Conn. Congressman Spent Early Life in South—Big Celebration.

Jonesboro, Tenn., Feb. 24.—(AP)—Jonesboro is getting ready for its biggest event since General John Sevier and the folk of the Watauga settlements gathered here in 1784 to declare their independence of an allegedly neglectful and indifferent North Carolina, the state which then claimed sovereignty over the territory.

The memory of those pioneers and of the "Lost State of Franklin" which they created, is to be honored at a celebration commemorating the 151st anniversary of the chartering of Jonesboro, claimant to the title of "oldest town west of the Alleghenies."

And with the honor to the old Jonesboro, there will be honor to the new. The town's new water-works is to be dedicated along with a memorial fountain, designed to depict pioneer episodes.

The first car of the passenger train, which was traveling nearly sixty miles an hour, buried its nose for many feet in the soft mud of the ditch. The car behind piled into it.

BOATS IN CRASHES AROUND NEW YORK

Fog Delays Liners in Harbor and Causes Train Collision—No One Hurt.

New York, Feb. 24.—(AP)—Fog sweeping in from Sandy Hook in the early morning, caused three collisions today—one when a ferryboat crashed into her slip at South Ferry, injuring five women passengers, another between two ships in the North river, and the third between two elevated trains in Brooklyn—and delayed liners coming into port.

Two thousand passengers were aboard the municipal ferryboat Mayor Gaynor when she struck the rack of her slip. Those injured, who suffered sprains, bruises and abrasions, all live on Staten Island.

The 241 River steamer Plymouth, with 300 passengers, an hour and a half overdue and running blind in the mist, backed into Pier 13 instead of No. 14 and struck the Star-New Haven freighter Yale amidships on the starboard side. Nobody was injured but the Plymouth's rudder was smashed and the Yale was damaged at the point of contact.

Trains Collide Two Manhattan-bound trains on the Fifth avenue elevated were in the rear end collision at 20th street, Brooklyn, damaging the platform on one train and causing a 15-minute tie-up of traffic. No one was injured.

MABEL NORMAND DEAD; END COMES PEACEFULLY

Monrovia, Cal., Feb. 24.—(AP)—Mabel Normand is dead. The film comedienne who took her final cue from the great director early yesterday went into the fade out as she entered the prologue—smiling.

Her private secretary and closest friend, Mrs. Julia Benson, who was with her until the last, told how the end of the picture in those quiet hours before dawn.

"A few minutes before the end," Mrs. Benson said "Mabel reached over, took my hand and asked me to pray, with her. I did as she requested and as I leaned over and whispered into her ear she smiled and closed her eyes as if to go to sleep. A moment later the end came."

Was 35 Years Old The passing of Miss Normand, whose colorful 35 years were so full of tragedy and unhappiness as her pictures were full of gaiety and laughter, was not wholly unexpected. She became ill in December 1928, with an ailment which developed into tuberculosis. Blood transfusions recently gave her temporary strength, but soon thereafter she began to sink.

Miss Normand's husband, Lew Cody, film actor to whom she was married in November 1926, was told of her death by Norman Kerry, a brother, Claude Normand, Jr., and a sister, Gladys Normand, from Staten Island, N. Y., they will come by airplane from Columbus, Ohio.

Just Waiting for Return of French Delegation; Sub-Committees Are Busy Today With Their Reports.

London, Feb. 24.—(AP)—The naval conference, now awaiting the return of a French delegation representing the new Chateaufort government, began getting under way again today after a lull of several days.

Committee Busy. The sub-committee on special ships was busy at St. James's Palace this morning putting finishing touches on its report. Secretary Stimson, chief of the American delegation, returned from Stannmore to the American headquarters and there was considerable activity in connection with resumption of the full conference proceedings later in the week.

The chief delegates were going ahead with their conference plans without any apparent slackening of speed and the British official spokesman announced that Prime Minister MacDonald visited Secretary Stimson yesterday afternoon and remained as an overnight guest at Stannmore.

The Other Delegates. Former Premier Wakatsuki went to Stratford-on-Avon yesterday, but was busy at Japanese headquarters early today. Foreign Minister Grandi of Italy who returned to Rome for the week-end started back for London this morning.

The American delegation is being counted on by the Knights of the Round Table Club to be in London March 26 when a banquet will be given to Ambassador Dawes and members of the American delegation. Sir Trevor Dawson will preside. It had been expected that the conference might be over March 15, but the week's delay caused by the French Cabinet crises in all likelihood will keep the delegations here later.

HOOVER CALLS A HALT ON FURTHER EXPENSES

Whole Army is Mobilized Because of Divorce Suit

Nice, France, Feb. 24.—(AP)—Princess Charlotte of Monaco today filed in the French courts here a suit for separation from her husband, Prince Pierre. Her suit also is for division of property.

The marital differences between Princess Charlotte and Prince Pierre and reported to have thrown the tiny principality on Monaco into a turmoil and dispatches from that place last night reported that precautions had been taken to prevent disturbances.

Prince Louis, father of Princess Charlotte, was reported to have declared a virtual martial law mobilizing the entire army of eighty, most of whom are captains.

Last April discontent among the inhabitants of Monaco came to a head with some disorders and eventually the constitution which had been abrogated was put into force again. The return to constitutionality marked a decisive step in the battle of the 700 or 800 electors for a more liberal government of the famous gambling center. There is still internal controversy, however, several contending factions being at swords points over domestic questions.

Princess Charlotte who was born in September, 1898, was married to Prince Pierre on March 19, 1920. They have two children.

SENATE CALLS MITCHELL AND PRESIDENT'S BOARD

To Testify in Two Weeks on Dry Enforcement—First Time Senate Has Ever Taken Such Action.

Washington, Feb. 24.—(AP)—Senate judiciary committee today voted to call Attorney General Mitchell and the Hoover law enforcement commission before it two weeks hence to get their views on the proposed Senate inquiry into enforcement.

The decision to defer consideration of the Norris resolution for a prohibition inquiry for two weeks was reached on a motion by Senator Ashurst, Democrat, Arizona. It was carried "almost unanimously." There was no roll call.

Ashurst was silent on the purpose of his move, but some members thought it was to postpone consideration of the subject until the tariff is out of the way.

Much Discussion There was considerable discussion in the committee as Chairman Norris called up his proposal but the Ashurst motion brought a quick termination to the debate, all of which was behind closed doors.

Senator Norris announced that the attorney general and the law enforcement commission would be heard in executive session. He said they would be questioned on their views toward his resolution calling for an inquiry of prohibition enforcement conditions.

It will be the first time members of the Hoover law enforcement commission will have been before a Senate committee. Several of the commission have appeared before a House committee.

At a White House breakfast conference Mr. Hoover said a survey by the director of the budget of demands on the Treasury, if granted, would imply an increase in taxes of at least 40 per cent.

None of the existing appropriation bills, seven of which have been passed by the House, are affected in any way by the program of economy which the administration has outlined.

Those Present. After the breakfast which was attended by Senator Watson, of Indiana, the Senate Republican leader, Chairman McNary of the Senate's agriculture committee; Chairman Jones of the Senate appropriations committee; Speaker Longworth; Representative Tilson of Connecticut, the House Republican leader; Chairman Snell of the House rules committee; Chairman Hawley of the House ways and means committee; Secretary Mellon of the Treasury; Under Secretary Mills of the Treasury, and Director Roop of the Budget Bureau.

The White House issued a statement on the conference. Demands in Congress. "These demands are being made upon Congress and the administration from different sections of the country and from different interested groups. The amounts given below are a summary of these projects and are given in the amount of additional expenditure that would be imposed upon the Federal budget during the first year of their operation. These are not the totals projected which are very much larger, but simply the annual addition to the budget. Many of the items would be permanent and increasing annually:

"Public roads $350,000,000. "Rivers and harbors $35,000,000. "Compensation to property owners for rights of way in flood control $100,000,000. "Loans to levee districts $100,000,000. Present Income "The present federal income is approximately $4,000,000,000 per annum and such a program would imply an increase in taxes of 40 per cent.

"In addition to the above list other projects are being urged, but are not regarded as imminent, which would impose a further expenditure of fully $1,500,000,000 per annum."

Walter Newton, one of the President's secretaries, in announcing the subject of the breakfast table conference, said the first of the proposed items which should be given (Continued on Page Three.)

11 ARE KILLED, 100 ARE HURT IN BIG CRASH

dition of at least ten was pronounced critical. At least fifty other passengers of the train were treated at the hospitals and then released.

C. W. Hall of Chicago, motorman of the passenger train, saved his life by jumping. He is in a hospital with both legs broken. The front of the car from which he jumped was demolished.

Autolists to Rescues. Automobiles passing on the well-traveled highway were first to give aid. The injured were placed in the machines and taken to the Kenosha and St. Catherine's hospitals. Several minutes later ambulances, doctors and nurses were at work in the debris of the first car, and it was necessary to burn through the steel coach to remove their bodies. Rescuers were still at work as dawn broke, and it was believed other bodies might be found.

Eye Witness's Story: One survivor, Lewis Kresinski, of Chicago, who was riding in the third car, said:

"There was a dreadful crash. People were thrown from their seats. Some started to scream and others groaned. Our car was turned over on its side and we were able to get out the door."

Mrs. Albert Skocznanski, another passenger in the third coach, said the woman seated in front of her fainted and was carried out by several men. "Passengers in the other cars told me they saw people killed, lying about on the floor of the car," she said. She was one of the few of the 325 passengers to escape without a bruise.

The train was carrying an unusually heavy load, due to the fact that many Chicagoans were returning from the double holiday in Wisconsin.

SCHMALZ IS HELD FOR HIGHER COURT

learned, partly through a confession which Schmalz is said to have made, that an infatuation between the couple sprang up a year ago while Schmalz's wife was in a hospital for an operation. Since then they have been meeting secretly.

Would End Friendship. Overcome by remorse, Schmalz is said to have determined to end their relations. He met Miss Valicka on Summer street yesterday and is reported to have asked her to go with him to his wife, make a clean breast of which had transpired and assure her that their friendship was at an end.

Miss Valicka scorned his suggestion and she paid for the repulse with her life. Schmalz drew a revolver and fired five shots at her. Three took effect. She crawled into a nearby house and died.

Schmalz fled but a few hours later was placed under arrest near the home of his widowed mother on Armistice street. It is said that after the shooting he had gone to the home of his estranged wife on West Main street but was unable to gain admittance as she was absent.

Schmalz was not represented by counsel in Police Court today and waived examination. Police testified to the circumstances of the shooting and Dr. John Purney, medical examiner said that the Valicka girl's death was caused by bullet wounds.

Schmalz's Story. Schmalz's reported confession is a poignant story of a man who tried to break through the meshes of the love net in which he was caught but failed.

On several occasions he told Prosecutor Woods he attempted to discontinue his friendship for the girl but she pursued him, he said, and declared that "if I can't have you no one else will."

He described clandestine automobile rides and a week-end trip to New York. After one of the reconciliations with his wife, the Valicka girl called him by telephone and insisted on speaking to him. Fighting against his initial refusal, he was powerless to resist and always returned to the girl, he said. Once, after he had left her, she met him and his wife on the street and created a scene.

Sold His Auto. Schmalz said that he sold his automobile to avoid the temptation of taking his victim out for evening rides.

Referring to the murder, he said he had a .32 caliber revolver in his pocket intending to frighten her if she refused to stop pursuing him. She taunted him, he said, asking with a leer "why don't you go home where you belong. In a blind rage, he shot at her and saw her crawling into a nearby house. He could not recall how many shots he fired, he said.

Immediately after the shooting he fled the scene and went to the home of his estranged wife. He said his 18 year old boy was at home but kept the door locked and refused to allow him to enter. Then he wandered around the western part of the city and was arrested.

SUMMER WEATHER HERE CONTINUES; RECORDS GO

Ideal summer-like weather prevailed here today—the continued warm spell. Hundreds of Manchester persons ventured out yesterday for trips to shore and lake resorts but the number would have been even greater had yesterday been similar to today's weather.

It was cloudy most of the time yesterday but warm enough to invite people out of doors. Rain started falling early in the evening soaking some who ventured forth unprepared for such a happening. The storm lasted most of the night but clear sky prevailed this morning again. All snow has disappeared even in the country sections.

the austerity of earlier years. But his broad shoulders still had the carriage of youth, and his manner the quickness and spontaneity of many who are his juniors.

The Oath. Mr. Hughes put on the official long black robes of the court before the first oath was administered in the robing room directly under the dome of the capitol building. Justice Holmes, the ranking justice, who will be 89 next month, officiated while the other members of the court formed a silent circle about.

