A RUM RUNNER'S RENDEZVOUS

This 20-room mansion at Highlands, N. J., was the headquarters and arsenal for the largest liquor smuggling ring in the country. Prohibition forces who raided it found the upper balcony, visible here, was an observation post, equipped with telescopes. Machine guns were placed to repel attacks. Other arms, a quantity of ammunition and bombs were stored in underground vaults and passageways. Liquor was stored in the basement. The interior was like a men's well-appointed club, and here powerful barons directed an organization of tremendous proportions, including their own rum fleet plying from Bermuda and Canada.

FINDING IN DEATH PUZZLES WAPPING

How Drake Was Wounded, Why Door Was Locked Outside Still Unanswered.

Despite the fact that investigating officials, expressed the opinion today that Frederick Drake, middle-aged Wapping farmer, died from a self-inflicted gunshot wound, the coroner is puzzled by the only door leading into the shack in which he was found dead, was fastened from the outside. Opinion in Wapping where both Mr. and Mrs. Drake were well known seemed evenly divided today, many remaining in the belief that foul play was involved. The latter group based opinion on the number of deep gashes on Drake's head which they did not believe could result from falls. General opinion was that Drake's death was due to a drunken brawl.

CUBS AND MAJORS ARGUE ON SERIES

Football Teams Agree on Dates But Wrangle Over Players and Receipts.

After forty minutes of discussion this afternoon between the managers of the Cubs and Majors arrangements for the annual town championship football series between the north and south ends of the town were still incomplete. The dates for the games was the only important decision reached. If a later agreement is reached the first game will be played at Mt. Nebo, home gridiron of the town champion Cubs on November 17, and the second at Hickey's Grove, November 24. In case a third game is necessary, this, too, will be played at Hickey's Grove, December 1, the Majors' manager having won the toss of coin.

As usual, the main points of difficulty were the division of the receipts and the eligibility question. The meeting was held in room five at the School Street Recreation Center at 1 o'clock this afternoon. Manager Peter J. Vendrillo represented the Cubs' interests while William H. Griffin was there in a similar capacity for the Majors. Thomas W. Stowe, sports editor of The Herald, was the only other person present.

Obscure Actors Gain Stardom In New Hits

"June Moon" Satire on Tin Pan Alley is Riot of Comedy.

BY GILBERT SWAN

New York, Oct. 18.—At a moment when theme songs are crashing through the ether, crooning from phonograph records or bombarding the ears via the talking picture, nothing could be timelier nor funnier than the Lardner-Kaufman piece, "June Moon," the immediate success of which will surely make Sam Harris, the producer, thankful that he once gave up the prize-fight game.

It's the sort of play which brings the gag-writing columnists back a second and a third night, to jot the mood of rib-tickling lines down on their cuffs.

Well, when George Jean Nathan laughs—that's the news! And it may be fully recorded that this persistent nose-thumper remained until the very last curtain—an event almost as rare as the play itself.

"June Moon" is an adaptation of Lardner's fine short-story, "Some Like Them Cold." It concerns a world of piano thumpers and rhytmeters, such as cluttered Tin Pan Alley in the days before Hollywood lured them out to the cobalt hills of Santa Monica.

This is a land where young men from Schenectady leave good jobs in the General Electric laboratories to try their hand at fyming June with moon, love with dove and above—a world of banalities, maudlinities and sentimentalities, even of the utterest drivel. Tin Pan Alley always did lend itself to biting persons in the writing business with knives that have been dipped in high humor, has happily tied up with George Kaufman, equally capable at the wise-crack and the satiric. The result is a "sell-out" and if you are putting it on your list of plays to see when in New York—and wise playgoers will do this—it would be well to mail a request for reservations well in advance of starting eastward.

Jean Dixon... send audiences rolling

"June Moon," by the way, is also responsible for another bit of extraordinarily fine acting on the part of a performer who has been more or less obscure in the big Broadway parade. This is Jean Dixon, who is cast as the wife of a typical Tin Panner. From her rocking-chair seat, the wife has listened year in and year out to the endless round of sicks and sighs and such. She it is who, with cynical disgust, supplies the majority of devastating quips which send the audiences rolling in their chairs.

There is no better bit of acting to be found in the play sector. Which reminds me that this season has been particularly kind to players who have, somehow, just jogged along. For instance, over in Eva Le Gallienne's repertory theater, a young woman named Josephine Hutchinson is doing herself and her company proud as "Mlle. Bourrat" in Claude Anet's gentle comedy. And Muriel Kirkland will not soon be forgotten for her work in "Strictly Dishonorable."

Meanwhile the Theater Guild, which has grown from an experiment into a national institution with branches up and down the land, has opened its season with an importation from Berlin which is not likely to be among the productions this organization will send out to its outside theaters. As a season-opener, "Karl and

Alice Brady... a Guild player now, satire, and this particular comedy strins it to the last ballad refrain: Ring Lardner, one of the handiest

Anna" was considerably under the Guild's better efforts. It was an Enoch-Ardenish sort of tale, written around the late war. Its author had the excellent idea of bringing Enoch up-to-date and allowing the three principles the advantages of modern psychological treatment. But, as it turned out, the presentation of Alice Brady as a Guild player was quite the most important event of the evening. Miss Brady is, and has been, one of Manhattan's most capable and charming stage personalities. It is her playing which lifts "Karl and Anna" at those moments when it is lifted.

There has been, too, a veritable invasion of old-time favorites in plays which have been disappointing for one reason or another. Jane Cowl, for instance, found herself cast in "Jenny," a bit so light and filmy that only a Jane Cowl could see it through. William Faversham came back after a long absence in a Zendeoese entertainment, "Her Friend the King," which is a deliberate plunge into the land of make-believe. Walter Hampden brought forth again that fragile Spanish piece, "Bonds of Interest," which has not been seen hereabouts since the Guild was taking its toddling steps. Already Elsie Ferguson and Otis Skinner had found themselves carrying so-so dramas on their capable shoulders.

Other new productions include "The Nut Farm," a farce concerning the Jersey boy and the Hollywood girl; "Divided Honors," which had few honors to divide, and "Scotland Yard," a mystery play dependent upon facial surgery to make the principal character appear to be another person.

NOT THE LAST CHANCE
"Constable, catch that man. He tried to kiss me."
"Don't worry, miss. With your beauty you will soon get another."

The drawing-room tragedy that began in the dining-room

NOT SO many years ago she would only laugh gaily when asked the secret of her alluring complexion, sparkling eyes, radiant manner. She hadn't the slightest idea. But now, so unhappy over her wan, haggard face—her dull eyes and constant fatigue, she was as much at a loss to know why her beauty had gone. It couldn't be her diet... she was so careful about what she ate.

and distributes it through the digestive system. Gently exercising the intestines—sweeping out poisons. In a part-bran product there is seldom sufficient bulk to completely perform this work. That is why doctors recommend ALL-BRAN.

ALL-BRAN works as nature works. How much better than habit-forming drugs whose dose must be increased—which may injure the system.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is an inviting cereal to eat with milk or cream. Delicious with fruits or honey added.

Use it in cooking—recipes on package. Mix it with other cereals. Eat two tablespoons daily—chronic cases, with every meal. Serve it in some form regularly and you will protect your family from dread constipation.

ALL-BRAN is sold by all grocers. Served at hotels, cafeterias. On diners. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

Unfortunately, her diet was to blame. For in her menus she had neglected to include dishes with that all-important element—roughage. The result was constipation which was poisoning her system—stealing her beauty.

What a pity so many women and men do not realize the value of roughage! And more—do not know that Kellogg's ALL-BRAN—a delicious cereal—can supply roughage and bring sure relief from constipation!

Why ALL-BRAN is so effective Kellogg's ALL-BRAN furnishes bulk in most generous quantity. This bulk absorbs moisture

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN

Guaranteed! Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is sold with this dietetic guarantee. Eat it according to directions. If it does not relieve constipation, we will refund the purchase price.

BICYCLES RETAIN POPULARITY HERE

Serve Purpose in Getting Folks Around the Town At a Minimum Cost.

Manchester, contrary to the prevailing opinion, is not altogether motor minded. If you doubt this statement, count the bicycles parked in the rear of the Trade and High schools every day. This morning by actual count, there were 72 wheels in sight and a possible check-up of wheels owned and used by Manchester residents throughout the year would run into the hundreds. Back in the days when the muttoy chop sideburns were synonymous with leg 'o' mutton sleeves the lowly bicycle, now so bitterly hated by the speeding motorist, was a means of exercise and recreation. At the present time it serves but one purpose; that of getting the owner to work or school and getting him back again without unnecessary fatigue and at a saving of time. Come are the days when a man will leave his new car outside the shop or school 350 working days. Other than the expense involved (and it proves to be an expense in more ways than one) comes the advisability of leaving a new paint job in the glare of summer's sun and the frigidty of winter, when the investment of a few dollars in a second hand wheel will serve the purpose better. By this means the factory car can be kept under cotton wraps—spotless and clean—for the week-end trip. The majority of those that use the bicycle as a means of getting to and from their work or school live within a radius of two miles of such location, thus combining a means of exercise and transportation at a minimum cost. The all-day student and the factory worker have come to realize in this revival of the old time custom, the benefits to be derived by even this limited form of exertion in the fresh air. Certainly, the wheel as we have known it will never supersede the auto in getting to and from points of some distance from one another, but from several angles the "bike" is sure to fit the needs of some who fail to get a kick out of an unnecessary clean-up of the car after a week's parking in the elements.

NEW FIRE ORDER

Chicago, Oct. 18.—(AP)—Fire Commissioner Albert W. Goodrich today ordered movie theater owners to discontinue the practice of allowing patrons to stand in the outer lobbies while waiting to gain admission to the theaters. Theater owners said they would fight the order in court. The practice of the theaters has been to sell tickets and then permit the purchasers to stand in line until seats become available. The fire marshal said this is contrary to the law which requires that the lobby must not be obstructed.

