marguerite Churchill and Kenneth MacKenzie, and Dolores Del Rio in "Revenge."

Shorter subjects will be shown on the same bill.

SERVICE for the MOTORIST

LOTS OF CUSTOMERS.

More than 94,767 service stations and repair shops in the United States served 258 motor vehicles each during 1928, according to the American Automobile Association.

FOUR STILL CHEAPEST.

While it costs about six cents to operate a light four-cylinder automobile for each mile, six-cylinder vehicles require about nine and one-half cents, according to the Automobile Club of Southern California.

DENMARK'S FIRST.

In proportion to its population, Denmark is the greatest user of automobiles among continental European countries, is the statement of Anders Larsen, U. S. Department of Commerce.

FATALITY FIGURES.

Chicago, for the first seven months of 1929, showed a decrease in motor fatalities over the same period of 1928. The total in 1929 was 345, as against 423 for 1928. New York's fatalities during the period increased from 589 in 1928 to 698 in 1929.

Mr. Ford continues to expand his plants in Europe, but probably in the expectation that those countries over there will go dry some day.

LEAD GAS INCREASES.

The consumption of ethyl gasoline in 1929 is expected to show an increase of about 100 per cent over 1928. Production this year will reach about 1,145,000,000 gallons.

LIKE U. S. CARS.

Two-thirds of the total of 17,311 passenger automobiles in Ceylon on January 1 of this year were American built, according to the U. S. Department of Commerce.

BIG RADIO PROGRAM.

The Netherlands government is planning a huge road building program which will cost, when completed, in excess of $120,600,000. The program will embrace reconstruction, new roads and bridges.

LARGE SELECTION.

There are now 232 approved airplane types from which to choose private or commercial craft in the United States. These planes have passed rigid tests of the U. S. Department of Commerce.

NEW INSURANCE RATES TO BE ANNOUNCED SOON

Boston, Sept. 12.—Announcement of Governor Frank G. Allen that he would confer with Insurance Commissioner Merton L. Brown, regarding the latest developments in reference to compulsory automobile insurance, brought forth numerous predictions today from State House observers that the new insurance rates for 1930 would not be announced Saturday, the date set by law.

The chief executive stated that "he knew nothing regarding the case" but that he warned the commissioner to relate what had developed within the past ten days. Injection of Gov. Allen into the insurance controversy, followed closely on the action of the commissioner in issuing summaries for more than 100 persons to testify under oath regarding details of alleged fraudulent settlement of automobile accident claims.

Both the conference with the governor and the public hearing of those summoned gets under way at the State House today.

How She Filters

By ISRAEL KLEIN.
 Science Editor, NEA Service.
 Dirt is one of the greatest enemies of motoring. It must be kept from the car if the engine, chassis and other important parts are to be in good condition.
 Appearance of the body is secondary to the proper maintenance of those parts which dirt can attack and injure. Now is the time to avoid it.
 To help keep dirt from the motor we have oil filters, fuel filters and air cleaners. But these parts too become clogged with the dirt they pick up and they need cleaning at least once a year, or once every 10,000 miles.
 One company that manufactures fuel and oil filters took the dirt out of some used filters and discovered that these parts collected more than a pound of thick dust from the liquids that went through them. If this material isn't cleaned out the filters they become clogged and useless. And were it not for the filters, dirt would get into the bearings and other important moving parts of the motor.

Dirt, where the filters have no effect, settles also in the vacuum tank and in the main gas tank. These should be drained occasionally until the gasoline comes out clean. It's not a good idea to let the fuel feed line and check the whole supply system.
 Even with these tanks drained, the fuel feed line should be blown out. Particles of grease might stick to the sides and, after collecting one on another, cause the whole line to be clogged.
 The carburetor, too, should be drained clean the same way and the needle and valve washed out with kerosene.

Dirt and rust are the great destroyers in the cooling system, especially in summer. These will not only clog the radiator, but will eat through and cause leaks. It is therefore essential that the cooling system be flushed about once a month.
 The process of cleaning the cooling system consists of draining the radiator of the old water, flushing it thoroughly with clean water while the motor is running slowly, and then filling the system with fresh water in which has been diluted two table-spoons full of baking soda or sal soda. The car should then be run for an hour or so, while the baking soda does its work of loosening up the rust in the system.
 The soda solution should then be drained and the system again flushed thoroughly. Not a particle of soda should be left in the system, or it will eat through the metal and cause leaks, just as the rust would. After thorough flushing, fresh water can be put into the system and the car is ready for another month.

The oil and grease that has accumulated under the engine and other parts under the hood should be cleaned off with kerosene, if only for the sake of appearance. But grease left on an engine will heat up under the high temperature of the motor and will send a distressing odor back into the car.
 Oil falling also on the fan belt or the fan pulleys will cause the belt to slip, with the result that cooling efficiency will be greatly reduced.

Substitutes Pull in Front for Push from Rear

This shows the whole "works" of the Cord front drive power plant. It is a single unit from motor to differential.

This phantom view of the new Cord front drive automobile shows the straight classic frame, unit power plant and leveled seating position.

NEW FRONT DRIVE AUTO NOW READY

Cord, Manufactured by Auburn, Has Its Entire Power Unit Ahead.

By ISRAEL KLEIN
 Science Editor, NEA Service

Auburn, Ind., Sept. 12.—In the early days of the industry, automobiles were built with the drive applied to the front wheels. But the great difficulty of steering such a vehicle under the conditions then existing forced manufacturers to resort to rear wheel propulsion.

Now, however, with the steering difficulty overcome and many other troubles cleared up, the front drive motor car is coming back.
 The first of these to be ready for popular sale is the Cord, which is being introduced by the Auburn Automobile Company of this city. It is named after E. L. Cord, president of Auburn, is made in four models and is to sell for around $3,200.

Introduction of the front drive car does not mean that the car of today is to become extinct. In fact, Harry Miller, famous front drive racing car designer, had been experimenting with it, improving on the design from year to year. The Cord front drive is the combined product of Miller, C. W. Van Ranst, another front drive expert, and the Auburn engineers.

