

SEN. SMOOT RAPS BOOK CENSORSHIP

Washington, March 18.—(AP)—Opening debate on the "book censorship" section of the tariff bill, Senator Smoot, Republican, Utah, said that practically all the educators of the country were opposed to the present system and urged the Senate to adhere to its decision to repeal the censorship section.

Senator Smoot, Republican, Utah, has proposed an amendment to restore the present censorship in a modified form and has been vehement in his opposition to the entry of what he described as "immoral literature."

Senator Cutting argued that the states were "far safer judges" on this point than the district courts, as would be the case under the Smoot amendment.

Fundamental Reasons "There are three fundamental things we ought to consider before voting for this amendment," the New Mexico Senator said.

They are, what right have we got to interfere with an adult as to what he would like to read? "How can we pick men wise enough to decide what the adult should not read?"

"How can we do it without reacting upon ourselves and without encouraging the circulation of the very books which censorship tends to restrict?"

SOUTH CLEANED UP HOOVER DECLARES

(Continued from Page 1) brought that one member of the new advisory committee in South Carolina has accepted contributions from old organized crime elements was displaced. They are vigorously denied by the members of the new advisory committee.

This matter has been for some weeks under investigation by the Department of Justice and the postoffice department and the facts will be determined and published.

In the Senate as soon as the patronage question had been published, Senator Fess, Republican, Ohio, referred to the recent report on patronage in the south and said it dealt entirely with conditions existing before the Hoover administration took office.

President's Letter "The Chicagoan is a letter written sometime ago by the President ordering a new control of patronage in the south.

"He does not approve but condemns any sale of patronage in the south," Fess said.

Blease asserted that the Republican Party in South Carolina stands for graft and corruption and dishonest government and dishonorable disposition of patronage.

Asserting that the government was "a stench in the nostrils of every decent man in the state," Blease added that every one who had participated in the purchase or sale of public offices should be put in the penitentiary.

Referring to the attitude of President Hoover and to Walter P. Brown whom he described as the "supposed to be postmaster general of the United States," Blease asserted:

"By their works and not by their words shall we know them."

Recalling a recent speech he made in the Senate in which he charged that a Federal position in South Carolina had been "bought" for $30 which he said went into the treasury of the Republican National committee, Blease asserted that "no one had paid any attention to it."

"The President ignored it," he shouted. "The President ignored it and the sale of patronage in South Carolina went on just the same. The money went to the Republican National committee and it has not been denied."

Blease added that the Brookhart committee which investigated patronage in southern states "has not gone to the rock-bottom of the thing and until it does the President will be just as ignorant as he is now."

Senator McKellar, Democrat, Tennessee, a member of the patronage committee, referred to testimony involving District Attorney Hartman and Roy Campbell, collector of internal revenue, both of Texas, and asserted that if they were renominated he would oppose Senate confirmation. He added that both should be dismissed.

Senator Sheppard, Democrat, Texas, said he had requested a statement from both men.

Bronx County Judge James M. Barrett sentenced Michael McCloskey, delegate of the Wood Lathers' Union, who was convicted with Montforte, to five to ten years. The indictments against the two men followed an investigation by the Bronx County Grand Jury into a series of fires in apartment houses under construction which authorities charged were set by extortionists when builders refused to meet their demands.

KAISER CANNOT RETURN, Berlin, March 18.—(AP)—The Reichstag today adopted the new law for the protection of the Republic by a vote of 285 to 150.

The law supersedes the old defense law which went out of operation on July 22, 1929.

Under the old law the former Kaiser was specifically forbidden to reenter Germany. The new law does not contain this provision, and while under it the Kaiser theoretically would be free to return. Nobody, not even the Monarchists, considers even the possibility of his return.

DEMOCRATS IN NEED OF NEW MACHINERY

then appoint one man as the head of each Congressional district. These five men, with the other two, would be the executive committee in full charge of the organization. Each Congressional district head would appoint a man to be responsible for each Senatorial district and with the latter appoint the town chairman. The latter should then appoint their own committees.

Need District Leader "The only new official in this organization is the Congressional district leader. I think this element has been sadly missed in the past. Yet the district is the division of the state in which the contest on national issues is largely fought out.

"Every two years or four years, the towns would elect delegates to Senatorial district conventions and each of these conventions would elect one delegate to a state convention. This convention in turn would select the national committeeman and state chairman.

"The merits of this plan, I submit, are two: First, we set up an organization where responsibility is coupled with power. This is the only sound principle where results are desired. It is used in government and in business. Second: The party retains complete control through the regular power of election.

"Too Much Power" "If it is feared that too much power is placed in the hands of one or two men that they will build up a personal machine which cannot be removed, I say, that the same argument can be urged against the government of Connecticut by the United States and against every successful business enterprise.

"I submit to you that if we create an effective fighting machine if we select as leaders persons who will not only help our own candidates but also a substantial number of independent Republicans, and if we sacrifice them to suit the desires of a particular candidate, we are bound to succeed."

Mr. Hewes selected for his subject "How Can the Democratic Party in Connecticut Win?"

Not a Candidate The luncheon preceding the meeting of the state committee which will be held in Hartford on the 27th was of unusual interest because of the various candidates which have been mentioned for national committee men. Mr. Hewes said in acknowledging his introduction that he was invited "because it was thought I was a candidate to succeed Mr. Spellacy x x x but I explained to both Mrs. Conant and Mrs. Welch that this was not the case, but as the invitation to speak held, I am here."

Mr. Hewes spoke generally on national matters, directing his attention to the question of prohibition. He said this question could no longer "be dodged" and it should not be. It is essentially a political question, but not essentially a party one as between present parties.

National Prohibition "National prohibition," he said, "as we know it, is in direct conflict with the original principles of our party whose supreme concern was the freedom of the individual citizen and whose stand on the important questions of that day, as it should be now, was the logical application of the belief in freedom to the concrete cases which arose. Strict construction, a minimum of legislation, no special privileges, were all doctrines arising out of belief in personal liberty. Time has proved that this concept of American government is sound."

Mr. Hewes warned his hearers not to confuse imperance with national prohibition.

SENATORS IN ROW OVER HUSTON FUND

Huston gave notice that he would ask for a meeting of the Senate judiciary committee to "repudiate" the action of the lobby committee if it issued the subpoena.

Huston said he was willing to cancel the contest to the Senate, if necessary.

A Political Matter "If this is a political matter, I want to know it," he shouted to Huston said he was willing to give the committee records concerning the Muscle Shoals transactions and that he had expected to turn over to the committee today two checks from the Union Carbide Company he collected last year.

Huston said the money from the Union Carbide Company was given him by F. H. Hageron in the form of checks, one dated March 8, 1929, was for $22,000 while the other, dated June 26, was for $14,100.

Huston said the chairman said the checks were signed by Hageron, who was identified as president of the Union Carbide Company. He did not recall whether the checks were made out to him or to W. E. Moore, his personal representative.

Huston said he had opened an account with Blythe and Bonner, his personal brokers in New York for "emergency purposes" and that it was handled for him by Moore.

The subpoena that Charles A. Kerkel, of the firm of Blythe and Bonner, produce the records before the committee tomorrow.

Huston was called by the committee for questioning about his activities in connection with Muscle Shoals legislation while president of the improvement association. He said he collected $36,100 from the Union Carbide Company, which was to get a part of the Shoals power if the bid of the American Cyanamid Company was accepted. Huston's former association advocated acceptance of the Cyanamid Company's offer.

Unable to Get Records. On the stand last week, the Republican chairman testified he had kept the $36,100; in his personal accounts and a committee investigator was sent to New York to get the records. He reported today that he was unable to get them and Senator Walsh, Democrat, Montana, proposed the subpoena.

After conferring with his colleagues, Walsh said the subpoena would be limited to the amounts paid by the Union Carbide Company. "I have no objection to that," Robinson said. "I think that is fair."

While the proposal to produce all Huston's accounts was being considered, Robinson said it was "just as fair" to subpoena the accounts of John J. Raskob, chairman of the Democratic National Committee.

Huston said there was not the "slightest objection" to giving the Union Carbide records but he added he would protest against going into all his accounts.

The subpoena was issued in modified form. The controversy having subsided, Senator Blaine, Republican, Wisconsin, asked Huston if he knew any "lobbying" engaged in by Raskob.

Huston replied that he knew Raskob was a member of an organization advocating repeal of the prohibition amendment.

MAE WEST'S JURY

New York, March 18.—(AP)—The jury that is to try Mae West, actress and playwright, on charges of having committed a misdemeanor in staging the play "Pleasure Man," which the police closed a year and a half ago after it had run two nights, was half completed at noon today.

Miss West, Carl Reed, who produced "Pleasure Man," and 56 other persons, including the entire cast, are on trial in General Sessions. In addition to Miss West, however, only 11 of the defendants are actually present, their attorneys having explained that most of them are out with traveling theatrical companies in other productions.

After Nathan Burkan, Miss West's attorney, had objected in vain to a "Blue Ribbon" panel on the ground that the prospective jurors would be "narrow minded and undemocratic" four were selected yesterday. Two more, one of them a manufacturer of children's rompers, were added today.

GARAGE MAN INVENTS A NEW AUTO HOIST

North End Man Applies Electric Power to Crane—Does Work Much Faster.

James Daley, employed as a mechanic at the Depot Square Garage at the intersection of North Main and North School streets, has invented and put to a test, a method of raising a car by electrical power, being the only automobile wrecker of the kind in this section, as far as Mr. Daley knows.

It is operated by a storage battery and is so attached to the windlass of the crane, which is ordinarily operated by hand power is a clutch that settles down upon the windlass in such a way as to take a vice like grip and with the turning on of the power, the windlass starts to turn, working at a speed at least four times as fast as can be operated by hand power.

