

LA GUARDIA DECLARES DRY LAW INVALID

New York Congressman Argues That But Six States Re-Ratified Amendment Within Time Limit.

Washington, Jan. 18.—(AP)—Arguing that the Eighteenth Amendment had by its own terms become invalid, Representative La Guardia, Republican, New York, today raised a point of order against appropriations for prohibition enforcement included in the pending Treasury-Post Office supply bill.

The New Yorker contended that the amendment had never been properly ratified, basing this assertion upon the third section of the amendment which says that the amendment "shall be inoperative unless it shall have been ratified as an amendment to the Constitution by the Legislatures of the several States provided in the Constitution, within seven years from the date of the submission thereof to the states by the Congress."

This section, he said, came into force when the amendment as a whole was first ratified by thirty-six states. Coming into force at that time, he interpreted it as stipulating that it must again be ratified by thirty-six states or at the expiration of the seven-year period the entire amendment became inoperative. Ten states, he said, had gone through what he saw as the necessary procedure of a second ratification.

Cannot Be Ignored

Asserting that "we cannot ignore section three, or brush it aside as meaningless," La Guardia said "we cannot accept the theory which some will urge, that it had reference to the ratification of the amendment and has now no force or effect."

The section must be construed, he said, with the same rules of construction applicable to other sections of the amendment. The mere fact, he continued, that the section described the method of "re-ratification" for original ratification indicates that section three is a novel provision in our constitution limiting the life of the Eighteenth Amendment.

FLAMES DESTROY HOME OF SENATOR

Pittman Residence, Show Place of Washington, Burned; Loss of $50,000.

Washington, Jan. 18.—(AP)—Fire destroyed the home of Senator Key Pittman of Nevada, early today, wiping out one of the show places of suburban Washington.

Senator and Mrs. Pittman escaped unharmed and were able to remove considerable furniture and personal effects from the reach of the flames.

The Pittman home is an extensive estate on Ridge road, near the Maryland line, with extensive grounds overlooking the Potomac. The residence was a two and one-half story frame building. The upper stories were completely wrecked and the apartments below stairs were badly damaged by water. Senator Pittman estimated the loss at from $50,000 to $75,000.

Carry Out Furniture

The Senator said he was aroused by smoke at 3:30 a. m. and after awakening Mrs. Pittman, they dressed hurriedly and proceeded to carry furniture outside, assisted by servants, whose quarters were undamaged.

The firemen encountered several handicaps in battling the blaze. Sirens falling heavily and the later changed to rain. Fire hydrants were at a considerable distance and hoses of from a quarter to a half mile had to be laid. All the apparatus in that section of the district of Columbia had to be called before sufficient hose was available.

First reports were that there had been an explosion also, but the firemen said this probably arose from the loud noise caused by the falling of the roof.

Pittman was unable to give any cause for the blaze, but said he suspected a defective flue.

AMBASSADOR BIDS GERMANY GOOD-BYE

President Hindenburg Says Schurman Helped to Cement Nations' Friendships

Berlin, Jan. 18.—(AP)—Jacob Gould Schurman, retiring American ambassador to Germany, today was received by President von Hindenburg and presented his letter of recall. This was followed by a luncheon in the executive palace.

The president had requested the ambassador to dine privately before the formal luncheon, so that he might take leave of him in an intimate personal meeting. As both men were devoted to the late Dr. Gustav Stresemann and were fond of Heidelberg, the conversation gravitated about these as the chief topics.

At the luncheon the president paid warm tribute to Ambassador Schurman thanking him for his services as ambassador. He referred to Dr. Schurman's long acquaintance with Germany which had enabled him to interpret Germany's present position correctly.

"Thus you helped materially to re-establish the good old relations between Germany and the United States," the president said.

President's Words

Extolling Dr. Schurman's aid to German science and cultural endeavors President von Hindenburg remarked: "The new university building on the shores of Neckar will lastingly couple your name with this center of German intellectual labor." In a toast to his guest the president expressed the wish that Dr. Schurman might "in his homeland, for a long time to come, be enabled in health and vigor to look back upon the rich successes of his life."

Schurman's Reply

Dr. Schurman, replying in German, said that to have contributed in any degree to the restoration and promotion of the "good old friendly relations" between the two countries had been a privilege and an honor which he would always regard as the highest in his life. Emphasizing America's debt to German science and culture Dr. Schurman referred to the new American embassy in Berlin as a symbol of our indebtedness to venerable Heidelberg University.

Pledging, as a private citizen, to endeavor to cultivate good understanding and friendship between the American and German people, Dr. Schurman closed with a toast to President von Hindenburg and the welfare and prosperity of the German people.

Chancellor Mueller, the French ambassador, the presidents of Berlin and Heidelberg Universities, Secretary John C. Wiley, of the American Embassy, Col. Edward M. Carpenter, United States military attaché, Captain George M. Baum, U. S. Naval attaché, representatives of the foreign office and other notables.

PUBLIC UTILITIES OFFER A DEFENSE

Inform Federal Board They Are Compelled to Fight Public Ownership Parties

Washington, Jan. 18.—(AP)—An array of nearly 100 exhibits collected to support the contention that the electric utilities of the country were compelled to engage in publicity and related activities to counteract the efforts of public ownership supporters were offered to the Federal Trade Commission today by Bernard N. Weadock, special counsel of the joint committee on National Utility associations.

Culminating the presentation of evidence in defense of the activities of the utilities which have been under investigation by the commission, Weadock asked to have the exhibits placed in the investigation record on the ground that publicity distributed by his clients could not be appraised fairly without an understanding of the methods employed by individuals and organizations opposed to the private companies. Weadock sought to show that an organized campaign had been conducted to "disrupt and socialize the industries of the country" by organizations campaigning in schools, colleges, newspapers and magazines and that Senators and Congressmen had aided these efforts.

POLICE ARREST 6 SUSPECTS IN McNAMEE DEATH

Youth Captured in Waterbury After He Fires His Last Bullet; Four Men Held in New Britain.

Bristol, Jan. 18.—(AP)—The state not having had time enough to prepare the complaints, six men arrested last night as suspects in the slaying of Patrolman James McNamee of this city Thursday night were not taken into Bristol City Court this morning for arraignment. They were held by police elsewhere, four at New Britain and two at Waterbury, until wanted in court here.

The men under arrest and the charges which will be preferred against them by Prosecutor A. J. Rich, are: John Brophy, 19, homicide; Bernard and Henry Schragger, brothers, William Slade and Allen Norton, being accessories before and after the crime and Kenneth Gallagher, breach of the peace with request that he be held as material witness.

Mr. Rich said the accused will be sent for during the day and they will be arraigned before Judge William J. Malone late in the day for a preliminary hearing. He also said effort will be made to have the men held for the Superior Court of Hartford county on probable cause at this hearing.

Gallagher's Story

Brophy and Henry Schragger were arrested in Waterbury and Gallagher in New Britain. Gallagher is said to have told the police that on Wednesday he sold a weapon to Brophy. His arrest was made at the New Britain police station when he called to see Slade and ascertain what the charges were and after he had spoken of selling the gun to Brophy.

A finger print on an automatic picked up by the police is said to have been that of Henry Schragger and it is believed by the police this gun was the one used by him during the gun fight which marked the chase late yesterday. Brophy was arrested on the street of Waterbury after he had exchanged shots

BLIZZARD'S TOLL 14 IN FAR WEST

Coldest Weather in History Recorded in Three States; Snowing in South.

By Associated Press.

King Winter today ruled the north, middle western and several of the southwestern states and had made his influence felt throughout the western half of Dixie.

In Arkansas and Tennessee he hampered levee workers battling high water of Mississippi valley's interior streams, while in Indiana his cold blasts brought added misery to marooned families in flood districts.

Chicago reported that sub-zero weather had crippled the north and middle western states. The lowest temperatures were reported in Duluth, Minn., and Des Moines, Iowa, which recorded 26 below. In Chicago the temperature was 15 below and still lower in the surrounding suburbs.

Blizzard Raging

A blizzard slowly making its exit from the northern Rocky mountains caused temperature records of a dozen states to fall in the southwest and took a toll of 14 lives. Texas, Oklahoma and Kansas were in the grip of one of the most severe cold waves of their history.

Zero weather penetrated Arkansas and snow covered the western half of Dixie. The snowfall ranged from five to seven inches deep. In Arkansas and Memphis and Nashville, Tenn., reported a steady fall. Sleet pelted Atlanta and north Georgia as the temperature slipped through the low twenties.

The cold brought added suffering to marooned families in flood districts of the Wabash and White rivers in Indiana.

The storm out of the west brought snow to New York. The temperature, however, was well above the zero mark.

From San Francisco came reports that the cold weather had begun to retreat slowly from some parts of the far west.

STORM WARNING

Washington, Jan. 18.—(AP)—The Weather Bureau today issued the following storm warning: Advisory: Northeast storm warnings south of Block Island to Cape Hatteras. Disturbance central near Cape Hatteras will move northeastward with rapidly increasing intensity attended by gales diminishing late tonight.

WORLD LEADERS

Leaders from various nations in the naval disarmament conference opening at London on Jan. 21, are pictured here: 1, Premier Ramsay MacDonald of Great Britain; 2, Secretary of State Henry L. Stimson, leader of the U. S. delegation; 3, General Charles G. Dawes, U. S. Ambassador to Great Britain and member of U. S. delegation; 4, Vice Admiral Acton of the Italian delegation; 5, Admiral T. Takarabe, head of Japanese delegation; 6, Andre Tardieu, head of French delegation.

Nations' Rivalries May Disrupt Parley

France, Italy and Japan May Balk at Parity Plans—Submarine Issue to Be Real Problem.

London, Jan. 18.—The great naval conference of the United States, Great Britain, France, Japan and Italy, in many ways can be called the most important international meeting since the allied powers met in Paris to draft the treaty of Versailles.

If the conference, opening here on Jan. 21, is truly successful, it will mean a genuine step along the path, not of total naval disarmament, but of cutting down navies and government expenses.

If it is unsuccessful, it may open the way to renewed competition in the building of ships of war and new tax burdens.

If the conference depended upon the United States and Great Britain alone, it would be an enormous success. The government, the press and the public of the United States and Great Britain all seem in favor of real action. But France, Italy and Japan are all more or less ready to spill the beans and the chief trouble-maker threatens to be France, as it has been in so many international conferences.

Under the Washington treaty of 1922, the five great naval powers agreed to a fixed ratio of capital ships and provided that in eight years a new conference should be held to determine what changes should be made in battleship construction. Also, under the treaty, the acceptance of a new ratio of capital ships should start in 1931. These matters will, therefore, come

Born in Lithuania

Judge Lourie was born in Oran, Lithuania, June 23, 1878, and came to this country with his parents when six years old. He graduated from Boston English school and the Boston University law school, receiving his degree "cum laude" from the latter institution.

PARLEY IN LONDON IS TO BE ON AIR

Historic Conference to Be Broadcast; King George's Voice to Be Heard Here.

New York, Jan. 18.—(AP)—History in the making far across the seas, is to be brought to the fireside of America's great radio family for the first time.

Opening ceremonies and daily and weekly reports of the five-power naval conference, open next Tuesday, will be carried direct from London to every nook and corner of the United States with the aid of short waves and two great nationwide broadcast chains.

Both the National Broadcasting Company and the Columbia Broadcasting System have made elaborate arrangements to give listeners all of the details of the great meeting of nations. Both will broadcast the speech of King George of Great Britain opening the parley, which is expected to last several weeks, and both have sent radio reporters to the other side to report by air on the progress of the discussions.

Co-operation of the British Broadcasting Corporation has made possible this first practical plan of bringing news events from any section of the world to the home of the radio set owner. Heretofore, in experiments conducted to determine the feasibility of an international exchange of programs, entertainment has predominated. Now, through-use of the short wave stations, 5GSW, Chelmsford, Eng., a B. B. C. unit, and its microphones in London, details of a world conference will be reported by radio direct.

In the broadcast of King George's speech, which will be made from the royal gallery of the House of Lords and which is to be the second pickup up from that memorial hall in three years, ten microphones will be used. After the King's talk, it is planned to continue the broadcast to America for an hour or so to make available the speech by Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald as well as his addresses of some of the conference delegates.

Begins at 6 O'clock

The broadcast is to begin at 6 a. m. Eastern time, January 21.

Besides the opening ceremonies, NBC has arranged to give daily summaries from London by its representative, William Hard, American newspaperman and broadcaster. He is to talk 15 minutes each day, starting at approximately 1 p. m. Eastern time. The broadcast is to take part of the time usually devoted to the National farm and home hour, whose customary networks will be augmented by all of the NBC associated stations from coast to coast.

During one of these broadcasts, Secretary of State Henry Stimson, who is head of the American delegation, has agreed to address listeners in America. It is also hoped to have other prominent speakers at later periods.

Frederic William Wile, sent to London to represent CBS, will make weekly reports of the conference progress over that chain, beginning at 8:15 p. m. eastern time, to be on the air for 15 minutes or so.

Mr. Wile is a Washington newspaperman and has been making weekly talks on Columbia of activities of the national capital.

Wile's Talks

The first of Mr. Wile's weekly reports will be made Thursday evening, January 23.

Engineers have been at work several weeks to insure the success of the broadcasts.

