FATHER LIVING AFTER HIS GIRL TRIES MURDER

Rockville Home Scene of Attempt at Patricide—Girl Says Father Had Repeatedly Abused Her.

Sixteen-year-old Jeanette Gerich, an evening school student at the Connecticut Business College here, is being held by Rockville and State police after having confessed that she fired five shots at her father in a fit of rage late last night while he was sleeping in a chair beside the kitchen stove in their home on South street in Rockville. The father, Steve Gerich, 58 years old, is in the Rockville City hospital in a serious condition and may not live, two of the bullets having hit him.

The girl, an unusually attractive blonde, said she shot her father because he had abused her and some of the other eleven children in the family until she could bear it no longer. The shooting was the culmination of one of many outbreaks of family trouble. In desperation, Jeanette told police, she went to the pantry, got a .32 caliber revolver and then fired five times from close range at her father.

No official action will be taken against Jeanette until the outcome of her father's injuries become definitely known. At the Rockville City hospital where Gerich is lying after being treated at the office of Dr. John F. Flaherty, it was stated that his condition was very serious. Dr. Flaherty, however, expressed the opinion that the man would probably recover.

In Rockville City Court this morning, Jeanette was not put to trial because she was taken into custody on charge of "assault with intent to kill." She was held under $7,000 bonds and will be lodged in the Toland County Jail unless relative and welfare organizations are successful in their efforts to raise sufficient money to bring about her release.

COOLIDGE LAUDS LIFE INSURANCE Ex-President Writes He Has Been a Policy Holder for Nearly 40 Years.

Cincinnati, O., Oct. 16.—(AP)—Former President Calvin Coolidge today, in a letter prepared for presentation before the American Life Convention here, declared that he had inherited his interest in insurance "as both my father and grandfather bought protection for themselves and their families by this method."

Mr. Coolidge, who became a director of the New York Life Insurance Company upon his retirement from the presidency, described himself as a policy holder for nearly 40 years. He asserted that insurance companies which were not already taking an interest in stocks as opposed to an investment portfolio composed exclusively of bonds, owned it to the beneficiaries of their policy holders to participate in the country's growth as represented by the stock industries.

Mr. Coolidge asserted that the "mainstay of the purchasing power of policy holders' claims as nearly as possible, ought to be one of the chief considerations of a well considered insurance investment policy."

Washington, Oct. 16.—Treasury receipts for October 14 were: $4,695,322.77; expenditures $9,559,330.78; balance $325,200,536.92.

LISPING GIRLS MAY NOW GET JOBS IN TALKIES

New York, Oct. 16.—Do you stutter, lisp or drawl? If you do, don't reform your speech. Hold it. There may be money in it—in the talkies. They call them "character voices," and George Fitzmaurice, United Artists director, is authority for the statement that peculiarities in speech have become as redemptive as the box office as peculiarities of appearance have since the days of Barnum.

MURDER, SUICIDE IN WALLINGFORD

East Hartford Bookkeeper Kills West Haven Woman and Then Himself.

Wallingford, Oct. 16.—(AP)—Death of Mrs. Anna Bryan Ayres, 41, talented advertising manager, and William H. Gaylor, a bookkeeper of Hartford, by bullet, was summed up today by Medical Examiner Dr. J. H. Buffum, today as "death by mutual agreement" giving official weight to the theory that there was a suicide pact.

Police were convinced today that Mrs. Anna Bryan Ayres, advertising expert, had been shot to death by William Gaylor, a bookkeeper, who then killed himself. Their bodies were found yesterday in a room at an inn.

Mrs. Ayres, 41, was the divorced wife of Ernest Ayres, former Amherst professor and mother of three children. Her home was in West Haven, Gaylor, 46, lived in East Hartford.

The bodies with bullet wounds in their temples, were found by Robert Hyatt, manager of the Inn, who broke down the door of the room after repeated efforts to get an answer from the couple failed.

The tragedy climaxed an infatuation which had its inception last summer and which brought a proposal of marriage from Gaylor, who planned to divorce his wife. Letters to Mrs. Ayres from Gaylor as an outstanding business executive, which had the initials of an E. T. were found in a room.

Mrs. Ayres was found in a chair, her head by her feet was the body of her companion. Two empty shells were found in a revolver. The room contained numerous cigar and cigarette butts. There was no evidence of a struggle.

Mrs. Ayres was born in the Middletown, Conn. She had a Bachelor of Arts degree at Franklin and Master of Arts degree at Brown University. She did graduate work at the University of Chicago and out of that came her affiliations which led her into editorial and advertising lines. She also put in time as a research assistant in economics. Her marriage for a time interrupted her full time application to her chosen profession.

Mrs. Ayres many times had given public expression to her views on the women in industry. In advertising Mrs. Ayres had said that the more a woman knows about typography, engraving, printing practice, paper, production problems, the range and limitation, the better for her. The more she learns about sales methods and advance in her field. If she is to get anywhere as an advertising manager she must sooner or later know a great deal about these things.

WIFE AGED 70 USES AXE TO KILL SPOUSE

Couple Married Nearly 50 Years—Husband, Heavy Drinker, Made Life for Her Most Miserable.

Summit, N. J., Oct. 16.—(AP)—Mrs. Laura Mathilda Titus, white haired and wrinkled by seventy years of life, today slew her 78 year old husband with an axe.

The victim, James Titus married her 49 years ago. Mrs. Titus confessed the killing to police after brief questioning. Small Woman

The woman, weighing little more than 100 pounds, and hard of hearing, said she slew her husband because she couldn't endure his abuses any longer. He drank heavily, she said, and was intoxicated this morning when she struck him twice with an axe.

About 3:45 a. m., she said, in her confession to Police Chief John P. Murphy, her husband got up and went into the yard. He returned about a half hour later and asked her when she was going to get up, pulled the bed covers off her, and went down stairs. Husband Drunk

Shortly after Mrs. Titus got up and went downstairs, where she found her husband lying on the floor of the living room. Mrs. Titus then said she sat down at a writing desk which she could watch the prostrate form of her husband, and debated with herself whether she would kill the man whom she had married in Milltown in 1880.

"Will I, or won't I?" she asked herself. "God above, must I go through today what I have been through for the last week and four days." Decided to Kill Him

"I will do it," she concluded, "if I go to jail for life for it." Then she went into the yard and got the axe, the woman related. Upon her return to the house, she said she turned down and picked it up twice before she struck her husband. She struck the second blow, she stated, "to make sure he was not breathing."

Her next move was to call four neighbors, who called a physician and police. Mrs. Titus had lived with her husband in Summit more than thirty years. He had been employed by a local ice company until a few years ago. He received a pension from the company.

Famous Scientist in U. S.

Above is Madame Marie Curie, the famous French scientist and co-discoverer of radium with her late husband, who is now in the United States. Below are her two daughters, Mlle. Eva Curie (left), an accomplished musician, and Mme. Irene Curie-Joliot (right), who is following her mother as a scientist.

PRESIDENT TO SPEAK IN HONOR OF CURIE

To Make Brief Address When Famous Woman Scientist is Given a Gram of Radium.

Washington, Oct. 16.—President Hoover has consented to make a brief address Oct. 30 at the time Madame Curie is presented with a gram of radium at the Academy of Sciences in Washington.

The famous French woman scientist will arrive in the capital Oct. 29 and will be a guest at the White House during her stay of two days. No formal functions have been planned at the White House during her visit.

Her Life Story Mme. Curie's life story is amazing, anyway. The greatest woman scientist that ever lived, she has had a life that has been modest, retiring and unassuming. Today, at the crest of her fame, she lives on an income below that of the average American clerk. She does not care about money. All that matters is her work.

Sixty-one years ago Mme. Curie was born—born Marie Sklodowska, the daughter of a professor of physics at a college in Warsaw. Her father was a brilliant man, a scholar who spent nearly all of his spare time in his laboratory. As a small child, Marie played there. Discarded test tubes and crucibles were her dolls. As she grew older she began to help her father in his experiments.

LABOR GREETS MacDONALD ON CANADIAN SOIL

Toronto, Ont., Oct. 16.—(AP)—Down a human lane of applauding and cheering delegates, Ramsay MacDonald today entered the convention hall of the American Federation of Labor.

Accompanied by his daughter Isabel and escorted by a committee of Labor leaders, the premier of Great Britain and the leader of England's Labor Party received a thunderous welcome as he entered the hall and mounted the platform to be greeted by William Green, Federation president.

"No more warm hearted reception has come to him than you give here," President Green started his address of welcome, but he was halted by a storm of applause. Continuing, he hailed the visit of the premier as "an unique occasion" and said that labor's sympathies were with Mr. MacDonald's efforts to "mobilize the agencies of peace."

"He's among true friends here today," Green concluded, "we knew him in the old days, as the chief of the Labor Party; we know him today as the spokesman of Great Britain. It affords me great honor to present to you the Honorable Ramsay MacDonald, Premier of Great Britain."

Cheering, the audience came to its feet, and held the premier's acknowledgement back for minutes while the hall resounded. "I had to modify some arrangements, to come here," Mr. MacDonald said, "I have been introduced to you in the name of the great of life I hold, but I want you to feel that prime minister or not, I am still the old workman I was born."

"The audience broke into applause," the workman in a distinguished by his mentality and the point of view he has," he continued. "In Great Britain I am a party man. Here today, my friends, I do not represent a party, I represent a whole nation. I have come across the Atlantic as he who represents the opinion of the unity, the personality of the House of Commons."

"On our side, labor is working out a policy by revolutionary means," he said. "The revolution we believe in is the revolution of the ballot box. You can make no permanent changes in the constitution of nations unless you appeal to the sound moral sense."

Labor, he continued, was the proper form to appeal to in seeking world peace.

SUGAR MEN PAID $70,000 A YEAR FOR PROPAGANDA

MACDONALD'S VISIT GREAT PEACE MOVE

Washington, Oct. 16.—(AP)—President Hoover today sent a telegram to Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald expressing the conviction that the welcome accorded the British statesman in this country "is an earnest of the gratification felt in this country that the peoples of Great Britain and the United States have been brought even closer together by your visit."

The President's message was sent in response to a telegram received from Mr. MacDonald yesterday just as he was leaving the United States for Canada.

"Only incidental," Senator Walsh, Democrat, Montana, asked if "the real purpose" of the publications was not to spread the idea of a high tariff but Austin insisted this was "only incidental."

The witness also said a number of "press releases," had been sent to "Washington" newspaper correspondents and to newspapers throughout the country. It was estimated by Austin that 80 per cent. of the sugar production in the country was represented in the association.

Before turning to the sugar tariff lobby, the committee recalled Frederick L. Koch, tariff commission expert, to ask if the pottery industry had protested his testimony at a secret hearing of the House ways and means committee when that group was framing its tariff bill.

"I think it's all bunk to try and get things like that in the paper," he said with a smile.

PROBE RESUMED Washington, Oct. 16.—(AP)—Activities of labor and organizations interested in the proposed increase in sugar today over-shadowed other phases as the Senate lobby committee resumed its investigation of current reports of efforts to influence Congress in framing the tariff bill.