CENSUS TO ENUMERATE NUMBER OF UNEMPLOYED

It is not expected, however, to be found very troublesome. The names of all gainful workers who were not at work on the day preceding the enumerators call will be recorded in the canvass, but all of these will not be counted as unemployed. Persons who report that they have no jobs at all will be asked whether they are able to work, whether they have sought a job and the reason for being out of work. Those who report they do have a job but are not at work at the time will be asked why, and whether they are losing pay by not being at work.

It will be the fifth canvass of unemployment, others having been taken in 1880, 1890, 1900, 1910 and in 1921. President Harding's conference on unemployment sought information on the subject, but its compilers reported only that the total lay somewhere between 3,500,000 and 5,500,000.

After the census is taken next month, Secretary Lamont expects to use it as a basis for keeping abreast of unemployment. This will be done by a process of "sampling" in various sections where the worse conditions exist.

is being conducted by the office of Attorney General Joseph E. Warner under a legislative order. Damon E. Hall, special assistant attorney general, has been in charge of the case with Warner presiding at hearings.

The banks in which the Garrett deposits were made were located in Boston, Brookline, Hingham, South Weymouth and Newton. The accounts included savings, checking, cooperative shares and Christmas clubs.

Refers to Tariff Bill. Referring to the tariff bill in the Senate, where a coalition of Democrats and progressive Republicans has defeated regular Republican policies on several occasions, Eaton said: "The Republican Party stands for a tariff to protect both agriculture and industry, and does not believe in the coalition doctrine that the way to aid agriculture is to injure industry."

POLICE COURT

The case of Everett Pearl who was arrested on the charge of assault, on complaint of Mrs. Jessie Smith of 11 Horan street, Saturday night, was nolle. Young Pearl was represented in court by Attorney Storrs Campbell of Hartford.

Prosecuting Attorney Charles R. Hathaway after investigating the case entered a nolle as Pearl could not be convicted on the evidence.

Christopher McLaughlin of East Hartford paid a fine of $10 and costs for driving an automobile without a license. He was arrested last night by Patrolman John Cavagnaro.

McLaughlin confidentially told him that he was a freeman and drove a fire truck in East Hartford and didn't need a license. This was a new one to the policeman and he informed McLaughlin that he had better "tell that to the judge" in the morning.

HOUSEWARMING PARTY ON THE GUSTAFSONS

Mr. and Mrs. Arvid Gustafson who a short time ago moved to their new home on Coburn Road, were given a surprise housewarming party last evening by about 35 of their relatives and a few intimate friends from this town and Hartford.

It also happened to be Mr. Gustafson's birthday and the guests brought with them a beautiful oriental rug for the hall of the new home, as well as a supply of good things for the buffet luncheon.

Charles F. Johnson made the presentation speech, and both Mr. and Mrs. Gustafson responded, thanking their friends for their kindness. The evening was spent in playing cards and in other social pastimes.

WORLD CONFEDERATION

H. G. Wells, who even in the days before he began to take himself seriously as a political expert was always fantastic, is out with a new and urgent advocacy of a world federation. It is the only way, he says, to end war. We cannot have peace so long as we have separate nationalities. Put an end to international boundaries and bring all the countries under a common charter and a universal citizenship, and we shall be getting somewhere. That is Mr. Wells' idea.

We could do it, he believes, if it were not for the politicians, the nationally patriotic politicians. Unfortunately, they are the only kind of politicians in existence—there are no international politicians as there are international scientists, philosophers, financiers, etc., so he says.

Wells does not tell us how we can supply this lack, how we are to manufacture the group of international leaders necessary to put over the merger. One wonders whether he has overlooked the Third International, which is a jump ahead of him in advocating the destruction of frontiers and stands ready to take over the job of running the works.

Also there is some question whether Mr. Wells hasn't overlooked the nationalistic tendencies of the plain citizens of the various nations, which, we suspect, might be found to be very potent influences if their political leaders should propose consolidations—say of Greek and Bulgarian or of Islam and the Methodist Board.

Still and all, a United States of the World might not be impossible to form. There is reason to believe that its organization might be very easy, compared to the job of keeping it organized. As a means of eliminating war, such a federation might not prove as completely successful as Mr. Wells rather lightly assumes it would be. We of America know something about that. Our states formed a confederation and then they strengthened the federation into a Union—and the preservation of it required the bloodiest war of modern times prior to the World conflict.

And the North and South didn't, when all is said and done, fly at each others' throats just because of differences about Negro slavery; they took up arms because they just naturally hated each other; because they were dominated by different cultures, held conflicting views as to their respective virtues and importance and could not content themselves in an equal partnership. Each section had to impose its will and its opinions on the other. The result was the inevitable one of war. It has been called civil war but it was not that—it was war between two distinct peoples who instead of maintaining separate countries had joined in a federation.

If it required the military subjugation of the South by the North to make the American federation permanent, when they were branches of the same racial stock and spoke a common language, what would be likely to follow if Mr. Wells' world federation should be brought about by treaty? It took eighty years for the strains on the American bond to reach the breaking point. It wouldn't, in all probability, take as many months for an international federation to blow up in a whirl of fire and destruction compared to which our own war between states would look like a mere squabble.

Mr. Wells would take a lot of neighbors who have a lot of trouble in keeping their hands off one another while they are living in different homes and try to bring peace among them by putting them all under the same roof. What he would get would be a Donnybrook fair.

YANKEE CLIPPER

Inauguration of the fastest rail service ever given between Boston and New York and by the finest trains, the dual Yankee Clipper express, marks a point in the renaissance of the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad as distinctive as the character of the luxurious train itself.

Occupying potentially the finest railroading field in the world, and ably managed throughout the long and glorious history of its development, it was the extraordinary misfortune of the New Haven road to suffer perhaps the most outrageous piece of manipulative gambling exploitation in the annals of railroading. Just one thing saved the New Haven from permanent ruin and that was the enormous fertility of the region in which it operated. It has required, of course, a great deal of very hard work, unlimited patience and broad vision to restore the great corporation to its rightful place—and these, it happily has received in these later years.

The New Haven is now completely re-established and the inauguration of its new double-barreled Yankee Clipper express is a sort of fitting celebration and physical demonstration of its re-birth as a first class transportation organization.

Now if the company will give serious thought to the advisability of playing up to the people of this state in the matter of grade crossing elimination, instead of taking advantage of the existence of a complaisant Public Utilities Board and evading that obligation, it will probably discover that, in enhanced confidence and good will on the part of the public of its Connecticut territory, the money expended will have been just as profitably employed as that used in the building of the splendid equipment of the Yankee Clipper.

SPIKE HEELS

A news item to the effect that municipalities are being put to extra expense in the upkeep of sidewalks by having to make them safe for women wearing spike heels has more than one angle of interest.

Probably the question hasn't been decided in any court; it may never have been brought up, for all we know; but there would seem to be a very grave question whether any town or city lies under an obligation to maintain sidewalks so superlatively excellent that no woman wearing spike heels could trip on them.

This newspaper is very decidedly opposed to sumptuary laws, on principle; so that even if it were in our power to forbid the wearing of spike heels on the shoes—or baskets of rattlesnakes on the head, for that matter—we wouldn't think of doing it. But on the other hand we can't see, to save us, why any town or city should have to go to the expense of rebuilding sidewalks that are perfectly safe for reasonably shod persons, in order to prevent, if possible, a portion of the accidents that are asked for by the wearers of these perilous little stilts.

And our belief is that in a suit for damages resulting from a sidewalk fall, proof that the victim was wearing "spikes" would constitute a perfect defense as showing contributory negligence, in the view of a court.

HABITUAL CRIMINALS

Laws providing long terms for habitual criminals almost invariably elicit loud protests and sensational headlines like "Gets Twenty Years for Five Dollar Theft" when they are applied. Yet what to do with the habitual criminal, if he is not to be locked up for permanent safe keeping, it is difficult to see.

There may be and probably are cases where the Baumes law and others like it operate outrageously; but the individual who is perpetually getting into jail and out of it, if left sufficient freedom, will almost always eventually commit some major crime that is altogether too high a price for society to pay for its leniency.

home because the private armies of several other Chicago war lords were reported to have been mobilized to prevent General Capone from going anywhere except to the cemetery.

Which, being in America, is a horse of another color—or perhaps we should say of another size. Give the Capone time—they haven't been in the racketeering game as long as Yen and Feng. Their armies will grow.

WASHINGTON LETTER

BY RODNEY DUTCHER
NEA Service Writer

Washington—All the peaceful and friendly feelings which may develop between nations do not come out of international conferences on arms, and at this time when prospects for beneficial results from the London conference seem rather dismal, the State Department is taking some encouragement from that fact.

It's a long way back to the earthquake and fire in Tokio and Yokohama in 1923, but Japan, although her delegates are making large naval demands in London, hasn't forgotten it. The State Department has received word that four Japanese young women have been selected to go to America and express the Nipponese thanks for American relief efforts at the time.

The girls were picked by a committee which includes Prince Tokugawa, president of the House of Peers, the mayors of Tokio and Yokohama and the dowager marchioness Nabeshima. They will arrive in San Francisco April 2.

These "ambassadors" are the Misses Kimiko Ashino, Yoshiko Matsudaira, Yoshiko Sato and Sumiko Tokuda, all members of representative Japanese families.

Clad in the picturesque kimono and zori (sandals) the four will tour the leading cities of America, visit schools, newspapers and social organizations where they will voice the gratitude of Japan for America's generosity during the great earthquake. All four "ambassadors" are members of prominent families.