Stations which will carry King George's address follow:

NBC chain—WEAF, WJZ, WEEI, WTIC, WJAR, WTAG, WCHS, WRC, WGY, WCAE, WTAM, WWJ, KSD, WCV, WDF, WML, KSTP, WEEC, WVEA, WPTF, WPT, WJAX, WEAS, WAPI, KVOO, KTHS, WFAX, KPBC, WJDX, CKGW, WJS, WHEM, KDKA, KWK, WLW, WJR, WREN, KYW, WFI, WGR, WFOJ, WSAI, WGN, WIBO, KSL, WFDJ, WSB, WKY, KOA, WFAB, KFO, KGO, KFI, KGW, KOMO, KIH.

CBS chain—WABC, WNAC, WEAN, WCAU, WCAO, WMAL, WHP, WJAS, WLBW, WFBL, WHK, WFPM, WMAQ, WBBM, KOL, WISN, WCO, WIBW, KPBF, WBCN, WMT, WNNC, WDEJ, WBRN, WLAC and others, including PACIFIC coast.

Virtually the same groups will broadcast the weekly and daily reports.

MacDONALD GREET'S NAVAL DELEGATES; HOLDS CONFERENCE

Local Man Gets Unusual Honor Monday—Presents River Discussion Case.

London, Jan. 18.—(AP)—The full American delegation to the naval disarmament conference headed by Secretary of State Stimson, was received by Prime Minister MacDonald at No. 10 Downing street during the noon hour today.

Long Conference

Charles G. Dawes, American ambassador to Great Britain, who is a delegate himself, accompanied the party to the premier's official residence for their formal visit. Secretary Stimson had a three-hour talk with the prime minister yesterday.

The meeting developed into something more than a formal call, as it lasted for an hour and a quarter during which the entire American delegation for the first time conferred with the entire British delegation.

Arthur Henderson, British secretary of state, and A. V. Alexander, First Lord of the Admiralty, both members of the British naval delegation, remained through only part of the meeting.

Meanwhile the preparations of the other delegations, both through discussions among themselves and conversations with other delegates moved with a rapidity which filled the entire day.

Cancel Plans

The pressure of duties in the final rush of preparations became so heavy that most of the officials concerned cancelled the week-end parties previously prepared in order to hold themselves in readiness for immediate call.

Prime Minister MacDonald himself even abandoned the plan to spend Sunday resting at Chequers in anticipation of the double burden of the naval conference and Parliament both opening the same day.

The headquarters of the various delegations, as well as No. 10 Downing street, showed constant activity all morning as the work of organization went on rapidly for Tuesday's opening meeting.

It was stated authoritatively that the Anglo-American discussions at Downing street today were entirely general in their nature, technical problems not being touched upon. The chief subject of conversation was concerned with the obstacles which must be met by the conference in its first proceedings.

All the delegates spent the afternoon resting and making formal calls. Ambassadors Dawes invited all to dine at the American embassy this evening.

A large crowd watched the arrival and departure of the American delegation and got its chief thrill from the manoeuvres of a cameraman with an elaborate talking picture machine who rushed across the road when the delegates emerged and got busy with his apparatus. Extra police had been stationed around the entrance to the prime minister's residence, but they had no difficulty and merely watched the proceedings.

ASK RECEIVERSHIP FOR FOX COMPANY

Class A Stock Drops $4.75 a Share on Exchange as the News Breaks.

New York, Jan. 18.—(AP)—Application for the appointment of a receiver in equity for the Fox Film Corporation was filed in Federal Court today by Ira M. Gast, of Rutherford, N. J., a Class A stockholder.

William Fox heads the list of co-defendants. The Fox Film Corporation and 11 others are named defendants.

The Petition

The petitioner asks that a receiver be appointed for the preservation of the business and the assets of the corporation and to operate them for the benefit of all equally. It also asks for a restraining order enjoining the defendants from diverting assets of the corporation to any other corporation or commingling them with assets of any other corporation; also that the Fox Securities Corporation be restrained from selling, pledging or encumbering any of the property which has been transferred to it.

Fox Film Class A stock dropped $4.75 a share on the New York Stock Exchange to $18 on announcement of the receivership application. Soon thereafter, however, it rallied to $20. On first intimation of a receivership action, a few weeks ago, the stock dropped as low as $16.12. The high record for 1929 was $108.42.

NEW JERSEY FINANCIER DIES IN PLANE CRASH

Was Flying Own Machine in Florida—Pilot Who Was With Him, Is Injured.

Jacksonville, Fla., Jan. 18.—(AP)—E. Sinclair Margulies, Newark, N. J., financier was killed and Vernie E. Moon, a professional pilot, injured when their airplane crashed in South Jacksonville yesterday.

Margulies who was 32, was en route home from the air races at Miami. He was making the flight in his own biplane accompanied by Moon, his instructor, and was at the controls at the time of the accident. Moon survived mainly from shock.

He said Margulies was looking for a place to make a forced landing when the ship nosed over and fell. Witnesses said that shortly before the crash the plane's motor was missing badly.

DEFENSE RESTS

Camden, N. J., Jan. 18.—(AP)—Standing on the first statement she made that she did not kill Dorothy and Timothy Rogers, the defense in the trial of Gladys May Paris, charged with murder in the first degree, closed its case today with the defendant as the only witness.

Miss Parks, who is 35, spent nearly three hours on the witness stand yesterday. She stood flat upon her stomach that Dorothy had died unaccountably after a light whipping and that Timothy had died by an accidental fall down stairs.

Her counsel said they felt she made such a good impression that they would not call any other witness and when the case opened today, they announced that they rested.

RESULTS!

Two different classified ads did their work yesterday. Mrs. J. Sapienza of Oak street unfortunately lost a sum of money yesterday morning, but had it returned by a reader of the Herald last night.

Nothing magical about this. Just real results that prove the Herald Classified pays. CAN GET for an ad taker.

HERE ARE WINNERS OF STATE CONTEST

Boys Who Will Manage Local Theater During Coming Week Announced.

Edward Hansen, president of the senior class of Manchester High school, left end on last year's football team, and member of the editorial staff of Somnibus, received more than 700 votes in the final round of the State theater popularity contest and won first place with 924 votes, 34 ballots ahead of Russell Wilson with 890. Clarence Foley was third with 432.

All the winners listed here are asked to report at the State theater some time today for instructions from Manager Hugh Campbell. They will take charge at the opening show tomorrow evening and at every show during the week.

The remaining winners are: Thomas Danaher, 424 votes; Raymond Moszer, 328; Joseph Foley, 243; Otto Cook, 214; Danny Shea, 199; Henry Simler, 199; Norman Henthall, 190; Anthony Diana, 165; Raymond Della Fera, 165 and Francis Peckham, 164.

As a consolation prize to those boys who did not place among the winners Manager Campbell has arranged for a contest in connection with the Boys' Week that will test the ingenuity and originality of any boy. There will be suitable prizes for the first three winners.

To present an original scheme to advertise the pictures playing at the State Theater during the week. For example if one was "Tiger Rose," a fellow could rig up a reproduction of a tiger and carry a rose. Hit the two together and you have Tiger rose.

The picture Sunday, Monday and Tuesday will prove a hard nut to crack being "Her Own Desire." What can you think of to illustrate it? On Wednesday and Thursday however "The Viking" and "So Long Letty" come to the State and the former should be a cinch. A cardboard Viking ship or something of that nature, but think up your own. Friday and Saturday the feature will be "The 13th Chair" another easily adapted to illustration. For example, a small chair with the thirteen painted on it. Get the point? All right. Put your thinking caps on and dig up some ideas. Bring them to the State Theater and win a prize. Let's go!

WOMAN TORTURED BY MASKED MEN. Oswego, N. Y., Jan. 18.—(AP)—Threats of torture by fire, forced Mrs. Charles Pigney, of Oswego, to this country, to give the combination of a private safe in the Pigney home to two masked robbers, and she was reported in a serious condition today from shock.

Mrs. Pigney, alone in the house late yesterday, came down stairs after hearing a door close and was confronted by the two whom she described as between 45 and 50 years old. They demanded the combination. She refused. "Come across," one of them threatened, "or we will burn your feet." Again she refused. They removed her shoes and stockings and started to hold lighted matches to her feet. They got the combination, opened the safe, took $80 and fled.

FAVORITE MELODIES PROGRAM ENJOYABLE

Second Congregational Church Men Present All Request Musical Program.

"An Evening of Favorite Melodies," the all-request program presented at Second Congregational church last evening under the auspices of the Men's club of the church proved as delightful in realization as anticipation. Mrs. R. K. Anderson, wife of the club's president, deserves all praise for the idea and the excellent way in which it was carried out. Mrs. Anderson was formerly organist of the church and for fully two hours she accompanied the vocalists and played her choice of numbers from those requested for organ rendition. They ranged from familiar hymns and popular songs to the classical compositions of Schubert and Handel.

There was no formal program so that the appreciative audience was on tiptoe to recognize the selections and to know what was coming next. A ripple of amusement went through the auditorium as the popular "Tiptoe Through the Tulips" of the present day, "Jingle Bells" and others of an earlier period followed one after another from the organ.

Mrs. Grace Symington, soprano of the church quartet, sang with beautiful expression, "Songs My Mother Taught Me" and "A Perfect Day." While the work of all the musicians was greeted with the heartiest applause none responded to requests for a length of the program and Mrs. Anderson's desire to play as many of the request numbers as possible.

Mrs. Bessie Turner, contralto of the church quartet sang most effectively "Long, Long Ago" and "Love's Old Sweet Song" and perhaps one of the most delightful numbers of the whole noteworthy program was the duet "Whispering Hope" by Mrs. Turner and Mrs. Symington.

The singing by a male quartet composed of Sidney Strickland, Ralph Brown, C. Elmore Watkins and Charles Robbins was especially well received, as male quartet numbers usually are. Their voices blended admirably and Mrs. Anderson's charge consists of Arthur Knofa, Anders Sonnikson and Robert May.

All ice used in town at present is being trucked from Hartford and prospects for a good supply of ice is set back until later in February. Fred W. DEATHS

Thomas Edward Collins, 79, of 1067 Main street died Friday night at 10:30 after a two weeks' illness. He was born April 20, 1850 in Niagara Falls, Ontario and as a young man was called out, a member of the militia to repel the Fenian raiders.

Coming to the United States at the age of 19 he lived in Hartford for one year then moving to Bridgeport and later coming to Manchester where he has resided for the past 28 years.

Mr. Collins was foreman of construction on the Howard and Porter reservoir and later entered the employ of Cheney Brothers. As outside foreman for E. J. Holl he was in charge of the development known as Green Acres on East Center street, as well as several others.

Mr. Collins has not been in good health for the last two years and has been confined to his bed for the last two weeks. The survivors are two daughters, Miss Gertrude K. Collins of South Manchester, a nurse and Mrs. Elizabeth C. McGinty of New Britain.

The funeral services will be held Monday in Bridgeport.

DOUBLE BEACH HOUSE IS DESTROYED BY FIRE

Branchford, Jan. 18.—(AP)—The Double Beach House, one of the oldest summer hotels on the east shore was destroyed by fire last night. The damage was estimated at about $20,000.

The building was owned by the Hazzelbach Estate of New Haven but had been leased to Joseph Alexander, also of New Haven who owned the furnishing and fixtures. Police said that twice during the present winter they had received complaints of boys breaking into the hotel, which had been unoccupied since last fall. Automobile parties, the police said, also have made practice of parking near the building.

The oldest wing of the hotel is said to have been built about 100 years ago.

BANK ALARM BRINGS COPS IN 2 MINUTES

For the second time this week the burglar alarm system at the Home Bank and Trust Company on Main street sounded today due to a short circuit caused by workmen repairing telephone cables.

In exactly two minutes after the alarm sounded Sergeant John Crockett and Patrolman Harold Heffron were at the bank.

The false alarm, which sounded at 8:08 this morning, causing quite a bit of excitement among the comparatively few people who happened to be on the street at the time.

Two Battles. The gun battle last night was the second in which Brophy engaged police yesterday. Earlier in the day at a riding club where he wore the uniform of an officer with one of his bullets, police said, a child came into the line of fire while officers fired at him, forcing them to stop shooting and he fled into nearby woods.

Last night about nine p. m. a Waterville policeman received a report that Brophy had been seen on a nearby street. A resident also heard the report and summoned two state policemen, Hugh Meade and D. M. Crossman.

Policeman Hit. The state policemen and the Waterville officer, John Christinate, approached Brophy, but he began firing at them. They returned the fire and one of Brophy's bullets, they said, hit Meade in the wrist.

When the youth's gun was empty, he surrendered. He was locked up in the local jail. Four men, Bernhard Schragger, William Slade, Allen Norton, of New Britain and Kenneth Gallagher of Bristol were arrested in New Britain yesterday and Henry Schragger, brother of Bernhard, was arrested here in connection with McNamee's death.

with two state officers and he had exhausted his ammunition.

Prior to the bringing here of the six men it was not known whether all or any of them would be represented by counsel. Brophy will be charged with homicide because the police are of the opinion that he fired the shot from the automobile on Thursday night which Officer McNamee had stopped to examine after word had been sent out that four men in a machine had held up a gas station in Cheshire.

Prosecutor Rich expected to accumulate all the information the police of New Britain and Waterville have in order to prepare his case against the men should a hearing be set for a later date. Of the five men who are held with Brophy the police have centered upon Henry Schragger as the one who knows most about the adventures of the four men who left New Britain Thursday night in the car of Dr. W. H. Morrissy and drove to Cheshire, took part in the holdup and then came here, abandoning the car on a downtown street. It is the police theory that Brophy and the other Schragger went back to New Britain without delay although when officers went to the North End to look for Brophy on their first trip from New Britain they thought the quartet had remained together. It was not until the first exchange of shots at the barn in North Main street that it was seen that two men only were there, now known to have been Brophy and Henry Schragger.

up at the London conference. The Washington treaty did not limit cruiser, destroyer and submarine construction because largely of France.