H. A. Austin, secretary and treasurer of the United States Beet Sugar Association, was the first of the group placed on the stand. He started testifying after the committee had recalled Frederick L. Koch, chief of the pottery and earthenware division of the tariff committee, one of the witnesses at the opening hearing.

Koch today said he had heard that William Burgess, tariff advisor of the United States Pottery Association, had protested against him after he appeared at an executive session of the Senate Republican caucus in framing the tariff measure. He added, however, he had been unable to "connect it up" and did not know the circumstances of that protest.

AFGHAN CAPITAL FALLS, IS REPORT

Rebels Defeated After Heavy Fighting, To Choose a New King Soon.

Simla, India, Oct. 16.—(AP)—Confirmation of the fall of Kabul, capital of Afghanistan, before the troops of Nadir Khan was received today in a wireless message to Simla which also announced the flight of Habibullah who took the throne after Amanullah had been deposed.

Kabul was captured by the forces of Shah Wali Khan and Shah Mahmud Khan last Thursday. The Arj, or citadel, fell after a heavy bombardment on Sunday.

The message reported the submission of various towns and districts to Nadir Khan, who was expected to arrive in Kabul yesterday. Nadir proposes to call a national assembly to choose a king, according to the message.

At his headquarters, it was stated there had been no looting in Kabul, except for a few night raids.

BRITISH DOCUMENT IS CALLED A HOAX

New York Doctor Wrote It as a Satire, He Tells the Newspapers.

New York, Oct. 16.—(AP)—The New York Sun says today that Dr. William J. M. A. Maloney, specialist in nervous diseases, is on record as admitting authorship of the satire on British propaganda in the United States, the "Secret British Document," submitted by William E. Shearer to the Senate committee investigating the activities of American shipbuilders at the 1927 Geneva naval conference.

The Sun says that in an article in the Irish Press of Philadelphia on July 23, 1921, Dr. Maloney said that he wrote the pamphlet, "The Reconquest of America." The pamphlet appeared in June 1919 and purported to be a reprint of a paper found in the street in front of an apartment house in this city in which Sir William Wiseman, once chief of the British Secret Service in America, had lived. The pretended document bore no signature, but it appeared to be a report made by a British agent in America to Lloyd George, then British prime minister.

Published reports had said that Daniel F. Cohalan, former State supreme Court justice and now counsel for Shearer, had collaborated with Dr. Maloney in preparing the document, but Cohalan denied the report as "grotesque." Dr. Maloney, who served in the British army and holds the British Military Cross, declined to discuss the reports.

BELIEVE REPORTER HURLED OVERBOARD

Witnesses Say That Kraft Had a Fight Before He Disappeared.

New Orleans, Oct. 16.—(AP)—Convinced they had at last come upon evidence sound enough to build a reasonable explanation, two district attorneys today worked to clear away the last vestige of mystery from the recent disappearance and supposed death of Jack Kraft, New York newspaper reporter, while a passenger on the steamingship Creole just before the vessel docked at New Orleans.

Leander Perez, district attorney of Plaquemines parish, through which the steamship was passing in the Mississippi river when Kraft was believed to have been killed, and Eugene Stanley, district attorney of New Orleans, after examining corroborated notes and accounts obtained from witnesses who last saw the man alive, felt that many difficult phases of the angle had been overcome.

His belief on their part was induced by the admission of Ione Ord, Parisian art student and young and pretty traveling companion of Kraft, that there had been a fight on board the steamship before the latter was seen hurtling over the rail into the river.

Sgt. Epstein, ship's steward with Miss Ord, is being held as a material witness, also admitted the fact of Kraft's jealousy over the girl's interest in the steward, and a ship's officer known as "Mac."

deflected inflicting a secondary wound in the side of the neck.

Despite his serious condition, Gerich has been conscious at all times except when he was under the influence of ether during an unsuccessful operation for the removal of the bullet which penetrated the skull.

Girl Calm

Several other members of the family were at home at the time. Two of Jeanette's younger brothers were playing cards in the room where the shooting took place.

Policemen Richard Shea and Peter Drogiewiez were summoned and they took the girl to the police station, where she remained calm.

Apparently she either did not realize the seriousness of the crime which she had just committed or else had reached a stage where she didn't care about the consequences.

From March to August last summer, Jeanette worked at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Kronfeld of Maple street here, taking care of children and doing housework.

Large Family

The Gerich home is on a small farm and its occupants included the father, who does day's labor for other farmers besides working his own place, his wife and nine of their twelve children.

Jeanette told the police that her father was terribly abusive to his family during frequent fits of temper. She said, too, that he had threatened to kill her, though she said she knew of no reason for such a threat.

Had Revolver

While it was assumed from the girl's confession that she emptied the five chambers of the pistol at her father, the three bullets believed to have been in the gun beside the two that struck Gerich have not been accounted for.

Curious Deaths ON A STEAMSHIP

New York, Oct. 15.—(AP)—Bearing the body of a Mrs. Roegge, of Los Angeles, who died under mysterious circumstances, the liner Mongolia of the Panama Pacific line arrived today.

Dr. William E. Coakley, ship's surgeon, and Dr. A. H. Boyden, a passenger, of 390 Main street, Worcester, Mass., both refused to sign a medical certificate stating the cause of her death, and the body was taken to the morgue for an autopsy.

Mrs. Roegge, about whom little was known save that she was a widow and had intended to stay at the Hotel McAlpin, New York, was found unconscious in her stateroom Monday evening.

Three days before Mrs. Roegge's death, another passenger, John Blackburn, who gave his address as "Times Square, New York," threw his suitcase overboard, and jumped in after it, refusing to grasp a lifeline that was thrown to him.

ARMY-NAVY MAY PLAY THIS YEAR

Chairman Britten Thinks So After Confering With President Hoover.

Washington, Oct. 15.—(AP)—Chairman Britten of the House Naval Committee said after a call at the White House today, that he was confident West Point and Annapolis would resume football relations this year.

Britten said the President had evidenced a keen desire to have the two service institutions play this year. He added he had suggested it would be advisable for them to meet on Soldiers Field in Chicago on December 6.

The plan suggested by Britten was that the President call in the Secretaries of War and Navy and a disinterested third party, perhaps the coach of a well-known institution, and lay down a set of rules under which the two teams could play.

"If the superintendents at Annapolis and West Point are wise and will get their ears to the ground," Britten asserted, "they will notice that the President, their commander-in-chief, has expressed himself as hopeful that the football relations between the two institutions would be resumed this year."

Just Naturally Good. Good tobaccos . . . made good by Nature, not by "artificial treatment." That's the secret of OLD GOLD'S goodness. A chef may be able to make a doubtful steak taste good by artificial flavoring and sauces . . . But it's still dangerous to your stomach. So it is with cigarette tobaccos. "Heat-treating" is useful to "set" and "sterilize" the tobaccos . . . and all cigarette makers have used it for years. But "heat-treating" cannot take the place of good tobacco in making a honey-smooth cigarette. OLD GOLD tobaccos are naturally good. Carefully selected from Nature's best for smoothness, flavor and freedom from throat-scratch. You have only to try a package to get the thrill of this smoother and better cigarette. That will tell you why OLD GOLD'S sales are ALREADY THREE TIMES GREATER than the combined sales of three leading brands during a like period of their existence.

MCBRIDE AGAINST PUNISHING BUYER

Anti-Saloon Leaguer Says Sheppard Bill Would Not Aid Cause.

Washington, Oct. 16.—(AP)—F. Scott McBride, national superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League, in a statement today said it was an open question whether the Sheppard bill to make buyers of liquor equally guilty with sellers would help enforcement.

"Many Drys are persuaded that it would be a hindrance rather than a help," he said. "Rarely is a sale of liquor made in the presence of a third party. The conviction of the seller must almost invariably depend upon the testimony of the buyer. To accomplish the conviction of the buyer it would be necessary to grant immunity to the seller."

He added the measure had not been considered formally either by the executive or administrative committee of the League, but it appeared to him that importance of the matter had been exaggerated.

Little Effect.

"Its effect on the enforcement of prohibition would be very slight," he continued. "The real issue between the Wets and the Drys is prohibition and its enforcement. To back up enforcement in its aggressive enforcement program should be the goal of the Drys."

"The Fifth Amendment to the Constitution of the United States provides no person shall be compelled in any criminal case to be a witness against himself. To grant immunity to the seller in order to get the buyer would be a doubtful wisdom. It would seem therefore that this proposed legislation can wisely wait until the lawyers in Congress thrash out fully its import."

"Such legislation has already been tried and repealed in one or two states. Many Drys believe it to be harmful. Besides the present statutes as to possession, transportation, conspiracy and also as to buying and selling particularly under permit will doubtless prove just as effective as the proposed amendment."

SHEPPARD INSISTS BUYER IS GUILTY

Author of 18th Amendment Asks Probe to Decide the Question.

Washington, Oct. 16.—(AP)—An inquiry to determine whether the government may prosecute buyers of liquor under Section 6 of the Volstead Act which prohibits manufacture, sale or purchase of liquor without a permit, was proposed today by Senator Sheppard, Democrat, Texas, author of the 18th Amendment.

Sheppard, in a statement, said he would ask Attorney General Mitchell to "institute an inquiry with a view to seeing if a policy of enforcement against the purchaser of liquor for beverage purposes may be instituted under Section six."

Buyer Equally Guilty.

The Texan said a recent decision of a Kentucky Federal judge, who instructed a Grand Jury to return indictments under the section, might "result in the punishment of such buyers under existing law if sustained by the highest court," but he added that all question ought to be removed.

"No one can escape the proposition," he said, "that the buyer of intoxicating liquor is equally guilty with the seller, if the liquor traffic is to be considered a crime."

Sheppard recently proposed an amendment to the act which would provide for prosecution of the buyer of liquor.

Late yesterday Miss Ord told District Attorneys Ferges and Stanley that on the night of the disappearance, Kraft had come up to her and accused her of paying too much attention to Epstein and the officer known as "Mac," and that he then slapped and choked her. She added that she screamed and the two men of whom Kraft was jealous came up. Her story was corroborated by Epstein.

Ferges last night expressed the conviction that Kraft had been killed on board the Creole, and said he would conduct an investigation on board the boat today.

PUBLIC RECORDS

This is the time in the year when real estate transactions are at their lowest ebb. Lots are purchased in the early part of the year and contracts are awarded for the building of new homes. The one date that seems to be selected as the one for completion by Thanksgiving. This keeps the workmen busy and new sales are not being made. This is reflected in the returns made to the town clerk during this month.

NEXT DUO-DOLLAR AUCTION OCT. 30

Interest in First So Great That Cash Slips Are in Great Demand.

October 30—remember that date folks! It's a Wednesday evening and Halloween Eve together. And besides the State Theater will be the scene of the biggest attraction of the year, starring Duo-Dollar, the talk of the town, assisted by thousands of dollars worth of the finest merchandise in local stores.

The title of the show, produced by Manchester merchants is "The Second Auction," a sequel to the one given a month ago. Those who were there know what a great amount of interest it created and the outlook for the second one far outshines the first.

