

FAIR WEATHER GREET'S VOTERS OF THE STATE

Both Parties Confident; Heavy Votes Recorded; Politicians Watching Vir- ginia's Balloting.

New Haven, Nov. 5.—(AP)—Election in the cities of Hartford, Bridgeport and New Haven today would have been voted unanimously on one question if it had been submitted to them, and that was the weather for election day. All would have agreed it was the best.

But in the three cities the issues were mostly political, so the Republicans, Democrats and Socialists were not in accord. In all three the vote up till noon was regarded as normal which meant there would be a great many stay at homes in spite of efforts of ward workers.

In New Haven the Republicans were predicting a victory for their city ticket, becoming more confident as the hours passed.

In Hartford it looked like a tug of war between the Republicans and Democrats.

In Bridgeport the Democrats seemed at noon to be giving Mayor William Behrens, the Republican nominee a great contest. The Republicans were meeting their opponents with a great deal of determination.

Premier Enthusiastic Over His Visit Here

London, Nov. 5.—(AP)—Prime Minister MacDonald, making an eagerly-awaited statement in the House of Commons today upon his recent trip to the United States, expressed thanks to President Hoover, the Cabinet, the Senate and Representatives for the welcome they gave him.

They showed the best kind of friendship, he said, by the candor with which they exchanged views and the straightforwardness with which they raised and discussed questions of delicacy.

Mr. MacDonald remarked that he would have little to add to what had been printed in the press. His discussions with Premier Mackenzie-King of Canada had only been provisional.

Although he had had to raise some questions that might easily have been presented to the public in such a way as to awaken only a fair and a desire to co-operate and to place facts and issues before the country.

Warm Welcome.

"No ambassador could have received a warmer welcome," he said. "No government or people could have opened their doors, their minds and their hearts more to a guest."

Mr. MacDonald explained that he had done with no agreement on either his mind or his pocket. He had gone "by way of personal contact to establish a new relationship between two nations based on mutual understanding. I must leave the result to fructify in action."

The prime minister paid a pleasant tribute to Ambassador Dawes, recalling that his visit was the result of conversations they had had during the summer.

"Ambassador Dawes personified in such a delightful way the downward desire of his government for peace and good will."

DECLARES THUGS THREATEN VOTERS

Republican Leader In New York Wires Governor to Send State Police There.

New York, Nov. 5.—(AP)—Keyes Winter, head of the La Guardia campaign committee announced that he had wired Governor Roosevelt for state police to take charge of the election.

Winter declared that the police were needed in the Bronx and on the east side where there were reported disturbances throughout the day.

One man, Ollie Morganelli, 40, received a fractured skull during an argument in front of a polling place at Public School 32 in the Bronx.

Several disputes occurred at Public School 21 on the east side where Winter alleged that several voters were intimidated. This section is populated with Italians, many of whom are naturalized voters.

IN NEW HAVEN

New Haven, Nov. 5.—(AP)—Citizens who had thrown themselves into a very lively and a bit acrimonious municipal campaign for the past month today hustled hard to get out to vote, and at noon whatever apathy was thought to have existed appeared to have flown. The only issue is whether the Republicans have given as good an administration as the Democrats brought out a normal vote at noon with the Republicans, who are fighting to re-elect Mayor Thomas A. Tully growing confident of victory. The Republican predictions have reached the figure of three thousand margin for Tully over Philip Troup, Democrat and the forecast was based on the fact that Republican wards were doing better for that party than the Democratic wards were helping the Democratic ticket.

The morning energy was exerted to get out the vote for Tully or Troup and the rest of each ticket was hardly mentioned as the expectation was that straight voting prevailed. For the past two years the Republicans have had only a bare majority in the Aldermanic board but they had all the other offices and a Tully victory may continue the political complexion of the present government. The Socialist vote will be light. Polls close at 3 p. m.

MARKET CLOSED FOR ELECTIONS

Prices Yesterday Showed Drop of 2 to 17 Points at Close of Business.

New York, Nov. 5.—(AP)—The Stock Market closed today because of the election after an isolated period in which prices showed a net decline of 2 to 17 points on a turnover of 6,202,930 shares.

The rally which was expected when the market opened yesterday after a two-day selling holiday failed to develop. In its place appeared selling pressure which was dominant tone throughout an orderly session.

The volume of trade and range of prices as regarded by operators as normal.

Ticker Keeps Up

For the first day since October 24, the beginning of the big slump, the ticker was able to keep close to the market. It closed 30 minutes after the last sale.

The collapse of security prices last week was the reason given in a petition for a receivership filed in Federal Court yesterday against the Bankers' Capitalization, a Wall Street investment trust company. Two brokers were suspended by the Curb Exchange last week for failure to meet their obligations as a result of the decline in security prices.

SENT TO REFORMATORY.

Camden, Maine, Nov. 5.—(AP)—Charles Reynolds, 12, who admitted he set three lumber fires here in the past year was sent to the state reformatory. He told authorities when arrested yesterday that "he loved to see the firemen work and shout" and "liked the red blaze."

AIR INSPECTOR AND HIS PILOT DIE IN CRASH

Had Just Started from Boston for Bridgeport When Plane Goes Into Tailspin; Tank Explodes.

Boston, Nov. 5.—(AP)—Clifton Johnson, Federal air inspector, and Hank Carter, pilot for Skyways, Inc., were killed today when their airplane crashed after going into a tailspin over the East Boston Airport.

The gasoline tank exploded when the plane struck the ground. The men were burned to death before airport attaches could extricate them. Johnson and Carter had taken off for Bridgeport, Conn., a few minutes before they crashed from a height of about 150 feet.

Johnson, an inspector for the Department of Commerce, was piloting the plane which was of the moth type. The takeoff was without any apparent trouble but within a few seconds it appeared that the motor was turning up. Johnson apparently was trying to get sufficient altitude to make a downward turn for a landing when the crash came, according to observers at the airport.

Officials of Skyways, Inc., said the plane was owned by Seth Heywood of Boston, and was being flown to Bridgeport on a pleasure flight.

Carter, who was 26 years of age, was a resident of Lebanon, N. H. He had been with the Skyways firm for about a year and a half, first as a student flyer and later as a commercial pilot with a limited license. He had 160 flying hours to his credit.

Johnson's home was in Stratford, Conn.

BUT ONE VOTER IN THIS DIST.

Four Officials and a Policeman Ready to Count It When Engineer Deposits It.

New York, Nov. 5.—(AP)—George Schrader, an engineer living at 228 West 38th street, is quite an important person in today's election. He is the lone voter registered in the 38th Election District of the 10th Assembly District of Manhattan.

Four election board members and a policeman were appointed to receive Schrader's vote. They have all day to count it as they must remain at their posts until 6 p. m.

Mr. Schrader is taking his time about voting. He approached the polls about 9 o'clock, peered in and walked away without saying a word, which was a break for the newspaper photographers who were not on the job as early. Schrader then sent word that he would pose for pictures and vote later in the afternoon.

TAXPAYERS LEAGUE OPENS ITS BOOKS

Senate Lobby Committee Hears About Gifts from Various Firms in Country.

Washington, Nov. 5.—(AP)—A list of contributors to the American Taxpayers League was read into the record of the Senate Lobby Committee today as it resumed questioning of J. A. Arnold, who is connected with the Taxpayers League and also is general manager of the Southern Tariff Association.

The Armour Company of Chicago was listed as contributing $500 to the association; the Pillsbury flour mills $200; Kansas City Power and Light company $250; Kansas City Stock Yards company of Maine, $250; Los Angeles Brewing company, $100; Puget Sound Power and Light company, $100; Nash Motors company, $500; United States Playing Card company, $100; Chicago and Eastern Illinois railroad, $200.

Asked by Senator Blaine, Republican, Wisconsin, if he thought the railroad ought to contribute, Arnold replied "I think they should."

Don't Miss Anybody.

He said his organization had received money from the railroads for the tax association but not for the Tariff League, adding he thought the railroad should contribute to the latter.

"We get money wherever we can," he asserted. "We don't miss anybody."

Before reading the contributor's list, Blaine questioned Arnold about a typewritten sheet taken from the association records.

Blaine said it was an agreement between Vance Meuse, W. F. Myrick and Mrs. Ida Darden and provided that Myrick and Meuse were to receive the money.

PENNSY NOW CONTROLS KEY LINE FOR MERGER

Secretly Buys Shares of Pitts- burgh & West Virginia Rail- road—News a Surprise.

New York, Nov. 5.—(AP)—The New York Times today says that the Pennroad Corporation, an investment company formed last April by the interests that control of the Pennsylvania railroad, has bought control of the Pittsburgh West Virginia railway, key line to eastern railroad consolidation.

This was acquired by purchase of the holdings of Frank E. and Charles F. Tapilly, chairman and general counsel respectively of the West Virginia road. The deal was financed by a recent $50,000,000 stock offering in the form of voting trust certificates to stockholders of the corporation.

The exchange of control, accomplished with the greatest secrecy, throws an entirely new and unexpected element into the plans of the Chesapeake and Ohio and the Baltimore and Ohio railroads which oppose the Pennsylvania in the eastern consolidation contest.

Both the C. and O. and the B. and O. named the Pittsburgh and West Virginia in petitions for merged systems filed early this year.

TREASURY BALANCE.

Washington, Nov. 5.—(AP)—Treasury receipts for November 2, were $5,675,146.30; expenditures $9,400,301.79; balance $1,998,281,356.51.

EARLY VOTE HEAVY, HARTFORD REPORTS

Gaffey Again Opposes Bat- terson for Mayor; School Consolidation Up.

Hartford, Nov. 5.—(AP)—A rather heavy vote was cast during the morning hours in Hartford's mayoralty election in which Mayor Walter E. Batterson, Republican, is seeking re-election with John F. Gaffey again as his Democratic opponent. Of almost equal interest with that contest is the question of consolidating the city's nine school districts concerning which a spirited fight is being waged. The city is also voting on a proposed metropolitan charter for Hartford and suburban towns.

Other contests.

An entire new and revamped board of aldermen will be elected with one alderman instead of two from each of the fifteen wards and five aldermen-at-large. For the first time in a number of years there is a contest for city treasurer the candidates being George H. Gabb, former sheriff, Democrat, and Edgar F. Waterman, former treasurer of Trinity college, Republican.

JAPAN MAKES PUBLIC CHINA'S SECRET PACT

Envoy Tells Parley Dele- gates China Was Not Neu- tral During the War With Russia in 1905.

Kyoto, Japan, Nov. 5.—(AP)—Yosuke Matsuoka, until recently vice-president of the South Manchurian railway, told the round table of the Institute of Pacific Relations today that if Japan had known at the end of the Russian war in 1905, that a secret alliance against Japan then existed between China and Russia, she would have annexed all of South Manchuria and today the South Manchurian question between Japan and China would be non-existent.

The conference yesterday opened a three-day debate on the Manchurian question. The press was barred from the sessions.

Matsuoka's speech was planned as a refutation of allegations of several Chinese speakers that Japan had exacted too high a price for maintenance of order and promotion of prosperity in Manchuria. The delegates applauded Matsuoka's speech heartily.

Matsuoka asserted the alliance against Japan was negotiated in 1896 and unknown to Japan until the Washington conference, but that it was now public knowledge. He declared Japan negotiated the settlement of the South Manchurian situation with China after the Russian-Japanese war, assuming that China had been neutral and that Japan was defending Manchuria against Russia on China's behalf, so that Manchuria could be restored to Chinese sovereignty.

Matsuoka said the Russian war cost Japan 200,000 lives and two billion yen, on which Japan is still paying.

"Is China prepared to repay any part of that two billion yen?" Matsuoka asked. "What Japan has received from China for saving Manchuria from Russia, is zero minus two billion yen. Is that price too high?"

"Japan's safety depends on Manchuria," Matsuoka continued. "History repeats itself. Can China guarantee against the experience of another Li Hung-Chang, intriguing with Russia against Japan?"

Li Hung-Chang, Chinese military leader of the closing years of the nineteenth century, was credited by the speaker with negotiating the alliance against Japan with Russia.

In closing Matsuoka said, "In the inevitable movements of population, Russia, eastward, meeting China's northward migration, is China alone ready to meet that Russian pressure?"

POLICE SEARCHING FOR W. J. SCRIPPS

Son of Wealthy Publisher Leaves Windsor Hotel for Minute and Disappears.

Detroit, Nov. 5.—(AP)—Police of Detroit and Windsor, Ont., are searching for William J. Scripps, 24, of Detroit, son of W. E. Scripps, publisher of the Detroit News, who has been missing since the night of Oct. 23.

Scripps was last seen in Windsor, where he had gone to confer with Oscar Kuhn in connection with business matters in the Gilders, Inc., of Lake Orion, Mich., of which Scripps is president. Scripps was last seen leaving the Prince Edward hotel at Windsor at 8 o'clock that evening. He left a note for Kuhn, saying he would return shortly. He did not take his automobile, nor did he have a large amount of money on his person.

Police theories.

Police are advancing two theories regarding Scripps' disappearance. One is that he met with an accident

DOG BITE CHANGES POLITICAL VIEWS

Buffalo, Nov. 5.—(AP)—Because a show dog belonging to her father, Mayor Frank X. Schwab, bit her child, Mrs. Albert A. Gunther is supporting his rival at the election today.