"I, Charles Evans Hughes, do solemnly swear that I will support and defend the Constitution of the United States against all enemies, foreign and domestic, that I will bear true faith and allegiance to the same, that I take this obligation freely, without any mental reservation or purpose of evasion, and that I will well and faithfully discharge the duties of the office in which I am about to enter. So help me God."

No Bible Used. No bible was used in any phase of the induction into office. Immediately the pledge had been pronounced, the justices filed out across the public corridor to the court room, with Mr. Hughes last. A crowd of sightseers gave him a round of applause as he crossed the corridor.

When the court had taken their seats, Justice Holmes, in a voice showing great emotion, said it was his duty to announce, with great grief that Justice Taft had been compelled to resign. He added that the court was happy to know that an old associate would sit in his place.

Meantime the new chief justice took the clerk's desk just below and to the left of the bench. At a signal from Justice Holmes, the clerk of the court, Charles Elmore Cropley, read Mr. Hughes' commission of appointments, and then administered the judicial oath as the members of the court on the bench and the audience stood.

Judicial Oath. "I, Charles Evans Hughes," read this oath, "do solemnly swear that I will administer justice without respect to persons, and do equal right to the poor and to the rich, and that I will faithfully and impartially discharge and perform all the duties incumbent on me as Chief Justice of the United States according to the best of my understanding, and standing, agreeably to the Constitution and laws of the United States."

When Mr. Hughes reached the end of the oath the clerk said "So help us God," and Mr. Hughes replied "So help me God," and signed the oath.

Then he bowed to the bar and spectators, the entire company was seated, and court proceeded to the announcement of opinions.

MEANWHILE WILLIAM HOWARD TAFT, the man whom he succeeds and who is president appointed him 20 years ago to an associate justiceship on the Supreme bench, lay stricken by an illness which forced him to relinquish his high office and which his friends fear will cause his death.

Some cases brought before the court for argument may see Mr. Hughes' son, Charles Evans Hughes, Jr., pleading the government side as solicitor general of the United States. Mr. Hughes is expected to decline to participate in cases argued by his son. The latter, in view of this fact, has submitted his resignation to President Hoover.

The new chief justice also will decline to take part in an important and controversial case to be brought before the court on March 12. This is the case of the Great Lakes states to stop the diversion of water from Lake Michigan by the Chicago sanitary district.

Mr. Hughes acted as special master in the case, and the action of the court will be on a report that he made, to which both sides have filed exceptions.

murder of William Desmond Taylor, a prominent Hollywood director. The shadow of the event cast itself over the life of Mabel Normand as the curfew hour screen success veiled sharply downward.

She had called at Taylor's home to borrow a book. A few hours later the director's body was found. Miss Normand was the last person to see Taylor alive and it is yet to be learned who killed him.

In 1923 Courtland S. Dines, a young Denver millionaire, and Miss Normand were at a party at the home of Edna Purviance, screen actress, when Miss Normand's chauffeur came there on errand. Will there the chauffeur shot and wounded Dines. The motive was never satisfactorily explained, although the driver was acquitted.

Divorce Complaint. About a year later Miss Normand brought into the divorce complaint of Mrs. Georgia W. Church against Norman W. Church. Miss Normand retaliated with a complaint charging libel, and asked for a million dollars damages. The divorce complaint later was withdrawn.

This series of unfortunate events so hurt and humiliated Miss Normand that she lost much of her nerve and sparkle. Still Hollywood's great and near-great gathered at her home as always, to listen to her wit and laughter.

Miss Normand was born in Boston November 10, 1894, and her family moved to Staten Island when she was quite young. She was the tomboy of the neighborhood and one of her youthful playmates was Louis Costello, now Lew Cody, to whom she was married at 3 o'clock one morning after a gay party.

Miss Normand at 14 posed for artists and modeled clothes. In 1910 she started in motion pictures at the Vitagraph studio in New York, acting a small role as a diving girl.

Her gaiety, her laughter and her tomboyishness made Miss Normand the queen of the lot that included such talent as Gloria Swanson, Charlie Chaplin, Roscoe Arbuckle, Louise Fazenda, Marie Prevost, Wallace Berry, Raymond Griffith and Ben Turpin.

With Arbuckle and Chaplin, Miss Normand played one of the first best picture comedies, "Billie's Panicked Romance," which starred Marie Dressler.

"Mickey," made in 1918, considered by many to be Miss Normand's best picture, followed. In it was her childhood pal, Louis Costello. The picture was such a success that another company obtained her services for a sum reputed to have been $100,000 in pictures up to that time. The few pictures she made under that contract were not wholly successful and she retired for nearly a year.

In 1921 she returned to the screen in "Milly-O," which demonstrated that the star, in spite of her absence, had lost none of her popularity. She became critically ill in 1922, but came back to repeat her success in "Suzanna" and "The Extra Girl."

About four years ago she tried a comeback, but the few pictures she made were not money-makers. She then retired to her Beverly Hills home.

THEATER ROBBED

New Haven, Feb. 24.—(AP)—Burgars blasted away the door on a safe at the Whalley Theater here today and escaped with $1,525.

They scaled the fire escape on the side of the building on Whalley avenue forced the fire door and several others until they had made their entrance to where the safe was kept. The safe was drilled, nitro glycerine poured into the holes and the heavy door blown away.

The night watchman came on duty at 2 a. m. but did not discover the robbery until 5 o'clock.

Police found tools which the burglars had left behind, and a number of fingerprints by which it is hoped to trace them.

DETECTIVE IS KILLED

Chicago, Feb. 24.—(AP)—Detective John J. Ryan became the first police casualty today in Chicago's recent drive on crime. Ryan was killed in a gun battle with a suspect in the August street neighborhood. The suspect, Joseph Fallon, fled after being assisted into an automobile by two women. He was believed wounded.

Ryan was stationed in the apartment house where Fallon lived to await his return. Police earlier had surrounded the place on a tip that Fallon was at home.

It developed that Fallon was hiding in a skylight. After the other policemen departed he shot at Ryan from above and then leaped to the ground. Ryan attempted to seize him and was shot again, fatally.

KEITH'S Where you can afford to buy good furniture. Image of a living room with a chair, table, and lamp.

Location does make a difference in the cost of Furniture at Keith's

BUYING furniture requires an intimate knowledge of the store with which you are dealing that is if you want to get the most of style, quality and value. It isn't so much a matter of what you pay as what you get for what you pay... and it all can be summed up in the much used (and mis-used) word "value." How much value you can expect from a store depends entirely upon the store itself... its location... and business policies.

DETECTIVES FIND BAKER IS ARMED

Arthur M. Horey, searched him as a special precaution and found a .38 calibre pistol in his pocket and a 45 calibre gun stuck in the waistband of his pants inside his shirt and a heavy knife in the top of his sock.

When they disarmed him, Baker openly explained he had planned to kill one guard with the knife, shoot the other and attempt to escape from the train at Pittsburgh. He refused to say where he obtained the weapons, insisting he had them when arrested in Detroit, where he said he never was searched.

Detroit police said they had searched Baker three times and declared it was a mystery to them how he obtained the weapons.

On the train and after his arrival here Baker discussed his self-control killings as freely as he had in Detroit.

Gives Details. He was taken from the train to police headquarters, where he was examined for two hours by District Attorney Thomas C. T. Crain before whom he dictated a detailed confession.

Mr. Crain said that he would have Baker examined by an alienist and would seek a murder indictment against the Grand Jury tomorrow in the killing of Gaw.

Gaw was found dead by two truckmen, after they had been held up at the entrance of the Guggenheim laboratory on the night of December 27, 1928. An autopsy showed that he had been killed by a powerful poison.

A suspicion pointed to Baker who had once been employed in the laboratory and a large quantity of poison was found in a room which he occupied, but he was not found until last Tuesday when he was arrested in Detroit as a robber suspect.

He readily confessed the Gaw killing to Detroit police and told in a boastful manner of eight other killings he had perpetrated beginning with the shooting of his stepfather.

He said he had later poisoned him in Bombay, India; Germany, South America and at sea.

After his arrival here he added a tenth crime to his list saying he had killed a railroad detective in Detroit. An inquiry to Detroit authorities brought the reply that Walter Aue, a Grand Trunk railroad detective had been shot to death with a shot gun January 20, 1929. This was about three weeks after the killing of Gaw.

Detroit authorities said that if Baker escaped prosecution here, they wished him returned to their jurisdiction for prosecution for the slaying of Aue.

DEATH PENALTY

It adds to the bewilderment produced by sober thought on the question of capital punishment that it is impossible to prove anything. There is scarcely an argument producible on either side of the controversy that cannot be shot to pieces by the other side. On no other topic is there less chance of convincing one's opponent in debate or his convincing you.

The Hartford Courant, which does not believe in the death penalty, quotes Warden Lawes of Sing Sing—who used to believe in it but no longer does—as asking, "Why do states which have the most legal executions also have the greatest number of homicides in proportion to the population?" Perhaps the answer to that is, "Because the states which have the greatest number of homicides in proportion to the population have the most legal executions."

That is not a flippant reply. It will bear scrutiny quite as well as will the question, and the question is eminently fair, at that.

The Courant, along with almost all other opponents of capital punishment, takes the position that the existence of the death penalty has not deterred the murderer in taking life. That is self evident. But if the Courant knows, or possibly can know, that the penalty never prevents anybody from becoming a murderer, then we envy it; because we would give a good deal to be able to develop a fixed conviction on that point. We know that there are murders and many of them, in states where death is the prescribed penalty; but we don't know, and we can't possibly know, whether there are as many murders as there would be if it were not for the shadow of the gallows or the chair. Neither, if we may make so bold as to say so, can the Courant.

Moreover, we don't know and can't possibly know, whether there would be as many murders in states which have the death penalty, if there were any certainty that that penalty being imposed. Perhaps the failure or partial failure of the death penalty law to prevent killings may be attributable in no small degree to the fact that it is so seldom enforced. There are 12,000 murders in the United States every year. It is doubtful if for every 100 murders there is a single execution. An ordinary murder, like an ordinary automobile fatality, is merely local news; it doesn't get into the newspapers five hundred miles away. An execution is so much rarer that it is reported, if briefly, in the newspapers all over the country. On the question of efficacy of the death penalty, there is almost nothing to go on because the threat of death to the murderer, even in states where there is presumptive capital punishment, is so feeble a one and so unlikely to be carried out in any single case.

The debate goes on, endlessly. Out of it we have been unable to arrive at any opinion that is not wholly tentative. But we have come to this state of mind: That we are firmly convinced that in this problem the ordinary normal citizen, his life, his safety and his peace of mind are more deserving of consideration than the well being, the life or the peace of mind of the vicious, the mentally diseased or the sloppily weak individual who takes human life whether from motives of avarice, passion or bravado. And taking this conviction in conjunction with the fact that there are many times more murders in America than in any other civilized country in the world, and that the proportion of them is increasing at a terrific rate, we have about reached the conclusion that it would be safer to give the death penalty an honest test before abandoning it.

They have the death penalty for murder in Great Britain—and it is enforced there as it has never been enforced here. Also they have just about one-fiftieth as many murders.

DIRT ROADS

This is the time of the year when the heart of the dweller on the back roads of Connecticut burns white hot with revolt against all constituted authority and when resentment against the highway policy of the state fills him to the bursting point. Bugged down in a foot of mud, his automobile about as useful to him as a Chinese war dragon, he perchance can climb to the top of the hill back of his house and in the far distance behold a stream of glittering traffic whirling along a concrete boulevard a mile or two away. It might as well be a thousand. He reads in a magazine about the impassable muskeg country of the far, far north—and smorts a snort and jeers a jeer. He boils inwardly at the callous indifference of the state government toward the dirt roads of the farm towns and at its lavish outlays on glittering speedways on which run thousands of cars from afar off, the trucks of the bootleggers and the gin-driven sport roadsters of the whoopee gang. And he vows vengeance.

That is in the days when winter lingers in the lap of spring. It will be just the same next year. And next year there will be a little agitation for a new kind of highway policy. Some legislative successor of Dr. Higgins of Coventry will present a bill. There will be hearings. And about four of the farm town folks who, a few months before were raging in revolutionary wrath about their mud-hole roads, will attend the hearings and possibly suggest that they think it wouldn't do any real hurt if the state were to spend one per cent of its highway money on gravel. The rest will stay away. And that's all it will amount to.

Nothing is so evanescent as the indignation of the Connecticut farmer over the state of the back roads. It disappears quite as quickly as the mud.

