DAILY LENTEN THOUGHT

By WM. E. GILROY, D. D. Editor of The Congregationalist

Did you ever notice the incidents of human life with which Jesus was associated or which He most emphasized in His teaching? They were the common experiences of loss and trial that are most discouraging and hard to bear, even when they are not touched with tragedy.

What did Jesus bring to them all? Redemption—a buying back of something that they had lost; a sense of restoration; a satisfaction and peace. Yes, there was also the loss of life itself, of which the Master made a gain.

TODAY IS THE ANNIVERSARY

CALL FOR VOLUNTEERS

On April 15, 1861, three days after the Confederate attack on Fort Sumter, President Lincoln issued a call for 75,000 volunteers.

"I appeal," wrote the president in his proclamation, "to all loyal citizens to favor, facilitate and aid his effort to maintain the honor, the integrity and the existence of our national union, and the perpetuity of popular government; and to redress wrongs already long enough endured."

The proclamation was sent the governors of all the states, but in seven, where insurrection prevailed, it was assailed with the bitterest scorn.

A typical reply was that of Governor Harris of Tennessee, who wrote: "Tennessee will not furnish a single man for coercion, but 50,000 if necessary for the defense of our rights, or those of our southern brethren."

While the north responded with spirit to the call, popular excitement and enthusiasm in the south is said to have equalled that which marked the early stages of the French revolution, and more than 200,000 Confederate volunteers offered their services to Jefferson Davis.

JUDGE PARKER

Organized labor, represented by the American Federation of Labor, is bitterly opposing the ratification of the appointment of Judge John J. Parker of North Carolina.

Because Judge Parker upheld the lower court and sustained the injunction, President William M. Green of the Federation says: "It is inconceivable that any man who has shown such judicial bias against the working people of the country can be elevated to the highest judicial tribunal of the land."

How completely unfair this is will be quickly understood from the statement, prepared by the Department of Justice and issued by President Hoover, which shows conclusively that in the Red Jacket case Judge Parker did no independent judicial thinking whatever but followed precisely the law laid down in a similar case by the United States Supreme Court.

Having found it impossible to establish a system of juryless trials of liquor law violators, as proposed by the Wickersham Commission as one means of eliminating federal court congestion, the House Judiciary Committee is about to present to Congress a proposal for the appointment of eighteen more federal judges as another way of speeding up dry law trials.

Eighteen new judges is not enough. It isn't anywhere near enough even to dispose promptly of the number of cases already being prepared by federal prosecutors; and everybody knows that only an insignificant percentage of Volstead law violators are being prosecuted at all.

The money for the salaries of these officials and for the expenses of their courts and the prosecutions ought to be available. There are enough dry voters among the members of the House and the Senate to at least put to work the hundred and seventy-five millions a year that the London naval agreement is going to save from warship expenditures.

It is a favorite dry complaint that the general public does not take prohibition seriously. We know of no place where it is held more lightly and as little meant as among dry representatives and senators in Congress.

matter from the earlier one. The first has been disposed of. The latter still awaits disposition.

HOOVER'S ADDRESS

There are probably a good many members of the Daughters of the American Revolution who are firm believers in the righteousness and potential efficacy of the World Court. As a unit, however, one would not look to that organization for very enthusiastic support of the proposal for American affiliation with that tribunal.

Addressing his audience, which is quite deeply committed to a policy of "national defense," which verges at least on militarism, the President permitted himself to dwell on that subject at rather unexpected lengths. It is perhaps just a little significant that the most eager applause given to any sentence of the Presidential address came when he said: "Let no one mistake me; there is a price no nation can afford to pay for peace."

Further pointing out that America is very largely defended against any possible foreign aggression by her geographical situation, her resources and her genius for organization, Mr. Hoover forcefully presented this country's moral and spiritual duty, "because of our distinctness and our freedom from these haunting fears," to undertake a part in securing the peace of the world—a duty that can "only be fulfilled to its fullest measure by maintaining the fullest independence."

As an effort to take the fixed determination of Americans to maintain adequate defense and freedom from entanglement and adjust it to the spiritual obligation of this nation to work diligently for the peace of the world, President Hoover's address was skillful and convincing. He linked with unescapable force our position as a signatory to the Kellogg peace pact with adherence to the World Court.