McCULLOCH IN BURTON'S PLACE IN U. S. SENATE

Columbus, Ohio, Nov. 5.—(AP)—Former Congressman Roscoe C. McCulloch, Canton, today was appointed United States Senator from Ohio by Governor Cooper, filling a vacancy caused a week ago by the death of Senator Theodore E. Burton. McCulloch had served a year as chairman of the State Public Utilities Commission.

HIS CAREER

Columbus, Ohio, Nov. 5.—(AP)—Roscoe C. McCulloch, chairman of the Ohio Public Utilities Commission and a former member of Congress, was born on a farm in Holmes county, Ohio, November 27, 1880. He was educated in the Millersburg, Ohio, public schools, later attended Ohio State University and was graduated from the Western Reserve Law School. He was admitted to the bar from Canton, Dec. 5, 1903.

Political Life.

The following year McCulloch began his political career with appointment as assistant prosecutor of Stark county. Later he was prosecuting attorney and served as chairman of the Stark county Republican committee.

In his first race for Congress in 1912 he lost to John Whiteacre, Democrat, by 500 votes. Despite the re-districting of the 18th district McCulloch again ran in 1914 and won enough support in apparently Democratic counties to be elected. He was re-elected in 1916 and 1918.

Special Prosecutor.

McCulloch was appointed a member of the Congressional committee which in 1919 investigated war expenditures. Two years later he was selected by the United States attorney general as special prosecutor in connection with war frauds in camps and cantonments and collected approximately $14,000,000.

McCulloch aspired for the governorship in 1920, but lost the nomination to Harry L. Davis. With the exception of his service on the utilities commission under Governor Cooper, he had devoted most of his time since 1922 to private practice of law at Canton.

He is married and has two children.

BROOKHART ASKS RESIGNATION OF TREASURY'S SEC.

McCulloch in Burton's Place in U. S. Senate

Washington, Nov. 5.—(AP)—Details of the celebrated dinner to which he said liquor was served, were given to the Senate today by Senator Brookhart of Iowa, who accompanied his disclosures with a demand for the resignation of Secretary Mellon; a suggestion that someone like Major General Smedley D. Butler be given the dry enforcement task, and that a drive be made against the "big fellows" in the bootlegging world.

The Iowan, whose remarks were listened to by an expectant chamber and galleries crowded with curious spectators, did not directly accuse any member of Congress of having partaken of liquor at the party, and he complimented President Hoover, Vice President Curtis and Sir Esme Howard, the British ambassador, on their enforcement stands.

Flasks Behind Curtain.

He said, however, that flasks were available behind a curtain in the dining room. Although he did not mention it today, he previously had named the Willard hotel as the place of the party. Senator Smoot of Utah, heretofore mentioned as a guest in the affair, was said by Brookhart not to have taken part in the drinking there. Brookhart said he was seated at the dinner between Otto Kahn and E. E. Loomis, of the Morgan Company. During the course of the dinner, he asserted, Loomis "took his beautiful silver hip flask" and poured out a drink and consumed it.

Discussing prohibition enforcement in general, the Senator assailed Mr. Mellon for what he said was a failure to provide adequate patrol forces for the Canadian border. He added that the Treasury secretary had "turned down an appropriation of $50,000,000 offered by Congress to engage additional agents."

Odd Stunt of Two Youths Who Did Not Like Candidate at Primary.

East Weymouth, Mass., Nov. 5.—(AP)—Patrolman George Cope rubbed his eyes at 3:30 o'clock this morning as a natty roadster drew up before the large plate glass expanse of Schofield's garage and two youths stepped from the car, each with a brick in hand.

One took aim at that section of the front window wherein was posted a placard picture of Fred E. Waite, Selectman and candidate at today's Republican primary for the nomination for state representative, while the second maneuvered into similar position before a side street window also ornamented with Mr. Waite's profile.

Both let go simultaneously. As the sound of $50 worth of plate glass splintered in the silence, Cote started to sprint down the block but the youths were already in their car and speeding away when he arrived. The machine apparently came from Hingham.

HARTFORD STREET OPENING A FETE

Hundreds of Folk from Manchester Plan to See Main Street Celebration.

Hundreds of Manchester men and women will attend the opening celebration of one of Connecticut's most important thoroughfares which will be formally opened on Thursday morning with entertainment estimated to cost more than $2,500 and the distribution of more than $5,000 in prizes. On the main street, Hartford, between Windsor and Ann streets, has just been completed after more than two years of construction at a cost of $2,500,000. To mark the occasion a three-day celebration will be held through Saturday evening.

A banquet at the Hotel Bond on Wednesday evening will begin the main street celebration, according to the completed plans announced by Sydney Symon, chairman of the executive committee. On the street itself lights and flags will span the way from pole to pole and will remain for a full week. Window displays will demonstrate home economics. Three Hartford bands will give concerts.

Mayor to Start Show
At the banquet, which is set for 7 o'clock, Mayor Patterson will press a button switching on more than 2,000 lights along the thoroughfare. Among the guests are to be the city officials associated with the reconstruction of the street, invited guests, and the merchants of Main street. It is expected that more than 200 persons will attend the dinner.

A formal inspection of Main street will be made by the Mayor and others present during the evening after the dinner, viewing various new buildings erected and stores opened within the past year. It has been stated that with the opening of the street Hartford will possess the largest furniture section within one block in New England.

Flag Raising Thursday
The actual celebration will open formally on Thursday morning with flag raising exercises and will end at midnight Saturday. An inspection of window displays will be made on Thursday morning by city officials. At 6 p. m. the evening celebration will get under way. Tickets will be given to visitors entering them to participate in the $5,000 prize award, which will be made on Saturday night.

Rizza's Band will play for concerts at 7 o'clock, followed by street entertainment which will continue through the evening until 10 o'clock. The City Band will give a concert on Friday night from a bandstand at Goodman Place and Main street, augmented by vaudeville and street entertainment.

On Saturday the final day's celebration will start at 8 o'clock and will end with the distribution of $5,000 in prizes. Alderman Rocco D. Pallotti and Robert F. Claffey will draw the numbers.

CONVICTED OF ARSON
St. Albans, Vt., Nov. 5.—(AP)—Louis Girard, Berkshire farmer who was charged with having burned his farm buildings last July after he had secretly removed his more valuable furniture and implements, to the home of a friend, was convicted this morning of arson and sentenced to from 5 to 8 years at the state prison.

He is to represent the college as first negative speaker in the Fordham-New York University debate in December on the subject, "State control of waterpower in the State of New York."

DAWES ON VISIT TO THE PRESIDENT

reference by saying that he was an ambassador and had to report to his two chiefs. Mr. Dawes' plans for the day included luncheon at the White House and a trip to the Capitol to see old friends and acquaintances in the Senate.

The greeting between Secretary Stimson and the ambassador was most informal, each advancing and exclaiming simultaneously, "Hello, how are you?"

The ambassador, as he entered the secretary's office was puffing at his pipe, one of the few instances since Mr. Stimson has been secretary of state that he has permitted smoking in his office.

Tonight Mr. and Mrs. Dawes will be guests of the President and Mrs. Hoover at an informal dinner. The guests will include Harry W. Guggenheim, American ambassador to Cuba; Senator and Mrs. Edge of New Jersey, and Senator Moses of New Hampshire, together with a number of members of the diplomatic corps.

CHURCHILL SILENT

Southampton, Eng., Nov. 5.—(AP)—Winston Churchill, former chancellor of the exchequer, remained mute on matters political when he reached Southampton on board the liner Berengaria today after a long visit to Canada and the United States.

Mr. Churchill was asked what he thought of J. H. Thomas' proposals for solving the unemployment problem outlined in Parliament yesterday. "I know nothing about his proposals," Mr. Churchill briefly commented.

FAIR WEATHER GREET'S VOTERS OF THE STATE

The Communists have nominated Edward Masrako.

IN KENTUCKY

Frankfort, Ky., Nov. 5.—(AP)—Without a record vote, the Senate today rejected an amendment to the tariff bill to increase the duty on China clay from $2.50 to $3.75 a ton. By a vote of 40 to 35, the Senate then turned down an amendment by the finance committee to cut the China clay duty to $1.50 a ton. This left the duty as at present—$2.50. The first amendment was sponsored by Democrats.

Those in it
Those who favored the amendment were Senators Blaine, Cutting, Frazier, La Follette, Norris and Nye. Independents opposing the committee rate were Borah, Brookhart, Howell, Norbeck, Pine and Schall.

IN PENNSYLVANIA

Harrisburg, Pa., Nov. 5.—(AP)—The changes were made by Clegg, Colorado state auditor, one of the solidly Democratic "Cabinet" elected at the time Governor Sampson won his office two years ago. He asserted that the alleged increase was made in the face of a gain in state revenue.

ASIDE FROM THE QUESTION OF VOTING MACHINES, THERE WAS LITTLE ON TODAY'S ELECTION PROGRAM TO INTEREST THE VOTERS EXCEPT IN THOSE DISTRICTS, COMPARETIVELY FEW, HAVING FIGHTS FOR LOCAL OFFICERS.

Senators Edge, N. J., and Gillett, Maine, urged a reduction in the duty on the ground that imported clays were of a quality required by paper and pottery manufacturers.

BLAME STOCK MARKET FOR BANK SHORTAGE

TUESDAY, NOV. 5, 1929

BEWILDERING

The day-before-election issue of the New York Herald Tribune leaves its readers wondering what on earth all the shooting is about, and why.

During the many weeks of the municipal campaign the leading Republican organ of the city, while unsparing in its criticism of Mayor Walker and its denunciation of Tammany, remained morosely silent concerning the Republican candidate, Congressman LaGuardia, or else mentioned his name apologetically, with his fingers to his nose, so to speak. On the day preceding the election, however, the Herald Tribune blazes forth with not only one editorial emphatically approving of the La Guardia candidacy, but no less than five separate editorial articles, plus a column and a half of endorsements from House Leader Tilson, Congressman Franklin Fort, intimate friend of President Hoover, and various other fellow representatives of the New Mayorality candidate. There is enough material on that one page to have supplied the ammunition for a very excellent campaign in favor of the belligerent La Guardia if it had been distributed over several weeks.

Altogether this constitutes the most remarkable of a number of remarkable performances indulged in by the New York newspapers this fall. The World, denouncing Walker and Tammany and professing to see no hope in La Guardia, has sourly sulked, failing to advise its readers to vote for Thomas, the Socialist, though obviously considering him the only fit candidate in the field. The Tribune has wept through the entire proceeding.

We confess to never having known one-tenth of the good things that were to have been said about La Guardia, as manifest in the belated Tribune endorsement. He is "absolutely honest," he is exactly the sort of keen fighting person needed to rescue New York from the grip of Tammany, he is one of the most valuable members of Congress, he is many fine things that the bulk of the voters in New York never heard about. He is big enough and clever enough and strong enough to have licked Jimmie Walker out of the Mayorality, we deduce—if he had been given the support, during the last six weeks, that has now been given to him for a single day.

FRUITLESS BOOSTING

Never did the New York stock exchange reopen after a holiday with the cash customers so gloriously ribbed up by bull publicity as on yesterday. Every conceivable agency had been employed to let the great American public know that the brokers' offices were stuffed with buying orders, that investment trusts were entering the market wholesale, and that, according to every Wall Street sign, the bulls were all set to ride 'em, cowboy!

And then, after a feeble little rally at the opening the market bogged down some more.

Perhaps one reason why the lamb-like public, or such of it as has a dollar of speculation money left, may have been so obviously unconvinced by the propaganda is to be found in the investment trust yarns. Even a lamb finds it exceedingly difficult to understand why an investment trust, of all entities, should be found supporting the market at a time like this. In its very nature an investment trust is primarily a buyer not a seller of securities. It is naturally interested in buying them cheap. It is a bear by birth and by appetite. It is after dividends, not speculative profit. If it does go hunting speculative profits then it is a very naughty investment company indeed and should be spanked. And if it pays a dollar a share more for a dividend-paying stock than it could somehow buy it for, it is a poor trader and a simpleton investment trust.

This is so obvious that the lamb, upon being fed the plainly nonsensical idea along with others that the investment trusts were about to help bull the market, naturally might be expected to turn suspicious of all this glad news about stocks being ready to do the skyrocket act again. Being suspicious, he also quite naturally dodged the slaughter house.

It would seem to be probable—and it is sincerely to be hoped—that the deflated bubble is going to stay deflated.

SPANKING BINGHAM

Trusting to luck that the boom-erang will never return to break their own pates, fifty-four members of the United States Senate solemnly placed themselves on record in condemnation of the methods employed by Senator Bingham in his zealous attempts to get adequate tariff protection for Connecticut industries. Frankly, we had not supposed that so many senators, even under the spur of partisan advantage, would participate in the erection of a practice which can at almost any time be employed by an opposing majority to discredit almost any of them.

There is scarcely anybody in Congress so omniscient as to never make a mistake—and under this new system of discipline a mistake is punishable by a vote of censure. For specifically the resolution of censure itself declares that there was no stain of corruption in the Bingham-Eyanon episode. It was just bad ethics, according to the implication of the resolution—bad manners.

Of course the whole proceeding, on the part of the Democrats and the coalition Republicans, is a piece of political strategy. The Smoot-Hawley tariff bill is by it seriously disadvantaged; and that is what the coalition was after. But with senators like Robinson of Indiana, Goldsborough of Illinois and Vandenberg of Michigan voting with the anti-tariff bloc, there isn't the slightest doubt that the personal equation has entered into this affair to a very considerable extent, even though as a side issue.

