1,000 ODD FELLOWS HERE NEXT MARCH

Encampments of This District to Convene in Manchester Next Year.

The scene of the second annual meeting of District 11, Independent Order of Odd Fellows, comprising four encampments, will be laid in Manchester on Saturday, March 15, 1930, opening at four o'clock in the afternoon. The attendance at both the afternoon and evening session is expected to run over 1000.

A general committee has already been appointed representing each of the four orders of the district, namely Median Encampment No. 7, of Hartford; G. Fred Barnes Encampment No. 8, of Hartford; E. field Encampment No. 26, of Thompsonville and Shepherd Encampment No. 37, of Manchester. Members who represent the latter on the committee are William Prentice, William Black, Wilbur Loveland, Albert Miller, George Dotchin, August Simeon and the Grand Encampment officers, including Grand Patriarch George A. Braman-of Bridgeport, will be guests of honor. In the afternoon Median and G. Fred Barnes encampments will confer the Golden Rule degree. In the evening the Royal Purple degree will be exemplified, and the committee in charge is making an attempt to get the encampment of Lawrence, Mass., to put on the ceremony.

Following the afternoon meeting an intermission will take place and supper will be served at the Masonic Temple to the visitors from throughout the state.

FIND WILD LIFE IN (YEP) CHICAGO

But Not the Kind You Think; Thirty Species of Wild Animal Life Discovered.

Chicago, Nov. 27.—(AP)—Although the bison and bear have long since retreated before the ever onward march of civilization, there is still plenty of wild life away out west in Chicago.

This is shown in a survey of animal life in the Chicago region by the Chicago Academy of Sciences, partial completion of which was announced today.

Chicago with its loop of towers, its miles of streets—some narrow, crooked and squalid—some wide, beautiful and tree-lined—and its millions of inhabitants is still shown to be the home of many forms of wild life.

30 Species Found

In an area, approximately fifty miles square—from the sand dunes of Indiana to the Waukegan harbor and from Lake Michigan inland to Aurora—some 30 species of wild life have been snared in traps set by the scientists conducting the survey.

Rolent life abounds aplenty; there are field mice, deer mice, shrews and millions of the common house mice. There are endless upheavals of earth from the burrowing of the mole; there are numerous squirrels, raccoons, opossums, rabbits, muskrats, foxes and coyotes; there are even such valuable fur-bearing animals as skunks and mink—and the not-so-valuable weasel.

Yes, the bison, bear, elk, deer and slinking wolves have retreated, but the smaller rear guard of wild life still flanks the enemy—civilization.

NO CAUSE TO WORRY.

San Francisco, Nov. 27.—(AP)—E. H. H. Simmons, president of the New York Stock Exchange, arriving here from Hawaii, said he saw no alarming indication of business failure in the recent Stock Market crash.

"The man who thinks that the United States has anything fundamentally wrong with it is very foolish," Simmons declared. "I am confident there is no cause to worry."

Carrriages To Henry Ford
An old country brougham, property of Col. Francis T. Maxwell of Maxwell Court, North Park street, made by Hooker & Son of New Haven, has been purchased by Henry Ford whose specialty is antiques of all kinds.

William Maxwell of Union street has sold a spider phaeton and another old carriage to Henry Ford. They have been crated and shipped to Dearborn, Mich.

Firemen To Banquet
The annual banquet of the Rockville Fire Department, which is always a big event, will be held at the Rockville House, December 14, at 7:30 o'clock. Arrangements are nearing completion, and those in charge predict that this will be the banner feast in the history of the department. Covers will be laid for a goodly number, including the officers and members of the Rockville Fire Department and a few invited guests. A turkey dinner with all the fixings, will be served by Miss Host A. L. Chapdelaine and Mrs. Chapdelaine, which will be prepared by Chef Arthur Busch.

Elaborate preparations are being made for the after-dinner program. There will be speeches and an entertainment given by professional talent, secured through the booking agency of John H. Lost of this city.

The committee in charge of the annual banquet of the department consists of Chief George B. Milne, Assistant Chief, William Conroy, Captain Fred Ertel, Captain Lester Bartlett, William C. Pfunder and Ernest Reudgen.

Elks Memorial Program
Rockville Lodge, No. 1359, B. P. O. Elks will hold its regular meeting this evening at the Elks' Home on Prospect street. The regular meeting was scheduled for Thursday evening, Nov. 28, but this being Thanksgiving night, by special dispensation from District Deputy Edward E. Cox the meeting was changed. Exalted Ruler Joseph Lavitt will preside. There will be belting on candidates and a report of the applications committee and other routine business. Members are requested to attend.

Holiday Hours
Holiday hours will be observed at the local Post Office on Thursday, November 28, Thanksgiving Day. The various windows will be open from 8 to 10 a. m. only and the morning and evening mail dispatched as usual. There will be no delivery by rural or city carriers.

Arrangements are being completed for the Junior Prom of the Rockville High School, which will be held on Friday evening, Dec. 13, in the Sykes Auditorium. A play will be presented, followed by dancing in the Sykes Gymnasium. It promises to be a most delightful social event and is sure to be largely attended.

Thanksgiving Day in Rockville
Thanksgiving will be observed in Rockville, much the same as in previous years. Industry and business will suspend in honor of the day. There will be the usual religious services and numerous family reunions. The Rockville mills will close down for the day and most of the stores will be closed all day, some remaining open until noon. National and Savings Banks

Local Elks To Meet
Rockville Lodge, No. 1359, B. P. O. Elks will hold its regular meeting this evening at the Elks' Home on Prospect street. The regular meeting was scheduled for Thursday evening, Nov. 28, but this being Thanksgiving night, by special dispensation from District Deputy Edward E. Cox the meeting was changed. Exalted Ruler Joseph Lavitt will preside. There will be belting on candidates and a report of the applications committee and other routine business. Members are requested to attend.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Holbrook of Sound Beach, Edward Parsons, Mrs. Charles Smith and Mr. and Mrs. Emerson Smith of Providence, R. I., will enjoy Thanksgiving Day as the guests of Col. and Mrs. F. T. Maxwell of Maxwell Court.

Miss Mildred Kabrick who was injured in an automobile accident several weeks ago, had returned from the Hartford Hospital. She is able to be about the house with the aid of crutches.

Mr. and Mrs. P. H. Jaquith and son, Howard, of Lynnbrook, L. J., have returned home after several will be closed all day, as will the schools and Public Library. The town and City offices will be closed as will also the barber shops.

