

READ UP ON THE LAW BEFORE ICE FISHING

Six Tip-Ups for Licensed Anglers, Only One for Women and Boys; Creel Limits.

If you are an ice-fishing enthusiast it may be wise to look up the state fishing laws governing this sport. Provided you hold a license for fishing you are allowed the use of not more than six tip-ups, bobs or devices for taking fish through the ice. Pickerel, or wall-eyed pike not less than 12 inches in length may be taken from legal waters until February 1 but no person shall take by angling, in any day, more than ten of either or both such species. Yellow perch or white perch not less than seven inches in length may be taken up to the legal limit of twenty fish all told. Boys under 16 or women may fish without a license but are allowed to use only one tip-up.

It will be well for fishermen to observe the rules of decency while fishing on the land of, or in crossing the land of other. If you willfully or negligently injure any fence, or let down any bars and do not replace them—away goes your license for a two year period. Any illegal equipment taken by game wardens shall become the property of the State so it behooves those that enjoy ice-fishing to read the laws before starting out.

FIVE SAILORS DROWNED

Sault Ste Marie, Mich., Dec. 4.—(AP)—Coast Guards, aided by members of the wrecked freighter Kiowa, which went aground and broke up off Port Au Sable Saturday with a loss of five lives, today patrolled the Lake Superior shore off which the freighter is aground, seeking the bodies of Captain Alex F. Young and three other members of the ship's crew.

Winds are sweeping the bleak Superior shores and marine men said there was little hope the bodies would be found this fall. The body of Max Westenberg, wheelsman, of Buffalo, is the only one to have been recovered.

Another tale of heroism was added to great lakes annals when members of the crew told of the efforts of Captain Young to save members of the crew who were thrown into the icy waters when a life boat overturned. The captain leaped into the water and attempted to rescue the men, but himself was swept away by a huge wave.

A GOOD START

NO-NOX MOTOR FUEL

Aviation Grade is the perfect winter gasoline

AVIATION Grade means this--The INITIAL BOILING POINT is under 100° Fahrenheit, its END or DRY POINT is 374° Fahrenheit, the last drop vaporizes at this temperature and complete vaporization is the whole thing in winter starting.

Ordinary gasolines have an end or dry point of 437° Fahrenheit and do not vaporize readily -- Such gasolines may be doped with chemicals for anti-knock purposes but possess no cold weather starting value.