In the main, the high spots of the coming conference are: FIRST—Hoover and MacDonald, for their two countries, not only issued a declaration to the world that war is unthinkable as between the United States and Great Britain, but that parity between the two nations was considered as an established principle. The main difficulty was to agree as to the proper yardstick to establish parity on cruisers. England, with a far-flung empire and food and raw material ships coming from all the seven seas, but with the advantage of many naval bases, needs many small cruisers. The U. S., with growing commerce, but with fewer naval bases and larger cruisers.

SECOND—In the matter of capital ships, France and Italy certainly and Japan, possibly would have no objection to complete elimination. Modern capital ships, costing about $40,000 each, are an expensive luxury for the three countries.

THIRD—From the humanitarian standpoint, America and Great Britain would be prepared to vote against the use of submarine warfare. France is bitterly against this.

FOURTH—Under the Washington naval treaty the ratios in capital ships for the five powers were: America and Great Britain, 5; Japan, 3; France and Italy, 1.75. France and Japan have both served notice that they will not be content with any such figures as regards cruisers of 10,000 tons each or even for smaller ones.

FIFTH—Whatever figure France demands, Italy will ask also. In fact, the Latin sisters have been quietly fighting for some time.

SIXTH—The French have been studiously developing the thesis that the London conference will not be empowered to make any binding decisions, but merely make recommendations to the proposed disarmament conference to be held under the auspices of the League of Nations. The U. S. will not agree to this, as it is not a member of the league. But France will display her old trump card—Germany. The French will insist no steps in naval disarmament can be taken without disarmament by land and by air. France will say that Germany as a naval power is not to be sneezed at.

GERMANS OUTWIT TREATY. In the treaty of Versailles, Germany was forbidden to build battleships of more than 10,000 tons, or cruisers above 6000 tons, but German naval genius has now produced a battleship in miniature, so to speak. It exceeds anything in the world. It weighs 10,000 tons and is a sort of hybrid between a battleship and a cruiser.

TOWN ABSTRACT IS COMPLETED

Acreege Reduced This Year by 1,000; Manufactories Remain at 55.

The 1929 town tax abstract completed yesterday shows a considerable increase in dwellings in Manchester and a correspondingly large increase in developed building lots which has reduced the former acreage by about 1,000 acres.

According to the statistics there has not been one new industry added to the tax list within the town during the past year; the number of taxable mill and manufacturing property remaining at the 1928 figure of 55. Neat cattle has increased with an appreciable falling off in the number of horses and mules. Much credit is due Clerk of Assessors Neil Cheney for the efficient handling of this year's long list of taxable property. The 1929 lists were contained in 23 volumes containing 5,784 resident entries and 297 non-resident which were completed in 27 days, beginning on Dec. 18 and finished Jan. 14. The compilation was started 12 days earlier than last year and the work was done entirely by Mr. Cheney. The 1928 list follows: 2,338 dwellings; 4,661 barns, sheds and garages; 6,861 building lots; 301 commercial buildings; 55 mills and manufacturing; 12,741 acres of land; 270 horses and mules; 522 neat cattle; 4,852 autos and motor vehicles. The last named item is an increase of nearly 2,000 over the previous year.

THE PROGRAM OF JESUS

The International Uniform Sunday School Lesson for Jan. 19. The Comprehensive Program of Jesus. Matt. 4:17-25.

BY WM. E. GILROY, D. D. Editor of The Congregationalist.

Following his baptism, Jesus spent 40 days in the wilderness. What happened during that period we have opportunity to see in later wilderness to Jesus as going to the wilderness and to the mountain to pray. On one occasion we are told that when his ministry seemed at the very height of its popularity Jesus went into the mountain and continued all night in prayer.

It is in such passages that we have an opportunity to grasp the meaning of his real humanity. He revealed the divine life and character in his human life, and we entirely misunderstand the nature and work of Jesus if we do not think of him as truly man.

Preparing for His Work.

His divine ministry and life work developed in human ways. He felt his own need of strength. He was subject to temptation, and he went through a preparation for his life work just as some lesser prophet and teacher might have done. Thus we can see that probably this period of careful meditation and preparation fitting him for his work and ministry. The ministry of a few years, with its teachings and example that have left their divine impress on the whole life of humanity all through the centuries, was not something hastily conceived or achieved. It was a ministry prepared in discipline and in communion with the Father.

It is difficult for us to grasp fully the human aspect of the ministry of Jesus, but without our doing so such a lesson as this with its background of preparation in the wilderness has little meaning.

The deepest character of the preaching and teaching of Jesus was manifest at the very outset of his ministry. He came not as some theoretical teacher or philosopher with an abstract conception of life. He brought his teaching immediately into the practical range of daily life, and he brought it, also, immediately into the atmosphere of the power that could transform life and character—the power of the love of God. Thus there came first of all his call to men to repent, to turn from their sinful ways, and seek the Kingdom of Heaven which he declared to be at hand.

Program Near at Hand

What did Jesus mean by the Kingdom of Heaven? There has been much dispute among scholars concerning its exact meaning, but there need be no question about the fact that Jesus made it near at hand. Whether we interpret a later reference to the Kingdom of God as meaning that it was within the hearts of believers or in their midst, there can be no question about the reality of the teaching of Jesus that the Kingdom of God was near to men. Thus it was that repentance was not merely a turning away from sin but it was a turning

Text: Matt. 4:17-25.

From that time Jesus began to preach, and to say, Repent; for the kingdom of heaven is at hand.

And Jesus, walking by the sea of Galilee, saw two brethren, Simon called Peter, and Andrew his brother, casting a net into the sea; for they were fishers.

And he saith unto them, Follow me, and I will make you fishers of men.

And they straightway left their nets, and followed him.

And going on from thence, he saw other two brethren, James the son of Zebedee, and John his brother, in a ship with Zebedee their father, mending their nets; and he called them.

And they immediately left the ship and their father, and followed him.

And Jesus went about all Galilee, teaching in their synagogues, and preaching the gospel of the kingdom, and healing all manner of sickness and all manner of disease among the people.

And his fame went throughout Syria; and they brought unto him all sick people that were taken with divers diseases and torments, and those which were possessed with devils, and those which were lunatic, and those that had the palsy; and he healed them.

And there followed him great multitudes of people from Galilee, and from Decapolis, and from Jerusalem, and from Judea, and from beyond Jordan.

to love and righteousness, an acceptance of life at its best.

Here in our lesson we have four of these who responded early in his ministry and became the first of his disciples. Peter and his brother Andrew, men of impulsiveness and strength; James and John, whom we are told that Jesus nicknamed Bomberges, or Sons of Thunder, apparently with reference to their intensity of nature and ambition.

But the teaching of Jesus was not merely for the great and strong. It was a Gospel for the common people who heard him gladly and to whom he brought a new sense of the worth of life. To these it was a ministry of healing.

Just all that underlay that ministry in its miraculous aspect we can never know. It was not a scientific skill of any vital sort had been brought to bear upon human ill. In the ordinary course of the service of medical science to humanity the greater works that Jesus predicted are now everywhere done. But considering the age it would have been amazing if a teacher like Jesus could have done his work without remarkable instances of healing.

Not Primarily a Healer.

What is remarkable is that in the Gospel narrative this miraculous element is always subordinated to the healing of the soul. It was as a minister of redemption to the souls of men that Jesus came to the world, not as a physician but as the Great Physician healing the deepest tragedies and hurts of the human soul; the tragedies and disasters associated with sin.

Truly the program of Jesus is comprehensive.

"I am come," he said, "that they might have life, and that they might have it more abundantly." Here we have no narrow preacher or teacher, but a man standing with a full sense of the illimitable grace of God conscious that that grace is adequate for the blessing of man and need—thus in deed and in truth revealing the Father.

Educator tells the scientists at Des Moines that youth begins to "revolt" at the age of 12. If that man had ever tried to get a bowl of spinach down a three-year-old who didn't want it, he'd know it begins a lot earlier than that.

THE KINGDOM AT HAND

BY GEORGE HENRY DOLE

International Sunday-School Lesson Text, Jan. 19.

Repent: for the kingdom of heaven is at hand.—Matt. 4:17.

A kingdom on earth is a government of laws that controls physical acts and brings harmony, if the laws are right and are observed. Science is the kingdom of nature's laws that rule over matter and the body. If they are obeyed, they bring harmony with nature and health. The kingdom of heaven is the laws that rule over the spirit. They bring one in harmony with God, with the inmost creative powers, if they are followed. Harmony with God, with the laws that reign on the plane of the mind and the soul produces heaven. The sun makes the earth glorious on a cloudless day.

The sun is always at hand, ever giving bountifully its energetic powers. Night and winter are not caused by the sun, but by the earth changing its relation to the sun. The night and winter of the spirit are not caused by the Lord, but by man's changed relation to Him.

The Lord exemplified and revealed the laws of the kingdom of heaven. He is within the laws, and he operates by them, just as natural powers are within natural laws and operate by them.

By following spiritual laws, the Lord came into that wondrous state in which, with the cross before Him, He prayed that His joy might be in us, that we might be one with the Father as He was, and that we might be where He is. Of course He did not mean that He wanted us to face an agonizing death like His, but to be in the peace and joy that death cannot destroy.

The laws of nature have been about us, envolving us with the innumerable powers of electricity, as heat, light, power, the telegraph, radio, X-ray and the like. The kingdom of nature's laws have always been at hand. Her laws became useful when man reached forth after them. The laws of the kingdom of heaven, containing unknown blessings, are at hand. They are so complete that the Lord could say, "Whatever ye shall ask in my name believing, ye shall receive." We reach forth into the electric sphere, and light our houses. We can reach forth and make our homes glorious with spiritual light; we can warm them with love, and derive the power to do our full spiritual duty. Reach forth for the power of the Spirit of the Lord. The kingdom of heaven is not far off, but at hand.

List of Property Here Assessed at $10,000 or More

ASSESSORS AND CLERK FINISH AHEAD OF TIME

Cheney Brothers Lead as Usual and Edward J. Holl Is Still Biggest Individual Taxpayer.

A list of all properties in Manchester assessed at $10,000 and over as of the recently completed 1929 assessments is herewith presented. Work on the town abstracts has about been finished. The board of assessors and their clerk, Neil H. Cheney, have done unusually good work being ahead of schedule. Members of the board of assessors are S. Emil Johnson, chairman, Samuel Nelson, Jr., and Thomas J. Lewie. The town employs Neil H. Cheney as full time clerk of the board and it is his duty to keep the cards up-to-date so that when the assessments must be made no time is lost in doing back work. The grand list total for 1929 as announced Wednesday is $53,520,605.

Today's list offers some figures worth study. Cheney Brothers still head the list as the town's largest taxpayer. Their assessment as announced in The Herald Wednesday is $15,889,223. The next largest taxpayer is the Hartford Soap company with an assessment list of $1,617,740. Both these lists show decreases from last years. Case Brothers, Inc., is taxed on $382,754. E. E. Hilliard company, $350,370 and the Rogers Paper Manufacturing company on $385,950.

The largest individual taxpayer in town is Edward J. Holl whose assessment list totals $448,277. Miss Mary Cheney is high among individuals having a list of $247,368. It is interesting to note that among the younger men attaining membership among the high individual taxpayers is W. Harry England with a list at $145,527. The largest residential taxpayer is the Hartford Gas company listed at $246,150.

GAS TAX DIVISION

We confess to being somewhat impressed by an argument of the Bridgeport Post, which calls into question the complete justice of the dedication of the fruits of the gasoline tax to the building and maintenance of state roads. The newspaper points out that this arrangement fails to take into consideration the fact that a tremendous amount of the gasoline used by motorists in this state is burned in the operation of vehicles which run, many times exclusively and in other cases in great part, upon city and town streets, helping to wear out pavements which have to be paid for by the municipality without any aid whatever from the state.

It would be difficult to imagine any kind of tax more equitable in principle than this one on automotive fuel. Under it the taxpayer contributes in almost exact proportion as he uses the facilities paid for by public funds—and what could be fairer than that? But if the tax is equally laid and collected that is not a certain proof that it is as equably employed after it is collected.

There is a very general impression in this state that the state highway program is administered with great lavishness. The public has been inclined to tolerate this lavishness just because the money that makes it possible is gathered together on a basis where the user of the roads pays in proportion to his use of them. But if it is realized that the magnificent generosity which constructs splendid boulevards all over the state is considerably at the expense of the towns and cities which must maintain their streets by direct taxation, then a different light is thrown on the question.

It is the Post's theory that at least half of the state tax on gasoline should be returned pro rata to the towns and cities where the income originated, for use there in the maintenance of town and city highways. We do not know whether this sharing has been figured out in detail or whether it is a mere off-hand suggestion. But the basic idea that the municipalities should share to some appreciable extent in the gasoline tax money seems to be sound and logical. It is highly probable that of the total mileage of automobiles in the state of Connecticut in any year, one-half is run within the limits of the settled areas of towns and cities; which would mean that half the wear and tear inflicted by automobiles and supposed to be paid for by the gasoline tax is not met by that tax at all, while the state highways system collects twice as much as it is entitled to.