A Union Thanksgiving service will be held at Union Congregational Church in which the Methodist, Episcopal, Baptist, and Toland Federated Churches will take part. The First Evangelical Church will hold a service at 10 a. m. and the Trinity Lutheran Church will hold two services, one at 10 a. m. and the other at 11 o'clock.

There will be a shoot at the local Fish & Game Traps and a special holiday bill at the Palace theater.

Manchester-Rockville Bowling
The Manchester and Rockville Fire Departments have made plans to hold two bowling matches. On December 4 the Manchester boys will come to Rockville and the first match will be rolled off at the local alleys on Prospect street. On the evening of December 21, Rockville fire fighters will motor to Manchester. These matches are sure to be very interesting.

Funeral of Edwin Woodford
The funeral of Edwin H. Woodford was largely attended from the chapel of Union Congregational Church on Tuesday afternoon at 1 o'clock. There were many beautiful floral tributes, including several from former associates at the White, Corbin & Co., where he was superintendent for many years. Rev. George S. Brookes, pastor of Union Congregational Church officiated at very impressive services. Interment took place in the family plot in the Farmington cemetery, Farmington. The bearers were Percy Cooley, Frederick Chapman, Charles Leonard, E. E. Sikes, Robert E. Hyde and Claude Bilson.

Thick Fog Blanket
Paralyzes Traffic
Eureka, Cal., Nov. 27.—(AP)—Residents of Eureka today were hoping for relief from darkness which has paralyzed traffic for ten days.

The thickest blanket of fog in the memory of the oldest inhabitant, mixed with dense smoke from forest fires in this vicinity, has rendered lighting so ineffective that automobiles have been abandoned for night use. Tourists rely upon guides to help them about the city and taxicabs have been refusing to answer calls at night.

The weather bureau is unable to predict when the blanket will lift. Rain is needed to dissipate the fog and smoke and there is no sign of it thus far.

NO HERALD TOMORROW
There will be no issue of The Herald Tomorrow, Thanksgiving Day.

DRY AGENTS SNAP
TRAP ON RUNNERS
Chicago, Nov. 27.—(AP)—Federal indictment of Paul Morton revealed today that the government finally had decided to snap the trap baited months ago for leaders of an elaborate and extensive liquor syndicate.

There were intimations too that in the indictment of Morton and fourteen others the government had scraped close to the background of the Moran gang massacre of last Valentine's day and also had touched the web of law violation uncovered in the recent north Indiana liquor investigation.

The indictment of Morton, brother of the late "Nails" Morton, who was one of the few Chicago gangsters to die a natural death, was returned several weeks ago, but was kept secret, with the others, until yesterday.

The arrests brought disclosure of patient work by government dry agents working under Alexander G. Jamie, chief deputy of a special prohibition unit. For months, two of Jamie's undercover agents accompanied truck load after truck load of Canadian ale into the Chicago area, driving the trucks at times and always accepted as members of the alleged syndicate.

NEW PAROLE LAW

How a Family Doctor made Millions of Friends

FIFTEEN years after his graduation, Dr. Caldwell became one of the best-known members of his profession. A single prescription made him famous. And for forty years it has continued to make friends.

As fast as people could tell others about the marvelous way this prescription corrects constipation and relieves other troubles caused by sluggish bowels, demand for it spread until Dr. Caldwell was forced to have it filled in quantities; bottled and distributed through drug stores.

Today, Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, as it is called, is the world's most popular laxative. Millions of people would never think of using anything else when they're headachy, bilious, feverish, or weak; when breath is bad, tongue is coated or they are suffering from nausea, from gas, or lack of appetite, etc.

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin as you buy it from your drug store is made in accordance with the original formula from only herbs and other pure ingredients. Its action is thorough in the most obstinate cases; gently effective for women and children. Above all, it represents a doctor's choice of what is safe for the bowels.

WEDNESDAY, NOV. 27, 1929

picture matinee and dancing parties. It remains to a considerable extent a day of grateful review.

To list the benefactors for which the people of a nation or a state have occasion to render thanks is the job of a President or a Governor—and since the proclamations of such officials have to be written not only with a view to their impressiveness and their literary quality but with considerable consideration for their political implications, it is one that we don't envy them. From our own point of view it is a quite impossible one, since among a hundred million people there are exactly one hundred million combinations of circumstances occurring from one Thanksgiving day to the next, and so a certain proportion of individuals who may be pardoned for feeling that during that year they have been out of luck. Thanksgiving day, as a set festival of gratitude, must rest its case on the presumption that for the majority of us the good fortune of the twelve months has well outweighed the misfortune.

On that basis the Thanksgiving day of 1929 is well justified by two facts alone. The year has witnessed, just recently, the end of the most dangerous period it has encountered since the peak of the German aggression was halted at Chateau Thierry. The recent collapse of the speculative furor that was taking possession of the nation and poisoning the tide of its real prosperity was the greatest single blessing that has come to America since the World War. Coupled with that is the fact that the nation has at its head a helmsman of extraordinary skill and a genius in the reading of smudgy charts that has almost never been equaled.

Take all the bad and all the good that has befallen this collective people since the last Thanksgiving day, and the Wall Street debacle, so painful to so many individuals, and the presence in the Presidential chair of Herbert Hoover provide reason enough for the holding of a national holiday devoted very sincerely to expressions of thanksgiving. We can let the rest of the blessings go in anywhere, just for extra good measure.

NOTHING DOING!

There has come to this office a communication from the Bureau of Child Welfare of the State of Connecticut, sent, we assume, to all newspapers of the commonwealth, in firm expectation of a cordial reception and willing compliance with its request for co-operation. It will perhaps mildly astonish the Bureau of Child Welfare to discover that there is any well intentioned person or newspaper that feels, about the matter in hand, quite differently from itself.

This newspaper, however, doesn't in the least mind saying that it considers the legislative enactment which it is asked to support to be an outrageous piece of bureaucracy, an impertinent and unjustifiable meddling in matters which are not properly public affairs at all and a shining example of official nosiness which managed to get legal sanction, like a hundred other such activities, only because the Connecticut Legislature does three-fourths of its work beyond the horizon of public scrutiny.

The communication refers to a law enacted last spring which actually makes it a crime for a person to take into his or her home, as a boarder, even one child, unless such a person has submitted to a snooping expedition on the part of the Bureau of Child Welfare and has been granted a license by that body; the only exception being when the child is "placed" by some organization already holding a license from the Bureau. Not only that, but any such person must submit to an annual renewal of the snooping and each year get a fresh license.