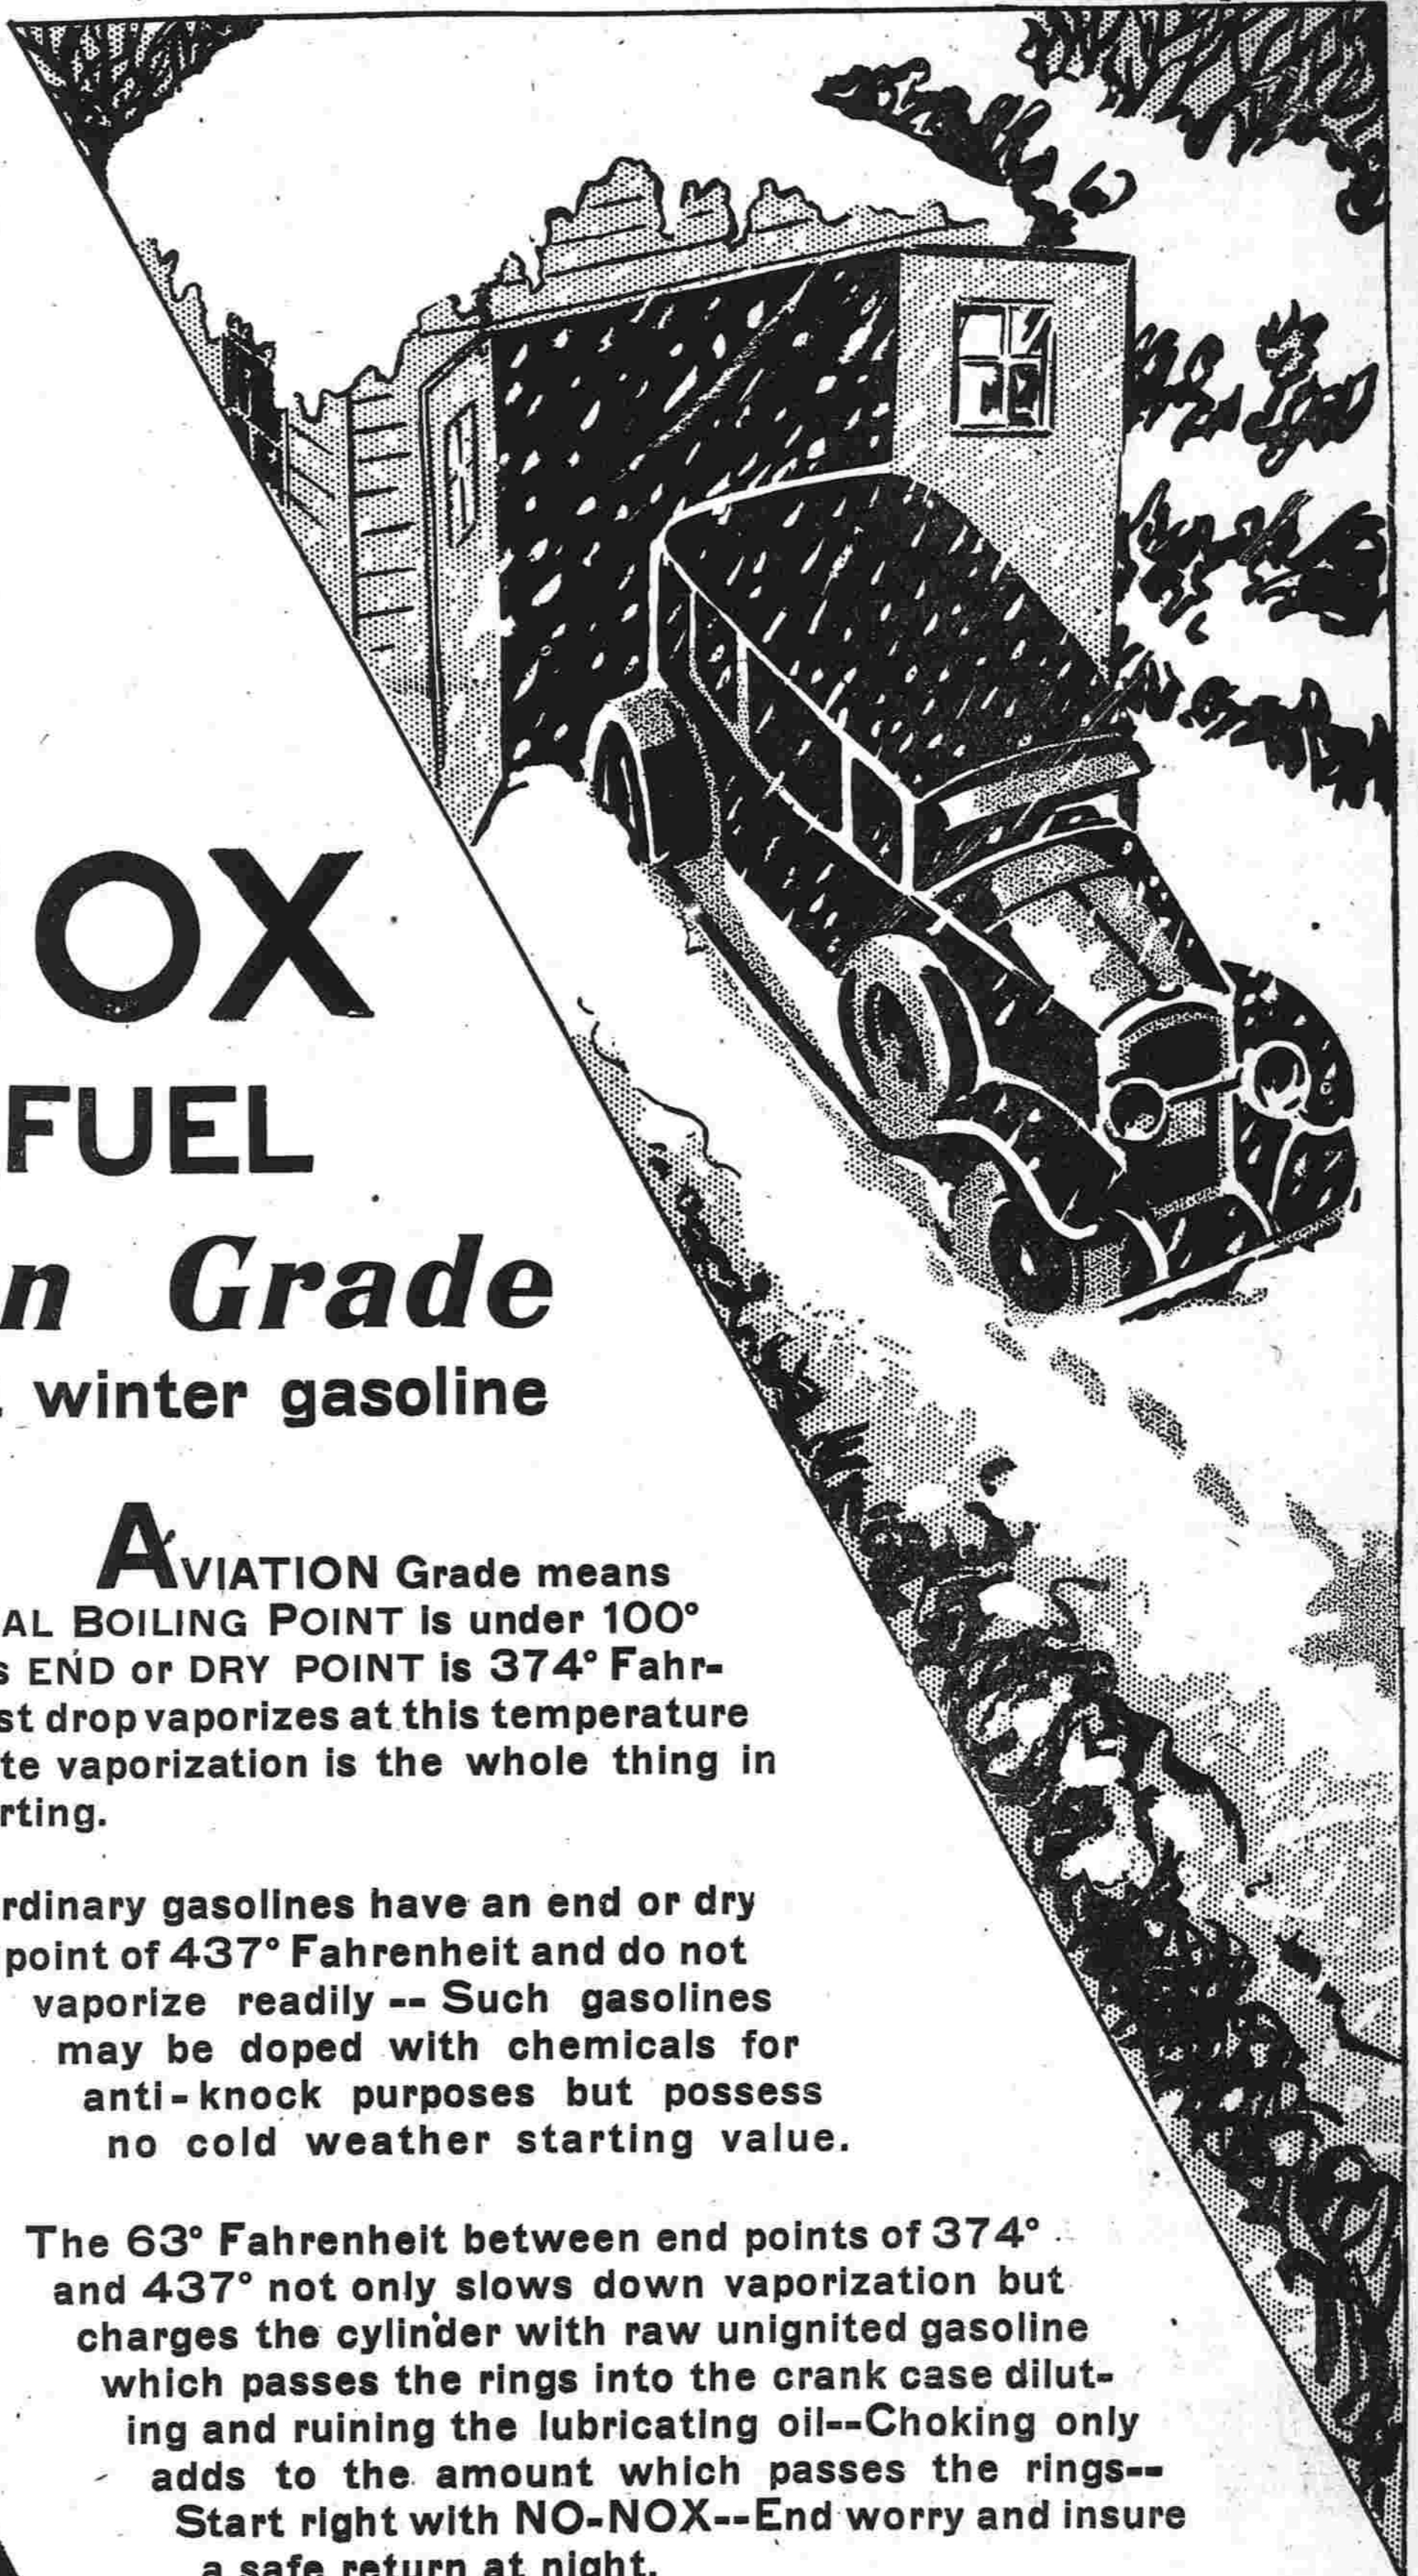

The 63° Fahrenheit between end points of 374° and 437° not only slows down vaporization but charges the cylinder with raw unignited gasoline which passes the rings into the crank case diluting and ruining the lubricating oil--Choking only adds to the amount which passes the rings--Start right with NO-NOX--End worry and insure a safe return at night.

