DETROIT WELCOMES THE HOOVER PARTY

President and First Lady
Head Distinguished Guests at Celebration to Do Honor to Thomas A. Edison.

Detroit, Mich., Oct. 21.—(AP)—Through a driving rain and biting wind, President Hoover with the First Lady of the Land beside him drove for twelve miles today in an open automobile from Dearborn to this city to greet thousands of people who jammed the plaza in front of the City Hall.

The purpose of the visit was to receive an official welcome from Governor Fred W. Green and Mayor John C. Lodge but it gave the people of Detroit their opportunity to glimpse a president for the first time in more than a decade.

Fought the Weather.
Throughout the long drive the president's car passed through an almost solid lane of humanity lining both sides of the beautiful Oakwood boulevard. Men, women and children were heedless of the elements as they strained to get a view of the President and Mrs. Hoover, and was the rain sufficient to dampen their enthusiasm.

All along the line the chief executive received an ovation, with the crowds cheering and automobile horns, bells and clappers adding to the din. At some places cadets of Detroit high schools with their colors drawn up at attention and at others school children waved tiny American flags as they screamed their welcome.

Here and there a band broke into music, as the procession passed the West street Presbyterian church on West Fort street, the chimes in the tower played "America."

Although both Mr. and Mrs. Hoover had rain coats thrown about their shoulders during the drive they were fairly wet upon arriving at the City Hall. The president's gray fedora was soaked, with water running from the brim as he doffed his hat upon entering the door of the brown stone City hall.

In this building Mayor Lodge was presented to Mr. and Mrs. Hoover and escorted them and the first lady to the main entrance where a covered platform had been erected. Mr. Hoover was given a tumultuous welcome by the thousands of persons, most of whom stood in the rain without protection even of umbrellas.

Governor Green, who had welcomed the president upon his arrival at Dearborn, stepped forward to the microphone but it was more than a

FIVE AUTO DEATHS OVER THE WEEK-END

Thirty Injured in State;
Three of the Fatal Accidents Were in Stamford.

By Associated Press.
Five persons were killed in motor vehicle accidents in Connecticut over the week-end. In addition about 30 were injured. Three of the fatalities occurred in Stamford alone.

John Carruthers, 30, member of a prominent Norwalk family lost his life in a collision anticipated by a police chase ending at Stamford. Carruthers, a passenger in an auto which police say was stolen from Willie Norman, negro of South Norwalk, suffered a crushed chest when he was thrown against the front of the car as it crashed into a pole.

Charles Amussen, 47, of Port Chester, N. Y., was fatally injured when his motorcycle crashed into a tree as he made a sharp turn on the road at Stamford. His wife, who was riding in a sidecar of the machine was slightly hurt. John H. Palmer, 25, of Coe, also lost his life at Stamford when his motorcycle and a truck driven by Tasker Cooke, of Stamford collided.

John W. Flemming, 54, of Meriden, was fatally injured when struck by an auto operated by Miss Florence Tves, 22, of the same city, as he slipped from a trolley car. Miss Tves was held in $1,000 bonds on a technical charge.

John Lamb, 55, of New Haven was killed when struck by an auto near his home. Abraham Jacobs, 51, of New Haven was held in $1,000 bonds on a charge of reckless driving.

SERVICE, NOT PATRONAGE, IS HOOVER'S VIEW

"Success of Republican Party Rests Upon Good Government," He Writes to Florida's Party Leader.

Washington, Oct. 21.—(AP)—President Hoover in reply to a protest from Florida over the appointment of a Federal attorney has announced it is the duty of the chief executive to make selections on the basis of public service and not for political reasons.

The letter, made public at the White House today, was in reply to a communication from Fred E. Britten, secretary of the Republican Party in Florida, on the appointment of Federal District Attorney Huggins. It asserted the Florida section in that state had overlooked the "primary responsibility" incumbent on the chief executive "to appoint men to public office who will execute the laws of the United States with integrity and without fear, favor or political collusion."

"I note your demand," the letter said, "that the organization shall dictate appointments in Florida irrespective of merit or my responsibility and that you appeal to the courts to force the administration to attack me. The success of the Republican Party rests upon good government, not on patronage."

LAWYERS DEMAND RETURN OF POWER

Courts Should Make Rules in Future Delegates to U. S.
Association Parley Say.

Memphis, Tenn., Oct. 21.—(AP)—A lost power to the judiciary—the right to promulgate rules governing pleading, practice and procedure—was up for discussion today before the conference of American Bar Delegation in session here, preparatory to the opening session of the American Bar Association Wednesday.

The committee judicial council is of the opinion the courts should rise in their might and retrieve laurels lost to state legislatures. Creation of a judicial council in each state, giving their courts and the full rule making power is enthusiastically advocated by the committee, headed by Josiah Marvel, Wilmington, Del.

Rulemaking powers once was considered within the inherent powers of the court and was exercised without question. Then legislatures began the practice of passing statutes, prescribing methods of pleading, practice and procedure to govern the bench and the bar.

AN ISSUE HERE
Hartford, Oct. 21.—(AP)—The subject of the "lost power to the judiciary" which is being discussed by the American Bar delegation at Memphis today, the right to promulgate rules governing pleading, practice and procedure—was the theme of a vigorous battle before the judicial committee of the Connecticut Assembly this year.

The committee which had before it a bill contained recommendations of the Connecticut judicial council granting these powers to the judiciary rejected the measure although leading attorneys and judges appeared to sponsor a favorable report and passage.

The bar delegation at Memphis is also considering a proposal that recommendations be made for the establishment of judicial councils in each state. Connecticut is one of the first states in the union to organize one, the governor having been granted the power by the 1927 Legislature. The October 18 in this state, which made many recommendations to the 1929 legislature concerning rules on pleading practice and procedure saw only a few of these recommendations adopted.

COSTE IN SHANGHAI.
Shanghai, China, Oct. 21.—(AP)—The French long distance fliers Dieudonne Coste and Maurice Belette arrived here today from Mukden, Manchuria.

The aviators went to Mukden after establishing a new long distance record, flying from Le Bourget across Europe and Siberia to Manchuria.

TREASURY BALANCE
Washington, Oct. 21.—(AP)—Treasury receipts for October 18 were $6,669,964.74; expenditures $37,214,971.67; balance $263,275,130.80.

FALL'S TRIAL NEARING END, SOON TO JURY

Final Arguments Started Today at Capital—Ex-Cabinet Member Appears in Court, Health Improved.

Washington, Oct. 21.—(AP)—Final arguments in the bribery trial of Albert B. Fall were started today when Albee Pomerene, special government counsel, told the jury which will determine Fall's guilt or innocence that they must determine whether the $100,000 obtained by the defendant from Edward L. Doheny, was a loan or not.

Fall, who arrived a few minutes before court opened, walked into the room and to his chair. For the last week he had been wheeled to his place in an invalid chair. He was supported by attendants but appeared stronger than at the government charges he received $100,000 from Doheny for awarding the latter company a lease to the Elk Hills naval oil reserve in California.

Talks With Counsel
The former interior secretary conferred for ten minutes with William Hitz to mount the bench.

The closing arguments were delayed about an hour while counsel conferred with Justice Hitz on disputed prayers each side wanted included in his charge to the jury.

Pomerene read a letter from Fall to Doheny before the Elk Hills lease was made which showed, he said, that the latter was "being kept informed of the oil reserve situation." The prosecution also read the famous policy letter in which Fall had inserted after the clause: "The cases shall be awarded by competitive bidding," the words "and otherwise," and said he would give the reason for this insertion.

Referring to the $100,000 which Doheny gave to Fall, Pomerene asserted that "there is not a man or woman in the jury who does not realize the impropriety of a public official accepting money from a man dealing with his department."

"Here's the situation," Pomerene shouted. "Contracts are to be let—a pretense of competition—"

BULGARIAN LEADER DIES IN BERLIN

Radoslavoff Was Premier
During World War; Once
Charged With Treason.

Berlin, Oct. 21.—(AP)—Vassil Radoslavoff, former Bulgarian premier and Liberal leader, died in a Berlin hospital today after an illness of six months.

It was under the premiership of Radoslavoff that Bulgaria entered the World War late in 1915 on the side of the Central Powers. Radoslavoff government took office in July, 1918, and held power until June, 1918.

When France, Great Britain and Russia refused to grant a loan to meet obligations and for construction work facing Bulgaria, the Radoslavoff government turned to the Central Powers and in July, 1914, concluded a loan with the Deutsche Gesellschaft of Berlin. Negotiations for a treaty had been in progress when the World War broke out.

For a time Bulgaria declared a strict policy of neutrality. On Sept. 6 Bulgaria signed a military convention and treaty with the Central Powers, Turkey making certain concessions demanded by Bulgaria. On Sept. 12 Bulgaria declared war on Serbia and a few days later Great Britain, France and Italy declared war on Bulgaria.

The early successes of the Bulgarian troops in Serbia at first gave popularity to the war but as time went on shortage of food and munitions intensified a desire for a separate peace. Malinov replaced Radoslavoff in office on June 18, 1918, and several months later Bulgaria asked for an armistice.

In 1923 six members of the Radoslavoff Cabinet, including Radoslavoff himself were sentenced to Sofia to life imprisonment charging them with having treasonably invited Bulgaria to join the World War. Radoslavoff had fled Bulgaria on the eve of the Allies' entry into Sofia, and consequently could not be imprisoned. He went to Berlin where he remained for a considerable time eventually leaving because of fear that he would be assassinated.

In July, 1924, full amnesty was voted for the Radoslavoff Cabinet, but it was not until June of this year that a bill was passed granting permission to former King Ferdinand and Radoslavoff to return to Bulgaria wherever they wished. There was some talk of Radoslavoff returning to politics as a member of the National Liberal Party.

WHEN SENATOR WAS GRILLED

Senator Hiram Bingham of Connecticut is shown here as he appeared in the witness chair at the Senate's lobby investigation while being questioned by other senators as to his employment of Charles L. Eyanson (inset) to assist in preparation of tariff schedules. The latter, it developed, is also an employe of the Connecticut Manufacturers' Association.

CHOOSE REED, ROBINSON NAVAL CUT DELEGATES

Senators Accept Post for London Parley; Borah Invited But Declines; Await Japan's Delegates.

Washington, Oct. 21.—(AP)—Secretary Stimson announced today on behalf of President Hoover that Senators Reed of Pennsylvania and Robinson of Arkansas, have accepted posts as members of the American delegation to the London arms parley in January.

The secretary said, Chairman Borah of the Senate foreign relations committee, had been asked by President Hoover to serve on an American commission but had found it impossible to accept.

Other Delegates
It is possible, the secretary added, that the selection of the other members of the American delegation, which is expected to comprise five or six delegates, will be deferred until more is known of the general situation to be expected at the discussions.