CABINET MEMBERS ATTEND BANQUET

Five of Them Help Celebrate the Canalization of the Ohio River.

Pittsburgh, Oct. 18.—(AP)—A river pageant today will close Pittsburgh's celebration of the canalization of the Ohio river, a project which links this industrial center with the seven seas.

The celebration opened with a banquet last night, in which five members of President Hoover's Cabinet, seven railroad executives and other luminaries hailed the completion of the nine foot channel, the $100,000,000 project stretching from the historic point here to Cairo, Ills., where the Ohio joins the Mississippi.

James Francis Burke, former representative in Congress, in the keynote address, suggested creation of an "American Council of Transportation, headed by the great leaders at this table."

General W. W. Atterbury, president of the Pennsylvania railroad, approved the suggestion. Secretary of the Treasury Andrew W. Mellon, Secretary of War James W. Good, Secretary of Commerce Robert P. Lamont, P. E. Crowley, president of the New York Central railroad and Governor John S. Fisher were among the principal speakers.

The Cabinet members here in addition to Secretaries Mellon, Lamont, and Good were Secretary of the Navy Charles F. Adams, and Secretary of Labor James J. Davis.

BINGHAM QUIZ

Manchester's principal industry figured in the quizzing of Senator Hiram Bingham before the lobby investigating committee of the United States Senate yesterday.

The silk industry, replied Senator Bingham, "has been one of the hardest hit of all the industries of New England, and the principal silk industry of Connecticut is located in South Manchester where Cheney Brothers have their factory; and it is well known and shown in sworn testimony that there has been extreme difficulty in meeting competition in Asia, particularly in Japan."

The principal impression produced by the "grilling" of Senator Bingham was that, whether or no the senator was especially well informed on Connecticut tariff needs before his employment of Mr. Eyanon as an expert advisor, he has certainly a lot of information on the subject right now.

The next impression to be gathered from the episode is that there is, among Bingham's political opponents in the Senate, a much more lively desire to put a crimp in the assured self-confidence of the Connecticut senator, who has always refused to bow in awe before the majesty of his senior associates, than there is to disclose something reprehensible in the manner of establishing tariff schedules.

In other words, the time and facilities of the Senate investigating committee are being employed for the exploitation of the personal dislike of a few of the Senate veterans for a comparatively new member who refuses to know to them.

FRANCE'S DEFENSES

Disclosure that, in the face of the Briand-Kellogg pact, the Lacarno agreements, the League of Nations and the generally pacific tendencies of the times, France is planning the expenditure of vast sums on frontier defenses is exerting a depressing influence on some of the enthusiasts for world peace.

While it is certainly regrettable that nothing so far accomplished or in prospect has sufficed to endow the French people with a sense of security equal to that imparted by vast military defenses, we as a nation will not be in any position to criticize them until we have ourselves abandoned the idea of a navy sufficient for defense.

France's imagined need takes the form of subterranean entrenchments and secret gun emplacements, while our imagined need takes the form of naval parity, there is no appreciable difference in the principles involved.

Furthermore, if the news dispatches about France's defensive operations are correct, it is worthy of note that they are directed toward the security of her alpine frontier more than to further strengthening of her boundaries contiguous to her ancient enemy Germany.

Even at the best to be hoped for, there can be no positive certainty of permanent peace in Continental Europe until the policies of both Russia and Italy, each of which must be admitted to be in something of a state of flux, shall have shaken down to their bearings.

The very shift of her precautionary measures in such great degree is a sort of expression of her belief that the long era of strife with her northern neighbor is over.

ARMORED CARS Now about the armored car. Come to think of it, in the light of what happened in New York, yesterday, the armored car employed so frequently for the transportation of large sums of money may turn out to have the inherent weakness of great citadels, "impregnable" trenches, and huge armaments generally—they are all right as long as you can hang on to them but the devil-and-all if they do by any chance fall into the hands of the enemy.

The New York car in question happened to be stolen, it is believed, by a traitorous chauffeur, who later abandoned it but neglected to abandon the sixty-odd thousand dollars it had contained. Still, it is conceivable that even in an armored car such a single defender, if loyal, might be shot and the wheeled fortress captured by bandits. Then what? How are a lot of unarmored cops on motorcycles or on foot going to get the armored car away from the enemy.

Suppose you have naval parity between two maritime powers. Let them engage in war and the parity would not only surely go blooey through the victory of one side or the other, through better shooting or better luck, but the victor would emerge with what was left of both navies while the other would have none at all. Then the loser would wish to goodness he had had no navy to start with, for he would now be outclassed only half as much as he is.

The gunman who grabs a money bag from a foot messenger has no particular advantage over the cop who sees him—in a stolen armored car he is cock of the walk. There is something in this for the ultra "preparationness" advocates to think over.

DIFFERENT ROBISONS

Persons following the Fall trial should not confuse the identities of Admiral Samuel S. Robison and Rear Admiral John K. Robison retired. The former officer's record is free from any suggestion of such activities as those in which the latter, by his own admission on many formal occasions including the present Fall trial, engaged.

It was John K. Robison who, in his capacity of engineer-in-chief of the Navy, suggested to Edward L. Doheny—so he himself testifies—that as there was imminent danger of war with a "Pacific naval power" the creation of a huge naval oil reserve was necessary and that it would have to be created through the assistance of private oil capital.

It was this "Pacific war scare" on which the Elk Hills reserve transaction rode to its disastrous conclusion. That the scare was sedulously promoted by this same John K. Robison is well established. What would be extremely interesting to know is whether or not it was not invented by him as well.

The general public did not hear anything about that "war scare" until the investigation into the oil scandals, two or three years later.

But the Navy personnel did, and believed it.

There isn't the slightest reason to believe that the United States and Japan were anywhere near war. But there wasn't a young Navy officer who wasn't all ribbed up with "inside information" that such a conflict was due to break at any minute.

For these reasons it is important to remember the distinction between the two Admirals Robison.

OVER SMART

Too much cleverness on the part of the lawbreakers appears to have been the undoing of one huge bootleg ring operating along the New Jersey and Long Island shores. When the rum runners got to the point where they "went on the air" from an unlicensed broadcasting station and exchanged communications between ship and shore in secret code they became romantic—but they spilled the beans. They weren't quite clever enough to realize that ultimately the authorities would be sure to decode a single message, and that after that they might as well be doing their chatting in plain English.

IN NEW YORK

New York, Oct. 18.—Down Mott street way, where Chinatown's alleys weave their picturesque patterns, the Chinese movie has arrived at last.

And after observing a few of the thrillers brought over from Shanghai, via the Great Wall Film Corporation, I'm quite willing to pass up the elegant cinema palaces of Broadway.

The audience, made up almost entirely of Chinese, is quite without the price of admission. The films, largely of the blood-and-gore variety of the old nickelodeons, are like nothing to be found hereabouts. Not even the lower Bowery, which has clung closely to its "Wild Jake, the Terror of Tuskaloose," can compete.

I'm told that the censors have been driven white-haired cutting out the scorching love scenes and the shots, which may be well in accordance with the Oriental notions, but which are several thousand miles away from the Occidental ideas.

The captions appear both in Chinese characters and in literal English translations. And these are funnier than any Keystone comedy. In a picture recently unreeled, a Chinese actor came rushing upon the scene, accompanied by a caption reading: "What keeps you such a hurry."

When the heroine is intrigued by the "pash" villain, on flashes the notation: "...Girl with heart whose burn affame but always have to pay."

A short subject entitled "The Spiders" was operating on the day I dropped in. It concerned a criminal band of murderous reputation and the fair maid, as usual, was in jeopardy. The idea was obviously taken from the old American thrillers which were so popular with the audiences of all lands and helped, for instance, build the first millions of the Universal Film Company.

As the slant-eyed villain closed in upon the maid, the sub-title announced: "Girl with distress are endangered."

And, again, as the "spiders" went forth after other prey, the screen advised one that, "No life have safety and mercy are useless."

In the New Chatman theater, where all this goes on, Chinese women in native costume, holding cunning youngsters upon their laps, sit in boxes and munch liche nuts and orange peel candy.

Manhattan, by the way, has artistic little theaters scattered over the city where the pictures of all the world are shown. There are four or five such at the present moment, all of them being "artistic rebellions" against the talkies and the "canned" Hollywood products.

WASHINGTON LETTER

By RODNEY DUTCHER

Washington, Oct. 18.—It is true, of course, that Mr. Hoover and Mr. MacDonald did not spend their hours together cooking up an Anglo-American alliance.

It is also presumably true that no selfish nationalistic thoughts ever entered the head of either of them. That is, there was no thought that the United States or Great Britain would profit from this epochal meeting of cooperation to the benefits available to all other nations which cared to enter into the spirit of the thing.

It might also be emphasized that the world has seldom seen a man at the head of any government who appeared to be so sincerely concerned with the well-being of all mankind as the laboring prime minister of Great Britain. Or a president of the United States which such a broad vision of the benefits of world-wide cooperation and the stupidity of international hatreds and suspicions.

They Are Idealists In other words, here were two statesmen who co-ordinated their patriotic with a certain amount of idealistic internationalism and found that these two abstract factors were not incompatible.

Nevertheless, if there are other nations which fail to fall in line with the United States and Great Britain it is going to be just too bad—for them. Naturally enough, the naval arms conference at Geneva blew up when the two predominant naval partners failed to approach an agreement. The same thing would have been true had France and Italy been represented, which they were not.

For there is no getting around the fact that America and Britain are far and away the most powerful nations on the earth. If they did care to form an alliance in the old sense they could easily enough dominate the world without fear of any combination of nations which might be formed against them.

And it can hardly be said that the moral alliance which these two have established and which is not in any way exclusive or in any way ominous, would be any the less a less effective and important factor in the world of international Europe were to refuse to play ball.