The Jiji Shimpo, one of Japan's leading newspapers, which organizes its editorial column with a review of the outpouring of American relief at the time of the earthquake, giving credit to other nations for their help but pointing out the large scale and promptitude of American relief was the most important of all and "will remain forever inscribed on the hearts of the Japanese people."

Senator Arthur Capper of Kansas, who is the publisher of Capper's Weekly and other Capper publications, likes to tell a story of an experience encountered through an area where the celebrated weekly circulated.

A kid came to the senator and reported that his ma was right anxious to have him visit their home because she had named her last offspring Arthur Capper—Senator Capper beamed over that and agreed to go.

He traveled quite a distance to get there and was shown the infant, which turned out to be somewhat undersized and quite unlikely to win large scale and promptitude of American relief was the most important of all and "will remain forever inscribed on the hearts of the Japanese people."

IN NEW YORK

New York, March 18.—Ringsiding with some of our notables. . . . And most everyone knows by this time, Fred Stone is back in the lap of his adoring Broadway public. Small sign of his famous alpine crack-up remains. And so, surrounded by his entire family of pebbles, a few close-up items concerning this nationally favored clown can be jotted down:

He still goes up to his Connecticut farm on week-ends, and demands his beloved raisin pie.

His taste in reading runs to western stories, Rex Beach northwest tales and thrillers with cowboy flavor. For, after all, he came out of Colorado. And if you've forgotten this chapter in a colorful life, recall that Fred's first job was that of a bootblack when boots were boots and not pumps or oxfords.

The reward, in spite of the high-boot style of the time, was five cents, which was a lot of money.

A traveling wagon show caught his eye, and he was off and away with it. The wagon show people thought he was a mean foot shuffler and he got along very well, thank you. Drifting through the west, he found himself in Cheyenne and took to broncho riding, vacationing with the wild west and the rounding.

Thus he finally arrived in the theater, joining a stock company in Galveston. Hence back to the traveling shows, joining up with a medicine show, minstrel outfit and finally a vaudeville outfit. And so, gradually, into the theater.

He still likes to ride and may take another crack at polo. Or again, he may not, depending on the west, he got suit all the time, if he had his way about it. Limits himself to two cigars a day, except on special occasions, such as attending a banquet or a family dinner.

Amityville is his favorite town, since it is filled with family associations. Dorothy, for instance, was born there. When in New York, he makes his residence at Forest Hills, which is handy to Freeport, where the "old folks" live.

Has never forgotten how to shoot and may be caught at time practicing up in the galleries of Broadway. Because his presence is generally discovered and a crowd gathers he goes to the more obscure shooting emporiums.

Is one of the few Broadway stars who doesn't carry a cane and wear spats. And never did.

Has a terrific yen for parlor tricks, which he generally winds up by exhibiting at his performances. Handkerchief tricks, particularly those in which a kerchief disappears up a sleeve, or something, are his favorite. Rope tricks are "right up his alley."

He still carries his pilot's license and is more than passingly proud of it. He's never forgotten the railroad men who pulled what was left of him out from under the wreck of the plane and carried him seven miles to a hospital. Because he knew what it was to shine shoes he always gives bootblacks a neat tip.

He likes to go around in golf knickerbockers and if he had his way he'd adopt them as the national costume.

Once he was asked what he considered the funniest story he had ever heard. "If I could remember it, I'd use it in my show," was his answer.

Does he like the receptions of the Broadway crowds? Don't ask! GILBERT SWAN

key to the smartly furnished living-room

THE smart living room is furnished on the ensemble idea, just as the smart woman selects her clothing in ensembles. Individual pieces are chosen for their distinctive beauty and for their harmony in design and upholstery. As shown above, the Lawson sofa is covered in a plain fabric with a Queen Anne arm chair, not matching exactly in design, covered in a figured tapestry which blends with the plain upholstery. Possibly another chair in this same room would be covered either in the same material as the davenport, or in a small figured fabric which repeats all the colors in the room. Note how the Duncan Phyfe table, the coffee table and the lamp have been selected to harmonize. By furnishing in ensembles it is possible to create rooms that are distinctively your own. . . . rooms that you will see nowhere else!

PLAYGROUND FORTHRIGHT
(Waterbury-Republican)

Setting aside of recreation grounds for the use of home owners in new residential developments has assumed the proportions of a national movement, according to a recent report of the Playground and Recreation Association of America.

Nearly 300 real estate developments in 34 states are listed as having established such playgrounds, and nearly 150 others are known to have such areas but were not included with the 300 because of insufficient data. More than 8,000 acres are known to have been reserved for play space, and in many cases the grounds have been deeded to municipalities or townships and are free from taxes.

Health and happiness would be promoted by the setting aside of ground for recreation purposes in every real estate development. Play space is especially desirable in developments intended for persons of small and moderate incomes, as they do not have the same opportunities for outdoor play and enjoyment as the well-to-do and wealthy.

The movement to provide recreation space in real estate development is in line with the growing movement for municipal playgrounds. Both movements are to be encouraged. With the increasing tendency of the population to live in congested centers, recreation grounds and parks are more and more necessary. They are a big health and happiness asset to the nation and deserve every possible help.

KINKS AND PROLAPSUS

When the bowel has become twisted on itself it forms a kind of kink known as a volvulus, which comes from the Latin term, volvere, to roll. These cases often occur in the sigmoid flexure above the rectum. Long standing constipation is the most frequent cause of volvulus.

Another serious form of intestinal kinking is called intussusception, which refers to the slipping of one part of the intestine into another, a kind of swallowing of the intestine by itself. When this condition occurs, it is easy to see that there are three thicknesses of bowel in one place. The intussusception may be from a half inch in length to as much as a foot. Common sites are where the small and large intestine join together and in the descending colon.

In order that you may understand this article more clearly I suggest that you find an anatomical drawing of the intestines in some medical book and have it beside you when you are reading this article.

Should there be any interference with the nerves or muscles of the intestines, a kink forms, as one section of the intestines does not move as rapidly as its neighboring sections. This may be caused by blows to the abdomen, operations, inflammation, or excessive quantities of gas.

The symptoms of an acute obstruction will be a sort of colicky pain drawing through the abdomen, which later becomes severe and persistent. The patient has an exhausted appearance and may vomit his last meal, which is often followed by the vomiting of greenish bile and sometimes even the vomiting of fecal matter which has been carried back from the intestines to the mouth by a reverse movement. Sometimes the bowel can throw off the substance below the point of obstruction, but often no movements at all occur. As a rule, the higher the obstruction in the intestine, the more pain. The abdominal region is sore and tender and may be greatly distended from gas. The amount of urine is lessened, since the patient may vomit up most of his fluids. The skin becomes clammy and the tongue greatly coated.

Sometimes the obstruction can be felt with the fingers as a tumor-like enlargement.

Where there is a very stubborn constipation, one should have a very careful x-ray examination in the standing position to see if an obstruction has been formed.

Chronic obstruction is not as severe as acute obstruction, but the full contents may become greatly packed, accompanied with some pain in the colon and, sometime, vomiting. Often peritonitis is noticed with the colitis which always exists.

In old people it is not unusual for the bowels to be stopped up as long as two weeks without producing any severe symptoms. Sometimes the contents of the small intestine may succeed in worming or tunneling their way through the hardened feces lining the kinks in the colon and in this way a partial elimination may be carried on and the patient be totally unaware of the obstruction.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

(High Blood Pressure)

Question—F. D. writes: "I have been paralyzed for several months from high blood pressure. It first started in two fingers on the left hand and finally went up in the arm and all over the left side. Have taken electric treatments, and have done everything I know to do, but gets no better. Can you help me in any way?"

Answer—Your high blood pressure can be reduced to practically normal through fasting and dieting. The paralysis will disappear as soon as the blood-clot has been absorbed, but you can only accomplish this by living on the most rigid diet. The D'Arresvold high frequency treatment will temporarily reduce your blood pressure after each treatment, but does not have any permanent effect.

(Bright's Disease)

Question—L. J. asks: "Will you kindly tell me what would be the correct treatment for a young man who has a great deal of albumin? He has been advised to go to bed."

Answer: The going to bed treatment will be of little permanent use to a young man who has such a serious disorder of metabolism as to have a great deal of albumin in the urine. He needs diet and exercise to correct the faulty metabolism which is responsible for his trouble. Keep him on his feet and fighting to get well, as this is his only hope.

EXTENSIVE PLANS FOR TROUT SEASON

State Board of Fisheries and Game Has Distributed 42,000 Fish.

Extensive preparations to meet the demands of thousands of anglers who will be on Connecticut streams during the trout season, April 15 to June 30, are being made by the State Board of Fisheries and Game. Already 42,000 adult trout have been distributed this year.

The distribution this year is expected to be even greater than last year when about 230,000, or more than 19 tons of trout with a value of nearly $40,000, were put in streams of the state.

Planting began this year on February 10, when the first truck load of 1,516 fish was sent to one of the state-leased streams. Distribution has continued as rapidly as possible to streams under state lease, with some contributions to other streams which the Board has been assured will not be posted.

Including the plantings this year will be 25,000 adult brown trout, or about 9,000 more than were distributed a year ago. These trout will average from 1/4 to 3/4 of a pound in weight and range from 8 to 12 inches in length.

Leaflets which will contain the names and locations of all state-leased streams, the regulations in force for anglers, and other information pertaining to fishing, are being prepared by the Board. These will be given to town clerks, patrolmen and county wardens for distribution and also may be obtained at the office of the Board.

Of the streams under lease last year the Board has had to surrender the Saugatuck in Fairfield County and the west branch of the Salmon in Granby. Some of the property has changed owners and the new owners have been unwilling to have the waters open to the public.

HARVARD ALUMNI RAP COLLEGE AUTHORITIES

Ask That Scrubwomen Be Paid $280 In Back Wages Coming to Them.