MORE JUDGES

Having found it impossible to establish a system of juryless trials of liquor law violators, as proposed by the Wickersham Commission as one means of eliminating federal court congestion, the House Judiciary Committee is about to present to Congress a proposal for the appointment of eighteen more federal judges as another way of speeding up dry law trials.

STREET SPEEDING

Since the Herald, a couple of weeks ago, urged the Police Commissioners to take under consideration the adoption of the so-called Stratford system of automobile speed control on the streets of Manchester, one good citizen pedestrian has been killed on the Main street speedway. If nothing is done to put a brake on the rate of travel on that street and others in the thickly settled part of the town, there will almost certainly be other deaths.

If the Commissioners have taken the question of establishing definite speed limits under advisement we have heard nothing of it—certainly no action has been taken.

What will probably be the most active season in the history of automobile speeding is opening. Unless forceful steps are taken to restrain the almost universal speeding tendency on Main and Center streets in particular it is too much to hope that the season will not witness a casualty list as tragic as unnecessary. It is practically impossible for the police under present conditions to control the situation to such an extent as to make it reasonably safe. With established speed limits and proper notification by signs, drivers could be held to compliance with the rules of reason.

IN NEW YORK

New York, April 22.—Ringsiding with celebrities... Few stage idols have been so loyal to the "folks on the road" as William Hodge, with the result that he remains today one of the last of the troupers, still going about the cities and provinces alike season after season, heedless of Broadway and adored by the Main streets.

Hodge ran away from Albion, N. Y. He wanted fancy fortune, even as the heroes of the Alger tales. His brother was a theatrical man, a manager for the George Hill Company. Why not make his brother give him a job? He was 18, and his parents objected. So he came on to New York. This was his first introduction to Broadway, but he met James A. Herne, who cast him in "Sag Harbor." His performance attracted the attention of George Tyler and thus he leaped into the role that made him famous—"The Man From Home."

In the event that the youngsters have forgotten, this was a play that made "Abe's Irish Rose," look like a one night stand, for "The Man From Home" ran for nearly five years after that Hodge began to write his own plays to fit his own particular fancy. The "road" accepted him, the "road" made him and Hodge looks upon Broadway only as a place to start from and come back to.

Noted in passing... Helen Morgan the crooner, threatens to start a night club in Paris this summer. Early in her career she had a club on Broadway, but wound up in an argument with the prohibition authorities... Edna Ferber's "Cimarron" has already been grabbed by the talkies and by Broadway... Oscar Hammerstein will turn it into an operatic venture a la "Show Boat."

And Flo Ziegfeld, when he finished his first talkie for one of the major concerns, is expected to start making pictures on his own, backed by a wealthy Wall Street broker... Harry Richman is expected to bid farewell to the night clubs again... and not because of Clara Bow.

And Harry Speller's new jazz band is expected to be backed by a wealthy Wall Street broker... because all but three of its members actually cough up regularly to ex-wives... The boys who used to collect ships' models are now going in for models of covered wagons and Concord stage coaches.

The Manhattan automats have never allowed women to smoke in their food resorts, but the complaints have been so many that they're about to surrender.

About New York

By RICHARD MASSOCK. New York.—Tune writers of Tin Pan Alley are an American phenomenon, as peculiar as the make-believe land of the movies.

Improvident and sentimental, for the most part, they go through life to a rhythm that is either "hot" or "sweet."

If experience is one essential of success, they have it and the songs that issue forth are as likely as not to contain amount of personal emotion.

All of which comes from a music publisher whose hair has turned gray from handling the intimate affairs of his talented piano pounders and who submits the following story.

"Baby, Come Back." Like others before him, a certain young man, strayed from the path of conjugal felicity as soon as he began to write song hits. With sudden wealth he plunged into a reckless affair so indiscreet that his wife one day gathered their baby to her arms and went home to mother, who happened to live in Los Angeles. So sharply were the home ties

The Spring Song—With Variations!

The Daily WASHINGTON LETTER

By RODNEY DUTCHER

Washington.—One of the real high lights of the history of the Muscle Shoals legislation, to which little attention has been paid is the unprecedented manner in which a large national organization of women took hold of the public side of an economic question and worked actively for it over a long period of years.

The National League of Women Voters was the only large national organization of women to take up the cause of the Muscle Shoals. It was organized in 1927 and its program along with such matters as the Sheppard-Towner maternity and infancy act and the Kellogg peace treaty.