Queer Twists In Day's News

Washington — Mrs. Hoover has been shopping early. Friends will receive at Christmas various fancy things of leather, metal, woodwork and basketry made by war veterans at Walter Reed hospital.

Sydney, N. S.—For Christmas King George is to receive a pair of waterproof buckskin moccasins with velvet tops and embroidered with silver and gold beads. They have been forwarded by the maker, Mary Ann Gogogo, a member of the Miqnac tribe, who having prayed for the king's recovery, hopes her present will guard him against the rigors of winter.

New York—Evidently Mr. Tunney's pursuit of literature involves some writing. Among contents of the 15 pieces of baggage he and Mrs. Tunney brought home was a portable typewriter.

Newville, Pa.—Lynn G. Adams, superintendent of the state police, has been hunting deer in the South mountains with a bow and arrow. "It's a lot more sport than using a rifle," he explained. Advice as to his success are lacking.

New York—Aboard the ocean liner Le De France there were reports that tricky gentlemen of the green cloth were keeping a sharp watch for victims. A stranger strolled up to Harry Fox, who helps make Broadway laugh, and invited him to bridge or poker. Harry replied that he played cards only at home.

"But," he added, "I'll tell you what I will play with you."

The stranger's eyes brightened. "I'll play postoffice," said Harry.

Newark, N. J.—A pin has been removed from the right lung of Gladys Gest, 6, after 153 days of pain to her and an expenditure of $1,100 by the Presbyterian hospital. She swallowed it at play. It took seven X-ray pictures to locate it. Then there was five operations with use of the fluoroscope, X-ray apparatus which permitted doctors to watch through the wall of the chest instruments inserted in the throat. The maximum use of the apparatus was 17 seconds because of the danger of injuring tissue. Only the fifth attempt proved successful.

New York—The intelligence of kittens is being rated in the psychological laboratory at Columbia University. Lured by a saucer of milk, they have to learn to fathom a maze of hazards charged with electricity.

Orange, N. J.—When Philip Vaccaro dies, in the words of an official of the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western railroad, his reputation as an efficient and faithful gatekeeper ought to guarantee him a steady job with St. Peter. Having raised and lowered gates at grade crossings for 25 years without any accidents in his territory, Philip has been pensioned and put on the road's roll of honor.

New York—A new danger in playing golf has been discovered. Harry Michaels of Jamaica, shot in a July 4 celebration, carried a bullet in his spine 25 years with impunity. He began playing golf a few years ago. Unwonted use of some muscles caused the bullet to move and gave him such pain that an operation for its removal was necessary.

BIG STEAMER BURNS; CARGO WORTH $500,000

Philadelphia, Dec. 4.—(AP)—With its cargo destroyed by fire, the Holland-American line steamship Binnendijk rested today on the bottom of the Delaware river in 35 feet of water while firemen continued to fight the flames that swept its decks.

Early today as the tanker listed to port against its pier and sank at an angle of 25 degrees, the ship's captain, Henry Buhse, estimated the damage to the vessel and cargo at $500,000.

The ship, a 4,240-ton vessel, was to have sailed from this city yesterday morning, but due to bad weather, Captain Buhse postponed the sailing. In the afternoon, the fire, believed to have been smoldering in the cargo of lined oil and lused cake for several hours, burst from No. 2 hold and quickly spread to other compartments.

The Binnendijk arrived here a week ago from Rotterdam via Boston.

NEW BUDGET SYSTEM

Washington, Dec. 4.—(AP)—President Hoover has compiled and soon will make public a set of budget figures in very different form from that given in the regular budget transmitted to Congress.

He calls it a personal budget and it shows expenditures by classifications rather than by departments, as in the regular budget, with precise amounts for the next fiscal year for its various activities, such as national defense, care of veterans and their dependents, law enforcement in all of its branches, and the like.

The chief executive believes that this will give the public a more readily understandable picture of where the money goes than is furnished in the bulky and rather technical form of the budget. Congress must have in order to frame appropriation bills for the departments and independent agencies.

CREW OF 20 SAVED

Kingston, Ont., Dec. 4.—(AP)—Snatched from the teeth of an angry gale that was pounding their grounded ship to pieces, the twenty members of the crew of the grain carrier Sarniadoc were safely aboard the steamer Valley Camp today en route to Prescott, Ont.

A wireless from the Valley Camp which told of the rescue said the Sarniadoc was being badly smashed by the heavy sea, which still was rolling. The ship ran aground on the reefs of main Duck Island in Lake Ontario on Sunday. She was loaded with 2,100 tons of grain.

Rescue of her crew was handicapped by the raging sea and a blinding snowstorm.

ROY WEST WITHDRAWN AS ENVOY TO JAPAN

Washington, Dec. 4.—(AP)—President Hoover had an experience which has come to few Presidents—that of having to withdraw the name of a prospective ambassador from consideration by a foreign government.

Some time ago the chief executive decided to appoint Roy O. West, of Chicago, interior secretary in the Coolidge Cabinet, as ambassador to Japan and sent his name to Tokyo for the customary approval before making the appointment public.

Soon after the Japanese government was communicated with, Mr. West reconsidered, having found it inadvisable to enter the diplomatic service.

The President now is casting about for an ambassador to the Tokyo post, one of the most important of all of the diplomatic assignments.

Show That Farmer Could Saw Wood and Swing An Axe With the Best of Them.

Kansas City, Dec. 4.—(AP)—Submission to the high universal urge to "get in the movies" may cost Lester W. Fowler, farmer of Waverly, Mo., a pretty sum of money.

Fowler seeks $25,000 damages from the Kansas City Public Service Company for injuries suffered from an electric shock. Fowler says that he was permanently crippled when he touched the rear end of a street car which carried a short circuited current.

Defense attorneys said today they had moving pictures of Fowler, taken recently, showing him vigorously sawing wood and chopping kindling with unhampered swings of his axe.

The pictures were taken, they said, by men who represented themselves as employees of a company engaged in making rural scenes throughout Missouri. Fowler posed gladly.

HURLEY FOR POST

Washington, Dec. 4.—(AP)—President Hoover is expected to name a new secretary of war some time before Christmas and confidence was expressed in official circles today that Acting Secretary Patrick J. Hurley would be advanced to the head of the department.

Since the death of Secretary

James W. Good, many have expressed the hope to Mr. Hoover that Mr. Hurley might assume the post. These expressions have come particularly from the south which had desired representation in the Cabinet.

That extraordinary session of Congress might be called even more than that. But why be profane?

ROGERS OUTLINES COUNCIL PROGRAM

Manchester Man, Recently Made State Director of Promotional Group, Describes Its Activities at Willimantic Dinner.

Willard B. Rogers, recently elected as a director for Connecticut in the New England Council, last night addressed the Exchange Club, the leading service club in Willimantic, at a dinner in the Nathan Hale Hotel in the Thread City. Mr. Rogers' address clearly outlines the purposes of the New England Council, and contains material of interest to all who have the welfare of New England at heart. It follows in full:

What is the New England Council? Is it just another organization? Is it just another group of men and women? Why should we become actively interested in it? Are questions frequently asked me as I travel about New England. I shall endeavor to answer all three in a way that will not be mere common-sense platitudes.