And this, we'll say, is a dickens of a way for members of the United States Senate to express their feelings of resentment against their "high hat." Those of the anti-Bingham Senators who haven't just been playing politics have acted like children. The bare suggestion that the Connecticut senator might resign because of such a farcical affair is nonsensical. He will do and should do nothing of the kind. The incident is closed.

CITY ELECTIONS

Connecticut's three largest cities all have municipal elections today. All follow campaigns of considerable vigor. Sturdy effort has been made by the adherents of both major political parties to stir the voters into such a state of interest that the balloting shall fairly represent the sentiments of the communities.

To those citizens of the state not resident in either of the trio of cities concerned the major interest in the elections will lie in the size of the vote in each, rather than in the identities or party affiliations of the successful candidates.

Absolutely the most discouraging aspect of American politics—worse than the quality of the governments resulting in states, cities and towns—is the extent of the indifference of the individual voters. In a sense any election which fails to register the expressed opinions of three-quarters of the potential voters, at least, is something of a failure. Yet it is the commonest of things for much fewer voters than this to hold the election between themselves, the remainder failing to participate.

From our point of view it is very much more the concern of the people of this state whether an adequate proportion of the people of Hartford, New Haven and Bridgeport turn out and vote in their city elections today than whether Mr. Batterson or Mr. Gaffey is elected mayor in Hartford, Mr. Behrens or Mr. Buckingham in Bridgeport or Mr. Tully or Mr. Troup in New Haven.

WHEREFORE?

Whether Dr. Katherine Blunt, president of Connecticut College for Women, intended to mildly advocate the changing of the name of that institution in her address to the Hartford Women's Club yesterday it is impossible to determine from the brief published abstract of her talk. However, she is credited with introducing the subject as a desire of "some members of the alumnae," and if she registered any contrary opinion of her own it does not appear in the abstract.

If Dr. Blunt intends to imply that she would like to see the name of the college changed, it would seem as though she were a rather brisk sort of person. She has been connected with the institution now for three or four months.

Connecticut College for Women, though not yet an old school, already has its traditions—its history. Close familiarity with that history embraces familiarity with several good and sufficient reasons for its title. It was completely a Connecticut conception and absolutely a Connecticut achievement. It is a child of this commonwealth. Perhaps when Dr. Blunt has been at its head a little while longer she will better understand why its name is not a proper subject for change, like that of a private yacht or an under-cover race horse.

IN NEW YORK

New York, Nov. 5.—Commercialism has been slowly strangling the picturesque simplicity of many of the most charming spots in Manhattan's famous East Side.

No spot was more colorful a few years back than "Brasstown," a dingy mile of workshops lying in the shadow of elevated tracks. Here one could peer through a window and discover some ancient craftsman hammering away in a dusky room—turning out a minor masterpiece. Today little of the flavor is left, save the murky shops themselves. Dapper salesmen can be seen standing behind windows, decorated with an eye to attracting the transient trade. Elaborate glass stands now adorn the street and the wares are displayed with a suspicious similarity, hinting at mass production.

And the scores of European cafes which dotted the midriff of Second Avenue now make an open appeal to the uptown trade. Entertainments and trappings are carefully planned to suggest a theatrical "atmosphere."

The original charm is all but gone in most of these restaurants, which grow in number annually. There are, at the moment, any number of Russian cafes, all equipped with balalaika orchestras, songsters and all the rest. Seldom does one now see the native woman arriving with gay shawls about their heads and shoulders or wearing their peasant costumes. Now they seek to ape the uptowners and wear modish dresses with high-heeled shoes. One must go into the side streets to find the old folks at home, singing their own songs and dancing their own dances.

Even the theatres try to duplicate Broadway, growing bigger and better each season. To be sure, pink lemonade and peanuts continue to be vended in the aisles during intermissions and fat ladies arrive with many children.

Maurice Schwartz, the Adlers and a few others seek to carry on the tradition of the Yiddish art theaters, though their playhouses are far from the old colorful places of a few seasons back.

Of all the theatrical innovators of the past few years, Eva Le Gallienne has been the most loyal to the old traditions. Having taken over one of the old "four-decker peanut gallery" variety or playhouse far south of the Broadway belt, she has not so much as redecorated the old place. And while attracting ermined first nighters, popcorn and gum are peddled as of yore.

As the result of all of which, her repertoire theater is jammed from one end of a season to the other, while many a Broadway wise guy scratches his head and wonders how he can keep the sheriff away from the door.

Which reminds me that this is one of the toughest seasons the "out rate" theater ticket agencies have ever had. Many are slipping fast and will slip faster. The season for this is simple—a certain group at the cut raters joined with producers who were putting on second-rate attractions. While the seat cost appeared to be about the same as other theaters, no one ever expected to sell them at full price and the plays were kept going by those who thought they were getting a bargain. The public, however, has grown wiser and the hasty dopping of many such attractions this year is breaking up the game.

THE ROMANCE OF WHEAT

The hard wheat flours are principally used in bread making, except the durum, which are used in the manufacturing of semolina flour, macaroni, spaghetti, noodles and shells, etc. It is estimated that we use nearly twenty million bushels of this flour a year in the macaroni production. The Kubanka or durum wheat was brought to this country by Mark Clinton, working for the Department of Agriculture, in an effort to find a wheat which would withstand the rust. Carlton's solitary exploration into the windswept lonely regions of Russia is a romance in itself which is very well related in a remarkable book entitled, "The Hunger Fighters," by De Krul.

In 1926 the Canadian crop was 405,000,000 bushels. The United States crop for the same period was 669,365,000 bushels. At the present time it is said that wheat furnishes us with one-third of our total food, but our per capita consumption is slightly declining.

Europe uses more wheat than America per person, and it has been estimated that one-half of the average European meals come from wheat. The decline in the consumption of wheat is probably because our work has changed from the hard, strenuous physical labor, calling for a large amount of fuel foods, to the white collar jobs in which over-eating of the highly starchy foods is apt to lead to digestive disturbances. The public has been educated to use more freely of the fruits and vegetables, and because of better clothing and better houses, the warmth-giving foods are not as necessary as they once were. The increased earning capacity has also given people a chance to buy higher priced food, resulting in a decrease per person in the wheat consumption as high as 20 per cent in twenty years.

In analyzing the flours, it is found that the amount of mineral matter and protein is somewhat higher in the whole wheat flour than in white flour. There are some people, however, who find that whole-wheat flour is more difficult to digest. What is commonly sold in many stores as wholewheat flour is not really whole wheat, but a mixture of 60 to 40 of the dark and white flours. Whenever white flour is used it should be in addition to non-starchy vegetables, as spinach, to provide roughage.

To obtain the pure wholewheat, it is usually necessary to go to a health food store and ask for the entire wheat flour. Many people ask for the white flour because they associate the whiteness with purity and cleanliness. The millers have encouraged this belief, as the removal of the bran and heart from the wheat helps in storage because it prevents the invasion by weevils. The fact that for thousands of years the flour which was lifted looked dirty has taught the population that it was a good idea to buy flour that is white so that one can tell at a glance whether it is clean or not. Within the last few years this belief has changed, however, and it is estimated that most bakers manufacture an equal amount of whole-wheat bread or perhaps more loaves than made from white flour.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Childhood Visions

Question: Mrs. R. Y. writes:—"I have a little nephew about three years old and in the daytime he seems to see visions, and laughs and acts like he is asleep. At night he is disturbed—can't sleep like children should. I would appreciate your opinion on this."

Answer:—Of course it would be impossible for me to determine whether or not your little nephew is normal mentally without having the opportunity to examine him. However, there are many childish observations which are apparently and have visions or fancies during the day in which they appear to see visions or play with imaginary friends. If the diet is correct he should be able to sleep well at night. Digestive disturbances are the principal causes of troubled sleep. If the dreams or hallucinations continue, it would be well for you to consult a psychoanalyst or psychologist when your nephew is about two or three years older.

Buerger's Disease

Question: H. G. H. writes:—"My husband has Buerger's Disease. Already he has lost the two great toes. He has been to various hospitals and they can do nothing for him except amputate as the toes turn black. I am very anxious for your opinion."

Answer:—Buerger's Disease, also known as thrombo-angiitis obliterans, is a form of gangrene of the extremities, usually affecting the toes and fingers, caused by an inflammation and obstruction of the veins and arteries to the limbs. This disease is very difficult to cure, but some benefit may be derived from following my Cleansing Diet Course which would help to reduce the inflammation of the arteries. It would probably be necessary to repeat the fast about once a month for a while until there is an improvement. It would also be a good plan to use baths, massage and exercises outlined in the article on Raynaud's Disease, which will be sent upon request.

WASHINGTON LETTER

BY RODNEY DUTCHER, NEA Service Writer

Washington, Nov. 5.—People who used to admire Old Bob La Follette in the Senate often ask a Washington correspondent how much space Young Bob La Follette is taking up in his father's shoes as senator from Wisconsin. The time is about here when one can answer with some assurance that this youngest of the senators is showing up well over anyone has a right to expect and considerably better than was ever predicted by his political enemies.

At any rate, there does not seem to be any parallel in current public life which equals the success of the present La Follette in the Senate. Following the parental trail to fame and prestige, La Follette junior has a running start because he is only 34-years old, whereas La Follette senior was 50 when first elected to the Senate. The old man served an apprenticeship as a congressman and as Wisconsin's governor, but Young Bob was promptly elected to the vacancy on his father's death.

Making a Good Record

Last year he had to run for re-nomination and re-election and the Wisconsin conservatives tried to beat him on the plea that this senatorship was a man's job. Wisconsin appeared satisfied with the "boy" when his record for the last year looks a lot better than it did before.

In the first place, La Follette inherited every bit of his father's integrity. There are so few integrity men these days that it stands out rather conspicuously if he has any ability at all. La Follette is one of the three or four who do. It would be grossly unfair to compare him in his senatorial infancy with his father at the height of his powers and his fame, but he has managed to stay always on the Progressive track, entering into every Progressive fight, harpooning the administration and its forces at every opportunity and by keeping his feet on the ground without committing any faults or errors which might be attributed to his youth.

When the crash came in Wall Street the other day some here recalled that it was La Follette who nearly two years ago introduced and supported a resolution asking the Federal Reserve Board to curb speculative loans. It may also be remembered that La Follette introduced and forced through a resolution expressing opposition of the Senate to a third term. While passage of this resolution probably wasn't the chief influence behind Coolidge's reluctance to run again, it was an effective move, for the Republican senators who voted for it would have had a hard time supporting Coolidge for election had he been re-nominated.

La Follette eventually refused to take any part in the presidential campaign. He had spoken for the platform of the Wisconsin Progressive Republicans at the Kansas City convention, displaying great oratorical ability and drawing cheers from hundreds of standpat throats.

But this year the La Follette

voice has been heard more vigorously, more frequently and more effectively than ever. Norris and Borah seasons of men in their politics, have been leading the insurgent troops, but La Follette has been one of the most valuable generals. From the outset he has put in a great amount of work on tariff legislation and the results have shown.

Last spring he was one of the leaders in the fight to abolish secret roll calls in the Senate.

When the tariff bill came from the House it was he who urged the Progressives to adopt the same methods the insurgents used against the Payne-Aldrich bill in 1909, when the elder La Follette and others divided up the schedules between them and each made an intensive study of his own subject. The present La Follette was named to lead the fight in the important chemical and sugar rates and when the rate schedules first came before the Senate opened the Progressive attack on them with an exhaustive array of facts and a slashing assault upon the merits of the chemical industry's claim for more tariff favors. He had spent most of the summer and weeks since studying his schedules.

Attacked Flexible Tariff

Having served on the select committee which investigated the Tariff Commission two years ago he was also able to make a devastating review of the abuse of presidential power through appointments and the flexible provision—an important part of the movement which led to the Senate's refusal to allow the president any more ratifying powers.

Illness hampered the young man from Wisconsin for a long time, but he is in better shape now, spends a great deal of time on the floor and is especially active in lining up the Progressives to function as a group. In a few years the older insurgent leaders will have passed on and one of the younger insurgents will lead them. It may not be La Follette, but he is getting a good early start in that direction.

Answer:—Buerger's Disease, also known as thrombo-angiitis obliterans, is a form of gangrene of the extremities, usually affecting the toes and fingers, caused by an inflammation and obstruction of the veins and arteries to the limbs. This disease is very difficult to cure, but some benefit may be derived from following my Cleansing Diet Course which would help to reduce the inflammation of the arteries. It would probably be necessary to repeat the fast about once a month for a while until there is an improvement. It would also be a good plan to use baths, massage and exercises outlined in the article on Raynaud's Disease, which will be sent upon request.

WASHINGTON LETTER

BY RODNEY DUTCHER, NEA Service Writer

Washington, Nov. 5.—People who used to admire Old Bob La Follette in the Senate often ask a Washington correspondent how much space Young Bob La Follette is taking up in his father's shoes as senator from Wisconsin. The time is about here when one can answer with some assurance that this youngest of the senators is showing up well over anyone has a right to expect and considerably better than was ever predicted by his political enemies.

At any rate, there does not seem to be any parallel in current public life which equals the success of the present La Follette in the Senate. Following the parental trail to fame and prestige, La Follette junior has a running start because he is only 34-years old, whereas La Follette senior was 50 when first elected to the Senate. The old man served an apprenticeship as a congressman and as Wisconsin's governor, but Young Bob was promptly elected to the vacancy on his father's death.