The Conference Will Succeed Submarines will not be allowed to wreck the five-power conference this month, hence and Hoover and MacDonald did not decide to ram the measure down anyone's throat.

From any other source should lead anyone to believe that the Kingdom of Heaven has arrived on earth. Time may undo the work that Hoover and MacDonald are doing. There are bound to be some bitter rows over naval strength before the five powers are through. The freedom of the seas issue will have to be threshed out sooner or later.

Brose
Question: J. J. M. writes:—"I am very fond of a dish called 'brose' which is prepared by pouring boiling milk or broth over oatmeal or other meal and stirring until it resembles a sort of pudding. It seems to agree with me, but I would like to ask if you would recommend this way of using these cereals."
Answer:—"I would not recommend this dish for children or old people, or those whose digestion is not strong, for these cereals or meals require much longer cooking to be readily digestible.

Question: H. C. H. writes:—"During the night I am awakened by my left arm aching dreadfully, and this ache remains until morning. Could it be caused from poor circulation or lack of exercise, or is it all in our eating?"
Answer:—"Yes, the aching in your left arm may come from poor circulation, lack of exercise or from over-eating. When such aches come only in the left arm, one must be suspicious of angina pectoris which is a serious functional disorder affecting the heart and its arteries.

SCRAP OF THE AGES
Baltimore.—A true battle of the ages, which drew one of the biggest crowds that ever saw a street brawl here, was waged between Joseph Rafowski, 72, and his wife, Mary, 72. The two battlers were going at it hammer and tongs with tools intended for shoe repairing. Patrolman Slagle, who arrested them, couldn't understand what it was all about, because the couple were indulging in a heated argument in Polish.

HILARIOUS COMEDY IN STATE FEATURE

William Haines in "Speedway" Supported by Anita Page Playing at Theater Here.

Thundering racing cars in a gruelling speedway race, thrilling exploits in the air climaxed by a thrilling parachute jump, hilarious the racetrack and heart throbs of an intensely human love story that underlies the structure are the ingredients that go into "Speedway," with William Haines in the featured role, at the State today and Saturday.
Haines himself plays a flippant mechanic who finally gets his break and drives a racing car only to make a remarkable sacrifice. Anita Page is charming as the aviator heroine and her scenes with Haines in the plane and parachute jump, and in the dramatic climax are wonderfully well done. Ernest Torrence plays the most interesting of character roles as the old Scotch racing driver who for sixteen years has tried to win the big race, and Karl Dane, as the stolid mechanic "Steve" lends much comedy to the proceedings.
One of the high-lights of the picture is the jamming of the Indianapolis traffic by Haines and Dane when they tow a racing car through the streets. This one situation is well worth the price of admission alone. Much of the action of the story was actually filmed at the famous speedway at Indianapolis, and includes scenes of the annual auto racing classic, with nothing omitted.
The program for these two days also includes the latest pictorial screen news, a selected comedy, "Blondes Beware," the snappy Vitaphone act "All Girl Revue," and the second chapter of the chapter play "The Final Reckoning" adapted from the boys classic of the same name by G. A. Henty.

Queen Twists In Day's News

New York—Oscar H. Strobel, Jr., El Paso cowboy-artist on the way to Berlin in search of fame via art, has found a fortune and given it up. He got the wrong suitcase when porters tumbled baggage off a train. At his hotel he found it contained $250,000 worth of stocks and bonds. He telephoned a bank. The securities were identified by number and returned to the owner, Frederick Appel of Indianapolis, who gave back Strobel's shirts and ties. Strobel is on the way to Berlin on a scholarship.
Philadelphia.—The millennium approaches for city dwellers who have to sleep daytimes. The noisy pneumatic hammer used in riveting steel in buildings is being replaced by a noiseless hydrogen blow-pipe welder, says Dr. Irving Langmuir, research expert of the General Electric Company.
Dothan, Ala.—Brigadier General C. W. Mitchell of Birmingham, Confederate veteran, is dead, having succumbed to a heart attack while doing the minut, the last dance, at a reunion. He was 83 years old.
New York.—Eleanor Robson Belmont, a dramatic star before her marriage to the late August Belmont, has collaborated with Harriet Ford in a play of a mining town. "Christopher Rand" will be produced on Broadway shortly.
Shanghai.—John D. Rockefeller 3rd, will lose no time getting down to business after his present tour is completed. "I told father," he said, "that I was due in New York Sunday, Dec. 1 to be ready to begin work Dec. 2."
Hartford, N. H.—Al Marsters, Dartmouth backfield ace, is following in the footsteps of Daniel Webster. He has joined the college volunteer fire department.

New York—Elinor Smith and Bobbie Trout are to attempt a woman's refueling endurance flight at Los Angeles.
Saratoga Springs, N. Y.—Governor Roosevelt desires the battlefield of Saratoga to be made a national shrine. Speaking at exercises on the 152nd anniversary of the surrender of Burgoyne to Gates, he said that while it is well that the marks of war should disappear, Saratoga represents more than a battle; it represents the birth of a nation.

London.—Rev. F. J. Scroggie is a minister on Sundays and works as a manager of a bank in South London during the week. ONE DEAD, ONE HURT IN ELECTION RIOT

Buenos Aires, Oct. 18.—(AP)—One man was killed and another seriously wounded in rioting last evening between supporters and opponents of President Yrigoyen in the Plaza eleventh of September. More than 100 shots were fired.
The dead man, a sixty year old laborer had nothing to do with the clash. He was sitting on a bench in the Plaza when shot. The wounded man is Dr. Francisco Raynelli, anti-Yrigoyen orator who may die from a bullet in his back.
The clash occurred when supporters of the president attempted to break up a demonstration which had grown into a protest meeting against the policies of the administration.

PARKER-SMITH LOSS NEARLY A MILLION

New Haven Case Continues Today—A Dozen Witnesses Already Heard.

New Haven, Oct. 18.—(AP)—State Attorney Samuel E. Hoyt continued today the presentation in Criminal Superior Court of testimony to prove the three officers of the Parker-Smith company, defunct $25,000,000 mortgage finance house, converted to other uses money received by them for payment of noteholders in mortgage trusts.

Mr. Hoyt, when he has concluded the case, which is being tried before Judge Isaac Wolfe and a jury of twelve men, will have shown, he said, that some four score investors have lost a total of $166,427 on unpaid notes.

The State Attorney is frequently assisted in his presentation of testimony by Charles F. Coates, member of a Hartford firm of accountants which audited the Parker-Smith books at the order of the State. The audit shows, it is understood, that at present market value, the total losses to investors and noteholders is between $850,000 and $1,000,000.

Dozen Witnesses.
Mr. Hoyt brought to the stand yesterday a dozen witnesses who said they had not been paid on their notes, though mortgages had been liquidated. The defense sought to get admissions from these noteholders that they had left the money for reinvestment, but the State contended that the officers or their representatives had merely endeavored to persuade the investors to reinvest money for them.

The defendants, John E. Parker, Paul M. and Clarence V. Smith, on trial on 35 counts of embezzlement by trustee and agent. Their counsel, Benjamin Wade and Charles J. Martin contend they are not amenable to criminal prosecution, inasmuch as their company and not they themselves as individuals were the trustees in the expressed trusts created by mortgages. Numerous objections to admission of evidence on the basis of their having been the trustees were made by the defense counsel, who plan a Supreme Court appeal in the event of conviction.

TEX LOSES SUIT

Los Angeles, Oct. 18.—(AP)—Texas Guinan, night club czar, lost her suit for $105,000 damages against the Los Angeles Railway company yesterday.

The company contended it was not responsible for damage caused by one of its trucks which collided with Miss Guinan's automobile and assertedly caused her to be injured because it was being used by the driver to take a friend home at the time. It also denied the plaintiff could earn $5,000 a week, as she stated in her complaint. Texas sued for $5,000, designated as the loss of a week's salary, and $100,000 additional damages.

WOMAN FOUND GUILTY IN HEX MURDER CASE

Kalamazoo, Mich., Oct. 18.—(AP)—A jury of 11 men and one woman early today found Mrs. Pearl Burgess, 52, guilty of the murder of Mrs. Elta Fairchild, 76-year-old inmate of Old Ladies' Home. Mrs. Burgess and her husband Eugene admitted beating the woman to death with a lead pipe "because she was a witch and had killed a hundred people just by wishing them dead." The verdict carries life imprisonment.

Mrs. Burgess and her husband were arrested after Mrs. Fairchild's body was found in a cistern behind

LABOR RE-ELECTS ITS OLD OFFICERS

Toronto, Ont., Oct. 19.—(AP)—Closing sessions today of the annual American Federation of Labor were centered on a struggle to define the form of organized labor's campaign against judicial injunction use in industrial disputes. Sharp debate began yesterday over the advisability of asking Congress to enact a law limiting use of such powers by Federal Courts, held off a vote on Resolutions incorporating a suggested convention position in the field, and promised more argument today.

Interrupting the injunction debate for the purpose, the Federation late yesterday reelected its solid slate of officials now serving, from William Green, president, through a long list of vice presidents to Martin F. Ryan, treasurer, and Frank Morrison, its veteran secretary. Boston was named without a contest as the place for the 1930 annual gathering, sponsors of Rochester, N. Y., having withdrawn from the contest with the statement that they would try for a later convention.

LABOR RE-ELECTS ITS OLD OFFICERS

Andrew Furuseth, president of the Seaman's Union and chief opponent of the resolution's committee measure on injunctions, was promised the floor at the opening today, for a final effort to upset what appeared to be a majority program on the subject.