IN POOR BUSINESS

We wish that William Allen White hadn't spoiled a corking writer of small boy stories to turn himself into a political smart-aleck; and we wish that H. G. Wells could and would return to the wildly imaginative quasi-scientific novel of many years ago and stop being a cynical old prophet of more wars.

Why do writers, gifted beyond their fellows in certain very valuable lines of literature, persist in misfitting themselves into fields where they shine only in the reflection of an earlier glory and where they remind the unkindly critic of an excellent comedian trying to play Othello or a great tragedian trying to be funny?

Here we have Wells, who once upon a time rendered tremendous service to the English speaking world by entertaining it not a little to its intellectual improvement, devoting his time to such things as trying to destroy whatever faith may exist in the usefulness of the Kellogg pact. A sorry job for him to be at, when we think of his remote past.

And he isn't even clever in it. There is nothing especially original about saying: "At times this once sinful planet looks like a grove of olive branches—within which bayonets still gleam." Surely one doesn't have to be an H. G. Wells to write a thing like that—we could do it ourself; anybody can do it. Anybody can be a cheap and tawdry pessimist. It's the easiest thing in the world to be.

Of course the bayonets gleam among the olive branches. But why not be fair in accounting for them? Why pretend that they prove a purpose on the part of the pact signers to go to war? They do not. Nobody in this world wants to go to war. Even Russia, which hates all other nations, doesn't want to go to war. Neither does Mussolini, who tries to scare everybody by making out that he does. The bayonets are there among the olive branches solely because the nations are afraid that the other fellow doesn't mean it when he says he doesn't want to fight. There is no will to war. But there is suspicion and lack of confidence in the other chap's intentions. Therein lies all the war danger.

And it is such people as Mr. Wells, and those who trail with him, who are doing their level prettiest to foster suspicion and fear of bad faith. They could be in better business.

MONUMENTS

Such projects as the Stone Mountain Memorial to the leaders of the Southern Confederacy, and now the plan to carve in giant letters on a thousand foot face of Mt. Rushmore, South Dakota, a history of the United States to be written by Calvin Coolidge, seem to us to be of doubtful wisdom.

There would seem to be, in them, necessarily an implication of supreme egotism on the part of those persons who make the decisions as to what facts and what persons are deserving of concrete expressions of national gratitude that are intended to be well high eternal. We don't believe there is anybody in America so supremely gifted as to be able to determine here and now either what thing or what personality in the relatively brief history of the United States will stand forth, or deserve to stand forth, as the most significant highlight of this period, say half a thousand years hence. And for any person to arrogate to himself the credit of being able to make such a determination may prove, in the light of subsequent events, nothing less than ridiculous.

Surely it evidences a sitting with eyes too close to the board to proceed, as the Mt. Rushmore enthusiasts have, on the assumption that of all the many scores of millions of Americans who have lived, George Washington, Thomas Jefferson, Abraham Lincoln and Theodore Roosevelt are the four most deserving of all of being sculpted in figures 400 feet high; and that the factors in American history that appear most significant to Calvin Coolidge are necessarily in any important degree the factors which the future of the nation shall show to have been the most important.

When a mountain is hewn into a monument it should be in commemoration of something which has stood the test of ages and the changing lights of wide and deep experience. Else it is likely to appear some day as vain and foolish as the golden tomb of a forgotten king of a defunct and forgotten nation.

THE SUGAR TARIFF

What finally influenced so many Eastern Republican senators to vote against a change in the sugar tariff rates was, in all probability, the character of the labor employed in the harvesting of sugar beets in those Western states where the beet sugar industry is important. There was, in the peculiar Cuban situation, very great reason for hesitating to increase the import rates on sugar, in any event; and when it was shown that about the only labor beneficiaries of higher sugar rates, if any, would be the swarm of alien Mexicans who come across the border for a few weeks for the annual beet harvest, the bottom was pretty well knocked out of the beet sugar men's case.

Some of the Westerners in Congress seem to have a good deal of difficulty in understanding the Eastern Republican attitude toward the tariff. They imagine that it is controlled by a hunger for higher direct profits. That isn't the idea at all. The Eastern Republican industrialists could do business and make money, in most cases, without any protection, by the simple device of reducing wages to a level sufficiently low to meet foreign competition. So long, that is, as the general market wasn't destroyed. But they are well aware that if wages were reduced to the European level the purchasing power of the workers would be very greatly lessened and that there would be in consequence a much smaller market for manufactured goods. What they want high tariffs for is the maintenance of the wage rates and so the maintenance of the market.

They are not interested in high tariffs from which labor will not benefit. And there would apparently be no benefit at all to American labor by raising the sugar rates—only more profit for the beet sugar manufacturers and higher sugar prices for the whole country.

TAELS AND DOLLARS

Somebody in the office of the Springfield Union apparently has lived in China, for that newspaper yesterday carried a learned editorial on the Haikwan tael, which, it appears, is an imaginary piece of money theoretically containing so many grains of silver of such a fineness, in which all of China's foreign trade statistics are figured. The Union rejoices because the Nankin government has become practical enough to order the abandonment of the Haikwan tael and the substitution therefor of a unit equivalent to 40 cents of the American gold dollar.

And if the Union can tell us what is the difference between maintaining a theoretical silver unit called a tael and maintaining a theoretical gold unit called a dollar, neither of which is minted and both of which exist, so far as the business world is concerned, only in the imagination, we will be grateful.

In China such a thing becomes a quaint oriental custom. In the United States the same thing is—well, it's what we do, and of course very sophisticated and efficient.

IN NEW YORK

New York, Jan. 18.—Among the many odd and incongruous twists of Broadway is one which causes a producer to keep on "shelling out" long after a theatrical production has flopped, laid an egg, or what you will.

Thus a theatrical man may have tossed all but his shirt into a stage failure, only to be faced with the prospect of having to pay the freightage to Cain's warehouse and then pay storage rental until such time as someone comes along and buys it or it is re-jiggered for use in another show.

But the fate of stage equipment brought over from Europe is even odder. Due to the customs regulations, the scenery, stage sets, costumes and all the rest are allowed to come in only one "run of the play arrangement." It is agreed that once the settings have served their purpose, they will either be re-shipped or destroyed.

Well, you can scarcely imagine a man who already has dropped a heavy sum paying the cartage back to Paris or London once his show has "folded up."

So it is no common thing to wander back stage and observe the customs officers tearing down the scenery and hurling valuable furniture into a broken heap. After a time, you'll see a few of the dunks carrying the battered bits out to the nearest vacant lot and touching a match to it. Whistling a popular air, the stage hands walk away.

There goes $5000! Or maybe 10, or even more! And the poor producer has to foot the bill for the cremation of his valuable materials.

Whatever the wisemen may say about the death of the silent drama, it is not likely to become extinct in Manhattan for some time.

Whereas the little theaters devoted to the drama have been crumbling up, the little theaters devoted to the cinema have been growing.

There are, at the moment, at least half a dozen important little playhouses of this sort scattered about the city. They have refused thus far to install sound devices and pack their doors with the popular old films and relying them for the fans who have not yet succumbed to the celluloid noises.

These theaters, by the way, were rebels back in the day of silent films. They were the only places in America where the experiments and efforts of the European makers could be found. Some of the finest pictures to be made since the movies were born have been turned flatly down by the Broadway screen palaces, and have never been shown to the public at large.

It was in the Little Carnegie, for instance that "The Passion of Joan of Arc" was introduced. And a more beautiful film has never been displayed in this land. Yet it never saw general release. The Carnegie, by the way, is tucked away in the upper Fifties and offers ping pong sets, bridge tables and a dance floor to those waiting a chance for seats, or others who weary of watching the pictures.

The Fifty-Fifth Street, the Cinema Guild Theater in Greenwich Village, the Little Fifth Avenue and the Cameo are four others which comb the world for the most interesting efforts of the cameraman's art. These are seldom routine pictures and they are not always particularly interesting or even good films—but they generally have some artistic or original quality. It was thanks to them that a percentage of the public was able to see "Potemkin," and "Six Days That Shook the World," and "The End of St. Petersburg," and scores of the new Russian, German, French, Swedish and British films.

Washington—The largest effort in the history of organized labor has begun with the American Federation of Labor's campaign to unionize the workers of the south.

Although thus far defeated in early skirmishes in a few of the southern mill centers the federation promises that it will shortly have at least a hundred full-time organizers working below the Mason-Dixon line and paying special attention to the textile situation which has attracted more attention than any other problem arising in labor affairs for several years.

The announcement of the announced campaign to a successful conclusion would be one means of helping revive the American labor movement. It would at least partially answer charges of inertia, stagnation and extreme conservatism often laid against high officials of the next six months are likely to indicate whether the federation is actually going to make a comeback or whether an active and more aggressive labor movement is to supplant it.

Workers Are Getting Busy

Labor men returning from the recent conference at Charlotte, where organizers appointed for the big drive by the federation's international unions got together for the first time, reported a general enthusiasm on the part of the men now entering the field.

But the A. F. of L. is faced by three fires. There is the Communist union, the National Textile Workers, whose influence is negligible and whose tactics are regarded as neglected by the federation. There are the southern mill owners and other business men hostile to organized labor. Third, there is a large group of independent workers and sympathizers who hold that the present campaign will not be backed by adequate funds, that it will devote too much time to shouting at unimportant Communist and salving business men, that it will soft pedal actual organization, militant tactics and efforts for better wages and conditions and that it will make no effort to give special aid to the A. F. of L. mill workers who have borne the brunt of the losing battle to date—such as those in Marion, North Carolina.

But whether the Communists are to make any more headway in the south, whether the mill owners and corporations will continue to dominate without serious dispute and whether the formidable group of critics are to be justified or refuted will depend on the A. F. of L. itself.

Inquiry reveals that about 50 actual organizers showed up at Charlotte and that 85 of the federation's 104 international unions were represented. Everyone agreed that at least 100 organizers would soon be on the job. Most of the organizers appointed were southerners, which will make it harder for employers to assail the campaign as a "foreign invasion."

The question of how much attention will be paid to the textile industry was partially answered by the fact that whereas about 15 of the 50 organizers present had been instructed by the international unions to concentrate on organizing their own trades, the others had been instructed to put themselves entirely at the disposal of the committee appointed to supervise the D. L. campaign. That committee, with central headquarters at Birmingham and subheadquarters likely to be established in Tennessee and in North or South Carolina, will pay particular attention to the textile industry.

Most of the organizers appeared to feel that employees everywhere were anxious to be organized and the last thing they seemed to fear was any lack of response on the part of the workers.

See No Strikes Yet

There wasn't much strike talk. Emphasis was placed on the need of "educating" the south and organizing its workers to the point where collective bargaining could succeed by itself. To critics who insist that a long series of strikes will be necessary before southern workers can gain fair wages and fair treatment the A. F. of L. men reply that there is no sense in calling strikes until they have built up strong unions.

What the movement plans to do for money is not quite clear. The international unions will finance their own organizers and the A. F. of L. will finance the headquarters and some other overhead items as well as its own handful of organizers.

But the report that $1,000,000 would be raised for the campaign was untrue. Although at the last A. F. of L. convention someone suggested the million, nothing was done about it.

A schooner containing $180,000 worth of whisky was seized off Boston when coast guards found it running without lights. We would have thought that anybody carting that much whisky around would be well enough lit to satisfy anybody.

HEALTH DIET ADVICE

Dr. Frank McCoy
"The Fast Way to Health"

QUESTIONS IN REGARD TO HEALTH DIET WILL BE ANSWERED BY DR. MCCOY WHO CAN BE ADDRESSED IN CARE OF THIS PAPER. ENCLOSE STAMPED ADDRESS ENVELOPE FOR REPLY.

MEALTIMERS

When shall we eat? The simple answer to this question is: When you are hungry—at no other time. Most of you would have to wait a good many days if you observed this rule to the letter. This is because you are probably overfed at the moment you are reading this article.

If no food is taken until normal hunger reasserts itself, you would be surprised how long you would be forced to wait. This is due to the long-continued habit of eating whatever you desire at regular meal-times, whether you are hungry or not.

Of course, you usually have an appetite after you start eating, but this must not be confused with real hunger. A pickle always tastes good, and will excite the taste buds in the mouth, but this is purely an irritation of an artificial nature and has nothing in common with the body's desire for nourishment with which to repair and develop the tissues.

The natural craving for food is no doubt the greatest at the moment of awakening in the morning. If you are one who is never hungry in the morning it is because you are in the habit of eating too much at the evening meal. If the body is at any time ready for more food, it should be after fasting for twelve hours, as you do at night. However, if you are not eager for food at this time because of former dietic indiscretions, by all means wait until noon, at least, before you take any kind of food. Wash out your tired stomach with a pint of water at the ordinary temperature of faucet water, and continue using only water until you have developed a wholesome desire for some plain food. This desire may develop by lunch time, or perhaps not until time for the evening meal.

A sensible meal, each evening, for a few days may be all that is necessary to allow the system an opportunity to develop normal hunger. On the other hand, if breakfast is relished, you will often find that you are not eager for a heavy lunch. A glass of orange juice or some other kind of fruit will be easily digested, and thus more zest will be given to the evening meal. I believe that this meal at the end of the day should be the most carefully selected of the three.

If you are tired after a day of mental overwork, the best plan is to refresh yourself with a bath and lie down for a few moments' complete relaxation before attempting to digest even the best of food. Then be sure to not overeat. If you feel sleepy an hour or two after this meal, it is usually a sign that you have eaten more food than your body has energy to digest. Resolve that the next night you will reduce the amount of food considerably, and continue reducing the quantity each day until you can spend several hours each evening after dinner without the accustomed feeling of languor most people expect after a hearty meal. If you do this, you will be surprised and delighted to awaken each morning with an eagerness for breakfast you have not experienced in many years.