Making a Good Record

Last year he had to run for re-nomination and re-election and the Wisconsin conservatives tried to beat him on the plea that this senatorship was a man's job. Wisconsin appeared satisfied with the "boy" when his record for the last year looks a lot better than it did before.

In the first place, La Follette inherited every bit of his father's integrity. There are so few integrity men these days that it stands out rather conspicuously if he has any ability at all. La Follette is one of the three or four who do. It would be grossly unfair to compare him in his senatorial infancy with his father at the height of his powers and his fame, but he has managed to stay always on the Progressive track, entering into every Progressive fight, harpooning the administration and its forces at every opportunity and by keeping his feet on the ground without committing any faults or errors which might be attributed to his youth.

When the crash came in Wall Street the other day some here recalled that it was La Follette who nearly two years ago introduced and supported a resolution asking the Federal Reserve Board to curb speculative loans. It may also be remembered that La Follette introduced and forced through a resolution expressing opposition of the Senate to a third term. While passage of this resolution probably wasn't the chief influence behind Coolidge's reluctance to run again, it was an effective move, for the Republican senators who voted for it would have had a hard time supporting Coolidge for election had he been re-nominated.

La Follette eventually refused to take any part in the presidential campaign. He had spoken for the platform of the Wisconsin Progressive Republicans at the Kansas City convention, displaying great oratorical ability and drawing cheers from hundreds of standpat throats.

But this year the La Follette

voice has been heard more vigorously, more frequently and more effectively than ever. Norris and Borah seasons of men in their politics, have been leading the insurgent troops, but La Follette has been one of the most valuable generals. From the outset he has put in a great amount of work on tariff legislation and the results have shown.

Last spring he was one of the leaders in the fight to abolish secret roll calls in the Senate.

When the tariff bill came from the House it was he who urged the Progressives to adopt the same methods the insurgents used against the Payne-Aldrich bill in 1909, when the elder La Follette and others divided up the schedules between them and each made an intensive study of his own subject. The present La Follette was named to lead the fight in the important chemical and sugar rates and when the rate schedules first came before the Senate opened the Progressive attack on them with an exhaustive array of facts and a slashing assault upon the merits of the chemical industry's claim for more tariff favors. He had spent most of the summer and weeks since studying his schedules.

Attacked Flexible Tariff

Having served on the select committee which investigated the Tariff Commission two years ago he was also able to make a devastating review of the abuse of presidential power through appointments and the flexible provision—an important part of the movement which led to the Senate's refusal to allow the president any more ratifying powers.

Illness hampered the young man from Wisconsin for a long time, but he is in better shape now, spends a great deal of time on the floor and is especially active in lining up the Progressives to function as a group. In a few years the older insurgent leaders will have passed on and one of the younger insurgents will lead them. It may not be La Follette, but he is getting a good early start in that direction.

ARRANGING KING'S VISIT.

CHENEYS LOSE SUIT OVER DESIGN COPY

Appeals Court Upholds First Decision But Suggests Protecting Law.

In a case of Cheney Brothers versus the Doris Silk Corporation, the United States Court of Appeals of the Second District upheld the ruling of the District Court for the Southern District of New York in denying Cheney Brothers an injunction against the Doris concern because the latter copied one of the popular designs of Cheney Brothers and undercut the Cheney price.

The court's decision is important not only for the implied suggestion that present-day protective laws are inadequate, but for the additional reason that the case itself is the first of its kind—its issue applying only to merchandise—ever brought to trial.

Two questions arise from the decision. Ought there to be a law to protect the originator of a product against copyists? Ought Congress by statute create a temporary right by which, for some specified time, the innovator might enjoy a monopoly. The court philosophizing upon the ethical aspect of the legal question of the matter, implies that in some manner the copyist ought to be curbed.

In effect, says the decision, Cheney Brothers plea, citing judicial precedent, sought a "sort of common-law patent or copyright for reasons of justice." But, remarked the court of Judges Mansfield, Hand, and Swan, the principle of either expedient "would flagrantly conflict with the scheme which Congress has for more than a quarter of a century devised to cover the subject matter."

For the court to grant common-law protection to the originator of a design would impose upon the court, the decision pointed out, the duty of first investigating to determine whether or not his innovation was new and truly original—and "required." Then would arise the question of how long his common-law protection was to continue.

"To exclude others from the enjoyment of a chattel is one thing," says the decision, laying down a principle: "to prevent any imitation of it, to set up a monopoly in the plan of its structure, gives the author a power over his fellows vastly greater than the Constitution allows only Congress to create."

So, said the court, runs the law. But the court was mindful of other considerations. Thus, "True, the plaintiff has suffered a grievance for which there should be a remedy, perhaps by an amendment of the copyright law, assuming that this does not already cover the case, which is not urged here. It seems a lame answer in such a case to turn the injured party out of court, but there are larger issues at stake than his redress."

GUNPOWDER PLOT FAILS

The Gunpowder Plot, a project for destroying the kings, lords and commons at the opening of Parliament in London, failed on Nov. 5, 1605.

Disappointed and angered by the persecution of Catholics by King James I., a few of the Catholics banded together to overthrow the government and establish one of their own.

The originator of the plot was Robert Catesby, but it was a soldier of fortune, Guy Fawkes, who was selected to set fire to a hoghead and 36 barrels of gunpowder which had been placed in a cellar under the House of Lords.

Members of Parliament learned of the plot and Fawkes was arrested on the morning of Nov. 5, a little after midnight, as he came from the cellar dressed for traveling.

HEBRON

Mrs. Carrie Burnham entertained the women's bridge club at her home Wednesday evening. Three tables were played, the winners for the evening being Mrs. Gertrude Hough and Mrs. T. D. Martin, the scores being nearly equal.

Max Kresman was injured and his car wrecked Thursday afternoon on the Post Hill road, when he was turning to drive into his yard, by a car driven by Roy Jones of the poultry department of Storrs College. Mr. Jones was coming along the hill behind Kesman and a car was at the same time approaching from the opposite direction when the accident occurred. The roads were wet. State police were summoned to take charge. Kesman was taken to St. Joseph's hospital, but was brought home on a serious injury.

Mrs. N. C. Johnson gave a Halloween party for her children and several of their young friends Wednesday evening. Those present besides the children of the Johnsons, family were "Phyllis Cummings, Marian and Barbara Tennant, Olga and Gizella Stanek, Sophie and Jennie Pomprowitz, and Mary and Doris Rowley. Guests appeared in costume.

Barbara Tennant appeared as "Mother Pig" and won first prize, while Kenneth Johnson took the boy's prize. Refreshments were served after the usual games and stunts had been enjoyed.

The meeting of the Bible class was held Thursday evening at the home of Miss Edith Pendleton. The study of the book of Galatians was completed. Perfect attendance record in the grammar room of Hebron Center Schools for the month of October.

The Young Women's Club met Thursday evening at the home of Mrs. Edward A. Smith. Teachers of the schools were invited to be present. The second hostess was Mrs. Marion Post. The evening's program partook of the Halloween season. The Misses Helen Hough and Clara Ellis were in charge of the program.

Miss Olive Smith and a friend of the name of Mrs. Ernest Bazinet, in Mr. and Mrs. Post. The evening's program partook of the Halloween season. The Misses Helen Hough and Clara Ellis were in charge of the program.

Miss Helen Gilbert of the Unquowa School, Bridgeport, spent the week end at her Hebron home. Cranton I. Will of Mamaroneck, N. Y., spent the week end with friends here.

Roy C. Jones of the Poultry department of Storrs College assumes responsibility for the accident recently occurring on Post Hill in which Max Kesman's Chevrolet truck was completely demolished. Mr. Jones is covered by insurance.

A new tire was stolen from a Dodge car owned by Carlton B. Jones some time during the night between Friday and Saturday morning. Mr. Jones keeps the car parked at the side of his house on the state road to Willimantic. It is thought that some passing motorist may have stolen the tire. Depredations of the kind have happened many times at the garage just opposite, owned by Mr. Jones's son.

John F. Simon of New London has sold to Edward A. Smith thirty acres of land located in the vicinity of the Paper Mill road, and adjoining the Smith farm. A right of way to Daniel Lustig is retained across the land.

A Halloween dance was given at the old dance hall in its new location in Amston Friday evening. Quite a number of the young people attended. An article on Lorenzo Dow, from the standpoint of his connection with Free Masonry appears in the September number, just issued, of the New England Masonic Craftsman, published in Boston. The article is written by Dr. C. E. Pendleton of Colchester, formerly of this town. It shows that Dow had attained to all the degrees of Free Masonry possible, as shown from his autobiography. His wanderings, however, in this and other countries, made it an exceedingly difficult matter to check degrees were received. He everywhere defends the organization and was buried with Masonic honors. The society bore the expense of the Oak Hill cemetery, in Georgetown, D. C.

American shipping through the Suez canal during 1928 ranked seventh in point of net tonnage and eighth in number of transits.

The 4,500,000 automobiles manufactured in 1928 in the United States required 238,000 bales of cotton for their tires, tops, upholstery, padding, brake linings, washers, gaskets, fan belts, insulating material, and so forth.

JUNIOR RED CROSS WORKS FOR SERVICE

Within the United States there is an organization of 6,878,423 members enrolled with no other object than service to one's fellow and good will on earth. It is the American Junior Red Cross, which flourishes in the schools of the country. This membership figure, taken at the end of the school year last June, represents a gain in members of 349,171 over the preceding year. The Junior Red Cross furnishes a link between the children of the mainland and of the insular possessions, which alone furnish 1,039,705 of the total, chiefly in the Philippines and Porto Rico.

In the last school year, the schools of Connecticut showed an enrollment of 112,912 pupils in the Junior Red Cross.

During the last school year, there passed through the national headquarters of the American Red Cross a total of 3,690 consignments of school correspondence, all being with foreign countries except for 134 with the Indian schools of the form of portfolios with pictures and writings descriptive of local life, diversions, industries, museums and monuments. These international contacts reveal an interest in other peoples that serves as a stimulant in the study of geography and history and makes for international friendships. In Albania, the American juniors help to support a trade school at Tirana, which they founded eight years ago. This school is teaching American industrial and agricultural methods to the youth of Albania, who have no other such school.

Every sick veteran in a government hospital is looked after this year by the American Junior Red Cross, different groups adopting different hospitals or hospital wards. Every holiday or patriotic occasion, and particularly at Christmas time, the sick receive some form of remembrance. Although veteran work has been general since the war, this is the first time that it has been systematized by the juniors.

LIGHTS ON SCHOONER O. K. SAYS CAPTAIN

Halifax, Nov. 5.—(AP)—Capt. F. Stoddard of the Nova Scotian schooner James B., which was rammed and sunk off Long Island last Wednesday in a collision with the Coast Guard cutter Cahoon, said on his arrival here that at the time of the collision his lights were in order and that the searchlights of the Coast Guard boat were turned on his ship.

He also declared the Coast Guard boat made no effort to rescue his crew which put off in a dory after the impact and rowed to the Cahoon. He said the James B. sank in fifteen minutes.

Pending completion of the inquiry now under way at New London, Conn., he said no formal protest would be made to the Canadian authorities. He said he was 30 miles off Long Island when the collision and that three Coast Guard boats were attempting to head him off and force him into territorial waters.

MRS. JULIA RICE DEAD.

New York, Nov. 5.—(AP)—Mrs. Julia Barnett Rice, one of the pioneers in the movement for a safe and sane Fourth of July, died at her home at Deal, N. J., last night. She was 69 years old. She also was the founder of the Anti-Noise Society of America and vice-president of the Society for the Suppression of Unnecessary Noises. She was the widow of Prof. Isaac Leopold Rice.

In a sound-proof room of a mansion owned by the Rices on Riverside drive, international chess games were played, the moves being communicated by cable. Mr. Rice, a chess expert, was the inventor of the "Rice Gambit," a famous chess debut.

COLUMBIA

The West St. School pupils held a Halloween party Thursday evening at the school house. There are 13 pupils, and there were 25 visitors. The program consisted of 24 numbers, made up of recitations, music and plays. One of the latter "Cinderella" was especially interesting in that the pupils wrote and dramatized it themselves. The programme was much enjoyed and reflected much credit on the children and their teacher, Miss Florence Martin. Cake and fruit punch was served to all. There were a few prizes being passed out. Monday evening Miss Florence Martin entertained a few friends at a whist party at the home of Mrs. Robert Cobb. There were three tables in play. Charles Gorman won first prize and Charles LaBonte got the consolation.

The Pine street school also held a Halloween party Thursday evening, with parents and friends invited. The program consisted of a play, "The Haunted House" readings and music, and was announced in the manner of a radio program. The children were in costume. The children were given Ervia Holbrook, Lillian Stein and Grace Holbrook. At the close of the program the children played games and danced. Cake, cookies, lemonade and candy were passed out. The entertainment was in charge of the teacher, Miss Mabel Reagan.

Mrs. Mary Lewis went to Hartford Friday to spend the winter with her daughter Miss Viola Lewis. Mr. and Mrs. James Gorman and Mrs. Grimm spent the week-end at the home of Mrs. Hubert Collins.