MABEL NORMAND

No woman of the American stage or screen was ever any more completely a figure of fun than Mabel Normand. Those whose movie memories run back to the days of the early Sennet comedies and particularly to the arrival on the screen of Charlie Chaplin, have never forgotten the exuberant joyousness of the dark eyed girl who not only "would do anything" for the sake of laughter but convinced the tremendous audience to which she played that she was getting more fun out of it than anyone else.

It seems tragically strange that this bubbling hoyden should stumble head-long into a thousand difficulties in real life; but perhaps after all they were as inevitable and as much a part of her as her rollicking comedy; merely another form of demonstration of her inherent traits.

Moralists will draw numberless smug lessons from the career of Mabel Normand and its sorrowful end. But with all her infinite capacity for getting into trouble, and whatever reckless follies she may have entered into, if any, she gave the world a deal more to laugh at than it would have had if she had never lived. Millions do worse.

STARLINGS

Some comment is being made in the East on the fact that residents of Iowa are being warned by an ornithological club to be on the lookout for the advent of the starling, which bird, it appears, has made its appearance on the borders of the state.

Judging from the tremendous rapidity with which the starling spread over New England and the extended period during which he has been as familiar a figure as the English sparrow, it is natural that there should be some surprise over the length of time it has taken this bird to reach the trans-Mississippi states. Yet this writer spent a winter in Syracuse, N. Y., no longer than seven years ago and learned that nobody had ever seen a starling in that city, less than 200 miles, in an air line, from Central Park, where the American branch of the Starling family had its origin.

Probably the starlings have a perfectly good set of reasons for the direction and extent of their infiltrations. But as they don't tell us what they are, we shall probably continue to do some guessing as to why they spread with astounding speed in certain directions and slowly or not at all in others.

REFORM SCHOOL

Many sinister rumors of conditions at the State School for Boys at Meriden come following the death there of an inmate who, it is said, was stabbed to death by another inmate, though the death had been reported as accidental.

Brutality and laxity on the part of keepers, battles among inmates, the growth of immoral practices, all these are asserted to exist by numerous former residents in the school.

That the investigation of these stories should be thorough goes without saying. It is necessary that the institution be exonerated, if the rumors prove untrue; it is necessary that, should they prove true, the whole management of the institution be made over in the interest of decency and the well being of the state.

If prisons present difficulties in their proper control, such reformatories as the Meriden School for Boys present infinitely greater ones. It requires a more capable executive to manage a reform school for boys than it does to run any adult prison in the country. The prisons contain men and women who are already criminals. The reform schools have to deal with children who, in many instances, are capable of being made into almost anything, for good or evil.

IN NEW YORK

New York, Feb. 24.—The "living sign" vogue, which has been taking the eyes of the Broadway crowd away from the famous blazing mazzas, has just produced a novelty of traffic stopping proportions.

A tobacco concern, which has been active in propagandizing the idea of smoking away obesity, has added to the bright lights a huge display, revealing an over-stuffed lady who twinkles on and off. And while the eyes of the throng are following her, across a large runway above the world, so high—a parade of slender sylphs in natty red jackets parades by, puffing at their cigarettes.

On the evening when this "living sign" first made its unexpected appearance, the Longacre street crowd so jammed traffic that extra police were called out.

While beating back the throngs, so that taxicabs could deposit their theater-going thousands, one of the traffic officers was heard to observe: "You act like a bunch of hicks!"

As though that might be a novelty in New York!

The so-called "hick" tradition runs deep in the Broadway belt, otherwise the Gay White Way would never have adopted all the catch-penny, country fair ideas. From side-shows and flea circuses to medicine shows and candy-floss, all of the carnival attractions are there to amuse the milling millions.

But the bright lights have changed. And if they have become bigger, thanks to the talkies, they have not become better. The touch of originality which marked the displays of yesteryear is all but gone. Flare and magnitude have moved in.

No longer do the chewing gum imps do their acrobatic adagio to the slow motion of blinking bulbs. No longer does the flexible cat go through her routine. The gingerale imps have long ceased climbing a bottle and uncorking the top.

Instead, the eye is blinded with half a block of dazzling rays, all of which are directed to the same point in letters half the size of a healthy building.

Thanks to "A Citizen" of Springfield, Ill., who on her letterhead is Mrs. Owen Frazer, my biographical knowledge of Vachel Lindsay, the poet, is multiplied by at least two.

It seems that in one of those off-side moments, I referred to Lindsay as a "son of the Pacific northwest." And having first encountered Lindsay say out that way and having discussed this-and-that with him at the time, I gathered that he both lived and wrote up Seattle and Portland way.

But Springfield, Ill., is—and justly—proud of her syncretion-styled weaver of words. And so, let me quote from a letter upon my desk, which should straighten the record:

"The Lindsay homestead abounds in tradition of the noblest sort. Abraham Lincoln was an honored guest at that home. Here Vachel Lindsay has spent his entire life, except for a few years when the homestead was desolate because his mother was no longer there, and he found himself alone."

"Vachel Lindsay always proclaimed Springfield as the abiding place of his heart and has signed himself, in articles, a citizen of Springfield. Now Vachel Lindsay and Mrs. Lindsay and the children have come home and the beautiful old house is joyous again."

For which, I thank "A Citizen" and extend my condolences to the northwest.

APOPLEXY

One of the tricks which authors frequently use in getting rid of the surplus character from a story is to subject him to an attack of apoplexy which clears the deck in double time. However, the authors are usually wrong, as most patients who have a stroke rarely die immediately but recover either wholly or in part. The danger in elderly people is more from recurring strokes than from any single attack. In spite of this the majority of people still believe that patients who have a stroke of apoplexy die very suddenly.

Another popular idea is that the stroke comes on during a fit of anger or strenuous physical activity or some unusual excitement, but it is a fact that nearly one-third of all apoplectic attacks come on while the patient is peacefully sleeping. Of the other two-thirds, most of these strokes occur during the ordinary activities.

A stroke of apoplexy causes a loss of consciousness. The patient sinks to the floor and does not respond to shaking or being spoken to. The breathing becomes noisy and the pulse slow and full. These are the only immediate signs of movement. The checks may puff up as the breath comes in and out. The nerve reflexes are lost. Since this sudden insensibility is very alarming to relatives, there is often a great deal of needless fear and worry.

A drop of apoplexy is usually followed by a paralysis of one side, although this is not always the case. If the stroke is of a moderate severity, the patient becomes conscious within a few hours. The extent of the paralysis is indicated by the physician just which centers of the brain have been affected by the stroke.

In a few cases the loss of consciousness does not occur suddenly but gradually grows on the patient. Apoplexy may either be caused by rupture of the brain allowing the blood to flow into the delicate brain substance; or it may be caused from a clot of blood which has formed somewhere else in the body and it goes to the brain, stopping up some vital artery; or, the clot of blood may form within an artery within the brain. The latter condition frequently occurs with old people in whom the blood has lost most of its alkaline properties. The names for three conditions in the order in which they are described are: hemorrhage, embolism, and thrombosis.

Apoplexy ordinarily comes on between the ages of forty and fifty although it may sometimes occur in children with whooping cough from the strain of over-coughing. The usual predisposing causes are hard-

THE WASHINGTON LETTER
By Rodney Dutcher
NEA Service Writer

Washington—Let others write the history of the coast guard's bombardments of rumrunners and innocent yachting and automobile parties while your correspondent chronicles its more heroic and less controversial activities.

Comes a report, to which your correspondent is made familiar, concerning a recent exploit of the guard in the heart of Chicago.

It was at 7 a. m. on a morning this month that the coast guard station at Illinois Central Pier No. 1 received a frantic telephone from a copper (cop) on Lake Shore drive concerning a woman who had fallen sickly drifting on a log from shore. This woman later turned out to be Mrs. Etta Wiener, 50 years of age.

So Bos'n J. C. Anderson and a crew of four or five men put out from the station in a motor launch, headed for the sinking Mrs. Wiener. Unfortunately there was plenty of heavy ice in the channel and after a hundred feet of going this ice broke up the propeller.

The gallant coast guardmen, intent upon the rescue of Mrs. Wiener, popped out a small floe of ice and left their craft floating between the cakes. They reached the pier safely.

Then they dashed to the nearby lighthouse, where, thanks to somebody's foresight, a skiff had been placed on a wheeled trailer or cradle by the perilous plight of Mrs. Wiener. A police car was hastily commandeered and the trailer attached thereto. Up famous Michigan Boulevard, at top speed, dashed this skiff on wheels to Lake Michigan at the end of Superior street.

You might suppose that by this time poor Mrs. Wiener had been spurious versenkt—in fact, that Mrs. Wiener was no more. Nothing of the sort! There was Mrs. Wiener, still yelling, still struggling.

Bos'n Anderson and two men tossed the skiff over into the lake from a deep ice bank. Then they scrambled down into it, a perilous feat in itself, loudly cheered by such early-rising bystanders as had gathered. In no time at all they had reached the struggling, yelling Mrs. Wiener, 400 feet from shore.

With a rope they pulled Mrs. Wiener back up from the skiff onto the shore. Once on the seawall they hurried with her to the nearest hospital. There they helped undress Mrs. Wiener and all kinds of an internally applied, externally administered medicine was given. Mrs. Wiener had virtually recovered.

The official report said that Mrs. Wiener had floated 15 minutes. The fur coat which she wore had created a bulging air space which had kept her on the surface while the coast guard was on the way, after its various fashions.

The coast guard's iceberg patrol is out in the north Atlantic earlier than ever this year and into head-

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

(Tooth Decay)
Question—H. S. asks: "Is it possible for grown people to check decay in the teeth and re-build their teeth by the same method that disease can be checked in the body, and good health built?"

Answer: Through diet it is possible to strengthen the teeth and retard decay, providing the teeth are kept clean and any crevices filled. It is unwise to depend alone on diet, but the dentist can make a complete job of it if you will let him treat your teeth at the same time that you adopt a sensible diet.

(Ichthyosis)
Question—K. J. asks: "Is there such a disease as ichthyosis? And is it fatal? What brings it on, and what would be the cure, if any?"

Answer: Ichthyosis is a disease characterized by dryness, roughness and scaldiness of the skin. This is due to an overgrowth of the different layers of the skin. It is undoubtedly induced by some toxic condition of the system and can usually be cured through systemic treatment with the ultra-violet light is also helpful in peeling off the skin and producing a fresh new growth of healthy skin.

(Sassafras Tea)
Question—Mrs. W. H. T. asks: "Is it permissible and healthful as well to serve for breakfast tea made from the bark of the sassafras tree two or three times weekly? Old-timers contend that it thins the blood and should be used only as a spring tonic."

Answer: I have never advised sassafras tea as a blood treatment, although there are many old-timers, as you say, who think it has great value. A short fast on fruit juices will produce such wonderful results in every way that I do not consider it necessary to use any other medicinal preparation to accomplish a thorough cleansing of the blood stream.

quarters here comes the annual crop of suggestions from the populace.

One school of thought thinks it would be a good idea to put red lanterns on all bergs.

Another suggests that each berg be given a number and these respective numbers be painted upon them in black, so as to keep track of them.

But the most popular idea of all, proposed year after year, is that the navy be turned loose in the bergs and use them for target practice. Thus, it is pointed out, the bergs would be blown to smithereens and the navy's aim perfected.

But the coast guard has experimented in blowing up these icebergs and it says that firing a shell into a berg from a 16-inch gun would have the same effect as firing a BB shot into an ordinary cake of ice. It takes a few splinters and nothing more. The bergs weigh from 500,000 to 1,000,000 tons and one must depend on the caressing waters of the warm Gulf stream to melt them after they get below the forty-third parallel. After that their average life is about 10 days. Last year an estimated 675,000,000 tons of icebergs came down below the forty-third parallel.

Trudeau, a millworker, had been separated from his wife for two years. Arrested in Worcester in his car last night in the company of Lena Wiczek, 20, he was ques-

The Trudeau woman was strangled and brutally beaten and her clothing was torn to shreds.

EXERTS INFLUENCE IN COOKING SCHOOL

Mrs. Katherine Delaney Has Won Hearts of Women in Great Many Communities.

The day when a little girl of nine stood on a kitchen chair and spelled her mother's name in the frosting of a cake as a surprise, that little girl, who is now Mrs. Katherine Delaney, gave expression to an impulse to make others happy which today is reaching into the lives of homemakers all over the country.

As a pioneer in bringing to the housewife's attention the latest devices science has produced to make her homemaking job a happier occupation, Mrs. Delaney's name has been written into the history of many families.