But remember, a strong desire for wholesome food will not be possible unless you exercise your body each day, and encourage your muscles to call for more nourishment. Mental exercise alone is not sufficient to give you that normal hunger you enjoyed as an active youngster.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS (Anemia)

Question.—M. R. writes: "I am anemic, and my doctor advises blood transfusions. What do you think about this kind of treatment?"

Answer: Blood transfusions are most helpful after a loss of blood through hemorrhage. If you have pernicious anemia you are in a serious condition and must not depend upon the advice which I can give you in such a short answer in this column. Transfusions of blood can at best be only temporary help. You must at once start getting rid of the vicious toxemia which is destroying your red blood cells. It may seem ridiculous to you when I tell you that you can best do this through fasting for ten days or two weeks. You need so much information about this that I urge you to go to some doctor who understands how to apply the fasting cure; or write me again, giving your name and address so I can send special articles.

ADVERTISE IN THE HERALD—IT PAYS

A STATEMENT OF OLDSMOBILE-VIKING POLICY for 1930

A message of interest to everyone who expects to buy a car this year.

At this time, when the public is accustomed to look for changes in motor car design, it is only natural that Olds Motor Works should make an announcement concerning both its policy and its products for the coming year.

Olds Motor Works is pledged to a policy of progress—a policy that promises, in part . . . "Changes in design solely for the sake of progress—never for the sake of change alone."

This policy, as it applies to the two products of Olds Motor Works, is briefly . . .

. . . to give still greater value in the Oldsmobile Six, the Fine Car of Low Price . . .

. . . to provide, in the Viking, a modern 90-degree, V-type Eight of high quality, at medium price.

Certain changes have been made in Oldsmobile design. These changes are chiefly in the body of the car, although advancements have also been made in the chassis. In every case, the changes tend to add to Oldsmobile value, without affecting its fundamental design.

Naturally, no changes have been made in the great Viking Eight. The Viking is a new car—a thoroughly modern 90-degree V-type Eight, incorporating advancements in V-eight design that establish it as one of the outstanding engineering achievements of recent years.

Olds Motor Works is pledged in both Oldsmobile and Viking to four great responsibilities: to design progressively—to build faithfully—to sell honestly—to service sincerely.

Thus, while Olds Motor Works builds two cars, in two major price classes, each represents the most progressive engineering thought, the finest manufacturing practice, and the best value it is possible to give at the price.

Now is the time to see these cars . . . to compare them with the latest offerings of the industry . . . and to make your own decision on value.

Missionary Describes Her Trip to Africa

Miss Anne Brookings, in Series of Letters to Friends Here, Tells of Long Journey to Dark Continent Where She is Representing Local Congregational Church.

The supreme spirit of individual endeavor, the love of the qualified, learned individual of the modern age for the savages of the far away jungles of Africa and other hidden parts of the globe is a mystical yet most admirable attribute. The accomplishments of others we admire yet when the story is of localized interest it is thereby intensified.

Consider the remarkable life story of Miss Anne Brookings, daughter of Mrs. A. Rossa Brookings of 141 E. Middle Turnpike, a finely educated young lady who sailed on the S. S. Republic enroute to Natal, South Africa, as a missionary teacher.

Now in Africa
Miss Brookings as a result of her missionary zeal is now the representative of the Second Congregational Church Society as their accredited representative through the American Board of Foreign Missions. She is at present at Amanzimtoti, Natal, South Africa engaged as a teacher in the Inanda Seminary.

Miss Brookings is a native of Maine, graduating from Bates College, Lewiston, Maine, and was engaged as a teacher of Science and English for some time in the Spelman College, a school for colored girls in Atlanta, Georgia. Invited with an impelling ambition to further her teaching and to do good to the dark continent she became a missionary teacher through the American Congregational Board of Foreign Missions and late last summer voyaged to her distant post of duty in Natal, South Africa.

TELLS OF LONG TRIP TO DARK CONTINENT
Miss Brookings has written to her friends and acquaintances in Manchester her impressions of the long sea voyage from London to the African continent from the viewpoint of the modern Yankee maid's viewpoint and many other illuminating sidelights at sea and ashore that stamps the young missionary teacher as an excellent traveler. Excerpts from her bulky, in-teresting letters are given today out of respect to her many friends in Manchester.

Starting her first letter with the nautical term of "Ship Ahoy" Miss Brookings immediately dropped into a detailed description of daily life aboard ship which Miss Brookings experienced enroute to Africa.

Coast of Ireland
"The breaking waves are dashing high on Ireland's stern and round-bound coast," began the missionary teacher. "I am looking from my port-hole window, but I am afraid we cannot get near enough to take a picture. The Irish coast looks like one of those fairy lands which make make from the white surf and breaking of the cliffs and even a house or two, so I know it must be solid ground. Tomorrow we land in Plymouth."

LIFE ON SHIPBOARD VIVIDLY DESCRIBED
Of life aboard ship Miss Brookings says: "Shipboard is an old sea game, played with the round wooden blocks, pushers and a board marked off and numbered. "If we wrote letters there was a writing room with desks, ink, blotter, envelopes and a dozen and more nice smelling lamps. If we walk ten times around "C" deck it is a mile. "At 1 o'clock we had lunch. In the afternoon the same amusements were waiting. At four o'clock tables were set in the social hall and those that wished might sit in the big easy chairs and have afternoon tea, while the band gave an afternoon concert. The library was in the social hall and the latest magazines were on file. "At six o'clock the bath steward knocked at my door and said, "Your bath is ready," and I was paraded down the hall—by half a dozen other stewards—to where a nice tub of hot salt water from the sea is waiting. The most luxurious feeling of all is when I finish with my bath and can go calmly back to my room, leaving the tub for him to wash out; I always hate to wash out tubs."

The menus
Concerning the menus Miss Brookings confesses to have been perturbed over their hidden meanings. "The menus are a source of amusement. They are presumably in English but it is hard to figure out just what one is going to get when one orders "Eggs a la Holstein" or "Calves feet a la Poulette." Seems to me they are mixing their species worse than Bur-

Took Twelve Yoke of Oxen To Pull Cart Out of Mud

A beautiful word picture of the vista to be seen from the school on the hill facing the Indian ocean in far away Africa is here quoted:

"It was too dark and rainy to see much of our new home that night but the next morning we found it to be a very lovely place. Roses, Easter lilies and all kinds of flowers were blooming and in the garden I saw lemons growing so large that I thought they were grape fruit! The school is on a hilltop and in one direction the Indian Ocean can be seen. All around on every side are rolling hills and flat topped mountains with fertile valleys between. I don't think I ever saw a lovelier view anywhere, especially when they took us down the hill to the gorge to see the waterfall 250 feet in height from which they hope to get power for electricity."

The letter concluded after describing her trip into the veldt to the language school through the terribly muddy roads. At one point a sugar cart was mired with 24 oxen in yoke! They were waiting for more oxen to pull them out! In passing the sugar cart their own cart was mired and the mules kicked the harness out and ran. They had to walk the rest of the way to Amanzimtoti.

bank: Reading down another menu I find:
Cornets a la Francaise.
Canape Amiable.
Consomme Androuse.
Noisette of Reindeer Radzwil.
Portage a la Gastellane.
"Now what would you order?" asks the voyager. "I? Oh, mostly I don't. I prefer when hungry to order something which I know I can eat."

SHE LEARNS TO COUNT ENGLISH CURRENCY.

After landing at Plymouth, England and being cleared through the British customs the missionary party bought tickets for London. The English money had been substituted aboard the ship so as to allow passengers to familiarize themselves with the coinage. At the ticket window Miss Brookings mustered her courage to say:
"A ticket to London, please."
"One, twelve and twopence," said the agent, pleasantly.
"I looked at him blankly. Realizing that he had an American before him, he smiled and said, 'About $8.00.'"
"This didn't help me much as I had to pay him in English money anyway. Hastily I figured that $8.00 was more than a pound, so I passed him a pound note. If a pound is about $5.00, then I still had over three dollars to pay and three dollars is more than three dollars. I was not being enough I passed over another ten shilling note and waited. Sure enough he turned around to get the change and I put it away hastily without counting. What was the use? I didn't know yet what he had told me that it cost."

The experience of breaking through the noted British reserve through the medium of a package of candied fruit which was passed among the Britishers in the crowded car is interesting as well as that of eating in the swaying dining cars in which the silverware rattled on the tables.
"We nearly developed a case of nerves upon our arrival at the Paddington station in London, when in an English taxi for the first time we were sure the driver was going to run into something because of the right hand drive and keeping to the left of the road rather than the right as in the U. S."

GIVES IMPRESSIONS OF OLD ENGLAND.
A lengthy letter follows, descriptive of the American girl missionary's impressions of her week's stay in England. She describes in a pleasing style, all her own, the notable points of interest in London which included the British Museum, the Tower, Buckingham Palace, St. James' Park, St. Paul's and the never to be forgotten Westminster Abbey the magnet of all travelers.
To even touch on the contents of the highly informative letters written from the British Isles would be a vain attempt to do them justice, so, after a week in London, the girl teacher and her boat train to Southampton on the 21st of September last, on the last leg of the long voyage to Natal, South Africa to live and teach the Zulu youth.

Africa's Coast.
The trip down along the coast of Africa was enlightening to the girls because of the changes in climate, which, at the equator, attained a high average even at night and the off-shore winds caused the considerable uneasiness because of the rough water. After a stop at Walvis Bay they found themselves one night . . . but let us quote from the letter:
"This evening I saw a most wonderful sight. I was curled up in my deck chair listening to the wind whistling in the darkness when someone said, 'We are entering Cape Town,' and I got up and walked around the boat to see. There across the water rose the great, dark flat-topped bulk of Table Mountain with a shining white 'tablecloth' of cloud falling over the edge of it, and the pointed tops of Lion's Head and Devil's Peak, standing guard at either side. On the slope at the foot of the mountain, like a gigantic Christmas tree, twinkled the thousands of lights which were Cape Town."

A wonderful description of a beautiful scene at the very tip of the Dark Continent.
The letters continued, the last being dated Oct. 11 telling of the arrival at Isidana Seminary at Phoenix, Natal.
"We were here at Adams to start our work study and will stay here for about three months and then go to some place where no one speaks English, to get really Zuluized.
"Our arrival in Africa was quite thrilling. Miss Walbridge and eight other missionaries met us at the boat and gave us a royal welcome. Then we went to tea at the home of Dr. Wood and I hired a sort of combination truck and bus to take us and all our belongings to the school.
Exciting Drive.
"Our driver was very skillful and he had had to be, for the roads are quite exciting in this country. They give me the feeling of walking the plank and I can't help wondering what would happen if the wheels slipped from the narrow ridges into the deep ruts on either side! One thing I know—we wouldn't go on right away.
"After a twenty mile ride we turned down into a broad avenue between rows of tall trees. The driver fastened down the horn to let them know we were coming, and they were evidently expecting the signal from the other end of the avenue, for when we had followed the trees down one hill, across a brook and up another hill on the other side we found ourselves in the midst of waving palm branches and singing Zulu girls welcoming us. We stood in the lights of flashlights and lanterns while they sang to us, first in Zulu and then in English. Miss Walbridge introduced and each said a few words in English."

FLORIDA'S SOCIETY AT BOXING BOUTS

All the Rage This Season at Palm Beach—Many Dinner Dances.

Palm Beach, Fla. Jan. 18.—(AP)—Given fresh impetus by parties at night clubs and dinner dances and other entertainment at private villas, society in Palm Beach moves forward in sprightly syncopated measure.
The informal opening of the Colony Night Club on Wednesday brought together a smart assembly. Among those who were present were Jules Bache, W. W. Wood, New York; Mr. and Mrs. Sydney Smith, Chicago; Mr. and Mrs. David Wagstaff, Tuxedo Park; Joseph Harriman, New York; Mr. and Mrs. James Kern. In the party arranged by the composer and Mrs. Kern were Mr. and Mrs. Charles Amot Amory, Boston; Mr. and Mrs. Quintine Field, Fetter, Bay Shore, L. I.; Mr. and Mrs. F. Homer Smith, Toronto, Canada.

Society continues to patronize boxing. At Tuesday night's bout all of the ring seats were occupied by Palm Beach folk.
Prince Leopold of Prussia and his party were in one box. Mr. and Mrs. Henry E. Bemis of New York and Palm Beach had with them, Mr. and Mrs. Stuart Prescott of Westbury, L. I. who are spending the season at Gulf Stream for the polo. Mr. Prece is a former West Point officer. Mr. and Mrs. Louis S. F. Bader of Dover, Mass., also were interested spectators.

The Everglades Club initiated its series of semi-weekly dinner dances on Thursday, with Vincent Lopez conducting the orchestra. Among those entertaining large parties were Prince Leopold, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Forrester, Miss Ann Rainey and E. G. Carberg, New York.

Barbara Phipps, New York, is considered one of the ablest tennis players among the young set. She plays often on the courts of the Everglades Club and at the Playgarden Club. Princess Jean Louise de Faucigny de Lucigne, New York, is another young tennis enthusiast, wearing, for the game the sleeveless shirt and shorts. The princess shows a preference for the yellow, blue and all of the high colors.

Literary and artistic talent will be in the foreground next week. The Artists and Writers Tournament commences on Sunday, January 19.