Over 200,000 dollars in Duos have found their way into the pockets of those who appreciate the value of the little slips of colored paper. The way everyone asks for their Duo-dollars, with every purchase made in a subscribing store, points to a jammed theater, October 30, spirited bidding, and satisfaction for all. And just another reminder, dear reader! Look over the list of articles printed in The Herald which are to be given at the auction. Make your choice of anything your heart desires. Then fill out a bid slip for the amount you are willing to pay. In Duo-Dollars, of course. Place the slip in the box standing in the lobby of the State Theater and then go to the auction bringing with you your Duo-Dollars and if you are the highest bidder you will receive the merchandise. If you are not, wait until the next auction!

Now take the hint. The show is all-talkie. It's guaranteed to please. It's being presented again by popular demand. What more recommendation do you need.

Must Tell Children All About Old Santa

New York, Oct. 26.—(AP)—And now, with December in the offing and the remainder all fattened up and ready to go, along comes Dr. William S. Sadler of Chicago sternly decreeing that all the five-year-olds in America be told the devastating truth about Santa Claus.

It would be better, says the doctor, to let the children know the truth about Santa Claus before the doctor is thinking of a purely utilitarian fashion.

If sonny hears the truth from the other kids, he's going to realize that his parents are well, not always quite truthful. And it's going to be an awful shock. Just think back, yourself.

And there that impression will remain, says the doctor, in that mental stomach crammed with all sorts of undigestible stuff which is called "the subconscious mind."

"The anti-Santa Claus propaganda set forth in a book which Dr. Sadler has just published and on which he elaborated conversationally today. The book he describes as 'An Anti-Neurotic Serum.'

"An Anti-Neurotic Serum," he asked, "that the first week of a baby's life can determine whether he's going to be a quitter or a go-getter?"

All Born Yellow.

"We are all born with a yellow streak. That's our primitive nature.

ELECT PROF. HIGGINS LAW INSTITUTE HEAD

Beauregard Manor, N. Y., Oct. 26.—(AP)—Alexander Pearce Higgins, well known professor of international law at Cambridge University, England, will be the next president of the Institute of International Law. It was indicated today at the organization's 20th conference here.

Election of a president to succeed Dr. James Brown Scott, secretary of the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace, will take place Friday, the closing day of the institute conference.

The election of Dr. Higgins is expected to be without opposition.

Further discussion of the question of diplomatic immunity was on today's program. The conference is running slightly behind schedule and extra sessions may be needed to complete the work.

When the institute ends Friday, the delegates will leave for New York, where they will attend a dinner that evening given by the trustees of the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace.

After three days of sight seeing in New York the foreign visitors will leave on a tour of Princeton, N. J., Philadelphia and Washington.

The European delegation sails for home on October 29, but the South American members of the institute will go to Havana for a conference of the council of directors of the American Institute of International Law.

RUSS FLYERS READY TO HOP TOMORROW

Seattle, Wash., Oct. 26.—(AP)—Dividing their time between working on their plane, attending social functions in their honor and sending telegrams of regret to the many cities which have requested them, four Russian flyers on route from Moscow to New York today made ready to resume their journey.

Their plane "Land of the Soviets" yesterday was converted from a sea to a land plane and the aviators were confident they would be able to take off tomorrow morning for Oakland, Cal., on the next leg of their flight.

The Russians were guests of honor at a banquet given last night by the aviation committee of the Seattle Chamber of Commerce.

The flyers will go to Chapeauville, Wyo., from Oakland, then to Chicago and Dearborn, Michigan, where they have an appointment to meet Henry Ford, and from Dearborn to New York.

FLOOD AT STANDSTILL

Miami, Fla., Oct. 26.—(AP)—Flood waters, which for days have moved toward the sea from the territory north and west of Miami today virtually were at a standstill, as intermittent rain squalls about squaled the volume carried off by canals and the Miami river.

Only a slight rise was noted during the past 24 hours, at Hialeah, Miami suburb, which has borne the brunt of the flood.

The huge mass of river, caused by torrential rains, over flowed drainage canals and ditches to a wide extent, covering in all several hundred square miles of territory.

As a means of preventing further rise of the water in Hialeah, a new dyke was being constructed along the Red road north of the Miami canal where the road bed was washed away.

GERSHWIN TO COMPOSE A FULL LENGTH OPERA

New York, Oct. 26.—(AP)—George Gershwin, one of Broadway's foremost musical comedy composers, plans to quit jazz temporarily to write a full-length grand opera for the Metropolitan Opera Company.

The opera, it was said, will be based on Anaky's drama, "The Dybbuk," long a popular play in the Yiddish theaters and which scored a marked success when first given in English four years ago. While Mr. Gershwin said he had no contract with the Metropolitan, he admitted he had been asked to write the opera by Otto Kahn, chairman of the board of the Metropolitan Opera Company.

"From an idea I had in my mind of New York, Gershwin at the age of 17 was a 15-year-old song plucker on Broadway. At 23 he had become one of the leading Broadway songwriters. He is now 37. In 1924 he achieved his first wide fame by his "Rhapsody in Blue" and followed this with his "Concerto in F," which also was acclaimed by the critics.

THANKFUL.

QUEEN MARIE'S CHARGE

Bucharest, Oct. 26.—(AP)—Many quarters expressed doubt today concerning the authenticity of an alleged declaration by Queen Marie yesterday, in which she accused the premier, Julliu Manu, of attempting to minimize the influence of the royal family on the Regency Council.

It was said Premier Manu was awaiting the return of the court chamberlain to Bucharest before deciding the attitude he would take.

MOUNTAIN, MOLEHILL

The mountain of sensationalism which has been built up over the employment of Charles L. Eyanzon, assistant to the president of the Connecticut Manufacturers Association, as temporary secretary to Senator Bingham during tariff sessions of the Senate Finance Committee, is likely to be reduced to its proper dimensions of a mole-hill in the immediate future.

President E. Kent Hubbard of the Association, its secretary, treasurer, Robert C. Buell and Mr. Eyanzon have been asked to appear before the sub-committee of the Judiciary Committee of the Senate investigating lobbying at Washington tomorrow and have promised to be on hand.

While it is beyond question that there has been a great deal of lobbying in connection with the Smoot-Hawley tariff bill, evidence that any of it has been illegal or morally reprehensible has not publicly developed. Still, to bring into the light those influences that have perhaps had to do with the framing of the various schedules might well serve an excellent purpose if the effort to do so were undertaken in complete good faith and for the purpose of properly evaluating the merits of proposed tariff changes. But to begin any such analysis of the structure of the tariff bill by dragging in allegations of illegal procedure which at worst could only be supported by a strained interpretation of a forgotten law is to weaken very seriously the whole effect of the inquiry.

We haven't the remotest idea that the Connecticut manufacturers will suffer in the slightest degree from the evidence of their representatives. What we do fear is that, by turning the lobby investigation into an attempt to discredit one Connecticut senator, the efforts of Senator Caraway and his coadjutors will only result in discrediting the whole investigation.

THE GAS STRIKE

The extent to which our present civilization has made itself dependent on gasoline is beginning to be realized through the medium of the gas truck drivers' strike in New York. The strike itself, so far, involves only a small portion of the labor employed in the distribution of automobile fuel to the consumer in the great city, though general enough among the drivers of supply trucks. Yet great inconvenience has been occasioned. The taxicab service so important to the carrying on of the city's business has been rather seriously interfered with. Private automobile owners are compelled to restrict their activities to an appreciable extent. There is already a general cut in the commercial and industrial efficiency of the community.

The threat that unless the demands of the drivers are complied with the employees of garages and filling stations will engage in a sympathetic strike promises complications of much gravity.

Gasoline and the automobile are shown in this unpleasant way to have become even more vital to the activities of any community in this country than has been quite fully realized. And the further extension of the people's deprivation in this connection would be just about unthinkable.

As to the abstract justice of the demands of the drivers, and of the projected sympathetic strike by filling station and garage employees there may be all sorts of arguments. It is just plain inconceivable, however, that the millions of inhabitants of the metropolis will submit to being put out of business by such a quarrel. If the thing goes much further there is very certain to be a mobilization of the potential powers of the people to protect themselves. Any number of persons not so employed can drive a truck. Any number of them can operate a gasoline pump. If the gasoline men force a real conflict with the people of New York they are licked before they start.

STUNT CLIMBING

When a stunt climber fell twenty stories down the face of a Chicago building, killing a bystander as well as himself, the tragedy took on the aspect not only of suicide but of homicide—with somebody besides the climber as a participating criminal. Presumably the exhibition was not conducted without a police permit. Whoever issued the permit would appear to be almost if not quite as much to blame for the death of the onlooker as either the stunt man or the concern that employed him.

It has always appeared to us that a sharp distinction should be drawn, in the regulation of peril exhibitions of any sort, between the person who voluntarily assumes the hazard and the disinterested person who, lured by curiosity into becoming a spectator or merely present by chance in the ordinary pursuit of his affairs, is also placed in danger. It is our theory that if a human being places little value on his own life it is not the duty of society to exercise itself greatly over his safety—nor if he possesses otherwise the attributes of average sanity. But the instant his reckless disregard for his own life or limb places the life or limb of some one else in danger then it should be sternly repressed.

These steeple climbing, building scaling feats, while not very intelligent activities, seem to us to be of interest to authority in only one connection. If they carry with them the slightest element of danger to any person other than the one who knowingly and willingly assumes the risk, then they should not be permitted any more than a fool should be permitted to play with nitro-glycerine in a public place. And whoever does grant such permission should be held to strict account for the consequences.

MOVING ON

There is a widely growing impression that President Hoover, if not to be described by that flamboyant term "map of destiny," possesses certain very rare qualities that are going to bring to him in the future as they have in the past complete success of any major enterprise to which he dedicates himself. His project of bringing about a naval disarmament conference which shall be unlike all previous parleys of that nature is moving forward with the sureness and steadfastness of fate itself.

Despite the muttered pessimism of those who persistently hope and pray for the failure of naval reduction, and the hopes that they have been holding out to themselves that either France or Italy or both might reject the invitation to the London conference in January, both those powers have now accepted, and unconditionally.

This is a blow to the big-navy propagandists and those who, trailing with them, have been in a sullen mood toward the parley. Other blows, if we mistake not greatly, are to follow; particularly in the character and associations of those persons who will represent both the United States and Great Britain—and probably both France and Italy—at London in the new year.

There is every reason to expect that the coming conference will be altogether novel not only in the fact that its purpose will be to cut the naval expenditures of the entire world but that it will be participated in by delegates who desire, instead of secretly opposing, the purpose for which it is called.

UNDISCIPLINED

That such tragedies as the double one at Wallingford, in which a woman divorcee and an East Hartford married man of supposedly orderly and domestic life were found shot to death in a hotel room, are becoming more and more frequent is scarcely open to question. That they are almost as old as creation is, of course true, but their frequency in the last few years has certainly increased with marked rapidity.

If there is any deduction to be drawn from the multiplicity of such crimes it would seem to be that they are just one more manifestation of the utter impatience with all sorts of restraint that has taken possession of so many individuals. Self discipline is an element of life that appears to be wholly eliminated from the scheme of things in the minds of countless persons.