A little more than five years ago the six New England State Governors, of which group our own chief executive, the Hon. John H. Trumbull, is the only Governor still occupying that office, recommended that the six New England states organize for the purpose of promoting those activities which are of mutual interest and advantage and out of that suggestion grew the New England Council which has a total membership of seventy-two representative men, or twelve from each state.

WILLARD B. ROGERS

That you will be familiar with your Connecticut Council, I would like to briefly refer to them. Henry Trumbull, of Plainville, is our chairman and in addition he is a most successful manufacturer, he operates a successful dairy farm as a side line, he is president of the Connecticut chamber of commerce, vice-president of the Manufacturers' Association of United States; E. O. Goss, president of the great Scoville Company, of Waterbury, and a director of the New York and New Haven and Hartford railroad company; E. Ken Hubbard, president of the Manufacturers' Association of Connecticut; C. L. Campbell, treasurer of the Connecticut Light and Power company, and a director of the Connecticut chamber of commerce; Frank D. Layton, president of the Hartford Fire Insurance company; Elijah Rogers, of Southington, for some years a trustee of the experimental station at the Connecticut Agricultural College; Harry C. Knight, vice-president and general manager of the Southern New England Telephone Company; Wilson H. Lee, head of the Wilson H. Lee company, of New Haven, and active in many successful business enterprises; Stanley Bullard, president of the Bullard company, Bridgeport, a former president of the Connecticut chamber of commerce, and a former director of the United States Chamber of Commerce; John E. Byrne, vice-president of the Hartford - Connecticut Trust company, and former state bank commissioner; Benjamin Campbell, vice-president of the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad company, and Willard B. Rogers, advertising director of the Bond Hotels at Hartford, Connecticut, and general manager of two companies operating in Connecticut and Rhode Island.

State's Members

Consequently, it behooves us to consider the achievements of our organization and its progress in the future. It has been well said that experience is a great teacher. Lost in the business or city or state which closes its eyes to the lessons of experience for the wisdom about a ship without a rudder, and failure is the inevitable penalty.

Proof of Pudding

Although I promised not to burden you with statistics, I feel that a few statements are pardonable here to prove to you that our optimism and faith are not misplaced. Industrially we are forging ahead, as revealed by the survey for 1928 made in 262 communities, with a population of 5,599,274, or about 85 per cent of the total urban population of New England. These 262 communities reported the acquisition of 554 new manufacturing concerns, employing 29,762 workers, and these same 262 communities reported the loss of 333 manufacturing concerns employing 20,419 workers, thus showing a gain of 251 industries and 9,343 employees. In dollars and cents, New England's industrial supremacy is revealed in the fact that our annual products exceeds nine billion dollars.

Not a Cure-All

In describing the activities and objectives of this organization, I want to first make it clear that this organization is not and was never meant to be a panacea for all of the business ills of New England or of any section of it. Like the Hoover business conference, like the United States chamber of commerce, like the Connecticut Chamber of Commerce, or like a well managed local chamber of commerce, all that this organization can or should do is obtain the facts through intelligent research, disseminate this information, and hope that with this information as a guidance New England business will avoid the pitfalls which have in the past proven so disastrous. It is, of course, true that in acquiring facts, or, as some are prone to say, in making this business survey much invaluable information is obtained and rather unconsciously the great benefactor in that it is directing a safe course along manufacturing, merchandising, financing and advertising lines.

Personally, I feel that much is being accomplished in the upbuilding of a new morale in New England. You recall that in the World War the pendulum of victory starting to swing toward the allies when their morale was sustained and the morale of the opposition began to wane.

In the midst of the football season, we can find other analogy. Those of you who have watched these football conflicts well know of the inspiring effect of the well trained cheer organizations. It is a sustaining a fighting spirit which never concedes defeat and which makes for an optimism which is indispensable in any undertaking.

All Inspiring

In Ultra-conservative New England, the thought of likening our New England Council to the cheer groups of the gridiron might readily be misunderstood so I hasten to add that we in New England are not resorting to high-pressure and sometimes undignified sectional sales plans that have characterized similar movements in some parts of the country.

Rather we are striving to build very healthy state and are our inspiration for preserving that status.

Council's Efforts

Time does not permit a complete resume of the efforts of the New England Council and its wholesome effect upon the business of all kinds but I would like to quote from a recent statement by Redfield Proctor, president of the New England Council, who said:

"The real degree to which the Council is doing its job may best be determined with the following statement of the Council's purposes in mind.

"In the interest of national prosperity, which requires a prosperous New England, the New England Council's functions are:

"To develop and maintain a sense of importance of New England as an economic area of the United States."

"To determine what is necessary to develop and maintain New England's economic progress."

"To promote New England's economic progress."

"To successfully promote New England's progress, it is necessary for us to remember that just as a chair is no stronger than its weakest link, so we cannot have real prosperity in New England until we carry that prosperity into every town and city of New England.

"The New England Council, with the greatest business survey and its disposal, will continue to disseminate information which, if intelligently received and applied, will make for industrial and agricultural success."

"In the interest of this development of those civic activities which make for a better, a healthier and a happier community and we will be rewarded with that contentment of mind on the part of our people which makes for happiness, the greatest of all goals.

"And that you will know how far-reaching is the program of the New England Council, I might mention here the appointment by the six New England Governors of a commission of learned men to study New England railroad situation with the ultimate objective of bringing about a favorable re-adjustment of railroad rates. These and many other matters of the utmost importance to our success are definitely under way.

Your organization and every civic or service organization in New England can lend this movement great impetus and incidentally be accomplishing much for your home city by banding every effort toward stimulating in New England a new feeling of loyalty, a new feeling of personal interest in all that makes for success, and a new faith without which no business or community can enjoy permanent success.

Cascara is Good for the System

What do you do when a sluggish system tells you the bowels need a little help? The best thing yet discovered for the purpose is still the little candy Cascaret! Take one whenever the liver and bowels are not functioning as they should. Cascarets are pleasing to the palate, and pleasant in their action. You eat them just like candy. They work while you sleep. Gentle, but thorough. Cascarets don't stir-up the stomach or upset the system. But they cleanse the entire thirty feet of bowels in one comfortable, thorough action that leaves the system clean and sweet; leaves you with an untainted breath, uncoated tongue, and clear head. Cascarets are made of cascara. —long regarded one of the most beneficial laxatives known to medical science. They are sweetened with pure cane sugar and flavored with real licorice. Children love them. So do most grown-ups! Why take anything harsh when constipation threatens? Whenever a dull headache, lassitude, or sick stomach with loss of appetite warns you of poor elimination, a Cascaret or two is the most harmless form of help you could give a lagging system. Take a candy Cascaret tonight and see how fine you'll feel in the morning—and for days after.

SPEED

The Bridgeport Post, commenting on the admission by Motor Vehicle Commissioner Stockard that Connecticut shows a higher automobile death rate than any of the three abutting states, declares that accidents are increasing faster than the registration of new cars, and instead of gaining ground in the direction of safety we are actually losing ground.