Cambridge, Mass., March 17.—(AP)—Harvard college authorities, in a statement today, took cognizance of a letter of protest by alumni regarding wages paid scrubwomen at the college library who were dismissed last fall.

The college statement said the authorities "are now fully informed, and they believe that at all times the cleaning women in the library have been paid at least those wages required by the minimum wage law."

Among the signers of the alumni letter, that the attitude of the college authorities had been "harsh, stingy, socially insensitive and considerably short of the highest ethical standing of the time," were: Samuel A. Eliot, professor of English at Smith college and grandson of the late President-Emeritus Charles W. Eliot of Harvard; Lloyd Garrison, New York attorney; John H. Gray of the United States Department of Labor at Washington; Robert Moss Lovett, University of Chicago Professor and Rabbi Samuel Thurman, of St. Louis.

Gloucester, Mass., March 18.—(AP)—A new system of electrical reproduction of sound, described as a "striking advance" over methods now used in the radio, phonograph and motion picture records, has challenged the attention of those industries.

The new device is the work of John Hays Hammond, Jr., noted inventor, and was demonstrated recently before a group of experts on sound reproduction.

Many famous artists, including Leopold Stokowski, Serge Koussevitzky, director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, and Mary Garden commended the invention, the statement said.

The device was described as "eliminating extraneous mechanical noises and giving a far more satisfactory rendition of tonal color and dynamics."

London, March 17.—(AP)—Figures for British naval expenditures in the forthcoming year showing a saving of more than 4,000,000 pounds sterling from last year were made before the House of Commons today by A. V. Alexander, First Lord of Admiralty.

At the same time he took occasion to deprecate pessimism about the naval conference to answer criticisms of the big warships men who have decided that Britain was making too great sacrifice in naval strength compared with other powers.

Winston Churchill, one time first admiral himself, reiterated to a large extent the points in recent navy league attack upon the government's cutting down cruiser strength to an immense extent.

BAD LUCK PURSUES TRANS-OCEAN HOP

Three French Planes Crash Before They Leave Fields; No Trips This Year.

Paris.—(AP)—Two of the three trans-Atlantic flights from Europe to America, planned by the French aviators for 1930, have already crashed before the planes got out of the hangars.

Captain Henri Carreterre had announced their intention of attempting Le Bourget to New York and Jean Assolant, Rene Lefevre and Armand Lotti, who last year went from Old Orchard, Maine to San Sebastian, Spain said this year they would reverse the route and fly from Seville to Maine or New York, according to the weather.

Carreterre's trans-Atlantic plane was burned at Villacoublay field when, after emerging from the hangar, it struck a wire and burst into flames. Lotti, backer of the proposed Seville to America flight, told the Associated Press recently that his plane, which he intended to fly westward, could not be ready until July, or early August, and therefore too late for 1930.

Only Postponed "The flight is only postponed," Lotti said, "We will certainly try it in 1931."

Costes alone remains as France's hope for a Parisian New York flight in 1930.

Brequet is building a new plane for Costes, along with the general outline of his "Question Mark" plane, equipped with three 600 H. P. Hispano-Suiza instead of one and with lifting capacity of two tons more than the plane with which Costes broke the world's long distance, non-stop, straight line flight record, Paris to Tientsin, China, last autumn.

Other Hard Luck Cousinet, a young man, new to French aviation manufacturers, has had very bad luck in his enterprises. His plane, with thick wings in which the fuel is stored, crashed with Maurice Drouhin, once pilot for Charles Levine, and Drouhin lost his life in the accident.

Although lacking funds, Cousinet rebuilt the same model for Captain Carreterre, war ace, and it went up in flames without ever having left the ground.

The abandonment of the Lotti plans for a Seville to America flight, Cousinet asked what had become of the successful trans-Atlantic flyers.

He learned that Assolant was back at his old job of mail plane pilot between Paris and Strasbourg for the French postal service. He aided in the divorce courts with the former Pauline Parker of New York, he has gone completely out of the news.

Rene Lefevre has been promoted to chief mechanic in an airplane factory in Paris.

Lotti is managing his hotel in Paris.

"And listen," Lotti confided to the correspondent, "I am out $5,000 on the flight. We made no money."

ROSE PRUNING By FURMAN LLOYD MOLFORD Bureau of Plant Industry, U. S. Department of Agriculture

Pruning of garden or cut-flower roses depends on results desired.

If a great mass of bloom is wanted, little pruning is necessary. If large flowers with long stems are desired, then the pruning must be severe.

Intermediate pruning will give intermediate results.

The age of the plant and its previous treatment will greatly influence the amount of pruning.

Pruning should not be cut back so severely as a bush accustomed to severe pruning year after year.

Different Treatments The kind of bush also determines the treatment it should have.

Tea roses such as Isabella Sprunt, Maman Cochet and Marie Lambert, should not have such a large proportion of the bush taken off as should the hybrid teas, such as Radiance, Killarney, Mme. Butterfly and Souv. de Claudius Permet.

Tea rose or a hybrid tea rose more than two years old and pruned regularly each year will be from eight inches to a foot high after the spring pruning. Cut it back to this height and remove all weak branches and those growing across the plant.

Severe Pruning Necessary The height of hybrid perpetuals after a pruning for large flowers with long stems will be about 15 or 18 inches. When it is recalled that these bushes often grow to a height of eight feet the severity of the pruning to obtain the finest flowers will be evident.

Pruning should be done when the young leaves begin to push out. Cuts should be made about a quarter of an inch above a bud that points outward so that the new shoots will grow away from the center of the bush rather than toward it.

A bakery isn't the only place to go for a roll these days.

THEY CALL RUBIO HERMIT PRESIDENT

Retreats to Castle at Capital and Refuses to Make Public Appearances.

Mexico City.—(AP)—President Pascual Ortiz Rubio's first administrative actions promise to gain for him the sobriquet of "Mexico's Hermit President."

The virtual seclusion in which the new executive has placed himself by removing his residence and offices to Chapultepec castle, which is easy to see in Mexico City but hard to gain access to, and his continued refusal to attend banquets, along with his withdrawal from public appearance—those things are distinctly new to the Mexican people and furnish reasons for the possible nickname.

Mexico's recent presidents, for the most part, have been somewhat averse to royalty in that they consciously or otherwise were used for display purposes, being frequent attendants at public inaugurations, banquets and other functions which go to make up Mexican life.

Hardly a week went by that the president has not been called upon to attend a sporting event, participate in the pending of a new public work or building, attend a banquet or reception, or make some other public appearance.

Ortiz Rubio, however, gives indications of being of a different stripe. Prior even to his inauguration he publicly stated that he would not attend banquets and that none was to be organized in his honor. The understanding was that this notification went likewise for various other public functions where his presence might be expected.

Ortiz Rubio has made only one public appearance, and that of the briefest nature, since his inaugural six weeks ago. He bade farewell to the Mexican athletes going to Cuba for the Central Olympic games in a brief reception at his home. It was said his greatest interest in sports was largely instrumental in his consenting to this action.

Otherwise the executive head denied himself to the public and for the most part to private audience. Inasmuch as it had been extremely difficult for persons other than government officials even to gain access to his home. Once inside the house persons eager to talk with Ortiz Rubio have found themselves relayed to secretaries who handed their business.

By withdrawing largely to private life Ortiz Rubio believes he can accomplish a greater amount of work and lend himself more assiduously to the task of working out Mexico's multiple problems, to which principle he is pledged.

Gifts, Premiums, Big Sales, At Hale's Wholesalers' Fair

Unique Event Planned for This Week End at the Self Serve Grocery Department; Manufacturers and Packers Joining in Big Demonstration.

This week end marks an unusual event in merchandising in Manchester and the inauguration of an idea that may prove to be popular in stores throughout the country before long.

Practically all of the large wholesale houses with whom the Hale Company does business are entering into the affair this week.

The purpose of the special displays and demonstrations is to allow the great wholesale concerns and the manufacturers and packers of well known national products to express their appreciation to their Manchester customers.

Although the average shopper knows and readily recognizes the names of well known brands of goods, it is seldom that the buyer knows the name or trade cognomen of the manufacturer, packer or wholesaler handling that product.

The entire Self Serve grocery department interior is to be rearranged for the Manufacturers and Packers displays. There will be exhibition booths down the aisle of the spacious store and a row of demonstration booths down the center of the department.

Just as an example of what the various manufacturers and packers are planning to do at the Self Serve this week end glance through this list:

DE RIVERA'S BODY Brought to Spain

Madrid, March 18.—(AP)—The body of Don Miguel Primo De Rivera was brought back to Spain, entering the country at Irun, the same frontier city through which so many of those he exiled when dictator, left their homeland and from which he himself departed just a month ago, discredited and cast aside.

Friends and foes alike, their bitterness quenched at the Bier, planned for him the highest honors to the Spanish monarchy accord to one not its sovereign. The former dictator will be buried as though he at his death still was premier and with the military pomp as rank of general.

The funeral party will remain at Irun which is near San Sebastian until late this afternoon. The body will be removed from the train at the border city to a special chapel in the railway station where a mass service will be sung, departure for Madrid following.

The funeral train will arrive at the Notre station, Madrid at seven a. m. tomorrow morning. Another mass then will be sung inside the funeral car.

The funeral cortege will leave the train at 11 a. m. escorted by representatives of every branch of the Army and Navy carrying draped banners. It will go directly to San Isidro cemetery where the body will be interred in the family vault next to that of his wife. A volley will be fired over the grave.

HOUSE TO PROBE RAIL OWNERSHIPS

Committee Wishes to Know This Before It Approves Big Mergers.