There was not one tenth as much of anarchy in the world in the period when the word itself was continually on the lips of apprehensive people as there is today when it is almost never heard.

Utter contempt for all law, all regulation, all control, has become a dominant trait in the characters of thousands of men and women who, from their intelligence, education and heredity ought by good right to recognize the impossibility of a continuance of civilization without a plan of conduct.

In this respect this nation and other nations as well are becoming perilously like great armies in which discipline has broken down. And nothing in history has ever been more terrible than these.

IN NEW YORK

New York, Oct. 15.—Prince and pauper become strangely mixed in the chaotic jumble of Manhattan.

The fellow who looks like the rich young man is, more likely than not, going to turn out to be the office boy, and the fellow who looks as though he might have been poured into his clothes turns out to be an eccentric millionaire from the west, or a famous writer.

Up in Tony's, in the Fifties—for instance—there was for some time an aristocratic young drink mixer. Inquiring the other night what had become of him, I was told—"Oh, didn't you know? That fellow was a former Russian prince. He's down in Wall street, now in a old brokerage office." Dye know, that fellow's father was one of the big international figures in the czar's diplomatic service. I once heard a story that his father could have stopped the European war, or at least been influential. He was the czar's ambassador to France, or something. When he saw that the jig was up and that Russia would go to pieces under the revolution, he called his son to him and bade him get out of the country and make for America—start all over as a new land. The prince did about as new land. The prince did about as new land. The prince did about as new land.

Then, of course, there was the young man in gold braid who used to walk up and down in front of the Paramount Theater calling out, "Plenty of upstairs seats!" Or, "Midnight show starts in a few minutes!"

One day it turned out that he was a fine artist, making his way along. He put on an exhibit which surprised the critics, and wound up by marrying a banker's daughter from Biloxi. There was the carriage starter at the old Waldorf who, it later developed, was a student for the ministry and has since taken his pulpit, for all I know, there was the taxi driver who turned out to be the minister of a swanky East Side church trying to get first hand information on the night life of Broadway.

There have been at least a dozen other taxicab drivers who were young musicians and singers, earning their bread and board and paying for their musical education in this manner.

Half a dozen debutantes and social figures have taken jobs in the fashion departments of shops and stores when weary of the society round Hope Williams one of the important stage discoveries of the past few seasons, was found to be a social register with plenty of money in the bank. Four or five smart shops in the Fifth Avenue smart shops are "closed" and are being run under their identities under trick names, such as Mille Fifi or Elizabeth's Antique Shoppe.

I am told that a large percentage of the lovely models in the Fifth Avenue attelers are "closed" and are being run under their identities under trick names, such as Mille Fifi or Elizabeth's Antique Shoppe.

On the other hand, it has been shown that scores of those smartly groomed big spenders of the extravagant night life are not what they seem, but are cheap racketeers from Chicago, gamblers who play the Broadway game, bootleggers and even gangsters.

And some of the mangiest looking of the street beggars have been found, when arrested, to have fortunes in the bank and to travel bare and forth to their "work" in high-priced cars, which were conveniently parked about some handy corner.

WASHINGTON LETTER

BY RODNEY DUTCHER
NEA Service Writer

Washington, Oct. 15.—One of the things the representatives of the Great White Father in Washington have done to the Indians has been to take away their names. Sometimes their names have been taken away altogether by half-witted reservation clerks who substituted ridiculous names appealing to their sense of humor and sometimes they have been merely translated into English with results equally disgusting to English-speaking Indians with a sense of dignity.

It appears that the old Indian names were too much for the Indian bureau employes to spell or pronounce. So today thousands of red men have to exist with translated names which are a source of laughter to the ordinary white man, and to the Indian names and the only ones recognized by those who govern them.

Originally the Indian tribes had no family names. When the papooses were born the folks just thought up something for them. Later, if they achieved considerable distinction the tribe was likely to award them the name of some illustrious departed sage or hero. But Uncle Sam couldn't stand for any such nonsense as that.

Out of the Yanukon Sioux reservation today, for instance, there's an Indian whose original name, translated into English, would have been Brown. Thanks to a reservation employe's happy thought known as the Duke of Wellington. There's another one known as David Copperfield and another's name is Uriah Heep. One of the best formally named George Washington, his daughter Martha Washington and his son Booker T. Washington!

The effects of translation appear to have been especially unfortunate among the Standing Rock Sioux on the reservation at Fort Yates, N. D. The Senate Indian Affairs Committee investigated conditions at that reservation this year and has just called to its attention a printed folder purporting to be a protest of many tribe members against the investigation. The complaint alleges that the investigating senators demoralized the Indians, encouraged grafters and bootleggers by questioning them alone, wasted everybody's time and money and so on. The committee also has a counter-protest, signed by a tribal committee, accusing the authors of the first document of gross misrepresentation.

Members of this committee include Clarence Gray Eagle, George Whitebull, F. B. Bullhead, Joseph Otter Robe and Ben Has Horns. (It should be noted that the Clareses, Josephs, Bens and other pronomens are donated to the Indians by their guardians. The more advanced Indians dislike the practice.)

WATKINS BROTHERS' 55th ANNIVERSARY

Making better furniture possible

MOST of us can still remember the dark, dreary days of brass beds and golden oak furniture. Something had to be done to bring the world into a brighter, happier frame of mind. A right-about-face was in order. Furniture factories began copying old Colonial and Early American designs. Watkins Brothers... always pioneers... were one of the first to foster this new movement by encouraging manufacturers to go on with the good work. Many manufacturers came to Watkins Brothers for advice... and still do... for here are furniture experts who love old things! Many improvements and corrections in copying old designs are due to our efforts. Many fine old pieces were loaned to manufacturers from our own Antique Shop for reproducing.

So it is only fitting that on our 55th birthday, we should present some of these fine old designs at Anniversary prices. The ensemble sketched here... a distinctive exclusive Watkins grouping... is a typical example of what you can expect at our 55th Anniversary celebration, when you visit us this week!

HEALTH-DIET ADVICE

Dr. Frank McCoy
"The Just Way to Health"
QUESTIONS IN REGARD TO HEALTH & DIET WILL BE ANSWERED BY DR. MCCOY. STAMPED ADDRESS ENVELOPES FOR REPLY.

CHOP SUEY
The term "chop suey" comes from the English word "chop" plus the Chinese word "suey" meaning "bits." The Chinese mean chopped into bits which is good to remember in preparing chop suey, as the meats and vegetables used should all be cut to about the same size.

Chinese food is chopped before being served so that it can be handled with chop sticks. Somebody has said that chop suey is Chinese for "clean up the kitchen," since it is really a Chinese form of hash and may consist of chicken, fish, mushrooms, bamboo shoots, bean sprouts, or almost anything handy.

Although chop suey is closely associated in our minds with the Chinese, as a matter of fact it is not supposed to have had its beginning in China, but to have first seen the light of day in San Francisco. Gossip has it that some clever Chinese there made a fortune by serving this dish, which is so easily digested and relished by almost everyone.

The Chinese cook uses no milk, cheese nor butter. The frying is done in peanut or olive oil. One of the fundamental rules of Chinese cookery which dates back from 3,000 B. C. is that meat dishes should contain about one-third as much as vegetables. This is a very good rule to follow, as it makes a well balanced meal.

Chop suey usually contains onions, but this is not necessary, as the other ingredients are quite appetizing and more wholesome if the onions are omitted. Chop suey is usually fried. This method cannot really be considered wholesome, but the frying of the non-starchy vegetables and meat cannot be considered as harmful as when starchy foods are fried.

Chop suey, while not particularly healthful, can be used occasionally for the sake of variety by those who are in good health. Meat chop sueys are prepared with a soup stock which is made from equal parts of chicken and pork cooked slowly for about two hours and strained. Here is a recipe for chicken chop suey:

- 1 dozen water chestnuts
- 3 pounds of celery
- 1 dozen white mushrooms
- 1 dozen green beans
- 1-2 pound of bean sprouts
- 4 tablespoons of suet sauce
- 1-2 cup of soup stock.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Twitching in Legs
Question: G. H. K. writes: "I am 73 years old, and am bothered with a twitching or jerking in my leg when retiring, sometimes keeping me awake for an hour or more. You please let me know the cause, also if there is a remedy?"
Answer:—The jerking in your legs is doubtless caused by a poor circulation of blood. I would advise you to take some exercises about an hour before retiring. After the exercises, sit in a tub of warm water, immersing the legs in the water for about two or three minutes. This will help the circulation and should prevent the jerking.

Clabbered Milk
Question: F. D. asks:—"Is clabbered whole milk healthful and nutritious for an elderly person who dearly loves it? Would a person who craves it be likely to be benefited by going on a diet of this kind?"
Answer:—Clabbered whole milk is a very good food, and one could live on this diet for many years without needing any other food. If green vegetables are taken with the clabber (about three quarts used per day) it makes a very well balanced diet but so simple that almost any person would be willing to live on this diet exclusively for any length of time.

ORPHANS THANKFUL
Salt Ste. Marie, Mich.—A big 600-pound moose crashed through the woods across the path of Frank Hanks recently. Hanks saw the animal fall and investigated. He found that the moose had broken its neck in the fall. Game wardens took the animal's meat and distributed it among the charitable institutions of the county.

FRANCE FORWARDS NOTE TO BRITAIN

Text of Acceptance to Invitation Will Be Made Public Tonight.

Paris, Oct. 16.—(AP)—The French government today forwarded its acceptance to London of the British invitation to London of the British conference in London in January. The text of the acceptance will be released tonight.

Later it was learned that France in the text of her acceptance will emphasize her willingness to participate in the conference because she believes in will prepare and facilitate the work of the preparatory disarmament commission at Geneva and lead to a general conference on all armaments.

It is understood the text will add that France on various occasions made clear the French attitude on questions which are likely to figure on the agenda of the London conference.

It was learned here Japan intends to insist on a 10-10-7 ratio as to cruisers during the preliminary conversations between the United States and Great Britain and probably at the conference itself, even though the ratio question is not mentioned in the reply of acceptance.

Japan at present has no plan concerning the holding of separate preliminary discussions with France and Italy concerning the submarine problem with the object of establishing a united front. The London government was understood today to believe that the submarine question powers on the tripartite conversations were unnecessary and might create an undesirable impression.

It is understood the implication in the French acceptance is that so far as France is concerned the London agreement in order to possess immediate force, must be conditional upon the negotiation of a general treaty on sea, land and air armaments.

The reference to prior presentations of the French naval position is understood to allude to the contention that France, while originally upholding the theory of fixation of a total tonnage of all warships, late in a spirit of compromise accepted a proposal to divide warships into categories with some elasticity concerning the right to transfer from one category to another.

Finally France, it is said will adhere to Article 8 of the League of Nations covenant declaring that the maintenance of peace requires the reduction of armaments to the lowest point consistent with the national safety, taking into account the geographical situation and circumstances of each country.

It is understood the question of parity with Italy is not discussed in the French text.

