GOVERNOR PREDICTS MONSTER AIRPLANES

At Middletown Gathering Executive Says Trans-Oceanic Planes Will Carry 500.

Predicting that airplanes of the trans-Atlantic lines of the near future will carry 500 passengers at a cruising speed of from 600 to 800 miles an hour, Governor John H. Trumbull of Connecticut addressed 250 members of the Middlesex County Foreman's Club in Middletown last night.

Governor Trumbull told the gathering that he had seen the plans for the type of ships he outlined. They will be equipped, he said, with 30 foot propellers and 1 one hundred horse power motors, each operating as an individual unit, so that even with several out of commission the airplane can still make headway.

NATIONS FORCED TO REDUCE ARMS

Senator Robinson Tells Correspondents U. S. Policy During Present Parley.

London, Feb. 19.—(AP)—Belief that American public opinion would be "slow to accept any arrangement" which does not have reduction of naval armaments in view, was voiced today by Senator Joseph T. Robinson, a member of the American delegation to the naval conference in an address before the Association of American Correspondents in London.

Presenting to the correspondents his idea of "what the United States expects of the London conference," Senator Robinson expressed confidence that the American people would be emphatically opposed to the government's entry into a security pact among European nations.

"My understanding is that the people of the United States quite generally adhere to the traditional policy of our government to avoid if possible involvement in European politics," he said.

Our Policies.
"They would repudiate emphatically any treaty expressly or impliedly obligating our government to employ the Army or the Navy for the enforcement of obligations assumed by other nations. It is for this reason that they do not encourage their delegates to this conference to join in guarantees of security respecting areas remote from territory or possessions of the United States."

"Americans realize that no power will deliberately violate its undertaking for the limitation or reduction of armaments. They believe that no sanction is necessary to assure the good-faith performance of any treaty for that purpose. This attitude does not imply indifference or lack of sympathy for the problems of others. It is grounded on the American conception of sound policy and constitutional limitations."

His Seven Points.
The delegate outlined seven points which he said "express the true of the real American attitude, after discounting as guides to American opinion the views advanced by groups 'somewhat contemptuously designated by those of opposing nations as 'Pacifists,' 'Internationalists,' and 'Big Navy' champions."

His interpretation of American popular desires in brief was:
The limitation of fighting ships in all categories.
The extension of substantially the same relation to cruisers, destroyers and submarines, as exists in regard to capital ships as between the United States, Great Britain and Japan, including "parity" between the United States and Great Britain.
The reduction in battleships below the Washington treaty limits as soon as limitation of auxiliary ships is "in plain sight."

An agreement to refrain from the use of "such agencies and instruments as neither courage nor skill can effectively resist," (submarines and aircraft employed for bombing cities).
The rejection of American entry into any European security pact.

DISCUSS TARIFF TRUCE

Geneva, Feb. 19.—(AP)—Pablo Garmica of Spain today promised the League of Nations tariff conference that his government would co-operate in the proposed economic re-organization of Europe which the conference has at heart.

He said that Spain recognized Europe's economic condition as a pressing problem which Spain wants to assist in remedying.

M. Bottai, Italian minister for corporations, expressed the idea of his government that the project for a truce seemed premature and impracticable. He said: "It seems desirable to await the establishment in the world of a broader comprehension of national economic phenomena, an indispensable basis for international co-operation."

THE BOOK SURVEY

BY BRUCE CATTON
NEA Service Writer

"The Sunken Fleet," by Helmut Lorenz, tells the story of the World War from a new angle—the viewpoint of a German naval officer. It is written as a novel, and it is far from being the finest novel of the winter; but it is one of the most absorbingly interesting books you will come across in a long time.

Lorenz, former gunnery officer on the flagship of the German high seas fleet, writes savagely and bitterly, as if the memory of lost opportunities still galls him. Here we have no exposition of the horror and tragedy of war; we have a German naval officer rising to curse a government which built and trained one of the finest fleets in all history and then failed to use it.

For Lorenz believes that the German fleet, man for man and ship for ship, was better than the English fleet. He believes that it could have engaged the British fleet, in the first year of the war, with a good chance of winning a complete victory.

In short, he is firmly convinced that the navy could have won the war for Germany in 1914 or 1915; and before you get through with "The Sunken Fleet," you find yourself almost agreeing with him.

Falling to force a decisive fleet engagement, the German government—says Lorenz—then made another major blunder by deferring its unrestricted submarine warfare. Everyone, he says, knew this was coming; but it was put off so long that the allies were able to prepare preventive measures. If it had been begun in 1915 or early 1916, he insists it would have meant sure victory.

As a picture of life in the German navy, a reflection of the viewpoint of the German naval officer, "The Sunken Fleet" is extremely interesting. It gives, also, a good picture of the life of a submarine commander, and it describes the battle of Jutland so well that it is apt to convert you to jingoism, big-navy-ism and similar dangerous heresies.

The book is published by Little, Brown and Co., and sells for $2.50. I recommend it to you as an interesting and exciting piece of work.

Sir Philip Gibbs Peers Into a Dark Abyss
Sir Philip Gibbs' "The Hidden City" seems at the beginning, to be a charming idyll—the tale of a gentle, kindly doctor and his work in a crowded London suburb.

But recently you discover that the book is not idyllic at all. In fact, it comes close to being a cry of despair. Dr. John Jevons, going through post-war London, finds that there is something dreadfully wrong with modern civilization. The physical ailments of his patients become minor matters.

The speed and tension of life in a great metropolis are proving too much for them. One and all, they have dark recesses in their souls where terrible things are happening to them.