Washington, March 18.—(AP)—Investigation of railroad holding companies by the House Interstate Commerce committee is expected by Chairman Parker to begin early next month with members of the Interstate Commerce Commission as the first witness.

The procedure under which the investigation is to be conducted is being formulated by Dr. W. M. W. Splawn, special counsel retained to direct the technical phases of the inquiry.

The commission officials are to be heard first, Parker said, in order to lay the ground work for the investigation which is to be made by the committee.

It would be futile, Parker said, "for this committee to recommend enactment by Congress of legislation to bring about consolidation of the railroads when we do not know who owns the railroads. The investigation was not authorized with the view of determining whether there was anything illegal in the formation of these holding companies because it is realized these big corporations would not knowingly go beyond the law. However, things that are lawful at one time sometimes become unlawful after legislation affecting them is passed."

He explained the inquiry also would be directed into the states to learn the decisions of the courts under state laws and how the different state commissions have dealt with the holding companies within their jurisdiction.

The Interstate Commerce commission had found, the New Yorker said, in making its survey looking to the consolidation of the fifteen hundred railroads of the country into twenty-one great systems that it had been unable to ascertain who actually owned and controlled these railroads.

The purpose of the consolidation, he explained, was to link the weak lines with the big systems in order to insure transportation to all regions now served. He added that many small lines had been operating without making a profit and said that many of them "were barely making operating expenses."

The small lines are necessary, he pointed out, to serve communities which have no other outlet for their products. He said that true consolidation of the business as cheaply as railroads.

Buffalo, March 18.—(AP)—Lila Jimerson, 35, Indian woman will go on trial for murder tomorrow morning without having been able to enlist the aid of the U. S. government in her defense.

However the state already has assigned the reservation attorney to Eads to face trial for killing deputy sheriff.

"THE GREEN GODDESS" AT STATE TOMORROW

George Arliss in Renowned Feature on Double Picture Bill Here Two Days. Richard Barthelmess in Rex Beach's "The Son of the Gods" will be shown at the State for the last times today. The new program Wednesday and Thursday brings George Arliss in "The Green Goddess," and Marian Davies in the roaring comedy "Not So Dumb." George Arliss appears once more on the talking screen, this time in "The Green Goddess." It is a talking version of his great stage success and he gives a performance which he has never excelled in his long career on the stage and screen. Mr. Arliss is supported by a list of notable players who help in a measure to make this picture what it is. There is Alice Joyce, a favorite of many years and Mr. Arliss' choice as leading lady. Miss Joyce can all depend upon to give a capable performance and she lives up to her reputation this time. H. B. Warner needs no introduction to screen fans. Always popular, his talking pictures have brought him absolutely up to the front rank of film players. Ralph Forbes and Ivan Simpson also have important roles.

Marion Davies' cyclonic personality in "Not So Dumb" makes this characterization by far the most delightfully humorous she has achieved. It is an adaptation of the famous stage farce "Dulcy," and Miss Davies attracts the last ounce of fun out of the leading role. Miss Davies is ably supported by an excellent cast headed by Elliott Nugent and Raymond Hackett. On Wednesday night, the second international night, known as "American Night" will be observed. Six entertaining acts are all ready to go on and the audience will have an opportunity to select the act to enter the finals which will be held in a few weeks. HEBRON

The farm owned by Barnet Goldstein, located on the old road to Colchester, about two and a half miles from the center, was sold to his brother, Isaac Goldstein of Hebron Center, March 8. The place was formerly known as the William Jones place, and consists of about 150 acres, with dwelling house and farm buildings. The dwelling house is a commodious colonial structure. The purchaser expects to occupy the place, with his family, in the near future.

The women's bridge club met at the home of Mrs. T. D. Martin Wednesday evening. The winner for the evening was Miss Susan Fenelon. Three tables were in play. A social hour followed bridge playing, during which those present were given an opportunity to look over the old house, and to inspect the addition which has been recently put on the house.

Mr. and Mrs. Dwight Tucker and Mrs. Tucker's sister and husband all of Hartford, were recent visitors at the home of Mr. Tucker's mother, Mrs. Carrie T. Burnham.

The Ladies Aid Society of the Hebron Center Congregational church held the usual weekly meeting at the church parlors, Wednesday afternoon. The time was spent in working on comfortable to fill orders.

The Bible class taught by the Rev. John W. Deeter was held at the center Thursday evening. The book of Ephesians was taken up for study. This was the first time in the past year in which the class has met, it having been omitted on account of other conflicting engagements.

Several local members of the Colonial Silver Company, Chapter D. A. R., attended a meeting held at the home of Miss Abbie Willard in Colchester, Wednesday afternoon. A feature of the program was a paper read by Mrs. Daniel Markham, wife of Judge Markham of Westchester to go on and the subject of the manufacture and usage of silver. The paper was in part a report of a lecture given before the Norwich D. A. R. recently by James Little of New York, representing the International Silver company.

Mrs. Markham's talk was illustrated by interesting examples of early solid silver, including a "turkey spoon" with a very long handle, Apostle spoons, table spoons and teaspoons of solid silver were several which had belonged to the speaker's great grandmother. Miss Elizabeth Day exhibited silver ware including a solid silver teapot brought from England, and a silver spoon which she inherited from her father. She also showed a pewter Apostle spoon. Mrs. Markham's talk included a brief history of the work done in metals by Paul Revere, and showed pictures of his early industries in Boston. Contents of boxes to be sent to the Hiram settlement in the Southern mountains were also shown, and many other useful articles. A box of books to aid in hospital work was also contributed by the members. Refreshments of sandwiches and cocoa were served.

A meeting of the school board was held at the town clerk's office Thursday evening, in which the usual routine work of approving the payment of bills was enacted. It was voted to adopt a uniform rate in payment of services at the different schools for janitor work, including building of fires, sweeping, etc. More or less friction has been caused by different prices being charged for the same kind of service. It was also voted that next year the teachers' salaries shall be added to sufficiently to cover the cost of hiring such work done, leaving it with the teachers to engage the help or to do it herself if she wishes to. It was decided to eliminate the services of the assistant teacher in the Center Primary room beginning with Monday, March 17. The removal of one of two families to another part of the town has relieved the congestion somewhat, and the extra expense of having three teachers in the center has been thought unnecessary. Chicago, March 18.—(AP)—The scourge of gangland—the "ride"—added another to the long list of north side killings last night. Peter Bica who emigrated to America after graduating from the University of Rome, was dragged from a sedan by three men. From behind a nearby telephone pole a passerby watched the three empty bodies of the victim.

On the day after the body of John (The Billion) Rito was found floating in the Chicago River, police attributed Bica's slaying to a new north side liquor war. Bica's family however disputed the theory that he was allied with any liquor gang. Police connected Bica with the Alieo clan, once a powerful "mob" but now in the alcohol racket. Guns also roared on the south side—police guns. Two negro bandits were surprised robbing a shop and were killed in a gun battle with a detective squad.

Murder Backstairs

©1930 by NEA SERVICE INC. FICTION by ANNE AUSTIN AUTHOR OF "THE AVENGING PARROT" "THE BLACK PIGEON," ETC.

BEGIN HERE TODAY
THE CRIME: Doris Matthews, lady's maid, is murdered Friday night in summerhouse by blow with heavy perfume flask; body, rock-weighted, dumped into lake on estate of millionaire Berkeleys.
DETECTIVES: Bonnie Dundee, guest of Berkeleys, and discoverer of body at sunrise swimming party; Captain Strawn of Homicide Squad.
MEMBERS OF HOUSEHOLD: Mrs. GEORGE BERKELEY, social climber; George Berkeley, bitterly opposed to his daughter; CLORIN CROSBY, New York society widow and a close friend of Mrs. Berkeley's social secretary, MRS. LAMBERT; Clorinda; her sister, GIGI, who unaccountably sprinkled all guests Friday night with perfume from flask presented by Crosby to Mrs. Berkeley and later used as murder weapon; DICK Berkeley, infatuated with Doris, and now being sought by police as missing; EUGENE ARNOLD, chauffeur, engaged to Doris; WICKETT, butler, formerly in employ of both Mrs. Lambert and Crosby.

"Who do you mean, Mrs. Berkeley? Remember, you are accusing someone of murder!"

After girl's body is removed from summerhouse, Strawn informs Berkeley household that murder has been committed and goes with Dundee to question Mrs. Berkeley, who has not arisen. When told her son, Dick is missing and suspected of crime, she hysterically accuses an unnamed man of murdering both Doris and her son.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XIV
 "What do you mean, Mrs. Berkeley?" Captain Strawn asked again, when the hysterical woman had stopped screaming for a moment. "Remember, you are accusing someone of murder!"

"I mean Eugene Arnold, my chauffeur! That's who!" the woman panted, fighting off her husband's restraining hands. "Let me up! I'm going to find my boy! You can't hold me here making me answer silly questions, when my poor Dick—"

"Mrs. Berkeley, please try to control yourself!" Strawn commanded harshly, for he knew how a woman with hysterics. "I feel absolutely sure that your son is not dead, or where the girl's was hidden." He did not add that, at that very moment, Policeman Collins was diving into the lake on the same chance that another body lay on its cement bottom.

"And where—did you find—Doris?"

"In the lake, near the summerhouse," Strawn answered, with a little hesitating party early this morning and when she dived in she saw the body."

"Gigi! Oh, my poor baby!" Mrs. Berkeley sobbed, covering her face with plump beringed fingers. "Where is she? Where's my baby now? She needs her mother."

"Gigi is all right now, dear. She's with Mrs. Lambert," George Berkeley assured her, taking her hands to hold them tightly in his.