ITALY'S REPLY London, Oct. 16.—(AP)—The Italian reply to the British invitation to a five-power naval conference, says the Italian government is desirous of cooperating in any action to eliminate expenditure and the dangers of excessive armaments and of strengthening the hope that the British initiative may result in the general progress toward the solution of the disarmament problem.

The Italian government is happy to accept the invitation of the British government to take part in the London conference, the reply said.

The Italian note implies a connection between the work of the London conference and that of the preparatory disarmament commission of the League of Nations, such as has already been advocated in a stronger form by France.

The reply said that Italy's attitude toward the problem of general disarmament and of naval disarmament in particular was well-known, having been clearly expressed on several different occasions.

It concludes "the Italian government takes note of the proposals made by the British government to communicate and political questions to be discussed at the conference and states that in its turn it will make known to the British government its own point of view."

COTTON TEXTILE MEN MAY ENTER POLITICS New York, Oct. 16.—(AP)—A proposal to permit participation by the Cotton Textile Institute, Inc. in legislative and political questions was submitted to the annual meetings of the institute at the Hotel Biltmore today.

This participation has been excluded from the organization's activities up to the present, and the executive committee voted recently against any change.

Should the change be ordered the institute could act on a resolution proposing elimination of night work for women, which is understood to be before the executive session of 150 mill executives from the principal cotton manufacturing centers of the country.

Legislative and political activity has been barred from the institute because of the difference in conditions in various parts of the country and the way in which they are affected by legislation.

State Briefs

Norwalk, Oct. 16.—(AP)—Before they attempted their double suicide pact in a parked car on Monday afternoon, Florence Lockwood, 15-year-old Norwalk High school sophomore and her twenty-year-old sweetheart David Ferris, wrote a note asking forgiveness for the things they were about to do, relatives of the pair revealed today.

Hitherto kept secret, the note was a brief message. Despondency over affairs in general and a desire to find a way out, was the tenor of the note. Although it was written by the girl, her relatives still persist in declaring she was forced into the suicide, pointing to her ruined dress and the stained automobile. It is not known whether the note was written before or after the struggle.

THE BOND MARKET

New York, Oct. 16.—(AP)—Buying of bonds was along narrower lines in today's early trading. Prices in the rail group, which has benefited most by the recent recovery in fixed-charge securities, were firm, with several of the low coupon loans making fractional gains.

There was some irregularity in the industrial and utilities. Stock feature issues eased in small transactions, American Telephone 4 1-2s sagged several points. American I. G. Chemical 1-2s lost 1 and American International 5 1-2s and Allegheny Corp. 5s, 1941, declined fractionally. Texas Corp. 5s received support and made virtually no price change.

Advances averaging about half a point developed in Union Pacific First 4s, New York Central 6s, Chicago, St. Louis-Pittsburgh 5s, St. Louis Southwestern Second 4s and Chesapeake and Ohio 5s. Seaboard Air Line issues held most of their recent gains.

In the industrial division Fisk Rubber 8s were marked up nearly 2-2s and Pressed Steel Car 6s 1-2s more than 1. United Drug 5s were also strong.

United States Government issues, which enjoyed a broad upward movement yesterday, retained their improvement. The foreign list was mixed.

INTERFERENCE SO GOOD FOOTBALL GAME STOPS

Maple Street Grown Up Too Much for Ten Year Olds; Takes Ball as Trophy.

A resident of Maple street is getting himself in wrong with the kids playing football on a lot across the street. With no regard for the harmless pleasure of the kids, he has in the past taken baseballs, footballs and other sport equipment from the youngsters without receiving in return anything but the usual tongue lashing that only a modern boy can give.

he carried the thing too far. Striding from his house across the street accompanied by a married son he jumped into the midst of the boys and made his usual stab for the ball. But the kids were on their guard this time, and immediately tackled the interferer in regular Cub fashion. The rest of the gang stepped back, leaving two ten-year-olds to give battle alone, with the result that the indignant adult got the ball and broke up the game but not before aiming a few ill-directed kicks at the tacklers.

Parents are "het up" over the fray of last night and present indications point to a merry session on the lot if anything like last night's exhibition is repeated.

There are 6,582,000 miles of highway in the world.

SEEKS NEW RECORD

Washington, Oct. 16.—(AP)—Lieutenant Apollo Soucek, U. S. N., today started final tests on the airplane with which he hopes shortly to recover the world altitude record for the United States.

The machine, which is the same used last May and June, in establishing altitude marks for both land and sea planes, has undergone extensive changes in an effort to give it climbing power at least 2,000 feet.

Soucek on May 8 set a world record of 39,140 feet but two weeks later a German aviator lifted the mark to 41,794.

Soucek still holds the record for seaplane altitude at 38,560 feet.

Maine potatoes while they do not compare in quality with our natives have a great bearing on the local market. It is said that the State of Maine has raised enough potatoes this year to supply the world, but being wise to the situation the farmers are not selling any more than necessary and are holding out for much higher prices. It is hard to foresee just what the potato market will do but it really looks like a repetition of three years ago.

SEADROME MAKES GOOD

Cambridge, Mo., Oct. 16.—(AP)—Eighteen-inch waves piled up by a 30-mile an hour wind early today subjected the miniature seadrome launched here yesterday to an unexpected test. The small model was not disturbed by the waves or wind.

The eighteen inch waves Mr. Armstrong said, were equivalent to 45-foot waves on the full sized seadrome to be played in the Atlantic ocean approximately half way between New York and Bermuda. Tests today were to be conducted in the Choptank river at Cambridge. After the model was floated yesterday from shore, instrument readings taken during the morning recorded water currents and wind resistance and their effects. As the tests continue over a period of three weeks the model will be moved from the river into Chesapeake bay.

BOOZE BUYER EXONERATED

Richmond, Va., Oct. 16.—(AP)—Judge D. Lawrence Gromer, of the United States district court, holds that a person induced to violate the national prohibition act by law enforcement officer should not be punished.

In his instruction to a jury here yesterday in the case of A. G. Blankenship, of Petersburg, Judge Gromer said "a man who is a law-abiding citizen and who is induced by prohibition officers to violate the law should be acquitted. The primary crime is with the officer and not with the citizen."

Blankenship testified that two men whom he later learned were Federal agents persuaded him to buy liquor for them. He was acquitted after the jury had deliberated 20 minutes.

TODAY IS THE ANNIVERSARY

MARIE ANTOINETTE

On Oct. 16, 1793, Marie Antoinette, queen of France and consort of Louis XVI, was beheaded as a traitress to her country.

Marie Antoinette was the daughter of Emperor Francis I and Maria Theresa of Austria and was betrothed to the French Dauphin at the age of 14. She was married at Versailles a year later.

The queen's love of luxury and amusements and her indifference to the miseries of the people, combined with her efforts to influence Louis XVI to shape the foreign policy of France in accordance with the interests of Austria, made her unpopular.

From the first hour of the French revolution, she was the object of a fanatical hatred. The unhappy queen and her husband were at last imprisoned.

Louis XVI was executed on Jan. 21, 1793, and in October of that year the queen was brought before the revolutionary tribunal and charged with fomenting civil war and leading counsel to the enemies of France.

There is no doubt that the queen conspired with her brother-in-law to the invasion of France by an Austrian army for the purpose of rescuing the royal family.

After two days' trial, the queen was found guilty of treason and condemned to death. She was executed the same day. Her tragic fate has given rise to voluminous literature.

Only a doctor knows what a laxative should be

YOU don't want to use a laxative every day. Nor once a week. This should not be necessary. And it never would be required if all of us would learn the danger that lies in a careless selection of laxatives.

By taking the first thing that comes to mind when bad breath, headaches, dizziness, nausea, biliousness, gas on stomach and bowels, poor appetite, or lack of energy warns us that our bowels are sluggish, we risk forming the laxative habit.

Rely on a doctor's judgment in choosing your laxative. Here's one man's from the prescription of a specialist in bowel and stomach trouble. Its originator tried it in many thousands of cases. He found it safe for women, children and old folks; thoroughly effective for the most robust man. There were so many calls for this prescription and its fame spread so rapidly that druggists began to fill it in quantities; kept it ready for calls. Now Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, as it is called, is prepared from the freshest herbs and other pure ingredients under ideal conditions. You can get the generous bottles of it from drug stores in any part of the world.

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is a real corrective of constipation. Millions have proved this. That's why it is today the world's most popular laxative!

BAY STATE VOTERS PICK CANDIDATES

Close Contests and One Upset Mark Mayorality Primaries in Massachusetts.

Boston, Oct. 16.—(AP)—Close contests with unexpected results in at least one case marked mayorality primaries in Massachusetts municipalities yesterday.

In Worcester Mayor Michael J. O'Hara narrowly escaped defeat in the Republican contest at the hands of Roland S. G. Frodigh, his strongest opponent. O'Hara, who has held office for six years, finally emerged with a plurality of 822 votes after trailing Frodigh for a time in late returns. The Democratic candidate, John C. Mahoney, was unopposed.

Cambridge's perennial mayor, Edward W. Quinn, out for his seventh two-year term, trailed Richard M. Russell, son of the late Governor Russell, in a surprising non-partisan primary. Russell received 9676 votes to 8992 for Quinn, but, since the two leading candidates both were nominated, Quinn will have an opportunity to reverse this result at the election.

Mayor Ralph S. Bauer's successor in Lynn will be chosen from between Lynn M. Ranger, president of the City Council, and J. Fred Manning, partisan primary in that city. Mayor Bauer was not a candidate for re-election.

A school master is likely to be Springfield's next mayor for Carlos B. Ellis, principal of the High School of Commerce, won the Republican nomination in that Republican city by a wide margin. His Democratic opponent will be Dwight R. Winter, who was unopposed.

In Lowell Mayor Thomas H. Braden advanced a step toward fulfilling his re-election ambitions by easily winning the Republican nomination in Lowell's first bi-partisan primary since 1911. His chief opponent was former Mayor George H. Brown. The Democratic nomination was won by James J. Bruin in a close contest with former State Representative Charles H. Slowey.

JUDGE DENIES REPORT

New York, Oct. 16.—(AP)—Daniel F. Cohalan, former State Supreme Court justice, today denied published reports that he had collaborated with Dr. W. M. A. Maloney in preparing the alleged secret British document, which William B. Shearer has turned over to the Senate sub-committee now investigating usual propaganda. Mr. Cohalan termed the charge "grotesque."

Mr. Maloney, a physician, who served in the British Army and holds the British Military Cross, came to the United States in 1911 and makes his home in this city.

He has declined to discuss the reports.

IS ASPHYXIATED

Rentschler who has been unable to work for the last few days because of a minor illness, had turned on a defective gas range while he sat down to listen to the radio.

Medical Examiner Dr. William W. Tracey pronounced death due to accidental asphyxiation.

INSULL ADVOCATES LOWER GAS RATES

Head of Chicago Firm Says More Customers Will Bring It About.

Atlantic City, N. J., Oct. 16.—(AP)—Samuel Insull, Jr., president of the Midland United Company, of Chicago, urged the establishment of lower gas rates when 'inductive' to heavier consumption and more general use of gas for all domestic purposes before the convention of the American Gas Association today.