With the utmost condescension the law permits a person to receive the child of some other person, temporarily, as a guest, if no payment of expenses is made. Likely enough at the next session an effort will be made to require Bureau supervision of even this proceeding.

The letter to the newspapers requests publishers to keep tabs on their advertising columns, watching out for advertisements inserted by persons who wish to take children to board; to notify one of the several offices of the Child Welfare Bureau, so that the advertiser may be snooped as to whether or not he or she has a license; and to decline to insert the advertisement if the advertiser isn't licensed.

We shall undertake to do nothing of the kind. We are completely fed up with this everlasting effort to regulate every activity of our civilization by legislative enactments which, in the great majority of instances, are the creation either of vain cranks or people looking for soft jobs at the public expense. Until the Connecticut Legislature can be shaken up into a realization of the necessity of repealing a lot of these regulatory statutes; including this one, let the Child Welfare Bureau attend to its own job and do its own foolish and unnecessary work. If it has any business that is useful and rational and wishes help in it, very well; the Herald will be glad to help. It will have nothing to do with volunteering aid to the enforcement of such an arrogant and in some respects hideous law as the one in question.

THANKSGIVING

Thanksgiving Day, born of the sincere if austere piety of the earliest New Englanders, while it is now celebrated by many Americans in a less completely religious spirit than that of its originators, is still in very great degree an occasion of genuine appreciation of our blessings. There is still something of Thanksgiving day besides football, turkey dinners, moving could have called on the residents of certain blocks and on no one else, it would probably have been an effective and satisfactory method of seal distribution. No such system has seemed to be creatable and the result has been, in previous years, that for a week or more every fall many of the doorbells in town were pushed or pulled a dozen or more times a day, every youngster in the neighborhood eagerly striving to sell seals at every door.

Not unnaturally a great many fairly amiable people, who otherwise would have welcomed the opportunity to contribute a dollar or so to the war against the White Plague, became rather out of patience with the whole Christmas Seal idea.

Now the Educational Club, which conducts the sale of the seals for Manchester as an affiliated body with the State Tuberculosis Commission—reserving a certain established part of the intake for its own indirect fight against tuberculosis through the nourishing of underfed school children—has abandoned the old peddling method and is to engage in a campaign of solicitation exclusively by mail.

For this effort we bespeak the ready support of every citizen who appreciates the importance of the great battle against that terrible enemy of the human race, tuberculosis, the utter necessity of organization and money in the carrying on of that fight and the particular usefulness of that department of the war to which the Educational Club especially devotes its efforts.

If there are any who fail to appreciate the vital character of these things, perhaps they will still be willing to purchase the seals mailed to them out of sheer gratitude for the elimination of the doorbell nuisance.

IN NEW YORK

New York, Nov. 27.—A few notes in the public eye.

That certain Mr. William Shearer, who became an international figure in connection with big navy propaganda, would rather gain recognition as a painter. He may be found at an easel in the Connecticut country place and is well known to scores of anonymous American art students who have encountered him abroad.

And if you don't think that times change, let me inform you that it will be in the conservative "Home Journal" that the story of Emma Goldman is printed. No so many years ago Emma—who is really a brilliant, gentle and motherly soul—was being chased all over the frontiers of the United States by anarchy and what not. And was finally shipped out of the country on the famous "red ship."

One of the finest Broadway plays of the past half dozen seasons is "Berkeley Square." Yet, according to John Balderston, its author, it's been kicking around Broadway offices for five years. It even was spurred by the Theater Guild, which thought it too metaphysical. Finally Balderston, a London newspaper correspondent, sold it to a British producer and when it became an important production there, it finally found its way back to the bright lights belt. Which seems to be the case with most of the better plays—including "Street Scene," which was tossed out by most of the wise men of the big street.

Among those who have been moaning low since the "big crash" on Wall Street are John Gilbert, the cinema headliner, who is said to have lost everything but his make-up, and John McCormack, the husband of Colleen Moore, who, thank heaven, has a wife capable of making a good living.

Carmen Barnes, the little gal whose book, "Schoolgirl," got her into the newspapers and out of an exclusive New York school, has been propositioned by several movie outfits, but gave them all the air because they wanted her to do Clara Bow stuff.

Paul Muni came back to Manhattan the other day wearing half of Hollywood's laurels and sufficiently important to take a suite in a swanky hotel and rate interviews with the leading press writers. But when he limped out of New York, westward bound, not a single critic had "tabbed" him and producers had let him play a small part in a play called "We Americans." Only at the Yiddish Art Theater was he known, and there he wore some such moniker as Munowitz.

If you're hard up for parlor games this winter, you might start a few arguments over William Boltho's selection of great adventures of history. I'll bet not one of a thousand could guess the full list of those selected by Boltho for his book, "Twelve Against the Gods." The headlines, by the way, are Alexander the Great, Columbus, Cagliostro, Casanova, Isadora Duncan, Lola Montez, Napoleon and Woodrow Wilson. Certainly no one would ever have guessed the latter.

By way of comment on American productivity, most of the important things to be seen and heard on Broadway are British, with British players—"Bitter Sweet," "Bird in Hand," "Journey's End," "Berkeley Square" and "Rope End."

WASHINGTON LETTER

By RODNEY DUTCHER
NEA Service Writer

Washington, Nov. 27.—Diplomatic entertainment is likely to be somewhat less lavish this season as a result of what happened to the stock market.

Quite a few of Washington's large colony of ambassadors, ministers, counsellors, charges d'affaires, first secretaries, second secretaries and other attaches were badly bitten. Most of them didn't know the difference between a bull and a bear, but large numbers of them shared the belief of millions of Americans that the market offered a beautiful opportunity for bright people to get rich quick.

Some of them played the companies with which Secretary of the Treasury Mellon and his family were connected. Others saw the boom in civil aeronautics and bought up aircraft company stocks. One diplomat played a particular stock because he knew that an official of the company was friendly with President Hoover.

Most of the more important diplomats go to New York from time to time. There their countries have large industrial or financial contacts and it was not difficult for them to pick up what they considered good market tips. But whereas formerly much of the social gossip here centered on stocks and their prices, the most common topic of conversation among the diplomatic colony today is the question of who was stung and how badly.

For about a year, President Iri-goyen of the Argentine Republic has refrained from sending an ambassador to Washington. No one can be sure just what Iri-goyen's idea is. He is known in South America as the "mystery man." But there have been more evidences of concentrated dislike for the United States in Argentina than in any other South American republic and it has been generally favored that the failure to send another ambassador was an indication of displeasure at the crimp which our new tariff legislation was likely to put in Argentine exports.

fact, every individual would be benefited through a stability of food prices.