"The next session of the Legislature," says the Post, "if it does nothing else with our motor vehicle laws, should reinforce the present reckless-driving law with a definite speed limit. We should continue to construe reckless driving as a crime, irrespective of speed, and in addition we should construe speeding as direct proof of reckless driving, with a definite top limit not to be exceeded under any circumstances."

This is precisely in line with what the Herald has been insisting on and with what the newspapers of this state will have to insist on, even at the risk of becoming tiresome, unless we are all willing to have the highways of Connecticut continue to rate as slaughterhouses.

The present law, as the Post puts it, "is an indirect incentive to reckless driving because the latter, though forbidden, is not defined clearly." That present law, however, happens to be a particular pet of the Commissioner of Motor Vehicles, whose ideal seems to be fast and furious driving without anything happening (a lovely but quite impossible conception), and the influence of his department will have to be very strenuously combatted if we are to have any betterment of conditions.

In this connection there is one matter that ought to be constantly born in mind when from one source and another we are told that, considering the number of cars in use, there are many less accidents than there used to be. This showing is arrived at by judging figures and dates. It is entirely erroneous when the figures compared are those of the past decade, and of doubtful veracity in any event. As a matter of fact nobody knows how many accidents there are. This year the number reported should fall off heavily, because it is not now required to report collisions in which the damage is less than $25, whereas the damage limit used to be $10. It can be seen at a glance that comparisons in such a situation are of no value.

But the important thing is that we must disregard all statistics on motor accidents save those in which loss of life or injury to persons is involved. The increase in deaths and serious injuries is appalling. And, whether or not speed is responsible for a greater number of crashes, it is speed that brings practically every one of these killings and maimings. A slow moving automobile may bump another but it does not hurt it down a bank or roll it over and over on the road. With high speed we get high impacts. With high impacts we get a ghastly list of the suddenly dead and the frightfully wounded.

We might as well write the Golden Rule into our statute books and expect it to make for road safety as to retain the reckless-driving law this state was so feeble-minded as to adopt.

THE MESSAGE

Those who may have anticipated, in President Hoover's message to Congress, a cock-sure volume of instruction and direction to the nation's legislature are probably somewhat puzzled by the extent to which the President has put the solution of various problems squarely up to Congress with scarcely more than the suggestion that the problems exist. There should be no wonderment. This is merely one more indication of the mental size of the man. It is the superficial fellow, with a smattering of knowledge widely diffused, who thinks that his answer to all puzzles must inevitably be correct. It is the profound person who is aware that, aside from those subjects in which he has himself specialized, composite opinion may be of more value than his own.

We particularly like the way in which Mr. Hoover handled the chain banking subject. In a paragraph he better analyzed the problem than anybody else has in a book. And yet he did not pretend to know, in advance of a profound special study of the question, just how far it may be safe or expedient to permit the establishment of national bank branches, if at all. Obviously it is Mr. Hoover's belief that neither he nor anybody else knows as much about branch banking as ought to be known. In that most fair-minded people will agree, as they will agree that the subject is one that demands not only close but immediate study. This one example is illustrative of many topics discussed as problems for which solution must be sought.

On the other hand, when President Hoover is on ground which he has minutely examined and where he has arrived at definite conclusions, he is never in any doubt whatever. Having solved his problem and proved the solution he demonstrates it, for the benefit of Congress, as lucidly and as confidently as he would demonstrate an engineering fact. He sets himself against the fallacy of burdensome armaments masquerading as agencies of defense in no uncertain terms. And in his dealings with the tariff question he strikes a note of the sheerest simplicity and the profoundest wisdom when he points out the inevitably national character of tariff legislation by saying: "There is no fundamental conflict between the interests of the farmer and the (industrial) worker. Lowering of the standards of living of either tends to destroy the other. The prosperity of the one rests upon the well-being of the other." If the President can succeed in impressing that uncomplicated truth upon the members of Congress the tariff situation will unravel itself.

When the President asks for executive power to reorganize the departments, when he deals with the problem of the railroads, when he talks about a permanent Federal Power Commission, when he demands that the plants at Muscle Shoals be dedicated to the farmers of the United States, he advises Congress in the character of an expert.

There is nothing didactic and nothing perfunctory about the message. Neither is there the slightest striving for sensational effect. It is the communication of a business man to his organization. It is an able and gratifying Presidential document.

GILLETT'S JOB

Approaching eighty, Frederick H. Gillett of Massachusetts was nevertheless expected to seek reelection to the United States Senate next year unless, as would seem to be extremely unlikely, former President Coolidge should decide to run for the seat. In that event Mr. Gillett was well known to be willing to withdraw. So settled was the matter generally deemed, and despite his years so physically capable did Gillett appear to be, that there has been little speculation in the Bay State as to a successor to the senior senator.

Now, however, the sudden announcement that the veteran senator will retire at the end of his present term opens the field for a number of aspiring individuals in the Bay State who long for the feeling of the senatorial toga on their shoulders. As the Springfield Union phrases it, some of "those who seek the honor may be of less advantage to the party and the state than those who are sought."

Among those who seek the honor are Eben S. Draper, Hopedale manufacturer, who does so frankly, and former Governor Fuller, who has become suddenly coy and "undecided," though well known to care no more for Gillett's Senate seat than he does for his right eye. It is highly probable that the Republican party in Massachusetts will seek further—considerably further—than either of these candidates. Neither of them is really of senatorial size. And neither of them, in all probability, could be elected if nominated.

BAD MANNERS

Warned, together with China, by the United States, Great Britain and France jointly, that further hostilities would be regarded by the world as an unjustifiable violation of the Kellogg peace pact, the Russian Soviet Union has made precisely the kind of reply that might have been expected. It is contemptuous, ugly, deliberately ill-mannered.

The action of the American State Department in instituting this proceeding of remonstrance was undertaken, we make no doubt, without any expectation of pleasing results. Secretary Stimson was in all likelihood very well aware that the Soviet government would avail itself of the opportunity to show off in its customary insolent way, for the Reds of Russia very fondly pride themselves on their ill-breeding and their defiance of all "capitalistic" states.

Just the same that action had to be taken, for the record. There are more than half a hundred nations signatory to the Kellogg-Briand pact. It would never do to have the impression go abroad among the peoples of all those nations that two of the signatories could go to war without even a whisper of remonstrance from the rest. In such event the value of the pact would be very largely destroyed.

It makes not the slightest difference with what evil grace Russia stops making war on China, or with what good grace China stops making war on Russia, so long as they stop.

The joint note of protest was probably sent as soon as conditions of actual hostilities justified its sending but it was dispatched none too soon. As the record stands now the Kellogg pact cannot be charged with a failure. That was a matter more important than whether the Soviet Union's foreign office has a fit of sour temper or not.

FINAL TRIUMPH

Though it was never our privilege to know personally Robert Reid, we claim the right at once to mourn his death and to experience, in connection with that sad event, a feeling of very great gratification.