"Before Dick was rolled down the steps of the summerhouse into the lake," Captain Strawn went on, as if he had not been interrupted. "He had been hit upon the head with the crystal flask of perfume which Mr. Seymour Crosby gave you last night. The bottle broke and the perfume was spilled on the floor. We've recovered part of the fragments and one of my men is searching the lake for the rest of the pieces now."

"Hit on the head with my perfume flask?" Mrs. Berkeley repeated blankly. Then horror twisted her oddish, ugly face. "But this is all too silly! Why should—? Oh! She had stolen it, and it serves her right if she got killed with it!"

"Mrs. Berkeley," Dundee said gently, as he drew nearer the bed, "didn't I hear you say last night that Doris hated perfume, that it made her ill to smell it?"

"But she could have stolen it anyway, to sell!" Mrs. Berkeley cried angrily. "That's exactly what she did! The crystal flask must have been worth at least $50, and the perfume costs $32 an ounce. I know, because I bought some myself on the Rue de la Paix—some of the very same kind—Fleur d'Amour! Doris had heard me say how wonderful it was, and how frightfully expensive. But why are you telling me this? Why should I tell you Eugene Arnold did it? Why, it was only yesterday—"

"Just a moment, Mrs. Berkeley," Strawn interrupted. "Mr. Dundee writes shorthand, and I want him to take down the statement you are about to make. Where will I find paper and pencil, please?"

"In my sitting room—but I don't want you taking down every word I say," Mrs. Berkeley sobbed. "I'll be frightened to death!"

"At a nod from Strawn, Dundee left the stuffy, over-decorated bedroom and went through the little foyer into the almost equally ornate sitting room. In the unlocked Sheraton desk he found a thick pad of expensive notepaper, with a silver-embossed "Hilcrest." As he was leaving the sitting room there was a heavy knock and he opened the door leading into the hall, to confront one of the detectives who had been left on duty downstairs.

"Collins says there ain't no other body in the lake, sir, and that he's found the rocks and the bundle of glass."

"All right, Clemmons. Thanks! Tell the butler to take Collins up to my room by the backstairs, to change into his own clothes, then have him wait around downstairs until Captain Strawn has further orders for him."

When Dundee relayed the news to his chief, Strawn nodded. "Hear that, Mrs. Berkeley? Wherever your son is, he's not dead, for if he'd been killed with the girl, the murderer would have disposed of his body in the lake, too. . . . Now, ma'am, I want you to get hold of yourself and answer my questions fully and truthfully. This is no time to hold back anything."

"George, don't let that awful policeman talk to me like that!" Mrs. Berkeley moaned. "If I've got to be asked all sorts of frightful questions, I want Mr. Dundee to ask them, not that awful old bulldog! At least Mr. Dundee is a gentleman, even if he is a—"

"Criminologist," her husband supplied, with a slight smile. "Would you very much mind, Captain Strawn? My wife is a very—excitable person, and you must realize what an ordeal this is for her—"

"All right, Dundee! Go ahead!"

WEE MODERNS SHOW TENDENCY TOWARD SPORTS

Activities—The Shortest Route to Health

"Well, you see, dear Mr. Dundee," she began, "my poor, darling Dick is so—how shall I say?—susceptible! Not that I think Doris is—or was—anything to get excited about. . . . Well, anyway, Dick thought she was awfully pretty and cute, and he flirted with her quite a lot. I'm afraid—"

"Pardon! Did Doris encourage your son?"

"We-el, not exactly, at least when I happened to catch them together," she admitted. "You see, Dick got into the habit of dropping in when I was dressing, and I did suspect it was because he could see Doris. She acted as demure and shy as you please when I was around, but when I wasn't goodness knows—Anyways, yesterday I had been out shopping and when I came home I had a lot of bundles in the car, so I had Arnold carry them up for me. I sent him on into my bedroom while I stopped to look at the mail on my sitting room desk. Then I heard voices—Dick's and Arnold's and the maid's—and I hurried in here, just as Arnold was shouting to Doris: 'If I find out you're double-crossing me with this—I don't mean may-said, Mr. Dundee!' she concluded triumphantly."

"And did you discharge Arnold for his insolence to your son?" Dundee asked quietly.

"N-no," she admitted reluctantly. "I bawled him out, all right, but—well, you see, with Mr. Crosby coming and the big party tonight, and all, I simply couldn't fire my chauffeur and my maid. There wouldn't have been time to get others—"

"I had a heart-to-heart talk with Dick. He adores me, just as my other children do," she went on fatuously. "I made him promise to let Doris strictly alone—"

"Do you know what Arnold had seen, when he came into the room?"

"From what they all said, he saw—he saw Dick kissing Doris," Mrs. Berkeley admitted reluctantly. "Anyways, he told me he was sorry about it all, and promised faithfully not to have anything more to do with the girl. And I know he would have kept the promise if he hadn't drunk a little too much at dinner last night. . . . You needn't think, Captain Strawn," she added, "that you can arrest my husband for buying bootleg liquor. All our wines and whisky and liqueurs are pre-para. I made George buy a big cellarful before prohibition went into effect."

"I'm on the homicide squad, Mrs. Berkeley," Strawn reminded her grimly.

"Oh! Well, then, you can simply arrest Eugene Arnold—if you can find him!" she cried. "Don't you see what happened? My poor Dick did forget his promise or, maybe that deceitful girl led him on! Anyways, he met her and Arnold caught them making love in the summerhouse, and he killed Doris and Dick escaped," she summed up triumphantly. "Don't you see it all? Poor Dick was simply frightened out of his wits, for fear he would be accused of the crime, and—he ran away! Please hurry up and arrest Arnold so it'll be in the papers and Dick will know he can come home!"

"You'd make a great detective, ma'am," Strawn told her sarcastically. "But there happens to be one or two little points your fine theory don't explain. First: how did the perfume flask get mixed up in the murder? If Doris was simply going out to meet your son, why should she take a stolen bottle of perfume with her? She couldn't very well hide it from him during their love-making."

He was interrupted by the sound of a door being flung open, followed by quick footsteps in the foyer. Then that door, too, was wrenched open.

"Dad! Mother! What the devil did you send for the police for? Can't a fellow spend a night out of his room without a swarm of detectives being called in to hunt for him?"

YOUR CHILDREN
 by OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

Do you say to the children: "Now don't tell Mrs. Smith where you got that dress, Mary. If she asks you about it, just say you don't know?"

"Be sure you tell Mr. Brown that you think Dad's gone on a business trip, Billy. He doesn't need to know that Dad took a day off to go to town with me."

Because if you do, it won't be so very long until the chickens come home to roost. You'll be wondering how in the world you come to deserve having two such little liars for children.

One day I watched a little girl getting ready for a party. As her mother slipped on the slick little cream alpaca coat and its small matching chapeau, kissed her child, handed her the ribbon-tied tissue wrapped present, she asked suddenly, "What'll I say, Mother?"

"Say? Why just 'How do you do, Mrs. Jones. I'm so glad to come to the party.'"

"No—but what'll I say? When I went to Kitty Lou's party I talked all wrong, you said. The ladies asked me—"

"Oh, I know! You told all the family secrets, didn't you?"

She smiled at me.

"Well, what'll I say? I never know what to tell them because you get cross."

"I won't get cross this time, dear. Just say anything you like."

"I see."

I wasn't there when the small miss returned, but I knew very well that if she'd been called down before for being natural and telling the truth, the chances she'd be called down again. It set me to thinking about this business of older people with their easy conversational adjustments, and their feeling of justification in side-stepping facts, expecting young minds to use the same mature sophisticated judgment.

When a Lie's a Lie
 Children cannot distinguish between an absolute lie and that easy glossing over of the truth.

They don't know the meaning of evasion, they are not adroit at changing a subject without answering, or giving an ambiguous reply that tells nothing at all. We older people get very expert at these things. We know how to divert our audience, dressing up our replies and, according to our elastic consciences, sticking strictly to the truth.

We have no right to confuse children about the things they should or should not tell. A little advice on the subject of reticence is not a bad idea, but it must be proscribed carefully so that the child does not get the idea that misleading others is paramount to truth.

What is the difference if Mrs. Smith knows that Mary's dress is made out of your old blue jersey. If Dad deliberately left his desk to go shopping, certainly Billy need not be chosen as attorney for the defense.

No, I shouldn't fill the children up with what they should or should not tell the neighbors. There's a good chance that the neighbors know any way—at any rate, their mystification comes too high if Mary's and Bill's veracity is the price of it.

His second campaign proved to be one of the most remarkable in American politics, and an event which helped make it so was his Venezuelan message sent to Congress in 1895. Great Britain, which for a long time had been encroaching on the territory of Venezuela, refused to arbitrate the subject. Cleveland's impulsive message hinted war and England, thoroughly upset, accepted the arbitration. This was

and then do not usually appear in the life of the individual. One may have a cold again for the simple reason that the germs which cause colds may be taken in with the air or on the hands in various other ways and set up infection whenever the mucous membranes are lowered in their resistance.

Hence, most physicians recommend that the one best method for preventing colds is to keep the body in as good a condition as possible. This is done by proper food, the proper amount of rest, exercise and fresh air.

In many instances the nose is so constructed that it is not possible to breathe easily through both sides; the air currents do not circulate properly, and the obstruction prevents the discharge of material from the nose. In such instances it may be necessary to open the breathing space by various methods of lessening the size of the structures within the nose, by shrinking the membranes or by changes in the septum.

The tissues of the human body tend to self-regulation. However, they respond readily to abnormal conditions and if they are to regulate themselves well, they must be given a fair opportunity. In many instances modern surgery is physiologic surgery. It restores the normal conditions under which tissues can function efficiently.

A common cold is not like other infectious diseases, which occur once

called "the most signal victory of America diplomacy in modern times."