Miss Elizabeth Bertsch went to New Haven Saturday for the Yale-Dartmouth football game. Mrs. Julia Little, Mr. Horace Little, Frank Bodwell and Clarence Bessel of Hartford are spending a few days at the Columbia cottage of Mrs. Little. Mr. Little and Mr. Bodwell have been doing some house work.

Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Lyman of Plainville are spending a week's vacation at the home of Mrs. Lyman's sister, Mrs. Joseph Squier. Joseph Hutchins, who has been spending a week at his parent's home on Chestnut Hill, left for his home in Washington, Saturday. He made the return trip in the same manner in which he came in his airplane. He was accompanied as far as Newark, N. J. flying field by his friend, Donald Woodward, who came back by rail.

Little Stevie Kosak who attends the Chestnut Hill school who attends the school house and was knocked down by a passing auto. He was taken to a doctor's office but was found to have escaped. This school is located practically on the highway since the new road has been put through, and at the town meeting held a few weeks ago it was voted to purchase more land and move the schoolhouse back from the road, as it was felt that accidents were liable to happen, and little Stevie's experience has shown the necessity of such action. The building will be moved as soon as necessary arrangements are made.

REDS BOMB RAILROAD

Tokyo, Nov. 5.—(AP)—Rengo News Agency dispatches from Harbin, Manchuria, today said Soviet airplanes which had engaged in reconnaissance flights in the Pooran district since the first of the month appeared over Muling November 3 and dropped three bombs on the railroad station and divisional headquarters.

The dispatch said it was believed the Russians intended to destroy the Muling coal mines with a view to impeding railway traffic along the eastern section of the Chinese Eastern Railway.

WALES PLANS HUNTING.

REAL LENOX AVE. BAND FOR PLAYERS' SOCIAL

That section of New York city known as the Harlem to-day is the favorite stamping ground for all native New Yorkers in their endless search for something new, something different. Here the man-about-town, visiting film stars, and society leaders gather in fantastically decorated cellars and lofts to dance to the pulsating blues of a negro jazz band or listen to the crooning of a mulatto cabaret singer. Meeting the negro face to face in his own playground on equal terms is the way the jaded New York satisfies the Metropolitan craze for a new thrill.

The Town Players in so far as it is possible on Friday night will present a bit of this New York life. "Shuffling" Sam Green and his Plantation Blackbirds, the negro jazz band that will supply the music on that evening, until their appearance at "The Plantation," Lenox Avenue Night club a few months ago had "nevah played" white folks before.

Thus Friday night at the School Street will be an evening of rare entertainment for dance lovers of Manchester. There will not be any advance sale of tickets as the Players desire all to have the privilege of hearing the band before purchasing tickets and thus know that the bands is equal to it not better than advance publicity has rated them.

TALCOTTVILLE

The Christian Endeavor Society met on Sunday evening at 7 o'clock. The senior leader was James M. Kelly and the junior leader, Master Fred Lee. This was a consecration meeting, the subject "Having a Temple Fit for God" and the theme of the meeting was "Wise Living."

The Women's Missionary of the local church will meet in the Assembly rooms on Tuesday afternoon at 2:15 o'clock. The meeting will be in charge of Miss Florence Moore and the hostesses will be Mrs. Cook, Mrs. Loverin and Mrs. Alfred Talcott.

There will be a joint meeting of the Vernon Parent Teachers Association and the 4-H clubs of Tolland County at Vernon Grange Hall on Friday evening, November 8th, at 7:30 o'clock. The 4-H clubs will hold their "Achievement Night" at the meeting. Refreshments will be on sale. The State 4-H Club leader, A. J. Brundage, of Storrs, Conn., and the Assistant leader, Miss Elsie K. Trabue, will be present. All interested in this work are invited to attend.

Miss Emily Rice entertained a number of her friends at her home last Thursday evening with a Halloween costume party. Prizes for costumes were awarded as follows: Prettiest, Miss Florence Pinney; Funniest, Miss Alice Doggart; Cutest, Miss Sara McNally; Most original, Miss Miriam Wells. Appropriate refreshments were served, and games and dancing were enjoyed. Those present included the Misses Miriam, Esther, and Margaret Wells, Florence Pinney, Sara McNally, Alice Doggart, Gertrude Gibbs, Alma Rice, Doris Richards, Emily Rice, and Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Smith, Messrs Wilbur H. DYNAMITE GANG CONTINUES WORK

Despite Police and Courts Strikers Keep on Blowing Up Trolley Cars.

New Orleans, Nov. 5.—(AP)—Attempts to blow up street cars were the center of attention today in the carmen's strike situation. In the face of the sting of the courts and the lash of the law, the dynamite gang continued its activities in the street car strike of union workmen.

While the state courts barred alleged jitney operations and Federal Court investigated a contempt charge against one man held in violation of Judge Wayne G. Borah's order against strike violence, five sticks of dynamite were discovered set up close to a street car track just in time to avert another blast.

With the first civil court injunction granted Public Service against an alleged jitney driver, Henry Fals, restraining him from conveying passengers in his automobile for fare or donation, nine other injunction cases were set for hearing, and many more were expected to be filed by the company.

Federal authorities today were prepared to take up the continued case against Frank Milazzo, arrested by police near the scene of a street car bombing. Having formally declared all negotiations with the union men at an end some time ago, Public Service has made no reply publicly to last week's decision of the union workers to return to work unconditionally on a reconsideration of their position.

Colic, gas, sour belching, frequent vomiting, feverishness, in babies and children, generally show food is souring in the little digestive tract.

When these symptoms appear, give Baby a teaspoonful of Phillips Milk of Magnesia. Add it to the first bottle of food in the morning. Older children should be given a tablespoonful in a glass of water. This will comfort the child—make his stomach and bowels easy. In five minutes he is comfortable, happy. It will sweep the bowels free of all sour, indigestible food. It opens the bowels in constipation, colds, children's ailments. Children take pleasant-tasting.

Learn its many uses for mother and child. Write for the interesting book, "Useful Information." Address The Phillips Co., 117 Hudson St., N. Y. It will be sent FREE. In buying, be sure to get genuine Phillips Milk of Magnesia. Doctors have prescribed it for over 50 years.

"Milk of Magnesia" has been the U. S. Registered Trade Mark of The Chas. H. Phillips Chemical Co., and its predecessor, Chas. H. Phillips, since 1875.—Adv.

GUNPOWDER PLOT FAILS

The Gunpowder Plot, a project for destroying the kings, lords and commons at the opening of Parliament in London, failed on Nov. 5, 1605.

Disappointed and angered by the persecution of Catholics by King James I., a few of the Catholics banded together to overthrow the government and establish one of their own.

The originator of the plot was Robert Catesby, but it was a soldier of fortune, Guy Fawkes, who was selected to set fire to a hoghead and 36 barrels of gunpowder which had been placed in a cellar under the House of Lords.

Members of Parliament learned of the plot and Fawkes was arrested on the morning of Nov. 5, a little after midnight, as he came from the cellar dressed for traveling.

Examined under torture, Fawkes confessed his own guilt, and revealed the names of his associates. Nearly all of them were killed on being arrested or died with Fawkes on the scaffold.

Far from renouncing the oppression of Roman Catholics, the plotters greatly increased their miseries.

VERNON PASTOR ACCEPTS EAST HADDAM CALL

Will Preach Last Sermon at Center Church Nov. 17; Notes About Rockville.

Rev. A. E. Gates, who has been pastor of the Vernon Center Congregational Church for more than two years announced today that he had received a call to the East Haddam Congregational Church and that he had accepted. The church which is considered one of the most beautiful in New England, has a large membership. Pastor Gates preached at this church as a candidate on October 20 and 27. The official call was extended him on Monday morning of this week.

Mr. Gates who is dearly beloved by the people of Vernon Center tendered his resignation to his congregation about a month ago and planned at that time to accept a call to some other church, but decided since not to accept that special call, having the East Haddam Church under consideration. The Vernon Center congregation asked him to reconsider at that time, as they wished to retain him. At the morning service last Sunday, Mr. Gates stated that he had reconsidered, but decided to leave to take charge of East Haddam Church, although he did not receive the official call until Monday.

Deep regret is felt by the people of Vernon Center in losing Mr. Gates and his family. He has been very active in community work and is sure to be missed.

Rev. A. E. Gates will preach his last sermon at the Center Church on Sunday, November 17, taking up his new duties in East Haddam the following Sunday, November 24.

Six Cases On Docket
There was a short calendar session of the Tolland County Superior Court on Monday morning, with Judge Edward Yeomans on the bench. Six cases were scheduled for the day. The case of Abraham Garbich vs. Meech & Stoddard, Inc. and Red Wing Feed & Lumber Company was stricken off the docket, as was also the case of Gary Smith vs. Meech & Stoddard, Inc., and Red Wing Feed & Lumber Co.

In the case of Ernest A. Gleason vs. Monach Realty Corporation, motion to restore docket; this was granted by Judge Yeomans and the attorneys for the plaintiff and R. H. Flisk for the defense.

In the case of Francis M. Dickinson vs. Ernest Tietz, hearing in foreclosure, limitation of time for redemption, he received judgment of $410. T. F. Noone was attorney for the plaintiff.

In the case of John Wannamaker vs. James Hale et al, termination of continuance. Finding of actual notice by defendants appearing, default against non-appearing defendants. Judgment of foreclosure and limitation of time for redemption, judgment of $381.75 was granted.

The final case, John Wannamaker vs. James Hale, motion for foreclosure by sale, was denied.

BUCHARIN WARNED AGAINST MISTAKES

Moscow, Nov. 5.—(AP)—The official organ, Izvestia, today warned Nikolai Bucharin and other members of the Right Wing opposition in the Communist Party, that unless they acknowledge their "mistakes" and recognize that the government is pursuing the correct policy in its economic and agricultural plans, they will meet the same fate as the exiled Leon Trotsky.

Izvestia declared that the wonderful results of the first year of the five year industrialization plan proved the members of the Right Wing wrong. It added that only grouping of Russia's farms on a great scale can solve the country's agricultural and economic problems.

Nikolai Bucharin formerly was editor-in-chief of Pravda, important Moscow daily, and has held posts as member of the Communist executive and member of the Praesidium Council of Supreme Economy. He generally has been associated with such other "Rightists" as Michael Tomsky and Alexis Rykoff. There have been insistent reports of late of his loss of standing with the present all-powerful Soviet group headed by Josef Stalin.

POLISH PARLIAMENT TAKES LONG RECESS

Warsaw, Nov. 5.—(AP)—The Polish Parliament will adjourn by presidential decree today for 30 days when it met to convene after a recess since last Thursday when Marshall Pilsudski, offered with more than 100 army officers to open its initial session.

The president's decision for the time being ends the crisis which arose last week when Marshall Pilsudski, attended by a strong military contingent, attempted to open the Sejm.

There had been general apprehension today as to what would happen when the Sejm convened again today in the event the marshal's brother officers should again have been brought forward.

It was believed in political circles a way would be found out of the crisis during the 30 days of the Sejm's adjournment.

ALL B. & M. TRAINS STOP FOR A MINUTE

Out of Respect to President of Railroad Who Was Buried This Afternoon.

Cambridge, Mass., Nov. 5.—(AP)—Funeral services for George Hannauer, late president of the Boston & Maine railroad, were held in the Little Mount Auburn cemetery chapel today before only a few of the many who came to pay final tribute.

After removal of the body to the home in Newton to the chapel, the Episcopal ritual was read by the Rev. Edward Taylor Sullivan, D.D., pastor of the Newton Center Trinity church, and a eulogy was offered by President Ernest Martin Hopkins of Dartmouth college.

Out of respect to Mr. Hannauer every train on the 2,200 miles of the Boston and Maine railroad was stopped for a minute at 11 a. m. the hour of the service. Many of the railroad's offices closed then for the remainder of the day.

Governors Present
Governors of four New England states, two of them attending in person, Governor Frank G. Allen of Massachusetts and Governor Charles W. Tobey of New Hampshire, and Governors John E. Weeks of Vermont and William T. Gardner of Maine, were honorary pall-bearers.

Others were the presidents of prominent eastern railroads, employees of the road, and leaders in New England business and public life.

Burial was in the cemetery in a grave near the final resting place of Longfellow, Lowell and Henry Cabot Lodge.

"BLACK CROWS" END RUN HERE TONIGHT

Greta Garbo in "Single Standard" the Feature at State Tomorrow.

The Two Black Crows, Moran and Mack, in "Why Bring That Up," conclude their three day engagement at the State tonight.

Greta Garbo proves the adage about the absence making the heart grow fonder in "The Single Standard" which will be the feature attraction at the State Wednesday and Thursday. Leaving our palpitating shores after making "Wild Orchids," Miss Garbo went home to Sweden for four months amid rumors that she was not to return. She did return and brought with her a new Garbo to the screen, a more beautiful, if possible, creature of strange fascination and of even more potent lure than of yore.

In many ways "The Single Standard" is a distinct triumph for the exotic. It is her first one hundred per cent. American role and presents the greatest of all her characterizations.

Nils Asther and John Mark Brown split leading man honors. Both are splendidly equipped, although playing divergent roles. Keep pace with each other in highly creditable performance. The picture has been screened with an eye to pictorial beauty, and the yachting scenes are particularly effective.

Dorothy Sebastian, Lane Chandler and Robert Casar have the most prominent roles in the supporting cast.

As an extra added feature, Eddie Cantor will be presented in "Ziegfeld's Midnight Frolic." The program will also include the side-splitting all talking comedy "The Brides Relations."