And so, as you read on, you see that this "hidden city" is a fearful place; a place of lunacies and frightful mysteries, living just under the surface of the visible city. Sir Philip is not writing an idyll—far from it! He is wondering whether civilization may not be plunging into an abyss.

"The Hidden City" is good reading, and you will enjoy it; but you should also, I think, read it for the good of your soul. It will set you to asking some useful questions.

Doubleday-Doran are issuing the book. It costs $2.50.

The Joys and Tragedies of a Futile People
If you can find it in your heart to believe that anything that can happen to members of the English fox-hunting gentry can possibly be important, you will probably find "Taking Chances," by M. J. Farrell, a very good book indeed.

The characters in this book cannot talk or think about anything but fox hunting. It is all they know. They are very well-bred and very "sporting" and unutterably futile. They fall in love, and have their moments of ecstasy; but somehow it is hard to get excited about it all. These people are so supremely useless, so eternally out of touch with the real world, that it is hard to feel that what happens to them makes any difference.

Probably this is unfair to the author. "Taking Chances" is well written. It is, in fact, an extremely good book, of its kind. If you like this sort of literature, you'll find this an excellent specimen.

Lippincott is publishing it. The price is $2.
A Sophomoric Novel of A Newspaper Office
For all I know James S. Hart and Garrett D. Byrnes, the authors of "Scoop," may be grizzled old veterans in the newspaper business; but the book they have written sounds as if it were the work of two men who have just graduated from the "cub" stage. It is pervaded by a note of immaturity—a sophomoric cynicism that spoils what might have been a very good story.

The book tells of the experiences of a newspaper reporter in an eastern city that sounds exactly like Boston. It is filled with exciting incidents, and it is also filled with incidents—the too-detailed account of the rewrite man's job, for instance—that are not exciting at all, and that fail to justify their inclusion in the book. There is, too, a recurrent "Ah, but we newspaper men are dreadfully cynical—we see too much of life"; which, I submit is not the way real veteran newspapermen talk or think. That sort of stuff is the hallmark of the youngster. It does "Scoop" irreparable injury.

"Scoop" is an Atlantic Monthly Press publication, issued by Little, Brown and Co.

CALLS UPON GERMANS TO IMPROVE FINANCES

Berlin, Feb. 19.—(AP)—A nationwide call to Germans to put their financial house in order enabling the Reich to carry out the Young plan, was issued in manifesto form today, bearing the signatures of hundreds of leading figures in Germany.

Although the appeal did not specify what measures were to be adopted, it urged the general necessity to place the republic's financial and economic system upon an entirely different basis, the keynote being that no money must be spent without adequate returns.

The Young plan cannot be fulfilled unless a large surplus of exports is secured, the manifesto declared. Therefore German production must be put in a position to meet foreign competition both at home and abroad. The manifesto also urged taxation reform, relief for industry from crushing burdens and far-reaching aid to agriculture.

The signatories included Dr. Hjalmar Schacht, head of the Reichsbank, and leading industrial magnates such as Carl Duisenberg and Conrad von Borsig, bankers such as Max Warburg and Jacob Goldschmidt. Other signatories were Dr. Hugo Eckener, former Chancellor Luther, Ludwig Kaat and Carl Meißner, who were members of the Paris reparations conference, Count Keyserling, Adolf von Harnack and Philip Heineken, president of the North German Lloyd.

RAILROAD MERGER MEETING FEB. 27

New England Consolidation Committee's First Session to Be Held in Hartford.

The Connecticut Committee of the New England Railroad Consolidation Committee, which is composed of E. Kent Hubbard, chairman; E. Allen Moore, William H. Putnam, George S. Stevenson, and Henry Trumbull, is to hold its first public hearing at the State Capitol, Hartford, on February 27 in the Old Senate Chamber at 2:00 p. m.

The New England Committee was created by the governors of the six New England states because of their realization that with the issuance of the Porter Plan on Railroad Consolidation by the Interstate Commerce Commission and the presentation of the Lore, Wabash, Van Sweringe and other consolidation plans, it was necessary that New England should be prepared to act upon the matter intelligently from the New England standpoint.

The chief function of the New England Committee will be to bring to date the Storror Committee report, which was presented to the governors of the New England states in 1923.

At the hearing next week, Governor Trumbull will tell of the conferences which led up to the appointment of the New England Committee. The chairman of the Public Utilities Commission, Mr. Richard will outline the various proposals for railroad consolidation affecting New England which have thus far been presented. All civic, agricultural, commercial and industrial organizations in the state have been asked to send representatives and from preliminary check-up, it is apparent that at least 200 people will be present.

UNIQUE SCHOLAR DIES

Berlin, Feb. 19.—(AP)—Death today ended the unique scholarly career of Doctor August Hermann Francke, who though he never went to college, has been a professor of the University of Berlin since 1923. It was his most extraordinary knowledge of the Tibetan language gained as a missionary and explorer which led him to an honorary degree from Breslau and later secured for him the Tibetan professorship in Berlin.

He has written many books, both English and German, on the Tibetan folk-lore, language, and literature.

PRESENT "TOMMY" HERE NEXT WEEK WEDNESDAY

Under the direction of Miss Lella M. Church, of Rockville, rehearsals are progressing favorably for the presentation of "Tommy," here on Wednesday evening, Feb. 26, at Cheney Hall. The play is a comedy in three acts by Howard Lindsay and Bert Robinson, and is the most ambitious ever attempted by the young people of the Lutheran Concordia Church, who are giving it. It has been announced a great favorite with stock companies, and it may be of interest to mention that "Tommy" was just recently given by the Somerville Stock Players in Boston.