HARVARD PAPER SCORES HASTY PUDDING CLUB

Cambridge, Mass., Oct. 18.—(AP)—Charges of drunkenness and indecency during initiations for the Hasty Pudding club at Harvard have been made by the Harvard Crimson, undergraduate daily, in consequence of a series of disturbances involving newly elected students on Wednesday. The Crimson recorded that a Chinese student was thrown violently down the steps of the Fogg Art Museum by a neophyte for "no apparent reason except that he was born and brought up in the Orient." It went on to say: "There is obviously heavy drinking in connection with the pudding running and there is reason to believe that this public display of drinking and its unfortunate results are sanctioned and even encouraged by those managing the initiations."

NEW GERMAN WARSHIP

Wilhelmshafen, Germany, Oct. 18.—(AP)—The largest cruiser of the new German navy, the 8,000-ton Leipzig was launched today. It is the third cruiser to bear that name. The vessel was christened by the widow of the captain of a former Leipzig which was sunk at the battle of Falkland islands in 1914, her dedicatory words were: "To the rescue of the Fatherland." The ship is 570 feet long and has a beam of 54 feet.

HEIRESS QUILTS STAGE

Chicago, Oct. 18.—(AP)—Miss Laura Harding, millionaire heiress daughter of the late J. Horace Harding of New York, is one actress who hates publicity. She has quit her part as parlor maid in the play "Thunder in the Air" because the newspapers found out she was the daughter of the former New York banker. Even members of the cast were surprised to learn that the Miss Harding being paid $40 a week for speaking three lines in the play was one of the country's wealthiest young women. Miss Harding's success in amateur theatricals led her to seek a career on the professional stage.

Sharkey Named Manager After Fletcher Refuses Post On Yankee Outfit

Former Star Right-handed Pitcher's Selection Comes as Big Surprise; Has Been Coaching Pitchers on Team.

BY HERBERT W. BARKER.

New York, Oct. 18.—(AP)—Unconditionally released by the club two years ago, Bob Sharkey, the ex-salvor has been named manager of the New York Yankees, leaderless since the death three weeks ago of Miller J. Huggins.

A great right-handed pitcher in his day, coach of the Yankees during the past season, Sharkey never had any managerial experience. He signed a one-year contract to manage the club several days ago but announcement was withheld by Jacob Ruppert, club president until yesterday. Sharkey now is in Quebec on a hunting trip.

Sharkey's selection surprised the experts who had expected either Arthur Fletcher, Yankee coach, or Bob Conroy, president of the St. Paul club of the American association would be named to the post. It turned out that Fletcher had been offered the post but declined with thanks, saying he did not want to manage the Yanks or any other club.

The offer then was made to, and accepted by, Sharkey. Fletcher will continue to coach the team.

Sharkey was born in Brookfield, Pa., Dec. 4, 1890. He began his professional baseball career with the Harrisburg club of the old Tri-State League in 1911.

DID YOU KNOW THAT—
Silver Creek, N. Y., residents staged an impromptu celebration and parade when news reached them that Howard Ehmke of the A's defeated the Cubs in the series opener. . . It's the tall pitcher's home town. . . His mother, Mrs. Julia Ehmke, was the proudest person participating in the hilarity. . . Mordecai Brown, sub pitcher 20 years ago, hadn't seen a world series since 1910 until this fall. . . The Cubs and Athletics were the participants that year, too. . . Georgia State Legislature declared a holiday the day of the Yale-Georgia football game. . . The game opened football relations with the Army in 1913. . . Knute K. Rockne was captain of the Irish and starred at end in the 35 to 13 victory of his team.

Local Sport Chatter

Louie Cheney, guard on last year's high school football team here, has made the freshman eleven at Bates College.

The Manchester Construction Company will bowl the Shell Gas five in a postponed Herald League match tonight at Joe Farr's Charter Oak alleys starting promptly at 8 o'clock. Manager Bill Knofia of the contractors has signed Billy Wigowski, Howard Murphy, Augie Borowski, Herb Stevenson, Elmer Knofia and three others whose names have not been announced.

The Cubs will tackle the Pawtucket A. C. of Providence at Mt. Nebot Sunday while the Majors are down for a tussle with the Maple Ends for Bristol.

The Cubs' new maroon hood-jackets have arrived and give added color to the appearance of the town champions on the gridiron.

Manager Bill Griffin and Manager Pete Venetillo will meet either tonight or tomorrow in an effort to make arrangements for the annual town championship football series between the north and south.

Here's hoping that for once the two teams will be able to reach an agreement without the usual fuss and wrangling. Of course, this is probably too much to expect, yet it should be possible.

The boys will probably argue like blue blazes on the money end of the argument. The Cubs have been talking about holding out for winter-take-all, but if that turns out to be the case, there will probably not be any series. Without any attempt to take sides in the matter, it must be admitted that winter-take-all is a silly way to play. Even with the new rule it is possible for the stronger team to lose.

Frank Slavin, Great Fighter, Died Yesterday

Vancouver, B. C., Oct. 18.—(AP)—One of the last links connecting present day pugilism with the era of John L. Sullivan and other fighters of the bare knuckle school, has been broken with the death here of Frank Slavin.

A colorful figure, Slavin who fought as a professional for more than 20 years, fell under the spell of the Yukon during the gold stampede of 1898 and wound up the spectacular side of his career with an enlistment in the Canadian Army during the World War when he was 34 years old.

Slavin died in a hospital here yesterday after an illness of more than a year. Born in Sydney, Cornwall, in Maitland, N. S. W., on Jan. 5, 1862, Slavin took up boxing as a form of amusement while he was working in a mining camp in Australia. He won the amateur heavyweight championship and turned professional more or less by accident.

Slavin's rise was rapid. In 1896 Martin Costello of the United States who had lasted five rounds with Sullivan, visited Australia and Slavin was picked to uphold the prestige of that country against the invader. Costello was knocked out in seven rounds. Slavin then went to Europe and still later came to the United States meeting among others Jim Smith, British champion; "Big Jack" McCalliffe of Detroit; Peter Jackson, Jim Hall, Bob Armstrong, Jake Kilrain and Frank Craig, the "Harlem Coffee Cooler." Slavin and Sullivan never met in the ring.

KING GUSTAVE IN BERLIN
Berlin, Oct. 18.—(AP)—King Gustave of Sweden passed through Berlin today en route to Stockholm from Mainau, where he visited Queen Victoria who spent the summer there. It is understood the condition of the Queen, who recently returned to Rome for the winter, is fairly satisfactory.

CAN HARVARD HOLD HIM?

Successful in getting across to their athletes, the significance of those two words—Stop Cagle. With every hand out in advance to the feet of the Army, football team who would win from the West-Pointers this fall.

Christian K. (Red) Cagle, well-built, red-headed, captain of the Cadet eleven, was practically the unanimous choice of critics for a halfback position on the All-American team of 1928. Deeds, and not the press-agenting, won for him the reputation of being one of the best ball-toters of all time.

Cagle will be All-America again this year—unless coaches are successful in getting across to their athletes. The significance of those two words—Stop Cagle. With every hand out in advance to the feet of the Army, football team who would win from the West-Pointers this fall.

Harley Davidson, 53-year-old skating sensation, comes up with a story about how his three-man team managed to make such a good showing in that six-day roller skating race in Madison Square Garden last spring.

Davidson, who has held national and international championships in both ice and roller skating figured that only those who had trained with particular attention to their feet would be able to last on the banked track. So he ordered a six weeks' program of outdoor road work in bare feet for himself and his two teammates.

HOW BOB SHAWKEY MADE HIS DEBUT

Brookville, Pa., Oct. 18.—(AP)—Behind the scenes in the baseball life of Bob Shawkey, who today steps into the shoes of Miller Huggins as manager of the Yankees, looms the story of an obscure storekeeper in a small northern Pennsylvania village, who foresaw the possibilities in the lanky youth.

Nice things were said of Chris last year. Many said he was the greatest ball-carrier of all time. Others said he outshone the great Red Grange of Illinois University. Still others said he was hardly the equal of the phantom Grange in a broken field, but that he far surpassed the Wheaton ice man in other departments of play.

Army-Harvard Clash New England Feature

Cantabs Must Stop Cagle and Murrel to Win; Big Intersectional Game at Philly Involving California and Penn; Brown at Yale.

New York, Oct. 18.—(AP)—Battles of undefeated eastern college football teams will attract thousands of spectators tomorrow. Army invades the Harvard Stadium to meet a team that has shown signs of winning its way back into the football sun.

At Philadelphia the University of California plays Pennsylvania in the biggest intersectional fray. California chances look good to many experts.

Some of the East's mighty will be striving to regain prestige lost by poor showings in the early season combats. Yale, which bowed before Georgia, will stack up against a Brown team at New Haven which has shown signs of strength after a weak start.

Princeton, beaten by Brown, will strive to recoup at Ithaca, N. Y., against an undefeated Cornell team.

New York University will entertain Pennsylvania at an inspired Fordham team will combat another Jesuit eleven, Holy Cross.

Penn State will face a team engaged by a 26 to 0 defeat last week at the hands of Fordham.

Navy entertains Duke and West Virginia looks good to the experts to emerge victorious over Washington and Lee. Washington and Jefferson battles Carnegie Tech at Pittsburgh and the result is quite in doubt.

Pittsburgh, strong again this year, meets a heavy Nebraska team on its home grounds and Boston College plays Dayton in its home territory.

Eagles' Feathers Plucked By The Lithuanian Five

Bowling in the Conran's Shoppe League last night was a wow—especially when the Lithuanians took the Eagles into camp for four points or as Capt. Katkaveck termed it "We plucked the Eagles tonight."

They sure did, for the Eagles are considered the best bet in the league. The Lithuanians hit 1561 for the match. Katkaveck carried all honors for his team, hitting 121 for high single and 336 for three strings.

Balon was the star for the Eagles with single of 121 and high three strings of 328.

The Majors took a fall out of Depot Square with 3 points. Neither team turned in any high scores due to the fact both sides had their razing crew on hand.

Arthur Cosco and his Machine hitting over 500 each game, a total of 1558. Cosco had high single, 120, while Riemer and Sherman shared high three string honors with 334.