Let us hope that some adjustment can be made so that not too many Thanksgiving rolls around before every farmer in America will have cause to be thankful when the end of the Harvest season comes—when he can feel that we are all helping him to stabilize his business of farming so that he will not have the feeling that his business is a gamble and that he is shaking dice with the elements.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Sties

Question: A. G. asks: "Are sties caused from impure blood or defective eyes, and what is the remedy?"

Answer:—The adodosis which makes sties or boils possible is created through wrong eating habits. The irritating cause may be from rubbing the eyes and infecting the eyelids with a common streptococcus bacterium. Defective vision has its effect in producing sties, mainly because the one who is suffering from eyestrain is liable to rub the eyes more frequently.

FARMERS' THANKSGIVING

This harvest time of the year is not always the time for rejoicing. The farmer who has labored hard all year, hoping for favorable weather, is often disappointed when the time comes for the ripening of the harvest. So many times the winds have blown too hard, the hurricanes have come, the frosts have bitten the tender buds, or the spring rains have been so great as to destroy any possibility of a good fall crop.

The Viking farmers, who were the first settlers in New England, had their troubles in battling the elements, but their problems were far greater than that of the farmer of today. With all of our progress in a scientific way, we have so far accomplished very little in controlling the wind, the frost, and the rain, so that every year in the same way the same soil will yield a plentiful harvest.

There are just about as many crops destroyed today as there were several centuries ago when the pilgrim fathers anxiously watched their crops and prayed for favorable weather.

The modern farmer has many advantages as far as improved implements are concerned, but he still has the same bad weather conditions to fight and the same fear of damage to the crops and possible complete loss of all of his year's work.

Motor Hints

Timely Suggestions on the Care of the Car by the Automobile Club of Hartford.

New Kind of Puncture

High speed around corners is causing motorists a lot of unnecessary punctures. Nails are getting into tires by this method as they never would under normal conditions.

A sharp turn at too high a speed causes the side walls of the tires to come into contact with the ground, or at least near enough to it to make them susceptible to picking up stray articles capable of inflicting punctures. Since the tire walls are not made to act as treads any sharp article that is run over in this way is certain to cause trouble.

Low center of gravity in an automobile is intended as a safety measure, not as license to inflict punishment on the tires. If this isn't taken into account the chances are that still farther—when a flat tire drops the car unexpectedly.

Where the Trouble Starts Most clutch trouble develops as a result of using this unit of the car to compensate for shortcomings in the engine. Many car owners overlook this when taking it for granted that the clutch merely reflects their own inexperience as drivers.

When the engine does not pick up as it should there is a natural inclination to slip the clutch in order to help the power plant. Because the engine idling is too fast the driver is tempted to ease the start by partially engaging the clutch.

All this paves the way for clutch trouble, including grabbing, "chattering" and slipping. Most of it can be avoided by paying more attention to the engine, keeping it in better condition and adjusting the throttle so that the idling speed is correct for smooth starting and easy gear shifting.

Improves With Use Muffler noises occasion owners of new cars considerable unnecessary worry. Such noises wear away at the car ages, but this strikes the average motorist as just a little factious.

"How can noise wear away when it is well established fact that age reduces cars to a state where they are scarcely more than clattering junk," he demands.

This is all very true, but age is beneficial up to a certain point. A muffler, for example, will drone and make other objectionable noises simply because its plates and passageways for the exhaust gases are too sharp. An accumulation of carbon makes the path a smoother one and deadens the noise.

Carbon, which collects as the car is used, also seals the exhaust and muffler connections, thereby effectively checking any noises through exhaust leaks, however minor these may be.

Air Flow Lowers Too Most car owners who know anything at all about the mysteries under the hood appreciate that if the supply of water in the radiator isn't overheat, but how many know that a reduction in the volume of water reduces the efficiency of the air-cooled engine?

"What has air cooling to do with a water-cooled engine?" the average motorist asks. The answer is that the engine is only indirectly cooled by water and that the real cooling agent is the flow of air through the radiator core.

The more water there is in this core the more heat is exposed to the air flow. Thus if the water supply is allowed to become too low the air cooling becomes inefficient at the same time.

This explains why a motor will run cool up to a certain point and then suddenly overheat when the water level gets too low.

Special Care For Each It does not occur to the average motorist that not all engines require breaking in along the same lines. As a result of this many engines acquire the repair shop habit long before they are due for it.

A few manufacturers now are running in their engines before making delivery. In such cases it is permissible to run a little faster than usual with first taking possession of the new car, but even so it always is better to drive, let us say, forty for a short spur, than to drive thirty-five for a prolonged stretch.

-ights should be treated carefully for the reason that scoring in this type of engine is apt to be more serious than when pistons run straight up and down. Another point that must be considered is the rear axle reduction ratio. Some of the straight-eight engines run at a fast-

Master of Psychology The emergency brake, always the target of the complaining motorist, still rates as the one thing about an automobile that could be improved upon. Some of the criticism is justifiable, but much of it is due to poor reasoning on the part of the driver.

Old Stars Brighten Way for Playgoers

BY GILBERT SWAN

New York.—Otis Skinner, having reached that period in life when he contributes magazine pieces to "What's Wrong With the Theater," and Fritz Scheff, who harks back to the dear old days of which he writes, are giving Broadway its annual memory test at the moment.

Mlle. Scheff, who had seemed almost to have dropped from the theatrical picture, is signing to be kissed again quite as appealingly as she did—drat these gray hairs!—some 24 years ago. And if you remember "Mlle. Modiste," and the other Victor Herbert pieces now undergoing revival here, you will know what Otis Skinner is talking about when he complains about the jazz and the this-and-that of the modern theater.

Fritz Scheff . . . sighing to be kissed

Skinner appears in the sort of play which in his articles, he mourns. He had to go to Spain to find one, and after it had been translated it arrived under the title of "A Hundred Years Old." If there are few plays of this type in America, it's largely because there are few Skinners. It's a typical one-man play. It is chock full of what they are pleased to call "theater."

As a play, it is certainly not of this day and age. But as a character sketch it's what they slungingly refer to as "right down his alley." Being a Skinner role, he swings the character of the chatty old patriarch right, over his shoulders and proceeds to crawl under it. He gives it life that it really hasn't got and works his own particular magic upon it.

Skinner is a performer of such experience that it would be useless to elaborate on how he can eat up a role. He is the play. And that, if you ask me, is one of the things are presented according to their lights—and each finds its justification to the persons involved.