The present cast has worked untiringly and enthusiastically to give a finished performance. Considerably more than the usual time and pains have been put into the rehearsals and already it is showing smoothness of portrayal. It is a story admirably fitted to the talents of the Y.P.S. Dramatic Club, and is sure to provide a fine evening of enjoyment to those who witness it. The plot concerns two young people who are very much in love with each other, through circumstances entirely beyond their control they become separated, but the differences are settled and all terminates happily.

Emily Stavnitsky and Edward Fischer are the two lovers, and they are excellent in their respective roles. Belle Lange and Oscar G. Anderson play the parts of Mr. and Mrs. Thurber. John Zwick as the uncle, Harold Helm as the snappy salesman, and Raymond Kulpinsky as Judge Wilson fill the remaining roles. The advance sale of tickets assures a capacity house. Dancing will be enjoyed after the performance.

SEA CONFERENCE MAY TAKE A REST

Delegates Think Discussions Should Be Postponed for Next Five Days.

London, Feb. 19.—(AP)—Informal suggestions that the naval conference be suspended for five days were made this morning in conference circles.

There was widespread feeling in conference circles that it would be better to take a few days vacation during the present lull.

The American delegation this morning suspended press conferences temporarily, this action being interpreted unofficially as indicating the Americans were in favor of brief suspension of the conference itself.

French to Blame Some doubt was expressed whether the French would approve such a suspension since they would have to bear the blame for the delay.

The French naval experts were present as observers when the subcommittee which is discussing special and exempt vessels assembled at St. James's palace this morning.

Dino Grandi, Italian foreign minister and delegation head, this morning awaited statement of naval policy and requirements to the other delegations. He planned to give the statement to the press later this afternoon.

DROP IN SPANISH PESETA KILLS ALL SMUGGLING PROFITS

Saint-Jean-Pied-De-Port, France.—(AP)—Smuggling, once a great and flourishing industry on the Franco-Spanish frontier, has become a mere game for dilettantes.

Old time smugglers blame the fluctuation of Spanish exchange for the decline in the profession. There is no profit, they say, in buying cattle on the French side, driving them through the narrow mountain passes and selling them on the Spanish market.

Saint-Jean-Pied-De-Port was once one of the most frequented headquarters of smugglers. In their opulent days they supported an extensive cabaret and casino, and the night life was, on a small scale, like that of Paris or Madrid.

In the old days, thousands of cattle passed up the valley of the Nive in Spain each year. Spanish wool, brandy and kindred commodities entered France. Today the customs men find little to do.

OHIO'S STATEHOOD

On Feb. 19, 1803, Ohio was admitted to the Union. In the War of 1812 the new state was twice menaced by the combined forces of the British and Indians, but in both cases defeated the invaders.

In the Civil War Ohio gave the Union a large number of officers, among them being Grant, Sherman, McDowell, Rosecrans and Garfield. Recognized throughout its history as a fruitful soil for political activities, Ohio gave the nation seven presidents: U. S. Grant, Rutherford B. Hayes, James A. Garfield, Benjamin Harrison, William McKinley, William H. Taft, and Warren G. Harding.

Congress Stirred To High Pitch As Wet-Dry Dispute Gains Force

JOHN CHARLES LINTHICUM

LOUIS C. CRAMTON

JOHN J. BLAINE

Representative Linthicum, Maryland, has been selected general of the house of representatives wet bloc in a new campaign against prohibition. Representative Cramton, Michigan, is an outstanding dry leader. Senator Blaine, Wisconsin, has introduced a resolution to repeal the eighteenth amendment.

By L. A. BROPHY.

Washington.—(AP)—Prohibition is the big show in the second session of the seventy-first congress. A resistless tide of discussion of the eighteenth amendment, and its supporting legislation, early engaged the session.

Proposals for important changes in the status of prohibition followed oratory; new groups have been made, and the topic now seems to face legislative attention unparalleled in its troublesome life span of 10 years.

Like tireless marionettes, house and senate leaders for and against a dry United States have bobbed up to speak their minds in never-ending fashion since congress convened in December.

One of the significant developments was the determination of house wets to organize for "constant, daily attention" in their cause.

Generalship first was offered to James M. Beck of Pennsylvania, former solicitor general of the United States, and while he refused, an accompanying statement played prohibition.

The mantle then fell on Joan Charles Linthicum of Maryland, who has been chairman of the Committee for Modification of the Volstead Act (Unofficial), a band of wet crusaders in the house.

Just a little austere and quiet in manner, the Maryland member has spoken in favor of government control of liquor, perhaps under a system patterned after the Quebec method.

Linthicum, in the past, has gone about his task unobtrusively. In the vehement wing of the house forces against prohibition are Representatives Fiorello H. La Guardia of New York and John C. Schaer of Wisconsin.

Louis C. Cramton of Michigan and John G. Cooper of Ohio, where the Anti-Saloon league was born and bred, are outstanding dry leaders.

Over in the other wing, Senator John J. Blaine of Wisconsin has sponsored a resolution to repeal the eighteenth amendment. And the discussion goes 'round and 'round, seemingly gathering momentum right along, as proposals and oratory speed it.

ARCHBISHOP OF FRISCO IS RECEIVED BY POPE

Vatican City, Feb. 19.—(AP)—Pope Pius XI today received in private audience Archbishop Hanna of San Francisco. The pontiff congratulated the prelate on the number of persons now under Catholic tutelage in the San Francisco diocese. He praised the work of the seminaries for secular priests and those schools of religious orders in California generally.