The former home of the late W. J. Connors on the Ocean boulevard is occupied by John J. Raschke, who has with him the Misses Helena, Betty, Patsy and Marie Louise Raschke, and their young guests, Helen Carney and Peg Nolan of Dublin, Ireland. Mrs. Raschke will remain in New York until February 1. Judge L. M. Hafferty and W. O. Butler of New York are also with the Raschke party.

Mrs. John Dasso of Oak Park, Ill., expects to depart extensively upon the arrival of her daughter, Mrs. F. J. McNichols, the latter part of the month. Mrs. John Daus of Evansville, Ind., who has an attractive villa on Australian avenue, will have given a number of small affairs during the winter. A buffet supper on Tuesday night followed by bridge and dancing.

With the arrival of the E. T. Stotesburys of Philadelphia on Thursday and the James P. Donohue of New York last week, most of the Ocean boulevard houses are open. Mr. and Mrs. E. F. Huttenloper expect to arrive the latter part of the month.

—Heywood Brown. (Outlook and Independent.)

NATION'S CAPITAL

FETES FOREIGNERS

General Smuts and Admiral Tu of Chinese Navy Are Guests of Honor.

Washington, Jan. 18.—(AP)—The entertainment of dignitaries from two foreign countries and Mrs. Hoover's return to social activities after a few days' absence because of a cold, contributed to a busy week in Washington society.

So full was the calendar that some of the capital's dignified men and women successfully faced the difficult task of appearing in a half-dozen places during a single afternoon or evening, and not even with the dawn of Sunday will they be able to strike slower paces. General Jan Christian Smuts, soldier, statesman and former premier of South Africa, made a triumphal visit in which the social phase was an important factor. He had luncheon at the White House, dined and was given a reception at the British Embassy, Mrs. Woodrow Wilson attending both the reception and dinner.

Then came Admiral Hai Keul Tu of the Chinese Navy, who also was "dined right royally," but who had his larger meeting with society at the Chinese Legation when the Minister and Mme. Wu held a reception that filled the legation and overflowed into the street.

It was a brilliant affair, with many of the foreign and American officers in uniform, as they were at the British Embassy to meet General Smuts.

Those assisting included: Mrs. William Dwight Mitchell, wife of the attorney general, representing the Cabinet; and Senora Ferrara, wife of the ambassador of Cuba; Senora Alfaro, wife of the Cuban minister; Mrs. Radetz, wife of the Bulgarian minister, representing the diplomatic corps; Mrs. Burton K. Wheeler, Mrs. Charles McNary, Mrs. Fred Britten, Mrs. Sol Bloom and Mrs. James S. Parker, representing Congress; Mrs. Lawrence Richey, wife of the secretary to the President, Mrs. George R. Farnum, wife of the assistant attorney general, and others.

Somehow Vice President Curtis continues to hold the center of the social stage, and always with him is his sister, Mrs. Edward Everett Gann. The President and Mrs. Hoover gave a dinner Thursday night in his honor, with guests drawn from many sections of the country. He and his sister were the important guests at the brilliant bachelorette affair earlier in the week. Mrs. Jacob Leander Loose of Kansas City, first giving a dinner in honor of the Vice President and Mrs. Gann. Tuesday night the Vice President and his sister will meet Senators, Representatives and their wives and other persons at a reception in their honor at the Congressional Country Club, an organization of which Mrs. Gann has for years been an important member.

Mrs. Hoover, returned to her normal health and attended several dinners and luncheons in the White House, was present at the magnificent dinner given for the President and her by the Secretary of the Treasury, Mr. Mellon, the first of the week, and at the dinner which she gave for the Townsend morning musicale at the Mayflower. She was accompanied at the latter function by her friend and house guest, Miss Sue Dyer of California, and next of her secretaries, Miss Mary Randolph.

One week, President and Mrs. Hoover will give their annual dinner in honor of the Supreme Court, and the following week a reception for the U. S. and Mrs. Hoover have made many innovations which do not readily reach the outer world. Formerly only the Cabinet and diplomatic corps had the pleasure of the private entrances for large receptions and dinners. The Cabinet entering by the great front door overlooking Pennsylvania avenue and the diplomats by the south portico door, going to the reception floor by way of the elevator, and the same electric elevator in which Archie Roosevelt carried his spotted Shetland pony to the second floor of the mansion.

Senators and representatives were left to shuffle in with the folks who elect them. Now, they too, are given special consideration and enter by the south door, leave their wraps in a dressing room on the ground floor and go upstairs by broad marble steps or the elevator.

Under the presidency of a New England Senator's wife, Mrs. Porter H. Dale, the Congressional Club steps very much to the front as an important factor in Washington circles. Remembering the scant companies who greeted great men at some former receptions at the club, which is made up of the wives, mothers, sisters and daughters of Senators and Representatives, Mrs. Dale determined to make the reception to President Hoover last week the biggest and most enthusiastic held there in years—and she did.

By the time President Hoover arrived, Mrs. Hoover still being confined to the White House with a cold, the large audience room of the club barely afforded standing room for the guest of honor. Senators in large numbers who have not often frequented the club were there, and the House was generously represented as well. As the company thinned out, many of the older men danced, and the party was informal and gay.

Just such another party awaits Vice President Curtis with the great-est. District Deputy, James R. Quinn of the Knights of Pythias, were in Hartford Springs last night, where they installed the officers of Min-

Necessity for Baby Food Seized As Opportunity for Big Business

When Harold H. Clapp in November, 1922, solved the important problem of what his first child, Jack, was to have for his three daily meals, he laid the foundations in domesticity of a business which today literally reaches around the world.

For the company of Harold H. Clapp, Inc., came out of the kitchen, because, as the originator and head of the organization hastens to explain, his predicament was analogous to the persevering frog in the Theodore Roosevelt joke. When two amphibians fell in a pail of milk, one kicked about for a few minutes and wearying of the struggle got himself drowned. The other kicked so hard and so long that he churned a nice lump of butter and extracted himself from mortal embarrassment.

Became Chef for Baby

"Around 1922 vegetable feeding for infants was relatively new," he explained yesterday afternoon. "When our doctor advised a combination of beef juice, cereals, and vegetables for our son, we found we were making soup all day every day. My job was kept as manly as the Manhattan restaurant, gave me my mornings free, so I elected myself cook. Some of our friends began making baby soup, too, and they soon found that making small quantities was tedious business."

"So I agreed to make enough for their children, too. Before many weeks had passed, my customers, without any personal solicitation on my part, had reached a number of dozens. I was kept pretty busy in my free hours traveling from one friend's house to another with my black bag. My wife and I talked it over, and the idea of making a business of it dawned on me. I bought some large kettles and strainers, and before long we had moved the business right out of our own private kitchen. In seven years we have acquired several thousand distribuers through this country, Canada, Cuba and the Canal Zone, and we receive inquiries from all over the world."

Pinehurst Grocery is the sole dealer for Clapp's baby food. Mr. Clapp admits that selling the idea to the public has been an important factor in achieving success. In the seven years since the idea was first put into operation, he has marketed fourteen products for infant consumption, developing each on the advice of competent medical experts. To convince dubious mothers that as could make the food not only more economically, but with hygiene skill, all the products have been marketed in glass jars with aluminum tops. Since he has introduced liver soup for infants, he has had government inspection of his factory.

This factory at 1328 University avenue into which Mr. Clapp moved three years ago is a large one-room building. The raw materials are received in the shipping room at the back, prepared by expert workers in the kitchen proper, and transferred to three large kettles, each of 250 gallon capacity. The kettles are located on a platform above the floor, and the food, when prepared, is carried off in special tubes to the jars, are filled, capped, and sterilized for shipment.

Although Mr. Clapp confesses that the business has required special salesmanship, he also asserts with a chuckle that he hit upon the idea at a psychologically opportune moment. In 1922 parents were just beginning to take a healthy interest in their physicians' counsel about special food for children who were outgrowing a milk diet.

But now that Mr. Clapp has discovered his special bent, he finds it capable of various applications. He has even designed a baby shoe with special features which have won the approval of the youngest member of his family. How to sell them is still an experimental laboratory.

er number of the Upper House on hand. One senator realizes how the does it, but Mrs. Dale is making the club one of the biggest social factors in Washington.

It is one of her aims to bring out the talents of women in official life. Friday afternoon, Mrs. H. B. Ingling, a much traveled woman, gave a violin recital that charmed not only the members of the club but the music critics who heard her.

Senator and Mrs. Dale have been in Congressional life since 1915, and in Vermont mountain home of the late Colonel John Coolidge as an official witness when President Coolidge took the oath of office as President.

But Mrs. Dale is not dependent upon her husband for leadership in politics or social life. She is a handsome, graceful woman past middle life, with gray hair, a charming smile and what the world knows as "style." She knows several pictures, and owns several fine paintings, besides pieces of rare tapestry.

Some years ago Senator and Mrs. Dale bought a fine old house on Capitol Hill, and within a few years a trove of antiques, many of them having great historic value. This residence was sold to the National Women's Party, and recently the Dales bought one of the largest estates in the district of Columbia, Eighteenth and Vermont streets. When this old residence is restored and the place put in order, they will move their treasures there.

In the meantime, Mrs. Dale is holding her own "in homes" in the Congressional Club and is inducing other women of Congress to use the club for this purpose.

Mrs. Dale's mother was a Kentucky belle, but Mrs. Dale is a Boston girl. She was educated there, and was married to Senator Dale in Edward Everett Hale's church. She graduated from Teachers' college and has a little prouder of her years of teaching than of almost any other period of her life.

Mrs. Homer Hoch, wife of Representative Hoch of Kansas, and chairman of the Congressional Club, is paying a pretty tribute to Mrs. Gann in giving a tea of appreciation for the Vice President's sister at which all of the other hostesses of the club will assist, as will Mrs. Dale and other officers. Mrs. Gann has for some years been an active member of the hostess committee, and Mrs. Hoch wishes to show her appreciation.

Miss Jean Hoch, a particularly handsome and gifted girl, will assist her mother, who will have a number of other young girls, daughters of members of the hostess committee.

LUNCHEONS FEATURE RELATIONS CONFERENCE

C. C. Hemenway of Hartford Times to Be a Speaker at Waterbury Session.

There will be two luncheons in connection with the third Connecticut Conference on International Relations in Waterbury next Wednesday. One will be held at the Woman's Club, 74 Central Avenue at twelve o'clock, under the auspices of the Connecticut Council on International Relations.

The Hon. C. C. Hemenway, editor of the Hartford Times, will be the speaker. The ex-Senator's subject will be "International Issues in the Congress." It is expected that his address will cover in particular the Root protocol for United States adherence to the World Court and the inter-American treaties of arbitration and conciliation.

Miss Emily Louise Plumley, state president of the Federation of Women's Clubs will preside. Tickets for the luncheon can be reserved through Mrs. F. J. Purinton, 10 Murray street, Waterbury.

A second luncheon for men only will take place at the Hotel Elton, also at noon. The Rotary Club of Waterbury will act as host to the men's club. Tickets for the luncheon will be $1.00. The speaker will be Thomas M. Steele, president of the First National Bank of New Haven. His subject, "In the Wake of the Kellogg Pact" will emphasize the inter-American treaties of arbitration and conciliation.

Reservations for the men's luncheon can be made through George W. Greene, secretary of the Waterbury Rotary Club.

New Winter Construction An Encouraging Sign

Increased Building for 1930 Is Anticipated by Architects

By C. HERRICK HAMMOND
President of the American Institute of Architects

There is every reason to believe that 1930 will be a good year in the building industry. Money formerly diverted through speculation from construction loans should be available for permanent improvements. There should be a stabilized market for both labor and materials—with labor doing more work a day than has recently been the case.

The cost of construction work is lower than it has been for several years, and those contemplating construction should be advised by their architect to build now.

The Federal Government will do its share in maintaining the stability of business by advancing its construction activities beyond the point originally planned both in Washington and throughout the country.

Architect in Key Position
The position of the architect and the exercise of his function with respect to building operations under modern conditions are of fundamental importance in the development of any program which is concerned with the construction industry.

In twenty-seven states no building can be erected unless a registered or licensed architect is engaged. Seventy per cent of the buildings in this country costing $75,000 and upwards are designed in offices of members of the American Institute of Architects.

The architect is the co-ordinator in the building operation whether large or small, and his advice on when not to build, is of great weight with the investor, the homebuilder and the banker.

The American Institute of Architects, in co-operation with the Producers' Council, is in a position to make the most authoritative and complete survey of the building situation that can be made of present and prospective building by any group or groups in the construction industry.

Sponsors Service Bureau
The American Institute of Architects, through its sponsorship of the Architects' Small House Service Bureau, which was endorsed by President Hoover when he was Secretary of Commerce, is in a position to enlist the support of the Small House Service Bureau in any program.

The Institute, through its structural service department and other committees, is co-operating with building and loan association banks and investment companies in matters relating to the financing of buildings.

The Producers' Council is the only national organization of manufacturers of building materials and appliances. It has a membership of sixty-one firms and associations. Its membership represents $25,500,000,000 of combined capital. Its member companies employ more than 2,000,000 persons in more than 9,000 plants. Practically all important building material industries are represented, and the member companies are located in all sections of the country.

$37,000, $29,000. Your reaction as owner would be to take the low figure. This in many cases is a grave mistake. The first two figures are fairly near one another, showing that they have interpreted the architect's drawings and specifications in the same way. On the other hand, the low man has probably left something out or made some mistake or been over optimistic.