We have just completed inspection of this car and a test drive over wet streets, gravel roads and deep rutted detours and I am satisfied that, if there were any serious disadvantages to this type of automobile, they have been overcome. This is what three of us did with it:
 We took turns on wet gravel roads and close to the edge at 70 miles an hour, without skidding over or losing control of the machine.
 We drove across a banked railroad track at 40 miles an hour, came down on the other side with only one easy bump and leveled out much faster than any rear-drive car could.
 We locked the rear wheels going at 60 miles an hour on wet asphalt and came to a stop without skidding out of our track.
 We drove into a car track—and right out again without the least extra effort.
 We drove with the left side on wet grass and the right on gravel road, then speeded up the engine to make the left wheels spin without traction, and we moved straight forward as the driver steered. The uneven traction had no effect on the direction of motion.
 We took sharp curves at faster speed than we would dare with rear-drive cars, without kicking the rear over or losing control of the steering.
 We turned completely around in a 40-foot circle and that with a car of 137 1/2 inch wheelbase.
 We bumped over deep ruts at

View of the Cord front drive sport sedan, showing the V-type radiator, sweeping fenders, differential in front and in front of that the axle. A set of bumpers goes ahead of this.

fast speeds while the front driving wheels continued to pull us along at a steady pace without difficulty.
Pull Supercedes Push
 And all the time we had quite a comfortable journey. The reason being that the car has more sprung weight than the rear-drive models and is built lower to give it greater roadability.

The secret of the front drive automobile lies in the pull as against the push of the rear-drive car. Cord engineers say this affords easier traction, easier steering, reduced thrust on front wheel bearings, reduced skidding, reduced pitching, less strains on body and springs. Also since the power is always applied in the direction the wheels are going, there is increased efficiency and ease of operation.

Front drive necessitates turning the engine around so that the flywheel is toward the front, and hitching on in order clutch, transmission and differential in one complete power unit. From the differential come the two propeller shafts, one to each wheel, independent of the axle which, in the case of the Cord, is a sturdy tubular member joining the steering knuckles and crossing in front of the differential housing as an added protection against possible damage to the driving mechanism.
 Despite all the "works" in front, there is only 40 pounds difference in weight between front and rear, due to the heavy frame and body.
 As a result of putting the entire driving mechanism in front, the frame in back can be strengthened out and the body lowered considerably, thus providing much greater comfort and roadability, according to the engineers. The Cord frame, besides, has been strengthened with sturdy X-cross members in order to eliminate side-sway which was found to exist in early experimental models.

One of the greatest advantages which engineers pointed to on front-drive cars was the difficulty of steering the front wheels and yet keeping them rotating at uniform speed. This has been overcome in the Cord, by a sturdy double universal joint at each wheel which not only permits the wheels to be steered at a 42 degree angle, greater than those on most rear-drive cars, but also assures constant driving speed while turning.

Since the transmission is toward the front, the gear shift lever extends through the dash and over the engine. It is easily manipulated by a turn and a thrust through neutral, much like the old Dodge system.
 Another peculiarity is the placing of the battery in front and above the motor in order to afford greater accessibility to it. Heat, Cord engineers say, will not affect it, nor will the solution boil out any faster than it would in the heat of summer with the battery under the floorboard.

Special Powerful Engine
 The motor of a front drive car may be any stock engine, although the Cord motor is a specially designed Lycoming straight-eight of 125 horsepower. One of its features is manifold heat control from the dash, which adds materially in starting in cold weather, and another is its dual carburetion and dual manifold.

Brakes are four-wheel internal expanding hydraulic, with 60 per cent of braking in front and the rest in back. The front brakes are applied directly to the differential, rather than the wheels, so that they become part of the sprung weight and thus add to the driving ease.
 Double quarter-elliptic springs in front, with the springs ends set in rubber blocks and long semi-elliptic springs in back hold up more sprung weight in this than in rear-drive cars. The long wheelbase is necessitated by the added length to the front given by the transmission and differential, but this is offset by the greater steering angle and resultant low turning radius.

Only 61 inches high to its peak, it has 38 inches head room, while its length permits of a wider body for comfort. Starting with the V-shaped radiator in front, the body shapes back gracefully to a completely finished job in the rear. Besides its beauty of design, it includes every possible feature that the modern good car has for comfort and safety.

Innocent Cheat

By Ruth Dewey Groves.
AUTHOR OF "RICH GIRL-POOR GIRL," ETC

THIS HAS HAPPENED

HELEN PAGE feels unhappy when the girls at the boarding school tease her about giving up dancing and parties and being Miss Simplicity just to please her handsome guardian, LEONARD BRENT, with whom they accuse her of being in love. Her roommate calls her a fool after they see him at the Ritz one day with another woman.

Realizing her school-girl infatuation for him, Brent exacts her promise to do anything he asks her to, and says he will tell her about her parentage after she graduates.

One day Brent spies a gold locket on a beggar who has fallen in an alley. He bends over to take the locket and hears mumbled words which cause him to try to save the old man. But he dies before Brent can verify any dates or facts except that his name is CHARLES OWENS NELLIN; that his wife is dead and that he has hidden a daughter from her wealthy grandfather, CYRIL K. CUNNINGHAM, of Yonkers.

Posing as a newspaper man searching for story material, Brent learns much about the history and habits of the eccentric old miser, and tells him that the daughter had eloped with Nellin and the father had disinherited her. He had heard that the mother was dead but did not know where the child Evangeline was.

"Happy?" he asked softly.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER VIII

Brent regarded the lodging house proprietor with avid interest.

"No?" he said, in response to the man's statement that Nellin or Owens, as he knew him, would not again frequent his sleeping place. "Has anything strange happened?"

"Oh, not so very. The old fellow's better off. You'll find him down at the morgue."