Commenting on the forthcoming arrival here of the Japanese delegation to the London conference, Stimson said he had informed the Tokyo government he would be glad to confer with its delegation in Washington before they proceed to London.

The secretary explained the reason for the selection of London by the American continent was due to delays on the trans-Siberian railway on account of the Chinese Soviet difficulties in Manchuria.

VIOLINIST, AGED 9 ASTOUNDS CRITICS

New York Audience Cheers
Prodigy at First Appearance—Comes from West.

New York, Oct. 21.—(AP)—What does a little boy of nine years think about the next morning, after he has seen an audience of music lovers rise to their feet and cheer him and call him back again and again?

For one thing he wanted breakfast. And then he'd like, please sir, to be allowed to play his violin.

Ruggiero Ricci came out of the west last night to play Mendelssohn's Concerto in E Minor with the Manhattan Symphony Orchestra and sweep both audience and critics off their feet with the brilliance and warmth of his playing.

"It's a pity that he can't know what the critics think of him. He never will until he has become more mature. All he knew today is that 'the critics didn't rear you, dear. They thought you did very well.'"

News Kept Secret
That's all that Miss Beth Lackey, his legal guardian and assistant instructor would let him know. Here are what some of the enthusiastic applause of his audience at Mecca Temple last night, and then he was a bit surprised at that, but he had seen a San Francisco audience do even more.

Here are what some of New York's critics think of him: "A technical mastery of the violin and a genius for interpretation that places him in a class with the handful of great living violinists. Temporary but burns unceasingly, a burning vitality that makes every

BIG AIRPLANE
CARRYING 169
TAKES THE AIR

German Flying Boat With 12
Engines Stays Aloft for One Hour—Trial Flight
a Remarkable Success.

Altenrhein, Switzerland, Oct. 21.—(AP)—Do-X, huge 12-motored flying boat which was launched here last July, today made an amazing one-hour flight with a human load of 169, the first time in the history of aviation that so many persons have been carried into the air on any air conveyance.

The Giant Dornier plane took off at 11:15 a. m., and landed just one hour later. The machine flew over Lake Constance, her motors working faultlessly and landed with her 51-ton load at 12:15 p. m. without a hitch.

The Do-X carried 159 passengers and a crew of ten. She had made previous test flights but this was the first time that so great a load was taken up.

Has 12 Motors.
The flying boat, which may be used for a trans-Atlantic crossing for the purpose of trying out her capacities, was designed to carry forty passengers normally but has accommodation for 100 if necessary. Her twelve engines can develop a total of 6,000 horsepower and each engine can be operated individually without affecting the neighbors.

The Do-X measures 150 feet tip to tail. Its wings are ten feet thick. Sixty great turrets project from each wing and each turret is equipped with two engines of 300 horsepower. The turrets are manned by mechanics who can walk along a passage on the inside of the wings from one turret to another.

Trials Successful.
When the Do-X was launched last July she carried 34 tons of weight, and was able to get into the air with the greatest ease after a take-off run of only 500 yards. Other trials were similarly successful.

One of the features of the plane is her three decks. Another is that of the machine can fly with only eight motors in use.

Mr. Dornier built the plane at Alyntheim which is on the Swiss side of the German-Swiss frontier because of the limitations on German aircraft imposed by the Treaty of Versailles.

While the ship was being built, many skeptics who maintained that a flying boat would never fly owing to its enormous weight. Aviation experts, however, were enthusiastic about her ability to take the air.

PRICES IN MARKET CONTINUE TO DROP

Feverish Trading at Opening to Keep Up Prices Falls,
Big Selling Wave.

New York, Oct. 21.—(AP)—Stock prices gyrated wildly, with a general tendency toward lower levels, in feverish trading on the New York Stock and Curb exchanges today. Powerful support was thrown into the market at the opening, and many leading shares were sent up $3 to $13 above the low levels reached in Saturday's drastic decline, but support was quickly withdrawn before another huge wave of selling which cancelled most of the early gains and sent prices sharply lower.

Many Margin Calls.
The dizzy decline in prices late last week brought a flood of margin calls over the week-end, and discouraged traders dumped their holdings overboard at the market. At the same time, "bearish" pressure was renewed in earnest. Unconformable rumors were circulated over the week-end that powerful bankers had formed a pool to support the market by late forenoon.

United States Steel Common, after opening at $212, up $3 from Saturday's close, tumbled to $205.50, but then headed upward once more. The lowest price reached in the break early in the month was

E. Kent Hubbard, President of Connecticut Manufacturers Association, Tells Senate Lobby Committee That National Republican Committeeman Did Not Take Part in Conference About "Loan" of Eyanson to Senator Bingham—Hubbard Asserts He Approves All That Senator Bingham Has Done.

Washington, Oct. 21.—(AP)—Testimony that the office of J. Henry Roraback, Republican National Committeeman for Connecticut was used as a conference room by the president of the Connecticut Manufacturers' Association and Senator Bingham Republican, Connecticut, at the time it was arranged to "loan" Bingham a representative of the association was received today by the Senate lobby committee.

Charles L. Eyanson, subsequently decided upon as the representative and served as an employee of Bingham at the time the tariff bill was before the Senate finance committee. He has testified, however, he received no money from Bingham as his salary with the association was continued.

The details of the conference in Roraback's office in Hartford were given by E. Kent Hubbard, president of the association who emphasized that Roraback did not participate in the conference about the "loan" of a representative. Later, under questioning by Chairman Caraway, Hubbard asserted: "I approve of what Senator Bingham has done one thousand per cent."

PRODUCE MEMORANDUM
Washington, Oct. 21.—(AP)—An office memorandum of the Connecticut Manufacturers Association showing information on the secret tariff rate making association of the Senate finance committee was produced today at the Senate lobby investigating committee hearing.

The memorandum was written by J. E. Wulchert, an official of the association, to Charles L. Eyanson, Republican, Connecticut, a member of the finance committee hearing its deliberations on the tariff measure.

The paper was produced by Senator Walsh, Democrat, Montana. Eyanson on being shown a photostatic copy of the memorandum, said he did not remember it.

"Do you suppose," Walsh asked, "that Mr. Wulchert, a subordinate of yours, had such familiarity with the majority members of the finance committee as to obtain this information?"

"No sir," Eyanson replied. "I suppose you will have to ask Mr. Wulchert about it," Walsh observed.

Eyanson's testimony to some extent duplicated that at the heated sessions of last week, he insisted that although the association had paid his salary, he was not an employe of Bingham and did not represent the association.

Senator Blaine, Republican, Wisconsin, asked if he was called from the finance committee room between July 23 and 27.

Eyanson replied he had been called over the telephone "a number of times" and might have been called out of the room.

"Don't you recall a very important telephone call?" Blaine asked. "From whom was it?"

Blaine did not give the witness any enlightenment except to assert that Eyanson said during the conversation: "I cannot tell you now, I'll tell you later."

Eyanson was unable to recall the conversation.

Blaine then asked from whom he had received long distance calls and Eyanson named several, including Perkins and the American Thermos Bottle Company.

The witness said he did not recall making the statement attributed to him by Blaine, adding he would have been "very stupid" to have said that while newspaper reporters were present.

The Wulchert memorandum was headed "Subject Information for Senator Bingham."

It read: "In telephone conversations with Mr. Henderson of the Crescent Fire Arms Company and Mr. Warner of the Davis and Warner Arms Company, both of Norwich, in reply to an inquiry originating with Mr. Henderson, I informed these gentlemen that Senator Bingham met with very strong opposition to the ten per cent duty on rough bored shot gun barrels from the Savage Arms Company, et al, and three influential members of the Senate finance committee, Senators Smoot, chairman, Reed and Egan, and that Senator Bingham considered it a decisive victory to have held the duty where it now stands in the House bill, at 10 per cent in the face of a very strong effort to raise it to 30 per cent."

Hubbard, president of the association, then was called. He asked to be permitted to stand during his examination.

"That's all right," said Chairman

P. M. MCNEARY DIES SUDDENLY

Cerebral Hemorrhage Takes Life of Former Police Commissioner Here.

Patrick Maurice McNeary, a former police commissioner here, died suddenly at 11:30 last night of cerebral hemorrhage at his home at 13 Oak street.

Mr. McNeary, whose genial disposition won him the cognomen of "Smiler," was native of Manchester, having been born on Locust street 46 years ago, on October 15, 1883.

Mr. McNeary was a member of the Underwood typewriter factory in Hartford. Always an energetic and active politician he was named a police commissioner shortly after that commission was raised here.

But a few weeks later he had to suffer a long period of illness due to stomach hemorrhages. For a time during that illness it was not believed possible that he could live.

His strength failed him and a strong will to live carried him through the crisis. Last night he spent a short period reading after eating supper. He appeared particularly concerned over something and told his sisters with whom he lived that he was going out for a walk.

He was immediately put to bed and Dr. Edward C. Higgins was called. The patient passed into a coma at about 11:30 and shortly afterwards died.

Mr. McNeary was one of the original 25 who organized the Manchester City club when its rooms were in the Ferris block on Main street.

He was the first president of the City club and always has been active in its membership. He was also a member of the Rockville Lodge of Elks being in the first group of Manchester men to join the Rockville lodge.

He was exceedingly popular in both organizations, his ability at repartee and ready wit being always in evidence even during the periods of his greatest suffering.

Mr. McNeary was survived by two brothers, Thomas J. and William P., both of New York city and three sisters, Mrs. William Naven, Miss Sarah T. McNeary and Miss Rebecca C. McNeary, of this town.

A funeral service will be held at 10:30 Wednesday morning at St. James's Roman Catholic church, of which Mr. McNeary was a member. Burial will be in St. Bridget's cemetery. A meeting of the membership of the Manchester City club will be held at a group of local Elks will be held in the City club rooms at eight o'clock tonight to plan for the funeral.

FALL'S TRIAL NEARING END, SOON TO JURY (Continued from Page 1) yet Doherty, a mining friend of Fall, presented bid containing that preferential bid, and nothing in the specifications calling for it.

Doherty testified before a Senate committee that he had "blurted out" that he had expected to make $100,000 out of the milk hills lease. That wise old man doesn't blurt out anything unless he has confidence.

KIWANIANS OBSERVE JUBILEE OF LIGHT

Representative of Westinghouse Electric Company Here for Illustrated Talk.

"Light's Golden Jubilee"—1879-1929, was the subject of an unusually interesting and instructive talk given before the Manchester Kiwanis club this noon at the Country club by A. Paulus of the Westinghouse Electric company of New Jersey.

Mr. Paulus illustrated his talk by some very fine pictures of the spectacular lighting effects at Atlantic City where the most ambitious celebration of the jubilee was staged. He showed the illumination of the great hotels on the boardwalk, the new convention hall, the arch studied by the many colored bulbs giving the appearance of jewels, the illuminated fountain and the light standards along the ocean side of the walk.