"Sales can be increased in two ways," said Mr. Insull, "by securing new customers, and, by raising the consumption of existing customers. The first is more a matter of fortune than intelligence. Every gas executive will extend the mains when the return on the investment permits. This extensive expansion of the market depends on the expansion of the community served by the gas property almost exclusively."

Sales Promotion.

"The extensive expansion of the market, however, is almost entirely the result of cultivation. Increase in sales in this field can be only the result of sales promotion, by a combination of attractive rates, persuasive advertising, and proper salesmanship, calculated to convince the public that gas service in a home is modern service; that no home is modern without gas service; and plenty of it. A mass of improving its living conditions, of increasing, if you please, the effectiveness and the fullness of the home life."

Laura M. Cawley, New York, member of the New York and New Jersey smoke abatement board, addressing the convention on the subject "The gas industry's social obligation and economic" stated that the common cold costs the nation $80,000,000 annually and that the irritating effect of smoke produces a catarrhal condition of the membranes of the nose, sinus, throat and lungs, subjecting them to infection by pneumonia, bronchitis, influenza, the common cold, all air-borne diseases.

Lecture on Potatoes.

New Haven, Oct. 16.—(AP)—Dr. G. P. Clinton, botanist of the Connecticut Agricultural Experiment station will speak tomorrow at the annual potato field day of the Hartford and Tolland counties 300 bushel club which is to be held on E. Newdick of Maine will talk on "Better seed" in the afternoon, a plucking contest and seed cutting contest will be held.

The Innocent Cheat

by Ruth Dewey Groves
AUTHOR OF "RICH GIRL—POOR GIRL, ETC."

THIS HAS HAPPENED
HELEN PAGE feels indebted to and in love with her guardian, LEONARD BRENT. The latter changes his plans for her future after meeting a dying beggar, NEIL LIN, and tells the girl she is heiress of a millionaire named CUNNINGHAM. Brent takes her to the lonely old man and offers proofs which Cunningham accepts, as he has been searching for his dead daughter's child.

Among Helen's new friends are EVA ENNIS and her brother BOBERT, who falls in love with her. Brent becomes jealous, and plots to win Helen's affections by finding another locket like the one he had taken from Neil in to prove Helen the heiress. Hearing that a sudden shock would kill Cunningham, Brent's sty, admiringly admires the girl's good looks, but she did not feel very sympathetic but she did ask him what he was worried about.

"Well, Helen, for one thing," he answered cunningly. "Tell me, Eva, is this girl Shallimar serious with your brother?"
Eva hesitated to answer.
"Because I think their flirtation, or whatever it is, is making Helen unhappy," Brent continued, hoping to draw Eva into a tirade against Shallimar and thus learn what he wanted to know.
"I don't think Bob means a thing," Eva declared.

But they do spend a lot of his free time together.
Brent could barely conceal his satisfaction. "That's too bad," he said commiseratingly. "Poor Helen."
"I'm going to give Bob a piece of my mind one of these days," Eva threatened.
"Oh no," Brent hastened to protest. "Interference never does any good, Eva."
"Just the same..."
"Careful! Here comes Helen."
When Helen joined them, both saw that her limpid brown eyes were rimmed with dark circles. Then and there Eva made up her mind that she would speak to her brother and make her meaning plain.

"I've tickets for the horse show at the Garden," Brent said. "Would you like to use them, Helen? I won't be able to go with you." He said it to make his failure to include Eva less pointed. But he hoped, if Helen accepted the tickets, to see her in town.
Helen destroyed his hope instantly.
"Would you go with me, Eva?" she asked. To get away from him, she asked for a piece of money to make Brent's gift acceptable.
"When is it?" Eva asked.
"Tonight," Brent told her.
"Yes," Eva said to Helen.
And that night, Eva didn't go. It was just like when they returned to Yonkers. The chauffeur who had accompanied them to town because Helen felt she might not want to drive on the return trip, found some congenial friends while his employer was in the garden and when he showed up, something more than tardy, he called Helen sister.

She gave him some money and told him to take the train to Yonkers. And when she and Eva were just about a mile from Bramblewood they got a flat tire.
"Let's wait for someone to help us," Eva suggested, thinking of possible harm to her second best evening dress. Helen was not concerned with any such worry.
Five minutes later, while she was struggling with the heavy tire, and Eva was helping as best she could, a car approached, caught them in the glare of its headlights, slowed up and stopped.
"Hello," a familiar voice called.
"Want help?"
But it was not from the owner of the voice that help came.
"Here, give me that," someone else said gruffly, and Helen turned to find Bob beside her. Shallimar remained in his car.

Without a word she stepped aside and relinquished the task to him. When it was finished she thanked him with a quiet dignity that held him just enough and not too much of gratitude. Then she said that if he and Shallimar were returning to Bramblewood they'd all have supper.
In her mind, as well as his, was the memory of another invitation to supper. Helen turned quickly to get into her car, while Bob stood in the road, asking himself if she'd ever cared for him.

He wanted to tell her he wouldn't eat a bite of her food if it choked him, but he said nothing and Shallimar sang out that they'd be along in a minute.
"Why did you do that?" Eva broke out, unable to restrain herself.
"It will be fun," Helen answered, but Eva saw when they passed beneath a light that she had caught her underlip hard between her teeth.
Suddenly, as they drove through the gateway at Bramblewood, Helen said, "Eva, with me tonight. I've got to talk to somebody."
To Be Continued.

Helen herself did not know. Shallimar had ceased to confide in her at the end of the first week. Shallimar thought Helen was encouraging Brent, so she turned to helping Bob forget her with a will.
That he was succeeding—not at all. He knew now that any attempt to do so was only a farce. But Helen did not know this. She drew away from Shallimar as much as possible, and never mentioned Bob when she could avoid doing so. Eva Ennis was furious. But Helen would not let her talk about Shallimar. She simply shut herself behind a barrier of coolness that Eva could not penetrate.
At best Eva's efforts had not been whole-hearted. For she was concerned with a cross of her own. She had been forced to accept the fact that Brent was avoiding her. A few times, on her visits to New York, she had stayed away from him of her own will. But lately she had been unable to keep from calling his apartment as soon as she got to the city. Invariably the answer had been the same. Mr. Brent was out.

And she had few opportunities to see him at Bramblewood. Helen was too unhappy to be sociable, and Eva did not care to call uninvited in the evening. Brent seldom came in the afternoon.
Once they did meet alone there. "Don't be a fool!" Brent exclaimed when Eva spoke of his ill treatment of her. "If Helen gets to learn of this where will your future be? Remember that she is your patron. You wouldn't get to first base without her."
"I don't care for my future, for fame, for anything!" Eva cried, her anguish getting the better of her.
"But I do," Brent protested sharply. "I want to be proud of you. I think of what I can say to my friend when the world is ringing with acclaim for you. She is mine. Only her art is for the public. Her dear self is all for me. Think that, Eva. Don't spend it. I can't that dear, if it happened not to be when you called. My business is making great demands upon my time these days. I'm having a lot of trouble too. Everything going wrong. What I need, most right now, is a little sympathy and understanding."
Eva did not feel very sympathetic but she did ask him what he was worried about.

What can you do?" she flamed at him.
"I meant to tell you when I telephoned last night," Eva replied, "but as I've said, I have changed my mind."
"What is it?" Helen implored.
"Something to do with my parents?"
"Is enough to wreck your life?"
"I'm pining," Brent assured her, "but I do not choose to tell you any more about it at the present time. I shall never tell you unless you make it necessary. Give up this Ennis—give him up to your friend Shallimar if he wants him—and your life will run along happily enough, Helen, to satisfy any normal girl."
Helen's mouth set in stubborn silence.
"Let me caution you once more against losing your head," Brent went on.
Suddenly Helen threw her defiance at him. "I do not believe you," she cried.
"No matter," Brent said shortly. "Imagine you have lost him and way to Miss Morris, but remember that you promised not to do anything final without first letting me know. You can't afford to gamble with your entire life's happiness, Helen."
"It would be worse than gambling with it to marry you," she retorted. "I should be the most miserable person on earth."
"For that I really should show you no consideration whatsoever," Brent retorted, thinking it would be a pleasure to lay her spirit low by telling her the truth about the Cunningham inheritance.

His better judgment held him back. He knew full well that she would not consent to carry on the fraud, and while there was hope that he might win her he did not want to jeopardize his chance at the money Cyril Cunningham had left her.
"I want no consideration from you," Helen said. "I wish you would leave me alone."
"Won't you drive back to the city with me?" Brent coaxed. "You Ennis is available for the day. We'll lunch in the Oval Room at the Ritz and do a matinee. Come on, Helen. Don't be a fool and mope around here because of a young ass who an even worse character than the much abused 'average man.'"
"Please go," Helen begged, and turned to walk back to the house.
Brent followed in silence. And soon afterward took his departure.
But Helen was not to be rid of Brent. He telephoned twice a day, sent many gifts and called three or four times a week.
She knew, on these occasions, that he was seeking to discover just how far Shallimar had got with Bob Ennis.

The WOMAN'S DAY

New jobs for women develop daily. The latest one to come to my attention is that of "food stylist."

A New York department store with a large restaurant has hired a woman to grade up this particular line of the business, and to make it distinctive.
She is empowered to alter anything, or anybody, that seems to need it. She can fire the chef, re-decorate the entire establishment, or change the set-up in any way she likes.

She is to study the attitude of the waitress to the patron and the patron to the waitress to decide whether it would be to the interests of the store to emphasize atmosphere or salads; to cater to the working girls who eat and run, or to the leisured shopping class that eats and sits.
Comparative shopping on dining is a part of her program. She is to order food at all the smart restaurants, and study their systems, take notes on what should be copied and to draw Eva into a tirade against Shallimar and thus learn what he wanted to know.

"I don't think Bob means a thing," Eva declared.
"But they do spend a lot of his free time together."
Brent could barely conceal his satisfaction. "That's too bad," he said commiseratingly. "Poor Helen."
"I'm going to give Bob a piece of my mind one of these days," Eva threatened.

"Oh no," Brent hastened to protest. "Interference never does any good, Eva."
"Just the same..."
"Careful! Here comes Helen."
When Helen joined them, both saw that her limpid brown eyes were rimmed with dark circles. Then and there Eva made up her mind that she would speak to her brother and make her meaning plain.
"I've tickets for the horse show at the Garden," Brent said. "Would you like to use them, Helen? I won't be able to go with you." He said it to make his failure to include Eva less pointed. But he hoped, if Helen accepted the tickets, to see her in town.
Helen destroyed his hope instantly.
"Would you go with me, Eva?" she asked. To get away from him, she asked for a piece of money to make Brent's gift acceptable.

"When is it?" Eva asked.
"Tonight," Brent told her.
"Yes," Eva said to Helen.
And that night, Eva didn't go. It was just like when they returned to Yonkers. The chauffeur who had accompanied them to town because Helen felt she might not want to drive on the return trip, found some congenial friends while his employer was in the garden and when he showed up, something more than tardy, he called Helen sister.
She gave him some money and told him to take the train to Yonkers. And when she and Eva were just about a mile from Bramblewood they got a flat tire.
"Let's wait for someone to help us," Eva suggested, thinking of possible harm to her second best evening dress. Helen was not concerned with any such worry.
Five minutes later, while she was struggling with the heavy tire, and Eva was helping as best she could, a car approached, caught them in the glare of its headlights, slowed up and stopped.
"Hello," a familiar voice called.
"Want help?"
But it was not from the owner of the voice that help came.
"Here, give me that," someone else said gruffly, and Helen turned to find Bob beside her. Shallimar remained in his car.