Brent was not prepared for this and plainly showed his surprise in his expression, but he thought before speaking of the man's level, almost a cold when he said: "Well, no doubt he was not the man I'm looking for and, after all, it's not of any great importance. Just an old fellow I'm interested in. Sorry to have troubled you. No trouble at all," the other assured him.

"So" Brent reflected on his way back to his hotel. "Nellin was using his middle name. Owens. Lucky break for me!"

He did not feel that it was necessary to go to the morgue and have a look at Owens' body but on second thought he decided it was better to do so rather than leave the matter a store untended.

And when he had viewed the body and allowed all doubt that Owens was indeed Charles Nellin he felt in his mind, felt that his plans were strengthened by the permanent removal of Nellin. There was scarcely a chance now that Cunningham would learn of Nellin's death.

There had been a few things more that he wanted to know about the Cunningham heiress and the musician. But he satisfied himself by refreshing his memory with the tale Nellin had told him the night before.

Out of the morgue, and breathing much easier, he put down a note or two of major interest and trusted the rest to memory. The age of the Nellin offspring fitted splendidly into his scheme. A year younger than Helen. No need to jot it down.

And fortunately, from all he could learn, Cunningham was not in possession of precise information concerning the child. A certain difference in the age that it would suit Brent's purpose to be questioned. But whatever risk there was had to be taken. Helen's age could not be changed. The cunningly cunning fourth questions from her.

Brent settled this point in his mind without hesitation and also decided to see Helen as soon as possible. It would be necessary, not that his plans were changed, but to start undoing the campaign he had been at pains to conduct in the past—his campaign to win Helen to him and blind acceptance of his wishes.

He had been highly satisfied with it but he foresaw that it was going to be a bit difficult to make his past attitude fit the one he must assume for the present. But that, again, was a hazard that he must accept. No risks and hazards, in Brent's opinion.

Helen, when he surprised her by coming unannounced, welcomed him with delight. His manner toward her was just a shade more familiar than before. But he said nothing to her, then, of the story he meant to tell her when she graduated.

As that event loomed nearer Helen grew radiant with expectancy and happiness. Brent had gradually, dropped all aloofness in exchange for a manner that Helen believed promised the fulfillment of her dreams. She felt herself displacing all other interests in his life.

Together they would travel all over the world, and whether or not that glorious day ever dawned on which he would tell her, with new meaning, that he loved her, she could never be unhappy again.

She went through commencement in something of an emotional daze, and when at last she was seated beside Brent and on her way to New York, out of school, with a world of romance ahead of her, she felt unbidden tears stealing into her eyes. But they were tears of joy.

what your life really should be like. I'm afraid you wouldn't be able to contain yourself. You can have a right to a wretched heritage, Helen."

Helen fixed her wide eyes upon him in silent interrogation. So much of her life had been filled with mystery and she had been so thoroughly drilled not to ask questions that she did not think to take advantage of the change in the man who had been responsible for her training, and voice her questions.

"But first," Brent went on, "before I tell you about that, I must explain to you, Helen, that I've been keeping something from you. Something about myself."

Helen caught her breath in sudden dismay. There was a solemn, heavy note in Brent's voice that frightened her.

"I've led you to believe that I needed you," he said, and then, as though he were compelled against his will to complete his confession, he hastened to add: "because I might grow away from me. I guess I wanted to be the only man in your life, Helen, and I thought I could do it by making you will subservient to mine."

Helen continued to stare at him, but speechless. "But Leonard..." she began, and stopped. Brent had cut her off. Besides, she was at a loss for words.

"But I can't go on with that," Brent avowed. "In fact I haven't been thinking along those lines for some time. You've noticed a change in me, haven't you?"

Helen nodded. "A great change," she said softly.

"There are two reasons for it," Brent told her. "First, there is my promise to you to tell you about your mother and father when you graduated from school."

"Frankly, I was struggling eternally with the temptation not to tell you at all, and to let you believe that I was the only person you had to turn to when you left school. But that is impossible now, even had I decided to deceive you." He paused, and managed to look forlorn and troubled.

"Leonard!" Helen cried. "There isn't anyone but you!"

Brent shook his head. "That is not all my dear," he said dejectedly. "I haven't even such right as I had before to lie to you. You see, I've met with bad luck on the market."

"Helen" broke in with a cry of sympathy but Brent's confession flowed on. "Oh, I haven't lost everything," he exclaimed with a touch of weariness. "But I've not enough left to live as I had planned, traveling about with you, keeping up the game worth playing was without risks and hazards, in Brent's opinion."

His voice seemed to choke with the poignancy of his feeling. He slumped a little in his seat, and resolutely set his face straight ahead.

Helen's heart ached with sympathy for him, but not so much that she could feel the happiness that a part of his confession caused to well forth from it.

He had never talked to her before like this, never intimated that he was desperately in love with her. "I'm sorry," she said breathlessly, "for your sake, Leonard, but we don't have to go traveling to be happy."

She smiled at him wistfully, appealingly, but he did not turn to look at her.

"I could not possibly make up to you what you would lose if I kept you in ignorance of your birthright," he said sharply. "You may not be able to obtain it, and you may not wish to have it, but I've never forgiven myself if I deprived you of the opportunity to seek it."

"Leonard!" Helen protested, "you're talking in enigmas. Tell me what it means."

For a while Brent did not speak. Then he said very quietly: "Yes, I will."

Sister Mary's Kitchen

By SISTER MARY

With cabbage at five cents or more a pound, the thrifty housekeeper hesitates to throw away that has wilted, but if her family is small, it often is a difficult problem to devise ways to use it up.

Some people object so seriously to the odor of cooking cabbage that they will not taste the finished dish. Properly cooked cabbage is really more delicately flavored than cauliflower or brussels sprouts and does not fill the house with a disagreeable odor.

Always cook cabbage or any of its family in an uncovered pan. This prevents the forming of steam which gives off the unpleasant odor. It also keeps the vegetable from becoming strong flavored and unpalatable.

These suggestions may help you in planning your next week's menu. The head of cabbage does its duty for several meals in succession but does not become monotonous.