By Anne Austin, author of "The Black Pigeon," "Rival Wives," etc.

"A favor," Cora echoed, her eyes dilating. "What do you mean?" "I mean," Strawn said, "that Sevier asked you to help rob Mrs. Emma Hogarth."

THIS HAS HAPPENED

BONNIE DUNDEE, "cub" detective, rents a room at Mrs. Rhoades' boarding house to be near Mrs. Emma Hogarth, who has appealed to the police for protection, throwing suspicion on EMIL SEVIER, a former boarder.

Dundee meets the boarders, MR. and MRS. SHARP, DAISY SHEPHERD, saleswoman; WALTER STYLES, proprietor of a small haberdashery; NORA FAKE, his scenario writer; CORA BARKER, theater pianist; HENRY DOWD, newcomer out of work, and DUSTY, worthless husband of Mrs. Rhoades.

Norma introduces Dundee to Mrs. Hogarth after dinner but he gets only a few minutes' chat with her alone. He leaves at 11, promising to return later. He comes back at 12:20 to find her choked to death. LIEUTENANT STRAWN, homicide squad chief, immediately sends a man to check up on SEVIER, who it is learned left town in a motor car one week ago. A DR. WEEKS reports having seen a man running down the alley at 12:10 as he went to get his car to make a call. Dundee, stationed behind a screen, takes notes as Dowd is quizzed. Cora Barker comes in.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

The Cora Barker whom Bonnie Dundee had met at dinner that evening had been a woman possessed of a queer sort of beauty, exotic and largely artificial though that beauty was. A woman gallantly holding age at bay, convincing herself and almost convincing her world that she was a charming girl of 25 or 28, instead of a defeated, rusticated, heart-hungry woman of near 40. Then it was only her thin, dry-skinned hands which had betrayed her age, if one were so foolish as to look at them rather than into her great, shining black eyes.

But the face of the woman who hesitated at the door of the room where murder had been committed was a ravaged thing. The eyes were like burned holes in a yellow blanket. Her right hand was pressed hard against her heart, the left, freshly bandaged, hung at her side. Small wonder that Bonnie Dundee almost betrayed his presence behind the screen.

"You're Miss Barker?" Strawn asked briskly, when he had dismissed Patrolman Boyce and had waved the woman to a chair close to the dead woman's desk at which he himself was seated.

"Cora Barker," she answered. "You occupy the room next to this?"

"Yes, sir, the east corner room."

"You know, of course, that Mrs. Hogarth was murdered tonight?" Strawn was brutally direct.

"A man—a detective, I suppose he was—knocked at my door and told me so," Cora answered unsteadily.

"And that was the first you knew of it?"

"Why—of course," she gasped. "Where were you this evening, Miss Barker, between 11 and 12:15?"

"I was at the Little Queen Theater from 11 till 12, and then—"

"The movie closes at 11, doesn't it?" Strawn interrupted.

"What time was it when you got home?" Strawn asked.

"It's only six blocks from here to the theater, so it couldn't have been later than 12:10," Cora answered. "I didn't look at my watch after I left the theater—"

"Coming toward the house and up the front walk, did you see anyone?"

"No, no one at all. I glanced up at the house and saw that Mrs. Hogarth's light was on but I thought nothing of it. She often sits up—I mean—"

"Did you notice any other lights on?"

"Upstairs, you mean?" Cora frowned in concentration. "No, Mr. Dowd's window was dark, I believe, but I did not particularly notice. Yes, I'm quite sure there was no light in his room. My own window was dark, of course, and I couldn't see any others. The hall light was on downstairs, and the front door was still unlocked. I didn't see anyone downstairs as I came in, or upstairs either. I went straight to my room, and—"

"Did you hear any sounds at all from Mrs. Hogarth's room?"

"No, nothing."

"Or any sound on the upstairs porch?"

"No, no noise of any kind."

"Did you look out of your window, either or both of them?"

"No, I just pulled down the shades to undress. When I took off my dress—it's a new one—I saw that the pleats in the skirt had been badly mashed, and I decided to press it, so I put on my kimono and connected up a little electric iron I have—"

"Rather late for a job like that, wasn't it? Tomorrow, or rather, today being Sunday?" Strawn suggested, his eyes narrowing upon her.

Dundee saw an ugly flush creep over the ghastly pallor of Cora Barker's face. "Yes, it was late, but I—well, you see, Mrs. Rhoades doesn't like for us to use electric irons, and if I had waited till Sunday morning she might have come into my room while I was pressing the dress, and—"

"I see," Strawn permitted himself a brief, twisted smile. "And then?"

"I—burnt my hand, and had to stop and dress it. I keep a tube of salve in my room for burns and sunburn. I was pressing the dress when I heard someone knock on Mrs. Hogarth's door. I didn't look to see who it was, but I do remember thinking it odd that I didn't hear Mrs. Hogarth call out, 'Who is it?' as she always does—did. Then I heard her door open, and a few minutes later whoever it was that had entered came out and went downstairs. The house was still, and I could hear the footsteps. I got the impression somehow that something was wrong, but I didn't investigate, and really knew nothing about it all until the man knocked at my door and told me that—that Mrs. Hogarth was dead, and that I was to wait there until I was called for for questioning."

"I see," Strawn commented thoughtfully, and Dundee, through the joining of the screen panels, saw Cora Barker draw a deep, quivering breath of relief that her ordeal was over.

But it wasn't. "Now, Miss Barker, you say you saw no one or heard nothing when you came upstairs—"

"No, I didn't say that exactly," Cora interrupted. "I didn't see anyone, but I heard Bert's—I mean, Mr. Magnus's typewriter. His room is across the hall from mine, you know."

"And you didn't stop to speak to him, to ask him why he had failed to keep his appointment with you?"

The woman's flush deepened to dull crimson. "No, I—well, I was pretty angry with him, and—I have my pride—" nus, Miss Barker?" Strawn asked bluntly.

"You have no right to ask me that," she flashed, and the dead eyes burned briefly with an angry blaze.

"I see," Strawn drawled. "I take it, then, that you are no longer engaged to Emil Sevier?"

"Engaged to Emil Sevier?" Cora echoed. "I was never engaged to Emil Sevier! And we are no longer even friends—"

"But it was you who suggested that he come here to board, wasn't it, Miss Barker?"

"I worked with him at the Little Queen Theater. He was violinist and I was pianist. He asked me if I could recommend this as a boarding place, and I did, of course. We were together a good deal, because of our work and because we both love music, but—"

"You saw Sevier tonight?" Strawn cut in sharply.

Dundee saw that Cora was about to lie, then changed her mind. She flung up her head defiantly. "Yes, I saw him before and after. He was good-by. He said he was going to Chicago on the 1 o'clock train, to look for a new job."

"Isn't it true, Miss Barker, that Sevier asked you to do him a little favor before he left?"

"A favor?" Cora echoed, her eyes dilating. "What do you mean?"

"I mean," Strawn said very slowly and distinctly, "that Sevier asked you to help him rob Mrs. Emma Hogarth."

Cora Barker sprang to her feet. "That's not true! That's a lie, I tell you—"

"You don't mean to tell me, Miss Barker, that you didn't know Emil Sevier had planned, even attempted to rob Mrs. Hogarth?" Strawn smiled.

"I know Mrs. Hogarth made some such crazy charge against him," Cora panted, backing away from the detective. "But—she—she was always getting some crazy idea into her head—"

"And one of those crazy ideas was that she would be murdered for her money," Lieutenant Strawn pointed out quietly. "Another of her crazy ideas was to name you in her will, and then later to change that will, Miss Barker, cutting you off without a penny. Will you tell me why?"

Roast pork adds a welcome variety to the winter menu. Although tastes may differ as to the degree of cooking roast beef there never is any question regarding roast pork. Pork must always be thoroughly "done."

The flesh of pork is less firm than that of other meats and the fat is soft. It is always well to choose that with as little visible fat as possible, for there is always plenty of fat distributed through the muscle.

Several cuts are desirable for roasting. The loin, fresh ham and shoulder are the meatiest. The ham roast in particular makes a dish suitable to serve at a festive occasion of some sort in place of fowl.

Apples are traditional with pork, but cranberries or tart plums are equally good.

When serving a dinner with pork, be careful not to serve other foods rich in fats. Pan-fried vegetables in particular should be avoided.

Pork is not roasted like most other meats. Instead of putting

PARATHYROID GLAND IS VITAL TO GOOD PHYSICAL CONDITION

BY DR. MORRIS FISHBEN

Editor Journal of the American Medical Association and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine

Situated beside the thyroid gland with which most people are acquainted, lie two soft, reddish bodies each about the size of a large bean which are known as the parathyroid glands.

When these glands are removed from a person's body, he suffers from a condition called tetany, which includes spasmodic movements, loss of weight, pain and tingling in the hands and feet, cramping of the extremities and similar symptoms. The hair may fall out and the nails may change, there is a thinning of the skin and sweating.

In all of these patients the amount of calcium in the blood is less than normal, as is true also in the brain. The amount of lime poured out of the body is increased. Furthermore, there are disturbances of the breathing rate. Obviously the removal of these little glands is a serious matter and physicians who remove the thyroid gland for goiter are very careful not to interfere with the parathyroid glands.

Fortunately for those who may suffer with tetany because of difficulties with the parathyroids or because of removal of these glands, modern science has developed a method of treatment which seems to be efficient. The physiologic chemist Collip, who aided Banting in the discovery of insulin, has also isolated an active substance from the parathyroid glands.

When this substance is put into the body, the amount of calcium in the blood increases and the symptoms of tetany improve.

It is a hot oven for the first few minutes of roasting, it is put into the oven at the temperature that is to be maintained through the entire roasting period. A temperature of 350 to 375 degrees F. or a "moderate" oven insures a well done, tender roast. Thirty minutes for each pound of meat with an additional 15 minutes should be calculated as the length of time required to roast pork.

Always put a pork roast on a trivet to keep it out of the fat which drips from the meat to the bottom of the pan.

Either a covered or an uncovered roaster can be used with good results.

About New York

By RICHARD MASSOCK.

New York—The signs of autumn are unmistakable.

Even if there weren't football games and chrysanthemums, the florists' windows still would glow with branches of russet leaves, sprigs of bayberry and red bittersweet.

Such seasonal signs are, of course, imported into city where nature hasn't much chance to work. The 'mums come from California, the leaves and berries from New Jersey, New England and other nearby sections.

Perhaps the surest native evidence of fall is on the Hudson. Just now the Sundays are far from meandering for the hikers strung along the highways of the Palisades, or for the couples who promenade the slopes along Riverside drive, on the Manhattan side.

There the sunset, a long band of purple at the bottom, is reflected in the river. It's no mean sight and the nature-hungry folk are duly impressed.

Against this sky, at Seventy-Ninth street, are the silhouettes of sail masts, two sets of them. One set belong to the yacht of Count Felix von Luckner, the other to a boat called the Buccaneer, tied alongside the sea raider's craft.

The Buccaneer once had a pretty swell future, but it proved a failure. A five-masted barkentine, it was fitted up to be the flagship of a fleet of sea-going club houses.

That was in 1926. Vincent Richards, the tennis player, was the first president of the club. Oswald Hering, an architect, was last. For two years later the club was dissolved, its liabilities listed at $30,000 and assets at $5,000, including $2,000 for the ship.

This boat, its stern covered with pointed pirates and a large skull-and-crossbones design, now is in the custody of the United States marshal under receivership.

Meanwhile it serves as playground for the youthful pirates of upper Manhattan, impressed by its romantic title, although the ship was built only 11 years ago at Beaumont, Tex., and originally was named "City of Beaumont."

Painters, too, are attracted to it. The watchman says it has been sketched more than a hundred times by art students. The outside is intact, but the kids have completely wrecked the interior.

They first took it as a prize several months ago, when they clambered up the side and chased a former watchman off with stones. They didn't even give him a chance to walk the plank.

Costly Parking. The barkentine's disposition depends on a federal court order. The City of New York is interested however. It is said to have a bill for dockage for some two years and the total is mounting at the rate of $21 a day. If the city took over the ship, which it can't, it still would be a loser.

It also costs Count von Luckner $24 a day, presumably, to keep his four-masted home tied to the next pier, but the kids have decided to wait until another nest-egg can be hatched.

"Marry" England. On the subject of marriage—a pleasant subject upon which to write as there is much to quote—dear old England is not so merry over the way her 30-year-old daughters are picking off young boys for husbands.

Checking up on the 30-year-olds, the London Daily Herald notes that last year 21 of them married youths of 20, while one went the rest better and married a youngster of 17, and it carried a woman of 33 wedded a boy of 19. And once they went into the matter, they found more grief—a woman of 57 married a man of 24, one

YOUR CHILDREN

by Olive Roberts Barton

© 1928 by NEA Service, Inc.

Someone asked me recently why I was always trying to excuse the children. "Well, I'm not trying to excuse them any more than you grown-ups expect other people to excuse us," I answered.

We all know we do wrong but what are our brains trying to put over on our consciences? Some may get the results that parents want temporarily, but let us ask ourselves if it is real improvement or just rearsuring. Deep down underneath aren't the same motives there? Won't they crop out some time?

Self-Discipline Is Best. We must have discipline but more of the type of self control rather than bowing to the will of parents because they are bigger people.

This idea of discipline is an important point. The will to obey to do right, to abide by law should come from within rather than without. It is the only worthwhile obedience.