Robert Reid was one of America's most gifted painters, and one of her most celebrated. Three years ago, in the very fulness of his fame and the ripe development of his genius, paralysis struck down his hand. But it did not strike down an indomitable spirit, and while his right arm was permanently useless he began the stupendous task of learning to use the left as the medium of expression of his cunning artistry. Though he was then past sixty he succeeded so marvelously well that last spring two pictures painted by his newly trained left hand were shown in the exhibition of the National Academy of Design and were declared by the critics to possess all the merit of his best work. And again this fall two more of his paintings have been shown and recognized as equal to any of his earlier productions.

There is something glorious about a victory like this. And thousands of persons who wouldn't have known Robert Reid if they had met him will rejoice that he did not die until he had achieved this mastery over misfortune. He must have derived many times as much satisfaction over these latest successes than over all the triumphs of his earlier career.

BY RODNEY DUTCHER, NEA Service Writer

Washington, Dec. 4.—President Hoover was able to enjoy his Thanksgiving turkey, after all. It looks very much as if he were going to succeed in giving a masterly demonstration of the art of turning defeat into victory, upsetting odds that might have wrecked any other president.

A month ago, with his special session of Congress a failure, with the regular Republicans of the Senate prostrate before a coalition which took delight in flouting him and with the ominous echoes of the stock market crash ringing in his ears, Mr. Hoover seemed a very sad failure indeed. Certainly he couldn't have saved the stock market, but it was that most of all which worried him and threatened his prestige. For it was thought reasonably certain that some kind of a business slump would follow.

Then suddenly Mr. Hoover grabbed this charging bull by the horns and began to promise beefsteak dinners for all. He leaped into national leadership in a manner so spectacular and undeniable that he appears right now to be in a stronger position than ever before.

with a program for the spurring of business which will overcome the prospects of the slump toward which so many were looking with apprehension.

A $160,000,000 tax cut is in immediate prospect. The Federal Reserve Board is undertaking to ease credit. Governors and mayors have promised to push public works, Railway executives promise a huge improvement program. Public utilities assure promotion of a vast development program. Steel interests have promised $300,000,000 worth of new construction. The Federal government is adding $175,000,000 to its public buildings program. Representatives of capital and labor have agreed on a program of no wage reductions or demands for increase. Industrial leaders of all varieties are co-operating with various branches of government to whoop up business.

Nothing like this vast effort has ever been tried before. Assuming the fundamental soundness of the national business structure, no one imagines that it can fall to make a large difference in the employment situation of this winter. Perhaps the most important factor of all will be the preservation of a preponderant attitude of optimism rather than one of general pessimism.

Even if minor depression develops, Mr. Hoover seems bound to get credit for saving the situation. He has been doing everything that could be done and the unanimous support he has had from the country and its principal business elements make it virtually impossible for him to gain anything but in-

The club, a well balanced chorus of ladies, rendered a varied program of choral music entirely from memory. A marked improvement was shown last evening in their tone quality, phrasing and shading, and at all times their very able leader, held them under perfect control.

Some very fine choral singing was done in the Russian Dance by Tschalkowsky. This was taken at great speed but the club at once grasped the true Slavic spirit of this number and the diction was especially crisp and clear.

Miss Frances Conrow and Miss Elsie Berggren assisted in two numbers. Both have voices of much beauty and show much promise for the future.

The final work by the club was done in the Rose of Avon-town by Mrs. Beach. This work is a beautiful piece of writing and was sung with rare beauty. The club was assisted by Harold Branch and the Ensemble. At the finish one wished they might hear a second rendering of this great work so well rendered as it was last night.

Harold Branch, the tenor soloist was new to Manchester, but after his first group of songs he had won his audience. He has a beautiful clear voice of rare quality; he sings with much style and finish.

Emil Heimberger and his ensemble gave the audience much pleasure in all their work.

The accompanists were Miss Eva Johnson and Miss Ruth Peppie. Both did excellent work at the keyboard.

The critic sincerely hopes the club and its leader may flourish for many years to come. Manchester

King football holds the boards at the State tonight. The Cubs football team, winners of the town championship, will be presented as a unit, and will be presented with the large silver loving cup awarded the winner in the struggle for the town title by the State theater. And to make the atmosphere more complete, the management has booked, as one of the evening's attractions, the football classic of the season, "The Forward Pass" with Douglas Fairbanks, Jr. and Loretta Young in the featured roles. The same program will also include the Paramount all-talking picture "The Lady Lies," featuring Walter Huston and Claudette Colbert, both Broadway favorites.

"The Forward Pass" is a corking co-ed college love story, with football for the physical punch. And it has a plot that, really is a plot to the story. They supply plenty of physical action, but they are not in it just for that. Every incident contributes to the swift pace of the tale that is unfolded. "The Forward Pass" is a picture anyone will enjoy, and you can't afford to miss the work of the two youngsters which is going to put them right in the front rank of screen artists.

"The Lady Lies" presents three of Broadway's most popular actors, Walter Huston, Claudette Colbert and Charles Ruggles, in an engaging play based on the famous Broadway smash-hit of the same name. It is a comedy drama of modern sophisticates, having to do with the machinations of a scheming family, the children and relatives of Huston, a widower. Charles Ruggles will be remembered for his excellent work as the "drunk" reporter in "The Gentlemen of the Press." Many have expressed a desire to see and hear this famous musical star once more.

IN NEW YORK

New York, Dec. 4.—The bars to America's most luxurious lane have been let down.

Park Avenue, where pampered poolies live in $25,000 apartments and sugar papas loosen their purse strings, has been surrendered to business interests. To be sure, the surrender is conditional at the moment. Seven blocks northward of Grand Central Station have been declared business property by the city planning association. But with such an invasion of tradesmen's territory, it appears only a question of time before this beautifully parked thoroughfare will cease to be the Park Avenue that was.

This, of course, is a great victory for what is left of Fifth Avenue, since its neighbor was fast encroaching on the fashionable tradition. That such business property as invades Park Avenue will be super-swank goes without saying, and elegant apartments will probably still rise above the shoppes, but office buildings will come one by one.

The prodigality of Park Avenue is and has been one of the many glamorous facets of Manhattan. From week to week come whippersnappers of the gayest of goings-on. It has been said that the night revelers toss $10,000 an hour—after midnight—for their various amusements. This, too, is the bootleggers' paradise. It's the part of New York which feels things the hardest when the market drops for it lives from day to day and it gambles on everything including life.

It's where, if you get the significance, that Peggy Joyce lives. Peggy, is 270 Park Avenue, or thereabouts, if and when she's not in Europe. And they do tell me that Peggy's apartment is clustered with photographs of Peggy Joyce.

When Broadway adds up its spenders each year, the largest sums will be found to have come from this beautiful boulevard. One of its more idle rich than others is said to put $25,000 into theater tickets and covert charges per annum. But, then, he may be pinched by the market now.

To me sure, after the great Wall Street decline it was rumored that hundreds of gay papas left Park Avenue and went back to their wives.

The tales that have trickled about town have been many. During the famous Coolidge bull market the story went that a certain host, wanting to be in good standing with certain beautiful chorines and models, had presented each guest at a party with an automobile. The cost of this single entertainment, for some eight or ten persons, ran to about $60,000. But Park Avenue is that way.