Many women's organizations endorse measures, but the league works for them as well. League speakers explained Muscle Shoals at state and national conventions and members were showered with information on all latest developments. The national board selected the Norris bill as embodying the league's principles. Local leagues all over the country formed study groups. Outlines for study were distributed and thousands of innocent women became initiated in the abstruse secrets of synthetic nitrate processes and hydro-electric energy.

When the time came they wrote to their senators and congressmen and showed familiarity with a subject concerning which nearly everyone is still rather ignorant. The league is organized in all but three states, so nearly everyone in Congress heard from league members about Muscle Shoals. To this day those little local leagues are still excited and active. The league is organized in all but three states, so nearly everyone in Congress heard from league members about Muscle Shoals. To this day those little local leagues are still excited and active.

Always, even when presenting a brief before a congressional committee, the league lied up Muscle Shoals with the vacuum cleaner, the electric toaster, the washing machine and the curling iron. It explained that its aim in life was education of its own members and through them the public. No one was able to find a selfish interest on the league's part and power company representatives could only attack it as "misguided." The women voters provided help for Norris when he needed support the worst way and today it stands again with him on the brink of victory.

Leslie is a former vaudevillean, whose partner, Edna Baker, was also his wife. Then he was a booking agent and as such brought negro talent to the Broadway night clubs. He first introduced Rosa and Carmela Ponselle to vaudeville, although he is perhaps best known for sponsoring the late Florence Mills.

Aside from that he handles all the details of his productions, is very nervous and, his associates say always thinks he is sick.

Bucharest, Rumania, April 15.—(AP)—The Rumanian foreign office today stated that rumors published in Vienna yesterday of the arrest of two American girls at Constanza as spies, were entirely unfounded. The home office and chief of police also made similar denials saying that no Americans had been arrested anywhere.

A WASHINGTON DAYBOOK

By HERBERT PLUMMER.

Washington.—That robust good-natured gentleman—Charlie Abernethy—who represents the third district of North Carolina in congress, was invited to a party the other night.

During the evening he was introduced to a distinguished Washington woman. Her name he did not divulge. When she learned that he was a congressman, she said bluntly: "You know, sir, I think congress should be abolished." And when Abernethy inquired as to why she favored a move so revolutionary, the woman replied: "Because you are always picking on the District of Columbia."

That started him to thinking. And the other day on the floor of the house, when the annual appropriation bill for the district was up for consideration, he sought an explanation.

"What's the trouble with us up here?" he asked. "What are they always pecking at us about? I am just wondering if we'll ever be able to get along with the district."

His colleagues laughed heartily. The feud between congress and the District of Columbia is a thing of long standing. Simmons of Nebraska, a member of the appropriations committee, after the laughter had subsided, suggested that probably it was thought congress was not running the district on a grand enough scale.

"Is the gentleman to keep us from being abolished?" asked Abernethy. "They seem to have it in for us for some reason, and I don't understand it."

"No city in the United States enjoys the advantages from its city government that the citizens of the District of Columbia enjoy at the hands of the government of the District of Columbia."

For Baltimore. Lithium of Maryland was on his feet in an instant. "I'm willing to set up my city of Baltimore against the District of Columbia at any time," he shouted.

"Well," said Abernethy, after he had listened to explanations for "pecking," "I want Washington and the people of this great city to get what's coming to them, but I think a spirit of friendliness and co-operation with congress should prevail."

"With all this criticism," I can't see why a man would want to stay on a committee like appropriations where they are always being jumped on."

HEALTH DIET ADVICE Dr. Frank McCoy says "The Fast Way to Health" QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