Children think. We've got to get over the idea that they can't think as well as we can. We may control their actions by punishment, but we can't control their thoughts and feelings. If we weren't bigger we wouldn't punish them, that is physically.

We shouldn't cause chronic resentment in them. That is very bad. The thing to do is to try to get them to see things as we see them—to do right because it is right, not because they are afraid to do wrong. And when they do wrong, to try to understand their reason and go after that. Getting under things—there's the point.

I recognize the fact that we must have a dead line and rules are rules. Indeed it's the first thing I urge in habit training. But those other things that come up daily! Can't we try to see the children's side?

Essentials of Living. Certain fundamental rules of right must be drilled into children from their earliest months of course. They should learn honest, truth, kindness, good habits and other things from their earliest days. And if life were only learning instead of living we could let it go at that. But alas when the experimental stage begins and the children turn Columbus on the vast unexplored main of life, rules make a mighty poor anchor. They just won't hold sometimes. And do we want them to?

A thousand reasons govern behavior. That is why I urge parents to try to get at the reasons if the behavior is not just what it should be. What good to punish a child for a certain act if the rea-

The WOMAN'S DAY

Now that the situation of the stock market has calmed down a little and the bank book, though deadlocked, is at least balanced, one can look about and see what really happened.

And we find that the slump in stocks was reflected by a slump in the matrimonial market. Comparing the number of marriage licenses issued this year with last, the New York City Hall found that stock was down 85 points—that is, 2954 licenses were issued during this October as compared to 3038 last year.

Here is another evidence of the power of Wall Street! It can command even Romance.

Certainly the last week in October was not conducive to added responsibilities and there is no way of checking up on just how many young people, who were playing the market with the idea of getting money for a home, decided to wait until another nest-egg can be hatched.

On the subject of marriage—a pleasant subject upon which to write as there is much to quote—dear old England is not so merry over the way her 30-year-old daughters are picking off young boys for husbands.

Checking up on the 30-year-olds, the London Daily Herald notes that last year 21 of them married youths of 20, while one went the rest better and married a youngster of 17, and it carried a woman of 33 wedded a boy of 19. And once they went into the matter, they found more grief—a woman of 57 married a man of 24, one of 63 married one 29, and that one married a man of 34.

Then it appears that the older the women grew, the more the desire for youth manifested itself. I quote:

"Woman of 70 and upwards married men of 35, 37, 40, 44 and 48."

However, when all the horrible facts were collected, and the averages made it was found that the greatest number of women—307,064—married at the age of 23. And the statisticians felt better.

10 Intersectional Games Scheduled For Saturday

Harvard Treks to Michigan; Army Plays at Illinois; W. Virginia vs. Fordham Today.

BY HERBERT W. BARKER

New York, Nov. 5.—(AP)—Ten intersectional games mark the east's football card on Saturday but only four of them can be classed as of any importance to others than the combatants. The two most important contests will be played in the Midwest where Army meets Illinois and Harvard plays Michigan. In the east West Virginia, which plays Fordham today, takes on Detroit and N. Y. U. attempts to check Georgia's Bull Dogs. All these battles should be close. Army will be primed for the Illinois team, whose hopes of a third Big Ten title went aglimmering last week against Northwestern. Michigan in the midst of a bad season may find Harvard too tough, but the Crimson will know it has been in a fight. Georgia appears to pack too much power for N. Y. U. which has been absorbing beatings with great frequency. West Virginia may take too much pounding in the Fordham game to withstand the charges of Lloyd Bread and other Detroit stars on Saturday.

The other intersectional games will find Maryland facing Yale; Western Reserve playing Cornell and Manhattan traveling south to meet Oglethorpe.

Maryland best Yale 6-0 last season but the odds are all against the southerners duplicating the feat.

Sharing the spotlight with the major intersectional contests will be such purely domestic meetings as Pittsburgh-W. & J. Colgate and Columbia-Penn State and Penna.; Boston College and Fordham; Dartmouth and Brown; Navy and Georgetown and Lafayette and Rutgers.

The little three series is rumored in the Williams-Wesleyan meeting with Williams strongly favored. Amherst with a strong team that has bowed only to Princeton expects to turn back Tufts. Princeton with only one victory to show for its season, will be expected to add another at Lehigh's expense and Holy Cross and Syracuse anticipate little trouble from Boston University and Niagara respectively.

FLAHIVE BETTER BOXER THAN DAY

But New Haven Boy Is Harder Hitter and More Willing Mixer; Meet Thursday

The indoor boxing season will get under way in Hartford Thursday night when George Day and New Haven meets Mickey Flahive of Hartford in the star bout of ten rounds. Flahive, who came to Hartford more than a year ago from Atlanta, Georgia, where he has had a great success in campaigning in Connecticut and Massachusetts rings; he lost his first bout in the north, but has not been defeated since that battle and has run up a string of thirteen consecutive victories. He has met a lightweight of the caliber of Day so that Thursday night's engagement shapes as his hardest test.

Neither has Flahive ever fought a boy of the type of the New Haven veteran—a slashing, aggressive chap who loves to fight. Flahive is unquestionably a better boxer than Day, but it remains to be shown that he can hold his own against a whirlwind attack of the kind Day, win or lose, invariably launches against an opponent. Flahive is working hard for this bout; he hits the road every morning and then in the afternoon goes ten rounds in the St. Nicholas gym.

If Mickey beats Day, he will be in line for bouts with lightweights of ability and, it is expected, will meet Bobby Mays for the state lightweight championship.

Matchmaker Ed Hurley has arranged an attractive undercard. Frankie Marchese of New York battles Jimmy Scully of Boston in the eight-round semi-final. Then there is an "intermediate bout," in which Johnny Kop of Norwich takes on Joe Americo of New York, a six rounder. And two opening bouts of four rounds each.

Bat Battalino, who drew big crowds to the Foot Guard armory last winter, is out of the local picture now, but Hurley has several attractive bouts in view and looks for an indoor season as successful as that of 1928-29.

GENERAL'S CONDITION

Baltimore, Md., Nov. 5.—(AP)—The condition of General Horacio Vasquez, president of the Dominican Republic, was reported "about the same" today at Johns Hopkins hospital, to which he came from Santo Domingo for treatment for a kidney trouble. He passed a very good night, the hospital report added.

DID YOU KNOW THAT—

A writer recently asked Knute Rockne about his golf game and Knute replied that he "looked like the devil in knickers." . . . Nebraska and Pitt had a lot of conversation during their game last year and this year. Ty Cobb is a millionaire or near it. . . . Local Sport Chatter

Many college teams have abandoned the huddle system but we note that the old grads still are working it pretty well under the grandstand.

Dartmouth and other college teams may make fumbles but there is no record of any athlete dropping his knife and fork at the dinner table. Breakfast and supper are no exception either. By the way we have something of a perfect score record ourselves for hitting on all six at a banquet, so the boys say.

Feeling a bit poetic, a south end fan writes in saying: "Bet the family plate, my dearies On the Cubs to top the series."

If you want to see a good football game next Saturday it will pay you to take a jaunt up to Storrs to see Connecticut Aggies and New Hampshire battle. Last year the result was a scoreless tie.

Evidently we aren't alone in our enjoyment in having a bit of fun at the expense of Jack Dwyer, coach of the Majors. The "disease" has spread to his own home. The other day Mrs. Dwyer took their little daughter, Dorothy, to Hartford and bought her a green dress, green stockings and green hat. As if Jack won't see enough green when his team meets the Cubs, Jack's only remark was, "It's a wonder they didn't buy her a pair of green shoes too." Incidentally, the Cubs wear green shoes too.

In a letter received a few days ago, "Dodger" Dowd has the following to say about the fight that was scheduled to take place between Al Dowd and Bill Chimpinny of North Adams at Pittsfield which was postponed because of a hand injury to the local boxer:

I went over to Pittsfield the other night thinking that was to see Al Dowd in action but nothing doing. The crowd sure did raise hell when they found out that he was not fighting. The place was packed. The feller that Dowd was to fight was very good and I think that Al would have had his hands full. A feller from Boston substituted for Al Dowd and was knocked out in the 7th round.

Polo is a popular sport at Ohio State. The school has three regular fields and 90 horses at its disposal this year. Last year 40 men were candidates.

Columbia University, crushed by Dartmouth to the extent of a 43 to 0 score, didn't feel so bad after the Big Green had walloped Harvard 24 to 7.

Notre Dame's football squad of this year, 80 players, was drawn from 21 states. Indiana, seat of the school, supplied only two members.

Alan J. Gould

Among the baseball post-mortems you can hear it remarked that the American league's amazing streak of world's series triumph is due in a measure to the "solid front" of the junior circuit as contrasted with a lack of unified National League effort.

In other words, American leaguers join hands, sinking pennant-race differences in the common cause, when it comes to the big championship, while the National league contender plays a lone hand, so to speak.

A National league man remarked recently to me: "Why, the Americans have what amounts to a world's series board of strategy. Their best minds get together to help the club that is in the series. It is a matter of league pride to leave nothing undone to aid the contending club."

"Unfortunately, we have no such situation. Nor is the spirit such that it apparently would be welcomed. The manager of a recent National league contender in the world's series, after apparently making some mistakes in playing against the Yankees, was offered some advice from John McGraw and Rogers Hornsby, two men qualified to speak on the subject. The offer was abruptly rejected and the club lost four straight."

"In advance of another world's series, the manager of a National league club permitted his by-line to appear over a story in which he predicted an American league victory. It had a discouraging effect. No American league manager would have shown such questionable loyalty."

"Take the matter of propaganda," our National league observer went on. "A year ago we heard a lot about the Yankee 'cripples' before the series with St. Louis. The idea got around that the Cardinals needed to do was to go out on the field and push Babe Ruth and the rest of them over. The Cards themselves fell for it and you know what happened."

"It may have seemed like a little thing, but it was good American league psychology when Connie Mack declined an invitation for the Athletics to practice on Wrigley Field before the series started. It was as much as to say 'We don't need to do it.'"

There is nothing like a good, hearty victory to check the strident war whoops for a football coach's scalp. Since Cornell wiped up Princeton for the first time in over a score of years the squawks over the regime of Gil Doble in the picturesque domain above Cayuga's waters have dwindled to the faintest kind of a whisper.

There need be no rush to compare the Big Red product of 1929 with the smashing machines of the Kaw-Pfann era. Columbia, Dartmouth and Pennsylvania loom ahead to furnish additional tests, but apparently Cornell is about ready to emerge from its long slumber, while also ranking among the few major colleges included in the Carnegie report's "purists."

Old Time Fighters Bid Good-Bye To Pal

Milwaukee, Nov. 5.—(AP)—Many state Les Darcy, and returned to the old time fighters and ring fans from all over the middle west went to Oshkosh, Wis., today to attend funeral services for Eddie McGoorty, one of the greatest middleweights in the history of boxing. McGoorty died Saturday night after a long illness. Although never recognized as middleweight champion, McGoorty fought and defeated almost every man in that division, when it was crowded with great fighters. A good boxer and a great slugger, McGoorty defeated Jack Dillon, Jimmy Chabby, Hugo Kelly, Frank Klaus, Gus Christie, Jay Bronson, George Chip and Mike and Jack "Twin" Sullivan. The title was in dispute during McGoorty's time, but his claim to the crown was as imposing as that of any man in the division. After campaigning in this country, he toured the world, winning the middleweight and heavyweight championships of Australia. He later dropped both titles to the

EXCESS POUNDAGE FATAL TO MANDELL

Jimmy McLarnin Hands Him First Decision Setback of His Career at Chicago

Chicago, Nov. 5.—(AP)—Jimmy McLarnin may not become the next world welterweight champ but he has accomplished something that the present holder of the title, Jackie Fields found a too difficult task.

McLarnin enhanced his standing as the foremost contender for the welterweight crown last night at the Chicago Stadium where he gave Sammy Mandell, ruler of the world lightweights, a thorough beating, winning a decision at the end of ten rounds.

Fields attempted to conquer the Rockford sheik about a year ago and received a fine boxing lesson from Mandell.

Last night was the first decision Mandell has ever lost, and it was his first real defeat since he was knocked out by Joey Sanger in 1925 when he was just getting started as a major performer.

Mandell gave away six pounds to McLarnin, who weighed 148 1/2 and the handicap was too great. McLarnin was credited with six rounds while Mandell who entered the ring the favorite was given but two.

RUBY BRADLEY BEATS PETERS; HUAT WINS OUT

Belgian Champ Surprises With Victory Over Izzy Schwartz; Wolgast, Black Bill Win.

New York, Nov. 5.—(AP)—The elimination tournament by which the management of Madison Square Garden hopes to produce a general recognized holder of the vacant flyweight title has passed its first round with only one surprise. Eugene Huat, champion of Belgium administered a solid beating to Izzy Schwartz, New York's entry. Willie Davies of Charleroi, Pa., who had been picked as the other probable finalist, succumbed to the punches of his old rival, Black Bill of Cuba.

The night's two other victors were Midget Wolgast of Philadelphia and Ruby Bradley of Holyoke, Mass., negro. Wolgast eliminated Johnny McCoy of Buffalo and Bradley defeated Ernie Peters of Chicago. In both bouts the decision was unpopular with the fans. The four winners will be matched later in a pair of semi-final bouts and the survivors of these clashes are to meet in a 15-round final. The New York State Athletic Commission has promised the ultimate victor recognition as flyweight.