It's Economical, Healthful
Cabbage is one of the cheapest sources of vitamins and mineral salts available. It will pay every penny of economy need not be considered.

Cut the fresh head of cabbage on the night fish is served for dinner. A salad of shredded cabbage, carrots, green peppers and celery mixed with French dressing or old-fashioned cole slaw is always good with fish.

For the next day's luncheon combine any left-over fish with well crisped cabbage for a salad. Let cabbage stand in cold water for half an hour before using. This makes it deliciously crisp and tender. Drain thoroughly before combining with other ingredients.

The next night peppers stuffed with cabbage and finely chopped meat provide an appetizing dish.

The last quarter of the head of cabbage is used in a vegetable soup. Carrots, onions and tomatoes blend their flavors in a savory soup that is truly delicious. The vegetables can be finely shredded and minced and served in the broth or the whole can be strained and a clear soup served.

A cut head of cabbage can be kept for several days in the ice box if wrapped in waxed paper. This makes it possible for one or two days to elapse between the serving of cabbage in one of its numerous ways. No matter how cabbage is to be used, it's vastly improved if crisped before cooking or serving.

Peppers Stuffed With Cabbage
One-quarter head cabbage, 1-2 cup minced celery, 1 cup left-over meat, 1-2 teaspoon salt, 1-2 teaspoon mustard, 4 to 6 sweet green peppers, coarse bread crumbs, 1 tablespoon butter.

Drop cabbage in boiling water and cook ten minutes. Drain and chop. Combine with celery, meat, salt, pepper and mustard. Cut stem ends from peppers and remove seeds and white fiber. Fill with cabbage mixture and cover with crumbs. Dot with bits of butter and place in a shallow pan. Cover bottom of pan with boiling water and bake 20 minutes in a moderate oven.

YOUR CHILDREN

by Olive Roberts Barton
CONSULTANT TO NEA Service Inc.

Philosophers interested in the young in recent years have been urging parents to allow their children to follow their natural impulses in choosing a profession or vocation when they grow up.

And taking these good people at their word, parents have followed this advice pretty closely. It has been the general custom lately to wait until the spirit moved John to be a lawyer, or a doctor, or an electrical engineer, before making any attempt to shape his educational end in any particular fashion.

When the day comes that young John appears at breakfast touched with the divine fire that gives him second sight into the future, and announces to the family that now he knows exactly what he wants to do his father begins to figure out how to get the corner lot to help John attain his heart's desire.

Not All Like That
That is a very well, when it works out according to Hoyte. But all hands cannot be dealt according to the book, and what if the day never comes in which John is able to make his announcement? What if he wants to do what he wants to do?

This is what, very likely, John is allowed more time. The corner lot is sold just the same and John is sent to college to get a general education. When he is twenty-one or twenty-two, and perhaps by that time he'll have more definite ideas about his future.

Now this is all very fine and good for one, and a believer in I, for one, am a believer in a good background of general academic education for any special work. But without doubt it seems that two things should be done.

The first lies with the parents. I believe that a mother was more than a little virtuous in the old-fashioned method of helping John to make up his mind, and rather early at that, as to his future effort to look out for himself.

"My boy is to be a so-and-so" was probably condemned too quickly by the self-expressionists. What if there is no self-expression? Unless a boy has shown decided tendency or ability to do something certainly he should be trained along that line then I believe his parents should take things in their own hands and say, "We wish you to be a doctor, a lawyer—or a student at a business man," and start out to educate him with that end definitely in view.

All Aren't Geniuses
It will probably relieve the boy greatly at that. "They aren't all geniuses. They don't all have hobbies. They need suggestion and definite suggestion, and they need it early."

The second matter lies with the educators. Twenty-two is old for a boy to graduate from academic work if he intends to specialize after that, unless he intends to continue in the academic field. His life is short. The age limit of classes is short. The age limit of usefulness for men of all ages is short. It is officially 40, we are told. Older has come back. Ask the industries—they will tell you to get up their minds boys to do it. I suggest—help the boys to do it. I suggest—help the boys to do it. I suggest—help the boys to do it.

What fraction of his life is a boy to be dependent on his parents? Until he is well-nigh onto 30? Is that fair to them—or to him? Certainly it is material for thought.

PRINCESS SUGGESTION

Here is a modified Princess frock in black crepe satin with lingerie touch noted in Alencon ecru lace jabot at front caught underneath slashing opening and finished with two buttons.

The long-waisted bodice is beautifully molded to the figure with deep-pointed treatment at back, with raised waistline at front.

The circular skirt dips its back hem, a gracious afternoon fashion. Style No. 651 is an exact copy of Paris model. You can make it in two hours, it is so entirely simple. It comes in sizes 16, 18, 20 years, 36, 38, 40 and 42 inches bust.

Black transparent velvet with ecru lace will be stunning later for Fall wear.

Black chiffon is effective and dignified for dinner and restaurant.

Black dull silk crepe with jabot of eggshell silk crepe, slate blue crepe Elizabeth with flesh colored chiffon jabot, seal brown silk crepe with beige chiffon, purple canton crepe self-trimmed and beige crepe satin with ecru lace are only a few of many charming ideas for its development.

BIRTH OF A BABY NOT AN ACT OF GOD
New York, Sept. 12.—The birth of a baby is not an "act of God," Actors Equity Association ruled today.

The ruling came after Jed Harris refused to pay members of the cast of "Coquette" two weeks pay when the show was closed because Helen Hayes, the star, was about to become a mother.

Harris insisted Equity's contract did not hold the producer responsible for "an act of God" but Equity ruled the producer must make a settlement with the actors.

AUTO VICTIM DYING.
Bridgeport, Sept. 12.—Miss Julia O'Brien, 72, is in St. Vincent's hospital here today in dying condition with her skull fractured and with internal injuries. She was run down last evening by a car driven by William T. McIntosh of Indian Orchard, Mass., who is visiting relatives here. McIntosh is being held pending the outcome of Miss O'Brien's injuries.