Mr. Paulus gave a short outline of the life history of the great inventor, Thomas A. Edison. He told of his experiments with the incandescent bulb which burned forty hours, and of his early struggles when he sold newspapers and finally became interested in the study of electricity.

Two prizes were awarded today, one was the regular prize given by John Olson, which was won by Rev. J. Stuart Neill. In observance of Electric Week Mr. Heebner donated a prize and this one went to Arvid Gustafson. New Britain Ladies' Night occurs October 30 and to date the Manchester couples have promised to attend.

HAMMER BAR SUCCEED DYNAMITE AT NOTCH

No More Blasting at Bolton Railroad Cut; Ledge to Be Picked to Pieces by Hand.

Blasting of that hypersensitive rock body that overlooks the railroad cut at Bolton Notch has been abandoned for good, it was stated today. It has been decided at a conference of the State Highway Department, the New Haven Railroad Company and the New Haven Construction and Construction Company which latter concern is building the new highway through the Notch, that there has been enough holding up of trains on the Highland Division through blasting operations and the rock mass is to be tackled by another method.

Such of the formation as remains, and it is plenty, lies with its strata slanting directly toward the open cut and it would be physically impossible to disrupt it by explosions without precipitating further falls onto the tracks, with more holdups like the 24-hour one of last week. It has been decided, therefore, to tackle the ledge with the old fashioned face-hammer and crowbar, breaking up the strata and removing the rubble with a steam shovel.

This is a necessary laborious process, but despite the fact that the slanting strata are separated by layers of mica about as slippery as banana skins it is expected that with the exercise of care slides of any gravity will be avoided.

DAILEY-DUTCHESS Miss Annabelle Dutches, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Dutches of 619 North Main street, and Francis Daley, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Daley of Rockville, were married in St. Bridget's church this morning at 9 o'clock by Rev. C. T. McCann, who celebrated a nuptial high mass following the ceremony. Miss William Shea was the soloist.

The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Martha Dutches, as maid of honor. Her bridesmaids were Miss Lillian McBride, Miss Josephine Tansky and Miss Mildred Mitchell of this town and Miss Helen Gilkinson of Windsorville. James Gilkinson was the best man.

The bride wore a gown of white tulle with veil of point lace and tulle caught with pearls. She carried a shower bouquet of bridal roses and lilies of the valley. Her slippers were of silver.

The maid of honor wore a green tulle dress with hat and slippers. The bridesmaids wore blue, pink, Miss Mitchell in pink, Miss Tansky, orchid, and Miss Gilkinson yellow. They all carried arm bouquets of roses in pink shades.

Following the ceremony the bride and groom were taken to the home of the bride's parents. A wedding breakfast was served at the home of the bride's parents.

24 COURT CASES ARE HEARD TODAY (Continued from Page One) Barron questioned De Guyon and obtained a confession. De Guyon's story that he broke the watch handling it and was going to return it to the owner, but he could make repairs, made no impression on Judge Johnson who made it clear that he had little consideration to show for a "sneak thief". He sentenced De Guyon to 15 days in jail. Naturally he has already been discharged from the hospital.

The case of Domenick Sambogna, 35, of 45 Cottage street, who was arrested at 5:50 yesterday afternoon at Oak and Cottage St., for driving an automobile while under the influence of liquor, was continued until next Saturday morning. Patrolman Joseph Prentice made the arrest and Dr. Howard Boyd and Dr. Le Vene examined the defendant.

George Miner charged with failure to contribute to the support of his wife and children, was found guilty, given a 30 days suspended jail sentence and ordered to pay $7. He had previously paid $5 a week by order of another court but the expiration of this order took place more than a month ago. He had decided to remain in the rain coat which he loaned him at the City Hall, while the First Lady wore a coat of Miss Gwynn Davis, a secretary in the mayor's office.

A Secret Service agent told Ralph Quinn, secretary to the mayor, that the rain coat was soaked through by the rain and would like to have a coat. Quinn rushed into his office. "Give me your coat," he demanded of Miss Davis who, startled, handed it to him without knowing for what purpose. A few minutes later she saw Mrs. Hoover wearing it as she entered the car.

Edison Not Present. Mr. Edison, who braved the rain to welcome the President at the Ford plant at Dearborn and accompanied the party to the early American village which Mr. Ford has reproduced as a monument to the inventor, did not make the trip here and so disappointed the crowds. He was not feeling any too well and his friends decided he should remain indoors for the time.

NOTABLES PRESENT Detroit, Oct. 21.—(AP)—In a setting that contrasted early American life with the present, a group of the nation's notables came today to pay tribute to the 50th anniversary of the invention of the incandescent electric lamp. Most of the ceremonies were held in the early American village reconstructed by Henry Ford at Dearborn last April 8, in which he said "I hope very much I can get in touch with you through J. Henry."

Hubbard, recalled, said that J. Henry was J. Henry Roraback, Republican national committee chairman for Connecticut.

"What did J. Henry have to do with this?" persisted Walsh. "Nothing."

"Why was he brought into it?" "Senator Bingham had no residence in Hartford and he was suggesting that I meet him at Mr. Roraback's place. He was a guest of Mr. Roraback's," explained Hubbard.

The witness continued that he did meet Senator Bingham in Mr. Roraback's office. He insisted, however, that Roraback did not participate in the conference then at which time Hubbard and Bingham arranged for the "loan" of Eyanston.

DETROIT WELCOMES THE HOOVER PARTY

(Continued from Page 1) minute before he could make himself heard above the din. "Owing to the generosity of Henry Ford," the governor said, "we are privileged to celebrate an achievement of the greatest inventive genius of our time, Thomas A. Edison. He has come to spend a few days with us and to view again the places he visited in his youth."

"It is most fitting that this celebration there should be brought together the builders of our age and foremost among them is the governor whom we honor today, Herbert Hoover."

Needs No Praise. "His usefulness to his country and to humanity are so well known as to require no statement at this time. The state of Michigan has an abiding faith in the future of the nation and in this state than ever before. Our people more than ever before stand behind him and his policies."

President's Words. "Thanking the crowd for the 'generosity and courtesy' of its welcome, the president said he saw 'no doubt of warmths in the faces and hearts of the people of Detroit despite the action of the skies.' "I have thought it a fitting thing, as the governor has said, for the president of the United States to take part in paying honor to one of our great Americans, Thomas A. Edison."

"Mr. Edison has brought to our country great distinction throughout the world. He has brought great benefactions to all of us and it is but a small thing we may do to record the appreciation, esteem and honor in which the nation holds him."

"Detroit is fortunate it is to be the point where the nation pays its tribute to Thomas A. Edison and I wish to thank you again for your cordiality and the courtesy of your welcome. Thank you."

After the City Hall ceremonies the President and Mrs. Hoover drove back to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Ford at Dearborn, following the same route as on the inward ride. Mr. Hoover was bundled into a gray touring car and the rain coat which he loaned him at the City Hall, while the First Lady wore a coat of Miss Gwynn Davis, a secretary in the mayor's office.

A Secret Service agent told Ralph Quinn, secretary to the mayor, that the rain coat was soaked through by the rain and would like to have a coat. Quinn rushed into his office. FIRST S. M. E. MUSICAL PROMISES FINE SEASON

Schubert Program Brings Congratulations to Director, Soloists and Chorus.

The musicale at the South Methodist church last night, the opening one of this season, portends a profitable winter program of presentations. A very interested and numerously gratifying audience enjoyed the beauties of the "Schubert" program. Rev. R. A. Colpitts the pastor, stated that it was the desire of all concerned that these musicals should be accepted as a community offering and that everyone in town was always a welcome guest. The opening number was appropriate—an organ solo, Schubert's "Unfinished" Symphony in B minor, in which offering Mr. Sessions gave an artistic and appealing performance.

Again in the offertory, organist, "Ave Maria," admirable interpretation brought out all the beauties of this sublime and well known selection. In the postlude, the number selected by Mr. Sessions was the "Marche Militaire" by Schubert, also well executed.

The chorus work began with "The Omnipotence" well known and most popular to local audiences. Miss Gladys Hahn carried through the solo part wonderfully well, her excellent vocal qualities being well adapted to the concert work against the chorus. In the upper register she showed a beauty of tone, clear and refreshing. Her performance ranks with any previous productions of this well known number here.

In the larger offering "Miriam's Song of Triumph" Miss Hahn displayed pleasing qualities. The number has as its theme the episode of the Israelites at the crossing of the Red Sea and the dramatic phases of that epic call for trained and artistic performance. Miss Hahn rose to the occasion. Pathos, appeal, and joyful acclaim, each received the requisite touch.

The chorus upheld the high traditions earned by them in previous years and were for the occasion augmented, as is customary by many musical friends from Hartford and locally. In their work with the soloist they gave the necessary support as accompaniment.

The director, soloist and chorus were the recipients after the concert of congratulations from many well wishers, amongst others being E. F. Laubin of Hartford, and other prominent musicians.

ocrat, Massachusetts, he was kept informed of the "propaganda" campaign of the Atlantic Fisheries Corporation.

The witness said he was then referred to Senator Bingham and his assistant, Eyanston.

"I couldn't see Senator Bingham and was turned over to Eyanston," he continued. "I could make absolutely no headway with Eyanston. He said 'we have listened to both sides and we have decided the Atlantic coast fisheries is right.'"

Cooley said he replied that the fishing industry was forced to feel plain that Senator Bingham was leading a fight against the fish-dealers and in behalf of the Atlantic Coast Fisheries Corporation."

The witness added that Meisnet said "it would be a comparatively easy matter to fix up figures on either side of the case so as to confuse."

Cooley said he was told he would have to "get" Bingham and Eyanston to win his fight for retention of the fish duty.

Senator Bingham read a letter from Senator Bingham to Hubbard of last April 8, in which he said "I hope very much I can get in touch with you through J. Henry."

PANTAGES TO TAKE THE STAND TODAY

Los Angeles, Oct. 21.—(AP)—Alexander Pantages, wealthy theater man, may take the witness stand late today in his trial on a statutory charge brought by Eunice Pringle, 17-year-old dancer.

Defense attorneys, announcing that Pantages will testify, said his testimony will be the most vital link in their chain of evidence combating the attack story of Miss Pringle. Pantages is expected to contradict her testimony in every detail and build up the defense contention of a "frame-up" conspiracy.

Several other defense witnesses remain to be heard, but it was said their testimony would be brief. Pantages is expected to be the last witness called by the defense, after which the state will put rebuttal witnesses on the stand. The case in all probability will go to the jury Thursday night or Friday.

Tells Her Version. Mrs. Rose Fowler, Pantages' secretary, whose testimony was interrupted when court adjourned Friday for the week-end, was to resume her story today. Mrs. Fowler gave an entirely new version of the alleged attack. She said she saw Pantages immediately after Miss Pringle's screams raised an alarm, and he did not show signs of a struggle. State witnesses had testified his clothing was torn.