Chicago.—Jimmy McLarnin, Vancouver outpouted Sammy Mandell, Rockford, Ill., ten (lightweight title not involved).

New York.—Eugene Huat, Belgium outpouted Izzy Schwartz, New York, ten; Midget Wolgast, Philadelphia, outpouted Johnny McCoy, Buffalo, ten; Ruby Bradley, Holyoke, Mass., outpouted Ernie Peters, Chicago, ten; Black Bill Cuban, outpouted Willie Davies, Charleroi, Pa., ten.

Kansas City.—Jackie Fields, Los Angeles, knocked out "Dummy" Mahan, San Francisco, 2.

Philadelphia.—Eruc Flower, New Rochelle outpouted Pinky Kauffman, Hartford, Conn., ten.

Cumberland.—Harold Searney, Youngstown, Ohio, outpouted Joe Proctor, Washington, 8.

San Francisco.—Joe Glick, Brooklyn outpouted Frankie Stetson, San Francisco, ten.

New Castle, Pa.—Johnny Burns, Chicago, outpouted Henry Firpo, Cleveland, 8.

Pittsburgh, Pa.—Roger Bernard, Flint, Mich., outpouted Phil Goldstein, Pittsburgh, ten.

Salem, Mass.—Al Mello, Lowell, Mass., knocked out Frankie Balde, Lynn, five.

Rochester, N. Y.—Danny Cooney, Trenton, N. J. and Joe Trippie, Rochester, drew ten.

Trenton, N. J.—Jimmy Francis, Jersey City, knocked out Manus Hartman, Trenton, four.

Jersey City, N. J.—Harry Carlton, Jersey City, knocked out Johnny Lafranz, West New York, N. J., two.

Indiana may not win many conference titles but it is more than a trial horse in Big Ten. The Hoosiers eliminated Minnesota from the 1927 race by holding the Gophers to a tie and repeated the trick against Ohio State this year.

Several Upsets Feature Last Evening's Matches

Murphy's Five Scalps Charter Oaks; Pirates and Herald Spring Surprises; Majors Roll Best Scores and Keep in Second Place.

The Night Hawks continued their mad race toward a possible pennant in the Herald Bowling League last night when they sprung a big surprise in winning all four points from the strong Charter Oaks at Joe Farr's alleys. The complete sweep pushed Freddie Murphy's crew still farther away from the rest of the pack except the Majors who kept fairly close at their heels with a four-point victory over the British-Americans.

The Night Hawks-Charter Oaks match had been ballyhooed as a possible scalping party for the Charter Oaks but instead they were forced to be on the receiving end of this ceremony even though the match was on their own alleys. The Night Hawks hit the splendid team total of 1,647. "Sparky" Saldella was high man with 346 and Murphy a close second.

Many Upsets.

Last night was crammed with upsets. Next in importance came the great victory of Ernie Sherman's Pirates over the Manchester Construction to the extent of three out of four points. It was the first time the Pirates had won a single game in ten starts. The Pirates rolled 239 and averaged all four points. The third game ended a tie thanks to a strike, space and ten on the latter mark by the dependable Augie Borowski in the last two boxes. In the roll-off the Construction won by one pin.

Another surprise was the three point victory the Herald team registered over the Centers. The winners had a team total of 1,522

UNIQUE BOWLING MATCH AT JOE FARR'S TONIGHT.

Fredie, the Chinese laundryman from Oak street, will roll a special ten game bowling match against Romolo Fagan tonight at Joe Farr's Charter Oak alleys starting at 10 o'clock. The match will be for total pinfall. Much interest has been aroused over this match and a good sized gallery is anticipated.

against an even 1,500. The star for the Herald was "Red" Cervin. He hit 325. Bill Fortin clipped 124 in his first game only to drop to 87 in the second but his three string was second highest.

The West Sides rolled the splendid total of 1,698 to take three points from the Shell Gas and lost the third game by only four pins when the gasoline tenders hit 548. Joe Canade, Ray Sad and Petke all hit over 350. The best score of the evening, however, were rolled by the second-place Majors who hit 1,706 against the British-American to take four points. The losers rolled good scores but the boys from God's Country were too strong for them. The Majors rolled 603 in the second game. O'Right and Conran each topped 352 for a three string but Wilson had 371.

BANCROFT SIGNS AS GIANT COACH

New York, Nov. 5.—(AP)—Dave Bancroft, who was released unconditionally recently by the Brooklyn club, signed a one-year contract with the New York Giants as coach and assistant manager yesterday.

Bancroft, former star shortstop and captain of the Giants, thus returns to the New York club after an absence of six years. "Banny" was traded to Boston by John McGraw in November, 1913, and appointed manager of the Braves in 1924. He served in this capacity until two years ago when he was given his unconditional release and signed by Brooklyn as a player, although he played 104 games and batted .277 for Brooklyn during the past season. Wilbert Robinson let him go believing him near the end of his active playing career. Bancroft will fill a gap in the Giant ranks, as coach as McGraw recently announced release of two of his aides, Ray Schalk and Bert Niehoff.

SHIRES TURNS BOX FIGHTER

A match for talkative Jack Sharkey any day in the week is Mr. Arthur "The Great" Shires, Chicago White Sox slugger, first baseman and windiest of the Windy City players who is in training prior to launching upon a heavyweight fighting career. Fired by two bare-knuckle victories over Lena Blackburne and a lop-sided decision over Lou Barbour, Shires modestly declares he'll be a wow in the heavyweight ranks. Jack Kearns, the ring's dapper doctor, has taken the Sox bad boy under his managerial wing and has scheduled several bouts for him, it is said. Appearance of the "spitometer" in the corner of the ring leads one to believe that Arthur will retain chewing tobacco in his training diet.

HURTLING SWORD HITS DEBUTANTE

Chicago, Nov. 5.—(AP.)—A sword jostled from the hand of an actor who fell, was revealed today as the weapon which caused serious injury of Miss Jean Stevens, a debutante of last season. The point of the sword penetrated just above the heart.

Neither the management of the Goodman theater where the accident occurred nor Miss Stevens would reveal the name of the actor.

Miss Stevens was watching a rehearsal from the front row. At the close of a Shakespearean sketch the actor jumped from the stage. He slipped and fell into the orchestra pit, the sword hurled against Miss Stevens. The point had been blunted for stage use, and this probably saved the young woman's life.

MEXICAN GOVERNOR, THREE OTHERS, KILLED

Toluca, Mexico, Nov. 5.—(AP.)—The governor of the State of Aguascalientes and three other men were dead here, victims of the crash of the Mexico City-Juarez mail plane early yesterday.

The four men were Manuel Carpio, governor of the State of Aguascalientes; Senior De Valera, his secretary; John Carmichael, pilot of the plane and Robert G. Lowry, 40, traffic supt. of the airline, formerly of Fort Worth, Tex.

The plane was destroyed. Position of the bodies indicated that the four men died instantly.

Queer Twists In Day's News

Taiyuan, Shansi, China—General Feng Yu-Hsiang, "the Christian general," is living in a house on the top of a hill surrounded by an eight-foot mud wall. He wears a coolie costume and eats coolie food.

Milwaukee—Mrs. Rebecca Finkler must pay her husband $10 a week alimony. He testified that she nagged till he placed all his property in her name. He is seeking a divorce.

New York—If and when he gets married, Joseph McFarland will receive $5,000 from the estate of his father. Meanwhile the will directs the money be held in trust by other children.

Pueblo, Colo.—Howard Royston, bank bandit condemned to death, thinks a surgeon has saved his neck for the state. That's what he told the doctor when operated on for an abscess.

Nankia, Ont.—Andrew Zvytski, 22, trapper, is right proud of his dog. Andrew shot himself accidentally. He fastened a note to the dog's collar and told him to go to the nearest camp. The dog swam a river and found aid.

CONSTITUTION DEBATE IN SPAIN POSTPONED

Madrid, Nov. 5.—(AP.)—Postponement of discussion on the proposed new constitution is causing much interest in political circles here, a decree having been announced last night stating that the session of the National Assembly scheduled for November, will not be held until January.

The decree made no reference to the new constitution, but the effect of the postponement is to put consideration of it by the Assembly further into the future.

Rivera to Continue
Political circles also were interested in a speech made by Premier Rivera de Rivera, saying his dictatorship would continue indefinitely. The premier said hitherto at various times, he had fixed dates for the termination of his rule, but he would now fix no more dates. "We will continue without time limit until we can give Spain a regime of positive actual rights," he said.

The speech was construed in political quarters as plainly throwing the gauntlet down to opponents.

SENSE and NONSENSE

FLAPPER FANNY SAYS:

King of the Highway. "My father's mayor," bragged a small boy, "and when he rides in a parade the motor cops go ahead and he doesn't have to pay any attention to any traffic rules."

The old buggy had its advantages. Ownership of a nice buggy didn't make you proud to wash it yourself.

Don't try to beat the train to the rail road crossing. It is all right if you win, but no good if the race results in a tie.

Iowa Paper: "Firemen were called to North Tenth street near Main this morning, where an auto had caught fire from a crossed wife in the car."

Don't live so that when you get into a taxi the driver will leave the same vacant sign up.

Men wonder why the fool moth insists upon flying into the flame and then they go and try to beat the engine at the crossing.

Motto for tourists: See America fast.

With canines riding around in automobiles, a dog's life isn't what it used to be.

Nowadays it seems that unless your rooster is bright red or yellow the flappers think you're in mourning.

Too many wild college joyriders end in the "crash and carry" plan.

You will remember that electric vibrating machines didn't appear until the old model T flivver went out.

The Manchester man and his motor car: Decides that it is necessary to go two blocks down the street on a business matter. Too far to walk. Grabs his hat and opens car door. Finds he has left key in the office. Now getting hot. Takes off hat. Wops brow.

getting car key out of his pocket after going to office for it. Finds he cannot get car key out of pocket while eating peanuts. Decides to eat peanuts. It is getting too hot and stuffy in car. Starts to lower car window. Finds it already down. Finds key, inserts it and steps on starter. Won't turn over. Finds he has left car in gear. Pursues his lips and says something that might sound raw if you could hear it. Swings car out with a quick lurch, comes dangerously near hitting another car. Comes back in ten minutes and finds no parking place. Says something more.

Don't fear a second-hand car. There's nothing wrong with it except the fact that the neighbors got a new one.

If we all could do as we pleased, who would fix the car?

"I just didn't get the brakes," said the flivver as it rolled down the hill and draped itself around a telephone pole.

They used to gas on the steps; now they step on the gas.

The Manchester lad with the new locomotive whistle on his car apparently believes he is a fast male.

A man knows he's a sucker when he trades in his old car. If he doesn't, why does he lie about the price he got?

The largest spiders in the world are found in New Guinea, and their web is so strong that they are used as fishing nets.

THE TINIES

(READ THE STORY, THEN COLOR THE PICTURE)

The Tinies still kept out of sight. They felt that they wouldn't be all right if Mister Farmer went away and lugged his barn along. There wasn't any sense, they thought, of walking out and being caught. The farmer still looked rather mad and they would get in wrong. And so they watched him for a while and then they saw him broadly smile. The barn was on his wagon and he seemed all set to leave. The Tinies heard him yell "Giddap!" and give his horses quite a slap. Then Scouty said, "He's going to leave us now, I do believe." And, sure enough, he drove away. The whole bunch could have yelled hurra, but they were wise and kept real still till he was out of the sight. Then Clowny jumped up in the air and shouted, "Whee! What do we care if old man farmer's good and mad. We're safe and sound all right. Gee, we got out of that right sick. I hope he gets back home real quick, and gets his barn set up all right. Then he will feel real fine. We might have helped him with his task but I was kind of scared to ask him if he'd like assistance. He might spank us. Not for mine!" The bunch then started on their way and Scouty said, "Come, we can play along the wondrous highway till we reach some place that's new. There's no use staying here. I guess. There's nothing. I confess that I would like to find some place where there is heaps to do." All of a sudden Copy cried, "Be quiet, boys, and quickly hide. Jump right behind a tree and then, for goodness sakes, don't peep. Look there and see what I have found. A man is sprawled out on the ground." The Tinies looked and saw the man and he was sound asleep. (The Tinies peek into a dinner bucket in the next story.)

LECTURE SERIES ON DECORATING

Watkins Brothers Announce Tuesday Night Meetings for Important Study.

Watkins Brothers announce a series of important lectures on interior decoration and kindred subjects, to be held in their lecture room beginning Tuesday evening, November 12. Interspersed with the lectures will be some musical recitals by promising vocalists and instrumentalists. The subject for Tuesday evening, November 12, will be "General principles of interior decoration." This lecture will be given by Miss Farady, a well known consultant on interior decoration in New York.

The lecture on November 19 will be by Horace B. Cheney whose subject is "The Romance of Design." Mr. Cheney's book of the same name makes fascinating reading and is an authority on the subject. On December 3, Miss Etta Otto, contralto, a pupil of Archibald Sessions, will give a song recital.

The lecture on December 17 will be the "Story of Rug Weaving." This will be an illustrated lecture by Mr. Wilson of the Bigelow-Hartford Carpet Company who has made an exhaustive study of rug weaving in ancient and modern times. On January 14 Miss Helen Strong of Watkins Brothers interior decoration department will talk on the subject of "The use of color in the Home."

The lecture on the 28th, of January will be a very rare treat indeed, Henry W. Erving, eminent author-