MITCHELL LEAVES STABLE OF HERTZ

Chicago, Oct. 18.—(A)—B. S. Mitchell, one of the most widely known trainers of thoroughbred horses in the country, has severed his connection with the racing stable of John D. Hertz.

Mitchell took charge of the Hertz stable in 1927 and within a few weeks prepared Anita Peabody to win the $100,000 futurity at Belmont. He followed this accomplishment with victories with Rea-Cota in the Kentucky Derby, Straight Cup and Jockey Club gold cup races.

He indicated he would purchase a farm in California and breed and raise his own thoroughbreds.

FRANCE ANXIOUS TO BEGIN TALKS

Officials Say It Is Not Necessary to Reach an Accord With Italy.

Paris, Oct. 18.—(AP)—Authoritative circles said today the French government saw no more necessity of an accord on naval limitation with Italy preliminary to the London January five power conference than with Great Britain, the United States, or any other nation. Consequently, although it was admitted naval problems between the two countries do exist, any preliminary conversations between the two governments will be through diplomatic channels instead of separate conference as was proposed yesterday by Italy. It was pointed out that France had said prior to its formal acceptance of the London invitation that preliminary conversations would be held with both Great Britain and Italy and that this position since had been reaffirmed.

PLAN TO INCREASE OUR NATIONAL GUARD

Los Angeles, Oct. 18.—(AP)—A plan to increase strength of the National Guard from 177,000 men to 210,000 men engaged the convention of the National Guard Association of the United States here today to the exclusion of almost all other business. The meeting of the organization got underway yesterday with 500 delegates, representing guard units from every state in the Union present. Along with the discussion concerning possible increase of the personnel of the National Guard in view of the reduction of the regular army, reports from the resolutions committee, convention committee and the committee of audits were to be heard. Major General Briant H. Wells, deputy chief of staff, and Major General William G. Everson, chief of the Militia Bureau, were on the speaking program.

Health and Diet Advice

By DR. FRANK MCCOY

THE VALUE OF STRONG ABDOMINAL MUSCLES

There are six hundred and eighty-two little braces distributed over the body. These are called muscles, and are composed of the most remarkable, active substance in the world, which is known by the name of muscle fibre. Some of these muscles are more important than others to bodily health.

Practically all of the vital organs are composed of muscular tissue. Next in importance to the muscles of the spine and the muscles of the abdomen. If everyone would keep these spinal muscles strong, there would be little need for the osteopath or chiropractor. Spinal troubles and pinched nerves in this section come mostly because the spinal muscles are too weak and the vertebrae are not held in their normal positions.

Since man has learned to walk upright his chest has caved in more and more and his abdomen has protruded in exact ratio. The marrow, muscular waist of primitive man has changed to the saggy, protruding abdomen of modern man. The abdominal organs have prolapsed to the very basin of the pelvis, and almost all of these organs now lie well below the navel when at least half of them should be above this point. Whether or not man descended from a monkey, the grammar grade schoolboy who studies philosophy can easily understand that if men did at the present time walk on all fours there would be ample room in the comfortable position to hang the stomach and intestines in a better position so that they can do their work more efficiently.

Sluggish bowel elimination is perhaps the greatest common cause of disease. There is no cause of constipation greater than that from prolapsed and kinked intestines. Those who have tried to cure constipation with careful dieting should remember that constipation is just as often caused by a faulty position of the intestines. If this is the cause of constipation, there is no cure except through training the abdominal muscles, raising the organs to their normal positions, and thus ironing out the kinks which have existed.

In many cases adhesions have formed around these kinked intestines, and exercises alone will not be sufficient to correct the trouble. In that case, deep manipulations are required. This is a form of bloodless surgery, and is often indispensable in the permanent cure of faulty bowel elimination.

The exercises for strengthening the abdominal muscles should be mostly taken while lying on the back. I have a special chart of these exercises which I have prepared for you with illustrations showing the exercises. I will be glad to send this to you if you will simply send me a large self-addressed envelope.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS
Underarm Perspiration
Question: E. E. asks:—"Will you tell me through your column what can be done to check perspiration from the armpits?"

Answer:—"The best way to stop excessive sweating under the arms is to induce a good sweat all over the body three or four times a week. You can best do this by putting on heavy clothing and taking a long walk. If all of the pores of the skin are active you will not be troubled with an abnormal amount of perspiration under the arms.

Catarrh
Question: G. H. H. writes:—"I am fourteen years of age and have been troubled with catarrh for over a year. It never leaves me and is worse in the morning upon rising."
Answer:—"Change your diet so as to exclude all starches, sugars and fats. Follow the weekly menus published in this column, substituting some kind of fruit wherever I advise a starchy meal."

Locomotor Ataxia
Question: T. B. asks:—"What is locomotor ataxia, and what is the cause and cure—if there is a cure?"
Answer:—"Locomotor ataxia is caused by some interference with the nerve supply going to the legs. This occurs principally in the lumbar region of the spine. A cure is possible in the early stages, and in today's mail I read a letter from a correspondent who has been entirely cured through following the advice received through this Health Service. This patient reports that before starting the treatment she could not walk at all and that four leading physicians in her home town had declared her case hopeless. Her cure was effected through following proper dietetic and hygienic rules, and no other treatment than this was advised. Special instructions will be sent to anyone upon request."

WITNESS FACES JAIL

Los Angeles, Oct. 18.—(AP)—A prosecutor's threat of Grand Jury action hung over another defense witness in the Alexander Pantages case today, as the multi-millionaire continued his fight against the charges that he criminally assaulted Eunice Pringle, 17 year old dancer. Dist. Attorney Euron Fitts intimated the grand jury may review testimony given by Mrs. Floy Biffle yesterday, partially corroborating the sworn statements of her husband Garland Biffle, who was indicted on a perjury charge Wednesday after giving evidence considered favorable to the theater man.

After testifying and undergoing a searching cross examination by Fitts, Mrs. Biffle broke down and implored court officials not to take her to jail.

"They arrested my husband, are they going to arrest me?" she cried. "I don't want to go to jail."

SHANGHAI GETS WORD OF MUTINY AT WUHU

Dispatches Say Nationalist Soldiers Are in Revolt and Looting the City.

Shanghai, Oct. 18.—(AP)—Japanese press dispatches from Nanking today said advances had been received from Wuhu, Anhwei province, that Nationalist government troops there had mutinied at 3 a. m. and had begun looting. The dispatch said the looting "was continuing."

Only vague reports reached Shanghai through interrupted telegraphic facilities from Wuhu. H. M. S. Crichton was said to have taken aboard British women and children, and a Japanese warship was said to be undertaking a similar action.

American naval officials, having no ship there, professed ignorance of the situation. There is no American consul at Wuhu, the district being included with that of Nanking. The Standard Oil company representatives here said they had not yet heard from their factors at Wuhu.

CORRECT FUEL FOR YOUR MOTOR

IMMENSE facilities for obtaining the right types of crude and refining it in huge quantities make it possible to bring to you this genuinely extra-powered Atlantic Gasoline without extra cost. Deep, scientific research has done something more. . . . It has put correctness into it—the most important of all motor fuel qualities. New-type Atlantic gives up its power at the right time—not too quickly, not too slowly. That accounts for its marvelously smooth combustion. Proper balance and absolute cleanness make ignition certain at all throttles and temperatures. That explains its amazingly easy starting and its ready response on acceleration. With all this, Atlantic is so complete-burning that maximum mileage is inevitable and carbon and valve grinding are forgotten relics. . . . ATLANTIC GASOLINE—the most efficient all-round fuel your motor has ever known—and the greatest money value in the field!

The Innocent Cheat

By Ruth Dewey Groves
AUTHOR OF "RICH GIRL-POOR GIRL," ETC.

THIS HAS HAPPENED

HELEN PAGE feels indebted to and in love with her guardian, LEONARD BRENT. The future changes his plans for her future after meeting a dying beggar, NELLIN and tells the girl she is heiress of a millionaire named CUNNINGHAM. Brent takes her to the lonely old man and offers proofs which Cunningham accepts, as he had been searching for his dead daughter's child for years.

Among Helen's new friends are EVA ENNIS and her brother ROBERT. Brent fears Helen may fall in love with Bob and plots to win her quickly, especially after finding another locket like the one he had taken from Nellin to prove Helen the heiress. Hearing that a sudden shock would kill Cunningham, Brent slyly administers the shock, and the servants find the old man dead in bed. Then, by clever acting and appeal to her loyalty, Brent wins Helen's promise to marry him.

Later, she and Bob discover their love for each other, but she tells him she is engaged. Helen tries to break with Brent, but he refuses to release her and makes threats against her happiness if she dares to marry Bob. Eva knows Helen is happy, but resents her treatment of Bob which has driven him to flirting with SHALLIMAR MORRIS. She scolds Bob and he laughs at her, saying that Helen is engaged to Brent. Eva collared and admits that Brent has been making love to her secretly.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XXXIX
Mrs. Wethering opened the door to Bob and her niece as he would see if Miss Nellin would receive him.

Why Helen ever wanted to be friends with people other than her conception of the proper time for calling was more than she could understand.

Bob was aware of her disapproval but it did not worry him.

Would Helen be angry that was all he cared about—that and what he had to say to her.

Mrs. Wethering was surprised to find Helen dressed and on the verge of descending for breakfast. When she heard that Mrs. Ennis was asking to see her, she whirled from the dressing table, where she was putting a last golden pin into her hair, and stared blankly at the woman who had announced her.

"What does he want?" she said finally, and stupidly, she realized the next second.

"Why, I . . . Mrs. Wethering was about to say, bluntly enough, that she was sure she did not know but Helen stopped her.

"Never mind," the girl said hastily. "Tell him I will see him immediately."

Although she was ready to go down she started a while in her room to regain her composure. Whatever could it mean, this early visit from Bob?