As a gracious, dignified, motherly woman with a winning manner and a friendly smile, this grey-haired exponent of better and easier homemaking has endeared herself to thousands of women.

Her influence in this community will be felt when she opens the "Cooking and Home-Making School," demonstrating in a colorful modern stage kitchen the latest culinary secrets. In her fresh light frocks against a background of colored drapes, cabinets and stoves, she discloses how easy homemaking and cooking can be if the housewife knows the latest methods and the new devices.

That homemakers want to know these things is a matter of record, Mrs. Delaney declares.

"In all my years of experience with homemakers I have found in almost all women a great instinct to be good housekeepers and effective homemakers," Mrs. Delaney said. "And women today are trying to do their job better than it has ever been done before."

Mrs. Delaney's direct contact with homemakers came over fifteen years ago when she originated the home service for a large public utility company. For eleven years she went about the state, in direct contact with the problems which faced the housewives at that time, and brought modern methods and scientific developments to their aid.

Homemaking has been both vocation and avocation to this talented woman. When she took up the problems of the housewife as her career, Mrs. Delaney had already had practical experience in her own home. Homemaking was not merely a dry academic subject with her but a personal matter, in which she met the problems of planning wisely for her family's needs, figuring ways of simplifying her tasks, and organizing her life to permit of ample social activities.

"I always lived so I could step off a street car almost into my front door," Mrs. Delaney explained. "With the help and cooperation of my family, I found my household activities easy and restful, and I had the assurance that the family profited by carefully planned and well balanced meals."

The happy spontaneous spirit with which Mrs. Delaney enters into her cooking schools is communicated to her audiences best, perhaps, through community singing. Long before Mrs. Delaney became an expert homemaker, she had specialized in music. For a time it was her entire career when for nine years she taught music. Now it is her hobby.

"It makes folks happier to sing while they work," Mrs. Delaney believes, "and I think when we all sing together at the cooking school we become friends more easily."

No stimulus is needed, however, to make friends for Mrs. Delaney. She never conducts a second cooking school anywhere that she is not deluged with invitations from her former pupils to be their guest.

Mrs. Delaney enjoys bridge as a diversion. She reads literary magazines and biographies more than anything else. But her chief recreation she finds in music—and this is reflected to her audiences by her musical voice and the poise and charm of her manner.

PRINCE SEES BIG GAME

Nairobi, Africa, Feb. 24.—(AP)—In addition to stalking game on foot, the Prince of Wales has had a fine aerial view of specimens of big game roaming about in their wild state on the great Athi plain near here.

The chance came when the prince paid a visit to the Nairobi airdrome situated on the edge of a big game reserve where wild creatures including lions, wildebeest, gazelles and ostriches may be seen wandering right up to its boundaries.

At the invitation of Pilot Campbell Black, the prince made a short flight over the region, the pilot taking it over the plain where the prince could see the animals in their native haunts.

The machine then flew over Nairobi of which the prince got a fine view.

The Nut Cracker

The ballyhoo at Miami is well under way. But nobody has taken a shot at Sharkey as he slept. And Phil Scott hasn't rescued any fair damsel from a watery grave. It's all very disheartening.

The boy bandit, James Joy Johnson, heralds the event as a grudge fight. We agree. The customers probably will carry a grudge against the right racket for years.

One of the tales from Miami states that Sharkey is fighting Scott merely with the idea of perpetuating American supremacy in fistfights. Somehow that reminds of the last act of the old George M. Cohan thrillers—in which the bunting was spread copiously all over the place.

Neither Sharkey nor Scott has been duly reported as having caught the biggest fish of the season, which is a usual phase of the ballyhoo. They will catch their fish on February 27.

Germany Tops World In Air Mark Tilt; U. S. Next

made by Capt. Lowell H. Smith and J. P. Richter. A. H. Orlebar's feat of traveling 357,723 miles an hour gives Great Britain the maximum speed record; Willi Neuenhofen, of Germany, holds the altitude record of 41,794 feet. Lieut. Apollo Soucek gave America the seaplane altitude record of 38,549 feet and plans an assault on Neuenhofen's mark. Lieut. T. G. W. Settle and Ensign W. Bushnell hold four balloon records after a single three-day flight.

Germany leads with 43 records to her credit. The other holders include France, 25; Great Britain, 8; Switzerland, 3; Italy and Hungary, 2 each; and Poland and Czechoslovakia, 1 each.

The United States is supreme in a single class, refueling of airplanes, with the duration record of 420 hours and 17 minutes, set by Dale Jackson and Forest O'Brien, and the distance mark of 3,292.26 miles.

A Scotchman was held up in Chicago the other day. Those Chicago gunmen won't even stop at murder.

Of 113 official records newly listed for 1930 by the Federation Aeronautique Internationale and the National Aeronautic association, for all types of aircraft, the United States holds but 28.

Of the 26 new records written into the books at the close of 1929, Germany was responsible for 11; the United States, 7; France, 5; Great Britain, 2; and Poland, 1. Twenty-one of the 28 records held by the United States are old marks.

ROGERS RESIGNS HIS COLLEGE POST

Columbia, Mo., Feb. 24.—(AP)—Criticizing "interference" by the administration of the University of Missouri in freedom of teaching and research, James Harvey Rogers, professor of economics at the university, today announced his resignation in a letter to President Brooks and the board of curators. The resignation, to become effective September 1, 1930, was tendered in order that Prof. Rogers could accept a professorship at Yale University, his alma mater.

Active in support of Prof. Max Meyer, on the recent sex questionnaire investigation at Missouri University, Prof. Rogers' reference to "recent most tragic happenings" at the university, are taken here to indicate the suspension of Dr. Meyer and the dismissal of Prof. Harmon Degraff by the board of curators after an investigation.

His letter to the board, made public here, Prof. Rogers said he regrets to sever his connection with the University of Missouri, but added:

"Nevertheless, recent most tragic happenings at this university have shaken the confidence of many of its sincerest friends. In spite of its long record of complete freedom from interference, scrupulously guarded by former administrations, the University of Missouri is now declared to the scientific world to be no longer an institution where scholars may go and work with the assurance of the freedom in teaching and research granted in the ranking universities of the country. So great is the cost of unformed and prejudiced interference."

"In the spirit of utmost friendliness for the university," he added, "my sincerest hope is that you will take whatever action is necessary to remove all possibility of a recurrence of such interference, so completely incompatible with higher education."

Breakfast should be eaten in silence, says a dietitian. A man who stayed late at the office the night before hasn't got a chance.

Making the Most of Cut Flowers

Start right by purchasing freshly cut blooms. Fill the vases within an inch of the top with fresh, cold water. Remove a small portion of the stems with a sharp knife and set up each stem one by one. Do not crowd, aim at showing-off each individual flower.

Stand the vases in a cool position out of direct drafts and hot sunshine. Change the water daily, cutting off a small portion of the stems when doing so.

We now have to offer nice fresh cut flowers of the following varieties.

Sweet Peas, Snapdragon, White and colored Freesia, Carnations, Roses, Callas, Forget-me-not, Heliotrope, Calendulas, Tulips, Hyacinths, Cinerarias, Cyclamen.

RUSSIANS CONTINUE TO CLOSE CHURCHES

Moscow, Feb. 24.—(AP)—Despite the campaign aboard against the Soviet government for its attitude toward religion, Soviet authorities in different parts of the union have closed a number of additional churches, synagogues and mosques. These, it was declared, were shut "upon petition of the workers and peasants."

Dispatches today reported that Soviet officials closed three churches, three mosques, one synagogue and one Polish church in Amla-Ata, capital of the Province of Kazakhstan.

In Karabudakhkent, near Makhatch-Kala, capital of the Sagastan republic, the population which is predominantly Mohammedan, the authorities closed no less than thirteen mosques. Ecclesiastical objects removed from the latter including rich rugs and mosaics, were sold and the money converted into American tractors for the new collective farms.

A Tass dispatch said that in Tver Central Russia, the Soviet officials decided to close a local synagogue and to convert it into a club "upon the insistent demand of laboring Jews."

ARREST STRIKERS

Boston, Feb. 24.—(AP)—Thirty-five striking garment workers on picket duty here today were arrested for violation of the foot-passage law. Singing a Communist hymn, they were herded into patrol wagons and taken to the La Grange street station.

The pickets walked in pairs along Cleveland street in front of a plant where a strike has been in progress for more than a week. Police warned them against blocking the sidewalk and finally 25 officers corralled them against the building. The arrests were made without violence.

The strike is sponsored by the Needle Trade Workers Union.

FLOOD THREATENS

Swanton, Vt., Feb. 24.—(AP)—For the second time in little more than a month serious flood conditions menaced this village today as water from the Missisquoi river rose between 15 and 20 feet above the river ice.

Early today the ice at High Gate above here went out suddenly and rushing down the valley formed a new jam about two miles upstream from here. The river swollen by the unusual warmth of the past week began at once to surge through and round the jam and over the surface ice toward Swanton which was laid between ice blockades.

Cooking experts welcome the FRIGIDAIRE HYDRATOR

See them demonstrate the amazing things it does at Cooking School

Cooking experts welcome the Hydrator... Frigidaire's latest development... a device now standard equipment on all household Frigidaires. When you see what it does at Cooking School, you will welcome it, too. For it provides an entirely new and a totally different type of service... a service that's never been offered before.

Moist cold for garden produce

The Hydrator is an acid-resisting Porcelain-on-steel compartment in which moisture is scientifically combined with cold. Fresh vegetables placed in the Hydrator stay fresh and firm for days. But still more remarkable is the way the Hydrator revives wilted vegetables. Even limp celery and radishes become brittle, tender and crisp. Lettuce, parsley, and beans quickly regain their freshness.

See the Hydrator and the "Cold Control" in actual use

Attend Cooking School and see for yourself what the Hydrator actually does. At the same time note how the "Cold Control" speeds the freezing of ice and desserts. Then, visit our showroom. Let us show you the new household Frigidaires. Every one of them, even the smallest, is now Porcelain-on-steel... beautiful Tu-Tone color outside, sparkling white inside... as easy to clean as chinaware. Call at your first opportunity.

ROCKVILLE

ROCKVILLE MAN FOUND A SUICIDE

John Schaaf Discovers Dead At His Home on Village Street Yesterday Afternoon.

John Schaaf of 54 Village street, was found dead in the pantry of his home on the top floor of a three family house on Sunday afternoon about 5:20, when Captain Stephen Tobin and officer Richard Shea arrived at the home, following a complaint of Martin Algar of the Rockville-Willimantic Lighting Co., who had been summoned by neighbors on the second floor, after they had been unsuccessful in locating what they thought to be a leaky gas pipe.

The door was forced open by the police, who found the lifeless body of Mr. Schaaf, who according to Medical Examiner Thomas F. Rockwell, was dead about an hour.

Members of the family were summoned and upon their arrival permission was given to have the body removed to the Undertaking Parlor of Luther H. White.

Insurance papers and bank books belonging to Mr. Schaaf were on the kitchen table, which was proof that the suicide was well planned.

It is said that Mr. Schaaf has been dependent since the death of his wife about two years ago. The couple formerly conducted the American House on Market street. Mr. Schaaf was born in Germany and was about 63 years of age and had lived in this city for the past thirty-five years. He leaves two daughters, Mrs. Raymond Welsh of East Hartford and Mrs. Lena Custer of South Manchester; a son John Schaaf of Hartford.

Much credit is due the following committee in charge: William Rogalus, Jacob Gworek, William Butler and Paul Wroblewski.

owner, but as yet no one has claimed the horse.

He was turned over to the state police of the Stafford barracks, Concord by Vierra's Hawaiians.

JUDITH CAMERON, New York typist, marries ARTHUR KNIGHT, executive of the publishing house where she works. TONY, 18, and son, JUNIOE, 16, Tony de-her names Judith as a gold digger. Her father makes her apologize. When Junior comes home for Christmas holidays he is equally unfriendly.

ANDY CRAIG, a young man Knight has aided, takes a position with the publishing house. He is in love with Tony and calls on her frequently. Tony tries to convince her father that Judith and Andy are carrying on an affair and when she father checks the pair into a compromising situation.

This and her father quarrel over this but the girl is finally forgiven. Knight becomes dangerously ill with pneumonia. Junior comes home and before he leaves admits to Judith he has misjudged her. After Knight begins to recover she seems to prefer Tony's company to Judith's.

Tony intercepts a letter which comes for Judith. Later she follows her stepmother on a trip into the city and sees her for the first time. She then tells her father the story unless Judith goes away for two weeks and Judith goes, leaving a note for Arthur. Knight's secretary reports that Andy Craig is missing, too. Judith goes to the conspicuous hotel on upper Broadway. She has barely reached her room when the telephone rings.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XLIII

The bell rang a second time. Startled, Judith started at the telephone and hesitated. Then she picked up the instrument. Who in the world is calling her?