The archbishop presented his brother, Frank Hanna and Mrs. Hanna of Rochester, New York, his nephew, Father Clark Hanna, who he ordained last Saturday, his cousin James Cordett, New Haven, Conn., and fathers John Cavanaugh and Aidan Doyle, San Francisco. Also introduced were Monsignor Thomas A. Roche of Asbury Park, N. J., and Father Ambros Dwyer of Binghamton, N. Y.

The pontiff blessed the entire assembly, and gave each a medal struck to commemorate the jubilee year.

STILL SEEKING FRENCH PREMIER

Tardieu Still the Dominant Figure—President Sees Leaders.

Paris, Feb. 19.—(AP)—Andre Tardieu, France's energetic former premier, was still the dominant figure in President Doumergue's search for a premier today, but there was a likelihood that even if asked to succeed himself he would refuse until some of the opposition had tried and failed.

HOLD UP MEN SCARED BY BREAKING GLASS

New York, Feb. 19.—(AP)—Two robbers, frightened when their intended victim threw a milk can cover through a plate glass window in an automobile today, outdistanced a pursuing taxicab from which a policeman fired nine shots at them.

MOOS EXONERATED

Washington, Feb. 19.—(AP)—Assistant Postmaster General Coleman announced today an investigation had exonerated Charles G. Moos, the postmaster at St. Paul of charges of misconduct brought against him by Representatives Maas, Republican, Minnesota.

Coleman said Maas had accused Moos of using his "position to coerce persons with whom he had official relations to place business in an insurance agency in which Mr. Moos was financially interested."

Inquiry by "two experienced inspectors" Coleman asserted had disclosed no evidence to support the charge, but on the other hand had "indicated that Mr. Moos has a fine conception of his obligations both to the public and the post office department which he has served faithfully during the past eight years."

OVERSEAS BROADCAST

New York, Feb. 19.—(AP)—Lady Astor is to talk to American from London next Sunday.

Thus the first woman member of Parliament will be the first of her sex to speak over the trans-Atlantic hookup which has been given wide use recently to carry first hand reports of the London naval conference.

The talk will be retransmitted to the United States and Canada, by the Columbia broadcasting system, and is to begin at 12:30 p. m. Eastern time. The hookup will include WABC and most of the stations of the CBS chain.

ANOTHER BODY FOUND

Cape May, Feb. 19.—(AP)—The body of a third member of the crew of the ill fated barge Carroll was picked up from the sea early today by the Coast Guard cutter Manning.

Papers found in the dead seaman's pockets indicated that his name was H. P. Wolfe. No address was given.

The Carroll foundered in a severe storm off the Delaware Capes Sunday while being towed from Norfolk, Va., to New York. The bodies of two of the crew of four men were found in a drifting lifeboat Sunday.

The fate of the fourth member of the crew, Patrick Frizzelle, formerly of Norfolk, has not been earned.

PLAN CLEAN FRUIT CLUB THROUGHOUT COUNTY

The announcement of plans for a 90 per cent Clean Fruit Club in Connecticut was made this morning by William L. Harris, Jr., Ass't. County Agricultural Agent for the Hartford County Farm Bureau.

According to Mr. Harris, the State Department of Agriculture has offered to give Certificates to all Connecticut apple growers who reach this goal, under the rules established for the club. Commissioner S. McLean Buckingham stated that his department would be glad to present the certificates either at the State Fruit Growers annual meeting or at one of the Union Agricultural meetings early next year.

The general purpose of the 90 per cent Clean Fruit Club is to encourage the growers to produce a higher percentage of quality apples. County Agent Harris has made the statement that many growers who have been producing only 47 per cent of their crop as a grade can be timely and thorough spray applications, by correct pruning and thinning, easily and profitably produce 75 per cent of A grade apples.

The Hartford County Farm Bureau and the Extension Fruit Specialist, William H. Darrow offer their assistance to the fruit growers and list the following schedule of services: Pruning demonstrations, fertilizer advice, illustrated spray calendars and record charts telling when to spray, with what materials and for what pests, timely pest control reminders and telephone and radio warnings on when to spray for apple scab, also thinning demonstrations. Any of these services can be secured by writing to Mr. Harris at the Hartford County Farm Bureau, County Building, Hartford.

All the orchardists who are desirous of producing quality apples are invited to send in their applications to the Farm Bureau office. The principal rules of the club are—first, signed application, second, record of spraying done, third, check and scoring by county agent or specialist of one variety in a block of at least 300 bushels, fourth, the variety must be one of the following: McIntosh, Wealthy, Gravenstein, Baldwin, Greening, Northern Spy or Delicious, fifth, ninety per cent of fruit free from blemishes.

This 90 per cent Clean Fruit Club is open to all growers in the state and is heartily endorsed by the local Farm Bureau Fruit committee of which S. Leonard Root is chairman.

TO PREVENT STATIC

Beverly, Mass., Feb. 19.—(AP)—Citizens here have decided to have their radio without static interference.

An ordinance for the static control of street cars, block signals, automatic ice boxes, electric vibrators and X-ray machines, among other electrical devices, has been passed by the Board of Aldermen and awaits the signature of Mayor Roy K. Patch.

Complaints from radio fans led to an investigation by city electrician William H. Greenlaw. He conducted experiments and finally placed blame for radio interference upon a dozen or more electrically operated contrivances, and then showed the owners how by proper operation and corrective devices they could be silenced.