Her reflection, as she patted a bit of rouge onto her pale cheeks, told her no such thing.

"Could it concern Eva? She'd been troubled ever since she awoke and found Eva gone. Had she, she wondered, done anything to offend her?"

It was with a mixture of some trepidation that she went down at last to find Bob waiting for her in the lower hall.

"Have you breakfasted?" she asked him so closely on top of the most cheerful "good morning" she could achieve that he answered in the negative before he'd time to think of anything else to say.

"Then do come in with me and have a bite," she urged, moving at the same time in the direction of the morning room where her breakfast was served.

Bob felt averse to calling after her that he could not stay. He followed, but without motioning him to the seat that was meant for Shallimar—should she choose to come down, as she rarely did—she stood beside it and shook his head.

Helen seated herself, certain that that he was about to disclose something of an unpleasant nature. The frown that creased his brow was forbidding, and gloom sat his countenance like a black rider on a dark steed.

"Please sit down," she begged. "I'll not ring for anything until you tell me what you have come to say. I can see that it is important."

"It is most important," Bob answered quietly. "My sister."

"Oh! Eva!" Helen cried. "Has anything happened to her?"

"That," Bob replied, "is partly for you to say."

"Don't talk in riddles," Helen exclaimed. "Tell me!"

Her gaze fixed on Bob's and he held it unwaveringly while he hesitated over his choice of words for what he was going to say to her. Finally he started off with a request.

"I should like," he said, "to ask you one thing. Your answer will determine whether I can tell you more about Eva."

Helen caught her breath, nodded her head and continued to stare at him, as one fascinated against her will.

Bob's throat felt dry as he started to speak. He swallowed and opened his lips again. The words came hoarsely and slowly.

"Were you ever engaged to marry Mr. Brent?"

Helen did not answer at once. Rather her lips did not, but her eyes told Bob that he had not been wrong.

She was trying to think, to find a connection between Bob's question and Eva. How could it concern his sister that she had been Leonard's betrothed?

Finding no answer, but fearful that a shocking one would be forthcoming, and seeing no way to evade it, she inclined her head in the most reluctant affirmative that has ever been wrung from her.

"The rat!" The words, as Bob uttered them, sounded like an explosion. Helen was so startled she dropped the glass of water she had reached for, spilling its contents over the breakfast cloth.

Bob turned on his heel to go, but Helen called after him as she jumped up to follow. He hesitated and she caught his arm, digging her nails deep into the rough tweed of his coat sleeve.

"You mustn't go without telling me what all this has to do with Eva," she pleaded.

"Can you guess?" he said shortly.

"Oh, no, no, tell me!"

"Brent has been deceiving you. You and Eva both," Bob replied, cruelly abrupt, but too miserable even to want to find a way to soften the blow.

Helen cried out and swayed away from him. Bob reached forth his arms to support her but she thrust his hands off and steadied herself without help.

"It can't be true," she said weakly. "Surely Eva must have known . . ."

"Did you ever tell her?" Bob interjected.

Helen shook her head. "No," she said; "I don't think I did. But it's inconceivable that Leonard should have lied to her—to a girl like Eva."

"Just the type he would lie to," Bob declared. "The kid's all broken up. I've seen it for weeks, but I didn't know just what it was."

"I must have been blind," Helen said, as though she admitted being guilty of a great crime. "I've seen them together and . . . there was nothing. Are you sure, Bob?"

His name slipped off her lips so naturally she was not aware of having spoken it. But she made an infinite appeal to Bob, uttered as it was in acute distress.

"Yes, I'm quite sure," he said more gently than he had yet spoken to her.

Helen's voice broke a trifle over her next question.

"Was he engaged to her too?" she asked.

"I suppose so," Bob admitted. "I have questioned her."

"Will you go and bring her here so I can talk to her?" Helen asked.

"I'd rather she didn't come," Bob answered, struggling against his yearning to comfort this girl who had been directed and indirectly, brought trouble to him and his beloved sister.

"I think you'd better drop Eva altogether," he went relentlessly on, "you've been extremely kind . . . but she has brought her unhappiness."

Helen cried out in protest. "Her career? Her music? She needs me!"

"Bob was stubborn. "No," he said; "if she has a great talent she will reach the top somehow. She can't help fulfilling her destiny, whatever it may be."

"Oh don't talk like an idiot," Helen exclaimed. "Someone must help her—especially now."

"Well, it won't be you," Bob retorted, grimly compressing his lips. "It may take longer, but I can give her all the help she needs."

"You're selfish and . . . unfair!" Helen told him.

"If I am, I needn't trouble you," Bob answered rather childishly.

"But it does trouble me," Helen fired back at him. "Ever since Eva's accident I've felt responsible for her in a way. And I'm not going to let you interfere."

"No?" Bob too was losing his temper now. "No doubt you've got another one of your brainstorms. Perhaps you think it would be splendid of you to try to force that Brent cur to marry Eva?"

"No," Helen answered, her voice grown suddenly quiet, though her eyes remained stormy. "He isn't good enough for her."

"So you know that, do you?" Bob's accents were terrifically unkind, but Helen ignored his sarcasm.

"Yes, I know it," Helen assured him. "I learned it the day after the day after you called me a rotter."

Her head was flung high now and she spoke with a degree of spirit that Bob found unexpected.

"Pot your moment, their eyes were locked in silent battle."

"Why didn't you tell me?" he asked lamely.

"Tell you?" Helen found other words beyond her for some few speechless seconds. Then she laughed.

"You are forgetting Shallimar, aren't you?" she asked.

"To be . . ." Bob stopped himself. "She's a good sport, Helen. But in this she doesn't count."

"How gallant of you!"

"She would tell you the same; ask her."

Helen's chin went up a notch higher. Somehow the movement, and the way she looked just then, filled Bob with a keen desire to make her pay for her haughtiness with a kiss.

He did not stop to reason, but instinctively he knew the woman he was so furious if he took one, and he wanted her furious, raging, even. She'd have to melt into tears at the end of it, and where better could she weep than in his embrace?

He took a quick step forward, leaned down and pressed his lips hard against her. An encircling arm prevented her from pulling away.

She said a number of things while he held her. Bob mentally closed his ears. But he didn't breathe freely until he felt that her struggle to release herself was lessening and saw that she was, actually, on the verge of tears.

"Don't fight me, dear," he pleaded. "You're mine, Helen. Don't you know that?"

Helen dropped her head to his shoulder and he held her tight for the precious moments of her surrender.

They did not of their free will, break it up. Mrs. Wethering came in to say that Helen was wanted on the telephone. The call was from Mrs. Ennis. She said it is something very important, the housekeeper announced.

JOHN BROWN CAPTURED

On Oct. 18, 1859, John Brown and his followers, who had taken possession of Harper's Ferry, W. Va., and the national arsenal of the confederate states, were captured by General Robert E. Lee.

The raid on Harper's Ferry culminated long and secret planning by Brown, who was an abolitionist of the extremely radical type. The raid took place Oct. 16, when, after having, as a blind, taken a farm near his objective point, Brown led a band of fewer than a score of followers into the town and seized the national arsenal, thus giving what he supposed would be the signal for a general insurrection of the slaves.

The audacious act, however, resulted only in calamity for the participants and so embittered the south as to make a peaceful settlement of the slavery question a still more remote probability.

Troops of the regular army under Lee soon regained the arsenal. Brown was tried and convicted of treason, conspiring and advising with slaves and others to rebel and of murder in the first degree. He was sentenced to death and was executed in Charles Town, W. Va., Dec. 2, 1859.

During the following years a popular song in the north has the refrain:

"John Brown's body lies a-mouldering in the grave,
But his soul goes marching on."

The Soviet government has abolished Sunday. That ought to be an economy on automobile fenders, anyway.

The WOMAN'S DAY

It was a fine and an intelligent move on the part of 19-year-old Charlotte Tuttle, daughter of United States Attorney Tuttle, to spend her summer vacation in a factory, in an attempt to understand the factory girl and her problems.

She would not then have been haunted by the memory of the factory girl's attempt to make $11 a week to an inspector earning $15. But in spite of the fact that she held her job and was promoted, she considers herself something of a failure.

Where She Failed
For what she really wanted to do was to be a factory girl—temporarily—to get down into the woman worker's life, and see life with her eyes, and feel it with the laborer's emotions.

To that end she was careful not to speak good English or use too long words. She wore cheap dresses, cloudy silk hose and sale shoes. But to herself, she was always an actor, always a college girl playing part. She had never any illusions that she even scratched the surface of the lives around her.

She could do the factory girl's work, but she couldn't be one. Her associations were always aloof, indifferent, or frankly hostile.

"I was disappointed," she admitted, "because I could not get to know the industrial better. . . . The worker is too weighed down by hopelessness, too lethargic and too weary when the day is over, to think his way out. . . . What I feel most keenly now is my own inadequateness. That is why I am going back to college to decide how these problems can be solved."

Only a very young person would feel one could learn very much about anything in two months. To be sure, one can now travel around the world in that time, but one cannot assimilate, or reflect—or solve.

Too Great A Quest
Like all enthusiasts, Miss Tuttle tried to do too much. She could not learn all about the industrial conditions in two months, but she could learn something of one limited phase of it. Nor could she learn all about factory girls, but she might have made friends with one girl, possibly the one who worked next to her, and learned what one factory girl's life is.

I think she learned a great deal more than she thought when she realized that the problem of the laborer and his hire beyond the experience of a 19-year-old girl.

That she preferred to go back to college and study out the worker's salvation in college, rather than stay in the factory and see it first hand, seems to me typical of even our most earnest causers. It is more interesting to learn about labor problems in books than in factories.

"Bodies stand up better than fact. . . . We suggest that when you send for pattern, you enclose 10 cents additional for a copy of our new Fall and Winter Fashion Magazine."