LOW BID OFTEN POINTS TO ERROR OF CONTRACTOR

Builder Warned to Reject It If Estimate Falls Far Short of Others' Figures.

BY WILLIAM HARMON BEERS

To one who has never built a house it is often a great surprise to find out just what these relations are, and, to make you thoroughly understand, let us run over hurriedly the various stages from the time when you decide to build until the house is completed.

Having selected your architect you give him your requirements. He makes some preliminary sketches which are about what you want. Up to this point you have worked only with him. As the price of building materials changes from month to month and from year to year, he will not be in a position to give you an exact figure as to the cost when completed, at least not within 10 per cent.

He can arrive at an approximation by figuring the number of cubic feet in the building and multiplying that by the cost per cubic foot, this cost being based on his recent experience in work of the same character. However, you will probably want a more exact price before proceeding with the final drawings, which are complicated and expensive.

Preliminary Estimates Needed

Your architect, if he is a careful man, will give you the names of several contractors accustomed to doing this kind of work and who he knows are men of integrity, and financially sound. You may have in mind one or two yourself who have been recommended to you. Let us suppose you pick out three among the number. To these three will be sent the sketch drawings and they will be asked to figure them and find out what they think the house will cost. Their figures will be closer to the exact cost than the architect's, as they are in a position to be in constant touch with the fluctuations in the cost of building materials and the price of labor.

When their figures have been received a comparison is made and a fairly exact price arrived at. By fairly exact I mean within 5 per cent.

Low-Bidder Sometimes Errs

Let us suppose the three final estimates come in as follows: $38,000,

TRYING TO PREVENT BUILDING INJURIES
Associated Contractors Outline Program of Accident Prevention.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 17.—Strenuous efforts are to be made to insure that the 1930 construction program is carried on under conditions which will prevent accidents according to Major W. R. Richards, secretary of the Associated General Contractors of America and head of the accident prevention work conducted by that organization. With the example of more than a thousand general contractors applying accident prevention methods on their jobs during 1929 and securing reductions in accident frequency and severity ranging from 10 to 80 per cent it is proposed to launch a nationwide program to extend safety promotional activities to the actual jobs on which accidents occur.

Ways and means to organize every construction project for accident prevention in 1930 is to be one of the leading items on the program of the convention of the Associated General Contractors of America which opens in New Orleans January 20. The old theory that accidents on construction work are inevitable because of the hazardous nature of the operations has been amply refuted, claims Major Richards. In a partial preliminary check up of the records of contractors who have carried on accident prevention work on their jobs during the past year a total of nine construction firms have already been found to have passed through the entire year without a single lost time accident. Many other similar records are expected to be uncovered as the work of tabulating and checking the safety records proceeds. The nine firms with unblemished records were found in an examination of the experience of the first 80 firms on the list of more than a thousand whose records are available.

The Associated General Contractors of America conducts an annual contest among its members to determine which individual member firm has the best record, which local chapter has the fewest accidents and which member of all the local chapters has the best showing. The competition is for national championship cups. They are awarded in the case of several jobs scored to the contestants having worked the largest number hours.

Since contractors with good safety records ordinarily secure compensation insurance at lower rates it has been shown to be immediately profitable as well as humanitarian to put construction jobs on an accident prevention basis.

MAKING GOOD USE OF EVERY SPACE

90 P. C. OF HOMES SHOULD MODERNIZE ELECTRICALLY

According to the Johnson Electric Company ninety per cent of the homes in this city are in need of additional electrical outlets.

"During the past few weeks I have inspected personally a half hundred or so homes," stated Ernest Johnson today, "and nine out of ten of them were not electrically complete. By this I refer to the need for outlets and fixtures rather than to accessories such as toaster, percolators and the like."

"The use of such accessories is increasing all the time. Electrical equipment makes a satisfactory and lasting gift. It is always appropriate and each year we are selling more of this type of merchandise. Yet the home does not keep pace with this electrical progress. The average kitchen, for instance, is not equipped to use two of these accessories at the same time. If the percolator is in service, the toaster must wait. Such an arrangement as this hampers the preparation of meals and the only solution is additional outlets."

"In the living room, also, a similar condition prevails. The vogue nowadays is for an abundance of lamps. Three or four are found in the average house, yet it is with difficulty that they can be placed into service without having the room cluttered up with a tangle of wires and two way sockets. A double-outlet in each wall of the room would eliminate this difficulty."

"Every room and even the hall needs electrical outlets. I've been in newly constructed houses that had no outlets in the bedrooms. Yet a bed-lamp is an important factor in the decorative plan and electrical warming pads are being sold more and more. Outlets are necessary if these are to be used with convenience."

"I am glad to know that in the Home Modernizing movement being fostered by the Manchester Herald the use of more electrical outlets is being advocated. I believe that the home modernizing campaign should deserve the careful attention of every reader of The Herald for it contains a genuine element of good for the community."

FLOOR COVERING

IN RICH COLORS

Rugs, Carpets and Linoleums Offer Wide Opportunity for Distinctiveness.

Color in floor coverings has kept pace with the increasing use of color in all parts of the home, and rugs, carpets and linoleums are available today in more varied color combinations than have ever been offered before.

The new note in color is especially notable in the rich modern carpets being offered in geometric designs of almost incalculable variety in pattern and color. Equally striking use of rich color in patterns of more conservative origin is also in growing demand, and manufacturers of carpets have been quick to respond to this popular trend.

New Beauty.
In linoleums, too, there has been a development that promises much for the woman who desires new beauty and color in her home. Designs in linoleum have shown almost unbelievable improvement in recent years, and most interesting effects may be secured today from the combination of linoleums with rugs in floor covering.

Through this multiplicity of design and color combination, a greater possibility for distinctive room arrangement is put within the range of the average man's purse. It is no longer necessary to have a specially designed rug, for there are standard rugs in an infinite variety of patterns and sizes. Floor coverings and every other article of furnishings in the entire ensemble of a room may now be worked into one complete scheme of color harmony.

He sits at his keyboard in the center of a great network of transmission lines. The territory for which he is responsible may cover a small portion of a single state, an entire state, or even parts of two or more states.

He knows almost from minute to minute just what the demands for light and power in his territory will be. He must know in advance of the approach of a storm, for this means that everywhere lights will be snapped on.

As the day advances he presses first one key and then another, and one generating plant after another springs into life. With another keyboard this great supply of power is released into tens of thousands of outlets and the day's activities are under way.

ROMANY DANCES PLEASE SOCIETY

New Yorkers in Gypsy Costumes Make Merry; Russian Fete Makes Hit.

New York, Jan. 18.—(AP)—The land of Make-believe replete with the costumes of distant lands, was society's playground this week.

The fashionables, who love to "dress up," paraded from dinner to ball, from tea to supper, in colorful array, their amusements reflecting the entertainments of the land their costumes portrayed. And when they had finished one affair, they proceeded with plans for some more.

The Russian fete which Mrs. Henry Loomis gave at the Park Lane in honor of the youthful Grand Duchess Kira Monday night was one of the week's most brilliant festivities.

In the hotel rooms decked with Russian and American flags members of the Russian Colony and the American smart folks of New York gathered for an entertainment reminiscent of the steppes.

Cossack dancers in tall black Astrakhan caps and blue suits ornamented with gold braid clacked with their high-heeled black boots through a Cossack dance, their curved daggers gleaming in the subdued lights. Madame Lydia Sadovskaia, a gypsy singer in crimson and blue, sang Russian gypsy songs to a guitar accompaniment and Madame Vera Smirnova gave "Charochka," a Russian toast song.

At midnight Russian chefs served a special buffet supper à la Russe. Among the guests were Mrs. Elihu Root Jr., Mrs. Lewis Gouverneur Morris, Princess Ruspoli and the Duchesse la Richelieu.

Between-times the fashionables are busying themselves with plans for the Beaus Art ball—always one of the most brilliant events of the winter season, which will take place January 24. Each year the costumes for the event run into hundreds of thousands of dollars.

This year the setting of the ball will be the Italian Renaissance, and society is busy with costume plates and modistes in the designing of suitable array reminiscent of the period. Miss Mary Sarg, the Italian haired daughter of Tony Sarg, has elected to attend the ball as the au-burn-haired sister of Lorenzo de Medici. Green and gold velvet and brocade, ornamented with sable and cloth of gold fashion her the feast.

The pageant of the ball will portray Italian days of luxury and magnificence—a banquet scene in the palace of Lorenzo de Medici, the Magnificent of Florence. The Boccaccio ballet, entertainers from Spain and Venice will contrast with Savonarola and the burning of the vanities by his Dominican monks.

After the pageant, in which more than 300 will take part, the fashionables in their own beautiful costumes will hold the center of the scene, dancing in the ballroom and in a number of smaller rooms until breakfast-time.

The Bal Guignol given at the Ritz Carlton was one gaiety of the week where the smart folk contented themselves with appearing in the fashionable attire of 1930. But even that harks back to days of long ago when the spring mode accented strongly by the trailing skirts, the fitted waists and the long gloves of yesteryear.

The most vivid colors flash at the formal dances these days—bright scarlet, deep crimson, sapphire blue and chartreuse green, accented here and there by a frock of clinging white satin or black lace. Long gloves, generally white, but often pale green, pink, and even maroon to match the wearer's frock, are very much a part of the vogue.

Property That Is Worth Having Is Worth Protecting

Certainly if you own buildings of any type you do not want them to deteriorate in value.

Keep them well painted is the solution of the whole problem.

Let us do the work. Expert workmen using the best materials is a combination hard to beat.

John I. Olson
Painting and Decorating Contractor.

The spring mode with continued long skirts, printed frocks of small and large hats were modelled by a score of debutantes at the Bal Guignol.

Then came songs and dances from a Broadway revue, a Punch and Judy show placed at the disposal of the ball committee by Tony Sarg, and a supper.

The Pekinese Club's specialty show at the Roosevelt early this week for the benefit of the New York Women's League for Animals brought the feminine dog lovers of society thronging to the doors. The show, which offers a chance for friendly chat and an opportunity to display a smart afternoon frock and one's favorite canine at the same time, is always a favorite.

This year more than $500 in cash prizes and many trophies were bestowed on the small aristocrats of dogdom that once were the favorites of Chinese royal circles. And when their owners had dispensed with the formalities of the show, tea, with sandwiches, salads and cold meat plates, was served.

MISS SHEARER'S NEWEST TALKIE COMES TO STATE

"Their Own Desire" Treats on Parents' Influence Over Their Children.

Norma Shearer never shown more brightly than in her latest talking picture triumph, "Their Own Desire," which opens a three day engagement at the State Sunday night. This new vehicle of Miss Shearer's tells the story of a girl whose happiness came dangerously near frustration through the machinations of a father who had grown tired of his wife, and sought diversion in other quarters. While "Their Own Desire" is not exactly a phase of "the sins of the father" idea, it gives a clean-cut picture of the effect of parental incompatability on children, which in itself is something rather novel for screen use.

Miss Shearer as usual gives her intelligent and faithful performance of a role that might easily have been ruined by overplayed sentimentality. Lewis Stone and Belle Bennett, as the parents are splendidly cast. Robert Montgomery, Miss Shearer's leading man, is a newcomer to the talking screen, and was seen here recently in his first screen production, "So This is College." Mr. Montgomery caught the public fancy from the start of his picture career, although he has seen much experience on the legitimate stage of Broadway. He bids fair to rise rapidly to become one of the most popular young leading men of the screen. He is possessed of a marvelous personality and he succeeds admirably in getting it across.

"Their Own Desire" is particularly interesting from another angle inasmuch as it depicts a variety of pleasures of society, including polo, swimming, boating, and garden party scenes, showing how the other half lives. The surrounding program consists of two selected Vitaphone acts and the latest Metrophone sound news.

Some New Year resolutions probably will be kept. For one thing, you can't play the stock market without any money.

A HOME WORTHY OF CAREFUL STUDY

The prospective homebuilder will find it well worth his while to give this design careful study, for it embodies many excellent features. The rooms are all rectangular in shape and of splendid proportions; they are conveniently and economically arranged.

The house has been planned to fit comfortably on a plot with a frontage of fifty feet and with the principal rooms facing the garden. A cellar under the entire house. The house contains 29,200 cubic feet and would cost approximately $14,000 to build.

Complete working plans and specifications of this house may be obtained for a nominal sum from the Building Editor. Refer to House A-183.

"STRANGE INTERLUDE" IS ASTOUNDING ADVENTURE

O'Neill's Famous Drama Comes to Parsons Theater, Hartford, for Week Starting Monday.

"Strange Interlude," which will be presented at Parsons theater, Hartford, on Monday, Jan. 20, for an engagement of six days has been called "the most astounding adventure in the theater today."

Coming here adorned with the wreath of the Pulitzer prize award as the "best play of 1928," and boasting of smashed box office records clear across the country, it is a foregone conclusion that it will be greeted with crowded houses and subjected to the closest critical scrutiny.

"Strange Interlude" is possibly the most difficult play to act that has ever been written. Long speeches, merging into long "asides" of the contradictory thoughts that hide themselves under the masking conventionalities of everyday words, are things to try the capabilities of any actor. The company that the New York Theater Guild is sending here is said to carry the bulky burden superbly.