Mrs. Fowler also contradicted the testimony of Roy Keene, assistant manager of the Pantages theater, who said he was in Pantages office soon after the alleged attack. She said he was not in the office at all.

It was learned yesterday that Mrs. Lois Pantages, wife of the theater magnate, recently found guilty of manslaughter in connection with the death of a Japanese gardener as the result of an automobile accident, is confined to her home with a badly injured knee. Dr. E. V. Fishbaugh, her physician, said an operation may be necessary.

Mrs. Pantages is to appear in Superior Judge Hardy's court Oct. 25, for hearing on her plea for probation.

The TOWN DOCTOR SAYS

SOME TOWNS WON'T TAKE TELLING

Not long ago the executive of a town's leading civic organization, and the owner and publisher of the largest newspaper, had called to their attention the fact that among other such things, grass was growing in the sidewalks and curbs of their business district. They laughed and said, "Well, I guess that won't keep any business out of towns."

In the same month the officials of another city were reminded that they had no parks or playgrounds for youngsters or grown-ups, and they replied, "Oh, that doesn't mean anything; we have plenty of other things, and a place to play won't keep any factories from coming here."

About the same time another community was warned that lack of interest in their community, shown by so many citizens, might prove costly. They said, "Ha! ha! What has that to do with it as long as we have a Chamber of Commerce with plenty of money and pull?"

Now I am told that city No. 1 was crossed off a list of seven towns selected as "possible" for a factory with a fifty thousand dollar monthly small children. Mrs. Edwards, now 60, assumed management of the Edwards farm near here. She made the farm pay dividends. In 1910, through a bank reorganization, she payroll, due to conditions reported as "run down, seedy and unattractive appearance of the community in general."

A large industrial concern, in the final analysis of two accepted towns, chose the other in preference to town No. 2, because the report on my desk shows said town had no recreational facilities for employees to whom five million dollars would be paid annually.

In this afternoon's mail there is evidence that because a survey of town No. 3 showed the population 72 per cent negative civically, the town was refused a donation of $250,000 which it had asked of a large foundation.

As long as citizens of a community refuse to profit by the experience of others—as long as they won't be told or appreciate the telling, just that long will those towns stay as they are, failing to get new business and allowing the business they have to go elsewhere.

"He didn't know the gun was loaded," "He didn't stop, look and listen," are famous epigrams. Now, as far as many towns are concerned, you can add, "We never thought about that."

In 1921 she was chosen president, resigned in 1924 (but was called back to the presidency a year later. She has held it since.

"GOLD DIGGERS" PACKS CROWDS INTO STATE

Production Makes Big Hit With Local Audiences; Many Features Applauded.

Two packed houses greeted the initial Manchester showings of "The Gold Diggers of Broadway" at the State last night. All of the advance predictions as to the merit of the production were more than lived up to. Roars of hearty laughter, interspersed with salvos of applause marked every movement of the principals. There has not been any picture shown on the screen peopled with such a gala array of stars as is "The Gold Diggers of Broadway." Add to this a technical production entirely in natural color and you have the most gorgeous melange of marvelous entertainment ever presented on the stage or screen.

More words are inadequate to fully describe the wonderful beauty of this screen epic. It must be seen to fully appreciate it. It is a typical Winter Garden show plus a Belasco comedy-drama. There is a chorus of 100 Hollywood beauties. Six Witmark song hits which you will simply have to whistle. Comedy that will make you laugh. Costumes that would make a beauty out of sixty-year old spinster. Tunes as only Nick Lucas can croon them: wise cracks as only Winnie Lightner can pull them; love scenes as only Conway Tearle can play them, plus speed, snap and all of the colors of the rainbow.

This picture will be shown today and Tuesday. Our advice is to see it at least once, and get to the theater early for choice seats. A selected Vitaphone act and the latest screen news completes the program.

HEBRON

The Rev. and Mrs. William Slade of Thetford, Vermont, recently mentioned as engaged in writing the history of Thetford, has found from their investigations that of the 50 men who were the first settlers of Thetford, 47 were from Hebron. They went to Thetford in 1765. Among the names of these first settlers were Phelps, Mattoon, Tillotson, Buell, Barber, Carver, Jones, Horsford, Root, Sumner and others, all familiar names in Hebron in its early history. Among these men was the Rev. Clement Sumner who was the first pastor of the Thetford church. He became a Loyalist or Tory and was ousted from his pastorate, and it is said he returned to Hebron and built the house now owned by Miss Alice Foster of Hartford. Mr. and Mrs. Slade have gleaned some interesting facts from a study of records here and from the old cemeteries. It has been discovered that Hebron has a daughter town in Nova Scotia, also bearing the name of Hebron, and settled in Revolutionary times by Tories from this town.

The water situation locally continues acute. Some of the farmers have been obliged to sell their livestock on account of the lack of water. Others are going long distances, in some cases miles, for supplies of water from brooks, springs or wells which have not given out, and carrying the supplies home in cans. Drinking water also has caused trouble. Old wells or springs at a distance have had to be used, and there seems to be no relief in sight. The few rains have been insufficient to make more than the slightest impression on the streams and wells which have gone dry.

BIG LOSERS

Yesterday was gloriously beautiful. It was as though October had gotten up in the morning determined to show a wonderful world what she could do in the production of perfect weather when she really wanted to. Garbed in her gayer raiment she smiled upon mankind her most alluring smile.

Yet cops, trolley motormen, traffic officers, druggists and other Sunday observers will tell you that there were more soures roundabout in this part of the world yesterday than they have seen in any one day in goodness knows how long.

Fer pity's sake—why? The lapping up of liquor is an understandable weakness to most people even though they do not take it themselves—always excepting of course an element that knows nothing and never will know anything about human processes outside its own narrow experiences.

Men and women drink because they are uncomfortable in some inner way and seek comfort. They drink when they are cold and they drink when they are too warm. They drink to get away from conditions as they are and in hope of enjoying conditions that are artificial.

They drink when they are in sorrow, when they are in anger, when they are in pain, when they are in doubt, when they are in confusion, when they are in despair, when they are in loneliness, when they are in fear, when they are in shame, when they are in guilt, when they are in remorse, when they are in regret, when they are in sorrow, when they are in pain, when they are in despair, when they are in loneliness, when they are in fear, when they are in shame, when they are in guilt, when they are in remorse, when they are in regret.

Roosevelt succeeded in making the American people see a picture of the desert blossoming with riches, to be shared by all, through irrigation and reclamation. Yet that sub-dreth part as important to the welfare of the nation as the proper development of the country's inland waterways. If it were not so futile, it could be wished that Mr. Hoover, to his keen understanding of the waterways situation, could bring in addition all of the Rooseveltian capacity for stirring up a devoted enthusiasm for almost any cause.

However, if President Hoover succeeds, at Louisville, in bringing but a glimmering of the importance of waterways development to the realization of the nation he will have performed a remarkable feat and a highly useful one.

RADIO IN POLITICS. Down in Bridgeport they have a local broadcasting station, WICC, and the Democratic Town Committee has engaged time on its program during the week preceding the city election early in November. The Republican Town Committee, however, does not intend to campaign over the radio. It will depend, as heretofore, on newspaper advertising, rallies and personal messages.

It is no slouch of a campaign that is being conducted in the Park City, either. There is plenty of material in several contracts, bridge, paying and the like, which the Democrats charge smell of extravagance if not of graft and which the Republicans are vigorously defending as clean business. And while the city is normally Republican the majority is not so large that the Democrats haven't at all times a fighting chance.

In a sense, then, the Bridgeport situation provides a new kind of test—that between a radio campaign and a campaign ignoring the medium which so many people have accepted as being an absolute essential of all future political contests. We do not recall the same situation as having arisen anywhere else.

The outcome should be interesting. For our part we are inclined to string along with the Republican Committee in its conclusion that the influence of radio speeches on the results of political contests is perhaps less than so many politicians believe.

NOT REPUBLICANS. The little group of Western "progressives" which, operating as a farm bloc, has succeeded with Democratic aid in hanging the discredited farm debenture measure around the neck of tariff revision, is increasingly demonstrating its lack of all claim to association with the Republican party. That is a condition that the party as a whole will have to take under serious consideration before long. Perhaps the sooner the better.

The farm bloc in the Senate is not Republican. It is a separate political group, with a set of political principles entirely its own. It does not subscribe to Republican theories of government. It has no more real place in the Republican rolls than a Tammany bloc would have. It isn't even a very short tail trying to wag a big dog—it is an amputated tail, detached from the body out of which it grew by its own perpetual twistings.

The Republican party cannot much longer shoulder responsibility for the farm bloc. There is no reason why it should try. The use of the bloc's votes for organization purposes is an empty benefit if every program of Republican legislation is to be in turn defeated by coalition of the bloc with the party's principal political enemy.

It is high time that the leaders of the Republican party throughout the country seriously weighed the advisability of formally excluding these persistent malcontents and obstructionists from the use of the Republican label and compelling them to conduct their political activities in the open, as a third party.

FINANCING RUM. Being convinced that banks with whom the big New Jersey bootleg syndicate had dealings were fully aware of the business in which their clients were engaged, Assistant U. S. Attorney Wilkinson declares it is high time there was "a new code of ethics for the business world."

That's just the trouble. There is a new code. It's already working. What Mr. Wilkinson really wants is a return to the old code. Fifteen years ago no banker would have entertained for a moment the idea of financing a smuggling ring or any other group organized to defeat the criminal laws of the country. Yet it is seriously to be doubted whether the moral and ethical code of the banking fraternity is not, on the whole, rather higher today than it ever was before.

If bankers in some instance shut their eyes to the possible legal status of the people in whom the wholesale purveying of liquor in this country rests under the peculiar conditions of the prohibition experiment, it is no proof whatever that the financial world has abandoned its standards of honor; rather it indicates that bank people, at least in certain instances, distinguish sharply between summary laws and laws founded on principles of justice and the security of life and property.

FORGETTERY. The New London Day, commenting on the rumors of a third daily newspaper in Hartford, says: "But politicians are always hopeful about newspapers. Somehow they all think they can run newspapers successfully. They forget that the most successful newspapers are often the least political and that even the enormous circulation of Mr. Hearst's many periodicals has never yet secured for him an election to so much of a job as pound keeper."

Perhaps the Day's lapse of memory is not without excuse, but in spite of the fact that the New York editor was perhaps the most famous absentee that ever sat, theoretically, in that body, William Randolph Hearst was elected from the eleventh district of New York, as a Democrat, to both the 58th and 59th Congresses of the United States, in 1903 and 1905 respectively.

To be sure, he cut no figure whatever as a Congressman, but the fact remains that he did get an elective office and one that, even in the hands of Mr. Hearst, was quite as important as that of pound-keeper. We have known of pound-keepers who never looked up a cow or a dog.