Hints On How To Keep Well

FRUIT IS HIGHLY ESSENTIAL TO ANY WELL-BALANCED DIET

EDITOR'S NOTE: Here is another article in the series, "Know Your Food Values," by Dr. Morris Fishbein.

By DR. MORRIS FISHBEIN
Editor Journal of the American Medical Association and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine

The fruit growers have aided the physicians in recent years in educating the public as to the value of fresh fruits, cooked fruits and prepared fruits in the diet.

The fruits go a long way to supplement bread, meat, cereals and even vegetables. They provide bulk and aid movements of the intestines, they yield vitamins and valuable salts and they have considerable caloric value.

An apple yields 10 calories, some iron and some vitamins A, B and C. It is quite rich in carbohydrate but relatively poor, about one-fourth as good as the poorer vegetables, in protein. A large banana also gives about 100 calories and some iron and vitamins and it contains about twice as much protein relatively as the apple, but about the same amount of carbohydrate.

It takes a whole cantaloupe to give 100 calories and cantaloupe appears on the most reducing diets for that reason. It is filling without high caloric value. Dates and figs have laxative qualities, they are rich in protein and in carbohydrate. Three dates or one and one-half figs will give 100 calories. Peas and peaches are about like apples, but they usually have calcium and phosphorus that the apple does not so often provide. The orange has calcium and iron and plenty of vitamins A, B and C, and one orange gives 100 calories.

It takes three or four plums or prunes to give 100 calories. They are helpful for their laxative quality. They have calcium and iron and the prune is known to provide vitamins B and C. A cup of raspberries or strawberries will provide 100 calories. It will have calcium, phosphorus and iron, and will be helpful for vitamins B and C.

All of the fruit juices help the reaction of the body toward an alkaline point which is valuable for health.

The watermelon is "lightly named." A two-inch slice of watermelon weighs 800 grams or about one and three-quarters pounds. Of this there will be two grams protein, one gram fat and 22 grams carbohydrate. The caloric value of the whole thing will be 100 calories. There will be some iron and some vitamins A, B and C. The rest is water.

OFFICIAL SHOTS SELF
Saguache, Colo., Sept. 12.—Wilson P. Williams, for three terms treasurer of Saguache county, was dead today, a suicide according to a coroner's verdict. Williams shot himself while walking on the Main street of the town last night.

PASTOR TRANSFERRED.
Bridgeport, Sept. 12.—Rev. Thomas Griffin, of the Church of the Blessed Sacrament here, today received official notice of his transfer to Thompsonville to become assistant to Rev. D. J. O'Connor, in St. Patrick's church. Father Griffin leaves here tomorrow for his new post.

The WOMAN'S DAY

There's nothing like a baby for complicating living conditions in city apartments. A bride moved into a four-story walk-up apartment, and everything went beautifully until Junior came. Even Junior was all right, but of course he had to have a perambulator. Babies don't navigate by themselves at the start.

And the question of where to put the baby's sedan caused considerable grief. At first, it was just parked inside the door on the first floor.

There's nothing like a baby for amounts almost to a phobia about wheels. I want to see furniture that is solidly moored. It is completely upsetting to me to see a wheeled conveyance there, and if, or I, will have to go! It went. Julie packed her bags and said that while Junior was a charming baby, dimpled and cuddly, his transportation problem was more than she could bear. There were other places where there were elevators, and you didn't have to drag a baby buggy up four hills, etc.

THE SOLUTION
Then somebody discovered a subterranean cellar used for coal, and Junior's carriage was kept there for a while, but there was something ignominious about concealing it there. The mother decided that since there was really no place in the house for Junior's car, they were justified in breaking their lease and taking an apartment with a baby garage. They did. And the owner of the house made no objection to their leaving.

There was a funny skit on Broadway once, about the parents who looked for days for an apartment where their child would be accepted as well as themselves, and finally, footsore and weary, the husband said, "There is no other way," and shot the child to keep the baby, and where to live after he comes, is no joke to the city apartment dweller. Tenants are quite justified in not desiring the baby's evening serenade floating in through the windows. Commuting is one solution, but is often a hardship for father. And not everyone can live on farms. Yes, a baby is a problem.

ANOTHER FLIGHT
So the carriage was taken up to the third floor and parked there, and meanwhile, Julia, the dusky maid who took it up every night and morning, smiled less and less and began talking of needing a change.

It was only a short time until the woman on the third floor called up the janitor, and demanded that it be taken away.

She, it seems, was a decorator. She had always yearned to have a corner cupboard or something of furniture adorning the rather plain entry, but she could not tolerate a baby carriage. Said she: "I have something that

Ruth's $100,000 Salary Chances Not Favorable

$10,000 Increase Will Probably Be Limit; Vance, Waner, Gehrig on Market

BY DAVIS J. WALSH. New York, Sept. 12.—In view of the fact that the boy friend, Mr. Babe Ruth, is having some trouble today in deciding how much less than $100,000 he will be willing to accept next year, it occurs to me that I can be helpful by mentioning that Dazzy Vance, Paul Waner and Lou Gehrig are said to be on the market at the end of the season.

This report is cited only because I wish to aid Mr. Ruth in reaching a decision. The three men named got all they could out of baseball last spring and baseball has been trying to get something out of them ever since.

Vance got $25,000 from the Dodgers and has been worth something in excess of $25,000. Waner indulged himself in a family strike in finally signing at a compromise figure. Paul got more money than his brother and proceeded to play much less baseball. Gehrig got $25,000 and on occasions has played better at Columbia University Baseball, therefore, is in no mood to meet demands, no matter who makes them.

To do Mr. Ruth justice, it must be admitted that the size of his pay check has no effect on him. He has been playing since 1919, and the suggestion of a bad year since 1925, and in some respects, the present year is his greatest.

Also, it may be said that Mr. Ruth never has taken more than his arguing point for 1920. He merely said that he would like to get $100,000, thereby distinguishing himself from those who wouldn't like to get it. He probably will wind up by accepting $100,000 more than the Yankees originally were willing to pay him, which won't be too much, whatever it is.