Smith knows that Mary's dress is made out of your old blue jersey. If Dad deliberately left his desk to go shopping, certainly Billy need not be chosen as attorney for the defense.

No, I shouldn't fill the children up with what they should or should not tell the neighbors. There's a good chance that the neighbors know any way—at any rate, their mystification comes too high if Mary's and Bill's veracity is the price of it.

His second campaign proved to be one of the most remarkable in American politics, and an event which helped make it so was his Venezuelan message sent to Congress in 1895. Great Britain, which for a long time had been encroaching on the territory of Venezuela, refused to arbitrate the subject. Cleveland's impulsive message hinted war and England, thoroughly upset, accepted the arbitration. This was

and then do not usually appear in the life of the individual. One may have a cold again for the simple reason that the germs which cause colds may be taken in with the air or on the hands in various other ways and set up infection whenever the mucous membranes are lowered in their resistance.

Hence, most physicians recommend that the one best method for preventing colds is to keep the body in as good a condition as possible. This is done by proper food, the proper amount of rest, exercise and fresh air.

In many instances the nose is so constructed that it is not possible to breathe easily through both sides; the air currents do not circulate properly, and the obstruction prevents the discharge of material from the nose. In such instances it may be necessary to open the breathing space by various methods of lessening the size of the structures within the nose, by shrinking the membranes or by changes in the septum.

The tissues of the human body tend to self-regulation. However, they respond readily to abnormal conditions and if they are to regulate themselves well, they must be given a fair opportunity. In many instances modern surgery is physiologic surgery. It restores the normal conditions under which tissues can function efficiently.

A common cold is not like other infectious diseases, which occur once

called "the most signal victory of America diplomacy in modern times."

HOW SHOULD I PREPARE "BAKED STEAK"?

To preserve meat juices in steak, bake it with a thick layer of Ivory Salt on both sides, remove from the oven and scrape off the encrusted salt. This assures full flavor without "saltiness."

You sometimes hear that some other loaf is "as good as Bond Bread." When people want to speak in the highest terms of anything, they say that "it is as good as gold."

Of course, it is not as good as gold unless it is gold, and no bread can be as good as Bond Bread unless it is Bond Bread.

Night Hawks Still Lead Herald Bowling League

Majors Also Take 3 Points; Charter Oaks Get 4; How They Stand.

Like a basketball team stalling for time as it enjoys a comfortable lead in the final period, the Night Hawks clung to their three point lead in the Herald Bowling League last night by trimming the Centers 3 to 1. The Majors could do no better against the Construction but Charter Oaks showed surprising strength by winning four from the British-Americans, putting them one point behind the Majors and three in arrears of the leaders.

SPRINTER ALSO A WRITER. Cy Leland of Texas Christian University, besides being one of the best sprinters in intercollegiate athletics is sports editor of the Skiff, T. C. U. student newspaper.

WILL BOOM TRACK SPORTS. Fritz Crisler, who recently was appointed director of athletics at the University of Minnesota, has gone on record as strongly favoring a better development of track and field sports at the Gopher school.

SPORT PLANTS

The idea that there are any barriers, age limits or other restrictions to golf has been pretty well dispelled. There is no better evidence of this than in the enthusiasm for the sport of one of its most distinguished devotees, John D. Rockefeller, Sr., who in his ninety-first year plays a game for which he needs make no apology; out of which he derives keen enjoyment and healthful profit.

To this observer, following one of his eight-hole tours of the Ormond Beach Golf Club, Mr. Rockefeller seemed to epitomize much that golf has done for the world of sports and recreation in America on a scale thought impossible a few years ago and unapproached anywhere else in the world. Golf "teaches many things," Mr. Rockefeller observed. Toward it he exerts a fine philosophy and a tranquility of spirit that many, if not most of the game's followers find somewhat difficult to develop.

If it is a good shot, Mr. Rockefeller is as delighted as any beginner. If it is not, he considers that a part of the game, too; perhaps to be redeemed later. His game has the advantage of steadiness, of direction and consistency, rather than length or power that belongs to youth. He has many of his happiest days and moments in the brief round that is a part of his retired life.

In Mr. Rockefeller's lifetime, golf has come as a conqueror of America. As men and girls, young men and women, share the course with him now, where in his own youth, the sport was not even in its "barnyard" stage it had not been introduced to the country. Mr. Rockefeller himself did not take up the game until he was around 60, an achievement in itself and one to which no other outdoor sport of skill could point.

Washington & Jefferson College, with an enrollment of scarcely more than 500 students, has held its own in the big-time college football circuit much longer than most of the "Davids" of the gridiron. Centre College, when it came out of the Kentucky hills to slay some of the big ones, had only about 250 students but it was only a flare-up. St. Mary's College, near San Francisco, has turned out a succession of great football players and a student enrollment of about 700 and had the best record in 1929 of any team on the Pacific Coast.

Years ago, the University of the South (Seawee) turned out some of the best teams in Dixie from a mere handful of less than 150 students. There was a rule at the time which placed any institution with under 150 students in the prep school class and one of the Seawee stars took advantage of this, after four years of competition, to play three more on the varsity at another seat of learning in the South.

COLUMBIA IS GIVEN 4 OUT OF 5 BERTHS ON ALL STAR TEAM. New York, March 18.—(AP)—Columbia's championship places four men on an All-Star Eastern Inter-collegiate Basketball League squad picked annually for the Associated Press by coaches of the six league members.

Lois Gender, sophomore forward, and George Gregory, center, were given an unanimous vote and Don Magurk, veteran guard, received nine out of a possible 12 points. Sammy Schoenfeld, another sophomore, was the fourth Columbian to be named to the first team but he was forced to share a forward post with Tanser of Penn. Tanser, although he played guard all season on the Penn team was selected for the forward post by most of the coaches who voted for him.

The other guard posts went to Bob Lewis, high scoring ace of the Cornell team. In the voting for the second team, Brodbeck, Penn. forward, Jones of Columbia at one guard position and Magner, Penn. and Wittmer, Princeton at the other. Patterson, Yale and Lewis, Dartmouth were joint choices for the second team center place.

The Nut Cracker. While American Bowling Congress rules forbid smoking by the bowlers in the big tournament, lucky strikes are in evidence on every one of the 32 alleys.

The bowling tournament, unlike these heavyweight boxing tournaments, is one instance where they pay a man for calling fouls. Magnolia gets money for ignoring them.

Still, an A. B. C. tournament is quite an important affair. Every game bowled goes down in the Congressional Record.

The bowlers don their silks at the paddock; they parade to the post; but one thing missing is the little booth where a fellow can lay down his two-dollar bet.

There were only three impossible persons among the 22,000 at the Miami scrap, said Tom Webster, noted English cartoonist. "One was Sharkey, another Scott, and the third Magnolia."

Carnera Knocks Out Wiggins In Second

St. Louis, March 18.—(AP)—Chuck Wiggins, Indianapolis battler of policemen, found the going too rough against Primo Carnera, the mountain from Venice here last night and the Italian won his tenth straight American knockout victory. Wiggins succumbed in the second round of a scheduled ten round bout. He went through the ropes twice in the first minute of the second frame, the first time willing hands held him up and the second time prostrate outside the ring, where he was counted out.

Lon See, manager of "The Carnera" was jubilant over his oversize battler's victory. He placed "Sharkey, Dempsey or anybody" as a suitable opponent for the giant's next entry into the ring.

Large Share of Primo's Growing Wealth Goes To Old Folks at Home. Primo Carnera, husky Italian heavyweight, establishes a record for eating champions every time he comes to the plate—that is, the dinner table. This picture shows Primo going for a triple-portion of spaghetti and meatballs, while Manager Leon See looks on in wonderment. And the contents of the jug? Oh, use your own judgment.

BY CLAIRE BURCKY. Some night you may see Primo Carnera batter his opponent to the canvas in a spectacle billed as a boxing contest. You'll see him hurry to the dressing room where he takes a hasty shower and hurriedly dons his ten-like clothes. If you are standing beside the dressing room door, you might see him dash to the street, hail a taxi and speed away as if the followers of Big Boy Peter-Roux were hot in pursuit and were going to stage a lynching party with the mammoth Italian as the guest of honor.

But Primo is only making his midnight dash to the telegraph office to cable a few thousand dollars to Santo and Giovanni Carnera, back in a little cottage at Seguals, tiny Italian village near Venice.

Story after story and picture after picture of Mussolini's rival for Italian publicity honors have gone into the papers these past few weeks. Many have looked upon it all as press-agentry, ballyhoo and as a press-agency. But this is true. He spends money to his father and mother after every fight and out of the first check Primo bought them the little cottage they formerly rented.

Weighted 20 Pounds at Birth. Santo and Giovanni named him Primo because he was their first born. He weighed 20 pounds at birth. The father was 29 years old then and six feet one inch tall; the mother was 22 and five feet ten inches.

Primo stepped out into the world to make his own way when he was 14. He became a carpenter's assistant. Drifting into France, he caught on with a traveling show as strong man, weight lifter, wrestler—anything that brought money to produce the food his growing body demanded.

A year from that day in October, 1928, when M. Paul Journee, one-time sparring partner for George Carpentier, discovered Primo sitting on a park bench in Arcachon, the giant Italian died at the town house of Lord Birkenhead in London, seated at the left hand of the Prince of Wales. Goals were torn burst open at the throat and the ragged pants. They had changed Cinderella-fashion to immaculate evening clothes—long-tailed coat, white waistcoat and studded shirt. And he was as natural as an unaffected in one place as the other.

Three weeks of training in Leon See's fight stable in Paris and Eudeline, famous ex-jockey and chief trainer, reported to his boss: "This big Italian giant wants to fight."