Flavin's play is the meatiest of the year. And there is a youngster named Arthur Johnson, who is credited with the stage set, who is responsible for at least half the effectiveness of the play. He has combined a terrible realism with modernism to give the effect of thick, impenetrable gray walls. The curtain itself is a solid heavy prison wall. And the work of Arthur Byron as the district attorney is one of the noteworthy characterizations on the big street.

DANCING TONIGHT AT THE RAINBOW

Three dances have been planned for The Rainbow dance palace this week commencing tonight with a Thanksgiving Eve dance for which Moe Landerman and his contracted dance band will provide the program. Landerman has for years been an artistic musician, leader and member of some of the best dance bands and theatrical orchestras in the country and has associated with himself the pick of high-class musicians that he will bring to The Rainbow tonight.

Thanksgiving night, the usual Thursday night modern and old-fashioned dance will be held with Bill Waddell and his orchestra featuring the program, in charge of Hartford Gates, Connecticut's most popular promoter.

Saturday evening will again be an occasion for the patrons of The Rainbow to welcome the return of The Commanders with a characteristic program such as only this band is capable of playing.

In addition to these three dances at The Rainbow dance palace there will be a special Thanksgiving dinner at the Inn tomorrow from 12:30 p. m. till midnight. Anyone desiring a delicious dinner with the comforts and privacy of home, can be accommodated by phoning their reservations to The Rainbow at any hour of the day or night, number 3825.

Both Mr. Pinney and Mr. Bokis, respective managers of the dance palace and the night club are sparing no expense to provide the patrons of The Rainbow with the best obtainable and the rapidly increasing business is further testimony of the prevailing interest in this popular resort and marks the appreciation on the part of a receptive and satisfied public.

RELEASED FROM PRISON TO WED KAFFIR WOMAN

London, Nov. 27.—(AP)—Oscar Slater, who spent 30 years of his life under sentence and conviction for murder, only finally to be exonerated and awarded $30,000 for wrongful imprisonment, was said by the Daily Mail today to be contemplating marriage with a full-blooded African Kaffir woman.

"My fiancée was born in Basutoland," the Mail quoted Slater as saying, in an interview given at Glasgow. "Her parents, who are wealthy, have plantations there. I met her more than 20 years ago when staying in Paris. We were at the same hotel and became very friendly. She was then scarcely 20 years old and had just finished her education."

"We wrote to each other occasionally but I did not see her for many years, until one day when I was in Peterhead prison she came from Paris to see me. Her faith in me comforted me tremendously. Throughout the long years in prison we wrote and when I was released we met in Glasgow and became engaged. She now is staying in Glasgow where the marriage may take place in April."

COLORADO'S "RED SNOW" HAS WATERMELON SCENT

Denver.—(AP)—Science has explained the phenomenon of "red snow" in the Arapahoe glacier region, near the Continental divide of the Rocky Mountains in Colorado.

To persons who make the trip by United States forest trails to the great ice-rivers in this region, the reddish tinge of snow is one of the most curious and interesting features.

The color is most noticeable when one walks over a glacier and crosses a great spot where the snow looks red. Footsteps turn a crimson hue. A faint but well defined scent of watermelon emanates from the colored snow.

Scientists have found that this kind of snow does not fall—it grows. It is a minute form of plant life, related to algae.

Now, Wouldn't It Stump You?

STATE C. OF C. HEAD ADVISES PUBLICITY

Says Business Conditions Are Normal and That Public Should Not Worry.

Hartford, Nov. 27.—Henry Trumbull, president of the State Chamber of Commerce has written the following letter to all members:

Certain views that I hold with respect to the present business situation and the part that members of the Connecticut Chamber of Commerce can play in maintaining a high level of activity and prosperity in this state may be, I believe, most properly expressed at this time. There is most naturally at this time so much discussion as to the effect of the recent market collapse upon business that a dispassionate and logical survey of fundamental facts with respect to our actual situation should be considered.

To maintain that the tremendous losses recently sustained in the market are paper losses only and that they will not be felt by those who have sustained them, would be silly, because without question the inclination to buy by those who have sustained such losses and in many cases their ability to buy will be definitely impaired.

That the business men and particularly the industrial people can, however, offset this impact by the great and general good of our state, is my firm belief.

Most of our underlying factors are sound and encouraging. These should give base for vigorous and active policies that will surely make for equilibrium and permit us to go forward on an acceptable level of prosperity. We know already, for instance, that loans to brokers by members of the Federal Reserve System have already been reduced by more than a billion dollars. There is just as much money in the country today as ever. Great volumes are being released from speculative channels to channels making for sound business activities. Business staggers and then halts when excesses have been indulged in; when stocks of goods have become too great and when buying from producers and distributors is curtailed. There is no excess of manufactured goods at the present time—inventories and stocks are conservative and close and the money market is easy.

The volume of orders now flowing to Connecticut manufacturers is normal notwithstanding all that has happened. The one thing that everybody in Connecticut would like to see happen now is to have business of every sort in this state go forward steadily and actively. I believe that such an outcome can be accomplished. Advertising should not be curtailed. Sales programs should be pushed vigorously. Plant and equipment programs should go forward uninterrupted. Those whose plants or equipment need reshaping, overhauling or enlargement should undertake the work now. Curtailed spending at this time will reflect itself immediately in curtailed manufacturing and in turn curtailed employment would of course result in an immediate decline in wage disbursements.

I urge, therefore, that we continue to buy and to spend and to advertise as usual to the end that business may go forward without interruption.

Hollywood Sights Sounds

BY ROBBIN COONS

Hollywood.—In the daily deluge of movie publicity copy occasionally may be found items which, on a dull day at least, may be classed as gems, such as:

An announcement of a "startling story of New York's underworld, with a locale set high up in the clouds."

A story about a new talkie with a Hollywood setting, the rather interesting admission that the director "will film scenes all over the studio, using Actual People instead of regular players."

A few sights and sounds of passing interest, on the same dull day: A navy gub being drenched unexpectedly by a bucket of water from a balcony—which was not in the script, but merely Director John Ford's idea if a bit of naturally acted local color for his Shanghai film. . . . a nimble prop man escaping death from a falling light reflector he was trying to adjust with a pole. . . .

Gone Red-Headed

Grant Withers, now red-headed for a color picture, and Loretta Young, suffering from a cold, chatting in an automobile. . . . Director Paul Fejos, out again after his fall from a scaffold on which he was megaphoning a mob scene, being greeted with applause from Eleanor Boardman, Mary Nolan and other studio folk as he hobbles into the Universal restaurant. . . . scantily clad movie chorines bantering with chorus boys about football. . . .