Mr. Ruth is an old man now and it won't be long before he will be heard tenderly away from the scene. But, as he goes, the structure of a marvelous career is rearing itself higher and higher by the day. This gent is the greatest of them all and he is proving more and more so every year by taking everybody in the home run derby to five weeks' start and then leading them home in a gallop.

Continuing his current pace Mr. Ruth will hit at least 50 home runs this year, a total that compares favorably with his 54 in 1926, his 59 of a year or so later and his 60 of 1927.

These records were made when Mr. Ruth was younger and fatter and siller. He has got a whole lot heavier and as silly as he used to be. But life has its compensations. We lose some things we don't want and save others that are indispensable. Mr. Ruth isn't going out the door of an evening, but the still has his eyesight.

It may be taken for granted that, whatever the 1930 contract calls for, Mr. Ruth will deserve what he gets. Personally, however, I feel that justice would be better served if he gets what he deserves.

Griffith vs. Haymann; Mays Meets Sandwina; Other Good Bouts.

BY SID MERCER

New York, Sept. 12.—The old guard which dies whenever the entertainment is dull but never surrenders the privilege of fighting for the best seats will rally tonight for the opening of the fall and winter boxing season at Madison Square Garden.

Matchmaker McArdle has paired off a flock of heavyweights and has provided some interesting international competitions by arraying three Americans against three foreigners in the three ten-round features.

Tuffy Griffiths, Sioux City boxer, draws Dr. Ludwig Haymann, of Germany, in the main event. Harold Mays, New Jersey, will attempt to repulse Ted Sandwina, American born German, and Paul Cavalier, Jerseyman, will try out Charles Smith, English heavy.

Griffiths is well known here because of his Garden debut on the wrong end of a "kayo" by James J. Braddock, and a subsequent defeat of Charlie Belanger, Canadian cruiser weight champion. Tuffy has taken on weight and stature, has been bowling over big fellows in the Middle West, and tonight is making his bow as a full-fledged heavyweight and a candidate for the championship eliminations. He now weighs 186 pounds.

Haymann has had a couple of minor bouts in small clubs under the management of the veteran, Tom O'Rourke. He has done good fighting in Europe and in Germany lost a close decision to Max Schmeling two years ago.

NEW BRITAIN LEGION BACKS OUT OF GAME

The scheduled post-season baseball game between Manchester and New Britain American Legion posts for Saturday afternoon here was cancelled this morning.

SAMMY "RED" SOLOMAN

Bronx Youth Is Having Time Of Life With Cubs

New York, Sept. 12.—Sam "Red" Solomon, 19-year-old sensational baseball player who piloted a 14-year-old Bronx junior baseball team to a championship in 1928, has been signed to become a future Chicago Cub player by Manager Joe McCarthy, thereby setting a new major league record. Walter Hoyt was 16 when John McGraw signed him for the New York Giants.

But winning a junior baseball championship in 1928 isn't "Red's" only claim to fame. Up to August 25 this season he has managed the New York Kiwanis junior baseball team in the junior circuit, which won 20 out of 21 games, being defeated once by a 16-year-old nine after a tough tussle.

"I consider" young Solomon the best natural baseball player for his size I have ever seen," said Manager McCarthy, "and I'm going to give him special instruction and an opportunity to develop into a major leaguer, with the intention of eventually having him join the Cubs as a regular."

Sam, who is the envy of all small boys, has worked out with the Cubs every day since he signed with them until they left for Cincinnati. He plays every position. He couldn't make the Cincinnati trip on account of having an engagement with a dentist. He also has a special tutor who is instructing him in the art of being a professional.

He weighed only 75 pounds when he joined the Cubs and in a week gained four pounds through a program of diet. He said he had been used to eating a doughnut and drinking a cup of coffee for breakfast, but now he drinks a lot of milk and eats fresh fruit, and vegetables and his meals regularly—and yep, chews his food.

"Am I a happy kid? I can practice with the Cubs and get special instructions and when they are away I'm going to work out at Maguire's. I can keep in trim and help the other 'and-ot kids. Have to take a shower or bath every day."

Cubs And Athletics Need But Four Wins

Four more victories and the Athletics are in. The same goes for the Cubs. They both have something over fifteen games yet to play.

The man, woman or child who can still detect a stray gleam of hope in the Yankees or Pirates should step right up and claim the vaudeville billing and cigarette testimonials that would be theirs as world's champion optimists.

Philadelphia reached the four-game stage when they slipped the White Sox a 7 to 4 defeat while the Yanks were taking a licking from St. Louis. The A's and Sox scored all their runs in the first inning. Crowder shut out the champions, 5 to 0, the second time he has blanked them this season. He allowed but five hits.

More Than Bench Duty For Cuyler This Time

SETTLING THE POINT IN GOLF

BALL HITS PERSON.

If the player's ball strikes a person on the course, say for instance the groundskeeper, the ball must be played from where it lies after striking the person, whether it be in the rough or on the fairway.

The rule states that "if a ball be stopped or deflected by any agency outside the match, or by forecaddie, he is a rub of the green and the ball shall be played from the spot where it lies."

Pirates Kept Kiki Out of 1927 World Series But Cubs Expect Great Things of Him.

Chicago, Sept. 11.—Two years ago the Pittsburgh Pirates were desperately engaged with the then powerful New York Yankees in the world series.

On the Pirate bench sat a star outfielder, a natural 350 hitter, one of the best baserunners in either league. He ate his heart out while his teammates were going down under the heavy guns of the Yanks in four straight games.

From the stands and bleachers came the cry of the fans, "Give us Cuyler! Give us Cuyler!"

Donie Bush heard but was obdurate. Cuyler sat through that world series on the bench. Cuyler's own sensitive, high-strung nature had brought about a breach between his manager and teammates that resulted in an outcast. They needed him but chose to go down to defeat without him. Even when a substitute runner was needed, Cuyler, else of the paths, was not given a chance. He sat in silence. Cuyler never was a squawker.