HOOKS AND SLIDES

SPRING FANCIES. I watched Connie Mack's athletes do sham battle with the St. Louis Cardinals at Bradenton, Fla., the other day. Spring is a time for fancies, the poets insist, which may have been why I found myself wondering if the A's are going to be champions of the world again this year.

You can't tell a great deal in the training camps about how ball teams will be playing July 4. Teams look wonderful down south and come home and play ping pong and charades. Last year Connie Mack left his team during the training season, disgusted at the way the club was performing. But after the schedule was started, it was hard to get the Athletics out.

There is a difference in spirit at the various training camps, however, and it is remarkable this year. The A's, in training, have not looked like champions to me. They are going about the business in a matter-of-fact way. Mickey Cochrane helps to keep them on their toes, but without him, the team appears to be just another baseball nine. Philadelphia can fear the worst if anything goes wrong with that pitching staff. The team hasn't a great infield, with Foxx, Bishop, Boley and Dykes. Foxx is a good first baseman and a hitter from Bingham, but the rest of the inner circle seems to be only lukewarm.

This begins to sound like what No Club Above Improvement the trade calls "the blast" or what in somewhat higher circles might be termed knocking. But, after all, ball teams are only ball teams and none is above improvement. I thought the Backs were going about their training activities in a somewhat, bored and lackadaisical manner, and you can't play ball that way and win any marbles.

The Yankees, Tigers and Indians have just begun to fight. Meusel and Durocher are missing and Bob Shawkey has aroused the spirit of a team that played indifferently during the 1929 campaign. The Yankees, in the mood they have been displaying in Florida, are going to be hard to beat. There is new life in the Tigers this year, too. These things are not hard to sense. The signs of life stick up in the clubhouse, on the playing field, in the hotels after the practice games. Buckey Harris is bound for the first division this year, and his lads are ready to give all they have to help him.

The Indians tasted blood in the closing weeks of the 1929 drive and with a magnificent Buckey Harris in the last few games passed up the lagging Browns and took the show money. They have their eyes on higher things. Fertil should win at least 15 games and Hudlin, with any kind of breaks, will get even with some of the teams that beat him by one run last season.

The Macks are due for an awakening unless they snap out of it. But then, perhaps this is only a spring fancy, after all.

gracious social contribution to the pleasure of the evening." Only a short time before that the British press was in an uproar over this "blood-thirsty, man-eating jungle beast," who "slavered over his kill." Primo also spent several minutes in conversation with the Prince of Wales. Returning to his hotel by auto, he said to Carnera: "Well, my boy, what is your opinion of the prince?" "He looked about 147 pounds to me," answered Primo. "He never will get above welterweight."

DID YOU KNOW THAT— Eddie Collins can put a half dollar on his wrist, snap his fingers and make the coin do a handspring. . . . He showed the trick to George Earnshaw and Jack Quinn, free of charge, in the street before the Bradford hotel in Fort Myers, Fla., the other day. . . . Glenn Liebhardt, rookie pitcher from Cleveland, who sprained his ankle in bunting practice, says he thinks Mr. Mack likes him pretty well as he gives him a lot of attention. . . . If Tigers Win Flag Credit Arnica

BY JOE O'GOOFTY Pitcher for the Yankees. If Arnica will win the pennant in the American League League, I think I am safe in saying the Detroit Tigers have clinched the flag. I was over at the Tigers' camp at Tampa the other day and heard a story I think ought to be repeated Jimmy Dugan is the trainer of the team and when the boys went south, Prexy Navin gave Jimmy $500 with which to buy Arnica, lardine, and other essentials for keeping a team in condition.

After the Tigers were in camp about a week and a half, Jimmy asked Mr. Navin for some money with which to buy gauze, tape and a few other little things a trainer needs in his business. "But what did you do with that $500 I gave you a little while ago?" asked Mr. Navin. "I bought Arnica," replied Jimmy, "but this team uses up a lot of Arnica, Mr. Navin. We're out to win the pennant this year."

Jiminy didn't say how much Arnica he thought it would take to win a world series, but if Detroit should win the American League flag, Mr. Navin will be ready to write Jimmy a check for $1000 for a little more Arnica.

But if Fat Fothergill and Benny Meyer, the friendliest of enemies, do not quit cheating one another at Tom Thumb golf, Jimmy's Arnica might come to good use, after all.

GIRL SHOWS THE BOYS HOW. Ridgefield, Wash.—(AP)—Coached by a woman, Miss Catherine Colleary, the Hockinson grade school boys' basketball team has won the division B championship in this section. The quarter went through the season undefeated.

RACE ATTENDANCES INCREASED. On practically every race track that operated in the United States and Canada last year, new attendance marks were established.

Meusel, Heimann, Durocher Among Most Prominent Newcomers; How They Shape Up.

Orlando, Fla., March 18.—(AP)—The Cincinnati Reds this year have a new owner, a new manager, new spirit—and some old familiar figures in new uniforms. They hope the commission will make the Red legs conspicuous in the National league chase this year.

Late last season, the ownership of the Reds passed to the hands of Sidney Weil, young and energetic auto dealer who admitted a lack of technical baseball knowledge but possessed excellent enough business judgment to engage the capable Dan Howley as general manager of the force on the field. Backed by Weil, Howley has given the club a drastic shaking up and developed a habit of hustling that may make the Reds a decided factor this season, even though they hardly can hope to entertain any pennant prospects.

Howley has concentrated on the development of new pitchers, the encouragement of the old and the acquisition of a bigger punch in the outfield by obtaining Bob Meusel and Harry (Sig) Heimann from American league clubs at an outlay understood to be around $50,000. The new manager found ready made for him such assets as the great right-handed pitcher Charles (Red) Lucas, a sensational catcher in Clyde Sukeforth; and a fine second base combination of Hughie Critz and Ford. Leo Durocher the peppery lad obtained from the Yankees will help this combination.

Meusel and Heimann in fine condition and eager to show they can hit National league curves as hard as they hit American league fast balls, give the Reds a much needed cleanup wallop. Howley will be disappointed if these two do not hit around 350 apiece. They will be supported probably by Ernest Evans Swanson, centerfielder, and one of the fastest men in baseball, with Curtis Walker, Ethan Allen and perhaps Earl Webb, former Cub in reserve.

The veteran George Kelly at first and either Charley Dresen or Joe Strip at third will round out the infield. Nothing is the matter with the good right arm of Lucas who won 19 games last season, or the southpaw of Jackie May. They are the aces of the staff. Peter Donohue, much heavier and stronger, and Eppa Jetha Rixey, towering southpaw, probably will capitalize their experience as relief men. Howley hopes to develop at least one, if not two consistent hurlers for his remaining crop.

Before going to the baker's for tribute gangsters should know which side their bread is buttered on.

SENSE and NONSENSE

Playin' Checkers. There's lots o' fun in winter when woods is full o' haze. An' the blue smoke comes a-curlin' where the cabin fires blaze; When the squirrel shakes the hick'nuts that tumble fur an' free; But the best fun's playin' checkers by the chinberry tree.

That takes you back to summertime—the village heaves in sight. The sun a-silverin' the leaves an' burnin' 'em with light; The whole town run the grocery store a-lookin' on to see The boys a-playin' checkers by the chinberry tree!

A pine box was the table—what they shipped the dry goods in. It was kinder hacked an' whittled, but a 'riginal as sin! With the board marked out in pencil, jest as plain as plain could be, For the boys that played the checkers by the chinberry tree.

I used to stand an' watch 'em—jest a boy, with ragged hat. Suspenders made o' cotton, an' me wearin' 'one at that! It was most as good as swimmin', or as flyin' kites to me. To watch 'em playin' checkers by the chinberry tree.

The mayor came out to see 'em, an' the marshal left his beat; The preacher, kinder solemn-like, came walkin' down the street. An' half forgot his sermons of salvation full and free, As he watched that game o' checkers by the chinberry tree!

You could hear the birds a-singin' in the meadows fur away. The whistle o' the partridge an' the wranglin' o' the jay; An' the trains rolled to the station jest as noisy as colliers; But they kept on playin' checkers by the chinberry tree!

I guess they're still a-playin' though the years has rolled away; An' the boy that loved to watch 'em is a-gettin' old an' gray; But I see the light still shinin' on the meadow-land o' Lee. An' in dreams I'm playin' checkers by the chinberry tree!

THE TINYMITES STORY BY HAL COCHRAN—PICTURES BY KING

(READ THE STORY, THEN COLOR THE PICTURE) The ocean liner picked up steam and, while a whistle seemed to scream, it slowly left the dock behind and headed for the sea. The Tinymites stood by the rail, so startled they were almost pale. Said Scouty, "Gee, the trip in store gives quite a thrill to me. "When we are on the ocean blue, far, far from land, our dream comes true. We've always wished that we could go upon a trip like this. It's really hard to understand we'll visit every foreign land. We'll keep our eyes wide open so there's nothing we will miss." The Travel Man then said, "Let's go into our cabin down below. You all can put your grips away and then come back out here. I'll take you all around the ship and not a single thing we'll skip. We'll even go up where we all can watch the pilot steer." So to the cabin they all went and about a half an hour was spent in making things real tidy. Then out to the deck they ran. Wee Clowny promptly cried, "Oh, see, the big Statue of Liberty, I guess we're passing by it just as close as we can." The friendly Travel Man soon roared, "Let's have a game of shuffle board. It is a game they play on deck. I'll watch and you four play. They went to where the game was spread out on the deck and Copy said, "We'll choose up sides and two play two. 'Twill be real fun that way." All of the Tinymites shortly found 'twas fun to push the disks around. Each time somebody made a point, the bunch let out a roar. The Travel Man joined in the fun by cheering each and every one. He also helped the game along by marking up the score. (The Tinymites visit the pilot house in the next story).