At the beginning of the play, Nina Leeds is a vibrant young girl passionately in love with a college hero. He is killed in the war. In the bitterness of her virginity, knowing that her dead lover had coveted her, she leaves home and seeks succor in the giving of herself to other men. Then she marries a man for whom she cares very little. She is about to have a child that will help her forget her dead sweetheart—only to find that her husband's blood is tainted with insanity. She thereupon picks a doctor to give her a healthy child that she may pass off as her husband's and she continues to dominate both men husband and lover, as well as a third, an old friend who worships her from afar. All through her chaotic life, her three men, as she calls them, faithfully follow, bound to her as she is to them by the chains of their desires and memories. Then in the weary middle years, when her fires are cooling and indifference is about to give her rest, her old passion for possession and dominance springs into new life by the imminent threat of another woman's love for her son. In the play considerably different in the impressions that it will impart. Included in the New York company which will appear are Elizabeth Risdon, Frank Conroy, Elaine Cordner, George Gaul, Maud Durand, Brandon Evans, Mary Holman, James Todd, and Lester Sheehy.

The Carnegie Hero Fund, established 25 years ago, has awarded 19 gold medals, 526 silver medals, and 1,760 bronze medals since that time.

Hot water is no lukewarm friend—when you have an automatic gas water heater. No more half-cold, half-warm, half-hearted dabs at clothes and dishes. No more hair-pulling cold-water shaves.

Enough sizzling hot water to keep a whole house happy—why not? The cost is reasonable indeed.

Manchester Trims West Hartford By 33-19 Score

VISITORS BADLY OUTCLASSED; CAPTAIN DOWD IN LIMELIGHT

Bristol and Meriden Also Win C. C. I. C. Contests With Ease; Two Games Next Week for Locals.

Manchester High swept West Hartford High into the street last night with such force that the visiting machine looked as if a typhoon had struck it amidship. The final score of 33 to 19 doesn't begin to tell the real difference between the two basketball outfits. Manchester played the visitors completely off their feet until the last few minutes when they must have felt sympathetic and eased up a little. One field goal in each half was all the West Hartford team could score until a rally in the closing minutes which did nothing save south the pain of a very one-sided score.

The game was too one-sided to be very interesting, proving nothing more than a good workout for the Clarke-coached quintet. It wasn't because West Hartford didn't try; rather because they were away out of their class, much to the disgust of Coach Eric Norfeldt who gave vent to his feelings with a continual sideline verbal barrage.

Two other games were played in the C. C. I. C. last night. Bristol overwhelmed Middletown 38 to 20 and Meriden handed East Hartford its tenth straight defeat 38 to 12. Manchester plays two games next week. Monday afternoon, Rockville High comes here and on Friday evening the locals journey to Middletown.

But to get back to last night's tussle here, Captain Dowd was the shining light with seven floor goals. The visiting forwards were guilty of keeping a very poor tab on the local flash who often was done under the basket for easy twin-pips. The visitors were unable to score a single field goal until the second team went in late in the first half. The score stood 24 to 7 with only a few minutes to play.

YALE PLAYS CORNELL TONIGHT AT ITHACA

New York, Jan. 18.—(AP)—While the two leaders, Pennsylvania and Columbia, are resting on their laurels, the four tailenders in the eastern intercollegiate basketball league swing into action tonight. Several changes in the lower end of the standing not only are possible but probable.

Local Sport Chatter

Bridgeport will send the swimming team of Warren Harding to the School Street Rec for the first aquatic meet of the season this afternoon.

Hose and Ladder Co. No. 1 will send a bowling team to Rockville tonight to oppose the Pitt company. Anyone who wishes to go should be at the hose house not later than 7 o'clock.

The Phantoms and Ramblers play at 7 o'clock tonight and the Warriors meet the Taffys at 9 o'clock tonight in the Rec Junior league.

Did you know that Director Lewis Lloyd of the Recreation Centers is quite a chess player?

Rockville High plays the High school here Monday afternoon and the Trade school Friday afternoon. Chance to compare the two school-boy quintets.

Rudy Popplish, former Trade school star, is playing with the Telephone Company team in Hartford Industrial Basketball League. He's one of the best scorers on the team too.

The Night Hawks meet the West Sides and the Majors tackle the Charter Oaks at Gamba's alleys Monday night in the Herald League. It would be no big surprise if both the league-leaders get a beating, especially the Majors for the Charter Oaks are stepping right along of late.

The Rec Five has an out of town game next Thursday with the Hartford Knights of Lithuania. Next Tuesday evening the state champion Bristol team comes to the School Street Rec.

The hockey game over at Center Springs this afternoon ought to be well worth watching.

Grove City with Stavinsky and McCann aboard, crashes into Carnegie Tech on the latter's floor this evening.

RUTH PROVES POOR PARTNER FOR SMITH

Coral Gables, Fla., Jan. 18.—(AP)—Beaten in his first Florida match because heomurid diet of Babe Ruth and error Al E. Smith broke up the links team of Smith and Ruth today and set out alone in quest of golfing honors.

HOCKEY GAME TODAY AT CENTER SPRINGS

The newly organized Manchester Hockey team will meet a team from New Britain this afternoon at 2:30 on the Center Springs park rink. The skating surface is exceptionally fast and a good game is expected. The lineup:

SHIRES' CASE IS UP

Chicago, Jan. 18.—(AP)—Charles Arthur (The Great) Shires today had a date to tell Commissioner Landis he was ready to forsake the boxing game and concentrate on the business of playing first base if the commissioner desired. While Mr. Landis was said to be willing to believe the best about C. Arthur's future, there still remained incidents of the past to be ironed out. Shires still is under suspension by the Chicago White Sox for his informal bout with Lena Blackburne, Lou Barbour, traveling secretary of the White Sox and a couple of hotel employees in Philadelphia last summer.

Shires said he has no contracts for fights, but in case he should be banned from baseball he had $50,000 worth of fights in sight.

S. T. S. FIVE WINS ANOTHER CONTEST

Beats Hartford Trade 25 to 22; Viot Is High Scorer for Locals.

Manchester Trade School won its fifth victory of the season yesterday afternoon at the School street Recreation Center when it took the measure of Hartford Trade School in basketball by the narrow margin of 25 to 22.

WAPPING TO FACE FORMER CHAMPIONS

There's going to be a hot old time up in Wapping tonight when the Y. M. C. A. basketball team which is undefeated and apparently on the road to a sure County Y pennant, matches its skill with the Wapping team that won the title back in 1924.

Leading the Alumni will be George Hills, former Trade school star. Wapping fans will remember the sensational playing of the Wapping at the other forward berth will probably be Miles Grant. Bill Foster will be at center with Franklin Welles and Tom Stowe guards. Truman Hills and Johnny Seale will be in reserve, but not for long, as the wind of the other five isn't anything to brag about.

According to reports drifting in from the little village, the largest crowd of the season will be on hand this evening to witness the festivities. The Wapping quintet will be favored to beat its Alumni but one thing can be taken for granted and that is that the game will not savor of the taste one gets when watching many High School-Alumni contests.

Murphy, Spencer and Rose will be at forward berths for Wapping with Welles at center, Smith at guard and Kelly in the backcourt. In the preliminary game the Wapping Girls will tackle the strong Winsted team. This game starts at 7:30 with the main encounter going on around 8:30. There will be no dancing afterward.

CASEY'S HICKS BEAT BROWNIES, 27 TO 12

Playing superior ball during the entire game, Casey's Hicks, formerly the Brownies, proved themselves a better team than the West Side Flashes, at the Franklin School Gym, Thursday evening, 27-12. Captain Snow of the victorious team was high scorer, with a total of 17 points, before he received his pass to the showers on personals. Willie Vince acted as referee. Time out was called only once by the Flashes. Ted Lupien's and Wop Massaro's floorwork was neat.

World's Richest Golf Tourney Is Next Week

Augua Caliente $25,000 Open Begins Monday; $1,000 Open at La Jolla Today.

San Diego, Cal., Jan. 18.—(AP)—Those who roam the nation's golf links seeking glory and gold had gathered here today in anticipation of the world's richest golfing money event, the Augua Caliente $25,000 open, which opens Monday across the Mexican border in Lower California.

The four day 72 hole medal tourney, with its picked field of nearly a hundred of fairways fame holds as its first place stake $10,000 of Mexican gold at United States values.

Today most of them were to appear in an eighteen hole $1,000 event at the picturesque little town of La Jolla near here.

At the head of this chosen field of professionals and amateurs stood Benny Shute, winner of the Los Angeles, $10,000; Leo Diegel, king of the pros, Gene Sarazen, the Espinosa brothers, Abe and Al; MacDonald Smith, Al Watrous, Walter Hagen, and George Von Elm, one of the nation's leading amateurs, not to mention a large delegation of others.

THE GARDEN MONOPOLY When better fights are promoted in New York this summer, and let us all hope they will be, the 600 Millionaires will promote them.

This leaves Jack Dempsey out of the Manhattan picture. There was a prospect that Jack might put on a show or two at the Polo Grounds; the newest move of Bill Carey's crowds out the former champion.

Matchmaker Tom McArdie plans a busy summer of boxing, with four new fights in June is expected to produce at least a synthetic champion of the world. Plans are afoot and there has been much talk of a fight between Jimmy McLarin, and for Mickey Walker to meet Ace Hudson or another middleweight.

The winner of the Jimmy Slatery-Lou Scozza bout in Buffalo was tery-Lou Scozza but in Max Rosenbloom ordered to meet Max Rosenbloom for the light-heavyweight championship. This may be one of the outdoor shows. The new featherweight champion, Bat Battalino, also is being lined up for bouts under Garden auspices. It appears the 600 Millionaires have the cauliflower market pretty well cornered.

HACK LONGS FOR BATTLE Mr. Hack (Sunny Boy) Wilson again has the itch to meet Art Shires. Every time he gets away from the arena and the influence of Mrs. Wilson, Hack dreams of the arena and longs to step in there against the American League's all-time star, Art Shires. The National League has been knocked from pillar to post during the last few days of the season. Is this American League supremacy to extend to the boxing ring, too?

MCCUSKEY BEATS RITOLA IN RACE

Willie Ritola, famous Finnish runner, was beaten by Joe McCluskey, Manchester's well known miler, in a two mile handicap at the 102nd Engineers Army in New York, Wednesday night.

The local athlete was given a 75-yard handicap, Ritola starting from scratch. McCluskey finished first and Ritola fourth. The winner's time was 9 minutes and 22 seconds.

This is the third brilliant achievement made by the Fordham flash since he started his athletic adventures at that institution.

SECONDS DEFEATED BY WEST HARTFORD

Manchester High school seconds were no match for the strong West Hartford High scrubs in the preliminary game at the Rec last night. The visitors won by a double score. The final count was 20 to 10. The winners were especially good from the foul line.

Berg Scores Sensational Victory Over Canzoneri

New York, Jan. 18.—(AP)—Jack (Kid) Berg, the human perpetual motion machine from England, today occupied a strategic position from which to fire a challenge at Sammy Mandell, the king of all the lightweights. Berg gained the finest triumph of his American invasion at Madison Square Garden last night when he gave Tony Canzoneri, former featherweight champion, a terrible beating, before 18,800 spectators.

The Englishman now needs only to turn back Al Singer, Bronx idol later in the indoor season to gain a title "shot" with Mandell in one of the outdoor shows of the year. That at least is Madison Square Garden's plan of action.

The Briton's victory came as a distinct shock for Canzoneri, generally considered one of the very few great fighters of the era, was a 2 to 1 favorite. The Englishman scaled 134½ to Canzoneri's 133.

Dempsy's sorrow was caused by the fact that only 5,432 spectators who paid $15,939 went to the Chicago Coliseum last night to see Lomski and James J. Braddock, the Jersey City puncher, fight.

Lomski never will believe he didn't get better than a draw with Braddock, and from their actions when the stand off decision was announced most of the witnesses were agreed with Leo.

Although knocked down twice by Braddock's rights, Lomski in the opinion of the ringside experts looked seven of the 10 rounds.

Dempsy, thwarted by sub-zero weather that kept the fans at home listening to the radio account of the fight was reported to have lost about $11,000 on the venture bringing his total deficit since he started offering boxing entertainment in Chicago last October to approximately $40,000.

SAYS COAST GUARDSMEN ACCEPTED $2,500 BRIBE

Buffalo, Jan. 18.—(AP)—Accused of accepting a bribe from a rum runner for the release of a seized speedboat, three Coast Guardsmen were under arrest in the Erie county jail today and a countrywide search was underway for a fourth man.

Coast Guard authorities said that four guardsmen after seizing a speed boat in Toledo Harbor accepted a $2,500 bribe from a Toledo bootlegger named Courtney for the release of the craft. The boat later was again captured and Courtney, then made his charges.

Lt. M. W. Rasmussen, district commander of the Coast Guard, said one of the men under arrest had confessed. The men are Joseph Libby, W. E. Wynder, and W. J. Blakeslee. They are alleged to have received $500 each while the missing man received $1,000. The man had been stationed at Port Clinton, Ohio.

THE TINYMITES

(READ THE STORY, THEN COLOR THE PICTURE)

The bird kept pecking very fast. Said Clowdy, "How long will this last? I'm getting tired of waiting. I would like to take a ride. The bird's pecked deep into the tree. Come on now, Tinies, let us see if we can move it off our bike. At least it can be tried." "There's not much use," another said. "But, if you want to, go ahead. We all will gladly lend a hand, but it will do no good." So once again they tried their luck, but only found the tree still stuck. Said Scouty, "That was foolish, lads, I didn't think we could." The bird then spoke up. "Mercy me, you're as impatient as can be. Just give me time and I will shortly have your fine bike out. When this big trunk is pecked in two, there'll be one thing for you to do. Just move the upper end of it. 'Twill save your bike, no doubt." And so the bunch just sat around