His Opportunity.

But Kiki Cuyler's luck has changed. When, and if, the Cubs and Macks square away for the world championship this fall, Hazen Cuyler will have his long deferred chance. He has at last found the surroundings in which to fulfill the earlier promises of his becoming one of baseball's great men.

Before he came to the Cubs, Cuyler's career had been threatened with disappointment. When Pittsburgh brought him up in 1923, he was proclaimed as great a youngster as ever had broken into the league. He had the physical and mental requirements to become another Cobb. He was a natural ball player—one whom the other players envied—a ball player's ball player.

His record in the majors is far from bad. A lifetime batting mark of .327 is something many a successful player would give his second largest diamond stick pin to possess. But in Cuyler's case it is a disappointment. Every player and manager in the old league will tell you .350 is more like his gait.

Injuries Play Part.

Injuries have played a part in keeping Cuyler from the dizzy heights of stardom. Several times in his past, just when he had struck his stride, he was laid up by a chance-taking slide or a collision with a wall in pursuing a drive from an enemy's bat.

In 1927, his last year with the Pirates, Cuyler started the season with a rush. He batted viciously and ran! He was at a furious pace. But he had stepped in and bunched Cuyler with an injured leg. When he came back to the lineup in a somewhat weakened condition, naturally Donie Bush, the Buccaner pilot, had someone else in Cuyler's old batting position.

Kiki was inserted farther down in the batting order until he could regain his full strength. Cuyler couldn't understand this. His ambitious spirit resented it. They say he sulked. But it is more probable that it was his sensitiveness, which brought about his unhappy standing with the Pirates. Cuyler is not the sulking type.

McCarthy's Opinion.

Ask Joe McCarthy, manager of the Cubs, about Kiki Cuyler. "There was never a more valuable team player in baseball," is the way McCarthy sizes him up. "A trouble maker? He gives the pitchers in this league all the trouble they want. We'd like to have a lot more trouble makers like Cuyler."

BATTALINO WORKS HARD IN TRAINING

Busy Schedule of Road and Gym Work Prepares Him for World Title Battle.

Bat. Battalino, Hartford's sensational featherweight, looking forward toward the hilltop as he hits the road every morning. The pride of Hartford who swept everything before him in his amateur days to win the national amateur featherweight championship, gets a "show" at a world's title on Monday night, September 23, as he battles Andre Routsis, featherweight champion, in the big Velodrome here.

That is why Battalino is working feverishly to be in the pink and that why he is doing not a little day dreaming as he gets up with the sun and strikes out for the broad highways. This bout is the Hartford featherweight's shining opportunity and he intends to make the most of it. An athlete without a bad habit he is also one of the most faithful in the all-important business of training. He does not find it irksome as do so many fighters, but actually likes it, both the work on the road and the routine in the gym, screaming at a few miles every morning and in the afternoon goes into the gym for a hard workout.

Mickey Flavin, local lightweight and former member of the Stribling entourage, steps a few rounds with Battalino every day and Mickey says that is hitting harder than ever. The Hartford featherweight's record, both as an amateur and a professional, is liberally sprinkled with knockouts. He is a remarkably hard hitter for a featherweight and he scores a kayo over him. Now he finds himself facing a chance for the world's title though not yet two years in the professional end of the game. "This is my big chance," says Bat. "I hope to win—and on a knockout."

FIRST, NEWEST ELECTRIC ENGINES AT EXPOSITION

New Haven Railroad to Put on Interesting Display at Springfield Fair Next Week.

One of the exhibits at the Eastern States Exposition at Springfield, September 15-21, will be a relic of railroad freight transportation—the first electric freight locomotive ever constructed.

For comparative purposes, the New Haven Railroad, the owner of the old locomotive, will also have on display one of its most modern electric freight engines in use today between New Haven and New York.

Compared with the up-to-date model, the first electric freight locomotive is indeed an antiquated affair. It was built by the Pullman Car Company at Pullman, Illinois for the Ansonia, Derby and Birmingham Electric line, now a part of the Connecticut Company, a New Haven road subsidiary, and was delivered at Ansonia, Conn. in 1888.

The first trial trip took place May 1, 1888. The locomotive weighs seventeen and a half tons and was capable of hauling a train weighing about thirty-five tons at less than ten miles per hour.

There were many who were frankly skeptical as to the possibilities of the new contraption back in 1888, but even the most optimistic in those days would then have been astounded at the possibility of the super electric locomotive of the present day.

The first locomotive to transport freight by electricity operated on a 3000 volt system from 1905 to 1910 on the New Haven use a voltage of 11,000. The motor of the early type was so constructed that the car could be operated in either direction, a most unusual feature of construction at that time, and the brakes were controlled by a long lever, operated by hand.

An amusing feature connected with the operation of the old locomotive was the oversight that it would be required to operate through a low clearance underpass. As a result, it was necessary to lower the roof of the car and a collapsible trolley crane was improvised at the Ansonia shops in time for the initial trip.

At the railroad trestle which caused the low clearance a box was kept containing a flexible insulated cable which was connected with the trolley wire, the free end being a brass contact piece. When the collapsible frame was lowered to the roof, a plug was inserted in a socket contained in a wooden block on top of the car and the cable was paid out, thereby providing current for operation under the trestle.

In those first days of electric freight transportation lightning arresters had not been introduced and burnouts were frequent during electrical storms. So serious were the delays resulting from this cause that the management finally adopted the practice of suspending operation during thunder showers.

The locomotive was built for a freight service connecting the mills at Ansonia with the wharf of the Naugatuck and Valley Steamboat Company of Derby. Regular freight service between those points was begun in July 1888 and continued, except during the months of December, January, and February, when the river was closed to navigation, until October, 1889, when river service was suspended. This relic of bygone transportation in recent years has been stored at Hartford and a few months ago was resurrected by the New Haven Railroad and reconditioned for preservation.