Francis X. Bushman, old-time screen favorite, playing Marc Antony in a Pasadena Community Playhouse production of "Julius Caesar." . . . Harrison Ford, another movie actor, preparing for a Shavian role at the same theater. . . .

Operation

Maybe it shouldn't be told—because tonsils or no tonsils, many people cannot sing. And maybe Estelle Taylor could sing all the time, and simply never tried. But the fact remains that last summer she had her tonsils removed, and now she has found a voice that sings where it would not even hum before, according to friends of long standing.

The vaudeville sketch in which she now is touring is entitled "Theme Song," and gives the folks who never saw talkie-transformed Hollywood a look-in at the method of recording, besides giving Estelle an opportunity to sing for the microphone and hear the playback on the stage, just as in a regular talkie studio.

Which might be called practicing—she returns in a few weeks to re-enter pictures. Incidentally, she went to New York, temporarily deserting the screen, to rehearse an act called "Murder."

It Took Him 11 Years To Deliver This Message—But He Did It!

Springfield, Mass.—More than 11 years ago as a thin line of American doughboys advanced over a shell-scarred battlefield in France, a runner was dispatched with a field message—and now, he has just delivered it.

Private James D. O'Neil of Mapleville, R. I., has located Lieutenant Colonel James G. Rivers of this city, to whom he was sent with the message while the 104th Infantry Regiment was attacking near Belleau Wood. They met at a reunion in Northampton.

The message contained the terse command, "Move to the left 300 yards." It was signed by Captain E. H. Phillips, battalion commander, who was killed a few minutes later.

O'Neil's outfit was attacking on July 20, 1918, when Captain Phillips discovered that machine gun fire had wiped out a section of his command. Hurriedly he jotted down the message and gave it to O'Neil.

Breaking into a run, O'Neil headed for his destination over the soldier-strewn woodland. But in the excitement he never found his man. He was told that the lieutenant had been killed.

After the battle O'Neil was transferred to another sector.

When surviving members of the 104th Regiment held a reunion recently, O'Neil attended. He was introduced to a Lieutenant Colonel Rivers, now of the Massachusetts National Guard.

"Surely you remember Lieutenant Colonel Rivers, O'Neil," said a mutual friend. "He commanded B Company in France."

O'Neil stared at the man in amazement.

On being assured, however, that Lieutenant Rivers had not been killed and that he now stood before him in the flesh, O'Neil told of the field message he still had in his possession.

"That's 11 years ago now," reflected O'Neil. "But I still will be fulfilling that last mission on which Captain Phillips sent me. I mail that message to you when I return home."

And that is how Lieutenant Colonel Rivers received this field message:

You Need A Good Paint Here!

When painting the exterior of your home it is extravagant to use an inferior grade of paint because it is cheaper! In a year's time you'll have to re-paint. Save money and have a better looking job by specifying good paint. It will come smiling thru all climatic conditions and acts as a good preservative.

The Avenging Parrot

THIS HAS HAPPENED

MRS. EMMA HOGARTH, said to keep a hoard of money in her room on the second floor of Mrs. RHODES' boarding house, is strangled to death between 11:45 and 12:15 Saturday night, June 29. BONNIE DUNDEE, "cub" detective, assists LIEUT. STRAWN SEVIER, former boarder, whom Mrs. Hogarth accused of trying to rob her and who has disappeared. CORA BARKER, thought to have had an affair with Sevier, is arrested as a material witness against him when she confesses she was in the murder room shortly after 12. Other boarders under suspicion are: HENRY DOWD; NORMA PAGE, latest mistress to the Hogarth hoard who incurred the old woman's wrath by becoming engaged to WALTER STYLES, who had quarreled with Mrs. Hogarth; BEIT MAGNUS, amateur scenario writer who is heard typing in his room until 12:15 and DAISY SHEPHERD, the only boarder who refuses to stay on at the Rhodes' house.

Dundee learns from papers discovered in the lining of the victim's trunk that the SALLY GRAVES who writes and that the "D" mentioned in her diary is DAN GRIFFIN, son-in-law of the "turning up" who lives in dread. Recalling the mysterious circumstances of the Graves' murder in New York one month previous, Bonnie concludes that "D." murdered both women and turns his attention to the newcomers in the Rhodes' house, Dowd and Magnus. Dowd's information concerning himself proves false. Dundee searches Magnus' room.

But whoever it was and whatever further confidence in regard to Daisy's greediness had been interrupted, Dundee did not wait to find out. Very slowly, very thoughtfully, he went up the stairs on his way to Norma Paige's room. "There are so many possible angles to this fiendish case that I'll go dippy if I don't find a solution soon," he vowed. "I'm going to dig myself disgustedly."

"Hullo! Hullo!" the parrot greeted him cheerily as he entered the girl's room. "Hello, Cap'n!" Dundee went to the cage and fearlessly reached in to stroke the green-and-yellow head. "I'm thinking of turning this pesky case over to you, old sport. How about it?"

The parrot turned gravely on his perch and cocked its bright eye at the detective. "Bad penny! Bad penny!" he croaked, proud of the new addition to his extensive vocabulary. "Right you are!" Dundee laughed. "Right you are, we'll avenge your dead mistress yet, Cap'n. Thanks for reminding me."

He was more cheerful as he set about the disagreeable task of searching Norma Paige's room, for the parrot's words seemed like a good omen. The room, unlike Henry Dowd's, was redolent of its owner's personality. Dainty curtains of white voile, splashed with yellow daffodils, fluttered at the double windows, and the same material was used for bedspread and dressing-table cover. Dundee had a strong suspicion that the girl's own exquisite taste and competent little hands were responsible for this expensive monogrammed "P" hung on the rack above the stationary basin, and upon the green burlap screen were tacked a score of water color sketches—undoubtedly the girl's own handwork, which she had once used in her kindergarten classes, for the subjects were the sort to appeal to small children.

Against the wall near the door was a small table, bearing an old typewriter of the same make and brand as the one used by Bert Magnus. He was later to learn that both machines had been rented from the same agency. Beside the machine was a stack of yellow second-sheet paper, also identical with that which Magnus used. In the little drawer of the table were a great many letters, some of them addressed in a bold, masculine handwriting, but most of them obviously from girls. Dundee glanced at them curiously. So many people knew her better than he did, but no one could think her dearer, sweeter, prettier.