Without a word she stepped aside and relinquished the task to him. When it was finished she thanked him with a quiet dignity that held him just enough and not too much of gratitude. Then she said that if he and Shallimar were returning to Bramblewood they'd all have supper.
In her mind, as well as his, was the memory of another invitation to supper. Helen turned quickly to get into her car, while Bob stood in the road, asking himself if she'd ever cared for him.

He wanted to tell her he wouldn't eat a bite of her food if it choked him, but he said nothing and Shallimar sang out that they'd be along in a minute.
"Why did you do that?" Eva broke out, unable to restrain herself.
"It will be fun," Helen answered, but Eva saw when they passed beneath a light that she had caught her underlip hard between her teeth.
Suddenly, as they drove through the gateway at Bramblewood, Helen said, "Eva, with me tonight. I've got to talk to somebody."
To Be Continued.

Helen herself did not know. Shallimar had ceased to confide in her at the end of the first week. Shallimar thought Helen was encouraging Brent, so she turned to helping Bob forget her with a will.
That he was succeeding—not at all. He knew now that any attempt to do so was only a farce. But Helen did not know this. She drew away from Shallimar as much as possible, and never mentioned Bob when she could avoid doing so. Eva Ennis was furious. But Helen would not let her talk about Shallimar. She simply shut herself behind a barrier of coolness that Eva could not penetrate.
At best Eva's efforts had not been whole-hearted. For she was concerned with a cross of her own. She had been forced to accept the fact that Brent was avoiding her. A few times, on her visits to New York, she had stayed away from him of her own will. But lately she had been unable to keep from calling his apartment as soon as she got to the city. Invariably the answer had been the same. Mr. Brent was out.

And she had few opportunities to see him at Bramblewood. Helen was too unhappy to be sociable, and Eva did not care to call uninvited in the evening. Brent seldom came in the afternoon.
Once they did meet alone there. "Don't be a fool!" Brent exclaimed when Eva spoke of his ill treatment of her. "If Helen gets to learn of this where will your future be? Remember that she is your patron. You wouldn't get to first base without her."
"I don't care for my future, for fame, for anything!" Eva cried, her anguish getting the better of her.
"But I do," Brent protested sharply. "I want to be proud of you. I think of what I can say to my friend when the world is ringing with acclaim for you. She is mine. Only her art is for the public. Her dear self is all for me. Think that, Eva. Don't spend it. I can't that dear, if it happened not to be when you called. My business is making great demands upon my time these days. Hints On How To Keep Well

CHEMICAL REACTIONS ARE INDEX TO STATE OF ONE'S HEALTH.

BY DR. MORRIS FISHER
Editor of Journal of the American Medical Association and of Hygiene the Health Magazine

When an individual is at complete muscular rest, certain chemical and physical reactions are going on nevertheless in his body. In order to obtain some measure of the activity of the body under these circumstances, methods have been devised for measuring what is called "basal metabolism."

The person fasts for from 14 to 15 hours and rests for at least 90 minutes before being tested. It is also best, if possible, to have a calm attitude toward the test and people who are likely to be nervous should have the method explained to them before they are submitted to the test. The temperature of the room should be such that the person neither perspires nor shivers.

He is then tested in a machine which collects the air containing carbon dioxide that is breathed out by the subject. The amount of oxygen that is breathed in, and on the basis of these factors one can determine the extent of the chemical activity.

Basal metabolism is usually active in childhood because children are active and growing. From adolescence until middle life, the basal metabolism is maintained at a fairly constant level. It then gradually declines until old age. The basal metabolism is much greater than normal. Anger and fear temporarily raise the basal metabolism. Thus it was found raised in a number of patients who were informed that they were going to have an operation. During sleep the basal metabolism is less than during waking hours and it is also slightly less after physical exercise in many people.

In cases of exophthalmic goiter or overaction of the thyroid gland, the basal metabolism is greater than normal. Such people are exceedingly nervous and are inclined to lose weight.
In cases of obesity or overweight, the basal metabolism is likely to be lower than normal and is reflected in the fact that such people put on flesh.

YOUR CHILDREN

by Olive Roberts Barton
CREATOR of NEA Service Line

It's almost impossible for a mother to get a proper perspective of her own children.
By perspective I mean picture, the kind of view a stranger would have if he were to live in the house for a day or a week. Strangers can tell us a lot of things about our children that we never suspect ourselves. And not necessarily strangers; either; neighbors, friends, or our own relatives.

People hesitate to tell us about our children. I think it speaks pretty well for human nature that we hear as little criticism as we do about our families.
No family is perfect. That is the interesting part of it; a mother may acknowledge her own shortcomings, or her husband's, but it just isn't in mother nature to see anything wrong with the children.
They're Prejudiced Critics.
Add this mental or emotional blind spot to the lack of perspective that is bound to result from close contact, and the mother does not live who can give an unprejudiced criticism of her own. So true is this that in making the effort to adjust her viewpoint as conscientious mothers so often do, she is entirely likely to lean backwards—go too far in the other direction—and arrive at the conclusion that a certain erring child is worse than he really is.

A few suggestions often help a mother to get a viewpoint on her children. Here are a few of them:
Is there a baby to whom all the children have to give in?
Is there an older brother or sister who dominates the younger ones, and who takes it for granted that because he is the older all good things should come to him first?
Is there one child in the family who has subsidized another to wait on him. Joey, run and get me my book. Joey, run and see what time it is. Joey, there's the doorbell; see what it is?
Is there one child who picks up, helps with the dishes, watches the baby, turns out the lights after the other children, and is just general all-around helper because he has undertaken the other children's responsibilities, his conscience being more agile than theirs?

Does one child get more spending money than another?
Is Praise Undivided?
Does one child hear all the nice things and the others nothing?
When there is a mean errand to be done such as sending back bad eggs to the grocery store, is one child always picked to do it because he is too obedient to fuss about it?
Does one child tease and torment another?
Does a girl have a lovely room to herself and does a boy sleep in the confusion of the living-room?
Is a boy with a strong will and ideas of his own referred to as "a bad boy"?
Does one of the children cry easily and the rest of the family make him still more wretched by calling him "cry-baby"?
A glance over this list may catch a few of us napping. One paragraph may be the eye-opener that us a new slant on the picture. These little notes in family life can and should be remedied.

Football Week Is Being Observed At High School

McCluskey Brothers Seek Crowe's Crown

Annual Cross-Country Run Here Thanksgiving Day Morning Promises To Be Biggest and Best Ever.

The annual five-mile, cross-country run to be staged by the Recreation Centers on Thanksgiving Day morning promises to be the biggest and best since it was inaugurated three years ago.

The number of entries is expected to far exceed that of previous years. Director Lloyd says that arrangements are in the works for teams to compete from Connecticut Agricultural College, Hartford High, East Hartford High, Buxley High of Hartford and West Hartford High.

Among the local favorites will be two former winners, Johnny McCluskey and Jim Crowe. Another local favorite is "Little Joe" McCluskey, brilliant mile runner for Manchester High who is now enrolled at Fordham. Joe is training diligently in New York for the race here and has high hopes of placing first among the Manchester runners at least. The McCluskey boys are brothers and their family dual promises to be one well worth watching. Two years ago when John won the race, he rode along side on a bicycle and rased out pieces of lemon to suck.

At least three other local runners have announced their intentions of competing. They are Sammy Haugh, Billy Sahrak and James Craig, the latter a former Cornell track man.

There will be 15 prizes in all, seven for the first seven to place, whether local or not, three for the first three Manchester runners to reach the finish line and the other five for the team winning first place.

Teams can enter more than five runners but the team with the five highest point getters will be declared the winner, points being awarded according to positions. The race this year will be over the same course—starting at front of the High school at 11 a. m., down Main and South Main streets to Mt. Nebo, down on to Charter Oak street near Roger's Paper Mill, up Charter Oak street to Highland Park, then left down Highland onto Porter and then East Center for the home stretch down Main street to the high school.

All Manchester runners planning to compete are urged to report at the School Street Rec at 7:45 o'clock. Director Lloyd wishes to have the men train together and is willing to do whatever is within his power to get them in the best possible physical condition. Training sessions will be held Tuesday and Thursday evenings and Saturday afternoon.

SCREENED PASSES NOT ALLOWED NOW

Rules Committee Comes To Aid of Defense by Preventing Aid for Receiver.

Editor's Note: This is the third of a series of seven articles on the new football rules.

The "screened" forward pass receives its death knell in the 1929 football rules.

Several years ago, "Pop" Warner, then at Pittsburgh, developed a pass that was high unstopable because it deployed a human screen between the receiver and the defensive team, a skirmish line that mowed down everything in its path.

The rules committee immediately forbade its use by refusing to permit the side making the pass from interfering in any way with an opponent until the ball was touched.

"Vision Screen." Coaches then devised what came to be known as "passive interference," which meant nothing more than that one or two players who were not eligible to receive the pass were rushed down the field to act as a "vision screen," helping the eligibles and obstructing the view and right-of-way of the secondary defense.

Even this has now been splintered. The new rules carry this provision: "On passes which cross the line of scrimmage, such players as are ineligible shall be penalized for interference if they in any way obstruct the right-of-way of defensive players."

No Benefit of Doubt. Moreover, the fathers of the game put teeth into the edit by adding that "in case of doubt as to such interference... the penalty shall be inflicted."

This will have more effect than might be apparent at first glance. A game that decided a championship in the mid-west and another that resulted in one of the most surprising upsets of the season last year both were decided by deliberate interference which enabled the winning touchdowns to be scored.

DREAM BLASTED

Matanzas, Cuba.—Material valued at $130,000 and fourteen months' labor were lost in a few moments when a storm carried away a pipe line, a mile and a half long, which was being constructed to harness the power of the Gulf Stream. The work was under charge of Dr. Georges Claude, French scientist.

Chow An-han, commissioner of public safety in Changsha, China, rules that women must dress after the fashion of their ancestors. Enforcing that edict ought to provide some valuable experience for Chow An-han.

Up and Over Goes Cardinal Giant

After all, there's nothing like a football game for real action and thrills. Fans who saw Pop Warner's 1929 eleven win from the Olympic club team 6 to 0, witnessed a freak bit of tackling by Herb Fleishacker, giant Stanford halfback. The cardinal husky made a desperate dive over the sprawling form of an interference runner to bring down Moltzen Kaer, former All-American halfback on the Olympic club team after he had received a punt. A disgruntled Cardinal is shown on the ground at the right where the tricky Kaer eluded him.