WASHINGTON LETTER. BY RODNEY DUTCHER. NEA Service Writer. Washington, Oct. 21. Nearly everyone who writes about lobbies in Washington gives voice to the assumption that we all believe the institution of the lobby is something new and then attempts to astonish us by proving otherwise.

Your correspondent is not going to suggest that the customers of this newspaper are as ignorant as that, but after diligent research the hopes to be able to set down more concerning the antiquity and history of the lobbies than has ever been gathered together before. The unanimity with which writers have neglected this subject is nothing short of astonishing and no more than a general outline can be given because lobbies out after the people's money have nearly always been accepted with the greatest equanimity.

From the Beginning. There never has been a time since the establishment of this government when the lobbyists were not on the job in the national capital. They have taken goodness knows how many billions of dollars from the American people through their grabs of land, natural resources and profitable favors. Any complete history of lobbies, including those which have worked on state legislatures, would take ten times the space of the largest encyclopaedia.

It is often pointed out that the modern day lobby is far smoother and more respectable than the lobby of the last century. That's a fact and it's just as well. If the old lobby's tactics hadn't finally been modified the White House would now be occupied by a member of the power trust, the Capitol and the Lincoln Memorial would have been moved to some billionaire's backyard and the customs houses would all be in the hands of some enterprising corporation.

The time came when there wasn't much left to steal and competition became so keen that lobbyists began to checkmate each other. But until Congress and the legislatures had given away most of the country and its natural resources there were lobbyists on hand of the very type to grease the legislators and speed the process. Today there isn't much left except power sites and those are being handed out as rapidly as possible.

"The Fathers" believed in direct action. At the outset they did their own lobbying when it was necessary instead of hiring someone. Alexander Hamilton led the first congressional lobby in the fight for the funding of the national debt and the assumption by the federal government of the state debts. The people with money had bought up this paper from the people who needed money for as low as 10 cents on the dollar. Members of Congress were among the speculators and the others came rushing to the scene to exert pressure.

"I do not know that pecuniary influence has actually been used," wrote Senator William Maclay of Pennsylvania in his journal, "but I am certain that every kind of management has been practiced and every tool at work that could be thought of."

Put Through a Deal. The "assumption" measure was first defeated. But meanwhile another lobby had been urging the building of a national capital along the Potomac river and after the Hamiltonian lobby had conceded the latter project Jefferson and other southerners were finally persuaded to agree to "assumption." The speculators, many of whom had bought up the paper from uninformed soldiers and planters on the basis of inside information, cleaned up.

After the speculators and the lobbyists turned their attention to the land and began the long but thorough campaign to loot the public domain.

TOMORROW: The father of the lobbyists arrives on the scene—the Rev. Manassah Cutler.

HEALTH DIET ADVICE BY Dr. Frank McCoy

QUESTIONS IN REGARD TO HEALTH & DIET WILL BE ANSWERED BY DR. FRANK MCCOY WHO CAN BE REACHED IN CASE OF THIS PAPER BY ENCLOSED STAMPED ADDRESS ENVELOPE FOR REPLY

BACTERIA EVERYWHERE. There are bacteria associated with disease, and also equally as many associated with health. The word "bacteria" holds a terror for most people, who always associate the word with such words as "infection," "disease," "sickness" and "death."

As with many other things about which we have only a slight knowledge, a little knowledge is often a dangerous thing. Perhaps the greatest harm is produced through the fear engendered by the false belief that bacteria always mean trouble.

It is well to remember that bacteria are essentially vegetable growths. They have no sex life—they are not male and female, nor bugs or worms or anything else except "vegetable" growths. The different kinds of bacteria grow in different substances. If the substances which are nutritious to one type of bacteria are taken away from these vegetable growths the bacteria cannot develop, and either die or remain in a resting state, in some cases for periods of time lasting as long as twenty years.

Bacterial growths change their location by throwing out little spores or spores and sometimes in a short period these growths will spread over a large space where there is enough nutrition for their growth.

Dried bacteria are also blown off by the wind and carried from one place to another by any moving object, such as man or animals. Flies or mosquitoes, in this way also play their part in transporting bacteria from one place to another.

All bacteria may be destroyed by steam heat, and most bacteria by freezing.

There are a great many beneficial bacteria found in the alimentary canal and digestion and assimilation could not go on without their presence. The bacteria of the intestines do their work by breaking down the highly complex organisms of our food into simpler elements which the body can digest and assimilate.

In many cases, too many of the putrefactive bacteria exist in the intestines, and one of the secrets of scientific dietetics is to attempt through proper feeding to keep the right amount of good bacteria in the intestines, and to eliminate the destructive ones.

Bacteria are found in practically every part of the world. Even the oceans are literally full of bacteria. It is thought that fish and seaweed owe their existence to bacteria in the ocean which keep in circulation the chemical elements which are vital for aquatic animals and plants. (More about bacteria tomorrow.)

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS. Onions, Kidneys and Liver. Question: Nanette asks: "Are onions, kidneys and liver healthful foods?"

Answer: No, no, Nanette; the onions are too gassy and the kidneys and liver have their best use while in the living body of the animal.

Sandwich Fillings. Question: Seventeen writes: "I am a high school girl and as I live in the country I find it necessary to take my lunch. Would you please suggest some good food combinations to be used in making sandwich fillings? Should brown bread always be used? Also, I have noticed where you stated that milk should never be used with meals. Is it alright to drink milk between meals, for example, when one returns from school?"

Answer: None but genuine whole-wheat bread should be used for sandwiches, with such fillings as ground nuts or nut butters, minced eggs, minced ripe olives, cheese of lettuce or cabbage, or finely chopped celery. Do not make the mistake of using a glass of milk with a sandwich. And do not drink milk between meals, but use it as a meal itself, and in combination with some one of the raw acid fruits, such as oranges or apples, or with one or more of the non-starchy vegetables, such as string beans or spinach, etc. Keep in mind that milk is a real food, and not just a "drink" to be used whenever you are thirsty.

Enlarged Toe Joint. Question: Do you advise an operation for enlarged toe joints? I have seen advertisements of a medicine that would dissolve the joint. I have had a bad enlargement on the left foot, the big toe. Tell me how to get rid of it."

Answer: The operation for an enlarged toe joint is quite a serious one and should not be undertaken if there is any other way you can reduce the inflammation which is causing the swelling. Local treatments such as ointments, or the same articles appear from time to time about the cause and cure of this disorder. Or, if you will give me your name and address the next time you write, I will be glad to send instructions.

IN NEW YORK

New York, Oct. 21.—Mr. William Fox, the film magnate, makes one of his nearest bits of change from renting out parking space to theater-going motorists.

It so happened that just behind M. Fox's Roxy Theater there was a very large lot lying around doing nothing. It accommodates something like a thousand machines comfortably and brings 75 cents per car. The turnover is considerable, 1 am told, since the parking block goes on operating day and night. Something like a thousand dollars a day or so should be sufficient to keep the Fox household in phonograph needles at least.

Meanwhile more than a little competition has been caused by the presence of this parking lot. This is a district which, for some time, has been occupied by public garages. To meet the situation, many of these have cut their prices to 50 cents a car, and the last time I walked by, they had employed barbers and ballyhoo boys to stand in front and shout to the motorists.

As an indication of the interest visitors have in what is going on in the "old home town," something like 30,000 out-of-town newspapers are sold daily in the mid-Broadway belt.

The heaviest business is enjoyed by the famous stand at 42d street, in front of the Times Building. There is a corner at 50th street, however, which, I am told, has a world's record for newspaper sales. The four stands, distributed over the four corners, sell 25,000 papers each day. Lonely strangers will use the Times Square corner as a camping ground, some of them often waiting about for hours in hope of seeing a familiar face or overhearing an inquiry for some newspaper out of the home sector.

And investigators from the "missing persons" bureau of the police department still find it one of the most fertile spots for picking up clues to individuals who have dropped from sight.

It has been found that crooks, runaways and all such show up sooner or later to buy a "home" paper in order to see what is being printed about them.

Mid-Broadway has never proved a good spot for business concerns seeking to operate high-class emporiums. One of the best and smartest department stores in New York once tried to set up a branch in the street of a million lights and then moved away. The crowd, it found, wanted the "racket" places.

For some reason the crowds will not patronize a swanky place in the heart of the Main Stem. And so auction houses of all sorts thrive in a big way, selling cheap jewelry and trinkets while working all the old ballyhoo tricks.

Cubs, Majors Arrange Series, Then Drub Rivals

Manchester's Grid Teams In Two Easy Victories

Majors Trounce Bristol Farr, Donnelly, Groman Maple Ends, Moske, Spillane, Saharek Score; Ward Only Plays Few Minutes; Score 18-0.

The Maple Ends of Bristol were badly outclassed by the Majors at Hickey's Grove yesterday afternoon. The visitors proved no match for Jack Dwyer's small army of pigskin chasers and were forced to accept an 18 to 0 setback, their first defeat of the season. It also marked the first time the Bell City crew had been held scoreless. Mike Saharek, Brunig Moske and Jimmy Spillane made the touchdowns. All three tries for the extra point failed. Bristol put up a ragged exhibition at the outset of the contest. The game had been underway only five minutes when Manchester scored. Taking advantage of a very poor Bristol punt on the 30 yard line, the Majors marched across the goal line in three successive first downs. Saharek going over on the final plunge. Spillane's thrust at center for extra point was short. A short time afterward Walter Crockett recovered an erratic Bristol pass that rolled back to the five yard line but the Maple Ends stiffened and took the ball on downs two yards short of a touchdown.

Donnelly Goes Over

Again in possession of the ball, the Cubs marched down the field for four first downs. Dahlquist fumbled at the 10 yard line. Pawtuxet recovered, tried one play and then fumbled at the 15 yard line. Plunges by Groman and Minicucci. Dahlquist recovered. The extra point was made on a forward, Dahlquist to Skoneski.

Dwyer Conveys Ward

It was impossible to get much of a slant on the real ability of Ward because Dwyer had him in the game only a few minutes at the beginning of the second half. He is about the same size as Brunig Moske, perhaps a little taller. He seems to be quite fast on his feet and hits the line well. Ward carried the ball only three times. The first time he made about eight yards and three the next. The other time was when he failed to make the extra point on a plunge through center.

THIRTY ODD TEAMS STILL UNDEFEATED

Baylor Bears Lead the Race With Five Victories and 213 Points.

New York, Oct. 21.—(AP)—The National list of unbeaten and untied college football teams had dwindled to thirty odd today with the rambling bears of Baylor leading the way to all the rest.

The Bears have rolled up 213 points in a record of five successive victories but the heaviest scoring unbeaten team in the country is Dartmouth which has piled up 222 points in four games while holding the opposition scoreless. Only four other teams can boast of an unbroken goal line—Fordham, Texas, Utah and Missouri.