"Hello," she said in a low voice.

"Long distance," came the muffled voice of the operator. "Will you hold the wire please?"

Judith averted. All at once it seemed her breath caught in her throat.

"For an eternity she waited. Then here came buzzings on the wire. She could hear the muffled tones of operators making connections. Suddenly clearly above the rest a soprano voice cut in.

"There's your party. Ready, Indianapolis?"

Judith choked.

"Operator, who is this call for?"

"Indianapolis calling R. J. Wagner. Isn't Mr. Wagner waiting?"

The girl at the switchboard asked impatiently.

"There's some mistake! There's—there's no Mr. Wagner here."

"What number is your room please?"

"This is Room 419."

"For a moment there was no sound. Then—

"Sorry, madam. The call is for Room 1419. Excuse it, please."

With a limp sigh Judith set down the telephone. Oh, what a shock that had been!

She put one hand to her head and brushed her hair back with a nervous little gesture which she had acquired recently. Her heart was still pumping too fast. Of course she had hoped the call was from Arthur.

Perfectly ridiculous, perfectly foolish to nurture such hopes! Judith felt ashamed of herself.

For what right had she to believe that, even though Arthur Knight knew where to find her, he would ask her to come home? There was a dark splotch on Judith's conscience which no amount of reasoning and no amount of justifying herself could remove. "Living a lie! Living a lie!" was the tormenting chant which sang itself back and forth through her mind. No matter what she did she could not seem to escape that refrain.

She arose and sought relief in action.

It was such a little room! Judith moved to the window and peered outside. The court was inky black. Up above her a few lights were twinkling. She pulled the shade farther down and faced about.

Her traveling bag stood on the floor, just where the bell boy had left it. Judith set it on a chair, snapped the lock open and drew out her meager supplies. The powder and toilet requirements she placed on the dressing table. They were packed in the trunk. She slipped on the pajamas and a silk robe upon the bed. The dark metal lock which had been one of the last things Judith had seen in the bag caught her eye. She took it out. Judith sat on the bed and held the box in her lap. She turned a key which opened the lock, pushed the lid back and lifted out a pile of letters.

There was something else inside the box. She fumbled under a collection of papers until she found it. The object was a small old-fashioned gold locket and attached to it was a chain.

The locket was oval in shape, heavily engraved, and made in two parts. Judith pressed her thumbnail against a tiny gold knob. The locket opened.

A miniature photograph was revealed on either side. One was a young man, though the photograph undoubtedly had been made years ago. The other showed a small boy, with dark curling hair and attractive features.

"Father!" Judith moaned. "Oh, father!" She buried her head in the pillows and lay there, shoulders shaking with sobs.

Gradually she grew quieter. It was 15 minutes before the girl raised her head, dried her eyes and began to pack the letters away.

When she came to the locket she held it in her hand and touched it lovingly. Then she slipped it about her throat and fastened the clasp. It was nearly seven o'clock but Judith had forgotten about dinner.

Since there seemed nothing else to do she removed her frock, hung it away and made preparations for the night.

Fifteen minutes later she had turned out the light and climbed into bed. She still wore the locket. Judith stared with eyes wide open at the black ceiling. The bed was stiff and uncomfortable, so different from the downy one to which she was accustomed. She stirred uneasily, found her original position was better and moved again.

Surely Arthur had read her letter by this time. What was he thinking?

It was singular that in all her misery and loneliness Judith gave little thought to Tony. Tony Knight had been directly responsible for her banishment and yet Judith did not reproach the girl.

After a while it was not Tony who made Judith's plight serious. It was the truth of the facts which Tony knew.

The little room on the court was stuffy and ill ventilated. Judith tossed sleeplessly for what seemed hours. At last she drifted into troubled slumber.

When she awoke the room was still dark. Judith blinked her eyes, closed them, then opened them once more. For a frightened instant she could not remember where she was. She sat up, startled.

Gradually the past day's adventures came back to her. Like a flash it was all clear in her mind. Of course! The drive with Tony—the girl's ultimatum—hasty packing—Judith's note to Arthur—catching the train this hotel.

So there she was and her exile was not a dream. It was tragically true. She was separated from Arthur and only fate could say when she should see him again.

Was it morning? Judith rubbed her eyes and wondered. She felt as though she had slept a long while, but she was still tired and nestled in the bed covers, loath to move.

At last she sat up and put one foot out on the cold floor. She went to the window and raised the shade. Judith averted. Her watch pointed to 11:30 o'clock.

Yes, the little watch was ticking. It really must be that late.

Judith felt that she must hurry to get dressed. At home since Arthur's illness she had slipped into the lazy habit of sleeping until 8:30. But 11:30!

Hot water, then cold water splashed in the bowl. Quickly Judith pulled on undergarments and stockings and pumped and combed and brushed her hair and dusted her face with powder. Lastly she slid the jersey frock over her head and fastened the little old-fashioned locket about her neck.

Was there the slightest trace of defiance in her face as she did this? Judith's head ached dreadingly. It occurred to her this might be the result of hunger. Then she remembered she had no dinner the evening before.

When she had slipped on hat and coat and picked up her purse, she stopped to make a survey of the room. She stepped back and raised the window to its full height. Then she went to the door and unlocked the door.

She noted on the way to the elevator that daylight did not improve the appearance of the hotel. Corridors were dark and the paint cracked.

A wheezy rattle indicated that the elevator was raising. Judith stepped inside, said "good morning" to the gray-haired man who operated the car and rode to the ground floor. There she left her key at the desk and went out on the street.

The sun was shining and the cool, fresh breeze against her cheeks brought color surging into them. Judith enjoyed the sting of the cold air. It came from the river and she started walking westward.

The locality was strange to her but somewhere near there was sure to be a clean, cheap restaurant.

She found one, entered and took a small table in the rear of the place. Judith was just ahead of the noon-time rush. Soon men and women came pouring into the place and nearly every table was filled.

The luncheon which she ordered was a substantial one. When it came one of the food was particularly palatable. Judith concluded (quite rightly) that the fault was with herself. She knew she should eat but was not hungry. It was a small part of the meal.

Ordinarily she would have been interested in the crowd about her. She was not interested in them today. Judith was wondering Arthur Knight had remembered to take his medicine. Had he taken it with the right amount of water so as to remove the bitter taste?

When she had finished, Judith pulled her coat collar closer. The wind, as she turned and retraced her steps, felt colder. She walked as far as Broadway and then hesitated.

She did not want to return to the dreary hotel room. The long afternoon stretched out endlessly in prospect. What could she do to pass the time?

There are such hundreds of inviting retreats for those who have leisure in Manhattan. Judith knew some of them. Seldom before had an afternoon in the city hung heavy on her hands. She loved the crowds, the shops, the theaters. She was delighted at trips into unexplored foreign quarters. None of these pastimes appealed today.

At last she decided to visit the Battery, and walked until she found a subway station. She boarded the train, glad to find it was not crowded. The joggling, roaring trip did not irritate her as it had the night before.

When Judith came out into the daylight again a gust of wind caught her coat and sent her spinning about. The sunlight dancing upon the water was glorious even to one whose mood was as dark as

Consistent, Hard Exercise Is Foe of Fat, Says Jac Auer

Carol Cotton, physical director for women in Jac Auer's health studio in New York, illustrates the position for today's slenderizing exercise.

The vague for boyish figures during the past few years has placed too much emphasis upon slender hips and not enough upon flat abdomens.

Many women now are made to realize that they have accumulated extra flesh around their abdomens. This can be eliminated, but it needs consistent, hard exercise that rolls off the fat and strengthens the muscles.

The new 1930 figure calls for curves. The fashionable waitresses call for a flat abdomen as possible to accent the bust and hip contours.

There are many exercises to reduce the abdomen. The best single exercise is as follows:

1. Sit on the floor, feet apart, knees pressed to the floor. Straighten back and then swing and twist body forward until the right foot sweeps the toes of the left foot, with the left arm as straight as in front.
2. Swing the body about the waistline around, bend forward as before, and sweep the right foot with the left hand.

This is strenuous and should be done only a few minutes at first. The back of the knees must stay pressed tight to the floor or the exercise is not correct.

This exercise tones up the abdominal muscles and rolls off the fat simultaneously. But it takes persistent, steady, daily exercise before effects are noticed. It is the best single exercise there is to flatten the abdomen and rid it of fat. At the same time it stretches the muscles and gets the muscles through the body strong enough to help hold the abdomen in.

Lure Of Auto Racing Keeps Veterans Active

Washington (AP)—Two veterans are unable to turn their backs on the auto racing world.

Rene Thomas, 55, French speed veteran who won the Indianapolis 500-mile race in 1914, wishes to pit his experience this year against America's youngsters "to win the race just once more before I retire."

Val Haresnap, long-time secretary of the American automobile association contest board, went no farther than Daytona Beach on his way to California to regain health. As a "racing free lance" Haresnap is organizing beach trials for March 15-30, when Kaye Don, British driver, will try for a new world speed record.

London Art Treasures Fading, Experts Assert

London (AP)—Controversy has been aroused in London art circles by certain West End art dealers who assert that the $20,000,000 worth of Turner water colors in the Tate gallery are being allowed to fade past all recognition.

The gallery, which has 20,000 Turner paintings, water-colors, and drawings, denies that the water-colors are fading, while the experts declare that the gallery is blinded by its wealth of Turners into not realizing that one day it may have none.

Sir John Lavery has pointed out that light in any intensity is fatal to water-colors.

These Turners are bound to fade," he said. "I have always regarded water-color as an irritating medium because you cannot guarantee that it will last. Light is fatal to it."

More Boy Scouts Build Trails In Parks Yearly

Washington (AP)—More Boy Scouts are being employed by the government each year to build trails in the national parks.

Next summer 60 Eagle Boy Scouts will work in the park by arrangements just completed with the department of the interior.

When the trail building started in 1925 only 10 were called. Last summer 45 Eagle scouts from 17 states built 4,700 feet of trails.

The scouts employed next summer will come from widely separated sections of the country, some from New York and others from Seattle.

WAPPING

Clarence W. Johnson has been confined to his home with a severe attack of tonsillitis.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles J. Dewey moved to Florence, Mass., where they spent the day with their son, Charles W. Dewey and his family, last Saturday.

The fourth annual George Washington dance given at the Wapping School hall last Friday evening, under the auspices of the Evergreen Lodge of Masons, A. F. & A. M., No. 114, was a great success. The fine music which was furnished by the Musician's Orchestra of Rockville, with the various novelties was thoroughly enjoyed.

The next regular meeting of Evergreen Lodge of Masons will be held at their Temple at East Windsor Hill this evening.

Mrs. William Simlar has been confined to her home by illness for the past week.

FOR QUICK, HARMLESS COMFORT Children Cry for It

The WOMAN'S DAY

In this rapid age when everyone is trying to keep up with the Joneses, I think every mother could read to her advantage the article about Mrs. Millay, in the current Pictorial Review.

As the mother of three talented daughters, Edna, Norma, and Kathleen, each of whom has won distinction and achieved expression in her own way, one is interested in her ideas on child training, and how a trained nurse and a devoted mother at the same time.

We learn that the children had to learn to keep house, wash the dishes, sweep the floor and take care of themselves. Since this was as inevitable as sunrise and sunset and they accepted their labors and made games of them.

They lived in a little Maine village that did not offer great advantages, but Mrs. Millay somehow, in that amazing way that mothers have of getting what they want for their children, contrived to keep up payments on an installment piano, and saw to it that they had good books, flower gardens, and were in the midst of enchanting natural scenery.

Poverty Undisguised

The thing Mrs. Millay lived for was to give the children the artistic advantages she had desired but had not had, and out of her own frustration to make advantages for them. The hours she had with them in the evening were important for her and for them.

She was never too tired to listen to Norma play the piano, or read Edna or Kathleen's poems, to answer puzzling questions, or listen to long recitals of what the day had brought them. Mrs. Millay said:

"I let the girls realize their poverty. I let them realize what every advantage cost me in the effort to live. It made them live an honest life, and you don't fool yourself or your children."

"Take these same girls, and bring them up in comfort. Then what? Edna has said she would never have been who she is today if she had had everything. Our hard life she had her write of the things she would never have seen in a sheltered existence. It made her a broad and real person before she left Cambridge. The rich child is the unfortunate one."