The ordinance provides penalties for offenders. It exempts electric motors and X-ray machines only "if properly equipped to avoid preventable interference with radio reception and are not negligently operated."

Vatican City, Feb. 19.—(AP)—Pope Pius tomorrow will grant an audience to Princess Mafalda, second daughter of the King of Italy, and her husband, Prince Philip of Hesse.

INVENTION MAKES 20 FOOT BRICKS

Toronto, Ont., Feb. 19.—(AP)—The secret of making 20-foot bricks and molded sides of small houses was laid before the American Ceramic Society here today.

It is a new process in which bricks are made much like steel, of molten raw material. While the clay is white-hot, at about 2000 degrees Fahrenheit, it is shaped and pressed, and it is claimed that bricks thus can be made enormously larger than anything hitherto practicable. Always heretofore bricks have been shaped before baking and the old process limits size.

Prof. Joseph B. Shaw, head of the Department of Ceramics of Pennsylvania State College, inventor of the method, said the new bricks can be rolled like steel. They can be made reinforced with steel laid in the molten clay. The process dips into another of the practical building arts by making brick veneer. One brick can be impressed upon another to form a single structure. They are annealed like metal.

Never Made Before So far as he has been able to discover, Shaw said, clay products never have been made before by this method, which "introduces a new field or marked possibilities."

"The articles so shaped," he went on, will resemble structural steel and concrete structures in size, and will have properties enabling them to replace steel and concrete in many places. Sea walls, articles of large dimensions which cannot be manufactured economically under present practice, are the type for which this process seems ideal. It is realized that an enormous amount of experimental work is still ahead in order to fulfill commercially the predictions.

An announcement from Penn State said the process will "roll sides of houses and sections of roads." The research was undertaken to produce new paving material.

Prof. Shaw said the method has advantages in low production costs, and can use clays too poor for present practice. The big bricks can be made light or heavy, the latter possessing the greater strength. The lightest weight thus far made is about half that of present brick.

The age of the earth is computed by scientists to be from 1500 and 3000 million years.

Single prescription made a family doctor famous

SELDOM has any single act been of greater benefit to mankind than the one which Dr. Caldwell performed back in 1885 when he wrote the prescription which has carried his fame to the four corners of the earth.

Over and over, Dr. Caldwell wrote this prescription as he found men, women, and children suffering from those common symptoms of constipation, such as coated tongue, bad breath, headaches, gas, nausea, biliousness, poor appetite, or lack of energy, etc. And it invariably relieved these symptoms so much more pleasantly, so much quicker than other things, that his patients simply had to tell other people about it.

STRIKERS IN RIOT ARE HELD IN HUB

Boston, Feb. 19.—(AP)—Two men and nine women were arrested here this morning as police broke up a demonstration of striking Communist garment workers in the vicinity of the Cloak Manufacturers' association in Kneeland street.

Two of the women were Augusta Glassman, 19, of Malden, charged with distributing literature on a public street without a permit, and Sylvia Barofsky, 21, charged with refusing to move on when so requested by a policeman.

The Communist faction called a surprise strike yesterday in the midst of negotiations being conducted by Benjamin Schlesinger of New York City, president of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union, with local manufacturers for a new wage and working conditions agreement.

Start Picketing. Picketing was started yesterday under direction of Ben Gold, general secretary of the Needle and Trades Workers' Industrial Union. Annie Goldman, who was handing out circulars calling for a 40-hour, five-day week and elimination of the sweat shops, was the first striker to be arrested.

Schlesinger recently successfully concluded negotiations with the manufacturers in New York City to end sweat shop conditions there. The International is affiliated with the American Federation of Labor. Claims of the leaders of the two factions were in sharp contrast. Strikers asserted 300 workers had walked out while Schlesinger declared that of the thousands of garment workers in this city not more than 125 were in sympathy with Communist principles.

THE SUPREME COURT

For a nation which prides itself on its freedom this one is singularly restrictive of its own liberty of expression. Americans shock at a lower temperature than any other people in the world where criticism of any detail of their government is concerned. All over the country there are good sturdy folks with sound digestions turning pale and trembling because down in the Senate at Washington certain gentlemen of more or less radical bent are taking raps at the Supreme Court. There are a great many Americans who dare speak quite contemptuously of Congress yet would almost expect to be stricken dead if they were to permit a doubt to form in their secret souls about the divine origin of the "greatest tribunal in the world."

Millions of people in this country sincerely believe that the Court is this nation's one and only guarantee against tyranny, dictatorship, anarchy or some other dreadful condition not exactly visualized, and that it would be quite impossible to have a free government at all without it.

However, there is such a thing as constitutional government without supreme courts. Great Britain has it; but perhaps that isn't just to the point because Britain isn't a republic. Yet Switzerland is. She is, moreover, a republic very much like ours, with a central federal government, twenty-two cantons corresponding to our states, the cantons being made up of districts much like our counties and the districts containing communes corresponding to our towns and cities. She has, as a matter of fact, a supreme court, but it is not such a supreme court as ours. It is not the guardian of the constitution. It cannot invalidate the acts of the national congress. That can only be done by the votes of the people in referendum.

The United States is, we believe, the only republic in the world which has created a legal body superior to the nation's representative government. There have been times when that body has been supremely useful—and there have also been times when we could have gotten along quite as well without it. It has nullified some fool legislation and it has prevented more, but nine-tenths of its merit has come from the characters of the men of whom it has been made up. A bad Supreme Court would be worse than a bad Congress, for the people can get rid of bad Congress at the next election, but there would be no getting rid of a bad Supreme Court.