The Eagles scored another victory yesterday afternoon in the prelude to the Majors-Farr game by beating the Clerks of Rockville 19 to 0. Krapitites, Balon and Tyler starred for the winners while White was the only one who gained ground for the losers. The Clerks had but one chance to score. That came in the second quarter when they had the ball on the Eagles' five yard line but were held on downs.

McGonigal Is Praised At Bon Ami's Banquet

Rand Elected President, Allen Manager and Hunt Captain for Next Season; Many Slams in After-Dinner Speeches But Long Wind Saves Toastmaster.

Jay E. Rand, often called the "members of the team, Elmo Mantell, George Kelly and Nino Bog-nini were unable to be present. Much praise was given Coach McGonigal for his splendid work but the skipper of the soap makers was inclined to give the credit to the players themselves. In response to a tribute from Toastmaster Rand who most successfully fulfilled the duties of master of ceremonies, Coach McGonigal said that to a large degree the team's success was due to the existence of harmony among the players. He added that the spirit of good feeling is a most important asset for any ball club.

Coach McGonigal warned the members of the team not to expect a more successful season next year as he said this would be asking too much. Toastmaster Rand also said that he figured the days of making money in baseball are over. Baseball would be played for the sport of the game rather than any monetary gain which might result, Rand declared.

Only Three Absent

Those present were W. Robertson, Carl Allen, William McGonigal, Frank Brennan, August Borowski, Charles Kebart, William Copeland, Edward Coleman, Walter Balch, John Wilson, Jack Hunt, John McCarthy, Jay Rand, John Godek, Fred Thomson, William Brennan, Edward Rahey, Emil Platt, Howard Keeney, Tude Vince and Tom Stone. Three were absent.

Saturday's Casualties

Casualties among the major eastern football teams were terrific on Saturday but most of them had the satisfaction of losing to equals, as the big fellows largely were paired against one another. Eight perfect records remained in the annals of college football. The results had been entered with little Davis and Elkins holding on at the top through a 37 to 0 victory over the Quantic Marines at Fairmont, W. Va.

Navy Stages Rally

Navy rallied sharply at Annapolis to defeat Duke by 45 to 13 after the southerners had gained an edge of 13 to 12 in the last half. Colgate won from Indiana by 21 to 6. Cornell took a long stride along the comeback trail by defeating Princeton by 13 to 7 and may well prize this triumph for it has not yet been proved that this twice defeated Tiger is any part of a weakling.

Notre Dame's Task

Notre Dame, gathering headway in its comeback by vanquishing Indiana, Navy and Wisconsin in succession, runs into the rugged Cardinal eleven at Pittsburgh in the outstanding intersectional engagement of the week.

AL DOWD'S FIGHT TONIGHT IS OFF

Al Dowd's scheduled eight round fight with Billy Chimpiny of North Adams at Pittsfield, Mass., tonight has been cancelled due to an injury to the local boxer's hand. Dowd felt very badly over the ill turn of luck against him but under existing conditions he had no alternative but to call off the fight. The injury came while boxing with Billy Rowe Friday night at the Rec. It was Dowd's same right hand he injured some time ago. The injury resulted from a hard swing which struck the hip bone.

Marsters now has scored in football announced before the series starts. The games will start promptly at 2 o'clock to insure their completion before darkness interferes. The whole meeting lasted only 14 minutes thus setting a new local record. The previous record was something like 5.972.321 hours.

MARS CASSIDY DIES; FAMOUS TRACK MAN

New York, Oct. 21.—(AP)—The racing world today mourned Mars Cassidy, famous starter, who in 30 years sent horses away in more than fifty thousand races. He was 67 years old.

Stricken last Wednesday at the Jamaica track, he died at his home in Hollis, Queens, yesterday, of ulcers of the stomach. Cassidy was born at Edgerton, Md., and began starting races when a young man. When he won at the Benning track near Washington, his brilliant work attracted the attention of August Belmont, and in 1894 he was called to New York to become alternate starter for the track.

Weaver fired the gun when Charley Padock churned up many a world's record on the coast. He was a leading spirit in making Los Angeles one of the greatest of all track and field centers.

Champs Agree To Play On Sixty-Forty Basis

SETTLES SERIES

Both Teams to Stick to Regular Players; Series Opens Nov. 17 at Mt. Nebo; Details Settled in Record Time of Fourteen Minutes.

Shown above is Harold R. Germaine, former sports writer and reporter for The Herald, who now claims adjuster for the Connecticut company, who put an end to all the town grid series silly wrangling by discarding the 70-30 wishes of Cubs and agreeing upon a 60-40 basis.

The agreement was reached yesterday morning at a meeting between the presidents and managers of the clubs. Harold R. Germaine and Peter J. Vendrillo represented the Cubs while Dr. A. E. Moran, William H. Griffin appearing for the Majors. The only other person present was the writer. The meeting was held at the home of Manager Vendrillo.

All tentative arrangements made Friday afternoon between the two managers was discarded and the series arranged anew. President Germaine of the Cubs consented to play 60-40 and this matter was cleared up almost before it was mentioned. Some of the Cubs had been in favor of holding out for winner-take all or 70-30 but the far-sighted president of the town champions realized that 60-40 is the only fair way to do business. In fact, there never should be any discussion over the division of the money.

It was quickly agreed to have the first two games on the two Sundays preceding Thanksgiving Day, Nov. 17 and Nov. 24. If a third game is necessary, a flip of the coin will be made to see which field will be played on a neutral field. However, the latter suggestion would be inadvisable from a financial standpoint. It would mean taking the game out of town to avoid playing at either the north or the south. However, there is no need borrowing trouble as neither team expects the series to last three games. One victory and a tie score will settle the matter. A team doesn't have to win two games to get the title.

Regarding officials, it was decided to have the sports editor of The Herald select three men other than Johnny McGrath, Sammy Massey, Tommy O'Loughlin and Clyde Waters. The names will be announced before the series starts. The games will start promptly at 2 o'clock to insure their completion before darkness interferes. The whole meeting lasted only 14 minutes thus setting a new local record. The previous record was something like 5.972.321 hours.

Light's Golden Jubilee

ON the twenty-first of October, 1879, Thomas A. Edison achieved a triumph which is being celebrated this year by millions of people the world over.

IN a small laboratory at Menlo Park, New Jersey, on that eventful day, Edison announced the success of his incandescent electric lamp.

NOW in this year of Light's Golden Jubilee the entire world is gratefully acknowledging its debt to Edison for many of its most important comforts and conveniences. He is venerated wherever civilization has established itself, and in future centuries his incandescent lamp will be appraised as one of the most important contributions to human welfare ever made by an individual.

FOLLOWING the success of the lamp, it is through the application of principles invented by Edison that many lamps are today used on one lighting circuit. Scientists of his day were of the opinion it was an impossibility, and Edison's success in solving the problem was a major achievement. It opened the way for his development of the system by which light, heat and power are now distributed from central stations.

HE also improved the dynamo which was then in a crude state and made it available for the generation of large quantities of electricity, so that today we are able to get power over wires for use in home and industry.

IS IT to be wondered at that Thomas A. Edison is regarded as one of America's greatest national assets?

"With His Inventions He Has Illuminated the Path of Progress"

THE phonograph, the motion picture camera, the duplex and multiplex telegraph, and the essential parts by which the telephone and radio were made practical are some of the other inventions we owe to Edison.

On this fiftieth anniversary of the invention of a practical electric system by Thomas A. Edison, this tribute is published in grateful acknowledgment of the many comforts and conveniences we all enjoy as a result of his genius and perseverance.

DESCRIPTIVE "SHORT" FOR GENERAL MOTORS PARTY A publicity writer connected with the General Motors organization has unearthed a timely bit of information regarding John Philip Sousa, who will lead his world famous band at 9:30 o'clock tonight in the third of a series of concerts being broadcast through Station WTIC. It is an interesting coincidence, the writer informs us, "that the genesis of the electric-like marches of Sousa and the use of electric energy to light the world were almost simultaneous. A photograph taken at Cape May, N. J., in 1882 shows Sousa and the Marine Band beneath the first electric arc ever used to light a bandstand."

A Thrilling Mystery—

"The Avenging Parrot"

by Anne Austin

MURDER in a boarding house starts off this fascinating new story of mystery and romance by Anne Austin, who wrote "The Black Pigeon," one of the outstanding detective novels of the year.

"The Avenging Parrot" introduces a new and "different" detective character in "Bonnie" Dundee, who is as likeable as he is clever; and a fiendishly talented murderer is outwitted by the apparently insignificant utterance of a parrot. Here is a great story. It will hold you to the very end.

BEGINS FRIDAY
OCTOBER 25 in THE MANCHESTER EVENING HERALD

The Innocent Cheat

THIS HAS HAPPENED.

Helen Page feels indebted to and in love with her guardian, Leonard Brent who changes his plans for her future after meeting a dying beggar named Nellie. At 18, he presents the girl to a millionaire, Cyril Cunningham, as his heiress and offers proof which the lonely old man accepts without question, as he has been searching for his dead daughter's child for years.

Among Helen's new friends are Eva Ennis and her brother Robert. Brent finds another locker to hide her from Nellie to prove Helen the heiress and plots to get Cunningham out of the way quickly. He slyly administers a shock which proves fatal and the servants find the old man dead in bed. Then he wins Helen's promise to marry him. Later she and Bob realize they love each other, but she tells him she is engaged. She tries to get Brent to release her, but he refuses and makes dire threats if she dares to marry Bob.

Eva resents Helen's treatment of her brother, which she tells him to fling with Shallimar Morris. She scolds Bob, and he tells her Helen is engaged to Brent. She collapses after admitting that Brent has been making love to her. Bob goes to expose Brent to Helen, and while they are explaining to each other an urgent call comes from his mother. They rush over just in time to prevent Eva from taking poison a fit of hysteria.

HOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER XII

Helen went up the stairs on reluctant feet. She dreaded this talk with Eva, for there was nothing she could say to her that would carry hope to the unhappy girl.

Brent was a scoundrel—that was all there was to the matter. But Helen knew that love cannot be torn out of the heart by roots. It must die a lingering death when it perishes.

She found Eva quiet, lying with a dampened towel on her forehead. The odor of witchhazel came faintly to Helen's nostrils as she leaned over the bed and took one of Eva's hands.

"Sit down—here," Eva said and moved to make room for Helen beside her.

"How do you feel?" Helen asked. Eva closed her eyes and shook her head. "Poor mother," she whispered. Then she looked at Helen, how glad it was for her! "I didn't know what I was doing, in here with . . . with that stuff and mother pleading outside my door. I don't know how I could have done such a thing."

"Thank God you didn't really do it, dear," Helen said. "Eva's eyes flashed open and Helen drew back from sight of the misery in their depths.

"But I want to die! I don't want to live!" Eva cried. "None of us do, at times," Helen answered, speaking in a gentler tone. "But we don't quit when we think of those who will suffer for our act. You see, Eva darling, what it would mean to your mother—and Bob—if you gave way to your despair."