The Better Way

How much more dignity there is in such an attitude of honesty than that of the mother who scripps and saves to give her child finery, and all the material things that are infinitely less important to the child than to the mother.

How many times you have heard a mother say bitterly: "I don't want my daughter to know how things about housekeeping. Then she won't have to do it all her life as I have. I'm going to see that she has what other girls have."

And one understands the attitude. But candy and knick-knacks, frilly dresses and gay ribbons are really so unimportant, contrasted with the larger advantages—the ability to be great in the vital ways of emotional life and creative expression.

"I wouldn't have the nerve to advise any mother," said Mrs. Millay, "except perhaps to say, 'Never try to substitute one thing for another that a child may really want to do. I believe the aspirations of a child should never be fixed. Try to fix them and they never come true.'"

"The people who try to make children's careers for them have spoiled more lives than they have ever helped. Believe in your children utterly, and give them their chance. All else follows."

Airport Rating Shows Facilities In Symbols

Washington (AP)—A federal rating of airports, newly issued from the department of commerce, tells the tale of available facilities in symbol form.

The highest rating the first of which went to the Pontiac, Mich., airport, is known as A-1-A. The first letter indicates that minimum standards of hangar space and general facilities have been met; the numeral shows the size of landing area; and the last "A" deals with night lighting equipment.

Rating's are being issued to airport operations on application. First letters vary from A to D, the numerals from 1 to 5, with a zero for unsafe fields, and the last letters are either A, D, E or X.

The A-1-A rating, while the highest issued, does not convey the impression that a field measures up to the ultimate in airport design, according to Clarence M. Young, assistant secretary of commerce for aeronautics, but rather signifies that minimum standards have been met.

The chief object of rating is to tell pilots and operators at a glance the facilities available at any landing field.

German City Votes In Favor Of Heavy Opera

Duisburg (AP)—Sixty-four percent of the theater goers of this German city prefer heavier operas to light operettas and ask that classic works be performed.

The management of the Duisburg Municipal Theater took a straw vote to determine what sort of performances to stage in 1930. Of those who responded, 64 per cent preferred classic opera, 22 per cent the drama and only 14 per cent operettas.

The following operas won out in the competition: Verdi's "Aida," Wagner's "Lohengrin," Strauss'

AMERICAN JOCKEY LIVES IN RUSSIA

Cleveland, O., Man Is Only Permanent Resident of the Soviet Union.

Moscow. —(AP)—Throughout the Soviet Union, which is three times the size of the United States, the only permanent American resident is Samuel W. Caton of Cleveland, Ohio.

But Caton has even greater distinction than this, for he is also the greatest jockey in Russia. On the famous Moscow racetrack, remainder of the days when racing was the sport of Czars and Kings, American tourists to Russia recently saw Caton win his sixth Derby and his one hundredth victory of the season.

Even the greatest Russian harness race drivers acknowledge Caton to be the greatest jockey of his day in the Soviet Union.

No Big Winnings. Caton's winnings in Russian trotting races are considerably less than they would be on American tracks. But the popular American driver was born in Russia and has a deep attachment to the Russian people.

The son, with his brother William, who is well known on American trotting race circuits, was raised in the atmosphere of horses and court sporting activities. Moreover, Caton is married to a Russian girl, the daughter of Count Alexander Z. Toff, former president of the St. Petersburg Racing Club.

SOVIET STRIVES TO REDUCE LIST OF UNEMPLOYED

Moscow.—(AP)—Collective farming is seen by the soviet union not only as a means of getting rid of the "kulaks," or private land owners among the peasants of Russia, but also as a method of checking the drift to the cities and thus relieving the unemployment situation.

The importance of this latter consideration has been emphasized by a report on the number of idle. The latest figures fixed this at 1,241,000 in the middle of January. Most of those who were out of work were women, or children under 18 years of age, and the big majority of the entire list was made up of unskilled labor.

The government statisticians who analyzed the figures concluded that the chief cause of the situation was the constant stream of peasants from the villages. These people were seen as a menace to the soviet union as they drifted to the larger communities, rather than remain in the country.

In planning the project of industrializing farm work, the government has taken steps therefore, to make the collective farms as attractive as the cities. Recreational centers are to be established in the state rural communities and facilities given for the same sort of political and economic instruction that is afforded city workers.

The seven hour day and "non-stop" working week with staggered rest days for all workers, are mentioned as other factors which will help reduce unemployment. It is estimated that the number of persons working for hire in the soviet union has doubled in five years. In August, 1929, the total reached about 12,000,000 and by the same time this year it is predicted that this will have grown to about 13,000,000.

Having more than a million and a quarter of unemployed, and at the same time experiencing a lack of skilled labor, the government has opened a chain of trade schools for unskilled workers. These have been planned to instruct 150,000 in home building, 200,000 in factory work and as many as will in the operation of tractors and other farm machinery.

Relief to Bulging Atlanta Prison Awaits Outcome of Hoover Plan

An air view of the crowded federal prison at Atlanta is shown below, with principal buildings indicated. Above is a close-up of entrance and cellhouse.

Atlanta.—(AP)—The old lady who lived in the shoe may have been crowded, but her house was spacious compared with the federal prison crouched ponderously in the outskirts of Atlanta.

Built for a maximum of 1,800 prisoners, the "big house" now bulges with 4,000 convicts. President Hoover, asking appropriations for prison extensions, estimated the number at 120 per cent. above capacity. Single cells serve two men, and even corridors are used.

In line with President Hoover's plan to adjust prison population, a bill passed by the house is seen as a correction for this condition. It provides two additional prisons, one in the northeast and another west of the Mississippi river.

Mutiny has swept other overcrowded prisons, but Atlanta's has stood nearly 30 years with never a major disorder behind its tall concrete walls.

One delivery attempt was thwarted in 1928 by a quick-thinking turnkey. Led by Roy Gardner, notorious chain robber, an armed group had reached the last two doors on a dash toward freedom. The turnkey saw them in time to toss his keys through the steel bars, halting the rebels long enough for other guards to fire.

Gerald Chapman, later hanged, made two sensational escapes, and his companion in crime, "Dutch" Anderson, also escaped.

Nearly half the present prisoners are prohibition offenders, but the prison roster has included many once famous names.

The prison stands well away from other buildings, with a clearing perhaps a quarter of a mile wide around it. An approach to the main entrance is devised to permit scrutiny by a guard before visitors reach striking distance. The walls embrace 27 acres and never have been extended.

An entrance at the side is for vehicles. It is a double-gate affair, operated by electricity. One gate can be opened at a time and entrants can be locked between them for examination. Two newspapermen trailing Earl Carroll's ambulance were thus discovered.

On the walls are a series of cells occupied by guards. The walls are lighted and flood lights blaze across the clearing at night.

First steps toward decreasing the prison population were taken with transfer of some inmates to Leavenworth, Kas. Those transfers did not equal the 1928 increase of 450.

After charges and countercharges, John W. Snook was replaced as warden by A. C. Adelman. Many changes in the official organization of the prison followed.

MRS. WILSON IS FREED AFTER SERVING A YEAR

New York, Feb. 24.—(AP)—Mrs. Esther De Forest Wilson, Washington society woman and hunter of big game in Africa, was released today from the prison on Welfare Island where she served a year for shooting her husband, Dallett H. Wilson, an attorney, in his Fifth avenue office almost two years ago.

Mrs. Wilson shot him during a quarrel over money matters. They had been estranged for several months. Wilson recovered, but for a time he was in a critical condition. At her trial he was an unwilling witness for the state, declaring he believed the shooting was accidental.

Mrs. Wilson said she could not remember anything that happened at the time. She was given an indeterminate sentence on Welfare Island.

For two years she will be on parole, and she was met as she left the prison today by Mrs. Meta Merchant, a parole officer, Mrs. Mary Lily, her attorney and the Rev. William D. Eddy.

Mrs. Wilson was Esther Evans, daughter of Walter A. Evans, a wealthy lumberman of Mount Vernon, N. Y. Before she married Wilson, she obtained in Reno in 1910 a divorce from J. Douglas De Forest. She and Mr. Wilson formerly lived in Washington.

When the snow is piled high in front of the garage door and the battery is dead there isn't much that any of President Hoover's commissions can do about it.

HINTS ON DRAPERIES IN WATKINS SERIES

Harry N. Roth to Be the Speaker Tomorrow Night in Local Store's Lecture Course

Harry N. Roth of Watkins Brothers drapery shop will be heard tomorrow evening in the eighth of the local store's series of lectures and recitals, choosing as his subject "Hints for Making and Hanging Draperies."

That Mr. Roth has had ample opportunities to solve many drapery problems is shown by the capable methods used in the draping of such buildings as the Bushnell Memorial, the County Court House, the University Club and Children's Museum, all at Hartford, Conn., as well as hundreds of homes of all sizes.

Tomorrow's lecture will give the housewives of Manchester an opportunity to have Mr. Roth help them with their drapery hanging difficulties.

He will show ways of handling draperies on difficult windows as well as the latest ideas in draping, practical ways of putting up glass curtains so that they can be easily taken down for laundering, and the treatment of French doors. How to hold the heavy drapes in draping is another problem which Mr. Roth will answer, as well as the treating of formal and informal rooms, the proper length of curtains and the like.

Although the average small home supplies a sizeable list of drapery problems to solve, Mr. Roth finds that the large public buildings have the most complicated. To Mr. Roth fell the job of draping the organ gallery on either side of the Bushnell Memorial auditorium at Hartford. Here it was necessary to crawl into a passage hardly large enough to allow an average size man to enter, and then handle the heavy draperies. Again, in installing the heavy diamond and velvet draperies for the stage curtain it was necessary to work suspended 60 feet in the air while the curtains were hung in place. At the County Court House, traversing roads to hold the yards and yards of drapery material required for each tall window had to be fitted to steel windows of a dozen different types.

Circular windows were treated in the Storrs Community church. One of the interesting small home problems that Mr. Roth encountered recently was the treating of a shallow bay window in a Cape Cod cottage which was surprisingly lacking in trim to which the rod was to be attached. Just about tomorrow evening in his talk, and some of the draperies will be shown made up, ready to hang.

The lecture will begin at 8:15 sharp and, like all the others in the series, will be open to the public without charge. Entrance to the auditorium is at 11 Oak street.

BOSSY GILLIS SEEKING A WIFE ON THE COAST

San Francisco, Feb. 24.—(AP)—The hearts of brunettes and red-heads throbbled a little faster and somewhat hopefully here today as the fair sex of San Francisco anticipated the arrival of Andrew Gillis, "Bossy" Gillis' bachelor filling station operator and mayor of Newburyport, Mass.

Gillis has come to California to "give some girl a great break" and here is what the California girls and decided to start his hunt in San Francisco. If he is not transfixed by a love arrow here, he will head for Hollywood and the beautiful girls of filmdom.

Blondes, however, need not apply. The blonde, says "Bossy," are not so good at housekeeping, but he had decided to give all brunettes and red-heads "an even chance," providing they can qualify as "good lookers."

And here is what the lucky girl will get: a sturdy chap 33 years old, considered good looking, has income, firm, but kindly disposition, healthy as they make them.

"Bossy" will have plenty of assistance. Mayor Rolph invited him to a conference and said he would do anything he could to bring the visitor's quest to a successful conclusion.

A police squad was detailed to be at the pier when the ship bearing "Bossy" docks. This action was taken as a precaution—just in case the brunettes and red-heads flock to the pier by the thousands. No violence was anticipated, the police department wants to keep the situation in hand all the time.

Lupe Velez, Film Star Whiteman Hour Guest

Lupe Velez, "Whoopie Lupe" of the films, is going to sing again over the air when she appears as guest artist in the Paul Whiteman-Old Gold radio hour, Tuesday evening, February 25. The young, dashing, brown-eyed Mexican film beauty will face the microphone at Los Angeles and cast her latest song hit, "Caribbean Love Song," over the air on the Columbia Broadcasting System at 9 o'clock, eastern standard time, on that day.

Miss Velez will be remembered by radio fans for her air appearance about a year ago, when she sang "Where is the Song of Songs for Me," which Irving Berlin had written for her in the D. W. Griffith picture, "Lady of the Pavements." Her latest song introduces her in a new all-talking picture, "Hell Harbor," which she had just completed at Tampa, Fla.

Miss Velez' voice will be carried over 3000 miles of wire lines to Station WABC, in New York, whence it will be distributed to the Columbia network. While she sings, from Los Angeles, Paul Whiteman will direct his famous band at San Diego. This will be the first time for a national broadcast to be sent out of the coast city.