The Supreme Court is what Presidents and Congresses make it. For which reason it always seems to us a little silly when people talk as though it were an institution straight from heaven and incomparably more holy than the agencies which created it.

It has happened that the Supreme Court has earned, on the whole, an extremely high place in the confidence and regard of the nation. But a hundred and forty years isn't a sufficiently long time to prove, beyond peradventure, that it could not earn a different sort of opinion if it tried.

affair is still one of mere charges and allegations, two thoughts will be quick to arise—one, that such a mess as that which has developed is about what might be expected to follow the organization of a trade union among a class of government employees; the other, that our much applauded and long beloved civil service reform doesn't in all classes seem to produce ideal results.

Few persons, no doubt, would be willing to return to the old days of an earlier generation when post-office clerks, carriers and other postal employees were fired out of their jobs, neck and crop, every time there was a change of administration. But there is about this Hartford-New Haven development plenty of reason to suspect that, under the classified service regulations as they now exist, our system of federal office tenure has faults as glaring in their way as those of the old spoils system.

When a government clerk cannot be gotten rid of, by any practicable means, though he may be a chronic obstructionist, an open enemy of his superior, a person of indifferent morals or honesty and a disgrace to the government that pays him; when such a person is entrenched in his position by a set of coddling laws and the responsible head of the service where he is employed is compelled to put up with slovenliness and lack of co-operation, the system does not make for efficiency, to say the least.

There is little doubt that the conditions shown to exist among the employees of the Hartford and New Haven offices likewise exist, though perhaps in less flagrant degree, in many post offices throughout the country. Possibly this Connecticut affair may bring about a more than casual examination of the working of the civil service laws as they apply to the postal service of the country. Perhaps, in such event, there may arise a notion that the original purpose of the post office, which is to carry on the enormous service of communication among the people of the nation, is a little more important than the individual security, comfort and ease of postal service employees.

For thirty years that service has been becoming, relatively to the times, less precise and prompt, and the while the jobs of the employees have been made more secure and their labors less exacting.

CHEAP TAXIS
There is something more or less suggestive of the position of the Connecticut Public Utilities Commission in Commissioner Whalen's recent decision to refuse license to small taxicabs to be operated at rates lower than those now in effect in New York City. The Public Utilities Commission, however, employs various excuses for refusing licenses to independent taxi drivers likely to come into competition with large concerns. Whalen used only one: He said he feared there would be a taxi rate war accompanied by violence. That, it will strike most of us, is fishy.

At all events, the small taxi people plan to again ask Mr. Whalen for licenses and, if he refuses them, to fight him in the courts. We don't know how New Yorkers feel about it, but should think that the sympathies of the people would be with the little taxis and the lower rate.

Cheap taxi service is an asset to any community, especially one with such a huge transient population as New York; and it ought to be self evident that the small taxi is an asset, for the smaller and handier and the less room it takes up in traffic the better.

runways will go to a discount the moment that the plane capable of perpendicular ascent and descent makes its appearance.
We have always been well satisfied that Manchester people did not respond to the ballyhoo of two or three years ago for the investment of good hard earned Manchester dollars in an aviation field here or hereabouts.

IN SORE STRAITS

Some one of the dry propaganda agencies must have been putting the screws on gatherings of high school principals lately, since twice within a few days we have seen news dispatches quoting such groups as solemnly asserting that there is less drinking among public school students now than there was before prohibition.

This comes pretty near to being the limit in intentional misrepresentation. It doesn't make any difference how badly exaggerated the common report of high school drinking may be, it is simply impossible for these pre-prohibition comparisons to be honest, for the good and sufficient reason that prior to prohibition there simply wasn't any such thing as high school drinking—and that goes for any town in any state in this broad Union; and every wet and every dry alike knows it. Whatever drinking there is now, be it much or little, is a brand new thing since the adoption of prohibition.

IN NEW YORK

New York, Feb. 19.—As the tide of cinematic ebbs and flows, certain of the more versatile men of Broadway are beginning to realize why they call it the golden west. Golden—and how!

Take, for instance, those gay youths—the Messrs. De Sylva, Henderson and Brown. Just beyond the point where Longacre Square executes its famous double cross, you'll now see their names decorating a nifty looking building.

And not so very long ago, when they undertook the writing, styling and direction of "Sunny Side Up," they stepped into the fastest fee to date—something like $120,000. Which is a lot of money. Never before had three Tin Pan Alley gents insisted upon directing the opus for which they had written the tunes. On the strength of which they have just attached their names to a contract for three more—all of which they insist on personally conducting. The fee is something like $150,000 per picture and some twenty thousand more for expenses—whatever that is.

Check back for a moment on these lads, whose songs sell a million a year—and often more—to say nothing of the music shows, phonograph records, radio plugs and all the rest, which have turned them into millionaires.

First comes Buddy De Sylva, who was born in New York, but reared just outside the gates of Hollywood, which now knows him so well. He picked up kulele strumming while attending the University of California, and found himself manufacturing tunes. A college crew organizing the "All Hawaii" band, which began to appear at the Vermont Country Club, just outside the Los Angeles limits.

It so happened that a certain Al Jolson, while on a country tour, dropped out at the club after the show and heard Buddy putting on his newest composition, which happened to be a song, "N' Everything." "I want that song," said Jolson. "Go ahead, take it," agreed Buddy, quite flattered.