"Yes, I know, I know," Eva moaned, "but what am I to do?" "You don't think any man is worth the heartbreak of your entire family, do you?" Helen pressed.

"No, no, they're too good. They've always been good to me."

"Then show them now that you appreciate their love. Try to forget Leonard Brent. He's no more worth your thought than a . . . than a viper, Eva."

Eva looked at her despairingly. "That has never mattered very much to women, has it?" she asked. "I love him, and I can't believe that he didn't care at all for me. Oh, I know I can't have him," she wailed abruptly; "but don't tell me that it's all because he is a liar and a cheat. There must be some other reason."

Helen's cheeks flushed unconsciously as she answered that there might be another girl.

Eva's expression grew accusing though she did not mean it to. "Was it you?" she asked, and then added quickly: "Bob thought it was."

Helen hesitated a long moment before answering. Eva's evidence of painful suspense brought the truth from her at last.

"Yes," she admitted, "I was engaged to him, Eva. But he did not love me. He can't love anyone He isn't capable of it. He's the most selfish . . ."

"Then it was your money?" Eva interrupted.

Helen regarded her in complete surprise. Strangely, she thought, this had never occurred to her. Her money! Of course!

"I think so," she cried. "It would be just that vile."

"Perhaps," Eva said, "he needs a great deal of money, Helen."

She had found this explanation of his conduct less difficult to bear than the thought that he cared more for another girl than for her. And her complete obsession with her passion for Brent was driving her to his defense.

"Don't be a fool," Helen retorted impatiently. "He has enough money. Only greed could make him want to marry for more—greed and a heart like a block of ice."

"You seem to hate him," Eva remarked, and the thought that at the back of her mind was that Helen too must have suffered through Brent.

"Can't we talk about something else?" Helen urged. "Wouldn't you like to hear about Bob and me, Eva?"

She had not intended to bring her newly recovered happiness to Helen's attention at this time but suddenly she was sickened of speaking of Brent. She wanted to brush him aside, put him out of her own life and Eva's too.

"Have you made up?" Eva asked, heartening a little over the possibility of happiness coming to her dearly beloved brother.

"Made up?" Helen echoed. "We've made up so tight that nothing can come between us again."

"I'm glad," Eva said simply.

Helen leaned over and kissed her, drawn by the wistful smile that hovered on her quivering lips.

"You must let yourself be happy too, dear," she said. "Think of your music now, and your day of real love with your mother. I know, but it's true, if only you can believe it."

"I must see Leonard again," Eva shocked her by declaring.

"Oh no!" "I must."

Helen sat stiffly upright. "Why?" she demanded, but Eva had no answer that she cared, or dared, to give.

"To tell him you're through with him?" Helen suggested hopefully.

Still Eva did not answer. Helen was seized with a thought that stirred her to sharp utterance.

"Surely you are not going to throw yourself at him?" she cried. "Why, Eva dear, don't you realize that if he wanted you . . ."

"There was you," Eva said very low.

"Eva, please," Helen begged. "Don't you see, dear, that if it isn't me it will be someone else who can bring him what he wants?"

"He loves me, I know, he loves me," Eva cried wildly. "He couldn't have loved so terribly to me."

Helen lost a great deal of her patience. "Now see here," she exclaimed, "you aren't going to have anything more to do with Leonard Brent. Bob will tell him. He has made a fool of you, Eva, but that was because you are sweet and good. He couldn't have done it to a harder-hearted girl. That's the bitterness of it. If you'd been thinking only of yourself you couldn't have become interested in a man like Leonard. You'd have judged him by yourself. As it is, you see good in even the worst people. That may be because you are so clever, so talented, dear, that you can't recognize evil—perhaps it is genius. But, oh, Eva, please, whatever it is, Bob and I are going to help you."

"I must see him," Eva persisted. "No," Helen protested. "Let me see him for you. I will tell him whatever you wish me to say. Bob will be furious if you go to him."

Eva remained set in her determination. "Don't tell Bob," she pleaded. "It would only cause trouble, and I'm going to see Leonard whatever happens. I must give him a chance to explain."

"Eva," Helen said soberly, "why must you be like this? You were ready to give up your life—wasn't it because you know Brent has deceived you? Nothing has changed that. What can you hope for now?"

Eva sat up higher on her pillows. "I will tell you," she conceded. "I couldn't bear the thought that he was going to marry you, Helen. I know you should hate you, in spite of all that you have done for me. I didn't want to live, hating you and without Leonard's love."

"Oh my dear," Helen buried her face in her hands, but she could not hold back her sob. "If I see him, and tell him that I know about his engagement to you and that you are really going to marry Bob," Eva said breathlessly. "he may . . . he may . . ."

Helen lifted her head. The expression of her eyes stopped Eva from further words.

"Would you marry him after all this?" she asked scornfully.

Eva turned away.

A wave of helplessness swept over Helen. "I'm afraid," she said, "that you must find out for yourself how contemptible, how despicable, Leonard is."

She got up to go. Eva did not attempt to detain her. "Please send mama to me," she said and Helen nodded in silent assent.

Back with Bob she was profoundly affected by the strain of knowing that she might be bringing serious trouble upon herself and them.

"I'm tired," she said when Mrs. Ennis had gone upstairs. "Do you mind letting me go now, Bob? Eva doesn't need me, and I've something to do at home."

JAIL WEDDING

Jauris.—David Daniel eloped with Maria Luisa Franco, 18, and came here to marry. Mrs. Soledad F. de Navarro, sister of the girl, filed a charge of kidnapping against David. They were taken by police here, but after David explained the couple were married and released from jail by officials.

thing very important," she said. "At once. Will you come up to Bramblewood?"

"As soon as possible," Brent assured her, and hung up.

"Well," he mused as he dressed. "I think we've come to the show-down."

The WOMAN'S DAY

The death of Mrs. Anna Bryan Ayres, outstandingly successful business woman, obviously the result of a suicide pact, brings up the apparently unanswerable question: What do women really want?

They want a husband, say some. Mrs. Ayres had one, and lived several years with him until she was divorced. Obviously she did not want him.

They want a career, say others. Very well, Mr. Ayres certainly had this. As advertising manager of a large corset firm and an authority on woman's styles, she was one of the most successful and highest priced women executives in the country—sitting right on top of the world.

They want children, say others. Mrs. Ayres had three, two daughters and one son—all of them fine, beautiful specimens. The oldest was just 13, at an age where she could be companionable, and the boy 7, still almost a baby.

They want background, say others. Mrs. Ayres had that. A college graduate herself, she had taught English and mathematics at Brown and Chicago Universities, and her divorced husband had been a college professor at Amherst where she had lived for years in the cultural environment of a large college.

They want to look young and have nice clothes, the frivolous may suggest. Mrs. Ayres was handsome and youthful looking. She was exquisitely groomed and had beautiful clothes.

Lonely—And In Love. Yes, she had children, a career, plenty of money, and education and brains. But she wanted something else. When she met William Gaylord, infinitely less successful than she, who had never risen any higher than a counting stool, and probably never would, because he was 50 and looked it, Mrs. Ayres realized she wanted a husband and companion-ship again—that she wanted to mother someone, and to be needed.

Her Problem. She cannot live in her children's world—they don't want her. She can't use up all her energies in the modern home where everything is done mechanically. She can give much of her enthusiasm and energy to a job—but not all of it. She needs the companionship of a congenial man. If this man happens to be her husband, that is splendid. If he happens to be someone else's husband, the situation is not so easy to handle.

Perhaps what women want was summed up honestly by an ultra-modern who said: "I want a home, and I want to work. I want a job, and I want leisure. I want children, and someone else to take care of them. I want a devoted husband and exciting suitors—I want everything."

Perhaps what women want was summed up honestly by an ultra-modern who said: "I want a home, and I want to work. I want a job, and I want leisure. I want children, and someone else to take care of them. I want a devoted husband and exciting suitors—I want everything."

Sister Mary's Kitchen

One of the fundamental rules of cooking for children is to vary their diets. Many adult diets may be traced to a lack of well chosen foods during childhood.

Certain foods make strong bones, others develop muscles, some create still others are a protection against disease.

Milk, vegetables, cereals and fruits must be used in abundance for children's meals. Not much meat is necessary; one specialist in children's diets says that the "meat portion should be the size of the palm of the child's hand."

Eggs and certain kinds of fish are good, although the method of serving them must be considered. Intense heat makes both of these foods hard to digest.

The All-Important Milk. Milk is essential. A six-year-old child needs a quart of milk a day. This need not be consumed as a beverage, but can be used in cream soups or sauces, in custards or simple puddings and on cereals and vegetables. If the child drinks his quart of milk in addition to these various dishes, so much the better.

TODAY IS THE ANNIVERSARY

BATTLE OF TRAFALGAR. The British fleet under Admiral Horatio Nelson obtained a great naval victory over the combined fleets of France and Spain on Oct. 21, 1805, off the shores of Cape Trafalgar on the south coast of Spain.

The allies had 33 ships, commanded by the French vice admiral, Villeneuve, while Nelson had 27. Before beginning battle, Nelson gave his now famous signal, "England expects that every man will do his duty."

The British fleet, after a terrific battle, completely disorganized the hostile line. Eighteen ships were captured.

The victory was complete, but Nelson was mortally wounded and died with the words, "Thank God I have done my duty."

By his final great victory he had destroyed the combined French and Spanish fleets, and Napoleon's hope of creating a naval power vanished forever.

Nelson thus contributed immensely to the final destruction of the Napoleonic ambitions, for without the control of the sea England would have been unable to wage her long contest.

Nelson was buried in London on January 9, 1806, amid extraordinary public demonstration.

OPPOSE VOTES FOR WOMEN

Pretoria, S. Africa.—(AP.)—Because woman's place is with the pots and pans, the Nationalist Congress here adopted resolutions against women's franchise. Only 10 women who wear short skirts, have low necked gowns, and paint their lips want to vote, declared one of the delegates with some heat.

The Youngest Generation in Picture News.

This wild young generation! It's a four-year-old Diana Hughes—being reared by her distinguished parents in London. She eats only bones, meat, rough fruits and vegetables, dresses in all kinds of weather as she is shown above—and never has been ill. Physicians marvel at her health, call her "the perfect child."

Restless Children

Children will fret, often for no apparent reason. But there's always one sure way to comfort a restless, fretful child: Castoria! Harmless as the recipe on the wrapper; mild and bland as it tastes. But its gentle action soothes a youngster more surely than some powerful medicine that is meant for the stronger systems of adults.