More "toy dogs" are said to be on this lane than any other part of the entire earth. It's this section which keeps the dog shops going. From hence come the purps that have their hair curled and their wool shampooed.

In one extremely swanky apartment-hotel, the rates in the tower are quoted at $125 per day. By the year it runs around $40,000.

Rec Noses Out Watertown In Rough Game. 30-28

Big First Quarter Lead Saves Rec From Defeat

Splendid Work by Holland and Faulkner Conspicuous as Locals Score Second Victory; Rec Girls Only Defeated 15 to 8 by Falcons.

Further evidence that basketball is having a tough time trying to displace football was shown at the School street Recreation Center last night when the Rec Five barely succeeded in nosing out the All-Watertown quintet 30 to 28 in a very close and exciting game which resembled a combination of both sports.

A 17 to 2 lead gained in the first period while Watertown was busy finding itself and getting accustomed to the narrow Rec court, proved a life-saver for Manchester. In no other period did the locals outpoint the visitors, Coach Benny Clune made several changes in his lineup but with the regulars back in the lineup during the closing minutes, the Rec Five was unable to hit its usual stride and, in fact, barely staved off defeat.

The brilliant efforts of Tommy Faulkner and Ty Holland saved the day for Manchester. With only two points separating the two teams, each contributed foul goals and then when Green, Watertown center, sunk another sensational basket from mid-floor, they combined to equalize. Holland dribbled up the floor fast, stopped quickly, looped a pass to the fast cutting Faulkner who sunk a close side shot for one of the prettiest plays of the game. Faulkner's passing and Holland's spectacular shooting were the features.

Watertown rallied in the second quarter and at halftime had reduced the 17-2 lead to 20-15. Manchester lead 26 to 24 as the fourth quarter got under way. The Rec plainly missed the services of its regular center, Roy Norris, who had a previous engagement. "Skeek" Watson, Hartford based player, made his initial appearance with the Rec Five playing part of the second half at guard. He looks like a good player but wasn't in the lineup long enough for one to form much of an opinion. He passed very well and is not individually inclined. However he looked a bit out of condition.

The preliminary game found the Rec Girls faring much better than had been expected. With Viola Shearer and Peggy McLaughlin of last year's team back in the lineup, the Rec was a much improved team but still inferior to the strong quintet from the paper city. Miss Fisher's floor work and shooting featured for the winners with Anne Scranton and Peg McLaughlin best for the losers.

Dear Sports Editor:—
If I may have a few lines I would like to pay Joe McClusky a tribute. Two years ago when I was beaten by his brother John, Joe showed the greatest quality that there is in a real sportsman. John and I were leading the field and instead of showing partiality he gave lemons to both of us. Now he is the outstanding runner Manchester ever produced.

Many people think Joe was over-rated but they are greatly mistaken. When you take into consideration that he had to travel from college to compete here, the experienced runners against him, and his first time in a race of more than three miles we should take our hats off to him.

In the next Olympics, you just wait and see if Manchester isn't represented by Joe. Here's wishing you everything Joe. In a couple of years they'll need field glasses to see the men in back of you. Sincerely yours,
—Frank "Duke" Haraburda.

P. S. Here's to Mr. Lloyd for making a success of this race for the past three years, as he has made it what it is.

A campaign for the expression of individualism in men's clothing has been started in London. If that's what you see when men play golf, it doesn't seem so wonderful.

Junior Basketball Loop Starts Saturday Night

At the meeting of representatives of junior basketball teams held at the Recreation Center Saturday evening, it was decided to postpone the opening of the Rec Junior League until next Saturday night, December 7 at 8:00 p. m. when the first two teams to mingle will go into action. There will be two games played each Wednesday and Saturday night thereafter.

The Phantoms, Ramblers, Warriors, Cardinals, The Taffy Five and the Original Taffys have entered. Highland Park had a representative at the meeting but as some of its men are over 21 years of age was not admitted. They want to enter very much and will attempt to get together a team of men under 21 years and will report to the next meeting of managers.

The DeMolay team will probably enter if it can be arranged to play their games on Saturday only. There is some talk in the air of an east

Happenny Most Valuable Player On Cubs Eleven

Sterling Guard Receives One More Vote Than Farr and Dahlquist from Special Committee of Five Persons.

By the narrow margin of one point, Tommy Happenny was last night voted the most valuable member of the Cubs football team by a specially appointed committee of five persons. The husky Cub guard barely beat out "Ding" Farr and "Yump" Dahlquist.

Tommy Happenny.

Matchmaker, Ed. Hurley has assembled an interesting supporting card for the fifteen-round state lightweight championship bout between Mickey Flahive of Hartford and Bobby Mays of New London which will be staged tomorrow night at Foot Guard hall. Nick Christy the Bristol whirlwind, will meet Cecil Kid Como of New York in the semi-final of eight rounds. Then there will be an intermediate bout of six rounds in which Vin LaBella of Middletown, who is going along at a fast clip, meets Roland Roche of Holyoke. Two four-rounders will open the show, Joe Zotter of New Britain clashing with Benjie Masey of New York in one and Johnny Mastro of Hartford taking on Johnny Landos of New Bedford in the other.

The star bout promises a real battle. Flahive showed both ring skill and good punching power in his recent bout with George Day in which he outclassed the New Haven battler. Mckey shows to best advantage when hard pressed and Mays is looked to to give the Hartford boy the hardest test of his career.

Mays is in good shape and showing up well in gym workouts at New Bedford where he is making his home just at present. Mays decisively defeated Billy Murphy of Lowell in Boston last week and he is slated for bouts there with Lope Tenorio and Andy Callahan. Bobby has an edge in experience on Flahive, but the latter shapes as the possible 50 points while Dahlquist and Farr each received 34. Pete Conroy and Tommy Melkie each polled 30. Billy Skoneski was given more votes than Captain Walter Harrison. The committee consisted of U. J. Lupien, R. V. Treat, H. H. Bissell, T. F. Kelley and T. W. Stowe. Each man selected ten players in the order of their value as he saw matters. The man he placed first was given ten points, the second one nine and so on down to one point.

Just to show how widely separated were the views of the five men, each one of the first three men, Happenny, Farr and Dahlquist, received two votes from a different judge. Two failed to give a vote to Captain Walter Harrison. Yet, despite this handicap, they managed to finish above the rest. Happenny received two firsts, a third and fourth. Farr was given two seconds and two thirds. Dahlquist was given a first, two seconds and a fifth.

Pete Conroy, Tommy Melkie and "Chuckie" Minicucci were the only three players to receive votes by all five judges. "Lefty" St. John was given the lowest vote but that Cleveland Boxer Seeks Revenge for His Friend, "Lena" Blackburne.

Chicago, Dec. 4.—(AP)—Dan Daly of Cleveland who professes to be yearning for an opportunity to gain revenge for "Lena" Blackburne, former White Sox manager will get his chance Monday night.

Daly has consented to be the first ring opponent of Art Shires, the "Bad boy" of the White Sox who decorated Blackburne with two black eyes last summer.