Featured with Miss Velez will be the famous Mexican Marimba Band of Aguirre Caliente, which will broadcast several enticing selections on its unique instruments.

Army Officers Will Accompany U. S. Gold Star Women to France

Washington.—(AP)—Fifty army officers, selected for their tact and courtesy, will accompany the pilgrimages of 6,000 war wives and mothers to the graves of husbands and sons in France this spring and summer. The women, who are being taken on the unique pilgrimage at government expense, will sail in groups of 300 on regular passenger vessels every week throughout the summer, according to plans of the war department.

One officer will be on each boat. Others will accompany various delegations on their visits to cemeteries in France. The first contingent of women will leave New York May 7. Engraved invitations soon will be sent the first 300, their names to be determined by a drawing of various states and territories to take place in Washington.

BEGGARS TURN SHANGHAI INTO WINTER HAVEN

Shanghai.—(AP)—The Shanghai beggar season, the most miserable of the year, is in full swing. Like chihuabians, red noses, hot whiskey and spats, the presence of beggars in the International settlement is particularly noticeable from early December until late March. This year it is even more so than usual.

The down town bridges are the spots most favored by the megalomaniacs. Women, small girls and dirty boys form the greater part of the horde and, are, by far, the most active.

Old men and deformed youths haunt the alleys off the main thoroughfares. They also ply their business near banks and the larger commercial establishments. Deceitful as most of them appear, they display surprising agility whenever a policeman comes in sight. Even the "blind" beggars spot the blue coats.

There is one old woman who for years has been a nuisance on one of the main down town bridges. She appears annually with a tiny baby strapped on her back and always the child is about the same age. The woman is only one of hundreds of beggars who buy babies as alms. This one not only does a good business herself, but she sustains a dozen or more urchins who pester all who walk across the bridge.

A few blocks further on, another woman sits in front of a big restaurant, half weeping, half moaning. She has three children with her who cry all day long. Occasionally the pseudo-mother holds both hands over her stomach.

"Chow," she moans, "no have got chow," whereupon the children howl at the tops of their lungs.

Another type of beggar common on the streets of Shanghai is made up of acrobatic youngsters. They turn handspins or juggle balls or butcher knives in front of pedestrians. Many of them are really adept and manage to make a fair living.

TILDEN AND COEN WIN DOUBLES TITLE Beaulieu, France, Feb. 24.—(AP)—Bill Tilden and Wilbur F. Coen, Jr., America's first and eighth ranking tennis players, won the doubles title in the Beaulieu tournament, defeating Dr. Daniel Frenn and Heinrich Kleinschroth, a German team, by scores of 8-6, 6-2, 6-4, in the finals today.

LEAVES LARGE ESTATE Dedham, Mass., Feb. 24.—(AP)—Galen L. Stone, of Brookline, member of the firm of Hayden, Stone and Company, who died recently, left an estate of more than $15,000,000. It was shown today when an inventory of the estate was filed here in Norfolk county Probate Court. The inventory placed personal property at $15,021,611, and real estate at $301,086.

MRS. BASCOMB CALM IN NEW YORK COURT

Springfield Woman Laughs When She Is Identified With Bandit's Gang.

New York, Feb. 24.—(AP)—Maintaining the unconcerned attitude she has held since her arrest several days ago, Mrs. Amelia Bascomb, 19, who came here from Springfield, Mass., four months ago "looking for excitement," laughed today as she was identified by several holdup victims as one of a gang of robbers.

Identified with her in West Side Court as perpetrators of a string of holdups, were Jacob Solomon, 17, his brother Samuel 24, Marcus Con, 25, and Joseph Hayes, 23.

"It will be a long time before I get back to Springfield," she said as the list of complaints against her and the men mounted. "And I'm not so sure that I'll be happy for a west side shoe store, was adjourned until Friday because of the absence of the complainant.

"One thing is certain," she said and laughed, "I can't burn for anything I've done."

"Burn" is the underworld code word for death in the electric chair. Although identified by many alleged victims, the hearing on the specific holdup for which they were arrested, the robbery at gun point of a west side shoe store, was adjourned until Friday because of the absence of the complainant.

MARCHNEK TO PLAY WITH REC TUESDAY

Holyoke Star to Jump Center; Endees Have Many Well Known Stars in Line-up.

Ray Marchnek, star Holyoke basketball, will re-appear in the line-up of the Rec Five tomorrow night against the re-organized Meriden Endees who are centering here with a strong lineup. Joe Coffey of Meriden will referee. The preliminary has not yet been arranged but will be announced tomorrow.

Included in the lineup of the Meriden Endees will be such well known chattered court performers as "Red" Linger, Eddie McCarthy and Adolph Zykwicz, stars of the Endee team before it was disbanded. Billy Cook, who needs no introduction to Manchester fans, may also appear with the visitors.

At Smith, captain and star forward of Meriden High three years ago, and Jimmy Mastriano, another former Meriden schoolboy sensation, will play the forward positions. In reserve will be Heinie and Eddie Johnson, a sturdy pair of defense players.

1 MINUTE INTERVIEW

WITH JOE MCCARTHY.

"I'm standing pat on my 1929 batting order, at least for the opening games of the 1930 season," says Joe McCarthy, boss of the Cubs. The Bruin pilot is pretty well satisfied with the aggregation that brought Chicago its first National League pennant since 1918.

"English is to get the lead off assignment again," says Joe, "with Cuyler, Hornsby, Wilson, Stephenson and Grimm following in that order. I'm putting Lester Bell, our new third baseman, in seventh position where McMillan batted last summer. Bell is a dangerous hitter; puts distance in his drives. We'll score more runs for he'll furnish the punch to score Wilson, Stephaie and Grimm."

"Everyone knows Gabby Hartnett is one of the best catchers in the game when he is right. He went through a series of operations to remedy the trouble that developed in his throwing arm and a severe test revealed that it is as strong as ever. And that's some strong, too. I'm confident Gabby will bring his hitting back to his usual stridence, now that his throwing ailment is gone.

MAJORS DRUB HERALD, TIE FOR FIRST PLACE

The second night of the final round in the Herald Bowling league is set for this evening. Two teams are tied for first place, the Majors and the Night Hawks, with the Charter Oaks close in the rear. The Majors took four points from the Herald Saturday night in a postponed match. Kebratt hit 377.

Tonight finds the Majors pitted against the Pirates at Gamba's alleys with the British-Americans and the Herald clashing at the same place. At Farr's, the Night Hawks tackle the Shell Gas and the Charter Oaks. Over at Conran's the West Sides try conclusions with the Construction.

STAYS ALOFT 9 HOURS FOR NEW U. S. RECORD
San Diego, Cal., Feb. 24.—(AP)—Hawley Bowlus, holder of the American glider record, landed near here at 2:43 a. m. today after he had established a new mark for himself. He faltered, however, to closely approach the world record of more than 14 hours held in Germany. Bowlus, whose previous record was six hours, 14 minutes and three seconds, set a new American mark of 9:52:27.

TAFFYS NEED ONE MORE TRIUMPH TO CAPTURE PENNANT

Phantoms Trounce Ramblers; Larry Maloney Leads Scorers With 154 Points.

The Taffys need but one more victory to assure themselves of the Rec Junior League basketball pennant. The Taffys and Warriors were to have met Saturday night but the game was postponed. The second-place Phantoms walloped the Ramblers 48 to 24.

An interesting point in connection with the Taffys' fine work in the league is that the scoring statistics reveal the Taffys four lowest scoring machine in the circuit. Their defense, however, has been the best. Larry Maloney of the Taffys is the league's leading scorer having a very comfortable lead over Campbell, Oppliger and Sturgeon of the Taffys.

LEAGUE MEETS
Geneva, Feb. 24.—(AP)—The special committee appointed by the council of the League of Nations to study amendments to the League covenant with a view to total elimination of war met today at the League secretariat.

It had before it the proposed amendments of the British government, to revise the covenant and bring it into greater harmony with the Kellogg pact.

With a continuation of the present weather, it will be a pleasure rather than a discomfort to stand outdoors listening to the returns.

The Herald will get the blow by blow description of the second annual battle of the palms by direct Associated Press wire from Allan J. Gould, sports editor. As each round is completed, it will be read to the listeners outside the Herald's Bissell street plant through a megaphone by the Herald sports editor. The important preliminaries will also be included.

Another trophy from the field of battle earned its resting place in the Manchester High school cabinet Saturday afternoon when the local school lived up to expectations by winning the Central Connecticut Interscholastic League meet at Trinity College pool in Hartford at the expense of Bristol. Its basketball prowess, and Middleton, Meriden, sensing disaster, withdrew at the last minute.

CAN BATTALINO TAKE IT?

MIDDLETOWN LOOMS AS A REAL MENACE

For the first time in his career, Bat Battalino, world's featherweight, will be pitted against a harder hitter tomorrow night when he faces Ignacio Fernandez, rugged Filipino scrapper, who boasts a knockout victory over no less a person than Al Singer. No one denies Battalino can sock and sock hard and that's usually the smelling salts for anyone he hits squarely. The thing which everyone wants to know, however, is what Battalino will do if he is subjected to his own medicine. This may be revealed at the State Armory in Hartford tomorrow night.

Judging from the tough time Bristol experienced beating Middletown 17 to 12 Saturday night, Manchester High is in for no practice session Friday night when Middletown comes to the State Armory to oppose Clarke's forces.

The championship Bristol team Middletown had the ball more of the time than Bristol and took more shots, both of which are facts that usually don't occur in Bristol's encounters. Manchester, too, had a tough time down in Middletown, being defeated, as you will recall, 24 to 22 after two five minute overtime periods.

The championship Bristol team has now boosted its standing to .889 in its record of games with Central Connecticut Interscholastic League opponents.

Manchester trounced West Hartford to bring its total games won to six against three defeats for a percentage of .667. Meriden's victory Tuesday over East Hartford gave the Silver City team a record of six contests won and two lost for a rating of .750. Middletown has scored five victories against three defeats to be rated at .625. West Hartford is rated at .562 with two won and nine lost, while East Hartford finished its season without a victory.

Bristol's eight victories give the team 24 points in the Central League ratings, with Meriden and Manchester tied for second place with six victories and 18 points.

West Hartford is given only six points for its two victories over East Hartford, which has none.

HERALD WILL ANNOUNCE SHARKEY-SCOTT RETURNS

The Manchester Evening Herald will furnish Manchester fight fans with a blow for blow coverage of the Sharkey-Scott fight at Miami Thursday night. In view of the fact that the Madison Square Garden Corporation has stated that it will positively refuse to allow the fight to be broadcast, this news will no doubt be very welcome to boxing enthusiasts in Manchester.

The Herald will get the blow by blow description of the second annual battle of the palms by direct Associated Press wire from Allan J. Gould, sports editor. As each round is completed, it will be read to the listeners outside the Herald's Bissell street plant through a megaphone by the Herald sports editor. The important preliminaries will also be included.

FIVE STRAIGHT DEFEATS OFFSET BY ACHIEVEMENT

Sharkey-Scott Battle Called Necessary Evil

Miami, Fla., Feb. 24.—(AP)—Whether or not the Madison Square Garden millionaires experience a major operation in the region of the box office, in connection with the Sharkey-Scott fight show this Thursday night, they have not lost confidence in the astic future of this Florida center of sports activity and pleasures hunting.

Before departing tonight for New York, where he sails next Friday for South America on a business trip, William F. (Big Bill) Carey, the Garden's chief executive made it clear he intended to stick to the five year plan of promoting annual heavyweight shows in Miami, win or lose.

Carey feelings that due to circumstances which in part at least were beyond the garden's control, the Phil Scott-Jack Sharkey match was made an essential part of the heavyweight program, in spite of a lack of popular interest. As he looks at it, the Garden is "taking it on the chin" in the interest of putting through the match as a "necessary evil," designed to help decide the heavyweight situation.

This would pave the way next winter in Miami, for a pair of outstanding title contenders to be matched.

Meanwhile the Garden directorate will consider itself fortunate to break even on this week's show or even to pocket a small loss.

The attitude now is that if the receipts pass $250,000, three rousing cheers will be given. Sharkey's and Scott will be around $60,000 and $50,000. Phil doesn't share equally with Jack until after the $200,000 mark is passed.

PENN IS DROPPED TO SECOND PLACE

New York, Feb. 24.—(AP)—With a totally unexpected victory over Penn to its credit, Cornell's hopes in the eastern intercollegiate basketball league expect to jolt the dope against Columbia tonight. The Lions have been beaten only once in five league starts, Yale turning the trick at New Haven where the Elis have been invincible this year.