That's the beauty of this special children's remedy! It may be given the tiniest infant—as often as there is any need. In cases of colic, diarrhea, or similar disturbance, it is invaluable. But it has everyday uses all mothers should understand. A coated tongue calls for a few drops to ward off constipation; so does any suggestion of bad breath. Whenever children don't eat well, don't rest well, or have any little upset—this pure vegetable preparation is usually all that's needed to set everything to rights. Genuine Castoria has Chas. H. Fletcher's signature on the wrapper. Doctors prescribe it.

HEALTH

WEIGHT-REDUCING EXTRACTS ARE OFTEN EXTREMELY DANGEROUS

BY DR. MORRIS FISHBEIN

Editor Journal of the American Medical Association and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine

When there is a deficiency of the secretion from the thyroid gland, certain changes take place very promptly in the human body. The skin becomes hard and thick, the face swollen and the tissues tend to fill with water.

If a child is involved, it becomes stupid, the hair falls out sometimes completely, the teeth decay, and the person becomes generally weak and backward. Because of the deficiency of the secretion, weight is put on, the pulse is slow and all of the reactions of the body delayed.

Fortunately, recent investigations in medicine have revealed the cure for deficiency of thyroid action. In such cases, the giving of thyroid by mouth in the form of tablets or in other preparations promptly relieves the symptoms. Almost at once the thickness of the skin and the psychic depression begin to disappear, weight is lost rapidly and the patient soon approaches the normal.

It is less than a quarter of a century since the scientific knowledge of the thyroid gland began to be developed. In that period of time, it has been learned that there are many causes of swelling of the gland; that sometimes even when the gland itself is large, there may be a deficiency of its action.

In this field, the chief and only reliance is on those who have made a careful study of the conditions concerned and who are familiar with the changes in the gland and its functions that may take place

YOUR CHILDREN

by Olive Roberts Barton

I am going to give here one great big reason for making home laws few.

Here it is: "Obligation breeds dislike."

Dress it up, trim it down, excuse it, condone it, do what you like, but if you are a human being you like far less to do with things you must do, than the things you do voluntarily. And the children do too. It's a psychological fact.

Now, I'm not going to say that they "mustn't" learn to do things. Anything else but. The first thing they should learn, from one or two or three months on, is that little word "must," and that little black brother "mustn't."

But if a household is going to be sanctified entirely by "you must do this" and "you mustn't do that," then watch out. Every chance the youngsters get, they're going to have a crack at the garrison, I'm afraid.

Law—Plus Liberty. Parents have learned so much about this very thing that it hardly seems necessary to go over the ground again here, but there are enough people still who are convinced that unquestioning obedience and quick punishment for breaking the law is the best and only method for home rule that I'm venturing to bring up this little psychological truth to prove a point.

Law, yes! But enough liberty

under the law to make the children happy. That's my recipe and I think it is a good one.

To keep on loading a boy or girl too heavily with commands can't help but bring something up in him that rebels, and will eventually defeat its own end.

Good Intentions. We're all the same, old and young alike. Last Saturday a relative of mine came home from the office with the best intentions on earth of distinguishing himself in the line of duty. He decided to take down the screens before he was nagged into it. Moreover, he was going to sort the cans in the garage and burn a pile of leaves in the yard.

He came in wearing a nice snug halo, but whistled a most unsaintly fashion upstairs to his wife. Before he had a chance to say a word she called: "I'm glad you came home early. I want you to take the screens down—and I wish you'd get that mess out of the garage and those leaves are—"

Slam! My relative went out and played golf.

The joy was gone and one more good resolution followed its fellow paving-stones to the lower regions, just because he was not allowed to originate an idea of his own.

Why not, then give the children the same chance sometimes?

WELL FINED

"I don't like sports bodies especially when they are painted red, but I suppose it is a fine car."

"Oh, rather, I should say it was now, frightfully fine. Seven up it was, and the last one was $50."

BETTER SERVICE MEANS IMPROVED PERFORMANCE
That improved service means better performance is a fact stressed by Albert C. Hine, president of The A. C. Hine company, state distributor of the Oakland and Pontiac. These cars are represented in this territory by Kemp Brothers.

From his first experience in the automobile field Albert C. Hine has been strong for service and every time he sold a car he placed himself in the position of the buyer and regarded the proposition from every possible angle. Mr. Hine has kept this thought in mind down through the years and it dominates every sale which is one of the many reasons why Oakland and Pontiac enjoy such marked popularity today.

Every associate dealer for the company is required to render his customers the best possible kind of service. He must come up to certain requirements and there can be no guess work about it. "Our cars," says Mr. Hine, "are as good as our service and we mean that it shall be of the best. All our dealers are thoroughly versed in service requirements and are equipped to take the best possible care of their customers. We feel that in giving owners service that satisfies we are building good will and retaining it and after all it is the good will that counts. There is no better way to acquire it than to render the service that satisfies."

RUSSIANS TO START FOR EAST TOMORROW
Oakland, Cal., Oct. 21.—The Russian monoplane "Land of the Soviets," flying from Moscow to New York, will take off at 8 a. m. tomorrow for Cheyenne, Wyo., it was announced by A. V. Petroff of New York, sponsor of the good will flight. It arrived here Saturday from Vancouver, Wash.

The plane's crew of four Soviet airmen meanwhile were guests of honor at receptions in San Francisco. Mayor James Rolph, Jr., and other city officials arranged a public reception in the rotunda of the City Hall, after which the fliers were invited to a luncheon given by the Chamber of Commerce.

The four—S. A. Shestakov, commander of the flight; Philip E. Bolotov, second pilot; Boris E. Sterlingov, navigator, and Dmitri Faev, mechanic, spent considerable time in adjusting instruments on their plane at the Oakland airport. Surrounded by a large crowd, the aviators exchanged greetings with admirers and signed countless autograph albums.

With the acceptance of France, Italy and Japan in hand, the five-power naval conference towards which the conversations of President Hoover and Prime Minister MacDonald have been working, became a living fact in international politics last week and diplomats set down to preliminary work and exchanges of views.

After the departure of the prime minister to Canada, Washington announced the appointment of Secretary of State Stimson as chief American delegate to the conference.

France and Italy began maneuvering for advantageous positions before the conference opened, and Italy invited France to discuss a Franco-Italian understanding on the lines of the Anglo-American conference understanding.

As France and Italy are the two chief Mediterranean powers and have identical views on the value of submarines and the interdependency of disarmament in all branches of warfare, land, air and naval, their meeting will be an important factor in the line-up at the London conference, but through the regular diplomatic channels.

In proposing the exchange, Italy, as in the past, insisted on parity with France, but gave the problem a new aspect in offering to make the tonnage as low as France wished. French statesmen, who are charged with protecting a far wider colonial area than Italy, indicated their feeling that this proposal was one to be treated with prudence.

In the Far East, Chinese politics went into convulsions after a week of surprises, revolts and raids. It is difficult to disentangle the relations of the parties to the new conflict in China, which is perhaps most easily understood as a revolt of Vegetian military chiefs and letting-wing elements of the Kuomintang against the Nanking regime of President Chiang Kai-Shek.

The position of Marshal Feng Yu-Hsiang and Governor Yen Shih-shan of Shensi province complicated the situation. Actual hostilities began in Honan province between Feng's Kuomintang soldiers and the Nationalists with the Kuomintang supported in its drive for Hankow from the north by the march of the revolving "iron sides" division from the south.

There were minor revolts against the Nationalists in Shantung and Kwantung. Canton was apparently wavering in its loyalty and the hard-fighting Kwangsi leaders seemed ready to leap at Nanking on the first favorable occasion. The balance of power certainly lies with the northern war-lords, Feng, Yen and Governor Chang Hsueh-shan, and Manchuria, but nothing is less certain than which way they will swing it.

An astonishing report that Yen was holding Peng a virtual prisoner in Shensi was later received with some skepticism. It seemed probable that the two war-lords were really working in harmony, and that Chang's part in the struggle would very much depend on theirs.

Russia made a strong punitive raid into Manchuria, rebellion against Nanking, and a statement between Shantung authorities and the Nanking supporters, would at once modify the dispute over the Chinese Eastern railway and leave Russia in a strong position.

The Australian Labor Party, profiting by the eclipse of the British Labor government, won a decisive victory over the Nationalists in the general elections, Premier Bruce losing his seat in the Labor triumph. James Henry Scullin, will head the new Federal government.

Afghanistan, gateway to India, found herself under the aegis of the British. Nadir Khan, after dethroning the usurper, Habibullah, who deposed Amanullah, was elected king at Kabul.

The experts who are devising the Bank for International Communications at Eastern-Baden continued their work with a growing conviction of its difficulty. The death of former Premier De La Croix of Belgium, brought out the first hint of any political negotiations behind the actual discussions of the new status.

Through De La Croix, Germany was thought to be attempting to strike a bargain with Belgium by which Dupen and Malmeze provinces were to have been returned to Germany in exchange for help in advocating Brussels as the seat of the bank.

ERROGRAMS

NINE BELLS, SIR, WE HAVE DROPPED THE PILOT AND WILL ENTER THE HARBOR IN TEN MINUTES.

VERY GOOD, LIEUTENANT.

That's our only hope, I'll hop right over and bail him out.

There are at least four mistakes in the above picture. They may pertain to grammar, history, etiquette, drawing or whatnot. See if you can find them. Then look at the scrambled word below—and unscramble it, by switching the letters around. Grade yourself 20 for each of the mistakes you find, and 20 for the word if you unscramble it.

CORRECTIONS
(1) On entering a harbor a ship picks up the pilot, instead of dropping him. (2) The officer at the left is standing at ease, when he should be at attention. (3) The same officer is a Lieutenant, but is wearing an ordinary seaman's hat. (4) The 10 is no term "nine bells" in ship time, since this time runs in three periods of from one to eight bells. (5) The scrambled word is AUCTIONEER.

TEN RECEIVE MEDALS FOR COLUMBUS ESSAYS

Good Sized Audience Attends Ceremony, Hears Papers Read, at High School.

The Columbus essay contest sponsored by the United Italian Societies of Manchester had its sequel yesterday afternoon in High school hall when a good sized audience saw the winners receive the engraved silver medals provided by the societies for essays on "The Life and Achievements of Christopher Columbus." Joseph Barto, of Giuseppe Mazzini Lodge, Sons of Italy, was the originator of the idea, later being supported by the Daughters of Italy, the Christopher Columbus Society, the Italian Club and the Sub-Alpine Society. The plan was approved by the school authorities and rules for the contest were drawn by Fred A. Verplanck and A. F. Howes.

Excellent Oratory In the delivery of their prize winning essays the ten boys and girls of Manchester schools showed excellent training, delivering their compositions in clear, forceful manner.

The principal address of the afternoon was given by ex-Senator Joseph Gubelli of Bridgeport. Outlining the accomplishments of other great competitors, he urged those of Italian ancestry to continue to show by their everyday lives what the sacrifices of the past mean to them. He asked them to consider the vital importance of good citizenship and clean living and expressed a desire that all races might soon join with those of Italian ancestry in making Columbus