"I am a close personal friend of Blackburne's and I want to get a crack at this much self-advertised tough boy from Texas," Daly said in his successful application for the match. "This attack on Blackburne, a man much older than himself, was the work of a coward. I'll prove that Shires does most of his fighting orally and give Blackburne some revenge."

form a lie, Dundee went on quietly, but relentlessly: "While you were waiting, Sevier, you smoked one of your favorite cigars, and put the stub in a flower pot. Here it is. . . I see you recognize it," he added, but without triumph, as the man's eyes widened.

"I never—" "All right, Sevier," Dundee interrupted. "As I said, you planned for weeks to rob Mrs. Hogarth and you tried to get Cora Barker to help you do the job. She refused several times, the last occasion being Saturday night at the Little Queen Theater. Once you tried alone—entering Mrs. Hogarth's room from your own room by means of a loosened board in the clothes closet. Mrs. Hogarth saw you and later warned the police that you were trying to rob her, and that her life as well as her money was in danger."

As Dundee spoke, very quietly, almost soothingly, the prisoner appeared to be shriveling up. But he obeyed Dundee; he did not speak. Only his eyes—held as if hypnotized—alternately denied, agreed, or pleaded.

The WOMAN'S DAY

Many a woman, with plenty of the old-fashioned desire to dispense hospitality, particularly during the holiday season, would just love to give a swell, bang-up dinner, but—

There's Julia—we'd want her—but she is eating nothing these days but celery and consomme—

And there's Mrs. X, who looks so marvelous she is an ornament to any table—but she's anemic and eats nothing but calves liver—

And there's Gertrude—she eats only vegetables—and raw ones at that, so she isn't accepting any invitations for a while that include dinners—

And so it goes. Dieting is almost as much of a menace to hospitality as prohibition. For if every person you know is dieting, but none of those two play the same system—what are you going to do?

YOUR CHILDREN

by Olive Roberts Barton ©1928 by N.E.A. Service, Inc.

The other day I spoke about a mother in a cafeteria who let her little four-year-old go out into the cold night for a long ride, hungry, because he wouldn't eat his poorly-cooked spinach, his cold, tasteless mashed potato and his cottage cheese, which also was bad.

I wanted to know, and expressed the opinion that, probably she didn't do so because these things were not on the list she had picked up somewhere for his diet, and she thought it better to let him go, empty and hungry out into the cold for his hundred-mile ride than to step on the law of the Medes and the Persians. As far as that went, the child should have been in bed.

Better to Go Hungry? Judging from some of the letters I have received, the mother was right and I was wrong—

I don't agree. I think it is right and proper to eat, a child should eat the correct things. If he won't eat, then I'd investigate.

Seek Variety in Diet I'd get a good general diet list from the family doctor or a dependable book on feeding children (there are many of them) and make up a list varied enough not to tire him. It depends somewhat on age, but the vitamin foods, as we know, are always necessary—vegetables, milk, butter-fats, fruit, fish, chicken, lamb, or a little beef, also eggs.

One would think that there is enough variety in most diets to please the most ticklish appetites and yet cover the vitamin schedule. But perhaps not. Back to the same old question: If a child isn't hungry enough to eat good food as it is given to him, should it be taken away and nothing offered him until the next meal?

Then I'd try to tempt him!

HEALTH

PROPER DIET IS ESSENTIAL FACTOR IN TUBERCULOSIS PREVENTION

By DR. MORRIS FISHBEN Editor Journal of the American Medical Association and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine

When a person becomes infected, the organisms of the disease seize upon him due to the fact that the germs are virulent and that he does not possess in his body the factors for resistance to the germs.

Feeding experiments on animals have shown that the omission of certain vitamins from the diet tends to lower the resistance of the animals to disease.

If a person does not have proper nutrition, he does not develop properly, his nervous system will be unstable, and he will succumb easily to fatigue. In tuberculosis, particularly, proper feeding is of the utmost importance.

Sister Mary's Kitchen

When a stew is properly made, it is one of the most satisfying and nourishing foods that can be served to a hungry family.

The men of Labrador and Newfoundland suffer greatly from tuberculosis, although they live an outdoor existence and their houses are thoroughly ventilated.

Their diets are, however, quite one-sided and deficient in vitamins. There is a considerable amount of experimental evidence to indicate that diets which are deficient in vitamin A and vitamin D tend particularly to the development of tuberculosis.

One investigator found that when rats and rabbits were given a diet deficient in vitamin A they showed increased susceptibility to anthrax and pneumonia. Indeed, among all the vitamin studies that have been made, the evidence seems to be the greatest in favor of vitamin A as a disease-resisting vitamin.

The point is of special importance in relation to the new substitute for cod liver oil. These substitutes, particularly viosterol, represent essentially vitamin D

DAILY RADIO PROGRAM

Wednesday, December 4.

Milton Nobles' famous old play, "Risen From the Dead," a three-act melodrama of New York City's Bowery life will be enacted by Hank Simons and his show boat troupe over WABC and the Columbia stations at 11 o'clock Wednesday night. An interesting point in the play is the fact that the villain who is murdered in a week two men were murdered in a peaceful Illinois town with no clue to the mystery. After local authorities had exhausted every source, a ghost, arising from a tomb in the dark of the night, exacted a promise from the friends of one of the murdered men. The promise was to keep a midnight vigil in the house of the widow whose husband had been murdered. A series of exciting events. A special variety program will be offered by the Rev. E. J. SENSE and NONSENSE

To The Girls! How sweet they look in filmy robes. The girls who trip with frisky toes. Along the breezy lanes. To see them is to love them all; It's funny how we're prone to fall For airy fairy Janes.

FLAPPER FANNY SAYS

A love knot should be tied with a single bean.

And why when clad in skimpy skirt. At least two feet above the dirt. Can you sit there at ease While naughty winter breezes blow Your little shirtlets to and fro Above your dimpled knees.

Even Sassy Claus gets plenty of knocks from a lot of gazaboos who think he owes them something. Girl: "Please buy some Christmas seals, mister?" Man: "I'm sorry, miss, but I bought my wife one last year and I'm still paying for it."

SOME VACATIONS ARE ONE MONTH ON THE SANDS AND ELEVEN ON THE ROCKS. The man who philosophizes about love rarely loves. It is not generally believed that a liquid eyes is essential to poring over a book.

reflection: - The good dinner that you missed. We like castles in the air because we have never lived in them. Within a few weeks we will again be face to face with the annual need of a home for feeble and broken resolutions.

George: "I'll give you a hundred dollars to do my worrying for me." Henry: "Great! Where's the hundred?" George: "That's your first worry."

Geoffrey: "Well, well, so you're going to marry your wife again, after divorcing her only a few months ago!" Godfrey: "Yes, I am - after I heard her lawyer's description of her at the trial I immediately knew she was the only woman in the world for me."

CONSERVATIVES WIN. Tamworth, Eng., Dec. 4.-(AP)-The Conservatives were victorious in yesterday's by-election in the Tamworth division of Warwickshire, retaining the seat formerly held by Sir Edward Dillea who recently resigned.

Who dropped the anchor in the sea? That was a real mean trick on me! Hey! Toss a rope where I can reach it. I will grab a hold."