At the factory she met a girl, but she is strongly socialistic in her political inclinations in spite of a dyed-in-the-wool Republican for a father. We will probably hear more from her later. Her summer's experience will probably not be her last attempt to learn about life first hand. It is from college girls of her type that we may expect important sociological contributions.

THE ETHERAL TRIANGLE! OR THE MODERN VERSION "WHY MEN LEAVE HOME"

workings. The air is heated and then moistened before it is sent out to our formerly parched throats and noses.

It's Safer for Throats
There is bound to be less throat trouble now that we are moisture conscious, for in the old days no one realized that dry air is like a dry sponge and is bound to absorb its normal water content somewhere, anywhere, and if a nose or throat is handy it is no respecter of persons; it draws it out of the mucous membrane. Coughs, sore throat, head colds—all sorts of things follow after a few weeks of its insidious work.

We cannot all be fortunate enough to possess tricky new heating systems, but we can save the doctor bill by buying half a dozen deep pans and setting them right on the radiator or register in each room. It is amazing how fast the water is absorbed into the air. The children are bound to be better for it. We all are.

In cold weather we should positively change the air every little while by quickly flushing the rooms—every three or four hours at least. Put up enough windows to allow a full current to flow through the house for five minutes at a time.

Try the moist-air, fresh-air method and I'll wager the old dollar bill I'm keeping for a souvenir to a dried bean that you won't have so many handkerchiefs in the wash.

for children!

AFTER ALL—there is no bread like Bond

Modern heating systems have it all over the old ones where heat alone was considered and the condition of the air the furnace delivered through the various flues to the family was never given a thought.

Heat was heat and that was enough. But things have changed. The original furnaces merely heated the cellar air and handed it along. Now a furnace is a complicated piece of mechanism indeed.

The next edition improved things considerably by sticking a pipe outside drawing the fresh air into its iron lungs, loasting it up and dry and hot and puffing it up to the family as a good furnace should—proud of its new accomplishment.

Along about this time hot-water and steam systems began to look in on man and his heating problems. Radiators began to take up all the best wall spaces in the house just where he wanted to put the piano or the sideboard or the sewing machine, but nobody minded because the sound and hissing steam was sweet music to our frozen ears when the thermometer was looking at zero.

That Endless Argument
Besides we had a feeling that wet air was better than dry air anyway. The owner of the fresh-air furnace and the owner of the house with steam or hot-water heat spent all their commuting hours in a never-ending battle. Who had the best?

Mr. Hot Air Furnace told Mr. Hot Water System that he was only heating the old air over again in the house and Mr. H. W. S. retorted that Mr. H. A. F. was drying out his lungs completely.

This battle went on for years. The truth of the matter was that both were breathing dry air; unless their family doctors had suggested that they set deep pans of water near registers or radiators respectively and saw to it that they were kept well filled every day.

Nowadays all heating systems are made with this water provision whether hot-air, steam, or hot water. New radiators have the water pans provided as neatly as you please. New furnaces have the water device right in their iron abdomens along with the rest of the

HEALTH

OVER-ACTIVE THYROID CAN LEAD TO SERIOUS COMPLICATIONS.
By DR. MORRIS FISHER
Editor Journal of the American Medical Association and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine.

In the throat just over the windpipe is a gland known as the thyroid. Under normal conditions, it is soft and cannot be felt through the skin, except by those who are expert in such determinations.

In women, this gland enlarges somewhat at periodic intervals and during the process of childbirth. The gland contains iodine and apparently the iodine taken into the body regulates its activity. This gland is closely bound up with many activities of the body.

If there is too much secretion from the gland, the person shows signs of nervousness, the gland swells, the heart beat becomes rapid, and there is loss of weight. He may have changes in the skin. Women seem to be affected more by over-activity of the gland than do men, indeed to the proportion of about six to one. As the disease progresses, it affects the eyes so that they push forward, producing a condition that the public calls "pop-eyes."

For this form of goiter, known as exophthalmic goiter, the most common treatment today is surgical operation on the gland. In mild cases, X-ray is sometimes used to bring down the activity of the gland. This method demands, however, the most expert type of knowledge and control. In most cases the operation is the method of choice.

If the person is exceedingly ill, it is not infrequently necessary to take a long period of rest in bed before the operation, in order that the person may be capable of withstanding the surgical procedure.

Because of the nervous reactions, emotional upsets must be avoided and proper mental control is desirable. The diet must be low in certain protein substances. In some instances, iodine is given before the operation in order to aid the patient to get into proper shape for the operation.

Danderine quickly dissolves the crust of dandruff; puts the scalp in the pink of condition; helps the hair to grow long, silky and abundant!

Beautiful hair!
Modern hair dressers arrange the hair so beautifully that it's bound to attract attention. That's why it's so important to guard its color and lustre; keep it in perfect condition.

There is no surer, simpler way to do this than with Danderine. Each time you use your brush: just moisten it with this delicately fragrant liquid. Then as you draw it through your hair, it removes the excess oil; brings out the natural color; makes the hair fairly sparkle with new life and lustre.

How much easier it is to arrange the hair afterwards. How it stays in place. And try "setting" the waves with Danderine. They stay in so long.

LOUISIANA ELECTS ACADIAN TO HOUSE

Numa Montlet Represents People of Evangeline Af- ter Hot Campaign.

By HERBERT PLUMMER.

Washington.—Up from the bayou country of Louisiana has come a direct descendant of the Acadians to represent the people of Evangeline in the lower house of congress. Numa Montlet has just opened his office on capitol hill to fill out the 18-month term of the late Representative Martin from the third district of Louisiana.

He represents the famous "sugar bowl" section of his state. His constituents are mostly farmers. Sugar, rice and cotton and truck are the principal crops. Many make their living fishing in the innumerable bayous which honeycomb that part of Louisiana.

Montlet is one of them. And they regard him so. Before he left the banks of the Teche to come to Washington they feted him from one end of the district to the other. There were more than a dozen barbecues given in his honor or where the most skillful cooks vied with each other in making sauce-piquant—that necessary complement to every Acadian's meal.

Campaign in French.
Montlet speaks French as fluently as he does English. More than 90 per cent of the 50 or 60 campaign speeches he made in his contest for congress were in French.

French is the native tongue in the section he is to represent, although most of the people understand English. His secretary, too, is French, and in this language most of their conversations are carried on.

In his campaign Montlet encountered stiff opposition from the Republicans. Speakers were brought in from other states to take the stump against him. So he carried the fight direct to the people and presented it to them in their own tongue.

He says there is no section of his district that he did not visit. The dance halls especially claimed his attention. They are scattered all over the countryside and the meeting places for the people in the community.

He would visit as many as three

Upon the application of HANS HANSEN for a certificate of approval of the location of a gasoline filling station to be located on the premises of HANS HANSEN on the new state highway running from Lake Street through to the Manchester-Bolton town line.

It was voted and ordered: That the foregoing application be heard and determined at the Selectmen's Office in the Municipal Building in said Town on the 29th day of October, 1929, at eight o'clock in the afternoon, and that notice be given to all persons interested in said application, of its pendency and of the time and place of hearing thereon, by publishing a copy of this notice at least three times in the Evening Herald, and by sending a copy of this notice by registered mail to said applicant, all at least seven days before the date of said hearing, to appear at said time and place, if they see cause, and be heard relative thereto.

halls in one evening, and more than once delivered speech to the merry-makers just before the orchestra played "Home, Sweet Home."

It is due to this fact—that he went to the people, talked to them as one Acadian to another—that he attributes his election.

Cooking Hobby.
Montlet is typical of the people he is to represent.

His frame is bulky, his hair black, his dark eyes flash as he talks, and his hands and shoulders are used liberally in conversations. His accent is that of an Acadian. His sense of humor is always in evidence.

He admits that he plays golf some, but he has lived on the bayous too long to let any form of recreation come before hunting and fishing.

His principal hobby is cooking and preparing French dishes. His secretary says that no one can beat him when it comes to concocting the "big three" favorite dishes in Louisiana—creole gumbo, court bouillon and sauce-piquant. Montlet is always chosen cook in fishing and hunting parties.

He is not a stranger to the public service. He ran for attorney general of Louisiana once, but was defeated. He was a delegate to the Democratic national convention in New York in 1924, and prior to his election to Congress was general counsel for the Louisiana state highway commission.

Girl Novelist Is 'Too Wise' For Smart Set

New York, Oct. 18.—Carman Dee Barnes, the Nashville, Tenn., youngster who concluded, at the age of 16, that modern youngsters could speak right out loud concerning adolescent conduct in this day and age, is discovering disciplinary conventions to be singularly unchanged.

The youthful sex and love experiences of young folks she observed while attending an exclusive southern school were incorporated in "Schoolgirl," quite a sensational book considering the age of the author—and one that attracted some little attention last winter when it appeared.

As a 16-year-old author, Carman might well have figured that laurels for precocity should have been placed upon her dark hair.

Held Too Worldly Wise
Instead of which, there are those who hold that her writing betrays an advanced acquaintance with the involved ways of the world. Carman, in other words, knows too much and hence is no longer a student at the ultrafashionable Gardner School for Girls here.

Shortly after she arrived at the school from the south, many of her classmates identified her with the novel's authorship and were quite willing to lionize her.

Not so the school's officials, who immediately frowned upon her presence there and suggested her withdrawal, despite Carman's insistence that her mother went over every written line and approved it. Furthermore, she holds her pictures as accurate and feels that what she has written might have been jotted down by any girl who kept her eyes and ears open as she went about.

In this era, she assumed, a knowledge of the world was to be expected of "the younger generation" and she is a firm believer in encouraging youth to tell its own story in its own way.

Cleveland, Ohio, Oct. 18.—(AP)—Confiscating perhaps $200,000 worth of tickets and stubs, police today believed they had broken up a lottery distribution system covering Ohio, Pennsylvania, Indiana and Illinois.