Writers Name Fonseca Most Valuable Player

Cleveland's League Leading Batter Beats Out Dykes for Unofficial Honor; Babe Ruth Seventh, Simmons Eighth.
BY ALAN GOULD

New York, Oct. 16.—(AP)—Lew Fonseca, Cleveland first baseman and now batting champion of the American League, is the "Most Valuable Player" of the league for 1929, based upon the decision of a committee of baseball writers representing each city in the circuit.

At the request of the sports editor of the Associated Press this committee named by the baseball writers covering the world's series, cast its ballots in the absence of an official selection by the American League, which abolished this year the award, it had made annually since 1922. The National League makes its last official selection this year, to be announced late tonight.

The veteran Fonseca won the unofficial contest from coplayers in the ranks of the world's champion Athletics because he was rated higher on seven of the eight lists prepared by the baseball experts.

Jimmy Dykes whose all around infield play was a vital factor in the success of the A's, was the favorite choice among the Mackmead and Fonseca, although receiving only one vote for first place, had three votes for second place, two for third and one for fourth to make up a total of 48 points.

Three ballots for first place, and one for second place, totaling 31 points, Heinie Manush, St. Louis outfielder, placed third with 26 votes.

Tony Lazzeri, second baseman, topped the Yankee choices with 22 votes but Babe Ruth, 1923 winner, was just behind him with 19.

The results of their balloting, based on eight points for first place, seven for second, etc:

Lew Fonseca, Cleveland	46
Jimmy Dykes, Philadelphia	31
Heinie Manush, St. Louis	26
Charlie Gehringer, Detroit	25
Joe Judge, Washington	24
Tony Lazzeri, New York	22
Babe Ruth, New York	19
Al Simmons, Philadelphia	16
Jimmy Fox, Philadelphia	15
Marty McManus, Detroit	9
Mickey Cochrane, Philadelphia	8
William Kamm, Chicago	8
Oscar Melillo, St. Louis	7
Alphonse Thomas, Chicago	7
Carl Reynolds, Chicago	7
Earl Averill, Cleveland	6
Russell Scarritt, Boston	4
Jack Rothrock, Boston	3
Milton Blue, St. Louis	3
Milton Gaston, Boston	2
Joe Cronin, Washington	1

WRIGLEY TO BUILD STRONGER OUTFIT

Cubs' Owner Is After New Pitchers and Third Baseman; Vance and Whitney Mentioned.

Chicago, Oct. 16.—(AP)—William Wrigley, Jr., owner of the downhearted Cubs, promises some more interesting news items for the hot stove league this winter.

Back home from Philadelphia where his Bruins absorbed their final World Series knockout punches, Mr. Wrigley is planning for 1930. His big bankroll is out again and he is after one or two established pitching stars and a third baseman who can hit as well as field.

Sport Selected Subject For English Discussion

Idea Is To Widen Students' Knowledge of Football in Effort to Stimulate Added Interest in Gridiron Activities.

"Football Week" is being observed at the Manchester High school in an effort to stimulate added interest in the popular sport in that institution and to teach the game to others who have found it too much like Greek.

The subject is being discussed in all the home rooms, the history of the local school on the gridiron being given particular attention. Football is also being stressed in the various English classes under the supervision of Principal C. P. Quincy, Faculty Manager E. M. Bailey, Coach T. F. Kelley and Miss Avis Walsh, head of the English department.

This does not mean that regular English work is being side-tracked for sports, but rather that football has been chosen as the subject for the oral and written essays just as Fire Prevention Week was last week. Miss Walsh is of the opinion that the injection of such timely subjects into the regular school curriculum induces the students to take added interest.

A monster football rally has been arranged for the regular Thursday afternoon assembly in connection with "Football Week" and the scheduled game with Meriden High to be played at the West Side field Friday afternoon. While Manchester admittedly hasn't much of a chance to cop the C. C. L. championship this year it is more than anxious to beat Meriden.

The reason is as plain as broad daylight. Meriden holds two legs on the trophy at stake for the three-time winner of the title, having won the championship in 1928 and 1927. Manchester won it last year and can prevent Meriden from winning by Friday's game. Hence the fact that the Meriden game is the season's objective.

Meriden has been beaten once, West Hartford turning the trick by a 3 to 0 score and if Manchester can come through on the big end of the score Meriden's chances of winning the trophy will be at least delayed. The loss of all but four regulars of last year's local eleven has crippled its 1929 chances, but Coach Kelley is anxious to block Meriden this season and win the trophy himself the next year when plenty of good material will be available.

GERMAN NAVY GAINS

Berlin.—The mercantile fleets of the world gained 1.7 per cent during the fiscal year. The total world tonnage gain was 63,100,000. German tonnage gained eight per cent. English tonnage was first, with 30,000,000; United States second, with 11,800,000; Japan third with 4,200,000; and Germany fourth.

The Nut Cracker

What a dull day! Not a single Iowa football player charged with anything!

The big ten ought to send a corps of intelligence officers over to England to study the methods of Scotland Yard.

Crime news always picks up at this time of year, what with murders and charges against Iowa players.

Iowa's captain, is a dancing master in his spare time. He probably accounts for the fact he's in such good condition this fall.

After wrestling for hours during the hot summer with the handicap of heat and saxophones, he ought to find football restful.

SCREEN-GRID RADIO THE THING TODAY. With the radio season going full blast, many are the reasons attributed to the successful season.

Screen-Grid tubes, allow for ten times the amplification of the old-style tubes, and are therefore necessarily incorporated in the radios of today. It is a recognized fact that any radios out this year without Screen-Grid tubes, are really behind the times.

With Screen-Grid tubes, selectivity is better, sensitivity is greater, and tone is more real, true, and natural. Atwater Kent radios are more popular this year than ever, and up to the present time, the factory has passed the 5,000,000 mark in its manufacture of Atwater Kent Sets.

Here in Manchester, Kemp's, Inc., local agents for the Atwater Kent line, report a big increase over last year's business, and attribute the reason for the increase to the fact that the public, wanting the latest and best in every line, are flocking to Atwater Kent for its radio.

South Main St. Farmer Has Ex-President's Tub

Edward A. Jones, Just Over the Line in Glastonbury, Takes His Bath Where Cleveland Did.

Edward A. Jones of Glastonbury, just over the line from Manchester, believes that the ordinary garden variety of bath tubs does not fit in his domicile. He has held that view over a period of years, since the time he passed the New York residence of ex-President Grover Cleveland on Madison Avenue where an auction was in progress.

Mr. Jones was in town picking up knick-knacks for his Glastonbury farm, so he sauntered in to give the ex-president's goods the once over. Things were going at a pretty high figure but the Connecticut farmer was determined to take away some little mementos for his own use.

The proposed standardized divorce act was prepared by a sub-committee of which Hollis R. Bailey, Boston, is chairman. A uniform child welfare act promulgated 14 years as a maximum age and defining "gainful occupation" to mean "gainful pursuit of any trade, occupation or branch of industry or labor. Except agriculture, domestic service and athletic games" was submitted by the social welfare section.

They may pertain to grammar, history, etiquette, drawing or whatnot. See if you can find them. Then look at the scrambled word below—and unscramble it, by switching the letters around. SENSE and NONSENSE

Modern Interpretation
Under a spreading chestnut,
A stubborn auto stands;
And Smith an angry man is he,
With trouble on his hands.

He curses softly to himself
And crawls beneath the car;
And wonders why it didn't bust,
Before he got so far.

The carburetor seems to be
The cause of all his woe;
He tightens half a dozen bolts
But still it doesn't go.

And then he tries the steering gears,
But finds no trouble there;
Until, wet with perspiration then,
He quits in sheer despair.

He squats beside the road
To give his brain a chance to cool,
And ponders on his training
In a correspondence school.

And then he starts the job once more,
Until by chance he's seen
The cause of all the trouble—
He's out of gasoline.

FLAPPER FANNY SAYS:

People who are timid enough to be scared in the dark usually keep it that kind of a secret.

Aviation Note
We will believe that aviation has really arrived when we see a two-passenger airplane go by with seven or eight high-school students seated in it.

An international association of travel agencies estimates that automobile tourists spend a billion dollars annually in the open spaces. The big outdoors is getting overcrowded.

Lo! the great open spaces
Are full of hot-dog places;
Cowboys and cattle workers
Give away to soda-jerkers;
Fustlers with modern tricks
Brand motor mavericks,
Billy the Kid, they say,
Keeps a garage today!

Niagara Falls has moved exactly seven miles in 30,000 years. Which ties it for first place with a small Sunday afternoon automobile traffic.

Another thing that doesn't turn out as it should is the automobile just ahead of you.

The man who honks his horn the most is likely to forget that the other fellow has a right to honk his horn, too. A honked horn won't pay damages.

WHEN YOU HOPE YOU DON'T INTRUDE, YOU USUALLY DO.

Nature keeps things balanced. Europe has the most wars, but we have nine times as many automobiles.

A lit-up driver is a poor substitute for headlights.

Judge: Speeding, were you? Ten dollars fine.

College Student: Can you change a twenty?

Judge: Nope. Twenty dollars fine.

Wife (as car splutters and stops): "What's the matter now?"

Hubby: "Engine missing."

Wife: "Well, for the love of Pete walk back and find it!"

Carefulness may not prevent every accident but it's a cinch that it will never CAUSE one!

WHAT CAN YA DO?

Husband: I say, darling, I've been thinking about that argument we had and I'm beginning to agree with you.

Wife: But it's too late. I've changed my mind.—Tit-Bits.

A man had been hauled out of the sea, seemingly dead.

THE TINYMITE

(READ THE STORY, THEN COLOR THE PICTURE)

The Weeones finally cried, "Hey, stop! We are so dizzy we will drop. This swinging is a heap of fun, but we have had enough. Kind Scouty meant to give us fun, but now just look what he has done. He's sent the swing away up high. We think that he's too rough." So Scouty cried, "Well, goodness me," wee Scouty cried, "I think you've had a dandy ride. I didn't mean to tire you out. I'll stop the swing right now. When you are safely on your feet, I'll take my turn at this fine treat. You Weeones all can push me. You can find a way somehow."

The swing then died down to a stop. The Weeones shouted, "All right, hop right in if you want to. We will push as best we can." So Scouty promptly hopped aboard and in the air he shortly soared. The swing swung high as all the little Weeones pushed and ran.

The other Tynies also had turns at swinging. They were glad when everyone had had enough. "Twas getting rather late," "I think," said Copsy, "it is best if we all flop down for a rest. Near yonder stump there's nice soft grass. For sleeping 'twill be great."

The Weeones said, "You all can sleep and very close watch we will keep. We're not the least bit sleepy, so we'll all stay wide awake. We'll let you snooze the whole night long and promise nothing will go wrong. You'll hear us shout, 'Wake up here,' when the dawn begins to break."

The Tynies slept and all was still. Then suddenly there came a thrill. A funny looking, long-necked bird among the Weeones hopped. The lads were scared. They all kept still. The bird grabbed each one in his bill, and lifted them up high. Within a tree stump they were dropped.

BOARD PAYS BILLS, ORDERS NEW TRUCK

Selectmen Find Heap of Checks Need Signing—Routine Business.

Town Treasurer George Wadell reported that all other town equipment was in good shape but recommended that the two large trucks be painted. No action was taken on the recommendation.