Daily WASHINGTON LETTER

By RODNEY DUTCHER
NEA Service Writer

Washington—To the extent that the results of the London naval limitation conference are unsatisfactory to the Big Navy faction in the United States, the country is sure to hear from Senator Freddie Hale of Maine. Senator Hale is probably the most enthusiastic athlete in the Senate and also is chairman of the Naval Affairs Committee.

Hale is a 100 per cent regular Republican, docile and silent, on every day of the year except those when he is given to believe that someone has designs on his navy. Thus when President Coolidge wanted the power to hold up carrying out the 15-cruiser program Mr. Hale came dashing out from his obscurity to lead the successful fight to thwart the president. Right now he knows he is irritating President Hoover by his squawks at the course of our dealings in London, but that hasn't dissuaded him from denunciation and it won't.

A Lover of the Sea
One hears Freddie Hale has a fine old model of a clipper-ship on his mantel piece and that his favorite form of mental exercise is to sit and contemplate it. Every one says that he passionately loves the sea. In fact, he is often fondly called "Rowboat Hale," although that may be only because former Senator Jim Reed of Missouri during the last cruiser bill debate described him as "a rowboat setting up as the flagship of the navy."

Hale is a good-looking little man, with bristly close-cropped hair and mustache. He has splendid biceps and is fast on his feet. He loves to box and excels at the sport, but he also bowls often with Senator Couzens in some alley on K street, generally defeating the Michigan statesman. He and Couzens were the first two in Washington to get the new model Fords when they came out, though someone stole Hale's. Other favorite Hale sports are duck-hunting and fishing.

He is a shark at bridge and indulges with others of the best players here, including Alice Longworth. He is also said to have played good poker in the old Harding cabinet games. As chairman of the Naval Affairs Committee he is invited to many official functions and generally goes, but he is a bachelor and lives with his mother in a big old mansion on 16th street.

Mrs. Eugene Hale, the mother, was once the social arbiter of Washington and is distinguished as the woman who had a father, husband and son in the Senate. For Eugene Hale, Freddie's father, was a senator from Maine and he married the daughter of Zachariah Chandler, famous senator from Michigan.

Perhaps the outstanding thing about Senator Freddie Hale is the fact that he was worth $50,000 to his father and mother when he was born.

Old Zachariah Chandler promised his daughter and son-in-law that he would pay them $50,000 for every child of the union and thus Fred Hale helped his parents pile up $150,000.

Hale, like his mother, hates publicity. He is well educated and has many friends who are always willing to rush to his defense, but his shyness causes him often to become brusque and so he is sometimes accused of being arrogant.

He is one of the members of the Alibi Club, organized many years ago as an offshoot of the Metropolitan Club, where men might go and remain undisturbed by anyone in the outside world. Many great personalities have been taken there for privacy. King Albert of Belgium was a guest once and after Speaker Nicholas Longworth and Charles Lindbergh had disappeared here one day it was found that they had gone to Alibi Club for lunch.

He was Slow One
Some of the Big Navy folks complained that Freddie Hale was a little slow in getting to work on the 15-cruiser bill and had let the argument against it before their own side got started, but if so the delay was not traceable to Hale's lack of good intentions. When the William B. Shearer investigation was thrown into the law last year Hale writhed and squirmed in the hope of averting it, although he eventually had to assign it to a subcommittee under Shortridge of California.

THE TREATMENT ON INFANTILE PARALYSIS
At least half of the crippled children born today if it were not for infantile paralysis. Of all the diseases which menace children, this is probably the most dreaded by parents, as the child may be maimed or crippled for life. With this disease, as with many others, prevention is much easier than cure.

The trouble most often occurs with young children, although occasionally with adults, and is due to an inflammation of the spinal cord. It usually comes on quite suddenly, with fever and the tendency to muscular paralysis, often ending in contraction and permanent deformity.

There are a few cases where no symptoms of paralysis develop, and in some cases a temporary paralysis does occur during the height of the inflammation, but in many cases there is a complete return to normal and a recovery of the use of the muscles. Even where paralysis does definitely occur and seems to be a permanent condition, there have been many remarkable cures and a complete recovery through persistent and gradual re-training of the muscles through the right kind of massage and exercise.

AGAINST SALARY RAISE

Washington, Feb. 19.—(AP)—An adverse opinion by Postmaster General Brown was read today to the House post office committee's opening hearing on the Dyer bill to raise the salaries of messengers, watchmen and laborers in the postal and railway mail service...

Representative Dallinger, Republican, Massachusetts, said the postmaster general was trying to make the postoffice department pay for itself, but that the proposed increase in salaries ranging from $1,600 to $1,800 per annum was "no more than a living wage."

Representative Welch, Republican, California, withdrew his similar bill in favor of the Dyer bill and endorsed it heartily. He criticized the salary comparison made by Postmaster General Brown...

HOLD SPECIAL SESSION

Concord, N. H., Feb. 19.—(AP)—Governor Charles W. Tobey today convened the New Hampshire legislature in special session with the statement "that the time is ripe for definite constructive legislation in a taxation program and that the people of the state are justified in expecting it at your hands..."

The governor in his message reviewed the appointment by former Governor Huntley N. Spaulding of a recess commission to study the tax situation, told of the framing of bills which were submitted to the Legislature of 1929 and of the appeal to the State Supreme Court for a ruling on their constitutionality...

Following the court's opinion, the governor said, he decided to summon a special session to act on the commission's recommendations.

OPPOSES AN INCREASE IN HIS OWN SALARY

Boston, Feb. 19.—(AP)—Frank A. Goodwin, chairman of the Boston Finance Commission, today successfully opposed a raise in his own salary and thereby treated Beacon Hill to one of the most unusual situations of the legislative year...