DIETETIC TREATMENT OF DIABETES. The start of the treatment should bring about a stimulation of the liver and gall bladder and for this reason I usually advise the patient on the first night to take four ounces of olive oil and four ounces of grapefruit juice just before retiring, and beginning the next morning to take the juice of a grapefruit every three hours during the day and to drink large quantities of distilled water with the juice. In many cases the sugar will disappear from the urine within a few days after beginning this fast, and does not again appear if the patient rigidly follows instructions. Following the fast a milk diet is usually beneficial, using not over three or four quarts of milk daily with the addition of a citrus fruit, preferably orange or lemon to stimulate the flow of bile so that the patient will not become bilious from the large amount of milk. Throughout this time two enemas should be taken daily. Exercises should be gradually increased, but the proper periods of rest and sleep must be taken. The patient should also endeavor to correct any mental strains so as to avoid a loss of energy. It is very important that healthful, happy thoughts be substituted for depressing ones. The proper skin elimination should be assured by taking one or two shower baths followed by a brisk rubdown daily. Following the fasting regime, here is a model of the diet which may be used: BREAKFAST: Choice of one kind of protein, such as eggs, nuts or cheese. Only one egg should be served, or two ounces of nuts; or two ounces of cheese. Three or four slices of Melba toast. (This is toast dextrinized completely through, which changes the starch). A small dish of stewed fruit, such as prunes, figs, raisins, baked apple or apple sauce; no sugar being added. Between breakfast and lunch at least one quart of distilled water should be taken. LUNCH: Choice of one or more as desired of the following vegetables: celery, spinach, small string beans, asparagus, cucumber, egg plant, small beets and tops, summer squash, small turnips and tops, small carrots, small parsnips, lettuce, okra, chard, oyster plant, (salsify), mallow, kale, zucchini, parsley, endive avocado (alligator pear), or ripe olives. These may be used both cooked and raw. In the afternoon at least one quart of distilled water should be used. DINNER: Choice of one of the following proteins: Beef, mutton, rabbit, chicken, fish (except salmon) cottage cheese or cream cheese, gelatin, frog's legs or turtle. Not over a quarter of a pound of meat should be used, or a corresponding amount of one or more vegetables from the list used at lunch. No desserts. One should continue with this diet for at least several weeks before any attempt is made to use any other carbohydrate food. The urine should be tested to see if the sugar has disappeared. If not, it is sometimes advisable to take a milk diet for

"GENERAL CRACK" HERE FOR 2 DAY SHOWING

Barrymore's Latest to Be Shown at State Tomorrow and Thursday.

John Barrymore in his first talking picture, "General Crack," comes to the State Wednesday and Thursday.

Only those who have heard John Barrymore in "Peter Ibbeston," "The Jest," "Richard the Third," or, that supreme test of any actor's genius, "Hamlet"—can appreciate what an event in the entertainment world his coming into talking pictures really is.

"General Crack," the eighteenth century historical novel, which Warner Brothers chose for Mr. Barrymore's advent into the audible films, gives him a starring role of unequalled possibilities.

General Crack, known also as mad Prince Christian, was a real character of the early eighteenth century.

Born of a gypsy mother, his father being a member of the nobility, his after life was a complex of wine women soldiers of fortune, selling his services to the highest bidder.

Stock Exchange members, while extolling the debt redemption proposal in the budget expressed fear and concern that the increase in the standard rate of income tax will affect the investment business.

Brewery shares, which might be affected as a result of the increased tax on beer, held steady, since it had been expected the tax would be higher.

Each one looks very, very neat and they would fit right on my feet. Let's go up to the workers where we all can plainly see." At one place they all watched them chip wood into shape at quite a clip. At first the shoes were just long blocks and you would never think that into shoes they'd soon be made. Said Clowdy, "Say, aren't you afraid that you will cut yourself?" And then a worker gave one wink. "Oh, no!" said he. "You see, we know just how each knife and saw should go. We've been hard at this sort of work for years and years and years. It's really all in knowing how. And, if you'll watch, you'll see right now, that we cut wood just like girls cut nice paper dolls with shears." And he was right. The work was neat. Said Clowdy, "Say, you cannot

KNIGHTS TO CONFER SECOND ON APRIL 28

Will Strive to Get Out Big Crowd of Members—Meeting to Be in St. James's Hall

The second degree will be worked by Campbell Council Knights of Columbus on Monday evening April 28 in St. James' Hall, the local rooms of the Council being insufficient in size for the degree. At the meeting April 28, an effort will be made to get out as large a membership as possible and an especial effort will be made to have many of the older members in attendance.

To bring this about a committee consisting of G. H. Williams, Leo J. Cleary, J. J. Sweeney, John Tierney, A. E. Magneil, John Shea, John H. Gill, Paul Moriarty, William P. Quish, Edward J. Murphy, Robert McVeigh and R. E. Carney has been named.

This will give an opportunity to have another class in the first degree before the second degree is held and not only will there be a large class for this degree, but a special effort made by the committee named last night to get out enough members to pack St. James' hall.