Fighting with the distaste he felt at the thought of rummaging among her intimate belongings, the young detective paused before the dresser. In neat little silver frames there were three enlarged snapshots: one of Norma and Walter sitting very close together in the lawn swing; another of Bert, Cora and Norma on the front porch; the third a group of small children, with Norma a laughing temptress to the charms of picture tubes. For a moment Bonnie Dundee was tempted to commit a small burglary on his own, but he had promised Mrs. Rhodes to leave everything as he found it.

My Favorite Bible Passage

Today's Choice by CLYDE M. REED, Governor of Kansas

Therefore all things whatsoever ye would that men should do to you, do ye even so to them: for this is the law and the prophets. — Matthew 7:12.

Thou hypocrite, first cast out the beam out of thine eye; and then shall thou see clearly to cast out the mote out of thy brother's eye. — Matthew 7:5.

The Lord is my shepherd: I shall not want. — Psalm 23:1.

Comment: "You may search the pages of the Old and New Testaments and you will find nothing comparable in hope, comfort and wisdom, with the Twenty-third Psalm and Christ's Sermon on the Mount. These have inspired mankind in life and have comforted and consoled in the hour of death. No other chapter in the Bible has been committed to memory by so many people as the Lord's Prayer, a part of Christ's sermon on the mount, has been lisped by countless millions. It was taught to us by our mothers in childhood. We have repeated it times innumerable. It is one supplication in which the world's expression of gratitude and divine blessing. It is the anchor of our hope in the Kingdom. God has promised His children.

(Compiled by the Bible Guild.)

Friday, Morris Sheppard, U. S. senator from Texas.

A THOUGHT

No man can serve two masters: for either he will hate the one, and love the other; or else he will hold to the one, and despise the other. — St. Matthew 6:24.

The measure of a master is his success in bringing all men round to his opinion twenty years later. — Emerson.

Texas Guinan, New York night club hostess, advises the ladies to let husbands do whatever they want to do. Of course she means their own husbands.

For work I can do in my own room. Had a private phone installed today," he explained, on the spur of the minute, for he knew his telephone would excite comment and speculation. Then, sounding more bold than he felt: "Won't you be a Good Samaritan and come down to sit on the porch with me? I believe it's a little cooler now and I'm aching for some cheerful conversation."

"I'm awfully sorry," Norma interrupted hastily. "A little stiffly she justified herself: I've got to practice on the typewriter till dinner time. My first speed test tomorrow, and I'm simply terrible on typing."

"You have your own machine?" he asked, to make conversation, so that he might hold her a little longer.

"Oh, no! I rented it, or rather Mr. Magnus rented it for me, since he was getting one for himself. It's a fearful old rattletrap, but it's good enough for practice work. I can use the machine at school only an hour a day and that's not enough for a slow poke like me."

More disappointed than he would admit to himself, Dundee had no choice but to idle until dinner. With Norma at home there was no chance for more room-searching that day. But scarcely had the 6 o'clock meal started than Bonnie Dundee realized that a detective does not keep union hours—that his day's work was not yet over.

"Oh, hello, Mr. Dundee!" Norma Paige greeted him with a cordial smile. She was swinging her broad-brimmed leghorn hat, and as she spoke she pushed the moist bronze curls from her white forehead. "Did you find a position today?"

"I'm afraid I was too lazy to hunt very hard for a job," he grinned, and hated the necessity for lying to her. "But I've got a little scheme

YOUR CHILDREN

by Olive Roberts Barton, ©1928 by NEA Service, Inc.

Don't give a child everything he wants. It is about the cruellest thing we can do. Cruel, not only because life is a rather average affair, and the law of compensation is bound to be in evidence at some periods in his life, handing him disappointments that he can't cope with, but because people aren't going to like him.

Nobody likes a spoiled child when he is little. They will like him less when he is big.

Nor is it fair by mere weakness on our part to and sheer spinelessness inability to say "no," to allow him to grow up into a miserable, unhappy being, ruined by his own sense of expectancy. This habit of wanting things and getting them grows. It gets to the point where there is no satisfaction. What then?

HEALTH

STUDY OF PATIENT'S EYES REVEALS INJURY TO SKULL IS SERIOUS

By DR. MORRIS FISHBEE, Editor Journal of the American Medical Association and of Hygeia, the Health Magazine

With the speed of modern life, the use of the automobile, the conditions of traffic and similar conditions, it is becoming more and more dangerous to get about on the streets.

Indeed, as a result of these difficulties, cases are frequently brought to hospitals in which men become unconscious following accidents and in which the physician is much concerned to determine whether or not the patient has had a fracture of the skull.

The diagnosis of a fracture of the skull is not a simple matter. The X-ray frequently will show the break in the bone. Sometimes it is possible to open the tissues to find the injury that has taken place, but in many instances the fracture develops inside the bone at a point opposite to the place where the head was struck, and in such cases it is extremely difficult to make sure that the skull has been fractured.

Recently Dr. George A. Blakesley has emphasized again the fact that the human eye will mirror changes that may be going on in the brain. A study of the eye of a patient with skull fracture will indicate how much damage has been done to the brain by the fracture and what the possibilities are for the patient to recover.

Out of 610 persons who had fractures of the skull, there were indications in the eye of the nature of the injuries in 78 per cent. If the pupils of the eye are fixed, either dilated or contracted, the condition may be considered extremely serious. In practically all cases in which there were hemorrhages into one side of the brain, the eye was found with the pupil either dilated or contracted. Changeability in the size and outline of the pupils of the eye is usually the sign most frequently seen in fractures of the skull. As the patient recovers, the ability of the pupils to dilate and to contract in the usual manner is one of the earliest signs of recovery.

These things can easily be seen by anyone on inspection. However, other changes occur which the average man, but which the trained physician can determine by the use of the ophthalmoscope, an instrument with which he can see the retina back of the eye. Under such circumstances he can detect areas of inflammation and of degeneration, areas in which the tissues have been blocked by the flowing in of blood and similar changes.

The greatest depth of the Mediterranean Sea is 14,436 feet.

The WOMAN'S DAY

With the rush of Christmas shopping and buying, the stores have to be particularly on guard against that contradictory and illogical type of woman, the shoplifter.

She is not easy to pick out, in the packed stores. She is usually well dressed, and a good actress. Some may bungle, but many are skillful as sleight-of-hand performers, and can get away with much valuable merchandise before they make a slip.

Talking with Mrs. Teresa St. Clair, a probation officer in the court of Special Sessions in New York—a court that handles many of the larceny cases—I learned that shoplifting is a seasonal offense flourishing in the early spring and around the holidays.