The certificates, seized in a raid on two houses at midnight, were on the membership pool of the Cambridge Charter Sweep, also known as the Canadian-English, to be run Oct. 30. They were issued by the Army and Navy veterans in Canada, Quebec, Unit No. 33.

Stubs of the tickets that had been sold were to have been shipped to Quebec today, police said, but their confiscation left their purchasers out their money, inasmuch as it was necessary to turn the stubs in at the veterans' headquarters.

ROCKVILLE

Club Plans Advertising Campaign.

The semi-monthly meeting of the Rockville Lions Club was held at the Rockville House on Wednesday evening, with the president, Philip Howe presiding. A surprise meeting was made to the meeting by District Governor G. Loring of Waterbury. He was cordially greeted by his many friends.

The subject of the evening discussion was to decide the major line of activity for the Lions Club this winter. It was voted to adopt as the major activity of the club a campaign of advertising Rockville. It was voted that for the next meeting of the club which will be held November 6, an invitation should be extended to the Chamber of Commerce to attend a joint campaign with the Lions for advertising Rockville. It is expected to have speakers here from the New England Council.

DANCE OCTOBER 30

Counter Attractions of the Night of Halloween Cause Change in Date.

The annual Halloween dance and social at the School Street Recreation Center will be held on Wednesday night, October 30, this year, instead of on Halloween night as was the case last year, resulting in a small attendance due to counter attractions.

The program will open with a grand march promptly at 8 o'clock. Prizes will be awarded to the most comically dressed man and woman; also the woman with the prettiest costume. Three judges will make the decisions.

The celebration will be held in the large gymnasium which will be appropriately decorated for the occasion under the joint supervision of Eric Crawshaw and Elmer Johnson. True autumn garb will be in vogue.

There will be scores of novelties such as horns, hats, and many kinds of noise-making devices. The orchestra for the occasion hasn't been selected. Director Lewis Lloyd is angling after a good one.

STAGE MUSICIANS STRIKE.

Chicago, Oct. 18.—(AP)—Seven Shubert theaters in Chicago are expected to be "dark" after tomorrow night's performances, resulting from the strike order to musicians and stage hands issued by heads of the two unions in New York. John J. Garrity, Chicago representative of the Shuberts, said the theaters never had any trouble here with stage hands or musicians, and that both unions are under contract.

James C. Petrillo, president of the Chicago Federation of Musicians, expressed regret at the necessity for calling the strike, which is in sympathy with one in Philadelphia, but said there was no alternative.

GIRL IDENTIFIES BODY AS KRAFT'S

Companion of Newspaperman Faints Before Open Grave—Will Not Talk.

New Orleans, Oct. 18.—(AP)—Before an open grave on the shores of the Mississippi, Ione Ord, sophisticated city girl, gasped, swooned and finally admitted a bullet torn body was that of Jack Kraft, New York newspaperman and adventurer, with whom she had started out to see the world.

A small tattoo of an Indian head on the forehead furnished the identification along with a scar on the knee, which George Kraft, older brother of Jack, who had come from New York, said established the identity beyond doubt.

The sight of the body and the scene of the grave in the sand on the banks of the Mississippi, 55 miles below New Orleans did not cause the girl to change her story.

This well-mannered girl, wearing a flowered chiffon dress made a striking contrast in the primeval setting in the lowlands of Louisiana yesterday when she stumbled on to the shores of the river one mile before the spot where her traveling companion's body went hurtling from the Circle New York to New Orleans boat.

Swoons At Grave. Slowing she walked to the primitive grave and swooned. Revived by sprinkling river water on her head, she told officers she would swear neither she nor Sam Epstein, ship's steward had shot Kraft but would not swear that John McGouldrick, second officer had not shot him.

She said both McGouldrick and Epstein had come to her assistance when Kraft was beating and choking her in a jealous rage. She declared she had seen Kraft leap overboard. She could not explain the corner's verdict that Kraft was dead before he hit the water.

Night had fallen when the march girl passed the grave, she fell to her knees and muttered a prayer. She was led over the rough prairie to a negro tenement's cottage where she was given coffee.

Suddenly and silently a detective laid a bedroom slipper on her lap. With a shrill shriek she hurried the slipper across the room, tumbling up and fought the doors and walls in an effort to escape.

It was a slipper worn by Jack Kraft and washed ashore with his body. Then the investigators drove back to New Orleans stating they were convinced the girl knows more about the tragedy than she has told.

SURVEY REPORT SHOWS CONN. SHORE CHANGES

The shore region of Connecticut is not only one of the most attractive situations for home sites, but is one of the great natural resources of the state. That it is of great and increasing economic importance as a vacation resort, is emphasized by the large number of private estates bordering upon the Sound and by rapid increase in assessed valuation as enumerated in four coast towns which may be considered as typical. The fact that State Parks have been established along the shore makes it possible for the people of the State to visit and enjoy the shore region. The forces of nature—wind, wave, tide and current—have changed the shore line of Connecticut, within the memory of man, and changes are still taking place. Erosion occurs at certain points and deposits are formed at other places. True, these changes are slight compared with some other coast states, but nevertheless, they occur, and many property owners have installed protective measures. Some of these measures have been successful and others have not.

Dr. Henry S. Sharp has studied the physical factors responsible for the development of the Connecticut shore line and the changes now occurring, and the results have been published as Bulletin No. 46, of the Connecticut Geological and Natural History Survey. This is a pamphlet of 97 pages, 29 figures and 8 plates. The author discusses the geological history of the Connecticut coast, and compares it with that of Maine and Rhode Island. He describes in some detail the principal geological formations, the changes that are now taking place, and suggests protective measures for those localities where erosion occurs.

GERMAN MAYOR PLEADS FOR FAIRNESS IN U. S.

Kansas City, Oct. 18.—(AP)—A plea for fairness in estimates of his country, was made here at a meeting of Americans of German descent by Dr. Gustave Boess, mayor of Berlin, who is on his way to New York to sail for Germany, Oct. 24. The occasion of his address was the tenth anniversary dinner of Lincoln Chapter of the Steuben Society. Speaking in German the mayor said he wished opinions of Germany held by Americans could have the same background as those of members of the American Army of Occupation. "There was revealed to us the honesty, friendliness and charity of the American soldier," he said, "and veterans of your army I have met here tell me they left Germany with a new appreciation of the German people." He declined to discuss the demand that he return to Berlin because of a municipal administration scandal, and entrained for New York immediately after dinner.

Most of Them Live in Detroit; Dry Agents Got Jobs With Runners.

Detroit, Oct. 18.—(AP)—Federal indictments against 42 men said to have been involved in two huge liquor syndicates operating out of New York, Detroit and Chicago were returned by a Grand Jury today. Fifteen of the alleged conspirators already have been arraigned, according to John R. Watkins, district attorney.

Evidence against the two syndicates was obtained by special prohibition agents working under direction of Dwight E. Davis, agent in charge at Detroit.

The circumference of the index finger of the Statue of Liberty at the second joint is three feet, six inches.

HERE IS THE LOW-DOWN ON THE POTATO SITUATION.

Native potatoes are very good but are yielding only on an average 200 bushels to an acre, whereas last year it was a common thing to get 500 bushels to an acre. Maine potatoes while they do not compare in quality with our natives have a great bearing on the local market. It is said that the State of Maine has raised enough potatoes this year to supply the world, but being wise to the situation the farmers are not selling any more than necessary and are holding out for much higher prices. It is hard to foresee just what the potato market will do but it really looks like a repetition of three years ago.

HIGHWAY SYSTEM UNDERWENT HUGE CUT SINCE 1923

Road Straightening Shortens Map 60 Miles—Means Saving to Motorists of $3,500,000 Per Year.

Since 1923, Connecticut's highway system has been shortened approximately 60 miles by cut-offs, curve eliminations and sight line improvements made during the course of construction or reconstruction, according to an announcement by Highway Commissioner John A. Macdonald today.

According to the statistical division of the highway department, this "straightening out" of the highways and shortening of the distance between towns is saving Connecticut motorists in the neighborhood of $3,500,000 per year.

By computing the number of miles saved upon each route where construction or reconstruction work has taken place in the past six years and multiplying this figure by the number of motor vehicles which pass over each of those routes during the course of a single year it is found that motorists are now saving approximately 43,800,000 car-miles annually. Multiplying this figure in turn by the average motor vehicle operating cost of $.08 per mile the yearly financial saving to motorists is found to be slightly more than three and one half million dollars.

Since coming into office in 1923, Commissioner Macdonald has devoted especial attention to the reduction of the accident hazard on all highways, and it was with the intention of increased safety that the highway straightening process has been undertaken. It is impossible to compute financially the value of this work as a safety measure, but according to safety experts and highway engineers it accomplishes more toward the reduction of accidents than any other factor entering into motor vehicle operation.

On practically all highway projects completed in Connecticut in the past six years, the radius of curves has been increased, sight lines have been improved, grades reduced and in many places large cut-offs built, some of which eliminated entire towns from the main highway routes. These improvements have greatly increased the speed as well as the safety of travel, and in time steep hills, sharp curves and blind corners will be things of the past on Connecticut highways.

THE TINYMITES

(READ THE STORY, THEN COLOR THE PICTURE) The wee woodpecker pecked away. It seemed to him like so much play. This pointed bill made tapping sounds and tree bark flew in air. To watch him one would know that he would after while, peck through the tree. The Tynmites were so surprised they did nothing but stare. Then suddenly, brave Scouty said: "Say, Tynmites, I really dread to think what soon will happen if that tree trunk's pecked in two. This is an outrage. Yes, siree. A silly trick that should be. We ought to stop that woodpecker, but gee, what can we do?" "I'll shout to him and maybe he will fly away when he hears me," said Clowny. But the shouting didn't do one bit of good. Then Copy said: "The Weeones there are getting quite an awful scare. If they are toppled with the tree it will not be so good." For quite a spell the bunch stood still. Then Carpy cried, "I've had next story."