Four other games are on the league schedule this week. Wednesday Dartmouth and Princeton, tied for the cellar, clash at Princeton. Yale comes to New York for a battle with Columbia Friday night and on Saturday Princeton meets Cornell at Ithaca while Penn is battling Dartmouth at Hanover.

Lewis, crack all-around man of the Cornell team may overhaul Ed Horwitz of Yale this week in the battle for scoring honors. At present Horwitz with 61 points in eight games leads Lewis who has played seven, by five points.

Worcester used a zone defense that failed to trouble the locals. The work of the Gustafson brothers, Spally and "Gyp" was outstanding, though every man played a whole of a game. S. Johnson, was the scoring ace for the visitors.

Middletown and Bristol Prove Incapable of Checking Progress Made by Local Mermen in Trinity Pool Saturday Afternoon; Only One League Record Broken.

Manchester's victory in the objective meet of its season, was made all the more coveted and cherished by the fact that the local aquatic adventurers had been defeated in every one of their five meets prior to Saturday. It is true, however, that this was largely due to stepping out of its class for opposition of the proper conditioning sort. The quintet of defeats are now easily forgotten.

Win Trophy.
The league triumph gave Manchester permanent possession of a plaque which the local school offered the first three-time winner. Trinity College has now offered a new trophy and Manchester will go after the first leg next year. Coach J. W. Clarke's crew won the league tussle with comparative ease, scoring 40 points against 25 for Middletown and 12 for Bristol. All of which tends to prove that outside of basketball circles, the Bell Town isn't so hot.

Captain Dick Joslin's outfit won four first places, Eddie Lithwinski taking two of them, Dana Cowles one and the team coping the relay for the other. Cliff Treat and Eddie Moriarty swam a splendid race in the 100 yard breaststroke. Only one league record was broken, that being executed by Bragdon, Middletown's ace, in the 200 yard free style. Les Buckland had the previous mark. Bragdon negotiated the distance in 2:29.3-10.

Win Relay Too.
Manchester was leading 12 points as it entered the 100 yard back stroke next to final event, but victory definitely assured when Lithwinski bested Beals of Bristol to place first. The relay had no bearing on the outcome, except as to the final score, but Manchester took this time, just to make its triumph all the greater. Cowles had to overcome a slight handicap and beat Bragdon to win the event in the final lap.

The summaries follow:
50 yard free style: Cowies, Manchester; Mayall, Middletown; Hicking, Manchester; Beals, Bristol; time 28.3-5.
100 yard free style: Bragdon, Middletown; Joslin, Manchester; Stephens, Manchester; Kudalis, Bristol; time, 2:29.3-10; new record.
100 yard breast stroke: Fortes, Middletown; Treat, Manchester; Moriarty, Manchester; Waterman, Middletown; time, 1:29.
Diving: Lithwinski, Manchester; Hicking, Manchester; Waterman, Middletown; Zlot, Middletown.
100 yard free style: Bragdon, Middletown; Davis, Manchester; Sted and Dauphous of Bristol, third for third; time, 1:04.4-5.
100 yard back stroke: Lithwinski, Manchester; Beals, Bristol; Carone, Bristol; Stevens, Manchester; time, 1:28.4-5.
Relay, 200 yards: Won by Manchester with Davis and Hicking, Lithwinski and Cowies; Middletown second; Bristol third; time 1:59.3-5.
The above summary reveals that Leonard Hicking was also very instrumental in Manchester's victory while Harding Stevens and Art Davis also did well. Captain Joslin did not compete because of illness.

A bridegroom in Kentucky tried to get married with a dog's license. But maybe that was the kind of a life he expected to lead.

BRIDGEPORT PLAYER ATTRACTS ATTENTION

San Antonio, Feb. 24.—(AP)—The newest sensation of the N. Y. Giants spring training squad is Blonde Eddie Marshall, second baseman obtained from Bridgeport of the Eastern League.

Just as if I can't slam a ball past him into the outfield said Dave Bancroft, assistant manager. "He gets in front of every ball and those that are impossible to grab he slaps down and burns them over to first in time to make the out. If he can only hit."

That's the big question at present. He barely hit .300 for Bridgeport last year but seems to be learning fast.

After losing an overtime game to Casey's Hicks by one point, the Heights came back and beat the Salvation Army, 23-16. The Heights showed a good passing attack and good team work. The scoring was well divided among the Heights, while Vince played best for the losers.

I've kept that school girl complexion.
I've walked a mile for a smoke.

Farmer—No, that's a mole.

Even a gingerale at a night club makes you think you are seeing double when you see the bill.

When a girl buys a wedding dress, she can hardly wait to "ALTAR" it.

Mrs. G.—Does your husband talk in his sleep?
Mrs. P.—No. But he's awfully exasperating. He only smiles.

Did you hear the freight agent on the Railway received a shipment amongst which was a donkey described on the freight bill as "1 burro." After checking his goods carefully the agent made this report: "Short, 1 bureau, over 1 jack-ass."

Strickland Gilliland perhaps should receive the medal for the shortest poem of merit known.

Nowadays, one doesn't die a natural death unless he has a surgical operation.

Some people have a lot to think about with nothing to do with it.

He—How many times have we kissed tonight?
She—Twice. Remember when I had to answer the door bell.

It is an easy matter to write a paragraph, but putting a kick into it is something different.

John (speaking on the phone)—Is that you, sweetheart?
Phyllis—Yes, who's talking?

WASHINGTON PROGRAM AT D. A. R. MEETING
 Friends of Orford Parish Chapter Entertained at South Methodist Church.

Fully 150 were present at the Washington's Birthday entertainment given by Orford Parish Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution at the South Methodist church Saturday afternoon. Each year on this day it is the custom of the chapter to entertain its friends. The banquet hall with its sizeable stage was used and chairs were arranged in semi-circles and small groups. In the center of the floor a colonial table was attractively set with snowy linen, gleaming silver and pewter and red candies and carnations. Mrs. H. B. House and Mrs. C. W. Holman poured. Miss Jane Grant and Miss Emily House assisted the ladies in charge in serving the guests and members with dainty sandwiches, cake, coffee, nuts and candies.

Mrs. A. A. Wassall arranged for an unusually interesting program of music, together with a mock trial by members of the Hearststone club of Hartford. The program opened with the salute to the flag, after which Mrs. Wassall, Mrs. A. E. Lambert and Mrs. E. A. Mitchener of Hartford played a piano trio. Mrs. Mitchener sang a group of patriotic songs, among them, "The Parby Ram" and a lullaby which George Washington sang to the children of Mrs. Ellsworth whose family he was visiting in Windsor on October 21, 1783. Mrs. Ellsworth had given a reception in his honor and had invited neighbors and friends. As he sat by one of the south windows in the drawing room she placed her two younger children on his knees and he sang to them the two songs mentioned. Mrs. Mitchener also sang several Indian songs, including "Pale Moon" and "The Waters of Minnetonka." Mrs. Wassall played a medley of patriotic airs, and the piano trios which she arranged were thoroughly enjoyed.

The mock trial proved highly amusing. It was written by one of the club, Mrs. A. T. Marshall, who took the part of the plaintiff. Miss Annie Waters who took the part of the judge wore the regulation gown. The jury members were called from Orford Chapter women, and the excuses some of them offered for inability to serve created no little amusement. The club has presented the play on several different occasions. They have visited court sessions to get the correct usage of terms and atmosphere. The parts were all well taken. In addition to those mentioned, Mrs. L. E. Peck was the clerk of the court; Mrs. H. R. Myers the defendant; Mrs. W. C. B. Robbins and Mrs. G. E. Bradbury, lawyers. The witnesses were Mrs. Wassall, Mrs. Lambert, Mrs. C. M. Allen, with Mrs. Roy B. Clark as foreman of the jury.

TRY "FLIM-FLAM" GAME IN NORTH END STORES

An effort was made in the north end Friday night by three men to try an old "flim-flam" game. Buying a small article, a $20 bill was given in payment and then, after the change had been made the purchaser discovered he had the right change and rather than carry around small bills asked for the return of the twenty dollar bill. Detracting the attention of the person taking back the change, $10 or more was removed from the "roll." A check up reveals that the game didn't "wc k" in any of the north end stores.

AUTO MISHAPS SEND FOUR TO HOSPITAL
 Only One Is Badly Hurt; Two Hit Crossing Main Street Saturday Night.

Four Manchester persons were taken to the Memorial hospital Saturday as the result of automobile accidents, but only one, Mrs. Matilda Gardner, 60, of 71 Brookfield street, was badly injured. She is expected to recover. No arrests were made. Three other persons were injured but none seriously.

The first accident occurred opposite the Hotel Sheridan Saturday evening. A car driven by Elmer Blodgett of Springfield was coming south on Main street while Miss Lottie Orr, Mrs. Maude Massey, both of 25 Griswold street, and Frank Fidler of 117 Prospect street, Rockville, were crossing from the south Center Park entrance. Blodgett, in his statement to the police, said he was about thirty-five feet away before he noticed the three, and then unsuccessfully pulled to his right to avoid hitting them. The three were knocked down and at once taken to the hospital where it was found that their wounds were as follows: cut on the elbow and leg to Mr. Fidler, Miss Orr was suffering with an arm and leg abrasion and Miss Massey had scrapes on her knee. The accident was considered unavoidable and no arrests were made.

Aged Woman Hurt
 At 7:15 Saturday night an automobile driven by Fred Anderson of 73 Benton street, Manchester, was being driven east on East Center street. Just about opposite Spruce street Mrs. Gardner was noticed coming from the north side of the street as though crossing over. Mr. Anderson saw her and brought his car to a slow speed. The woman stopped as though to allow the car to pass, according to the report made to the police, and just as Anderson again started up the woman also started.

She was knocked down, being hit by the side of the automobile. Mr. Anderson at once came to a stop and picked up the woman and took her to the hospital. Mrs. Gardner was in a dazed condition having sustained a concussion of the brain, a scalp wound and both her knees were bruised. There were no arrests.

Boy Knocked Down
 William Myers, 3 years old of 43 Cambridge street, was knocked down by an automobile owned by Clarence Peterson of 358 Main street Saturday afternoon. Mr. Peterson was driving on Main street when the little fellow darted out from behind a car that was parked. He was not hurt bodily. The report made by Officer Rudolph Wirtalla, who made the investigation, said that Mr. Peterson made a quick stop and a sharp turn in an attempt to prevent the accident.

CHURCH MOVIE SHOW WEDNESDAY NIGHT

North End Group to Present Rod La Roque in "Stand and Deliver"—Supper Precedes.

The moving picture committee of Second Congregational church has planned a full evening's entertainment for Wednesday of this week, as their advertisement in today's issue will show. The object is to raise the balance of the money due on the two motion picture machines purchased by the committee a few months ago. The entertainments heretofore have been open to the public with a collection. This was the case last evening when one of the monthly services was given. Organist F. A. Wilbur presided at the organ and will play for Wednesday evening's picture. Special music last night was rendered by a male quartet and a mixed double quartet and the "Country Doctor" was the feature picture.

The film for Wednesday evening will be in six reels, starring Rod La Roque in "Stand and Deliver." Briefly, the story tells of a noted war ace who tiring of club life in London, joins the army of Greece solely for the thrill of capturing a notorious bandit. He first thwarts the bandit chief, saves the beautiful Greek girl and later effects the bandit's capture.

The committee in charge has been working enthusiastically to make Wednesday evening's supper and picture a success from every standpoint. Mrs. George F. Borst who is chairman of the supper, announces that they will be ready to serve by 6:15. It is planned that those who are unable to attend only the showing of the picture may do so at a moderate fee.

PHONES Pinehurst
"GOOD THINGS TO EAT"
 GOLD STRIKE IN ALASKA.

Looks like the Yukon strike of '98 all over again. Everybody in Alaska rushing for the upper reaches of the old river to get in on the new finds. In a few weeks probably everybody in the States who wants to get rich quick will be heading for the far North again. Florida, the bull stock market, now placer gold digging in Alaska! Beats all how the chances to get rich do crowd along! However, most Manchester folks seem to be satisfied to stay on the job and depend on the little old budget to help them put away a few dollars against the rainy day. That, and trading at Pinehurst, where you get a hundred cents for every dollar of the food part of the budget.

A Little Shaver
 is a boy between four and eight years old. When you suddenly discover you haven't a baby any more but a regular, sure 'nuff little shaver it's a pretty sure sign you've got to do some building. He wants a room of his own. Maybe that means an addition to the house. A playhouse; a dog kennel; a high board fence to shin over; and repairs! Ask Dad—he knows! Dad buys lumber here. He's one of our best customers.