Goodwin declared that the job was really only a part time one and that since his predecessors had engaged in private practice he would continue to do so and thought $5,000 enough for his efforts on behalf of the City of Boston.

Rep. Hays had argued that the salary had not been increased since 1910 and it was high time that something be done about it. When Goodwin had finished, however, Hays asked for leave to withdraw his bill and the committee immediately acceded.

AMERICAN POETRY NOW ON ITS OWN

Prof. Wilbert Snow, Lecturing Here Says It Has Come "Americanized."

Modern American poetry has developed along three lines since the great poetry revival of 1912, said Wilbert Snow, poet and professor of English at Wesleyan University... hard it is to sell, but how many are writing poetry. Whitman, said the speaker, was its prophet. Among the poets of today Carl Sandburg shows the Whitman influence...

them. Among them were "Wave Music" which he jokingly subtitled "Philosophy of One Born on an Island"...

Speaking of Robert Frost, who is Professor Snow's favorite poet and regarded by him as the greatest living poet, the speaker said he was a cross between the two.

As for copy from which to write poetry, the speaker said that if we can't see copy at home, right here in Manchester, we can't see any other place that would be worthwhile...

Now we are beginning to stand on our own feet, are going ahead without the aid of England. Emerson dreamed of such a happening but it was Walt Whitman who dared to make the dream come true.

The poet-professor took for his subject "Modern American Poetry with Original Readings." In looking over the field of poetry, he said, one could see that it was becoming Americanized.

SENSE and NONSENSE

In the Swiss mountains there is a place where an echo repeats more than 200 times. Maybe somebody has a radio hidden up there some place.

Nitt—What's your favorite radio station? Witt—Station WOW. Nitt—But I understand that's closed down. Witt—Sure—that's why it's my favorite.

We claim this distinction: So far, nobody has succeeded in selling us any "Dog Gone" coffee over the radio.

But how does static know that you have company?

Cat fights seem to have abandoned the backyard fence and gone into the radio.

What Radio Programs Do You Like Best?

First Family Man—I hate the radio. Second Ditto—Yeah! I gotta listen either to jazz or highbrow music instead of prize fights too.

A person who buys on installments should save in installments. It is the only way to balance the family budget.

Noses Down. If your nose is down to the grindstone rough, And you hold it there long enough, In time you will say there is no such thing As brooks that babble and birds that sing.

These three will all the world compose, Just you and the stone and your darned old nose.

Irregular things happen regularly.

Clarice—What's become of your sister that was going to raise a family of five children?

Helen—Oh, she's over playing with the five youngsters of my sister who wasn't going to have any.

Nothing ages so rapidly as news.

Wife—There's one thing about my mother; she's outspoken. Hubby—Not by anyone I know.

He—I love you as no one ever loved before. She—I can't see much difference.

FLAPPER FANNY SAYS!

It doesn't matter how well or badly you dance, as long as you hold your own.

There was a young lady from Jackson, Who wore dresses without any backs on. She was chased by the laws, But got loose because There was nothing to pin any facts on.

Don't Believe What You See in the Papers. How did you get that black eye? I reached for a sweetie instead of a Lucky.

Have you heard the chorus girl's motto: "We Never Clothes!"

Manchester Doctor (having painted the patient's neck for sore throat)—Three dollars, please. Patient (indignantly)—Three dollars! Why, last week I had my kitchen painted for two dollars.

A flapper says she calls her sweetie "Dempsey" because he never came back.

SAYS HALF MILLION VOLT LINE POSSIBLE

Stanford University, Cal.—(AP)—Power transmission of half a million volts, more than double that of present lines, now is feasible, says Prof. Harris J. Ryan, director of the 2,000,000-volt laboratory of Stanford University.

Such huge power lines, however, are not yet practical, he declares. "Even so," says Prof. Ryan, "one may engage in speculation as to what uses can be made of the half-million volt power line."

"Interconnections of powers and markets are now being organized from Chicago to the Atlantic and Gulf states and from Canada to Mexico on the Pacific coast. Executives and engineers promulgating such interconnections may be the first to encounter need for the half-million volt line for equalizing power sources and markets between industrial areas."

THE TINYMITES

STORY BY HAL COCHRAN—PICTURES BY KING

(READ THE STORY, THEN COLOR THE PICTURE)

The Tinies sat down in a row. The painter then said, "Here I go. I'm going to paint a picture that you all will like real well. Don't bother me, but sit real still. I think 'twill give you quite a thrill. Perhaps you'll guess just what 'twill be, but I will never tell."

His type of work seemed just like play. 'Twas fun to see his brushes fly as clever lines were made. He dabbled in that and dabbled in this and not a brush stroke went amiss. The Tinies all were very thrilled and right nearby they stayed. At last fat Clowny said, "Oh look! I've seen that fellow in a book. He's sketched out old Punch, Judy. Now he's also making Punch, Judy. Let's give a merry, little cheer 'cause Punch and Judy will be here to join us very shortly. That was sure a brilliant hunch."

The Girls and Boy's Dramatic and Glee Clubs of the 8th grade of the Barnard School presented a joint recital in the Nathan Hale School auditorium last night before an audience that made up in part for lack of numbers, by their appreciation of the two fine plays put on by the youngsters.

Since last September the girls have poured over Russian folk-lore and stories of the pre-war peasantry in search of a suitable theme and decided upon, "Morozushko" a fine little play of three scenes laid in old Russia and possessing a real moral.