The New Haven Railroad's electrification at the west end of its line was opened for service in 1906. Of the original 41 electric locomotives, ten have traveled more than 1,400,000 miles each. The total mileage of the 41 up to and including July 1923 was 56,033,184 miles, the equal of 2,250 times around the earth at the equator. The engine with the greatest mileage is the "07" which up to July 31 had been operated a total of 1,418,022 miles. All these locomotives are still in main line high speed service. They go into the shops at regular intervals for inspection and overhauling. It is not unusual for them to travel 500 miles a day.

SENSE and NONSENSE

Sign On a Coal Truck We're in a Shady Business But We treat you White

A black cat ran in front of an automobile carrying a load of people at a speed of sixty miles an hour.

With girls styles may come and go, but a porch swing never again will have all the attractions of an automobile.

"What is the 19th Hole I've heard so much about?" "Oh, that is what we call a golfer's filling station."

She came home with her hat on one side and her clothes all crushed looking. Looks as though she's been knocked down by a motorist," said one neighbor, sympathetically.

The second syllable of the word "installment" is certainly misleading. We tried to stall off a payment once and almost lost our car.

"Have you ever driven a car?" the lady applicant for a license was asked. "One hundred and twenty thousand miles," but in her husband, who was standing near by, "and never had a hand on the wheel."

We're never going to reduce the number of traffic accidents by letting the girls run around without stockings.

Don't you know that you should always give half of the road to a woman driver?" asked the police of a motorist who came near having a collision on the street with another car.

"I always do," replied the man, "when I find out which half of the road she wants."

Man runs his car into the one ahead and crumples its mud guard. The irate flapper at the wheel of the damaged bus speaks her mind thusly in indignant tones: "Didcha see me put out my arm?"

Embarrassed Culprit (feebly)— "No, madam." "Well," growls the angry lady, "I'll bet you'd aseen my leg if I'd stuck that out."

Here is a chance for you to make some money. One of our garage displays the following sign near its tool chests. "Five dollars in gold will be cheerfully paid to any person for beating into insensibility any thief this shop. Either bare fists or clubs may be used. Drag in the carcass of the offender and claim your reward. Persons asking to borrow tools should be handled roughly but not permanently injured."

WEATHER GOLF

Every TIRE will develop a LEAK if you go far enough and you don't have to go far in letter golf. Par is six and one solution is on another page.

Grid for the word game 'TIRE' and 'LEAK'.

THE RULES.

- 1-The idea of Letter Golf is to change one word to another and do it in par, a given number of strokes. Thus to change COW to HEN, in three strokes, COW, HOW, HEW, HEN.

"Oh, say, little playmate, can you tell me when a man is down and out?" "Yes, dear, when he can't buy a car on the installment plan!"

HOLLISTERS CELEBRATE SILVER ANNIVERSARY

Forty Guests at Party at Their Hollister Street Home Last Evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank L. Hollister of 48 Hollister street celebrated the 25th anniversary of their wedding Saturday evening at their home. About forty guests were present and they received many telegrams during the day congratulating them on the event. Instrumental selections and songs were given by the Anderson brothers and sisters and general dancing followed. A large wedding cake decorated in white and silver was a feature of the buffet luncheon. Mr. and Mrs. Hollister received a number of beautiful and useful articles in silver.

THROWS FITS IN ORDER TO SELL HER WARES

Complaint Made to Chamber of Commerce About House to House Saleswoman.

A woman who has been operating in Manchester for the past three years but who had not been heard from in the last few months has reappeared and a complaint against her has been entered at the Chamber of Commerce.
The woman attempts to sell ten cent articles for many times their value and not succeeding in this simulates an epileptic fit, frothing at the mouth and moaning. According to the complainant was a disgusting sight.
The Chamber of Commerce believes this woman to be a menace to public health and has complained to the police about her.

HERE'S A CANDIDATE FOR WITTIEST SAYING TITLE

The old saying that "he who laughs last, laughs best" was never more appropriate than in the case of a 10-year-old Manchester boy who was standing at the Center the other day. A motorist stopped and inquired the way to Providence and then to Willimantic but the boy said he didn't know. Disgusted, the motorist said, "Do you know anything?" Without hesitation, the boy replied, "I know I ain't lost."

KEEFE-MacPHERSON

Miss Doris Kathryn MacPherson, of 27 Florence street, daughter of Mrs. Minetta MacPherson, and Francis Joseph Keefe of 65 Park street, son of Mr. and Mrs. G. K. Keefe of Salem, Mass., were married this morning at 8 o'clock at St. James's R. C. church. The ceremony was performed by Rev. W. P. Reidy at a nuptial high mass.

The bride was gowned in crepe-back white satin. Her veil of tulle fell from a band of Chantilly lace, and her shower bouquet was of roses and lilies of the valley. The maid of honor wore a dress of orchid crepe with a velvet jacket and hat to match. She carried an arm bouquet of Tallman roses.
The ceremony at the church was followed by a wedding breakfast for the members of the immediate families served at the Coffee Shop. Mr. and Mrs. Keefe left later in the day on an unannounced wedding trip, the bride wearing a traveling costume of fuchsia crepe with hat to match. On their return they will live for the present at the Hotel Sheridan.

CHENEY GIRLS A. A. PLANS FOR SEASON

Bowling Group Meets Tomorrow Night—Name Dates for October Activities.

Cheney Brothers' Girls' Athletic Association made plans for the coming fall and winter season activities at a dinner and meeting held in the Hale house in Glastonbury last night. A very busy program has been arranged.

Tomorrow evening those interested in bowling will gather at the West Side Rec at 7 o'clock, whether she has bowled in the league before or not, so long as she is a member of the organization, is eligible to participate. A change in the rules will be made and a vice-president of the sport elected.
Last night's gathering was in the form of a social get-together for the 1929-30 season. Several dates were named for activities. Three were named for October. On October 1 a Harvest supper will be served; on October 14 a dog roast will be held and on October 28 a Halloween dance will be staged.