In the spring, the shoplifter apparently responds to the universal urge to step forth in new garments, and one way to get it is to steal it. The holidays, of course, are the happy harvest time of the whole year.

Many Varieties The shoplifter may be rich, she may be poor, she may be an adventuress, she may be trying to get thrills, or she may believe it is not necessarily a psychopathic case.

Mrs. St. Clair is certain, from her dealings with them, that 99 per cent are absolutely normal human beings, with the wrong conception of the rights of others. Curiously enough, women will risk honor, face arrest, and actually go to jail for stealing most of their cheap and shoddy articles—stuff place you and Dad picked for me. I told you I wouldn't go. "Hush, Bob! You ought to be glad you're going. Try to be grateful. It's a splendid school."

Divine right to do as she pleases, she'll drive through a traffic signal and kill somebody, very likely. Perhaps herself. And her brother, I'm thinking, will come home at the end of the semester to stay. The other boy I don't know much about, but "they" say he is "wild."

There is enough salt in the ocean to cover 700,000 square miles of land to a depth of one mile.

THANKSGIVING EVE DANCE AND SOCIAL

HOSE & LADDER CO. NO. 1 Present THE COMMANDERS 12-Piece Orchestra—Cheney Hall Wednesday Evening, Nov. 27

ABOUT TOWN

Miss Helen E. Alton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard C. Alton of East Center street and a sophomore at Connecticut College for Women, New London, Conn., is spending the Thanksgiving recess with her parents.

Mr. and Mrs. John F. Barstow and daughter, Betty, will spend the Thanksgiving holidays with Mrs. Barstow's parents in Flemington, N. J.

At a meeting held at the home of Mrs. John Dowd the Hustlers Group of the Wesleyan Circle voted to have a candy booth at the Christmas Bazaar to be held at the South Methodist church, Wednesday evening December 4.

Mrs. Elizabeth Warnock of Cottage street left Saturday to spend Thanksgiving with her sister, Mrs. Hannah Tedford of Mystic, Conn.

Schaller's Garage announced today the addition to their personnel of Joe Maloney one of the oldest mechanics in town. Mr. Maloney up until now, has been in business for himself. Previous to opening his own repair business about four and a half years ago he was Branch Service Manager for Russell P. Taber, Inc., for five years. Mr. Schaller stated today that he expected to have his new service station open about Dec. 10.

Mrs. C. H. Jaycox of 157 North Main street entertained her class of ten young girls from the North Methodist church school at her home last evening. The decorations and favors were all in keeping with Thanksgiving. Games, music and a buffet luncheon passed the evening pleasantly for all.

Stanley Napierkowski of 449 Summit street, Hartford, paid a fine of $15 and costs for speeding. He was arrested by Sergeant Crockett on November 24 at noon for driving up to 50 miles an hour.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Wright and their son Walter are moving this week from North Elm street to the home of Mrs. Wright's sister and brother, Miss Caroline and John Lang of 5 Mather street.

A son, John Edward, was born last Thursday at St. Francis hospital to Mr. and Mrs. John J. Griffin of Amity street, Hartford. The baby is the first grandson of Mr. and Mrs. John Griffin of Henry street this town, and according to his uncle William, when he is old enough he is going to join the Majors.

A special meeting of the young men's Community club will be held tonight at 7 o'clock at the White House on North Main street.

Miss Jessie Reynolds, social service worker in the employ of the town, supervised the delivery of baskets of food to needy families today. About 12 were donated by attendants of the South Methodist church, a number came from contributions of the children at the Bunch school and other sources.

Doctor and Mrs. LeVerne Holmes motored up to New London, N. H., this morning to bring back their daughter, Miss Esther Holmes, for the Thanksgiving recess. Miss Holmes who graduated from the Manchester High school in June is a student at Colby Junior College.

Miss Ethel Goslee who teaches in the High school at South Orange, N. J., is expected home this evening for the Thanksgiving vacation and reunion of the Goslee families tomorrow with Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Goslee of Madison street.

OLD MORAN HOUSE AT THE NOTCH BURNS

Ancient Landmark, Destined for Removal Soon, Destroyed; Firemen from Here Called.

The dwelling at Bolton Notch known as the Moran house, occupied by John Peterson of Hartford and his family, was destroyed by fire last night. The building was the property of the State of Connecticut, having been acquired by the Highway Department in the process of road development, and was to have been moved next year.

Residents of the Notch section tried to fight the blaze, which started around a fireplace and spread to adjoining rooms, but could make no headway against the flames. At 9:15 a call for assistance was sent to the South Manchester Fire Department and No. 3 chemical truck went out. The fire was so far advanced by that time, however, that about all the firemen could do was to protect the neighboring Howard house.

The old house was heavily timbered and burned slowly. Assisted by neighbors and passing motorists the Petersons were able to save most of their effects. The building was all in the cellar by 11 o'clock.

The dwelling stood on the north side of the North Coventry road, just beyond the bridge at the Notch.

MARKS GIRLS PRESENT TURKEY TO GOVERNOR

Miss Minnie and Edith Marks of 136 Summer street, champion girl turkey raisers of Manchester and of the State, yesterday presented to Governor John Trumbull an 18 1/2 pound turkey raised by them on their Vernon farm.

Governor Trumbull congratulated the girls on their success and inquired of their methods in bringing to maturity 1700 out of 2,000 birds. Both girls have the added advantage of several years 4-H Club experience.

The big bird presented the Governor was hatched on June 19, this year, and was scientifically fed and cared for by the girls and their father, Karl Marks on the 20 acre range in Vernon. The big brood required constant care during their four month's existence.

THE BAILEY PLACE

Editor, The Herald:— I was sorry to read in The Herald last night of the burning of the Scarrone house on Johnston Hill in Glastonbury, because while it has been known as the Nelson S. Bailey Place and has had several other owners, it was built by one Oplias Hills, in or about the year 1800, for my great grandfather Aaron Hubbard Blish, who occupied it until his death in 1832. He was a large land owner, and prosperous farmer and had a family of four sons and two daughters.

If the old homes could speak, what stories they might tell. There are in the same neighborhood, at least two other similar houses, built by the same builder, in the two following years, one for a younger brother of Mr. Blish and one for another member of the Hills family. May they never be fated to go up in smoke.

There are details of construction in them, which are being imitated at the present time, such as fireplaces, panel work, beams, stairs, floors etc. The passing of the old land mark is a distinct loss.
